THE PAMPA NEWS

PAMPA, TEXAS

April 24, 1995

50c DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Good Evening!AREA

PAMPA — Pampa City Commission is to meet in work session at 4 p.m. and regular session at 6 p.m. Tuesday to discuss cable television, trees and money.

At the work session in the third floor conference room of City Hall, commissioners will review the agenda and the cable advisory commission's annual report and hear the mid-year financial report.

In the regular meeting, the commission will consider in executive session appointments to the board of adjustments and planning and zoning commission. Board of adjustments has two openings and planning and zoning commission has three terms about to expire and one vacancy to fill due to a resignation.

Also in executive session, the commission will discuss matters regarding the Chaney vs. the city of Pampa lawsuit.

On the agenda, commissioners will consider adoption of a tree and a sidewalk replacement resolution relating to the street improvement project.

AMARILLO — The entry deadline for the Texas Cattle Feeders Association Junior Fed Beef Challenge has been extended to May 1.

Originally set for April 24, association officials said Friday they were extending the deadline to have as many youth as possible to enter.

"Although entries for the '95 Junior Fed Beef Challenge are similar to last year," said Perry Church, ICFA membership director, "we wanted to give as many 4-H and FFA members in cattle feeding country of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico as possible a chance to enter."

CANADIAN — A 17-year-old boy who flew the coop from Canadian's newly constructed boot camp about 8 p.m. Sunday returned to the facility about 4 a.m. today, said Sheriff Billy Bowen.

The Galveston youth climbed onto an awning next to a fence and jumped over, Bowen said. The fence had been moved near the awning due to construction, he said.

The boy, clad only in T-shirt and slacks, returned to Esmore this morning.

"He froze out," Bowen said.

MIAMI — The deadline for space at the Cow Calling Arts and Crafts Show is May 1.

Peggy Howerton, co-chairman of the show, said today that May 1 is the deadline for reserving booth space at the arts and crafts show in Miami held in conjunction with the annual cow calling championship scheduled this year for June 3.

For more information, call Howerton at 806-868-4771 or LaTonne Douglass at 806-868-2621.

FLORENCE (AP) — A military helicopter crashed today in Williamson County, killing at least five people, authorities said.

The crash occurred about 11:25 a.m. near Florence, which is about 40 miles north of Austin.

Mike Cox, spokesman for the state Department of Public Safety, gave the death toll but had no other details.

At nearby Fort Hood, Staff Sgt. Steven Moore said officials were trying to determine if the helicopter was from their base.

Supreme Court rejects appeal by Kevorkian

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to consider Dr. Jack Kevorkian's challenge to his murder prosecution in Michigan for assisting the suicides of terminally ill patients.

The court, without comment, rejected Kevorkian's appeal of a Michigan Supreme Court ruling that said there is no constitutional right to assisted suicide.

In other actions today, the justices:

— Turned down a U.S. Forest Service appeal challenging a federal appeals court decision involving the federally owned Wallowa-Whitman and Umatilla forests in Oregon. Federal officials say the appeals court decision could disrupt land-management efforts in nine Western states.

— Agreed to use a case involving a failed Iowa farm equipment company to clarify when defunct companies can cancel health and other benefits for their former employees.

— Let stand a ruling that forces the company that manufactures and sells the anti-baldness product "Helsinki Formula" to stop making many of its advertising claims and to refund money to consumers.

— Refused to second-guess how Florida elects its state and local judges.

Kevorkian sought to block his prosecution in five deaths. He faces murder charges in the deaths of two people and assisted-suicide charges in three others.

The justices also turned down a separate challenge to the Michigan ban by two terminally ill cancer patients and two medical professionals.

Kevorkian has aided or witnessed 21 suicides since 1990.

He was charged with murder in the deaths of Marjorie Wantz and Sherry Miller in 1991, and with assisting the 1993 suicides of Donald O'Keefe, Merian Frederick and Ali Khalili.

Michigan lawmakers enacted a ban on assisted suicides that took effect in February 1993 and expired last November.

The law was challenged by two terminally ill cancer patients, Teresa Hobbins and Kenneth A. Shapiro, both of Lansing, along with pharmacist William Drake of New Baltimore and psychiatrist Elliot D. Luby of Farmington Hills.

Hobbins and Shapiro said that when they reach the end of their illnesses, they want the right to end their pain by committing suicide with doctor-prescribed drugs.

Michigan trial courts threw out the charges against Kevorkian, saying the ban on assisted suicide violated the constitutional right to due process. Another trial judge ruled for Hobbins and Shapiro, citing similar constitutional grounds.

The Michigan Supreme Court ruled last December that the Constitution does not guarantee the right to assisted suicide. It also ruled that aiding a suicide can be prosecuted under the state's common law.

Kevorkian's lawyers urged the justices to find a constitutional right to "end intolerable pain, suffering or debilitation" through assisted suicide.

Panhandle economist terms cattle report as a 'non-event'

A Panhandle economist today termed Friday's cattle on feed report a non-event.

Jim Gill, market director for the Texas Cattle Feeders Association in Amarillo, said that the numbers released Friday in the government's cattle on feed report were in line with pre-release estimates and would have little impact on the market.

"Friday, prior to the release of the report," Gill said, "a couple of packers bid cash cattle steady to a dollar higher."

He said the increased bid by area packers would have much more impact on this week's cattle market than the government report.

The report indicated the same number of cattle on feed as the same time last year in the top 13 states that produce grain fed beef and only one percent above the number on feed during the last quarter. Cattle on feed in Texas was down three percent for the year and two percent from March.

There was an estimated 10,688,000 head of cattle being fed in the 13 states, the report said.

Placements, cattle coming into the feedyards, was 5,914,000 head, up 10 percent in the 13 states figures. The number was up eight percent in the top seven states. Placements in Texas, the number one cattle feeding state in the nation, were up 22 percent from a year ago and 28 percent from March.

Marketings for the 13 states in the first quarter of 1995 were 5,545,000, the same as a year ago. The number of cattle marketed in the seven states were up three percent from last year and up 10 percent from March.

"What the report showed us was that there are plenty of cattle out there," Gill said. "It also shows that the industry has done an admirable job of marketing cattle."

Gill said the report indicates an increase of cattle in the summer, a time of traditional increased beef consumption.

The increased supply of cattle has led private economists to estimate a drop in price from last week's $66 per cwt. to $53 to $57 by late summer.

Unseasonably cool nights expected for Texas Panhandle region

From Staff and AP Reports

Showers dotted the eastern Texas Panhandle early today, with another cool night expected for most of the region.

A light rain began about 6 a.m. today stretching from Amarillo to Wheeler as cool weather stretched across the state.

Pampa recorded an overnight low of 35 degrees and 0.01 inch of moisture by 6 a.m. today.

Brenda Turpin of the Carson County Sheriff's Office said it was raining off and on in Panhandle shortly after 8 a.m.

Paulette Paul of the White Deer City Marshal's Office said it was drizzling, raining and cloudy about 8:30 today in eastern Carson County.

Sharon Keener with the Hemphill County Sheriff's Office said it was cloudy and cool in Canadian shortly before 9 a.m. today but said the city had not received any rain.

Robert County Sheriff Bill Britten reported sprinkles in Miami about 8:30 a.m. today.

Texas Hospice Organization names Pampa couple volunteers of the year

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Guest Writer

Bob and Beth Karr of Pampa, long-time Hospice of the Panhandle volunteers, have been named Texas Hospice Organization's (THO) 1995 Volunteers of the Year, announced Sherry McCavit, Hospice of the Panhandle executive director.

The Karrs will be honored and presented with a plaque by the state hospice organization at an awards luncheon, May 7, during the THO Convention in Lubbock.

