$7.2 million budget adopted by school board

By JOHN PRICE
Of The Pampa News

A $7 million budget for 1979-80 was quickly adopted Tuesday afternoon by the Board of Trustees of the Pampa Independent School District.

In a related move, the board set the district tax rate for 1979-80 at $1.50 per $100 of assessed valuation at a 60 percent assessment ratio. The new budget includes a $425,634, or 6.26 percent, increase over the current $6,798,649 budget. Trustee William Arrington described the $7,224,283 budget as tight "in view of double-digit inflation."

The $1.50 tax rate hasn't changed since 1969, board members said. The 60 percent ratio has been in effect since 1974.

The resignation of board President Alfred Smith was accepted "with extreme regret" at Tuesday's meeting by his fellow trustees. Smith and his wife are moving next month to Brazil.

Darville Orr, former vice-president of the board, automatically became president upon Smith's resignation.

In other action, the board approved replacement of windows at Baker, Horace Mann and Woodrow Wilson elementary schools. Energy-efficient windows are to be installed at the schools by Western Building Specialties, a Lubbock company. Cost of the project is $74,617.

The board postponed awarding a bid for similar work at Stephen F. Austin, Lamar and Travis elementary schools and Pampa Middle School, so the district can apply for up to 50 percent in matching federal funds. Trustees, however, were not optimistic about obtaining the funds.

A brief discussion concerning renovation of the Pampa High School Auditorium turned into an oral give-and-take between the board and a PHS student after trustees expressed reluctance about the project.

The run-down auditorium has been used for several years as the headquarters of the high school drama department. This year the department will be moving to Room 201.

Arrington advised the board to look carefully at renovation of the auditorium because of its small size.

"I'm not ready to spend money to fix it up as an auditorium," he said.

Last year, Orr noted, it would have cost an estimated $185,000 for "bare minimum work" on the auditorium. The board's long-range planning committee decided facilities at M.K. Brown Auditorium and Pampa Middle School were adequate for high school use, he added.

Lynn Pyle, a drama student at Pampa High, then asked the board "What are your intentions for new equipment in the auditorium?"

Superintendent Bob Phillips replied that, to his knowledge, additional equipment was not requested by the drama department. The board made no reductions in the requested departmental budget, he said.

"We're not asking for the complete renovation of the auditorium," Pyle said. "We're asking for some new equipment to further our education."

The light dimmer panel in the auditorium was manufactured in 1941, he said, and students have been electrically shocked while using it.

PHS Principal Paul Payne should have told students not to use the panel, Phillips said. A new panel, he said, would cost at least $25,000.

Trustee Paul Simmons asked Pyle if he knew the source of recent unauthorized fund-raising efforts on behalf of the drama department. Simmons said students are taking jars, labeled "Help us do what the school board won't do," to local businesses to solicit money for the auditorium.

Arrington produced one such jar that had been left in the dental office of Trustee Dr. Robert Lyle. Board members made it clear they were irritated by the solicitations.

Pyle and two other students denied any knowledge of the jars. They said drama students are performing a play and selling advertisements in the play program to raise money for new equipment.

Arrington said the unauthorized jars are "very negative," and he told the students they need to "work through the system" to get the new equipment.

At the end of the meeting the board went into closed session to discuss personnel matters. Trustees accepted the resignation of Nita Sue Hambrick as fourth grade teacher at Austin School.

The following people were hired: Mary Ann Hoskins, to teach fourth grade at Austin; Andrew C. Harris, building trades instructor at Pampa High; and Mary Reeve, to teach speech therapy at Lamar and Travis schools.

County to continue budget talks

Gray County commissioners will continue discussion of the 1980 budget when the commissioners court meets in regular session Thursday at 9:30 a.m. in the Gray County Courthouse.

Commissioners have tentatively set 7 percent increase guidelines for county employee salaries in the formulation of the 1980 budget. But department heads and some commissioners have indicated a need for a 10 percent salary hike for employees.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan has requested $100 monthly increases for employees in his department, amounting to 11 to 15 percent salary increases. Commissioners have indicated that they may follow suit in requesting 10 percent salary increases for road and bridge employees.

In related business, commissioners will also review salary increases for District Adult Probation employees. Although the adult probation office is funded by the state and overseen by the 223rd and 31st district judges, the county is responsible for the department's social security and hospital benefits matching funds.

Commissioners are also scheduled to discuss appropriation of funds for the replacement of the roof of the White Deer Land Museum and will consider a change in the budget to provide insulation for the residence at Perry Lefors Airfield. The house is provided by the county to the assistant manager of the airport.

The court will also hear a briefing by Tracy Cary on the status of the Gray County history publication, will consider the treasurer's report, and receive bids on the sale of a used tractor belonging to Precinct 3.

Kissinger confident about Carter dealing with Soviet troop trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today he believes the Carter administration can be successful in its diplomatic effort to resolve the issue of Soviet troops in Cuba.

"I support the administration in demanding an end to the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba," Kissinger said on NBC's "Today" show. "I think the administration can be successful and I support the efforts of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance in that matter."

Senate consideration of the SALT II treaty is virtually at a standstill pending the outcome of ongoing administration talks with the Soviet Union on the situation.

Vance said Tuesday that his talks with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin on the troops issue were "not hopeless." He did not elaborate.

Vance discussed the issue with Dobrynin for the first time Monday. More talks were scheduled today.

The presence of between 2,000 and 3,000 combat troops was revealed last week by U.S. intelligence officials, who said the brigade had been there for some time.

"No policy-making official in the previous administration was ever told" about the presence of such a brigade, Kissinger said. "We never faced, as a policy issue, that question."

Kissinger noted that former President Richard M. Nixon, whose administration he served, was particularly sensitive to the ramifications of the Soviet presence in Cuba. He added he did not believe it was "helpful" to squabble about possible shortcomings.

Teachers still on picket lines

High school football players in Pasco, Wash., say they want their coaches back after suffering a humiliating shutout and a judge has threatened to jail strikers in Anchorage, Alaska, as nearly 50,000 teachers carry picket signs today in 14 states.

An Associated Press survey showed that more than 860,000 pupils are affected by teacher walkouts.

The opening of classes was canceled for 60,000 pupils today in San Francisco after the city's 3,800 teachers voted by a 2-to-1 margin to strike.

"Public education in this country is in real trouble," said Superintendent Robert Aloto as he announced Tuesday that the city's 120 schools would be shut down at least until Monday.

The teachers are demanding a 15.7 percent pay increase over two years. They also want reinstatement of 1,200 regular teachers laid off last year for budgetary reasons.

In the nation's largest strike this year, a three-day walkout by 12,000 Detroit teachers is keeping 213,000 pupils out of school.

Alabama joined the strike roll when 569 teachers walked picket lines in Jasper on Tuesday in a dispute over reinstatement of 42 dismissed teachers.

Paterson, N.J., teachers vote today on a proposed contract after a tentative settlement for the 1,700 teachers was reached Tuesday. Picketing continued in Woodbridge and Perth Amboy, N.J., but schools remained open.

Chamber elects new officers

Arthur Aftergut, owner of Texas Pipe and Metal Co., was elected president of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce this morning by the chamber board of directors.

Royce Brandt, operations manager at Celanese Chemical Co., was elected first vice-president, and J.L. Marcum, co-owner of Marcum Langen Pontiac, Buick, was elected second vice president.

Paul Simmons, who is associated with Simmons Business Services Corp., was chosen as finance director.

Board members elected Edgar Sweet, comptroller and vice president of Security Federal Savings & Loan Assn., to fill a two-year unexpired board term vacated by the resignation of Charles B. Cook.

Jim Ward, owner of Ward's Minit Mart No. 6; Rick Oncken, publisher of the Pampa News; and Jane Gattis of Gattis Shoe Store were appointed by Aftergut, with board approval, to serve one-year terms on the board.

The next board of directors meeting will be conducted at 4 p.m. Sept 26 in the chamber office. A dinner meeting for membership to kick off this year's United Way campaign will be held at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 1 in the Heritage Room at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Formal installation of officers will be conducted Oct. 18 at the Pampa Country Club. The chamber's annual banquet will be held Oct. 25 in the Heritage Room, with Don Newbury of Tarrant County College as guest speaker.

WT names Lightfoot to post

By DAN LACKEY
Of The Pampa News

Randy Lightfoot, Pampa News sports editor, was hired Tuesday as head track coach and assistant cross country coach at West Texas State University.

Lightfoot, a six-time All-American in track during high school and college, will assume his duties as head of the men's and women's track programs Sept. 18—a day after the cross country Buffaloes opening meet.

Lightfoot replaces Bob Kitchens, who recently resigned to accept the head track coach's job at Mississippi State. Kitchens headed the WTSU track program for eleven years, during which time he coached Buffalo track squads to national recognition.

Lightfoot was notified of his acceptance for the job Tuesday by Dr. Myron Dees, WTSU Athletic Director.

"The university and the athletic department is very pleased and fortunate to have secured the talents of this fine young man," Dees said. "Randy has what we feel are a great many of the talents, attitudes and combination of skills that will enhance the program and allow it to maintain a succession of victories."

Lightfoot, a Plainview High track standout, tied the national schoolboy record in the 120-yard high hurdles in 1971 with a time of 13.4.

He attended the University of Texas from 1971 to 1975, where he ran track for three years and majored in journalism. He transferred to Wayland Baptist College in 1976, graduating in 1978 with a B.S. in Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

"This is a classic example of being in the right place at the right time," Lightfoot said of his appointment. "I've always wanted to coach at the college level. It's been a life-long dream for me."

Lightfoot, who at 26 has worked as a sports editor and reporter since his graduation from Wayland, said that despite his lack of experience "I'm confident I'm still a good choice for the job."

"What Lightfoot lacks in experience, he'll make up for in enthusiasm," said WTSU sports information director King Hill. "Randy's academic background in physical education and his background as an athlete make him an excellent choice for the job."

Lightfoot will be assisted by Ed McCallister.

Praising Kitchens for having taken the WTSU track program "from the depths to national recognition," Lightfoot said one of the major assets of the WTSU team this year is the returning mile relay team which was an NCAA finalist last spring. The Buffaloes, opening their indoor season January 27 in Lubbock against Lubbock Christian, are expecting strong performances by sprinters David Thomas and John Thomas. Daniel Melnyk, a Toronto triple jumper, will be the Buffaloes' main asset in the field events. McCallister said. Mark Owinyo, a Buffalo hurdler, another national contender, with strong support from Kenya distance stars Johnson Bett and Joseph Barno. Lightfoot, his wife, Penni, and their 13-month old son, James, will be living in Canyon.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

IN WASHINGTON

richard e. cohen

WASHINGTON (NEA) - When senators return to work following the August recess, many will find to their regret that the nation's energy problems have not disappeared. Nor have President Carter's plans to remedy our excessive dependence on oil imports.

