

Welfare office to stay closed

By DAN LACKEY
Pampa News Staff

Gray County officials will apparently not revive the county welfare office effectively abolished by commissioners one year ago.

Commissioners approved an appropriation of $5600 to the Salvation Army this month — to be administered by Army Lt. David Craddock — while continuing to review individual requests for medical financial aid at Highland General Hospital.

Commissioners said they were satisfied that the Salvation Army could handle such welfare aid formerly provided by the county. "I believe we're better off with the Salvation Army than with welfare," Commissioner Ronnie Rice said in regular session of the court last week.

Although a range of welfare requests have been made directly to the county judge's office, the bulk of the requests have concerned indigent aid care for patients at Highland General Hospital.

The county is required under its contract with Hospital Corporation of America to provide funds for indigent care at current Medicaid rates.

Kennedy said Wednesday the court was moving away from any consideration of reviving the welfare office.

"It's really a problem of procedure between the county and the hospital," Kennedy said. "Once they have hired a worker to screen applications for free or indigent care, then the necessity to review each request in court will be eliminated."

A social worker is expected to be hired at Highland General, according to administrative secretary Trudy Briggs.

Kennedy said his office would continue to answer calls concerning welfare but said help would be in the nature of "providing a service — not a disbursement of county funds."

The exact guidelines for indigency are not clear, and commissioners have been reviewing each case on an individual basis. Four applicants for financial aid were turned down in the last session of commissioners court, with only one tentatively accepted.

The county has received requests for indigent care aid of nearly $30,000 in the two and a half months since the current assets of the county's two hospitals were purchased by Hospital Corporation of America.

Kennedy said he will continue to put applications for indigent care before county commissioners.

"I don't want the authority to individually disperse funds within this county without commissioners prior knowledge and approval," he said.

For new police chief

Search continues

City officials were scheduled to meet this morning in executive session to continue their search for a new police chief.

City commissioners selected seven applicants from a field of 28 for interviews which began Wednesday morning, according to City Manager Mac Wofford. But Wofford said he did not know if a new chief would be selected by July 1 — the date when the resignation of Chief Richard Mills becomes effective.

Mills, who announced his resignation May 30, will be leaving to assume his duties as police chief in Sherman, a city 61 miles north of Dallas.

Wofford said most of the applicants had requested that their names not be released, but he said five of the original 28 applicants were local persons connected with law enforcement, including three members of the Pampa Police Department.

Of that five, three were selected for interviews Wednesday, including two members of the present police force, Wofford said. Pampa Police Lt. J. J. Ryzman said this morning he had been interviewed for the position.

Wofford said the four remaining interviews were with police chiefs from "cities of comparable size to Pampa." The city manager said all the applicants represented a "good cross section" and a "wide range of law enforcement experience."

The city charter requires the city manager to make a recommendation to the mayor and commissioners. But that might not be the end of the search, Wofford said.

"It's possible that the commissioners could say, 'We're not satisfied with any of the seven,' and then we'd start all over," he said.

City commissioners, Wofford and Mayor H. R. Thompson will meet again in executive session Friday to continue interviewing applicants. Another session will probably be scheduled for Monday, Wofford said.

Hijacker gives up after overseas flight

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — An American Airlines Boeing 707, commandeered by a man identified as a Serbian nationalist bomber, flew today from New York to Shannon airport, where the hijacker gave himself up to police authorities said.

It was more than 22 hours after the hijacking drama had begun on a New York-Chicago flight. The FBI said the hijacker, who arrived in Ireland with his lawyer, had been armed with dynamite. A crew of three were also aboard.

authorities in New York said. A duty office spokesman at Shannon airport said the hijacker walked down the steps from the plane to waiting police in a remote part of the airfield, and there was no violence.

Scores of Irish police including a special anti-terrorist unit, had surrounded the plane after it landed at 2:47 p.m. local time — 9:47 a.m. EDT.

Two executives from American Airlines had also flown in from London. In New York at about 4 a.m., the Serbian nationalist had switched from a smaller jetliner he had hijacked 16 hours earlier during a flight from New York to Chicago, the FBI said.

The hijacker, identified by the FBI as convicted bomber Nikola Kavaja, 45, of Paterson, N.J., boarded the second plane at John F. Kennedy International Airport after a return flight to New York.

Kavaja was carrying "50 to 100 sticks" of low-grade dynamite in a satchel rigged with a detonator, the FBI said.

"The explosives are genuine to the best of our knowledge," said FBI agent Ed Sharp said. Agents could not explain how the explosives passed airport security in New York's LaGuardia Airport on Wednesday.

John Otto, the FBI agent in charge of negotiations in Chicago said bomb experts told him a device like the one Kavaja was believed to be carrying was sufficient to blow the plane to "smithereens."

An FBI sharpshooter armed with a high-powered rifle was hidden in the darkness beside the runway when Kavaja walked the 175 feet to change planes, but the marksman was unable to get off a shot, said FBI spokesman Quentin Ertel.

Sharp explained it was deemed "too risky" to shoot at the explosives-laden man, who was accompanied on the tarmac by his lawyer and the pilot who returned him to New York.

The 136 passengers aboard American's New York-to-Chicago Flight 293 had been freed unharmed five hours after the Boeing 727 jetliner landed at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport Wednesday.

Authorities said Kavaja, his attorney and a new crew of three were aboard for the 5½-hour flight to Ireland when the plane left Kennedy shortly after 4 a.m. EDT.

Kavaja was among six persons scheduled to be sentenced today in Chicago for a 1975 bombing at the home of a Yugoslavian consul.

Kavaja had demanded the release of the jailed comrade, but the Rev. Stojilko Kajevic refused to join the odyssey and convinced Kavaja to release the passengers, the FBI said.

Governors meet

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Farmworkers and the thorny problems of illegal aliens, drug smuggling and energy face at least three border state governors gathering today for a two-day conference.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements, Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and New Mexico Gov. Bruce King will meet at the Rancho Viejo resort just north of this border city.

California Gov. Jerry Brown has said he probably will not attend and designated Tom Hayden, husband of actress Jane Fonda, as his representative.

The governors will attend a cocktail reception and dinner tonight before Friday's four-hour business meeting.

About 40 members of the Texas Farmworker Union awaited the governors, apparently to rally for better working conditions and bargaining rights.

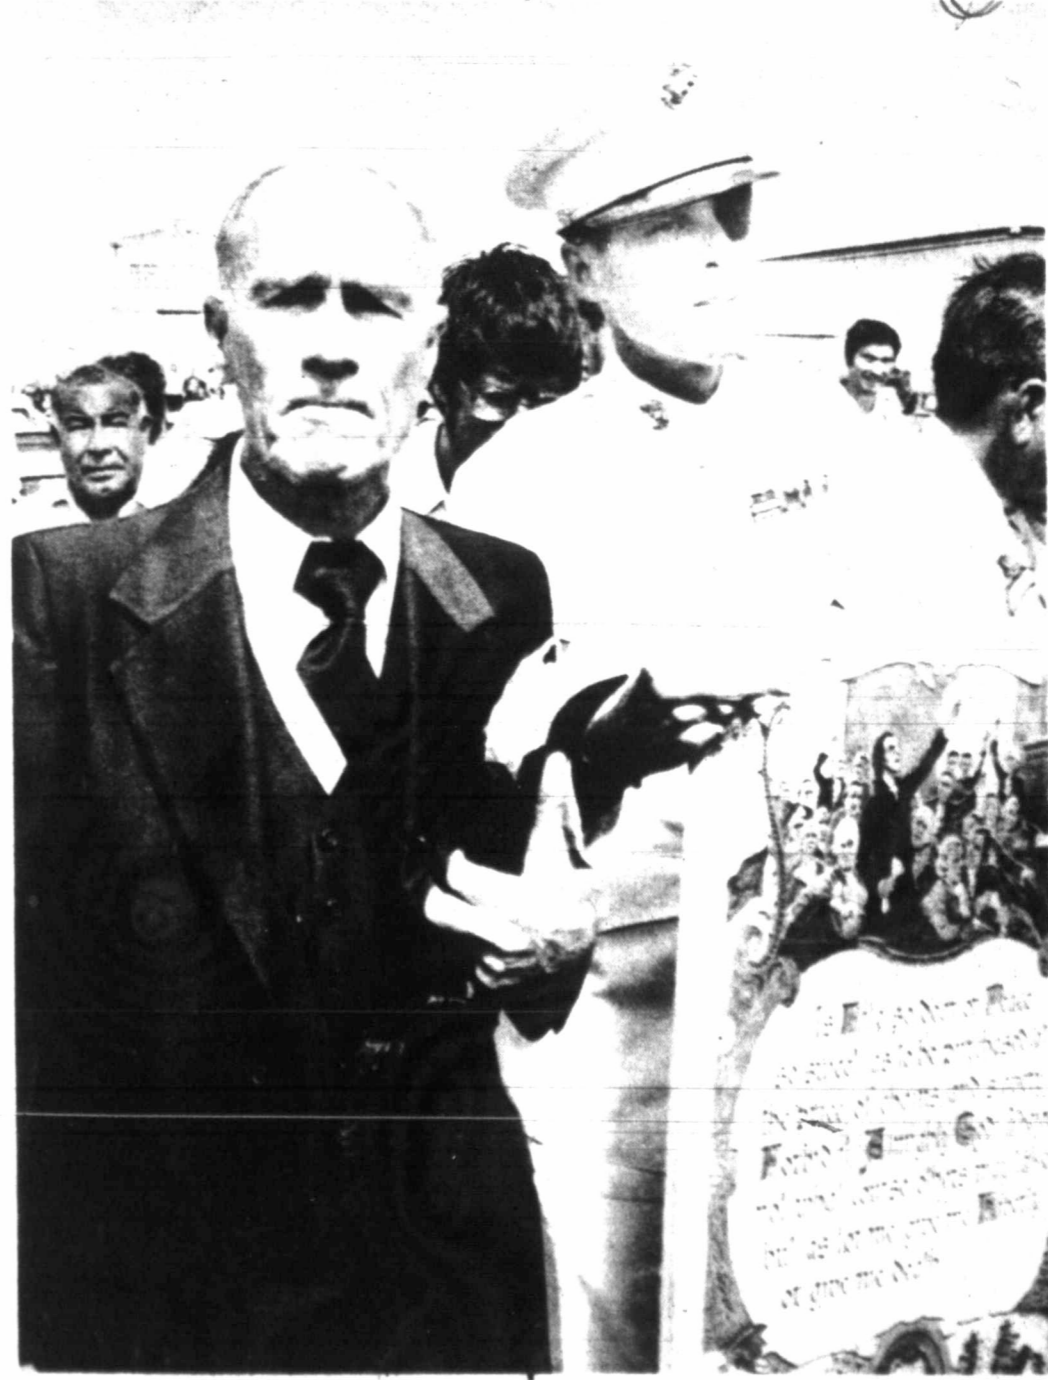

Babbitt arrived a day early to visit in-laws living here.

Clements, a first-term Republican, will offer position papers Friday on how to solve problems of aliens, drugs and energy. He hopes the group will agree on policies that can be presented to Mexican governors and the U.S. State Department.

DEBBIE CELLINI, a truck driver from Laurel Springs, N.J., stands on the front steps of her state's capitol with a policeman in the background. Her t-shirt symbolizes the truckers' discontent with President Carter's energy policies.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Dumping the DOE

If there is anything more unpredictable than the weather and most of the predictions about it, it will have to be the $10 billion Department of Energy (DOE). One day we read that this agency has asked the major oil companies not to buy foreign oil on the world market and before a week is over we are informed that DOE is urging oil firms to buy foreign crude to bolster supplies.

In the first story an oil company executive was quoted saying, "We were all set to go out and buy some of this oil and hell with the price, but Schlesinger's people got in touch with us and asked us not to. They were afraid we would get out there on the world market and bid up the price," the oilman said. "They talked about the balance-of-payments deficit, too. And one guy even mentioned that we'd make our allies mad if we bid up the price and caused them to pay more."

An energy department spokesman confirmed that the government had requested the companies not to buy spot-market oil. "We're asking them not to do it. If the supply situation remains tight, the spot-market price will become the standard. We shouldn't be a party to bidding it up and up. It is up to $25 a barrel in some instances."

The general world-market price for oil is now $18 per barrel but it is not likely to stay there much longer.

The second story, which we are reading today, reports that the Department of Energy has begun to encourage U.S. oil firms to buy more crude oil overseas on the world-market, even at high prices. One DOE official explains that the policy of "requesting" the nonpurchase of crude oil on the higher-priced world market was not working very well in holding the prices down and the politically volatile gasoline shortage "is more important now."

The reversal of policy accompanies another switch in direction: this one on heating oil. Only a short time government put pressure on the oil companies to cut gasoline production in order to build inventories of heating oil for next winter. Now DOE has switched and encourages the refineries to produce gasoline for a month instead of the heating oil. "We may have gone overboard on that one," an energy official said.

Long before the energy department was formed, governmental agencies had laid the groundwork for the crunch now facing us. Interference in the marketplace and loading red tape on the oil industry is now showing its debilitating effects.

It has been a popular pastime to blame the oil industry, and politicians have played on that to draw attention away from the basic source of our energy problem. It seems that bigness in everything save government is all that is needed to create a useful whipping boy.

If any one of the big oil companies had been as reckless with investor or consumer money as the $10 billion federal agency DOE has been with tax funds, the reaction would have been terrific. But since it is a governmental agency the amount becomes just a set of figures that somehow does not relate to the pocketbooks of the people.

Governmental officials now are admitting that there is little they can do to get us out of the energy crunch. They have not yet admitted that most of the problem stems from bureaucratic interference in the normal course of trade.

Private enterprise and the marketplace may find the answers in spite of regulations and controls. A way out can be found faster and with much less damage to the economy without the "help" of the bureaucracy.

Dumping DOE and putting a curb on the activities of the Environmental Protection Agency would give the whole energy industry a great assist. When consumers find the real source of their problem (if they ever do) their misplaced ire may switch from the whipping boy to little "princes" who are the true cause of the energy users' plight.

Warranty may be worthless

AUSTIN - If the new product you just bought comes with an impressive and official-looking warranty you may feel that you have also bought complete protection should problems develop.

But that warranty could be essentially worthless, according to our Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division attorneys.

For instance, a consumer who buys a hair dryer with a lot of plastic parts might discover when trying to have it serviced under warranty that plastic parts are excluded from coverage.

While consumers have certain rights regarding warranties under both federal and state laws, our attorneys point out that it's always far better to avoid potential problems by knowing exactly what kind of coverage you'll get before you buy a product.

They suggest too, that you shop as carefully for warranties on a product as you do for a good price. In the long run, you might save money by buying a more expensive item with a "full" warranty than a less expensive one with a "limited" warranty.

What's the difference? A "full" warranty means complete coverage. A defective product will be fixed or replaced at no charge; the product will be repaired or replaced within a reasonable amount of time; the warranty covers anyone who owns the product during its life; and if the product cannot be fixed after reasonable attempts it will be replaced or the purchaser's money refunded.

A "limited" warranty means one with restricted coverage. For instance, it may mean that cost of parts only, not labor, is covered; that the buyer must return the product to the original seller for service; that there are charges for postage and handling; or that the owners other than the original one are not covered.

Then there's the "implied" warranty consumers get with every product, whether or not it's stated in writing. This type of warranty means that the item purchased must do the job it's purchased for - an example would be that a stove must cook. Only if the seller expressly disclaims such implied warranties are they inoperable.

Our lawyers say that one important right all consumers have, and which they should take advantage of, is the right to examine the warranty on a product before buying. Warranties must be displayed so the consumer can read them and use them for comparison shopping. They must also be written in language that is easy to understand, not in legal jargon the average consumer would find confusing.

But the very best warranty is only as good as the merchant behind it, according to experts. So pick a seller with a reputation for prompt, courteous service or warranty complaints. And if you have questions about your rights regarding warranties, get in touch with the Attorney General's Consumer Protection and Antitrust Division in Austin, Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, El Paso, Lubbock, or McAllen.

THERE IS HOPE for the human race when people will come together, as they recently did in San Diego, to discuss what are the rights of man. Five scholars gave papers on the subject of "Modern Rights Theory."

To know what is a right, as well as what our rights are and how they can be protected, is to come to grips with things basic.

No word has been more carelessly bandied about than "right," used as a noun. Just about every action and state of being has, on one occasion or another, been asserted to be a "right." The word is a favorite with politicians. Our politician-in-chief has pretty nearly worn out the phrase "human rights" without yet telling us just what he means by it. But let's not blame him too much. All of us are guilty of using this precious word loosely.

WE ARE ESPECIALLY prone to use "right" as a grab word. Whatever I very much want I say I "have a right to." Education, for example. But "education is not a right," says William Boyd, president of the Connecticut Legal Fund. "We have a right to act to obtain an education, but we do not have a 'right' to an education provided by others through the state."

Why not? Because this imposes upon our tax-paying neighbors the responsibility of paying for our education, whether they want to or not. It robs them of their right to possess their earned dollars and spend these as they will, for example, for their own sustenance, which is surely just as vital and needful as my education.

HAVE YOU A RIGHT to life? Ask almost anyone that question and his answer will be an emphatic yes. But Boyd points out that what you and I have a right to is not life but freedom to maintain our lives by acting, probably by working to provide the food, clothing and shelter necessary to life. "It does not mean," says Boyd, "that the state must provide these for us." Our right to life does not include the right to force other people to support us. We have a right to live, if we can, by our own efforts, just as we have a right to educate ourselves at our own expense.

