PAMPA — Police are investigating an episode of deadly conduct after an man pulled a small handgun on another man in Prairie Village Park Thursday.

John Henry Ryan, 47, told Pampa police that he and another man were arguing about 10 p.m. when the man pulled the gun on him.

The suspect pedaled away on his Huffy bicycle, which police found and booked into evidence, Lt. Steve Chance said today.

Ryan is uninjured, Chance said.

PAMPA — The Celebration of Lights' Christmas in July Trade Days continues this weekend at the Pampa Mall.

Featuring crafts, a flea market, food booths and other exhibits, the Trade Days will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 12 noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

A Wheels Car Club show will be part of the activities for Saturday.

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A judge today rejected O.J. Simpson's attempt to subpoena a screenwriter to force her to testify at his murder trial about her interviews of a detective the defense accuses of planting evidence.

Simpson attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. said he would appeal the decision.

Detective Mark Fuhrman did use racial epithets in taped interviews conducted during the past 10 years with Laura Hart McKinny, the professor testified at a hearing today.

Cochran said it was critical to Simpson's defense to have the tapes and McKinny's testimony in the Simpson murder trial, where he denied under oath that he had used the epithet in referring to blacks during the past 10 years.

CHICAGO (AP) — Thirty-two more bodies turned up as heat-related fatalities, raising the city's death toll from the devastating heat wave to 529.

"These are people that have been laid up in the hospital, for example, what we'd call delayed fatalities," said Dan Collins, an investigator for the Cook County Medical Examiner's Office.

Other bodies came from funeral homes.

The mercury soared past 100 degrees on July 13 and 14 in Chicago, which hadn't seen a 100-degree day since 1991. Temperatures are expected to shoot into the 90s this weekend.

Under a plan announced last week, the city will declare a heat watch if the heat index — a combination of heat, wind and humidity — exceeds 90 degrees.

Judge Muns sets $1 million bond for rape suspect

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

A local justice of the peace set bond at $1 million for a man charged with raping a local woman after kidnapping her and her two children Monday afternoon.

Jody Edward Brunson, 23, was charged Thursday with two counts of aggravated kidnapping, and single counts of aggravated sexual assault and burglary of a habitation following his arrest in Love County, Okla., Wednesday morning.

Jody Edward Brunson

Justice of the Peace Bob Muns set bond at $250,000 on each charge. Brunson remains in Gray County jail.

Gray County District Attorney John Mann says he plans to seek the maximum penalty for the local charges — 99 years for each of the first degree felonies.

Brunson, of Mineola, sat with his head hung and feet shackled as the charges were read and bond amounts set Thursday afternoon in the tiny, but packed non-jury courtroom of Gray County courthouse.

Parks Board hears report on youth program, request for Lions Park soccer field

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

Valencia Barber, a co-founder of the Community Summer Youth Program, thanked the Parks and Recreation department for their help in making the program a success at Thursday's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board meeting.

She also explained the program in detail to the advisory board members and shared with them the future plans for the program.

Barber, who says she has a background in writing grant proposals, hopes to secure a grant for the program to finance the building of a community facility.

She says that would help increase next year's attendance at the program.

The program averaged about 10 people for morning activities, though that number grew in the evening for night volleyball games.

Barber told the advisory board that a support letter for a grant package would be helpful, as would matching funds.

But, she added, "the normal stuff you can do is great."

Chris Perez, president of Hispanos Unidos, appeared before the board to discuss the

He also faces charges in other counties including theft by check in Randall County, issuance of bad check in Lubbock County, aggravated kidnapping in Potter County and aggravated assault in Armstrong County.

Judge Muns set a $250 cash or $1,000 surety bond on the theft by check charge and a $300 bond on the issuance of bad check charge and continued the bonds of $8,000 and $5,000 on the aggravated kidnapping and assault charges.

At the time of Brunson's arrest, he was serving a 10-year probated sentence for sexual assault which occurred in 1989 when he was accused of raping the wife of his father's employee in the bedroom of her Pampa home, court records say. Brunson pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 10 years deferred adjudication probation June 28, 1989.

Brunson faces a motion to proceed with an adjudication of guilt on the first sexual assault charge. He violated that probation June 7, 1993 when he was charged with burglary of a habitation in Skellytown and delinquency on fines, court records show.

Brunson told Muns he had lived in Mineola for the past year and San Angelo for the year before that. He said he is unemployed, but draws worker's compensation following a work-related injury after two weeks on the job at H.B. Zachary in Borger.

building of a new soccer field.

Lions Park, currently adopted by Perez's organization, holds a softball field that Perez says could be converted into a soccer field as well.

Reed Kirkpatrick, parks director, and Shane Stokes, recreation director, agreed to move a chain-link fence in 20 feet, cut down four trees and move a slide to create the field, leaving it usable for softball as well.

Stokes told the board in his report that city pools will close Aug. 20, not Aug. 16 as previously announced.

He also said that his department could possibly schedule more family swim nights next year, as well as offering a season swim pass for half-price midway through the summer.

Kirkpatrick told the board that his department is still somewhat behind on mowing as a result of the heavy rain season, but they should be caught up by next month.

Personnel in his department will also rebuild the west bridge in Central Park, which was demolished in the recent flooding.

Kirkpatrick's department will also begin another cycle of mosquito fogging Monday, a cycle that lasts three to four days.

Pampa businessman Bob Curry, pictured with his wife Alleith, is the winner of the 1995 Colonel Bogey Award from the Tri-State Senior Golf Association. Curry, a 19-year member of the association, received the award during the group's annual banquet Thursday night at M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium and Civic Center. The 300-member group presents the annual award to a member who has made outstanding contributions to the association. The Tri-State Senior Golf Tournament concludes today at the Pampa Country Club (see story and photo on page 9).

As Pampa National Guard has reunion, Bill Ragsdale recalls formation of unit

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

When members of the Pampa Army National Guard Unit meet this weekend for their second annual reunion, they can thank Bill Ragsdale for the opportunity.

Ragsdale was instrumental in the founding of the unit in 1948 after he was approached by some interested citizens who knew Ragsdale as an officer from the U.S. Army.

Ragsdale was a first lieutenant in the Army and was a B-17 pilot in England when the Germans surrendered.

Looking back, Ragsdale implies that the decision to start the unit was easy.

"If the country needs an army, we need education to do something about it," he said, emphasizing preparedness as an all-important virtue for the country.

"We need to be prepared for war. One reason for Pearl Harbor was that we were not prepared. We could have been taken over very easily if our enemies had known how weak we were," Ragsdale says.

"We're in the same position today. ... [The army] is not a luxury, it's a necessity."

Ragsdale did some investigating and found out that he could choose between two types of units — infantry or a sound and flash unit.

"The infantry gives excellent training for marching, shooting and saluting. ... [But] I had enough knowledge of the infantry that I supposed I would have more success recruiting for the sound and flash unit," he says.

Sound and flash units are trained in various ways of tracking down enemies, he explains.

Those on the sound side work as seismologists, using equipment to record the sound of cannons

Bill Ragsdale spends his days now as executive director of Good Samaritan Christian Services, but in 1948 he was instrumental in the founding of the local National Guard unit. The unit celebrates its second annual reunion starting today.

and artillery. They then triangulate the position of enemies with the echoes they record.

Flash workers are able to triangulate enemy positions literally by the flash of the weapons when fired.

Because of the complexity of those tasks, sound and flash units allow for what Ragsdale calls "good ratings," or members with higher rankings.

One early member had never heard of trigonometry, an essential element in the unit's training, before he joined the local unit. A few years later, Ragsdale recalls, that man became a lieutenant and later taught trigonometry in schools.

Ragsdale served in the local National Guard unit for about five years before he resigned. He remains a big supporter of their work, though.

"We still need it today, a strong reserve and a strong regular army," he says.

The National Guard provides what Ragsdale calls a "cadre," a key group of trained men necessary to train new recruits.

That cadre would form the backbone for a new army, if the need ever arose, he says.

"I believe in preparedness," he says.

Ragsdale adds that people around the world are envious of the freedoms Americans have and "are willing to brave a bullet to get here. We ought to be able to brave a bullet to protect it."

The Pampa National Guard unit is hosting its second annual reunion this weekend at the Coronado Inn, offering meals, fellowship and entertainment.

PEDC board approves change in plan for investment of surplus funds

Board members of Pampa Economic Development Corporation met with record speed Thursday for a routine agenda.

The panel granted authority to board treasurer Wayne Stribling to invest surplus PEDC funds in government securities without requiring board action for each transaction. Stribling must act with another board member before the investment is made, the motion requires.

Surplus funds were first invested in treasury notes in February. Currently, $496,015.63 is invested in treasury notes.

Funds on hand for PEDC use, aside from those invested, total $335,097.90. Board members learned:

• A disaster-related loan was granted to Miami Roustabout. Two loan applications were received for disaster-related loans, with the second request denied.

• Fork Stork Manufacturing needs only more piece of equipment before production begins.

• A possible 20-acre site has been selected for Gray County's proposed girls' boot camp. Jack Ippel, executive director of PEDC, told board members a development agreement is needed before the owners are approached about the property sale.

• Rent on PEDC's offices is going to rise by $25 per month from $100 to $125, according to a letter from landlord Southwestern Bell.

Wanda Edler of Houston, Bette Allbritten of Conroe, Wilma Kusch of Enid, Okla., and Doris Uhlenhake of Kingfisher, Okla., were among the Tri-State golfers' wives who played bridge at the Pampa Country Club, part of the activities scheduled for spouses this week. In addition to a separate nine-hole golf tournament for wives on Monday, other activities included a ladies luncheon and style show on Tuesday, a seniors' wives putting tournament and a brunch on Wednesday and a two-person scramble golf Thursday at Hidden Hills Golf Course. The bridge play was held each afternoon in the front lounge at the Pampa Country Club.

Cooling break from heat wave forecast

Temperatures are supposed to soar over the century mark again today although a cooling trend is supposed to lower area highs into the 90s for the weekend and 80s by early next week.
 The mercury peaked Thursday, according to the National Weather Service, with Quanah reported to be the hottest place in the state. The southeastern Texas Panhandle town reported an official 113 degrees.
 Hemphill County officials said it was at least 107 degrees in Canadian Thursday.
 "The bank sign said 114 degrees at 5 p.m.," said Shaaron Keener with the Hemphill County Sheriff's Office.
 John Clark with the Wheeler County Sheriff's office said the bank sign there registered 105 degrees.
 Pampa recorded 103 degrees Thursday and an overnight low of 69.
 Amarillo reported a new record high Thursday, 104, two degrees higher than the record set in 1940. Dalhart reported 101 degrees Thursday while Childress reported a high of 109.
 There were patches of light fog around the Panhandle at dawn today as the humidity built up to 81 percent.
 The forecast for the Texas Panhandle is for temperatures to start dropping as a cold front moves through. Highs for today should still hover around the century mark, with the forecast high today for Pampa at 102.
 Temperatures should drop into the upper 90s by Saturday and mid 90s on Sunday.
 There is a chance of thunderstorms beginning Monday. Temperatures are expected to be in the upper 80s through next week.

