OUT OF SCHOOL AND KEEPING COOL Monday afternoon at Central Park was 9-year-old Keith Lambright of Pampa, who had a good time spraying friends in the park's wading pool.

Monday's warm temperatures sent droves of children to the city's pools, a scene that will become more common as the summer wears on.

Bombs sent to five Nazis

NEW YORK (AP)—Five powerful parcel bombs—all capable of killing or maiming—have been sent to Nazi leaders in four states. And a telephone caller says more are on the way today.

But, unlike the first group, today's bombs "are going to go off," the anonymous caller told The Associated Press on Monday.

The caller, claiming to represent a Committee Against Nazism, said he revealed where the bombs were located because "this is only a warning. The second time they're going to go off. There'll be more tomorrow."

When asked for more information, the caller said Monday: "We'll call you tomorrow with new places." He hung up when asked if he would call before the new bombs exploded.

Monday's caller said bombs had been mailed to Nazi leaders in Chicago, Cicero, Ill., Arlington, Va., and Lincoln, Neb. On Saturday, a person claiming to be from the same group told the AP in a telephone call that a bomb had been sent to Paterson, N.J.

Authorities in each of those communities later confirmed the existence of the potentially lethal packages.

An FBI spokesman in Newark, N.J., said the agency was looking into the incidents—talking to persons who received the parcels and trying to determine who else might get them. He declined to divulge additional details of the investigation.

Each parcel contained similar explosives and detonators, and, in at least three cases, bombs were accompanied by a similarly worded message ending with "Heil Hitler and White Power."

The caller Saturday said a bomb would go to Tscherrim Soobzokov, a former Nazi SS officer, in Paterson. Soobzokov received a cigar box-size package containing explosives at his home Friday. The device was detonated by Army experts.

Soobzokov was cleared by a federal grand jury last month of war crime charges dating back to World War II.

Bombs also were sent to Matt Kugel, commanding officer of the National Socialist White People's Party, at the group's national headquarters in Arlington, Va.; the party's Midwest office in Cicero; Frank Collin, head of the National Socialist Party of America in Chicago, and to Gary Rex "Gerhard" Lauck, 26, head of the overseas branch of the German Nazi Party and a member of the American Nazi Party in Lincoln, Neb.

The bombs to Kugel and Collin were intercepted at post office branches. The bomb to Cicero was defused by a party member, and the one sent to Lauck was disarmed at a police pistol range.

FRANK COLLIN (left) and Gary Rex "Gerhard" Lauck were the targets of powerful parcel bombs sent through the mails recently. The bombs were among those sent by an anti-Nazi group which claimed more were on the way.

Murder charges dropped

PERRYTON — Murder charges have been dropped against a Perryton oil field worker, formerly charged with the May 8 shooting death of a Kansas man. But the charges against Benny Sneed, 52, may be refiled, according to Ochiltree County Attorney Bill Rivers.

Sneed was charged with the shooting death of Lonnie Mead, 39, of Meade, Kan.

At an examining trial, Justice of the Peace Hardy Halsey ruled favorably on a defense motion to drop the charges.

Rivers said Halsey had ruled to drop the charges due to lack of evidence in the case. The county attorney said charges may be refiled when a report from the state crime laboratory on a ballistics test is received.

Rivers said a lack of the report had left a major gap in the state's case. Joe Hannon, assistant chief of police, said the report is expected to be returned sometime this week.

Mead died from a gunshot wound to the back while at the Sneed home on May 8. Officers said four persons were at the home at the time of the shooting. But officers said only two persons were in the room where the shooting allegedly occurred.

According to officers, one of the persons was Sneed's wife, Shirley; the other person alleged to have been in the room has not testified.

Tax Board to meet

The Pampa Tax Department Board of Equalization will meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the city commission room at City Hall.

The three-person board acts as a court of appeals for persons with complaints about their property valuations. The board has final say over the amount of property taxes a person pays.

Tax Assessor-Collector Monty Gordon said the tax department sent notices May 31 to 1,745 people, informing them they could appear before the board. Many of them were added to the city tax rolls when their property was annexed last summer, Gordon said, while 882 others had their property reappraised this year.

Pope demands religious rights

CZESTOCHOWA, Poland (AP)— Pope John Paul II demanded today that Poland's Communist government recognize the rights and beliefs of Christians although their view of the world is "diametrically opposed" to Marxism. It was the most powerful political statement the pontiff has made in the four days he has been in his homeland.

In a speech prepared for delivery to a closed meeting of Poland's Roman Catholic bishops, the pope described religious freedom as a fundamental human right and declared that guarantees of religious freedom in Poland's constitution and other documents are meaningful only if they consider "the real needs of the church."

The pope asserted the church's readiness to enter into a dialogue with the government for normalization of church-state relations.

He said "authentic dialogue must respect the convictions of believers, insure all the rights of citizens and also the normal conditions for the activity of the church as a religious community to which the vast majority of Poles belong."

"We are aware that this dialogue cannot be easy because it takes place between two concepts of the world which are diametrically opposed, but it must be possible and effective if the good of individuals and the nation demands it."

The text of the speech was released to journalists early today but was withdrawn soon after without explanation. A Vatican spokesman said later that the pope wanted bishops to hear it first before the speech was made public.

Before meeting with the bishops the pope celebrated an open-air Mass for thousands of Polish nuns and said that even "the biggest enemy of the church" could not help but appreciate their dedication.

Poles began gathering at dawn on the hillsides below the country's most revered shrine and by the time the Mass began, the crowd had swelled to several hundred thousand.

The pontiff, beginning the fourth day of his return to his communist homeland, looked at the rows of black-gowned nuns and told them their calling was an "exceptional treasure" for the Roman Catholic Church.

He recalled a visit he had once made to a home for sick children in his home town of Wadowice and said even "the biggest enemy of the church would never forget the dedication of the nuns."

The pope also recalled his trip to Mexico in January saying his meeting with nuns there "sank deeply into my memory and heart."

A large number of Poland's 24,000 nuns traveled to this western Polish city from all over the country for the Mass at the Jasna Gora Monastery.

The pope also was to meet with Poland's bishops today.

Hart dies in jail

McALESTER, Okla. (AP)— Gene Leroy Hart, the 35-year-old Cherokee Indian acquitted two months ago of the sex slayings of three Girl Scouts, collapsed in a prison exercise yard and died.

Officials at Oklahoma State Prison said Hart died Monday of an apparent heart attack after more than an hour of jogging and lifting weights late Monday afternoon in 80-degree weather.

Doctors tried for 20 minutes to revive him without success and he was pronounced dead a short while later at a McAlester hospital. An autopsy was scheduled for today.

Nancy Nunnally, a spokeswoman for the Corrections Department, said Hart had no history of heart trouble.

The death of Hart, convicted rapist, kidnapper and burglar, prompted mixed emotions in all those connected with the 1977 Girl Scout killings, from parents to prosecutors.

Sid Wise, former Mayes County district attorney who saw Hart charged with the slayings at a northeastern Oklahoma summer camp, said the death reflected "the hand of fate."

"It reaffirms my belief that justice will prevail, even if you have to go higher than men and women sitting on a jury," said Wise. "The hand of fate or the Almighty steps in when the system fails."