The Senate plans to begin work by mid-September on Carter's energy package. While the debate may not be as long or bitter as the filibuster that marked the Senate's handling of Carter's 1977 energy plan, the odds are that the Senate will cut back substantially on his recommendations.

The centerpiece of Carter's televised energy speech in July was his call for an Energy Security Corporation, which would assist businesses developing new energy production techniques, especially the use of synthetic fuels derived from coal, natural gas, oil shale and other products.

For a projected cost of $88 billion, Carter said this program could produce by 1990 the equivalent of 2.5 million barrels of oil per day; currently the nation imports daily roughly 8 million barrels of the black gold.

But recent testimony by the head of the Office of Technology Assessment, a little known congressional office that analyzes the long-term implications of scientific changes, said Carter's plan is wrongheaded.

"It is unrealistic to expect that synthetic fuel plants can supply more than a token amount of energy to this nation before the end of the 1980s," said John H. Gibbons.

He cited a litany of problems that will impede development of synfuels and increase their costs, including a lack of experience in building and operating the huge plants that would be required, severe environmental and safety costs and the desirability of experimenting with other new forms of energy.

Instead, Gibbons called for a stronger national commitment to conservation with government helping citizens to understand the major savings from relatively inexpensive investments. For example, he said the use of solar heat, such as windows facing south, is a cheap use of the sun's heat and the last inexpensive "source" of energy available to the nation.

Energy consumption also can be saved by converting homes and industrial plants to reduce their use of heat and hot water.

"A skillful program for retrofitting our industries and refurbishing buildings to reduce energy consumption can create and ensure employment in critical buildings and manufacturing industries in existing cities," said Gibbons. "The amount of energy which we can save in the next decade will almost certainly dwarf the amount we can produce from new sources during the same period."

Studies by the General Accounting Office concluded that it would cost the Treasury roughly one-tenth the money to save a barrel of oil by providing tax incentives to consumers compared to purchasing the equivalent amount by building a synthetic fuel plant.

Gibbons unveiled an alternative approach to Carter's plan for reducing energy imports. By allowing a 3 percent rise in energy consumption during the next decade — compared to Carter's projected 20 percent increase — the nation would not have to launch a "crash" synfuels program with all its risks and financial burdens.

Of course, the only way to limit consumption without causing national economic problems is to encourage conservation. Too many Americans regard saving energy as an admission of national failure and a sign that we can no longer have whatever we want.

In fact, national leaders should emphasize that steps such as improving home insulation and storm windows, driving more efficient automobiles and using more modern industrial power processes is simply good sense.

At the very least, it should make more sense to the Senate than spending tens of billions of dollars in a few years for complex new plants with uncertain production capacity and potentially severe social costs.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 12, the 255th day of 1979. There are 110 days left in the year.

On this date in 1944, the first American troops reached German soil in World War II.

On this date: In 1814, American forces successfully defended Baltimore against the British in the War of 1812.

In 1869, the National Prohibition Party was organized in Chicago.

In 1943, during World War II, dictator Benito Mussolini was rescued by German paratroopers from a hotel where he was being held by the Italian government.

In 1945, Gen. Douglas MacArthur had the secret Black Dragon Society dissolved in Japan and many of its leaders arrested.

In 1953, Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts married Jacqueline Bouvier in Newport, R.I.

In 1965, an estimated 75 people were killed when Hurricane Betsy hit Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Arkansas.

Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon ordered bombing missions resumed in the Vietnam war, saying the Communists did not intend to scale down the fighting.

Five years ago: Marcus Wayne Chennault was sentenced to death for murdering Dr. Martin Luther King's mother and a Baptist church deacon.

One year ago: Busing began for 62,000 Los Angeles pupils in an effort to integrate the nation's second-largest school district. Many parents kept their children home in protest.

OPINION PAGE

By producing more, we can consume more

We hear it from the White House, from the pulpit, from the fat-cat politician and from the liberal, do-gooding, bleeding-heart crowd that America must lower its standard of living.

This concept is a distortion from the minds of persons of little faith in this nation.

They point out that we are in economic trouble because we consume too much.

They err.

We are in trouble because we do not produce enough — and market it wisely. We as a people have been encouraged by a deficit-spending, overgrown federal government to be dependent on it, to work less, to subdue our incentives, to quit competing and to embrace a socialistic way of life.

Our "leaders" tell us that we as a nation have reached our peak of greatness and now must relax and slip backward toward a level with the Second Rate and Third World nations.

They err, and their philosophy is one of rotten, putrid "reasoning."

Despite our current misuses, America still has many pluses, a potential for a greatness like which it has never achieved. That greatness will come with a turn-around back to a nation of super-producers producing more and being aggressively competitive in marketing more at home and abroad.

This country not only has fallen upon times of raging inflation and declining economy caused by the wild, deficit spending by government, but there are other deficits involved. We must realize that we never came to our "first in the world" greatness by simply generating and marketing our production at home. We were leaders in world trade.

But international trade involves four basic producers of wealth. They are fishing, farming, mining (oil and gas included) and manufacturing.

We have plus only in agricultural products in international trade. We have minus — deficits, if you please — in fishing, mining and manufacturing.

We are consuming faster than we are producing. And because of this our "leaders" cry out that we must lower our standard of living.

Throughout the history of the nation we have been a country of producers who also were consumers. We had pride in what we made and in what we had.

We had plenty.

Then came a time when the spoil of a nation began, with Big Labor making more and more demands on industry and with government regulations of industry becoming production barriers, until the cost of production was so great that consumers turned to buying more and more imports.

The old American pride of product and work ethic became weak, and industrial incentive, also lost strength. And on the political and diplomatic fronts, the politicians, bureaucrats and other bunglers make matters worse in every approach to international trade. American industry and business was left strangled, regulated, taxed, discouraged and with little incentive left.

So now we are consuming heavily but our production is not at the same rate. We can improve our capacity to produce, but at the same time we must increase our actual productivity. Then we could see some results, for as our volume of production would go up, the prices of our goods would remain competitive on the world market. And if our American made goods are competitive, we homefolks will buy them instead of foreign imports.

f, of course, we are given the opportunity. And through our competitiveness in world trade, the deficits in international commerce will fade away, and we will have returned to our first-place position in world trade.

It is that simple: We can consume more, if we produce more and market more at home and abroad. Less simple is how to reach that position. The answer is government must get out of the marketplace, and instead of its taxing, regulating, and discouraging, through its courtship of Big Labor, our producers, it could step entirely out of the picture and let the old-fashioned American self-reliance, confidence, resourcefulness and competitive spirit rise to its fullest.

Then America will be back on its way to first place, its standard of living will rise higher than it ever was, and bleats of those with little faith in the nation will grow faint. America is not ready for a bush-league rating. It is not of the Third World. And should never be.

COMMENTARY

The anatomy of terrorism

Terrorism is a weapon of weakness.

Those who resort to it are in effect acknowledging that they are in a position of inferiority to their opposition, and that they do not have confidence in their ability to improve it by other means.

It also reeks of cowardice in that it is customarily employed against the weak, or the unsuspecting and undefended.

Those who do resort to it usually believe they have good reasons and much to gain in doing so. They may be employing it as political blackmail, to extort funds and, above all, for publicity, to impress the public and weaken opposition.

The assassination of Earl Mountbatten is an appalling demonstration of the latter. His murderers could not have made a more devastating impression on the British public short of striking at the queen herself. And having come this close to the throne, there is no reason to doubt that they are capable of exactly that.

The long-term effectiveness of terrorism is something else again. It rarely if ever gains or even significantly advances the ends that motivate the terrorists.

The Mountbatten murder recalls in some respects that of Count Folke Bernadotte 30 years ago as the Arab-Jewish war in Palestine was at its bloody and inconclusive climax. A member of the Swedish royal family heading the United Nations effort to effect a compromise settlement, Bernadotte was murdered by an extremist Jewish faction opposed to an approaching truce.

The event shocked the world, but it was a life taken to no purpose. It had no discernible influence then or subsequently on the course of events in the Mideast. The political and social forces then and now at work transcend the significance of any one individual.

Mountbatten's death is also the work of a faction — a faction, in fact, of the Irish Republican Army. It, too, shocks the world. But the likelihood that it will have an effect beyond that, encouraging British withdrawal from Northern Ireland, is slight, if the initial reaction of British press and officialdom is any indication.

And it is to be hoped that it does not instigate the opposite, a campaign of repression. For it is over-retaliation that the real dangers of terrorism often lie for its victims. They may be provoked into betraying the very values it has been their purpose to defend and that terrorism could not destroy directly.

Despite the havoc they are capable of wreaking and the headlines they reap, true terrorists are few in number. And for all that they usually claim to be striking for a popular cause, their methods may represent little more than the acting out of their own black hatreds.

For all that their actions may be rooted in history, such as Ireland's tortured own, they are not revolutionaries motivated by a broad view of what is past and what should come but by introverted fanatics. Theirs are warped, overly personalized psyches isolated from the spirit of the larger society.

This may be their weakness, but it is also their weapon in a no-holds-barred assault upon that society. Being few they are difficult to identify. Being fanatic they are not open to reason and the recognition of the rights and interests of others that could lead to compromise. And being many, the individuals within a society are difficult to protect.

In the end their outrages may have no real effect upon the march of history. They are no match for society's momentum.

But so long as the terrorist is prepared to sacrifice everything and everyone to his warped purposes, every individual who does not share his fanaticism is a potential victim.

Its Millard Fillmore calling, Sir

By D.R. SEGAL

You are cordially invited to become a member and Beloved Director of the Millard Fillmore Society of which I have the honor of being the Beloved Founder. The Millard Fillmore Society is a high-purpose organization whose sole aim is to wipe out the practice of "Who's calling, please?"

This pesky annoyance, practiced by secretaries whose bosses want to be protected from sudden confrontations with lawyers, insurance peddlers and angry wives, needs to be eradicated. The Millard Fillmore Society is dedicated to this high purpose. The way we are going to rub out the practice is invariably to reply, "Millard Fillmore here."

As Beloved Founder of the Millard Fillmore Society — and we have thousands of Beloved Directors all over the country — I can tell you it is a noble cause. Fun, too.

You call J. Alvin Beemis, president of the Beemis Boom & Bust Realty Company, and the chicky on the horn says, "May I say who's calling, please?"

