Saudi Arabia ups output of crude oil

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Saudi Arabia has increased its production of crude oil a million barrels a day — more than double the shortage in U.S. imports — for the three summer months, the Middle East Economic Survey reported today.

It could not be learned immediately how much of the increase would go to the United States, but the authoritative oil journal said it will be marketed through Exxon, Texaco, Solar and Mobil, the four American oil companies that are participants with the Saudi government in the Arabian-American Oil Co.

Nor was it known how soon the increase might mean more gasoline at American pumps. But it could ease the threat of a shortage in heating fuel next winter.

The Saudi state radio announced a week ago that production was being increased temporarily because the government needed extra money for its $142-billion development program. But the announcement did not say how large the increase would be or how long it would last.

Saudi Arabia increased its production a million barrels per day, to 9.5 million, for the first three months of the year to ease the shortage caused by the Iranian revolution that overthrew Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. After Iranian production resumed at a reduced level, the Saudi government cut production back to 8.5 million barrels a day for the past three months although officials said the output was somewhat higher.

The Middle East Economic Survey said it learned reliably that an increase of a million barrels a day took effect on July 1 and would continue through September. It said production for the fourth quarter is undecided, but sources reported "the situation will be reviewed in the light of market and price conditions when the time comes."

The New York Times in a survey of the oil shortage Sunday said the United States this year needs to import 8.6 million barrels a day of crude oil and refined products to meet demand, but total oil imports have averaged less than 8.2 million barrels a day.

It said the gap in the noncommunist world between available supplies and demand is between one million and two million barrels a day. Japan and Italy were recently reported trying to buy oil directly from the Saudi government.

The Times said oil industry sources reported the American companies were not importing more crude oil because the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will not sell them more. Many of the members of the oil cartel are limiting production to conserve their chief natural resource and at the same time keep prices up.

Meanwhile, the official Iranian news agency, Pars, announced that Iran will accept payment for its oil in any currency acceptable to it instead of only in dollars, the standard currency used by OPEC. Officials of the National Iranian Oil Co. said this would be a convenience for buyers who would not have to convert their currencies into dollars to make payment. But they said it would have little other impact as long as contracts continue to be written in dollars.

Saudi commitment confirmed

Increase to help here

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter confirmed today that Saudi Arabia will "substantially" increase its crude oil production, an action likely to moderate oil prices and increase the supply of gasoline in the United States.

Deputy White House press secretary Rex Granum said Carter received a "personal commitment" from Crown Prince Fahd, the de facto Saudi Arabian leader, that the Middle East nation's crude oil production would be increased "for a significant and specific period of time."

Granum said Carter had been given details of the production plans, which would be made public by the Saudis "in the near future."

The spokesman told reporters that Carter disclosed the Saudi plans to members of the Senate and House who conferred with him at Camp David Md. about energy matters this morning. Carter, who was sharply critical last week of the oil-producing cartel, praised Saudi Arabia — a key member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, Granum said.

"The president has expressed the appreciation of the American people for this decision," he said.

In reporting the Saudi decision, Carter in effect confirmed indications that surfaced last week in the Middle East that such an increase was contemplated.

Granum stressed that although Strauss was visiting the Saudi Arabian city in his role as a Middle East negotiator, there was no quid pro quo relationship tied to the decision. The Saudis have been highly critical of U.S. support for Israel and of the Egyptian agreement with the Israelis.

At domestic summit conference

Carter considering economy, energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is moving from a broad-brush review of the domestic problems that have dogged his administration to a close-up look at the nation's energy pinch and an economy seemingly sliding into recession.

Congressmen from both parties were flying today to Camp David for another of the secretive meetings reminiscent of the isolation that surrounded last year's Mideast summit on the Maryland mountaintop.

As the president entered his seventh day of seclusion, press secretary Jody Powell said Carter's discussions with a wide range of Americans — from members of his Cabinet to governors, university presidents and top labor leaders — had been "free-wheeling, remarkably candid and very productive."

Powell said the senators and representatives meeting with Carter today were assembled by the congressional leadership.

Other sessions were likely to continue, Powell said, through Wednesday with prominent political leaders, energy experts and others.

A tentative schedule for Tuesday was being set up, with people from outside government being invited to discuss the economy, Powell said, adding that meetings were also planned with "a group of people whose interest is in religion and ethics."

Meanwhile, Carter was to be given a series of options to end long gasoline lines, promote fuel conservation and cut reliance on imported oil. Those options, the work of an interagency task force, are intended to serve as a basis for far-reaching presidential decisions.

Powell and other participants in the meetings have been extremely cautious about revealing any details of the discussions.

Carter flew to Camp David on Tuesday. Without any advance public signals, he decided Wednesday to cancel a major speech on energy planned for the next day.

On Thursday he began consulting with senior advisers and, by Friday, the talks had blossomed into a domestic summit conference that has darkened the White House offices of Carter's key aides as they confer with the president in the Maryland woods.

Contracts to be awarded

The Pampa City Commission will award contracts for the purchase of containers and trucks to be used for garbage collection at its regular meeting at 9:30 Tuesday morning.

To pay for the equipment, the commission will consider on first reading an ordinance issuing certificates of obligation in the amount of $956,000.

Commissioners will also consider a resolution approving a contract for the services of a financial adviser in connection with the certificates.

Booker boy killed

ELMWOOD, Okla. (AP) — A 9-year-old Booker, Texas, boy was killed when he darted in front of an oncoming car on a country road near here Sunday night.

Oklahoma Highway Patrol Trooper Kerry Hokit said the boy died after being struck on a Beaver County road six miles south and five miles west of Elmwood.

The child was identified as Rocky Dean Coxwell.

Missing girl found dead

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — Dallas County medical examiners continued their efforts over the weekend to determine the cause of death of a 6-year-old girl who disappeared June 26 while playing outside her apartment.

The decomposed body of Tyra Heath was found July 4 in a wooded area three miles from her parents' apartments.

Final Kid Pony Show here for Lena Stewart

By TINA McCLOY
Pampa News Staff

Lena Stewart will soon outgrow the age limitations of the Kid Pony Show, but she's ready for competition Wednesday night in the goat-tying event.

The petite 15-year-old gives her final performance this week in the youngsters' segment of the Top O' Texas Rodeo. The Kid Pony Show begins at 7 p.m. today and runs through Wednesday, with winners from two age divisions declared each evening.

Lena, a member of the Pampa High School rodeo team, plans to spend the summer polishing her skills at goat-tying and breakaway roping. In August, she'll begin her second year of Tri-State competition.

"I went with my sister three years to Tri-State rodeos, while she tied goats and did breakaway," said the PHS sophomore. "Then it was my turn to do it for four years."

As a participant in the Tri-State Rodeo Association, she will compete against other high school students from Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle this fall.

Last year she was named Rookie of the Year, chosen from all the freshmen cowgirls in the area, and during the finals last month she ranked third in the overall standings.

She ended the year second in goat-tying and third in breakaway roping.

As a youngster, Lena watched her father compete in team ropings and says he taught her everything she knows about horsemanship.

Clent Stewart spends most afternoons coaching his daughter and supervising her workouts.

"I practice when I get in from school and we practice till we can't see any more," she said with a laugh. "He can't even do the events, but he can tell me how."

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clent Stewart, 1217 E. Foster, are strong supporters of their daughter's rodeo activities, and Lena says her mother has never missed any of her rodeos.

Pampa High's rodeo club has less than 10 members, but has fared well throughout Tri-State competition. As a team, they ranked third at the close of last year's rodeo circuit, sending three boys and two girls to the finals.

"Everybody's chipping in and doing their part, so that's not too bad," says Lena, who feels rodeo is a growing sport in schools, since the students are constantly improving their skills and times.

As an individual competitor in Tri-State rodeos, Lena captured all-around cowgirl honors at both Spearman and Stratford last year and won a saddle each time.

OPINION PAGE

You deserve a break today

Leaders of the congressional Joint Economic Committee have prescribed a powerful, albeit belated, remedy for the nation's economic sluggishness. They're talking, these politicians, about a massive $20 billion tax cut affecting both businesses and individuals.

Not only is the prescription powerful, in the sense that a mega-administration of chemotherapy is powerful, but it could just produce the desired results. It is everywhere evident that wealth left in private hands does good things for the commonwealth in a myriad of ways wealth extracted by the government does not and cannot.

California is the proximate example. In the year's time since Proposition 13 was enacted this state experienced a surge of economic activity so brisk that economists are returning to orthodox conclusions about it. A popular theory, pre-Prop. 13, was that economic health depended on an expansion of the public sector. It is the incorrect theory, by the way, that the Carter administration holds to this day.

A leader of the return to orthodoxy is USC economist Arthur Laffer, who was the guru of the Jarvis-Gann initiative. Laffer puts it in definitive terms: Californians experienced significant economic growth and Prop. 13 did it for them. Another popularizer of the low-taxes-equals-health school is Jude Wanniski, author of "The Way the World Works". These evangelists have been so successful that the word seems to have penetrated Congress; it has at least reached influential members of that body who can move more intelligent programs through the creaky congressional machinery than a single Jack Kemp could hope to effect.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, recognized the signals of an imminent recession, and they concluded that a dose of orthodoxy would be the most likely rescuator. Our only misgivings about their remedy are that it might be too late (in the sense that it might rescue the economy; it is never too late for a tax cut), and that it might be too small (though any tax cut should be remembered the third Thursday of next November).

