Appraisal Board clears Pat Bagley

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

What began last spring as a dispute over personal vehicle taxation and erupted eight months ago with charges of unethical behavior being leveled against Chief Appraiser Pat Bagley ended last night after a two-and-one-half hour executive session of the Gray County Appraisal District Board of Directors.

"After an extensive and detailed report by our investigating attorney, we find no cause for further action in this matter," Board President Sam Haynes announced when the board reconvened in open session. The meeting was adjourned after no board members offered up any further comments.

Present for the announcement were Judi Edwards and Mike

Keagy, co-owners of Quentin Williams Realtors, who made the charges against Bagley in December. Also present for at least part of the session were about 12 other interested parties, including local Realtors and home health care providers.

In December, Edwards and Keagy complained to the GCAD board that Bagley had not only singled out their profession for taxation on personal cars, but had also sought to influence the Appraisal Review Board in considering their protest, had denied them written minutes of earlier meetings and lied about whether other owners and employees of vehicle-dependent businesses were paying taxes on personal vehicles.

The board's decision last night came after a long executive session in which the district's attorney, Ken Fields, and another consulting attorney, Mike Mulcahy of Austin, "thoroughly explained" in an oral report each charge and cited laws and statutes that cleared Bagley, according to one board member.

Bagley had no comment other than echoing Haynes' statement and hinting that he was glad the process was over.

Edwards said she felt the decision indicated a "cover up" by the board, but added that she wasn't "surprised at all."

"I'm very disappointed. I feel like possibly the whole board wasn't comfortable with the decision that was made... but it only takes three to make a decision. I'm disappointed that the system doesn't work any better than this," she said this morning.

One board member indicated after the meeting that the decision was unanimous. He added that he regretted that the Realtors were not allowed to respond to the decision during the meeting as there was no mention of public comment time on the agenda.

"We are still of the opinion that the board should have asked an outside attorney to review this instead of the attorney who had been working with Mr. Bagley and advising him throughout our hearing process," Edwards said, referring to Fields.

Edwards said that she and Keagy haven't decided yet whether they will take further action.

Among Edwards' and Keagy's concerns and Bagley's responses presented to the board Dec. 1 were:

- Keagy and Edwards said they were denied transcribed copies of board minutes. Bagley said he did not have to provide them until they were board approved. He did provide them with a tape recording of the meeting, he said.

PAMPA — The second annual Gray County Enviro Fair kicks off tonight at 6 p.m. at the Pampa Mall.

Dust McGuire with Keep Amarillo Beautiful will talk on home composting, and Rick Stone, Pampa sanitation superintendent, will discuss the city composting program.

Dr. Carl Patrick, Extension entomologist, will talk about beneficial insects, and Dr. Harold Kaufman, Extension plant pathologist, will discuss prevention and control of diseases.

County Extension Agent Danny Nusser will discuss soil sampling and testing.

The program will last until 8:30 p.m.

Tomorrow, educational and commercial booths will be open all day. Irrigation, water services, hazardous waste disposal and private applicator continuing education will be discussed Friday night.

Friday's program will be worth two continuing education units for private applicators.

All interested persons are welcome to attend the fair. For more information, contact Nusser at 669-8033.

LEFORS — The Lefors Independent School District will meet at 5 p.m. today in special session to consider the hiring of a superintendent.

Candidates interviewed at Monday's executive session were Don Fritsche from Harold; Norman Baxter, superintendent at Grandview-Hopkins ISD; and Mike Green, currently Lefors High School principal.

Also slated for discussion is personnel salaries.

Discussion will take place in executive session. Action will be voted on in open session.

PANHANDLE — The Carson County Commissioners' Court will meet Friday at 9 a.m. in the commissioners' court room at the Carson County Court House.

Items on the agenda include discussion of right-of-way and easement, indigent care, and roads, labor and machinery.

Also on the agenda is discussion on unemployment benefits and salary scales.

AUSTIN (AP) — No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth $16 million.

The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 2, 6, 24, 31, 33 and 47.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $22 million.

From left, Michael Martinez, 9, Eric Scroggins, 10, Chelsea Lusk, 9, and Lindsay Jennings, 9, work on a project to make the tallest clay tower that will stand for one minute. These youngsters and others were competing in groups to make a clay tower which involved using their wits as well as their hands. Those with the tower that was tallest and stood longest each got a candy bar. The youngsters were participating in a pottery and clay workshop at the Lovett Memorial Library sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association, with Jim Bob Salazar, a senior ceramics at West Texas A&M University, as instructor.

Heritage Beef wins environmental award

By DAVE BOWSER
Staff Writer

DENVER — A Wheeler County feed yard was honored in Denver this week for its environmental stewardship.

Heritage Beef Cattle Company of Wheeler was one of seven entities, one each from the National Cattlemen's Association's seven districts around the nation, to be recognized for their environmental stewardship efforts in Denver at the NCA Mid-Year Conference.

Les McNeill, NCA environmental stewardship selection award committee chairman and head of Carson County Feedyard near Panhandle, announced the award at the conference Wednesday afternoon.

Joe Weatherly, part owner of the feedlot near Wheeler, and his son Rodney, who manages Heritage, received NCA's Region IV environmental stewardship award. The winner of the national award will be announced at NCA's annual convention in San Antonio in January. The fifth annual award is conducted by NCA in partnership with Pfizer Animal Health.

"Heritage personifies strong environmental stewardship," said NCA President Bob Drake of Davis, Okla. "The feedlot's environmental stewardship is so well known that groups from Mexico, Brazil, Germany, Switzerland, Canada, Japan, Korea, Australia and the United States come to visit the 30,000-head feedlot to see the environmental practices employed."

"When we bought the land in 1969, the soil was in terrible condition, which was the result of farming practices back in the 1930's and 40's," Weatherly said. "Back then, it was customary to farm the land until it stopped producing and then just walk away. We, however, never subscribed to that philosophy. We've been extremely successful at revitalizing the land by using grass seeds, manure and recycled water. It's been like creating a miracle. Now we have productive range land where once it was barren land."

Conserving water has also paid dividends for Heritage. A new gravity-flow water system that involves water tanks, retention ponds and sprinkler systems has saved the feedlot an estimated 111 million gallons of water and $7,880 annually.

Another way the Weatherlys have saved money while protecting the environment is by treating some of their pens with fly ash, a by-product of coal-fired electric plants. The fly ash serves as a concrete-like surface in the pens, which eliminates the need for dirt to be used as flooring.

"Using fly ash has worked great for us," Weatherly said. "Whenever we clean the pens, we only have to peel off the manure from the slabs. This decreases the operating expenses of bringing the dirt in and out of the pens by 50 to 75 percent."

Wildlife living around the feedyard include white tail deer, Rio Grande turkey, armadillos, bob white quail, song birds and water birds. Ponds also are stocked with warm water fish such as crappie and bass.

To reduce stream bank and stream bed erosion in Sweetwater Creek, the Weatherlys built concrete water crossings. The family also seeded the banks of the creek to reduce erosion.

The Heritage Beef Cattle Company was nominated by the Texas Cattle Feeders' Association.

Other winners include: Region I, Bill and Mary Poffenberger, Antietam, Md.; Region II, Ray Jones, Huntsville, Ala.; Region III, David and Corrine Williams, Villisca, Iowa; Region V, Sitz Angus Ranch, Harrison, Mont.; Region VI, Babbitt Ranches, Flagstaff, Ariz.; and Region VII, Clarence Mortenson, Pierre, S.D.

Water district board considers well permit request from Quixx

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

WHITE DEER — The seven-member board of the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District continues to consider a request by officials of the Quixx Corp. for a permit to transport water from a proposed Roberts County well field project.