Mexican feeder steers and heifers sell steady

SANTA TERESA, N.M. - Mexican feeder steers and heifers sold mostly steady this week, according to the USDA Market News Service, despite the closing of the main crossing point.
 Santa Teresa was closed this week and the previous week because of the heat, USDA officials said today. There were no imports or exports through the Santa Teresa facility during this period. The facility will reopen Aug. 1.
 The USDA Market News Service reported today that there were 18,085 feeder cattle imported week to date. The number of feeder cattle imported so far this year total 1,048,318 compared to 619,209 for the same period last year.
 Demand was reported moderate with an estimated 8,000 head crossing from Mexico along the Texas and New Mexico border today compared to 10,063 a week ago.
 Last year, 5,451 head crossed during the same time period.

Dallas student earns perfect score on SAT

DALLAS (AP) — Maybe no one is perfect, but Lamar High School senior Claire Morris gave it her best shot.

Morris scored a 1,600 on the Scholastic Assessment Test, the highest score possible. The exam is generally used to determine a student's potential to succeed in college.

She is considering attending several colleges on the East coast, and hopes to pursue a career in English or history.

Her mother, Susan Davis, said Morris didn't cram for the college entrance exam in June, but has been prepared by her academic lifestyle.

"She has been mainly a reader," Morris' mother said. "She has never been a fan of sitcoms. She has never spent her time like that."

This year's scores have not yet been accumulated from around the nation, but last year only 25 students made perfect scores, said Fred Moreno, spokesman for the College Board.

Morris is currently on vacation in Europe.

Austin council votes to ban public camping

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin City Council has moved a step closer to cracking down on its homeless population by voting to prohibit public camping.

The ordinance, approved 4-2 on Thursday, needs two more votes before becoming law. The council is expected to consider the ban again in September.

The ordinance drew heated protests from the homeless and others, and it received lukewarm endorsements from two council members.

More popular was a resolution offered by Council Member Jackie Goodman to identify city-owned land for use as a homeless camp. The resolution was approved 6-0. It creates a task force to identify city land for a homeless campground.

Advocates of the ban say it is necessary to help protect public areas and public safety.

Hot and dry summer lowers Edwards Aquifer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The hot, dry summer is taking its toll on the Edwards Aquifer.

The waterway, which is the sole source of drinking water for San Antonio, dropped Thursday to within one foot of the level that triggers a plea for voluntary conservation.

As of Thursday, the aquifer had dipped to 656 feet, a fall of more than one-half foot from the day before. The fall is blamed on a 21-day drought that's included several days of near-100-degree highs.

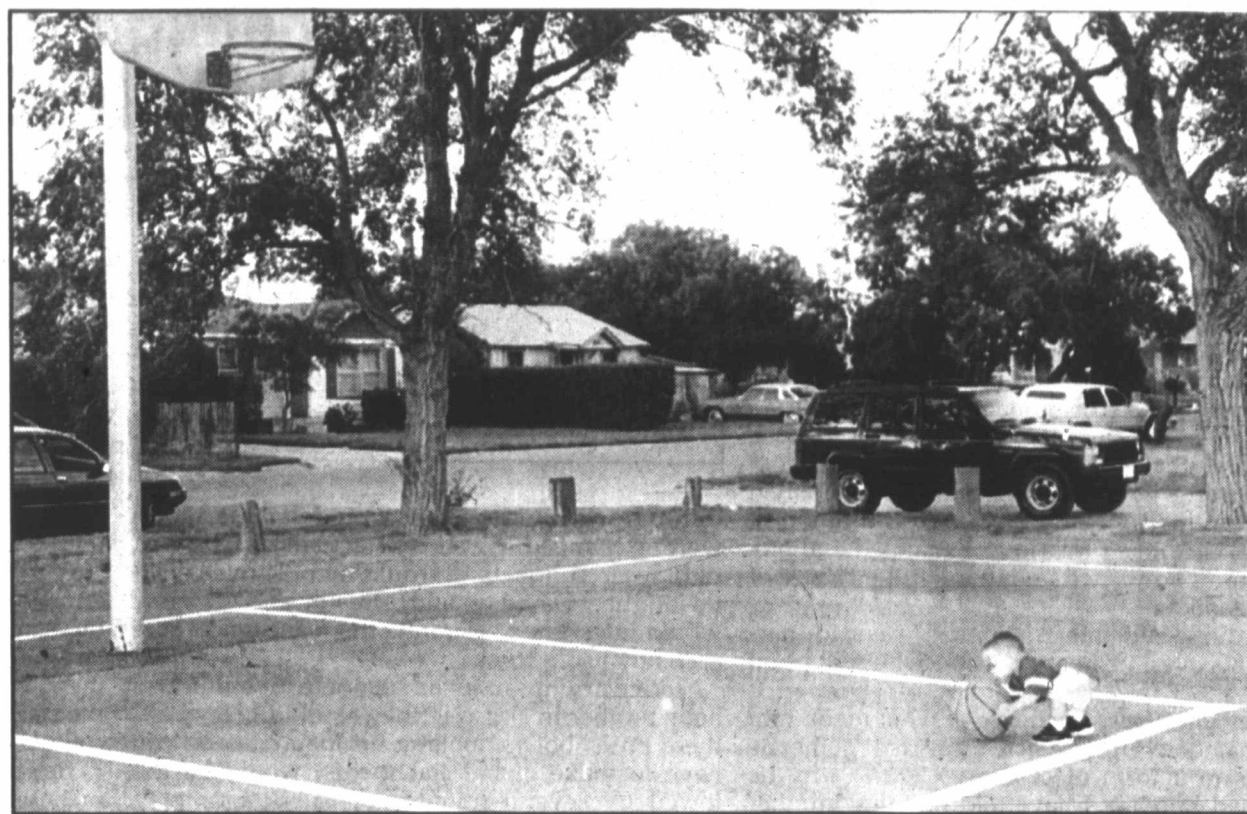

San Antonio Water System officials believe the level will drop to 655 feet today, beginning the first of three stages of water conservation established by a city ordinance.

Space station survives attack in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space station survived one attack on the House floor Thursday, but defenders of the manned laboratory that will orbit the Earth were bracing for a second assault on the multibillion-dollar program today.

As the House moved toward completion of a $79.4 billion spending bill for NASA, housing and veterans affairs departments and other agencies, opponents planned to offer an amendment pulling the plug on the space station.

The amendment by Reps. Dick Zimmer, R-N.J., and Tim Roemer, D-Ind., would kill the space station by diverting $1.6 billion of its $2.1 billion appropriation next year to deficit reduction. The remaining $500 million would be earmarked for termination costs.

Boosters of the space station, which employs thousands of people at Johnson Space Center near Houston and other NASA centers, predicted Zimmer-Roemer would be defeated. But they expressed some concern that its promise of deficit reduction could sway budget hawks, especially the huge 73-member GOP freshman class that has demonstrated its conservative bent repeatedly this year.

"The (vote count) numbers we have look pretty good but you never know in the heat of the moment," said Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston.

On a 299-126 vote Thursday, the House overwhelmingly rejected an amendment by Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., that would have cut $1.6 billion from the space station, shifting the funds to other programs.

The vote marked a slight gain from last year, when on a 278-155 vote the House rebuffed an attempt to kill the station. That vote was a dramatic turnaround from a year earlier, when the space station survived by only one vote.

"More and more, Congress is beginning to understand the value of this project," Rep. Robert Walker, R-Pa., chairman of the House Science Committee, said Thursday.

Obey urged House members to back his amendment, saying that the country can ill afford to finance the huge orbiting laboratory when cuts are being made in other government programs.

"These times require very tough choices," said Obey, who is ranking Democrat on the Appropriations Committee.

His amendment would have divvied up $1.6 billion in station savings equally among deficit reduction, veterans medical programs, low-income and elderly housing, and another NASA research and development. The remaining $500 million would have gone for shutdown.

Supporters argued that the space station will provide valuable scientific knowledge, as well as possible medical breakthroughs, and that its termination would doom NASA.

Astronomers find new moons around Saturn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronomers discovered two new moons, and perhaps two others, in Hubble Space Telescope photos of Saturn, the ringed planet that already has 18 identified natural satellites.

Amanda S. Bosh of the Lowell Observatory near Flagstaff, Ariz., and Andrew S. Rivkin of the University of Arizona announced Thursday they spotted the new moons over Saturn in photos snapped May 22 during a rare celestial event known as an Earth ring crossing.

During a ring crossing, Saturn's dust rings are seen edge-on and the bright reflected light of the rings is dimmed. This lets astronomers more easily see the tiny, independent moons.

Bosh said two of the new moons in the photos may be previously discovered bodies known as Atlas and Prometheus. Those moons were found by the Voyager spacecraft in 1980.

"If those two are Atlas and Prometheus, then they were in the wrong place," said Bosh. She said the moons photographed by the Hubble are in a slightly different location than where they were expected to be based on the Voyager findings.

For the other two moons, however, there is no question that they were not previously known, Bosh said.

"We're adding at least two more moons to Saturn, and possibly four," she said.

Bosh and Rivkin are now examining more Hubble photos to see if they can locate Atlas and Prometheus separate from the new moons.

For now, the new moons are known only as S-1, 2, 3 and 4. Eventually, though, the bodies will get official names from the International Astronomical Union.

Gov. Bush and veterans remember Korean War

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Korean War veterans are remembering that conflict and their fallen comrades.

On Thursday, veterans and others gathered on the Capitol grounds to pay tribute to the 1,719 Texans left dead or missing in the war.

"To most Texans, this morning, July 27, is just another hot, balmy day," said James Lee Rogers, chairman of the Texas Lone Star Chapter of the Korean War Veterans Association.

"To those of us from the Korean War era, this particular day is a day of remembrance, reflection, a time to be alone with our thoughts and to remember those we served with," he said.

Gov. George W. Bush said service in Korea was a continuation of a long tradition for Texas soldiers.