Some officials had feared other prisoners at the maximum-security prison would try to exact vengeance despite Hart's acquittal on the murder charges March 30 after a month-long trial.

Gary Pitchlynn, one of the convict's defense attorneys, said Hart's family was shocked.

"After all they've been through, to be asked to face this now is more than any family should be asked to bear," Pitchlynn said. "They fought long and hard to save that man. It's a shock. We're all saddened."

Hart was a fugitive from the Mayes County Jail at the time he was charged with the slayings at Camp Scott near Locust Grove. The three girls were also sexually molested, authorities said.

Hart pleaded guilty two weeks ago to charges of escape and burglary and was also serving state sentences—totaling about 90 years, prison officials said—on convictions of burglary, rape and kidnapping stemming from a 1967 incident.

Paving submission tabled Bids approved by Board

By EUGENE LAYCOCK
Pampa News Staff

Replacement of ceilings and installation of insulation at Lamar Elementary School can begin, as the Pampa Independent School Board unanimously accepted a $19,869 bid from Amarillo's Denman Building Products, Inc., at a regular meeting Monday night.

The bid included a $177 deduction if a bond was unnecessary. A performance bid bond guarantees a company's completion of a job.

School architect Herbert Brasher said a bond bid could only be required on a $25,000 bid. This requirement reduced the cost of the accepted bid on the Lamar project to $19,869.

The only other bid submitted for the work came from Amarillo's Consolidated Acoustics, Inc. It was for $19,980.

The lighting inside the Lamar building will be handled by Quarles Electric, a local company which submitted a low bid of $15,875.

Two other bids of $17,000 and $18,000 for the electrical work were turned down in a unanimous board vote for the Quarles submission.

Both of the accepted bids, resulting from projects recommended by the Long Range

Committee earlier in the year, contain an understanding that projects will be completed by August 1.

In other business, the board reviewed the bid of Lewis Construction Co. on a paving project for all schools in the system. The paving project is a part of the board's site improvement plan.

The company submitted the only bid for the project, another long range planning committee recommendation.

The bid was tabled for the June 18 meeting to allow the school architect time to break it down for further consideration.

John English, senior counselor at Pampa High School, said the goal of Pampa High School was teaching basic skills and study habits, instead of college courses. That comment came as part of his report on college-bound students.

However, the school has added an advanced chemistry course to its curriculum for the more solid student, he said.

A preparatory course for the SAT test, a college entrance exam, will also be offered in the fall semester, he said, but the exact time it will be held is still in question.

The four-week course will try to instruct the student on how to take the exam, he explained.

Many college students have communicated feelings on the strengths and weaknesses of the curriculum by letter and personal contact, he said.

Most students have indicated that no additional courses are needed at the high school for college preparation, English said. But he added that several students avoid taking the more difficult courses needed in preparation for college-level work.

Regrets for dodging some of these courses have been expressed by students, he said.

The counselor said several students have received advanced placement in college English, making this area of study the high school's strength.

English also reported a larger number of graduates are attending Texas Tech University in Lubbock than West Texas State University in Canyon.

Later in the meeting, a unanimous vote approved the resignation of these school district personnel: Shannon Hood, Theta Mills, Louis Allred and Pat Marcum.

In the same vote, the following new personnel were approved: Zandra G. Barnes at Horace Mann Elementary School, Debra K. Lombardozzi at Baker Elementary School and Laverne M. Satterwhite at Pampa High School.

NEARLY ALL of the roof of the 17,000-seat Kemper Arena in downtown Kansas City collapsed Monday night during a severe thunderstorm that dumped three inches of rain on the area in less than an hour and was

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Additional ideas on gas shortage

There is a real gasoline shortage. It has complex causes. It may spread. It could get worse before it gets better. And it could recur after that.

For as long as we are dependent upon foreign oil wells for half of our supply, the supply is going to be subject to interruption.

And the demand keeps rising. In California alone there are three-quarters of a million more motor vehicles registered than a year ago. America's love affair with the automobile is renewed with each new generation of drivers.

Even a 5 percent reduction in supply — such as resulted from the revolution in Iran — wreaks havoc when accompanied by a 10 percent increase in demand.

Gasoline is so important an element in our way of life that even a small shortfall is serious. Of course, people become concerned. Some panic is inevitable, and so is the strong feeling of resentment and anger that accompanies the inconvenience of a gas shortage.

But the emotional reaction will be futile unless it is directed and controlled. In Pogo's words, "We have met the enemy and he is us."

We cannot legislate artificially low prices for fuel and then expect to have an abundant supply.

We cannot waste energy with careless extravagance and not expect to face the consequences sooner or later.

We cannot raise environmental objections to nuclear power and every other practical alternative for generating electricity and still avoid blackouts or brownouts.

We have some suggestions for the Congress:

- Don't try to prevent the president from phasing out price controls on domestic crude oil. It should have been done years ago.
- Deregulate gasoline prices.
- Be willing to compromise parochial interests.
- Don't rule out nuclear power. Encourage the development of safe nuclear power plants and the safe storage of nuclear waste. Encourage solar power, coal liquefaction, gasohol and all other sources of energy not dependent upon imports.
- Remove unreasonable environmental controls, balancing them with common-sense economic considerations.
- Encourage Americans to conserve. We must develop a conservation ethic. Energy conservation that has occurred so far has been in large part the result of efforts by business and industry, not individuals.
- We can do better. But first we have to quit blaming a conspiracy for our troubles. We must concede that a problem exists. And we must face the consequences.

Nation's press

Conscription for doctors

(Wall Street Journal)

If a United States Senator proposed to conscript all doctors and nurses, subjecting them permanently to Army pay and Army discipline, we assume a few eyebrows would be raised. What national purpose is of such overriding importance as to justify that treatment for a whole class of professional workers?

Senator Kennedy has not quite proposed conscription. But his latest national health scheme does not fall so far short of that. The government would "Negotiate" — read it "dictate" — the fees doctors and hospitals could charge. There would be a ceiling on total health care spending. In effect, the health care industry would finally come under the total control of the federal government.

We find it interesting that this plan for economic dictatorship over a selected group of Americans wins such hearty approval from other groups that jealously defend their own economic prerogatives. The UAW, which wants the government to "stay the hell out" of its negotiations with the auto industry this summer, thinks the Kennedy plan is just fine. So does the AFL-CIO, which has just brought suit against President Carter's wage controllers. We hear no cries of protest from the American Civil Liberties Union or "civil rights" groups.

The rationale offered for this ruthless attitude towards medical workers is that health care is different from other economic endeavors. It is a "right" which the state must guarantee its citizens. And the only way the state can guarantee this right is through absolute control of the health care industry.

That is a very facile notion and it plays extremely well from the political stump, where Senator Kennedy has been playing it for all it's worth. But it doesn't stand up well to critical analysis. There are several things more immediately vital to human survival than medical care — food and shelter, for example. But we do not hear demands that the food and housing industries be nationalized.