Now the Joint Economic Committee, its prestigious name notwithstanding, enjoys not nearly so much power as other committees — committees which, this very moment, are entertaining mountains of legislation that would effectively render the Bentsen-Brown proposal negligible. There was never much reason to hope for a solution for our economic malaise from Capitol Hill.

But the sheer clarity of the massive tax cut is something to be treasured, even if it spreads not farther than the Joint Economic Committee. In California we learned it took more than the routine engines of democracy to get it done. It may very well be that those extra-routine engines will seize the Bentsen-Brown plan as their own.

Lacking a federal initiative, where are they?

A moral imperative

As with some American politicians, there are powerful men in the Soviet Union who think automobiles are not to be trusted in the hands of ordinary people. At a meeting of the Azerbaijan Republic's Communist Party not long ago, First Secretary G.A. Aliev opined that a "bourgeois decadence" brought about by rising ownership of cars had allowed "young, unstrengthened souls" to be penetrated by "the corrupting rust of philistinism and consumerism and pernicious morality and ideology alien to socialist society." The Soviets are so upset about the automobile's influence that they have resorted to a tactic more appropriate to a market economy than a socialist one. They have been trying to price automobiles out of the reach of such easily corrupted souls, reserving them for more responsible party and government officials.

Nation's press

Unsafe regulations

Wall Street Journal

In recent years a host of federal regulatory agencies have sprung up charged with saving lives and preventing injuries. OSHA, the Consumer Product Safety Commission, and Joan Claybrook's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration leap immediately to mind. OSHA, you may remember, is the agency that harassed small businessmen for not labeling the single door into and out of their premises with a properly displayed exit sign, warned farm workers to watch out for manure pits and wrote a book about how to use a ladder. The Consumer Product Safety Administration turned the sleeper industry on its ear by banning the chemical Tris, which garment makers had used to meet federal product safety standards. And the safe highway folks brought us unsafe computerized truck brakes. All in all they have done a good job cleaning up the private sector, and it is time for them to go on to bigger and better things.

We have in mind the lack of safety in federal regulations such as DOE's gasoline allocation regulations and the gasoline price controls. There are reports from all over the deleterious effects of these regulations on life and limb. Tempers and blood pressures have been raised beyond the blowup point by gasoline line frustration, a regulatory-born virus. The lines have produced shootings, strokes, and deaths by carbon monoxide poisoning. Many consumers are expected to go up in flames along with their cars and homes as a result of gasoline hoarded in plastic containers to see them through the Fourth of July week-end.

Here is a golden opportunity for those agencies charged with the public's safety. DOE's regulations are a mandatory product that consumers cannot avoid, and there's no question about their harmful effect. The Secretary of Energy himself stated in Tokyo last Wednesday that "there would be no lines if there were no price and allocation controls."

Normally we look askance at the regulatory activities of the guardians of public safety. But it is becoming apparent that the DOE regulations are a greater threat to the public's safety than toys and sugared cereals.

There is, of course, a danger that the campaign to protect consumers from gasoline line frustration will fall victim to jurisdictional disputes between OSHA, the product safety people and the safe highway folks. When a motorist on his way to work succumbs to asphyxia while waiting in his gasoline line, does OSHA have jurisdiction on the grounds of occupational hazard, can CPSC claim jurisdiction because the line-causing regulations are an unsafe product, or is it a matter of highway safety? Undoubtedly the answer lies in the creation of a new superagency for the protection of people from government regulations.

More and more we must ask government: "Are you helping to solve the problem, are you part of the problem or are you the cause of the problem?" Walter Hoadley, chief economist for the Bank of America recently said that in a published statement: "Despite many very good intentions, government itself has become more and more a major negative force in our economy." This is particularly evident in the government's counterproductive economic policies in the energy fields.

Washington (NEA) - In the Alice-in-Wonderland world of government, there is no spectacle more bizarre than the practice of frittering away the public's money to defend a federal official who has acted contrary to the public interest.

Such episodes unfortunately occur with considerable regularity because the Justice Department is required by statute to provide legal counsel to all federal employees who are sued as a result of their official actions.

The problem is compounded when the government official who acted improperly (if not illegally) is the president of the United States, Jimmy Carter, and the trial lawyer is the attorney general of the United States, Griffin B. Bell.

Because attorneys general rarely make personal appearances in courtrooms, Bell assumed the role of trial lawyer only twice during his first two years as head of the Justice Department.

For his third appearance, Bell earlier this month selected a particularly inauspicious occasion—a hearing in U.S. District Court here on a civil suit filed by Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., alleging that Carter acted wrongfully when he dramatically altered this country's relationship with the two Chinas late last year.

Not at issue is the president's undisputed right both to establish diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China (PRC) on the Asian mainland and to sever diplomatic relations with the Republic of China (ROC) on Taiwan.

What the lawsuit challenges is Carter's unilateral act of terminating the 1954 Mutual Defense Treaty between the United States and the ROC.

The Constitution is quite specific in giving the president the power "to make treaties" while also requiring that they be ratified by a two-thirds vote of the Senate. But there is no similar constitutional guidance on the procedure for "deratifying" or breaking treaties.

As a result, there are profound differences of opinion among legal scholars and constitutional authorities on the question of who possesses the power to terminate treaties generally. Goldwater, however, has several compelling arguments in support of his position on the Chinese treaty specifically.

On Sept. 26, 1978—less than three months before he announced this country's revised China policy—Carter signed into law the International Security Assistance Act of 1978, which included a provision stating: "There should be prior consultation between the Congress and the executive branch on any proposed policy changes affecting the continuation of the Mutual Defense Treaty of 1954."

In Carter's defense, the State Department offers an irrelevant melange of precedents in which treaties were abrogated by prior presidents without congressional action. But that list is riddled with such arcane compacts as an 1891 commercial treaty with the Congo and a 1937 multilateral convention regulating international whaling.

Goldwater poses a far more relevant question: If the president can unilaterally abandon the Chinese treaty obligation, what is to prevent him from taking the same action with regard to the 'Universal Copyright Convention, the NATO defense treaty or the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty'?

"For years we made much of how worthless were treaties and agreements entered into by the Soviet Union. We told the world that our commitments were matters of honor while commitments made by the Soviets were matters of expediency," says the senator.

Now that "we have come down on the side of expediency and thrown honor to the wind," Goldwater notes, our allies must surely be wondering "whether our promises to come to the defense of freedom throughout the world can any longer be held with any assurance and credibility."

Goldwater happens to be a longtime ROC supporter. But even those who welcome the belated recognition of the PRC must view Carter's unwarranted usurpation of power as ethically wrong, politically wrong and legally wrong.

Bumper Hornberger

By Edwin Feulner

What could the federal government possibly do that would get Bumper Hornberger "honked off" enough to scrounge up $6,615 from his family and friends to buy a half-page ad in THE WASHINGTON POST?

Well, they decided to spend $5.8 million tax dollars on a new housing project that they could have built for a cool million dollars less. That's what.

But then again, they're only our tax dollars. So who cares?

Well, Bumper Hornberger cares. And he asked around for money to pay for this ad to let Washington know he's "honked off." But good.

"The people of Laredo, Texas would like to thank you, the taxpayers of America, for a gift of $1,000,000.00 (One Million Dollars)," the ad says.

"Recently, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development announced a new housing project for Laredo. Two final bids which met all of HUD's plans and specifications were Bid No. 1 - 146 units at $4,800,000.00 Bid No. 2 - 146 units at $5.

"The Mayor of Laredo, the City Council, the Community Development Agency, and the Laredo Housing Authority all went on record as preferring Bid No. 1 (the less expensive bid)," Bumper explains in his ad. The City of Laredo sent its recommendation to the Hud Area office in San Antonio, 150 miles away.

Then what happened? Oh the suspense of it all!

Well, of course, Finnis Jolly, Area Director of HUD "rejected the City recommendation and directed the City of Laredo to accept Bid No. 2 (the more expensive bid)."

When the City hesitated, Bumper explains, "the Area Director threatened a termination of the housing project."

So like good, dutiful, and obedient citizens, the City fathers decided to comply, and accept Bid No. 2, even though it was a million dollars more expensive for the same number of units.

Construction begins in July. Says Bumper, "We know: that you recently paid federal income taxes. That the U.S. Government has one - and only one - source of revenue: your tax money. That you send your tax money to Washington and that Washington sends it to us.

"We also know: that the other federal tax you pay is the tax of inflation. That inflation lowers the value of your dollar by 12 percent per year. That a 12 percent tax - across the board - hurts all of you and especially you lower income earning people."

Tongue in cheek, Bumper also reminds

U. S. bags the beans

Americans who have become defensive about being labeled the world's most profligate users of scarce natural resources can rejoice at statistics recently released by the International Coffee Organization.

Despite the popularity of coffee in this country, the United States ranks a dismal eighth in per capita consumption, the London-based organization reports.

Atop the list is Sweden with 27.72 pounds of per capita consumption annually, followed by Finland, Denmark, Norway, Netherlands, Belgium and Switzerland. Yearly per capita consumption in the United States is a mere 12.43 pounds.

That's the good news. The bad news is that because this country's population is far greater than that of any of the coffee-addicted European nations, the United States is by far the world's largest importer of coffee.

