Hospital Budget Kicked Back

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
The Gray County Commissioners Court unanimously rejected the proposed 1976 budget for Highland General and McLean Hospitals and sent it back to the hospital for detailed study and specific information including detailed salary lists. Pampa Commissioner Don Hinton was the first to speak out against the proposed budget. "They submitted us a $3.6 million budget on seven pages. This candy discounts (referring to a story in the Pampa News Thursday where the hospital had approved the budget with a typographical error) is ridiculous, but I wonder how much the hospital board has actually gone over it." "I'd like to resubmit it back to the hospital board along with a resume on wages. You say approximately 12 per cent (wage hike), but I want to see who is getting what," Hinton emphasized. "I want the hospital board to look at it item by item and see what is necessary and what isn't." Robert Monogue, administrator, whose current salary is $1,950 per month, addressed the issue immediately with "I was never aware that quantity was any substitute for quality. I take the blame for the candy error." "I realize it is a misprint, but I feel the hospital board passed over it," Hinton answered in requesting a resume of expenses at the hospitals for the past two months in addition to detailed information on the proposed budget. "If you want to see 100 pages (in a budget) you'll see 100 pages," Monogue said.

Chet Landers, former administrator of Highland, said McLean would never pay. He cited the high salaries and added "If you can't live on $1,000 per month you can't live on $10,000 per month."

Judge Don Cain had said an earlier ruling by the attorney general will not allow a county to close an existing hospital. He added that he is in sympathy with small communities.

Those in higher (income) brackets should not be considered for that raise, he said adding.

"Bob (Monogue) if you can't live on $1,900 a month you can't live on anything," Landers said. "He commended Hinton for his action, adding that Monogue, himself, should give a lot of consideration to the budget."

I admire these people (referring to several people from the hospital sitting with Monogue). They are good people, but they can get out of line — they can sure get out of line."

"You gentlemen at the hospital are chosen to be keepers of the public coffers," he remarked about a recent statement from Monogue in the News in which he implied that it was no one's business what he is paid.

Monogue, who stood on his feet for at least 15 minutes ready to respond to the comments, said he was duty bound to operate the McLean hospital until his board tells him differently.

He said the proposed salary increases would total $207,000 and his salary is not to increase. Sue Seaborn, another resident, responded to a statement by Monogue that he was competitive with Celanese and other industry in benefits said.

"The police department and the fire department in no way compete — yet they lay their lives on the line." "I sympathize," Monogue said.

Ted Simmons, McLean Commissioner, said he is in sympathy with the problems of McLean hospital losing money. "I want to see that operate in the black as much as you, but I don't want to see anyone die because of a $60,000 loss."

He added that he had lost a lot of sleep and was concerned with the situation.

Armed Robbers Hit Lanes

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff
Three men and a woman were held at gunpoint early today at the Harvester Lanes Inc. 1401 S. Hobart, while robbers took off with $24,167 and shot an employee's front tire to make sure they were not followed.

Gray County Sheriff's officers, headed by Sheriff Rufe Jordan, were still investigating this morning. Gil Wuest, manager, said his desk man Jerry Champlin, opened the safe and handed over the money while a gun was held at his neck. Don Clancy, mechanic, was ordered to "lay down," and was held at gunpoint. In the meantime Barney Riley, another employee and his wife, entered the door and began laughing. "They thought it was a joke," Wuest said. "But they were quickly told it was business and also ordered to the floor," Wuest added. Wuest said the two men knocked a hole in the back wall

"big enough to get in." While Champlin and Clancy went to get a bite to eat about 11:30 p.m. they apparently entered. "Wuest explained. When they returned about 12:30 a.m. the two men drew guns on them, according to the report, ordering them to "lay down." The desk man according to the report, started to run, but one of the armed men "threw a gun at his neck," and ordered him to unlock the safe. He was told that if he ran the suspect would "put three rounds of ammunition in him." When Riley and his wife entered the door and he began laughing, a suspect reportedly said. "This is no joke. It is business and took a shot at them. The shot missed, but the two were ordered to lay down." Wuest said. In the meantime Champlin was busy handing over the money from the safe with a gun still at his neck. Once they had the money, the suspects left out the front door and shot a hole through the front tire on Champlin's car. "Oh man, they were really scared — shaking when I got here," Wuest said in regard to his employees. Sheriff's officers arrived as quickly as possible after they were notified. Wuest said the Harvester Lanes, just outside the city limits, has been burglarized three times this year, but this is the first time employees were held at gunpoint.

He said that when the requirements for jails are known, Gray County will have to make the necessary improvements. "We're trying to be careful with our tax money," the judge said.

He also mentioned, in his pre-budget vote comments, the need of a reserve for expenses that might be incurred in connection with the McClellan Creek Watershed project, now pending at the federal level. "We have two hospitals we need to have emergency funds for I understand the hospital in Borger is $200,000 in the hole," he said.

Knight Suspect Dead

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The body of a man believed to be that of Issiah "Felix" Melendez, 20, one of three suspects named in the stabbing death of millionaire newspaper heir John S. Knight 3rd, was found today on a golf course in Pine Hill, N.J., police said.

The tentative identification was made through items found in a wallet on the body, police said. Police in Pine Hill said the victim was shot three times, once in head and twice in the body. The discovery of the body followed the surrender early today of another suspect in the Knight slaying identified as Steven Maleno, 25, of South Philadelphia. Maleno turned himself into police at a downtown location. One more suspect was being sought. He was identified by Chief of Detectives Joseph Golden as Salvatore Soli, about 38. Golden Thursday night announced the warrants which charged the trio, all from South Philadelphia, with murder, robbery, attempted murder, aggravated assault and criminal conspiracy. According to the Philadelphia

Daily News, Maleno telephoned police that he wanted to surrender and then met detectives at a downtown location at 2:15 A.M. Municipal Court Judge Edward T. Quinn issued murder warrants Thursday night for Salvatore Soli, about 38, and Issiah "Felix" Melendez, 20, also all of South Philadelphia, and Maleno. An FBI spokesman said today federal warrants for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution were also issued from the U.S. Attorney's office. Knight, 30, special projects editor for the Philadelphia Daily

News, was found stabbed to death early Sunday in his lavish downtown apartment. A house guest also was stabbed in the pre-dawn attack. Inside Today's News

Reagan Ahead of Ford

United Press International
A new Gallup poll shows Ronald Reagan has moved ahead of President Ford as the choice of Republican and independent voters for the GOP presidential nomination. The poll showed Reagan was favored by 40 per cent of Republicans questioned in late November, Ford by 32 per cent. That was a sharp reversal from the Gallup figures in mid-October, which showed Ford leading Reagan 48-25. Among independents, 27 per cent favored Reagan and 25 per cent favored Ford in late November, compared with mid-October when Ford led 26-20. The poll coincided with the formal opening of the presidential primary season Thursday. Four candidates were entered in New Hampshire and 23 names were put up for the ballot in Massachusetts, though some immediately wanted off. A committee supporting Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, for the Democratic presidential nomination, was registering today with the Federal Election Committee. The filing is a legal step permitting the Church group to raise funds prior to his formal announcement, which may come before the end of the year. The shift in support between Ford and Reagan was the biggest and most sudden recorded by Gallup since 1963, when Nelson Rockefeller's re-marriage plunged him below Barry Goldwater in the race for the 1964 GOP nomination. But the White House discounted the latest results. "In any campaign, there are ups and downs in the polls," Deputy Press Secretary William Greener said Thursday. The latest survey was taken Nov. 21-24, shortly after Reagan formally announced his candidacy and after Ford's cabinet shake-up, including the firing of Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger. In other political developments: — A group in Washington, headed by Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., has begun an effort to draft Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., for the Democratic presidential nomination. — Four candidates formally entered the New Hampshire primary on the first date for filing for the nation's first presidential contest Feb. 24: Reagan and three Democrats — former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma and an Oklahoma lawyer named Rick Loewenburz. — The Massachusetts secretary of state released a list of 23 names of individuals he considers candidates in the state's March 2 primary.

Man Charged With Filing False Theft

Charges were scheduled to be filed today against Kenneth Kermit Hartley of 1057 Huff Road for falsely reporting theft of a Citizens Band Radio. Lt. Detective J.J. Ryzman of the Pampa Police Department said the radio was discovered in the trunk of Hartley's car after his insurance had paid the claim. Hartley was arraigned before Justice of Peace Nat Lunsford who set bond at $300.

Words for County Budget

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Shaking Itself to Pieces

What with forced attendance, forced financing via the taxing apparatus, forced integration, forced busing, forced "sex education" and other subjects and, now the spectacle of striking teachers attempting to force up wage levels, it is quite evident that the government school system is shaking itself to pieces. Like the machine built on an inadequate foundation described in Isabel Paterson's great book, "The God of the Machine," the system, the vibrations within itself ever increasing, must eventually fly apart or drift into the hands of total authoritarian control.

The foundation upon which the system is built is force pretending to legitimacy. And force once accepted as a means to an end, knows no limitations; knowing no limitations, it must ultimately breed conflict.

In the former case, the machine will, in Paterson's words, literally "blow its cylinder head," in the latter case, its energy input destroyed at the source, the machine will slow and come to a standstill.

Comparing conditions in this country today with those that brought the Roman Empire down, Paterson wrote:

"The exactions of the bureaucracy increased and the number of officials multiplied. More and more of the (energy) flow was diverted from production into the political mechanism — In the Roman Empire, the bureaucrats took such a large cut, at length scarcely anything went through the energy circuit.

"Meantime the producers, receiving less and less in exchange for their products, were impoverished and discouraged. Naturally they tended to produce less, since they would get no fair return; in fact, effort from which there is no net return automatically must cease. They consumed their own products instead of putting them into exchange. With that, the taxes began to dry up. Taxes must come from surplus — Sealed at its source, the level of energy sank until it was no longer sufficient to operate the mechanism... The tax-eaters had absorbed the energy..."

One need only observe all the conflict afflicting the public school system across the land to grasp the accuracy of the Paterson analysis and one is impelled to ask, what will take its place?

If the voluntary approach is applicable to supplying us with everything from groceries to religion, why isn't it equally applicable to teaching Johnny how to read, write, figure and spell in an atmosphere of peace and harmony?

Pot, Pan Mentality

Government regulations and "guidelines" have two things to commend them.

1. They inform us, in unmistakable terms, as to the mental level of the know-it-alls and be-it-alls writing them.

2. They inform us, in equally unmistakable terms, of the high regard in which we, their tax-paying employers, are held by the authors.

Take, for example, a gem just published for your education and improvement by the federal government's General Service Administration and made available via its Consumer Information Center.

One of some 250 titles produced and distributed by that particular bureaucracy, this latest gem provides "guidelines" for the purchase of pots and pans.

Some of the things you should know about pots and pans, but obviously don't according to the purveyors of infinite wisdom in Washington, D.C. are:

"Good pots and pans are an asset to any kitchen."

"Your family's size and eating habits determine the pots and pans you need for successful cooking."

The pot or pan you purchase should be "easy and safe to carry and pour from and certain to sit on a level surface without tipping, whether full or empty."

"Handles should be easy to grip, sturdy and fastened so they can neither rotate nor wobble up or down."

"Smooth rims, coatings, linings and finishes with pits, chips, or gaps are marks of good workmanship; they are important to the looks of a pot or pan and its durability."

And, finally, the tax-paying consumers, who are smart enough to support both themselves and the authors of such trivia, but too dumb to buy a pot or pan are advised:

"For a good buy in pots and pans, know what you want before you shop."

As Nation's Business magazine noted in an editorial on the subject:

"Those public employes in charge of these matters appear to have made a fundamental mistake — namely, the assumption that individual Americans lack even the most basic ability to protect themselves against bad judgment in choosing among the many products competing on the basis of price and quality."

"A government agency that sees a need to spend tax money to inform consumers that pots and pans are handy in the kitchen and that they should sit on a level surface without tipping," the editorial concluded, "raises a question as to who needs protection from what."

In the 11th century, one man was supposed to be so subject to floating in the air that he was asked not to attend church with everyone else, lest he distract them.

Another Shortage Of Fuel

By C.R. BATTEN

"It says here in the paper that there is a 'severe shortage of firewood in most poor countries of the world, where nine-tenths of the people depend on wood as fuel for cooking and heating.' I read aloud, as I relaxed in my favorite easy chair.

"So what's new?" asked my long-time sidekick, P.K. Rune.

"Well, in this day and age, we think of wood as being an important industrial material," I answered. "We make all kinds of things out of it. But this article by Boyce Rensberger of the N.Y. Times News Service says that about half of all the timber cut in the world is used for fuel."

"So what's so remarkable about that," asked P.K. "There was a time when this country wasn't nearly as wealthy as it is now, and it seems to me that in those days a good deal more than half of the timber cut was used for fuel. In fact, I seem to remember that some people in Philadelphia complained of fuel shortages more than 200 years ago."

"True," I replied. "This article also says that people are even burning dried animal manure as a substitute for wood."

"That doesn't sound so new, either," snorted P.K. "I hear tell that the settlers in their sod houses on the prairies burned buffalo chips and twisted grass."

"It looks to me like those countries are just going through a normal economic development process," he continued. "They run short of wood, so they find something else to use, and maybe improve themselves. Didn't I read somewhere that a shortage of wood in England led to the discovery of coal as a fuel, and made the industrial revolution possible?"

"You may have," I agreed. "But there is a difference. Maybe it's in this paragraph here: 'Reforestation programs, the obvious answer to the firewood crisis, have been particularly unsuccessful... because it has been difficult to protect new seedlings from grazing animals and desperate people.'"