"Texans have had a proud history of our citizens committed to fighting for freedom — both here in Texas and abroad," he said.

The ceremony was held in an area designated as the site for a state Korean War memorial. The proposed star-shaped, granite monument was authorized by the Legislature this spring. The State Preservation Board is expected to approve the design at its August meeting.

Story Sloane, a Houston Korean War vet, said the group has raised about $15,000 of the $230,000 needed.

Sloane said he hoped Thursday's ceremony — along with the dedication in Washington, D.C., of a national Korean War memorial — would heighten public awareness and help fund-raising for the Texas monument.

"The public will finally get a chance to know what we're all about and know what went on there," he said of the conflict many Korean vets call "the forgotten war."

"We're going to go to the public, corporations, foundations, anyone in the public that we can get to support this project. It's a worthy project," Sloane said.

He said Korean veterans have been speaking about the war in schools and participating in honor guards and color guards at funerals.

"It was the beginning of the demise of communism," Sloane said.

Park Yang Chun, the South Korean consul-general in Houston, thanked the Texas veterans for their service and said his country remembers what they did.

Calling the war "America's most misunderstood and downplayed conflict," Park said, "We Koreans have never forgotten the sacrifice and assistance you Americans sustained and rendered to Koreans."

Political adviser found dead

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The body of an adviser to Vice President Al Gore and other prominent Democrats was found floating beneath the Golden Gate Bridge, and authorities were investigating whether he committed suicide.

After Duane Garrett's body was recovered Wednesday, his Lexus was found in a parking lot near a bridge toll plaza, the California Highway Patrol said.

No suicide note was found. Colleagues said they had seen no signs Garrett, 48, was despondent.

The vice president called his close friend "a man of many talents."

"He was a renowned art collector, an avid sports fisherman, a dedicated environmentalist, a talented lawyer and a formidable political strategist," Gore said Thursday. "Duane mastered more worlds than most men enter in a lifetime."

Garrett co-chaired presidential campaigns for Walter Mondale and Bruce Babbitt and was a frequent fund-raiser for Democratic and environmental causes.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, whose campaign Garrett co-chaired, found it difficult to believe he might have killed himself.

"He was the last person you would dream of doing that," said Feinstein, D-Calif. "He was the kind of guy who let everybody see his heart."

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram on flat tax:

House Majority Leader Dick Armye, R-Texas, is right when he says: "You can't swing a dead catfish in this town (Washington) without hitting the author of a flat-tax plan."

None of these, however, has been so well-advertised and so talked-about and written about as his own flat-tax proposal, which is sort of a shame, because the Armye flat tax that was introduced as legislation last week is not the same product that had been promoted. There were major qualms about the original Armye proposal. There should be even greater questions about it now.

Big changes include retaining payroll withholding, allowing smaller personal exemptions — which has the effect of shifting even more of the tax burden to the lower end of the economic middle class (an extra $595 in taxes for a couple with "earned" income of $26,200 or more) — and the requirement that three-fifths of both House and Senate must approve making any change in the system.

For doubters, the big flaw is that most really wealthy Americans would see their federal taxes halved or eliminated entirely while those families relying on "earned" income rather than investments would pay more. This welfare for the rich would surely lead to shenanigans with executive pay so that it would not be classed as "earned" income. Otherwise, it would copy criticisms of current welfare for the poor in that it would pay the rich more not to work (and not be taxed) than it would to have a job.

Flat-tax advocates advertise the idea's "fairness" because there's one rate for everyone. But it is not fairness if one lucky family with a million dollars of investment income pays no tax at all while a working or retired couple with $50,000 income from salaries or pensions pays $4,641.

Pecos Enterprise on recognition of Vietnam:

We applaud President Clinton's decision to extend official recognition to the government of Vietnam and open that country to do business with. That decision, while controversial with some, was long overdue.

We don't believe that anything is gained by not dealing with any country, regardless of how much we might disagree with their government and policies.

In this day and time, communication is extremely important. A dialogue with those we don't agree with can go a long way to help reach an understanding.

What can be accomplished by not having diplomatic relations with certain nations? Can we ever have an influence on their government and people? We don't believe so.

Plus, it should be remembered that the business of America is business. Too many businesses have had to resort to shady dealings just to stay in business with countries not on Washington's list for diplomatic relations.

That seems to fit the old saying of cutting off our nose to spite our face. It should also be remembered that exposure in other countries of the American way of life is what helped end many Communist governments, more so than any government activity including subversive activities.

It is a dangerous world out there and without a continuing, direct dialogue, it will continue to be so.

Berry's World

"Better knock it off with the vodka and tonics for a while. You could get Lime Disease."

Preschool discipline techniques

Jonathan (four in September) has settled ideas about the way the world should work. Rule No. 1: People, specifically his mom and dad, should not take his picture. This gets expressed as "Don't take me a picture." So even if the two boys (brother David will be 2 in September) are seated together on the scooter with crash helmets on, or giggling delightedly as they ride the merry-go-round, Jonathan's edict remains in effect.

For a time, we stupidly abided by his request. But then we decided that this form of preschool imperiousness would not do. One night, Jonathan had put on his sunglasses to aid in the eating of popcorn. He looked hilarious. I snapped a photo. Well. This child turned on me the full measure of his indignation.

"You did a bad thing, Mommy," he said, narrowing his eyes. "You are not special. I will point at you."

I guess the Barney influence is what made him think that denying "special" status to someone amounts to a form of censure. I know why he threatened to point. I have told him any number of times that it is rude to point at people.

Before I had kids, I vaguely knew that parents often yearn for their children to be close friends, but I wasn't exactly sure why it was such a big deal. Now I understand. It's not for the kids' sake. It's for us.

For the longest time — 18 months — I could not turn my back on my children for even 10 seconds without a wail issuing from the general direction of David or Jonathan or both. One would have the dump truck, and the other would want it. Blows were exchanged — well, not actually exchanged until recently. Jonathan would hit or shove his little brother, David would scream, and Mommy would intervene to separate them and make sure each boy had a truck.

Stern warnings to Jonathan not to hit or hurt his baby brother in any way (they're all little lawyers, these preschoolers, looking for loopholes, so you have to make global statements) would be followed by several minutes of satisfactory play. Then, wham, another yelp from David.

Now I know what some of you are thinking. "She's not tough enough with the older child." Well, maybe you're right. But it's tricky business, this discipline. For a long while, I was sending him to his room or taking toys away (which hurt more) with regularity to punish him for not listening. There were two problems with this approach: 1) If the goal was to protect David, it had the potential to backfire. Jonathan could conceivably begin to view his little brother as the cause of all his troubles with Mommy and begin to resent or even hate him for it. And 2) the punishment didn't seem to be effective.

Only after consulting a book called The Difficult Child did I learn better discipline techniques, like positive reinforcement (yes, some might call it bribery) for desirable behavior. As the book's author, Dr. Stanley Turecki, points out, negative attention is still attention, and some kids get locked into negative ways of getting it.

But things have improved greatly in the last couple of months. The boys are often delighted with one another. Jonathan refers to his brother as "my David." They make a concerted lobbying effort every night for the privilege of sleeping in the same bed (nix on that). And whenever I do have to send Jonathan to his room for punishment, David vitiates the penalty by clambering up the stairs to join him (even if the punishment is for clobbering David).

To have two children under the age of four means that every waking second of my day is spent on alert status. Where are the children at this moment? Do they have hold of anything sharp, hot, messy or fragile? What is Jonathan drawing on with those markers, and is David going to hurt his toes when one of the cans he is using as building blocks falls on them?

What are they doing with the electric toothbrush? Should I allow it? (Sure, it's Daddy's.)

Besides, if Jonathan really gets out of hand, I can always take his picture.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, July 28, the 209th day of 1995. There are 156 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
Fifty years ago, on July 28, 1945, the U.S. Senate ratified the United Nations Charter by a vote of 89-2.

On this date:
In 1540, King Henry VIII's chief minister, Thomas Cromwell, was executed, the same day Henry married his fifth wife, Catherine Howard.

In 1750, composer Johann Sebastian Bach died in Leipzig, Germany.

In 1794, Maximilien Robespierre, a leading figure of the French Revolution, was sent to the guillotine.

In 1821, Peru declared its independence from Spain.

In 1868, the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, guaranteeing due process of law, was declared in effect.

In 1896, the city of Miami, Fla., was incorporated.

The real Pat Robertson stands up

Joe (sotto voce): Ladies and gentlemen, we are about to begin a press conference with Parson Pat Robertson, well-known televangelist and founder of the Christian Coalition.

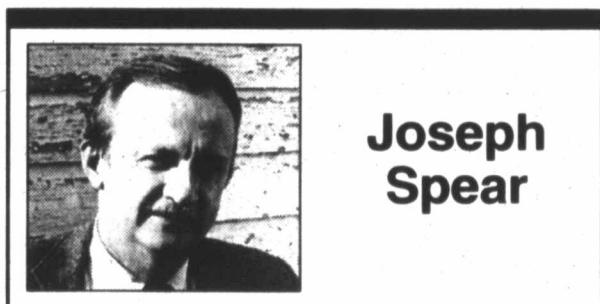

This news conference promises, however, to be like none you have ever witnessed before. Just minutes ago, your intrepid correspondent sneaked backstage and, using a small blowgun, shot a tiny dart containing a powerful truth serum into Parson Pat's posterior. Every word he utters will be the unvarnished truth, unlike the news you normally get from politicians.

Ladies and gentlemen, the next face you see, smiling like the mastiff who ate the mailman, the next voice you hear, dripping nectar like a sated hummingbird, will be that of the avuncular, the charming ... Parson Pat Robertson.

Parson Pat: I would prefer to take questions today about our new "Contract With the American Family," but feel free to ask about anything you want and I will attempt an honest response.

Joe: Your so-called contract sounds almost like the same ideological agenda you are always pushing, except that you use soothing language and talk about things like prayer and tax relief — things that few people could possibly disagree with. And you don't even mention homosexuality or the anti-abortion amendment. How should we interpret this?

Parson Pat: I cannot tell a lie. If you will look in the introduction, you will find a reference to this contract being the "first word" in an "incremental start" on our total program. (Chuckle.) We call it our Camel's-Nose-Under-the-Tent Contract.

Tom: Your executive director, Ralph Reed, said that every item in your contract was tested with focus groups by the same pollster who tested the Republican "Contract With America."

PP: Ralph's a cutie, isn't he? He's my little Time magazine cover boy with the sound-bite brain. Yes, it's true. Everything was market-tested by Frank Luntz.

Dick: So what's in the contract is not about what's right and wrong. It's about what will sell.

