Officials discuss board

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

The Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees and the City of Pampa Commission met in a joint executive session at Carver Center Board Conference Room Thursday evening.

The reason for the meeting, according to the notice issued regarding the closed session, was to discuss the representatives to serve on the Gray County Appraisal District Board of Directors.

This board is stipulated by Senate Bill 621 which states the district is responsible for appraising property in the district for ad valorem tax purposes of the state and of each taxing unit other than the county that imposes ad valorem taxes on property in the district.

S. B. 621 originally calls for a five-man board. However, in a meeting at Lefors Tuesday night, local taxing entities presented a resolution, as provided for in Section 6.03, subsection (1), to change the number of board members and the method of selecting them. The entities include, Lefors Independent School District and City of Lefors, City of McLean, Alanreed School District, and Grandview-Hopkins School District. These tax units have already voted "for" the resolution.

McLean Independent School District, according to Carl Dwyer, Superintendent, will meet Monday night to vote on the matter.

Should McLean ISD vote "for", it will constitute three-fourths of the taxing units, and the resolution will automatically pass. This will give Pampa three members on the board, and four members from the other areas.

In a telephone conversation this morning, Darville Orr, President of the Pampa ISD Board of Trustees, stated the board has tentatively set Thursday morning for a special short session. They intend to act upon the resolution at that time.

Pope to hold unprecedented meeting with bishops

CHICAGO (AP) — Pope John Paul II, the lush bounty and green fields of "God's nature" behind him, was back in the big city today for a Mass with his beloved Poles and an unprecedented meeting with the bishops of the troubled U.S. church.

After a serene afternoon on the Iowa prairie Thursday, the pontiff ended the busiest day of a punishing U.S. tour in this most Polish of American cities, where he repeated his calls for celibacy and obedience by those in church vocations.

"No matter what others may contend, or the world may believe, your promises to observe the evangelical counsels have not shackled your freedoms," he said to applause from a gathering of religious brothers, unordained men who take priestly vows. "You are not less free because you are obedient and you are not less loving because of your celibacy," he said.

The leader of the world's 700 million Catholics today was to celebrate Mass in Polish in a playground outside a small neighborhood church.

Later he confers with most of the 250 active U.S. bishops. A pope has never held such a special meeting with the entire U.S. hierarchy.

"Apparently, he just wants to meet with his brother bishops," said Archbishop James Roach of Minneapolis, vice president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. "I haven't a clue what he's going to discuss with us."

The American church is one of the most restive in Catholicism — under question are church policies on birth control, celibacy, and ordination of women, and Mass attendance continues to drop sharply.

Scheduled for later today was a papal Mass at Grant Park — a service expected to draw a million or more persons. Chicago is the nation's largest diocese, with more than 2.4 million Catholics, almost one million of them people of Polish descent.

After leaving Philadelphia, John Paul made a four-hour stopover in rural Iowa Thursday under an Indian summer sky, celebrating Mass for a huge and hushed crowd on grassland outside Des Moines.

On the ridges of the hills surrounding an altar built of weathered barn boards, autumn hues tinted the trees. A dog barked from somewhere among the barns and silos and overhead swept a flight of birds.

"All good gifts," a choir sang from the Broadway musical, "Godspell." A band of Indians in native dress and a group of Amish were among the 350,000 who turned out from the predominantly Protestant area.

It was the feast day of St. Francis, a 12th-century saint known as a lover of animals and the rural life, a reformer who founded a worldwide religious order.

"Conserve the land well, so that your children's children and generations after them will inherit an even richer land than was entrusted to you," the pope told the throng.

"Be generous," he said, so that the earth's bounty "is shared fairly, you have the potential to provide food for millions who have nothing to eat."

Earlier, the pontiff stopped at a remote country church, St. Patrick's, on a gravel road 15 miles from Des Moines, praying with its 205 parishioners and telling them to be thankful for their simple lives.

"On your farms, you are close to God's nature," he said.

The pope's firm stand on church vocational codes, taken amid considerable pressure for increased flexibility, emerged in Philadelphia when he insisted that the vows of celibacy are for life and that women should not be admitted to the priesthood.

He returned to the theme of obedience and discipline at St. Peter's "Church of the Loop" in Chicago, telling the brothers their adherence to disciplines "accentuates your human dignity, liberates the human heart, and causes your spirit to burn with undivided love for Christ."

There are about 8,000 such unordained religious brothers in the United States, most serving as teachers and social workers.

The fast-moving, 59-year-old pontiff drew huge cheering crowds along Chicago's streets Thursday night as he traveled by motorcade to a welcoming salute at Holy Name Cathedral and later to St. Peter's.

Door opens for Amtrak changes

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A federal judge has opened the way for Amtrak to eliminate three of its money-losing trains, but he also scolded the passenger railway for providing only "bobtail" service in complying with his restraining order.

Judge Frank Theis of U.S. District Court in Wichita said the Amtrak Reorganization Act of 1979, which was signed by President Carter a day after Theis issued the restraining order, undermined the suit.

"I'm satisfied that the plaintiff's best, last chance went out the window with Congress' action," Theis said.

Theis said his restraining order will lapse at 6 p.m. CDT today, and attorneys for the state of Kansas, which brought the suit, said they planned to seek an extension of the order from the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

The trains affected are the Lone Star from Chicago to Houston, the North Coast Hiawatha from Chicago to Seattle and the Floridian from Chicago to Miami. Those trains, along with two others not mentioned in Theis' order, were set for elimination last Monday.

Amtrak's attorney indicated in court Thursday that the railway will seek reimbursement for the losses it has incurred since the three lines were scheduled to be scrapped Monday. Amtrak has said it costs $150,000 a day to operate the lines, and ridership this week has been low.

The order issued Thursday requires Amtrak to continue operating the three trains to their scheduled destination after departure Friday.

Amtrak said passengers holding unreserved tickets on one of the three trains would have their fares refunded, but the railway said the number of passengers affected "is expected to be minimal."

If Theis' order is upheld, Amtrak said, its Lone Star would make a final run in both directions today, and the northbound Floridian would operate today. But the southbound Floridian, scheduled to depart at 9:30 p.m., and the North Coast Hiawatha would not operate.

The federal court suit was filed by Kansas Attorney General Robert Stephan, who claimed the Department of Transportation and Amtrak did not hold the required public hearings or file environmental impact statements before deciding to eliminate the Lone Star.

Later, the state of Minnesota, seeking continuation of the North Coast Hiawatha, and metropolitan Nashville, Tenn., which sought to block elimination of the Floridian, joined the suit.

"What had been argued as a flawed administrative action of DOT, now has been adopted by an act of legislation," Theis noted in issuing the order Thursday. "It was apparent at the initial hearing that the policy adopted to discontinue the trains was probably erroneous, and as such reviewable by court action," he said. However, "once Congress has specifically spoken as to national railroad transportation policy, the courts are bound," he said.

Kansas Gov. John Carlin called the elimination of the Lone Star "a step backward" for passenger rail service, and he blamed Congress. "I regret, but fully understand Judge Theis' action," Carlin told The Associated Press. "This is truly unfortunate for our nation as a whole."

Although Theis criticized the way Amtrak had complied with his original order, he declined to take any action against the railway.

Theis said he "didn't intend for bobtail service" to be instituted after last week's order. He said he was concerned that some services on the trains had been combined or curtailed.

"I don't know whether I detect a spirit of arrogance from the Amtrak people in that regard or not," the judge said.

Bill Erkelenz, Amtrak's attorney, said the railway thought the order was intended solely to "restrain Amtrak from discontinuing these routes."

This called Amtrak's failure to comply with the order "an oversight," and added: "I don't see any purpose that could be served by exercising contempt powers at this point."

Unemployment rate edges down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate edged down from 6 percent to 5.8 percent in September, defying government forecasts of higher joblessness because of an economic recession.

The Labor Department reported today that virtually the entire drop in unemployment since August — about 164,000 persons — occurred among adult women, particularly married women.

The jobless rate had jumped in August from 5.7 percent to 6 percent, the highest in a year. Carter administration economists said that sharp rise marked the start of a deteriorating job market triggered by an economic slowdown.

Another rise in unemployment had been predicted for September. However, the latest figures cast doubt on whether the weakening economy has begun to exact a harsh toll on American workers. Although employment growth has slowed during the past six months, the jobless rate has remained relatively stable.

The unemployment rate has fluctuated between 5.6 percent and 6 percent of the labor force since August 1978.

The administration is still predicting the rate will climb to about 6.5 percent by the end of the year and reach 7 percent in 1980.

Each rise of one-tenth of a percentage point in the rate means 103,000 more jobless persons.

The decline in unemployment was a welcome development for an economy that has been battered by unchecked inflation. The Labor Department reported Thursday that wholesale prices in September rose 1.4 percent — the largest monthly increase in nearly five years.

The Labor Department said total employment during September grew by an unusually robust 610,000 jobs, the largest monthly increase since June 1978. The gain followed a decline of 310,000 jobs in August.

The department said the latest increase in jobs took place primarily among teen-agers and women.