"Maybe the obvious answer isn't the right answer," he said. "Could be," I replied. "I remember Frank Kaufert talking about this problem back in the '50s. He was head of the school of Forestry at the University of Minnesota then. He had been to Korea, advising them about their reforestation problems, and he showed us some slides illustrating his experiences there."

"Trees had been planted on hills that had been stripped bare. Frank said that by the time the trees were three or four feet high, the people were cutting them to burn in their cooking fires. They were common lands, and the people used them at will. There is no surer way to destroy a resource."

"It still looks like a normal phase in the development of an economy to me," P.K. explained. "This country started out with common lands, too, but we discovered private ownership and the incentives that the ownership of property provides. When the undeveloped nations discover private ownership, they will find incentives that will help them to work their way out — just as this country did."

"Hey, you're beginning to sound like a professor," I jibed. "And I think you are right. But what if their development is stopped by autocratic and socialistic governments that will not give the people the freedom to establish ownership and inhibits any incentive for finding other ways of doing things? What if we had had the same governmental controls in the 1800s that we have now — would we have made it?"

"You've got something there — I doubt it," he admitted. "I saw where two studies showed that the bungling of the Federal Energy Office did more to cause our fuel crisis than the Arab oil embargo, so its not likely the government can do any better trying to manage our wood supplies or anything else."

"You've been reading my Reason magazine again," I charged. "And you're right! So it looks to me as if the worst thing we can do to the people of the undeveloped nations is to help keep their socialistic authoritarian governments in power. The people can find solutions to their problems only if they are given the freedom and the incentives to seek them."

INCREASING APPETITE

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE Mathias' Third-Party Threat

By WILLIAM RUSHER

The threat of liberal Republican Senator Charles Mathias of Maryland to run for president on a third-party ticket if Gerald Ford doesn't mend his ways is not to be taken lightly, but it is nonetheless an important move on the chess board of 1976 politics.

Senator Mathias is not going to be a third-party candidate for president next year whether he knows it or not, and my guess is that he knows it very well. Putting a new party on the ballot in all fifty states, or running independent slates of electors in all fifty (or even in enough of the fifty to pose a plausible threat), is grueling work — as the conservatives who have pledged themselves to precisely that goal are beginning to find out. If, for example, Senator Mathias plans to be on the ballot in Nebraska he'd better get cracking, because under Nebraska law his new party will have to file petitions containing 4500 valid signatures by February 11. And there are a number of other states that deserve his prompt attention too.

The Mathias threat is a real one, however, if it is understood as actually being a warning by the small but influential liberal wing of the GOP that it may "take a walk" in 1976. That is what it did in 1964, when a conservative coalition of Southern and Western Republicans wrested control of the Republican party from its long-time Eastern liberal leadership and gave the nomination to Barry Goldwater.

Liberals like Nelson Rockefeller and Jacob Javits refused for months to support Goldwater at all, let alone campaign for him, and finally gave him the most tepid and perfunctory endorsement possible, merely to preserve their own technical reputations for party regularity. Millions of their followers got the message, however, and Barry Goldwater's back on Election Day had enough liberal Republican knives in it to start a hardware chain.

That is what Mathias is really threatening: a mass bolt by the Republican liberals if Gerald Ford doesn't stop trucking to conservative sentiment on various issues — and a fortiori if the GOP convention drops Ford in favor of Ronald Reagan.

Is the Mathias threat anything that Ford (or Reagan) need worry about? An analysis of Goldwater's defeat by Lyndon Johnson in 1964 suggests that it is. At a rough estimate, nearly five million of the approximately 32 million Republican voters in this country voted for Johnson over Goldwater. One would still have to anticipate the defection of a million or more voters. When we recall that two of the last four presidential elections have been settled by popular margins of less than 600,000, it is plain that a threat to induce a defection of that size can hardly be dismissed as beneath notice.

The counters to it depend to some extent on who is doing the countering. President Ford can, and probably will, pack to port just far enough to prevent the liberal Republicans from actually preferring a Democrat, while he keeps on trying to convince the GOP's dominant conservative wing that there is no overpowering reason to ditch him in favor of Reagan.

Ronald Reagan's problem is at once bigger and less complicated, and one wonders whether he has thought it all the way through. The liberal Republicans will probably agree to accept Ford in the long run, with whatever ill grace, since that will at least give them the satisfaction of having stopped Reagan. But if Reagan is nominated, he must expect outright defection on the part of many liberal Republicans.

For Reagan, there is only one possible answer: from the ranks of conservative independents and conservative Democrats. These are the people who stayed with Johnson in 1964, voted for Wallace in 1968, and picked Nixon over McGovern in 1972. Winning support in 1976 is absolutely essential to Ronald Reagan's hope of the presidency.

Question: Is TV Out To Get Us?

By PETER GRUENSTEIN

News' Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — "It's obvious, in our modern world of today theirs a lot of impriciseness in expressing thoughts we have."

That semi-literate thought was reproduced Dec. 1 in Newsweek's cover story, entitled "Why Johnny Can't Write." It was written by an 18-year old college freshman.

The trend is unmistakable: Americans are becoming increasingly less literate, the news magazine reports. Over the last 12 years, there has been a steady decline in college board scores, particularly in the verbal aptitude test. Evidence of the decline is disturbingly uniform. Almost half of the freshman enrolled in the University of California at Berkeley have been required to take a remedial writing course due to a lack of basic literary skills. At Philadelphia's Temple University, the rate of students failing an English placement exam has skyrocketed by 50 per cent since 1968. Even at Harvard, far more emphasis has been placed on teaching students how to write simple expository English.

Most disturbing about this decade-long trend is that it has occurred during a period of increasing societal affluence, with children being raised in family environments more conducive to learning than in the past and with far more money being devoted to their education.

In light of these factors, how could we possibly be producing a generation of children less well-educated than kids in the past? The basic answer, it seems, is devastating both in its simplicity and in its implications: television.

"Short of throwing away all the television sets," says essayist E.B. White, "I really don't know what we can do about writing." States an educator:

"The TV keeps children entertained. It does not demand that they take active part in their learning." A university professor observes: "Things have never been good but the situation is getting a lot worse. What really disturbs us is the students' inability to organize their thoughts clearly."

In short, as kids are spending more and more of their time sitting impassively before the tube, they are spending less and less time actively engaged in reading and other pursuits essential to achieving linguistic proficiency. Our children are reaping the consequences of a nation obsessed with television as its primary form of entertainment.

More disturbing yet is the prediction that television will become more, not less, intrusive on most of our lives. Ironically, the same issue of Newsweek contains an article entitled "Videos New Frontier." The article notes the arrival of a new bigger - than - life television screen ("the ultimate TV trip") now being aggressively marketed; the increasing popularity of cable television with its offering of more stations for the viewers to choose from; and the introduction of new "videodisks" that allow viewers to record on TV program while they are watching another and to tape a program for later viewing while (heaven forbid!) they are engaged in a non-TV pursuit. Viewers will never be able to employ stop-frame and slow-motion devices on their new contraptions.

In other words, the brave new world has been sighted, and (gulp!) it is television. It may be a bit too early to begin worrying about how we will dispose of our excess books, but if I were a book publisher I would not be making any plans for expansion.

Dad Treats Her Friend with More than Courtsey

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Cathy is my best friend. We are both 15. Cathy spends a lot of time at my house. When my father is home, he has the habit of kissing Cathy on the lips whenever she arrives and goes home. Do you consider this proper behavior for a 38-year-old man?

Also, my father is always trying to get Cathy to sit on his lap. Sometimes she does and sometimes she doesn't. I don't know if this is embarrassing to Cathy or not. As a daughter it doesn't bother me, but I sure wouldn't want Cathy's father kissing me on the lips or asking me to come sit on his lap.

What is your opinion?
DADDY'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: I think Cathy is a little too OLD to be kissed on the lips by your father. And your father is much too YOUNG to have a 15-year-old girl on his lap.

DEAR ABBY: Allen and I have been married for four years and have a darling baby girl who is nearly 3. Allen is an excellent provider, and I am content to stay at home and be a full-time wife and mother.

My problem? I feel that woman was put on earth to serve her husband and bear children, but every time I mention having another baby, Allen explodes. He says, "One is enough and that is final!"

Abby, I've always wanted six children, but I'd settle for just one more. To me a large family means everything. I have literally begged him, but he refuses to hear of it. In fact, he says if I get pregnant, he will divorce me!

I went on the Pill after our first child was born, but I stopped three weeks ago. Allen doesn't know I stopped, and he'd hit the roof if he did.

If I do get pregnant, what is my next move? I hate being underhanded, but it was my last resort.

Please help me.
WANTS ANOTHER BABY

DEAR WANTS: You say a large family means "everything" to you and that your husband has threatened to divorce you if you become pregnant! To compound the problem, you're playing Vatican roulette. You had better level with Allen. You just might be married to the wrong man.

DEAR ABBY: I am dating a girl who refers to herself as a "feminist." I consider myself a gentleman and not the least bit chauvinistic.

Here's my problem: Nancy objects to my doing things like opening doors for her, helping her with her coat and standing up when she enters the room.

These old-fashioned courtesies have become second nature to me, and I feel foolish when Nancy refuses to allow me to perform them.

This is the only thing that bothers me in our otherwise perfect relationship. I hope you print this, because Nancy reads your column, and I want her to see it.

"S"

DEAR "S": All right, so assuming she sees it — that still doesn't solve your problem. Nancy says these old-fashioned courtesies have got to go, and you feel foolish capitulating. If you want your "otherwise perfect relationship" to get off the ground, either start treating Nancy like one of the boys or find a girl who doesn't regard the old-fashioned courtesies as chauvinistic.

Simon Urges Government To Slow in Recovery

HOUSTON (UPI) — The growth and spending of the federal government must be slowed if the nation's economy is to recover, according to Treasury Secretary William Simon.

"The unrestrained growth of government will inevitably bring more inflation, more unemployment and greater misery," Simon said Thursday.

Simon said President Ford's proposal for a tax cut and a federal spending ceiling are major factors in economic recovery, but the two must go together to work.

He warned Congress against approving the tax cut measure without limiting spending.

"We say that we can no longer accept 'politics as usual' in Washington," he said. "We reject the old formula of 'spend and spend, elect and elect.' We have to put our economic house in order, and the time to start is now."

He told the Houston Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting the federal government is too involved with private industry

Four Autos Burglarized

Four automobile burglaries were reported Thursday to the Pampa Police Department.

Gary Neal Frost of 321 S. Finley said his automobile was burglarized while in his private driveway.

Entry was made through the left vent window. The missing items include a rear view mirror, a watch, gold chain, automobile radio tape player, and a white diamond handguard .22 caliber pellet gun.

Jack Montgomery of 1136 Crane Road said he had three vehicles tampered with which were parked on his property. A CB radio, an eight track tape recorder, and an antenna were missing.

A Winchester shot gun valued at $165 was taken from an automobile owned by Don Mills of 1133 Cinderella.

Guns, shot gun shells and a flight jacket were taken from a pickup owned by A.G. Brunnett of 237 Henry.

and endorsed Ford's proposal to end controls on the oil, gas and coal industries.

He also criticized industry for seeking subsidies when the economy sagged.

"One of the saddest experiences of my public life has been to watch as some of our business leaders act perfectly contented when profits are rolling in, but the moment there's a cloud on the economic horizon, they come running to Washington looking for a subsidy," he said.

"The time has come to stop trying to keep all the profits and nationalize all the losses."

Simon said he was optimistic the nation could restore economic stability but said it will not be easy.

"We are going to have to end the whining and whimpering about everything that's wrong in our country," he said.

He said barring outside problems such as another oil embargo unemployment should decline from 8.3 per cent to 7 per cent in 1976 and inflation should average 6 per cent next year.

He blamed former Presidents Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon for the economic problems. He said the federal budget has quadrupled since 1960 and the federal debt has doubled.

"So this is a time when I would urge the skipper of the ship to hold 'steady as you go,'" Simon said.

"We must act wisely and prudently; it will take time to remedy the years of policy mismanagement in Washington."

Hoffa Mystery Witness Emerges

DETROIT (UPI) — A new mystery witness emerged today as the focus of the James R. Hoffa investigation, which is shifting between Detroit and New Jersey.

In Detroit, the brother of a New Jersey suspect in the disappearance of the former Teamsters boss went to jail rather than testify before a federal grand jury probing the case.

In Newark, N.J., federal sources said an informant "proven reliable in the past"

could pinpoint the location of a body in a dump reputedly used as a gangland graveyard.

The sources did not mention Hoffa, but the disclosure came on the heels of a report that his body was transported in a 55-gallon steel drum and buried in a 47-acre Jersey City dump.

The FBI has obtained court permission to dig in the dump, but digging had not started by late Thursday.

Both developments came one day after UMS Attorney Ralph B. Guy Jr. said the FBI had developed "significant" leads in a multistate investigation into the Hoffa case.

Stephen Andretta, 40, of Little Ferry, N.J., was cited for contempt of court Thursday by a federal judge who one day earlier had granted him immunity from prosecution in return for his testimony.

Special government prosecutor Robert E. Ozer said Andretta, who spent just four minutes before the grand jury, was asked only one question:

"Where were you on July 30, 1975?"

That was the date Hoffa vanished from outside a suburban Detroit restaurant.

Under the court's immunity order, Andretta was shielded from prosecution in any testimony he might give, but risked jail if he refused to testify.