And even if we assume that medical care is somehow different from other important goods and services what reason is there to believe that nationalization will improve its availability or lower its cost? The evidence indicates otherwise. Canada's provincial health systems, which Senator Kennedy touts as "free" health care, have not reduced health care costs to Canadians appreciably from those U.S. citizens pay. Britain, a poorer country that has tried to scrimp on national health to prevent it from bankrupting the government, has exacted another price from its citizens in the form of long queues for medical care, crumbling medical facilities and a flight of the most able doctors to more hospitable shores. People who want good service and can afford it are returning to private care, which at least is permitted in Britain.

The Kennedy health plan would threaten the U.S. with much the same thing. The human element, so crucial to medical practice and so grossly neglected in technocratic schemes, is subverted by political considerations. The only hope Mr. Kennedy has for containing the costs of his plan is through rigid economic controls. Even at that it would add more billions to the swollen, inflationary federal deficit.

In short, Mr. Kennedy seeks to eliminate any necessity for Americans to make an economic choice when they utilize health services. And the burden for this bright freedom will be borne by the people who provide the service who will have their own economic freedom curtailed.

As people with a higher-than-average sense of duty they will react to this more nobly than most of us would, but their incentive to supply service will decline, just as it has in Britain.

This takes health care in absolutely the wrong direction. The right direction is to fill in the gaps where people still are uncovered by health insurance and to limit costs by imposing some charge on all patients for services rendered.

Mr. Kennedy's proposal makes us wonder what he has against doctors and nurses. For that matter, it makes us wonder what he has against the sick.

By BERNARD H. SIEGAN
President Carter expressed surprise and disappointment when the U.S. House of Representatives recently rejected the administration's standby gasoline rationing plan. He accused the legislators of succumbing to parochial interests instead of acting for the public welfare. Unlike the administration, which was considering the national interest, the president claimed opponents of the plan were inspired by political self-interest.

One member of the administration who probably was not surprised by this outcome is James R. Schlesinger, secretary of energy. At least this is the conclusion one draws from reading an article Schlesinger wrote for the October 1968 issue of the Journal of Law and Economics at a time when he was employed by the RAND Corporation and before he attained high governmental office. The article is entitled "Systems Analysis and the Political Process," and is a very penetrating explanation of how objective, high-priority proposals fare in the political environment. Not well, concludes Schlesinger.

The article concerns systems analysis the purpose of which is wrote Schlesinger, "to insure that scarce resources are employed productively rather than wastefully." Under it, all the known costs and benefits of a particular plan, as well as possible alternative plans, are meticulously studied to determine whether the public would gain or lose if adopted. Presumably, the proposed program would not be accepted if the costs exceeded the benefits. Unfortunately the political process does not take kindly to such analysis.

Schlesinger wrote after President Johnson's costly Great Society programs had been launched. He was critical of the Johnson administration's spending approaches. Goals were announced before a means of achieving them had been developed. Neither alternative policies nor costs were studied until after a decision had been reached. Thus, new housing programs were being superimposed on older ones without much study. In one instance, no one was able to establish whether federal contributions were closer to a half billion or a billion dollars.

But even if the total costs and benefits are known, the outcome may not necessarily be any different. The future energy secretary tells us why: "The ultimate criterion will remain the psychological and voting responses of the general electorate and of important pressure groups. Positive responses in this realm are only irregularly correlated with those actions preferred on the basis of cost-benefit criteria. The focus of political action ends to be short run. The wariness with which the approaching election is watched is tempered only by the precept that the half life of the public's memory is approximately three months."

"Politics," said Schlesinger, "is geared to the hopes of the voters rather than the calculations of the cost accountant. In politics, one is almost driven to overstate the benefits and understate the costs of controversial programs."

Pie In The Sky

Political decisions, he asserts, ordinarily operate to avoid serious risk of loss of power. "The tool of politics (which frequently becomes its objective) is to extract resources from the general taxpayer with minimum offense and to distribute the proceeds among innumerable claimants in such a way as to maximize support at the polls. Politics, so far as mobilizing support is concerned, represents the art of calculated cheating - or more precisely how to cheat without being really caught. Slogans and catch phrases, even when unbacked by the commitment of resources, remain effective instruments of political gain.

"One needs a steady flow of attention-grabbing cues and it is of lesser moment whether the indicated castles in Spain ever materialize. The contrast to the systems-analytic approach with its emphasis on careful calculation of resources to implement real alternatives could not be greater. In political decisions, the appearance of effort however inadequate, may be overwhelmingly more remunerative than the costly (and thereby unpleasant) implementation of complete programs."

Another problem for systems analysis is that it must be conducted through the bureaucracy. The author, who was to become one of the nation's most powerful bureaucrats, was well aware of the limitations and infirmities of government agencies. According to Schlesinger the competitive position of one's own agency or division is an unavoidable and dominant feature of the bureaucratic landscape. It would be utopian to expect agencies automatically to provide data useful for analytical purposes.

"Knowledge is a form of power, and most institutions exhibit an understandable reluctance to dissipate this power in the absence of compensating advantages... In many cases data of appropriate quality can only be obtained through the wholehearted cooperation of the relevant agencies. Since the indicated tactic for many agencies will be to hide some information and to release much of the balance in warped form, many decisions will continue to be based on deficient information with only limited confidence being placed in the results."

In effect, Schlesinger argued in 1968 that President Carter would not achieve a rational, objective energy policy, no matter how much he tried. This is what the nation's energy secretary said at that time:

"Political decisions in a democratic society can hardly be more rational than the public the ultimate sovereign, is willing to tolerate. All of the old elements remain: the myths and ideologies the pressure groups, the need for accommodation and compromise the decision made under duress. Systems analysis may modify but it cannot extirpate those elements."

"As long as the public displays an insatiable appetite for 'constructive new ideas' (whether or not they have been systematically designed) democratic politics will inevitably revolve around the foot-in-the-door techniques (thin or symbolic funding of programs) that the analysts criticize. As long as interested clienteles will support inefficient or counterproductive government activities, obsolescent functions will be preserved. Democratic politics will remain unchanged: a combination of pie in the sky and a bird in the hand. Tokenism, catchphrases and cultivation of various interests will remain the guideposts."

Heavy, heavy hangs overhead

Heavy, heavy hangs over thy head. It's going to rain iron!

That laboratory we have had orbiting in space for six years - 85 tons of hardware - will come hurtling toward earth within days.

And NASA and NORAD hasten to assure you there is nothing to worry about; nobody on earth has ever been hit by space junk. But while the experts tell you not to worry - they do.

Hunks of space junk fall back into the earth's atmosphere at the rate of more than one a day - but this inbound Skylark is different.

It weighs 85 tons. It will break up when it hits the earth's atmosphere into 400 maybe 500 pieces which will survive reentry and hit the earth somewhere.

Many of those pieces will weigh more than 200 pounds.

At least one of them, a metal ring that holds two sections together, weighs 5,000 pounds. Another piece, a vault for storing film, weighs 4,000 pounds.

And breaking up bit by bit the bits will rain down along a track 4,000 miles long. Where?

The answer to that question may change between now and reentry day but tentatively NASA calculates that it will come down between latitudes 50 degrees north and 50 degrees south. That includes a lot of ocean - but it also includes Moscow and London and Berlin.

That would appear to leave you in the clear except -

Last April our space - junk trackers predicted that a certain Soviet rocket launched in 1971 would return to earth somewhere in the south Atlantic of Africa. It came down instead in the north Pacific off Alaska.