Almost 20.98 million bags of beans are imported annually. West Germany, which ranks second in total imports, accounts for only 6.13 million bags.

Part of the problem

In 1973, when we received the first warning about the vulnerability of our essential oil supply, the policy goal seemed to be clear: to become independent of foreign unreliable sources by developing alternative sources of energy at home and bringing supply and demand into balance. After well over five years we are now farther from that goal than ever -- at the mercy of a cartel of foreign countries. Now we seem determined to restrain or even choke off our best domestic alternatives -- coal and nuclear energy. Meanwhile we are running a trade deficit of $30 to $40 billion which we cannot sustain much longer without ruining our currency.

By government edict Americans buy their gasoline at half or less than half what Europeans pay for it. Europe, of course, though it produces little oil, therefore never had a gasoline shortage. But just last month the U.S. government boosted the support price of sugar to 15.8 cents, about twice of what sugar sells for outside the United States. Do Americans have an inalienable birthright to buy gasoline at half price but a duty to buy the sugar at twice the price?

President Carter and many members of Congress appear primarily concerned about preventing oil companies from earning high profits. The fact is that oil company profits are not high in comparison with other industries when related to investment. They are too low to attract sufficient investment to finance the needed expansion of production. It is well known that on the average nine out of every ten exploratory wells drilled are "dry" and that each hole may cost from a few hundred thousand to a several millions of dollars.

President Carter has proposed, and Congress will impose a "windfall profits" tax on oil companies. This will be counterproductive. Higher taxes could be justified at this time -- on the product itself, not on the profits. A punitive tax on oil profits will discourage wider exploration and production. Higher taxes on oil itself on the other hand might stimulate more intensive research and the use of alternatives to pumping: oil shale, oil sands, recovery, coal, nuclear energy. But strong forces are trying to choke off nuclear development and coal use. That simply means diverting more oil to the generation of electric energy and away from gasoline. Solar plants may help to heat water for various domestic purposes but are not likely to contribute much electric energy, now or for a long time to come.

The United States and the other industrial powers pursued a suicidal policy when the oil crisis arose in 1973. We now have to pay the bill whether we like it or not. But many grave problems would be alleviated if government got out of the field by decontrol and left it to the market forces to balance supply and demand. Reduction of government control of airlines has sharply lowered many fares and multiplied the number of passengers. Why not learn from that experience? Under current and prospective policies, the oil and energy situation will only get worse.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, July 9, the 190th day of 1979. There are 175 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1816, Argentina declared independence from Spain.

On this date:

In 1776, Gen. George Washington summoned his troops in New York and had the Declaration of Independence read to them.

In 1850, President Zachary Taylor died at the White House after having served only one year and four months of his term in office.

In 1947, the engagement of Britain's Princess Elizabeth and Lieutenant Philip Mountbatten was announced.

In 1960, the Soviets threatened the United States with missiles if Washington tried to oust the Castro government in Cuba.

In 1967, the United States assumed an active role in a revolt in the Congo, sending three military transport planes to give President Joseph Mobutu logistical support in his fight against rebels.

In 1971, the last U.S. base guarding the demilitarized zone in Vietnam was turned over to South Vietnamese troops.

Estes awaiting jury's decision

DALLAS (AP) — Billie Sol Estes — the former "boy wonder" of West Texas, now a paunchy, middle-aged parolee — again waits for a federal jury here to decide whether he will spend the rest of his life in prison.

The panel resumes deliberations today in the fraud and conspiracy case against the former financier and his former associate Raymond K. Horton.

Jurors deliberated 9½ hours Thursday and Friday but adjourned for the weekend without returning a verdict on any of the counts contained in three indictments.

Estes built a $150 million fortune in the early 1960s selling mortgages on non-existent fertilizer tanks to hundreds of farmers. His 1963 conviction on fraud charges sent shock waves from Texas to Washington.

He was paroled in 1971, however, after serving less than half of his 15-year sentence in federal prisons in Kansas, Minnesota and Texas.

The two men also are charged with concealing assets from the Internal Revenue Service so Estes would not have to pay $10 million in back taxes.

If convicted, Estes, 54, could face up to 80 years in federal prison and fines totaling $82,000, and Horton could be assessed up to 50 years and fines of $60,000.

Estes and his former secretary, Sue Goolsby, also have been charged in a four-count indictment with using documents bearing the forged signatures of Tyler millionaire Billy D. Pyron to secure loans for various business ventures.

Ms. Goolsby is scheduled to stand trial after Estes and Horton.

The paroled swindler found himself back in the courtroom after former Mississippi promoter Don Trull released several documents, including one alleged to be a trust agreement, stolen from Estes' office more than two years ago.

Trull claimed Estes and Pyron owned him more than $1.3 million.

The revelations resulted in investigations by almost every state and federal agency in Texas and culminated last February when a federal grand jury returned the indictments.

Shortage stops fiddler contest

DURANT, Okla. (AP) — A contest featuring old time fiddlers who never seemed to run out of energy as long as there was an audience has become the victim of the gasoline crunch.

The 1979 Dick Barrett Fiddler's Super Bowl here has been cancelled.

A Durant Chamber of Commerce spokesman said before the cancellation, the annual event had been moved to a late summer date to take advantage of tourist traffic.

"But since the tourist traffic has been hard hit by the gasoline shortage, staging the event is too costly to go out on a limb at this time," said Phil Scoggin, the chamber's chairman.

Houston police search for rapist

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police are searching for a rapist who apparently attacks only illegal aliens — women who are then afraid to report the incidents to authorities.

A tall blond man has raped at least one woman and tried to rape four others in a predominantly Mexican-American area of the city, according to investigator Terry Pierce. Police say the man poses as an electrician to gain entry to homes during the day when the women are alone or with children.

The rapist's pattern first was noticed in April when two Mexican women living here illegally reported an attempted rape, Pierce said.

Murder target to testify in trial

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A South Texan who was blinded in an apparent murder try has been subpoenaed to testify against his alleged assailant.

The attempted capital murder trial of S.J. Wilburn of Pasadena, Texas, was scheduled to begin today in state District Judge Darrell Hester's court.

Wilburn, 56, is accused of being the hired hit man in a purported plot to kill a prospective witness in a kidnapping case. John Hensley, 40, was blinded when a single shot tore through his skull as he left his South Padre Island apartment Feb. 15.

The attempted capital murder indictment charges that Wilburn and Scott Minnick of Pasadena were offered $15,000 to kill Hensley. The money was allegedly to be paid by Dr. Archie Herman Burkhalter of Pasadena.

Burkhalter is under indictment for allegedly kidnapping his ex-wife and taking her to his Pasadena hospital. Hensley is married to the doctor's ex-wife and is expected to also be a witness in the kidnapping trial.

Neither Minnick nor Burkhalter has been tried on the attempted capital murder charge.

Wilburn was arrested shortly after the February shooting.

Confessions obtained under duress

Fleener claims innocence, says torture was threatened

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Terre Fleener says Israeli interrogators extracted four confessions from her through threats and intimidation and that she never "knowingly" aided Palestinian guerrillas.

Miss Fleener, 24, convicted of spying for Arab terrorists, was paroled June 29 by Israeli officials after she spent 20 months in prison.

"They threatened some torture...that I would be locked in a small box. I never saw one but I understand it is like a very tiny room where you can't lie down and you can't stand up," said Miss Fleener in an interview with the San Antonio Express & News.

She said the prosecution built its case on four confessions she contended were obtained under duress and are "impossible" to get overturned in court.

Israeli interrogators, she said, threatened to hypnotize her against her will and to inject her with truth serum.

"At one time a door was opened and a little syringe and vial were taken out and I was told this was truth serum," said Miss Fleener. "...just the threats that they were going to do this causes you to feel totally helpless in the situation."

She denied Israeli allegations that she met with a top Palestinian Liberation Organization leader in 1976.

"There was no evidence...I wasn't in London at that time. That's absolute garbage," said Miss Fleener.

"We went around and around about that and they said they had brought someone from Lebanon they were going to torture if I didn't talk...They had someone in a holding cell next to the room where I was being interrogated, pounding on the metal door and screaming, screaming."

"They didn't bring anyone. It was someone from SHIBET (Israeli Secret Police) in there banging on the door. That was simply another psychological tactic," she said.

"If they want to charge me with guilt by association, I had a lot of friends over there. The authorities said some of them belonged to hostile organizations. I didn't know it."

Davis prosecutors hold breath

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors may be holding their collective breaths as they try to seat a jury today in what probably will be their last attempt to put industrialist Cullen Davis behind bars.

They tried once in Houston to prosecute Davis on murder-for-hire charges, but ended up with a hung jury and six-figure expenses for Tarrant County taxpayers. This time, the proceedings are to go on in Davis' hometown — in State District Judge Gordon Gray's courtroom.

Principals say this trial could run through Thanksgiving.

Davis, 45, an heir to a billion-dollar family empire, is charged with trying to kill State District Judge Joe Eidson last August. Eidson, who was not harmed, was the presiding judge in Davis' stormy divorce from ex-wife Priscilla.

Davis maintains he was set up and framed by Priscilla and her friends because his ex-wife believes he killed her daughter, Andrea Wilbourn, in a shooting spree at Davis' $6 million mansion on a summer night in 1976.