Andretta's brother, Thomas, 38, of Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., was identified in federal court last week as a suspect in the "abduction and murder of James R. Hoffa."

Two other New Jersey

Teamster figures, Salvatore Briguglio, 47, of Paramus, and his brother Gabriel, 38, of East Rutherford, also were named as suspects.

The Briguglios and Andrettas all appeared briefly before the grand jury last week but all refused to testify.

Stephen Andretta said he refused to testify because his lawyer was ill. The lawyer, William E. Bufalino, reportedly suffered a heart attack Tuesday. But Ozer said he suspected the heart attack was feigned to delay or impede the Hoffa probe.

in addition to the gift bond, each will receive a turkey at the check stand.

"That is the wildest hour you will ever see," Hendricks said. "But we have more fun."

"One of the rules is that you can't bring any sideboards with you, no big pieces of lumber (to shore up the sides of the cart). Last year they tried to use big frozen pizzas for sideboards. It was as funny as it could be because by the time they got to the checkout stands the pizzas had started to soften and everything started to sag."

"They were standing there, draped over the baskets, trying to keep everything from collapsing onto the floor."

the hour.

"There are all kinds of shoppers," Kiker said. "There are the practical ones. Then the ones who get nothing but canned crabmeat and salmon. To say the least, it gets a little bit hectic there near the end."

Hendricks said women have a bit of an edge in the scramble because of their expertise in grocery shopping.

"They just go up and down the aisles piling things in," he said. "They know what they're doing. The men are getting better, though. They're learning."

Kissinger Warns Soviets On Arms Sent to Angola

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has proposed an arms-cut deal with Moscow, but warned the Soviets their military shipments to Angola risk upsetting detente.

Kissinger and the other foreign ministers of 15 North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations close their two-day winter meeting today.

The ministers appeared ready to approve a plan under which the United States would offer to cut back 1,000 of its 7,200 tactical nuclear warheads in Western Europe in return for a Soviet pullback of 1,700 tanks and 68,000 troops from Eastern Europe.

U.S. officials said an agreement on the tactical warheads offer had already been drafted and all that remained to be settled was the timing for presenting it to Russia. Diplomats said the offer might be made as early as next week.

The officials also quoted Kissinger as saying that Washington viewed the massive Soviet arms supply to Angola with great concern and would resist it, although they refused to say what this resistance would be.

According to Europeans who attended the private meeting, Kissinger said the United States could not accept establishment of Soviet bases in Angola and warned that the Soviet acts could start a chain reaction of outside intervention there.

Kissinger said the Soviet move was violating the spirit of detente.

America can accept a home-grown Marxist government, he said, but not one imposed from outside.

The sources said some of the European ministers, while acknowledging the seriousness of the Angolan civil war, said it was an African problem and NATO should not become involved.

The United States suggested last year that NATO break the deadlock in the Mutual and Balance Force Reduction talks in Vienna by expanding them from conventional arms to nuclear arms.

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Shaking Itself to Pieces

What with forced attendance, forced financing via the taxing apparatus, forced integration, forced busing. Forced "sex education" and other subjects and, now the spectacle of striking teachers attempting to force up wage levels, it is quite evident that the government school system is shaking itself to pieces. Like the machine built on an inadequate foundation described in Isabel Paterson's great book, "The God of the Machine," the system, the vibrations within itself ever increasing, must eventually fly apart or drift into the hands of total authoritarian control.

The foundation upon which the system is built is force pretending to legitimacy. And force once accepted as a means to an end, no limitations; knowing no limitations, it must ultimately breed conflict.

In the former case, the machine will, in Paterson's words, literally "blow its cylinder head;" in the latter case, its energy input destroyed at the source, the machine will slow and come to a standstill.

Comparing conditions in this country today with those that brought the Roman Empire down, Paterson wrote:

"The exactions of the bureaucracy increased and the number of officials multiplied. More and more of the (energy) flow was diverted from production into the political mechanism — In the Roman Empire, the bureaucrats took such a large cut, at length scarcely anything went through the energy circuit.

"Meantime the producers, receiving less and less in exchange for their products, were impoverished and discouraged. Naturally they tended to produce less, since they would get no fair return; in fact, effort from which there is no net return automatically must cease. They consumed their own products instead of putting them into exchange. With that, the taxes began to dry up. Taxes must come from surplus — Sealed at its source, the level of energy sank until it was no longer sufficient to operate the mechanism... The tax-eaters had absorbed the energy..."

One need only observe all the conflict afflicting the public school system across the land to grasp the accuracy of the Paterson analysis and one is impelled to ask, what will take its place?

If the voluntary approach is applicable to supplying us with everything from groceries to religion, why isn't it equally applicable to teaching Johnny how to read, write, figure and spell in an atmosphere of peace and harmony?

Pot, Pan Mentality

Government regulations and "guidelines" have two things to commend them.

1. They inform us, in unmistakable terms, as to the mental level of the know-it-alls and be-it-alls writing them.

2. They inform us, in equally unmistakable terms, of the high regard in which we, their tax-paying employers, are held by the authors.

Take, for example, a gem just published for your edification and improvement by the federal government's General Service Administration and made available via its Consumer Information Center.

One of some 250 titles produced and distributed by that particular bureaucracy, this latest gem provides "guidelines" for the purchase of pots and pans.

Some of the things you should know about pots and pans, but obviously don't according to the purveyors of infinite wisdom in Washington, D.C. are:

"Good pots and pans are an asset to any kitchen."

"Your family's size and eating habits determine the pots and pans you need for successful cooking."

The pot or pan you purchase should be "easy and safe to carry and pour from and certain to sit on a level surface without tipping, whether full or empty."

"Handles should be easy to grip, sturdy and fastened so they can neither rotate nor wobble up or down."

"Smooth rims, coatings, linings and finishes with pits, chips, or gaps are marks of good workmanship; they are important to the looks of a pot or pan and its durability."

And, finally, the tax-paying consumers, who are smart enough to support both themselves and the authors of such trivia, but too dumb to buy a pot or pan are advised:

"For a good buy in pots and pans, know what you want before you shop."

As Nation's Business magazine noted in an editorial on the subject:

"Those public employees in charge of these matters appear to have made a fundamental mistake — namely, the assumption that individual Americans lack even the most basic ability to protect themselves against bad judgment in choosing among the many products competing on the basis of price and quality."

"A government agency that sees a need to spend tax money to inform consumers that pots and pans are handy in the kitchen and that they should sit on a level surface without tipping," the editorial concluded, "raises a question as to who needs protection from what."

Another Shortage Of Fuel

By C.R. BATTEN

"It says here in the paper that there is a 'severe shortage of firewood in most poor countries of the world, where nine-tenths of the people depend on wood as fuel for cooking and heating.'" I read aloud, as I relaxed in my favorite easy chair.

"So what's new?" asked my long-time sidekick, P.K. Rume.

"Well, in this day and age, we think of wood as being an important industrial material," I answered. "We make all kinds of things out of it. But this article by Boyce Rensberger of the N.Y. Times News Service says that about half of all the timber cut in the world is used for fuel."

"So what's so remarkable about that," asked P.K. "There was a time when this country wasn't nearly as wealthy as it is now, and it seems to me that in those days a good deal more than half of the timber cut was used for fuel. In fact, I seem to remember that some people in Philadelphia complained of fuel shortages more than 200 years ago."

"True," I replied. "This article also says that people are even burning dried animal manure as a substitute for wood."

"That doesn't sound so new, either," snorted P.K. "I hear tell that the settlers in their sod houses on the prairies burned buffalo chips and twisted grass."

"It looks to me like those countries are just going through a normal economic development process," he continued. "They run short of wood, so they find something else to use, and maybe improve themselves. Didn't I read somewhere that a shortage of wood in England led to the discovery of coal as a fuel, and made the industrial revolution possible?"

"You may have," I agreed. "But there is a difference. Maybe it's in this paragraph here: 'Reforestation programs, the obvious answer to the firewood crisis, have been particularly unsuccessful... because it has been difficult to protect new seedlings from grazing animals and desperate people.'"

"Maybe the obvious answer isn't the right answer," he said. "Could be," I replied. "I remember Frank Kaufert talking about this problem back in the '50s. He was head of the school of Forestry at the University of Minnesota then. He had been to Korea, advising them about their reforestation problems, and he showed us some slides illustrating his experiences there."

"Trees had been planted on hills that had been stripped bare. Frank said that by the time the trees were three or four feet high, the people were cutting them to burn in their cooking fires. They were common lands, and the people used them at will. There is no surer way to destroy a resource."

"It still looks like a normal phase in the development of an economy to me," P.K. explained. "This country started out with common lands, too, but we discovered private ownership and the incentives that the ownership of property provides. When the undeveloped nations discover private ownership, they will find incentives that will help them to work their way out — just as this country did."

"Hey, you're beginning to sound like a professor," I jibed, "and I think you are right. But what if their development is stopped by autocratic and socialist governments that will not give the people the freedom to establish ownership and inhibits any incentive for finding other ways of doing things? What if we had had the same governmental controls in the 1800s that we have now — would we have made it?"

"You've got something there — I doubt it," he admitted. "I saw where two studies showed that the bungling of the Federal Energy Office did more to cause our fuel crisis than the Arab oil embargo, so its not likely the government can do any better trying to manage our wood supplies or anything else."

"You've been reading my Reason magazine again," I charged. "And you're right! So it looks to me as if the worst thing we can do to the people of the undeveloped nations is to help keep their socialist authoritarian governments in power. The people can find solutions to their problems only if they are given the freedom and the incentives to seek them."

INCREASING APPETITE

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE Mathias' Third-Party Threat

By WILLIAM RUSHER

The threat of liberal Republican Senator Charles Mathias of Maryland to run for president on a third-party ticket if Gerald Ford doesn't mend his ways is not to be taken literally, but it is nonetheless an important move on the chess board of 1976 politics.

Senator Mathias is not going to be a third-party candidate for president next year whether he knows it or not, and my guess is that he knows it very well. Putting a new party on the ballot in all fifty states, or running independent slates of electors in all fifty (or even in enough of the fifty to pose a plausible threat), is grueling work — as the conservatives who have pledged themselves to precisely that goal are beginning to find out. If, for example, Senator Mathias plans to be on the ballot in Nebraska he'd better get cracking, because under Nebraska law his new party will have to file petitions containing 4500 valid signatures by February 11. And there are a number of other states that deserve his prompt attention too.

The Mathias threat is a real one, however, if it is understood as actually being a warning by the small but influential liberal wing of the GOP that it may "take a walk" in 1976. That is what it did in 1964, when a conservative coalition of Southern and Western Republicans wrested control of the Republican party from its long-time Eastern liberal leadership and gave the nomination to Barry Goldwater.

Liberals like Nelson Rockefeller and Jacob Javits refused for months to support Goldwater at all, let alone campaign for him, and finally gave him the most tepid and perfunctory endorsement possible, merely to preserve their own technical reputations for party regularity. Millions of their followers got the message, however, and Barry Goldwater's back on Election Day had enough liberal Republican knives in it to start a hardware chain.

That is what Mathias is really threatening: a mass bolt by the Republican liberals if Gerald Ford doesn't stop trucking to conservative sentiment on various issues — and a fortiori if the GOP convention drops Ford in favor of Ronald Reagan.

Is the Mathias threat anything that Ford (or Reagan) need worry about? An analysis of Goldwater's defeat by Lyndon Johnson in 1964 suggests that it is. At a rough estimate, nearly five million of the approximately 32 million Republican voters in this country voted for Johnson over Goldwater. One would still have to anticipate the defection of a million or more voters. When we recall that two of the last four presidential elections have been settled by popular margins of less than 600,000, it is plain that a threat to induce a defection of that size can hardly be dismissed as beneath notice.

The counters to it depend to some extent on who is doing the countering. President Ford can, and probably will, pack to port just far enough to prevent the liberal Republicans from actually preferring a Democrat, while he keeps on trying to convince the GOP's dominant conservative wing that there is no overpowering reason to ditch him in favor of Reagan.

Ronald Reagan's problem is at once bigger and less complicated, and one wonders whether he has thought it all the way through. The liberal Republicans will probably agree to accept Ford in the long run, with whatever ill grace, since that will at least give them the satisfaction of having stopped Reagan. But if Reagan is nominated, he must expect outright defection on the part of many liberal Republicans.

For Reagan, there is only one possible answer: from the ranks of conservative independents and conservative Democrats.

These are the people who stayed with Johnson in 1964, voted for Wallace in 1968, and picked Nixon over McGovern in 1972. Winning support in 1976 is absolutely essential to Ronald Reagan's hope of the presidency.

Question: Is TV Out To Get Us?

By PETER GRUENSTEIN

News' Washington Bureau WASHINGTON — "It's obvious, in our modern world of today theirs a lot of impreciseness in expressing thoughts we have."

That semi-literate thought was reproduced Dec. 1 in Newsweek's cover story, entitled "Why Johnny Can't Write." It was written by an 18-year-old college freshman.

The trend is unmistakable: Americans are becoming increasingly less literate, the news magazine reports. Over the last 12 years, there has been a steady decline in college board scores, particularly in the verbal aptitude test. Evidence of the decline is disturbingly uniform. Almost half of the freshman enrolled in the University of California at Berkeley have been required to take a remedial writing course due to a lack of basic literary skills. At Philadelphia's Temple University, the rate of students failing an English placement exam has skyrocketed by 50 per cent since 1968. Even at Harvard, far more emphasis has been placed on teaching students how to write simple expository English.