Total employment in September stood at 97.5 million, while the number of unemployed persons was 5,985,000.

Atlanta gunman releases hostage

ATLANTA (AP) — A young gunman released his female hostage from the executive office of a downtown luxury hotel today after a 20-hour standoff with police. The woman appeared to be unharmed.

The gunman did not emerge immediately after the hotel secretary was released. Police sharpshooters maintained their vigil outside the one-story wing of the Hyatt Regency Hotel, where the office is housed.

A pathway to the front door was cordoned off and reporters were ordered away from the front of the Peachtree Street hotel shortly before the woman's release.

The hostage — Donna Craig, 30, secretary to the hotel manager — was smiling as police whisked her into another nearby office.

The standoff began at 2:40 p.m. Thursday when a well dressed young man walked into the office of the manager at the Hyatt Regency and demanded $20,000 in cash.

He took manager Ed Rabun and Mrs. Craig as hostages but later released Rabun with orders to get the money. Rabun called authorities and police sharpshooters surrounded the luxury hotel on Peachtree Street.

This morning, police spokesman Angelo Fuster said the gunman "has slowed down some, as everybody has. He has remained calm. He's somewhat tired."

Fuster said the strategy was to "keep cool, keep calm and talk."

The gunman twice talked about getting food into the glass-walled office, but dropped that subject, officers said. No food was delivered. Fuster said the gunman had identified himself only as "T" to police.

Scores of officers ringed the 24-story deluxe hotel and mingled with guests in the lobby adjacent to the first-floor executive offices.

"We plan to wait him out all the way," police Major W.W. Holley said Thursday night. "We want to get this over without harm to either party."

Major B.F. Marler said police had received "multiple assurances" from the gunman that Mrs. Craig would not be harmed.

Cops to be resentenced for crime

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals has rejected the suspended sentences given three former Houston policemen convicted of violating the civil rights of a Mexican-American who drowned while in their custody.

Hispanic leaders, who raised a storm of protest over the 1977 death of Joe Campos Torres, applauded the federal panel's order that U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling resentence the three officers. But some doubted that Sterling would impose harsher sentences on Terry Denison, 27, Stephen Orlando, 22, and Joseph Janish, 22.

Sterling sentenced the officers in March 1978 to one year in prison for striking and assaulting Campos Torres, but gave them 10-year suspended sentences and five years probation on a federal charge alleging a felony conspiracy to violate civil rights that resulted in death.

The Justice Department, contending the law prohibits probation in crimes that have a maximum sentence of life imprisonment, appealed the sentences.

At the sentencing, Sterling said Campos Torres' death was a "situational offense" the defendants would never face again. In a 1978 memorandum, he said the appeal was "an almost intolerable attempt to interfere with the independence of the court."

Many Mexican-Americans charged Campos Torres' death was symptomatic of racial bias on the part of police, and the publicity resulted in creation of the first Houston police internal affairs division, which investigates citizen complaints against officers.

The body of the 21-year-old construction worker was found in Buffalo Bayou near police headquarters on May 8, 1977, three days after he had been arrested in a bar disturbance.

The key prosecution witness, rookie policeman Carlless E. Elliott, said Campos Torres was first taken to an isolated area and slapped around by officers, then taken to jail. He said authorities at the jail told police to take the prisoner to a hospital, but instead Campos Torres was taken to the bayou.

In a statement, Janish said Campos Torres jumped or fell off a 17-foot embankment into the bayou after "jerked away" from Denison, who was holding him. Janish testified that after Campos Torres hit the water, "he had no trouble swimming."

"It (Thursday's ruling) certainly has restored some of the integrity of the federal court and restored some of the community's faith," said Johnny Mata, regional director of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Mata said he hopes Sterling "follows the proper judgment" in resentencing the three men on their felony civil rights convictions, but he doubted that their punishment would be stricter.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - they're called Enterprise Zones, and they offer the prospect of providing an innovative and workable solution to many of the nation's most pervasive and persistent domestic problems. The concept is being promoted by conservatives who argue, with considerable justification, that their approach deserves a chance to be tested because the liberals' strategy for combating urban blight has been a failure. In too many of the major cities of the Northeast and Midwest - St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit and New York offer the most notable examples - decay continues unabated despite billions of dollars in federal, state and local aid pumped into depressed areas throughout the 1960s and 1970s. "Cities which were well off in 1960 have stayed that way, while cities with problems in 1960 continue to have them," admits Robert C. Embry Jr., an assistant secretary with the Department of Housing and Urban Development. "Indeed, cities which in 1960 were experiencing severe distress conditions have even more severe problems now," adds Embry, suggesting that continued infusions of government financing may involve only throwing good money after bad. The new, highly unconventional but potentially beneficial approach involves designating the most depressed sectors of the big cities as Enterprise Zones, where both the government's aid programs and its restrictions would be suspended for the duration of a multi-year test.

According to the Washington-based Heritage Foundation, the experiments could involve various combinations of the following elements:

-A "free port" would be established, allowing all goods to be imported, exported and sold on a duty-free basis.

-Individuals who choose to live in the zone would pay little or no taxes but would be eligible for only minimal social benefits. Unemployment compensation, welfare programs and perhaps even Social Security would be eliminated.

-Wage and price restrictions, zoning laws and rent controls would not apply in the Enterprise Zone. On the other hand, companies there would be ineligible to receive subsidies, grants, loans and all other forms of government assistance.

-Minimum-wage laws and employment protection might also be suspended. Unions could be allowed to organize, but closed shop and agency shop arrangements would be prohibited.

-Both businesses and residents would receive a reduction of, if not an exemption from, property taxes. But they would sacrifice many of the amenities available to others.

Fundamental laws affecting child labor, pollution, health and safety would be enforced. Similarly, the local government would continue to furnish basic services such as police and fire protection.

For workers, the Enterprise Zone could present a unique opportunity for employment and advancement, with a premium placed on inspiration and perspiration.

For entrepreneurs, the concept would eliminate many of the government regulations, controls and restrictions so intensely disliked by business leaders.

The idea already has generated considerable support in Great Britain, where its enthusiastic advocates include Sir Geoffrey Howe, chancellor of the exchequer and the Conservative party's leading spokesman on economic affairs.

Successive governments have introduced bill after bill and shuffled the same amount of money from one new, fashionably named urban program to another," notes Howe. "But all attempts at reform seem only to multiply the bureaucracy."

Another promoter of the innovation is Prof. Peter Hall, a member of the faculty at Britain's Reading University - and a socialist who candidly acknowledges that the concept is "based on fairly shameless free enterprise."

On both sides of the Atlantic, the success or failure of both businesses and their employees would be closely tied to incentive, innovation, creativity and personal commitment. It's a concept worth exploring.

Private schools win an important round

When the Congress re-convened recently after its month-long August recess, a good thing happened. This was unusual, for it has come to pass that when the Congress is in session the people of the country - at least those who pay the government's bills - feel a bit nervous and are afraid to look at the papers in the mornings lest they are made shockingly aware of what else their lawmakers are doing to them now.

But in this instance, we repeat, something good happened, and it should be noted that both the Texas senators participated for the better.

In one of its first actions after the recess, the Senate voted to retain language in the Treasury-IRS appropriations bill blocking the Carter Administration from implementing proposed IRS regulations threatening the tax exempt and tax-deductible status of thousands of private and parochial schools.

The House of Representatives already had passed the same language - before the recess - and the Senate's majority action (54 to 31) was the final step needed to assure that the private schools will not be unfairly harassed by the IRS during the coming fiscal year.

The defeated IRS regulations were designed in theory to deny tax relief to the so-called "segregation academies" founded for the sole purpose of excluding blacks. But, the fact is the proposed ruling, both as originally published on Aug. 22, 1978 and amended this year, would have endangered the tax status of schools in all parts of the country, the creation of which had nothing at all to do with the racial issue and which actually welcome minorities.

The proposed ruling quite arbitrarily asserted that schools should be presumed guilty of racial discrimination until proven innocent because they fail to meet a quota of minority enrollment, and because they were either founded or substantially expanded at about the time that public-school desegregation plans were being effected in the same communities.

In that light, such so-called "reviewable" schools would then be compelled to meet an array of costly affirmative-action requirements, or else lose their tax-exempt status and their right to receive tax-deductible contributions, the lifeblood of many such schools. Human Events magazine reported in this week's edition.

In an effort to put an end to the regulations, the House adopted, in July, an amendment by Reps. Robert Dornan of California, Larry McDonald of Georgia and Phil Crane of Illinois, forbidding the use of any appropriated funds to implement the proposed procedures or "parts thereof."

But liberal Senate lawmakers were pressured by the Carter Administration and such left-wing groups as the big teacher-union, the National Education Association and the American Civil Liberties Union, and under the leadership of Sen. Jacob Javits of New York they moved to strike the Dornan language from the Senate bill. The move, if successful, would have put the burden of proving their innocence back on the private schools.