"Millard Fillmore," you reply, quick as a flash.

Now, one of several interesting things happen. One, the chick says, "Huh?" Two, she says, "Errr, Mr. Millman?" (Patiently, you correct her.) Finally she puts you on hold and presently J. Alvin Beemis himself is on the phone.

"Yessss," he said, tentatively. Now, I will tell you why.

Everybody has heard of Millard Fillmore. But who is he?

Even J. Alvin, up to his clavicle in land-fraud enterprising, can remember the name. Is it a big client? That no-good brother-in-law of the wife's? The girlfriend's husband? He's heard the name but he can't place it. But they always talk to Millard Fillmore. Just try it and see.

A bonus situation occurs when the chickie says "Fillard Milmore" is calling and the dope in the Big Office doesn't know the difference.

If everybody joined our Society (as a Beloved Director, of course) we'd have this who's-calling? thing stamped out by Shrove Tuesday next. Two of the top fellows in very large corporations are members of our club and they write me every once in awhile of their hilarious experience when they call their peers and give the sec'y. The Millard Fillmore treatment.

You will observe, too, that we have no officers, no meetings, no dues. Everybody is a Beloved Director right from the start.

If you would like to be one of us, just smear a little blood on your forehead and promise always to say, "Millard Fillmore here," when the girl says, "who's calling please?"

And let me know some of the more interesting results, hear?

Parking regulations extended by city

A recommendation to extend downtown parking regulations on S. Cuyler Street from the Santa Fe Railroad underpass to the 500 block of S. Cuyler was approved by the Pampa Traffic Commission at a luncheon meeting Tuesday.

The commission also recommended banning overnight parking in the area of the city bounded by Ballard Street, Browning Avenue, Somerville Street and the railroad tracks, plus the portion of S. Cuyler between the underpass and the 500 block.

The recommendations were made at the request of Kenneth Smith, representing Pampa Feed & Seed Inc. at 518 S. Cuyler. Smith told commission members an auto repair shop in the 500 block is parking cars in front of other businesses on the street. The cars stay on the street for as long as six weeks, he said.

Smith and Bill King, owner of Kirby Sales and Service at 512 S. Cuyler, had appeared before the city commission with the request Tuesday morning and were asked to take their problem to the traffic commission. Traffic commission members noted that they recommended banning overnight parking in the downtown area months ago, but nothing was done by the city commission.

"You fellas have to get after them (city commissioners)" to get something done about the new parking recommendations, commission member Floyd Sackett told Smith and King.

Commission members also heard a request to reactivate the traffic light at the intersection of Cuyler and Atchison Avenue, but did not make a recommendation. Most members seemed to favor leaving the light as a yellow flashing signal.

John Sanders told the commission a stop light is needed because traffic now travels through the intersection at 50-60 miles per hour during the day, making it difficult for customers to get in and out of parking spaces in front of businesses on the street.

Commission member Aubra Nooncaster, defending the flashing signal, said "Atchison was almost a dead street when that light was there."

"It's a bad situation either way, but I think it's better now than it was before," said Pernal Scoggin, commission chairman.

The commission agreed to study accident rate statistics for the street, to determine if reactivating the light is necessary.

A recommendation to reserve six parking spaces in front of the White Deer Land Museum at 116 S. Cuyler also was made by the commission. The spaces would be for the use of museum patrons; two would specifically be reserved for handicapped persons.

Commission members agreed on the recommendation even though they were advised by R.B. Cooke, city public works director, that reserving spaces on a public street may be illegal.

Mrs. Fred Thompson asked for the recommendation, saying the reserved spaces would be a courtesy for visitors to the museum from other towns. The museum is one of Pampa's prime tourist attractions, she said.

Currently, out-of-towners occasionally get parking citations, Mrs. Thompson said, and "it doesn't look too good for our community."

McCrorry says he lied to defense attorneys

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Prosecution witness David McCrorry says he lied to a defense attorney last August to curb demands by Cullen Davis that he hire an assassin to commit mass murder.

McCrorry's testimony tends to blunt the impact of a "dynamite" tape recording of the meeting which the millionaire defendant's lawyers contend plunges to the heart of the defense theory.

During a long, angry exchange Tuesday afternoon, lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes questioned McCrorry repeatedly about threats the witness said Davis made.

"What I had in mind was telling (defense attorney) Steve Sumner things he would take back to Cullen and he would really believe I could help in the divorce trial," McCrorry said of the Aug. 7, 1978, meeting.

"I was scared."
"You were scared?" Haynes asked, raising an eyebrow.
"There'd been a man threatening to kill me and my family," McCrorry snapped back. "Certainly I was scared, Mr. Haynes."

Shortly after the exchange, McCrorry angrily crushed a styrofoam drinking cup and threw it to the floor.
The 41-year-old witness has told jurors Davis threatened him beginning in May of 1978 if McCrorry did not carry out the defendant's orders to hire a killer. Davis is standing trial on charges he tried to buy the murder of his divorce judge, Joe Eidson.

Tuesday, jurors heard a recording of the Aug. 7 meeting during which Sumner asked McCrorry what he knew that might aid Davis' multi-million dollar divorce from Priscilla Davis.

McCrorry testified he lied to Sumner about certain things on the tape to boost his position with Davis.

"I was between a rock and a hard place, so I told Steve Sumner everything I thought he would go back to Cullen with and Cullen would not be angry with me," he said.

"Did you know the Aug. 7 meeting with Steve Sumner was being recorded?" Haynes asked later.

"I had to assume he was. He always did," McCrorry said.
McCrorry admitted, however, that he did not see a recorder. Sumner testified Monday he hid the machine in his briefcase and turned it on before meeting with McCrorry.
"Why did you tell Steve Sumner a lie?" Haynes asked.
"I thought it might give me a little breathing room and not put quite as much pressure on me," McCrorry said. "I decided I could bolster my own position a little bit."

"Why did you tell Steve Sumner that (Priscilla Davis' divorce attorney) Jerry Loftin wanted you?" Haynes continued.

"That would mean that I would be subject to be put on the witness stand in Judge Eidson's court," McCrorry said. "That would mean I wouldn't have anything else to do with spying on Judge Eidson's house and trying to hire somebody to kill someone."

Among the items restricted by Gray were the Davis divorce trial, two conflicting and damaging statements by McCrorry relating to a 1976 murder trial and purported threats by the Tarrant County district attorney's office involving one of the 1976 statements.

Gray also halted queries into the relationship between former Fort Worth karate instructor Pat Burleson and Priscilla Davis.

The tape tends to impeach prior testimony of McCrorry, Burleson and Priscilla, a trio the defense claims framed Davis on the murder solicitation charge. The tape was not used during the first trial in Houston, a proceeding which ended in a mistrial.

"I wanted to use it in Houston, but Racehorse didn't," Sumner said.

SEDCO given guarantee against liability in spill

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — An order signed by a federal judge gives SEDCO Inc. an interim guarantee against liability for the massive oil spill caused when an offshore drilling rig it leased to Mexico blew out June 3.

U.S. District Judge Robert O'Connor granted the interim guarantee Tuesday and set Oct. 23 as the deadline for the filing of all damage claims in federal court.

O'Connor's action came after attorneys for the Dallas-based company founded by Gov. Bill Clements, whose interest are being held in a blind trust, asked the judge to exonerate it of all liability or set its liability for damages caused by the oil well mishap in the Bay of Campeche to $300,000.

The company's attorneys say that is the amount SEDCO would have earned in the lease to the Mexican drilling company.

No claims have been filed yet, but SEDCO attorney Eugene J. Silva said various parties have indicated intent to do so and may ask O'Connor for a deadline postponement.
Clements, who is traveling in the Soviet Union, has said, "There is no foundation for any statement that SEDCO is responsible (for the blowout) or the equipment was defective."

Attorney General Mark White, who has advocated suing Mexico for damages from the oil spill that has been called the worst in history, said the legal action raised serious questions in his mind.

"This is exactly the type of precipitous legal action which they and the governor have asked us not to engage in," White said from his office in Austin.

Examiner turns down motion in Bell case

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Texas Public Utility Commission hearing examiner has turned down a motion to dismiss Southwestern Bell Telephone's $145.2 million rate increase case.

Phil Ricketts acted late Tuesday on a motion by Ray Besing, attorney for Microwave Communications Inc., which competes with Bell for long distance business and uses Bell circuits to complete calls.

Besing said Bell had failed to prove its need for greater revenues and had based its case on "hearsay, conclusions and rank speculation" instead of solid evidence.

Of all the businesses in the nation, he said, the Bell system is "the most bullet-proof against risk."

Jon Dee Lawrence, attorney for Bell, accused Besing of "convoluted logic" and of making a "grandstand play."

"Because Mr. Besing doesn't like what we have placed in evidence, he objects of

He said a traditional opponent of rate increases, the Texas Municipal League, as well as the PUC staff had recognized Bell's need for additional revenue, "based on standard ratemaking principals."

The municipal league and the commission staff have recommended smaller increases than Bell requested.

In another development, PUC economic researcher Julie Parsons filed recommended increases in Bell's monthly charges for basic local telephone service.

Brutality charge flung at police

HOUSTON (AP) — Complaints of brutality, arrogance and harassment were flung at the Houston Police Department during the second day of hearings on police practices by the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

U.S. Attorney J.A. "Tony" Canales said Tuesday none of the officers charged with violating the rights of minority citizens "ever said they were sorry for their actions."

And Houston attorney Steven Shiflett said police treatment of homosexuals "chips away at the rights of privacy."

Shiflett, president of the Houston Gay Political Caucus, said gays are subjected to "physical and verbal abuse by policemen on the street and in the jails. This action shocks the confidence in law enforcement."

In the two days of hearings on alleged police brutality in Houston, a spokeswoman for the Public Interest Advocacy Center said 37 cases of police abuse had been referred to the police department since Jan. 1, 1979.

Jenifer Schave told the commission that most of the cases had been answered "with arrogance and disbelief. Action of any type was taken only on two cases."

Canales said the situation in the nation's fifth largest city has improved in the past five years, however.

Just a short time ago, he said, "we couldn't even get a police brutality charge out of the grand jury. Now, any time a police officer tries to hide anything, they are in trouble."

Between 30 and 50 police brutality complaints are brought to the attention of the U.S. attorney's office each year, said the chief of its civil rights division.

But a heavy case load means only a few of these can be brought to trial, said Mary Sinderson.

Mayor Jim McConn testified he was sure there were some police "that didn't belong there. And we hope to remove them when possible."

Former state District Judge Andrew Jefferson joined several other witnesses in calling for some kind of "outside monitor" to investigate police activities.