Most disturbing about this decade-long trend is that it has occurred during a period of increasing societal affluence, with children being raised in family environments more conducive to learning than in the past and with far more money being devoted to their education.

In light of these factors, how could we possibly be producing a generation of children less well-educated than kids in the past? The basic answer, it seems, is devastating both in its simplicity and in its implications: television.

"Short of throwing away all the television sets," says essayist E.B. White, "I really don't know what we can do about writing." States our educator:

"The TV keeps children entertained. It does not demand that they take active part in their learning." A university professor observes: "Things have never been good but the situation is getting a lot worse. What really disturbs us is the students' inability to organize their thoughts clearly."

In short, as kids are spending more and more of their time sitting passively before the tube, they are spending less and less time actively engaged in reading and other pursuits essential to achieving linguistic proficiency. Our children are reaping the consequences of a nation obsessed with television as its primary form of entertainment.

More disturbing yet is the prediction that television will become more, not less, intrusive on most of our lives. Ironically, the same issue of Newsweek contains an article entitled "Videos New Frontier." The article notes the arrival of a new bigger-than-life television screen ("the ultimate TV trip") now being aggressively marketed; the increasing popularity of cable television with its offering of more stations for the viewers to choose from; and the introduction of new "videodisks" that allow viewers to record on TV program while they are watching another and to tape a program for later viewing while (heaven forbid!) they are engaged in a non-TV pursuit. Viewers will even be able to employ stop-frame and slow-motion devices on their new contraptions.

In other words, the brave new world has been sighted, and (gulp!) it is television. It may be a bit too early to begin worrying about how we will dispose of our excess books, but if I were a book publisher I would not be making any plans for expansion.

Dad Treats Her Friend with More than Courtsey

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Cathy is my best friend. We are both 15. Cathy spends a lot of time at my house. When my father is home, he has the habit of kissing Cathy on the lips whenever she arrives and goes home. Do you consider this proper behavior for a 38-year-old man?

Also, my father is always trying to get Cathy to sit on his lap. Sometimes she does and sometimes she doesn't. I don't know if this is embarrassing to Cathy or not. As a daughter it doesn't bother me, but I sure wouldn't want Cathy's father kissing me on the lips or asking me to come sit on his lap.

What is your opinion?

DADDY'S DAUGHTER.
DEAR DAUGHTER: I think Cathy is a little too OLD to be kissed on the lips by your father. And your father is much too YOUNG to have a 15-year-old girl on his lap.

DEAR ABBY: Allen and I have been married for four years and have a darling baby girl who is nearly 3. Allen is an excellent provider, and I am content to stay at home and be a full-time wife and mother.

My problem? I feel that woman was put on earth to serve her husband and bear children, but every time I mention having another baby, Allen explodes. He says, "One is enough and that is final!"

Abby, I've always wanted six children, but I'd settle for just one more. To me a large family means everything. I have literally begged him, but he refuses to hear of it. In fact, he says if I get pregnant, he will divorce me!

I went on the Pill after our first child was born, but I stopped three weeks ago. Allen doesn't know I stopped, and he'd hit the roof if he did.

If I do get pregnant, what is my next move? I hate being underhanded, but it was my last resort.

Please help me.

WANTS ANOTHER BABY
DEAR WANTS: You say a large family means "everything" to you and that your husband has threatened to divorce you if you become pregnant! To compound the problem, you're playing Vatican roulette. You had better level with Allen. You just might be married to the wrong man.

DEAR ABBY: I am dating a girl who refers to herself as a "feminist." I consider myself a gentleman and not the least bit chauvinistic.

Here's my problem: Nancy objects to my doing things like opening doors for her, helping her with her coat and standing up when she enters the room.

These old-fashioned courtesies have become second nature to me, and I feel foolish when Nancy refuses to allow me to perform them.

This is the only thing that bothers me in our otherwise perfect relationship.

I hope you print this, because Nancy reads your column, and I want her to see it.

"S"

DEAR "S": All right, so assuming she sees it — that still doesn't solve your problem. Nancy says these old-fashioned courtesies have got to go, and you feel foolish capitulating. If you want your "otherwise perfect relationship" to get off the ground, either start treating Nancy like one of the boys or find a girl who doesn't regard the old-fashioned courtesies as chauvinistic.

Simon Urges Government To Slow in Recovery

HOUSTON (UPI) — The growth and spending of the federal government must be slowed if the nation's economy is to recover, according to Treasury Secretary William Simon.

"The unrestrained growth of government will inevitably bring more inflation, more unemployment and greater misery," Simon said Thursday.

Simon said President Ford's proposal for a tax cut and a federal spending ceiling are major factors in economic recovery, but the two must go together to work.

He warned Congress against approving the tax cut measure without limiting spending.

"We say that we can no longer accept 'politics as usual' in Washington," he said. "We reject the old formula of 'spend and spend, elect and elect.' We have to put our economic house in order, and the time to start is now."

He told the Houston Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting the federal government is too involved with private industry

Four Autos Burglarized

Four automobile burglaries were reported Thursday to the Pampa Police Department.

Gary Neal Frost of 321 S. Finley said his automobile was burglarized while in his private driveway.

Entry was made through the left vent window. The missing items include a rear view mirror, a watch, gold chain, automobile radio tape player, and a white diamond handguard .22 caliber pellet gun.

Jack Montgomery of 1136 Crane Road said he had three vehicles tampered with which were parked on his property. A CB radio, an eight track tape recorder, and an antenna were missing.

A Winchester shot gun valued at $165 was taken from an automobile owned by Don Mills of 1133 Cinderella.

Guns, shot gun shells and a flight jacket were taken from a pickup owned by A.G. Brummett of 237 Henry.

and endorsed Ford's proposal to end controls on the oil, gas and coal industries.

He also criticized industry for seeking subsidies when the economy sagged.

"One of the saddest experiences of my public life has been to watch as some of our business leaders act perfectly contented when profits are rolling in, but the moment there's a cloud on the economic horizon, they come running to Washington looking for a subsidy," he said.

"The time has come to stop trying to keep all the profits and nationalize all the losses," Simon said.

Simon said he was optimistic the nation could restore economic stability but said it would not be easy.

"We are going to have to end

the whining and whimpering about everything that's wrong in our country," he said.

He said barring outside problems such as another oil embargo unemployment should decline from 8.3 per cent to 7 per cent in 1976 and inflation should average 6 per cent next year.

He blamed former Presidents Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon for the economic problems. He said the federal budget has quadrupled since 1960 and the federal debt has doubled.

"So this is a time when I would urge the skipper of the ship to hold 'steady as you go,'" Simon said. "We must act wisely and prudently; it will take time to remedy the years of policy mismanagement in Washington."

Hoffa Mystery Witness Emerges

DETROIT (UPI) — A new mystery witness emerged today as the focus of the James R. Hoffa investigation, which is shifting between Detroit and New Jersey.

In Detroit, the brother of a New Jersey suspect in the disappearance of the former Teamsters boss went to jail rather than testify before a federal grand jury probing the case.

In Newark, N.J., federal sources said an informant "proven reliable in the past"

could pinpoint the location of a body in a dump reputedly used as a gangland graveyard.

The sources did not mention Hoffa, but the disclosure came on the heels of a report that his body was transported in a 55-gallon steel drum and buried in a 47-acre Jersey City dump.

The FBI has obtained court permission to dig in the dump, but digging had not started by late Thursday.

Both developments came one day after U.S. Attorney Ralph B. Guy Jr. said the FBI had DALLAS (UPI) — Next Saturday morning two supermarkets will sell upwards of $70,000 worth of Christmas table fixings to 320 people who won't pay a dime.

At 7 a.m., Don Carter, general manager of Home Interiors and Gifts Inc., will shout, "Go," and the firm's employees will have one hour to stack one shopping cart as high as they can with their choice of food.

The happy scramble doesn't include meat. That comes later.

Charge it to the company, please.

It is Home Interiors' annual "Christmas Shopping Bonanza," a feature which began last year, was repeated during the "depressing" days of the summer and will be continued this Christmas season on Saturday morning.

"Mrs. Mary Crowley and Don Carter (owners of the store) wanted to show their employees what they feel about them," said Bill Hendricks, assistant general manager.

"If you'll recall, last December the economy was down and people were sad about the situation. The 'bonanza' was designed to make them optimistic about the future. Everybody is on a budget, no matter how much money they have, so Mrs. Crowley decided it would be fun to let her employees go into a store and buy anything they want."

Last year the bill at the cash registers totaled $71,000. The employees also received a $25 gift bond for meat. This year, in addition to the gift bond, each will receive a turkey at the check stand.

"That is the wildest hour you will ever see," Hendricks said. "But we have more fun."

"One of the rules is that you can't bring any sideboards with you, no big pieces of lumber (to shore up the sides of the cart). Last year they tried to use big frozen pizzas for sideboards. It was as funny as it could be because by the time they got to the checkout stands the pizzas had started to soften and everything started to sag."

"They were standing there, draped over the baskets, trying to keep everything from collapsing onto the floor."

"I get to take part in it, too. I always think of Home Interiors every time I drink a cup of coffee, I always try to get enough coffee to last until the next shopping spree."

The Safeways stores are not displeased with the program, needless to say, Ira Kiker, public relations director for the chain in Dallas, said the bonanza will be held this year at two stores instead of four as last year. Managers from around the city and other extra employees will be there early to help the shoppers and assist with the huge checkout task. The checkout, incidentally, does not have to be completed within the hour.

"There are all kinds of shoppers," Kiker said. "There are the practical ones. Then the ones who get nothing but canned crabmeat and salmon. To say the least, it gets a little bit hectic there near the end."

Hendricks said women have a bit of an edge in the scramble because of their expertise in grocery shopping.

"They just go up and down the aisles piling things in," he said. "They know what they're doing. The men are getting better, though. They're learning."

Kissinger Warns Soviets On Arms Sent to Angola

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has proposed an arms-cut deal with Moscow, but warned the Soviets their military shipments to Angola risk upsetting detente.

Kissinger and the other foreign ministers of 15 North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations close their two-day winter meeting today.

The ministers appeared ready to approve a plan under which the United States would offer to cut back 1,000 of its 7,200 tactical nuclear warheads in Western Europe in return for a Soviet pullback of 1,700 tanks and 68,000 troops from Eastern Europe.

U.S. officials said an agreement on the tactical warheads offer had already been drafted and all that remained to be settled was the timing for presenting it to Russia. Diplomats said the offer might be made as early as next week.

The officials also quoted Kissinger as saying that Washington viewed the massive Soviet arms supply to Angola with great concern and would resist it, although they refused to say what this resistance would be.

According to Europeans who attended the private meeting, Kissinger said the United States could not accept establishment of Soviet bases in Angola and warned that the Soviet acts could start a chain reaction of outside intervention there.

Kissinger said the Soviet move was violating the spirit of detente.

America can accept a home-grown Marxist government, he said, but not one imposed from outside.

The sources said some of the European ministers, while acknowledging the seriousness of the Angolan civil war, said it was an African problem and NATO should not become involved.

The United States suggested last year that NATO break the deadlock in the Mutual and Balance Force Reduction talks in Vienna by expanding them from conventional arms to nuclear arms.

Leftist Troops Block Escape

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Leftist troops attacking from three sides trapped desperate right-wing forces in the Holiday Inn today, setting the building ablaze and blocking the only escape route from the last Christian stronghold.

Leftists, crouched in the blackened ruins of the Phoenicia hotel less than 100 yards away, poured a steady stream of rocket and machinegun fire into the 26-story building in an attempt to seize full control of the embattled seafloor.

The fighting broke out despite the start of a Moslem holiday, and the announcement of the 15th cease-fire since September.

In the streets around the besieged Holiday Inn, leftists dug in behind sandbagged positions and fired thousands of rounds of rifle and machinegun bullets at the right-wing defenders.

The Christian forces returned the fire, but Moslems lodged in nearby buildings covered their only escape route. Above, flames crawled down the top floors of the hotel, sending a huge pall of black smoke over the luxury hotel district.

Four days of fighting has left more than 350 persons dead and nearly 600 injured. More than 5,000 persons have been killed in the eight-month-long war between Christians and Moslems.

The main attack today came from the fire-gutted Phoenicia hotel, still draped with a red "people's flag" set up Thursday by advancing leftists.

As the Moslems consolidated their seaside position, widespread looting began in the hundreds of stores surrounding the hotel district.

Beirut Radio conceded the cease-fire, that had been scheduled to begin at 2 a.m., had not won the "total commitment" of the opposing forces.

The Joint Coordination Committee met in emergency session at noon to discuss ways to enforce the truce agreement which had obviously failed to take effect.

The latest cease-fire, the second in two days, came after leftist groups ended their boycott of peace talks and attended a meeting with right-wing Christians and Palestinian guerrillas.

Agents Ignored Oswald

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former receptionist in the FBI's Dallas office told Congress she read a threatening note delivered to the bureau by Lee Harvey Oswald shortly before he assassinated President John F. Kennedy, but the note was virtually ignored by the agents.

J. Gordon Shanklin, who headed the FBI office in Dallas

All parties appeared anxious to end the fighting in time for today's Moslem holiday of Al Adha — the feast of sacrifice — usually a time of great rejoicing. Beirut Radio announcer Sharif Akhawi, however, said it should be a "day of national mourning, not a feast day."

If Lebanon succeeded in stopping the fighting, "we will have saved our honor which has been tarnished with mire," he said. The truce called for the withdrawal of all armed men from "buildings, streets, districts and all areas," the return of kidnaped persons, supervision of the cease-fire by police security forces and the return of "any person wanted by the law."