An Amarillo jury acquitted Davis of the murder charge, but he is still charged in the slaying of Stan Farr, Priscilla Davis' live-in lover, and with the wounding of Mrs. Davis and Gus Gavrel Jr.

Prosecutors admit privately that the trial beginning Monday most likely will be the final attempt to convict Davis on the multitude of charges pending against him.

Texas weather

Skies were mostly fair over Texas today with some thunderstorms in the Northeastern Panhandle and along the Gulf Coast. Light hail and strong winds were reported in the Northern Panhandle.

The areas around Lufkin reported some fog, but otherwise, Texas skies were clear.

Sunday temperatures around the state were mainly in the 70s with the extremes being 73 at Waco and Junction to 82 at Galveston and 81 at El Paso.

The outlook across the state today is for scattered thunderstorms along the gulf coast. A few thunderstorms will be scattered across the panhandle later Monday night. High temperatures will range from the upper 80s in southeast Texas to around 105 along the Rio Grande in Southwest and West Texas.

Texas forecast

North Texas — Considerable morning low clouds or fog central and east, otherwise partly cloudy through Tuesday with a few thundershowers southeast both days. Continued hot west and central and warm east. Highs Monday 89 Southeast to 102 West. Lows Monday night 69 to 76. Highs Tuesday 91 to 101.

South Texas — Partly cloudy and warm through Tuesday with scattered showers and thundershowers. Showers and thundershowers becoming more numerous Tuesday. Chance of some locally heavy rainfall coastal sections. Highs Monday and Tuesday 88 to 102. Low Monday night in the 70s.

West Texas — Sunny, hot and humid through Tuesday with widely scattered thunderstorms mainly northern Panhandle. Highs Monday and Tuesday 96 Panhandle to near 105 along the Rio Grande except low 90s mountains. Lows Monday night 68 north to 75 extreme south except near 60 mountains.

Upper Coast — A broad low pressure area in the southwestern Gulf of Mexico will continue to drift slowly northward through Tuesday.

Lower Coast — Mostly east winds 10 to 15 knots today through Tuesday. Seas 3 to 5 feet today. Winds and seas locally higher in scattered to numerous showers and thundershowers. Chance of a few squalls.

TUESDAY'S FORECAST calls for rain and showers in the Pacific Northwest and showers throughout the Midwest, Great Lakes, along the eastern coastline, in the Gulf states and in Texas, New Mexico and Colorado, according to the National Weather Service.

Galveston man jailed after shooting incident

TUPELO, Miss. (AP) — A Galveston, Texas, man has been released on bond following a shooting and beating which marred a weekend civil rights demonstration in Tupelo.

Police arrested Floyd W. Banks, 30, after he allegedly struck a man who is charged with firing a shotgun at demonstrators on Saturday.

Banks was released from jail Sunday after he posted a $10,000 property bond on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

Banks, a member of the International Committee Against Racism, was arrested after Daniel H. Brazil of Tupelo was struck with a sledge hammer handle Saturday, breaking his back.

minor accidents

A 1977 Chevrolet driven by Jack F. McAndrew of 2112 Zimmers and a 1974 Datsun driven by Jana Kaye Vaughn of 1453 Dogwood were involved in an accident in the 1500 block of West 23rd.

A vehicle driven by Raymond W. Bridwell of 615 N. Zimmers was backing in the 700 block of North Roberta and struck a parked vehicle.

A vehicle driven by Jesse E. Tollison of 308 N. Christy reportedly failed to yield right-of-way and struck a vehicle driven by Gordon S. Davis of 2300 Duncan.

A 1973 Buick driven by Orell Blankenship of McLean was southbound in the 600 block of North Hobart and was involved in a collision with a northbound 1972 Honda driven by Richard D. Jones, 18, of the Black Gold Motel at 1110 E. Frederic. Jones was taken by Metropolitan Ambulance to Highland General Hospital, where he was treated and released. Blankenship was cited for failure to yield right-of-way.

Terrorists kill Moslem businessman

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Two men knocked on the door of the house of a prominent Moslem businessman early Sunday and when he answered they shot him three times and killed him, authorities reported.

Interior Minister Hashem Sabaghian said Forghan, a terrorist commando group, left leaflets at the house claiming its members killed Haj Taghi Tarkhani, their third assassination since April.

Forghan uses Islamic and leftist terminology in its manifestos and claims Iran is moving toward a religious dictatorship under Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Moslem leader who organized the ouster of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in January.

Tarkhani, a philanthropist and anti-shah activist, founded Tehran's Ghobad Mosque. The mosque was a center of rebel activity during the shah's rule and Mehdi Bazargan — now the nation's prime minister — frequently spoke against the monarchy from its pulpit.

The official Pars news agency said the gunman rode up to Tarkhani's home in northern Tehran at 1 a.m. on motorcycles and rapped on the door.

Tarkhani, who was in his 50s, opened the door and was struck in the chest and left side, the agency reported. It said he was dead on arrival at Iranmehr Hospital.

Forghan claimed responsibility for the April 23 assassination of Gen. Mohammad Vali Gharani.

police report

Calvin Thomas Whatley of 1120 N. Starkweather reported damage to the locks on storage units at 1112 S. Hobart.

Dessie Howerton of 632 E. Denver reported the theft of her 1967 Chevrolet pickup truck from her residence. Police located the abandoned truck and returned it to Howerton several minutes after she reported the theft.

Lawanda Hunnicut of 1404 E. Browning reported the burglary of her residence. Food items were stolen.

Michael Ray Martin, 21, of 1205 E. Frederic was arrested in the 500 block of South Reid and charged with driving while intoxicated, resisting arrest and possession of a controlled substance. He was placed in the city jail.

Ronald Edward Morgan, 23, of Pampa was arrested at Jenkins Motor Co., 2309 Alcock, and placed in jail for possession of a controlled substance.

Three persons reportedly took $10 worth of gas from the 7-11 Store at 1066 N. Hobart and left without paying for it.

An employee of Allsup's Convenience Store at 309 N. Hobart reported two males entered the store and, while one distracted her, the other took two cash register keys from a drawer.

Police received a report of a burglary at Rod's Tee Room, 543 W. Brown. The back door had been broken in and eight cases of Coors beer were stolen.

David Lee Hopkins of 421 N. Zimmers reported the theft of his billfold while it was parked at Allsup's Convenience Store at 309 N. Hobart. The billfold contained credit cards, a driver's license and $50 in cash.

The People's Pharmacy

by Joe Graedon

For years acne has been the bane of many a teenager's existence. He or she was warned to give up chocolate, pizza, milkshakes and a lot of other goodies. The teenager was exhorted to scrub the face vigorously, and worse, there were insinuations that his or her sex life might be responsible.

Fortunately, we now know that most of these myths are false. Misunderstanding led to misinformation and mistreatment. While there is no cure, there have been some important advances in our knowledge and treatment of acne in the past several years, and research holds further promise that no one need suffer the scarring and emotional trauma of severe acne.

We asked our associate, dermatologist Stanley B. Levy, M.D., to bring us up to date on current acne treatment. First, he outlined how the problem gets started. Pimples usually begin during early adolescence when glands in the skin start making a fatty substance that collects around tiny invisible hairs. Oil and dead cells can clog up the pores of these hair follicles and lead to the formation of blemishes.

Adults are also susceptible and in recent years dermatologists have seen something called "post-pill" acne which seems to occur a few months after some women stop their birth control pills.

Because oil buildup is below the skin surface, excessive scrubbing does not get rid of it. Washing two or three times a day with mild soap is best. And forget the food restrictions. Diet has no effect on oil secretion in most people. Anything on the face which prevents it from "breathing" can make acne worse, though, even the chin strap on your motorcycle helmet, so it's wise to stay away from greasy hair dressing or oily makeup.

The treatment of acne is directed at unplugging the oil gland at the root of the problem. It takes about three months for an oil gland to plug up and rupture, so it takes persistence to clear the skin again. For most acne, treatment involves various combinations of three kinds of medications: benzoyl peroxide, retinoic acid (or tretinoin), and antibiotics.

For mild acne, putting benzoyl peroxide on the skin once or twice a day may be enough. It works by drying and peeling the skin and is available without prescription in five and 10 percent concentrations as Loroxide, Oxy-5, Persadox, Topex and Vanoxide.

For more serious cases, the dermatologist will probably prescribe retinoic acid (Retin-A). When this medication is applied to the skin it actually loosens existing plugs and prevents the formation of others. But too much can be irritating and, paradoxically, it may make the acne look worse for the first six weeks. A dramatic improvement seen after three or four months, though, should make the suffering worthwhile.

Some doctors are now using benzoyl peroxide and retinoic acid in combination, claiming that this treatment is more effective than using either medication alone. One word of caution: retinoic acid can react with ultraviolet rays to cause an exaggerated burn. Use a good sunscreen if you're planning to play in the sun.

People with more severe acne (or who have pimples on their backs or chests) often benefit from antibiotics. The traditional treatment is tetracycline by mouth and it usually works well. While relatively free of side effects, tetracycline can cause stomach upset and for women there is sometimes the problem of vaginal fungal infections.

One of the recent breakthroughs has been the use of antibiotic preparations which can be applied directly to the skin. This cuts down on side effects and is almost as effective as oral medicine. The only antibiotic of this type that is commercially available is called Topicycline (tetracycline). However, it may stain skin yellow and has the unique ability to make your face glow in the dark under the black light at the disco.