The Pampa couple's selection for the state award is in recognition of their unique team approach to their volunteer work.

"As volunteer coordinator and as executive director, it has been my privilege to work with and observe Bob and Beth," wrote McCavit in her letter of nomination. "Their most effective work has been visiting as a team — visiting couple to couple or individual to individual as each situation required."

McCavit listed seven characteristics exhibited by the Karrs in their volunteer work:

1. Their willingness to follow the patient and family — not lead them.

2. Excellent listening skills — never interrupting or correcting, always focusing intently on what is being said.

3. No agenda of their own — no ego needs.

4. Willingness to serve in many capacities: making phone calls, visiting with patients, helping with volunteer training classes, baking cookies, decorating the office, stuffing envelopes, preparing and serving meals for caregiver luncheons, repairing equipment and office furniture, helping with the newsletter — whatever needs doing.

5. Dependable and faithful.

6. Prompt and accurate communication.

7. Warm, kind, loving humble hearts, freely shared with all who come in contact with them.

The Karrs "fell into" becoming hospice volunteers as a result of their involvement with the Stephen Ministry, an interdenominational outreach program. Mickey Clark, a hospice volunteer from Miami who was also working with the Stephen Ministry, encouraged the Karrs to attend a hospice volunteer training class.

"She said you should take hospice training because of the benefit it would be to you even if you don't become active," Bob remembers.

Out of curiosity, the Karrs enrolled in a hospice class at Clarendon College — Pampa Center in the fall of 1990.

Volunteers

"At the time, we weren't looking for work. We had plenty to do, but things just fell into place," Bob said.

"We realized it was time to do something. And since we were well, we could do it," Beth added.

The Karrs are not certain how they came up with their "couple" approach to volunteering for hospice patients.

"I think it just evolved. At the time, Sherry (McCavit) was making contact for the volunteers. It was easier the first time to go as a couple," explained Beth.

Soon they discovered that Beth could visit with the wife while Bob spent time with the husband, allowing both the patient and the caregiver to receive individualized attention. This team approach has proven to be successful time and again.

"It kind of evolved through the years," Bob explained. "That way if it didn't work out, we didn't know any better."

"We had an experience last fall of having three friends in hospice and we took care of all of them," Beth remembered. "We were glad we were able to be there."

Despite sadness over the loss of their friends, Bob and Beth say their hospice work uplifts them.

Beth enjoys "being able to help somebody, to give them support, to encourage them to talk.

"Just the fact they know you care about them means a lot to them," she said. "It makes me feel good and thankful that I can help them."

"Depressing - I never thought about that at all," she added. "Death is just a part of living - of life. It's not a depressing thing for me."

Bob said, "It's a victory, going to heaven. It's where you've been trying to get all this time and now you're on your way."

The couple agree they've learned many things during the five years they've worked with hospice.

"We appreciate people who are pleasant," Beth said. "We've also realized we don't need to sit on our duff and let things catch up with us."

This last lesson has caused the Karrs to be careful to keep their own affairs in order and to make long-range plans for the time when they may not be able to care for themselves.

"We realized we have to have open minds about our future and to not put the responsibility on somebody else," Beth said. "There comes a time when you have to start realizing that changes come in your life and begin accepting help."

In addition to their hospice volunteering, the Karrs regularly visit with an elderly Pampa couple as part of the Stephen Ministry. Bob delivers Meals on Wheels. Beth is a member of the United Methodist Women. Together and separately, they volunteer in numerous capacities at the First United Methodist Church, where they have been active members for many years.

Bob retired from Hoechst Celanese Chemical Corp. in 1982. Beth, a Pampa native, is retired as an employee for Texas Furniture. They have three children, two sons and a daughter, and five grandchildren.

The Karrs say they have found fulfillment through their volunteer work, recommending it to others as a way of using their spare time.

"There's all kinds of things out there you can get into," Bob said. "There's lots of hurting people out there, lots of people who won't ask for help. I admire the people who can ask for help."

Sherry McCavit summed up her nomination of Bob and Beth Karr in this way: "Working with Hospice has blessed my life in many ways. One of the best is knowing Bob and Beth and learning from them about life, living and loving."

For more information about Hospice of the Panhandle, a not-for-profit organization which cares for the terminally ill and their families in the home or a homelike setting, contact McCavit at 665-6677.

Video may show truck in Oklahoma bombing

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Videotape from a surveillance camera may show the rental truck that was used in the bombing of a federal office building, the FBI said today.

Weldon Kennedy, the agent in charge of the FBI's investigation, would not elaborate on what the surveillance camera, located in a nearby building, revealed. But he said the images "may be helpful to this case."

The announcement came as investigators continued to search for a second man suspected of carrying out the nation's worst terrorist bombing, and as searchers at the site dug into sections that are expected to yield a heavy death toll.

There were also these developments Sunday and today:

— Court-appointed attorneys for Timothy McVeigh, the only suspect charged in the case, announced today that they would ask to step aside. They said they feared for the safety of their families and weren't sure they could represent McVeigh in an unbiased way.

— President Clinton sought broad new powers to combat terrorism. His chief of staff, Leon Panetta, defended those proposals today against charges that they could violate civil liberties.

— An Army deserter from Fort Riley, Kan., was questioned, then released to military custody, after being apprehended in California. McVeigh once served at Fort Riley.

— There was word that on the day of the bombing, a Texas congressman's office received a fax in cryptic language that may have described the Oklahoma federal office building that was devastated.

— Two brothers who were friends of McVeigh were being held as material witnesses, and there were searches and questioning over the weekend in Las Vegas, upstate New York, Michigan and Kansas.

As the nation observed a day of mourning on Sunday, there was more bad news.

Besides the 78 confirmed dead from the federal office building bombing April 19, another person, nurse Rebecca Anderson, 37, died Sunday from head injuries suffered trying to help after the blast. More than 400 were injured in the worst terrorist attack in the United States.

There were 100 unaccounted-for as rescue efforts lost time over the weekend because of fierce thunderstorms, wind gusts and threatening debris.

Memorial services set for Minerva Hobart

Memorial services are set for 11 a.m. Tuesday at First Presbyterian Church of Pampa for Eunice Minerva Jones Hobart, 92. Burial will be held privately on the Hobart Ranch.

She died Monday morning, April 24, 1995, in Pampa.

Mrs. Hobart was born Feb. 10, 1903 on the Jones farm in Bandera County, near Utopia. She was the daughter of the late Charles Shadrach Jones and Minerva Jones. She was the youngest of 10 children.

She is survived by her children Marilyn Hobart Campbell, Wichita Falls, Minerva Hobart Batts, Fort Worth, and Timothy Dwight Hobart II, Canadian; six grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Hobart grew up in Utopia and Alpine and made her home with her eldest sister, Eula Jones

Brown, during her school years. She was a member of the first group of students admitted to Sul Ross State Teachers College, Alpine.

She taught school at Presidio as an 18-year-old college student. She graduated from Sul Ross in 1923.

Mrs. Hobart taught fifth grade in Canadian in 1923, where she met her husband, Fred Hobart. After a year as a teacher in Ira Ogden Elementary in San Antonio, she married Mr. Hobart in 1925 at the First Methodist Church in San Antonio.

They made their home on the Hobart Ranch, south of Canadian, until 1949, when they moved into the Hobart House in Pampa. Mr. Hobart died in 1972.

Mrs. Hobart was the second woman to be elected as an elder of the First Presbyterian Church of Pampa.

Freezing weather could hurt wheat crop

For the second year in a row, late freezing temperatures could devastate the area's wheat crop.