The leftists have repeatedly refused to end the fighting until authorities arrest all persons involved in the slaughter of 105 persons last weekend.

He said he also did not recall meeting with agent James P. Hosty and his supervisor, Kenneth Howe, about the matter. Hosty has said Shanklin ordered destruction of the note at that meeting on the night of Nov. 24, the day Oswald was killed and two days after the Kennedy murder.

Nanny Lee Fenner, who was the bureau's receptionist at the time of the assassination, told the subcommittee Oswald came to her desk a few weeks before the Kennedy assassination.

"He had a wild look in his eyes and he was awfully fidgety," Mrs. Fenner said of Oswald. She said he had an envelope addressed to "S. Hosty" and wanted to give it to him.

When told that Hosty was out to lunch, she said, "he threw it on my desk with the letter out of the envelope and he said, 'Give it to him.'"

She said she saw on the bottom of the envelope words scrawled in large handwriting similar to that of a fourth or fifth grader. "I'll either blow up the Dallas Police Department or the FBI office."

She said she considered it a threat, opened it and read the whole letter of seven or eight lines objecting to Hosty questioning his wife, Marina.

Hosty has told congressional and FBI investigators that the note was not as Fenner recalled it, that it just told him to stop bothering his wife or he would take appropriate action and report it to proper authorities.

"I have no recollection of hearing of Oswald's visit to the Dallas office, or of the note" prior to hearing of them from the newspaper publisher. "I have no recollection of ever seeing the note," he said.

"I can't conceive of any employe of the FBI having heard a statement that 'I am going to blow up the office' without bringing it to my attention. I can't see anyone not wanting it handled because they are working there," Shanklin said.

Hearst Claims Fear for Life

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst carried an automatic rifle as part of a Symbionese Liberation Army bank robbery team because she feared for her life, a defense lawyer said Thursday.

F. Lee Bailey explained his strategy for next month's trial to U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter this way:

"Putting it simply, it amounts to the defense that 'Somebody put a gun at my head and I did what they told me.'"

Carter had called the hearing to listen to arguments on pretrial motions by the defense and prosecution. The U.S. Attorney's office had sought to have the defense disclose whether it would use diminished mental capacity as a strategy.

Bailey said the defense would not claim Miss Hearst was insane at the time of the April 15, 1974, robbery but might bring up brainwashing. He added he would focus on "physical coercion and fear of threats of death."

Miss Hearst, 21, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph A. Hearst, was kidnaped by the SLA on Feb. 14, 1974. She was arrested here on Sept. 18 on federal charges of bank robbery and using a weapon in commission of a felony. She faces numerous state charges in Los Angeles County.

Miss Hearst was taken to the hearing from her cell at the San Mateo County Jail in nearby

Apartment Fire Kills 8

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A fire swept through a five-story apartment building early today, killing at least eight persons and injuring 15, including a dozen firemen.

Firemen using ladder-rescue equipment removed dozens of persons from the building as flames and smoke poured from its windows.

A rescue center was set up in a nearby church to care for those made homeless by the predawn blaze.

Cause of the fire was not immediately known, but a witness said it started rapidly and seemed to explode through the structure. A Fire Department official said there has been "a lot of arson in the neighborhood."

It was brought under control by 200 firemen who fought through collapsing wooden floors and blazing timbers in efforts to rescue the occupants.

Six bodies were brought out of the smoldering building and the fire chief on the scene said more victims might be found as firemen worked their way through the wreckage of the building, located at 16th and Valencia streets in the heart of the city's "Mission District."

At a nearby emergency hospital, attendants said the injured brought there suffered smoke inhalation and burns. Two of the firemen were severely burned.

"There may be more bodies in there," said Fire Chief Keith Caldren. "We have not been able to go through the whole building because floors are collapsing and debris is still burning."

The building was a frame wooden structure, typical of many in the district, with a store on the first floor and the upper levels broken down into numerous small apartments.

About 40 persons were rescued by ladders.

Senate Confirms Hughes Successor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today confirmed a successor to retiring U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, who administered the presidential oath of office to Lyndon B. Johnson after the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

By voice vote without dissent or debate, the Senate approved the nomination of Patrick E. Higginbotham to the federal court for the Northern District of Texas.

Woman Suspect Jailed In Kidnaping Scheme

DETROIT (UPI) — A 24-year old Ohio woman, the fourth suspect in a $250,000 kidnap scheme that ended with a Detroit bank officer dead of stab wounds, was jailed Thursday night on $100,000 bond.

Sharon Scheurell of Columbus

She was charged with aiding and abetting in the abduction of James J. Crawford Jr., 25, whose body was found Thursday along a rural dirt road near the central Ohio town of Newark.

Her arrest was announced 24 hours after the FBI reported the arrest of three men, who were jailed in lieu of an overall $700,000 bond on extortion charges.

Police sources said the three men were likely to face federal kidnap charges.

Authorities withheld details of the investigation that led FBI agents to the suspects, but police sources said an informant was involved.

Crawford, a bachelor who lived in suburban Grosse Pointe, was abducted a week ago today as he arrived for work at a National Bank of Detroit branch where he was the assistant manager.

Bank officials said they received telephoned demands for $250,000 ransom and were ready to pay it, but did not because Crawford's kidnapers did not explain how the bank should pay the money.

Crawford's body was spotted early Thursday about 12 miles from Newark, where police said he apparently was stabbed and left for dead sometime Tuesday. They said Crawford apparently was able to stumble about 250 yards before collapsing and dying.

Sheriff Max Marston of Licking County, where the body was found, said Crawford apparently was kept prisoner in a farm house near where his body was found.

Two of the three male suspects, William Nabozny, 38, of Dearborn, and John S. Garside, 39, of Columbus, were arrested by FBI agents, who stopped their car on an interstate highway near Dayton, Ohio.

Mrs. Williams Satisfactory

Mrs. Cecil Williams of Pampa was in High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo today in satisfactory condition as a result of an accident late Tuesday west of White Deer.

A spokesman said she has a crushed ankle, and other injuries.

The Carson sheriff's deputies were among the investigating officers.

Security Open House To Celebrate Remodeling

By TEX DEWESE
Pampa News Staff
Officers and staff members of Security Federal Savings &

Loan Association will be hosts to the public from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at an open house reception marking completion of a one-year expansion and general remodeling project at the association's tri-city home office headquarters, 221 N. Gray

St. Aubrey L. Steele, president of the financial institution, Saturday issued an invitation to Top O Texas area residents to inspect the new facilities.

He said members of the Pampa office and home office staff and association directors will act as tour guides. All persons visiting Sunday afternoon will be entitled to register for a one-week all-expense paid trip for two to Acapulco, Mexico.

Registration for the prize, he stated, also will be accepted during the week ending Dec. 19 for persons unable to attend the Sunday open house.

Security Federal is the oldest Savings & Loan association in the Texas Panhandle. It was chartered nearly a half century ago — in September, 1928 and was named the Wester Building & Loan.

There was no federal chartering at that time but in 1935 it received its federal charter under the name of the First Federal Savings & Loan.

The name was changed to Security Federal in 1937 when it was decided to open an Amarillo office and there was already a First Federal S & L there. S. Wayne O'Keefe, Amarillo, is the only one of the original directors still on the board.

Security Federal now has four offices. The home office is here in Pampa, two branch offices are in Amarillo, and another branch just recently was opened in Hereford.

Steele, an Elk City, Okla., native, first came to Pampa in 1938 as head of the history department at Pampa High School. He became assistant principal at the high school in 1942 and was promoted to principal of Pampa Junior High in 1945. The following year he joined Security Federal as a trainee, soon was named manager of the Pampa office and was elevated to association president in 1968.

Roy C. Sparkman is current, manager of the Pampa office and Steele, as president, directs activities of the association's four offices in Pampa, Amarillo and Hereford.

Steele said when he joined Security Federal in 1946 assets totalled $1.5 million. Today the assets total $146 million.

Discussing the newly expanded and remodeled facilities, Steele said:

"We have tried to build not only a functional building, but a building of which the community can be proud.

"We try to have our association to be a good citizen and I hope we have accomplished that. It is our plan to continue to grow with Pampa."

The building into which Security Federal moved in 1966 boasted a square footage of 3900 on a 140-ft. lot. In 1966 a 40 by 60 ft. addition was built in the rear along with a 32 by 60 ft. basement and a parking lot.

The new expanded and remodeled structure provides an additional 6,000 square feet of floor space, bringing the total area to 15,000 square feet.

Also added have been four drive-in stations, two of which currently are activated with the newest type pneumatic tube two-way delivery and audio system which patrons may use to transact business with tellers from their automobiles.

Inside and at the rear of the spacious lobby are six teller windows for transacting business. There are private conference rooms for discussing loan details.

Among other facilities are a coffee lounge, rest rooms, computer rooms, tape storage, communication system between the home and branch offices, safety files, an after-hours depository and other innovations.

In addition to President Steele, other Security Federal Savings & Loan officials include:

S. Wayne O'Keefe, chairman of the board; P.B. Carlson, executive vice president and director; DeLea Vicars, vice president and secretary; J.E. Sweet, vice president and comptroller, and the following directors: Crawford Atkinson, C.E. Steel, Farris Oden, J.M. Nation Jr. and Dr. A.B. Martin. J.E. Sweet is vice president.

Spacious Lobby

Aubrey L. Steele, president of Security Federal Savings & Loan Association, offers a tour of the institution's expanded and remodeled home office building to Mrs. Emmett Osborne. An open house for the general public to inspect the new facilities is set for 2 p.m. Sunday. Seated in one of the rest areas of the spacious lobby is Robert G. Weeks of Lefors.

Court Won't Widen School Bill Tax

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Supreme Court has refused to order the commissioner of education to widen a property tax study required by a 1975 school finance bill.

Two San Antonio school districts unhappy with administration of the study had asked the court to order Education Commissioner M.L. Brockette to instruct a five-member review panel to study property valuations in all school districts and all other questions related to property tax values.

The court, without written opinion, Wednesday rejected the request by the Alamo Heights Independent School District and the Edgewood Independent School District.

The education commission had instructed the review panel to consider only apparent discrepancies in values and matters of a local nature or economic disaster.

Edgewood and Alamo Heights districts complained to the panel about what they called gross discrepancies in market values based on property in those districts compared with market values placed on property in other school districts across the state.

Failure of the review panel to consider that information thwarted the intent of the public school finance bill, the districts argued.

The two districts said the school finance bill requires a review of all questions relating to property tax values reported for school districts, and also requires the panel to recommend necessary adjustments based on factual evidence.

They sought a court order forcing Brockette to direct the review panel to recommend adjustments equalizing market values in the Alamo and Edgewood districts with other districts, and to base state aid on the adjusted figures rather than on present market value calculations.

Offshore Drilling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Offshore oil and gas production along the central U.S. East Coast will damage some coastal areas and pose a threat of ocean pollution from accidental or chronic oil spills, the Interior Department said today.

Exploratory drilling could begin by 1977 under the present timetable, the department said, with production starting in 1981 and reaching a peak of up to 740,000 barrels of oil and 4.4 billion cubic feet of gas a year by about 1990.

Representatives of about 20 oil companies interested in leasing the tracts—the first ever proposed for sale in the Atlantic—and environmentalists opposed to the plan both are expected to use the three-volume impact statement to support their arguments at hearings next month in Atlantic City.

Two Drivers Get Fines, Probation

Two persons pleaded guilty Thursday to charges of driving while intoxicated.

Each received probation and a fine, assessed by County Judge Don Cain.

Rosetta F. Slater, 26, formerly of Pampa, and now of Victoria, the mother of three children, was fined $300 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail. However, the jail term was probated to a six-month probation term.

Roberto Ramirez Diaz, 34, of Pampa, was fined $250 plus court costs and a 30-day jail term — probated to a six-month probation term.

When probation is granted, no jail term is served unless the rules of probation are violated.

Looked at Child's School Record?

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
United Press International

Patients who sued doctors helped bring on the malpractice insurance crisis and made the practice of medicine more expensive and more cautious.

A parallel situation may be developing in academia. A trend, at least, points to a more cautious attitude among teachers — especially when writing comments that stay through life in a student's official record. The school people don't want to be sued.

On the college front, meanwhile, there's concern over consumer suits filed by students who claim "I was gyped."

This trend is making officials look more closely at what's promised in college catalogues — and what's practiced in the lecture hall and laboratory.

The Buckley Amendment is the reason school people are writing non-committal comments and very bland college recommendations for their students. They fear anything candid might result in a lawsuit — when the students or their parents exercise the right to view official records.

The Buckley Amendment, named for its sponsor Sen. James Buckley of New York, has been law since January. It gives students and/or their parents the right to view official records kept by any school. It further stipulates that if information found in the previously confidential files is viewed as either inaccurate or biased, students or their parents have the right to put their own comments in the file.

The first significant proof of caution the amendment is engendering along the academic trail came in a survey by the Nation's Schools Report, an educational newsletter published by McGraw-Hill.

It was found school people these days tend to write colorless college recommendations for their students. They fear anything candid might result in a lawsuit — when the students or their parents exercise the right to view official records.

The survey turned up some teachers and administrators who refuse to write recommendations unless students sign a waiver giving up the right to see the letter at some future date.

An additional worry on the college front is students who sue over what happens in the classroom.

Irene Ianniello is suing the University of Bridgeport in Connecticut. The suit, filed last spring, is expected to go on trial shortly. She wants the school to return $150 in tuition, book expenses and pay her legal fees.