PP: That's tight. You wanna give 'em the Word, first you gotta suck 'em in.

Harriet: I'd like to quote something written by 18th century British statesman Edmund Burke. He said, "Politics and the pulpit are terms that have little agreement. No sound ought to be heard in the church but the healing voice of Christian charity." Don't these words apply to you?

PP: To tell the truth, yes, those words apply to me. But I have conflicting desires. I want to be a television preacher, but I also want to be a politician. What can I say?

Joe: You mean you still want to be president?

PP: First I intend to take over the Republican Party — why am I saying these things? — and then I intend to take over the White House, and then I intend to turn this democracy into a theocracy. I will be the Chief Theocrat, and the people can express their appreciation, if they so desire, with contributions to my good works. Cash, check, money order, plastic — makes no difference, we'll take 'em all.

Dick: Have you heard about the high school coach who was told he could not call for prayers in football huddles? What can you do about that?

PP: Clearly we need a prayer-in-the-huddle amendment.

Joe: I'd like to quote a piece of Scripture for you. It comes from the Book of Matthew: "And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray in... the streets, that they may be seen.... But, thou, when thou prayest, pray to thy Father, which is in private." What do those words mean to you, Rev. Robertson?

PP: I guess they mean I'm a hypocrite.

Joe: If you ever did win the presidency and become sort of an American ayatollah, what would be your first official act?

PP: Remember the religious decree, the fatwa, that Khomeini issued against Salman Rushdie? Well, give me one hour in office, give me just enough time to write Fatwa No. 1, and you would be history, fella.

The machinations of a true diplomat

In the darkened theater, the congressman leaned over to the president and they talked in hushed tones, an apt setting for the start of a secret mission to Baghdad.

Except that Rep. Bill Richardson wasn't speaking of diplomacy, he was translating Spanish-language expressions for President Clinton at the premiere of Mi Familia.

Then, abruptly, the whispered conversation changed to fit another script. "Out of the blue he said to me, '... I think you ought to respond to the Iraqis and go talk with them,'" Richardson said.

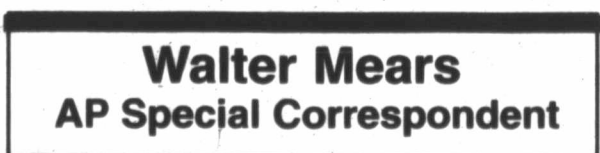

So began another trouble-shooting mission for the Democratic congressman from New Mexico, to gain the release of two Americans imprisoned for four months after straying across the Iraqi border from Kuwait.

Actually, Richardson already was involved, but until that night at the movie premiere in early May, the White House had been telling him not to intercede, suggesting without saying that there was another channel open.

So he held off. Richardson said he takes his cue, but not necessarily his line, from the White House and the State Department. "I don't freelance," he said, reflecting in an interview on the sequence that ended with the release of William Barlow and David Daliberti on July 16. "I coordinate...."

"At the same time, while I work with them, I'm not their lackey."

That gives the White House advance word, but deniability, he said, and it gives him flexibility as "a back channel player." It is a difficult — but essential — course for a diplomatic trouble-shooter without a portfolio.

Walter Mears
AP Special Correspondent

The art is in knowing how far to go. By administration reckoning, former President Carter went past the boundary with statements in North Korea and then in Haiti that seemed to contradict U.S. policy.

That breach is not lost on foreign governments. Richardson knows that his own ties with Clinton are a major reason foreign governments respond to his intercession.

Baghdad was perhaps the most visible mission, after a year in which he's been involved in gaining the release of a downed U.S. helicopter pilot by North Korea, opening doors for an arrested champion of democracy in Burma, and running diplomatic errands in Haiti, Vietnam and Serbia.

In each, Richardson said, he has been approached by someone with contacts with an isolated government.

In the Iraqi case, the first contact was from Dr. Peter Bourne, a one-time Carter White House drug adviser who is a consultant. After Clinton's go-ahead, the Bourne contact led Richardson into a series of talks with the Nazir Hamdoon, the Iraqi ambassador to the United Nations.

In each case, Richardson said, he has stressed that he came neither with messages nor with instructions from his government — and that he had nothing to negotiate or bargain. He has the standing of a seven-term congressman. Even his letterhead status as a vice chairman of the Democratic Party helps; in communist North Korea, where party means power, that gained access.

"You've got to remember you don't have any chits," Richardson said. "They've got all the chits." What he does have is a position, and ties to Clinton.

His missions, he said, have been to leaders nobody talks to. "They're almost pariahs," Richardson said. "You find that you're almost halfway there just by talking to them.... They want to pour out their frustrations...."

"One of the things Saddam Hussein said to me was, 'You people haven't talked to me in six years.'"

Nor were there official contacts with Hamdoon, whom Richardson saw eight times before he went to Baghdad. He'd take the 7 a.m. shuttle flight to New York, wearing sunglasses and a cap pulled low, to avoid being recognized.

Then the meeting with Saddam, and the release of the Americans, which Richardson sees as part of an Iraqi effort to improve its standing before a Sept. 11 United Nations vote on relaxing economic sanctions.

"I'm embraced when it works," Richardson said. "You wonder, if I hadn't come back with them."

There was a standing ovation in the House and, he said, from constituents back home in New Mexico.

Along with some wisecracks from colleagues. "I get prison jokes," he said. "What am I going to do next? Free Willy?"

Researchers ready to use pig livers to save patients

WASHINGTON (AP) — Livers from genetically altered pigs will be used soon at Duke University to prolong the lives of patients who are near death from liver failure.

Researchers announced Thursday that the Food and Drug Administration has given clearance to experimentally treat critically ill liver patients by routing their blood through livers taken from pigs that have been altered to make their organs compatible with the human immune system.

"We're ready to start now, as soon as an appropriate patient is ready," said John Logan, vice president for research at Nexttran, a company formed to investigate the use of pig organs for human transplants.

He said the technique would be used only on patients in acute liver failure, a lethal condition that can occur suddenly from massive infection or from poisons.

"These are patients who are critically ill and in a coma, very near death," Logan said. "The aim of the trial using these pig livers will be to bring patients back to a point where they would be candidates for liver transplants."

He said about 20,000 patients die each year in the U.S. of sudden, acute liver failure.

Dr. Jeffrey Platt, a Duke scientist in charge of the clinical research, said using the pig liver will remove blood toxins that build up during acute liver failure. The pig livers, he said, could keep patients alive long enough for their own livers to fully recover from an infection, or to act as a bridge until a human organ can be found for a transplant.

Paul Schmitt, Nexttran's chief operating executive, said the temporary use of the pig livers is the first step toward eventually using genetically altered swine organs as permanent replacements for human hearts, livers, lungs and kidneys.

Genetic engineering makes this possible.

Transplanting organs from one species to another generally has not worked because of rejection by the immune system of the host. In humans, this rejection is carried out by a part of the immune system called complement. This consists of proteins that attack microbes or transplanted cells.

The complement system is controlled by cells that secrete neutralizing proteins.

To make use of pig organs in human transplants, researchers at Nexttran genetically altered a strain of swine so that cells in the pigs secrete the neutralizing protein. In effect, the immune system of the human host is tricked into identifying the pig organ as human.

Orders for durable goods slip slightly in June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders to U.S. factories for big-ticket durable goods slipped 0.1 percent in June, the fourth decline in the last five months.

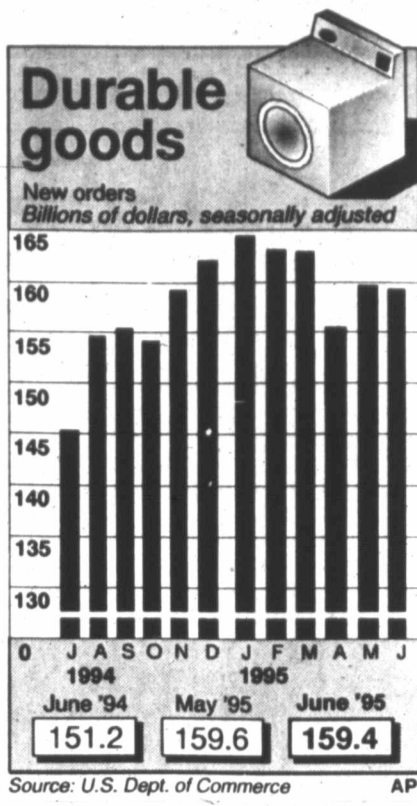

Thursday's decrease surprised most analysts and is the latest sign of economic sluggishness.

The Commerce Department also said durable goods orders surged 2.6 percent in May, revised downward from an earlier-reported 2.7 percent jump.

In another report Thursday, the Labor Department said the number of American workers filing new claims for jobless benefits fell by 42,000 last week to a seasonally adjusted 374,000, down from 416,000 a week earlier.

Financial markets rallied, with the Dow Jones industrial average up 19 points in early trading and the price of the 30-year Treasury bond gaining. The yield on the bond was down to 6.83 percent from its close of 6.86 percent Wednesday.

"The durable goods report is telling you the factory sector is not out of the woods yet," said Maury Harris, chief economist at PaineWebber Inc. in New York City. "The Federal Reserve knew what they were doing when they cut those rates and they may have to cut them more."

Durable goods include such items as cars, computers and appliances that react to changing interest rates because they often are purchased on credit. Analysts track the data carefully for indications of where consumer spending is headed.

Thursday's report is just a prelude to long-awaited data due Friday on the economy's performance in the second quarter that ended June 30. Analysts expect gross domestic product to be up slightly in the April-June quarter or to have stalled out altogether.

The Commerce Department said that the June decline in durable goods was led by falling orders for electronic and other electric equipment, which decreased 2.6 percent.

Orders for durable goods totaled a seasonally adjusted $159.4 billion, down from $159.6 billion in May. New orders are 8.6 percent higher than the same period a year ago.

Durable goods orders plunged 4.6 percent in April — the steepest dive in more than three years — and have increased only twice in the first half of 1995.

Consumer spending has slowed dramatically from last year's peak.

Demand for the big-ticket goods also is a key barometer of manufacturing plans, with increased orders often leading to production expansion and new hiring.

The Commerce Department said that highly volatile transportation orders fell 1 percent in June after jumping 2.9 percent the previous month.

Excluding transportation, durable goods orders rose 0.2 percent after climbing 2.5 percent in May.

Orders for defense equipment declined 1.4 percent in June after soaring 7.4 percent. Excluding military goods, orders were unchanged last month after advancing 2.4 percent.