Many dermatologists are prescribing specially formulated Clindamycin or Erythromycin lotions which can be quite effective, without these interesting effects.

There is no longer any reason for the acne victim to suffer in silence. Old wives' tales and high-pressure hype won't make the nasty red blotches disappear. With patience, though, an effective treatment program can keep the zits at bay.

Fashion review winners named

Bobbie Skaggs, Teresa Woods and Sissy Gideon were named division winners of the Gray County 4-H Dress Review, held Saturday afternoon.

The three will compete July 17 in Amarillo at the District Fashion Revue.

Miss Skaggs, winner of the Senior division, was awarded a sewing machine, contributed by Sanders Sewing Center. She will be competing in Amarillo to advance to state competition.

Penny Miller was named Senior alternate and Rhonda Woods was named best model in the division.

Miss Woods was named winner of the Junior II division, with Renee Sprinkle declared as alternate and best model. She also was named Best Rookie of the whole revue.

Winner of the Junior I division was Miss Gideon: Michele Houston was chosen alternate. Jem Ann Rice was named best model in the division.

The 30 contestants were reviewed by a panel of five judges on overall appearance, clothing construction and record books.

First place winners received plaques, donated by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. Alternates were presented rosettes, contributed by the Gray County 4-H Council.

Dr. Lamb
by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have high cholesterol. It's 299. My doctor said no cholesterol food and come back in three months. I eat no eggs, butter, bacon or pork and very little milk - only in cooking - and very little ice cream. I went back and the cholesterol was up 40 points. What do you suggest? Incidentally, I'm 71 years old.

DEAR READER - Cholesterol tests fluctuate from one determination to the next. That's why we often advise having at least three before deciding what the person's cholesterol level usually is. Stress alone can cause some people's cholesterol level to go up.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-3 to give you the general dietary principles for a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. As you see from it, there are quite a few more things you need to do than you may have tried.

The first important point with any of the dietary programs to lower cholesterol is to reduce your total calorie intake. If a person is overweight, meaning excess fat under the skin, none of these diets will really do much good until an adequate amount of excess body fat has been lost. After the calories are controlled, the other dietary changes such as low cholesterol and low fat, particularly low saturated fat, are more apt to help.

You need milk. It's your major source of calcium and if you're not going to use it, you'll have to take some calcium tablets or you may start having softening of your bones (osteoporosis). You can use fortified skim milk without any major concern about either fat or cholesterol intake. The same applies to using uncreamed (low-fat) cottage cheese.

I don't know whether you're overweight or not but I would suggest that you start a daily walking program to improve your physical activity. Follow a diet that helps eliminate your obesity if you have any, eliminate the cholesterol, fats, and particularly the saturated fats, in your diet.

Some doctors don't worry very much about the cholesterol level past 65 years of age. I think that's a mistake. If you can adjust a person's cholesterol to the lower level, regardless of his age, he often does a little better. It's rarely too late to try to do something useful for people.

Many people don't realize that the amount of fat in your diet influences how much cholesterol is absorbed into your bloodstream. The fat in the mixed food bolus in your small intestine facilitates absorption of cholesterol. Even if you don't have any cholesterol in your food, it's formed by your liver and is passed with the bile into your small intestine. That cholesterol which your own body makes is then absorbed much more readily if you happen to be eating a lot of fat in your food.

Now in some cases the cholesterol is just not going to budge with dietary measures. After a truly satisfactory effort has been made by both the physician and the patient and it still stays up, then there are some medicines which can help.

Okay, so it's only two ads, but they've appeared within one day of each other and if the momentum holds, we could have a trend on our hands.

I'm talking about an ad to sell a house and another one seeking employment that have dared use a refreshing and unique approach to advertising: honesty.

The first ad was out of London and was placed by a man trying to sell his house. His ad read: "Two and a half bedroom box located in suburbia, miles from any pretty country yet lacking the cultural facilities of any decent sized town. Pocket handkerchief of garden which floods in winter, acid soil suited only to rhododendrons and thistles.

"It's convenient, expensive and dirty. The whole in terrible decay."

The second ad was placed by a woman newspaper executive who had had a hard day and decided to place an ad in the Job Wanted Female classification in Florida. She wrote:

"WANTED: EASY JOB: Educated, experienced woman wants what most people want - a high-paying job in an advisory role, three days a week with long lunch breaks, good benefits, including one-month vacations and a secretary. Does not do windows."

The possibility for honesty in advertising is unlimited. Wouldn't it be wonderful to see a husband embrace his wife, tweak her nose and say, "Honey, I don't know how you do it, taking care of the house, the six children, running an engineering firm, and serving on the Supreme Court bench," and she would look deeply into his face and smile, "I drink."

I told my husband what I'd really like to see is an ad under Used Cars that reads:

"We don't want to be your friend. We just want to sell you a car. We have the second best deal in town with no intention of matching another offer. For this week and for as many weeks as it takes to unload it, we have a four-door, undependable gas hog that needs brakes, tires and a mechanic for an owner. Has a lot of toys under the hood (also in the back seat and trunk) and has been owned by everyone in town. We're pushing this turkey because it makes our lot look shabby."

My husband winced. "Who would buy a car with a pitch like that?" "We did."

Dear Abby

Counseling can help heartsick

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 13 years to a beautiful woman. I recently learned that she has been having an affair with my boss. My close friends tell me that it has been common knowledge for some time. I never suspected a thing, but now many things fit together like a jigsaw puzzle. I've been sent out of town on business trips that could have been handled locally. And although we are not in his social circle, my boss has invited us to his country club and included us when no other employees were invited.

I am in no position to quit my job. I've considered divorce, but I am concerned about the effect it might have on our children. I am heartsick, depressed and confused. If I didn't love my children so much, I'd drive my car into a brick wall at 90 miles an hour.

Can you help me?

BETRAYED IN LOS ANGELES
DEAR BETRAYED: This is not the end of the world. If ever a person needed emotional support and objective professional counseling, you do.

I urge you to phone your local Suicide Prevention Center now. (They're listed in your phone book.) They offer individual and group therapy sessions to help you survive your depression and put your life back together again. Please call now. Write me after you've seen them. I care.

DEAR ABBY: We have two teenage sons. My husband opened a savings account for each of them when they were very young, and each year he puts several hundred dollars into their accounts, plus the money they receive for birthdays, Christmas, etc.

Our problem is trying to get the boys to earn money and save it on their own. What little they do earn they would fritter away on little treats, records and foolishness if their father didn't insist that half of every dollar earned must go into the bank. This gives them very little incentive to earn money. They say, "What for? Dad will only make us put it in the bank."

What to do?

CONCERNED MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: All children live for today. The future seems unreal to them. The "I-want-it-now" attitude is the hallmark of immaturity. Train your children to save. If they resent it, so what? When they're older they'll appreciate having a nest egg instead of a goose egg.

DEAR ABBY: Shortly after Christmas my wife bought a supply of Christmas cards at a greatly reduced price. Last night she put them in front of me and said, "Here, sign these: you aren't doing anything."

I got my pen out and started to sign the first card, then she suddenly pulled the cards away and said, "Better not. One of us might not be here next year, and I would look awfully foolish trying to explain how YOUR name got on the card!"

JOHN KELLOGG, FINDLAY, OHIO

DEAR JOHN: Thanks for a dandy day-brightener.

DEAR ABBY: My sister eloped. My mother insists that we brothers and sisters buy wedding gifts for her since she bought gifts for our weddings.

The problem is that the rest of us all had weddings which she attended, but since she ran off and got married and didn't have a wedding, we don't think we owe her any wedding present.

We have all agreed to abide by your decision.

WONDERING IN PITTSBURGH
DEAR WONDERING: A wedding gift is not a payoff for attending a wedding celebration. It is (or should be) a gesture of affection and good wishes from you to the newlyweds. Send gifts.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Invest for retirement, receive tax break through IRA

For the first time, it's possible for housewives -- and househusbands -- to receive a pension in their own name.

This is done through an Individual Retirement Account. Sometimes called an IRA, this government-authorized program allows individuals to invest for retirement and get tax benefits at the same time. Employees not covered by company retirement plans can contribute to an IRA on behalf of themselves and non-employed spouses. For such an account, the maximum yearly contribution is $1,750 or 15 percent of annual earnings, whichever is less.

All contributions to an IRA are deducted on your Federal income tax return, giving immediate savings. You don't have to pay taxes until you withdraw the money, normally after retirement when you'll probably be in a lower tax bracket. Dividends and other earnings won't be taxed either until they too are withdrawn. If you withdraw your contributions earlier than age 59 and one-half, however, for any reason other than disability, you'll have to pay a penalty tax.

Contributions to IRA plans may be put in trust funds, life insurance annuities, government retirement bonds or mutual funds. Mutual funds have different financial objectives and you can select a fund whose financial goals closely coincide with your own. In fact, with a mutual fund, you can aim for most any combination of safety, income or growth you wish.

A financial adviser, stockbroker, mutual fund representative or insurance agent can help you if you have questions about IRAs.

Sweepstakes benefit companies and winners

The million dollar question: Does anyone ever really win in those national contest sweepstakes?

Well, the truth is they better had! Because if there are no winners, or fewer winners than the sponsoring company says there will be, the only real loser is the promoter.

No company could afford to run a sweepstakes that was anything less than completely honest. Federal and state agencies and consumer groups carefully monitor contests.

