Kid Pony Show kicks off rodeo week

By MELINDA MARTINEZ
Lifestyles Editor

With the spirit of rodeo being all in the name of fun, the Top O' Texas Kid Pony Show got under way Monday evening at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Grounds, kicking off Rodeo Week here in Pampa.

There was laughter as some of the youngsters appeared to be making up their own rules to the games - and there was alarm. One youngster fell off a horse in the golfette tournament. Fortunately, she wasn't hurt - just shaken up.

Youngsters competed in several events that included stick horse barrel racing to calf riding.

For seven-year-old Karli Douglas of Pampa, rodeo just happens to run in her blood. She has been competing in the Kid Pony Show since she was four, and her brother and sister, Cody, 12, and Kaysey, 16, compete in rodeos as well.

With her daughter winning the girls' group II flag competition with a score of 14.86, Karli's mother Debbie said she usually doesn't hear the times when her kids compete. Karli also won the girls' group II golfette tournament.

"I just wonder if they do all right," she said. "Somebody has to tell me if it's all over."

Even though competition is part of the game, Karli has another thing in mind when she's rodeoing.

"It's fun to ride my horse," said Karli.

Her steed of choice is a 42-year-old Appaloosa horse named Star, which Debbie said has been rodeoing for about 26 years.

Star was handed down to Karli by way of Kaysey and Cody.

"He gives all he's got," said Debbie. "He gives 100 percent." Results from Monday nights show are:

Council accepts mayor's resignation

By CHIP CHANDLER
Staff Writer

LEFORS - Lefors City Council members voted to accept with little discussion the resignation of Mayor J.W. Franks at Monday's regular session meeting.

"I resign my post as mayor of the city of Lefors effective June 27," Franks' typed note read.

In other action, the council voted to repair a water line on the property of Artie Carpenter. The line, which ran through a dam, burst after heavy rains in early June washed out the dam.

New Mayor Derl Boyd said that he had contacted the engineer who initially built the line and recently replaced it. The engineer agreed to absorb the cost of the repairs on the line if the city would absorb the cost of repairing the dam and adding a tap if necessary.

Smith asked the city to add a tap for livestock to the line.

At the June 12 meeting, the council voted to have City Attorney Rick Harris "prepare with Artie Carpenter Smith for a water tap on her land for the purpose of watering cattle," according to the official minutes.

Boyd says that he understood that action was tabled until Harris was able to hammer out details with Carpenter.

But Harris said at Monday's meeting that a tap wasn't promised in the minutes, but in fact was promised by former mayor Franks.

The council then voted to repair the line at the city's and engineer's expense "just like it was," meaning no tap would be added.

Carpenter was unhappy with the council's actions, implying that she may have to "take it to a higher court." She then asked to be placed on the August agenda to further discuss the addition of a water tap.

In the meantime, Carpenter will give Harris more details for a contract, including the amount in gallons of water expected to run through the tap.

Boyd said that as far as he understood, it was "not really settled that she would not get a tap."

In other action, the council opened one bid for $21,142 for seal coating city streets. The bid will be held, and the council will ask for further bids.

The council agreed to sell a 27-foot lot to Ruth A. Brown for $50.

Boyd reported that the Texas

Department of Health had asked to use the local civic center for an immunization clinic before school starts in August. The council agreed to let the department use the facility at no charge.

In discussion not on the agenda, Van Criswell complained that his water bill was too high because the meter had not been repaired properly, and a washer was leaking on the city side. City Water Superintendent Mike Steele says the meter was checked and repaired properly. No action could be taken because Criswell was not on the agenda.

Also, new City Marshal Rocky Stewart told the council that the city was missing some street signs and a number of others were "outdated" and needed replacing.

In executive session, the council discussed matters pertaining to an audit of the city ambulance service with Harris and Tom Grantham of Grantham, Cory, Call and Heare auditing service. Volunteer Fire Chief Eddie Joe Roberts told the council in June that he was unhappy with an extra $2,000 on the auditor's invoice.

Boyd said that Grantham explained the reason for the extra charge to Roberts' satisfaction.

Lefors to call special election to fill vacancy

By CHIP CHANDLER

LEFORS - In a terse statement read by City Attorney Rick Harris, J.W. Franks stepped down from his position as mayor of Lefors Monday night.

"I resign my post as mayor of the city of Lefors effective June 27," the typed note read.

The council, though Harris indicated that it wasn't necessary, voted to accept the resignation unanimously.

Franks' departure caused Derl Boyd, mayor pro tem, to step in. Boyd's ascension left a vacancy in the council that Harris says must be filled by a special election.

Harris said that if the mayor's office is left vacant, the mayor pro tem moves up. If that in turn causes a council seat vacancy, a special election must be held.

The council votes to appoint a mayor pro tem, but will not appoint a new one until the special election can be held.

Harris did not know the time frame in which such an election must be held.

One elected city official felt Franks' resignation was related to the city marshal flap that began at the June 12 city council meeting.

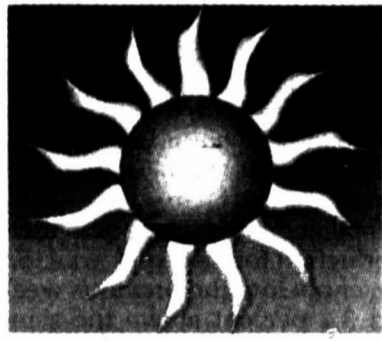

At that meeting, Franks read a letter from County Judge

Richard Peet that said "due to tight budgeting constraints and the uncertainty of future revenues, Gray County may not be able to continue partial salary supplement for the city of Lefors town marshal."

Franks interpreted the letter to mean that the county's supplement would be dropped, saying, "There are taxpayers down here too. I believe we deserve more than this."

Franks and the city council agreed to express their disapproval of what they interpreted the commission's actions to be at the next county commissioners meeting.

BRISCOE - The Fort Elliott Consolidated Independent School District Board of Education will meet Thursday night at 7 p.m. after canceling its Monday meeting.

School officials say the meeting was canceled because a number of board members had to be out of town.

The meeting will be held in the superintendent's office at 501 E. Wilson in Briscoe.

Items on the agenda include the appointment of Superintendent Dave Johnson as records management officer for the district, consideration of depository bids, consideration of personnel, consideration of salaries of certified personnel and consideration of a WADA agreement with Wheeler and Shamrock.

Meetings are open to the public.

AMARILLO - The Golden Spread Doll Club of Amarillo will sponsor its annual show and sale on Saturday, July 15, at the IOOF Lodge Building at 7th and Monroe in Amarillo. Public hours for the show are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The highlight of the show will be the competitive table, where dolls entered will be judged, according to a news release from Flois Reed. Winners will earn ribbons or trophies.

To enter dolls in the competition, participants should bring entries to the show by 8 a.m. on Saturday.

Dealers from several states will have antique and modern dolls, and doll related supplies for sale. Profits from the show will be given to a college scholarship fund.

Admission is free.

With a little help ...

The competition may have been a bit too stiff and the pressure may have gotten to Corben Reid, a young cowboy from Amarillo who had a little help from his mom in completing the stick horse barrel race Monday evening at the Top O' Texas Kid Pony Show at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Grounds. Barrel racing rules may not have been to many of the tikes' likings as a few decided to make them up as their turns came. The Top O' Texas Kid and Pony Show kicked off Rodeo week here in Pampa last night and will continue again tonight and Wednesday with both shows beginning at 7 p.m.

Miami trustees discuss budget issues

MIAMI - Members of the Miami Independent School District Board of Education discussed mainly budgetary matters at their meeting Monday night.

Board members learned that the expenditure side of the 1995-96 budget will essentially be the same as last year, though it may be $5,000 to $6,000 less, according to Superintendent Allan Dinsmore.

The board discussed alternatives with different types of tax rates for the revenue side of next year's budget.

The board also set a budgetary hearing for Aug. 7 at 8:30 p.m. at the school administration office. At its next regular meeting, the board is expected to vote to approve the '95-'96 budget and tax rate. A special meeting will be held Aug. 31 to formally do final budgetary amendments for the 1994-95 school year.

Meetings are open to the public. Some of those budgetary amendments were discussed at the Monday meeting. The board approved the transferring of funds from workman's compensation to supplies. Dinsmore said that this was done to "clean up the books" and that there was no change in actual money.

In other action, the board agreed to let the volunteer fire department use a school bus to attend training classes in College Station, asked Butch Thompson and Joe Lunsford to report on Policy Update 49 at the August meeting, adopted a policy for pest control and appointed Raymond Bryant integrated pest management coordinator.

Cattle trade at standstill; boxed beef values up

AMARILLO - The cattle trade was at a standstill today at Texas Panhandle and western Oklahoma feedlots while boxed beef cut-out values were up slightly.

The USDA Market News Service reported no confirmed sales today on slaughter steers and heifers.

Feedlots reported light inquiry from buyers. USDA officials said 10,600 head of cattle had been sold for the week to date including 5,800 head of formulated cattle and 2,000 head of previously contracted cattle to be shipped this week.

The USDA reported an estimated 128,000 cattle, 5,000 calves, 299,000 hogs and 11,000 sheep were slaughtered under federal inspection Monday. This compares with an estimated 125,000 cattle, 5,000 calves, 297,000 hogs and 11,000 sheep for the same time a week ago and an actual count of 120,000 cattle, 4,000 calves, 294,000 hogs and 15,000 sheep for the same period a year ago.

