With 300 Animals Entered, Stock Show Officials See 'Biggest-Ever' Junior Livestock Show Certain

With more than 300 animals expected for this year's event, the 1966 edition of the Bailey County Junior Stock Show March 10 - 11 - 12 is expected to be the biggest in history. Plans for the event, to be held in the school bus barn were completed this week at a meeting of the board of directors.

Eugene Black, the board chairman, appointed Leon Lewis superintendent of the steer show, to be assisted by Gordon Murray.

Lewis Seegun will again serve as swine division superintendent, assisted by Carl Polard and Buford Bates. Pete Black will run the sheep show. Black also is general secretary of the show.

The directors announced that the show will begin at 2:15 p.m. in the huge bus barn of Muleshoe high school with the showing of breeding guilts kicking off the event. Gilts will be shown by breeds, beginning with Berkshires and following an alphabetical order by breeds. Barrows will follow gilts, and steers will be paraded outdoors if weather permits. If weather is not ideal, they will be shown indoors, followed by steers.

Bleachers will be moved in and the public is promised a first-class show where quality is stressed over quantity.

Funds for the big show were presented to the secretary, Pete Black, and to representatives of 4-H and FFA by Mrs. Patricia Bobo; general treasurer of the Muleshoe Area United Fund, the agency which sponsors the show each year. (See picture page 1). The UP is providing $3025 for the show's premium list this year. At the fund presentation ceremony, Darla Kendall represented the 4-H and Morris Lewis, president of the Muleshoe chapter, represented the Future Farmers of America.

The livestock show this year follows Texas Public Schools Weeks when all schools here will observe open house ceremonies earlier in the week. Attendance at all events is expected to be larger than usual.

Livestock are to be brought in by the young folk March 10 from 1 until 6 p.m. and grouped for the show. Judging will begin at 1:30 p.m. March 11.

Eligibility will be restricted to 4-H and FFA boys and girls who are supervised by the county agent or the vocational agriculture teachers of Bailey county. They also must be attending school in Bailey county.

Meantime, the highway patrol was expressing concern about the slowness with which automobiles were being inspected this year. Response has been slow with April 15 as the deadline. During the past five and one-half months only 2,000,000 or 40 per cent of the approximately 5,000,000 registered vehicles in Texas have been inspected. This leaves 3,000,000 vehicles to be inspected in approximately two months. If the number of uninspected vehicles were divided evenly among the 5,200 official inspection stations in Texas each would have approximately 577 vehicles to inspect in about 40 working days, or about 15 vehicles per day. The inspection stations in

Plans Complete; Trinity to Add New Auditorium

Trinity Baptist Church, downtown Southern Baptist congregation founded in 1858, will launch a building program between now and March 1 which will provide a new 93 by 50-foot auditorium, and Rev. Troy Walker, pastor, announced Saturday.

The new unit, to cost $52,000, will be finished in three months' construction time, the pastor said.

Meantime, improvised classrooms are being set up. A young men's class, for instance, will meet in the Sanitary Barber shop, and two small trailer buses are being moved onto the lot to provide classroom meeting places.

The new structure will seat approximately 400 persons. Charles Bratcher is chairman of the building committee. Others, in addition to the chairman and the pastor, are Walter Sain, Marvin Lewis, Durwood Patterson, Doyle King, Whit Barber and Lester Baker.

This is the second building program during the five and a half years under Mr. Walker's pastorate. An $18,000 education building was erected in 1961.

During Mr. Walker's pastorate, the church has counted more than 100 baptisms and more than 400 additions to the church.

The area where the new auditorium is to be located was formerly occupied by two residences which have been moved off the property.

George Airs Views On Registration

AUSTIN — State Representative Jesse T. George, Bailey County's Austin lawmaker, recalled to Austin for a special legislative session called by Gov. John Connally, pointed today to the necessity for the 59th Legislature to pass a voter registration law.

Timing of the three-judge federal court decision in Austin that the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting is unconstitutional makes action imperative, he said.

"This has been brought on, not by our choosing", Rep. George pointed out, "but by the federal court action which creates an immediate and critical problem which must be met by the Legislature."

"I certainly realize the concern of all of you in our district on just what will be developed as a voter registration bill, and with others, am conscientiously working towards getting the best answer possible to this serious problem. Many of you are vitally interested in just what this means as far as the fast-approaching elections are concerned," George continued.

A voter registration bill agreeing in the main with recommendations advanced by Gov. Connally in his address before a joint session of the Legislature Monday, was introduced by State Rep. Gene Fondren of Taylor, and has been referred to the House State Affairs Committee. Public hearings are scheduled for Wednesday afternoon in the House.

"I signed as co-author of the bill and am among the 78 who are actively supporting the legislation at this time," said Rep. George. "We are working towards a two-thirds majority vote necessary in the House to make the legislation immediate."

'Basic 4 Group' Is Background For Homemaking

When people speak of high school homemaking classes, they usually think that the girls just learn to cook. There is more to this course than meets the eye.