Case in point: Reader's Digest has just awarded its millionth prize since initiating its Sweepstakes in 1962. The millionth winner, a North Little Rock, Ark., father of two, is $25,000 wealthier today.

Periodically, the Digest publishes partial lists of winners. Anyone can get a complete winners' list by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Reader's Digest, Pleasantville, N.Y. 10570.

By law, companies must offer the same chance to everyone. Beyond legalities, Reader's Digest policy has always been to be completely fair and above-board with its customers.

Why has Reader's Digest given away more than $15 million since 1962? Because the Sweepstakes has proven to be an effective method of getting people to read material, interest them in products, get them to try them.

An important point: magazine sweepstakes are not only good for companies using them. They also benefit readers, because the cost of selling by mail is cheaper than it might be through other techniques. And the greater the number of products a company can sell, the lower the cost.

Peanut butter is Mid-East favorite

Peanut butter is getting popular in the Middle East.

In the second year of a Georgia Farm Bureau exporting program, $120,000 worth of peanut butter has been shipped to the area.

That may not seem like much but, as program director Bob Marlowe says, "You have to remember that the man I sold the first 15 cases to didn't even know what the stuff was."

Marlowe said Arab governments liked peanut butter because of its high protein and low sugar content. And to help educate Arab consumers about its merits, the Farm Bureau has a Lebanese public relations firm coordinating promotion of the product.

Farmers battle 'monster' for prime land

By WAYNESLATER
Associated Press Writer

ONEIDA, Ill. (AP) — The monster is outside, moving against the sky.

"You can see it from here," said Keith King, swinging open the screen door. "It's destroying the best land in the world. This is top corn country and it'll never be the same again."

On the horizon, in the distance, rising up off a neighbor's strip-mined farm is the silhouette of an alien machine in search of coal. And it is digging some of the richest agricultural ground anywhere to get it.

The shovel outside King's window is 150 feet high and covers half a city block. It is a machine so mammoth it can scoop up a school bus in a stroke, a machine the Midland Coal Co. knows only by a number but which the farmers of Knox County call by name — "The Monster."

"It used to be far away," King said. "But the light shines through the windows at night now and it makes shadows on the walls when I climb the stairs."

No longer is Midland mining marginal land 20 miles away. The company has moved onto prime farmground, moving its lumbering shovel onto new sections in recent months, and King knows there is little he can do about it.

Coal companies have been strip mining in central Illinois since the 1930s, but only recently has Midland moved onto the flat black loam "amid the prairie winds of Knox County, Illinois, and the corn crops" as poet Carl Sandburg, a native, described the place.

Midland says it can restore the land, but the farmers don't believe it. Once the delicate soil of Knox County is disturbed, they claim, it will never again be as productive.

"They're ruining the wealth of this county, which is agriculture, for a one-time harvest," King said glumly.

It is a classic conflict: Food or energy, black land or black gold?

Earlier, there would have been no question which was more important, but these are energy-hungry times and the priorities have changed.

"That farmer that's ripping you because you're tearing up the land, he's going to be awful upset when he can't get natural gas or when they turn off the electric power because somebody can't mine coal or uranium," Jack Devere is saying in his office 35 miles away.

Devere, general manager of Midland's operations in central Illinois, is a veteran of the open copper mines of Arizona who came to Illinois five years ago. He is in charge of three mines on some 50,000 acres of land Midland owns or controls.

"Hey, I think Midland Coal is a darn good neighbor," he says. "Strip mining was bad. They did rape, pillage and plunder, but that has changed. I think the reclamation taking place in the last 10 years is dramatic."

Devere admits the firm has been able to grow only 70 bushels of corn per acre on its own reclaimed land, half the usual yield, but he says that should improve with time.

"There is no way to reclaim this land without doing irreparable harm to something that took hundreds of thousands of years to create," said Barry Weber, a commodities broker who owns with his family about 1,000 acres of prime Knox County farmland. "I think they are shortsighted, misdirected, selfish and are conspicuous consumers capitalizing on the greed of certain people."

In recent months, the battle has escalated to a modern-day range war. Communities have gone to court, sought regulations from local officials and jammed town meetings.

The Knox County Farm Bureau last week issued a statement condemning the mining operation, and several cities, including Oneida, have called for a moratorium until Midland proves it can restore the land.

The state, which earlier this year gave Midland permission to build a haulage road and begin mining another 1,000 acres, has called a public hearing later this month.

Midland's move onto prime farmland comes at a time when the nation is short of fuel and when Congress is passing legislation encouraging alternatives to oil as an energy source.

Illinois ranks fourth in the nation in coal production, much of it from the southern counties. The coal in central Illinois is medium sulfur coal found just below the surface in slender stratas.

On top are the tama and muscatine soils that blew off the glaciers millenniums ago and settled over the Midwest, creating extremely fertile land. Farmers like to brag that the land in Knox County has never had a crop failure, not even during the Dustbowl days.

Coal companies began buying up mineral rights after the turn of the century from farmers having hard times. "They got most of their land that way, offering maybe $125 an acre and $1 a year," King said. "That's the way the coal companies got a foothold here."

Strip mining's early, unregulated days have left a bitter legacy of unsightly spoil banks and eroded and abandoned pits in the area, but Devere says all that has changed.

"It won't be the same because we have torn it up," he admits. "But we will bring this land back to approximate yields it had before if we are given the time and a chance to do it."

The Pan American Games

The Pan American Games, now in the second week of competition, are the largest sporting event ever to take place in Puerto Rico. The Pan American Sports Congress started the games after World War II, to help promote friendship among the nations of the Western Hemisphere. The first Pan American Games took place in Buenos Aires, Argentina, in 1951. Since then, the games have been held every four years, usually during the summer before the Olympics. Events in which athletes compete at the Pan American Games include track, gymnastics, swimming, baseball, tennis, soccer and wrestling. The games in Puerto Rico are scheduled to continue through this week.

Oilman convicted in Florida scandal

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The prosecution phase of the Florida Power Corp.'s Daisy Chain scandal ended Friday with the conviction of another Texas oilman.

But appeals and civil proceedings are expected to drag on for years.

Ray Granlund was convicted Friday on charges of conspiring to defraud the utility of millions of dollars by illegally transferring oil shipments during the 1973 Arab embargo.

U.S. District Judge W. Terrell Hodges ordered a pre-sentence investigation for Granlund and did not set a date for sentencing.

Granlund became the fifth oilman to be convicted in connection with the scheme, which involved buying and selling oil through a succession of companies before selling it to Florida Power.

Granlund was indicted along with former Florida Power Chairman Angel Perez, who pleaded guilty and testified for the government in both trials. FPL Vice President Richard Raymond was acquitted of charges related to the scandal.

The other oilmen were given three-year prison terms. Hodges could impose a 35-year prison term and fines up to $16,000 on Granlund.

In January, Florida Power and the state agreed to settle a class action suit brought by the state on behalf of the company's customers.

But a federal judge rejected the settlement, which included a $6.5 million refund to Florida Power customers overcharged during the scandal.

Judge George C. Carr objected to a provision of the settlement that gave the utility the right to recover damages on behalf of its customers.

Continuing disputes over the settlement prompted one state official to estimate it could take months or years before customers received refunds. By that time, he said, many of the customers affected by the inflated rates would no longer be utility customers.

During final arguments in Granlund's trial, prosecutor Christian Hoyer told the jury the scheme of buying and selling oil through a succession of companies before it reached Florida Power was intended to make Granlund and other's involved rich men.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede o.c.l.

July 10, 1979

Many rewarding opportunities could come your way this coming year, but accompanying them are heavy responsibilities. Before taking on anything, be certain you are willing to pay the piper.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your worst enemy will be yourself today, because you're likely to be short on patience and long on temper. Relax. Don't take everything so seriously. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) When things start getting expensive, it's a mistake to go along with people just because you feel caught up in the action. Back out.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Competition is extra-tough today. If you're going after anything big, don't underestimate the opposition. Be prepared to battle hard.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's good to try hard, but sometimes when we want something too badly we actually stifle our natural abilities by overanalyzing and overreacting. Stay calm.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to tone down your intensity a shade or two today. If you push too hard you could completely alienate those who are on your side.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep your own counsel today. You don't like it when others interfere with your decision-making, so why should they like it when you do it to them?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Care must be taken today if you're attempting an undertaking where you lack necessary skills or dexterity. A serious mishap could occur.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today could mark the end of a friendship that's been a little testy of late. If you're trying hard to maintain the relationship, don't make any waves.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Count to 10 when dealing with your mate or sweetheart today. He or she is cranky too. A minor rift could be blown way out of proportion.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take extra pains not to react sarcastically or unbecomingly if one with whom you're working doesn't come up to your expectations. It will make matters worse.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) You might be a little too aggressive shopping today, and pick up more than you can afford. Credit purchases may be difficult to pay for later.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A self-serving attitude will go over like a lead balloon with your family today.

STEVE CANYON

By Milton Caniff

SKIPPER, YOU'RE THE BOSS, BUT DO YOU THINK YOU...
...DID RIGHT BY PUTTING CANYON, MINK, OLSON AND THE SICK GIRL ASHORE?
I DELIVERED CANYON AND MINK TO SAFE HARBOR/OLSON WAS INSUBORDINATE! THE GIRL WOULD HAVE ANGERS OUR ARAB OWNERS!
OF COURSE I DID RIGHT—AND I HATE MYSELF!
GOOD-BYE, COLONEL CANYON! IF YOU HAD BEEN PROUD TO BE A PROPER HUSBAND TO MY MOM...
... I WOULD HAVE BEEN PROUD TO SHAKE YOUR HAND!!