An estimated 106,000 steers and heifers were slaughtered Friday and 92,000 were killed Saturday, officials said. There was an estimated 24,000 cows and bulls killed Friday and 9,000 Saturday.

Officials reported boxed beef cut-out values based on FOB Omaha basis carlot prices of fabricated beef cuts and on industry yields as of 11:30 a.m. today were 104.46, up 0.21, for Choice 1-3, 550 to 700 pounds; 104.60, up 0.22, for Choice 1-3, 700 to 850 pounds; 99.19, up 0.67, for Select 1-3, 550 to 700 pounds; and 99.14, up 0.14, for Select 1-3, 700 to 850 pounds.

Total federally inspected meat production for last week was 16.8 percent below the previous week and 3.4 percent above the same week a year ago, according to Amarillo-based Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

Average live weight of cattle slaughtered in Texas Panhandle packing plants for the week ending July 7 was 1163 pounds compared with 1147 for the previous week and 1154 pounds a year ago.

Lefors

Before Lefors representatives were put on the court's agenda, they hired Rocky Stewart, a captain with the Rufe Jordan Prison Unit, as a part-time marshal during a special meeting.

A city official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said he and other city officials felt they needed a marshal to enforce city ordinances during the July 4 holidays and hired Stewart, who had said at the June 12 meeting that he would be willing to work part-time if there were no county stipend.

Stewart was sworn in June 27. Boyd appeared at the June 29 county commissioners meeting as mayor pro tem, asking the court to restart the county supplement, which he understood to have been discontinued after former marshal Max Kellison resigned June 12.

Gray County had paid $1,000 monthly toward employment of a city marshal, but the commissioners decided to pay $375 to defray employment expenses through the end of 1995 or until a full-time marshal is hired.

Lefors officials agreed to pay him $600 per month plus car and gasoline for his services, which began July 2.

At the commissioners meeting, Peet said the supplement was never discontinued, but the letter was to let city officials know the payment would be reconsidered during fall budget deliberations.

The Lefors city official said that Franks presumably did not like the manner in which Stewart was hired, refusing to appear at the council's special meeting. Apparently, Franks felt the council "run it [the decision to hire Stewart] over him," according to the official.

Franks did not return a call Monday and was not available for comment Tuesday. A spokesperson from his office said he was gone for the day.

City council member J.C. Callaway said that Franks had not discussed his decision with Callaway, but thought that Franks may have "just got tired of" the job. Callaway conceded that Franks' decision "could have something to do" with Stewart's hiring.

Judge rules Susan Smith competent to stand trial

By JESSE J. HOLLAND
Associated Press Writer

UNION, S.C. (AP) — Susan Smith is mentally competent to stand trial for drowning her two young sons, the judge in her murder case ruled today.

Circuit Judge William Howard agreed with the state's chief psychiatrist, Dr. Donald Morgan, who said Ms. Smith was sane. However, Morgan had warned that Ms. Smith was suicidal and might seek to sabotage her defense.

Ms. Smith, 23, could get the death penalty if convicted of the two murder charges in the deaths last fall of sons Michael, 3, and Alex, 14 months.

She was questioned by Howard today about whether she understood the state was seeking two death-penalty murder charges against her.

"Yes, sir," she answered as she stood in front of him.

The judge also questioned her lawyers about whether Ms. Smith had cooperated with them. Lawyers David Bruck and Judy Clarke said she had, but they were afraid that if she was called to testify, she would ask jurors to sentence her to death.

The judge said the anti-depressants Ms. Smith has been taking seem to help her understand the court proceedings.

"In that sense, Ms. Smith is rendered more rational and better able to understand these proceedings. I find that Ms. Smith is competent to stand trial and can proceed with this matter," Howard said.

Prosecutor Tommy Pope then asked Howard to order Ms. Smith to enter a plea, but he declined and no plea was entered. On Jan. 16 a judge entered an innocent plea for her after Ms. Smith's lawyers said she was not ready to enter a plea. The actions cleared the way for jury selection, which had begun Monday, to resume. It could take up to two weeks.

For nine days after she drowned her sons last Oct. 25, Ms. Smith stuck by her claim that a black carjacker took them. A national audience heard her pleas and watched searches and prayer vigils in this town of 10,000.

On Nov. 3, Ms. Smith confessed to drowning the boys by letting her car, with them strapped to their car seats, roll into John D. Long Lake.

Prosecutors plan to portray her as a manipulative woman who used murder to get rid of her sons when they got in the way of a love affair.

During a hearing Monday, Morgan said that if Ms. Smith takes the stand in her own defense, her growing suicidal tendencies may take over.

"She feels she deserves punishment and her desire would be not to continue living in prison," Morgan said. "If she got out of prison, she said she would take her life as rapidly as possible."

She also has crying spells and nausea, and takes the anti-depressants to help her sleep and stave off feelings of worthlessness, he said.

Bruck has said his defense will be based on her mental state.

If she is found guilty but mentally ill, she could be sentenced to death. A verdict of innocent by reason of insanity would send her to a mental hospital. If she were later declared sane, she could be released.

Ms. Smith showed no emotion during Morgan's hour of testimony. He was the prosecution's sole witness, and Ms. Smith's lawyers did not put on any experts of their own.

Man who killed Houston girl 30 years ago receives 10 years in Maryland

HOUSTON (AP) — The man who beat a Houston girl to death 30 years ago has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for an attack on a woman jogger in Maryland.

The playmate of the girl whom Jerry Wayne Morris killed in 1965 had traveled to Rockville, Md., to watch the sentencing and plead with the judge against leniency. Beverly Roberson Johnson wasn't allowed to speak, but prosecutor Vera White said her presence was felt.

Morris had pleaded guilty to battery charges related to an attack of jogger Neva Ingalls, 37. He apparently became angered after his attempts to approach the woman were rebuffed.

Morris was not considered a repeat offender in Maryland, causing Ms. Johnson to fear that he might receive a sentence as light as a year in jail.

Ms. Johnson presented a 55-page statement to Circuit Court Judge William Cave, but the judge said he didn't consider it before ruling.

Ms. Johnson said she was 6 years old when she and friend Cathy Sue Garner were attacked by Morris in Houston playground. Morris, who was determined in Texas to be mentally retarded, stomped Garner to death.

Morris confessed to that crime, too, and spent 12 years in a mental institution. He will undergo psychiatric treatment as part of his latest incarceration.

Ms. Johnson was on her way home Monday, and could not be reached.

Cemetery allegedly used by cults

ANGLETON, Texas (AP) — A man who lives near Texas' third-oldest cemetery has asked Brazoria County commissioners to cut off public access because, he said, youths have been gathering there, engaging in satanic cult activity.

Phair Cemetery, a historic landmark with tombstones dating to the 1830s, is near the Oyster Creek community in south Brazoria County.

Bill Yates said Monday that he and his wife sometimes hear chanting from the graveyard.

He said empty beer cans, candles arranged in a circle and ornaments hanging from trees are frequently found at the cemetery.

Yates asked commissioners to put a gate at the entrance of a short road that connects with Farm Road 523 about a quarter-mile away.

Loretta Symm, another landowner in the area, said she opposes restricting access to the cemetery. She said it would prevent people from visiting the graves of their ancestors.

State Masonic head to install officers for District 98 clubs

Most Worshipful Grand Master Farris L. Benham of Odessa, head of the Texas Masonic Lodge, will be in Pampa on Saturday for a joint officer installation ceremony.

Grand Master Benham will be installing officers of the District 98 clubs from Pampa, McLean, Shamrock and Wheeler at 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

The joint officer installation, a first for District 98, will be held at the Pampa Masonic Lodge building, 420 W. Kingsmill.

Accompanying Benham for the special occasion will be the Right Worshipful Grand Marshal Gene Schnedier of Odessa.

Pampa has two Masonic lodges which will be participating in the installation ceremony: Pampa Masonic Lodge and the Top O' Texas Masonic Lodge. McLean, Shamrock and Wheeler each has one lodge.

Board of inquiry to question Rangers about 1994 outing

AUSTIN (AP) — With critics challenged to show up, put up or shut up, an unusual "board of inquiry" is dealing with a conflict within the state's premier crime fighting agency.

About two dozen Texas Rangers and their superior officers were asked to testify under oath today at a hearing pertaining to an overnight Ranger outing in March 1994.

Former Ranger Cheryl Steadman, whose complaints of sexual harassment is at the heart of the controversy, accepted an invitation to attend, but said she might not testify, calling it a "no-win situation" designed to discredit her.

The Public Safety Commission arranged the hearing, labeling it a board of inquiry.

"If you have something to say, show up and say it," declared Ronald Krist, one of three members on the policy making board appointed by the governor.

"The flip side of that is if you don't have the guts to show up, keep your mouth shut."

Ms. Steadman, 34, one of the first female members of the renowned law enforcement agency, left the Rangers last year and filed a human rights complaint alleging sexual harassment.

She is now assigned to a Department of Public Safety unit in Houston.

A 1994 gathering in southeast Texas was cited by Ms. Steadman as evidence of a pattern of harassment while she was a Texas Ranger.