Then, the good thing happened. When the Senate voted, the Javits move was defeated, and in essence the private schools were saved from what could have been some oppressive harassment by the IRS. Both Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen (Democrat) and John Tower (Republican) of Texas voted on the side of the private and parochial schools. Not only did the majority reject Javits proposal, but the next day they agreed to an amendment by Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina stating that no funds could be used "to formulate or carry out any rule, policy, procedure, guideline, regulation, standard or measure which would cause the loss of tax-exempt status to private, religious or church-operated schools...unless in effect prior to Aug. 22, 1978." It was adopted 47-43. Thus a threatened freedom was preserved.

No consent

Columnist Richard Reeves reported yesterday on a somewhat weird occurrence - the Internal Revenue Service publicly admitting for the first time that people (gasp, cough) actually cheat on their taxes!

This admission, according to Reeves, represents a breakthrough of sorts in that it dispels the supposedly prevailing myth that most folks skate right along with the system, honestly.

According to IRS officials, between $19 billion and $26 billion evolved a kind of underground economy, doing such things as offering discounts on their products or services if they are paid for in cash. This is illegal, of course, and we would never recommend anybody do anything that could end up costing them money in penalties, or, even worse, land them in the clink.

But we absolutely sympathize with people who are doing something about the theft. Their actions are born of the irrefutable instinct to survive.

Government not only steals from people when it taxes, it puts a damper on any effort at saving. Inflation - caused by government's senseless ballooning of the money supply - literally erases the interest one earns on savings.

There is no question but that government itself is to blame for the taxpayer insurrection. Reeves says it is a revolt against a government more and more perceived as unfair, greedy, wasteful and stupid. Those are superb adjectives, Richard.

However, we must part company with Reeves on the main thesis of his column. He predicts, probably accurately, that the government will launch an all-out assault on these kinds of tax-evaders, and that in response, the evaders will become ever more devious. Reeves concludes: "The cycle - that battle of wits - could be endless. The United States will be a poorer place, not in the loss of dollars, but in loss of the consent of the governed."

Reeves simply fails to take into consideration those of us who never consented to anything in the first place.

Who's in charge

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON - Poor Secretary of State Cy Vance. He doesn't have anything to do any more since everyone else seems to be handling our foreign policy.

He was in his office last week and asked his administrative assistant, "How are the Middle East negotiations going these days?"

"We have no idea. They are being handled out of Atlanta by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. They promised to call us if there was a break with Arafat."

"Any news on a cease-fire in Lebanon?"

"We're waiting for Rev. Jesse Jackson to get back from his fact-finding tour of the area. There is no sense in us getting into it if he doesn't approve of the terms."

"What about the Soviet troops in Cuba?"

"Sen. Church of Idaho and Sen. Stone of Florida have taken over that one. They're dealing directly with the President. I called the White House this morning and they put me on hold."

"Okay, brief me on what's happening in Vietnam."

"As you know that's Jane Fonda's area. She wants to recognize Vietnam now, but Joan Baez doesn't want to until some effort is made to solve the plight of the boat people. We can't seem to get the two of them to agree on what our policy should be."

"Have we taken a position on this?"

"We're tilting toward Joan Baez, but I don't think we should go public with it as there is no reason to get Jane Fonda upset. It will just harden her attitude and make it more difficult to come to an accommodation with her."

"Who is watching the Rhodesia situation?"

"Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina. He sent his aides over to London for the talks which our people, incidentally, couldn't get into. Helms wants the United States to lift our embargo on Rhodesia immediately. Andy Young disagrees, unless the insurgents have a voice in the new government."

"I'm sorry to hear that. I was hoping to have some input in the Rhodesia problem as it will certainly affect what eventually happens in South Africa."

"I see your point, sir. But as you know the U.S. Secretary of State shouldn't involve himself in foreign affairs unless invited to do so. Helms and Young don't want us meddling there."

"I'm sure there must be some place where the State Department could be helpful."

"We did have China until Nixon went over last week."

"What did he find out?"

"He wouldn't tell us. He said he's saving it for his next book."

"It looks like a long day ahead for me. Is there anything I can do about SALT II?"

"Not until Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia decides what he wants to do. If we got into the SALT talks at this moment the Senate would have a fit."

"Darn it, Peter, if the Southern Christian Leadership Conference has taken over the Middle East, Jesse Jackson is in charge of Lebanon. Jane Fonda is dealing with Vietnam, the Anti-Defamation League is handling Israel, Andy Young is working on Rhodesia, Church and Stone are dealing with the President on Cuba, and Sam Nunn is directing the SALT talks, how will the rest of the world be able to figure out what this country's foreign policy is supposed to be?"

"We have a committee meeting on that right now, sir. We hope to get a report to you as soon as Brzezinski in the White House reads it."

"Okay, so what am I supposed to do today?"

"Would you like to look over these passport applications, sir? They're from a tour group planning on going to Rio de Janeiro for Mardi Gras."

Modernize the army

The revelations of America's current military weaknesses began about four years ago, when Drew Middleton, the great military correspondent for the New York Times published his disturbing book, "Can America Win the Next War?" Middleton, who authored the definitive history of the Battle of Britain, "The Sky Suspended," has been around a long time. He knows the meaning of military power, and understands the danger to the free world of the lack of it.

Now Middleton, on one of his countless visits to West Germany to report on the preparedness of the U.S. Army, writes that the news is still bad.

Watching American mechanized units perform in a training exercise, he observed that "if this were the real thing, the United States Seventh Army would go into battle armed with helicopters designed in the 1940s, tanks designed in the 1950s, and without an infantry fighting vehicle that approaches the advanced Russian vehicle that has both a gun and a missile."

In addition, he says most American artillery pieces were designed for World War II.

Middleton quotes a Seventh Army general on the topic of inter-unit communications: "You might say," the general remarked, "that in comparison with modern computerized communications, we are still in the tin-can-and-string phase."

What is both worse and better is that the officers recognize the shortcomings of the weapons and equipment they must use. The knowledge that weapons are outdated must have an adverse effect on officer morale and therefore on their leadership ability. At the same time, a strong dose of realism is in order.

American commanders facing the massed Soviet mechanized divisions across the Elbe know that the Russians have more capable tanks, and far more of them. The current standard U.S. Army tank, the M-60A3, is a jerry-rigged modification of the old M-60, which has been around since the early 1960s. But the Army's revolutionary new tank, the XM-1, has been delayed repeatedly by cost overruns and breakdowns, and by Pentagon squabbling over who is at fault for both.

Listening to the generals, we should at least be relieved that they are not guilty of the old peacetime disease of fighting the last war. The need for new and improved weapons is too obvious.

But the overemphasis on modernization has been responsible for a dangerous infatuation with sophisticated technology and gimmickry on the battlefield, and the XM-1 is the best example. Built with an ultra-new, sensitive gas turbine engine, it cannot handle the dust and grit of off-the-road travel nearly as well as the older diesel-powered tanks. But at this late stage, the Army is deploying it anyway, hoping the "bugs" will be worked out.

The Army's vastly expensive worldwide battlefield communications system, with which is envisioned that a general in the Pentagon could talk to a platoon leader in a foxhole, just doesn't work very well. And, needless to say, the problems of training the high school dropouts who are getting into the Volunteer Army to operate super-sophisticated equipment are enormous.

In the current Atlantic Monthly, Washington editor James Fallows focuses on the contradictions of high technology, pointing out that "While the military pursues the goal of technology, the tedious, the mundane, the low-technology issues are ignored." Even the testing of sophisticated new weapons, such as tactical nuclear missiles, is too expensive to perform more than once or twice a year. Meanwhile, he suggests, old-fashioned military leadership is deemphasized.

A balance is obviously necessary between Middleton and Fallows: the military needs new weapons, but it needs the genuine combat leadership that the Army knew thirty years ago, now sacrificed, according to former Army colonel Paul Savage, to the goals of a "managerial Army." Both these goals require some forthright action, both in the Pentagon, and by our nation's civilian leadership.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate unanimously confirmed Thursday three Texans for federal judgeships, including state Supreme Court Justice Sam Johnson's step up to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Also confirmed were Hugh Gibson of Galveston for a position in the Southern District of Texas and Jerry Buchmeyer of Dallas for a Northern District judgeship.

The three Texans will be able to schedule swearing-in ceremonies after President Carter attaches his signature.

Gibson, a state district judge, will fill the vacancy created by Finis Cowan's resignation.

Buchmeyer was confirmed for the position held by U.S. District Judge William M. Taylor, who took senior status in February.

Buchmeyer is a member of Dallas law firm.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — President Roy Wheeler of the Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas criticized Thursday a federal proposal to increase the powers of U.S. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland.

Wheeler said a bill proposed by Bergland would allow him to quarantine livestock in case of an "extraordinary emergency" resulting from any communicable disease.

"We find this a very dangerous bill because we don't feel the agriculture secretary should be given the ultimate authority to control the intrastate movement of livestock and interfere in the day-to-day business of producers," Wheeler said in a statement.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements announced the appointment Thursday of Shelia Ahrens of Dallas, Tony Wakin Jr. of Houston and George Carrington of Canadian to the Governor's Committee on Aging. Each was appointed to a six-year term.