For instance in Homemaking I, the girls study the Basic Four Food Groups. If a woman knows how to use the Basic Four to the best of her ability, she will be able to prepare and serve attractive and nourishing meals.

The girls learn how to shop for foods and do it economically. This is especially good for young married women to know.

The girls start with preparing simple dishes or meals. They advance into the study of meat and vegetable cookery. In the Homemaking III classes, they prepare foreign dishes and casseroles.

I believe that the Muleshoe High School homemaking department has a well-rounded foods education program.

BACK IN HIGH SCHOOL — Mrs. Kathy Ann Cooper, 16, cuddles her seven-month-old daughter, Tina Marie, innocent source of Mrs. Cooper's fight with the Alvin school board. Board policy prohibits married students with children from attending classes. Mrs. Cooper, who dropped out of Alvin High School last year and gave birth, filed a suit against the board. A district court judge has indicated he will rule in her favor, and Mrs. Cooper enrolled in the high school as a sophomore. The board plans to challenge the enrollment. (AP Photo)

Murrah Touring Venezuelan Plants

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here's another letter from Gordon Murrah touring South America with a group of North American farmers.

Thursday night at Maracay. Another busy day. Visited cigarette factory this morning. Quite an operation. After the cigarette factory visited tobacco experiment farm. It is a new plant and not yet complete. Hope to have some good pictures there. They had an almost new tractor with a hole in a rear tire. It had been patched by bolting in a patch with four bolts. I didn't get to find out if it was temporary or if there is no vulcanizing service here.

They did get the tobacco seed from the US — We don't send them any now and I wonder why. They make Philip Morris, Marlboro and a lot of other brands. Ralph is the only one of our bunch who smokes. He says they are not as good as US cigarettes. After the experiment farm - went to tobacco growers Co-op.

They have a lot of machinery for their members - fertilizer too. Seems all farm machinery is imported — from everywhere. Everyone we meet seems really interested in us and want to show us around. It seems that everyone who is a leader in agriculture has been schooled in the US. Anyone who knows any English at all will try to talk to you.

Maracay lies in a large flat mountain valley at about 1500 ft. elevation with high mountains on the north. Almost all farms are electrified some electric motor on irrigation wells. Electric lines are overhead here but in Caracas you see no overhead wires. There are not as many lights as our cities — especially colored neon lights.

And you can't imagine these narrow crooked streets — many dead end — and the people — they ride lots of bicycles. Maracay is about 20 miles inland — as the crow flies — and in that span you climb to 8000 feet and drop back to 1500 and pass through four belts of vegetation.

The lower elevations are covered with deciduous vegetation mostly and much of it goes dormant in the dry season. Then an elevation suited to Cocao, bread coffee and rubber and higher up is the rain forest, a virtual jungle. There is a large concrete building up there that houses a nice museum of natural life of the forest.

We will be going to Calabozo tomorrow and that is rice country of the local FFA Chapter. Lewis is well qualified for the position. He has served on winning Chapter Conducting teams which gave him excellent training in parliamentary procedure. Morris also holds the Lone Star Farmer Degree awarded by the State Association.

Other Chapter officers include Jerry Redvine — Vice President, Ricky Barrett — Secretary, Clifford Black — Treasurer, Rodger Bahman — Reporter, and Larry Seales — Sentinel, Bill Bickel and Keith Bray. Vocational Agriculture Teachers serve as chapter Advisors.

The Chapter Will Come to Order". This is a familiar call to members as the president of FFA chapters over the United States open FFA meetings.

try. We will be staying in homes. If we are with people we could talk to I am afraid there will be some short nights. Visited Nelson Rockefeller farm at Acariqua. We had a large herd of Santa Gertrudes on irrigated pasture. Trying to grow grain sorghums. Have rice and processing plant. Manager is from Georgia.

Tuesday we visited a large compoing project being developed. It will eventually cover 2,133,000 acres and settle about 200 thousand families. The homes will be assembled in pabladros — villages with all services available — schools — medical — machinery — cultural — credit — etc. This project is intended not as a family farm but as a subsistence farm until the children can be educated and take their place in industry and service. I have my doubts that it will ever be successful.

On to Turin — again to be spent in homes. How will we be received? It could not have been better. We are overwhelmingly welcomed everywhere we are with the people long enough to get acquainted. Much English spoken here. I am a young couple. Married two years. He is Cheek and lived in Germany and Canada. Have just bought their farm and are in modest circumstances.

Of all things their water system failed and they are so embarrassed. Wednesday night everyone went to the home of a Texas bar-b-que supper. A Texan for bar-b-que supper.

Last night was a party at Association school. Entertainment was music and native dancing by boys and girls of vocational school.

— Barinos — This Ed Zimmerman is some guy. Always finds someone from the states. Before we could all get registered here up he comes with Chuck Nelson (Indiana). Well he wants me to go out and look at his sesame; they're having a problem gathering. So here I am — an expert.