Meeting in White Deer Wednesday, board members Jerry Green, Clarendon; Phillip Smith and Frank Sims, Panhandle; Robert Clark, Miami; Jim Thompson, Claude; and Charles Bowers and John Spearman, Pampa, heard from Roberts County residents who worry their land near the proposed well site will suffer if water is pumped from the Ogallala Aquifer in the 1,000 resident county.

About 20 people crowded into the district's conference room to speak their piece on the project.

The Canadian River Municipal Water Authority proposes to buy water rights on 42,765 acres from Quixx Corp., a subsidiary of Southwestern Public Service Co., drill wells, build a new aqueduct and mix the Roberts County water with salt water from Lake Meredith.

The field site lies south of the Canadian River and an aqueduct is planned to connect the wells with aqueducts which serve CRMWA member cities. The $76.5 million project is to be shared proportionately among CRMWA member cities, including Pampa. The purpose of the project, according to CRMWA's general manager, John Williams, is to improve water quality and quantity for the authority's member cities.

It is the responsibility of the conservation district to regulate the withdrawal of ground water from the Ogallala Aquifer, explained C.E. Williams of the conservation district.

Conservation districts serve as a buffer between the water rights owner's exercise of pure right of capture and the effect on neighboring landowners, he said.

The district may not deny Quixx a permit but can regulate its terms, he said. The permit will pass to CRMWA upon consummation of the sale of water rights, C.E. Williams said.

Terms of the permit must be decided on by Aug. 2, he said.

Area landowners fear that pumping at rates up to 65,000 acre-feet-year (the maximum requested on the permit application) will dry up their wells because water will drain toward the well field, which is situated over a deep portion of the red bed formation. John Williams denied the authority would pump the maximum amount yearly, but said the 65,000 figure was used because that's the maximum the aqueduct can carry.

Rancher Harold Taylor said, "We realize (SPS) bought it and have a right to use it but we're concerned about an abusive situation."

Development of the field is the largest project ever done in the Ogallala, said C.E. Williams.

"We just hope and pray we don't make any bad blunders," he said.

A study done by hydrologist William E. Mullican III of Austin for the conservation district shows several scenarios at different rates of removal, number of wells, transmissivity factors and years of pumpage.

Oil, gas leases to be sold

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says oil and gas companies are showing more interest in drilling on state land than at any time in the last 15 years.

The School Land Board on Tuesday approved 1,519 tracts totaling 654,366 acres for an Oct. 3 oil and gas lease sale.

Income from more than 13 million acres of state land is dedicated to the Permanent School Fund, which totals more than $11 billion and furnishes $737 million a year to school districts, or $228 per student.

"The oil patch hasn't shown this much interest in state oil and gas lease tracts in 15 years and October promises to be a good month for the schoolchildren of Texas," Mauro said.

Mauro said 752 of the tracts are in the Gulf of Mexico, while 351 tracts are in Matagorda Bay, 140 tracts in East Matagorda Bay and 168 tracts in Galveston and Trinity Bays.

State mineral tracts are nominated by the industry — for $100 per tract — for inclusion in the semiannual oil, gas and mineral lease sales, Mauro said. Of the more than 1,700 tracts nominated for the upcoming lease sale, 1,519 were eligible for lease.

Thornberry says he'll fight to save Pantex

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Congressman Mac Thornberry released the following statement Wednesday regarding the future of Pantex and the DOE decision-making process:

"Rumors that the Department of Energy is considering closing or scaling down Pantex are certainly not new, but neither are they to be taken lightly. I would like for the public to have the full picture of the decision-making process the DOE is going through so we can accurately understand the actual threat to the plant and work together to keep Pantex strong."

Thornberry said the DOE currently has eight environmental impact statements (EIS) underway that have the potential to impact the Pantex Plant. This lengthy process is required by federal law before the DOE can make significant decisions affecting its facilities.

"As part of the EIS process, the DOE is required by law to consider all reasonable options for performing the functions that are vital to the nuclear weapons complex," he said. "For example, Pantex is one of several sites DOE is considering to locate a new tritium production facility, although tritium has been produced in the past at the Savannah River site in South Carolina."

For the current EIS dealing with stockpile stewardship and management, the DOE has listed the Nevada Test Site as a potential site for assembly/disassembly activities that Pantex has always performed, the congressman explained. The DOE also is evaluating whether high explosives work currently performed at Pantex could be done elsewhere.

"This does not mean any decision has been made regarding Pantex. That will not happen before Sept. 1996," Thornberry said.

"I view these DOE alternatives as serious threats to Pantex's future. I have learned that some bureaucrats in the DOE would like to move Pantex's functions to Nevada, and I will fight with every means I have to make sure that never happens."

"Fortunately, making the case for Pantex is not difficult because the plant has the best track record in the DOE. It makes no sense to move anything away from a plant that has operated as safely, efficiently and cleanly as Pantex. I have made this argument for retaining existing functions at Pantex, as well as for the safe expansion of the plant, in several meetings with DOE officials, including Energy Secretary O'Leary."

Thornberry emphasized that if the DOE were to recommend moving some functions of Pantex to another site, the fight would have only just begun.

"The DOE is not following a process similar to the base realignment and closing commission," he said. "Rather, its recommendations must go before Congress before they are implemented. I have spoken numerous times with our senators, Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchison, and they have assured me of their unflinching support for the current mission and for possible future missions for Pantex. I will wage a similar fight along with other members of the Texas delegation in the House."

"I commend the members of the public who will be taking the time this week and in the future to give the DOE their opinions about the importance of Pantex to the Texas Panhandle. I would encourage all area residents to take the time to learn about the DOE decision-making process so we can all work together to keep Pantex here in the future."

Water

In one Mullican scenario, after 50 years pumpage at 45,000 acre-feet-year from 70 wells with a transmissivity factor of 9.6, a drawdown of 300 feet in the center of the well field is predicted.

At the borders of the well field acreage, the drawdown is estimated to be 150 feet. The drawdown is estimated to be one-foot in north Gray County after 50 years.

Satisfaction of area landowners in setting terms of the permit will be impossible, said board president Spearman, a Roberts County farmer and rancher.

"It's a real problem. There's no way we're gonna satisfy everybody including myself,"

Spearman said.

He later said, "It's kinda like looking in a crystal ball ... We're trying to protect this situation for the next 50 years."

Additional testing will be completed before the sale is consummated in order to satisfy the authority that field development is feasible and worth what CRMWA has agreed to pay for it, said John Williams.

PUC tells SW Bell to refund Texans $48 million

HOUSTON (AP) - Texans may soon see an something they like on their phone bill: a refund.

The Public Utility Commission on Wednesday ordered Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. to repay Texas customers about $48 million from an experimental profit-sharing program.

The PUC estimated residential customers will receive a one-time credit of about $5.50 and business customers will get back about $4.30 on future bills.

Bell spokesman Jon Loehman said the refunds will be made in August.

The paybacks come from an experimental regulation program that allowed the phone company a range of earnings and required Bell to share surplus profits with customers. Bell agreed to the program, which began in November 1990.

Loehman said Bell had anticipated a refund of this size, but it wasn't official until the PUC audited the company's earnings.

The PUC came up with its figure by determining Bell owes $29.9 million for earnings from the fourth year of the program, which ended Nov. 30, 1994, and another $18.1 million from surplus funds dedicated to Lifeline service.

That service provides a $3.50-per-month reduction in local phone rates for residential customers who meet certain income and other eligibility requirements.

Board

They said Bagley attempted to influence the appraisal review board with communications outside meetings. Bagley said a letter to ARB member Robert Echols did not attempt to influence Echols' decision about the protests, but inform him about information from the Texas comptroller's office.