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — The Big Spring Herald is celebrating its 75th anniversary with a seven-section, 72-page edition published Thursday.

The paper was founded in 1904 by Tom Jordan and William H. Hayden. It became a daily publication in 1928 and was sold to Harte-Hanks Communications in 1929.

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The murder trial of David Leon Wallace, accused in the slaying of El Paso lawyer Lee Chagra, may be delayed because a witness has been hospitalized.

Prosecutors said state witness Alfredo Bonilla has pneumonia. Jury selection in the trial started this week.

Wallace, 20, a former Fort Bliss soldier, is accused of murdering the attorney Dec. 23 at his El Paso office.

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — An envelope an El Paso clerk and his wife thought was an advertisement turned out to be an invitation to meet with Pope John Paul II at the White House.

Jesus Olivas said his wife, Josefina, assumed the card was from an El Paso store called White House. She said she thought the card was an advertisement for a "moonlight sale" at the store.

After the letter's contents were revealed, Olivas said, "I almost fell off the bed."

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A man who contends he was bound in chains for three days in jail after his arrest warrant was dismissed has filed a federal lawsuit against Sheriff Ray Montes.

Derwin Greer's lawsuit says he was held in solitary confinement at the jail after charges were dismissed.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The University of Texas Law School will sponsor its first conference on the handicapped, Oct. 15-16.

Program topics will cover federal and state laws pertaining to the handicapped.

Co-sponsor of the conference is the Child Development Division of the Department of Pediatrics, UT Medical Branch at Galveston.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The ministries of health in Bolivia and Ecuador have invited two pharmacy professors at the University of Texas to evaluate food and drug quality in those countries.

The professors are James Doluisio, dean of the College of Pharmacy, and Robert Smith, director of the Drug Dynamics Institute.

"Significant problems are evident in these countries," said Smith. "The food and drug industries are in their infancy, and policies related to importation of international products are weak. The result is that high-quality food and drug products are not generally available to many of the population, resulting in serious health problems."

"It is remarkable that in this age, an individual in Bolivia has an average life expectancy of less than 50 years."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas refiners manufactured 44.2 million barrels more of petroleum products in the first six months of 1979 than in the first half of last year, the Texas Railroad Commission reported Thursday.

The January-June output of petroleum products totaled 862.2 million, compared to 818 million in the first six months of 1978, the commission said.

The production of motor gasoline in the first half of 1979 totaled 350.7 million barrels, an increase of 29 million barrels from the first six months of last year.

DPS helps control organized crime

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

The second major division of the Department of Public Safety is the Criminal Law Enforcement Division which consists of the Texas Rangers, Narcotics, Organized Crime, Intelligence, and Auto Theft agencies.

Through specialized investigative assistance, the Criminal Law Enforcement Division aids local and federal agencies in criminal law enforcement activities.

The Texas Ranger Service investigates such major felony crimes as murder, rape, robbery and burglary.

The 94 Rangers throughout Texas in six company areas, are always ready to assist local police agencies.

Illicit traffic in narcotics and illegal drugs is handled by the DPS's Narcotics Service. This agency also registers practitioners and pharmacies that are authorized to handle and dispense controlled substances.

The Criminal Intelligence Service is primarily concerned with gathering useful information in the prevention of criminal activities or to assist in the apprehension of serious violators.

Agents, primarily concerned with organized crime, often deal with gambling and bookmaking. They also deal with securities and credit card frauds, pornography, fencing of stolen goods, and other major conspiratorial offenses.

The Motor Vehicle Theft Service employs 17 investigators, and concentrates on motor, recreational, and heavy equipment vehicle thefts. These troopers are skilled at identifying and recovering stolen property, through the use of such techniques as restoring obliterated vehicle identification numbers.

The Identification and Criminal Records Division, while not directly under the Criminal Law Enforcement Division, often assists troopers, as well as other state and local law enforcement agencies through operation of crime laboratories, and the State's central fingerprint, criminal record and modus operandi files. They have over two million criminal records on file. The DPS-operated Texas Crime Information Center keeps records of the most active offenders, wanted and missing persons, and stolen property files.

Davis says he did meet McCrory at restaurant

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Cullen Davis testified he met FBI informant David McCrory on a restaurant parking lot to glean information for his divorce trial — not to hire the murder of presiding judge in that case.

The millionaire industrialist took the stand in his own defense Thursday in an effort to discredit the prosecution's case built chiefly on a tape-recorded conversation between Davis and McCrory in a series of parking lot meetings in 1978.

Davis, 46, is accused of conspiring to arrange the murder of Judge Roy Eidsen. The first attempt to try the industrialist on the murder-solicitation charge ended in a hung jury and a mistrial in Houston.

The defendant contends he was framed by his ex-wife Priscilla, McCrory and others.

Davis testified that he agreed to meet McCrory on the parking lot of Coco's Restaurant May 1 to obtain "worlds" of divorce information McCrory said he had. In exchange, Davis said, he honored McCrory's request for a job.

Three weeks later, "I told him that when I got him the job, he was on his own ... he was going to have to sink or swim on how he performed in the new job," Davis said.

Davis testified that at a second parking lot meeting June 9, 1978 McCrory told him of a plot on his life by Priscilla and Gus Gavrel, Sr.

"McCrory said Priscilla was talking to some people about killing me," Davis said. "He also said Priscilla had talked to a motorcycle gang about coming and shooting up the mansion and making it look like I did it."

Davis said McCrory also told him "Gus Gavrel Sr. had been talking to the same people ... about having me killed."

Gavrel's son, Bubba, was wounded in a 1976 shooting spree at Davis' Fort Worth mansion and Bubba Gavrel had a $13 million civil suit pending against Davis.

McCrory said he knew these people and "we left it that maybe he could do something about it, to stop them from carrying out the contract," Davis said.

Land investigation nears completion

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department source says an investigation of possible conflicts of interest in land deals near Lufkin, Texas, should be complete within several weeks.

The source, who asked not to be identified, was reluctant to discuss details. He said the department has a policy against commenting on ongoing investigations.

"I believe the field work is complete and a report on the activities is being written," he said.

The source said the investigation involves "possible conflicts of interest by agriculture employees and yes, it has to do with land deals."

He said several companies were interested in leases held by the U.S. Forest Service, a section of the Agriculture Department.

The source said he could not specify which company or companies were the subject of the investigation.

The Lufkin News has reported that the department is investigating a potential land swap involving lignite between the Forest Service and an oil company.

The Sunoco Energy Development Co., a subsidiary of Sun Oil Co., wants to acquire a 702-acre government tract near Huntington in Angelina County, as well as private parcel in the same vicinity.

The inspector general's office at the Agriculture Department is preparing the report.

Free blood pressure clinic

minor accidents

A three car accident occurred yesterday at the intersection of Duncan and Kentucky. According to the police report, Florence Cross, 47, of Box 391, Miami, was traveling in a 1974 Mercury Marquis west on Kentucky when an unidentified vehicle turned in front of her from Kentucky onto Duncan. She slowed down and was struck from behind by a 1974 Chevrolet Malibu driven by Leslie McKinley, 15, of 2715 Aspen. This caused Cross to be knocked into Ray Rogers, Sr., 66, of 1836 Evergreen who was stopped in his 1973 Volkswagen at a stop sign on Kentucky. No injuries were reported at the scene.

Ricky Beesley, 23, of 609 Doucette was slightly injured in a car-motorcycle accident at the intersection of Kingsmill and Ballard. Police reported Karen Keyes, 25, of 736 N. Beesley was taken to Highland General Hospital Emergency Room where he was treated and released. Keyes was cited for failure to yield right of way.

Pope will visit White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — No pope has ever before set foot in the White House.
There, on Saturday the bishop of Rome, who sees America beset by a crisis of the spirit, meets a born-again Southern Baptist who shares that view.

The meeting between John Paul II and Jimmy Carter, among the most publicly religious of presidents, will be one moment of drama in a two-day visit to the seat of the nation's government.

The pope plans to use Washington as a pulpit. He will carry a strong message of concern about human rights in this hemisphere in a two-hour session at the Organization of American States.

And in his first major gesture of outreach to the non-Catholic Christian world, he will worship in an ecumenical service Sunday with the leaders of eight churches which have engaged, since Vatican Council II, in a dialogue of reconciliation and reunion.

Finally, on Sunday, he will celebrate a mass before an expected one million congregants and a worldwide television audience — and there, on the tree-shaded Mall, he will deliver his final message to this country.

So triumphant has the pope's tour been that spokesmen for the archdiocese of Washington are expressing concern that Americans, touched by the magnetism of the man, are missing his message.

"We ought to feel uncomfortable by what he is saying," said the Rev. Ronald Saucy, a church spokesman, at a press briefing Thursday night.

Lyndon Johnson went to New York City in 1965 to meet with Pope Paul VI, the only other pontiff to visit America, but no pope has before come to Washington.

Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair, unsuccessful in a lower court, was going before the U.S. Court of Appeals today in another attempt to prevent the pope's mass from taking place on federal parkland.