Ms. Steadman said most of the Rangers at a privately owned lodge near Spurger, about 90 miles northeast of Houston, were drinking and using coarse language. She was told to prepare salad and potatoes and to wash dishes and mix drinks, she said.

"I was insulted and humiliated," she said in a 23-page complaint that led to an internal inquiry by DPS investigators.

Rangers officials acknowledged in a report obtained by The Associated Press June 3 that there was drinking, small-stakes gambling and off-color language at the retreat.

The beef industry oversight committee is looking for one good man.

The committee appointed a search team to coordinate the activities involved with the selection and appointment of a person to serve as chief executive officer for the new beef organization. The new organization is being formed through alliances of several existing cattlemen's groups.

Serving on the search team are Jim Webb of Phoenix, Ariz.; Rick Allen of Lander, Wyo.; Bob Drake of Davis, Okla.; Ned Ellis of Fort Deposit, Ala.; George Spencer of St. Cloud, Fla.; Jim Timmons of Arcata, Calif.; Dave Wood of Coalinga, Calif.; Earl Peterson of Denver, Colo., and Darlene Friedman of San Mateo, Calif. They have hired a professional service to conduct the search for the new CEO.

Information about the search process, application procedures or candidate qualifications are available from Hedlin Ag Enterprises, 1025 Ashworth Road, No. 318, West Des Moines, IA 50265, phone (505) 223-1408.

Applications will be accepted throughout the summer, with semi-final candidates interviewed in early September.

DENVER — The U.S. Meat Export Federation is reorganizing here.

"Effective immediately, the USMEF-Denver office will operate with three fundamental areas of responsibility," according to Phil Seng, president and CEO. "Previously, seven department heads reported to me."

The three new management divisions are marketing and trade policy, administration and operations, and communications and industry relations.

Jeff Oates, vice president of communications, will head the communications and industry relations division. Janel Domurat, director of executive operations, will head the administration and operations division. Bryant Wadsworth, U.S. ag representative with the European Commission in Brussels, will head the marketing and trade policy division.

A partnership project between the American Heart Association (AHA) and the Meat Board has produced "Meat Nutrient Facts," a printed summary for consumers, according to Texas Cattle Feeders Association officials.

The handout shows consumers how to select and prepare lean cuts of meat and compares the nutritional value of beef, pork, poultry, seafood and ground meat, said Burt Rutherford, spokesman for the TCFA.

The AHA is including "Meat Nutrient Facts" in 15,000 "HeartFest at Work" kits, a packet of heart-healthy lifestyle tips that AHA distributes annually at work sites.

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Attitudes toward beef consumption have improved since 1992, according to the National Cattlemen's Association.

Reporting on checkoff-funded research, NCA said the percentage of consumers who had reduced their beef consumption declined from 40 percent in 1992 to 32 percent in 1994. The research revealed that 68 percent of consumers surveyed ate beef two or more times a week, compared with only 29 percent who ate pork two or more times a week.

Among opinion leaders, 58 percent reported eating beef two or more times a week, compared with only 19 percent who consumed pork more than twice a week.

IBP is planning to produce branded products and step up its presence in international markets, according to an article in Feedstuffs magazine. IBP will combine its beef and pork divisions into one fresh meats division and will create a consumer products division to oversee branded, new value-added meat products.

The company will also establish an allied division for international marketing and sales, engineering and quality control operations and customer service.

DENVER — The Chinese market may be opening up to U.S. beef, according to the U.S. Meat Federation (USMEF).

Following the five-day China Hotel '95 food show in Beijing last month, USMEF reported that interest in U.S. beef was very high from China's food service sector.

USMEF lined up several Chinese distributors to help staff their booth. The strategy, USMEF said, has been to focus on establishing local distributors in China for U.S. beef. With that done, the focus now will be to work with end users.

Early withdrawal of Conservation Reserve Program acres will be less than a million acres, well below the number the government predicted.

Early withdrawal of CRP acres will total only 651,342 acres, considerably less than the 4 million to 5 million that USDA had predicted, according to Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

In Texas, 38,222 acres were withdrawn, Oklahoma landowners took out 10,573 acres and New Mexico saw 4,540 acres taken out of the program. According to USDA, about 36.4 million acres remain in the program designed to take highly erodible land out of production.

AMARILLO — The beef industry will take to the air waves this month to talk about the cattle market, exports and a variety of other issues facing the industry.

A live, call-in show on the beef industry will air via satellite from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, July 14.

The forum will include experts from NCA, Cattle-Fax, the Beef Industry Council and the U.S. Meat Export Federation, according to Amarillo-based Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the covenanted commandment.

Vaccine program totally unworthy

The Clinton administration, unwilling to let reality intrude on its idealism, is rushing to save one of its most poorly conceived adventures.

In 1993, President Bill Clinton offered an impossibly ambitious $1 billion plan in which the government would buy all of the nation's vaccine supply and distribute it at no cost to children.

He saw the problem: Many kids don't get the shots that can prevent deadly or debilitating diseases. But he was badly misguided about the solution.

There was no need to replace the private system that manufactured and distributed vaccines. In fact, there was considerable danger in doing so.

Congress scaled back spending on the program, but the Clinton team bulled ahead with its grand vision of a government distribution system. It has failed.

The first inkling of disaster came last year, when the White House dropped plans for a national vaccine warehouse after spending $700,000 on equipment.

Now, the General Accounting Office has detailed the scope of the failure. The administration didn't understand how difficult it would be to create a distribution system and mistakenly assumed that cost was the key reason kids didn't get their shots. The government's system has "no way to insure" that vaccine is reaching the kids it is supposed to reach, the report says.

The administration should have recognized all that two years ago. The evidence was clear. Many of the states that already had "universal" vaccine programs had failed to reap better immunization rates than in other states. In the midst of the debate, a report from the Gordon Public Policy Center at Brandeis University laid out the problem clearly: Too many parents don't get their kids immunized, even when free shots are available. Other studies echoed those findings.

Rather than attempting a government takeover of a smoothly running private market, the administration should have concentrated on where vaccine delivery breaks down: with parental responsibility. The focus needs to be on encouraging, or compelling, parents to look after the basic health of their children.

The vaccine has been available at reasonable cost through private doctors or at no cost through public health clinics. The administration needs to work with the system that has been there all along and forget about inventing it.

... So - how would you like some FEDERAL help?

Rushing mom out of the hospital

American politicians love to stand up for motherhood, the flag and apple pie, so it's only a matter of time before we have legislation addressing the apple pie crisis. Already, our lawmakers have bravely come out against desecration of Old Glory. Now they are defending Mom against insurance companies that would evict her from the maternity ward before the epidural has worn off.

The supposed scandal is a trend among health maintenance organizations and insurers to speed up the departure of mothers and newborns from the hospital. The American Medical Association and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists have both denounced the practice, with an AMA official insisting that such decisions "ought not to be relegated to the bean counters" and ACOG warning that women and their infants may be in peril.

The uproar has already sparked action. Maryland and New Jersey have passed laws requiring insurers to pay for at least two days of hospital care for mothers and babies after childbirth (four days in case of a Caesarean section), and California may follow suit. Sen. Bill Bradley (D-N.J.) has introduced a bill in Congress to set the same minimum nationwide.

But the action and the uproar are both unwarranted. What is going on in the field of maternity care is nothing more than a modest extension of a policy that has been going on throughout American medicine for a generation. Financial considerations are certainly a major factor, but what's wrong with that? The alternative is to let medical costs run completely out of control.

We would all prefer 1) the most lavish care and 2) the lowest expense. But in the real world, trade-offs have to be made. Health care providers are experimenting with a different trade-off from the existing one. They deserve the chance to find out if it makes economic sense and medical sense without interference from politicians who couldn't empty a bedpan if the instructions were written on the bottom.

The trend has been around for a long time. A generation ago, women generally stayed in the hospital for a week after giving birth. But as the cost of a day in the hospital rose - it's now up to $1,761, on average - that became a dispensable luxury. The typical woman who's had a normal vaginal birth now goes home in two days, and it's no longer unusual for mothers to check out within 24 hours. Some insurers even encourage discharge in 12 or eight hours.

Mom isn't being singled out. For other operations, the emphasis is on getting the patient out of the hospital as soon as practicable - or never letting him in. A host of procedures that once required hospitalization, from gall bladder removal to hernia repair, are now done in out-patient settings. Hip replacement patients, who used to spend two weeks in the hospital, now leave after four days.

The evidence largely supports early discharge of mothers and babies. A study by HCIA Inc., a health information group in Baltimore, analyzed 740,000 cases and found that mothers who left the hospital in 24 hours or less were no more likely to be readmitted within 30 days than mothers who stayed longer. An analysis of 19,000 births by Kaiser Permanente, the nation's oldest and largest HMO, showed that early discharge didn't increase complications among women or infants.

Of course, the jury is still out. HCIA is now completing a study which finds some evidence that babies sent home early are more likely than others to end up back in the hospital.

If that finding holds up, legislation won't be needed. Insurance companies and HMOs have no interest in promoting medical complications among newborns, if only because even bean counters know they can be horrendously expensive. The providers, who end up paying the bill, will have no choice but to take remedial steps - either extending hospital stays or providing nursing care at home.