Criticism of the Houston police department came under the national spotlight in May 1977 when Joe Campos Torres, a 23-year-old Mexican-American, drowned while in police custody. Three officers were convicted of violating the civil rights of Torres, but received probated sentences.

Bus driver testifies in accident

COLORADO CITY, Texas (AP) — A school bus driver testified he received a settlement from the owners of a truck involved in a fatal collision with the bus, but he denied blaming his injuries partly on the manufacturer of the bus.

William Clarence Dixon Jr., driver of the oil field servicing truck, is charged with three counts of involuntary manslaughter in connection with that crash last December that killed four and injured 20.

Former McCaulley School Superintendent Edd Farmer, driver of the bus, said Tuesday he signed a settlement with Cardinal Survey Co. of Odessa, which owned the truck.

However, he hedged when asked about statements in the documents accompanying the settlement that alleged his injuries may have been blamed partly on the manufacturer of the bus.

BORGER — Services for Martha T. Warren, 96, will be at 2 p.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church Chapel, with the Rev. Dr. Charles Thrasher, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Highland Park Cemetery in Borger, under the direction of Minton, Chatwell Funeral Directors in Borger.

Mrs. Warren, who died this morning in North Plains Hospital in Borger, was born Nov. 26, 1883, in Alto County, Tex. The oldest charter member of the First Baptist Church in Borger, she had been a resident there since 1945.

Survivors are a daughter, Mrs. B.L. Briggs of Borger; three sons, L.D. Warren and A.J. Warren, both of Borger, and Jess Warren of Fritch; a brother, Jim Miller, and a sister, Mrs. W.L. Groce, both of Como, Tex.; seven grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

police report

Two men, Jimmy Chilton, 81, and George Melvin, 86, were arrested by Pampa police Tuesday in separate shoplifting incidents at Frank's Foods on Cuyler Street. Chilton reportedly left the store without paying for a bottle of liquid ointment which he had allegedly hidden in his boot. Melvin reportedly left without paying for a bottle of pills. Both men paid $53.50 fines and were released from custody.

Dave Perkins, 52, of Amarillo, reported the theft of a plaster mixer valued at $1000 from a Beech Street residence.

Betty Garren, 121 E. 19th St., reported the theft of gasoline from her vehicle while it was parked at her residence.

Allen Garrett, 25, of Lefors, was arrested in the 1000 block of N. Hobart Street and charged with driving while intoxicated.

fire report

5 p.m. Tuesday — Firemen were called to the 700 block of W. Brown Street in response to a grass and trash fire. The cause of the fire was an electric grinder. Only minor damage was reported.

This week in Pampa

A LEFTIST with drawn pistol drops to the ground attempting to shelter behind a curb Tuesday after word that El Salvadoran police were approaching spread through a crowd of more than 2,000 demonstrators. The word proved false, but more than 50 demonstrators whipped out guns when they heard the rumor. (AP Laserphoto)

Leftist demonstrations increasing

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist demonstrations in El Salvador's capital are increasing in size but the military government is standing back in an apparent attempt to keep the situation from exploding.

Some 800 marched Monday, 4,000 demonstrated Tuesday and President Carlos Humberto Romero's regime expects as many as 30,000 Saturday as El Salvador celebrates 138 years of independence from Spain.

The leftists say they have no faith in government pledges to hold free congressional and mayoral elections in March, but Romero's regime has vowed not to be provoked into turning the demonstrations into violent showdowns.

About 2,500 masked, chanting demonstrators, many of them armed, poured through the streets of San Salvador Tuesday afternoon demanding an end to Romero's government.

Another 1,500 left the University of El Salvador campus Tuesday evening on what was to have been a torchlight parade to the American Embassy. But a pouring rain drenched the marchers half way, and by the time they finished the 30-minute trek to the embassy their flaming torches were reduced to bundles of smoldering rags on sticks.

Several firebombs were hurled into one intersection to stop traffic but there were no other incidents and no injuries.

The daytime march started in the eastern industrial suburb of Soyapango and wound into the city, stopping first at the Labor Ministry.

The march ended at the National Cathedral, which had been occupied for the past 2 1/2 weeks by members of the leftist Popular Unified Action Front.

As the marchers arrived, the Front announced an end to the occupation, claiming a victory on the basis of the release of one of its members from government detention.

It was not immediately clear why the prisoner was released or why he had been detained in the first place.

However, most of the other churches in the country remained occupied, mostly by the peasant-labor Popular Revolutionary Bloc, El Salvador's other major activist organization.

Four months ago government forces opened fire on Salvadorans bringing food to Bloc demonstrators occupying the National Cathedral, killing 25 and wounding about 60.

Sporadic violence has continued since then. On Thursday, the president's brother, Jose Javier Romero, was shot to death by guerrillas who broke into his house in Apopo, 15 miles north of El Salvador.

Over the weekend, seven leftist students were killed in an ambush in eastern El Salvador and four policemen were slain by leftist guerrillas in two separate attacks.

German jetliner hijacked

COLOGNE, West Germany (AP) — A Lufthansa jetliner with 121 passengers aboard was hijacked today on a flight from Frankfurt to Cologne, an airline spokesman said.

Airport sources said there were at least two hijackers aboard and that they demanded Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and the news media come to the airport so they could make a statement.

Chancellor aide Hans-Juergen Wischewski, who has handled previous hijackings, entered the airport control tower immediately after the demand was received.

The plane, a Boeing 727, left Frankfurt at 9:55 a.m. and landed 30 minutes later as scheduled in Cologne. The Cologne-Bonn airport was closed and security forces took up positions.

The Lufthansa spokesman said there was an eight-person crew aboard the plane, which is named the Muenster.

The pilot was identified as Rainer Misar, 38.

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Motorists once again could find themselves waiting in long gas lines because of the repeal of odd-even gasoline rationing plans.

That's the opinion of oil industry executives who say they fear motorists will return to old driving habits and use more fuel. That, in turn, could threaten heating oil supplies for the coming winter, they say.

"The motorist is going to have to continue to think about the supply of gasoline because we're in an era right now of a real thin line between supply and demand," Shell Oil spokesman Tom Denman said Tuesday. Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia were the latest of several jurisdictions to announce a repeal of rationing plans.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elderly cataract patients should be the main recipients of intraocular lens implants, recommends a group of eye specialists.

Younger patients should get the implants only if they can't use glasses or contact lenses, said experts attending a National Institutes of Health conference Tuesday. They also said that in most cases, the implants should be placed in only one eye initially.

The conference participants concluded that the implants are "almost as safe as cataract extraction alone," but cautioned that they carry a small but significant risk of additional complications.

WASHINGTON (AP) — No new bargaining talks are scheduled between the Rock Island railroad and its two striking unions after efforts to revive the stalled contract negotiations failed.

Federal mediators called officials of the Chicago-based railroad to separate meetings with the striking unions Tuesday. But after the talks, chief mediator George S. Ives said "no immediate progress was made" toward ending the two-week strike that has snarled freight shipments in 13 states and shut down the line's Chicago-area commuter service. Members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks and the United Transportation Union are striking over a back pay dispute.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is joining the House in agreeing to lift all restrictions on U.S. economic assistance to Uganda, now that the regime of Idi Amin has been ousted from that east African nation.

The Senate, by a voice vote Tuesday, also agreed with the House to retain sanctions against military aid to Uganda. The restrictions were initially drawn up to protest Amin's rule. The Senate vote came on a legislative compromise worked out with House negotiators. The House earlier agreed to the compromise by a 280-69 vote.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, E.D.

Cynthia, from Santa Barbara, Calif., wants to know how old a girl should be before she starts dating.

Dave King, 17, who lives in Dubuque, Iowa, and Carla Meers, 17, from Elyria, Ohio, will add their two cents. Welcome to all three teens.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and all my friends who are my age are dating and several are going steady.

My parents refuse to allow me to date until I'm 16 and that won't be for another seven months.

Can you please give me your thoughts on this? I hope they are liberal because my mom always reads your column. — Cynthia, Santa Barbara, Calif.

Cynthia: I find it difficult to set an age for the first date. Some girls (and boys) are capable of dating when they are 14, but others who are 15 and 16 are not. Teens are ready to date when they are mature enough to accept the responsibility and abide by the limits set by their parents.

Hi Cynthia: I started dating when I was 14 and so was the girl. We were freshmen and our first date was to our high school football game.

Since high school is an important time in a teen's life both educationally and socially, I think they should be allowed to date when they get there.

Many times parents make more out of dating than there really is. After all, a date is no more than spending time together with someone you enjoy. It just happens that this person is of the opposite sex. — Dave, Dubuque, Iowa

Hello Cynthia: I started dating at 15 and felt very comfortable about it. My oldest sister also started dating at 15 but my youngest sister is now 15, and she says that she has no desire to start dating at this time.

I guess if I had a daughter, I would let her date when she was 15.

I do feel that when a teen starts dating, regardless of age, the key word must be trust. — Carla, Elyria, Ohio

If you would like to be a guest teen writer, please write to me, in care of this newspaper, stating your sex and age.

Pop-up' creator

Designer puts action in storybooks

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Though he once made the Red Sea part for Moses, he insists his most difficult accomplishment has been constructing a palace ballroom for Cinderella.

On any list of unusual occupations, Bruce Baker's job would be a worthy addition. Officially described as a "paper mechanicals engineer," he designs paper pop-ups for children's storybooks.

Pop-ups are intricately folded and cut paper designs that spring to life as a book's pages are turned. They also include special mechanical designs that can be manipulated by small paper wheels and pull tabs. Turn a page, and up pops Paul Bunyon. Pull a tab, and a tree "tumbles" to the ground.

"My job is to take what would be a regular children's storybook and animate the characters and setting to make the story a tangible plaything for a child, full of ideas and action," explains the Kansas City artist whose pop-ups have been featured in scores of Hallmark children's books.

"Small children really enjoy having their mom or dad read a pop-up book to them. It lets them participate more and encourages them to read on their own. This makes my job very gratifying."

In his 14-year career as a pop-up artist, the 37-year-old Baker's subjects have ranged from Bible stories to barnyard animals, prehistoric monsters to moon landings. He's coaxed Little Bo Peep's sheep over a fence, helped Ben Franklin fly a kite, made bucking broncos buck and ghosts jump out from behind paper gravestones.

A pop-up is glued to two adjoining pages of a book and works from the leverage generated as the book is opened or a page is turned. While it sounds like a great deal of fun, designing a workable and reasonable pop-up is often an exercise in avoiding pitfalls, Baker says.