So from its base in Colorado Springs the North American Air Defense Command is going to try harder to anticipate the ETA and destination for Skylark.

Similarly, NASA is doing some computing on its own.

And if there is not any real fear - any real anxiety - and real official worry about your safety - there is what the Wall Street Journal calls some "fingernail chewing" going on.

Because sure as shootin' - should somebody get hit and hurt by space junk - our professional sky watchers would themselves be blitzed by an outraged media.

Theoretically, there is a greater chance you will get hit by a meteor than by a fragment of Skylark. There is a much greater chance you will be struck by lightning.

Yet disasters resulting from man-made hazards become "political events." So NASA and NORAD and the Federal Preparedness Agency and the Departments of Defense, State and Justice are all holding meetings on "What do we do if...?"

The Pentagon already has medical and damage assessment teams standing by, though the earliest Skylark is likely to disintegrate and fall in June 20.

A 1972 treaty makes the owner of any spacecraft liable for any damage it causes anywhere in the world. In this case, us.

Rescuing the small saver

By DON GRAFF

As every realistic politician knows (with suitable apologies to Abraham Lincoln), it may be possible to please all of several interest groups with some of a policy, some of them with all of a policy, but never all of them with all of a policy.

But Jimmy Carter is going to try to do something along that line with his proposed banking reforms, foremost of which would be the phasing out of interest-rate ceilings on consumer deposits.

Under present federal banking regulations, commercial banks are limited to 5 percent interest on passbook accounts while savings and loan institutions are allowed a quarter of a percent more. It doesn't require a degree in higher mathematics to recognize that this falls considerably short, by about half, of the current rate of inflation.

The president finds the situation "unconscionable" and "increasingly unfair to the smaller saver."

Right on! And particularly so because big savers have an out. They can get a much better deal on large - denomination certificates of deposit or go into the Treasury certificate - based money market ($10,000 minimum) to pick up between 9 and 10 percent.

The president's solution is to lift the rate ceiling entirely and let interest find its own level. Both savings and interest-bearing checking accounts would be freed, and the latter expanded with all federally insured institutions authorized to offer them. Variable mortgage rates, with interest moving up and down according to the fluctuations of the money market, would also be introduced.

The president's proposal found prompt favor with consumer organizations, particularly those concerned with the elderly on fixed incomes. Commercial bankers also approve. The savings bankers, however, feel strongly otherwise at the moment, fearing that the elimination of their quarter point interest advantage will cost them heavily in competition for depositors. And since the savings banks are a primary source of mortgage money, the housing industry, which depends heavily on the availability of reasonable financing, also has cause for concern.

Recognizing that there would be "casualties" if ceilings were lifted immediately, the Carter proposal calls for a gradual phasing out. Details on the time period and other protective measures are promised in a few weeks.

If a plan that, if it does not directly benefit everybody, at least victimizes no one, can be produced it will be a considerable achievement. It will require very delicate readjusting of the relationship between the various segments of the banking industry. There is also the impact on the economy as a whole to consider since higher interest rates will initially have an inflationary effect, more of which we have no need.

But on the plus side, it should halt or slow the flight from savings. The net outflow from savings deposits in April was some $2 billion, money in search of higher yields or spent by consumers fearing continuing price rises. Capital formation should be stimulated, correcting a sharp decline in comparison to other major industrial nations that has been a source of concern to U.S. economists who foresee a coming shortage of funds for needed expansion and renewal of industrial plants.

And it will certainly be welcomed by the small saver, who cannot scrape up $10,000 for a long term CD.

And that is something Lincoln would have approved.

Tax relief bill signed into law

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Parts of the tax relief program that was overwhelmingly approved by voters last November have gone into effect, the governor's office said Monday.

Gov. Bill Clements' office said he signed into law the bill that puts into effect the Tax Relief Amendment last Thursday without any ceremony or special announcement.

The action was the climax of a process that began last summer when Gov. Dolph Briscoe called a special session to cut property taxes shortly after California voters approved Proposition 13. The constitutional amendment passed by that special session, and later approved by voters, authorized the 1979 Legislature to enact the so-called tax relief bill (HB1060).

The compromise bill worked out by a 10-member conference committee was finally approved by the Senate and House the last night of the 140-day regular session on May 28.

Immediate provisions of the bill includes one that each residence homestead will be exempt from $5,000 in school district taxes. Since the act is retroactive to Jan. 1979 the exemptions will be on the 1979 tax notices that most taxpayers receive in October. In addition, those over 65 and those disabled will be eligible for another $10,000 exemption in school taxes on their homesteads. After qualifying for the elderly exemption, school taxes on a home would be frozen for the person's lifetime.

Also effective immediately is the exemption from property taxes, state, county and school, of all non-business cars owned by a family. However, if a city council or school board acts by this Dec. 31 it can re-instate the unpopular car taxes, now levied in several Texas cities.

Intangible property, such as stocks, bonds and bank accounts, would be exempt from local taxation, except for those now taxed.

A new system of setting valuations on farm, ranch and timber land exclusively on its ability to produce cash crops would become effective this year also, unless local agencies vote before this July 15 to postpone the start of the new evaluation methods until the 1980 tax year.

Beaumont woman couldn't stand heat

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — When the thermostats at Beaumont's federal building hit 80 degrees Monday, Marguerite Waldman packed up and went home.

A veteran of Southeast Texas' sultry humid summers, the spunky Mrs. Waldman decided it was too hot to work. So she quit.

"I don't intend to make myself miserable for the IRS," she said. "This heat will make me very ill. I've enjoyed working here, and I'm sorry to leave. I'll come visit you next winter," she told co-workers.

She said she plans to weather the 85 percent humidity this summer at home where the thermostat will be considerably below the 80 degrees ordered in all federal buildings during the summer by President Carter.

"If anybody comes to my house to turn up the thermostats, they're going to be looking down the barrel of a gun," she quipped.

Stripped of his coat and tie, Doyce Jones, the General Services Administration building manager admitted the 80-degree mark is going to be rough to take in muggy

Beaumont, where the temperature passed 90 on 78 days last summer.

"It's a little on the warm side," he admitted, speaking not only of the temperature, but of the temperament of federal employees trapped in windowless offices.

A similar spirit was stirring in the state's largest city, located south of Beaumont. Houston

Mayor Jim McConn said chances are good his city will appeal the presidential directive because the high setting would be unbearable due to the high humidity.

Jones said feisty federal employees in Beaumont already are refusing to close windows and have smuggled forbidden electric fans into their offices.

Bandido bikers arrested: Raid nets weapons, drugs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Several members of the Bandidos motorcycle club have been arrested, and the FBI says it is intensifying its search in Lubbock for another member of the group.

Guns, knives and drugs were seized in a raid Sunday night of a 38-year-old San Antonio member of the Bandidos, and Bexar County officials said it is part of a crackdown that has netted several members of the gang.

The FBI confirmed Monday that its agents are searching in Lubbock for a Bandido member wanted by federal officials in San Antonio, the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal said today in a copyright story.