Some of the men who migrated here have told us that when they first came they were balls of fire for about two months then were completely exhausted so the routine is work a long morning. Ivan's laborers work from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. and call it a day. The nights are cool enough for comfort but afternoon heat is rather oppressive.

The hotels all have pools. I believe the highlights of our trip is where we have been guests of the people in their homes. At times Waltz and Joe even find the language difficult in Turin their host was French and her Spanish had a French accent which was almost enough to stop him.

At Acariqua we visited a cotton gin. It is a large unit with the same machinery we use. Murry - Moss - Gordon, etc. The bales are tied with large galvanized wire but are standard size and weight. The big difference is in handling of seed cotton. It is picked cotton and brought in on trucks in large burlap bags.

The bags are emptied into large storage houses until there is enough for the gin to run. I didn't see how the seeds are handled but everything else here is in bags. The rice companies all have baggers on them. Yesterday they were unloading corn from Columbia at the elevator off a semi-trailer bag by bag.

You can't imagine the height and steepness and ruggedness of these Andes Mountains. They farm mountain sides so steep you walk sideways to come down. There's no way for me to describe this and you will never know what it is like unless you can see it.

There are high mountains, deep canyons, waterfalls, winding roads, little houses with little coffee drying yards and pigs, sheep, goats, cattle, burros, chickens and naked children around them. Coffee drying on the highway. Houses and farm plots high on the mountains with no visible way to reach them and so high they are almost out of sight.

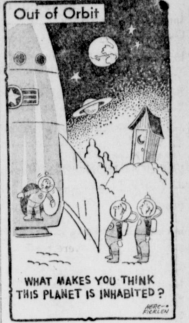

A little coffee hulling mill with loaded pack mules standing around. A woman washing clothes at a spring beside the road and another baking in a mud oven. Stopped for dinner at a nice hotel with a trout pool — it's cool up here. Time to go so hang on for we have a long way to go up yet and a long, long way to go down. Do they actually farm these mountain sides? They're so steep that one is farmed all over and there are mountains and valleys with rock fences and farms stacked on top of each other.

Here's a bulldozer and an ox team and sprinkler irrigation in the same field. A Fordson tractor plowing down the hill, digging back up and plowing back down again. We topped the pass at 12,000 feet and back down where there are bananas growing. The fields are mostly brown — must be a pretty sight when green.

There's the cable car coming down, the longest and highest in the world. We must be near Merida. There is an old man sitting by a rock wall and a woman and child standing. He's a little thick red man in the center of each square; fold over to make small triangles and seal edges. Bake on a cookie sheet in a hot oven. Sift confectioners sugar over the jam turnovers and serve for snacking or as a mealtime dessert.

Roll out leftover pie dough and cut into 2-inch squares. Put a little thick red jam in the center of each square; fold over to make small triangles and seal edges. Bake on a cookie sheet in a hot oven. Sift confectioners sugar over the jam turnovers and serve for snacking or as a mealtime dessert.

Some good cooks like to brush lamb chops (before they are broiled) with garlic flavored salad oil. To prepare the oil, let it stand for several hours or overnight with a peeled and cut clove of garlic in it.

Stainless Steel Carpets? That's What The Woman Says Are Coming Up Next

Think twice before discarding those used stainless steel razor blades. The textile industry may soon want them for fibers to turn into carpets and rugs, says Mrs. Jane Berry, Texas A&M home furnishings specialist.

Stainless steel may well be the next carpet fiber on the market and the transition from razor blades to rugs may offer opportunity for development, according to leaders in the home furnishings industry. Finely drawn stainless could well be the next major industry development, they predict. They emphasize that ultra-fine steel filaments are already being knitted and woven into many textile structures for space age requirements, including grids and meshes for special military needs and survival gear for astronauts.

One of the most recent developments comes from a Swedish firm that has successfully processed stainless steel into fibers 7,000th of a millimeter thick. The steel fibers can be woven into materials resembling normal light weight textiles.

Mrs. Berry said the filaments are reported to be soft to the touch and show possibilities for use in carpets and rugs that would never wear out. An advantage of the new material is that the steel acts as a conductor, resulting in static-free floor covering and garments.

Several companies in the United States are currently engaged in research designed to perfect metal fibers that can be successfully woven or knitted into fabrics suitable for apparel and home furnishings.

The club finished their scrapbook during the past week and sent it to Sears Roebuck Foundation for judging. The community improvement project included the library and the landscaping of the mule memorial. The club worked on their press books during the meetings also.

The club will meet Thursday in the home of Mrs. W. T. Andrews.

Jubilee Tea Slated For Study Club

During the past week several called meetings were observed by the Muleshoe Study Club. The Diamond Jubilee celebrating commemorating the 75th anniversary of general anniversaries for federation of women's clubs will be observed on March 3 at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the First National Bank room. Also at this tea Mrs. S. L. Benefield will be honored as the teacher of the year; Mrs. Less Bruns as the mother of the year and Mrs. Rufil Gilbreath as the club woman of the year.