Gray County Extension Agent Danny Nusser estimates that the wheat crop suffered as much as an 80 percent total kill after temperatures dropped well below freezing more than a week ago. To make matters worse, he said that early morning temperatures are still endangering wheat fields in the Panhandle.

One day last week, the county agent had frost on his windshield, he said. "We're still losing grain."

Nusser said dryland wheat wasn't in very good shape to begin with because of the lack of moisture the past several months.

"The chances for dryland wheat is slim to none," Nusser said. "It's been hurt pretty severely."

Nusser's major concern, he said, is the irrigated wheat. The costs that have been put into the irrigated crop could increase monetary losses.

"This is the second year in a row that we've had this here," he said. "It's the third time in the last seven years that I know of. These late freezes are killing us."

Nusser said that in inspecting wheat fields across the county, he's found a wide variance in freeze kill. Some fields show an 80 percent loss while other show as little as a 20 percent loss.

"We're finding a little bit of everything," he said.

Although he said that a 50 percent loss of heads doesn't mean a 50 percent loss of the crop, it still remains a severe problem for local wheat growers.

"The heads that are left will make up for some of that loss," he said.

Nusser said wheat producers need to check their crop and contact the ASCS office to see how any kill would affect their involvement in ASCS programs.

It may be possible to graze some of the wheat, he said, although a better route may be to bail the crop for hay. He said that if the plants are in the boot stage, it should make excellent hay, but it would need to be baled quickly.

Many of the farmers with whom he talked, he said, have indicated that they will go back into the fields and plant sorghum.

State Extension service agents said today that damage to the wheat crop from Amarillo south does not appear to be severe, but they said that the farther north they have traveled, the worse it gets.

The Dumas area is reported to have suffered from 20 to 60 percent damage. They said that from Gruver north to the Oklahoma border, they had to search to find a head in any given field that was alive. They said it was deceiving because the fields still appear green.

Extension officials in Amarillo said they were working with federal crop insurance adjusters in how they assess the damage to the wheat crop.

Pirates of the Month

Justin Howard, left, and Tracy Tucker have been named Pirates of the Month for March at Lefors High School. Howard, a sophomore, has played varsity football for one year and varsity basketball for two years. He also runs track and will compete in regionals this weekend. He plays tennis and golf as well. Howard has been on the Honor Roll this year and was recently inducted into the Lefors Chapter of the National Honor Society. His favorite subject is geometry and his favorite pastime is playing sports. Tucker, a freshman, played volleyball and basketball and ran track this year. She is a varsity cheerleader and is active in 4-H and shows pigs. She was able to show a pig at the Houston Livestock Show in February. Tucker is on the Honor Roll. Her favorite school subject is world geography and she enjoys spending time with her friends and working with her pigs.

Relatives say teenager shot for wearing green

FORT WORTH (AP) — Relatives of a 14-year-old boy who was shot to death in front of a convenience store say the shooter may have been a gang member incensed because the boy was wearing green.

Michael Grigsby Jr., 14, was not a gang member himself, said his mother. But he died Saturday night after a gunman approached him from behind and asked "What's up, cuz?" and then fired two bullets into his chest. After the boy fell, the assailant shot him twice more.

Homicide Sgt. Paul Kratz said Sunday that police have not established any gang connection to the killing, but several of the boy's relatives said they believe the shooter might have been a gang member incensed by the boy's green Mickey Mouse T-shirt and green pants.

They said green is a color recently declared a target by certain gangs.

Kratz said police have not classified green as a color significant to local gangs, but that it is possible.

The boy's mother said he knew the dangers of wearing the wrong color. She said she forbade him from wearing red or blue clothing to avoid provoking gang members, but said she saw additional censorship of his wardrobe as excessive.

"I never let him wear red or blue, but why should he be restricted to other clothes? I didn't mind him wearing any clothes, as long as they weren't solid colors," Edna Grigsby told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The boy was an honor student at school and was planning a trip next month to Washington, D.C., with a school group. He played football and won second place in the shot put at a track meet last week.

He had gone with relatives to a restaurant Saturday night. He and another boy received permission to buy soft drinks at a food mart across the street, his mother said.

Bandits of the Month

Eighth graders Dana Crutcher, left, and Tobee Bowman have been named Bandits of the Month for March at Lefors Junior High School. Crutcher played volleyball for the Lady Bandits this year. Her favorite school subject is math, and she has been on the Honor Roll this year. In her spare time, she enjoys walking and spending time with her friends. Bowman played football for the Bandits this year. He was a participant in recent UIL competition and is active in 4-H, where he raises and shows pigs. His favorite school subject is English. In his spare time, he enjoys riding his horse.

Dan Morales touts charity registration bill

AUSTIN (AP) — More than 150 charities are supporting legislation that would require registration of charitable organizations and professional solicitors, Attorney General Dan Morales says.

Morales says the bill would allow the state to crack down on fraudulent charities and dishonest solicitors.

"The legitimate charities are supporting these bills, despite the inconvenience of additional paperwork, because they will be rewarded tenfold," Morales said Monday.

"Fraudulent charities are taking money that would otherwise go to the legitimate charities. The good and generous Texans who have given their hard-earned cash for purported worthy causes are discouraged from giving again when they discover they have been duped," he said.

The legislation would require charities and professional solicitors to provide the attorney general's office with information regarding the nature of their organization, the principals involved and financial records.

Morales said Texas is the only large state that lacks such registration.

Study blames economic issues for lack of fathers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly a quarter of all American children lived in fatherless families last year, and unemployment and declining wages are partly to blame, a foundation said today.

The number of children growing up without fathers has quadrupled since 1950, when the percentage stood at 6 percent, according to the sixth annual Kids Count Data Book, a study by the Annie E. Casey Foundation.

Meanwhile, the median income of all men aged 25 to 34 fell by 26 percent in inflation-adjusted dollars from 1972 to 1994, the study said.

The percentage of men aged 25 to 34 with incomes below the poverty level for a family of four more than doubled — increasing from 14 percent to 32 percent in 24 years, the foundation said.

And in 1993, nearly half of all black and Latino men in that age group did not earn enough to lift a family of four out of poverty, the study said.

"The simple truth is that disadvantaged young men who do not have the education, skills or opportunity to succeed in today's economy are not prepared to contribute as providers, protectors and mentors to their children," said Douglas W. Nelson, the foundation's executive director.

Census Bureau statistics show that 19 million youngsters live without fathers, the foundation said. They are five times more likely to be poor.

They also are twice as likely to drop out of high school and significantly more likely to end up in foster care, group homes and juvenile justice facilities, the study said.

While not excusing men who abandon their families, Nelson said the situation can be improved by putting a higher priority on improving education for poor and minority males, reforming welfare, and redoubling efforts to reduce unemployment.

But the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative think tank, said the problem may have less to do with economics than cultural changes.

"People are investing less of themselves in relationships with their spouses or their children. You can't look at our society without thinking there has been a fundamental shift in the way people view the responsibility they have for their own children," said Doug Besharov, an institute scholar.

Researchers also found that: —In 1992, teen-agers in Rhode Island were the least likely to die violently. The state reported 33.9 violent deaths per 100,000 teens aged 15 to 19. The District of Columbia ranked last, reporting 269 violent deaths per 100,000.

—The number of juveniles arrested for violent crimes increased by a dramatic 58 percent between 1985 and 1992, increasing in every state except Vermont, where the rate held steady at 49 arrests per 100,000 youth.

In New York, the number was 1,025 per 100,000 juveniles. The District of Columbia had the highest number — 1,487 per 100,000 youths.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

The U.N. turns its eyes on U.S.

As the chief beneficiaries of that starry-eyed endeavor known as the United Nations, U.S. taxpayers may be under the impression that we foot so much of the U.N.'s bills simply to micromanage far-flung civil wars that have nothing to do with American interests. Not quite.