Keagy and Edwards said Bagley wouldn't show them that others in vehicle-dependent businesses pay taxes on personal cars and the tax master listing does not show insurance agents, physicians or attorneys as listing personal vehicles for taxation. Bagley said detailed renditions are not public record, and the tax master listing doesn't show all property rendered.

The charges were presented in further detail at the board's Feb. 2 meeting.

Board members present at Wednesday night's meeting included Haynes, Neil Quattlebaum, Wallace Birkes, Jim Greene and Lewis Meers.

Democrats paint sinister portrait of Koresh

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans running hearings on the government's 1993 raids on the Branch Davidian compound near Waco, Texas, expressed concern today about the role military personnel played in the action.

"More than any other, the image of Bradley fighting vehicles and M1 tanks set against the burning Mount Carmel compound calls into question the role of the military at Waco," Rep. Steve Buyer, R-Ind., said at the second of eight days of hearings.

"Since before the founding of our nation," he said, "Americans have had deeply rooted concerns about the separation of the military from civilian affairs."

Top law enforcement and military officials were slated to appear before the two House subcommittees today. The Republicans were planning to focus on the planning of the initial raid by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

At Wednesday's session, Democrats elicited graphic testimony from a young girl who described being molested by Branch Davidian leader David Koresh. The minority Democrats and the Clinton administration are trying to lay out a justification for the botched February 1993 raid.

"What her testimony revealed was how dangerous David Koresh was," Treasury Undersecretary Ron Noble said today of the testimony by a nervous Kiri Jewell, now 14, as she recounted the first time she had sex with Koresh, the leader of the sect.

"David Koresh was one very, very dangerous human being," Noble said on the Fox Morning News. "Not only was he a child molester, but a murderer who'll turn weapons on ATF agents executing search warrants."

The packed hearing room was stunned in mid-afternoon when the teenager recounted her first sexual encounter with Koresh when she was just 10. She also recounted Koresh's graphic description of sex acts with other women and children.

"I was 10 years old when this happened," Miss Jewell testified. "I remember sitting in the gas station wondering when he (Koresh) would do it again. I wasn't afraid, but I was nervous."

At the Justice Department today, Attorney General Janet Reno criticized the subcommittees for letting a National Rifle Association employee accompany staff investigators during preparations for the hearings.

"It is very important ... that it's Congress representing the people of the United States and not one special interest group that is conducting the investigation," Reno said during her weekly news conference.

Asked about published reports that GOP staff members hope to humiliate her when she testifies alone on the final day of hearings, Reno replied, "I'm not worried about being humiliated, I'm worried about getting the truth out."

Democrats used the hearing to paint a sinister portrait of Koresh as the GOP-run House hearings opened on the Waco tragedy and the way the ATF handled the raid.

The ATF first admitted errors in a Treasury Department report issued in 1993, and the agents described them Wednesday.

ICC approves giant merger of rail firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission today unanimously approved a merger creating the nation's largest rail network.

After the 4-0 vote, commissioners said they would decide whether to attach conditions to the $4 billion merger of Burlington Northern Inc. and Santa Fe Pacific Corp. to address concerns by shippers and smaller railroads that the deal would reduce competition.

The Justice Department also had cautioned against "competitive harm" if the merger were approved unconditionally.

But this morning, the commission found the merger would increase efficiency and be a boost for the nation's economy.

Betty Jo Christian of the Fort Worth-based Burlington Northern told the commission that Burlington Northern and Santa Fe Pacific had negotiated agreements with chief rivals Southern Pacific and Union Pacific that "we believe satisfy all of the legitimate competitive concerns."

The deals generally allow those rivals to use Burlington Northern or Schaumburg, Ill.-based Santa Fe lines for a fee, to preserve competition in several states.

But Joan S. Huggler of the Justice Department said the fees may be too high.

Christian said the Justice Department was offering "nothing but sheer speculation." And criticism from smaller railroads and shippers "are really just efforts to improve their own competitive circumstances or to obtain increased revenue," she said.

One of those rail competitors, the Illinois Central Railroad Co., is worried about competition from the Gulf of Mexico to the upper Midwest or the Pacific Northwest.

Amtrak and the Southern California Regional Rail Authority worried that increased freight traffic would delay commuter trains and hurt businesses. And Western coal shippers contended they would pay higher prices if they had fewer rail choices.

Burlington Northern and Santa Fe said that the merger would combine Burlington Northern's specialty in hauling grain, coal, autos and timber with Santa Fe's pioneering use of intermodal transportation — carrying semi-trailers on flat-bed rail cars.

The new rail network would stretch from Canada to Mexico, with 33,000 miles of track in the Midwest, West and Southeast. It would have about $7 billion in annual revenue and dominate rail cargo in the West.

The railroads plan to eliminate 2,750 jobs and save $450 million while speeding the flow of goods across the country.

Toy firm, space center begin contest

HOUSTON (AP) — The LEGO Toy Co. today teamed up with Space Center Houston, the visitors center outside the Johnson Space Center, for a nationwide building contest for children.

The contest, dubbed the LEGO Space Challenge, is intended for children 5 through 12 to design and build space models using the colorful interlocking block toys.

"The kids of today will be the astronauts and scientists of tomorrow, who will take our space program to Mars and beyond," retired astronaut Eugene Cernan, who serves on the contest advisory committee, said. "Space is a medium for imagination. It stimulates the mind to dream and one day those dreams will come true."

Children are being asked to design and construct their vision of space stations, shuttles and other space devices. From now until the Jan. 8 contest deadline, they can submit pictures of their creations along with entry forms found in most toy stores nationwide.

The grand prize is a trip for four to Cape Canaveral, Fla., to watch a shuttle launch and a trip to Houston to tour Space Center Houston.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the covenant commandment.

Defunct concept makes no sense

"Proposals to eliminate the U.S. Commerce Department are an assault on American workers, their families and their communities," or so writes Commerce Secretary, Ron Brown, in a recent commentary published in USA Today.

Perhaps Brown can be forgiven such urgent hyperbole; after all, disbanding the department would eliminate his job, too. Never mind, as well, that his concern for "American workers" actually treads on the turf of yet another Cabinet member (also prone to fits of demagoguery), Labor Secretary Robert Reich.

To be sure, Brown is simply wrong in principle in hailing Commerce as a "well-oiled job-creating machine." Even if true, it's not government's job; it's nowhere in the Constitution nor was it envisioned by our founders that taxpayers should bear that responsibility. But set aside that fundamental principle for the sake of argument, and Brown's rendition of a well-oiled job creator is, practically speaking, a parody of itself as well. He writes:

"One example: After 50 years in business, New York's Clipper Diamond Tool Co. found itself losing customers to competitors in Japan and Germany. Facing closure, founder Joseph Klipper turned to the (Commerce Department's) Industrial Technology Assistance Corp. for help. With the center's assistance, Clipper relocated, created a more efficient shop layout, installed computer-aided design and manufacturing equipment, and trained employees. Business is up, quality is up and orders are up."

Wonderful. And how many jobs were at risk? Forty, Brown boasts. How much did it cost to bail it out (and let's be honest, this is a bailout)? Curiously, Brown doesn't say. But all of the assistance he mentions - relocation, reconfiguration, computerization, etc. - can break more than a few piggy banks. And all of it went for what is in reality a business in its economic twilight.

Clipper's founder, Brown notes, declared that, "If it had not been for this help, Clipper Diamond Tool would not be around today."

Bluntly, if that small firm couldn't stay in business without taxpayer support, it shouldn't be in business. It is not the taxpayers' duty to bolster the flagging fortunes of any individual entrepreneur. And that burden is only compounded when the business that bureaucrats choose to shore up is, in turn, in an industry that is itself dying. A half-century-old company of only 40 employees in the machine tool trade is hardly the kind of cutting edge venture that can be expected to last, much less form the basis of our economy in the next century, however much money taxpayers are forced to sink into it.