While on this subject of life, what about "liberty and the pursuit of happiness?" Are these rights, as the Declaration says they are?

LIBERTY IS MY right in that no one can rightfully take it away from me. Pursuit of happiness, likewise - although much depends on how I carry on the chase.

If others will let me alone and not interfere in my life, I can be free - at least of material bonds, though not necessarily of my own bad habits, worries and inhibitions. And I can pursue happiness, with no guarantee. I will catch it.

In defining right, used as a noun, Webster tends to stress the law as the source of rights. He quotes the sociologist, Charles Horton Cooley, who saw a right as "that which the law secures to its possessor, by requiring others to respect it and to refrain from its violation."

Certainly a prime purpose of law is to define the rights of people and protect them in the exercise thereof, but this is not achieved by a mere statute that may be written in the law books today and repealed tomorrow. Rather, "the law" should be thought of as the common law or general consensus of the overwhelming majority as to what is right and what is wrong. It is, both law and custom, the accepted legality and morality. And we should always bear in mind that the law-making body can and often does enact a law which reduces peoples' rights, not protects them. Under totalitarian regimes, the law is more destructive than protective.

MEN HAD RIGHTS before they had any written laws. In such a society, a right was whatever was morally right. The noun was equated with the adjective. But what was morally right? There being no statute law to fall back upon for an answer, this question had to be answered by a general agreement on rightness and wrongness, a consensus in the moral law.

Undoubtedly our primordial ancestors argued profusely over this. Out of the argument came such dicta as the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule, which state man's conclusions on certain basic rights and wrongs. The purpose of statute law is to spell out and apply these conclusions.

Thus, there is still truth in the statement that a "right" is whatever is morally "right."

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, June 21, the 172nd day of 1979. There are 193 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1788, the U.S. Constitution went into effect as New Hampshire became the ninth state to ratify it.

On this date:
In 1834, American inventor Cyrus McCormick was granted a patent on his reaping machine.

In 1898, the first U.S. troops landed in Cuba in the Spanish-American War.

In 1919, part of a German fleet interned at Scapa Flow in Scotland was scuttled by the German crewmen.

In 1945, in World War II, Japanese forces on the island of Okinawa surrendered to the Americans.

In 1963, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Milan, Italy, was elected Pope. He took the name of Paul VI.

In 1965, Japan and South Korea resumed full diplomatic relations after 14 years of difficult negotiations.

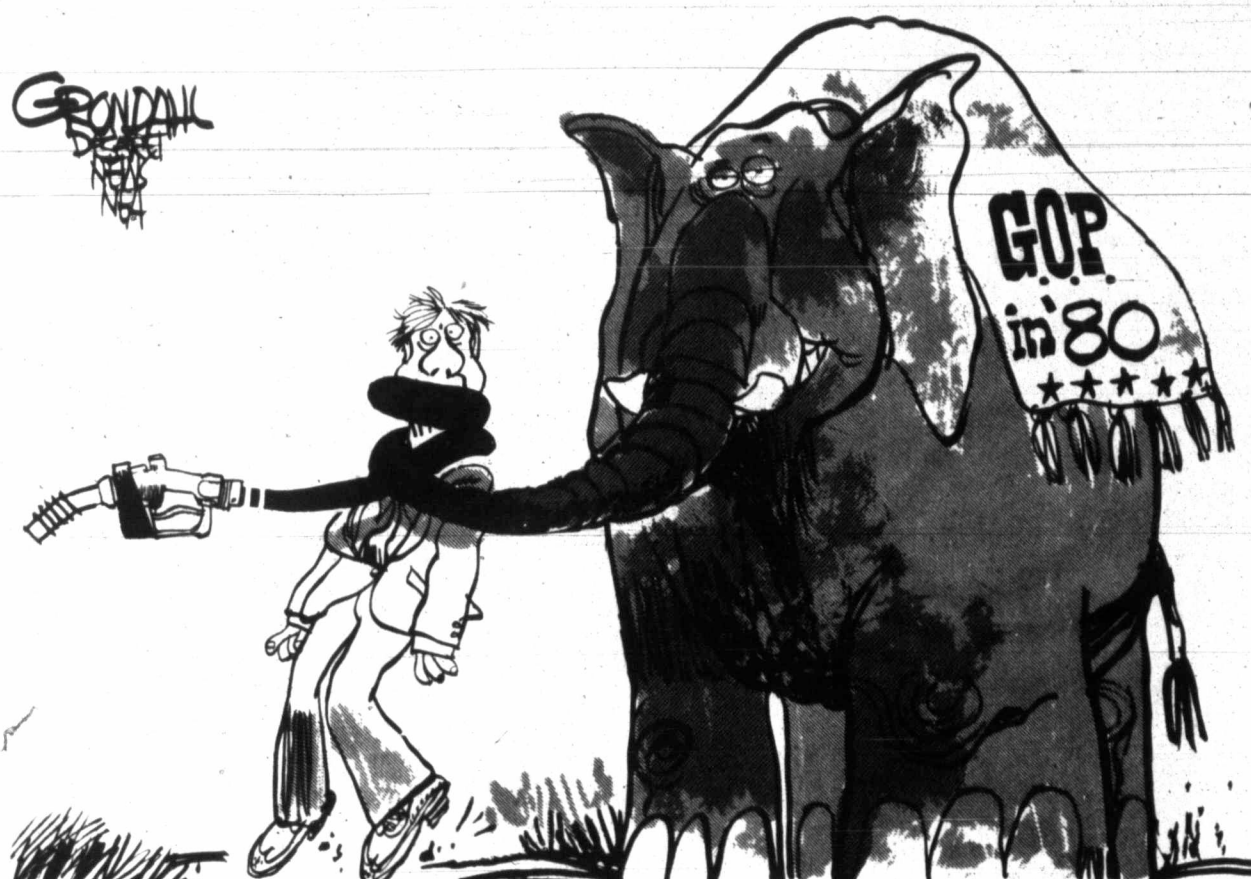

Ten years ago: There was anti-American rioting in Uruguay during a visit to the South American country by a special U.S. envoy, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

Five years ago: Former presidential adviser Charles Colson was sentenced to one to three years in prison for obstructing justice in the Ellsberg case.

One year ago: President Carter told a meeting of the Organization of American States in Washington the U.S. would continue its campaign for human rights despite opposition to the policy by some governments.

Today's birthdays: French existentialist philosopher Jean-Paul Sartre is 74. Actress Jane Russell is 58. Opera singer Judith Raskin is 51.

Thought for today: Only parents' love can last our lives - Robert Browning, English poet, 1812-1889.

When newsmen spy on newsmen

Are newsmen and newswomen -- by their own excesses -- asking to have their wings clipped?

When actor John Wayne was hospitalized in April he complained that reporters were "sneaking around bringing hospital officials to say something other than what was in the official hospital report."

"That used to be considered unbecoming 'yellow journalism.' Now they try to dignify it by calling it investigative reporting."

Detroit reporter Gary Schuster posed as a congressman and got himself admitted to the White House for the signing of the Mideast peace treaty.

But he got reprimanded by a committee of his own colleagues.

And there is other evidence that some conscientious, concerned newsmen are recognizing a new need for self-discipline.

A Washington attorney, Max Kampelman, has written an essay on "The Powers of the Press -- a Problem for Democracy." In essence, he says newsmen will behave or be censored.

We've had an interesting confrontation develop in Michigan. The Panax Corp. is a news organization -- publishes six daily and 46 non-daily newspapers.

Panax was holding a meeting of its directors in Marquette, Mich. -- deciding sensitive issues of company policy.

A radio station reporter, posing as a motel worker, managed to eavesdrop on those board meetings.

Now how do newsmen like it when they are snooped on by newsmen? They don't like it at all.

Panax is suing for a million dollars damages, charging invasion of privacy.

There is a Michigan law making eavesdropping on a private conversation and divulging information received in that manner a felony punishable by two years in prison and a $2,000 fine.

That law has never been used against a newsmen before.

A Panax official, James Whelan, says, "While we strongly believe in the first amendment (freedom of the press), we also believe that there are and must be ethical and other restraints on the press."

The very idea of "restraints" is terrifying to some of my colleagues.

Former NBC Board Chairman Julian Goodman says the first amendments is "an absolute commitment by the government to the people."

He sees several recent court decisions as tending to "erode press freedom..."

And there has been a series of court decisions toward that end -- forcing reporters to reveal sources, excluding reporters from court proceedings, gag orders. And the classic and, I concede, frightening, "Stanford Case" which allows police to rummage through newsroom files.

And the court decision requiring reporters to reveal their own mental attitude during the preparation of a story.

But freedom always has been allowable only until it is abused.

Clare Booth Luce says, "The news media serve us well in checking the abuse of power by others. Now we need a check on the abuse of power by the media."

Or as television's city editor Lou Grant said it: "The news media's privileged punks better clean up their own act."

Logic and the law

Frances B. Davis, a North Carolina woman with seriously impaired hearing, was told by the Supreme Court this week that federal law does not require that she be admitted for training as a registered nurse.

After some five years of dispute and litigation, this no doubt comes as a great disappointment to Mrs. Davis. But in addition to being a victim of her handicap, she was also a victim of the ambiguities in a well-meaning law, the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. And in a larger sense, she was the victim of a legislative expansion that tries increasingly, and with increasingly unfortunate results, to override the judgment and logic of individual decision-makers and control their choices through law.

When Mrs. Davis applied for nurses' training at Southeastern Community College in Whiteville, N.C. in 1974, her application was given serious consideration. She had worked as a licensed practical nurse and obviously had a strong motivation towards nursing as a profession.

But after various tests, the college ascertained that Mrs. Davis's hearing loss was so severe that at times she found it necessary to read lips and had difficulty understanding what was said to her. The admissions authorities, while obviously sympathetic towards Mrs. Davis, felt that as a registered nurse she would be in serious difficulty performing certain duties such as working in a hospital room where everyone would be wearing a surgical mask.

It would be hard to quarrel with the logic of that decision. Certain jobs require certain aptitudes and abilities. Compassion for an individual who suffers from a handicap does not require that the individual be treated as if the handicap doesn't exist. Persons with damaged vision are not handed the controls of airliners or invited to become surgeons.

Yet the Rehabilitation Act says that "no otherwise qualified handicapped individual... shall, solely by reason of his handicap, be excluded from participation in... any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance." Does that mean that the very handicap that would seem to disqualify you for a job cannot be used to disqualify you? Mrs. Davis had to go all the way to the Supreme Court to find out that it doesn't mean that.

"An otherwise qualified person is one who is able to meet all of a program's requirements in spite of his handicap," the court ruled. How, indeed, could it have ruled otherwise and still left individuals who must make hiring and educational admissions choices with the ability to act rationally in the public interest?

The law's assumption was that such people would not, in the absence of a law, act fairly or with compassion. It would seem to be about time that legislators developed a little more faith in individual judgment and learned more about how most people really do act.

Roloff's backers are encouraged by success

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff's followers — encouraged by a successful stand against the state but confused by conflicting reports about Texas Gov. Bill Clements' role in that stand — gathered here early today to continue their battle.

Officials from the Texas Department of Human Resources, armed with a court order to close Roloff's youth homes, showed up Wednesday to carry out that order. Confronted by a human wall of Bible carrying preachers and parents, the officials left without the children they came to get.

Wednesday was to have been the climax to Roloff's six-year battle against the state licenses he's been told to get for his three youth homes. One of those homes, The Anchor Home for Boys in Zapata, Texas, was voluntarily closed by the superintendent late Tuesday without Roloff's approval.

"They'll have to break through the Bible and walk over it," Rev. Earl Little of Garland, Texas said as the faithful locked hands and lined up in front of Roloff's People's Church. Some 100 residents of the Rebekah Home for Girls and 100 from the Lighthouse Home for Boys were inside the church. Roloff officials said parents had taken some 30-40 girls from the Rebekah home.

Many of the Lighthouse residents are over 18 and not affected by the court order. The DHR officials showed up early in the afternoon. Marlin Johnston, associate commissioner of the agency, was greeted with a warm "Howdy" from Roloff and escorted in a car past the human blockade into Roloff's private home.

The men talked behind closed doors for about 20 minutes. Johnston then was driven away, saying he planned to talk with Roloff later in the day.

"We had a nice conversation," Johnston told reporters.

The preachers and parents retreated into the church to await the next effort to close the homes. Several times later in the day they scurried back into position and held huge flags in anticipation of a return visit.

"They're planning to close in. This is the kill," Roloff said at one point when DHR officials were expected back.

A 100-member DHR task force waited at a nearby agency office after traveling in buses and vans from Texas A&I University in nearby Kingsville where they are being housed, but the state never came back.

"We're barely alive tonight. You think of how close we came," Roloff told the evening prayer meeting.

Ben Gallant, a local businessman and Roloff supporter, credited Clements with granting a temporary reprieve.

"The governor called me back and said he had talked to Attorney General Mark White or his office and Col. (Wilson) Speir of the Texas Department of Public Safety. He assured me there would be no breaking through of people lines or breaking down of church doors," Gallant said after the crowd dispersed late Wednesday.

During the prayer session later that night Little praised Clements and urged the capacity crowd of 2,000 to call the governor and congratulate him for having "as much courage as any governor in the United States."

But immediately after Little recited a telephone number where the governor could be reached, a confused hush blanketed the audience as Roloff brought the latest news.

"The newspaper said he retracted the statement," Roloff said in a subdued tone. "We sure enough need to call him now. I wish the governor would come see us tomorrow night."

Gallant stood up and headed to the front of the circular church. He asked the crowd to reserve judgment on Clements until the governor could be contacted.

Clements was not available for comment late Wednesday.

Roloff credited the Lord for allowing the girls to return to the Rebekah home for another night.

"Sometimes God lets drastic things happen in order to give people a shock treatment," he told the congregation.

And he warned his followers that legal efforts to keep the homes open had apparently failed.

"Here's the sad thing. We played out today as far as we know, of all the legal remedies," he said.

Clyde Jackson, a Roloff attorney, said U.S. District Judge Owen Cox Wednesday refused to intervene.

But the congregation was encouraged by an announcement that Texas Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, was asking for a special legislative session to deal with the matter.

PATRICK NICHOLS and Patrick Jr. pray together Wednesday outside Lester Roloff's People's Church near Corpus Christi. Roloff has refused to license his Rebekah Home for Girls and state Department of Human Resources officials say they will close the home and remove the girls unless he obtains the proper state licenses for the home.

200 gallons missing

At least one unknown person has a 200-gallon hedge against a possible gasoline shortage in the state this summer.

Howard Williams of Williams Welding Service, 1315 W. Wilks, reported that someone broke a padlock to the gasoline barrel at his welding service, taking approximately 200 gallons of gas. The theft occurred Tuesday or Wednesday night, according to police.

The gasoline was valued at about $200 — or about one dollar per gallon.

Ship's crew survives pirate threat

RAYMONDVILLE, Texas (AP) — Five American crewmen from a Panamanian ship say they are just glad to be alive after a harrowing adventure of hijacking and survival they doubtless will tell their grandchildren.

The men were found trudging through the massive King Ranch Wednesday morning by ranch hands. They told Willacy County and Coast Guard authorities their ship, the Noorderkroon, was boarded by pirates on May 27.

The Noorderkroon was found burning in the mouth of the Mississippi River last Friday. When they boarded, Coast Guard officers found five bales of marijuana floating in the flooded hold.

Coast Guard officials say they believe the sailors' story, and the men were released to go home Wednesday afternoon.

The crewmen requested anonymity from reporters, saying their captors had threatened their families.

The captain of the 200-foot freighter said the nightmare began when they spotted a shrimp boat's distress signal one day after leaving Colon, Panama, heading to Tampico for minor repairs.

"We went to render assistance and they said they were sinking," the captain said. "So I invited them on board and all hell broke loose."

"I didn't feel like arguing with seven men with guns and I didn't ask them any questions. I just did what they told me to do," he said.

The gunmen locked him in his quarters and his men in the officers' mess, and they all were blindfolded and transferred to the hold of a second ship several days later.

"We couldn't see anything, even after we took the blindfolds off because they put us in the hold," he said. "That hold was very dark, for us it was always night down there."

Last Friday, the captain said, the pirates put him and his crew on a rubber raft, probably somewhere near the Yucatan, and cut them loose.

They drifted in the open sea until sometime Sunday or Monday, when they spotted land. Using their hands, they paddled to Padre Island and dragged the now-ragged raft over the sand.

"The raft was in bad shape and sinking, so we abandoned it and by then we were in shallow water. So we just walked to shore," he said.

They put ashore about 10 miles north of Port Mansfield, and began walking northwest in search of habitation.

For three days, they trudged through the sandy stretches of the King Ranch, living off sour grapes and cactus and drinking water from cattle troughs.

Wednesday morning, they were picked up by ranch hands, who fed them and called ambulances to take the exhausted seamen to Willacy County Hospital.

deaths and funerals

ROBERT B. MATHIS

SHAMROCK — Funeral services for retired chaplain Lieutenant Colonel Robert B. Mathis, 75, will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church in Shamrock. Chaplain H.B. Ramsour of Killeen will officiate, assisted by Rev. Jim Scott. Burial will be in Shamrock Cemetery under the direction of Richerson Funeral Home.

Services in Killeen were held this morning at Eastside Baptist Church. Lt. Col. Mathis died Tuesday in Killeen.

He was born in Seymour and graduated from Baylor University Southwest Seminary in Fort Worth with a degree in Religious Education. In 1939 he received his master's degree in theology from the seminary.