It seems we're also paying the U.N. to nag us about how we run our own lives here at home. Unable to bring even a hint of hope to Somalia or Bosnia or just about any other hot spot it stumbles into, this august body of international bureaucrats has trained its sights instead on the United States.

A U.N. panel called (take a deep breath) the "Human Rights Committee of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights" issued a report last week noting Washington's new conservative mood and warning the United States to continue fighting discrimination and safeguarding human rights.

If you hadn't suspected such fundamentals were on the chopping block to begin with - and, well, neither did we - then we all have the U.N. to thank for alerting us. But what in particular gave the panel such cause for alarm?

Among other stated concerns, the committee is troubled at efforts around our country to roll back government affirmative action programs targeting women and minorities. As well, the committee report calls on the U.S. government to extend and strengthen laws limiting the sale of guns to the public and to curb prison overcrowding.

Some perspective, please. Set aside, for the sake of argument, the high irony of the Ugandas and Indonesias, the Libyas and Irans of this world deploring prison conditions or discrimination or any other human rights concern in any country besides their own. Consider instead the paradox of an international body calling on a nation to expand government in the name of human rights.

But the biggest threat to human rights nowadays in so many of the U.N.'s member nations is too much government. What is affirmative action, for instance, but another rendering of the spoils systems used to dole out jobs and business contracts irrespective of merit - in so many corrupt governments worldwide? What are many gun-control laws but attempts to hoard all the firearms - and all the power - in a government fearful of dissent?

Oh well. We can't expect such breadth of vision from so pompously deluded an organization, whose affectations include a "United Nations" dateline atop news stories originating at U.N. headquarters in New York. Which is as if to ignore the relatively free and humane society the U.N. is using as a sanctuary - or that society's citizens, whose largess is the U.N.'s bread and butter.

Catching ABC on the internet

As our country's technological pioneers pave new lanes on the information superhighway, one discovers an entirely new way of studying the national media being their most indiscreetly ideological selves. Away from the constraints of editors, encouraged by the freedom of interactive communication, journalists are having a polemical field day on the Internet.

One rich lode of information can be found on the ABC News bulletin board on America Online. That's where in November we found Peter Jennings' infamous ABC Radio commentary attributing the elections to "a nation full of uncontrolled 2-year-old rage. The voters had a temper tantrum last week."

While Jennings blatantly exposed himself to the world with his current take on politics, ABC's coverage of the Contract With America has regularly reflected that point of view. Stupid voters voted for stupid politicians who are now rewarding them with a stupid legislative program. ABC must attempt to correct the people's tantrum, since, as reporter and weekend anchor Carole Simpson proclaimed, viewers "really want journalists to help direct their thinking on some issues."

It's the Online Auditorium offerings where the ABC reporters seem to let their hair down when they take questions from average computer gearheads around the country. On Jan. 5, Simpson worried online: "I fear that the Contract With America, if enacted, may be detrimental to the family, especially those single women and their children... my fear is that Mr. Gingrich, given his history, may increase what I see as a new mean-spiritedness in this country... I would like to think that the American people care about poor people, about sick people, about homeless people and about poor children. I am shocked by the new mean-spiritedness."

L. Brent Bozell

When one user declared that ABC's liberal bias was "obvious," she responded: "I disagree wholeheartedly. I think it's, again, an example of the mean-spiritedness that is these days also directed at the media." And what about ABC's spirit in its coverage of Newt, described by reporter Jim Wooten as "the poster boy for political resentment and rage"? Simpson claimed: "I think the coverage of the new Republican leadership has been extremely positive."

Perhaps the richest gleanings came on March 2 from John Hockenberry, who reports for ABC's Day One. Hockenberry came from National Public Radio, and the snobbery is still intact: "I found the audience for NPR very engaged and awake. It meant that by necessity you could write and speak up to the listeners... ABC is much more a wild pitch out into a dark stadium. It means that your writing is often aimed downward because in television, there is not the expectation that viewers are active." Hockenberry underlined that attitude by declaring: "I think American politics thrives on ignorance today. I think American policy works without a backup plan as long as people are so unrepentantly uninformed." That stupid public again.

But Hockenberry wasn't finished. "I think that capitalism is inherently amoral and it is folly to expect that a system run on greed will be able to adopt some virtuous precepts to prevent the violations of human rights." When the big-bucks TV reporter drew charges of hypocrisy, he replied: "It is hypocritical if you think that I am only a mouthpiece for the shareholders of Capital Cities-ABC, but I'm not. I only decried capitalism as a system that could be run with human rights as a paramount value. I think that wouldn't work."

Of Clinton's political prospects, Hockenberry wrote: "Faced with the choice of a crowd-pleasing fanatic trying to look like a Republican and about a hundred real Repubs... it looks tough to me." When asked if the Contract With America could work, Hockenberry joked: "Yes. I'm moving to Switzerland."

The most recent participant was Capitol Hill reporter John Cochran, who also believes "Gingrich has gotten a pretty good press." Cochran noted disagreement among Republicans on tax cuts, especially that "Sen. Bob Packwood, for example, chairman of the Finance Committee, is certainly conservative on most issues. But Packwood is extremely dubious about any tax cut until we are well on the road to balancing the budget."

No one, but no one, except Cochran considers Packwood "certainly conservative." He is not only a social liberal who voted against Robert Bork and Clarence Thomas, but according to National Journal's 1992 ratings, he drew only a 54 percent conservative score on economic issues, compared to 89 percent for Bob Dole. Lord knows what Cochran would consider to be a "moderate" Republican.

Will these computer-generated proclamations of opinion lead to a new era of candor in network news? Will the "news" people cast aside the sheep's clothing of objectivity and finally admit they are wolves out to bite Newt? That would be refreshing - but not surprising.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, April 24, the 114th day of 1995. There are 251 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 24, 1800, Congress approved a bill establishing the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., appropriating $5,000 "for the purchase of such books as may be necessary."

On this date:

In 1792, the national anthem of France, "La Marseillaise," was composed by Captain Claude Joseph Rouget de Lisle, an officer stationed in Strasbourg.

In 1877, federal troops were ordered out of New Orleans, ending the North's post-Civil War rule in the South.

In 1898, Spain declared war on the United States after rejecting America's ultimatum to withdraw

Christian Coalition president's master stroke

In the weeks preceding the 1994 mid-term elections, Rep. Vic Fazio (D-Calif.), chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, launched a fear-mongering attack on Republicans that focused on something called the "radical right." The president and vice president echoed the theme.

With most American voters, the attempt to make a bogeyman of religious conservatives flopped. It may even have backfired - 65 percent of voters said they would be more likely to vote for a candidate who addressed America's moral decline than for any other. But with one constituency, the scare tactics worked beautifully - American Jews.

Jews are always a reliable constituency for Democratic candidates, usually handing them 60 percent or more of the Jewish vote. (Those of us who have always voted Republican are a minority within a minority.) But in recent years, that loyalty has become a bit frayed. The influence of Jesse Jackson within the Democratic Party alienated some Jews, as did strains between blacks and Jews over affirmative action.

If some Jews not thoroughly steeped in liberalism might be inclined to vote Republican for the same reasons other Americans do - concern about crime, taxes, the nation's moral decline - there is one thing that sends them flying back into the arms of the Democratic Party - fear of the Christian right.

When I speak to Jewish groups, there are always several questions about the religious right. Though every Jew knows a Republican, perhaps even has one in his family, the advent of assertive, politically active Christian conservatives fills many Jews with memories of persecution and pogroms.