It may turn out that even if there is no medical case against early discharge, many new parents will resent it because they need a breather before facing diaper changes and 3 a.m. feedings at home. In that case, they will have a strong motive to choose health plans with more generous policies - though they may have to pay higher premiums - and employers will have an interest in providing them.

The stingiest coverage may be the cheapest coverage, but employers whose only concern is saving money don't have to provide health insurance in the first place. They do it only because they need to get and keep good workers. If good workers want 48-hour hospital stays for childbirth, companies will find a way to provide them.

Health care is not a pure free market, but it has more than enough competitive forces to assure that, if politicians stay out of the way, intelligent trade-offs will be made to minimize cost and maximize consumer satisfaction. Who knows? Those forces might even work for apple pies.

We are responsible for our own fate

Charley Reese

While the politicians chip the enamel off their teeth blaming Hollywood for the decline of America, I will cite you a line from a Hollywood motion picture that tells you exactly how moral values can be reclaimed.

In the movie, Rob Roy, the Scottish hero tells his sons, "Honor is a gift a man gives to himself and no other can take it away from him." That's quite a profound statement. It is true that each of us has the power to set our own standards of behavior - to decide what is right behavior and what is wrong behavior, what is right speech and what is wrong speech, what we will consent to and what we will not consent to. No one can force us to violate our own standards.

An example is the true story of a Roman senator in conflict with the emperor. Caesar came to the man and said, "Do not go to the Senate today." "As long as the Senate exists and I am a senator, I must go."

"Then do not speak," said Caesar.

"But if I go, I must speak."

"If you speak, then I must kill you," said Caesar. "Have I ever claimed to be immortal?" the man of honor replied. He went to the Senate, he did speak, and Caesar did kill him. Caesar had the power to kill him, but was powerless to take away his honor.

The moral fog in America today is social determinism, the basic premise of socialism. It holds that people are not free to choose but are puppets reacting to their environment. The corollary is that people, since they are not free, are not responsible. People not responsible for their own fate are victims. Hence, the love of victimology.

This slimy doctrine has great appeal to cowards, the self-indulgent, the envious, and people with a lust for power. Cowards can claim they are victims of circumstances and not cowards. You saw a great deal of that in the Vietnam anti-war movement which, oddly enough, evaporated when the great pacifists were no longer in danger of being drafted.

They were quite willing to "support" other wars they weren't going to have to fight. The doves became hawks as soon as it was personally safe to do so.

The self-indulgent can forgo self-discipline and blame it on the environment. The envious can demand as victims rewards they don't deserve. And, of course, if people are not responsible for themselves, well someone has to be and that's where those with a lust for power come in. The government or society must do this or that to cure this or that personal short coming because it isn't the people, it's the drugs, the movies, the music, the guns, the schools, the economy, etc. It follows that if a person is not responsible for what they do, then some outside thing or force must be responsible.

The antidote to this poison is to reject determinism and to insist that every individual is personally responsible for his or her actions and more importantly, responsible for the consequences.

If people choose not to train themselves for work, then fine, that's their choice. The consequences are also their choice - no job, the consequences of which are no food. The fundamental fault of welfare for the able is that it relieves them of the consequences of their own choices. Welfare should be reserved only for those whose plight is not of their own choosing. And then it should be handled by the private sector.

If that sounds cruel, then you are really infected with the collectivist determinist philosophy. That philosophy will take us exactly where it took the Soviet Union - to collapse and ruin with perhaps a short detour into tyranny.

Some Buddhists have said that a man seeking enlightenment is like a man in the water seeking water. We are like that when we look outside for values and answers. Both are within. We have only to give ourselves the gift of honor, to make our own choices, and to live and die by them without excuses or complaint.

The Anglo-Saxon Anti-Defamation

The Anglo-Saxon Anti-Defamation League is open for business. We want the Disney people's scalps.

I know. These days, one isn't supposed to talk about scalps. Very un-PC. Very un-Pocahontas. But that's the source of the present problem: Pocahontas, which defames, stigmatizes, libels, ridicules, maligns and generally disses honest, hardworking Englishmen.

No more dissing, says the Anglo-Saxon Anti-Defamation League. Just because you're English, or of English descent, doesn't mean that smart-aleck Hollywood producers can traduce your forebears.

Pocahontas - or as National Review appropriately calls it, "Politicallycorrectahontas" - treats the English settlers of Jamestown as so many rogues and ruffians. Greed for gold motivates them and their governor, a lout named Ratcliffe. Only one of the Englishmen has something resembling the old native purity, a golden tressed beach boy named Captain John Smith.

As for the Indians - well! They live in happy harmony with Nature. The New World is a kind of lofty cathedral made of ageless trees. This cathedral the English desecrate with their very presence. They are alien intruders who might as well be from the moon as from the tiny country that soon would present to the world a triad of invaluable gifts - constitutional liberty, a supple language capable of universal use and the industrial system of manufacture.

But meanwhile, as Disney sees it, what a bunch of louts! The Anglo-Saxon Anti-

William Murchison

Defamation League (founded July 1995, with one member to date) isn't putting up with this, I can tell you.

It's plain enough why the English, and their descendants, have put up with such abuse up to now. To start with, they have no rights anyone else is obliged to respect. Native Americans, as we have learned to call them, trumping Columbus, have rights, Jews and African Americans and Hispanic Americans have rights, gays have rights, likewise the female gender, as we have learned to say, trumping the grammar books. In fact, the only breathing room we accord Anglo-Saxons is that which we reserve their women. The men deserve and get no respect.

A secondary reason that descendants of the English get dissed has to do with their sense of effacement. Publicly ridicule anyone else at the level of popular culture - a Native American, a woman or, worse yet, a Native American woman - and the welkin rings with outrage. Angry committees, gotten up for just such a purpose, shout their righteous shouts. Establishment newspapers and television commentators scowl. Kick the descendants of the English and they only wince meekly, having learned in the last ten years how lowly is their station in modern society.

It all has to do with the social guilt they strap on each morning and lug around throughout the day. Descendants of the English reckon they deserve to be dissed. Think of all the awful things in their past - slavery (true, it was more than 130 years ago), the industrial revolution (true, it created the richest society in history), wars (true, they were generally fought to preserve or extend constitutional freedoms).

The minuscule size of the Anglo-Saxon Anti-Defamation League has to do, as much as anything else, with the English love of being defamed by scoundrels and Hollywood cartoonists.

Enough already! The Anglo-Saxon Anti-Defamation League has had it with distortions of a glorious tradition - ours. We are determined no longer to tolerate sneers, jeers and stereotypes - from the media, Hollywood or anyone else. Those who disregard our brotherly admonition will be formally branded anti-Anglo-Saxon. Against them we may even deploy the "R" word - "racist."

Cartoonists who lampoon honorable Englishmen, dead or alive, are to stop it forthwith. Granted, depriving cartoonists of the only easy targets left them could put a large number out of business. On present evidence, that might not be so bad a thing.

U.N. warns Bosnian Serbs they could face possible NATO airstrikes

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The United Nations warned Bosnian Serbs of possible NATO airstrikes today if they keep up their offensive on Srebrenica, and Serbs answered with a bold demand of their own: Residents and peacekeepers must leave the U.N.-protected area within two days.

Bosnian Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic said no one would leave, and there was no sign this morning that any of the estimated 42,000 people in the government-held enclave were leaving on the route the Serbs designated for safe passage.

"This ultimatum is a straightforward threat," said a U.N. official, speaking on condition of anonymity. "The Serbs are saying you've got two days to run before we move in."

The Serbs' ultimatum was "totally unacceptable," said U.N. spokesman Lt. Col. Gary Coward. "We have a mandate and we are determined to meet the mandate and protect the Srebrenica safe zone."

Srebrenica is the first "safe area" the United Nations established two years ago to protect civilians, but as with the five other U.N.-protected areas, the designation has not been spared fighting.

Serbs attacking the town told the Dutch command in Srebrenica late Monday that the Muslim population and the peacekeepers would be allowed to leave starting at 6 a.m. today, but must clear the area within 48 hours. The peacekeepers must leave their weapons behind, the local Serb commander said.

The threats followed a Serb infantry attack Monday on Dutch U.N. peacekeepers stationed at the town's southern edge to prevent a rebel assault.

The Dutch first fired warning shots, then traded gunfire with the attacking Serbs until nightfall, Coward said. U.N. peacekeepers generally return fire only when they are under direct attack.

The peacekeepers were armed with antitank missiles to counter rebel tanks and artillery firing into the town from half a mile away.

The United Nations had warned on Sunday that it would authorize NATO airstrikes if the Serbs attacked the Dutch peacekeepers. On Monday, the United Nations said it might call in alliance warplanes if systematic shelling of the "safe area" continued.

"If offensive actions continue in the morning we reserve the right to use NATO air power," Coward said Monday.

He said there were no reports of fighting overnight. But Jim Landale, another U.N. spokesman, said fighting was reported between Serb and government troops just to the southeast of Srebrenica this morning.

Dutch peacekeepers were patrolling the southern part of Srebrenica to stay in touch with their men. No Serbs apparently had infiltrated into the town.

The Dutch commander in the enclave, Lt. Col. Ton Karremans, had requested NATO air power Monday. "But it was decided it was too dark, too dangerous and there were other factors to consider, like the proximity of our own troops to the fighting," Coward said.

NATO officials said they had not received any requests Monday.