He was a former resident of McLean and pastored churches in Plymouth, Lone Mountain, and Twitty.

He served 21 years in the U.S. Army and after World War II was instrumental in the burial of many United States Soldiers in Punch Bowl Cemetery in Hawaii.

He was a 32nd degree mason, a member of Knight Templar, Scottish Rite and sons of the American Revolution, Texas and National.

Mathis was a former school teacher and served as pastor of Sunset Baptist Church prior to his retirement.

Survivors include his wife, Josie; three sons, Lt. Col. Robert N. of Dover, N.J., Glenn of Mannheim, and Joseph P. of Liberty, Mo.; a brother, Marvin L. of Portales, N.M.; two sisters, Mrs. L.E. O'Bryant of Oklahoma City, Okla. and Mrs. Al Anderson of Hugo, Okla.; and eight grandchildren.

ROSEMARY ANNE LAWLOR

Funeral arrangements for Miss Rosemary Anne Lawlor, of 1530 Williston St., are pending with Carmichael - Whatley Funeral Directors.

Miss Lawlor died this morning at Highland General Hospital. She was born in Indianapolis, Ind., and graduated from Evansville University in Evansville, Ind. She studied at Union Theological Seminary School of Sacred Music in New York City.

Miss Lawlor was a private voice instructor and a soloist in New York, Dallas, and Pampa. She was formerly the music director for St. Mathews Episcopal Day Care School.

She was a member of Sigma Alpha Iota honorary music sorority, past of Treble-Clef, and a board member of the Pampa Community Concert Association and the Altrusa Club.

A resident of Pampa for 20 years, Miss Lawlor was choir director at First Christian Church for 15 years.

She is survived by her great-niece, Mrs. Gail Schreiber of Indianapolis, Ind.

Carter to energy summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economic summit conference President Carter will attend in Japan next week is being transformed by events into an "energy summit" where leaders of seven industrial nations will be under pressure to find solutions to the latest world oil crisis.

Although energy problems have been on the agenda of four previous economic summit conferences, they will dominate the discussions at the June 28-29 Tokyo summit, officials say.

Administration officials say Carter will try to devise a joint energy program with the other leaders that will give Americans some hope of relief from long gasoline lines, a threatened heating oil shortage and a potential energy-induced economic recession.

"They are desperate to come up with something," said one official, who did not want to be identified. "It would be awful for their image if they came away empty-handed and looked powerless against OPEC (the Organization of Petroleum

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
No relief was in sight in Texas today from the hot, humid weather as forecasts called for more of the same.
Skies were to be clear to partly cloudy today with temperatures ranging from the upper 80s along the gulf coast to the middle 90s over the remainder of the state. Readings in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas were expected to reach as high as 108.
Some thunderstorm activity was reported during the night in the Big Bend area, but there were no reports of significant amounts of rainfall.
Early morning temperatures ranged from the middle 50s in the Panhandle to the upper 70s in Northeast Texas to the lower 80s in Southeast Texas.

Texas forecast

North Texas — Partly cloudy central and east through Friday, clearing by early evening. Continued fair west. High temperatures 94 to 100. Lows 75 to 76. Highs Friday 92 to 100.
South Texas — Partly cloudy and humid through Friday with little change in temperatures. Highs through Friday upper 80s along the coast to near 100 Rio Grande plains. Lows low to mid 70s Hill country to near 80 along the Coast.
West Texas — Generally fair central and north partly cloudy south portion through Friday. Continued hot afternoons. Widely scattered afternoon and nighttime thunderstorms extreme south. Highs through Friday 93 to 102 except near 108 Big Bend valleys. Lows 54 mountains and northwest to near 80 extreme south.

SHOWERS are expected from the northern Rockies to the central Plains. A band of rain is forecast from Texas and Arkansas to New England. Cool weather is forecast for the northern Plains, warm weather for the Southeast and seasonal temperatures elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto)

Orbit of Skylab changed

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Controllers at Johnson Space Center have placed the descending Skylab into a position that gives it less power and is hastening its crash back to Earth.

But the new altitude gives the controllers more maneuverability of the bulky old space station and that could be a critical capability when debris from the 85-ton craft starts a fiery re-entry into the Earth's atmosphere next month.

"Skylab is still going to fall, we can't do anything about that," said Charles S. Harlan, chief of Skylab operations. "But if we can maintain control until the last moment, we can possibly avoid high density population areas."

Controllers coaxed the space laboratory into a sideways orbit Wednesday and then set up a close monitoring of the craft to see if it maintained the new attitude, which provides added stability.

As the space craft approaches Earth's atmosphere, scientists will be able to accurately predict where debris from the craft will strike. If populated areas are involved, a last minute command could alter the path of the wreckage.

Harlan said Wednesday's maneuver was the hardest ever attempted on Skylab because of the unknown analytical factors.

"I didn't think we'd get this far," Harlan said. "Everything looks all right now but we've got a long way to go and a lot to learn. Keeping it where it is will be half of the battle."

The new attitude creates more drag on the craft and therefore is pushing it down at a faster rate.

The North American Air Defense Command says Skylab will fall between July 7 and 25 with a 50 per cent chance of impact occurring by July 16.

Wednesday's maneuver will result in less solar power for the craft because it's solar panels do not have as much contact with the sun in the present attitude.

"It will be a challenge to maintain electric power," Harlan said. "But we think we will have enough."

Skylab was first sent aloft in 1973 and was used by three groups of astronauts who performed experiments and sent back thousands of photographs of the sun before the space lab was abandoned in 1974.

Short tempers flare as rationing hits East Coast

Defiance, fuel thefts and mixed success greeted the first full-scale "odd-even" gasoline rationing in the East, where fights erupted at pumps, a gun was pulled and a service station owner was run over.

New Jersey, Maryland, northern Virginia and the District of Columbia began selling fuel by the numbers today. Florida's Dade County — the Miami area — was starting voluntary rationing. Polk County, in the center of the state, was trying it at midnight.

The screams of angry motorists were heard, and federal officials refused to relax fuel economy standards for passenger cars of the 1980s and planned new efforts to develop synthetic fuel to replace imported oil.

President Carter was reviewing ways to help service station owners, who say they need to boost profits — and thus prices — by as much as 4 cents a gallon. The administration also agreed to review its planned cutbacks on the Amtrak passenger rail system.

Blocks-long lines were reported Wednesday at some gas stations in Connecticut and the New York City area — where gas was up to $1.39 a gallon — despite their first day of rationing.

"It's still a miserable situation," said Frank Hardy, manager of a Mobil station in midtown Manhattan. "After a day or two, if everyone follows the rules, it'll be OK."

But some people reported their waiting time at pumps cut by as much as 75 percent and officials said it would be a week before the distribution plan fully took hold.

Scuffles were reported at some pumps and one motorist in Port Washington, N.Y., was arrested for running over a station owner who had closed up for the day, breaking the man's arm.

In Norwich, Conn., a man pulled a gun when told he couldn't buy gas because his license plate ended in an odd number and it was an even-numbered day. The man left without firing any shots.

Some gas station operators, who face $1,000 fines in both states plus up to a year in jail in Connecticut for non-compliance, balked at going along with the rationing rules.

At Jim's Auto Center in Newington, Conn., owner James Canonico openly flouted the regulations and dared officials to come after him.

Officials in both states said they were being flooded with requests for exemptions granted to emergency and other selected vehicles.

Many Connecticut drivers were seeking their gas in neighboring Rhode Island, which like Delaware has passed up rationing for now in favor of minimum purchase requirements to stop people from "topping off" nearly full tanks.

In Washington, Transportation Secretary cited the fuel crisis and long gas lines in denying requests by General Motors and Ford Motor Co. for relaxation of fuel economy standards on passenger cars for the model years 1981-1984.

REACT team formed

REACT teams across the nation try to serve the public through the use of CB radios, especially during times of emergency.

Local CBers recently formed such a team, which began its services this week.

Its main service will be monitoring the official emergency channel (9), in order to relay messages to the proper authorities.

"In many communities CB radio has proved the difference between life and death," said Debbie Miller, coordinator. "For example, a CB radio operator can save precious moments in situations where emergency medical attention is needed."

Explaining the benefits of being an organization member, she said: "One of the major advantages of our association with REACT is the $500,000 Liability Insurance Plan that covers against lawsuits," she said.

"The cost of this coverage is included in our five dollar annual international dues," she said.

The local organization has 36 members. Like 100,000 other REACT participants organized into 2,000 teams throughout the United States, Canada and other countries, the team will serve on a volunteer basis.

In addition to providing a supplementary system of radio communications in emergencies, the team will promote the correct, efficient use of CB radio. The REACT program is coordinated through REACT International, Inc., an independent and non-profit organization.

Activities scheduled for Rodeo Week

Professional cowboys will hang their hats in Pampa for a week while exhibiting their control over wild prairie beasts during Rodeo Week, scheduled July 9-14.

Local merchants and the Chamber of Commerce have planned several activities to make the cowboy at home in the city.

The store with the most realistic western atmosphere during the week will be awarded a plaque, and the owners and workers of stores are asked to dress "western."

Local artists can put their talents to use in a window painting contest. Western scenes are the art form, and the windows of businesses will be the artists' surface — with permission from the businesses, of course.

Bolo ties, selling at 50 cents each, are available in large quantities and will be distributed before and during Rodeo Week. Store owners are asked to give special discounts for bolo tie wearers.

The last day of Rodeo Week will feature a sidewalk sale, which will accompany a parade.

Free tickets and a savings bond will be hidden in the Golden Horseshoe Treasure Hunt, which will begin Monday. The tradition of finders are keepers will be perpetuated by the event, which offers a $100 savings bond to the finder.

The Top O' Texas Rodeo Association, which will sponsor the Treasure Hunt, will also coordinate two free Pancake Breakfasts on Thursday and Friday mornings of Rodeo Week.

Mayor's job easy

WITHROW, Wash. (AP) — Willie Nollmeyer, mayor of Withrow for 30 years, isn't worried about re-election. He wasn't elected to the post in the first place.

In fact, this small unincorporated Douglas County community hasn't held an election in anyone's recent memory. "I'll hold onto my domain 'till somebody shoots me," says Nollmeyer, 54.

Henley confession ruled admissible

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Mass murder defendant Elmer Wayne Henley gave confessions to police freely, voluntarily and after he was given the necessary warnings, said State District Judge Noah Kennedy, who has ruled the statements admissible in Henley's second trial.

Kennedy made his ruling Wednesday after four policemen from the Houston suburb of Pasadena testified about the circumstances surrounding the oral and written confessions.

Henley's retrial on six murder counts stemming from the six-torture deaths of 26 boys was scheduled to resume today.

Henley, 23, was sentenced to six consecutive 99-year prison sentences following his conviction at a 1974 trial in San Antonio.

That conviction was overturned because the judge turned down a defense motion for a change of venue hearing. Now, defense attorney Will Gray said Kennedy has committed an error that could force a third trial if Henley is convicted.

"This trial was lost before it started — by the prosecution," Gray said. He claims several jurors were improperly seated. But Harris County District Attorney Carol Vance said that he found nothing wrong with the jury selection process.

Police officers J. P. Jamison and Dave Mullican testified Henley had been advised of his rights and did not ask to see a lawyer when the defendant, then a teen-ager, was arrested in 1973.

Jamison and Mullican were among the first to arrive at a Pasadena house where Henley said he had killed Dean Corll, 33. Henley said Corll masterminded the homosexual death spree.

Mullican said Henley voluntarily led police to burial sites in Houston, San Augustine and High Island where the bodies of the victims were dug up.

"He did tell me in fact that he had been involved in killing some of these people," Mullican said. "He told me he felt better by having the thing off his chest."

Probation breakers given prison terms

Dale Glenn Collins, 18, of 325 N. Dwight St. was sentenced to five years in the Texas Department of Corrections last week in 31st District Court after the revocation of his probation.

Collins was serving a 10 year probation sentence for a March 2 burglary conviction. District Attorney Harold Comer filed a motion to revoke after Collins was arrested in May on a driving while intoxicated charge.

The original 10 year sentence was reduced to five years by Judge Grainger McIlhenny.

Also revoked was the probation of Ronald Dunn, 35, convicted May 23, 1978 of delivery of marijuana. Motion to revoke was due to Dunn's failure to pay the assigned fine, probation fees, and failure to report to probation officers, Comer said.

Dunn was sentenced to a year in the Gray County Jail.

Roger Dale Fly, of Amarillo, convicted in March 1978 of driving while intoxicated, was sentenced to one year in the Gray County Jail after violating his probation.

Fly was arrested near Panhandle on a driving while intoxicated charge earlier this month.

He had been serving a two year probation sentence.

The people's pharmacy

by joe graedon

When the instructions on the medicine bottle say "Take one teaspoon..." what do you reach for? If you're like most folks, you grab a spoon out of the nearest kitchen drawer. We used to do that, too, figuring any old teaspoon was pretty much like another. But not any more.

It turns out that teaspoons are fine for tea, but not for medicine. Some pharmacists at the University of Michigan found that your average teaspoon may vary from one-half to one and a half medical teaspoons and this can profoundly influence the effectiveness of your medication.

Think about it for a minute. How many times have you spilled the stuff before you could slurp it? Or perhaps you're the cautious type, who skimps a bit to avoid a mess. Even if you have a perfectly steady hand and fill it to the brim, the teaspoon you select may bear little resemblance to what the doctor had in mind - a medical teaspoon of 5 ml.

Several studies of spoon families used to administer medications have found that a teaspoon might hold as little as 2 ml or up to about 10 ml. If your physician's prescription for a tablet were so vague that you might take anywhere from one to four pills, you might be justifiably alarmed. But that is about what happens when you pick a kitchen spoon at random. The American Academy of Pediatrics has gone on record against prescribing by the teaspoonful, because of the variation in dose.

These discrepancies can muck up your entire treatment program. For one thing, you may not get enough drug to cure the ailment. Investigators have found that some children's ear infections did not go away because they were not given an adequate dose of antibiotic. Other families have complained that the 10-day supply of liquid medicine runs out by the eighth day and have criticized the pharmacist when they have to purchase another whole bottle. This is not only expensive, but the person receiving such heavy-handed spoonfuls runs the risk of adverse effects from an overdose.

Drugs that you should be particularly careful with in liquid form include diuretics like Lasix (Furosemide), anti-convulsants such as Dilantin (Phenytoin) for epilepsy, asthma medications and antibiotics. Even non-prescription cold and cough remedies can be a problem if you misgauge the proper dose. You may receive too much antihistamine, which could make you overly drowsy and impair your ability to function.

Well, why bother with messy liquids anyway? If measurement is so difficult, why not stick to tablets or capsules? Young children and older people, who often have trouble getting pills down, are the major consumers of liquid medications, but they're not the only ones who have problems. Two doctors did a clever X-ray study which showed that more than 50 percent of the people investigated retained an aspirin-sized tablet in their esophagus from five minutes to an hour and a half. In some cases this could produce irritation and delay absorption.

So clearly, liquid medications have their place. But what we need is an accurate method of measuring doses. Fortunately, there are now several products available that really do a neat job. For example, one spoon with a hollow calibrated handle tells you the precise dose from one-half to two teaspoons. We have had ample opportunity to try the spoon on our two-year-old and can testify that it eliminates a lot of uncertainty, struggle and spills.

The next time you buy a liquid medication, whether it's a prescription or over-the-counter product, ask your pharmacist to recommend something which will give you an accurately measured dose. If you have trouble locating one of these snazzy medical spoons or similar calibrated eye droppers, syringes and/or all three in your area, send us a self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this newspaper and we will supply specific product information.

Analysts looking into farm exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government analysts are looking at the possibility the energy crunch and an economic slowdown overseas may bite into the growth of U.S. farm exports next year.

A report issued Wednesday by the Agriculture Department hinted at the possibility but stopped far short of predicting that U.S. farm commodity exports may decline in 1979-80.

World grain stockpiles are at record levels with the United States in a position to supply "the greatest part of the prospective increase" in the import needs of other countries, the report said.

On that basis, it said, another increase in U.S. farm exports can be expected.

Farm exports this fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, are predicted at a record value of $32 billion and a record of 126.6 million metric tons, almost 90 percent of it wheat, seed grains and soybeans.

But the report added that in the next fiscal year, "a restraining influence" on the recent boom in U.S. farm exports "may be the lower expectations for economic growth around the world and the related problems of inflation and higher costs for petroleum imports."

No forecast of U.S. farm export values or quantity was included in the report for the 1979-80 year.

In assessing the demand for U.S. grain in the coming year, the report noted — as other USDA analyses have done recently — that crop prospects in the Soviet Union and some other areas, including Canada and Europe, have diminished.

That will put a heavier drain on global and U.S. grain supplies in 1979-80 as import requirements increase.

The big question raised by the report, however, is to what extent fuel availability — and costs — will affect the transportation and general export movement of commodities in world trade.

"The external financial situation of the non-OPEC developing countries continues to worsen, as the terms of trade for their primary commodity exports deteriorate because of higher import costs for petroleum and manufactured goods," the report said.

No price analysis was included, but the report said that besides the huge U.S. stockpile, "large grain stocks in Europe and India will help moderate the impact of potential global shortfalls and dampen upward pressure on world prices."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has bought an additional 700,000 metric tons of U.S. corn for delivery through Sept. 30, according to the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Wednesday the grain previously had been listed by private exporting companies as intended for "unknown destinations" but was switched to the Soviet Union.

Sales of wheat and corn are expected to total close to 15 million metric tons in the year that will end Sept. 30, the third in a five-year agreement calling on the Soviet Union to buy a minimum of 6 million metric tons annually of the two grains combined.