The fact that the Commerce Department has developed the ability to choose uneconomical businesses and prop them up with our tax dollars is hardly cause for a stay of execution; it should expedite the department's demise.

Handling China requires patience

Thirty years ago, China was North Korea writ large: a huge country with a suffocatingly repressive system, closed to the outside world and perpetually hostile to it. Today, it is an emerging capitalist economy that welcomes outside visitors and investors, sends students to study in the United States, retains fewer controls on its people's lives and accepts most of the obligations of membership in the world community.

As human-rights activist Harry Wu can attest, China still has far to go. But in making policy toward the most populous country and most important new economic power on Earth, Americans should keep in mind the great distance it has come and the reassuring direction it is headed.

The natural impulse when Beijing does something cruel and insulting, as it did when it arrested Wu and charged him with a crime (espionage) that carries the death penalty, is to strike back with any available club. Calls immediately went up on Capitol Hill to impose stiff trade sanctions against China, to recognize Taiwan as an independent country and to use Vietnam as a counterweight. The sentiment is fueled by dissatisfaction with China on other issues, mainly missile shipments to Pakistan and nuclear sales to Iran, as well as its general habit of trampling on political dissidents.

But drastic measures would be self-defeating. As Assistant Secretary of Defense Joseph Nye recently told a House committee, "If you treat China as an enemy, then you will have an enemy." If, on the other hand, we couple firm and reasonable demands with cooperation on commerce and due respect in the strategic realm, China will be more willing to accommodate us on the things that matter most.

Stephen Chapman

Human rights is not one of the places where we can expect to get our way with this government, which is willing to do just about anything in the way of liberalization except give up power. But time is on our side. We need to trust that the experience of South Korea and Taiwan, where rising prosperity led to the flowering of democracy, holds a portent in China.

Some countries are prosperous, and some countries are authoritarian states. But very few countries are both. The most powerful force for human rights reform is China's economic revolution, which has expanded the sphere of personal freedom and generated growth that eventually will destroy the regime that brought it about. American sanctions would damage their own purpose by slowing that process.

Mischief in the world arena, on the other hand, may require penalties. If Beijing has really given Pakistan medium-range ballistic missiles, in violation of promises to Washington, U.S. law requires the cutoff of high-technology and military exports to China. The Beijing government knows that and should be held to account.

But China is far more responsible in international affairs than it used to be. It has provided valuable help in our negotiations to get North Korea off the nuclear track; it has signed the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty; it has stopped fomenting revolution in the Third World; it has applied for membership in the World Trade Organization - all signs of a country that, as Rand Corp. scholar Thomas McNaughton argues, now sees it has a major stake in global peace and stability.

Relations between Washington and Beijing are not destined to be tranquil, if only because we are the world's greatest established power and China, with the biggest population on Earth, is an emerging power determined to claim a new role in Asian and world affairs. Clashes are inevitable.

The Clinton administration, however, has done its best to generate maximum friction by letting the Chinese know it can be muscled. First, it demanded human rights progress if China wanted to keep its trade privileges - and then, when Beijing refused to budge, surrendered. Then, it vowed not to grant a travel visa to the president of Taiwan - only to flip-flop when the heat from Congress got too high.

Beijing has obviously learned the lesson that the way to get results from the United States is to be nasty, not nice. Unlearning that lesson will take time - and may take a new president.

But adopting a policy of hostility is not the way to induce better Chinese behavior. The way to do that is through broader contacts, realistic hopes, the willingness to act to protect our interests when we need to and, most of all, plenty of patience. It's not crucial to American goals and interests that China change overnight - only that it change.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, July 20, the 201st day of 1995. There are 164 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On July 20, 1969, Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin became the first men to walk on the moon as they stepped out of their lunar module.

On this date:

In 1810, Colombia declared independence from Spain.

In 1861, the Congress of the Confederate States began holding sessions in Richmond, Va.

In 1871, British Columbia entered Confederation as a Canadian province.

In 1881, Sioux Indian leader Sitting Bull, a fugitive since the Battle of the Little Big Horn, surrendered to federal troops.

In 1917, the draft lottery in World War I went into operation.

In 1942, the first detachment of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps - later known as "WACs" - began basic training at Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

'Palestinian refugees' have meaning

Charley Reese

The world outside our heads is infinitely more complex than the world inside our heads.

A recent conversation with Leila Zachariah, executive director of Association Najdeh in Beirut, reminded me of that. Najdeh is an Arabic word that translates roughly into "come to the rescue." It's a social organization that works with Palestinian refugees, primarily women and children, in the camps scattered about in Lebanon.

We think in words, which are symbols. Some words are symbols of actual things in the real world, and some words are symbols of things that don't exist except as ideas. The point is that as long as we play with words in our heads things look fairly simple. (That is the Achilles heel of intellectuals.) "The Oslo Agreement," "Israelis and Palestinians negotiating," "Sooner or later the conflict will be resolved." It's easy to think these words until you look at the real world on the ground.

"Palestinian refugee" is not a symbol. It's 3 million living, breathing, suffering individual human beings. These refugees are 58 percent of all Palestinians and 56 percent of the Palestinians living in the Occupied Territories.

Zachariah said of the Palestinian refugees registered with the United Nations that 37.8 percent live in the West Bank and Gaza, 39.7 percent live in Jordan, 11.2 percent live in Lebanon and 10.9 percent live in Syria. She is not counting as refugees those Palestinians who managed to get citizenship in another country.

That they have become refugees and that Israel refuses to either readmit them or compensate them for their homes, farms and businesses is what started the conflict in 1948. It is what fueled it for the following 47 years. And it is what will scuttle the peace if their situation is not resolved.

Imagine, for a moment, living for 47 years with no citizenship, no passport, no civil rights and no right to work, dependent on international charity for one-room shelter, some food and some help with early education, in camps that periodically feel the heat of bombs or bullets.

Even though the refugees have been at the core of the conflict, Zachariah says Israel and the United States have adopted a strategy that not only precludes their return or citizenship in a future Palestinian state, but has already begun to cause them immediate harm. She says that was one of the huge concessions the Palestine Liberation Organization made to get the Oslo Agreement.

Now, Lebanon, which God knows has its own problems, is putting pressure on the refugees. Two camps in West Beirut, the site of the infamous massacre after Israel's invasion of Lebanon, are to be bulldozed to make way for urban renewal. The occupants will join the 6,000 families already homeless.

Zachariah says there is also a move to shrink and then abolish the U.N. agency that has provided assistance to the refugees. At the same time, because of the mistaken notion that refugees are included in the peace process, help from international donors is drying up.

Worst of all, the United States, Israel and the PLO took the Palestinian issue out of the framework of international law, where U.N. resolution after U.N. resolution have always supported the refugees' right to return or to receive compensation.

I'm telling you this just so you won't be surprised when you pick up your paper one day and find out the peace process has blown up in everybody's faces.

Instead of an honest peace process, what's going on is a transparent scheme by the U.S. government and Israel to give, just one more time (in the words of a song), themselves the gold mine and the Palestinians the shaft.

But as they discover, you can't sweep 3 million people under a rug. I wish my government was standing for a just peace instead of engaging in a shabby scheme. But the clamor of money and ambition in the luxurious halls of Washington drowns the cry for justice coming from desperate camps.

Jilted fans just won't take baseball back

Joseph Spear

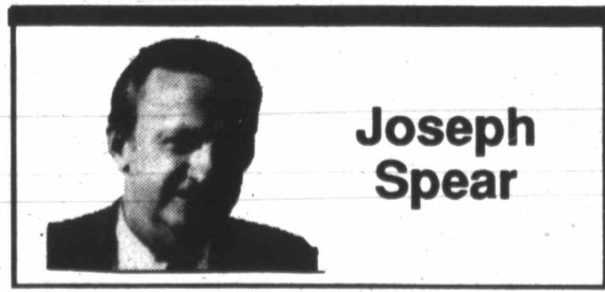

If there are very many of you out there who are feeling about baseball the way I do as we enter the second half of this strike-shortened season, our national pastime is in trouble.