'Total' Agriculture Due for Tomorrow

By M. A. Brown
Director and Professor
Agriculture Department
Sam Houston State College

Have you read what today's U. S. leaders are predicting for the leadership of tomorrow in this country? Have you detected their note of pessimism when discussing the ability of private citizens to make wise decisions? Well I have, and I feel challenged!

"Leadership by private individuals in the U. S. is declining rapidly," wrote John W. Gardner. "As a result," he concluded, "More and more decisions should be dealt with in the private sector end up being dealt with by government." Mr. Gardner concluded, "the sad truth is that a great many of our organizations are badly managed or badly led."

Mr. Gardner included these remarks in his introduction to the recent annual report of the Carnegie Corporation. He is president of the corporation but is on indefinite leave to serve as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Does Mr. Gardner include farm organizations among those "badly managed or badly led"? Is he concerned about trends in such groups as the FFA? I wonder.

In a separate yet somewhat similar article, Bill Durham reported in the Houston Post, "that the USDA has instructed the farmer committeemen elected to administer the pro-grams of the Agricultural Sta-bilization and Conservation Administration to broaden the scope of their interests."

He wrote that, "They are being told to take an interest in problems of the whole rural community not just those pertaining to production?"

"Does it mean that in the future a farmer can expect to receive advice and help from local ASCS committeemen in making all sorts of decisions affecting his life? Whether he needs or desires help?"

Perhaps we should take a closer look at our organization and see where we're going. What's ahead in agriculture, and how does FFA fit in?"

It seems apparent from what Gardner and Durham wrote that superior leadership training of future agriculturists is becoming more and more im-pertative. Farmers and others in our U. S. agricultural indus-tries will be challenged on leadership decisions in the future. Not only by competitors and government partners with-in Agriculture, but also by dy-namic outside competition.

Former Undersecretary of Agriculture True D. Morse un-derscored these points quite clearly as he predicted future trends in agriculture during a recent talk in Denver. Mr. Morse suggested:

"Competition between farm

Study Centers On Clothing, Textile Study

In the Homemaking Department of Muleshoe High School a part of one semester is devoted to clothing and textiles.

In Homemaking I the students study the types of fabrics, their weaves, and uses. This is the first step in clothing construction. After studying line and style the student has a good basis for picking out a pattern that will look attractive on her. She then selects an appropriate material in just the right color and is ready to sew.

The Homemaking I student usually makes skirts and blouses, however, if a girl is advanced in sewing she may try making a garment that will be more challenging to her.

Homemaking II is, of course, more advanced than Homemaking I. The students make dresses with convertible collars, set-in sleeves, waistlines, belts, and machine buttonholes. These are usually made from solid or printed cotton fabrics, but if a girl is more advanced she may use plaids or stripes to create a challenge.

Homemaking III students study tailoring. Each makes a garment such as a suit, coat, or jumper which must be lined. The garment is made from wool. Each girl is required to hand in a sample of a bound buttonhole if her garment does not have one.

When the students have finished their garments they feel they have really accomplished something. Their reward is a new ensemble and they can hardly wait to find a place to wear it.

The Muleshoe Homemaking Department provides scheduled advancement through the three years offered. They offer a challenge and a reward for each student.

By Carolia Bass

E. V. Harrelson of Ellinwood, Kan., dropped in a trotline baited with a toad at Kanopolis Reservoir Oct. 1 and pulled out a 29-pound, 14-ounce buffalo fish. The Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission certified the catch as a species record, exceeding by one pound, 11-ounces the previous record catch made by James Webster of Topeka.

Morse added, "American agriculture has made more progress during the past 15 to 20 years than in all prior recorded history. Authorities are saying that technological and other advances may be even more rapid during the next 15 years."

It appears that agricultural leaders have more than met challenges to date. Will leaders capable of moving our industry ahead as predicted, continue to be developed in the years ahead? The leaders of America can aid greatly in this development as they have in the past.

There are found among alumni of the FFA, agriculturists who are demonstrating daily that they have the ability to provide dynamic leadership for the future. Young men like Bob-by Traveek of Dublin, Texas, who has already raised annual production in his dairy herd above 16,000 pounds of milk per cow, yet is aiming to surpass the 20,000 level.

Or like Edward Phillips, who took a $1000 city bank loan and some borrowed farm machinery and set out to demonstrate that a young man can get started in farming. His present 1200 acres of field corn, 500 of pop-corn, 300 of grain sorghum and 200 of soybeans near Columbus, Ohio, provide pretty convincing evidence.

Men like Royce Bolidford, Farm Service Director of KE-EL, Shreveport; Warren Land-wermeyer, President of Magnolia Seed, Hardware and Implement Company at Dallas; John Duncum at Paris, Regional appraiser for Prudential Insurance Company; or E. C. "Dick" Weekley, General Manager of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo.