There are about 400 Dutch peacekeepers in the 16-square-mile Srebrenica enclave. Since the Serb offensive began last Wednesday, Serbs have taken 30 peacekeepers to Serb held towns, apparently as insurance against airstrikes.

The Dutch soldiers abandoned a second observation post last night. Four had been previously overrun by the Serbs. Six posts were still being manned, the United Nations said.

Coward said the Serbs had offered to let the town's population — made up overwhelmingly of refugees — to leave on a road north of the enclave toward the Serb held town of Bratunac. It was not immediately clear where or how they would proceed from there if they chose to go.

In 1993, when the enclave was under fierce attack, thousands used a Serb offer of safe passage to leave for the northern government-held city of Tuzla.

Landale, the U.N. spokesman, said today that "it is our understanding that the threat made by the local Serb commander ... does not reflect the position of the Bosnian Serb military leadership."

Senator defends Waco hearings against claims of undermining law enforcement

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican senator is taking issue with Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin's claim that upcoming congressional hearings into the 1993 raid on the Branch Davidians' Texas compound could undermine law enforcement.

"I categorically reject your suggestion that members of Congress who are pushing for a full hearing and accountability on the Waco raid are somehow 'opponents of law enforcement,'" Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., wrote Rubin on Monday.

A day earlier, while appearing on ABC's This Week with David Brinkley, Rubin reiterated the Clinton administration's concern that the Waco hearings could feed the paranoia of anti-government groups and "undermine law enforcement."

But Monday, in a written response to Specter, Rubin wrote: "...I am convinced that properly conducted hearings on Waco can do an enormous amount of good."

Republican led hearings on the siege of the Branch Davidian sect are set to begin July 19 before a joint session of two House subcommittees.

In his letter to Specter, Rubin said the senator misunderstood the views he expressed Sunday on television.

"First, I have not suggested that members of Congress who are pushing for a full hearing on the Waco raid are 'opponents of law enforcement.' In fact, yesterday on This Week With David Brinkley I said the opposite," Rubin wrote.

The siege ended in an inferno after an FBI tear gas attack on the compound. The government says the Branch Davidians started the fires. About 80 sect members, including leader David Koresh, died that day from the fire or from gunshot, the coroner said.

The White House has acknowledged that President Clinton was briefed on the final assault the day before it occurred.

Among the issues to be explored during the hearings are the military's role in the standoff, said Rep. Bill Zeff, who will co-chair the hearings. Other inquiries will include the process by which Attorney General Janet Reno approved the April 19, 1993, tear gas attack on the compound, Zeff said.

Zeff, R-N.H., complained Sunday that the White House hasn't been fully cooperative in making available documents sought by his national security, international affairs and criminal justice subcommittee.

"The president on national television said he'd like to cooperate," Zeff said on Brinkley's program, "(but) I don't think that word has gone out into the trenches. They haven't declared executive privilege on a lot of the papers, but they're not letting us see the papers either."

Zeff said he believed people other than Reno, who had been on the job less than a month, were involved in the decision making behind the FBI's tear gas attack on the compound.

"I have a feeling that there were other people who she went to for advice, and we'd like to find out who they are," Zeff said, adding that those other people "could include the president ..."

White House Counsel Abner Mikva said Monday that the 26 White House memos, notes and other documents sought by the subcommittee are "totally innocuous."

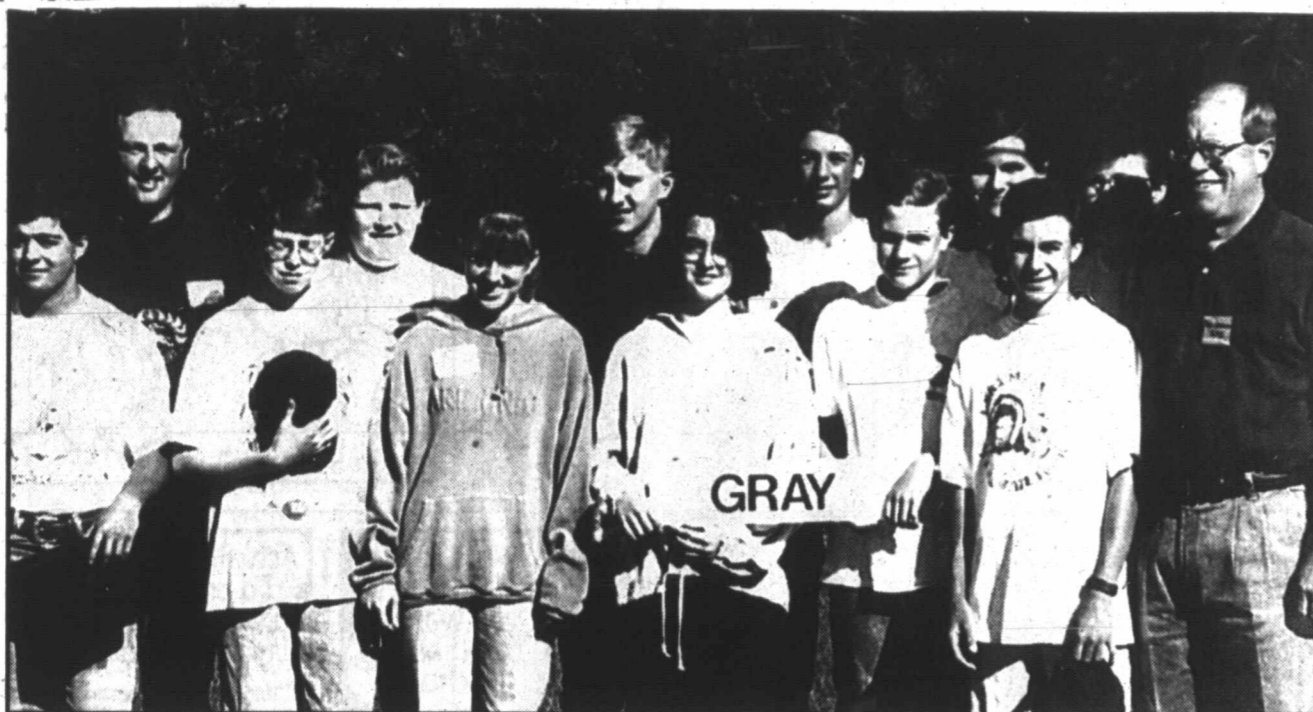

"...But some of them go to the core of the kinds of things the institutional presidency must protect," Mikva told The Washington Post.

A Treasury Department investigation found that its Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, which conducted the initial raid on the sect Feb. 28, 1993, made numerous errors, including the decision to proceed after losing the element of surprise. Six cult members and four ATF agents died that day.

Demands for the Waco hearings increased after the April 19 Oklahoma City bombing, which occurred on the second anniversary of the end of the Waco standoff.

Rubin noted Sunday that exhaustive administration and congressional hearings have examined the government's conduct against the Davidians.

But Specter, who was one of the first lawmakers to call for hearings in the immediate wake of the siege's end, said additional scrutiny is needed.

Activists set to take privacy fight to state Supreme Court

DETROIT (AP) — The mother of a girl whose name was pulled from the garbage of an abortion clinic and scrawled on posters carried by abortion protesters said they had no right.

The state Court of Appeals has agreed, at least in part, ruling that the girl and another teenager can sue the marchers for invasion of privacy.

The appeals court found that Lynn Mills and Sister Lois Mitoraj did what many may find "outrageous," when they put the names on large posters that said, "Don't kill your baby" and displayed the signs during a protest outside an abortion clinic in 1991.

The appeals court said the women at the clinic were not the ones who had put the documents in the garbage, and that the plaintiffs had not consented to having that information made public.

"Indeed, abortion concerns matters of sexual relations and medical treatment, both of which are regarded as private matters," the three-member panel found.

"Defendants' conduct involved more than mere insults, indignities, threats, annoyances or petty oppressions," the ruling said.

A lower court threw out the case in 1993, saying privacy rights were not violated because the names were found in the garbage of the clinic in Livonia, in suburban Detroit.

The appeals court found Friday that a jury should decide whether the defendants could be held responsible for causing emotional distress to the women, identified in the $350,000 lawsuit as Sally Roe and Jane Doe. They were 14 and 18 at the time their names were publicized.

Sally Roe's mother, identified in the lawsuit as Mrs. Nancy Roe, said her daughter chose abortion because she was 14 and had no job. "They have no right to put names on their picket. That's a personal matter," she said.

Constance Cumbe, the attorney representing Mills and Mitoraj, said Monday she would appeal.

Cumbe said she expects the state Supreme Court to find that once something is placed in the trash, it is no longer private.

"Generally, the notion is you got to take care of your garbage," said Arthur Miller, professor of law at Harvard Law School and a privacy expert. "That's why shredding manufacturers make a lot of money."

Mills, who is a spokeswoman for the anti-abortion group Operation Rescue, said she looked forward to taking the case to the state Supreme Court.

Best-Known Madam Stirs Controversy With Gift

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The country's best-known madam is back in the news. For once, Matilt Manokyan is being criticized rather than praised — all because she wants to help renovate a hospital.

Ms. Manokyan, 81, became widely known for building a string of legal brothels into a business empire, and then won popularity as Turkey's biggest taxpayer.