Among the highlights of the pope's tour here: —The visit to the Organization of American States, significant because so many of its member nations are predominantly Catholic, and impoverished. Archdiocesan observers predict a ringing statement on human rights.

—A major statement, important within the church, on Catholic scholarship when he speaks Sunday at Catholic University, a stop he insisted upon.

—A symbolically important gesture toward ecumenism at the worship service Sunday with other orthodox and protestant churchmen at the chapel of Trinity College. "Fifty years ago, if a pope left Rome, this would not have been possible," says Bishop Pappas Varjabedian of the Armenian Church of North America.

Senate gives boost to Carter's energy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A critical piece of President Carter's energy program has gotten a big boost in the Senate, but the rest of the plan has a long rocky road to travel before Congress gives its final approval.

The Senate voted 68-25 Thursday to create an Energy Mobilization Board urged by Carter as a means of increasing U.S. energy development and reducing America's reliance on foreign oil.

The president termed the vote "a major step forward in the joint effort of the Congress and my administration to achieve energy security for our nation."

Despite the opposition of environmentalists, Carter said the board would preserve "environmental values and state and local decision-making."

The board would be empowered to designate an unlimited number of energy projects — such as oil refineries and pipelines — for so-called "fast track" treatment. If a local or state agency failed to meet a deadline for approval or disapproval of such a project, the federal board could step in and push the project forward.

However, stronger proposals that would have given the board authority to set aside federal, state or local laws blocking energy projects were defeated.

The new agency also would be expected to expedite construction of new synthetic fuel plants costing billions of dollars.

Once construction has begun, state and local governments would be unable to block construction. Only if the head of the Environmental Protection Agency found the plant to be unhealthful could construction or production be blocked.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said the board is the "centerpiece" of other energy measures still to come through the Senate.

In the House, another fight is expected between those who want to give the board broad powers to sweep aside federal, state and local laws and those who want local control over construction to remain untouched.

Carter also has proposed a companion to the mobilization board which would provide $88 billion over the next 10 years for production of synthetic fuels.

Discussion goes down to wire

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers went down to the wire to reach a tentative new contract, but the UAW concedes membership approval is not a sure thing and a strike still is possible.

The three-year pact covering 190,000 Ford workers in the United States was wrapped up at 11:22 p.m. Thursday, 37 minutes before the deadline. It was announced six minutes later while both teams were in the bargaining room.

"The tension in there was unbelievable," said a union source. "They knew they had to get the word out to the locals."

Some of the public rejoicing seemed a little forced on both sides, and workers at one plant without the word walked out at midnight.

Sidney F. McKenna, Ford's vice president for industrial relations, twice referred to the agreement as "satisfactory," and twice corrected himself to say "acceptable."

Ken Bannon, the UAW vice president for Ford matters, will be retired by the next set of negotiations. "I'm not going to miss it, I can tell you, not after this one," he said.

Full details of the contract will be released at a meeting of the UAW's Ford Council — officers of the 102 Ford locals — here Tuesday.

In economic terms, "it's the same clauses" won at the pattern-setting company, General Motors Corp., on Sept. 14, Bannon said.

A settlement generally along the lines of GM's was expected. The union said earlier, however, it was trying to re-arrange the elements in the economic package. Observers speculated then the UAW wanted more to quiet the restless skilled tradesmen, who rejected the 1973 Ford contract — a strike was averted — and approved the new GM contract last month by a much narrower margin than their colleagues.

One reason for unrest in the trades — tool and die workers, electricians, carpenters, plumbers, machinists and the like — is the narrowing gap between their wages and those of the rank and file. For 20 years before 1973, the gap at Ford was about 38 percent. Last year, it was 26 percent.

Fraser said Thursday the new Ford pact contained no special wage increases for skilled tradesmen. But Bannon said "they will be pleasantly surprised" at what the package contains for them.

Livestock, Meat Board director will speak to area Cowbelles

Area Cowbelles and anyone interested in the cattle industry are invited to attend two Oct. 15 meetings featuring the director of education for the National Livestock and Meat Board.

Barbara Hicks of Chicago will address members of the Calico Cowbelles and other guests at an "All Beef Brunch" in Spearman and an "All Beef Buffet" in Higgins.

The brunch will be Oct. 15 at 11 a.m. in the First United Methodist Church of Spearman. Kaie McLeod of Amarillo, president of the Golden Spread Cowbelles, will give a film presentation after Hicks speaks to the group.

The "All Beef Buffet" will be at 7 p.m. that same day in the Higgins High School Cafeteria, where once again Hicks will address the crowd. A film will follow.

Both events, which kick off the Calico Cowbelles 79-80 membership drive, will feature art exhibits by local artists.

Hicks, named to her position as education director for the National Livestock and Meat Board, works to create educational programs on meats for kindergartners through 12th grade students.

Working in the areas of nutrition, home economics and consumer education, she designs educational programs and support materials for schoolteachers. She also serves as the meat industry liaison with educational organizations.

Recognized as a national speaker on nutrition education, Hicks was coordinator of materials development with the National Dairy Council for four years, where she revised and produced educational and informational materials. She also served as assistant director of the Twin Cities Dairy Council in Minnesota for five years.

A former high school and college home economics teacher, Hicks is a member of the Society for Nutrition Education, the Chicago Nutrition Association, and the American Home Economics Association, with which she recently served as vice chairman of the food and nutrition section.

She is chairman-elect of Chicago Home Economists in Business.

A graduate of Viterbo College in LaCrosse, Wis., Hicks received her master's degree in food science and nutrition from the University of Wisconsin. She is a native of San Francisco.

For more information about the two meetings, contact Mrs. Bruce Gosset at 653-3071, Mrs. C. T. Duke in Booker at 658-2204, Mrs. Lloyd Buzzard at 659-2010 or Mrs. James Schnell at 659-3620 in Spearman, Mrs. Lance Bussard in Higgins at 862-4481 or Mrs. Jim Cameron in Perryton at 435-2794.

TWEEN 12 AND 20 Relationship is unhealthy

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 16 years old and I am having an affair with a married man who is in his 40s. I love him so much that it hurts when we're not together.

I know that he cares for me because he told me so. My problem is that I want to tell him how much I love him without being too pushy. I don't want to scare him away. Can you help me? — Sylvia, Hagerstown, Md.

Sylvia: I'm sure the only reason this married man wants to see you is for sexual favors. This relationship is very unhealthy and must be ended by you immediately or else you could be headed for a tragedy that your mom and dad won't be able to help you with.

the floor and then I wind up picking them up.

You can't believe how many toys are crammed under the tables and his bed.

I've talked to my parents about getting my own bedroom (we have five in our house) but they say no.

What should I do to make my brother shape up? — David, Dubuque, Iowa

David: Don't pick up after your brother. Wait until the room becomes unbearable, then invite your parents in for a little "room warming."

When they see your brother's slop, they should have mercy on you and give you a room to yourself. If not, surely they will make him tidy his mess.

If that fails, some of his better toys might wind up missing, until the room can once again be livable.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY

Welcome gay girl

DEAR ABBY: Our 25-year-old daughter (I'll call her Ruth) is coming home to visit and wants to bring her girlfriend.

Last year Ruth told us that she is a lesbian. We are sick about it, and are praying it won't last.

We can't understand how this happened. We raised three other children, and they turned out normal.

We're afraid if we tell Ruth she can't bring her girlfriend she might not come home at all. We love her regardless, and don't want to drive her away.

Our problem is what to do about the sleeping arrangements. If Ruth were normal, we wouldn't put her up with her boyfriend because we don't approve of pre-marital sex. But how about Ruth and her girlfriend? We don't approve of their brand of sex, even though they couldn't marry if they wanted to. Please help us.

CONFUSED IN SEATTLE

DEAR CONFUSED: If you love your daughter, make her girlfriend welcome. Put them up in separate beds and don't make an issue of it.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter in your column from SISTER to her brother concerning their mother. SISTER said her brother wanted to put their invalid mother in a home 10 years ago, but she wouldn't do it, then she goes on to list the hardships she's endured caring for their mother all these years.

Abby, I work in a care center, also called a nursing home. It's clean, modern and odorless. It has 24-hour nursing care, physical therapy to keep residents as fit as possible, and recreational therapy that includes activities such as shopping trips, holiday parties, bowling, crafts, music, Bible study, church services, Bingo, movies, etc.

Our care center is not extraordinary in its services. There are set standards that all nursing homes must meet in order to be accredited every year.

A nursing home is not a dungeon-like place where old people are sent to die. It is a place to continue to live when a person is unable to live alone or care for himself.

IOWAN

DEAR IOWAN: It sounds like paradise. Please send name, location and rates.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't throw this away thinking it's from some nut. I'm serious. I have a dream. I want to be married on ice skates at my favorite skating rink in Washington, D.C., on Valentine's Day in 1981.

My problem is, where do I go from here? I'm a figure skater; that's why I want to get married on skates.