A chat with any one of these men would disclose his leadership qualities and potential. One would be impressed by the tech-nical and enthusiastic optimism; and the thorough knowledge of sound human relations being displayed. If questioned, most would list the knowledge of human relations as being might-ily essential for effective leadership.

What makes these agricul-tural leaders so effective in their relationships with people?

They take the initiative in speaking to others. They smile at people and call them by name. They're friendly and helpful. They are cordial and genuinely interested in others. They praise generously and criticize cautiously. And they stay alert to give service.

Who shall lead agriculture to-morrow? I believe that it will be men like those characterized above. Men well trained in modern technical agriculture, who seek for still greater know-ledge. Men well drilled in lead-ership skills through partici-pation in organizations like the FFA. Above all, men with the courage to make bold decisions, and the self respect and self discipline to take full responsibility for their decisions.

commodities and between food items will increase. Higher protein corn will offer more competition for the protein market. Milk protein and solid-fat will face more competition.

"Combination, or formula feeds with names not related to farm sources, will become more common. Frankfurters helped lead the way."

"Much of the old-time kitchen cooking will become largely a lost art. Big central kitchens of industry will do more and more of the cooking. More and more of our food will reach homes and public eating places in ready-mixed, ready-to-serve, or in heat-and-serve form."

"There will be growing competition for the products of the larger and better managed farms, ranches, and feed lots. They will be the ones which can give assurance of regular supplies of products of pre-determined quality."

"There will be more per-manent money invested in farms and other agricultural enterprises. This is the kind of financing that has speeded the development of other industries and businesses."

"I'M GOING BACK TO SCHOOL" — Felix "Buddy" Fesmire Jr., said he intended to finish school when asked about his future plans following his acquittal of murder charges in connection with the June 8, 1964 slaying of Amarillo policeman, William S. Meadows. Fesmire is returning to Sacramento, Calif., with his mother, Mrs. Mary Mills, with whom he is shown. (AP Photo)

lately effective upon passage." Briefly, the bill calls for an annual registration without fee and provides for an 120-day period between Oct. 1 and Jan. 31 for voters to register. This is the same period in which voters have presently qualified either by paying their poll tax or acquiring certificates of exemption.

The bill also provides for a 15-day period this year in which voters who did not pay their poll tax by Jan. 31 can register. Those who hold poll tax receipts would automatically be registered. Those who register this year during the special 15-day period would be qualified to vote in the next election following if the Supreme Court upholds the district court ruling on the unconstitutionality of the poll tax.

"I believe that the majority of the representatives want to pass an annual registration bill; however, we are anticipating some opposition from those who prefer permanent registration," Rep. George stated. "I favor the annual registration as the best means of keeping the elections pure; it also appears that a permanent registration bill would become unconstitutional if the voter amendment calling for annual registration to be submitted to Texas voters this November is adopted," he added.

Discussing the plan as proposed in the bill introduced Monday for voter registration without fee, Rep. George said there apparently is no alternative. "It is abundantly clear," he said, "that such a fee would doubtless be regarded just as unconstitutional as the poll tax fee, as it would constitute an invalid charge on the right to vote."

It is probable, Rep. George said, that an amendment to the voter registration bill will be introduced to provide for the State to bear the cost of voter registration for this year only. The original bill makes no provision for "picking up the tab" which otherwise could fall to the respective counties.

A suggested alternative method of relieving the counties of the burden of further registration costs, he asserted, is the revision of percentages allotted counties and the State from motor vehicle license plate fees, and 50 per cent of that collected from $50,000 to $175,000. All in excess of $175,000 goes directly to the State. This percentage could be altered slightly to provide additional funds for counties to cover cost of registration. Such action could be forthcoming in the 60th session of the Legislature next year, George emphasized.

George further declared, "Because we are in this transitional period, and because of the several contingencies which must be met, it is vitally necessary to act upon a voter registration bill with both urgency and responsibility." Referring to the recent ruling on the unconstitutionality of the Texas poll tax, George pointed out that the district court ruling was contrary to rulings by the Supreme Court on four occasions. In all previous Supreme Court decisions, the last as recently as 1953, George explained, "the Court has upheld the right of a state to impose a poll tax as a requisite for voting in state elections."

The Supreme Court now has under review a Virginia case which could be ruled on at any time, the representative added. "Until the Supreme Court has spoken, the question of constitutionality cannot be finally resolved, especially since the rulings of the Austin federal court are contrary to the previous ruling of the Supreme Court," he said.

"Certainly I will endeavor to keep you informed as to the progress being made on the voter registration bill," George concluded, "and welcome any comments or suggestions you may have to offer. Your fine support and cooperation in the past have been genuinely appreciated and I continue to earnestly solicit it. Please feel free to call upon me in any way that I can be of service to you."

Expert Suggests Protein Feeding 2 Times a Week

Cattlemen may be able to save money and time by feeding protein supplement twice a week during the winter rather than daily feeding.