It started when she sent a check for 1.5 billion Turkish lire — nearly $36,000 — to contribute toward the renovation of a building at Istanbul University's Cerrahpasa hospital.

Several professors started a campaign to reject Ms. Manokyan's money, arguing that "it had been earned through immoral means."

Composer of Vietnamese National Anthem Dies

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — Nguyen Van Cao, whose hymn to the Vietnamese independence struggle became the national anthem, died after a long illness, the Vietnam Musicians Association said today. He was 72.

Cao died Monday and the musicians' group gave no cause of death.

Cao wrote Marching Forward in 1944, when he was 21, to celebrate the efforts of Ho Chi Minh's guerrillas to win independence from France. The song was chosen to be the national anthem after Ho declared independence in 1945, even though the guerrillas did not defeat the French until 1954.

"Our flag, red with the blood of victory, bears the spirit of our country," the lyrics read. "The path to glory passes over the bodies of our foes. ... Let us stand up and break our chains."

Two men crash in home made plane

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — Two men have been killed in the crash of their homemade airplane in a rural area just northwest of New Braunfels.

The craft sputtered and crashed about 4 p.m. Monday, killing Richard Mayer, 47, of New Braunfels and Danie Goldson, 66, of Charleston, S.C.

Investigators with the Comal County Sheriff's Department said the aircraft, with Mayer at the throttle, had just taken off from Bulverde Airpark, about 20 miles west of New Braunfels.

Witnesses said the engine on the Pulsar XP plane appeared to hesitate several times before the aircraft nosedived into the ground.

The manager of the air traffic control tower in San Antonio, Bill Czervinski, says such experimental aircraft usually are built by individuals.

Joanne Marlatt, who lives about 300 feet from the crash site, said she was talking on the phone when she heard the aircraft buzzing overhead.

"It shut its engine off, and when I looked out at it, it was coming straight for the house. I didn't think anything of it because they're always doing that," Mrs. Marlatt said.

"I continued talking to my husband and then heard a loud bang. I ran to the window to see if it had crashed," Mrs. Marlatt said. She immediately called authorities.

Protection Against Lockjaw Is Something to Talk About

DEAR ABBY: I would like to correct the immunization information provided in your response to the woman whose father nearly died from tetanus, or "lockjaw," as the disease is more commonly called.

First, the schedule you reported stating when children should receive protection against tetanus was incorrect. The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends that DTP (diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis) shots be given when the child is 2 months, 4 months, 6 months, 12 to 18 months, and between 4 and 6 years of age. An additional dose of Td (diphtheria-tetanus toxoid) should be given between the ages of 11 to 16 years, and then one dose every 10 years.

Second, the information provided about tetanus vaccine for adults does not tell the full story. Even though Td is a routine vaccination that should be given every 10 years, it is not always given to everyone who needs it. Many adults visit their clinics frequently, but leave without this important vaccination.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in Atlanta, only about 50 percent of surveyed adults reported having had a tetanus shot in the past 10 years.

Abby, please let your readers know that they should check with their physicians at the next visit to make sure their tetanus shots are up-to-date. And while they are there, they should ask about pneumonia and flu shots. According to a recent CDC survey, only 50 percent of adults reported receiving a flu shot in the previous year, and fewer than 30 percent of eligible adults had ever received their pneumonia shot, which is recommended one time for every adult 65 and over.

Abigail Van Buren

Thank you for this opportunity to convey to you and your vast readership the most current information on the importance of vaccinations.

DEBORAH L. WEXLER, M.D., EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, IMMUNIZATION ACTION COALITION

DEAR DR. WEXLER: Thank you for the vitally important, updated information concerning immunizations.

DEAR ABBY: I need your help. Here's the situation: I have been dating my boyfriend since April 1994. We plan on announcing our engagement next month.

He is churchgoing, loving, kind, doesn't cheat, and he has never hit me. He seldom drinks, doesn't hang out too much with his friends, and doesn't stay out late unless we are together. However, while eating, he chews his food with his mouth open.

I say that this is rude, not classy, and it spoils my appetite. Sometimes I get so irritated I don't even want to talk to him. He says he enjoys eating his food that way, and I shouldn't try to change him.

What do you think, Abby? Should I count my blessings and leave him alone about this? Please respond. We both admire your wisdom.

TURNUED OFF AT MEALTIME
DEAR TURNUED OFF: Don't rush to the altar — there is more involved here than meets the eyes, and the mouth. The fact that he is unconcerned about your feelings in this regard should be a warning sign. His insensitivity may extend to other, more important issues.

It is bad manners to expose one's dining companions to half-eaten food in an open mouth. Tell him you are not trying to change him; you are trying to spare him any further embarrassment by teaching him something he should have learned a long time ago.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, July 12, 1995

Although you may prefer independence in the year ahead, much you hope to do will require the support of others. From this day forward, start developing helpful alliances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If too much emphasis is placed on your independence today, you may fail to cooperate with others in ways that could be mutually advantageous. Avoid tripping over your own feet. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will need to plan if you hope to be truly productive today. If you don't know where you're going and attempt to do too much, everything could suffer.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although you are usually your own person, you may yield to peer pressure today and do something against your better judgment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Analyze situations realistically today. If you underestimate your opposition, you might come out as just a competitor instead of as a winner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An individual who thinks he or she is always right, but often isn't, might try to coerce you into rejecting your own ideas which might actually be better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might not make a good deal today if you shop with an impulsive attitude. Desire for instant gratification can distort a person's sense of values.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you and your mate cannot agree on an important issue today, it might be helpful to get an objective friend, not a relative, to arbitrate the matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Lukewarm interests aren't apt to receive your earnest efforts today. To be an achiever, you will need strong motivation.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you play in a competitive, social sport today, don't try to overwhelm your opponent. If you can't play for the fun of it, tear up the score card.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In career situations today, beware of those who tend to use others like puppets in a marionette show.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try not to enter into serious discussions today if you don't know your subject and hope to bluff your way through. The chances of this working are slim.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Instead of expanding your indebtedness at this time, curb your urges to spend. This will free you from financial bondage quicker than you think.

Fort Elliott players make all-state in baseball

BRYAN — Three players from Fort Elliott have been named to the Texas Sports Writers Association's Class 1A all-state baseball team.

Fort Elliott freshman outfielder Donnie Barr earned a first-team berth. Senior teammates Jake Swigart and Justin Wesbrooks also earned all-state honors on the three-team squad.

Barr hit .465 with three home runs, eight stolen bases and 26 runs batted in. He had a .763 slugging percentage and a .949 fielding percentage as Fort Elliott finished 15-3 with a berth in the Region 1-1A finals.

"Donnie has a lot of speed and has both a good arm and a good bat for a freshman. He hit well over .400, so you wonder what he's going to do when he's a senior," said Fort Elliott coach Curtis Smith.

Swigart earned second-team honors at pitcher. He was 10-1 with one save and a 1.33 earned run average. He struck out 123 and walked 24 in 74 innings pitched. He also hit .411 with 21 RBI's and 19 stolen bases. He had a .633 slugging percentage and a .955 fielding percentage.

Wesbrooks earned third-team honors at shortstop. He hit .483 with 28 RBI's and a .645 slugging percentage. He had a .941 fielding percentage.

"Jake signed with Frank Phillips (in Borger) to play baseball," Smith said. "Justin is as smooth a fielder as you'll see around here and he has good bat control."

Wesbrooks may play either baseball or basketball at Frank Phillips, but has not reached a decision yet as to which sport he'll pursue, added Smith.

Shamrock senior-outfielder Shelby Craig was a second-team all-state pick.

Pampa 13-year-olds advance to finals of District Tournament

DUMAS — The Pampa All-Stars blanked River Road, 12-0, Monday night to advance to the championship game in the District 13-year-old Babe Ruth Tournament.

Casey Owens collected the mound win and also led Pampa's hitting attack with two hits in three times at bat. Blake Stewart, Tommy Lozano, Greg Lindsey, Cody Shepard and Justin Trollinger had one hit each.

The game was called after five innings due to the 10-run rule.

Owens pitched the first two innings before being relieved by Lindsey who went the next two innings. Jesse Francis pitched the final frame and struck out the first two batters. The next River Road batter grounded to Russell Robben to end the game.

Pampa's defense turned in a double play in the first inning on a groundball to Owens, who threw to Francis (second base) and onto Shepard (first base). Shepard had an outstanding defensive inning in the fourth. He caught a pop up and doubled off a runner at first. On the next batter, he got an unassisted third out.

Pampa plays in the championship game at 6 p.m.

Wednesday. Their opponent has yet to be determined.

The Pampa All-Stars are unbeaten at 3-0 in tournament play. They beat Randall, 21-7, and Borger, 16-3, in previous games.

If Pampa wins tomorrow, they will advance to the state tournament in Graham.

PAMPA — Hurt by errors, the Pampa All-Stars fell to North Randall County 16-5, Monday night in the District One 14-15 Babe Ruth Tournament at Optimist Park.

The loss eliminated Pampa from the tournament.

Pampa tried to come back after falling behind, 8-2, going into the bottom of the fourth inning. Brandon Hill and Jeff Griffith collected RBI doubles to cut North Randall's lead to 8-4 after four.

However, Pampa scored only one more run, that coming on a run-scoring single by Brian Brown in the fifth to make it 9-5.