Who's leading the divisions? The Boston Red Sox are ahead in the American League East, you say? OK, that's nice. They haven't won a World Series since they traded away the Babe in 1919, so maybe they're finally going to chuck the Curse of the Bambino. Cleveland's running away with the Central Division title, you say? OK, they deserve it. They haven't won much since they captured the American League pennant in 1954.

But you know what? It really doesn't make much difference.

Thanks to last year's strike, and especially to the cancellation of the World Series, I feel like a jilted lover, and I am extremely unforgiving. I mean, I'm still following my team, the Baltimore Orioles, but by this time last year, I had been to Camden Yards three or four times. This year I've been once. Time was when I felt empty when they were rained out. I used to gripe when they were not on the tube. Now I just do something else. They play, they don't play, I really don't care that much.

I realize I am but one of perhaps a hundred million fans in the country, but I don't think the change in my attitude is a meaningless development. You are reading the words of a boy who was playing baseball before he started grade school, an adolescent whose ear was glued to a crackling radio when the Yankees took the Phils in four in the 1950 World Series, a teenager who became a die-hard Orioles fan the day they moved from St. Louis in 1954 and has lived and died with them since.

But I'm telling you, the clowns who own Major League baseball teams and the shakedown artists who play the game really disgusted me last year. Millions in profits were not enough; the owners made us believe they were headed for the poorhouse. An average salary of $1.2 million was not enough; the players tried to convince us they were indentured servants. They all wanted to squeeze more out of our already wrung-out hides.

All winter long, I seethed. I loved it when Washington Post columnist Tony Kornheiser declared, "I HATE EVERY ONE OF YOU." I was delighted, after things finally got rolling this season, when Pittsburgh fans littered the field with promotional giveaways. I was elated when a plane flew over Riverfront Stadium in Cincinnati pulling a banner that read, "Owners and Players, To Hell With All of You." I thought the protesters at Shea Stadium who ran onto the field and threw $1 bills at the players deserved an award for their creativity.

And now I am totally thrilled that attendance at Major League baseball parks is down 22 percent so far this year. With any kind of luck, maybe a few of the teams will be forced into bankruptcy and maybe a few of the rapacious creeps who own them will have to drive Mercurys instead of Mercedes, and maybe a few of the mercenary meatheads who play the game will have some zeros hacked off their contracts and have to hire out as construction workers or plumbers' helpers in the off-season - jobs which they would probably be doing full time but for their ability to throw hard or hit balls with sticks.

What could baseball possibly do to get us back into its embrace? Well, how about selling stock and limiting the ownership of it so we can all buy a piece of our own teams? Outlawing domed stadiums and plastic grass would take a bit of the edge off my anger. I also kind of like an idea touted by baseball historian John Holway: Have the head of the players' union, Donald Fehr, crawl around the bases in his underwear.

No matter what, I doubt many of us would return to the fold with the feelings of love and trust we once had. Like Mark Twain's cat that sat on a hot-stove lid, we will never sit on a hot-stove lid again - but we won't sit on a cold one, either.

JERUSALEM (AP) — The PLO's standstill in negotiations to get North Korea off the nuclear track, it has signed the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty; it has stopped fomenting revolution in the Third World; it has applied for membership in the World Trade Organization - all signs of a country that, as Rand Corp. scholar Thomas McNaughton argues, now sees it has a major stake in global peace and stability.

Relations between Washington and Beijing are not destined to be tranquil, if only because we are the world's greatest established power and China, with the biggest population on Earth, is an emerging power determined to claim a new role in Asian and world affairs. Clashes are inevitable.

The Clinton administration, however, has done its best to generate maximum friction by letting the Chinese know it can be muscled. First, it demanded human rights progress if China wanted to keep its trade privileges - and then, when Beijing refused to budge, surrendered. Then, it vowed not to grant a travel visa to the president of Taiwan - only to flip-flop when the heat from Congress got too high.

Beijing has obviously learned the lesson that the way to get results from the United States is to be nasty, not nice. Unlearning that lesson will take time - and may take a new president.

But adopting a policy of hostility is not the way to induce better Chinese behavior. The way to do that is through broader contacts, realistic hopes, the willingness to act to protect our interests when we need to and, most of all, plenty of patience. It's not crucial to American goals and interests that China change overnight - only that it change.

Peres says Israel and PLO have reached understanding

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel and the PLO have reached understandings over an Israeli troop pullback in the West Bank and control of scarce water resources, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said today.

He did not elaborate but Israel radio said a full accord was not reached.

Peres met on Wednesday with PLO chief Yasser Arafat in Alexandria, Egypt, to try to resolve problems in negotiations on an agreement expanding Palestinian autonomy throughout the West Bank.

The two sides hope to sign an accord by Tuesday, though they are believed likely to miss that deadline by at least a day or two.

"In a few very serious areas understandings were reached where there were no understandings before," Peres told Israel radio. "Now they need to be put down in writing in a very careful manner."

Asked to elaborate, Peres would only say that agreement was reached in the dispute over control of West Bank water sources used heavily by Israel and Israeli redeployment in the West Bank.

A Foreign Ministry official told journalists that Palestinians would drill for new sources of water. There was no further information on progress toward an accord on the West Bank troop pullout, which was to have taken place a year ago. The deal being negotiated will likely entail a withdrawal from several Palestinian towns in the West Bank followed by Palestinian elections. Israel's army would remain in charge of security in the rural areas and Jewish settlements but gradually hand over more land over two years.

The PLO's police chief, Maj. Gen. Nasser Youssef, toured the West Bank town of Jenin today in anticipation of an Israeli withdrawal. The Israeli pullout is expected to start there.

The Haaretz newspaper reported that Peres and Arafat could meet again in Egypt early next week to work out difficulties holding up an agreement on the second stage of the Israeli-PLO autonomy accord signed in September 1993.

The Gaza Strip and West Bank town of Jericho achieved self-rule in May 1994 in the first stage.

Negotiators were continuing talks in northern Israel today, Israeli radio stations reported.

In related news, Egypt's foreign minister told Israel army radio that he expected Syria and Israel to reach a preliminary peace agreement or a security accord by the end of the year.

Israeli and Syrian military officials met last month to work out security arrangements for a peace agreement but Syria is delaying a second round.

Journal associated with Unabomber

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — A list of subscribers to a far-left academic journal has been subpoenaed by a grand jury in the Unabomber investigation.

Val Burris, a sociology professor at the University of Oregon and editor of the journal Critical Sociology, was subpoenaed two weeks ago, the Los Angeles Times reported Wednesday.

Burris, contacted Wednesday, declined to comment.

George Grotz, spokesman for the FBI and the Unabomber task force in San Francisco, acknowledged that the FBI was interested in some work at the university.

He did not say whether officials believe the Unabomber is a journal subscriber. Colleagues in Burris' department confirmed that he received the subpoena early this month.

Elephant paints with Russian artists

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — She's a Dumbo dadaist. A pachyderm Picasso.

She's Renee the painting elephant — and yes, she works for peanuts.

As part of a Toledo Zoo program to keep animals' minds sharp, Renee has been painting solo for about a decade. On Wednesday, she teamed up with Russian artists Vitaly Komar and Alex Melamid for a collaborative effort.

"We're really fascinated with the American obsession with power and elephants are so big, the most powerful," said Komar.

Komar and Melamid may have works hanging in the the Museum of Modern Art and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, but elephant art was winning hearts at the open-air paint-a-thon Wednesday.