Counting the latest sales, the Soviet Union this year now has bought about 11.2 million metric tons, including more than 8.5 million of corn and 2.7 million of wheat.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says parts of the West are undergoing the worst plague of grasshoppers in 21 years.

More than 4 million acres of livestock rangeland in 14 states west of the Missouri River are due for spraying under cooperative federal and state programs, officials said Wednesday.

Spraying is considered on rangeland when grasshopper numbers reach a density of eight per square yard. Last year, when the insects also were a problem, some 836,000 acres were sprayed under the cooperative program.

Brother says Estes 'compulsive liar'

DALLAS (AP) — Billie Sol Estes was an accomplished braggart before he went to prison, but he is a "compulsive liar" who cannot live down his earlier boasts, Estes' elder brother has testified.

Dr. John L. Estes, an Abilene dentist, told jurors his younger brother has been "more edgy and quick tempered" since his parole in 1971. The elder Estes was a prosecution witness called Wednesday in the federal fraud trial of the younger Estes and Midland businessman Raymond K. Horton.

Estes and Horton are charged with mail fraud in an alleged scheme to bilk investors through mortgages on non-existent oil field steam cleaners. Estes also is charged with trying to hide assets from the federal government and using false pretenses to obtain more than $50,000 in money and merchandise.

In the opening days of testimony, defense attorneys have attempted to show Estes as a pathetic fibber who can't resist a chance to show off.

"Before he went to prison there wasn't a brag he couldn't master. Today, I don't think there's one he can live down," Dr. Estes testified.

So far, the bulk of government testimony has centered on 29 hours of damaging tape recordings, made secretly by an undercover Internal Revenue Service agent posing as a wealthy Chicago investor with mob connections.

On the tapes, Estes brags of owning half of Horton's companies, of controlling several politicians and of planning to buy the Chase-Manhattan Bank.

"With Bill, I believe it is an incurable disease," testified Dr. Estes, adding weight to defense contentions that Estes' comments on the tapes were more of his lies and could not be believed.

Dr. Estes also said that despite his brother's taped claims to wealth, the dentist has spent $95,000 of his own money to care for the wife and children of his destitute brother.

CBS wins weekly ratings race

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS knocked ABC out of first place in the networks' ratings race for the second time in four weeks, thanks in large measure to a strong Monday night lineup.

CBS listed three of the four most-watched shows in the week ending June 17 all but "Three's Company," which was No. 1 in the ratings for the fifth straight week.

Three shows from CBS' Monday night schedule were right behind — "WKRP in Cincinnati," "M-A-S-H" and "Lou Grant," and the distribution helped the network to a rating for the week of 14.7. ABC was second at 13.8, with NBC third with a rating of 12.9.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 14.7 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

The rating for "Three's Company" was 24. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 24 percent saw at least part of the program.

CBS also listed the week's No. 6 program, "Barnaby Jones," and ABC walked off the with rest of the Top 10. NBC, in another difficult week, didn't score until 18th place, with a Sunday night movie, "What's Up Doc?"

In a week of repeats, first-run shows did relatively well. ABC's broadcast of "Harry and Tonto," a movie starring Art Carney, was No. 13 in the ratings, and a first-time episode of "Carter Country," also on ABC, was 15th.

ABC had four of the week's five lowest-rated shows, including "Battlestar Galactica" in 62nd place, "Operation Petticoat" 63rd, "The Man Who Loved Bears" 65th and a news special on the SALT II summit, 66th. NBC's "Hizzonner" was No. 64.

Here are the week's Top 10 shows:

"Three's Company," with a rating of 24 representing 17.9 million homes, ABC; "WKRP in Cincinnati," 22.5 or 16.8 million, "M-A-S-H," 22.4 or 16.7 million, and "Lou Grant," 20.9 or 15.6 million, all CBS; "Taxi," 20.7 or 15.4 million, ABC; "Barnaby Jones," 20 or 14.9 million, CBS, and "Laverne and Shirley," 19.6 or 14.6 million, "Mork and Mindy," 19.1 or 14.2 million, "Charlie's Angels," 18.7 or 13.9 million, and "Angie," 18.1 or 13.5 million, all ABC.

The next 10 shows:

"All in the Family" and "One Day at a Time," both CBS; Movie: "Harry and Tonto," and "Barney Miller," both ABC; "Carter Country," ABC; "60 Minutes," CBS, and "Happy Days," ABC; tie: Movie: "What's Up Doc?" NBC, and "Vegas" and "Fantasy Island," both ABC.

As Canadian Open begins Jack Nicklaus confident

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — There are some hopeful, positive signs for Jack Nicklaus.

"I feel pretty good about the state of my game right now," Nicklaus said before teeing off today in the first round of the 70th Canadian Open Golf Championship.

"I played the last 27 holes 6 under par last week (in the U.S. Open) and that's not bad," he said.

But it came too late.

Nicklaus, owning the greatest record in the history of this ancient game, took himself out of the American national championship when he three-putted five of the first seven holes in the second round.

"That just put me too far back," he said.

It was a continuation of the sort of thing that has plagued him throughout the year — the worst season he's ever had.

His performance over the last few holes, however, kindled some hopes.

"I have to start playing good sooner or later," Nicklaus said, and smiled. "I'd rather it be sooner."

There are a variety of reasons. Perhaps foremost is the fact, Nicklaus said, that "I'm getting awfully tired of explaining why I'm playing the way I am. Actually, I haven't played all that badly. I just haven't been able to put the scores on the board."

And the answer to his problem is simple.

"The only way I get people to stop asking me why I'm playing like this is to start playing better," he said.

And this national championship would be a near-ideal spot for it.

For one thing, he designed the 7,050-yard, par 71 Glen Abbey Golf Club course that will become a permanent site for the Canadian Open.

For another, this is one of the few important titles in the world that has eluded him.

"This would be a nice time to get back on the right track," he said. He'll be facing one of the strongest fields of the season in the 72-hole chase for a $63,000 first prize.

The major standouts are Hale Irwin, seeking to add a second consecutive national title to the U.S. Open championship he won last weekend, defending champion Bruce Lietzke and Tom Watson, the outstanding player in the game over the last 2½ years and the only four-time winner this season.

Late rally gives Midland victory

By The Associated Press

Three was a lucky number for the Midland Cubs Wednesday night in their 9-7 Texas League baseball victory over the El Paso Diablos.

The Cubs got three homers, got the three runs they needed for the come-from-behind victory in the top of the ninth inning and Cubs pitcher Darrell Turner won his third game of the season.

In other Texas League action, Jackson beat Arkansas, 4-1, and San Antonio edged Amarillo, 5-4. Shreveport's scheduled doubleheader at Tulsa was rained out. The teams will play a doubleheader Thursday night.

Midland got homers from Brian Rosinski, Eric Grandy and Jim Tracy, but had to score three runs in the top of the ninth to win after El Paso scored five runs in the eighth to take a 7-6 victory.

Mark Brouhard hit his 12th home run of the season and Tom Bahgat had a homer for the Diablos.

Turner is 3-2 after the victory. Charlie Phillips, 4-2, was the losing El Paso hurler.

The Jackson Mets scored three runs in the first inning and went on to defeat the Arkansas Travelers, 4-1. Jody Davis doubled home Hubie Brooks and Ron McDonald and Keith Bodie singled home Davis.

In the fourth inning, Jackson scored again Sergio Beltre singled home Bodie, who had reached base on a single and advanced to third on a base hit by Randy Johnson.

Arkansas' only run came in the seventh when Tito Landrum doubled, stole third on a wild pitch and scored on a groundout by Ty Waller.

Larry Prewitt, 1-0, was the winning pitcher. Tom Chamberlin, 8-4, was the loser.

The San Antonio Dodgers turned two errors into unearned runs to give them the winning margin in their 5-4 victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox.

Doug Harrison, 5-3, was the winning pitcher. Gary Pickert was charged with the loss.

Parseghian recovers from surgery

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Former Notre Dame football Coach Ara Parseghian, recuperating from surgery on a 30-year-old hip injury, figures he'll be up and around by the end of the summer and back on the golf course within six months.

"This should relieve the pain," he said of the 3½-hour operation at the Indiana University Medical Center. "I should be able to golf, swim, bicycle, all the activities a normal 56-year-old guy should be able to do."

Parseghian, who compiled a 95-17-4 record and two national championships in 11 seasons as Irish coach, originally injured his right hip as a player with the Cleveland Browns in 1949.

"It was in an exhibition game," Parseghian recalled during an interview on Wednesday. "I was carrying the ball and somehow got off kilter and had a partial dislocation of the hip."

"It went right back in, but apparently I did some damage to it as it went out and back in. I did very well for 28 years on it — this is the first operation I've had on it — but it deteriorated on me the last couple of years. I really started going downhill.

"I was in a lot of pain," Parseghian continued. "I couldn't walk a golf course or do any activities that created a lot of pounding on the hip. I just became darn near crippled."

The operation, performed on Monday, involved a partial hip replacement.

Parseghian, who has done television color for ABC's college football games since he left Notre Dame after the 1974 season, said he misses the sidelines but doesn't anticipate a return to coaching — at least for now.

"I've had enough challenges in my life, and I have plenty to do. As long as it remains that way, I'll probably stay out of coaching," he said.

Today's sports in brief

BOWLING
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bill Spigner averaged 239 for his first six games to take the first-round lead in the $70,000 City of Roses Open bowling tournament. Spigner led Bruce Russell by 16 pins.

Spigner rolled games of 204, 228, 243, 268, 268 and 224 in pacing the 192-man field with a 1,435 total. Russell closed with a 276 to score 1,419 for the round and assume second.

Cary York was in third place with 1,408, ahead of Dennis Lane, who had 1,376. Jeff Mattingly rounded out the top five with 1,365.

TENNIS
EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Tracy Austin continued her strong build-up for Wimbledon by defeating Kathy Jordan 6-3, 6-3 in a $100,000 international women's grass court tournament.

In other matches involving seeded players, top-seeded Martina Navratilova overcame Britain's Anne Hobbs 6-2, 6-2 and No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd won 6-2, 6-2 over Betty Stove of The Netherlands.

In other action: Ilana Kloss defeated Virginia Ruzici of Romania 3-6, 7-5, 10-8; Wendy Turnbull of Australia beat South African Greer Stevens, 6-3, 6-0; Briton Virginia Wade beat Czechoslovakia's Regina Marsikova 6-3, 6-2; Bettina Bunge defeated fellow American Rainy Fox 7-6, 3-6, 8-6; and Kerry Reid of Australia gained the quarterfinals on default against Billie Jean King, who suffered an injury to her right leg and withdrew from the tournament.

SURBITON, England (AP) — American Vic Amaya defeated Robin Drysdale of Britain 7-6, 6-3 in the second round of the $50,000 Debenhams grass court tennis tournament. In an all-American duel, Brian Gottfried defeated Terry Moor 6-4, 7-6. new YORK (AP) — Australians Margaret Court, Jack Crawford and Frank Sedgman, late Mexican star Rafael Osuna, and two journalists have been elected to the International Tennis Hall of Fame.

Joining the four players are writers Gladys Heldman and Al Laney. All six will be inducted into the hall Saturday, July 14 at the Hall of Fame Championships in Newport, R.I.

TRACK AND FIELD
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — American runners Steve Williams, Edwin Moses and Don Coleman grabbed honors in the first Jomo Kenyatta Invitation Meeting.

Elizabeth Onyambu brought the crowd to its feet when she crossed the finish line in the 1,500 meters event with a time of 4 minutes, 23.18 seconds, within 27 seconds of the world record. She ran barefoot in the event and beat Kenya's Elizabeth Thomson, who clocked 4:23.23.

SOURCES OF FISH

LUBBOCK—Recent runoff from heavy rains has filled many of the farm-ranch ponds, tanks and playa lakes in northwest Texas. Most of these lakes were either dry or had little water and no fish.

For those Texas pondowners who applied for fish last year from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, the rains came at the right time as the fish were delivered to their ponds.

Pondowners wanting state fish to stock next spring can write the P&WD for an application next month. Since the state hatcheries operate on a year-to-year basis, normally fish cannot be applied for and received in the same year.

Pondowners wanting fish to stock this summer can obtain a list of commercial fish farmers from the P&WD. These fish producers sell fish in several sizes for stocking lakes.

For a new 1980 P&WD fish application or a list of fish farmers, write the P&WD, Hatchery Coordinator, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Tx. 78744.

LAKES BECOMING CROWDED

LUBBOCK—Summer temperatures and leisure time means most area lakes are crowded with water enthusiasts and the chances for water-related accidents have increased, also.

The most dangerous encounter can be the meeting of a moving boat with a submerged skier or swimmer in the water.

The Lubbock regional law enforcement office has already received a report of injury to a skier in front of a boat. The resulting injury was not fatal, but painful.

The P&WD recommends that boaters follow these rules: Have two persons in towboat, one to run it and watch the water ahead, and one to watch the skier and relay information to the skipper; Stay clear of swimmers; Don't tow skier in heavily traveled or restricted waters such as swimming areas, narrowed winding channels, and areas containing docks, floats, buoys and anchored boats; Make sure the skier is wearing an approved PFD (personal flotation device); If they fall, approach them from the downwind side; Stop motor or throw it in neutral before taking skier on board; Use a boarding ladder. Be careful not to swamp boat; Know the water skiing signals as this is the only communication between the skier and boat operator.

HABITAT KEY TO WILDLIFE SURVIVAL

WHEELER—Anything the landowner can do this month to provide adequate food and cover for wildlife could determine their chances of survival next winter.

"Individuals wanting to increase or sustain wildlife species should think about next winter now and complete those operations such as discing, planting and livestock control," said Richard Dearthment, P&WD extension biologist.

"Last winter was very hard on wildlife species such as quail and those persons who provided adequate habitat last summer retained more birds when the ice and snow storms hit in January and February," Dearthment continued.

Such operations as discing will cause weeds to grow. These weeds will not only furnish cover but food later in the year. If these weed patches are exposed to livestock grazing, the good wildlife weeds will be eaten as cattle as well as wildlife prefer them.

The wildlife specialists recommends that those weed plots be fenced to protect the wild food for wildlife. These areas could include playa lakes, shelterbelts or brush.

Planting grains such as maize, corn, wheat, sunflowers or other crops in areas near established wildlife cover will also provide food next winter.

Restraints on general insecticide and herbicide spraying near wildlife habitat should be considered since most game birds eat tons of grasshoppers and other insects injurious to area farm crops.

Additional assistance on where and what to plant for wildlife on your property is available by writing Richard Dearthment, P&WD, Box 122, Wheeler, Tx., 79096.

Major League roundup

Tim McCarver acts as spokesman

By The Associated Press
Philadelphia's Tim McCarver may know Steve Carlton better than anyone else. McCarver catches Carlton when the 34-year-old left-hander pitches for the Phillies, and acts as his spokesman when the hurler shuns interviews — which is often.

Wednesday night, after Carlton's four-hitter had helped Philadelphia beat the Atlanta Braves 10-4, McCarver offered this statistic: "That's about the sixth time Steve has stopped a mini-losing streak for us."

Carlton's eighth victory in 15 decisions this season was, in fact, the sixth one following one or more Philadelphia losses.

The Phillies, who begin a weekend series with the National League's West Division-leading Expos on Friday, at least can take with them the solid performance against the Braves.

Pete Rose's two-run homer, Carlton's two-run single and a two-run double by Greg Luzinski were enough to beat Atlanta.

The Braves got an unearned run in the second when Barry Bonnell walked, took third on an errant pickoff throw by Carlton, and scored on a wild pitch. They added two in the sixth and another in the eighth on a home run by Bob Horner.

Expos 5, Reds 4
Jim Mason, a ranking officer of Montreal's "BUS" squad, slapped an 11th-inning double to drive in Tommy Hutton — another BUS member — with the run that gave Montreal its victory over Cincinnati.

BUS stands for Broke, Underrated Superstars, and Hutton is the squad's captain. He hit a one-out double, then watched from second base as Jerry White, another club member was walked intentionally.

Astros 5, Mets 4
Joe Sambito continued his remarkable relief pitching and Craig Reynolds had another game-winning hit against New York in the Astros' victory.

Sambito inherited a 3-0 count on Mets shortstop Frank Taveras when he came on in relief of J.R. Richard with none out in the eighth. He needed just three pitches to strike out Taveras and get the next two batters on fly balls.

Then he watched Reynolds, who had the winning hit in Houston's 18-inning victory over New York Monday, blast a triple which scored Terry Puhl and snapped a 4-4 tie.

Pirates 8, Giants 5
Manny Sanguillen's eighth-inning sacrifice fly drove in Rennie Stennett, who had tripled, snapping a tie and carrying Pittsburgh to its fifth consecutive victory.

The Pirates added two ninth-inning runs.

Padres 3, Cardinals 1
Gaylord Perry gave up 11 hits but just one run in recording his 274th career victory and taking over 17th place on the all-time win list.

San Diego scored three fourth-inning runs, two with the help of St. Louis miscues, to insure the triumph.

Royals 9, A's 2
Great Scott! How do you go from second base all the way home on a sacrifice fly? Even George Scott doesn't know.

"I never did that before," said Scott after scoring from second on a sacrifice fly in Kansas City's romp over the Oakland A's.

The newest of the Royals is not only hitting the ball at a good clip, but showed his teammates some flashy running ability as well in his latest outing.

"I just kept on running," Scott said of the rare play in the seventh inning on Darrell Porter's sacrifice fly. "The third base coach (Chuck Hiller) waved me on and I just never stopped."