I have always been at pains to point out that

Mona Charen

America is not Europe; that though Jews have suffered some anti-Semitism here, it has never approached the scale of what Europe inflicted; that most evangelical Christians have truly renounced their anti-Semitic pasts; that modern Christians have their own legitimate complaints about their treatment; and that secularism is no refuge from trouble - not for Jews and not for America.

But in recent months, the efforts by some to forge reconciliation between the Christian right and American Jews suffered a setback with the publication of Pat Robertson's book The New World Order. Robertson was accused of recirculating hoary anti-Semitic myths about conspiracies, "European bankers" and the money supply.

The dismay in Jewish circles about Robertson's book was at high tide last week when Ralph Reed, president of the Christian Coalition, took the podium at a meeting of the Anti-Defamation League in New York and delivered an extraordinary speech. Reed acknowledged that Christian conservatives have sometimes been maladroit - as when they refer to a "Christian nation" and sometimes downright offensive - as when one prominent minister said, "God does not hear the prayers of a Jew."

Reed acknowledged that Jewish fears of Christian activists were rooted in history - histories of beatings and abuse, histories of being called "Christ killers," histories of hiding in cellars on Easter Sunday, histories of sewing yellow stars on sleeves and histories of fleeing the Gestapo. Reed told the group that one of his most painful moments, in a visit to Yad Vashem, the Holocaust memorial in Israel, was viewing an exhibit chronicling the indifference of U.S. officials to the ongoing slaughter. And he pledged that "we will do all in our power to ensure that Jews are never again the target of hatred and discrimination."

But while conceding a painful past, Reed also quoted Rabbi Joshua Haberman, who said, "America's Bible Belt is its safety belt."

Ralph Reed is a gifted politician who had the wisdom to follow the advice of the Hudson Institute's Michael Horowitz, as described in the book Disciples and Democracy. A former Reagan administration official, Horowitz is sympathetic to the religious right. But as a former freedom rider, he also has a keen ear for how conservatives sound to the other side. His road map for rapprochement - originally outlined at a conference sponsored by the Ethics and Public Policy Center in December 1993 - was followed almost to the letter by Reed, and the results have been striking. The ADL audience was moved. Stereotypes were smashed and prejudices undermined. It could be the start of a new day.

Berry's World

THE DREAM TEAM
FROM HELL

A BAD COURT DAY.

Liberals are close minded on the subject of prayer

Now that the Hundred Days are over, Speaker Gingrich has indicated that a bill, and if necessary a constitutional amendment, permitting some sort of school prayer will come before Congress this year. The precise form of prayer permitted - or even whether it will be a prayer at all (rather than merely a "moment of silence") - is still wide open. But we seem to be on track for a serious discussion of the matter, and quite possibly for some action as well.

Given the difficulty of devising anything that could plausibly be called a "prayer" and still wouldn't offend the class atheist, a lot of effort has been devoted to finding some suitably inoffensive way to proceed. Mr. Gingrich declares that he is firmly against any form of prayer prescribed by the school or the individual teacher, and suggests that he would settle for a law permitting devout students to "pray before lunch" (for example) if they wanted to.

Others have suggested having all students participate in a "moment of silence" at the beginning of the school day. That way, the religiously inclined could pray (silently) in any way they chose; the class atheist could reflect on how ridiculous his classmates looked praying; and the merely indifferent could think about the weather, or the girl in the next row.

But when you shrink the idea of a moment of prayer down to a moment of silence, you run into the objection that CBS correspondent Bob

William Rusher

Schieffer posed not long ago to someone who suggested it: "Would that really accomplish anything?" The suggestion was that any gesture so empty of content is scarcely worth battling for.

But is that really true? If a moment of prayer, or at least of silence, would be so meaningless, why are many liberals so bitterly opposed to it?

The answer lies in understanding what every student - Christian, Jew, Muslim, atheist, or None of the Above - would perceive to be going on during that moment. To religious students, it would be a precious opportunity to communicate with their God. Atheist students would presumably dismiss any such idea, but they would realize that their fellow students and probably in most cases the great majority of their fellow students - felt otherwise. The merely non-religious students would realize the same thing.

Thus there would be introduced into the consciousness of every student not merely the religious ones - the concept of a higher Being or Authority, to which many people believe they owe devotion and obedience. And that would be an enormous contribution toward that "internalization of discipline" that is the first step on the road to America's moral recovery. Needless to say, it is also something that secular liberals are determined to resist at all costs.

Of course, everybody is already familiar in a general way with the concept of God, whether one believes in it or not. But just being familiar with it isn't nearly the same thing as seeing a large majority of one's classmates seize on a daily "moment of silence" as an opportunity to acknowledge and worship their Creator.

Insert that little grain of sand in the adolescent oyster, and someday you may well be rewarded with a pearl. Few of us are so coldly indifferent to the opinions of others that we can comfortably go our way regardless of them. There is a shrewd folk wisdom in the famous revision of Kipling's If: "If you can keep your head when all about you/ Are losing theirs, you probably don't understand the situation very well."

But isn't that an argument against permitting even a moment of silence? Not unless dissenters (in this case atheists) must be shielded forever from new ideas. And that's hardly a very open-minded position for a liberal to take.

Moonwalker

Todd Hellner, a space shuttle engineer with NASA in Houston, stands with Ben Whitten, a Horace Mann Fifth grader at Recreation Park Friday afternoon. Hellner was in Pampa to speak with a group of third, fourth and fifth grade PEP students from local schools who attended a program on outer space. Whitten, being a little creative, decided to dress up for the occasion. The all day program included a school bus that was "transformed" into a space shuttle. Students also made moon buggies, rockets, aliens and robots and learned about different constellations. Chemists from Hoechst Celanese were also on hand to talk with the students. The students selected the theme on outer space and activities were offered to challenge the students. The parent-teacher association also helped with this project.

Summer camp for children with cancer and cancer survivors readies to open in late July

Camp Alphie, an overnight summer camp for children with cancer and cancer survivors, will open for its eighth year July 31 through Aug. 4 at the Episcopal Church Conference Center north of Amarillo. Camp Alphie offers all the fun activities of summer camp with the addition of special facilities, diets and trained staff to accommodate the needs of cancer patients. The overnight camp is free to the campers thanks to sponsors and Alphie Angels who underwrite the cost of the camp. Kids ages 7 to 14 who have or have had cancer and their siblings are eligible to attend the camp. The purpose of Camp Alphie is fun, a commodity desperately needed by both kids and parents, according to camp founder Better Sterquell.

"As soon as a member of a family is diagnosed with cancer, the focus immediately is directed to the illness and its treatment, and the fabric of the family begins to unravel," said Mrs. Sterquell. "Camp Alphie helps hold the family together." Camp Alphie will again conduct a concurrent Parents' Camp this year. While the children go to the sleep-over camp in the country, their parents spend a week at an Amarillo motel, being treated to a week of fun, including the "Texas!" musical drama, bowling, a day of beauty for women and time sharing experiences with each other. The parents' camp also is underwritten by sponsors and is free to those who attend. Interested parties must write in order to obtain more information on Camp Alphie. The address is: Camp Alphie, P.O. Box 3819, Amarillo, Texas 79116-3819.

Haney Gallery to present American, European paintings

The James M. Haney Gallery will be presenting an exhibition of important European and American paintings from the 19th and early 20th centuries.

Among the paintings chosen for this exhibition will be an important work by the American expatriot artist Daniel Ridgway Knight (1839 - 1924). Entitled Maria on the Terrace this painting was executed circa 1909 and features one of Knight's favorite and most beautiful models standing on the artist's terrace in a moment of reflection. Ridgway Knight was born March 9, 1839 in Philadelphia and studied at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. In 1861 he travelled to Paris to study at L'Ecole des Beaux Arts under Cabanel, and to apprentice in the atelier of Charles G. Gleyere.