The more elaborate the design, the more likely it will bind up, get caught on itself as it unfolds and rip apart. Even the grain of the paper is critical. If not aligned in a strong vertical plane, the pop-up design becomes a droop-down.

Baker said a single design might take him only an hour, or as long as three or four days. The entire process of creating a pop-up book, from idea to finished product, can take up to a full year.

Many of the basic principles of paper mechanics were developed by the Chinese and Greeks as early as 400 B.C., but pop-ups as we know them were probably developed in Western Europe in the late 19th century. Baker notes. Pop-up designs became popular in America during the late '40s with the introduction of greeting card "storybooks" that folded into 360-degree scenes.

Today, the required hand-assembly and resultant high production costs have driven all but a handful of publishers out of the pop-up book market.

So how does one go about becoming a paper engineer?

Paper mechanics requires not only artistic talent, but also a working knowledge of geometry, physics, architecture and mechanical engineering, as well as unlimited patience, Baker explains.

"It really helps to be naturally mechanical," he adds.

"POP-UP ARTIST" Bruce Baker of Kansas City, Mo., is a "paper mechanicals engineer" — the official way of describing his work as a creator of pop-up designs for children's storybooks.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My wife, a grandmother, plays golf every day. Yesterday she said to me, "Honey, I think I know why I've been playing such rotten golf lately. I'm not getting enough loving." She explained that her putting and chipping were way off because she was tense and uptight instead of relaxed.

Well, I didn't want to let her down so I mustered some strength hoping to improve her golf game.

This afternoon she handed me her golf scorecard as she came off the course. It was seven strokes less than yesterday's!

"See, I told you!" she said. "I knew I was right!" Abby, I still think one thing has nothing to do with the other. What do you think?

GOLFING GRANDPA IN S. CALIFORNIA

DEAR GRANDPA: There's only one way to find out. Continue mustering enough strength to follow through daily. If her score goes DOWN, I hope your strength holds UP!

DEAR ABBY: We speak for countless others who, after having spent a lifetime working to get a place of retirement, find that we have been "had" by friends and relatives who come out of the woodwork because we have a place on the lake.

My husband and I built our summer place with our own hands—clearing land, felling trees, digging wells and building our home. In the land of 10,000 lakes, ours seems to be the only lake with fish in it, and of course there's a free boat which is usually left dirty, plus dead fish here and there.

When we're not here, they take over as if the place were their own, bringing friends who pass the word about the fantastic fishing.

We had planned on leaving this lovely place to our children and grandchildren, but we are ready to sell—boat and all.

We hope they take time out from fishing to read this. Sign me ...

MAD IN MINNESOTA

DEAR MAD: People who are imposed upon constantly should not blame others because they themselves lack the gumption to express their objections. Have you ever thought of putting new locks on your home and boat? If you are too timid to speak your minds, that should do it for you.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is for the two boys who thought it was useless to work, since their father made them put half of all their income in the bank.

I am an 18-year-old who has been working steadily for two years. Last summer I held two jobs. Now I'm ready to move out of my parents' house, buy a car and go to a one-year school.

The problem? I have only $8 in my wallet, and $20 in my bank account.

My parents never made me save, so I frittered away my money. Right now, I'm waiting for a loan so I can go to school. A car and apartment are totally out of the question.

I am the most dependent 18-year-old I know. Please learn from my mistakes and be thankful that your parents forced you to save. I wish my parents had been more like yours.

FRITTERED AWAY

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 26-year-old woman and I successfully lost over 100 pounds in a little over a year. I carried most of the weight in my stomach area and was left with excessively stretched skin and stretch marks. I read in your column where you once advised a person to wait a year after her weight loss before she had surgery to take up the excess skin. I've waited a year and haven't noticed any remarkable improvement. I've exercised through the entire weight loss and for several years before, which has helped tremendously.

Unfortunately, I'm left with an apron on my upper and lower abdomen. I've seen a plastic surgeon about it and he felt it would never go back in place. I have mixed feelings about the operation and would appreciate your suggestions.

I understand the operation entails a "bikini cut" and about 150 stitches or staples. The doctor said he would have to remove some fat cells that were still there and make a new opening for my navel.

Will the surgery aid in keeping the weight off and will the stretch marks be removed through the surgery? I'm sure there are other people who have lost a lot of weight who are faced with this same problem. Thank God I'm thin at last.

DEAR READER — First, congratulations. That's a major achievement. The fact that you've been able to keep it off suggests that you have improved your life style so that you can avoid obesity in the future if you really want to.

I do advise people to wait a year after a weight loss before they undergo surgery. That is not because I think the skin is really going to shrink that much or regain its elasticity.

One of the biggest reasons is that I know that many people who lose weight regain it almost as fast. That's because they really didn't change their life style. It would be a mistake to lose all that weight and have surgery and then gain back all your fat. You can pretty well separate out the person who is going to stick to a life style to avoid obesity and the person who won't by seeing what happens to him for a year after he has completed his weight loss.

You've done the right thing in seeing a plastic surgeon to gain information. Different doctors have different approaches to the problem and, of course, it depends a lot on just how much of a problem really exists. You'll have to ask your surgeon about whether the stretch marks will be removed because it depends on where they are and what type of surgery he decides to do.

You'll need to follow a sensible diet plan to avoid regaining your weight.

Canyon duo writes area guide

Nine months and 24,000 miles later, the dreams and efforts of two Canyon women is now resting on bookshelves throughout the Panhandle.

"Presenting the Texas Panhandle" is a where-to-go, what-to-see and who-to-know guide to the upper 26 counties in Texas. It recently was published by Lana Barnett and Elizabeth Buhrkuhl.

Barnett says the book developed because she wanted to know what was interesting to see on weekend trips in the Panhandle.

"When we moved back here from Ft. Worth, I was wanting something to take with me on weekend trips, something that listed what there is to see," she says. "I called the library, asking if there was a compilation and they checked and didn't have anything like that."

She explained that for a year she thought about the possibility of compiling such a book but didn't have the funds for the project. During that time, Barnett went to work for The Canyon News, where she worked on the county progress edition. She began to see advertising as a way to finance the guidebook.

She enlisted the aid of Buhrkuhl, a school teacher for 18 years, who has instructed students from third grade through the college level.

With encouragement from Troy Martin, publisher of the Canyon newspaper, they began to gather advertising and information.

The result is 198 pages filled with historical photographs of the area, supplied from the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum. The cover was designed by Canyon artist Jim Ward.

Devoted to each of the top 26 counties is a chapter that includes a feature story on a current topic, a historical feature, a calendar of annual events, things to see and do, a list of interesting facts, both past and present, and current and historical photographs.

The women explained that others contributed stories and they did some of the writing themselves.

In traveling the Panhandle to gather information, the major feature they noticed was change, says Buhrkuhl.

"We have not been in one county that there hasn't been a lot of changes, growth, industry, population, mostly for the better," she said.

"We've seen wildlife," said Barnett. "We saw a herd of antelope between Perryton and Pampa. We've had a ball. We've met people in all walks of life, in all age groups. We've met people in all kinds of business situations."

"We've learned that the people are fantastic," she added. "And that the Panhandle is not all flat; there are a lot of canyons and hills in this Panhandle."

The two plan to update the book with a new edition every other year. In the meantime, they are working on other projects.

Copies of the guidebook are available in Pampa at The Gift Box and Gibson's. For mail orders, send $3.95 plus $1 postage and handling to Lan - Bea Publications, P.O. Box 601, Canyon, Texas 79015.

Extension Homemakers Council meets

Plans for the annual "Christmas in October" program were discussed Monday morning at a meeting of the Gray County Extension Homemakers Council. Pauline Beard calling the meeting to order.

The program, given by Roselle Collingsworth, was on the Labo program in which she and her family participated this summer.

Janice Carter called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. Final plans were made for the state convention; Gray County will be represented by Marilyn Butler, Katie McDonald and Janice Carter.

The next council meeting will be Sept. 24 at the Courthouse Annex.

Industry supports federal programs on insect control

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pesticide industry, although skeptical about potential government arm-twisting to force compliance from farmers, says it generally supports programs to use "natural" methods along with chemicals to control insects and other enemies of crops.

The National Agricultural Chemicals Association, which represents companies that make or formulate 90 percent of the U.S. pesticides, said integrated pest management "can evolve into a viable technique" for controlling pests that threaten the food supply.

Jack D. Early, association president, said Tuesday that IPM — as the program is called — is "a technique whose time has come" and that "we favor the best pest control methods available, whatever they may be."

The pesticide industry accepts a responsibility "to play a central role" in developing new IPM methods, he said.

But "we oppose the use of the regulatory process" to force IPM instructions to be put on pesticide labels, Early said. "Experience has shown that educational and demonstrational approaches are far more effective."

Pests include weeds and plant diseases as well as insects. For years, farmers have relied heavily on the applications of chemicals to crops and soil to curb these threats to crop production.

But with the environmental concerns and federal crackdowns on potentially harmful chemicals — such as bans on DDT and other pesticides — much interest and research have developed on the side of an integrated approach to reduce pest damage.

Biological controls, improved cultural practices and other means are involved in IPM so that less amounts of chemicals may be required.

However, the association said in a position paper that as IPM catches on, "there is now a danger that government will attempt to restrict the use of pesticides below the level needed to produce enough food for domestic and export consumption."

According to the industry's report, "The central issue is whether farmers will be allowed to try IPM voluntarily or whether government will impose such methods regardless of the effect on farm productivity."

It said "one specific proposal for over-regulation" by the government is that IPM recommendations be included on the labels of chemical pesticides.

The association said the proposal means that the chemical product should be used only after other types of pest control programs have been tried by producers.

"This implies that the use of the pesticide will be a last resort. Crop loss will have occurred already," it said.

A spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency, which is in charge of federal registration and labeling of pesticides, said no "specific proposal" has been made yet.

Larry O'Neill of EPA told a reporter, however, that "it's an idea that may occur in the future" and that the agency "is not averse" to putting IPM information on the labels of some chemicals.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has unveiled a new food booklet that tells you "juice is better than nothing for breakfast" and that leftovers are fine for people in a hurry to get going in the morning.

It's called "Food" and is the first in a series USDA has underway to call attention to better nutrition. The next, which might raise the eyebrows of livestock producers, will include discussions of vegetarian diets and cholesterol.

The "Food" issue was announced Tuesday. More than breakfast is discussed in the colorful 64-page volume, which makes some recommendations that are real eyeopeners.

For example, "Have you every tried sauteed chicken livers for breakfast? Or a bowl of onion soup with grated cheese and crusty bread?"