Research done by Texas A&M University scientists indicates feeding protein supplement twice a week is just as satisfactory as feeding daily or three times a week. This doesn't mean feeding less protein—just feeding larger amounts less frequently.

The result from twice weekly feeding: about a 60 percent saving of labor and travel compared to daily feeding.

The research was done by A. A. Melton, associate animal husbandman at A&M's McGregor field station and J. K. Riggs, professor in the Animal Science Department at A&M. It was done in the Trans-Pecos area, but the researchers say less frequent feeding may well apply to most other areas of Texas.

Melton said winter roughage for range cattle in the Southwest usually consists of dried native grass. The dried grass may provide adequate energy but be deficient in protein during the winter and spring months. Thus, the need for protein supplement.

The common practice is feeding cottonseed cake or other protein on a daily basis. As labor and transportation costs increase, cattlemen are looking for labor saving systems of supplemental feeding. One of these methods is feeding less frequently.

Until now, there has been little or no research to indicate that cattle perform satisfactorily on less than daily supplemental feeding. However, some cattlemen have been mixing salt with cottonseed meal or other concentrate to help self-feeding, yet limit consumption. Some blend urea with molasses to permit self feeding.

For the most part, these have proved satisfactory.

In the A&M test, three groups of Hereford cows and heifers were wintered for four years. All groups got the same amount of cottonseed cake each week—only the frequency of feeding was varied between groups.

One group got two pounds of cottonseed cake per head daily the first year, and three pounds daily the last three years of the test.

The second group was fed seven pounds each on Tuesdays and Saturdays during the first year, and 10.5 pounds on Tuesdays and Saturdays the last three years of the test.

Group three got four and two-thirds pounds per head on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays the first year and seven pounds on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays the last three years.

Total gain for the 4-year test was slightly in favor of the cows fed twice weekly. Cattle fed three times weekly gained 535 pounds, those fed daily gained 564 pounds and those fed twice weekly weaned an 85.6 percent calf crop and those cows fed twice weekly weaned an 89 percent calf crop.

The researchers point out these figures are not significantly in favor of the twice weekly feeding until the saving of time and labor is evaluated.

Then the 60 percent advantage shows — and that can mean a big saving for cattlemen.

When the Dodgers' Sandy Koufax pitched 27 complete games last season it was the most by a Dodger since 1924 when Burling Grimes and Dazzy Vance both completed 30. No southpaw in the National League has pitched more complete games since 1921 when Wilbur Cooper of the Pirates completed 29.

Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers if over .500 against every National League team except the Cincinnati Reds who boast an 18-17 edge. Koufax has registered his most victories against the Phillies having defeated them 19 times in 26 decisions.

The muddy waters of the Missouri River meet the clearer Mississippi north of St. Louis, but each river retains its identity for more than 35 miles before blending into a uniform color.

Feed Grain Set Record Yields, College Claims

The production of feed grains in the nation set a new record in 1965. Yields were 18 percent higher than in 1964 and 11 percent above the previous record set in 1963, reports John G. McHaney, Extension economist at Texas A&M University.

The record per acre yields increased the supply for 1965-66 by 10 million tons above the previous year but the 217 million tons available, McHaney explains, is 5 million tons below the 1959-63 average.

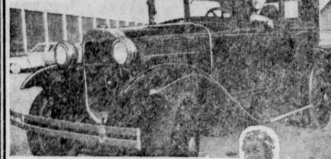

The disappearance of feed grains is expected to increase during 1965-66 and may reach 157 million tons or 5 to 6 million above the past year and above the 1961-66 record. Lower feed grain prices and generally favorable livestock feed-price ratios, feeding livestock to heavier weights and an 8 to 10 percent increase in exports were cited by McHaney as major factors in the total disappearance picture. Despite the bright picture some 5 million tons will be added to the carryover at the end of the marketing year he said due to the big 1965 production.

As for sorghum grain, McHaney said Texas produced a lot of the record 655 million bushels, 34 percent higher than the 1964 crop. This large crop raised the supply to 1,221 million bushels, 7 percent above last year but lightly below the previous record supply of 1963-64.

McHaney said domestic use of sorghum grain is expected to substantially increase during the 1965-66 year due to the large crop and expected lower prices. Exports should equal the record of 148 million bushels of last year. Total disappearance is expected to increase by 7 per-major factors putting downward pressure on prices, he said. Out prices are likely to average below those of a year ago for the remainder of the 1965-66 marketing year, predicts McHaney. Barley prices, on the other hand, are expected to remain high in relation to corn and other feed grains because of the below average production and reduced carryover.

THIS IS FFA WEEK Muleshoe FFA Chief Ranking High in State

Muleshoe's FFA program, planned carefully to fit the needs of each particular youth, is paying off in money and education. This was pointed out this week as Muleshoe marks FFA week.