Reserve catcher propels Rangers to 4-3 victory

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A catcher on the same team with Jim Sundberg, John Ellis got a lot of bench duty the last two years with the Texas Rangers.

That all changed when Pat Corrales took over as manager for this season, to the misery of the Toronto Blue Jays, a victim of Ellis' three-run homer in the sixth that gave Texas a 4-3 victory Sunday night.

"He's one of the greatest offensive weapons in the American League. He's a professional hitter," Corrales says.

Ellis hit .419 for Texas in 1976 before breaking an ankle and Corrales said the 30-year-old native of New London, Conn., "was pretty much the forgotten man the next two years."

Ellis appeared in 49 games in 1977 and in only 34 games last year. He's been in 60 already this year, with half the season still to come.

One of Corrales' first acts was to make Ellis a player-coach and to insert him into the lineup as much as possible, either as designated hitter or at first base.

"I told him I wanted to really give him the opportunity to be used, and he's paid off. A lot of ballgames this year we've been a run or two behind with men on, and he's come up with a double or home run," Corrales said.

In the bottom of the sixth Sunday night, leading 3-1, Toronto had just added further frustration to the Rangers by pulling off their fourth double play.

But Richie Zisk walked to put runners on first and third, and Ellis hit a hanging breaking pitch off Balor Moore, 2-1, into the left field stands, but just foul. Moore then offered a changeup, and Ellis knocked it over the left field fence, this time in fair territory.

"I just barely got it up, just sneaked it over the fence," Ellis said.

It was Ellis' eighth homer of the year. His bat was hottest earlier in the season, when Texas won its first seven games. The win Sunday gave the Rangers a half-game lead in the American League West.

"I felt I hadn't gotten the opportunity I needed the last couple of years. Pat had a lot of faith in me and I responded. It has been an effort on my part to do the best I could, not for just the manager but for a friend I like and respect," Ellis said.

Steve Comer got the win for Texas, raising his record to 9-6. He gave up six hits in 8 2/3 innings. Sparky Lyle came in to get the final out and pick up his ninth save.

Al Woods doubled and scored on Rick Cerone's single for a 1-0 Toronto lead in the second, and Ellis got on by an error and scored on Eric Soderholm's single to tie it in the bottom of the inning.

Then in the sixth, Dan Ainge singled, moved up on a sacrifice and a fly and scored on Comer's wild pitch. Roy Howell walked and Rico Carty's double put Toronto ahead 3-1.

Toronto returns home today to open a homestand against Milwaukee, and Texas goes to Chicago to play the White Sox.

Non-playing Carew top vote getter in final all-star game tabulations

NEW YORK (AP) — Rod Carew topped the American League All-Star voting for the fourth time and became the only major leaguer to be elected in all 10 years of the fan balloting, according to the final tabulations announced today by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

However, the California Angels first baseman, who started the last three All-Star games at first and the previous six at second base, will be out of Manager Bob Lemon's AL lineup for the clash against the National League at Seattle's Kingdome June 17 because of ligament damage in his right thumb.

The replacement at first for Carew, who drew 3,997,081 votes, tops of any player in either league, will be Cecil Cooper of Milwaukee, who drew just over a million votes.

He will join shortstop Roy Smalley of the Minnesota Twins, catcher Darrell Porter, second baseman Frank White and third baseman George Brett of the Kansas City Royals and outfielders Jim Rice, Fred Lynn, and Carl Yastrzemski, all of the Boston Red Sox, in the starting lineup.

Smalley, whose major league-leading .362 average netted him 2,572,331 votes, will be making his first All-Star appearance. By beating New York Yankee Bucky Dent by over a half-million votes, Smalley became the AL's fifth different starting shortstop in five years.

Also elected for the first time were White and Porter, whose 2,046,505 votes ended the catching dominance shared by New York's Thurman Munson and Boston's Carlton Fisk.

White, a backup All-Star at short in last year's game, also became the fifth starter at his position in five seasons, beating out 1977 starter Willie Randolph of the Yankees by 190,127 votes.

Boston's starting outfield had been running 1-2-3 through virtually the entire voting period. At the wire, Rice just edged past Lynn, who had led the outfield voting until the final count. Reggie Jackson of New York finished less than 400,000 votes behind Yastrzemski, who will be making his 16th All-Star appearance. It will be the third time for Rice and the second for Lynn.

The National League starters, announced Sunday, are first baseman Steve Garvey and second baseman Davey Lopes of the Los Angeles Dodgers, shortstop Larry Bowa and third baseman Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies, catcher Ted Simmons of the St. Louis Cardinals and outfielders Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates, George Foster of the Cincinnati Reds and Dave Winfield of the San Diego Padres.

Schmidt was the top vote-getter in the NL with 3,165,546 votes.

Garvey won for the sixth consecutive year, claiming a 10,899-vote margin over Pete Rose of the Phils, who failed in his bid to win a starting spot at his fifth position.

Boosters to meet

There will be a meeting of the Harvesters Booster club tonight at 7:30 in the football field house. The purchase of a new activity bus for Pampa High School will be the main topic on the agenda.

Nelson takes Western crown

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Simplicity is not part of Larry Nelson's golf game.

He was a consistent money-maker in five years on the tour, but didn't score his first victory until this year's Inverrary.

It appeared Sunday he would have little trouble winning the Western Open. He had played steady golf for three days, and the man expected to be his biggest threat, Tom Watson, had fallen apart early in the final round.

After 16 holes, Nelson was four under par and led little-known Dan Pohl by a shot. But after run-ins with a bunker and a couple of trees on the 17th hole his lead had vanished with a double bogey. He finished with a final round 76, four over par.

Pohl bogeyed the last two holes, however, setting up another playoff for Nelson — this time with Ben Crenshaw, with a 71. Both were at 2-under-par 286. On the first playoff hole, the 381-yard 16th, Nelson hit a three-wood and a nine-iron to within about two feet of the hole and made a birdie after Crenshaw got a par four.

That gave Nelson the top prize of $54,000 in the $300,000 tournament on the par 72, 7,097-yard Butler National Golf Club course.

"I don't feel I'm mechanically any better than I was three or four years ago," said Nelson. "I feel I'm not making many mistakes."

Crenshaw came out of nowhere. He trailed by six strokes after the first round, by four after the second and by five after the third. And he was behind by three shots with only three holes left in the final round.

But his birdie on 16 and Nelson's double bogey erased that gap.

Ski jump mark set

TYLER, Texas (AP) — John Mondor soared 187 to a new world record and take first place at the MerCruiser International Ski Jump Classic at the Garden Valley Sports Resort near Tyler Sunday.

Mondor, 24, smashed the previous world record of 180 set by Wayne Grinditch at Callaway Gardens, Pine Mountain, Ga., in 1975.

Deena Brush of West Sacramento, Calif., tied the world's record in the women's division with a jump of 128 feet. That record was set by Linda Giddens in 1976.

Both records are pending approval by the American Water Ski Union.

Mondor, who won $6,100 in prize money, hails from Hollywood, Fla. His record-breaking jump came on his third attempt after Bob LaPoint reached 177 feet on his third try. LaPoint collected $3,400 and was followed by 16-year-old Sammy Duvall of Greenville, S.C., who went a career best 174 feet and won $2,000.

Miss Brush, 19, earned $3,400 for the two-day tournament. She was followed by defending champion Cindy Todd of Pierson, Fla., who pocketed $1,900.

At Pan Am Games

Fiery Knight ends argument in police station

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Bobby Knight survived another possible elimination bout and advanced with his American basketball team into the championship round as the United States forces continued to roll up impressive statistics Sunday in the VIII Pan American Games.

The 38-year-old Indiana University coach, known for his fiery temper and colorful dialogues with press, officials, fans and others within earshot, spent a few minutes down at a local police station here Sunday morning after skirmishing with an officer.

A U.S. Olympic Committee spokesman said Knight disagreed over who was to have access to the practice court, and the misunderstanding grew to the point it had to be moved downtown.

Officials said no charges were filed. Later Sunday, Knight was the picture of decorum on the bench as the U.S. team pummeled Canada, 97-76, to move within four games of a gold medal.

Knight, making personal headlines here for at least the third time, had no comment.

Except for an occasional parry and thrust with newsmen, the explosive Knight had been dormant since the start of the Games.

He was ejected from the opening game for vehemently arguing a charging call in a 35-point rout. The next day, Knight was called before the Games' Technical Committee and admonished for his on-court behavior.

Meanwhile, on the field of sport, Americans began the second and final week of competition with 13 more gold medals, including the last four in swimming. Americans took all but one gold in a week of swimming activity, posting Pan Am records in each victory and two world marks.

In the rowing competition, which also ended Sunday, the Americans were not so bountifully blessed. They won only one of eight events, but it was the most prestigious one, the Varsity Eights.

The "Pennsylvania Elite Crew" — so named despite only two members living in Pennsylvania and one Canadian resident — beat the runners-up from Canada by almost seven seconds.