Porter's fly ball was caught by Mike Heath in left, the outfielder making a nice running catch. Heath's momentum carried him nearly to the wall, as Scott took off from second.

"I didn't think he was going to run," said Heath, who appeared to relax a bit after the catch.

But when he finally fired the ball back into the infield, the burly Scott was chugging around third and heading safely home.

Scott also collected three singles, boosting his batting average as a Royal to .400, and scored three times.

Red Sox 13, Tigers 3
Six different players hit home runs as Boston bombed Detroit behind right-hander Mike Torrez, Dwight Evans, Butch Hobson and Jim Dwyer each hit homers in Boston's single-game high of the season. The Red Sox also had five doubles in the assault on four Detroit pitchers.

Torrez settled down after giving up three runs in the first inning and finished with a seven-hitter in improving his record to 7-4.

Orioles 5, Indians 3
Gary Roenicke, Eddie Murray and Rick Dauer hit fourth-inning home runs to power Baltimore over Cleveland in their rain-shortened contest.

Roenicke hit his 13th homer of the season leading off the fourth against Cleveland starter Rick Waits. With one out, Murray hit his seventh homer, and after Lee May singled, Dauer came through with a two-run shot, his fifth of the season.

Brewers 8, Twins 3
Gorman Thomas sparked a four-run Milwaukee third inning with an RBI double and hit a sacrifice fly in the sixth, while Sal Bando slapped three singles and scored twice to lead the Brewers over Minnesota.

Bando, who had been in what he said was the second worst slump in his 12 major league seasons, has raised his batting average from .221 to .243 with 13 hits in his last 37 times at bat.

Mariners 5, White Sox 3
Bruce Bochte singled in one run and doubled to set up another, and Willie Horton hit his 301st career home run to lead Seattle over Chicago.

Winner Odell Jones scattered eight hits through eight innings before needing last-inning relief help.

Angels 5, Rangers 4
Don Baylor doubled to drive in two runs and Bert Campaneris had two singles, scored a run and equalled a club record with three stolen bases Wednesday night in leading the California Angels to victory over the Texas Rangers.

California's Bobby Grich had his 20-game hitting streak snapped. Loser Jon Matlack, 4-4, walked him in the second inning, struck out Grich in the fourth and got him to ground out in the sixth. Facing reliever Sparky Lyle in the eighth, Grich flied to right.

The Angels added another run in the fifth when Campaneris led off with a single, stole second and third and scored on a sacrifice fly by Dan Ford.

The Rangers scored their final two runs on Pat Putnam's two-run homer with nobody out in the eighth inning, chasing Frost.

Yankees 2-2, Blue Jays 1-3
Bucky Dent singled home the tying run in the fifth inning and scored on a wild pitch as New York edged Toronto in the opener of their double-header.

John Mayberry's 10th home run of the season with one out in the ninth inning gave the Blue Jays their victory in the nightcap.

New coach hired

STINNETT—Stinnett High School has hired a new head football coach and athletic director.

Kenneth Barnes, who has coached the defensive line at Hereford High for the past two years, will take over the duties.

Barnes is 27 and is a native of Sanford-Fritch. He graduated from West Texas State university in 1973. He takes over the duties from former head coach and athletic director Don Sessoms.

Superintendent of schools Harold Dalton made the announcement. The Stinnett school board accepted the contract of Barnes last Tuesday night.

Six elected into tennis Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Four former Wimbledon title winners have been elected to the International Tennis Hall of Fame, as well as two journalists who wrote about the sport.

Margaret Court, Jack Crawford and Frank Sedgman, all from Australia, will join the late Rafael Osuna of Mexico and writers Gladys Heldmx of Houston and Al Laney of Spring valley, N.Y., as Hall of Fame members. Their induction into the hall at Newport, R.I., will take place Saturday, July 14.

Court became the second woman in history to win the Grand Slam, with her singles victories at Wimbledon and the Australian, French and U.S. Open Championships in 1970. Her career included 66 Big Four titles in singles, doubles and mixed doubles between 1960 and 1975.

Sedgman, who still participates on the Grand Masters circuit, was Wimbledon and U.S. titlist in 1952. Only a U.S. Open defeat prevented Crawford, the 1933 Wimbledon champ, from gaining the Grand Slam that season.

The late Osuna won the 1963 U.S. Open title and the Wimbledon doubles in 1960 and 1963.

Laney, the first sportswriter ever to hold the title "Tennis Writer," spent 40 years covering the beat for the New York Herald Tribune, while Heldman, the founder of World Tennis Magazine, was instrumental in developing the women's tour.

Campy remembers statement

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Bert Campaneris has a personal Alamo to remember — a statement by the Texas Rangers' executive vice president when the 37-year-old Campaneris was traded to the California Angels May 4.

"We were afraid they (the Angels) would get someone who could help them if we didn't give them Campaneris," Rangers' executive Eddie Robinson was quoted as saying.

For the second time this week, Campaneris made Robinson and the Rangers pay for it Wednesday night. The Cuban infielder singled twice, tied an Angel record with three stolen bases, drove in one run and scored another in California's 5-4 victory over Texas.

The victory expanded California's first place margin in the American League West to five games over Kansas City, and dropped Texas into third place 5½ games back.

"They traded me because they no want me. I want to play hard against them and I'm happy I did well," said shortstop Campaneris, a kingpin of three World Series champion teams at Oakland in the early 1970s.

Campaneris began the series by getting two hits and scoring twice in the Angels' 5-0 victory as the four game set opened Monday night. He was hitless when Texas won the second game Tuesday night 2-1.

"I think he is very excited and up for this series," said Angels Manager Jim Fregosi. "I see no reason to say negative things when a player is traded. All you are doing is trying to make yourself look good."

A bloop single by Campaneris in the third inning Wednesday night scored Tom Donohue with the first Angel run. In the fifth, he led off with a single, stole second and third, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Dan Ford as the Angels built their lead to 5-2.

Campaneris said he was able to run because he was well acquainted with the pickoff moves of the Rangers' losing pitcher, Jon Matlack, 4-4. But Ranger catcher Jim Sundberg said the problem was bigger than that.

"We gave the game away," Sundberg said. "We had a pitchout on Campy (in the fifth) and nobody covered second. Then nobody holds him at second and he walks to third."

"There is no way they are better than we are, but right now they're outthinking and outstulting us."

Texas will have rookie Danny Darwin, 0-0, pitching against the Angels' Don Aase, 6-5, in tonight's final game of the series.

The Rangers were able to stop Angel second baseman Bobby Grich's 20-game hitting streak, one game short of the major league season high of Ranger Johnny Grubb.

"I was tired and my bat was a little slow," said Grich, who was 0 for 3 with a walk. "It's just time to start a new one."

Don Baylor, the major league RBI leader with 59 although he had just one RBI in 14 previous games, doubled to drive in two runs for the Angels in the third.

Tractor pull slated

AMARILLO—The Amarillo Dragway will be the site of "Texas largest, Tri-State championship tractor pull" on Friday and Saturday night at 8.

Entries are expected from Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska according to John Larson, who is the executive director of the Texas Tractor Pull Association.

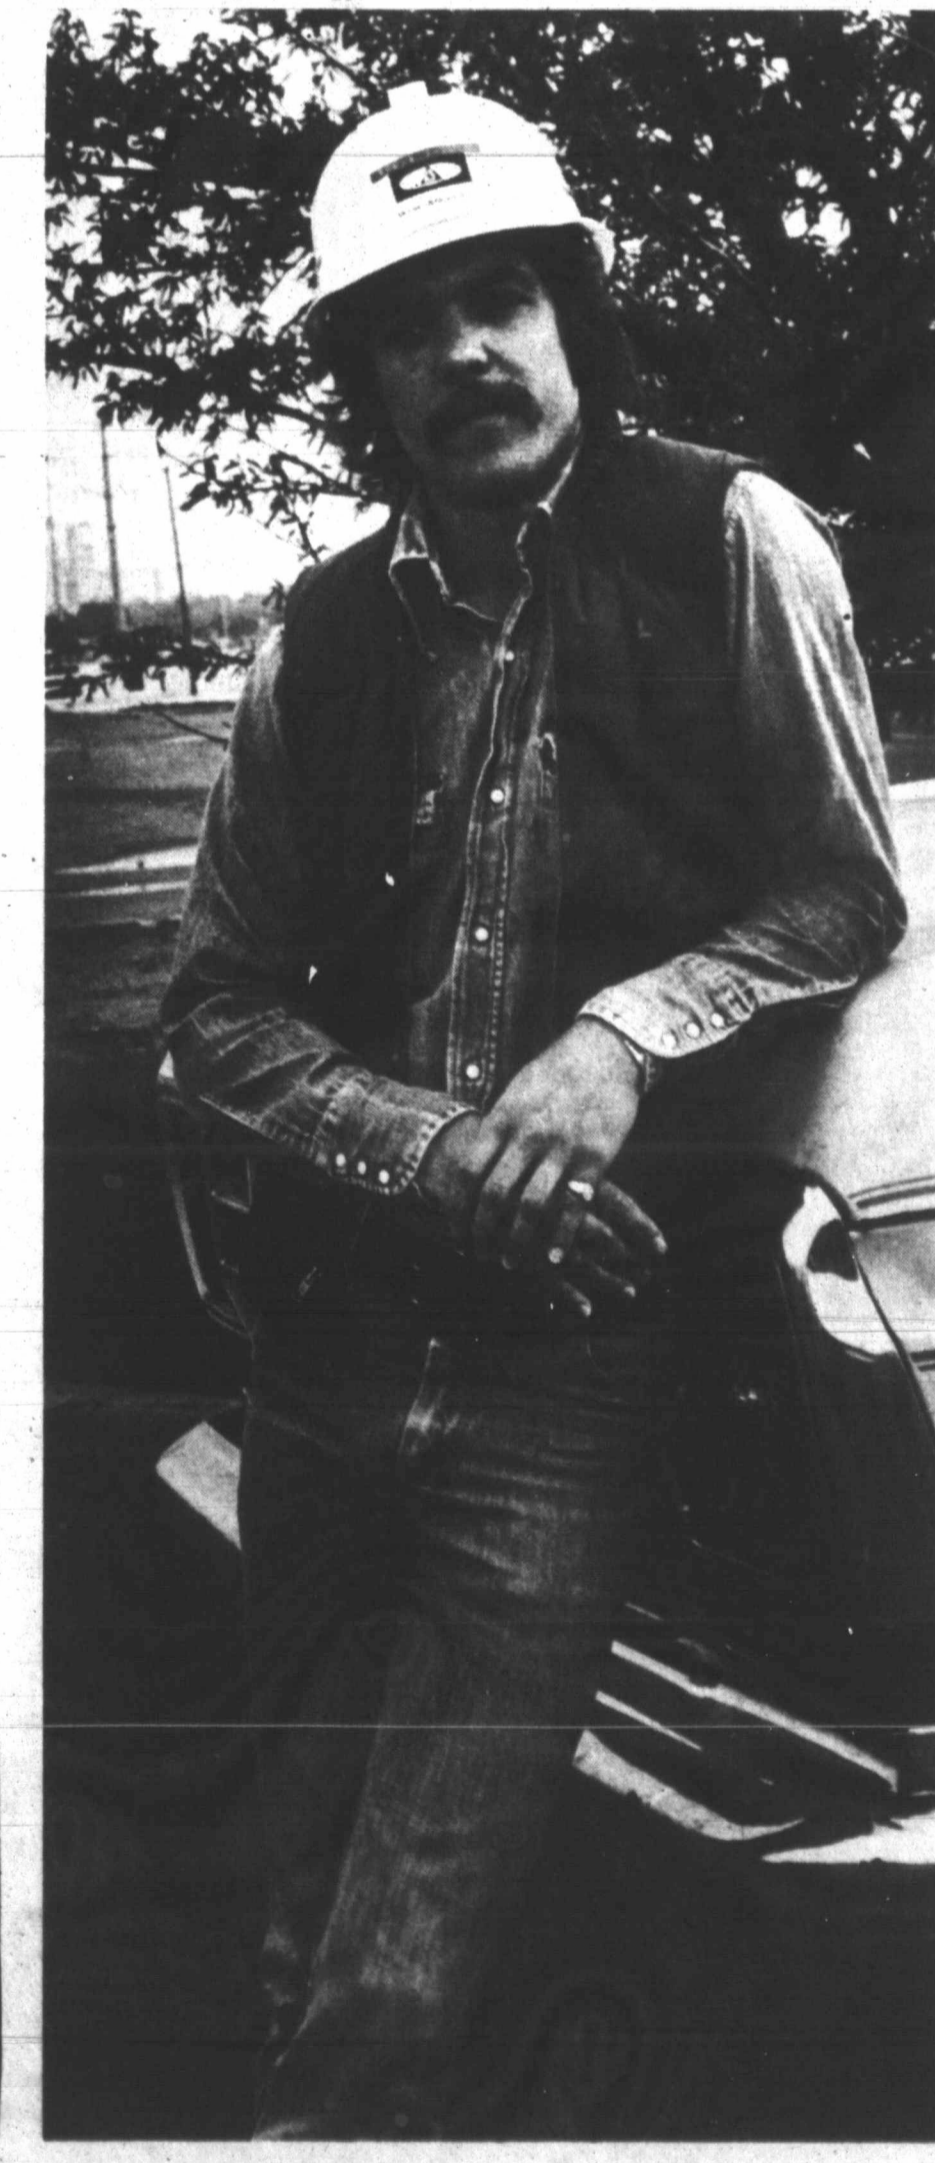

Competition tractors are specially built with super power engines diesels that attain 1,000 horse power, alcohol burners with one, two and three engines with up to 3,000 horse power and some with aircraft and army tank engines.

Tickets will be on sale at the gate only.

The tractor pull competition is a test of machine power and driving skill that generates the kind of excitement that has made tractor pulling one of America's fastest growing motor sports.

Brownbuilder H.E. Savoie: working in Amarillo, building Texas

H. E. "Eddie" Savoie, from Amarillo, is one of more than 35,000 Texas Brownbuilders — men and women of Brown & Root — currently at work across the state.

Eddie began his career with Brown & Root as a carpenter helper at the company's main office complex in Houston in 1970. In 1978 he came to Amarillo to work on a fiberglass plant as a carpenter foreman. He has since risen to general foreman.

Texas Brownbuilders are proud of the part they are playing in our state's industrial and economic growth. Brownbuilders are also a source of great pride to us. Their loyalty and dedication are our most important assets.

Brown & Root's operations are worldwide in scope. A significant factor in our growth has been a longstanding policy of recognizing supervisory and management capabilities from within the ranks of Brownbuilders, offering each individual the opportunity to advance according to his or her ability and merit.

NBA expects adoption of three-point play

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — Should an open jump shot from 22 feet out on a basketball court be worth more than a twisting scoop shot made after driving through the teeth of a collapsing defense?

Perhaps not, but it probably will be in the 1979-80 National Basketball Association season.

The NBA's Board of Governors, which began its annual summer meeting today, is expected to adopt the three-point goal into the league by-laws for next season. Under the proposed new rule, which is similar to that used by the old American Basketball Association, any shot made from beyond roughly 22 feet will be worth three points instead of two.

Not everybody likes the idea. "We don't need it," said Red Auerbach, president of the Boston Celtics, who feels the league is making the move out of panic caused by poor network television ratings and declining attendance in certain major Eastern markets. "I say leave our game alone. Putting in the three-point goals reminds me of a team that trades four, five and six players every year out of panic."

"I'm personally against it," said Jack Ramsay, coach of the Portland Trail Blazers. "I don't think we need any gimmicks."

"I don't think it's a gimmick, but rather that it will be a legitimate part of the game," countered Bob Ferry, general manager of the Washington Bullets. "It adds another way to win or lose a game, and the more of those you have, the more excitement you have."

The league's coaches and general managers met last week and voted in favor of the three-point goal, the coaches by a 15-5 margin and the GMs by 15-7. Their recommendations were passed along to the league's Rules and Competitions Committee, which met Wednesday, and the Governors were expected to give their seal of approval.

Other items on the Board of Governors' agenda included a proposal for continuation of the three-referee system, which the NBA used on an experimental basis last year.

Very few knew about Too Tall

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Except for a few close friends, until very recently nobody knew about Ed "Too Tall" Jones' plan to walk away from professional football and into the world of boxing.

Why then, with his National Football League option expired, do you think that one of the game's top defensive ends could not attract so much as a single inquiry from any team about whether he might like to sack quarterbacks for them?

Jones' attorney, Don Cronson, thinks he knows the reason.

"The lid is on," Cronson said. "Free agency is not what it's supposed to be."

Believe the man. But that lid has been screwed into place by the players themselves. If NFL players truly enjoyed the right of fight under which their baseball brethren operate, a player with Jones' ability would be in great demand. Too Tall, however, was not.

"We did not get one legitimate phone call from one NFL team," Cronson said. "But I wasn't surprised in the least at that."

Not that the phone calls would have done any good. Jones insists that he decided two years ago to leave pro football and that nothing could have kept him in the game and away from boxing. But it might have been nice if some team had tried.

"There is no significant movement of free agents in the NFL," Cronson said. "Only six of 142 even got offers this year. The lack of same speaks for itself."

All six took those offers back to their original teams, and under the right of first refusal, the original teams retained the players.

The NFL players, you see, have painted themselves into a very neat corner. If a team does not want to lose a player, all it needs do is match his new offer. If it does match it, he cannot leave.