Four of Randall's seven runs in the last two innings came as a result of errors.

In an earlier game Monday, River Road came from behind to beat Borger, 14-13.

All-Star game may be baseball's best chance to recapture fans

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON (AP) — The heat is on at this year's All-Star game, and we're not just talking about the weather.

After the beating baseball has taken in the public's eye over the last 11 months, the exhibition game that was once a meaningless and leisurely nine innings of diversion has turned into something much, much bigger.

This year, it's almost expected to be a remedy for everything that's gone wrong — if not a panacea, then maybe a shot in the arm that leads to a lasting cure.

Make this one special, the thinking goes, and the national pastime may once again become a national treasure instead of a national laughingstock.

It may be the game's best chance to recapture the public's fancy or doom itself to further dog days of discontent, disillusionment and disinterest.

"I try not to think of it in those terms, but I do know baseball needs a boost. It's a great town here, a great showcase. And if you turn your attention toward the game, it will come around," Cal Ripken said.

"I think it will take more than this game tomorrow to bring the fans back, but it is a good way to get the game back in the spotlight. We still have a lot of work to do with the fans, but this may help get them back," Fred McGriff said.

Baseball has so much riding on tonight's game because of the self-inflicted damage it incurred with the strike that canceled the expanded playoffs and World Series, delayed a real spring training and nearly brought about a travesty called replacement baseball.

Fans feel as though they've been treated shabbily, taken for granted and had their intelligence insulted. It has brought about a drop in paid attendance of 20 percent, a drop in real attendance that's even larger and a drop in interest that no one anticipated.

"In San Diego, we haven't been able to draw 14,000 until this past homestand. We'd have 7,000 or 8,000. We're not talking about 35,000 or 40,000 anymore," the Padres' Tony Gwynn said.

Tonight, however, the stands will be full with 43,000-plus fans and a television audience that hasn't seen a baseball game on a national broadcast network since last August. ABC will show the game at 8:29 p.m.

"After all of the negative things in baseball, to me this is the first big positive thing that's happened," NL manager Felipe Alou said.

"This should be used as a platform, a start toward signing an agreement and getting a commissioner, a time to tell fans that there will be a World Series this year and a spring training and All-Star game next year," he said.

Why should so much damage be so easily repaired by one All-Star game?

Some of the grand expectations derive from a great matchup of starting pitchers.

On one side is Hideo Nomo of the Los Angeles Dodgers, the former Japan League star who is a curiosity among players and fans alike. He has dominated the National League this season like no rookie since Dwight Gooden, striking out a league-leading 119 and holding opposing batters to a .158 average — also the best in the league.

On the other side is Randy Johnson, the 6-foot-10 intimidator for Seattle who leads the AL with 152 strikeouts.

White Sox' Thomas beats Bell to claim home run title

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — When it came to the All-Star home run derby, major leaguers didn't have a million-dollar swing Monday.

While no one came close to hitting the scoreboard above the right-field porch at The Ballpark, a target more than 500 feet away, Frank Thomas of the Chicago White Sox beat Cleveland's Albert Belle in the final, averaging 432.5 feet per homer.

"I think I was sitting with six or seven outs without a homer," Thomas said. "I thought I had a chance of going the whole contest without hitting one. I slowed my body down and things fell into place."

With injuries to Ken Griffey Jr. and Mark McGwire, there was only one left-handed hitter in the contest: Boston's Mo Vaughn. He hit three homers in the first round, his best a 460-foot drive into the right-field upper deck.

On top of the home run porch — designed as a tribute to Tiger Stadium in Detroit — is a Sony Jumbotron scoreboard. To the right is a white sign that reads "HIT IT HERE & WIN A FREE SUIT 501 FT." a takeoff on Abe Stark's "Hit Sign Win Suit" billboard on the right field scoreboard at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn.

The Texas Rangers and Pinnacle Brands, a Dallas-based trading card company, said they'd contribute $1 million to charity if any player hit the scoreboard, the four billboards on it or the roof of the office building in left or right fields.

No one came close.

In 1993, Griffey hit the B&O Warehouse adjacent to Camden Yards. Last year, when Griffey edged Thomas at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh, Thomas hit the most dramatic blasts, including a 519-foot drive into the upper deck. He averaged 495.5 feet for his four homers.

On Monday, in a new format, he averaged 438.9 feet for eight first-round homers, while Belle was second with a 421.9 average for seven. Each player swung until he made 10 "outs" — swings that weren't homers. After the first round, the field was cut to four, and another round left just Thomas and Belle.

Belle, who didn't speak to reporters after the contest, entered as a substitute Monday after Oakland's McGwire was forced out of the All-Star game because of a concussion. Belle hit seven homers in the second round, including six straight. Thomas hit four in the second round, then won the final 3-2.

Haley signs new contract, becomes Cowboys' highest paid defender

IRVING (AP) — When Carmen Policy was right. When Charles Haley retires, it just means he wants a better deal.

The prophecy of the San Francisco 49ers club president came true Monday when the Dallas Cowboys announced All-Pro defensive end Haley had gone from retirement talk to a commitment to play until 1999. All it took was $12 million.

"I want to play every year with everything I've got," Haley said. "I want to retire a Cowboy."

That's what most people suspected after the Cowboys' loss to San Francisco in the NFC championship game, when Haley announced he was retiring. In March, Haley said he didn't mean it.

Policy, who had dealt with Haley in the past, had this on-target reaction to Haley's premature retirement: "When Charles Haley says he is retiring, it just means he wants to renegotiate."

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said the deal, reached Sunday, includes a $3 million signing bonus and counts $2 million against this year's salary cap. Haley was to earn $1.95 million this season in the final year of his previous contract.

"When we didn't have him, we couldn't spell Super Bowl. This is a major signing for our future," Jones said.

It makes Haley the Cowboys' highest paid defensive player. Said Haley: "This is the first franchise that has treated Charles Haley as a man. This is the happiest moment in my life. I want to thank God and Jerry Jones."

Haley, 31, retired immediately after the Cowboys' 38-28 loss to San Francisco in the NFL title game, but returned to the team March 8.

He has played in six of the past seven NFC championship games and four of the past seven Super Bowls with the 49ers and the Cowboys. Haley has four Super Bowl rings.

"I know how desperately Charles, perhaps more than anyone else on this team, wants to have that fifth Super Bowl ring," Jones said.

Richard returns to the spotlight

By CHRIS PERKINS
The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS — J.R. Richard was among former baseball greats in the spotlight today for the Legends of the Game Baseball Museum All-Star Classic.

He's not the same pitcher he used to be. But then, he isn't the same man he used to be.

Less than a year ago, the 6-foot-8 Richard weighed almost 300 pounds and was living under a freeway overpass in southwest Houston. It was the low point of a 15-year slide from fame.

The former Houston Astros star, slimmed down and with a fresh start in life, had a view of the spotlight again today in an event leading up to Tuesday's All-Star Classic in The Ballpark in Arlington.

He doesn't call himself a born-again Christian, but he espouses Christian principles among his philosophies.

Sometimes his philosophies don't seem sensible, but you get the point: Richard is fighting to get his life back.

"It's just like the frog and the stork," Richard said, relating his newfound outlook on life. "The frog might be half swallowed, but he can still have his hands around the stork's neck."

A friend who saw Richard living under the overpass took him in and helped him begin his turnaround. Richard now works for an asphalt company in Houston, where he helps solicit business.

He's also living with his wife and 5-year-old son, J.R., in a Houston apartment.

He almost refuses to look back on the bad times of his life, perhaps because of the pain it causes.

In 1980, the 220-pound Richard was one of baseball's most feared pitchers.

His 95-mph fastball earned him respect, not to mention an $850,000 salary.

Shortly after pitching in the 1980 All-Star Game — in which he struck out Yankees slugger Reggie Jackson, a moment he ranks as the best in his 10-year career — Richard began acting strangely.

After a string of three shutouts from May 31 to June 11, he began complaining of fatigue in his right arm. After coming out of a July 15 game against the Braves after 3.1 innings, he told reporters that his ailment was an upset stomach.

After the game, however, he sat in front of his locker eating fried chicken and meatballs.

Later that month, Richard said a doctor ordered him to rest 30 days, but after team doctor Harold Breesford told reporters that two doctors found nothing wrong with Richard's arm, he returned to the rotation after one missed start.

He checked into a hospital a week later for doctors to find the source of his ailment, but they found nothing. One recommendation was that Richard "cut down on his social life."

Richard maintains that he didn't have a wild social life.

A week later, he suffered a stroke during a workout at the Astrodome. He was rushed to the hospital, where emergency surgery was performed to remove a life-threatening blood clot in the carotid artery in his right arm.

It was the beginning of the end for Richard.

In the next few years, he would lose his baseball career, two wives, his home, cars, everything. Bad investments cost him the money he thought he was saving.

Although Richard says he's not bitter, he has a tinge of venom in his voice when he speaks of those who said they were his friends.

"These same people call you and say, 'I know you're playing ball, but if you ever need a job, call me,'" Richard said. "Then you call them, and they're out to lunch."

Richard said he still follows baseball, but tries not to dwell on what his career could have been.

He said he planned to just have fun in the legends all-star game. "I'm not going to try to impress anybody. I'm just going to have some fun," he said.