The FBI has been looking for the man since almost a week prior to the assassination last week of a federal judge in San Antonio," said Bernie Brown, the FBI's special agent in charge at Lubbock.

"He has been in Lubbock. No doubt about it," said Brown, who added that the FBI feels the man is still in or around the city. He said the suspect is not a member of the Lubbock Bandido chapter.

The FBI and Lubbock County officers staked out a Bandidos clubhouse Sunday night after receiving a tip their suspect "was out there."

Federal grand juries in San Antonio and El Paso are looking into alleged multi-million dollar interstate narcotics trafficking and the Nov. 21 attempted assassination here of Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr.

Gasohol plant for Perryton is a possibility

PERRYTON — In the midst of a catered barbecue dinner and an address by Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, the possibility of locating a gasohol plant in the Perryton area was discussed at last week's annual meeting of the Perryton Equity Exchange.

It was the first public mention about a proposed gasohol plant that could mean a great deal to the economy of Perryton.

"Time and effort has been made to accumulate statistics," said Kenneth Allen, treasurer and general manager. "But we're getting different answers and there are problems that must be looked into."

While a decision is still a long time off, Allen kicked around figures of $30 million for a plant and another $20 million for operating capital. The project could mean using a substantial amount of the Equity's grain and selling it at a profit to the producer.

The Equity manager noted that the U.S. does not possess a great amount of expertise in the development of gasohol. Brazil, he said, has 100 plants now in operation and another 150 plants under construction.

Commissioner Brown indicated that the chase for gasohol is on in Texas. He reported that two gasohol plants are already underway in the state.

Weather Texas weather

By The Associated Press
 Heavy thunderstorms lashed North Texas and South Texas early today, and many communities were bracing for high water.

Flash flood warnings were issued for parts of North and Central Texas for this morning.

Precipitation was scattered across the state from Wichita Falls to Lubbock, as well as to the south of Del Rio eastward. San Angelo received .84 of an inch before dawn.

Skies were generally partly cloudy to cloudy across the state except for mostly fair skies in far West Texas.

Early morning temperatures across the state were mostly in the 70s in the north and south sections, 60s in the west and 50s in the far west part of the state. Temperature extremes ranged from 57 at El Paso to 79 at Palacios and Corpus Christi.

National weather

Torrential rain and heavy winds pushed in the roof of the Kemper Arena in Kansas City, Mo., blew out windows and knocked out power to an estimated 100,000 customers.

Showers and thundershowers continued over the southern half of the Plains this morning, with locally heavy rain over parts of West Texas. Flash floods were reported north and west of Abilene following rain that fell an inch every 15 minutes at some places.

The Texas Big Bend area had its share of rainfall. Over 2 inches were logged in less than an hour Monday night in Del Rio, with some areas getting a total of 4 to 5 inches. Significant flooding was reported in Big Bend National Park, forcing the evacuation of some campers.

No injuries were reported in the roof collapse Monday night at the Kemper Arena, site of the 1976 Republican National Convention. The building was unoccupied except for security and maintenance personnel and they escaped unharmed. Damage was estimated at $1 million.

The rain and winds of up to 70 mph derved power lines, causing some fires and loss of service to some 100,000 customers in the Kansas City area.

PRECIPITATION is expected for a large portion of the eastern and southeastern parts of the nation for Wednesday, according to the National Weather Service. Showers are also due for the Great Lakes region and parts of the Rockies.

Summer recreation program set

Although summer hasn't officially arrived yet, warm weather activities are in full swing in Pampa.

Public swimming pools opened as schools closed Friday, and attracted an estimated 75-80 people Sunday. The pools — Municipal at 800 Sloan and Marcus Sanders at 438 Crawford — are open from 1-6 p.m. seven days a week.

Between June 11 and July 13, the city is sponsoring a summer recreation program for Pampa youth. The program will be conducted from 9 a.m.-12 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Pampa Optimist Club, 601 E. Craven.

Director Tom Lindsey said the program will include arts and crafts, taught by Kay Crouch, and games such as softball, kickball, basketball, volleyball and dodgeball. Kris Douglass will be games and activities instructor.

The program is open at no charge to all children ages 9-15.

The Civic Improvements Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring "Pampa, Fresh as a Daisy," to reward the owners of the five most beautiful yards in the community.

A yard must be nominated to win, and nominations may be made by the yard owner or a neighbor. Entry blanks are available at the chamber of commerce office.

Winners will be chosen from five different areas of the city. The yards will be judged June 18th, and winners will receive their prizes June 25th.

Mending mature marriage

by louise pierce

Can you believe that quarrels over television programs can end in middle-aged divorce? Neither could I—until letters began saying so.

DEAR LOUISE: Do you know how selfish a woman can be? Well, I'll tell you. My wife's a TV nut and she watches it all day while I'm gone. I retired from a clothing store but go back mornings to keep their books. Afternoons I play dominoes. When I get home, I figure it's my turn at the TV. But she yells her head off if I turn off her insipid love stuff and get something worthwhile like news or sports or history. She says TV is all she lives for because she's too old to get a job or join a club or anything. I'm two years older than she is and I feel young at 66. Last month she got so mad that she packed up and went to her sister's in another state. She called and said that her sister liked the same programs she did so she was staying there and starting divorce proceedings against me. If I went there and talked her into coming home, is there any way we could get along? S.N.

DEAR S.N.: Not unless you both stop being stubborn. She needs to realize that you own half the TV so you should choose half the evening programs. She'll still be ahead with no guff from you all day. And you should remember back when your years were younger and you enjoyed the "love stuff" in your marriage. Probably she's re-living your honeymoon days. Can't you try to remember them with her?

DEAR LOUISE: I just left the most aggravating man on earth, after thirty-one years of marriage. And I'm going to file for divorce unless you tell me not to. We're ten years away from retirement and we both work all day. I'm as tired as he is at night and I dearly love to relax with detective shows like Hawaii-Five-O and Quincy. But my husband doesn't want anything but soft music because he says it puts him to sleep and he needs his sleep. Last night I told him to leave Barnaby Jones alone because it was right at the end. He threw a lamp at the TV and smashed them both. I took my clothes and went to a motel and watched what I wanted to. Who was right? Still Mad.

DEAR MAD: You both were. Since you don't mention your love for each other, I assume you are in love except for your fights over TV. So you should be able to make a deal. Get him some ear plugs to wear while you watch your who-dun-its. Buy yourself some detective magazines to read while he listens to his soft music. If you like to read in bed, do so while he gets music on the bedside radio. P.S. Share the cost of repairing the TV and buying a new lamp.

Oh and I don't always fancy the same shows. But we've never fussed about it. If one of us wears of a show the other enjoys (Every year I wonder if football will ever cease!), the bored one reads or does postponed bookkeeping or works in the yard. #### Dust Makes The Difference

A microscopic speck of dust can make the difference between the success and failure of a system in space or on the ground.

That's what was learned during the space programs of the 1960s, and it's what spurred the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to develop its "clean room" concept, common in many industries today.

High technology firms like the Verbatim Corp., Sunnyvale, California, the largest manufacturer of digital, data-recording "magnetic media," is particularly concerned about the importance of an absolutely dust-free environment in its manufacturing facilities.