Supervised farming programs are among the most important educational activities conducted in the Muleshoe FFA Chapter. To have individual farming programs that will contribute to the educational experience of everyone, much planning and organizing must take place.

Having good supervised farming programs provides life-like problems to be studied in the v-o-g classroom. Instead of the instruction being taken from "make-believe" situations, students are able to learn about scientific farming by using their own farm problems. Such makes learning more enjoyable and meaningful.

It is no wonder then, with supervised farming activities being so important that members of the Muleshoe FFA Chapter spend so much time in planning well-rounded supervised farming programs for each member. Such planning pays big dividends — in the form of dollars and education.

Other Industries Subsidized Too, Farm Experts Point Out

Other industries 3 30 build... "The government is going broke subsidizing farmers." This is a statement frequently made by non-farmers.

It's true that farmers are subsidized. But a less emphasized fact is that airlines, schools, the petroleum industry, housing, shipping, and many more are also subsidized by the government.

Subsidies may come either directly or indirectly. Many companies receive indirect subsidies by tax write-off plans. Just try to name a large business that doesn't receive some type of government aid.

For every $1,000 this country has spent for subsidies during the past 50 years, only $5 has gone to the American farmer. It's no wonder that farmers get awfully tired of the adverse criticism directed at them. It's discouraging to farmers to have to defend half-truths about the $5 billion the government takes from the taxpayers to run the national agricultural budget when in reality food and fiber have been at bargain prices compared to other cost-of-living items.

What comprises the agricultural budget? And how much of the budget is for farmers?

Many of the items in the agricultural budget have nothing to do with supporting farm prices but are primarily a public service. For example, meat inspection has been a $17 million item and this service is to assure the public a safe supply of meat. Other public services include the government school lunch program, victims of national disasters, the needy abroad, and many others. Farmers feel that the costs of these should not be charged to agriculture alone.

The fact remains that sooner or later the government must collect from taxpayers every dollar that it spends. The money lost on tax supports must be made up in taxes. And neither the rural taxpayer nor the city taxpayer is satisfied with a situation such as this. When the government spends money on farm surpluses, it must be collected from taxpayers. Why, then, isn't something done about the problem of surpluses?

A farmer works with an uncontrollable business partner — nature. Sun, wind and rains control his cash register like a fickle bookkeeper. No single farmer can do much about changing the supply of food, fiber, and tobacco coming to market. Farmers, collectively can't picture just exactly what our nation demands. Agriculture is a biological process which cannot be greatly accelerated or retarded in any short time.

Another problem in controlling surpluses is the fact that 90 per cent of our production is accomplished by 2.1 million farmers. Some 2.4 million farmers struggle to produce the remaining 10 per cent.

What farm programs have been tried so far to control surpluses? Two broad approaches have been taken by Congress. One approach was to build floors under prices to assure farmers' minimum guarantees for his basic crops. Another approach was designed to cut down acreages of crops on the assumption that if less is planted, surpluses will melt away and prices will go up on their own.

These programs have been successful in that they have caused farmers to become more efficient in their production of farm commodities. If farmers today farmed as they did 20 years ago, the consumers' food bill would be at least $13 billion a year higher than it currently is. So the question is: Is it better to have a surplus costing the consumer $3.4 billion a year in taxes, or to save him $13 billion a year on food?

What about the future of agriculture? We can't hope to immediately eat our way out of our surpluses, but while we are working our way out of them, let's understand just what the situation really is.

1. Consumers should continue to benefit from agricultural research and marketing research which is now being emphasized as it never has been before.

2. You may feel that food prices are higher than formerly, but remember that you are getting much more for your money than you did.

3. Most of our increased prices are due to inflation rather than inefficiency in production and marketing of food.

4. In 1947 the average factory employee had to work 30 minutes to earn enough to buy one pound of choice steak. In 1957 he had to work only 18 minutes.

5. Consumers have demanded many conveniences in their food, all of which costs money. And little, if any, of this money for "extras" gets back to the farmer.

'Medium Late' Hybrids Topped Sorghum Tests

COLLEGE STATION — Rice County. Pioneer 820 and mance tests grown at 14 locations in Texas have been released by Texas A&M University.

Medium-late hybrids generally had the highest yields, but in some areas, hybrids of medium maturity performed well, said D. T. Rosenow and T. E. Haddox, agronomists at A&M's South Plains Research and Extension Center, Lubbock.

Grain sorghum production was estimated at an all-time high of over 285 million bushels in 1965 — a 32 per cent increase over 1964. A record 52 bushels per acre average in the state was produced.

The grain sorghum test results by land resource areas are: Coastal Bend area: tests were grown in Bee and San Patricio Counties. Pioneer 820 and 826 topped the 2 year average, with RS 671 a close third.

Upper Gulf Coast: tests grown near Angleton. Pioneer 846 had the highest 3-year average. Other hybrids performing near the top were T-E Grainmaster, Pioneer 820, RS 671, NK 212 and Rigo.