The best wedding present I could have would be to realize my dream, but I don't know how to go about it. Or do you think my dream is too weird?

DREAMER

DEAR DREAMER: Couples have been married under water, in hot air balloons, on motorcycles and on horseback, so your dream isn't all that weird.

Get in touch with your department of public parks, and see if it's possible. If it is, all you need is a good skate to marry you.

Being a woman helps in job

STAFFORD, Conn. (AP) — Patricia Libby, a college-educated, eight-year veteran crime solver, says being a woman is an asset in her job, as a Connecticut state police detective.

"Being a woman is one of the things which makes me good at what I do," said the 30-year-old Ms. Libby, assigned to Troop C in this northern Connecticut town.

"It's a good job for a single woman," she said in an interview, adding, "It's probably the most exciting field a woman can enter."

Ms. Libby says that in undercover work women attract less suspicion and can accomplish more than a male counterpart in some cases.

She also feels that she has an edge in interrogating some suspects.

Some criminals believe a woman police officer may be less observant, so they relax and are often caught off guard, she said.

"I'm not above playing dumb once in a while," she added.

Ms. Libby says because she is a woman she is often assigned to sex-crime cases where the victims are often women and children and usually more comfortable talking to her than to a "man in a big hat and uniform."

But she handles all types of cases.

She and another officer are credited with solving the 1969 murder of University of Connecticut student Paget Weatherley. Ms. Libby says she believes other officers were waiting for her to prove herself.

"I think that's the case in any male-dominated field," she said, adding, "The Weatherley case was my big break. They knew I could do my job after that."

Ms. Libby started police work one month after she graduated from the University of Maine, where she majored in education social studies. A placement counselor suggested she take an admissions test for the Connecticut State Police.

"You have to remember this was 1971. The opportunities for women were limited. The job sounded a lot more exciting than anything else I had looked into," she recalled.

She said a state police affirmative-action officer ensured that existing regulations against unequal treatment were observed.

"For what is considered a pretty macho institution, they do a good job," she said.

Girls' finishing schools maintain foothold

NEW YORK (AP) — The finishing school, that bastion of correct taste and propriety, no longer stands as the exclusive institution it once was. But it seems, for the most part, to have withstood the drive begun in the late 1960s toward coeducation.

"There's been a resurgence of interest in single-sex education," says Robert Bussey, headmaster of The Hall School in Pittsfield, Mass. "Parents are seeing that girls aren't necessarily getting a chance to practice social strengths in a boys' school."

Adds a spokeswoman for The Madeira School in Greenway, Va., "Without the distractions of boys in the classroom, they have a chance to grow up more naturally. They're making good friends who are other girls, and have a chance to excel academically and extracurricularly."

The Shipley School in Bryn Mawr, Pa., is among the former girls' schools that do admit boys, a practice begun 10 years ago.

"Shipley believes in being realistic," says Holly Fowler, the school's director of development. "It just seemed the more realistic way. Men and women have to learn how to work together, and they might as well start right away."

"But our philosophy and purpose haven't changed since 1894," she says. "We still care about intellectual curiosity and thinking for students."

Girls at schools like Madeira and Hall, proponents of single-sex education say, have opportunities often denied them at coeducational institutions. They can become editor of the school newspaper rather than just another writer, for instance, or the president of the student council instead of secretary.

"Things are done here for the girls," the Madeira spokeswoman says. "It just gives them the chance to become the very best of something without competing."

In the late 1960s and early '70s, many boys' prep schools, following the example of former single-sex colleges and universities, began to admit girls. Some girls' schools say they are losing students to the coed prep schools, but most maintain they are operating at capacity enrollment and still have waiting lists.

Madiera has 330 students enrolled. Two-thirds board and the others are day students. Boarders pay $6,130 and day students $3,725. Tuition at Hall, formerly known as Miss Hall's, is $5,900. Ten years ago, it was about $4,200.

Finishing-school students in the past came from well-to-do families, and scholarships were unthinkable. Today, however, an increasing amount of financial aid is available. Thirteen percent of the Shipley student body, for example, is on scholarship.

"There's very little interest in snobbism and social status," Hall's Bussey says. "The school does a great deal to mix nationalities and races."

And there have been changes in curriculum, too.

In the 1990s, girls were taught to curtsy, should they ever be presented at court. Today, students at Madeira have special work programs on Wednesdays — an outdoor discovery course for freshmen, work in local hospitals for sophomores, internships with senators or representatives in nearby Washington for juniors and any job that can give them career experience for seniors.

Students at Shipley, to use another example, can study urban affairs and probability and statistics.

Representatives of the finishing schools say about 99 percent of their graduates go on to college.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 35-year-old female, 5 feet 4 1/2 and I weigh between 107 and 110. I've always had a weight problem. When I was born the belief was that a fat baby was a healthy baby so I was a fat baby. Throughout adolescence I fluctuated between 125 and 130 pounds so I've always been dieting.

My upper frame is small but my thighs and hips have always been the problem. No matter how much I exercise and how little I eat I don't seem to be able to get a flat abdomen and my thighs remain thick.

I eat prunes, apples, lettuce and bran for bulk. Basically, I live on cottage cheese and tea. At this point I feel I'm a borderline anorexic. I fear going out to dinner or even to people's homes because I might gain weight. Since I've been under 112 pounds, my menstrual cycle has become erratic.

I'd like to know if there's a way to put weight on my arms and face without gaining weight elsewhere? And am I damaging my body through this behavior pattern? Next year my husband and I want to have a baby and I'm afraid I will not be able to handle the weight problem. I hate the idea of ever being fat again. This problem is particularly disturbing to my husband and I told him I would abide by your suggestions.

DEAR READER — You've put your finger on the problem. You do sound a bit like an anorexic and I think you have overdone your dieting program. Individuals who stay on a diet severely restricted in calories, even if they're getting enough proteins, vitamins and minerals, are apt to have symptoms of starvation. In women one of these is their loss of men-

He attended two Tennessee colleges, Freed - Hardeman and David Lipscomb. He and his wife, a native of Tennessee, moved to the Texas Panhandle from the West Virginia Panhandle. Bible Church of Pampa celebrating anniversary

The Bible Church of Pampa, 2401 Alcock, is celebrating its 10th anniversary this Sunday, October 7th, with a dinner at the Optimist Club at 6 p.m. The evening will be devoted to a covered dish meal and a historical review of the Lord's blessings on the church. A message by the pastor will follow. The originating families of the Bible Church of Pampa started meeting in private homes in March, 1969 for Bible study and prayer. On October 5, 1969, H.A. Somerville, then pastor emeritus of the Amarillo Bible Church, began teaching and in December, the place of worship was moved to a rented office building on West Foster. The church moved to its present location in 1971. During its 10 year history, the church has had three full time pastors including the present pastor, Roger A. Hubbard, a 1976 graduate of Dallas Theological Seminary. Pastor Hubbard was called to the church in November, 1978, following a three year interim ministry by Mike Harris, lay teacher, of Bereah Bible Church in Amarillo. The Bible Church is denominationally unrelated and concentrates upon a detailed study and application of the holy scriptures. It stands without apology for the historical doctrines of the Christian faith.

SCIENCE and GOD

Not too long ago, a man determined from accounts in the bible that oil could be found in certain areas of bible lands . . . now this country is rich in oil wells. In the past, vigorous arguments arose between some scientists and bible scholars, however with the passing of time, new discoveries in science have helped us to have a better understanding of God's word and now most scientists and bible scholars are in accord. God's word has not needed to be proved, for it will stand forever.

"For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD, as the waters cover the sea." ATTEND CHURCH AND STUDY GOD'S WORD.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Sunday, Oct. 7th will be a special Sunday morning at The Pampa Baptist Temple. Rev. Danny Reaves and his family, missionaries to the field of Chile, will be in the services. At 10:00 a.m. he will be preaching on the theme "Building Churches on the Mission Field".

Bro. Reaves, a native Texan, is an accomplished pastor, having pastored in Minnesota and Missouri. He is a graduate of Theology of the Baptist Bible College of Springfield, Missouri. Bro. Reaves and his wife have four children: Danny, 10, Kelley, 8, Elizabeth, 2, and Joshua, 1.

Sunday night, Pastor West will bring a message entitled "Not Much Time Left".

Humble to give sermons on "Archaeology and the bible"

On Oct. 5, 6, and 7 at the Mary Ellen at Harvester Church of Christ, Dr. B. J. Humble will give five sermons on "Archaeology and the Bible." Each will be illustrated with colored slides.

Dr. Humble is Professor of Bible and Associate Head of the Bible Department at Abilene Christian University in Abilene, Texas. He served as Dean and Vice President for Academic Affairs at ACU, attended Freed-Hardman College, Abilene Christian University, University of Colorado, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, and received his Ph. D. from the University of Iowa.

Dr. Humble spent a number of years in full time church work in Missouri and Kentucky before joining the ACU faculty in 1964. He served as Vice President for Academic Affairs for nine years. He is interested in mission work and has made three preaching tours through Asia, Africa, and South America.