"Wow!" said 10-year-old Billy Abrams, watching from the edge of the exhibit. "I can't believe it. An elephant painting."

With a slap of a paintbrush and the encouragement on her trainer ("Paint! Paint!" he yelled, handing her the dripping brushes), Renee added a line here and a circle there to the canvasses.

Former University of Texas accounting clerk receives ten year sentence for embezzling

AUSTIN (AP) — A former University of Texas accounting clerk now battling lymphatic cancer was shown no mercy by a federal judge who sentenced her to 10 years in prison for embezzling $816,912 from the school.

Lynn Harvey Deer, 62, was punished Wednesday for her crime, which UT officials say led to an overhaul of the university's purchasing and disbursement policy.

State District Judge Jon Wisser said he sympathizes with Ms. Deer's illness, but he couldn't overlook the "staggering" amount of money she pilfered from 1982 to 1993.

"Prison time is needed as a deterrent to this kind of behavior," Wisser said.

Wisser said Ms. Deer can apply for probation after six months. The judge also wants to try getting her to begin making restitution using her income of about $1,400 a month from Social Security "and, ironically, from her UT pension."

School officials say insurance has paid back $764,000 of the money stolen by Ms. Deer, who had been an accounting clerk for the College of Fine Arts from 1978 until 1994.

UT auditor Isabel Sweat testified that Ms. Deer's scheme involved making up names and addresses of fake consultants or lecturers to be paid for their work, then depositing that money into her personal bank account.

Discovery readied for return

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronauts packed up Discovery today while controllers on Earth swapped Mission Control rooms in preparation for the shuttle's return home Friday from a science and satellite-delivery flight.

The spaceship and a crew of five were scheduled to land Friday morning in Florida. Weather forecasters expected mostly favorable conditions.

Crew members today were finishing up a few remaining science experiments and packing up others.

Ground controllers were on the move, too, toting clipboards and log books from NASA's new Mission Control Center back to the original center just down the hall.

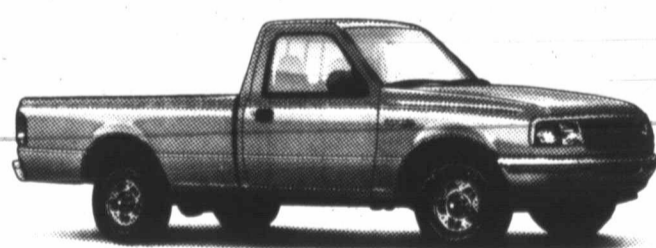

Discovery was monitored from the historic old center immediately after the July 13 launch. The $250 million new center, with updated computers and a spacious arrangement of sleek, blue consoles, debuted about 9 1/2 hours later.

Controllers switched back to the old facility today in anticipation of landing.

It marked the first time in 30 years that a U.S. spaceship was controlled from somewhere other than one of the two original Houston flight control rooms, which became familiar to millions of television viewers during the Apollo moon missions.

Launches and landings, the most dangerous parts of any space flight, will be controlled from the old room at least through the end of this year so NASA can make sure there are no glitches to be worked out.

Oklahoma Tragedy Reveals This To Be Best and Worst of Times

DEAR ABBY: My sons, 14 and 15, have been raised in a society that is at its lowest point. There was no one to trust or believe in. I felt despair for children growing up in a world where this could happen.

Then I watched the rescue operation in Oklahoma City through my tears, and the workers who were so courageous in their efforts to find victims. I began to get feelings of warmth and came to realize that we don't have far to look to find heroes. All the men and women who risked their lives to save others will be shining examples to my sons.

For every drug dealer, thief and murderer, there are hundreds of good citizens. For every cheating, immoral person, there are hundreds of honest, faithful, hard-working people. For every evil, sick, misguided person involved in the bombing, there are hundreds of brave, unselfish, angelic rescue workers. I have come away with a feeling of hope because of them.

KATHERINE SIMON

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Because of my faith, I believe that all who perished in the bombing are now in a better place.

We are only on a journey through this life — life is not permanent, but life does not end. Perhaps God, in his mercy, allows these things to happen to shorten the journey for some, for reasons we mortals cannot understand.

Cowboys' draft pick stakes claim on No. 21

By MARK BABINECK
Associated Press Writer

IRVING (AP) — No. 21 finally made his anticipated appearance for the Dallas Cowboys Wednesday, just in time for the team's last day of its "quarterback school" mini camp.

No, not Deion Sanders. He's still courting all NFL comers while he roams the outfield for the Cincinnati Reds.

For now, No. 21 in the Cowboys' program is cornerback Alundis Brice, a fourth-round pick out of Mississippi who signed a deal with the team Wednesday morning.

The 5-10, 178-pound Brice was the ninth of the club's 10 draft picks to sign a contract, and he immediately staked a claim to his uniform number.

"I'm not giving it up. He's going to have to come take it," Brice said of Sanders, for whom Cowboys owner Jerry Jones is fishing. "I'm very serious."

Brice said he wouldn't give the number away, but wouldn't rule out selling it.

"Anything's available for a price," said Brice, who said he's fully recovered from a gunshot wound to the chest he received earlier this year when he tried to break up a fight.

His signing amplified the absence of the team's top pick, Sherman Williams. Team officials said the Alabama running back could be in pads by Friday's first day of official training camp in Austin, but nothing is certain.

Meanwhile, negotiations with standout linebacker Darrin Smith appear at a standstill, making him the only veteran holdout. Players must report to the team's St. Edward's University facility by 3 p.m. Thursday, and two-a-day practices begin Friday morning.

The wildcard of the club's payroll, Sanders, won't play a down of football for anyone until baseball is over. And the Reds are a favorite to go to the World Series, which could last into late October under the game's new playoff format.

Even if it's for part of a season, Switzer said he's pushing Jones to obtain the player who helped the San Francisco 49ers end the Cowboys' NFC reign last season after two years.

"Any player on this football team that doesn't want to improve it (by adding Sanders), I don't want here," he said. "And every one of them wants to improve it. I'm not the only one."

Switzer added that the Cowboys would utilize the All-Pro cornerback more than the Niners did. He said Sanders would play receiver as well as defensive back if he wears the Cowboys star.

Backup quarterback Wade Wilson, who threw Sanders his first NFL offensive touchdown when both were Atlanta Falcons, said the Cowboys could only benefit with the man known as "Neon Deion."

"I would like to see Deion — he's such a phenomenal player," Wilson said. "If he could polish up on offense, he could start both ways."

As for the players in camp now, Switzer said he'd like to see "at least the first three or four guys" drafted make the ballclub, but he reserved special praise for the last man chosen by Dallas in the draft.

"To me, (Oscar Sturgis) is better than a seventh-round pick," Switzer said. "But it's all guesswork. That's why we go to Austin, to try to find out."

Unlike many younger players who talk of welcoming the Central Texas heat, 15 years of training camps have soured Wilson on the experience.

"The day I look forward to (in camp) is the day we leave," said Wilson, who practiced in cooler climes in his long tenure with the Minnesota Vikings.

"But when you've been in the same system for years, the training camp doldrums can set in real early. Being with a new team and a new system, I've certainly got a lot of learning to do. It'll make the camp go by a lot faster."

The Cowboys will return to their Valley Ranch facility in Irving on Aug. 18.

PAMPA — The Pampa All-Stars are scheduled to meet Plainview in the first round of the West Texas State 13-year-old Babe Ruth Tournament. Pampa and Plainview play at 5:30 p.m. Saturday in tournament action at Graham.

Pampa team members are Justin Barnes, Jesse Francis, Greg Lindsey, Tommy Luzano, Casey Owens, Russell Robben, Trey Rogers, Cody Shepard, Kaleb Snelgroves, Gil Solano, Blake Stewart, Justin Trollinger and Jonathan Waggoner.