Orders for non-defense capital goods excluding aircraft rose 2.5 percent in June on top of a 5 percent gain the previous month. These orders often are a barometer of business plans to expand and modernize.

Unfilled orders fell 0.4 percent last month, the third, straight decline. The orders backlog is considered a measure of whether current facilities and manpower are able to keep up with demand. Declines can point to smaller production lines and fewer jobs.

Woman fights for daughter's Social Security benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security is refusing to pay benefits to a Louisiana girl conceived three months after her father died of cancer.

The Social Security Administration argues that Judith Christine Hart, 4, is not entitled to survivor's benefits because she was never dependent on her father, an aerospace engineer.

Judith was conceived from the frozen sperm of Edward William Hart Jr. after he died of cancer of the esophagus in 1990. She was born 10 days short of the first anniversary of his death.

An administrative law judge ruled in May that Judith was clearly Hart's child and was entitled to his Social Security benefits.

Social Security's appeals council, however, believes the judge may have made a serious error in law and that benefits should not be paid to the Slidell, La., girl.

Could this be the missing link?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bones found in a rubble dump near Johannesburg suggest that a pre-human creature with feet possessing both human and ape-like qualities existed in South Africa more than 3 million years ago, according to a report published today.

Ronald J. Clarke and Phillip V. Tobias of the University of Witwatersrand in Johannesburg, writing in the journal Science, said the bones found in 1980 displayed human features in the rear portion of the foot while the front of the foot had a "striking ape-like" highly mobile large toe.

This, they said, enabled the pre-human creature, Australopithecus, to climb trees efficiently as well as walk on its two feet. The discovery, they said, "connotes an intermediate level of adaptation" not seen previously in early hominids.

"It is becoming clear that Australopithecus was likely not an obligate (limited) terrestrial biped, but rather a facultative (multi-capable) biped and climber," they wrote.

Science is a weekly publication of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Airline lobbies transportation secretary to stall fuel tax

HOUSTON (AP) — The Clinton Administration plans to go ahead with a federal tax increase on jet fuel despite pressure from the nation's airlines. Transportation Secretary Federico Pena says.

Pena was met by a buzzsaw of opposition Thursday while visiting Continental Airlines and meeting with the carrier's executives and 300 miffed employees.

The tax on jet fuel increases 4.3 cents per gallon beginning Oct. 1, and Continental officials estimate that will cost them $50 million annually.

Pena said discussions about the tax continue with congressmen sympathetic to Continental and other airlines, although he's not convinced a two-year exemption granted the airlines should be continued.

"Right now our call is to begin to have the tax imposed in the last quarter of this year," Pena said. "Right now our view is the tax should take effect."

Just last week, Continental reported second-quarter profits of $102 million, the best quarterly financial showing in its 61-year history. In six of the last 12 years, however, the airline has struggled through two stints in bankruptcy.

Continental chairman Gordon Bethune and other top airline executives said they lobbied Pena to change his mind on the fuel tax, which would add to the $6.4 billion in taxes the industry already pays.

"This industry is so fragile," Bethune said. "Our company is fragile."

Asked about his conversations with Pena, Bethune replied: "I've been riding around with this guy. What do you think?"

"Texas is all airlines," Bethune added. "Dallas-Fort Worth for American, Dallas for Southwest, Houston for Continental. When you screw with the airlines you're screwing with the Texas economy. And Texas is running a lot of the U.S. economy."

Pena also heard the complaint from airline employees, who see the tax as cutting into their profit-sharing plan. Under the plan, Continental employees get 15 percent of the company profits.

"Our guys know the issues," Bethune told reporters after Pena departed. "And you know why? It's their money. It's kind of fun to see."

"We just got our nose above water and this fuel tax will cost of about $50 million a year."

Pena defended the tax, saying the airlines were spared for two years while other transportation industries were hit with taxes on their fuel.

"Other transportation industries were upset with that," Pena said. "They felt it wasn't fair."

"But two years ago it was grounded on a very good factual basis. The (airline) industry had lost $10 billion in three years. The industry is now more profitable."

Pena also defended the tax increase as a result of moves to eliminate the budget deficit.

"If you decide to continue the exemption of the fuel tax you've got to find corresponding cuts in domestic programs," he said.

Senior citizen takes on three carjacking teenagers wielding a gun

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A retired nurse who remembered safety tips she learned from a sheriff thwarted an attempted robbery and carjacking by three teenage girls.

Marcelene Hardy, 65, got out of the mess Thursday by pulling into a parking lot, honking like crazy to draw attention and keeping a tight grip on her purse — all despite having a gun pointed at her head.

"I'm a retired O.R. nurse at East Texas Medical Center and every year or every six months (Smith County Sheriff) J.B. Smith came to the hospital to give nurses seminars. He said to never go with anyone — pull over, scream your head off," Ms. Hardy said. "When the girl told me to keep driving, I remembered what J.B. Smith said, 'Never go with them, they'll kill you.'"

Tyler police arrested two 15-year-old girls and a 14-year-old. They were charged with delinquent conduct for aggravated robbery and were being held at the Smith County Juvenile Attention Center, officers said.

The girls first approached Ms. Hardy as she was getting into her car at a Wal-Mart parking lot. "I had finished shopping and was going to my car when three nice-looking, well-dressed, teenage girls stopped me and asked me which way I was going," Ms. Hardy said. "I told them I was driving south to Sam's. They asked if they could ride with me and said they were going to a place near there. Well, it was hot and they were afoot so I let them ride."

As they approached the store, Ms. Hardy said the girl in the front seat pointed a gun at her head and repeatedly told her, "I'll blow you're head off," if she turned into Sam's.

"I said, 'No you won't!' and I pulled into the parking lot and honked my horn," said Ms. Hardy, who also grabbed the wrist of the girl holding the gun and twisted the barrel another direction.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE SCENE OF A PARABLE!
ASCENDING FROM THE JORDAN VALLEY TO THE HILL COUNTRY IS A STEEP PASS ADJACENT TO JERUSALEM AND THE SHORTEST AND MOST TRAVELED ROAD FROM JERUSALEM TO JERICHO. BECAUSE IT WAS SUCH A MUCH TRAVELED ROUTE FOR CARAVANS IT BECAME, THROUGH THE CENTURIES, A HIGH SPOT FOR ROBBERS AND BRIGANDS TO PLY THEIR NEFARIOUS TRADE! IN FACT, SAINT JEROME ASCRIBED THE ORIGIN OF ITS NAME TO THE BLOOD SO FREQUENTLY SPILLED THERE BY THE HAWKISH THIEVES AS THEY PILFERED THE LOOT FROM THEIR VICTIMS. NO WONDER THAT IT WAS THE SCENE OF JESUS'S PARABLE OF THE GOOD SAMARITAN.

The Sound

"The Sound" of Houston will sing at First Assembly of God Church, 500 S. Cuyler at 7 p.m. Aug. 3. "Our music is not about categories or styles ... it's about the message, first to the lost that they can be saved, and then to the church, that they can walk in the joy of the Lord," said group leader Frank Seamans about The Sound's blend of musical styles and vocal arrangements. The Sound began singing together in 1985, with recent appearances such as Christian Artists' Seminar in Estes Park, Colo., Trinity Broadcasting Network and youth conferences nationwide.

amos the churchmouse: a view from under the pew — by gary mitchell

COLUMNIST'S NOTE: Again, amidst a few coffee stains on the carpet, we found another column written by amos, our illustrious churchmouse poet. It seems he stumbled across a relic of the late 1960s and early 1970s, a wolfhound named Harry. Wolfhound Harry served as an underworld disc jockey for Bugtussle's major top 40 radio station. For at least a couple of decades, he had the bees buzzing, the hummingbirds humming and the fireflies dancing. In fact, some bug music historians claim that it was Wolfhound Harry who put the jitter in the jitterbugs.

Some of his best-known early discoveries went on to become historical music-makers in their own right, such as the long-antennaed Beetles and a small combo of Crickets who joined with bespectacled crooner Buggy Holly.

After reminiscing about the golden days of music, amos broached the subject of church. At first, he began to think he made a mistake.

when amos met harry

i couldn't believe it boss a legend of bug music right in my own midst why musical history just sort of oozed out of his gray wolfhound hair it was a blast for a bug-rocker like me so it was only natural for me to ask him if he would be performing any music in our church i'm sure pastor leroy beetle wouldn't mind at all if you would come and play us a tune about jesus says i i gave that up a long time ago says he why says i churches have lost it he moaned they're not with it man church services are about as exciting as sand but how and why did you arrive at so astute an observation says i i used to go to church — and even sang in the choir — but that was eons ago says he then i got tired tired of sad meetings tired of sad meetings tired of sad meetings before i would go home to bed

i got fed up with the grape juice and crackers of meaningless communions the more i looked the more the old broken-down church in the far corner seemed to suddenly age and grow stiff and cold rigid and brittle — inflexible to the times and to me says he

but that's not true and even if it was why not try to make it better hey jude

BOSWELL, Ind. (AP) — Velva Dunbar has witnessed many dramatic changes in her 100 years, from airplanes taking to the skies to automobiles replacing horses and buggies to the marvel of homes with running water.

Throughout that century of progress, one thing has remained constant for Mrs. Dunbar — her church in this small west-central Indiana farm town.

"It's home," she says of the Church of Christ, where she has worshipped her entire life. "My children all grew up there and I have so many wonderful memories of it."

The church congregation is honoring Mrs. Dunbar as part of its centennial celebration this year. A few days before she turned 100 on May 18, she was the main attraction during an open house that followed Sunday services.

If her health cooperates, she'll be there for events planned for later this summer and in November.

The youngest of six children, Mrs. Dunbar was six months old when the church was dedicated in the heart of Boswell, on Nov. 3, 1895.

Some of her earliest memories are of walking to church with her parents, Fred and Catherine McVicker, and her siblings, stepping past hitching posts and horses into the reddish-orange brick church.

Over the years, the church where she was baptized as a 12-year-old has brought her the joy of countless weddings and helped her endure the passing of numerous loved ones.

In between weddings and funerals, there were baptisms, war-time prayer services, Bible lessons and church picnics where women fanned themselves with large hand-held fans and men tossed horseshoes.

"I just don't know what I would have done without it," says Mrs. Dunbar. "It's been such a part of my life."

In 1912, at the age of 17, she married John Dunbar, a 21-year-old machine shop worker and they soon moved 20 miles south to Williamsport, where John opened a garage.

Although miles from her church, Mrs. Dunbar's link to her spiritual center remained intact; after World War I, the couple returned to Boswell.