In the second day of track and field, the United States competitors accomplished about what was expected of them, winning five of the day's six gold medals awarded, bringing their totals in the sport over two days to seven golds in 11 events.

The American winners Sunday in track and field were Evelyn Ashford, Los Angeles, in the women's 100-meter dash; James Walker, of Auburn University, men's 400-meter hurdles; Duncan Atwood, Seattle, javelin; Henry March, Eugene, Ore., 3,000-meter steeplechase, and Kathy McMillan, Raeford, N.C., women's long jump.

Cuban Silvio Leonard beat Harvey Gance, Phenix City, Ala., in the men's 100-meter final with a time of 10.13 seconds, .01 second slower than Gance ran for a Games record Saturday in his qualifying heat.

"Silvio had to run a perfect race to beat me — and he did," Gance said.

It took a perfect race, too, for Cynthia Woodhead, Riverside, Calif., to win her fifth personal gold medal in these hemispheric Olympics. The 15-year-old beat teammate Jill Sterkel, Hacienda Heights, Calif., a three-gold winner, by .02 seconds in the 100-meter freestyle.

In the other three events, it was David McCagg, Fort Myers Beach, Fla., in the men's 100-meter freestyle; Kim Linehan, Sarasota, Fla., in the women's 800 freestyle, and the men's 400-meter medley relay team of which McCagg was also a member.

"In the last 25 meters, I was thinking about the five golds," Woodhead said. "I didn't want to not get them after everyone talked about it so much."

In women's basketball, the U.S. team crushed Bolivia, 85-35, to move within three games of a gold medal. Basketball competition ends Friday.

Other U.S. golds Sunday came in individual dressage for Hilda Gurney, Woodland Hills, Calif.; the eight-member women's synchronized swimming team, and the U.S. water polo squad which beat Cuba, 8-6.

The U.S. baseball team defeated Puerto Rico 4-2 and the two American softball squads also won, the men beating Panama 6-0 and the women taking Bermuda 10-0.

Entering today's busy slate of activity, the United States had 73 golds and 167 medals overall. Next was Cuba with 43 golds, 87 overall, followed by Canada at 19 and 94 total.

Stacy claims title after sudden death

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Hollis Stacy wasn't satisfied with her golf game last week as she looked ahead to her bid for an unprecedented third consecutive U.S. Women's Open crown.

So the 25-year-old Georgian turned a last minute decision into her sixth pro victory.

"I wasn't happy with the way my game was. It was kind of on the borderline of playing really well," Stacy said Sunday after winning a three-way sudden death playoff with Judy Rankin and Laura Baugh in a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

"I felt I needed a win going into the Open," said Stacy, who decided to compete here after earlier saying she'd skip the tournament.

Stacy announced her decision to LPGA officials July 1 and it paid off as she carded rounds of 74-67-72 for a 3-under 213 at the 6,044 yard, par-72 Harbour Trees Golf Club course.

"I was hitting the ball well. But my ball was going around the edge... everywhere but in the hole," said Stacy about her game before she earned $15,000 here. Stacy goes into the Open at Fairfield, Conn. about 20 pounds lighter than when she won it for the second time in Indianapolis last July.

"It just seems more practical," she said about weighing less.

Stacy parred the second extra hole and Baugh, winless after seven years on the tour, took a bogey on the same hole.

Rankin, a winner here in 1977, was eliminated on the first extra hole when her 12-foot putt went past it.

"I don't feel that bad about losing," said Baugh, "although naturally I would have loved to win.

Schmidt moving to top of NL batting list

By the Associated Press Suddenly, Mike Schmidt's bat is back on the launching pad.

Philadelphia's powerful third baseman, all but overshadowed this season by Chicago's Dave Kingman, hit his 28th homer of the season Sunday — one shy of Kingman's league-leading figure — and his fifth in three games.

The two-run blast in the sixth inning enabled the Phillies to tie San Francisco. Then Pete Rose's single in the seventh broke the tie and led the way to a 5-3 victory over the Giants.

Schmidt's five homers in three games — three Saturday — came within one of the record of six he shares with Tony Lazzeri, Gus Zernial, Lee May, Frank Thomas and Ralph Kiner.

The three in Saturday night's 8-6 loss were nice, he said, but the one on Sunday was nicer because it helped the Phillies win.

"It was a sinker out over the plate, knee-high, just what I was looking for. I did just what I wanted to do with it."

Cubs 10, Astros 0

The Cubs did very nicely without Kingman's potent bat, unleashing a 17-hit attack against the Astros, whose West Division lead over Cincinnati was cut to seven games as they lost their third straight.

Ivan DeJesus, with a three-run homer, and Ted Sizemore, with four hits, led Chicago, which pulled within 5 1/2 games of first-place Montreal in the East.

Dodgers 8, Expos 6

The Dodgers' batters have, in their recent slump, been guilty of non-support of their pitchers. So Rick Sutcliffe took matters into his own hands against Montreal, hitting a three-run double.

But the rest of the bats weren't exactly silent. Dave Lopes and Bill Russell homered to lead a ### 12-hit assault.

Braves 6, Cardinals 5 Jerry Royster, who had a two-run single in Atlanta's four-run second inning, delivered his third run with a ninth-inning single to beat St. Louis and give the Braves their eighth victory in 10 games.

Gary Matthews seventh-inning homer had helped Atlanta build a 5-1 lead, but St. Louis scored once in the eighth and tied it with three in the ninth — two on Garry Templeton's home run.

Reds 4-1, Pirates 2-2

Dan Driessen unloaded a three-run homer in the fourth inning of the first game and Cincinnati pitcher Fred Norman helped his own cause with an RBI single.

Dave Parker hit his 15th homer for the Pirates in the opener. That didn't change things — but Willie Stargell's 15th of the year won the nightcap for Pittsburgh.

Padres 5-1, Mets 3-4

Doug Flynn's three-run double supported the combined four-hitter by Andy Hassler and Tom Hausman to give the Mets a victory in the second game of their doubleheader.

The Padres won the first one thanks to Gaylord Perry's eight-hitter — his 27th career victory — and Dave Winfield's two-run single in the third inning that wiped out New York's 3-2 lead.

Red Sox 8, Mariners 2

Boston right-hander Steve Renko had what he called "location" on his pitches to Seattle batters.

Because Mariners right-hander Byron McLaughlin didn't have it, and because Red Sox batters placed four of his pitches behind the outfield fences at the Kingdome Sunday night, McLaughlin has a new ### location of his own: the bullpen.

"Byron wasn't locating his fastball the way he has been," said Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson after the Red Sox clubbed four home runs — two by Carlton Fisk — in their 8-2 rout of the Mariners.

The triumph kept the Red Sox within two games of the Baltimore Orioles, who snapped a five-game losing streak with a 3-2 triumph over the California Angels.

Orioles 3, Angels 2

John Lowenstein and Billy Smith homered in the three-run seventh that carried Baltimore past California. Scott McGregor, Sammy Stewart and Don Stanhouse held the Angels to five hits.

Orioles catcher Rick Dempsey, whose two errors led to a pair of unearned Angels runs in the sixth, caught Gary Roenicke's throw and tagged out Brian Downing at the plate for the game's final out.

Brewers 5-3, Tigers 4-1

Ben Oglivie set a pair of single-game club records with three home runs and 12 total bases in the opener, then contributed an RBI double in the two-run fourth that completed the Milwaukee sweep.

He finished the twinbill with four hits in six trips to the plate, three runs scored and five runs batted in.

Yankees 2, A's 0

Rickey Henderson's

fourth-inning single gave Oakland its only baserunner of the day as the 38-year-old Tiant pitched the third one-hitter of his career.

Both the others came while he was with the Indians: in 1965 against the Washington Senators, and in 1968 — against the Yankees.

Tiant, 6-3, retired the last 18 batters he faced in recording his 47th career shutout.

White Sox 4, Royals 2-1

Greg Pryor's second-inning homer was the winning run as Chicago handed Kansas City its eighth loss in 10 games.

Indians 5-2, Twins 4-7 Cleveland pinch-runner Dave Rosello scored the winning run in the opener when Minnesota reliever Mike Marshall, trying for a force play at third in the bottom of the ninth, threw the ball away. Dave Goltz salvaged a split for the Twins by pitching a six-hitter.

Pokes begin two-a-day drills

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The 85 rookies and young veterans at Dallas Cowboy camp here start twice-daily practices in full uniform today in the fourth day of training camp.

Defensive end Larry Bethea was expected back for today's practice after an illness forced him to leave the field early during a two-hour, full-pad workout Sunday.

Betha, a one-year veteran, is being given first crack at "Too Tall" Jones' starting position.

Veteran quarterbacks, receivers, running backs and centers report to camp on the California Lutheran campus Friday. The remainder of last year's National Football Conference champion squad reports July 16.

Rookie free agent Wade Manning, a defensive back from Ohio State, returned to practice Sunday after missing Saturday's opening light workout with a reaction from an insect bite.

The Cowboy's first preseason game will be July 28 against the Oakland Raiders at the Pro-Football Hall of Fame Game in Canton, Ohio.

The first home game is Aug. 4 against Denver in the annual Salesman Club charity contest.

JULIE BROWN of Northridge, California finishes just ahead of Ann Mackie - Morelli of Vancouver, Canada in the women's 800-meter run at the Pan American Games in San Juan Sunday night. Chile's Alejandra Ramos (441) pulled in third. (AP Laser photo)