He has published a film strip on the restoration movement entitled, "Back to the Bible" and one of Biblical archaeology called, "Proof from the Past." He is a staff writer for the Firm Foundation.

Dr. Humble and his wife, Jerry, have two children, Eric and Rebecca and two grandchildren.

Dr. Humble's lessons with colored slides will be entitled:

1. The World of Abraham and Moses, Oct. 5 at 7:30 p.m.
2. Archaeology and the Old Testament, Oct. 6 at 7:30 p.m.
3. The Dead Sea Scrolls and the Bible, Oct. 7 at 10:00 a.m. Sunday
4. Archaeology and the New Testament, Sunday, Oct. 7 at 11:00 a.m.
5. Masada: A Call to Commitment, Sunday, Oct. 7 at 6:00 p.m.

These lessons will show archaeological discoveries that relate to Genesis, the flood, and everyday life in the patriarchal age, treasures from King Tut's tomb, the discovery of ancient Biblical manuscripts in caves near the Dead Sea, archaeology and the footsteps of Jesus, a travelogue to the great fortress built by Herod the Great atop Masada, Paul's preaching at Athens and Corinth, and the dramatic story of the Zealot's last stand against the Romans.

The public is cordially invited to attend all of these inspiring lessons by Dr. Humble on Oct. 5 and 6 at 7:30 and on Sunday, Oct. 7 at 10:00, 11:00 a.m. and at 6:00 p.m. in the Mary Ellen at Harvester Streets Church of Christ.

Religion in the news

By JOEL STASHENKO
Associated Press Writer

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Accidents are rare for members of "The Flying Padres," but if one of the piloting priests does have trouble at 7,500 feet, they're probably still the best ones to come in on a wing and a prayer.

"The Flying Padres" is the pet name given the National Association of Pilot Priests, a group of about 120 Roman Catholic priests who double as aviators. The organization recently held its 18th annual meeting at an airport here, with a Rensselaer priest, the Rev. Victor Schoenberger, the host.

The group was formed in 1964 in response to an ad in an aviation magazine by the Rev. Henry Haacke of Covington, Ky. Since then, the organization has become popular with priests who fly as a hobby, and those who need the airplane as part of their lives.

One of the group's members, Bishop Leo New Wewah, uses his small airplane to reach parishioners in remote areas of New Guinea.

Another member from New Mexico found it easier to visit his five remote missions by plane instead of automobile. So he built five small airstrips.

But piloting remains a hobby to most of "The Flying Padres," a pastime many say they are able to enjoy about once a week.

Most are interested in flying small-engine aircraft, but one priest from Chelsy, Iowa, the Rev. Mel Hemann, is licensed to pilot larger planes. He says with a little study and a lot of money, he could earn an airport transport pilot's license and fly any commercial plane, including a Boeing 747.

"I've always been airplane crazy. I wanted to be a pilot during the Korean War," Hemann says. Instead, an irregular heartbeat kept him out of the armed forces and pushed him toward the priesthood. "The ticker's been good ever since and I'm still alive. I'd probably be lying in the ground in Korea if I'd gone in."

Hemann's two brothers also have become priests in Iowa — John Hemann in Waterloo and Everitt Hemann in Dubuque — as well as pilots. All three, along with a dozen other Iowa priests, are members of "The Flying Padres."

Do members of the group feel any safer than laymen in the air after this summer's major airplane accidents?

"I guess a lot of others feel that way but we don't," Hemann said. "We get just as scared as anybody else sometimes in the air, especially in bad weather."

"I pray always when I take off — but I pray when I'm in a car," said the Rev. Anthony Attea of Jamestown, N.Y. "When I turn that old engine over in my plane then I am less nervous than in my car. I pray harder when I'm landing at an unknown airport, there's where I sweat the most."

Hundley to preach at Lamar Full Gospel

Rev. Ed Hundley of Dallas has been in full-time gospel ministry for 35 years, beginning as a boy preacher at age 15. He traveled for the first five years of his ministry with his two brothers, known as "The Hundley Brothers Trio." He later attended southwestern Bible Institute and Wayland Baptist College.

He has pastored several churches in Texas; however, most of his ministry has been spent in evangelism, preaching revivals, conventions and camp meetings throughout the United States and in several foreign countries. Rev. Hundley has been the guest speaker at a number of colleges for their religious emphasis weeks. He has recently published a book entitled "By Every Word."

He will be preaching at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, 1200 S. Sumner Street. You will be blessed by his dynamic presentation of the old time gospel.

The pastor, Rev. Gene Allen, cordially invites the public to attend.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

October 6, 1979

This coming year you will be sought out by your peers to lead or take charge in shared group endeavors. Don't hesitate to take any offices. Lucky contacts will be made through these positions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll feel no ill-effects by underplaying your own self-expression today in lieu of the need of the majority. In fact, it will work out to your best interests. Discover with whom you best get along romantically by sending for your Astro-Graph Letter which begins anew with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Because of so many self-doubts today, it may be difficult to apply the skills you truly possess. Let go. Allow your talents to come through.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't complain too loudly if some group activities you had planned fail to materialize today. Lady Luck has something better in mind for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're the one who'll come out on top with all the benefits if you share, even with those who appear to be demanding too much. Don't be afraid to give.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Listen attentively, and don't reply to argumentative types. They will talk themselves right into a corner and you'll be the victor.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Free handouts have strings attached to them today. If you want something, ignore the pie in the sky. Depend on the sweat of your brow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) During the day you might have a difficult time adjusting your thoughts to opinions of others, causing you problems. Later, however, good pals help you loosen up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Lay down your tools and enjoy your family if little jobs you are attempting to complete seem to be fighting you. The chores will wait.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be honest and true to yourself concerning what you expect or need from your friends. A good, old-fashioned talk might be in order.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) After grumbling all day about your lot in life, you might wind up being ashamed when Dame Fortune dumps something great into your lap and proves you wrong.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though you might unconsciously be altering the facts to suit your mood today you'll still come out on top, thanks to a lot of luck. Give credit where it's due.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If there is any question in your mind as to what you are getting for your money today, back off. Don't make the buy. Your instincts are steering you correctly.

MOVIES

Too often in recent years the film industry has spoon-fed American audiences with a Pabulum of shallow, boring movies. It's become a game of bucks over brilliance, entertainment over enlightenment.

But if one dares, there's a movie — "Days of Heaven" — now showing in Amarillo (at the Mann Theatres, 45th and Bell) that makes one realize that films do not have to consist of entertainment for entertainment's sake; it reassures the viewer that good, enrapturing movies can still be, and are still, made. The problem is, it takes a bit of searching to find them.

Set in the Texas Panhandle, but filmed in Alberta, Canada, "Days of Heaven" focuses on a young, innocent girl named Linda who, calmly and passively, narrates a segment of her life in the movie. The focus is a love triangle between her brother, Bill, his lover, Abby, and Abby's rich farmer husband.

But what makes this movie outstanding is not the plot or even the characters; it is the rich, vivid cinematography that paints captivating images for the audience. The scenes creating the most powerful emotions are very simplistic, almost everyday — blowing golden wheat fields, trains moving across a light blue sky, workers harvesting wheat next to big, lumbering machines — all are scenes those of us native to this area are very familiar with.

"Days of Heaven" takes place around 1916, prior to the outbreak of World War I. We follow Linda, portrayed by Linda Manz, her brother, played by Richard Gere, and his lover, played by Brooke Adams, as they move from Chicago west to harvest the Texas wheatfields as migrant workers.

Formula familiar enough

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The formula is familiar enough: a big, kind, raw sort of a guy and his precocious kid, battling the world together.

Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper. Ryan and Tatum O'Neal. Jon Voight and Ricky Schroeder. A little corn, a little con, a lot of sentiment.

It worked okay in the movies, so, natch, television is giving it a shot. "Big Shamus, Little Shamus" is the latest incarnation of this old Hollywood idea. It shows up Saturdays on CBS.

Dear Old Pop (Brian Dennehy) is not a pug in this version; he's the house detective at an Atlantic City resort hotel, where he lives with his cutesy kid, Max (Doug McKeon).

Now, according to the formula, you've got to make Pop something of an underdog. So, Dennehy has a weaselly young boss (George Wyner) who thinks Dennehy's an antique and is just waiting for an excuse to dump him.

So, with that in the background, Dennehy and the kid go about the business of solving crimes.

The first story involved a loony-tune publicist who faked attempted murder to get his client some snazzy press. He was then murdered himself, a crime not to be too seriously regretted.

Dennehy solves the murder, falls for a distressed singer and has a crisis with his son, who's jealous of the canary. But the kid, wise little man, he, suddenly realizes that, "Maybe he (Dennehy) needs his own space."

This Man-and-his-Boy line works fine in the movies, where all the goo has to end after a couple of hours. You keep your head above the swells of sentiment when you know it's going to be over soon.

Yet, Dennehy is a fine, likeable actor, and young McKeon is everything you'd want in the way of precocious. It's just a little too formula, almost to the point of parody. Dennehy's character is too much the slob. McKeon is too much the adult in little boy's clothing.