He returned to Philadelphia in 1863 to serve in the Union Army and in 1871 married Rebecca M. Webster and returned to France — where they were to remain for the rest of their life.

Once settled in France he befriended Renoir, Sisley and Wordsworth and became very close with Meissonier. In 1974 while painting in Barbizon, Knight met Millet and found his view of peasant life to be fatalistic. Knight wanted to paint more uplifting pictures, depicting the rural class at their happiest moments. It was this subject matter that would occupy him for the rest of his life.

In 1888 Knight received a third class medal at the Salon; in 1889 a silver medal at the Exposition and in 1892 he became a Knight of the Legion of Honor (becoming an officer in 1909). Today examples of his work can be seen in many museums in the United States, including: Brooklyn Museum, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Haggin Museum, Stockton, Calif.; Albright-Knox Art Gallery, Buffalo, N.Y.; Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, Philadelphia, Penn.; Joslyn Art Museum, Omaha, Neb.; and the Arizona State University Art Museum, Tempe, Ariz.

The exhibit will also feature Josephus L. Dyckmans' painting, A Quiet Moment. Considered to be one of the leading exponents of Belgian genre painting during the mid 19th century, Josephus L. Dyckmans carried on the traditions of the great 17th century masters like de Hooch, Terborch and Dou (in fact his work earned him the nickname: the Belgian or Flemish Dou). Born in Lier on Aug. 9, 1811, Dyckmans studied art at the Academy of Antwerp under Gustave Wappers who is considered the leader of the Belgian Romantic School.

Dyckmans committed himself to capturing scenes of daily life with photographic precision, a style that was to create great demand for his work. He became a teacher at the Academy of Antwerp in 1841 and was elected a member in 1853. He continued to paint throughout his lifetime and died in Antwerp on Jan. 8, 1889.

Other artists represented in the exhibit include Oliver Clare (the British still-life artist) Jane Peterson (the American still-life and landscape artist), Henry John Boddington (the British landscape artist) and Alfred De Breanski, Jr. (the British landscape artist who specialized in painting the beautiful gardens).

The paintings will be on display from May 19 through May 26.

"Maria on the Terrace," oil on canvas by Daniel Ridgway Knight will be among the exhibits at the James M. Haney Gallery.

St. Jude gears up for trail ride this Saturday

The fourth annual Saddle Up for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital trail ride will be Saturday. In case of rain or bad weather, the ride will be May 6.

This year's ride will be held on the Arrington Ranch between Pampa and Skellytown. Riders are needed for this event to raise funds for the research center to help in the fight against childhood cancer and other catastrophic childhood diseases, Saddle Up organizers said.

Riders are asked to get as many sponsors as they would like, with each sponsor making a one-time donation. All monies must be turned in the day of the ride.

Each rider turning in $35 will receive a St. Jude T-shirt and a blue ribbon. Riders collecting $75 or more will receive a St. Jude sports bag, T-shirt and blue ribbon. Riders collecting $125 or more will receive a St. Jude sweatshirt, sports bag, T-shirt and blue ribbon. A minimum of $15 will be required to ride.

Sign up will start at 8 a.m. with the ride starting at 9 a.m. The ride will continue until noon. After lunch, the ride will continue until 3 p.m., when all prizes will be awarded.

The $15 fee will include lunch catered by the Cattle Call Restaurant in Amarillo.

For more information, call Sharon Williams at (806) 669-0176, Amy Anders at 806-274-2854, or Mary Slavin at 806-868-5541.

PUBLIC INVITED AND ENCOURAGED TO ATTEND!

Daughter's dramatic weight loss could take tragic turn

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who will soon turn 18, was a heavy child from the time she was 7 or 8. In the last nine months, she has lost 145 pounds! (She weighed 260, but now she weighs about 115.)

She doesn't need to lose any more weight, but she won't stop. All she will eat is a half-cup of rice and a half-cup of steamed broccoli — once a day! She takes a daily prenatal vitamin (although she isn't pregnant). She stopped menstruating last fall. Her mood swings are so bad that she frequently bursts into tears.

My questions are: What are my legal rights in getting her professional help? What kind of help can I get her before she turns 18?

AT MY WIT'S END

DEAR WIT'S END: Your daughter is a minor, so of course you have a right to seek help for her. After she turns 18, you should consult an attorney.

Your daughter appears to suffer from anorexia nervosa. It is urgent that she be evaluated by a doctor or therapist who specializes in eating disorders. Anorexia can be fatal — so don't delay.

You can obtain information and emotional support by contacting: The National Association of Anorexia Nervosa and Associated Disorders Inc. ANAD has 400 chapters nationwide, and overseas services. For a free packet of information and referral to a therapist in your area, write to: ANAD, P.O. Box 7, Highland Park, Ill. 60035. Please include a long (business-size), self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) envelope. The organization's hotline is (708) 831-3438.

DEAR ABBY: I own two beautiful boxer dogs. I named them Max and Shadow.

A few weeks ago, I was walking my dogs when I noticed a man walking his rottweiler. I immediately crossed the street and shortened the leashes on both my dogs.

At the moment we passed each other, this man's dog started to growl and bark at my dogs; then to my amazement, the man deliberately let his dog go. The dog jumped on Max and bit him severely on the chest. How I got the two dogs separated, I'll never know, but the visit to the vet cost me $104.

My questions are: Do I have the right to ask the owner of the rottweiler to pay for Max's vet bill? And should I have called the police on that man for deliberately letting his dog go?

My husband says "No" to calling the police.

ELIZABETH N. IN TAMPA, FLA.
DEAR ELIZABETH: I agree with your husband. You would have a difficult time proving that the owner of the rottweiler deliberately released his dog in order to attack your dog.

However, the owner of the rottweiler should pay the vet's bill.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is planning to be married soon. I am recently divorced, and her father refuses to contribute any money for her wedding, so the entire financial burden will be mine.

My friends have advised me to leave his name off the wedding invitations. I don't want to hurt my daughter, but why should her father have his name on the invitations? What do you advise?

MOTHER OF THE BRIDE
DEAR MOTHER: Traditionally, only the name of the host(s) appears on the wedding invitations. Explain this to your daughter, and ask her how she feels about it; then, abide by her wishes.

Horoscope

Tuesday, April 25, 1995

There could be considerable material improvements for you in the year ahead. You are now entering a favorable cycle for growth and accumulation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Things should work out to your satisfaction today in arrangements with persons you've had success with previously. Unknown quantities could be a different matter. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker.

©1995 by NEA Inc.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can achieve an important objective today, but it might not come on the first try. Shrug off disappointments, regroup your forces and charge again.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Friends who request your advice today aren't apt to ignore your suggestions, so do not treat them indifferently. You might learn something from teaching.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There could be an unexpected shift in your career conditions today. It might disappoint an associate, but it should be good news for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If negotiating an important matter today, it could be to your advantage to let the other party suggest the initial terms. Inequities can be corrected later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might become increasingly more aware of hidden benefits in a present endeavor. This knowledge could motivate you towards greater efforts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Treat everyone in a friendly, thoughtful fashion today. Contacts you establish socially could help you in other areas, too.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Put work and duty above the pursuit of pleasure today. Important developments are indicated through industrious activities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A situation that you've been dreading could turn out to be very manageable and rewarding today. Surprise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This would be a good day to put the finishing touches on several tasks you've left undone. Start with the most difficult assignment and work your way down.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) As of today, you can establish a better rapport with someone you've been having trouble getting through to. Mutual benefits could result.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Positive steps can be taken today to strengthen your financial position. Although your measures might be small, they'll be significant.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

BRYAN — Justin Wesbrooks of Fort Elliott and Duane Coffey of White Deer have been named to the Class 1A boys' all-state team by the Texas Sports Writers Association.