Together, they raised seven children all of whom attended the little country church 80 miles northwest of Indianapolis, where Mrs. Dunbar was always eager to lend a helping hand.

"Our church was poor when it started. We would put on plays and have big dinners and sales, have sandwiches and coffee to help raise money," she says. "Country churches are closer. Everybody would go back then."

After her husband died in 1972, Mrs. Dunbar remained in their Boswell home until she entered a nursing home in her early 90s. At age 96, she moved in with her second youngest daughter, Mary Good, 65, and her husband, Gene, 72, in nearby Earl Park.

Time has worn her down, dimming her vision and weakening her heart, but Mrs. Dunbar still shows up at her church when she can muster her energies for the 12-mile car trip.

"I never missed church until I got so I couldn't go," she says sadly.

These days, she spends most of her time seated near a picture window, where she keeps watch on her bird feeders. In the streets beyond, children on bikes brave a searing summer sun that has baked the rich, black soil and left corn in nearby fields curled and dusty.

Church members routinely call on her at home, but the visits she looks forward to the most are those of her 18 grandchildren, 37 great-grandchildren and eight great-great grandchildren. One of her grandchildren has made a stained-glass window that will be installed in the church in her memory after her death.

Not too long ago, Mrs. Dunbar was rushed to the hospital after an early morning fall. Doctors believed she had fractured her hip and prepped her for surgery. Shortly before she was wheeled into the operating room the X-rays came back, revealing that she had suffered only bruises in the fall.

"I think the reason I'm still alive is that the Lord has something for me to do that I haven't done," she says.

When her life does come to an end she says she won't be afraid. "I think," she says, "it will be glorious."

Religion briefs

FRIDAY HARBOR, Wash. (AP) — Jack Kintner keeps such a busy schedule that coffee hour is just 10 minutes long. The state ferries cannot match his island-hopping pace, so he does his circuit-riding by plane.

Sundays are his busiest day. Kintner, pastor of the Lutheran Church in the San Juans, starts with services in Friday Harbor at 9:30, heads for Lopez Island at 11:30, and ends at Orcas Island at 1:30.

The island congregations are too small to support their own preacher, so since 1985, church members have relied on a Kintner and his pilot's license for their Sunday religious needs. About 25 people attend each service.

Kintner, 50, who lives in Bellingham, hops from island to island in a 1967 Cessna 172. The plane enables him to respond to his congregants' needs as quickly as most urban pastors. He misses a few services a year due to weather, but said he would miss more if he relied on a boat, which is slower, more expensive, and harder to manage at night.

"The airplane became more of a ministry tool than we ever anticipated," he said. He uses it to visit the sick and to take the elderly to medical treatments in Seattle. The congregation first leased a plane, then bought the Cessna for $18,000 in 1992.

CINCINNATI (AP) — A meeting of South Korean and North Korean religious leaders was a highlight of the 207th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

Prayer ribbons from North and South Korea were tied together at the intersection of a cross during a symbolic celebration at which prayers were said for the peaceful reunification of Korea.

"Korea and Ireland are the only countries left in the world that are cut in two," said Marj Carpenter, moderator of the assembly. "Their walls are not down."

Participating in the ceremony at the recent assembly were the Rev. Ya Sup Bae, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the Republic of South Korea; the Rev. Ki Soo Kim, moderator of the Presbyterian Church, also of South Korea; and the Rev. Yung Sup Kang, president of the Korean Christian Federation of North Korea.

The Presbyterian Church in the Korea began its process toward reunification in 1983. The largest body of Presbyterians outside the United States is in Korea, church spokesman Jerry Van Marter said.

'Mini Olympics' games set for Saturday at Calvary Baptist

Calvary Baptist Church will host a "mini Olympics" from 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday at 900 E. 23rd.

The mini Olympics will feature food and games to appeal to preschool and elementary age children. An inflatable moon walk will be present, in addition to soft drinks, nachos, cotton candy and snow cones.

Events include a dunking boot, tricycle races, football toss, basketball throw and a putting contest. Prizes will be given away for most events. Most food and events are free for children who have earned tickets at Calvary's vacation Bible school which concludes with the mini Olympics.

Extra tickets will be available for a donation of a canned good. Tickets can also be purchased for a small fee.

A special feature of the mini Olympics will be the sports training clinics that will take place. A training clinic will be offered in soccer, conducted by Stan Schochler, former college and Brazilian soccer player. Another clinic may be added for baseball and softball.

Registration is set to begin 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday and continue through Friday at Trinity Fellowship Church for the third annual back to school outreach for local children.

The outreach is planned to provide school supplies for children grades kindergarten through 12 for financially distressed families, said administrative pastor Don Case.

Registration to participate in the school supply program is mandatory. Case said. Tables will be set up in the church's gymnasium, 1215 S. Nelson, for parents who wish to sign up their children. A birth certificate or Social Security card is required for the registration, he said.

Items will be distributed at 10 a.m. Aug. 12 in the gymnasium. A short program will precede the distribution, Case said.

Daughter Who Won't Leave Nest Should Help to Line It

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice on a continuing problem in our household.

The oldest of my two daughters graduated from college a couple of years ago and holds down a full-time job. She still lives at home, but contributes nothing toward household expenses. She owes a large amount on her credit cards, yet she recently bought a new car. I think she should pay $200 a month to help us out (I'm retired), but my wife says that our daughter owes too much to help us with our bills.

Every time I try to discuss this with my wife, she doesn't want to hear it. She thinks we are obligated to support our daughters, who are now 21 and 23. My wife and daughters stick together and are hounding me to get a job. Apparently, my 26 years of steady dedication to my Air Force career aren't enough for them.

I feel it's time for our daughters to help or to stand entirely on their own feet.

Abby, my credit cards are sky-high with their college expenses, and I'm at my wit's end. Is my request that our oldest daughter help unreasonable?

R.J.B., GLENDALE, ARIZ.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR R.J.B.: Your request seems reasonable to me. Your wife is doing your daughter no favor by coddling her. Eventually she will have to face the real world, and it's far better that she learn to be responsible while she's still nesting at home. Stick to your guns and insist that she pay her share of household expenses.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have an ongoing argument that I hope you can help us resolve.

Every time I am on the phone, whether I called the person or I answered the phone, Roger has to know who I am talking to. He stands right by me and keeps asking who is on the phone, and he gets mad if I don't tell him. He says he wants to know because it might be for him, or he might want to talk to that person. If I ignore him, he will stand right by me and listen to my conversation until he can figure out who I'm talking to.

I say he's being rude, and I would be glad to tell him who was on the phone after I hang up. I know this sounds silly, but we have some heated arguments about this.

CHRIS, WITH A NOT-SO-PHONY PROBLEM

DEAR CHRIS: Tell Roger you will let him know immediately if the call is for him. If it is not for him, take the call in a room with a door that closes. Smile and say, "It's Susan, for me." Then close the door and speak in peace.

For an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person, order "How to Be Popular." Your Birthday

Saturday, July 29, 1995

Substantial opportunities are in the offing for you in the year ahead. Generally speaking, things look good, but do not make the mistake of taking your luck for granted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Manage your resources prudently today. If you yield to extravagance, your surplus might suddenly disappear. Trying to patch up a broken romance? VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you take personal risks today, that's your choice, but don't put others in a dangerous position without their full consent.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Jumping to conclusions today will severely lessen your probabilities for success. To be on the safe side, be patient and wait until you have the whole picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Resist trying to impress persons less fortunate than yourself with your material possessions today. It could backfire and you'd end up looking foolish.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might take a position that opposes the majority today simply to gratify your ego. Try not to let your pride cost you the respect of others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Think realistically today and meet your problems head-on. Avoid rationalizing your problems by thinking that everything will take care of itself without you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes business with friends can yield fantastic deals. Unfortunately, this might not be the case today, so shop carefully and check all your sources.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not agree to do something today that opposes your best interests simply to please other persons.

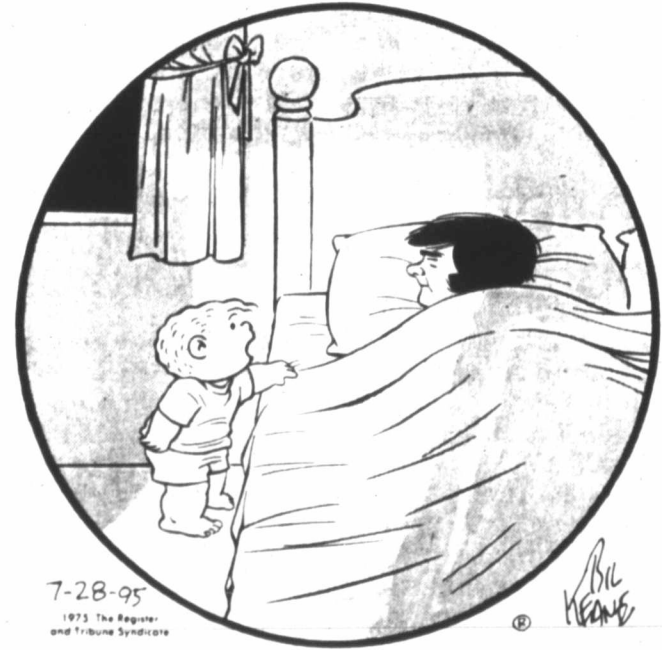

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not boast about your accomplishments today until they are registered in the record book. Bragging too soon might embarrass you later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your luck might desert you today if you gamble on something you don't control. Limit your speculation to involvements where your hand is on the wheel.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Promises you make to family members today will be taken seriously, so follow through on your commitments. You mustn't raise false hopes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Avoid giving advice or instructions to anyone about something you know very little. The recipient of your counseling may hold you accountable.

BASEBALL
GRAHAM, Texas — The 13-year-old All Stars from Pampa captured the West Texas State Championship Wednesday with a 9-6 win over Andrews.

The team will travel to Fort Smith, Ark., on Aug. 4 for the Southwest Regional Bambino Tournament.

Pampa continued to play error free ball in the final game. Pampa committed just one error in three games.

The team also turned another double Wednesday — the fourth in three games.

Casey Owens pitched one inning Wednesday giving up one hit and three walks. Tommy Lozano came in for four innings and gave up one hit while walking one, hitting one batter and recording five strike outs.

Jesse Francis finished the game, recording three hits, four walks, one hit batter and three strike outs.

Pampa had six hits in the game. Owens went 2-4, and Lozano went 2-4 with a double.

Justin Trollinger picked up two doubles from two hits on four at-bats in the game.