The players have no place to go, thanks to the collective bargaining agreement which attaches so high a price to signing a free agent that no team in its right mind would want to pay it. The compensation cost for a player in Jones' salary class, for example, is at least a first-round draft choice and probably a second as well. Too Tall is good, but few teams would be willing to surrender that kind of payoff to Dallas after signing him. The result is that he went unsigned and left football.

There are some skeptics who believe Jones' boxing gambit is nothing more than a ploy to squeeze a few more bucks out of the Cowboys. But Too Tall insists it's nothing like that. He says he never liked football very much anyway and now is committed to pursuing his real passion of prizefighting.

Larry Holmes, sitting next to Jones at the news conference, shook his head.

"Boxing is not a sport that just anyone can get into," said the World Boxing Council heavyweight champion who defends his title against Mike Weaver in Madison Square Garden Friday night. "Boxing takes a lot out of you and your life. But the way he spoke, he can do it."

Did Holmes have any advice for Too Tall?

"Yeah," he said. "Keep your hands up and your butt off the floor."

Phillies, Reds lead in NL voting

NEW YORK (AP) — The Phillies and Reds continued to dominate fan voting for the 1979 National League All-Star team, with Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt leading all vote-getters by more than 100,000 ballots.

The star third baseman has collected 930,691 votes, almost 340,000 more than Ron Cey of the Dodgers, according to statistics released today by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. Pete Rose, playing first base for the first time in his career, leads at that position and is second in the league overall, with 822,371 selections. Rose is ahead of Los Angeles' Steve Garvey by 132,000 votes.

The other leaders in the infield are Dave Lopes of the Dodgers, who has a 48,000-vote lead over Cincinnati's Joe Morgan at second base, and Reds shortstop Dave Concepcion, with a slim 2,000-vote margin over Larry Bowa of the Phillies.

The outfield is led by slugger George Foster of Cincinnati. Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia and Dave Parker of Pittsburgh. Foster has 701,455 votes, Luzinski has 659,115 and Parker has 658,795. That trio is well ahead of Dave Kingman of the Cubs, who is fourth with 448,939.

As he has each season since fan balloting was reinstated by Kuhn 10 years ago, Johnny Bench is the leader at catcher. Bench's 693,002 total leads St. Louis' Ted Simmons by almost 60,000 votes.

The 50th All-Star Game will be played at the Seattle Kingdome July 17.

Networks will not televise fight

By The Associated Press

When Larry Holmes defends his share of the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship Friday night in Madison Square Garden, network television addicts can watch Walter Matthau in an ABC movie, help Eddie Capra figure out a mystery on NBC or cry and bubble over the soap opera plot of a Dallas rerun on CBS.

That's right, Holmes' World Boxing Council title defense against Mike Weaver, set to start at about 10:30 p.m., EDT, is not network worthy.

All three networks concluded that Mike Weaver is not a creditable opponent.

Someone said Walter Mathau would have been a creditable opponent. After all people know who he is.

But you can bet Mike Weaver would have become creditable in a hurry if Muhammad Ali had decided to fight him.

Network television is big business, and the networks can't be and should not be criticized for turning down the fight on business principles. But it's harder to accept the networks' decision on grounds that Weaver doesn't deserve a title shot. In network eyes, he just doesn't deserve a title shot under these circumstances.

"I don't know what they have against Larry," said co-promoter Don King who is renting Madison Square Garden for the card and gambling on the live gate and a 45-location closed-circuit network.

But King, a businessman, too, is not letting Holmes-Weaver stand alone. He's putting Roberto Duran, the great former lightweight champion, and Carlos Palomino, the hard-hitting ex-welterweight king, in against one another in a 10-rounder that the networks wouldn't mind having by itself.

Armchair fight fans won't be shut out completely. The fights will be carried on Home Box Office which reaches more than 2 million homes through over 1,000 affiliated cable systems in the United States.

Don't be surprised if Holmes-Weaver appear in your living room later via network television if Weaver gives a creditable performance. Duran-Palomino definitely is worth being bought by a network for later showing.

Fresh as a daisy

Whose grass is greener? Whose trees are well-pruned? Whose flowers are still growing? Whose yard is the most beautiful? Who answered these questions?

The Pampa Garden Club chose five winners of the "Pampa Fresh As A Daisy" contest, which is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Civic Improvement Committee.

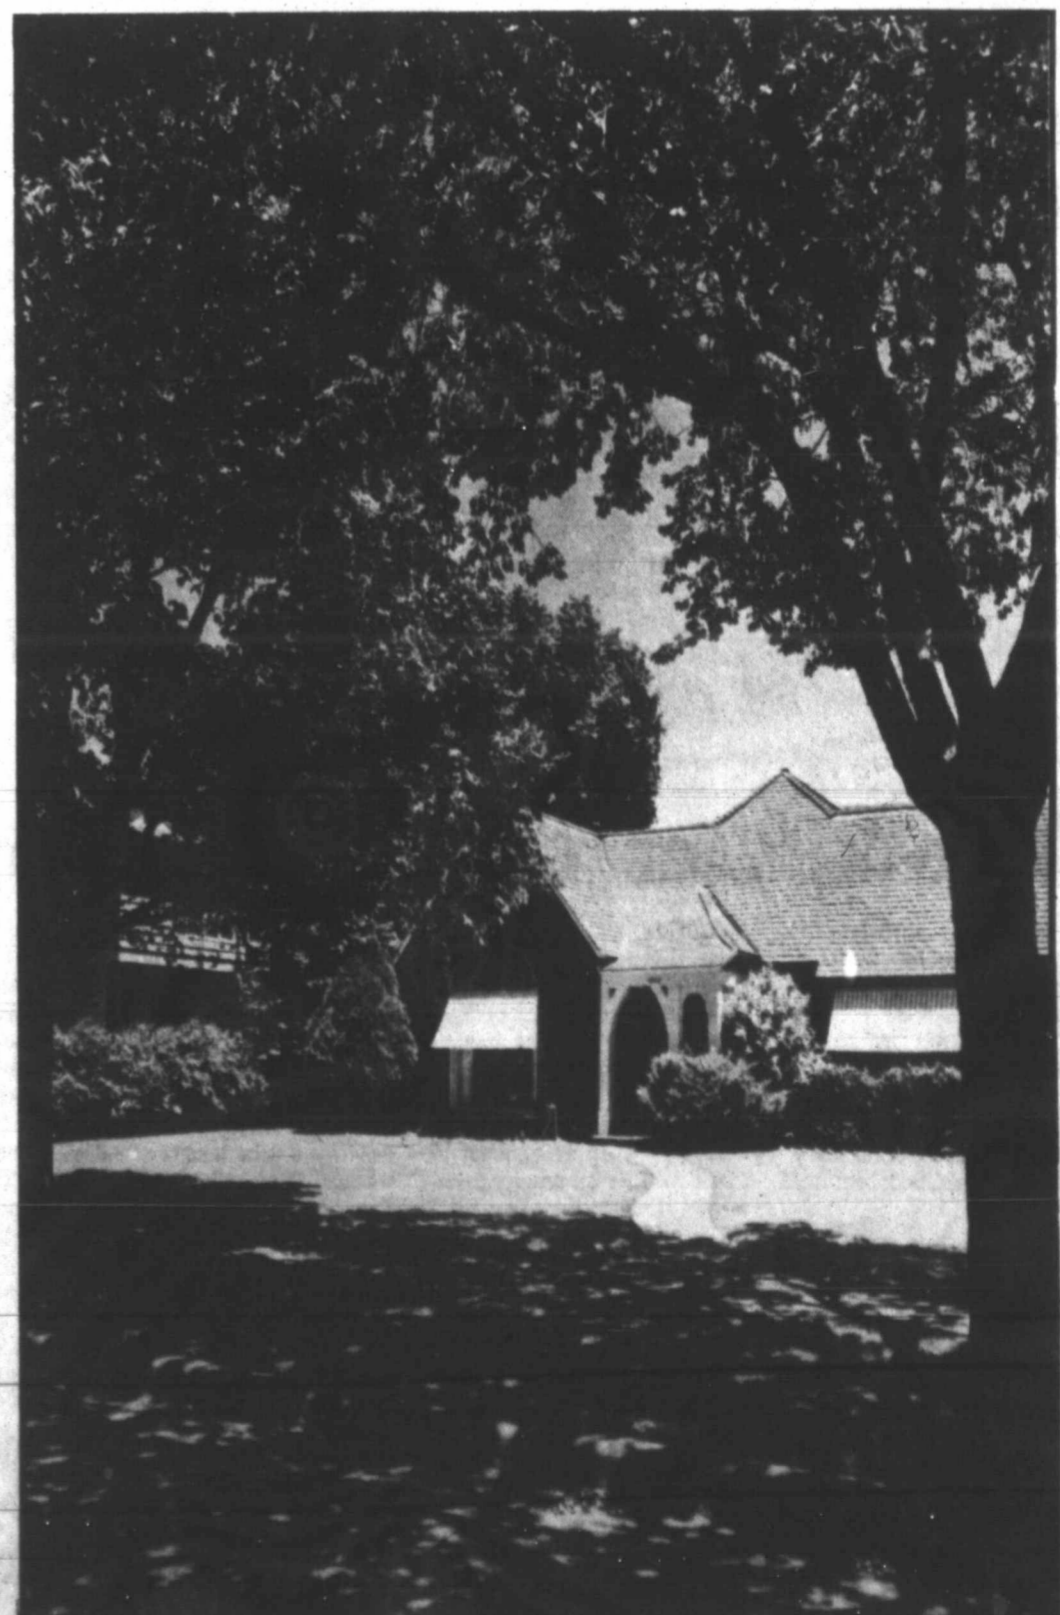

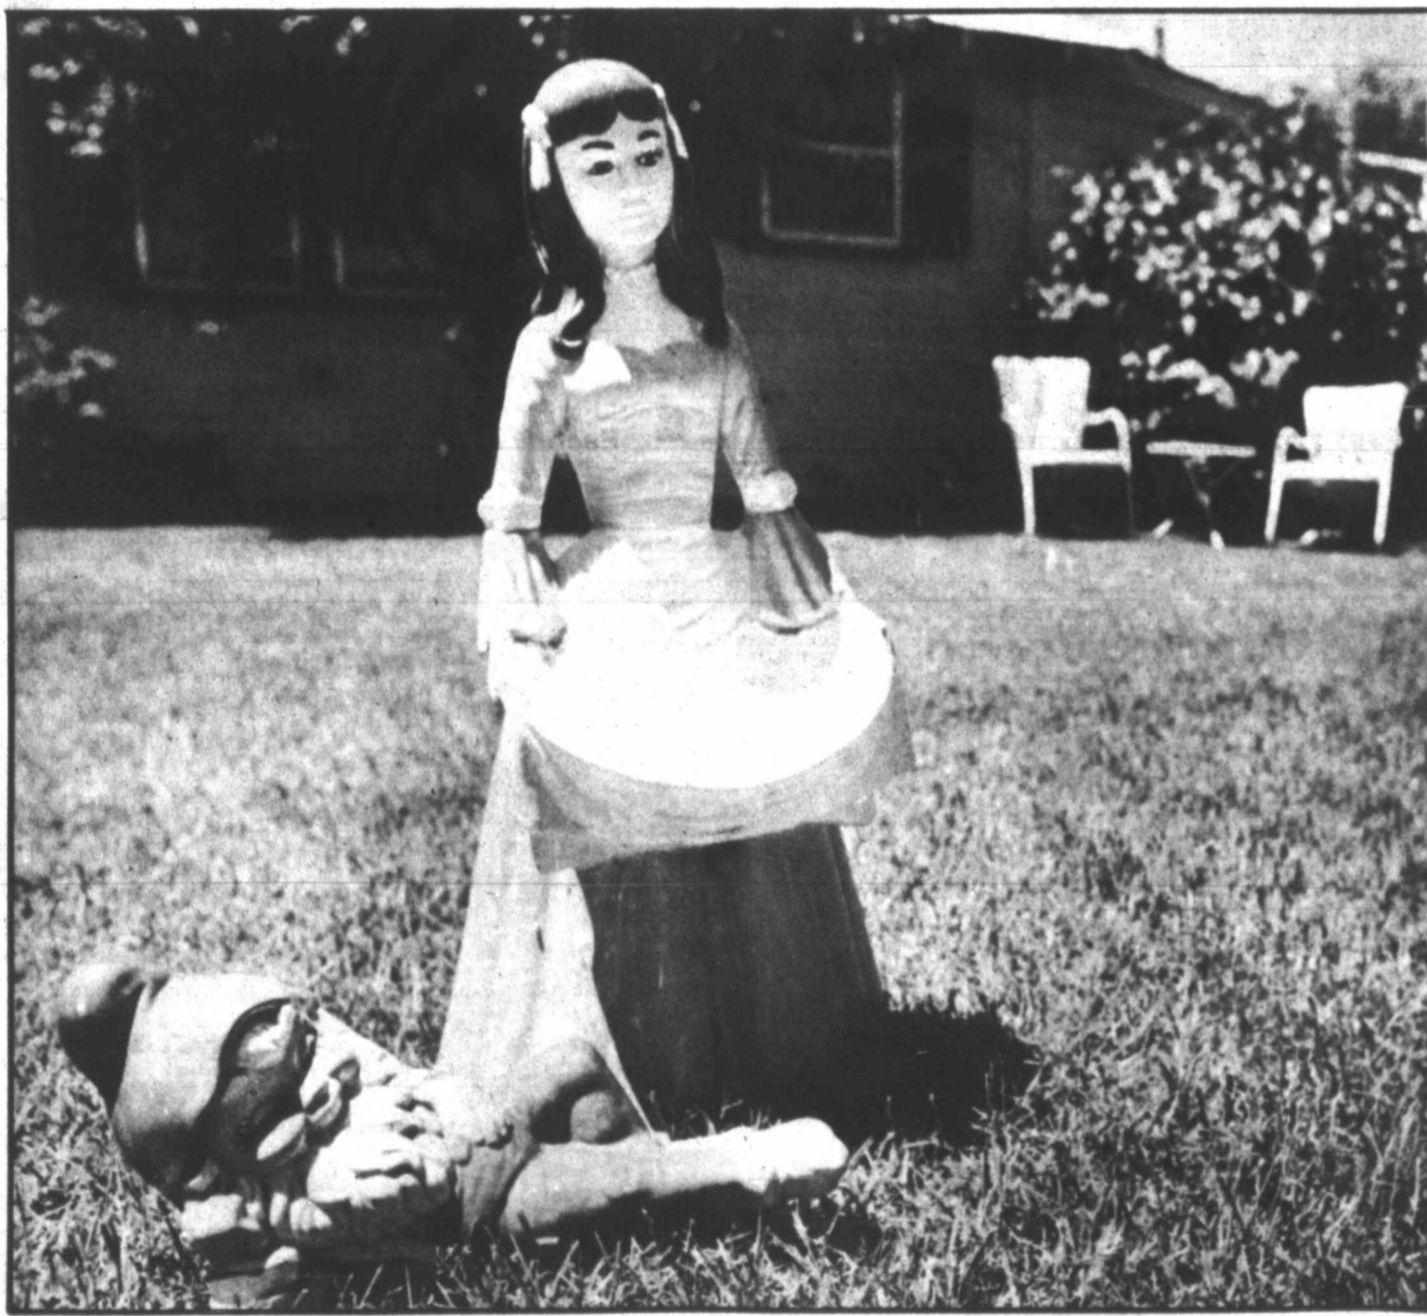

Five winners, whose yards were among many nominated, were selected from various sections of town.

Yard owners awarded were Nellie Griffin, whose display of controlled nature can be seen on 809 S. Gray, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Anderson, who lives at 428 Starkweather.

Other yards honored belonged to W.R. Campbell of 1200 Mary Ellen, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Devore of 1721 W. 19th.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Warner also were selected owners of some of Pampa's most beautiful yards.

Awards will be presented Monday at 4 p.m. to the owners of these selected yards, which represent much work and care.

Letting go

By NANCY ELLIS

He grins up at me, toothless mouth wide open like a little bird. Once again, fleeting across my consciousness -- the desire to reverse time.

Life seems so simple and kind to this beautiful baby, the last I will have. Obviously thriving, he grows before my eyes. "Adding another marble," his father says.

It surprises me each time, this longing to turn back the clock. Perhaps more so because I know better: It is not for him, but for me I am loathe to relinquish the days of his infancy. I long, once again, for the spotlight on me.

--The fragrance of flowers filling the room; nurses everywhere, no needs left unmet.

--The tiny baby melting into my breast, strange at first, then seeming inseparable.

--"The perfect patient," one doctor pronouncing, and later, another: "An amazing recovery from C-section." (Ah, the applause. I am so good!)

Yet the familiar performance comes to an end. Again the days overflow with the business of our lives and the miraculous, bittersweet growth of this new miniature person.