One particle of dust on its

A white-robed semiconductor technician checks for that microscopic speck of dust that can make the difference between success and failure of a system. Magnetic disks, cassettes or cartridges can cause the loss or confusion of valuable data. That is why Verbatim builds each product in a clean room to avoid contaminants.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence e. lamb, m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have this problem with the hair on my head. My hair gets so oily I must shampoo every morning just to keep the grease away.

I've tried every shampoo I can get my hands on, especially those for oily hair.

Can you recommend some type of drink which can be taken internally that will cut down on this oil in my hair?

DEAR READER — There are a few medical conditions that contribute to excess oiliness of the skin. Most of these are associated with other symptoms which you didn't mention so I think it's unlikely that you have anything more than just an excessive production of oil.

If you have other skin problems, it might be worth checking in with your doctor just to be sure that you don't have any underlying cause for most of your problems.

For most people the simple excess formation of skin oils that results in oily hair is best treated by just frequently washing the hair. Once a day is not too much for an individual with such a problem. In many people with truly excessive amounts of oil, washing the hair twice a day is perfectly all right.

Ordinarily, blow drying of the hair is hard on it because it eliminates oils that are in the hair shaft and are important to the texture of the hair itself. But in a person who has truly excessive amounts of oil, blow drying the hair might not be a bad idea.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 12-6, Hair Care, to give you an overall appreciation of the factors that affect your hair and how to take care of it. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the factors that contributes to oily hair is an oily skin, specifically the forehead. The oils from the forehead are quickly picked up by the hair, especially with certain hair styles, and the next thing you know you have oily hair again.

Another source of oil is if you use oily hand lotions. Any of the oil that's left on the hand gets in the hair if you have the habit of rubbing your hand through your hair at some point during the day.

You should also avoid adding any oily or greasy applications to your face if you're trying to keep the oil out of your hair.

I'm sorry that there isn't a drink or some medicine that you could take that would immediately solve your problem. There isn't. Your problem is not caused by something you eat nor is it caused by lack of something that you need to eat. It's not a vitamin deficiency.

There are some shampoos that contain chemicals that are particularly effective in cleansing the hair of oil. These are mentioned in The Health Letter that I'm sending you.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with eight children. The oldest is 21 and the youngest is 10. My husband was killed a year ago and it hit me awfully hard.

Here is my problem. I'm in love. I am 40 and the kid I'm in love with is 21. (He's a friend of one of my children.) We didn't intend to get serious—it just happened, and now we have this love affair going. He moved into my house about a month ago.

I loved my husband very much, but he is gone and I need someone to love. Do you think there is any future in this love affair?

IN LOVE IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR IN: I could be wrong, but I can't see much of a future for you and your young lover. Not so much because of the vast age difference, but because of the emotional state you were in when the affair took root. Of course you need someone to love—we all do. But for your sake and his, I think the kid should move out of your house and you should move toward men your own age.

DEAR ABBY: A woman in our office is freaking us out with her humming. When she concentrates she hums one low monotonous note. This can go on continuously for as long as two hours or more without a break.

When I call her attention to the maddening distraction, she quits for a while, then resumes humming again until I could scream.

Others have told her, too. Nothing helps. Her humming has got me so crazy I sometimes can hear it when it's not there. She's a nice person otherwise, and she's old enough to be my mother, so I don't want to be rude or rough. Please help me and my co-workers.

GOING BANANAS

DEAR GOING: She has undoubtedly developed the humming habit over the years and now hums unconsciously. But habits are learned and can be unlearned, so the moment the hummingbird starts her song, remind her that she's distracting you. And keep reminding her.

DEAR ABBY: I've been thinking about the letter from L. IN DENTON, TEXAS who couldn't figure out how come his wife knew how to make love so well if she was a virgin when she was married.

Well, I, too, was a virgin when I married but my husband wasn't, and with all his previous experience, he didn't know peanuts compared to what I taught him!

I didn't learn it anywhere. I just followed my natural instincts and did whatever I felt was right. It seemed to come naturally.

I was blessed with parents who always showed affection for each other and never hid the fact that making love was a normal, healthy part of married life, so when I married it never occurred to me to hold back my sexual feelings. I just expressed them.

Polly's Pointers

by polly cramer

DEAR POLLY — My aunt gave me a lovely, 50-year-old ivory dresser set that has brown spots or stains on it. I would think they are cigarette burns except they are in places where it would be impossible to burn. I have tried everything I can think of to clean it up but nothing has worked. I do hope you or one of the readers can come up with an idea. — LA DEANE

DEAR LA DEANE — One authority suggests the following for cleaning ivory. Those pieces that are all in one piece can be cleaned with soap and water but if they are glued together rub the surface with a piece of lemon dipped in salt. When juice is dry wipe off with a damp cloth. Good luck and you might first try the salt and lemon juice on one inconspicuous spot. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — The best thing I have ever used to clean stains resulting from leaky faucets is cream of tartar and a few drops of hydrogen peroxide. — MRS. W.S.

DEAR POLLY — I priced camisoles in the stores and found them quite expensive. But I figured out a way to make one out of one of my half slips that is even prettier since it is lace trimmed. I reversed the elastic from what was the top of the half slip but is now the bottom of the camisole and put in a narrow hem. Of course, if one has a slip that is too short or no longer needed, it can be cut off to answer the same need. — SYLVIA

DEAR POLLY — When eggs are removed from the refrigerator place them on a paper towel so there is no danger of them rolling off the counter.

Never throw away an old TV stand. It can be so handy to use as a shoe or luggage rack in your clothes closet. — MARIE

The President's Reading

If you sometimes find it difficult to read a novel for a class or even the newspaper thoroughly each day, think of all the reading President Carter must do! Every day, the president's staff prepares a wide variety of materials for him to read. For example, before an economic meeting with the leaders of six other nations, Mr. Carter is expected to read 18 pounds of briefing books. The president's reading list is designed to help him know as much as he can about current problems and events, and even the personalities of other world leaders. Mr. Carter, who has been called a "paper eater" because of the amount of reading he does, claims he can read 3,000 words a minute.

DO YOU KNOW — What world leader is President Carter scheduled to meet in Vienna later this month?
MONDAY'S ANSWER — The Christian Democrats are Italy's largest political party.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The DC-10 that crashed in Chicago taking 274 lives was not alone in having cracks or metal fatigue.

An Associated Press check of Federal Aviation Administration records shows the problems of cracks and other structural faults were around before the jet age. They are a fact of life in aviation.

Every American-built commercial jetliner has been subject to "airworthiness directives" — or "ADs" — government orders for maintenance checks or repairs. Many ADs — roughly one in four for most planes — order checks of specific metal parts for cracks. Such an FAA directive last week grounded DC-10s for checks of engine supports. Some of the same planes were grounded again Monday after the FAA learned of additional problems.

"There's not an airplane in the world, civil or military, that doesn't have metal fatigue eventually," said Fred Farrar, an FAA public affairs official. "You know metal fatigue is going to occur. So you keep watching, and then you put out the AD."

Farrar cited the noticeable flexing of an airliner's wings in flight, a sight that often frightens neophyte fliers. Like a paper clip that is bent back and forth, he said, each movement of the wing contributes to a slight weakening of the structure.