Her complaint: a course required of education majors was, to her, worthless. She claims she learned only how to use an overhead projector. She wrote a book report, the only requirement for a grade, she claims. She also complains that all students got an A.

The university has suggested that if Mrs. Ianniello wants her money back she should return the three credits, plus her A.

The suit seems to hinge on truth in course descriptions in college catalogues. There was a gap between what was described in the catalogue and what was delivered, Mrs. Ianniello, thirtyish mother of three, claims.

It has been suggested by some authorities that universities may avoid such lawsuits by putting a railroad timetable-type disclaimer in all catalogues.

Sample: "Courses in this catalogue are subject to change without notice."

Until suits of the type filed by Mrs. Ianniello are settled, colleges as well as students who sue are sailing on uncharted waters.

Some students sue more than once in this era of the consumer movement reaching higher education.

At Syracuse University in Syracuse, N.Y., Thomas White, a grad student, has filed six. He seeks $3,969 in damages. One of his complaints: that the philosophy department has admitted students without a philosophy background into the Ph.D. program.

He also filed a suit to keep the university from expelling him.

Other suits challenge grades, the failure of a school to teach properly, tuition hikes that go beyond charges listed in the catalogue.

In 1972, a law graduate sued a state university after he had taken the bar exam three times, failing each time. The court said such a suit was against the law.

Since students don't have the money or time to see a case through the courts — a procedure that may run years beyond their academic pursuits — a trend is to settlement out of court.

Veronika Nicholas, George Washington University student, was upset over a course to train landscape architects' assistants. She took herself out of the course and said, claiming "all we did was learn how to trace somebody else's blueprints."

The case was settled out of court and, in the main, consisted of a tuition refund.

Twenty-five per cent of Americans are under age 15, according to a recent survey.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I put all my favorite holiday recipes and decorating ideas in a large envelope in a kitchen drawer.

This way, in the fall when I start thinking of holiday projects to make, I have all the clippings and articles together — plus recipes I want to use.

When I take the envelope out — over a mid-morning cup of coffee — I decide which ones I am going to use. As I have all these ideas in one place, it is much better than looking all over the house for all those small clippings that somehow seem to get misplaced.

Moreover, many papers and magazines are prone to give decorating ideas so close to Christmas that it is a bit late to start these projects. But they can always be saved for the following year.

Alice Pyle

Dear Heloise:

Here's something that mothers do in France, but which could be done here also.

Before Christmas or a birthday, children are always asking mothers how many more days until the special occasion gets here.

The French mothers put as many stones in a container as there are days left. Then the child takes out a stone every day.

As they see the number decreasing, they have a better idea than just hearing a number.

Mrs. Ernest Snyder

Dear Heloise:

With Christmas coming, folks seem to join in our plan to save postage and cut down on their card sending.

The church we belong to decorated a bulletin board in the foyer of the church and folks were invited to bring a Christmas card and tack it on the board.

In this way, we can "send" a Christmas message to all who pass by — without spending a single cent for postage. Many people gave the money they saved to their favorite charity, or to the church.

We felt it wasn't really necessary to send cards to friends we see all the time at church.

Mrs. G.P.

Dear Heloise:

I have several potted plants on my sun porch — some in plain pots.

To make them prettier for the holidays, I took Christmas paper and wrapped it around the pots. I even lined the shelves with the bright paper.

Really cheerful!

Mrs. Britten

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

The only time I wish I were an octopus is when all the clothes in the dryer are labeled, "remove at once!"

B.B.

Dear Heloise:

Have you ever made a lovely pan of candy — only to have it spoiled by crumbling when you tried to cut it? Here's one answer to the problem.

First, line your candy pan with aluminum foil and butter the foil if the candy directions call for it.

When the candy has cooled, you can lift it out, foil and all. Peel the foil down from the sides and use the knife with the longest, thinnest blade that you have.

Cut through the block of candy with a little sawing back and forth as possible.

Perfect squares everytime.

Mrs. A.Z.

My mother is funny about Christmas. She gets annoyed when she has to buy gifts that (a) she can't spell; (b) she doesn't have the foggiest notion what they're used for; (c) leak grease.

"Why can't I just buy my grandson a drum and a rubber toy for his bath?"

"Because he's 20 years old."

"It's no fun doing your Christmas shopping in an auto supply store. Tell me again what I bought him last year."

"A mag wheel."

"And the year before that?"

Gifts Topic For KA Group

Theme for the annual Christmas program of the Kappa Alpha Chapter of ESA was "Different Gifts of Christmas" in the home of Mrs. Norman Sublett.

Mrs. Ray Woodridge presented "The Legend of the Christmas Flower, the Poinsetta." Mrs. Tommy Sells told the story of the "Visit of the Wise Men."

"Music of Christmas" was presented by Mrs. Leon Taylor, and Mrs. Glen McConnell discussed "Candles and Christmas."

Attending were Mesdames Fern Berry, Ken Shearer, Irvin Hungerford, Norman Sublett, Mitch Mitchell, Mark Russell, Joe Miller, Glen McConnell, Ed Bailey, Ray Woodridge, Tommy Sells, Roy Floyd, Bob Eastham, Leon Taylor, Bill Bennett, Lewis Hackley, Gerland Vaughn, Bob Yost and Mrs. Charles Cross, a guest.

"An RF-60 FM stereo wireless radio chamber."

"I'll bet it's never been hemmed."

"They were headphones. Mother."

"If you ask me, kids grow up too fast. I liked it better when we could buy them toys and games. Remember that game where you sunk each other's battleships? I hate to brag but I downed 11 destroyers and six cruisers before they even got the hang of it."

"And the popcorn machine. I loved the popcorn machine. That little thing made a pretty good batch of carmel corn."

"I remember."

"But the electric hockey was my favorite. I tried to tell 'em, it's coordination. Skunked every one of them. And Monopoly."

An investment in Your Future

ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

the Long Arm of God

There may be times when your church seems to be growing slowly, when you become discouraged because your work seems to bear no fruit. Don't be discouraged. The Lord would say to you in Deut. 1:21, "Fear not, neither be discouraged," for I am with you.

During the very time you are discouraged, the Lord may have good news for you. This period of time may be more spring than winter. It is an open secret that God's arm is not shortened that he cannot save; neither is his ear heavy that He cannot hear.

Therefore, let us keep on working and praying that we may in our hearts possess the land of rest and comfort and peace with God. "The glory of the Lord shall be thy reward." He tells us in Isaiah 58:9, "Then thou shalt call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and He shall say, Here I Am."

We pray that the church and its fellowship will be your dearest treasure. May the church be the place where your "heart interest" lies. We invite you to attend services this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Christmas Gifts Entertain, Teach

By United Press International
The crafty Christmas gift-giver needn't hem and haw this year about needlework books. They abound.

The best of the newest include Erica Wilson's Needleplay (Scribners, $14.95), with directions for embroidery, needlepoint and bangle, or combinations of two or more of these techniques in clothing, home furnishings, handbags and other accessories selected from Ms. Wilson's popular public television series.

The Art of Blackwork Embroidery by Rosemary Drysdale (Scribners, $12.95) focuses on embroidery that produces geometric designs with black thread on light-colored even-weave fabric. Blackwork is thought to have been introduced to England by one of Henry VIII's wives, Catherine of Aragon.

Historic designs also are the focus of A Needlepoint Gallery of Patterns from the Past by Phyllis Kluger (Knopf, $15). Needlepoint Designs from the Mosaics of Ravenna and Mosaic Masterpieces in Needlework and Handicraft based on motifs from The Holy Land, both by Ann Roth (Scribners, $10 each). Mrs. Kluger's motifs range from ancient Egypt and classical Greece to American folk art and art nouveau. Patterns are fully charted in all three books, but are too complex for beginners.

Even people who are all thumbs with needle and thread probably could manage some designs in The Stick It, Stitch It and Stuff It Toy Book by Penelope Frith (Evars, $5.95), a collection of stuffed toys to make from scraps.

Other worthy needlecraft books include: Quilting, Patchwork, Applique, and Trapunto by Thelma T. Newman (Crown, $9.95), with original and traditional designs; The Complete Book of Rugmaking, Folk Methods and Ethnic Designs by Cecelia Felcher (Hawthorn, $16.95), including braiding, hooking, rya and weaving directions; American Hooked and Sewn Rugs by New York antique dealers Joel and Kate Kopp (Dutton, $15.95), for reading only; no directions provided. Good craft books on other subjects: String Art Step-by-Step by Robert E. Sharpston (Chilton, $6.95), 44 String and Nail Art Projects edited by Vivien Bowler (Crown, $12.50), American Quilts and How to Make Them by Carter Houck and Myron Miller (Scribners, $12.95) and Make Your Own Dollhouses and Dollhouse Miniatures by Marian Maeve O'Brien (Hawthorn, $15).

The Great American Medicine Show, by Spencer Klaw. (Viking, $11.95)

The Superdoctors, by Roger Rapoport. (Playboy, $8.95)

Both of these books are replete with the excesses of the medical profession brought about by refined technology and advances in knowledge.

A dozen years ago it just would not have been possible for a doctor to treat 60 or 70 patients a day or for a surgeon to move from one operating room to another performing successive major operations.

The Great American Medicine Show makes serious charges against the medical system in carefully documented, highly readable prose. Among the grossest abuses is the inflation of the country's annual hospital bill by needless surgery and the unnecessary hospitalization of people with nonsurgical ailments.

Drug prescriptions, too, are written too often without regard for their cost to the patient or their desirability. "The evidence is strong that tens of thousands of people, at the least, are being hospitalized each year because they have reacted badly to a drug they should not have been given in the first place," Klaw writes.

Klaw stresses the need for a national health security bill, despite arguments about its high cost and the probable clumsiness of another federal bureaucracy. He reasons this is the only way to remedy the avarice, carelessness and ignorance that are downgrading the level of American medical care, despite tremendous scientific strikes in recent years.

The Superdoctors is not nearly as serious as Klaw's volume, but it is much more entertaining. Read at that level — for amusement — the book offers ribald stories and gossipy tidbits about some of the world's most eminent physicians.

Many of the best and most dedicated doctors come off as megalomaniacs to whom medicine is an obsession. The patients get lost as human beings while the doctors device better techniques with which to treat them.

Marcus Welby would be shocked.

Joan Hanauer (UPI)

Write If You Get Work, by Bob Elliott and Ray Goulding. (Random House, $8.95) Bob and Ray, the radio comedians, are genuinely funny men with ready, telling comments on American society's inanities. Surprisingly, their satires and parodies come across almost as well on paper as they do when produced with consummate skill on the air. Here are 58 of their old routines that will evoke laughs and memories.

The Time of the Dragon, by Dorothy Eden. (Coward, McCann, Jovanovich, $8.95) Shifting between the present and turn-of-the-century China, the book centers on a British mercantile family and their drive to amass riches. The evils and dangers of the Boxer Rebellion and the foreign suppression of an ancient civilization stretch over the years to engulf the current generation. The format is intriguing and effective, allowing the skillful author full rein to unleash the usual forces of the gothic novel.

MORE STUDENTS
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Southern Baptist officials have reported that all six of the denomination's theological seminaries experienced increased enrollments this fall with more than 7,000 students now studying for the ministry.

By JOE SEGAL

Lovett Memorial Library

"Darker than the forest aisles was the agony of mind of Jasper Adams because of the disaster that had overtaken them this morning of December 24, 1755, and his knowledge of the fate that awaited them when they reached Algonkin territory. More poignant still was the anguish and torment of his wife Dorcas. Moonlight breaking through the treetops cast blue shadows on the surface and distorted the forms of the Algonkin raiding party, hulking in their furs of beaver and muskrat. This is the desperate plight confronting the Adams family, pioneers in the wilderness of New York Colony, pawns in the struggle between France and England for control of North America, and on Christmas Eve, captives of the fierce Algonkin Indians. Paul Gallico's beautiful and inspiring novelette, "Miracle in the Wilderness," combines a Bicentennial interest in our heritage, a Christian statement of faith, and hair-raising story. Its lovely writing, noble simplicity, emotional intensity, and insight into human hearts, both White and Indian, entitle it to a place among such Christmas classics as Dickens' "Christmas Carol", O. Henry's "Gift of the Magi", Agatha Christie's "Star over Bethlehem". (All of these reminders of the deeper beauty of Christmas are available at Lovett Memorial Library, Houston & Foster, between 9 and 8, Monday through Thursday, 9 and 6 Friday, and 9 and 5 Saturday. We'll be closed from December 25 through 27. All the staff at your public library wish you a Merry Christmas, full of warmth, love, and spiritual renewal!

Bundy Recommends CIA Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Calling CIA plots to assassinate some foreign leaders "inexcusable and unauthorized activities," a high ranking Kennedy and Johnson administration official has told Congress some future covert actions might be necessary to check international terrorism and avoid nuclear danger.

McGeorge Bundy, former presidential adviser on national security, now head of the Ford Foundation, also told the House intelligence committee Wednesday sharp cuts in the CIA covert branch would improve its efficiency.

But he warned against eliminating all covert activities.

Time Stops Publication In Canada

TORONTO (UPI) — The Canadian edition of Time magazine will cease publication this month after 32 years because of a government bill stripping the magazine of its tax breaks to advertisers.

The government bill, awaiting third and final reading in the House of Commons, is expected to pass the Senate and become law before Parliament adjourns Dec. 19 for the Christmas recess.