The Pampa team won the District Tournament title last week in Dumas.

FISHING

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Had Raul Alcocer and Danny Duenes kept the 34-inch speckled trout they hauled in, the teen-agers could be record-holders.

Instead, all they can do is talk about the one they gave away.

The pair figured they'd done enough by taking a snapshot of their catch, which was one-quarter inch longer than the state record-holder.

However, state records are determined by weight, not length, and the pair threw back their fish before weighing it. The 33 3/4-inch fish that holds the record weighs 13.56 pounds and was caught in 1975 by Paul M. Blackwood of Corpus Christi.

"We weren't interested in killing that fish," said Alcocer, 18. "We are sportsmen, and it felt good to see it swim off."

When the teens headed out to the 61st Street Pier, they weren't even fishing for trout. They wanted shark.

But during a lull in their shark-hunting, the pair decided to try for speckled trout. To entice a speck, they borrowed a 4-inch live whiting and affixed it to a treble hook, adding slip-shot weights for casting.

"We wanted to catch a speck, but who guessed it would be anything like this?" Alcocer said.

VOLLEYBALL

PAMPA — Final check-in for all girls registered for the Lady Harvester volleyball camp will be at 4 p.m. Sunday, July 23, at McNeely Fieldhouse.

Each participant will pay remaining fees and pick up equipment to be issued for the camp, which will run from 9-12 a.m. July 24-28.

The camp is for fifth through eighth graders.

FOOTBALL

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Seattle Seahawks receiver Brian Blades didn't waste any time. He surrendered to Broward County Jail authorities, posted $10,000 bond and left for Seattle.

Wearing a red, white and blue warmup jacket displaying the letters USA, Brian Blades, 29, read sympathy cards while being driven away from jail Wednesday.

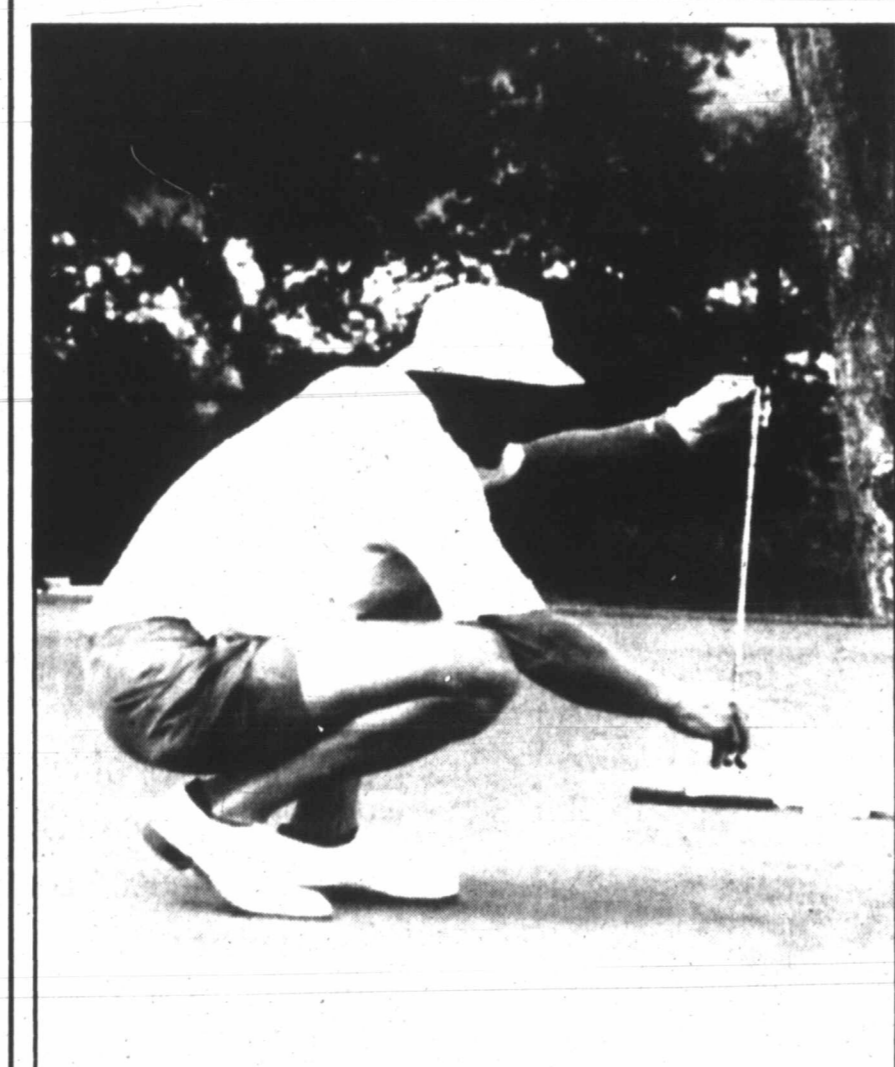

He is charged with manslaughter in the shooting death of his cousin, 34-year-old Charles Blades. The first-degree felony, manslaughter with a firearm, carries a possible 30-year prison sentence.

Police on Tuesday said the player shot his cousin in the chin from 4 inches away as the two struggled for control of Brian Blades' .38-caliber handgun at the player's home in Plantation.

The hometown football hero has refused to speak to police and remained silent Wednesday while being followed by several reporters and photographers. But last week, an emotional Blades said the shooting was unintentional.

Brian Blades' agent, Drew Rosenhaus, spoke for the player Wednesday.

"We don't see any impediment long-term to Brian's career," Rosenhaus said while leaving the jail with the player and his attorney.

Jim Kirk of Ardmore, Okla., the 1988 winner, returns to the Tri-State Seniors Tournament this year.

Strong field set for Tri-State Seniors

PAMPA — The 61st annual Tri-State Seniors Golf Association Tournament could produce some exciting results this year with some solid new players teeing off alongside the Tri-State veterans.

Pampa's Elmer Wilson returns to defend his title. Jim Kirk of Ardmore, Okla., the 1988 Tri-State champion, is back after missing the last two years. Kirk was runnerup in 1991 and 1992. Pampa's Carroll Langley, who finished third last year also returns, along with Amarillo's Bob Sanders, the 1993 runnerup. Sanders finished fourth a year ago.

Eddie Duenkel and Merle Terrell, two top-flight players from Pampa, have turned 55 and are now eligible for the seniors.

"With some good players coming back and some new ones coming in, we should have a stronger field," said Pampa Country Club club pro Mickey Piersall.

The heavy rainfall this summer has left the PCC course in excellent condition.

"It looks real good. We'll have a nice, green course for the golfers to play on," Piersall added.

The tournament tees off next Wednesday with the first round of match and stroke play. The second round is Thursday (July 27) with the final round of stroke play in all flights wrapping up Friday, July 28.

The championship flight will play 54 holes of stroke play, and after 18 holes the flight will be divided with the 16 players having the highest scores forming the President's flight.

Pampa drills Plainview Blue in 11-12 tourney; Local 10 & unders win WT state crown

PAMPA — Lefthander Adam Jones shut down Plainview Blue as the Pampa All-Stars rolled to a 10-0 victory in Wednesday's semifinals of the West Texas State 11-12 Bambino Tournament at Optimist Park.

Pampa plays Plainview Red in the finals at 6 tonight. A second game, if needed, will follow.

Jones never yielded a hit as Pampa ended the game on the 10-run rule in the fourth inning.

Pampa scored two runs in the second inning on passed balls, but the big outburst was the third when six runs came across. Kyle Francis knocked in two runs with a double, Blake Baldrige had an RBI double and Tanner Hucks, an RBI single. Another run came home on Colby Brazile's groundball and another run scored on a throwing error.