Wesbrooks, a 6-2 senior guard, averaged 21.6 points, 11.9 rebounds, 2.7 assists and 2-6 steals in leading Fort Elliott to a 24-8 record. He was a second team selection.

Coffey, also a 6-2 senior guard, averaged 16.1 points, 6.7 rebounds and 7.2 steals in leading White Deer to the Region 1-1A quarterfinals. Coffey was named to the third team.

Sudan's Jarod Fisher was named player of the year Class 1A. Sudan's Doug Boxell was named coach of the year.

From the Amarillo area, Hart post Shea Bennett, Hartley guard Farrah Frantz and Samnorwood guard Deric Waters made the Class 1A first team.

Two other Panhandle-area products made the 1A all-state team. They were Josh Scroggins of Valley and Dusty Walker of Vega.

PAMPA — The Pampa High boys' basketball banquet will be held at 6:30 Tuesday night at the Coronado Inn.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers have placed slugger Juan Gonzalez on the 15-day disabled list, retroactive to April 16, because of his aching back.

Gonzalez, who will miss up to three weeks because of a herniated disc in his lower back, had been re-examined by the team's spine consultant in Dallas Friday.

Dr. Drew Dossett reported that Gonzalez made improvement but still has soreness and rotation in his lower back remains a problem.

He will receive a second epidural injection Tuesday and continue twice-daily therapy treatments.

Gonzalez has been sidelined since aggravating the injury last Sunday. He returned to Texas on Monday, when the diagnosis was made.

In other moves to winnow their roster to the 28-player limit, the Rangers released veteran reliever Mark Williamson and assigned five others to their Class AAA affiliate in the American Association.

Williamson, of Corpus Christi, Texas, broke in with the Baltimore Orioles in 1987 and spent all or parts of each season since with the club. He was 3-1 last year with a 4.01 ERA.

The team assigned three non-roster invitees — catcher Dean Borrelli, infielder Rick Schu and outfielder Bruce Dostal — to Oklahoma City. Joining them will be pitcher Julio Santana and infielder Luis Ortiz.

Also, pitcher Chris Nichting accepted his outright assignment to Oklahoma City.

Pitchers Kerry Lacy and Jerry Martin were assigned outright to Tulsa in the Class AA Texas League.

COLLEGE TENNIS

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas dropped just one set in a 5-0 sweep of Texas A&M in the Southwest Conference Women's Tennis Championships.

Texas wasn't as fortunate on the men's side as Texas Christian dumped the Longhorns 4-3 on Sunday.

Farley Taylor's 6-7 (3), 6-3, 6-1 victory over Lady Aggie Wilson Pate was the only time Texas A&M threatened to stop the Texas juggernaut, which resulted in the Lady Longhorns' eighth straight conference title.

The No. 1 and No. 2 matches were close. Kelly Pace defeated Nancy Dingwall 7-5, 7-5 and Lucie Ludvigova dropped Lonna Logan, 6-3, 7-5.

Texas, which moves on to the NCAA Championship, is 22-3. Texas A&M fell to 5-0 at 12-12.

Texas swept its way into the finals with a 5-0 shutout of Southern Methodist. Texas A&M finished its semifinal earlier Sunday with a 5-3 decision over Rice.

"It was tough to play today," said Pace of the windy conditions. "I was having a hard time serving, particularly in the first set. My serve was real inconsistent."

In men's action, Texas Christian won two of three doubles matches to earn the decisive point in the defeat of Texas, ending the Longhorns' two-year title streak.

TCU's Paul Robinson defeated Chad Clark 6-4, 6-0 in the No. 1 match. Teammate Ashley Fisher beat B.J. Stearns 7-6, 3-6, 6-3 and Andres Urencio beat Eric Allen 6-2, 6-4 to lift the Horned Frogs.

For Texas, Trey Phillips defeated Stefan Figley 1-6, 6-1, 6-4; Ernesto Ponce beat David Roditi 5-7, 6-3, 7-6 (7) and Ali MacDonald beat Jason Weir-Smith 6-1, 3-6, 6-3.

Texas fell to 19-4 while TCU improved to 22-5.

The TCU men finished off A&M 4-1 early Sunday, but the Aggies rebounded for a 4-2 victory in the third-place match over SMU.

Cowboys go for backups, special teamers

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) — Backups and special teamers. That's about all the Dallas Cowboys had to show for two days in the NFL draft.

The Cowboys traded out of the first round on Saturday and settled for Sherman Williams, a well-respected Alabama running back, who could give Emmitt Smith some rest and insurance against Smith getting injured again.

On Sunday, the Cowboys may have found someone they think could be the eventual successor to tight end Jay Novacek.

With their first pick in the fourth round, the Cowboys took 6-4, 215-pound wide receiver Eric Bjornson of Washington.

"He's an excellent athlete and we'll move him to tight end," said offensive coordinator Ernie Zampese. "He's smart and tough. He's got good speed and we think he can block, too."

Bjornson, who also played quarterback at Washington his junior year, said "I'm going to put on more weight. I would love to play tight end. It would be great backing up somebody like Jay. I'd learn a lot from him. Dallas called and said they wanted me as a tight end. Nobody showed as much interest as they did."

Bjornson, who caught 49 passes for 770 yards last year, said he was timed at 4.49 seconds in the 40 at the NFL combine which is swift for a big man.

"My speed has improved and I certainly don't mind blocking," he said. "I think the Dallas offense will be perfect for me."

The Cowboys took a tight end blocking prospect in Kendall Watkins of Mississippi State in the second round. The 300-pound

Watkins is projected to move along the Cowboys offensive line more than he is as a receiver.

Also in the fourth round the Cowboys made some moves to help their special teams. Alundis Brice, a cornerback from Mississippi, and outside linebacker Linc Hardin of Oklahoma State, were drafted so they could help Joe Avezzano on his special teams.

Brice has overcome being shot in the chest at a party at Ole Miss.

"I probably would have been a second or third round pick if that hadn't happened," Brice said. "I lost a lot of weight but I have most of it back now. I'm ready to go and think I can really help the team on special teams."

"With Brice and Hardin we have a pair of guys who can really fly downfield and make the tackles," Avezzano said.

Dallas also took a special teamer, Charlie Williams of Bowling Green, in the third round. Williams played only three games last year because of injury but could help.

Williams got to meet Smith on Sunday at Valley Ranch.

"Emmitt was great to me, saying he had heard I was a good player and was really looking forward to me backing him up and giving him some rest," Williams said.

"I know this, the Cowboys offense is perfect for me," he said. "I love making moves in the open field. I can help the passing game, too. I caught the ball in the college. I think I could always be a wide receiver."

In the fifth round, the Cowboys took wide receiver Ed Hervey of Southern California and linebacker Dana Howard of Illinois.

"It'll play the special teams or whatever it takes to help the team get to the Super Bowl," Howard said.

"He better be on the special teams or he can't make our team," Avezzano said. "He has showed he could be a top producer on the special teams. We're darn happy to have him."

Hervey said he hoped he make the Cowboys squad which needs to replace Alvin Harper, who went to Washington as a free agent.

"I'm glad I got picked by a team I love," Hervey said.

"We ran a pro-style offense in college and learned a lot of our stuff from the Cowboys. I've got 4.3 speed and I can fly by the defensive backs."

With the 236th pick in the NFL draft, the Cowboys settled on North Carolina defensive end Oscar Sturgis as their final pick in the seventh round.

The 6-4, 275-pound Sturgis is considered a long shot to make the team but the Cowboys are looking for depth since Jim Jeffcoat took the free agency road to Buffalo.