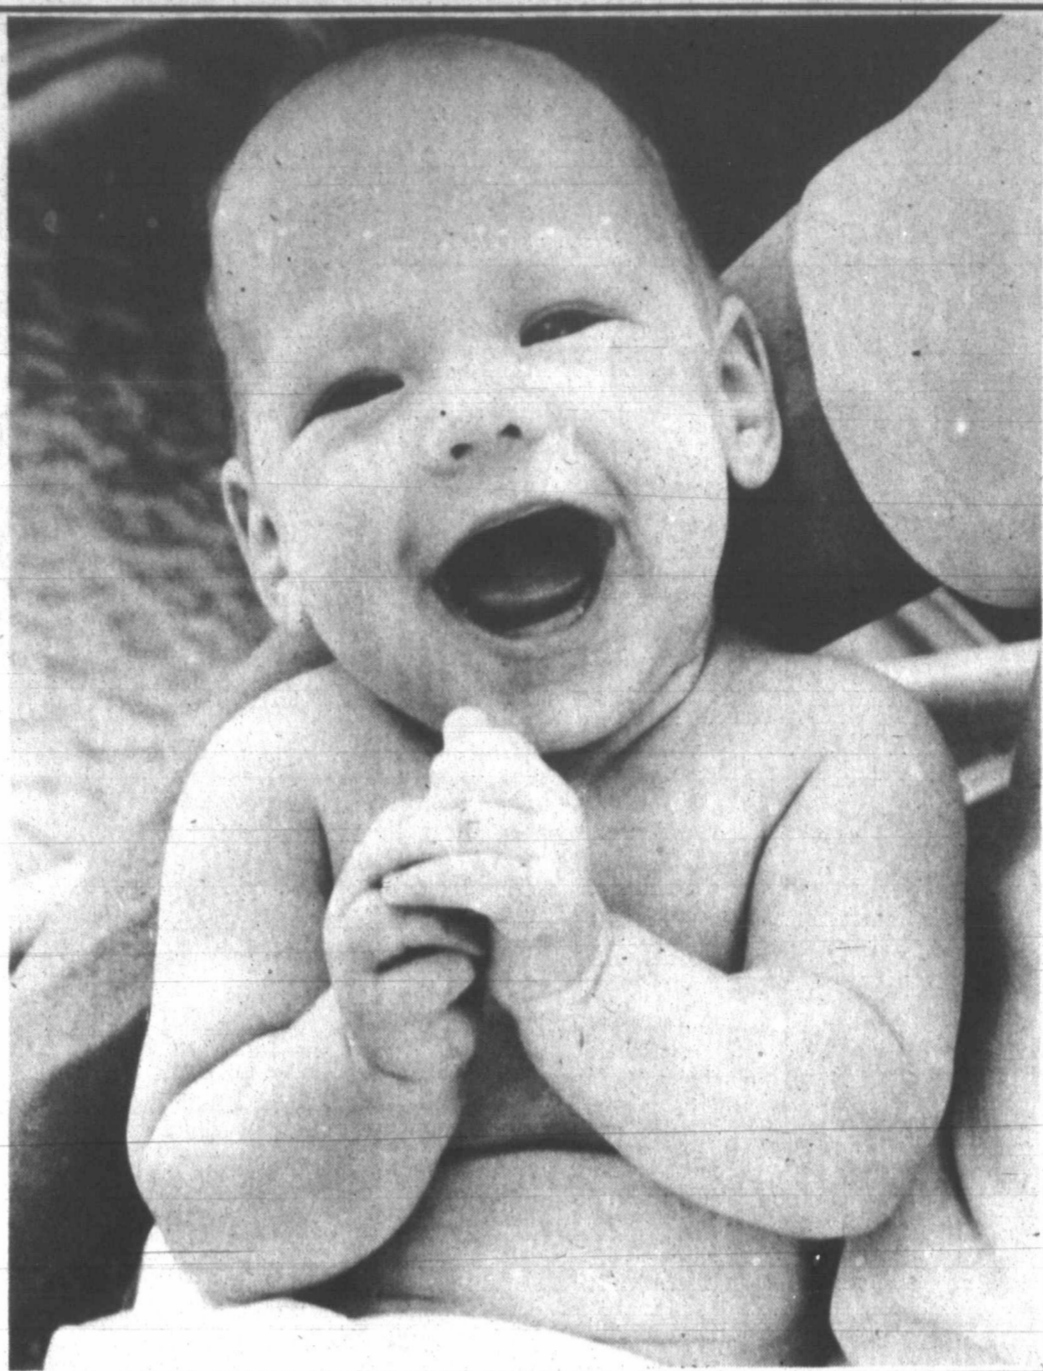

Too fast, I cry silently. Toosoon it is over! (Too soon for whom?)

How simple it would be to seduce myself into playing it again.

No longer in control, I watch his self emerging, smiling, "coo"-ing those wonderful sounds that caress like no others on earth.

Letting go is more than my obligation; more than his heritage.

It is his birthright.

Dear Abby

by

abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: This problem concerns my son. Two years ago he was engaged to marry a girl he had been crazy about for years. They were both 21. Then she ran off and married an older man (30) she'd known only a few weeks.

My son was brokenhearted. He couldn't eat or sleep, lost 20 pounds and walked around in a daze for months.

Then he met a lovely girl who raised his spirits and made him feel that life was worth living again. They planned to announce their engagement this month and marry in September.

Out of the blue, his old girlfriend called to say she and her husband were separated. She said she made a terrible mistake, she still loves my son and wants to pick up where they left off.

My son saw her, and is now considering dropping the girl who broke his heart.

What should I do?

HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: He should do what he wants to do. And you should offer no advice unless he asks for it. And neither will I.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine being treated for a skin condition told me that her doctor gave her a "word association test" in which he used some very filthy words which made her most uncomfortable.

She is an elderly widow who has raised several children. She is not a prude, but she said she is not accustomed to hearing language like that. Another friend (also elderly) told that she went to this same doctor for her nerves, and he used some very vulgar language with her, too. She said she was disgusted she never went back.

Abby, is this something new in the practice of medicine? What can be done about it?

A FRIEND IN OSWEGO, N.Y.

DEAR FRIEND: This kind of "treatment" strikes me as most unconventional. If a patient feels that a doctor has behaved in an unprofessional or unethical manner, that doctor should be reported to the ethics committee of his county or state medical society.

DEAR ABBY: Some of us older folks don't move as fast as we used to, so you'd be doing us a big favor if you would pass this suggestion on to those responsible for the sound effects on TV programs. When a telephone rings, I wish they'd use a more unique sound, such as a buzzer, or a beeping sound that is common in European phones. Anything but the familiar telephone bell most of us have at home.

Frequently while watching TV, I've struggled out of my easy chair to answer my phone to discover that it wasn't ringing at all. It was a ringing phone on the television!

ARTHRITIC ARTHUR

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ARIES IN GARDEN CITY": The person who says he isn't interested in politics is like a drowning man who says he isn't interested in water.

Readers say they're tired of being ignored

Readers have been telling me lately that they're tired of being ignored -- not by their towns or neighbors or relatives, but by the mates they've lived with for 25 to 50 years. Sometimes their lives are monotonous, one day after another of ignoring each other, of eating and sleeping and watching TV as if each were alone. Feeding the dog or cat brings them more pleasure than trying to feed each other's minds.

I'm glad to say that such is not the case at our house. Otis is a lively conversationalist and is always ready to exchange the day's events with me. We even visit during TV programs if what we have to say is more exciting than the show. Nothing takes precedent over our desire to hear each other's plans and ideas.

But some of you have written me that you have difficulty seeing each other as people, at least as interesting and vital people. Outstanding was a letter from Mart's wife.

DEAR LOUISE: Several months ago I decided that I had to do something that somebody would see me as human and talk to me as a person. I'd had it with Mart. Some years ago we took to bringing our meals into the living room where the TV was. We watched it without talking because we liked the programs, and pretty soon we didn't even talk after the shows were over for the night. I snore unmercifully so we started sleeping in different rooms a long time ago. I'm an early riser so I made the coffee and scrambled the eggs and ate my breakfast at 7 o'clock. Mart got up around 9 o'clock and warmed up the eggs and coffee. There wasn't any real reason for us to talk all day -- or, for that matter, all night. It seemed all right, about as good as we could hope for since we are 69 and 67 -- until it got to me. I asked him three times, one night, if he cared if I drove to another town to do some shopping in the morning. He didn't hear me, not even the third time, and he's not at all deaf. I thought, I'm just a stick of furniture to him. He won't notice if I'm gone. I drove away after breakfast and didn't come back for three days. I walked in and said, "Hi, Mart!" He just said, "Ssh!" and kept on looking at the wrestling match. I said, "I'm going to pack and move out, Mart," and he still didn't hear me. So that night I left. I checked out enough money to live on and I let him wonder where I'd gone. It's been two weeks. Shall I stay away or is there a chance he could be missing me and want us to be together again and see each other as people, the way we used to be? Mart's Wife

Before I wrote back to her, I contacted Mart, since I knew him. He had not missed her for several days -- because there were plenty of TV dinners in the refrigerator and the TV was working fine. But before the week was gone, he suddenly realized that there was nothing to eat in the house and he was the only person in sight -- and that, for the first time he could remember, he felt lonesome. When I talked to him, he was crying, wanting her home again, asking if I could persuade her to come back. So I wrote to her.

DEAR M.W.: Mart wants you both to be human again, so go home to him. You were like a clock on the wall, not noticed as long as it runs -- but needed badly when you want to know the time and the clock has stopped. Clocks have to be wound or plugged in -- and so do people. Nothing can be taken for granted. Constant change is forever with us and we must adjust to it. What you and Mart must do if you want to stay together is to make sure you are more than furniture to each other. You can make the first move by cooking real meals and serving them on the dining table instead of in front of the TV. Insist that you go out together sometimes. Start conversations about things he likes, maybe even wrestling. He'll talk to you at first because he wants your life together to be better now. When the newness of reconciliation has lessened, keep the talking going by making it interesting to both of you. Don't let it lapse into non-communication again. And don't forget to tell him, at least once a day, that you love him and want to be his social friend as well as his wife. I believe he'll feel the same way about you from now on. And wait breakfast for him. You can enjoy coffee alone before he wakes up.

We are all inclined to take for granted the things that keep working so well that they require no attention. But people are not things. We want notice and companionship and the love of other human beings, especially the ones to whom we are married.

Marker to be unveiled

A Texas historical marker commemorating Eldridge Post Office, Gray County's first mail facility, will be unveiled June 30 in dedication ceremonies.

Ceremonies will be at 2 p.m. at the White Deer Land Museum in Pampa. Joe Shelton, whose father, Charles E. Shelton, served as the county's second postmaster from 1887 until 1888, will unveil the marker.

The post office, which began operation in the late 1800s, was located 9 1/2 miles southeast of Lefors and 4 1/2 miles north of Alamreed.

Next month, the cast aluminum historical marker will be permanently installed near the original site of the postal facility. The Texas Highway Department will install the marker, which is sponsored by the Gray County Historical Commission.

Dr. Lamb says

Whiskey can be man's downfall

DEAR DR. LAMB: My husband is 47 and he's been told that he has cirrhosis of the liver and must stop drinking.

He's gone from 165 to 135 pounds and he's 6 feet tall. He doesn't eat well and he hasn't for years. He's always been a drinker. Beer first but for about four or five years, both beer and whiskey.

He's also a heavy cigarette smoker and has a chronic cough that aggravates a rupture he has had for many years.

We were separated but since he was made aware of his illness and because of his hard time financially, we are back together again. We don't communicate. If I try to approach the subject of his condition, his drinking or smoking, he gets very angry and tells me it's his life.

The doctor prescribed several medicines but, of course, he doesn't take them since he won't give up the alcohol.

I've talked to his doctor but all he will tell me is he has to quit that hospitalization won't help.

I don't know what to expect or what direction his illness will take. I know he has coughed up blood. Will he get progressively worse? I've tried everything I know to help but he believes seeing the doctor was a waste of time and money -- that the doctor was just trying to scare him.

I don't expect a diagnosis but with what little I've been able to tell you of his condition, can you tell me how long such a situation can persist without treatment? I will be grateful for any information you can supply.

DEAR READER: One of the frustrations physicians experience is having to observe people destroy their health and be completely helpless to do anything about it. In our free society, it's difficult to make people do things for themselves as long as that person is assumed to be sane and responsible.

If the situation is as you describe it to be, your husband is seriously damaging his health. There is no way I can tell you how long the situation will last.

One of the worse aspects of alcohol is that people often have to reach the stage of a medical emergency or total financial collapse before they're willing to accept any help.

That doesn't mean the rest of the family has to suffer the full brunt of the disorder. If your husband is intent upon damaging his life, there's no reason that you should allow this to happen to yourself.

To give you a resume of the medical effects of excessive use of alcohol, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, PO Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y., 10019.

I would strongly recommend that you look in the yellow pages of your telephone book under alcoholism and see what facilities are available in your community.

Erma Bombeck says

She will die of boredom

Even with research rats running interference for me, I don't know exactly when I'm going to die.

But I do know how. I'm going to die of boredom.

If they aren't discovering that kissing causes chipped fingernails and peanut butter brings on embarrassing itching, they're putting a curse on my pizza and the volume on my car radio.

I can't enjoy anything anymore. In fact, I'm downright paranoid.

I go around feeling cans to see if they're bent, spitting on my finger to lick stamps, holding my breath around smokers, boiling my water and avoiding X-ray machines at the airport (my luggage doesn't look good and I'm suspicious).

Lord knows I've tried to please everyone. A few years ago when they put the finger on cigarettes I quit smoking and turned to music for entertainment.

Someone said, "Cooped up in here all day listening to all those decibels will make you deaf."

I went to the beach. Someone said, "The water is polluted and the sun will cause skin cancer."

I decided to stay indoors and eat.

Someone said, "Tuna, fried foods, sugar, cereal products, meat and eggs are bad for you. You should have a check-up."

I went to the hospital for a check-up.

Someone said, "X-rays are bad for you and so is some of the medicine they're giving you."

I decided to drink.

Someone said, "That will destroy your liver."

So, I switched to coffee.

Someone said, "That is bad for you."

I went to soft drinks.

"The sugar is really harmful to your body," someone said.

I only drank drinks artificially flavored.

"That's bad for you," someone said.

"I'll eat snow."

"And drop dead?"

A friend of mine had a great idea for longevity.

She bought a research rat and followed it around day and night. Everything it ate and survived, she tried. Everything it endured without damage, she went for.

Two days ago she called and said the rat died.

"What happened?" I asked.

"Got hit by a mousetrap a block from home."

"Tell me," I said wearily, "was it wearing lipstick?" I have to know.

Carltons to celebrate anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Carlton, 426 Crest, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at a reception this afternoon at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

Hosted by their children and grandchildren, the reception will be from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Friends are invited to drop by.

DEAR POLLY - Mothers or small children who like to paint with water colors should let the children use cotton swabs, one for each color, rather than brushes. Colors will not get mixed together. - MAY

DEAR POLLY - When I used to boil cornmeal it was always lumpy until I had the idea of mixing the meal with cold water before adding it to the boiling water. Now it is always nice and smooth. - MARGARET

DEAR POLLY - This past winter I draped clear plastic on the inside of certain windows in our house, right over the curtains, and the house stayed warmer than it has ever been since we moved here 30 years ago. We do have storm windows, too. This caused my Pet Peeve, which is not being able to buy window shades made of clear plastic - then we could pull the clear shades down even in the daytime. House plants could then get the sun while the house stayed warmer.

Also, someone please tell me why we are given yesterday's temperatures when we dial "weather." Who needs to know the temperature of the day before? - MARTHA

DEAR POLLY - When your nail polish bottle is empty save the top and brush, clean them with polish remover, wash with dish detergent and dry. These little brushes are fine, durable and soft so are great for little paint touch-ups, not to mention the children's painting projects. (Polly's note: they are good for cleaning jewelry, too.) - SCOTCHIE

I hope that you have sown good seeds, because a bountiful harvest can be reaped this coming year. You should finally be able to get some of the things you've always dreamed about.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Some sort of generous gesture is coming your way today. Accept it graciously because the deed will have far-reaching effects. Discover with whom you best get along romantically by sending for your new Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will find yourself much in demand today. But what is even nicer is that those who are seeking your company are of the finest character.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Lady Luck is behind the scenes, assisting you with your ambitions today. A fortunate turn of events will be due to her efforts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is an excellent day to try to turn some of your ideas into profit. Seek out those you think can assist you. They're in a receptive mood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your greatest returns come today from someone in a high place who is favorably looking your way. You might hear of this indirectly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Much will be gained today through various friends or contacts you have cultivated in the past. They're now in a position to bring you good luck.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is a strong possibility of a raise or a bonus coming your way today for a job you did that normally doesn't pay extra dividends. Lucky you!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Get your party duds ready today. Someone especially fond of you is going to make certain you're going to have a good time out on the town.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Influences that have a beneficial effect will be experienced by you and those who mean a great deal to you today.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A few kind words from you will mean more to the recipient than you might realize. This person will see to it that good things happen to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This could be a profitable day, with returns rolling in from more than one source. Possibly, as many as four jackpots could come your way.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Through the contacts of a good friend, your social life could take a fortunate change of direction. Circulate among your pals today.

Rome's Rockaway

Lido di Ostia resort by the sea

OSTIA, Italy (AP) — Rome's Rockaway or Coney Island, her subway summer resort by the sea, may well be the most classified, stratified stretch of coastline anywhere on earth.

Like the Italian bikini, Lido di Ostia packs a lot into a tiny area. The grainy gray sands, about as inviting as the road into a gravel pit, sweep away from Rome's Fiumicino airport in a series of haphazardly fenced off beaches that hold something for everyone.

There are some elegant cabana clubs for Rome's patricians and politicians, a number of fine seafood restaurants fronting on the sea, family picnic groves among the scrubby pine covered dunes now scarlet with wind-blown poppies and a number of campsites for colonies of campers and caravanners who come from all over Europe. Any Continental resort can offer pretty much the same for its classes and masses.

But only Ostia shakes out its sands to accommodate in separate coves the most extraordinary tides of humanity.