Rio Grande Plain and Southwest Texas Riverbottom: tests were grown at Uvalde and College Station. T-E 77 has the top 3-year average, with RS 671, Bonanza and Pioneer 846 also performing well.

Central and Southern Blackland: tests grown at Thrall, Temple, McGregor, and San Antonio. Top yields in this area were NK 222, Horizon 61, RS 671, PAG 515, and Pioneer 846.

North Blacklands: tests grown in Denton and Grayson Counties. HT 44, T-E Grainmaster, RS 627, Pioneer 846, and Frontier 410E were the top yielders.

A&M agronomists remind that factors other than yield to be considered when selecting a hybrid grain sorghum for 1966 are resistance to head smut, resistance to lodging, and how rapidly the head dries.

For the 1965 season the Kansas City Athletics drew 528,264 fans, lowest of any team in the major leagues.

Study in Love, Patience Forms Basic Subject

Most will agree that the basic principals of the term, "Child Care" are love and patience. A child thrives on love from his parents from the moment he is born until he becomes an adult. Patience carries a child and his parents across many stormy seas. It is love that awakes Mother at 2 A.M. to change and feed her baby; and it is patience that gets her up again at 3 A.M. for the same purpose.

This is only one phase of what a Home Economics student learns about the care of children during her courses in Homemaking. She also learns what to expect from different-aged children, different methods of discipline, and the development of children. However, the basic principals remain unchanged: love and patience are necessities for the development of a happy family.

By Ruth Ann Duckworth

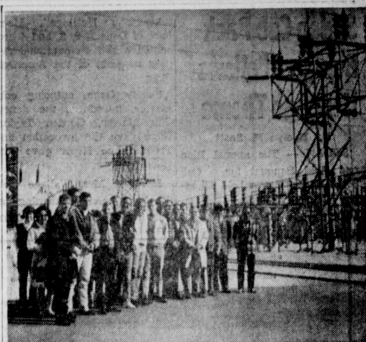

taken when children learn that living in families is satisfying, and when boys and girls learn to think of themselves as masculine and feminine. Childhood play is followed by teenage dating, which at first is done for fun but eventually usually leads to choosing the one person a young man or woman wants to know best.

Men and women customarily make their own choices of marriage partners; so they must get to know many people from whom to choose, and the most develop standards of what is to be sufficient for marriage. Love takes account of the beloved's real self, including the shortcomings. If you love enough to marry you care deeply about the other persons happiness and well-being.

Engagement is a time for growth of the relationship between a couple who intend to marry. They grow in understanding one another, make plans for the future, and learn to fit into each other's families.

A wedding is important to the people who get married to their families and friends, and the community, state, and nation. It deserves thoughtful planning. During the honeymoon, a married couple begins a new phase of their relationship. Their love deepens and broadens in a realistic way. Starting from the base of the understanding and communication that has been built up during engagement, the husband and wife make many decisions during the first months of marriage that become the foundation of their life together.

Married people can grow both individually and together, love, companionship, and communication bind two partners together as a pair. There are many more successful marriages than there are failures. Many failures can be laid to immature personalities and conflict-

Donald Taylor Gets Promotion

First Lieutenant Donald O. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Taylor, Muleshoe, recently qualified for carrier landings aboard the aircraft carrier USS Lexington, operating in the Gulf of Mexico, while undergoing advanced jet flight training at Kingsville.

A graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., Lieutenant Taylor entered the Navy in July 1960.

In order to qualify, he had to make six successful takeoffs and landings from the deck of the carrier.

Prior to making the landings at sea, the student aviator must qualify on field carrier landing strips which simulate, on the ground, a carrier's flight deck. This helps the student adjust himself to the restricted landing area on the deck of the carrier.

WE CONGRATULATE THE FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

THE FUTURE BELONGS TO

MANY BOYS IN OUR COMMUNITY ARE PREPARING FOR IT THROUGH MEMBERSHIP IN FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA CHAPTER!

THE FFA CREED

I believe in the future of farming with a faith born not of words but of deeds — achievements won by the present and past generations of farmers; in the promise of better days thru' better ways; even as the better things we now enjoy have come up to us from the struggle of former years.

I believe that to live and work on a good farm is pleasant as well as challenging for I know the joys and discomforts of farm life and hold an inborn fondness for those associations which; even in hours of discouragement I can not deny.

I believe in leadership from ourselves and respect from others. I believe in my own ability to work efficiently and think clearly, with such knowledge and skill as I can secure, and in the ability of organized farmers to serve our own and the public interest in marketing the product of our toil. I believe we can safeguard those rights against practices and policies that are unfair.

I believe in less dependence on begging and more power in bargaining; in the life abundant and enough honest wealth to help make it so — for others as well as myself; in less need for charity and more of it when needed; in being happy myself and playing square with those whose happiness depends upon me.

I believe that rural America can and will hold true to the best traditions in our national life and that I can exert an influence in my home and community which will stand solid for my part in that inspiring task.