Oilers come to terms with five players

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers said Monday they have agreed to contract terms with draft choices Michael Roan, Gary Walker and C.J. Richardson and a pair of journeyman tight ends.

The Oilers picked Roan, a tight end from Wisconsin, in the fourth round of this year's draft. Walker was a fifth-round pick from Auburn, while Richardson was selected in the seventh round from Miami. Both are defensive linemen.

Houston also agreed to terms with tight ends Butch Rolle and James Thornton. Rolle last played for the Phoenix Cardinals in 1993. Thornton spent the last two seasons playing for the New York Jets.

Registry system helps Army service members keep track of military skills

More than 26 million Americans are veterans of the United States armed services. This includes 14.5 million Army veterans who have had extensive military experience and training — training that should not go to waste upon leaving the service, military education officials said.

For the last nine years, the American Council on Education has worked with the U.S. Army to help soldiers, employers and college admissions officers understand just what military experience is worth.

The Army/American Council on Education Registry Transcript System offers a document that translates Army military course work and experience into civilian terms for both enlisted soldiers and National Guard personnel who entered active duty on or after October 1981.

Since its inception, AARTS has been used by thousands of Army service members who need a permanent record of the skills and knowledge gained from their military education and training experience. The transcript can be especially useful to Army veterans who are applying to college.

As one university administrator observed, "The transcript takes the guesswork out of awarding academic credit for service members' experience, making the whole process so easy for both the soldier and the admissions officer."

In addition to helping college officials, the transcript also provides employers with a better understanding of the responsibilities and skills that Army servicemembers gained on active duty.

As such, veterans often find that AARTS transcripts are excellent supplements to their resumes. As one soldier commented, "[The transcript] proved to my employer that I definitely had the essential skills needed for the job."

Eligible Army service members may obtain a transcript request form (5454R) from Army education center or college counselors or by writing to AARTS, Fort Leavenworth, KS 66027-5073.

The transcripts are available at no charge.

For further information on the Army/ACE Registry Transcript System, call (202) 939-9434 or write to AARTS, Center for Adult Learning and Education Credentials, One Dupont Circle N.W., Suite 250, Washington D.C., 20036.

State insurance commissioner seeks advice from insurers and consumer groups, alike

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer is seeking advice from insurance companies and consumers groups, alike, to help him roll back rates as required by the 1995 Legislature.

"We're going on a path here without much data. ... So we're having to make some basic assumptions. We want to make sure those assumptions aren't flawed," Bomer said during a hearing Monday.

"It would be foolhardy, in my opinion, for us to go along on a path without getting input from consumers and companies as to what those assumptions should be," he said.

Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, placed an amendment on a larger insurance bill this session that required insurance companies to pass onto consumers any savings resulting from Texas' sweeping lawsuit reforms.

Insurance companies opposed the measure, which takes effect Sept. 1, saying it was too early to tell what the reforms' effects would be on the industry.

For example, insurers said they feared a flood of lawsuits would be filed before the reforms took effect.

"There will be a rush of lawsuit filings to avoid the tort reform measures," said Michael Miller, a consulting actuary representing the National Association of Independent Insurers and the American Insurance Association.

As a result, the number of lawsuits filed after the reforms would seem considerably lower. Such a decrease might be erroneously attributed to the new laws.

"It is likely that the first-year savings will be overestimated," Miller said.

The companies said they want such situations, which complicate tracking the effects of lawsuit reform, taken into account when implementing the rollback rules.

They agreed with Bomer that Texas was charting new territory.

"No other state in the nation has passed such comprehensive tort reform legislation, making it very difficult to compare the historical influence of tort reform on the costs consumers and businesses pay for insurance," said Jerry Johns, president of the Southwest Insurance Information Service, an insurance trade association.

"This makes the task before us more painstaking and thought-provoking."

The task, said Rob Schneider, spokesman for Consumers Union, should focus on what policyholders expect from lawsuit reforms.

"There is a public expectation that consumers will receive substantial savings on their ... insurance bills," Schneider said.

Referring to a recent auto insurance rate increase by State Farm Mutual Insurance, Schneider suggested also that any rollback be retroactive to April 1 to protect consumers from companies that rush to increase rates before reductions are implemented.

Task forces says Smokey Bear hasn't told the truth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smokey Bear has brainwashed Americans into thinking all forest fires are bad, says a task force that suggests natural fires and those set deliberately by forest managers should have a greater role in making forests healthy.

The report says an obsession with putting out fires creates conditions for worse fires in the long run while encouraging people to ignore the hazards of moving close to fire prone areas. Smokey Bear, the 50-something mascot and mouthpiece of the Forest Service, has done too good a job.

"For many, fire remains a fearsome, destructive force that can and should be controlled at all costs," the report said. "Smokey Bear's simple, time-honored 'only you' fire prevention message has been so successful that any complex talk about the healthy, natural role of fire gets lost, ignored or denied," the report noted.

The report, issued last month and open to public comment, will be used to write new rules after this summer's fire season.

The new draft policy recognizes fire as a "critical natural process" that "will be used to protect, maintain, and enhance resources."

Too much fire control has let vegetation accumulate in forests, allowing hotter, faster-spreading fires to break out, the report said.

Last year, 34 firefighters died combating such blazes. The report said conditions are ripe for intense, destructive fires in 20 million to 30 million acres.

The recommendations could have their most serious impact in the growing number of communities on the edge of public lands.

"This increases the risk of escaped fires and generates more complaints about smoke and altered scenic values," the report said, adding that protecting houses and other buildings on the edges of government land should be primarily a state and local responsibility.

The report cited a growing number of such fires, starting with the 1991 Oakland Hills fires in California that killed 25 people, caused $1.5 billion in damage and destroyed more than 3,000 homes and apartments.

Train crushes boys working to free all-terrain vehicle

DUNMORE, Pa. (AP) — A 360-ton locomotive heading to the Steamtown National Historic Site crushed two brothers as they tried to free an all-terrain vehicle stuck on the tracks.

The train was traveling about 20 mph and had just passed a blind curve when it struck Anthony Paskert, 16, and his 12-year-old brother Paul, officials said.

The train was taking 572 passengers back from an excursion to the nearby town of Moscow.

The boys were riding two all-terrain vehicles in a fenced-off area that is not open to the public when one of the vehicles got stuck on the tracks Sunday. The boys were standing next to the vehicle and could not see the train coming, Patrolman Anthony Cali said.

"They were probably gunning the engine and they had their helmets on, so they couldn't hear anything," Bob Patterson, the fireman on the locomotive, said Monday.

Patterson said he looked up when he heard a crash and saw an all-terrain vehicle flying about 10 feet in the air. "I looked down and saw the body of this young boy underneath the tender," Patterson said.

The tender is the car that carries coal. It is usually behind the steam engine, but was in front on this run because the locomotive rides backwards on its return trip from Moscow.

The train took about a quarter mile to stop. After it did, Patterson said he walked out and found both boys' bodies.

"I could tell after one look that they were already dead," he said.

It was the first fatal accident since the National Park Service started running excursions from the park in Scranton in 1989. A woman was killed by a Steamtown train in 1984 when it was operated by a private company.

Steamtown, which bills itself as the national museum of railroad history, had its official grand opening July 1. The park has been plagued by criticism over its funding and lack of historic relevance for nearly 10 years.

The Texas Department of Public Safety accepting applications for recruit training

The Texas Department of Public Safety is accepting applications for recruit training schools that will begin in October of this year and February 1996.

"I encourage any person who meets our initial screening criteria and who is interested in a career in law enforcement to consider joining what many say is one of the premier law enforcement agencies in the country," DPS Director Col. James R. Wilson said.

In order to apply, applicants must be at least 20 years of age (there is not a maximum age), have a minimum of 60 semester hours of college (for some educational requirements, prior law enforcement or military service can be substituted), be a U.S. citizen, pass a written examination, meet certain physical fitness standards and be willing to accept assignment anywhere in Texas.

Formally known as an All Field Service Recruit Training

School, graduates of the 26-week course will fill existing and anticipated vacancies in the DPS's Traffic Law Enforcement Division — Highway Patrol, Drive License, License and Weight, Safety Education and Vehicle Inspection Services. After gaining experience in entry level law enforcement positions in TLE, troopers can promote within TLE or to various positions in the Criminal Law Enforcement or Texas Ranger Divisions.

"Our training school is nearly twice as long as the minimum required by the state," said Lt. Curley Colquitt, who heads up the DPS's recruiting effort. "Our classes are more in-depth and we also teach more self-improvement, management and skills classes."

During the 26 weeks of training, the trainees learn arrest, search and seizure policies, physical education, strategies of self defense, patrol procedures, crowd management, accident investigation techniques, problem solving and critical thinking, interpersonal communications and a number of other state and DPS required subjects.

Trainees stay in the DPS Training Academy dormitory in Austin during the school. Salary during the training session is $1,721 per month. Following graduation, probationary troopers are paid $1,983 per month.

The deadline for out-of-state applications is July 26; in-state applications will be accepted until Aug. 25.

For full information about application requirements, interested persons can call regional recruiters at DPS offices in Garland, (214) 226-7611; Houston (713) 957-6183; Corpus Christi (512) 854-2681; Midland (915) 697-2211; Lubbock (806) 747-4491; Waco (817) 867-4655; or Lt.