There is, almost in order, a nuns' beach, a tots' beach a carabinieri beach for the police and their families, a topless beach, a nude beach, a beach for gays and a beach for prostitutes. Democratically but aloofly sandwiched between the gays and the prostitutes, there is also a private beach for the president of the republic, an octogenarian who seldom uses it.

"Ostia's decadence began in Constantine's time," says the old Blue

Guide to Rome, which is a long time for any resort to be going down hill.

Discounting the toga-less tribunes who used to splash about in the Tyrrhenian Sea back in Pliny the Elder's day, Rome's seaside scene wended its way onto the wild side only in the last few days.

This latter day decadence dates from the time the Italian bikini began to approximate its skimpiness its rival in the Western Hemisphere, the Brazilian string bikini, known generically in both countries as the "tanga," or the thong.

On the pasta-packed poitrines of the Roman sea nymphs the tanga meets the eye as a pleasing packaged bit of folk craft, as if someone had been hanging bocci balls in macreme. From the rear, two mandolins seem to be playing a one-string recessional.

The monokini, which jiggles its way down the coast from the French Riviera, soon made short shrift of traditional Italian modesty in dress, although total nudity as practiced in the outer reaches of Ostia's "spiaggia libera" — the free beach — is still rare.

For 400 lire (about 50 cents), the price of a ticket on the Metropolitana, Rome's subway, the visiting voyeur can easily crash the fences of all Ostia's way out watering holes by the simple expedient of walking barefoot along the shore.

All except one, that is. The president's beach at Castel Porziano is guarded by security people with submachine guns.

Cholera bacteria in Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Authorities are worried that the germs that cause cholera, one of mankind's most feared plagues, may have found a permanent home in warm Louisiana waters.

Eleven persons came down with cholera in Louisiana last summer — only the fourth reported outbreak of the disease in the United States since 1911 — and cholera bacteria have been found in various areas of the state this spring.

"I'm beginning to believe this is a disease that's with us," said Dr. William Cherry, head of the state health department.

So far, those who have come down with cholera in Louisiana have not been gravely ill, but the fearsome reputation still carried by the disease threatens the state's multimillion-dollar fishing industry.

"In countries where people are poor and conditions are poor, it kills a lot of people," Cherry said. "But our people have better nutrition... The cases have been mild."

The disease causes vomiting and diarrhea and can lead to serious dehydration.

Researchers now say it's even possible that cholera bacteria are growing wild along the soggy Louisiana coast.

"At this point, we don't know if it grows in the environment," said Dr. Paul Blake of the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta. "Until recently, it was thought that it definitely didn't grow in the environment and that every one of these organisms we found came from a person somewhere. Now, that's not so clear."

The cholera search began after the outbreak was confirmed last August and September in southwest Louisiana around Abbeville.

Since then, authorities have continued to find the bacteria and have temporarily closed fishing waters rich in crabs, oysters and other seafoods.

Cherry said he expects closings to continue when new patches of bacteria are found — much to the worry of Louisiana fishermen.

"When they closed the waters from the cholera scare in the crabs, the sale of all seafood items was affected. It affected the sale of shrimp, fish, oysters — the complete ball of wax — not only in Louisiana but out of state as well," said Preston Battistella, of the Louisiana Fisheries Federation.

"People who received the seafood from Louisiana read inflated stories in the news media about cholera and stopped ordering all seafood," he said.

"There's no way I can say in dollars and cents what it cost, but I can say first hand that a number of my out-of-state customers canceled their orders for about two weeks — orders on all seafood."

Cherry said, however, that there's no reason to shy away from eating Louisiana seafood, just as long as it is properly cooked.

"There's no such thing as a sterile chicken, for example, and everybody knows to cook it. And pork has to be well cooked to guard against trichinosis."

Cherry said the search for the source of cholera will continue, but his hopes of isolating the bacteria aren't high.

"We've had such widespread distribution it would be unlikely that we will find one source of contamination which has caused our problems all the way from Lake Charles to St. Bernard Parish, which is our whole coastline," he said.

In May, cholera bacteria were found in the sewers of Jefferson Parish, a crowded New Orleans suburb. A month earlier, bacteria were found in waters of coastal St. Bernard Parish nearby.

There were no confirmed cases, but Cherry pointed out that if the bacteria is in the sewer, somebody in the area has the disease.

Other research is under way at Louisiana State University.

The Center for Disease Control says Louisiana is the only state where cholera bacteria are turning up, but Blake said it's the only state that's seriously looking.

Conference held here

The third session of the Forty-Fifth Northwest Texas Conference of the C.M.E. Church began Wednesday morning at 10 a.m. at St. Mark Methodist Church, located on 408 Elm Street.

Rev. Andrew Nance of Tahoka and Rev. S.M. Berliner conducted the devotionals before the morning meditations, which C.D. Coleman lead.

Rev. Raymond Campbell, pastor of St. Mark C.M.E. Church of Longview, urged young people to get everything together, to "learn to know yourself" and to leave space for God in their lives.

Campbell is also editor of the East Texas Times, a church affiliated periodical that serves the five annual conferences of the C.M.E. Church.

Ministers' wives hosted the services at noon. Ms. Cornello Berliner of Wichita Falls lead the worship services then.

The Layman's Award Banquet was held later in the evening at the First Methodist Church with Ms. Claudia Davis, an educator and civic leader from Midland, featured as guest speaker.

Pastors' reports will conclude today, and the $100 Missionary Rally for Texas College will be held later in the evening at 8.

Rev. C.C. Campbell is host pastor of the conference, which is the first of five meetings to be held in Texas this summer. Coleman will be presiding at each.

The conference will close Friday afternoon with Coleman reading the pastoral appointments.

Your money's worth by sylvia porter

Q. How much can your child earn in '79 without paying federal income tax?

A. In 1979, your child can earn $3,300 tax-free, up from $3,200 in '78. And if your child expects to earn no more than $3,300 in '79, he doesn't have to "lend" his tax-free earnings to the IRS. He (or she) can exempt his pay from income tax withholding by writing the word "exempt" on Line 3 of the IRS Form W-4 he must give his employer. To qualify, he must (1) have had no income tax liability in '78, and (2) expect to incur no tax liability in '79.

This puts cash in your child's pocket at once instead of compelling him to file a tax return to get a refund and wait for it to come through in 1980. Without it, he must file a return to get a refund — even though he's not otherwise required to file.

Q. But with earnings of $3,300, will I lose the dependency deduction for him (her)?

A. No. No matter how much your child earns, he's still your dependent if you provide more than half his support and he either (1) won't reach 19 this year or (2) is 19 or over, but is a full-time student during any five calendar months. And this is an important break, for each dependency exemption in 1979 is worth $1,000.

Getting more money into the family without losing a dependency exemption isn't the only way you can benefit from your child's job. If you own your own business and you hire, say, your daughter, the wages are a deductible business expense as well as being tax-free to your daughter. (Note, too, that if your business is not incorporated, Social Security tax need not be withheld.)

Your daughter can use her earnings to take some of the financial load off your back by putting the cash away for her college education. In effect, your business gets a deduction for her college expenses.

Q. My child doesn't have a job, but he does have income from investments. Can he receive up to $3,300 in 1979 from dividends and interest without paying federal income tax?

A. No. The $3,300 figure applies only if your child's income is earned — meaning, compensation for personal services. If your child has nothing but investment income, the tax-free figure drops to $1,000 (assuming he or she can be claimed as your dependent).

Q. What if your child has both investment income and earned income? What is the division under these circumstances?

A. Your child can receive up to $3,300 of total income free of tax, but the investment portion cannot exceed $1,000.

As an example, Prentice-Hall suggests the situation of a young man who has a job this summer as a counselor-at-a camp. He will earn $2,200. He also has a substantial savings account from money he inherited from his grandfather. He will get about $1,100 in interest from this account in 1979. So, the young man's total income for 1979 is $3,300. What's his tax picture for 1979?

He will have to pay tax on the interest over $1,000 — in his case, the total here is $100.

And because the young man expects to have a tax liability for 1979, he loses his exemption from tax withholding.

So, although the $2,200 earned from his job as a camp counselor is tax-free, he may have to pay withholding now, and file for a refund next year.

Key points to keep in mind on these tax breaks for you and your children on summer jobs are:

+ The dependency deduction is up to a record high of $1,000 in 1979, as against $750 in 1978 — and thus, you should take every precaution to protect this deduction for yourself, your spouse, and each dependent. The rules you must meet are simple and clearly stated. Do not ignore or, out of ignorance or apathy, break them.

+ The relationship you establish with your child as an employee must be businesslike; the wages must be reasonable and in line with what others are paid for similar work; your child actually must work at the job you claim he or she has.

Overseas...

LONDON (AP) — A collection of 245 Greek and Roman coins belonging to Patrick A. Doherty of Beverly Hills, Calif., was auctioned at Sotheby's for a total of $761,915.

The most expensive item in the sale Wednesday was a gold coin bearing the head of Diadumenian Caesar, who was appointed in A.D. 217 and was executed 14 months later. The Bank Leu of Zurich paid $54,600 for it.

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A joint session of the Turkish Parliament voted 319-252 to extend martial law two months in 19 violence-plagued provinces in a stormy session enlivened by fist fights and name-calling.

Right-wing members opposed the extension. Interior Minister Hasan Fehmi Gunes said there has been a "considerable drop" in terrorist activity in the last two months and the nuclei of some extremist cells have been crushed.

More than 1,500 persons have been killed in partisan strife between ultra-rightists and ultra-leftists in the past 18 months. Martial law was declared in 13 of the country's 67 provinces in December after 111 persons were killed in fighting in a southeastern town. Martial law was extended to six eastern provinces later because of a growing independence movement among the Kurdish tribes.

Corporal arrested for newsman's laying

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's national guard says it arrested the corporal who shot and killed ABC correspondent Bill Stewart as he lay face down at a guard roadblock in Managua, a presidential press card in his hand.

President Anastasio Somoza's offensive to drive the Sandinista guerrillas from the slum barrios on the eastern side of the capital appeared to have bogged down as the drive went into its fourth day. Residents said guard patrols were taking heavy casualties, and reporters who visited the area saw several bullet-riddled military vehicles.

Stewart was trying to get through a government roadblock to the fighting Wednesday when a soldier ordered him to lie on the ground, kicked him once in the ribs and then killed him with a rifle shot to the head. Stewart's Nicaraguan interpreter, Juan Francisco Espinoza, also was killed, apparently by another soldier.

Stewart's camera crew, watching from a van parked near the roadblock, filmed the slaying, and the film was broadcast Wednesday night by all three U.S. networks. President Carter said the killing was "an act of barbarism that all civilized people condemn," and Somoza, expressing his "deep and sad condolences," said "the full weight of the law" would be brought to bear on those responsible.

The 37-year-old correspondent, who covered the revolution in Iran in February, had been in Nicaragua for 10 days, ABC said. He was the first foreign correspondent killed in the 24-day-old war between the Sandinista rebels fighting to overthrow the 42-year-old Somoza family dictatorship and Somoza's 13,000-man national guard.

Col. Aquiles Aranda Escobar, the guard's public information officer, said Stewart's killer would be brought before legal officers today. Officers and noncoms in the man's unit also would be questioned, he said. He took a copy of the camera crew's video tape for evidence.

At least a score of the more than 90 foreign reporters in Nicaragua said they would leave the embattled Central American nation today to protest the shooting. ABC and NBC said it was withdrawing its crews, and CBS said it was leaving only one correspondent.

The U.S. Embassy said a U.S. Air Force plane would take Stewart's body to Panama, and ABC was sending a plane there to return it to the United States.

Stewart is survived by his wife, Myrna, and his parents, who live in Huntington, W. Va.

The national guard announced Monday that it had launched a full-scale counterattack to drive the Sandinistas from their strongholds in Managua and predicted that the operation would be completed by Wednesday. But journalists who entered the eastern barrios on Wednesday said the guerrillas were still dug in and heavily armed.

The rebels hold large parts of eastern Managua, plus extensive sectors in the southern city of Rivas, where they have said a column advancing from the Costa Rican border would establish a provisional government. They have also occupied all of Leon, the nation's second largest city, and control most of Matagalpa, Esteli and other cities in the north and northwest.

Reporters returning from Leon said the last national guard snipers had been killed or captured Wednesday, but the guard was still shelling the city from a fort on the outskirts.

Government officials said earlier this week that no attempt would be made to recover Leon and other northern cities until the rebels were cleared from Managua and the drive in the south had been crushed.

The guard on Wednesday flew reporters to La Virgen, a military training camp about six miles south of Rivas, and then took them in a truck convoy to a position about four miles north of the Costa Rican border.

Guardsmen there said Sandinista forces that crossed the border from bases in Costa Rica had been held within a few miles of the border in fierce fighting Tuesday.

The Organization of American States was holding a meeting of foreign ministers in Washington today to discuss the war, and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was expected to call for a cease-fire and an OAS mediation effort to create a broad-based representative government for Nicaragua.

How to save on your income taxes

Millions of you miss out unnecessarily on dependency deduction -- up to $1,000 each in 1979 -- because you mistakenly believe that you lose your deductions when your children leave home for college or marry and move away. To illustrate:

(1) "My daughter has just won a big college scholarship for fall. So I won't be able to claim her as a tax dependent."

Simply not true! The tax law says that scholarship money isn't considered "support." So, as long as you otherwise provide more than half your daughter's support, you can claim her as a dependent. Say you pay $2,500 toward your daughter's college expenses; she gets a $2,800 scholarship. She's still your dependent for tax purposes, for since the scholarship doesn't count, you, in effect, have provided all her support -- $2,500 out of $2,500. Now is the time to begin checking on whether the support you contribute meets the rules.

(2) "My son has a job this summer and will earn around $2,000 to pay for his college expenses. This means his income is too high for me to claim him as a dependent."

Not so. There is a general income limit -- a dependent must have less than $1,000 in gross income -- but it does not apply to a child who is (1) under 19 or (2) a full-time student. So, for your child in college, you only need to meet the more-than-half support test. This you must be sure you do to protect your dependency deduction.

(3) "My daughter will earn around $2,600 this summer. I expect to provide $2,400 in support this year. So I flunk the more-than-half support test and lose her as a dependent."

Not necessarily. You may save your dependency deduction because of an oft-overlooked tax rule which says that what your child actually spends on her support is what counts, not necessarily the total money your daughter earns.

For instance, say you have your daughter put $150 of her earnings in the bank. You pick up the tab for an extra $150 of her expenses. Your daughter can use the bank savings for future expenses -- and you get a dependency deduction for her now. Reason: her earnings don't count against you unless she actually uses this money for her support. By having your daughter bank her earnings while you take up the slack, you provide more than half her support -- $2,550 against $2,450.

(4) "My son insists on paying as much as he can for his college expenses. He's paying $3,000, and I'm chipping in the remaining $2,000. So he's definitely provided more than half of his support and I can't claim him as a tax dependent."

Yes, he has provided more half of the MONEY for his college expenses, but that doesn't necessarily mean you lose him as a dependent. There's much more to support than this.

For instance, the "fair rental value" of his lodging while he is at home during the year counts as support you provide for him. The cost of boarding your child the months he's home plus what you spend for his college expenses could well put you over the more-than-half support mark. The graduation car you're buying your son this month may help you nail down a dependency deduction, too. The IRS has said that so-called capital outlays -- cars, TV, etc. -- count as dependent support. What's more, the full cost of the car counts as support in the year of the gift, even though you finance the purchase and pay for the car over a period of years.

(5) "My 18-year-old daughter will be married next week. That certainly must mean I lose her as a dependent."

Not always so. In fact, Prentice-Hall stresses that her wedding might give you a dependency deduction you otherwise might not have had. The IRS has ruled that expenditures you make, as a parent, for a child's wedding apparel and accessories, wedding reception, flowers for the wedding party, church and reception, etc. are part of the support you, the parent, provide for the child. These costs easily could put you over the more-than-half support mark.

But be warned: for you to get this dependency deduction, your daughter and her husband must file separate returns at tax time. This shouldn't make much difference on their tax bills -- but it will mean you keep a $1,000 deduction in your much higher tax bracket. Tomorrow: A Dependency Deduction for Helping Your Parents

Around the nation

YORKTOWN, Va. (AP) --

Court martial proceedings against the commander of the Coast Guard cutter Cuyahoga have been temporarily halted while defense attorneys seek to have the Coast Guard judge disqualified.

A military appeals court Wednesday granted a stay sought by attorneys for Chief Warrant Officer DONALD K. Robinson, charged with negligence in the collision of the Cuyahoga and the freighter Santa Cruz II in Chesapeake Bay last October. The cutter sank and 11 of its 29 crewmen died. Attorney Jerome Flanagan argued that Coast Guard judges might be influenced by the fact that the court-martial was convened by Adm. John Hayes, the Coast Guard commandant. Cmdr. R.A. Appelbaum, the presiding judge, Tuesday denied a motion that he disqualify himself.

NEW YORK (AP) -- A Brooklyn man already charged with killing his pregnant wife has been indicted for the March slaying of diamond merchant Martin Paretzky.

The indictment Wednesday charged Philip Drelich, 28, of Brooklyn and "another participant" strangled the 71-year-old Paretzky with a cord and dumped his body in the Hudson River. Paretzky disappeared March 7 with $500,000 in gems, which have not been recovered.

Manhattan district attorney Robert Morgenthau refused to identify the other suspect until the defendant is named in an indictment.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) -- The reputed head of organized crime on New Jersey's waterfront has been convicted along with three associates on charges they extorted thousands of dollars from a restaurant owner.

Tino Fiumara, 38, of Wyckoff, showed no emotion as the verdict was read.