"If the bill passes, which we expect it will, the last edition of Time-Canada will be dated Dec. 29," Time-Canada president Stephen LaRue said Wednesday.

Canadian subscribers, who have had the special Canadian edition of Time since 1943, face a price hike on the U.S. edition that will be distributed in this country next year, LaRue said.

"It is at least worth consideration whether there may not be need for some highly secret activity in emerging fields like those of international terrorism and nuclear danger," Bundy said.

"I find it hard to exclude the possibility that in these fields, situations could arise in which covert action of some sort would be the least evil choice available," Bundy said.

Bundy also favored "covert financial support" of governments threatened with seizure by Soviet-financed Communist movements.

Termining the CIA assassination plots "inexcusable and unauthorized activities," Bundy said, "The whole area covered by the Senate intelligence committee's assassination report was never authorized by the 40 or the 303 committees."

Bundy said despite his membership in the 40 Committee, which reviewed covert operations before execution, he was unaware of some covert CIA operations recently publicized. The 303 Committee was a predecessor of the 40 Committee.

Bundy said, "It can happen and I think it has happened that an operation is presented in one way to a committee and executed in a way that is different from what the committee thought it had authorized." He cited the Kennedy administration's Bay of Pigs operation against Cuba as an example, but gave no details.

He said covert operations such as the U2 flights over the Soviet Union and Cuba in the early 1960s violated international law, but were justified because of their intelligence importance.

Class B Finals Saturday

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Two teams with football tradition, one with more tradition than the other but a big underdog for the contest, will meet when Groom plays Big Sandy for the Class B state championship at 2 p.m. Saturday in Jackboro.

Groom, the underdog, is in the state finals for the first time in history. The Tigers have won 16 district championships in the past 20 years but not until 1972 were Class B teams allowed to have a state championship.

Big Sandy won the state title two years ago and tied with Celina for it last season. The Wildcats, 13-0 this season, are unbeaten in 42 straight games and have a 61-1-1 record over the last five seasons.

This year, Big Sandy has rolled over all its opponents. In district play, the Wildcats whipped Commo - Piction 63-0.

Union - Hill 60-0, Harmony 73-0, Leverett's Chapel 62-0, Mount Enterprise 71-0 and Carlisle 91-0. In the playoffs, they have downed Mildred 65-6, Axtell 55-0 and Moody 38-0.

Big Sandy has allowed only 13 points this season, while scoring 795. The points scored is a state record. The Wildcats have shut out 11 teams, tying a state record.

Halfback David Overstreet (6-1, 190), a junior, leads the Big Sandy attack, having gained 2,971 yards on 125 carries for a 23.4 average and 53 touchdowns, and is considered the top second-year prospect in the state.

Overstreet is flanked by 145-pound senior Tony Newman, who has 1,375 yards (12.5 average) and 27 touchdowns. The other backfield fixtures are senior quarterback Gary Chalk (850 yards, 14.2 average) and sophomore fullback Gary Cady, who is used primarily as a blocker.

Big Sandy has probably received more publicity in the last five seasons than most AAAA teams receive in their history. And Coach Jim Norman, also the town's mayor, is not altogether pleased by the attention.

"We're trying to ignore most of it," Norman said. "People have got to have something to write about, though, so they might as well write about Big Sandy."

"If the kids are doing the job, they need to be known. These backs are gonna get recognition because they're the ones that go across the goal line."

"But we've got a fantastic defensive line that's done a creditable job. I'm also real pleased with the offensive line. I thought at the beginning of the year that if I had any weaknesses it would be my offensive interior line and my defensive interior line.

"These kids have done a job - it's all been just fantastic to me."

Big Sandy may have a difficult time against Groom, which has controlled the line of scrimmage in most of the games this season. The Tigers (12-0-1) own wins over Boys Ranch of Class AA, Pampa's AAAA junior varsity and Celina.

The Tigers edged Celina 0-0 last week in the semifinals, while Big Sandy crushed Moody, Celina and Big Sandy tied for the state championship last season.

Groom, with 200-plus pounders Art Brown, Jay Witt and Rick Prather leading the way, dominated the line of scrimmage and racked up 278 yards on the ground. The other linemen, both guards, Mike Britten and Mike Koetting, weigh 190 pounds and also opened gaping holes for Groom's backs.

Fullback Chris Britten carried 23 times for 104 yards. Halfbacks John Krizan and Thomas Reed added 104 and 80 yards, respectively.

Defensively, noseguard Mike Britten, linebacker Chris Britten and defensive end Richard Weller were crucial in holding Celina's vaunted running attack to 95 yards.

Groom Coach Don Sessom is optimistic.

"I think the Groom Tigers are gonna go down and represent the Panhandle and North Texas real well."

He added, "They've got more speed than most people have seen. This Newman in the backfield is faster than Overstreet and he runs a lot of sweeps. We're looking at more speed than we've ever seen."

Pampa JV Crushes Hereford Sophs 75-36

Tommy Price, Rusty Ward and Brian South each scored 16 points and led the Pampa junior varsity to a convincing 75-36 win over Hereford's sophomore team in first-round action of the Pampa Junior Varsity Basketball Tournament Thursday in Harvester Fieldhouse.

The win, their eighth of the season against one loss, sends the Shockers to the second round in the winner's bracket against Borger's sophomores at 1 p.m. Saturday. The Borger team drew a bye in the first round.

In other opening-round games Thursday, Hereford's junior varsity came from behind to edge the Pampa sophomore team 49-47 and Borger's JV crushed Perryton's JV 75-45.

Price and Ward each made eight field goals, while South hit seven field goals and two free throws in Pampa's win over Hereford.

The Shockers led 24-6 at the end of the first period, 38-10 at halftime and 54-20 following the third quarter.

"We played real fine defense, Pampa Coach George Bailey said. "I thought we were only fair offensively. We got most of our points from playing good defense."

"It was the kind of game where we were getting all the points on the fast break and defensive steals. We started forcing shots instead of running the offense."

"I think that happens anytime you're fast breaking when you slow it down a little bit. It's awful hard to get back to the offense, sometimes."

Pampa's sophomore team, led by David Green with 12 points and Robert Sikes with 12, rolled to a 15-7 lead and led 28-25 at halftime. Hereford took a 37-35 advantage going into the fourth quarter and never trailed in the final period.

"Our kids were too inconsistent to win. They're gonna have to be consistent. I think they get a lead, then they mentally relax. That's our main trouble."

In Thursday's only other game, Borger's junior varsity rolled past Perryton 75-45. Borger won its own tournament last week, knocking off Pampa in the finals.

It would appear that Pampa and Borger are again headed for a championship showdown. Saturday, Borger meets Hereford's JV at 11:30 a.m. In consolation play, Pampa's sophomore tackle Perryton's JV at 8:30 a.m. and the Pampa freshman team meets Hereford's sophomores at 10 a.m.

The consolation finals are set for 4:30 p.m. Saturday in Harvester Fieldhouse. The third-place game starts at 6 p.m., while the championship contest begins at 8 p.m.

Dallas, Redskins Fight For Berth in Playoffs

BY JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

Pro football widows who have been complaining about losing their husbands every Sunday will lose them all this weekend.

With the college football season over, the National Football League has scheduled two games Saturday and they're both exceptional ones.

First, the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers, already assured of a playoff berth, attempt to wrap up the American Conference Central Division title at home against the second-place Cincinnati Bengals. Then the Dallas Cowboys play host to the Washington Redskins, with the winner assured of a playoff spot and a shot at the NFC Eastern Division title.

The Steelers, 11-1, already have clinched at least a wild card berth and will be looking for the home advantage that would go with the division title. Cincinnati, 10-2, could tie for the division lead by beating the Steelers with one regular season game left. Pittsburgh is at Los Angeles, the NFC West leader, next week while Cincinnati takes on San Diego, 1-11.

Pittsburgh won the first meeting between the two, 30-24, putting down a Bengals' rally in the final period.

The Dallas-Washington rivalry is becoming one of the fiercest in the NFL. Both clubs are 8-4 and trail first-place St. Louis by a game.

"If looks like if we are going to win it will be a high scoring game," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. "I don't see too many teams stopping Washington's offense. I hope we can attack their defense and score like the other top teams have in the past few weeks. If we do, we have a chance."

The key game Sunday sends Miami to Baltimore in a duel for first in the AFC East. The Dolphins, down to third-string quarterback Don Strock, eliminated Buffalo last week and could wrap up their fifth straight division title with a win.

The Colts, 8-4 and a game behind Miami, have won seven in a row. Baltimore beat Miami 33-17 last month and a victory Sunday would send the clubs into the final week tied. Miami meets Denver next week and the Colts face New England and if they finish in a tie, Baltimore is the division champion after beating Miami twice.

UPI Honors Rookies

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Chicago Bears may be only 3-9 this season but first-year Coach Jack Pardee has reason for optimism.

Four of his young Bears were selected Thursday to United Press International's NFL All-Rookie team for 1975. Guard Noah Jackson and tackle Jeff Sevy, a pair of WFL refugees, were selected on offense and end Mike Hartenstein and tackle Roger Stillwell on defense.

Steve Bartkowski of Atlanta, the California All-America who was the NFL's No. 1 draft pick last January, headed a list of eight first round choices selected.

Besides Bartkowski, other first round picks were fullback Don Hardeman and linebacker Robert Brazile of Houston, tight end Russ Francis of New England, tackle Lynn Boden of Detroit, defensive end Mack Mitchell of Cleveland, linebacker Randy White of Dallas and return specialist Neal Colzie of Oakland.

Washington's Mike Thomas, a fifth-round draft choice and the Redskins' top pick, was selected as the other running back and Fred Solomon, a No. 2 pick by Miami, and Rick Upchurch, a No. 4 choice by Denver, were chosen at wide receiver.

Bonds, Medich, Kaat Dealt During Meetings

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) - Only a master showman like Bill Vecek could find a way to upstage the New York Yankees' trading of Bobby Bonds.

The Yankees traded Bonds, their $100,000 rightfielder, and right-hander Doc Medich in a separate deal at the winter baseball meetings Thursday for five players worth of pitching, speed and defense.

But Vecek, in control of the White Sox only 24 hours, struck with the flamboyance that has made him famous by engineering his second deal since taking over the club and nearly completing a third.

Vecek, who unloaded three-time 20-game winner Jim Kaat only moments after being approved as chief operating officer of the White Sox Wednesday, further cleaned his club of high-priced, aging stars by dealing power-hitting third baseman Bill Melton to the California Angels in a four-player trade and nearly succeeded pawning off four-time 20-game winner Wilbur Wood and outfielder Ken Henderson to the Atlanta Braves in a three-man exchange.

Earlier in the day, the Yankees swapped Bonds to the Angels for right-hander Ed Figueroa and swift outfielder Mickey Rivers.

Ex-Pro Admits Homosexuality

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Former pro football running back Dave Kopay says he publicly admitted he prefers sex with men because "it might help some people."

Kopay, in an interview with Washington Star writer Lynn Rosellini published Thursday, the third of a four part series, also said he believes a Star story which contended about 5 percent of National Football League players are homosexual or bisexual.

The story said three starting quarterbacks are among the homosexuals and bisexuals. "I hope it (his admission) might help some people," he said. "Especially young people who are going through similar experiences and haven't had anyone to talk to about it."

Kopay, 33, had a 10-year career with six NFL clubs and the Southern California Sun of the defunct World Football League before quitting last year. He captained the University of Washington's Rose Bowl team in 1964. Kopay told the Star he doubts if any active pro player would admit homosexuality. "Every pass that he (a gay quarterback) threw asked would be interpreted as a failure in courage," he said. "If he happened to duck under a blitz by the defensive line, he'd be a sissy," regardless of the fact that 1,200 pounds of muscle were trying to knock his head off."

Kopay said he would like to coach, but that he cannot get a job with any college or pro team, possibly because of his sexual preferences. "They say, 'You're not qualified, you've never coached anywhere,'" he said. "But most people who have played 10 years in the NFL step right into coaching jobs. I hate to think that they're that small. Miss Rosellini quoted Dr. Irving Bieber, a New York psychoanalyst, as saying that homosexuality is almost unknown in baseball.

CBS Scores Big This Season

NEW YORK (UPI) — Last week marked the 13th week of the new television season and for CBS it was a lucky number — the network took nine of the top 10 spots in the national Nielsen ratings, and 15 of the top 20.

The big CBS win could be credited to something old, something new and something special.

The old favorites came through, particularly the situation comedies from "All in the Family" in first place to "Mary Tyler Moore" in ninth spot. The something new was adroitly rescheduled M-A-S-H to Tuesday at 9 p.m., Eastern time. M-A-S-H popped from the 28th slot the previous week to 11th last week.

The something special was the Wednesday night Christmas programming — "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," and the Bing Crosby and Lucille Ball-Jackie Gleason specials. There was some grumbling that the Ball-Gleason special just wasn't funny, but an awful lot of people watched — enough so that it ranked eighth in the Nielsen.

If CBS had a great week, NBC found it a time for mixed blessings. The network finally slipped into second place in over-all viewing for the new season, which was bad news but not unexpected.

On the plus side, it received fairly solid viewer sampling of its two shows, "Grady" and "The Cop and the Kid." "Grady" racked up a 30 share of the audience in its Thursday night at eight, while "The Cop and the Kid" reached a 26 audience share at 8:30.

Neither show looks to eat "The Waltons" alive, but at least a respectable number tried in on for size. Ratings in the next few weeks will reveal whether the audience that sampled will stick around to watch regularly.