After a run scored on a wild pitch in the fourth inning, Pampa ended the game on an RBI single by Hucks.

Tonight's winner advances to the Southwest Regionals next week in Denham Springs, La. Pampa's only loss was a 2-1 setback to Plainview Red in the first round of the WT state tournament.

Pampa romped past Tulia, 21-3, last night to win the 9-10 West Texas State Tournament at Optimist Park.

The Pampa All-Stars used six different pitchers to shut down Tulia. Jordan Klaus highlighted the pitching performances when he struck out three batters on nine pitches in the second inning.

The Pampa All-Star team advances to the Southwest Regionals, starting July 28 in Denham Springs.

Perry knocks in four runs as Indians rout Rangers, 14-5

By The Associated Press

Naming the leading hitter on the Cleveland Indians shouldn't be that hard. After all, four members of baseball's best lineup were selected to the AL All-Star team, and two others had a pretty good case for being there.

Carlos Baerga, Kenny Lofton, Albert Belle and Manny Ramirez may have earned a trip to the All-Star game, but it's none of them. And it isn't Jim Thome or Eddie Murray, who arguably could have been there as well.

The best average on the first-place Indians belongs to 25-year-old rookie Herbert Perry, and he reached the .400 mark (20-for-50) with four hits and four RBIs in a 14-5 victory over the Texas Rangers on Wednesday night.

"Herbert's a good, smart hitter. He's going to be a player," Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove said of Perry, who was called up June 12 and has helped fill the void when Murray went on the disabled list with broken ribs.

"When I came up, I thought I'd be here 15 or 20 days. I decided to just have fun," Perry said. "When Eddie comes back, I may have to go down again. If I do, I'll understand. We want to be there in October. I realize the politics of baseball."

In other AL games Wednesday it was New York 5, Kansas City 2; California 10, Toronto 2; Minnesota 5, Baltimore 3; Boston 5, Chicago 3; Milwaukee 7, Seattle 6 in 12 innings; and Oakland 2, Detroit 1.

Perry, a right-handed hitter, has three homers, nine RBIs and seven multi-hit games. He singled in a run in the first, doubled in two more in the third, singled in the fifth, and added another RBI single in the seventh as the Indians roughed up Kevin Gross (4-9), who allowed seven runs on eight hits and two walks in 2-plus innings. Yankees 5, Royals 2

New York bounced back from the doubleheader loss to Chicago behind Sterling Hitchcock (4-6), who allowed four hits in 7-2-3 innings for his second win since May 21.

Tony Fernandez's solo homer keyed a four-run third for the Yankees, who lost by a combined 20-8 Tuesday.

Chris James hit his second homer in as many games for the visiting Royals.

Angels 10, Blue Jays 2
Tim Salmon and Jim Edmonds each had three hits and two RBIs and Russ Springer won for the first time in 13 months. California batted around and scored six times in the top of the second, all off Juan Guzman (3-6).

Springer (1-2) allowed five hits and two runs in 5 1-3 innings and is 4-10 for his four-year career.

Ed Sprague had the lone RBI for Toronto, which had a three-game winning streak snapped.

Twins 5, Orioles 3
Rookie Brad Radke won his fourth straight as Minnesota won for the sixth time in 26 games at the Metrodome. Pedro Munoz homered and drove in three runs as the Twins ended a three-game losing streak and snapped the Baltimore's four-game winning string.

Radke (7-7) allowed four hits in seven innings. Dave Stevens, the fifth Minnesota pitcher, came on in the ninth with two on and no outs. He gave up a hit and a walk to force in a run, but still got his second save.

Baltimore's Rafael Palmeiro homered for the fourth straight game and has 20 for the season. Red Sox 5, White Sox 3

Tim Wakefield scattered five hits in 7 1-3 innings and Willie McGee had four hits as Boston won at Chicago.

The Red Sox spoiled the major league debut of Mike Siroka (0-1), called up from Double-A earlier in the day. He went 6 2-3 innings, allowing three runs and 11 hits.

Wakefield (9-1) struck out six without a walk and lowered his league-leading ERA to 1.66. Tim Lincecum had three hits against him.

Rick Aguilera allowed two runs in the ninth and still earned his 16th save.

Brewers 7, Mariners 6
Fernando Vina's infield single in the bottom of the 12th capped a two-run rally in Milwaukee's seventh straight victory.

Bobby Ayala (3-3) was within one strike of winning when Jose Valentin's single tied it 6-6. Vina then bounced the ball up the middle to drive home the winning run.

Bill Wegman (3-3) won despite allowing the go-ahead run on Tino Martinez's RBI double.

Jay Buhner hit two homers for Seattle, which had a three-game winning streak snapped. Athletics 2, Tigers 1

Ariel Prieto allowed five hits in 8 1-3 innings for his first major league victory. Prieto (1-2), who emigrated from Cuba on April 7, allowed only a run-scoring double by Daniel Bautista and four singles as Oakland broke a six-game losing streak.

Oakland's runs came on homers by Craig Paquette in the fifth and Jason Giambi in the seventh. Reliever John Doherty (4-4) allowed the latter as visiting Detroit lost its seventh straight.

Givins wants to settle score with Oilers

STEVENS POINT, Wis. (AP) — Ernest Givins has already circled Sept. 3 on his calendar, and not because it's his 31st birthday. He's got a score to settle on that day.

His new team, the Jacksonville Jaguars, opens the regular season against the Houston Oilers, the team that thought Givins was too old and too expensive to keep.

"What keeps me going is I'm very bitter about what happened in Houston," said Givins, who was let go by the Oilers after nine seasons and signed with the expansion Jaguars as a free agent.

"Very bitter," he adds with emphasis.

Givins is the leading receiver in Houston history, having caught at least 53 passes in each of his first eight seasons and making the Pro Bowl twice. Last year, though, he slipped to only 36 receptions as the Oilers plummeted to the worst record in the NFL.

Suddenly, Givins was considered over the hill.

"You're going to bounce around, you're going to get labeled. I understand those things," he said. "But don't release a person just because he's 30 years old. Release him because he flat-out can't do it."

Pavin takes British Open lead

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — U.S. Open champion Corey Pavin used his imagination and shot-making skills to fight through howling North Sea winds and conquer a fast-running Old Course today with a 3-under-par 69 to take the early first-round lead in the British Open.

Pavin, who earned his first major at Shinnecock Hills with a two-shot victory over Greg Norman, put on a masterful display of wind-cheating knock-down shots. He off-set two bogeys with five birdies.

Pavin was out in 2-under-par 34 and came home with two birdies and a bogey for 35.

Northern Ireland's David Feherty, a five-time winner on the European PGA Tour, was 4-under through 15. Feherty, who now lives in Dallas and plays on the PGA Tour, was out in 34 and 2-under on the back.

Norman, bothered by a stiff back which limited his practice rounds, warmed up on a rugby ground and pronounced himself well enough to play. Grimacing from time to time, Norman played under control in the southwesterly winds which gust-ed to 20 mph coming off the North Sea. He was 1-under through 13 holes.

Despite early morning showers, the 450-year-old Old Course played hard and fast, calling for imaginative bump-and-run shots. Old divots were no problem because the Royal and Ancient Tournament Committee made visitors hit iron shots off mats prior to tournament play. The course was as green as it has been in years. The rough was light and playable except in odd spots.

Pin placements were tough particularly at the famed No. 17 Road Hole which plays 461-yards into a cross wind. The pin was tucked in near the greenside pot bunker. Pavin bogeyed the hole after he failed to reach the green with his second shot.

Five-time champion Tom Watson got off to a great start by making a 70-foot putt for birdie on the first hole. He was 2-under through 13.

Big names win the British Open at St. Andrews.