"But better that it bend than break," Farrar said.

Metal fatigue first drew attention in the 1950s, when the first commercial jetliner — Britain's de Havilland Comet — had a series of unexplained crashes, some fatal. It was discovered that a misaligned bolt near a window flexed and eventually failed, resulting in explosive decompression.

The crashes destroyed confidence in the plane and in effect ended its commercial service, though the problem had been found.

Most ADs deal with less urgent matters, however, and the situations they point out generally are considered as the inevitable problems of highly complicated machinery rather than a life-threatening hazard.

For example, a total of 129 ADs had been issued as of mid-May on the first U.S. commercial jet, the Boeing 707, which began service in 1958, and on the nearly identical Boeing 720. Of the 129 ADs, 49 covered possible cracks in metal parts, particularly wing surfaces.

Twelve of the ADs were considered important enough for airlines to be alerted by telegram. Those ranged from possible control obstructions to a 1962 warning that lint and moisture accumulating behind lavatory outlets for electric razors could pose a fire hazard.

But a high number of ADs does not necessarily mean a lack of safety, Farrar said, adding: "The number of ADs issued shows the system works," with most issued early as a new plane's problems are found.

For example, 99 of the Boeing 707-720's total ADs were issued through 1969; only 30 have been issued in the 1970s.

Ironically, the DC-10, a tri-engine, long-range transport in service since 1971, has among the fewest ADs. Only 43 have been issued in the past eight years, with only one requiring a check for cracks — in the mechanism that extends the wing flaps.

The Associated Press check of airworthiness directives covered the Boeing 707-720, 727, 737 and 747; the McDonnell Douglas DC-8, DC-9 and DC-10, and the Lockheed L-1011 — the bulk of domestic airliners. Here are the results for aircraft other than the DC-10:

— Boeing 707-720, a four-engine long-range transport introduced in 1958. ADs: 129. Those requiring checks for cracks: 49, including 17 for the wing skin or structure; 11 for various control surfaces; 8 for the horizontal stabilizer; 7 for the landing gear and associated structures; and 2 for engine mountings.

— Boeing 727, a three-engine medium-range transport introduced in 1964. ADs: 70. Requiring checks for cracks: 24, including 11 for the landing gear and surrounding structure and 4 each for the horizontal stabilizer and various control surfaces.

— Boeing 737, a twin-engine, short-range aircraft delivered to airlines in 1967. ADs: 27. Requiring checks for cracks: 7, including 4 for control surfaces and 1 each for the wing structure, landing gear and airframe.

Belmont Stakes set Saturday

NEW YORK (AP) — The list of horses mentioned as possible starters for Saturday's Belmont Stakes has grown to nine, but when the flak clears, the number probably will be closer to five or six.

LeRoy Jolley, trainer of Belmont probable General Assembly, let drop Monday that he was considering entering another colt for the 1 1/4-mile running of the third jewel of Triple Crown racing — Sir Ivor Again.

Sir Ivor Again last won on May 26 at Belmont under the guidance of Angel Cordero Jr. Presumably, however, if Jolley does enter Sir Ivor Again, Cordero won't be aboard. He'll be riding General Assembly.

Sir Ivor Again probably is in much the same position as Gallant Best, owned by Vila Sommers and trained by Frank Martin. "Gallant best will go only if it's a small field," Martin said.

Heavily favored Spectacular Bid, who won the Kentucky Derby and Preakness and is seeking to become the third consecutive Triple Crown winner, worked out Monday. He went one mile over a sloppy track in 1:39. He breezed the half mile in 48.5, six furlongs in 1:13.2 and went out 1 1/4 miles in 1:52.3.

"Bid went good," said Bud Delp, who trains the Hawthorn Farm colt. "He tired, but it was a tiring track."

Exercise rider Bobby Smith said it was a "beneficial workout. Just what the doctor ordered."

Delp said Spectacular Bid would go out for a light gallop today, and he would give him a blowout later in the week "because he is a big eater." The 3-year-old son of Bold Bidder will be ridden by Ron Franklin.

Bert Firestone's General Assembly, a son of Secretariat who was second in the Derby and fifth in the Preakness, worked a mile in 1:38.25 on a fast track over the weekend. He probably will be the second choice.

The other more-or-less sure starters for the $200,000-added, 1 1/2-mile Belmont Stakes are Oldknow and Phipps' Golden Act, second in the Preakness and third in the Derby, and Flying Zee Stable's Screen King, third in the Preakness and sixth in the Derby.

In College World Series

Longhorns tangle with Arkansas

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson summed it up well.

Looking ahead to his team's showdown with conference rival Arkansas tonight in the College World Series, Gustafson cracked, "You have to wonder if anybody will want to get ahead."

He had good reason to feel that way. Both teams fell behind in their first two games of the series, but rallied to win, leaving them the only undefeated entries in the tournament.

That makes tonight's game crucial because the winner will have a big edge in the drive for the title.

"We don't worry when we get behind," Arkansas pitcher Steve Krueger said. "Our (the pitchers') job is to hold the other team down because we know our hitters will come back."

Krueger and his teammates have been looking forward to playing Texas ever since both teams qualified for the series. Texas beat Arkansas four times in five games this year, including twice in the Southwest Conference playoffs.

Krueger worked the final eight innings of Arkansas' 5-4 victory over Pepperdine in the first round of the series Friday night. Afterwards, he was asked how soon he could pitch again.

"I could probably come back Tuesday," he said. "But if it was Texas, I'd pitch tomorrow. I'd be ready to play them anytime."

Catcher Ron Reynolds shares Krueger's eagerness. Following a 10-3 victory over Arizona Sunday night, Reynolds was asked which team he'd prefer to play in the third round — Texas or Mississippi State.

"Texas," he said without hesitation. "They're a conference school, they beat us this year, we'd really like to see them again."

Texas came through with an 8-2 victory over MSU and Reynolds' wish was granted. Texas, the nation's top-rated team and the SWC champion, is 55-6. Arkansas, rated fourth and the conference runner-up, is 48-13.

Texas beat Arkansas 6-2 and 12-6 to win the SWC tourney. Earlier, in a three-game series at Fayetteville, Arkansas won the opener 2-0, but Texas took the others, 3-2 and 1-0.

Arkansas beat A&M 6-2 to stay alive in the tournament, then suffered the 12-6 loss to Texas. However, the Razorbacks were put in the NCAA playoffs as an at-large entry and won the East Regional at Tallahassee, Fla., to qualify for the series.

In games played Monday night, Fullerton State grabbed a win over Arizona.

The victim was Arizona, which was sent home reeling under a 17-hit onslaught that produced a 16-3 Fullerton victory, keeping the Titans alive in the double-elimination tournament.

Fullerton, rated third nationally, came into the series with a .330 team batting average, but the Titans struggled at the plate in their first two games, losing to Mississippi State 6-1 and beating Connecticut 8-3.

Monday night was a different story, however, as Tim Wallach blasted a three-run homer and Sam Favata rapped four hits to lead the barrage against three Arizona pitchers.

"This has happened to us before, but Augie (Coach Augie Garrido) always gets us going again," said catcher Kurt Kingsolver, who provided a big spark by stealing home in a five-run eighth inning.