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, who held a news conference to announce "Food," said he thought it "will be a bestseller" among nutrition-minded Americans.

Some 400,000 copies have been printed at a cost of $219,800. Single free copies can be obtained from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 693-G, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. The booklet also can be ordered for $3.25 each from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

The man who sells lists of names for a living

NEW YORK (AP) — Hypnotists cost $35 a thousand, the same as periodontists, pits and quarries, and journalism colleges. Ice and roller skating rinks are a bit more — $40 per thousand.

Alvin B. Zeller will sell you all these things — or rather, he will sell you lists that contain names and address for individuals and companies in all these categories.

Zeller claims to have the best mailing lists around. His lists are used for a lot of things, chief among them direct mail advertising — otherwise known as "junk mail."

"We can do all sorts of things," Zeller says. "We can take urban residents and we can take farm residents. We've had calls for farmers by crop — only cotton farmers who have a thousand acres or more. We can be very pinpointed, very specific."

Indeed, Zeller's 1980-81 catalog offers more than 2,500 categories, ranging from 15 xylophone manufacturers for $20 to 2 million office workers at $50 per 1,000.

There's 35,000 millionaires, at a price of $75 per 1,000; 11,500 Jewish contributors, very large, $50 per 1,000; and 5,650 jails, prisons and reformatories, $25 per 1,000.

Zeller has been in the business for 29 years, and perhaps that's why his speech is littered with lists. For example, who buys Alvin B. Zeller lists?

"We sell largely to publishing companies, advertising agencies, manufacturers, fund-raising organizations, ordinary individual firms that have a product to sell...or somebody who has a private word to say," he said.

And where do the lists come from?

"We get them from a combination of telephone directories, we have a huge library of every trade directory, every professional directory, every roster, every membership list."

"There are medical associations that offer us lists of doctors, there are legal associations that offer us lists of lawyers, the states publish many, many lists of accountants and engineers and architects, day care centers and whatever," he said.

All of these facts are plugged into computers, to be compiled on demand. Zeller estimates his computers contain 100 million names.

"For instance, we have about 60 million names that are residential families. Now, we can break that down by income echelons...We say that carefully, because some people don't like to know that we know they're making 10-, 20- or 100-thousand dollars."

"Everybody is categorized by what they have done, by what they do, by what they buy, by where they go. We go from the small people to the large people," he said.

Presley's doctor charged by state medical examiners

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley's personal physician indiscriminately prescribed painkillers and other drugs for the late rock 'n' roll king, the state Board of Medical Examiners has charged.

Dr. George Nichopoulos was charged Tuesday in an administrative complaint with improperly prescribing drugs to 16 persons, including Presley and singer Jerry Lee Lewis.

Nichopoulos was Presley's physician for 11 years before the entertainer's death on Aug. 16, 1977. The allegations against the doctor were based on an examination of pharmacy records.

"An examination of said records indicates that said drugs were either not prescribed for legitimate medical reasons or were prescribed in excessive amounts or were not prescribed in good faith to relieve an illness or infirmity," the complaint said.

Federal investigators have filed criminal charges against two other Memphis-area physicians in recent months for alleged prescription abuses. Criminal charges have not been filed against Nichopoulos.

Nichopoulos could not be reached for comment but his attorney, Ken Masterson, said he advised his client to make no statements before the board's hearing, probably in late October or early November.

Lewis also was not available for comment. Dr. Jerry Francisco, Shelby County medical examiner, has previously said traces of 10 drugs were found in Presley's body but only four — methaqualone, codeine and two unspecified barbiturates — were found in significant quantities.

On Tuesday, Francisco reiterated his belief that while the drug traces were found in Presley's body, "the cause of death was still a heart attack."

Edward J. Johnston, director of health boards for the state public health department, said a seven-page complaint was filed against Nichopoulos last week.

According to the document, the drugs prescribed for Presley between Jan. 20, 1977, and the day he died included Biphentamine and Dexedrine, both amphetamines; Dilaudid, a painkiller; Quaalude, a sedative; Amytal, a barbiturate; Percodan, a sedative; Demerol, a narcotic painkiller, and cocaine hydrochloride.

Convicted murderer released after serving minimum sentence

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Former Dallas police officer Darrell Cain, convicted of murder in the slaying of 12-year-old Santos Rodriguez, was released from prison Tuesday after serving a minimum two and a half years of his five-year sentence.

Rodriguez — handcuffed and sitting in a police car — was shot to death in July 1973 while being questioned by Cain.

Outraged Mexican-Americans took to the streets to protest the slaying that became one of the state's most widely-publicized police brutality controversies and a symbol for a Hispanic community troubled by what it perceived as a growing incidence of prisoner abuse.

Cain was convicted of murder by a Travis County jury in November 1973. His lawyers argued the point-blank shooting was unintentional.

Mexican-American groups, incensed by what they perceived as a light sentence, pressed for federal prosecution.

President Carter ordered the U.S. Justice Department to investigate the case. But the department opted not to prosecute Cain on a civil rights violation charge just weeks before the statute of limitations ran out July 24, 1978.

W.J. Estelle, director of the Texas Department of Corrections, described Cain as a model prisoner.

Cain had worked as a clerk in the diagnostic unit at the Huntsville prison.

"He wants to put the past behind him and build a new life," said Dallas lawyer Phil Burleson, who represented Cain.

Burleson said the former officer intends to move to a small city outside the Dallas-Fort-Worth area and work for a business owned by relatives. His conviction prevents him from becoming a policeman in Texas.

"If I were Darrell Cain I would take an anonymous name, get an unlisted telephone number and seriously consider moving from the city of Dallas and possibly from the state of Texas," said Ruben Bonilla, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

No word on pray-in

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — About 300 protesters sang and prayed outside an Amarillo television station, but the station manager says he still has not decided whether to air two controversial programs.

Tuesday's pray-in was conceived when CBS announced it would air "Flesh and Blood," a two-part program concerning incest that the protest group called the epitome of television's "moral decay."

The group, led by Judy and Jimmy Mamou, carried signs and Bibles to the station's grounds and prayed and sang for almost an hour. They presented KFDA station manager Harry Neuhardt with silk flowers, a Bible and brownies.

However, Neuhardt said Tuesday he still had not decided whether to air the programs scheduled to be shown Oct. 14 and 16.

Debra Lane, co-anchorwoman and reporter for the CBS-TV affiliate, said the protesters came from Amarillo and surrounding towns. She said one group of nuns carried a sign reading, "Repent, the kingdom is at hand."

"For some reason, this has really struck a nerve up here," she said.

Mrs. Mamou said CBS is exploiting the subject. "I was involved in incest, and it is not funny," she said. "If they were going to show the terrible trauma and how to survive incest, that would be different."

Neuhardt said he would "continue to consider what she had to say in the meeting with her in my office after the prayer meeting."

Neuhardt, who previewed the program, earlier called it a "fine piece of dramatic work" and said he found nothing offensive about it.

Ms. Lane said Neuhardt told the group that "an adult would have to watch the entire program to get the gist of what's going on. There is very little chance a child would pick up on it. If these people think that is wrong, they should not watch it. Not to air it simply because some people consider it objectionable would be unfair to the rights of other people."

Ms. Lane said Neuhardt planned to "wait till all the ballots are in — see what kind of reaction he gets in the mail."

Labeling Ice Cream

Each year, Americans consume more than 800 million gallons of ice cream in more than 400 different flavors. That's almost 15 quarts for every person in the country. Earlier this summer, a new government regulation took effect, requiring all packaged ice cream being shipped from one state to another to be labeled with a list of its ingredients. The ingredients must be listed in order, starting with the largest. This ruling, along with others like it, have come about because consumers want to know what is in the food they are eating. The new regulation does not apply to ice cream cones, which usually don't have labels.

DO YOU KNOW — What government agency administers food labeling laws?

It might be difficult to see at the moment, but this coming year will turn out to be a most fortunate one. You may not recognize it because Lady Luck is working incognito, but she is there.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Go after what you want today in a subtle and gentle manner and your pails will be overflowing. The opposite will be true if you appear grasping or selfish. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's important to keep strong faith in what you're doing and with whom, because something quite substantial will come your way if you don't falter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It behooves you to co-operate to the fullest today with those with whom you share an interest. Be supportive and don't make waves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Take yourself out of the picture when negotiating or drawing up a contract. If you don't appear self-serving, the other party will bend over backward to please you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is one of those days when two heads are better than one. Before proceeding full-steam ahead, check with a co-worker to get his or her thoughts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your benefits come today through persons with whom you feel close personal ties. Those you know little about could have more interest in themselves than in you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) When it comes to things dealing with the home, you, rather than your mate, are the luckiest today. If there's a toss-up as to whose views to follow, use yours.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Stick to socializing with friends today. Shun co-workers. Saying the wrong thing to one who carries tales could harm your image with the boss.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you're shopping for necessities today, you should have good luck finding the exact items at the right prices. Look for the bargains.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Information or knowledge you seek is easily obtainable today. If need be, pick the brains of people in the know. They'll be most helpful.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An inside tip may be given to you today that could prove quite beneficial, if you choose to take advantage of it. However, take care not to betray a confidence.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's not like you to fail to reciprocate the generosity of friends. Be careful that you're not all take and no give today.

Gavin MacLeod and 'The Love Boat'

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" spawned perhaps as many new series-as any television program. Ultimately, Miss Moore and at least seven of her co-stars — Valerie Harper, Cloris Leachman, Ed Asner, Ted Knight, Georgia Engel, Betty White and Gavin MacLeod — would appear prominently in other shows.

For all but Asner and MacLeod, prime-time longevity away from "MTM" has proven elusive. The versatile Asner was able to take his character, Lou Grant, from the television newsroom in "MTM" to a newspaper city room in Los Angeles, and find almost immediate success.

The transition for MacLeod, from newsreader Murray Slaughter to Capt. Merrill Stubing in ABC's "The Love Boat," on the surface more difficult, was as smooth.

"It was really very easy for me," says MacLeod, a member of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" cast for its entire eight-year run on CBS.

"I've been playing character parts all my life," he says, "and going to 'The Love Boat' was especially easy because the new part was so appealing to me, and I knew right away the show would be successful."

"The Love Boat" has, indeed, become a consistent hit in its Saturday night time slot, despite some early skepticism from critics.

"They had made two pilots previously, and neither one had made it," MacLeod recalls. "They approached me after 'MTM' had gone off the air, and my agent was against me taking the part."

"I took the script down to my home in Palm Springs and read it one weekend.

When they introduced my character, the captain, I said, 'Wow! I like that.' I liked the regulars in the cast, and the fact there would be three stories each week with romance and comedy and a little drama.