ABC slipped to third place in its ratings and share of the audience, part of which it could blame on the fact that the network preempted "Swiss Family Robinson" and "The Six Million Dollar Man" for "Dr. Doolittle," which about equalled "Swiss Family's" usual draw but didn't match the Bionic man's strength.

There were a couple of bigger disappointments, however. One was the poor showing of "Valley Forge," a Hallmark Bicentennial special on NBC Wednesday night. "Valley Forge" not only couldn't compete against the CBS specials that night, it couldn't even inch out ABC's "When Things Were Rotten" and "That's My Mama," both of which are being dropped for poor audience acceptance.

A surprise, perhaps, was that "Dr. No," the first of the Sean Connery-James Bond movies, fared a poor third Friday night on ABC opposite "Rockford Files" and "Police Story" on NBC and the last half of the movie "Tora! Tora! Tora!" on CBS.

Those nine CBS and one NBC shows to make the top ten of the rating of the A.C. Nielsen Co. for the week ending Dec. 7, are as follows:

- 1: "All in the Family"; 2: "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer"; 3: "Merry Christmas Crosby"; 4: "Maude"; 5: "Rhoda"; 6: "Phyllis"; 7: "Kojak"; 8: Lucille Ball-Jackie Gleason; 9: "Mary Tyler Moore"; 10: "Rockford Files".

LARGE ORDER
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — This city has just launched the largest, fastest water meter change-out program ever undertaken in the U.S. — and expects to save a $1.8 million in doing so.

The change-out involves replacement of 80,000 meters in just two and a half years and constitutes the largest single meter order ever placed with Rockwell International Municipal and Utility Division.

The primary savings will come about through the installation of magnetic drive, sealed register water meters.

Cameron Mitchell

The character in ACT-TV's "The Swiss Family Robinson" resents professional criticism of the show. "Our show should be reviewed by 8-year-olds. That's the audience it's designed to please."

Jet To Be Used In Drug Raids

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — U.S. Customs officials say a confiscated million dollar jet linked to fugitive financier Robert Vesco will be used in the government's crackdown on narcotics smuggling between Mexico and the United States.

Federal agents seized the plane at the San Antonio International Airport Aug. 21, 1974, charging it had been used by a close associate of Vesco's in a gun-running scheme.

Department officials said Wednesday the plane would be equipped with radar and other modifications and should be flying the 2,000-mile border at an operating speed of 500 miles per hour in about two weeks.

"People who are smuggling narcotics by air have gone from slower light aircraft to heavier World War II-type cargo planes and more sophisticated fast aircraft," the spokesman said.

The plane's owner, Los Angeles stockbroker Thomas P. Richardson, lost a federal court fight to retain ownership of the executive aircraft and it was forfeited to the federal government.

Agents testified the jet was used in April, 1974, to transport high-powered automatic and military-type weapons from Van Nuys, Calif., to Costa Rica where Vesco fled after being indicted in connection with an illegal $200,000 contribution to former President Richard Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

Agent Wants Solution

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — FBI agent H. Lee Colwell says the investigative agency does not mind public scrutiny, but says persons should not criticize it unless they can offer alternative solutions.

"For almost three years we have been inundated with inquiries from Congress asking justification for some of our actions in the past," Colwell said Wednesday. "We frequently find ourselves in the position of being told what we have done wrong, but I know of no instances where anyone has come forth with corrective action for us."

"We welcome exposure to our operations and the various proposals for oversight committees in Congress for the FBI. We have nothing to hide and all of us in the FBI are extremely proud of our accomplishments even though they are being cast in an unfavorable light in the current times."

In a speech to a civic club, Colwell, who heads the San Antonio office, said chances of a person falling victim to violent crime were one in 240, and the chances of being murdered, robbed or assaulted in a city the size of San Antonio were one in 100.

"There can be no doubt about the fact that this nation has a crime problem," Colwell said.

News About People

GLEASON TO MARRY

MIAMI (UPI) — Entertainer Jackie Gleason, divorced less than a month from his second wife, will marry Marilyn Taylor Horwich, a widow he met 25 years ago, next Tuesday at a private Miami club.

Mrs. Horwich, who has a 13-year-old son, is a sister of June Taylor, whose dance troupe appeared on many of Gleason's television shows in the 1950s and 1960s.

She met the 57-year-old actor-comedian for the first time in 1950, when she was a member of the dance group appearing on the "Cavalcade of Stars" show in which Gleason starred. At the time, Gleason was estranged from his first wife, Genevieve, whom he divorced in 1969 after 33 years of marriage. A second marriage to Beverly McKittrick also ended in divorce Nov. 19.

Mrs. Horwich left show business in 1956 and moved to Chicago, where she later married businessman George Horwich.

The two were reunited last year when Mrs. Horwich moved to south Florida to be near her sister.

ROSE MARY RETIRES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, has retired from the government payroll.

The General Services Administration said Wednesday Miss Woods, who earned $36,000 a year, was on the federal payroll after Nixon resigned Aug. 9, 1974, until her own retirement Nov. 22. She was paid during that period as part of a transition staff arranged for the former president by Congress.

She reportedly will receive an annual pension of $15,000.

EQUAL TIME ASKED

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair says the Sam Houston State University Student Senate is violating the separation of church and state with a "Campus Crusade for Christ" and should either revoke its sponsorship or give her equal time to promote atheism.

Mrs. O'Hair said Wednesday the Student Senate voted to spend $200 from student registration fees at the state school to bring evangelist Josh McDonald to the Huntsville campus. "You must be appraised that this is a wholly unconstitutional exercise on your part and a serious breach of the principle of separation of state and church, upon which our nation was predicated," she said in a letter to the Senate.

"If you persist in the exercise of this impermissible involvement of state and church, I will have no other course than to demand a similar paid appearance for myself in order to discourse on the evils of state-church marriage and of Christianity." She said her fee was $2,000.

SCHOOLS HIRE DIZZY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Be-bop pioneer and jazz great Dizzy Gillespie will be blowing his curved trumpet for San Francisco school children.

The San Francisco School Board has voted to hire Gillespie and his group for $12,500 to perform a series of "workshops" at the city's public schools.

The project, financed by federal and state grants, was described as "designed to develop reading and math curriculum through jazz."

CAB MEMBER QUILTS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Civil Aeronautics Board member Robert D. Timm has resigned in protest against alleged harassment by White House staff members.

"My resignation is not voluntary but is submitted solely out of respect for the President," Timm said in a letter to President Ford Wednesday.

4 Not Responsible

I WILL NOT be responsible for any debts made by my wife except those at the Koyemski Shop, 110 E. Foster, for that is a debt of gratitude for good quality jewelry at a tremendous savings.

AS OF this date, December 9, 1975, I Stephen Gage will be responsible for no debts other than those incurred by me.

SINCE WHEN were you ever responsible for your debts let alone anyone else's? And I've never made any of your debts.

We Hold These Truths...
A Chronicle of America

December 12, 1775:

Congress' secret Committee of Five, established November 29 to seek support for the colonies abroad, writes to Arthur Lee, representing Congress in London: "It would be agreeable to Congress to know the disposition of foreign powers towards us, and we hope this object will engage your attention. We need not hint that great circumspection and impenetrable secrecy are necessary. The Congress rely on your zeal and abilities to serve them, and will readily compensate you for whatever trouble and expense a compliance with their desire may occasion.... We can now only add that we continue firm in our resolutions to defend ourselves, notwithstanding the big threats of the [British] ministry. We have just taken one of their ordnance storehouses, in which an abundance of ... bombs, intended for burning our towns, were found."

Convict Nabbed In Hoffa Hoax

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — FBI agents have arrested an escaped convict who allegedly gyped the CBS television network out of $10,000 by promising to lead cameramen to the body of former Teamster boss James R. Hoffa.

Clarence N. Medlin, who claimed he was a former Hoffa bodyguard, was arrested without resistance Wednesday at a downtown motel. He was held without bail for return to a federal "halfway house" in Greensboro, N.C., where he had been serving a 10-year sentence for interstate transportation of a stolen vehicle.

CBS said the 49-year-old Medlin, who served time in prison with Hoffa in Lewisburg, Pa., claimed Hoffa was taken to Florida following his abduction July 30.

Medlin said Hoffa was stabbed to death aboard a shrimp boat and his body was encased in concrete and dropped in 12 to 15 feet of water off Key West, CBS officials said.

The network said it paid $10,000 to a free-lance writer, Patrick O'Keefe, for information about the location of Hoffa's body and O'Keefe in turn gave the money to Medlin.

O'Keefe said the tipster disappeared with the CBS cash during a trip he said he was making to the burial spot.

Charges were deferred in the alleged theft while the FBI tried to determine if it had jurisdiction in the case.

Medlin had $3,000 when he was arrested. After his arraignment, he denied taking the CBS money.

"Did you take that money, Mr. Medlin?" he was asked.

"No. I detest all of this. CBS has released stories on me that isn't true. They don't have any permission from me whatsoever," he said as FBI agents led him away. "My life's been put in danger by the FBI."

Two New Orleans newspapers, The Times-Picayune and the weekly offices Tuesday trying to reveal the secret of Hoffa's burial ground. Both said they turned him down.

Both said they turned him down.

The Times-Picayune said Medlin visited the paper's offices "flashing a roll of $1,000 bills and declaring he knew the true story about what happened to his former boss."

Figaro editor James K. Glassman said Medlin, "a really tough looking guy," visited his office, showed a wad of cash and told reporter Jon Newlin he had a big story about the Teamsters.

"He never directly mentioned Hoffa, or I would have been a lot more interested," Glassman said. "Our office managers finally kicked him out and told him to get lost."

"He scared heck out of Newlin, but he told him he was taking a cab to the Holiday Inn. When we heard the FBI was looking for him, I called the FBI and told them where he said he was staying."

DEBT INCREASE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Total net public and private debt stood at $2,773 billion at the end of last year, according to the National Consumer Finance Association. The private debt share of this figure was 77 per cent, up three percentage points from five years earlier.

Quilting Club Completes 30

MOBETTIE — The Mt. View Quilting Club met recently to work on quilts belonging to the hostesses, Mrs. Mabel Dickey and Mrs. Bulah Grimes.

The 11 club members present completed Mrs. Grimes' quilt and plans are to finish Mrs. Dickey's quilt at the Dec. 18 Christmas party meeting.

The organization meets every other Thursday and reportedly completes more than 30 quilts each year.

Army 'Forgot' That Law Existed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — During the 1950s and early 1960s the Army, obeying a congressional mandate, put reserve officers on promotion boards to ensure fairness whenever the careers of other reservists were being determined.

Then, say Army lawyers, somebody apparently decided to ignore the law. By the post-Vietnam years, even its existence was forgotten.

Now both the law and the Army's disregard of it are back in the spotlight, put there by several hundred former career reservists who charge they were forced out of the service just short of retirement by illegal promotion board actions in 1974 and 1975.

Former Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway, for one, says he may have "inadvertently" failed to enforce the law because he did not know it existed. Callaway, now President Ford's campaign manager, says he learned about the law only recently and is "very embarrassed by that."

The legal battle between the cast-out officers and the Army has set in motion an unprecedented disclosure of the military promotion system's inner workings.

Capt. Ed Newton, an Army lawyer, said Wednesday promotion boards for years apparently have broken the 1952 law requiring them to include reserve officers when ruling on the careers of reservists. But, he argued, the omission caused "no substantial harm."

For that reason, Newton told a military review board, the Army sees no reason for the 1974 and 1975 promotion board decisions to be overturned.

The officers, banded together as the Promotion Research Committee, argued that the board should reverse the forced dismissals caused by the earlier promotion board actions and reinstate the officers involved.

The board memberships were illegal, the PRC said, and so were instructions Callaway gave the boards to put special emphasis on promoting young officers at the expense of older ones. As a result, the group said, many older officers were refused promotion twice and forced out.

The Army Board for Correction of Military Records, charged by a federal court to rule on the PRC challenge by Jan. 1, could overturn the promotion board decisions and recommend the reinstatement the former officers seek.

'Illegal Aliens Should Be Made Legal'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's top adviser on issues affecting Spanish-surnamed Americans says the government should bring the millions of aliens illegally in this country under the law instead of trying to arrest and deport them.

He urged legalizing those already in this country, saying it would be impossible to apprehend illegals "without turning the U.S. into a police state." But he proposed tighter laws to discourage more illegal aliens from coming.

Presidential assistant Fernando E.C. deBaca said Wednesday, "It is imperative to regularize the status of such persons so that they will not be exploited and they can better integrate themselves in our society as a whole." He said there should be a "systematic approach ... to understanding and describing the problem and the characteristics of the people who want to come to the U.S. badly enough to break the law to get here."

His statement was issued on the eve of today's meeting between 35 leaders in the Republican National Hispanic Assembly and President Ford on issues important to the Latino community.

The deBaca statement may have been intended to weaken the illegal aliens issue for the Democratic National Conference of Spanish Surnamed Elected Officials whose steering committee will meet Saturday and Sunday in Phoenix, Ariz. Many of the Latinos attending the first meeting of the Democratic group here last month voiced their opposition to pending legislation supported by the administration that would crack down on illegals.

They said the bill would create job and police discrimination against U.S. citizens of Latin descent as well as legal aliens. DeBaca called for tightening penalties for entering the United States illegally, including making violators ineligible for future visas, and suggested a cut-off date allowing illegals already in the United States to assume legal status while preventing a continued flow of unregistered aliens.

Of the more than eight million illegal aliens, he said, 5,222,000 are from Mexico.