WHITE SETTLEMENT, Texas — Pampa's 9-10-year-old girls softball All-Stars fell just short of advancing to the Southwest Regional Tournament with 9-14 a loss to White Settlement on Thursday night.

Pampa made it to the final game by posting a 18-15 win over Plano on Wednesday night.

Pitching for Pampa in the win were Stephanie Goldsmith and Stacey Searl.

DENHAM SPRINGS, La. — Two Pampa teams took to the field today here in the Southwest Regional Bambino Tournament.

Pampa's 9-10-year-old All-Stars played Wharton, Texas today at 3:30 p.m.

The 11-12-year old All-Stars from Pampa were also scheduled to begin action today.

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians, looking to bolster their pitching staff for the pennant stretch, acquired Ken Hill from St. Louis for three minor leaguers.

The Indians, who have the best record in baseball, add Hill, the NL's starter in last season's All-Star game.

Hill was 6-7 with a 5.06 ERA after being acquired from Montreal in April.

TENNIS
MONTREAL (AP) — Andre Agassi and Pete Sampras, the world's top two players, moved closer to a showdown at the Canadian Open by easily advancing to the quarterfinals.

Agassi breezed by Czech qualifier Daniel Vacek 6-3, 6-2, and Sampras downed Mauricio Hadad of Colombia 6-2, 6-3 on the hardcourts.

Agassi meets MaliVai Washington, who ousted Sergi Bruguera of Spain 6-4, 6-2, today. Sampras plays Michael Stich of Germany, who beat Jim Courier 6-3, 6-2.

FOOTBALL
AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas coach Barry Switzer said kicker Chris Boniol is receiving some stiff competition from rookie free agent Jon Baker.

Boniol is hampered by a pulled muscle in his kicking leg, so Baker will handle all the kicking chores in Saturday's preseason game against Buffalo.

"I think it will be highly competitive," Switzer said. Baker has more consistently kicked off into the end zone during training camp, which could be essential for a special teams unit that has lost several key players.

During a scrimmage against the Houston Oilers Wednesday night, each player made field goal attempts of 32, 37 and 42 yards.

Last year, Boniol made all of his 48 extra points, 22 of 29 field goal attempts and scored 114 points as a rookie.

Terrell, Miller battle for lead at Tri-State

Heat and wind took their toll Thursday during the second round of the 61st. Annual Tri-State Senior Golf Tournament at Pampa Country Club.

Morning winds during play in the Championship and Presidential flights hurt scores, especially on the front nine.

Leaders with later tee times had less wind to fight after speeds diminished around 12 noon. Winds were calm as the last group played the 18th hole.

Temperatures on the course around 100 degrees slowed down golfers in all flights. Many players took longer than expected to finish the day's game.

Tom Miller of Wichita Falls took a one shot lead over first round leader Merel Terrell of Pampa. Miller shot a second round score of 1-under 70, with the help of an eagle-3 on the par 5, 18th for a total of 143.

Terrell had to settle for a 3-over 74, for a total of 144. Other golfers in striking distance are Joe Bob Browning of Amarillo at 146, E.C. Roark of Lubbock, Texas and Eddie Duenkel of Pampa at 147. Last years champion Elmer Wilson is 5 strokes back at 148.

The President's flight saw Don Riffe of Stratford taking a 2-shot lead over Jim Dial of Waco. Riffe has a 2-round score of 79-72-151.

Action resumed this morning with some of the flights teeing off at 7:00 a.m. Championship action started at 1:37 p.m.

Bates still talking trash, butting heads for Pokes

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — After 12 years in the NFL, a career-threatening knee injury and endless doubters, Bill Bates still zeroes in on a ball carrier with psychotic intensity.

During a pass defense drill in training camp, Bates runs full speed for an unsuspecting Michael Irvin after a catch. If it were a regular season opponent, Irvin would have been flattened. But Bates pulls up and simply wraps his arms around the All-Pro receiver.

After barking a little trash talk with the smile of serial killer, Bates jumps up and head-butts the lanky receiver, just to let him know what could have happened.

The fire is still in No. 40, and it will need to be this season.

Bates, 34, a key defender in the Cowboys' nickel package on third down, is one of the few familiar faces left on a once-feared special teams unit that has lost one player after another.

Matt Vanderbeek, Kenny Gant, Elvis Patterson, Darrick Brownlow, Tommie Agee and Joe Fishback are among several special teams stars who have found new homes around the league.

And with special teamers such as safety Brock Marion and linebackers Godfrey Myles and Dixon Edwards likely to see extensive playing time on defense this season, the exposure to injury will be increased.

Coaches acknowledge the days of making room on a roster for purely special teams players are gone.

Cowboys coach Barry Switzer says the salary cap has forced the team to double up players' duties. In other words, the only way a backup linebacker, fullback or receiver may make the Cowboys this year is by shining on special teams.

"We don't have room to carry guys who can just play on special teams," Switzer said. "Bill Bates is our luxury for that."

After 1992, it didn't appear Bates would be playing football again. In the fifth game of the season, Bates tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee against Seattle.

He was out the rest of the season and didn't play in the Cowboys' 52-17 victory against Buffalo in Super Bowl XXVII.

He got to play in the Cowboys' 30-13 Super Bowl victory against Buffalo the following year and missed only one game in 1994 despite fracturing both his left wrist and right thumb.

"I have just tried year in and year out to give it all I have," said Bates, who is the father of triplets. "I have realized more this year than ever that special teams on this team is vital because we have lost some great players."

"I was one of those guys who could have left, but this is where I want to play. As long as I can still run and hit, I want to be in here and show other people what it takes."

Dallas owner Jerry Jones said Bates and Troy Aikman are the most popular Cowboys with fans.

"Troy has enormous visibility, so it's impressive that Bill Bates would have that same kind of popularity," Jones said. "But the thing that attracts fans to Bill is the physical way he plays, his gusto for play in a game."

Bates said he was relieved when he arrived at training camp and didn't hear the same old questions.

"I haven't heard the question yet if I am going to make it this year or if I've got a chance to play or if I'm worried about my job," he said. "But that's good. That means I am doing something right."

West Texas state cham

The 13-year-old All-Stars from Pampa won the West Texas State Bambino Tournament for their age bracket in Graham, Texas on Wednesday. The team will next travel to Fort Smith Arkansas on Aug. 4 for the Southwest Regional Tournament. In front from left, Trey Rogers, Greg Lindsey, Russell Robben, Tommy Lozano, Casey Owens, Kaleb Snelgrooves and Gil Solano. In back from left, manager Gerrel Owens, Justin Trollinger, Justin Barnes, Cody Shepard, Jonathan Waggoner, Jesse Francis, Blake Stewart and coach Jerry Lindsey.

Three Pampa swimmers return to state competition

Three Pampa High School Swimmers, Ashlee David, Jakob Bullard and Dakota Tefertiller, are in Austin today to compete in the Texas Age Group Swim Meet held at the Jamail Swimming Center on the University of Texas campus.

The TAGS meet held each July in Austin is the long course championship meet of the year. It is held in a 50 meter pool. The short course state meet is held each March in Dallas.

In order to compete in the TAGS meet, a swimmer must have qualifying times in their age groups at other sanctioned meets. Texas is considered one of the two fastest swimming states in the nation according to the USS swimming organization.

The Pampa swimmers have times that rank them in the top 5 percent of all senior swimmers nationwide.

Ashlee David will compete in the 50 Freestyle on Saturday. She will also swim in the following relays over the course of 4 days: 200 Freestyle and 400 Freestyle, and the 200 Medley and the 400 Medley relays.

Dakota Tefertiller will swim the 200 Breaststroke on Thursday and the 100 Breaststroke on Friday. He will also be a member of the 200 Medley and the 400 Medley relay teams.

Jakob BuRard will swim the 100 Breaststroke on Friday and the 50 Freestyle on Saturday. He will also swim as a member of the 200 and 400 Freestyle relays.

Pampa has a large number of age group swimmers, from age 8 to 18 who compete with the Amarillo Swim team all over West Texas. They train at the Pampa Youth and Community Center.

Anyone interested in improving their swimming and learning new strokes is welcome to come and work out with the team. Workouts begin again at the start of school. Call 665-7644 for more information.

Rangers end streak at 10

BALTIMORE (AP) — Strangely enough, the Texas Rangers closed out their dreadful road trip exactly where the Baltimore Orioles wanted to be — two games over .500.

Texas snapped its 10-game losing streak Thursday night, scoring twice in the eighth inning to beat the Orioles 2-1.

The victory ended the Rangers' six-game road skid and kept them from sinking to .500 for the first time since May 24.

"This team is too great not to do it sooner or later," utility man Mark McLemore said. "Of course, we'd liked to have done it 10 games ago."

Texas (43-41) was on the verge of its fourth consecutive one-run loss before coming back to beat the Orioles for the first time in five games this season.

The 10-game losing streak was the longest in the majors this season and Texas' worst since a 12-game drought in 1982.

"Everybody was aware of it," said Mickey Tettleton, who drove in the go-ahead run. "We couldn't get that one big hit we needed, we couldn't get the one big out we needed. Fortunately, tonight we got both of them."

Bagwell homer helps lift Astros past Rockies

By The Associated Press

The Deion Sanders deal is already paying off — for the Cincinnati Reds.

Dave Burba, among those traded from San Francisco to Cincinnati in the seven-player deal involving the flashy Sanders last week, came back to haunt his former team with a strong relief performance Thursday.

Burba (5-2) pitched three scoreless innings for the victory as Cincinnati beat the Giants 14-6.

"Just a week ago, I was ready to go in and pitch for the Giants, and now here I am doing this," Burba said.

Reds manager Dave Johnson also called on former Giants Mike Jackson and Jeff Brantley to hold San Francisco after his team rallied from a 6-2 deficit.

"It's always tough coming out and pitching against your former teammates, but this was his last chance," Johnson said of Burba.

In other NL games, it was Los Angeles 9, Atlanta 4; Philadelphia 6, Pittsburgh 4; Montreal 2, St. Louis 1; Houston 5, Colorado 4 in 12 innings; and San Diego 8, Florida 2 in the first game of a doubleheader before Florida won the nightcap 8-5.

Barry Larkin had five RBIs and hit two of Cincinnati's four home runs, and Benito Santiago's two-run single capped a four-run rally after two were out in the fifth.

Geronimo Berroa had four hits, Gates a two-run homer and Rickey Henderson doubled in both the first and second innings for Oakland. Seven of the A's 16 hits went for extra bases at Tiger Stadium.