"And I said, 'If this doesn't make it, nothing will.' It was an escape, and I was tired of things like 'Baretta' and 'Kojak.' I thought the timing was perfect."

"The Love Boat" begins its third season at 9 p.m. EDT Saturday with a two-hour cruise to Alaska, with Lorne Greene and Ray Milland in the guest cast.

MacLeod grew up in the New York City area, and entered Ithaca College at 16. After discharge from the Air Force, he worked briefly as an usher at Radio City Music Hall, appeared in a number of Off-Broadway plays, and made his Broadway debut in "A Hatful of Rain."

Burnett willing to take chance

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The feast-or-famine philosophy of the television networks continues in force next Sunday night when viewers are offered a choice among Bob Hope in China on NBC, a one-hour "Mork and Mindy" special and Carol Burnett in a new movie, "The Tenth Month."

Burnett is willing to take her chances. She's the comic who turned to family tragedy in the politically sensitive "Friendly Fire." She also defied programming patterns by presenting four new variety shows during the past summer season.

"The Tenth Month" is another departure that may arouse controversy because Burnett plays a forty-ish single woman who becomes pregnant.

"The role is a journalist who is successful in her work, who married young and is undergoing a divorce," she said. "Her husband is also a journalist, and their careers have drifted them apart. The divorce is fairly amicable; there's a little sadness but no beating of the breast."

"She falls in love with a musician, played by Keith Mitchell, who was so great as Henry the Eighth in the PBS series. He is married, but it's a loose arrangement with no strings attached. Suddenly the woman discovers she is pregnant — by the first man."

"She always wanted to have a child. But what can she do? The father is abroad, and it's over between them, anyway. She is in love with the musician, but now he is upset and wishes the baby were his. Her brother and his wife are shocked because she is not married, doesn't intend to marry and intends to have the baby despite her age."

"She is embarrassed and can't face society. The solution is to hide out in Spanish Harlem, have the baby, then pretend to adopt it in the tenth month. Then comes another problem. Should she tell the child that he or she is adopted?"

In the original Laura Z. Hobson novel of 15 years ago, the dilemma was solved by "a Prince Charming out of the blue," said Burnett: the woman married her obstetrician. Writer-director Joan Tewkesbury provided an ending more suited to today's enlightenment, and reportedly author Hobson ("Gentlemen's Agreement") approved.

"The Tenth Month" deals frankly with abortion, and Burnett expects to receive angry letters. That happened after "Friendly Fire," in which she played an Iowa woman fighting bureaucratic red tape to discover how her son died in Vietnam.

Foot Notes

By RANDY LIGHTFOOT
News Sports Editor

When I first came to the Pampa News about two months ago, I was the sixth sports editor for the paper in the last 18 months. For one reason or another, this job has attracted offers from other newspapers like linebackers to a fumble. My predecessors were either lured away to other cities or, in the case of Joe Blobaum, promoted.

From the very beginning, one of my big objectives here was to bring a certain degree of permanence to this position. With a wife and a one-year-old son, I was looking forward to settling down for a number of years and adding the stability to my life that had been missing since I graduated from high school. In my mind, only the offer of a lifetime would have convinced me to move.

Well, needless to say, I have been offered the opportunity which I have barely allowed myself to dream about for the past 10 years.

Sunday, the Athletic Director of West Texas State University, Dr. Myron Dees contacted me at my home and asked if I would be interested in the job as head track coach for the men's and women's track teams at WTSU. Bob Kitchens, the former coach, left recently for a similar post at Mississippi State and since school had already begun across the nation, applicants for the position were few and far between.

To make a short story of what could well be a novel, Dr. Dees made a firm offer of the job Tuesday and I immediately accepted.

One of the first career goals I ever had was to be the head coach of an NCAA major college track team. Usually, the road to such a position is at least five years long starting with a graduate assistantship and then moving through the ranks as an assistant before getting a head job, usually at an NAIA or an NCAA Division II school. In other words, just being considered for the job was unexpected, but to be hired...

As with any type of move, there is a bit of remorse that goes along with the excitement. After last Friday, I can't imagine watching any high school ball that would be more exciting than the Harvesters.

True, most everyone had picked Pampa to defeat Hereford, but it was supposed to be a very close game with a key penalty or turnover late in the game deciding the outcome.

Without a doubt, the "Palmer Mama" is going to be driving the crowd wild — for at least nine more weekends and perhaps even beyond that.

While I will miss not being able to watch the rebirth of the Pampa grid team firsthand, it is no less disappointing that I am not going to be able to watch the PHS volleyball team. After last night's contest with Hereford, the Lady Harvesters are undefeated after four games and have yet to be extended in a match.

The spikers are really a team worth watching. They have a winning, championship tradition that has seen them finish no lower than second in the district in the past six years and have the confidence and talent to go a long way.

Yes, it's been a short stay for me here, but the people I've met and the friends I've made will stay with me a long, long time. But, I won't be gone for good. With the type of athletes Pampa will be turning out, I'm sure I'll be making several stops here on the recruiting trail.

'White Shoes' lost to Oilers for year

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, the star receiver-kick returner for the Houston Oilers, is out for the 1979 season after undergoing knee surgery in Columbus, Ga.

Johnson, who missed almost all of the 1978 season with a knee injury, suffered torn ligaments in his right knee during last Sunday's 38-7 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Oiler team physician Dr. Thomas Cain said Tuesday all the torn ligaments were repaired, but Johnson would not be able to return this season.

The Oilers also announced that quarterback Dan Pastorini, who suffered a bruised shoulder against the Steelers, would probably play in Sunday's home opener against the Kansas City Chiefs in the Astrodome.

Oiler spokesman Bob Hyde said Pastorini underwent tests Tuesday that showed no breaks or tears in the injured shoulder.

Dickerson nabs SWC laurels

DALLAS (AP) — Eric Dickerson took 129 steps with his size 11 shoes through the Rice Owls Saturday night in his collegiate debut and scored three touchdowns in SMU's 35-17 victory.

It earned the 6-foot-3, 205-pound speedster The Associated Press Southwest Conference Offensive Player of the Week award.

Yet, he thought he could have done better.

"I made some mistakes," said Dickerson. "You'll see better in the future."

"I'm very impressed with Dickerson," said SMU quarterback Mike Ford. "He's so mature for a young guy. I had an off night but we still won. We couldn't have done that last year."

Even SMU Coach Ron Meyer seemed to expect more.

Houston loses lead in division to Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds lead the National League West by half a game today, but don't bet the rent that the Houston Astros aren't on top again by tomorrow.

The Reds took over first place with a 9-8 victory over Houston Tuesday night, the seventh time the division lead has changed hands in two weeks.

"I think we're going to win it, but from here on out our most important game is the next one," said Ray Knight, who may be the Reds' most valuable player in his first full year at third base. "Up to now, this was the most important game we played all year."

Houston Manager Bill Virdon noted that Cincinnati still must play the Astros three games in the Astrodome later this month.

"We need to win, but if we lose tomorrow night that's not the pennant," Virdon said.

The two teams pounded out 28 hits in a game that was supposed to be a pitching duel between the Reds' Tom Seaver and Houston's J.R. Richard. The duel lasted three innings before the craziness began.

Cincinnati scored four times in the fourth, the Astros scored twice in the fifth and sixth to tie, and by then both starters were gone.

"It was a crazy game. There's no explaining it," said Seaver. "That will happen sometimes."

Seaver left with six strikeouts to take over fourth place on the major league career strikeout list with 2,874, but Tom Hume, 10-8, was the eventual winner. The loss was charged to Joe Sambito, 7-6, the fourth of five Astro pitchers.

The Reds went ahead by two in the bottom of the sixth, but Houston scored three runs in the seventh to take the lead. Cincinnati finally won it in the seventh on back-to-back homers, a two-run shot by Dave Concepcion and George Foster's 27th of the year.

"We got the big hits and we played good defense," said Concepcion, who reached a career high with his 15th homer of the season.

"We played a lot of games this year that made this one look like a fundamental success," said Johnny Bench, referring to several mental errors. "It seems everytime these two clubs get together they either slam bang at each other or it's a very low-scoring game."

In one unusual play, the Reds were awarded what at the time was the go-ahead run in the sixth on an obstruction call against Houston pitcher Joaquin Andujar when he knocked down Concepcion during a rundown between third base and home.

Astro second baseman Rafael Landestoy had a perfect five-for-five night at the plate, including an RBI single in the seventh that gave Houston the lead until Concepcion hit his home run.

Houston third baseman Enos Cabell, icing a swollen ankle, said he took the brunt of a seventh inning collision with Bench.

"He had to reach across his body for the throw and I could have killed him if I wanted to, but there wasn't any need. I was safe anyway," Cabell said.

He called the game "one of the most exciting I've ever been in."

Pennant races heat up

By the Associated Press

Three of the four pennant races in the two leagues still remain very much in doubt with less than 20 days left in the 1979 baseball season.

Only Baltimore in the American League East is running away with its division, while the AL West and both divisions in the National League remain close. And it looks like direct confrontations between the pennant contenders in each of those divisions could decide it.

After Tuesday night's action, Baltimore held an 11-game lead over Milwaukee in the AL East, but the California Angels led the Kansas City Royals by only four games in the West.

In the National League, Montreal led Pittsburgh by less than one one-hundredth of a percentage point in the East since the Expos have two fewer losses, and the Cincinnati Reds led Houston by a half game in the West.

Today's sports in brief

TOKYO (AP) — Australian Evonne Coolagong Cawley ousted Linda Siegel 6-2, 6-0 in the first round of a $150,000 tennis tournament.

In other matches, Ann Kiyomura beat Kathy Jordan 7-6. WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — Top-seeded Wojtek Fibak and Tom Okker defeated Vijay Amritraj and Dick Stockton 6-3, 7-5 in a first-round match in the $150,000 ATP World Doubles tennis tournament.

ATLANTA (AP) — Top-seeded John Alexander of Australia defeated Steve Denton 6-2, 4-6, 7-5 in the second round of the Atlanta Journal and Constitution Open International Tennis Championships.

The Astros and Reds have five games left between them, one more in Cincinnati today and three in Houston Sept. 21-23.

The Pirates play two games in Montreal Sept. 17-18, then play four at home against Montreal Sept. 24-26, including a two-night double-header on the 24th.

The Astros, who led by 10 games back on the Fourth of July before losing 12 of 13, may have the toughest row to hoe down the stretch. Houston has only five home games remaining this season, while they play 13 on the road — eight on the West Coast — and finish up the season in Atlanta and Los Angeles.