Another California team won the nightcap Monday. Eighth-rated Pepperdine eliminated No. 4 Mississippi State 5-4 in 10 innings in the best game of the series to date.

That action left an unusual situation. For the first time in the 33-year history of the series, the four finalists are from only two leagues — Fullerton and Pepperdine of the Southern California Baseball Association and Texas and Arkansas of the Southwest Conference.

Palmer qualifies for U.S. Open golf tournament

By JOE RESNICK AP Sports Writer

In his heyday, Arnold Palmer's absence from a golf tournament meant only one thing: he didn't feel like playing that week.

Monday, however, the circumstances were different. The revered veteran was at the mercy of the U.S. Golf Association, whose rules dictated that he undergo the U.S. Open's 36-hole qualifying sectional at the Charlotte Country Club course with all the amateurs, no-name pros, etc.

Palmer, the 1960 Open champ and a virtual stranger to these qualifying affairs in the past, barely made the cut for the tournament which starts June 14 in Toledo, Ohio. He fired rounds of 72 and 69 for a 141 total, surviving by three strokes.

"Asking Arnold Palmer to qualify for the U.S. Open is like asking the Pope to take a lie-detector test," said one young golfer.

"Arnie should never have to qualify for anything in golf," said Eddie Pearce, who finished second at 136 in the qualifying round, one shot behind overall leader Graham Marsh.

Marsh fired a two-round total of 135 Monday, including a 66 on the first 18 holes and a 69 on the second round of the par 71, 6,729-yard course. Pearce shot a pair of 68s.

Other big names to qualify were Al Geiberger, who finished with 138, and Gene Littler, winner of the Open in 1961, who totaled 141 on the par-71, 6,729-yard course at Charlotte, N.C.

In the Cincinnati sectional, Don Padgett of Indianapolis fired a 7-under-par 67-68-135 at the Clovernook Country Club to lead a group of four qualifiers.

Cliff Cook of Portage Country Club took medalist honors in another sectional qualifier at Sharon Center, Ohio, with a course record 66, giving him a 6-under-par total of 138 at the Sharon Golf Club.

His afternoon round on the 7,300-yard course was one stroke better than the previous course record, set two years ago by Chi Chi Rodriguez of Dorado Beach, Puerto Rico, who was the runner-up Monday with 72-68 for a 4-under 140.

Doug Brown of Grand Prairie, Texas, came out of a year-long tournament "retirement" to shoot a 3-under-par 68, low round of the Dallas sectional at the Royal Oaks Country Club, and totaled 141 to lead the field there.

Tom Sieckmann of Omaha, Neb., shot a 64 over the first 18 holes and finished the day's two rounds with a 4-under-par, 136 total to take medalist honors in the sectional qualifying at the Mission Hills Golf Course in Mission, Kan.

Major League roundup

Lee May's single lifts Orioles

By The Associated Press

Sometimes the idea is to get the ball anywhere but over the plate.

Consider, if you will, Mike Marshall's dilemma in the bottom of the 10th inning Monday night.

But Twins Manager Gene Mauch recommended Marshall pitch to May—carefully.

Marshall, 8-5, did—but not carefully enough. May hit a single to left field, Baltimore had a 3-2 victory and the Orioles remained one game ahead of Boston in the American League East.

Red Sox 13, Rangers 5 For Boston, almost every pitch in the fifth inning must have looked like a watermelon.

Angels 4, Blue Jays 2 Dan Ford's tie-breaking triple in a two-run sixth inning helped the Angels turn back Toronto and move back into first place by one game over the Rangers.

Yankees 8, Royals 3 Tommy John of the Yankees scattered six Royals hits and rode a seven-run sixth inning to his 10th win of the season.

Dodgers 4, Pirates 2 Rookie Rick Sutcliffe pitched a four-hitter and Joe Ferguson rapped a two-run homer to lead Los Angeles over Pittsburgh.

Sports in brief

BASEBALL NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielder Don Baylor of the California Angels hit .354, drove in 23 runs, and scored 21 himself to win American League player of the month honors.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals, who hit .433 during the month of May, has been named National League player of the month.

McPhail announced. Baylor had 8 doubles, a triple and 7 home runs while driving in two game-winning runs.

Brock had 29 hits in 67 at bats, nine RBI and scored 11 runs during May in one of the best starts in his career.

McPhail also announced that Texas Rangers relief specialist Jim Kern, who had a hand in eight of his club's 17 victories in May, was named the American League's Pitcher of the Month.

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Scott Hoch of the United States beat Gwyn Jones of Wales 5 and 4 in the British Amateur Golf Championship.

Kern won four games during the month and saved an equal number, without a loss, pitching 29.2 innings. He appeared in 14 games, allowed 18 hits, three runs — two earned — struck out 31 and walked nine and had an earned run average of 0.61.

Americans Michael Gove and Marty West, however, made speedy first-round exits on the 6,951-yard par-72 Hillside course. Gove frittered away a 4-hole lead against Terry Higgins and lost on the 20th hole.

Lipscomb wins title

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Playing at home was sweet music for David Lipscomb College, which combined Mike Cunningham's hitting and Kal Koenig's pitching to defeat High Point College 5-4 for the NAIA World Series championship.

Lipscomb, of Nashville, won Monday night its second National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics baseball title in three years and carved a niche in NAIA record books in the process.

Lipscomb, of Nashville, won Monday night its second National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics baseball title in three years and carved a niche in NAIA record books in the process.

Lipscomb took a 1-0 lead in the second inning with Reggie Whitmore reaching first on a fielder's choice and scoring on Walter Ward's double.

Lipscomb defeated Southeastern Oklahoma 2-1 in 1977 at St. Joseph, Mo., to win that year. The NAIA World Series moved to Nashville this year after a six-year stretch in St. Joseph.

Lipscomb tied it in the third on singles by Fred Poole and Pisanio, a walk to Garbarino and Tim Reid's sacrifice fly.

Cunningham drove in four runs, doubling home a pair to snap a 1-1 tie in the fourth and adding a two-run double in the sixth to give Lipscomb a 5-2 lead.

"I thought all along, after we won the first two ball games, that we had a chance to go all the way," Lipscomb Coach Ken Dugan said. "Pitching carried us. In a tournament like this, the team that gets pitching is the one that's going to win."

Koenig, selected for the all-tournament team and chosen most valuable player, hurled three strong innings in relief. He replaced Lipscomb starter Tim Pardue with two on and no one out in the seventh. Koenig struck out High Point's Ken Carter and Mike Pisano before giving up a two-run double to Joe Garbarino.

High Point got into the title game by beating Point Park College, of Pittsburgh, Pa., 10-6 in 13 innings Sunday night in a contest suspended by rain the day before. Lipscomb beat High Point earlier in the tournament 6-3.

In the final two innings, Koenig struck out five of the six batters he faced.

Other teams in the original field of eight were St. Xavier, Chicago; Birmingham-Southern, Birmingham, Ala.; Southeastern Oklahoma State, University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse and Lewis-Clark State, Lewiston, Idaho.

Pe due picked up the victory, his seventh against one loss. High Point starter and lone Defending NAIA champion Emporia State was eliminated before reaching this year's tournament.