Regional tennis qualifiers

The Pampa doubles team of Brooks Gentry (left) and Billy DeWitt compete in the Class 4A regional tennis tournament today and Tuesday in San Angelo. The regional champion and regional runner-up both earn a berth in the state tournament May 12-13 in Austin.

Baseball tries to reclaim fans with national advertising blitz

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Teams are slashing early-season ticket prices, letting kids in some ballparks for free and putting budget-priced meals on the menu. They might even deploy players near the concession stands to autograph scorecards.

Baseball owners are clearly worried about whether fans will embrace the game again.

The bitter 232-day strike snuffed out what was shaping up as a potentially classic season last August. It ended a home run record chase, wiped out the World Series and delayed the start of this season by three weeks.

Players ended their strike March 31 only after a court ordered forced owners to adhere to the terms of the expired collective bargaining agreement.

With opening games slated to begin Tuesday night, the commissioner's office unveiled a new national advertising campaign last week in an attempt to reclaim fans' affection. "Welcome to the Show" is the theme.

But the 28 teams will have to demonstrate why the sport that left its followers stranded last summer deserves another look.

Many teams are discounting prices for opening day, some for the opening weekend and others for selected dates through May.

But even with discounted prices as low as $2 for some seats, only about 24,000 tickets had been sold in the 50,000-capacity Houston Astrodome with only days remaining before the Astros opener.

"No doubt it is going to require some special effort to get the fans back," team spokesman Tyler Barnes said.

The Kansas City Royals are giving away 5,000 general admission tickets to their first four home games and as many as 35,000 meal coupons to reserved ticket holders at those games.

The team planned an open house this weekend so fans could see the newly sodded field — replacing the old artificial turf — the clubhouse and the dugouts.

"We understand the fans have gone through a lot of pain over the past eight months," Royals spokesman Steven Fink said.

The Pittsburgh Pirates cut ticket prices in half for games through May 11, and the team is offering discounts on parking and concessions.

"We want to create an atmosphere at the ballpark that is more fun than it has ever been in the past — a situation where families can feel more a part of the game," said Steve Greenberg, the Pirates' head of marketing.

Pirates players will be more accessible at the park and make more appearances in the community such as at Little League games, Greenberg said.

The Boston Red Sox cut prices in half to the first four games and marketing chief Lawrence Cancro said fans will find Fenway Park "more family friendly" with baby changing tables and lower-priced kid's meals.

'Giant' reunion in Marfa will mark film's 40th anniversary

ODESSA (AP) — Forty years ago, the small town of Marfa was invaded by Hollywood and together they created a "Giant."

Elizabeth Taylor, James Dean and Rock Hudson took Marfa by storm during the summer of 1955 to film Giant, the sweeping Texas saga of cattle and oil.

The movie will have a return engagement May 27, when some of the cast and crew members and the film's aficionados return to Marfa for the film's 40th reunion. "The cast and crew literally took over the entire town. Everyone was working for Warner Bros. that summer," Kirby Warnock of the Big Bend Quarterly told The Odessa American.

In addition to the Chamber of Commerce, The Big Bend Quarterly and the Cibolo Creek Ranch are sponsoring the event.

Warnock said the movie crew rented the entire Paisano hotel, ranchland and several houses for three months. "People think that the shooting of Lonesome Dove was something, Giant took over the town."

Lonesome Dove, a television miniseries based on Larry McMurtry's novel, was shot in Alpine, Fort Davis and Marfa area.

"It was the last days of the old Hollywood studios," Warnock said. "Warner Bros. had a plane parked at the Marfa airport to fly the film to Hollywood every night. They processed the film overnight and flew it back into Marfa the next morning."

Warnock was 3 years old and living in Fort Stockton when the movie was filmed. He doesn't know if his parents went to watch some of the shooting or took him along.

But he vividly recalls visiting the ranch set at age 5 with his parents for home movies.

"Out in the middle of nowhere was a building and it didn't have a back. I thought there had been a fire," Warnock said. "I've been fascinated ever since."

He and then-Marfa Mayor Jake Brisbin came up with the idea for a reunion five years ago, but it never got off the ground until Marfa Chamber of Commerce manager Sheila Lujan jumped on the idea.

Events at the reunion include a barbecue at the Riata Ranch that will feature a look-alike contest, Lujan said.

A 7 p.m. screening of Giant will include a roundtable discussion afterward. Panelists will include Robert Hinkle, a western actor who was the dialogue and roping coach for Dean and other members of the cast, and Fran Bennett, who played Judy Benedict, Hudson and Taylor's daughter.

Giant, based on the Edna Ferber novel, was one of the first movies that didn't define its heroes heroically, a la John Wayne in the Alamo or other typical westerns of the period.

Nor did it focus on the tradi-

South Plains banker elected chairman for TBA District 8

AMARILLO — A South Plains banker has been elected District 8 chairman of the Texas Bankers Association and a North Plains banker has been elected to the board.

Mike Mauldin, president and chief executive officer of Security Bank in Idalou, was elected District 8 chairman Saturday at the district's annual meeting in Amarillo.

Carl Ellis, chairman of the First National Bank in Perryton, was elected to a two-year term on the Texas Bankers Association Board of Directors. TBA bylaws require each district be represented by one director from banks above median size in the district, the other bank below median size, according to Bill Ware of Amarillo National Bank and member of the nominating committee. District 8 director to be elected this year is from banks above the median category.

The median size bank in the district has assets of $43,339,000.

The three-man nominating committee consisted of David Williams of Plainview, chairman; Ware, and Jack Vanderburg of Dalhart.

Two lawmakers bring together mock Congress

FORT WORTH (AP) — Rep. Joe Barton got to be a House speaker for a day this weekend, Rep. Pete Geren got to be a House minority leader and hundreds of private citizens got to play members of Congress.

And they still couldn't balance the federal budget.

A mock Congress organized by Barton, an Ennis Republican, and Geren, a Fort Worth Democrat, allowed participants to face the dilemmas that confront the nation's lawmakers.

Despite a daylong struggle over Medicare, mass transit and foreign aid, the group of teachers, business executives, homemakers and political activists never escaped the red.

But some insisted they got much closer to ending the federal deficit than Washington will.

"I would venture to say our cuts will be more than achieved in the real Congress," said Tarrant County District Clerk Tom Wilder, a Republican.

The mock representatives — 172 Republicans and 161 Democrats — broke into committees like their namesakes to hash out cuts, and then went to the floor for amendments and a final vote.

"The event is a full-scaled mock Congress charged with a goal of passing a balanced federal budget," said Barton, who played House Speaker Newt Gingrich.

House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, an Ohio

Republican who traveled to Texas to play himself, told the mock lawmakers that their efforts might prove to Congress that a balanced budget is possible.

"The federal budget is controllable," he said. "It doesn't take a rocket scientist."

Geren, in his official role, voted for eight of 10 items in the GOP Contract with America. Nevertheless, on Saturday, he pushed more defense cuts in portraying House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.

In the end, the mock Congress cut the fiscal 1995 budget by less than 5 percent and reduced the expected deficit from $193 billion to $158 billion, Wilder said.

New building for Hospice of the Panhandle

Dr. Raymond Laycock, far right, removes his name from the front of his clinic at 800 N. Sumner Street as Hospice of the Panhandle representatives, from left, Executive Director Sherry McCavit, Board President Doug Carmichael and Board Treasurer Chuck White look on. Dr. Laycock, who recently retired, has donated the entire building, including some furniture and equipment, and land valued at approximately $125,000 to Hospice of the Panhandle, a not-for-profit agency which cares for the terminally ill and their families throughout nine counties of the northeast Texas Panhandle.