Yankees 1, Royals 0

Andy Pettitte, Bob Wickman and John Wetteland combined for a five-hit shutout at Kansas City.

Pettitte (6-6) allowed four hits in 7 1-3 innings, struck out five and walked five as New York won for the eighth time in nine games.

Mike Stanley drove in the game's only run, stretching his hitting streak to 13 games.

NL Roundup

Wallach, Eric Karros and Todd Hollandsworth also homered.

Atlanta's loss, coupled with Philadelphia's victory over Pittsburgh, reduced the Braves' lead in the NL East to six games. After gaining 13 1/2 games on the Phillies since June 25, Atlanta has lost 2 1/2 games off the lead in the last two nights.

Phillies 6, Pirates 4

Darren Daulton's RBI single in the bottom of the seventh snapped a tie as the Phillies scored four runs to beat Pittsburgh.

Michael Mimbs (7-5), making his first appearance out of the bullpen after 16 starts, pitched 2-3 hitless innings to gain the win. Heathcliff Slocumb pitched the ninth for his league-leading 24th save.

Pittsburgh led 3-2 going into the bottom of the seventh, when the Phillies rallied. John Ericks (2-3) allowed 10 hits in 6 1-3 innings as the Pirates dropped their sixth straight.

Expos 2, Cardinals 1

At Montreal, David Segui's tie-breaking single in the eighth led the Expos over St. Louis.

Rondell White hit a two-out single and stole second before coming home on Segui's line shot to left-center field. White scored easily ahead of center fielder Ray Lanford's throw to the plate.

Carlos Perez (9-2) allowed three hits over eight innings to remain undefeated at home (8-0). Mel Rojas pitched the ninth for his 20th save.

Danny Jackson (2-10) allowed two runs on four hits and two walks in eight innings while striking out seven.

Astros 5, Rockies 4

At Houston, Orlando Miller's pinch-hit single in the 12th inning brought home Jeff Bagwell with the winning run for the Astros.

Bagwell tied the game 4-4 in the 10th with his 16th home run, then singled off Mike Munoz (2-4) to start the 12th. Bagwell took third on a single by Derek Bell and came home on Miller's hit one out later.

Todd Jones (6-1) pitched the final three innings for the victory.

Padres 8-5, Marlins 2-8

At Miami, Phil Plantier drove in four runs for San Diego with two doubles in the first game. Russ Morman homered and had two RBIs to lead the Marlins in a nightcap filled with seven errors.

Plantier was part of a 12-man deal in December that sent him from the Padres to Houston. He was reacquired by San Diego in yet another trade with the Astros on July 19 for two minor leaguers.

Chi-Sox topple Bo-Sox in ninth inning rally

By The Associated Press

California's high-powered offense produced again as Jim Edmonds and Tim Salmon each drove in three runs for the host Angels' third consecutive win.

Salmon drove in the go-ahead run in the eighth, scoring Tony Phillips for a 4-3 lead against reliever Bill Wegman (4-4).

The Angels, who lead the league in runs scored, added five runs in the ninth, all off Ron Rightnowar. Brian Anderson (5-2) gave up seven hits and three runs in seven innings.

Going into the game, California had homered in a season-high 15 straight games.

Mariners 11, Indians 5

Mike Blowers hit two of Seattle's season-high five homers and Tim Belcher (7-5) pitched a six-hitter to hand Cleveland its third straight loss.

Jay Buhner, Warren Newson and Dan Wilson also homered for the Mariners in the Kingdome.

Dave Winfield's second homer gave the Indians a 5-0 lead in the second inning, but Seattle answered with its onslaught of homers.

The Mariners began their comeback with Blowers' three-run homer off Chad Ogea (5-3) in the bottom of the fifth.

Blowers hit a two-run homer, his ninth of the year, off Ogea in the fourth for a 6-5 Seattle lead.

Earlier in the day, Cleveland obtained starter Ken Hill from St. Louis, where he was 6-7. He is scheduled to start tonight.

Blue Jays 9, Twins 2

Toronto won for the eighth time in nine games as Roberto Alomar drove in three runs at the SkyDome.

Rookie Edwin Hurtado (3-0) went the distance for the first time, allowing seven hits and two runs.

White Sox 5, Red Sox 4

Chicago overcame a 4-3 deficit in the ninth inning by scoring two runs against Rick Aguilera (1-2), who gave up Tim Raines' game-winning two-out single.

The White Sox tied the game on Lance Johnson's two-out RBI double.

Frank Thomas and Ron Karkovick homered for Chicago.

Matt Karchner (1-0) pitched a scoreless eighth to get the win at Fenway Park.

Athletics 11, Tigers 3

Oakland ended a five-game slide in decisive fashion, getting a career-high four runs from Stan Javier.

All of the Athletics' three victories in their last 14 games have come against the Tigers.

Geronimo Berroa had four hits, Gates a two-run homer and Rickey Henderson doubled in both the first and second innings for Oakland. Seven of the A's 16 hits went for extra bases at Tiger Stadium.

Yankees 1, Royals 0

Andy Pettitte, Bob Wickman and John Wetteland combined for a five-hit shutout at Kansas City.

Pettitte (6-6) allowed four hits in 7 1-3 innings, struck out five and walked five as New York won for the eighth time in nine games.

Mike Stanley drove in the game's only run, stretching his hitting streak to 13 games.

Chandler comfortable at helm of Oilers' new offense

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Steve McNair has the attention. Quarterback Chris Chandler has the job of starter.

An eight-year veteran, Chandler says he's comfortable with his assignment of leading Houston's new offense as the team tries to rebound from last season's 2-14 debacle.

"The guys are doing a good job picking it up. ... Three or four games into it, we ought to be playing as good as anybody," Chandler said after a recent training camp practice at Trinity University.

Chandler joined the Oilers in the offseason, mainly because mentor Jerry Rhome had just been hired as offensive coordinator.

"He's like a father, he's like a best friend, a buddy," said Chandler. "He's the one who really taught me to become a quality football player. I always had the ability, but he showed me how to use it."

The two worked together in 1991-93 in Arizona and Chandler had one of his best seasons in 1992.

"It feels like I never left him," Chandler said. "That's the main reason I wanted to come here, was Jerry."

Chandler played last season with the Los Angeles Rams, where, despite a series of injuries, he completed 108 of 176 attempts for 1,352 yards. He threw for seven touchdowns and had two interceptions.

As Houston coach Jeff Fisher

abandons the run-and-shoot and implements a multiple offense, he's looking to Chandler as his starter, figuring it will take time for top Oilers draft pick McNair to adjust to the league.

McNair signed a seven-year, $28.4 million contract with the Oilers on Tuesday. He is expected to play in the preseason and at the end of some regular-season games.

Chandler insists he isn't bothered by the hoopla surrounding McNair.

Presidential hopeful Bob Dole proposes bill to end affirmative action programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moving beyond his Republican presidential opponents, Sen. Bob Dole proposes ending all federal affirmative action programs, saying set-asides do more to divide the nation than unite it.

"We have lost sight of the simple truth that you don't cure discrimination with more discrimination," Dole, R-Kan., said Thursday, introducing what he called the Equal Opportunity Act of 1995.

The bill would prohibit the federal government from using race or gender as a factor in hiring, awarding contracts or administering programs. It also would bar the government from requiring its contractors or subcontractors to use preferences by race or gender.

The proposal is broader in scope than efforts by two other GOP presidential hopefuls: California Gov. Pete Wilson, who issued an executive order ending set-asides in California government, and Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, whose amendment to stop issuing federal contracts based on race and gender failed in the Senate last week.

Dole also went further than the conservative majority on the Supreme Court, which decided last month that federal affirmative action programs must meet the same strict standards as those at the state and local levels. His plan would eliminate even those programs that could meet stricter standards.

Dole said his legislation would be "a starting point" for a new, colorblind era in civil rights activism. "Making government policies by race is a diversion from reality, an easy excuse to ignore the problems that affect all Americans, whatever their race or heritage may be," he said.

Critics called the bill a ploy to raise Dole's profile among Republicans seeking the White House.

"We cannot permit Senator Dole to turn back the hands of time in order to bolster his fledgling presidential campaign," said Rep. Donald Payne, D-N.J., chairman of the Democrat-dominated Congressional Black Caucus.

Either way, the legislation sets the stage for a long fight over the issue with President Clinton, who has pledged to defend preference programs.

Rep. Charles Canady, R-Fla., who is sponsoring the legislation in the House, said it would not change any existing civil rights law. He said extra funding to help agencies better enforce anti-discrimination laws "needs to be given thoughtful consideration."

Hearings on the legislation will be held in September, Canady said.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said her Labor and Human Resources Committee would hold hearings this fall on the bill to "determine its impact on such practices as set-asides for federal contracts, a practice I have questioned for some time."

But she stopped short of endorsing the measure at this point, although she commended Dole for "bringing this issue to the forefront."

World briefs

U.S. opts out of major global pact

GENEVA (AP) — With the United States sitting on the sidelines, key nations formally committed today to make it easier for banks, insurance companies and securities firms to do business globally.

The United States, however, as a member of the World Trade Organization, will benefit from the new package even though it is not pledging to open its own markets to all comers.

It was the first major trade agreement since World War II that lacked full American participation.

Koala research underway in Sydney

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Scientists trying to save Australia's dwindling koala colonies want to know why the popular marsupials eat leaves from certain eucalyptus trees and bypass others.

The wild population of Australia's emblematic animal, the delight of tourists, has been in rapid decline in this century and could vanish by the end of the decade, the Australian Koala Foundation says.

A three-year project was launched today aiming to identify the key chemical components that make only some of the trees palatable to koalas, the Australian Koala Foundation said.

The project was announced to coincide with Save the Koala Day today.

oh i did try cried he the spirit of the crusader raged within me you see i even set up my own personal size ivory soap box and began dragging out my salvation army trumpet — we brought in drums and guitars we had those bugs dancing in the streets to the holy ghost hop it was the hit of the teen bug scene man we were communicatin know what i mean gene sounds good says i so why did it die

one day the white hairs and the traditionalists rose up in one accord and said there ll be no more tangerines in church — but i think they meant tamborines — and they threw my personal size ivory soap box and our little combo band all in a heap out on the street and told us never to come back again because guitars and god don t mix and i have taken their word for it ever since says he but sometimes i just wish i could play some jesus songs for everyone in peace said he rather wistfully cause he s the one who gave the gift to me in the first place sometimes boss the spirit of the crusader — no matter which side you re on — speaks louder than his spears and often returns to haunt him somehow we have to temper our crusading and clanging cymbals with a dose of jesus love