And did they have to make the kid a health nut?

Pampa High spikers overcome Hereford

By D'ANNA CONWAY

HEREFORD — Hampered by the illness of two starters, Pampa's volleyball team pulled away from Hereford Thursday night to take a 15-8, 15-4 victory.

Sharon King and Jeanette Britt were slowed down by a virus, and Coach Lynn Wolfe credited Saturday's long tournament for the overall team fatigue.

"I think we're just going to rest tomorrow," she said.

Tina Robbins made the first move for Pampa by scoring five serving points in a row. Three of those were not returned, while another ended in a Mamie Laycock spike. Later in the game, Britt broke the Herd service with a spike of her own, and Laycock added the final three points of the set.

Cross country season opens Saturday

Pampa High School opens the cross country season for both boys and girls here Saturday morning with 11 schools competing in varsity and junior varsity divisions of the Pampa Invitational.

Junior varsity girls open the meet at 10 a.m., followed by the varsity girls at 10:25, junior varsity boys at 10:50, and varsity boys at 11.

Coach Charles Tindall expects his varsity boys to more than hold their own Saturday, especially after Pampa dominated its age group division at a mini-marathon last week in Amarillo.

Lead by senior standout Mike Wheeler, Pampa swept the first four places in the 9-and-under division. Wheeler took first place and was followed by teammates Joe Murray, Neal Braswell and Don Braswell.

"I expect them to do well if they don't let the pressure get to them," Tindall said.

Lefors Junior High stops Claude

LEFORS — Lefors Junior High pulled away from a scoreless tie at halftime here Thursday night to record a 20-8 victory over Claude.

John Winegeart scored a pair of touchdowns and was credited with 15 tackles in the Pirate win, while Tracy Jennings added a touchdown and an extra-point carry.

Lefors Coach Don Parsons said it was a hard-hitting contest, and gave credit to Ricky Withers for the "Hit of the Week" when he pummeled a Claude ball carrier on a kickoff. He also said his

Shockers blank Dumas junior varsity

Sophomore Mark Kotara scored three touchdowns, two on long distance runs, as the Pampa Shockers blanked the Dumas junior varsity 29-0 Thursday night at Harvester Field.

The Shockers defense also shared the spotlight with Kotara, limiting hapless Dumas to 109 total yards. Defensive ringleaders were Ruben Ambrez, James Borchart, and Harold Landers, who frequently found their way into the enemy backfield.

Kotara, who led all rushers with 125 yards on seven carries, opened the point parade with a 60-yard punt return in the first quarter and then closed out the scoring with a dazzling 86-yard romp in the third quarter.

In the second frame, Jeanna Porter aced her way to four points. King followed with three, and the Harvester spikers scored the last seven points of the game.

Wolfe had little to say about the outcome except she was glad none of her players were overcome with illness or exhaustion.

The junior varsity contest ended in a 15-3, 15-5 Pampa win, upping the JV record to 10-0. Leslie Albus served seven straight in the first set, while Jamie Green tallied six serving points. In the second set, Paula Fulton scored five serving points to lead the JV.

Pampa will host Dumas Tuesday night in its final warmup for the District 3-AAAA season, which will start Thursday night when the Harvester's host Caprock. The varsity's record now stands at 14-1.

Wheeler competed all summer in long distance meets in Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle, while the Braswells participated in a California cross country camp operated by world class miler Jim Ryan.

Denny Coombs, Rick Kupunas and Steve Kotara are also on the varsity squad.

David Whitson, a freshman, has shown enough potential to fill a spot on the varsity, but Tindall is keeping him on the JV squad to gain more experience.

"He's ran about the sixth best time in practice, but I want him to compete against kids his own age so he can gain some more confidence," Tindall said.

Other teams entered in the Pampa Invitational include Dumas, Plainview, Tulia, Hereford, Amarillo High, Caprock, Palo Duro, Tascosa, Canyon and Silverton.

offensive line did another fine job of opening holes to help Lefors raise its record to 2-0.

Jennings contributed 13 tackles on defense, while Chris McMinn was in on two stops. Parsons said the rest of his defensive squad had four to five tackles apiece, and gave credit to his second-line offense for a good showing.

Lefors will host Miami Thursday night at 6:30 for its next action.

Late in the second quarter, Pampa took advantage of a wobbly Dumas punt that traveled only 21 yards. Five plays later, Kotara scored from 15 yards out.

Quarterback Derrick Bingham completed only two of 13 passes, but one was a 12-yard TD strike to Andy Richardson four minutes into the second quarter.

Pampa's offense accounted for 243 yards, despite coughing up five fumbles. Defensively, the Shockers never allowed Dumas past the Pampa 28, and that wasn't until late in the fourth quarter.

The lopsided win evened the Shockers record at 2-2 for the season.

evened their record at 2-2 with a 29-0 blanking of the JV Demons. (Staff photo by Gary Clark)

As Baltimore takes 9-8 win

Garica sets fielding record

BALTIMORE (AP) — Kiko Garcia took the Baltimore Orioles' starting shortstop job away from Mark Belanger this season primarily because of his hitting.

But Garcia made it into the American League playoff record books for his fielding Thursday, "after being beset with a personal problem the night before."

"There's no way to figure it out," said Garcia with a shake of his head after the Orioles' 9-8 victory over the California Angels.

Garcia set two records for the American League playoffs, making seven assists and handling 10 chances in the field.

Ironically, Manager Earl Weaver had benched Garcia in favor of Belanger in Wednesday night's opener because the normally light-hitting Belanger had a .295 batting average for the season against Nolan Ryan, the Angels' first-game starter.

"Earl's moves proved right both times," said Belanger after the Birds topped their edge to 2-0 in the best-of-five championship series. No team in the 11-year history of the playoffs has come back from a 2-0 deficit to win the series.

The quick turnaround from Wednesday night's 10-inning game to Thursday afternoon's contest didn't allow any of the players on either team much time to rest. But Garcia had less sleep than most.

He spent several hours in the early morning with his brother, John, who was arrested

Wednesday night by city police on charges of possession of a small amount of hashish. John Garcia was released on $1,000 bail pending an Oct. 24 court appearance.

"I bailed him out and didn't get in until 4 a.m. Obviously, I knew about the situation before the game," said Kiko, who went two-for-three with two RBI and a run. "Other than saying that, I'd rather not talk about it."

California, which like the Orioles had made a habit of rallying to win games in the regular season, came back from a 9-1 deficit but couldn't get a tie out of a bases-loaded, two-out situation in the ninth. Brian Downing bounced into a game-ending force after the Orioles' Don Stanhouse had intentionally walked Don Baylor.

"He threw me a slider on the first pitch and it was just off the plate," Downing said. "The next pitch, he threw me another slider, and I was looking for it. But I didn't get it solid. I just got the top of it."

That brought to an end a game in which both managers complained of a strike zone which they said changed location and size throughout.

"In the eighth and ninth innings, the strike zone seemed to be floating," said Weaver.

"The strike zone, I thought, got a little small in the early innings," said California Manager Jim Fregosi. This, Fregosi added, may have bothered Angels starter Dave Frost, who gave up six runs in 1 1/3 innings.

Blyleven out to beat 'bum rap'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitcher Bert Blyleven of the Pittsburgh Pirates was out to beat a "bum rap" as well as the Cincinnati Reds today in the National League playoffs.

In 10 major league seasons, Blyleven has a 148-128 lifetime record. He was 12-5 this season.

But he had 20 no-decisions this season and he knows what some baseball people have been saying about him: that he doesn't win the big games, that he loses too many one-run games.

"People who say that have never pitched in the big leagues," said Blyleven.

"I know that people have said those things about me. I think it's unfair. I think over the years I have been a pretty good pitcher with a very good earned run average."

Blyleven's earned run average this season is 3.61. His lifetime mark is 2.89.

"It's a bad rap," he said. "I've heard it and I don't like it."

"I know I've lost many one-run games over the years. But I didn't lose 6-5 or 7-6. I lost 2-1 and 3-2. When I look back, I think I pitched a pretty good game. You need runs to win."

Oosterhuis surprised by first-round lead

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Peter Oosterhuis had been playing some miserable golf lately and was just hoping for a solid performance in the $250,000 Texas Open. So he was as surprised as anybody when he ended up as the first-round leader.

The lanky Englishman, who has missed the cut in his last three tournaments and was ranked only 89th on the Professional Golfers Association money list, fired a 5-under-par 65 Thursday to take a one-stroke lead over veteran Gibby Gilbert and "rabbit" Doug Tewell.

"I didn't expect to have a real solid round. I haven't been playing particularly well. It's surprising to have the lead," said the 6-foot-5 Oosterhuis.

Gilbert, who has been exempt from qualifying since 1972, and Tewell, one of the "rabbits" who had to qualify Monday, are both battling to earn a spot in the Top 60 money winners and a 1980 exemption.

"This is a very important tournament for me. It's in the hot box for the Top 60. This tournament means a lot. I don't like the Monday qualifying," said Gilbert, a 38-year-old Tennessean who ranks 57th.