The Astros and Reds have five games left between them, one more in Cincinnati today and three in Houston Sept. 21-23.

GARY CARTER (8) of the Montreal Expos, collides with Chicago Cubs second baseman Steve Macko as he attempts to break up a double play during second inning action of the first game of a doubleheader. Carter's hard slide paid off as Macko's relay to first was not in time.

U.S. cagers win games' gold

MEXICO CITY (AP) — It was a hostile crowd, jeering, hooting, howling and whistling at the Americans.

It was an unhappily familiar experience for Carol Blazejowski and Tara Heiss, an experience that prompted memories of the recent Pan American Games.

"I knew in Puerto Rico we let the crowd get to us," Blazejowski said, "and this time I knew there was no way."

There wasn't. No way.

The American girls were poised and confident, responding coolly and efficiently to adversity despite the resounding jeers and whistles of the wildly pro-Cuban crowd. They won the World University Games gold medal in women's basketball Tuesday night with a convincing 73-60 victory over the Cubans, the team that beat the United States by the United States Tuesday.

An angry Willie Banks, upset at an official's ruling, soared 56 feet, 61-4 inches through a misty curtain of steady rain on his final effort, wiped out a Russian lead and won the triple jump with a Games-record effort.

His anger was aroused by foot-fault calls made by a young Mexican official on his first two jumps. Banks complained bitterly to the official and to American coaches, asking them to lodge an official protest.

"I've never had a fault called in an international meet," Banks said. "Usually, my first two jumps are my best."

The basketball gold medal that avenged the stinging upset defeat by Cuba in Pan Am Games, was one of two acquired in the Pan Am Games two months ago. Blazejowski and Heiss, both members of that losing Pan Am team, were among the American girls who stood with their heads down and their faces stained with tears, to accept their silver medals in Puerto Rico.

This time, at the buzzer, they singled out each other, searching through the milling players, then grabbed one another in a happy, hugging, dancing embrace.

Yaz still looking for No. 3,000

By the Associated Press

Carl Yastrzemski will get his 3,000th major league hit today ... or Thursday ... or the day after ... but he will get it. "I never thought one hit would be so hard to get," the Boston slugger said Tuesday night after failing for the second straight game to become the first player in American League history to have 3,000 hits and 400 home runs.

But Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees isn't worried. "You know as well as I do he's going to get his 3,000th hit as sure as the sun's going to come up," Jackson said of Yastrzemski. "As long as he doesn't get upset and start pushing."

Yastrzemski went hitless in three official at-bats against former teammate Luis Tiant and relievers Ron Davis and Rich Gossage as the Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox 8-3. He walked — his first base on balls since Aug. 13, 45 games ago — popped to second baseman Willie Randolph in shallow center field, flied to right and fouled to catcher Jerry Narron.

"The law of percentages is on my side," Yaz said. "I'm not being given a chance to think of anything else. I've had very few hitter's pitches to hit. I've been getting pitcher's pitches. I want to get it over with."

Brewers 5, A's 0

Cecil Cooper smashed his 22nd homer and added a sacrifice fly to lead Milwaukee over Oakland. Jim Slaton, 14-8, scattered five hits for the Brewers, who broke a four-game losing streak.

The loser was Matt Keough, 1-15, who had lost 18 decisions in succession until he beat the Brewers in Oakland last Wednesday.

Blue Jays 3, Orioles 1

Tom Underwood scattered nine hits and Rico Carty cracked his 10th home run of the season as the Blue Jays defeated Baltimore, snapping Toronto's 15-game winless streak against the Orioles.

Tigers 14, Indians 1

Jason Thompson doubled home three runs as Detroit exploded for eight runs in the first inning, then slammed an eighth-inning homer to lead the Tigers over Cleveland.

Lance Parrish added a two-run homer to the Detroit attack. The eight runs was the most the Tigers had scored in a single inning since the fourth inning of an Aug. 30, 1975, game against the California Angels.

White Sox 8, Angels 7

Jim Morrison slammed a pair of solo home runs and Alan Bannister singled home the tie-breaking run to lift Chicago over California.

Don Baylor powered his 33rd homer of the season, a three-run shot, and Brian Downing added his 10th home run for the Angels.

Twins 3, Royals 1

Danny Gooden had two hits, including his fourth homer of the year, and scored twice to lead Minnesota past Kansas City. Geoff Zahn, 11-6, snapped a personal three-game losing streak in getting the victory, although he needed ninth-inning help from Mike Marshall.

Pirates 7, Cardinals 3

The Pirates got four innings of three-hit relief from veteran Dave Roberts to defeat the Cardinals and retain a half-game lead over Montreal, even though the Expos — winners 14 times in their last 15 games — own first place by six one-hundred-thousandths of a point.

Expos 8-3, Cubs 6-2

"We're making the unbelievable plays that you have to make (to win a divisional crown)," said winning pitcher Don Schatzeder, who watched Dave Cash drive in the Warren Cromartie with the winning run in the fifth inning of the nightcap.

Cash had five hits in the twinbill. Andre Dawson paced Montreal's 13-hit attack with three runs batted in, leading the Expos to a triumph in the opener despite Dave Kingman's 45th homer of the year.

Phillies 5, Mets 2

Greg Luzinski's two-run homer in the third inning helped Philadelphia pitcher Nino Espinosa defeat his former Mets teammates for the fourth time in five decisions against them this season.

Padres 3, Dodgers 1

Bob Ovwchinko won for the first time since July 13, combining with Steve Mura on a six-hitter as San Diego downed Los Angeles.

Braves 2, Giants 1

A seventh-inning sacrifice fly by Pepe Frias snapped a tie and lifted Atlanta over San Francisco behind the combined five-hit pitching of Larry McWilliams and Joey McLaughlin.

DAVE CONCEPCION of the Cincinnati Reds backpeddles toward Enos Cabell and third base in the fourth inning after being caught by the Astros in a rundown. He then collided with

Houston pitcher Joaquin Andujar and was awarded home plate, giving the Reds a 5-4 lead. Cincinnati went on to win the game 9-7. (AP Laser photo)

Sample sparks Texas past Mariners, 5-2

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Billy Sample "is going to be a star one of these days," says Texas Manager Pat Corrales, who first must decide whose place Sample is going to take in the lineup.

Sample, who made the Rangers' roster this season after three years in the minor leagues, drove in two runs with a single and a double to lead Texas to a 5-2 victory over the Seattle Mariners Tuesday night.

The night before, he was 3-for-4, with a double and two singles.

Sample got into the game both times only because of a death in the family of Al Oliver, the Rangers' solid leftfielder.

"I don't know what my role will be with the team next year. I'd like to play fulltime, that's no secret. But look at our outfield, with Oliver, Rivers and Zisk. Where am I going to play?" Sample said.

Writers asked Corrales the same question, and he responded: "He'll play."

Yes, but where? "In the outfield," Corrales said.

Yes, but where?

"We'll make a spot for him if he continues to play the way he has. He's going to be a star one of these days," Corrales said.

Sample never hit less than .348 while in the minors, but said with the limited action he's been getting, he'll be satisfied if he hits .270 this year.

"I didn't anticipate coming in here and tearing the league apart. I'd be content with being a .300 hitter," he said.

Texas jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first inning against Roy Branch, a onetime first-round draft choice by Kansas City who was making his major league debut after seven years in the minors.

Mickey Rivers hit Branch's second pitch of the game into the rightfield stands. Buddy Bell walked, went to third on Willie Montanez' single and scored on Richie Zisk's sacrifice fly.

Frederic roars toward U.S., warning issued

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Frederic roared toward the U.S. mainland today and forecasters who labeled it "extremely dangerous" warned it could become the strongest hurricane to hit the central Gulf Coast since Camille whipped up death and destruction in 1969.

Hurricane warnings were posted late Tuesday remained in effect today from Panama City, Fla., to Grand Isle, La., and schools were ordered closed in Harrison County, Miss.

In the warning area, people living on low land were urged to be ready to evacuate today. The warning meant all residents should prepare for winds of 74 mph or more and high water within 24 hours.

Grand Isle residents began packing up today as divers hunted for a man believed trapped when an oil rig flipped over in the Mississippi River Gulf Outlet as it was being towed away from the storm.

The missing man was among more than 2,500 offshore oil workers called back to land as Frederic strengthened Tuesday. Another 200 were to be brought in today, officials said.

Grand Isle Police Chief Ernest LaFont said the island community of 6,000 would be under official evacuation notice at 9 a.m. today.

Camille was classified as a No. 5 — or "catastrophic" hurricane — on the National Hurricane Center's 1-to-5 scale when it killed more than 250 persons in 1969. Early today, Frederic was rated a No. 3, or "extensive" hurricane.

At 6 a.m. EDT, Frederic's center was 275 miles southeast of New Orleans, near latitude 27.3 north, longitude 87.0 west. Winds were measured at 130 mph and the storm was headed toward the northwest at 12 mph. It was expected to continue on nearly that course and speed.

U.S. forecasters also were tracking a second hurricane, Gloria, 1,000 miles southwest of the Azores near 32.4 north latitude, 47.7 west longitude at 6 a.m. EDT Wednesday. Gloria, deemed no threat to North America, was a minimal hurricane reborn from a tropical storm.

Shortly before midnight, Miles Lawrence of the hurricane center said a best guess showed Frederic would hit land at Mobile, Ala. But he said it was far too early to predict with any certainty.

"You realize that our 24-hour forecast error is about 100 miles," he added. "So we may be completely off on this. But that's our best guess right now."

He said the hurricane could reach the mainland as early as 8 p.m. today, but probably would be later.

Radio Havana reported that Frederic, then a tropical depression, left considerable flooding and wind damage and forced the evacuation of more than 57,800 persons as it passed over western Cuba last weekend.

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said the two-day deluge caused flooding and frequent blackouts in Havana and other cities and closed Jose Marti International Airport on Sunday night. There was no mention of any deaths or injuries. John Hope, the center's senior forecaster, cautioned that Frederic still could strike anywhere within the warning area — or even elsewhere.

"No place in the hurricane warning area is out of danger yet," Hope said.

Committee ready to okay energy legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee is ready to approve legislation to speed development of high-priority energy projects amid a fresh prediction that Congress will give President Carter much of what he's asking for on energy.

The House Commerce Committee arranged to meet today for what aides said would be a final day of debate on a bill establishing an energy mobilization board.

The board would have strong powers to cut through red tape hindering completion of high-priority energy projects, including the authority to recommend waivers of federal, state or local laws.

While only the president would have the actual authority to waive a law — subject to a veto by either house of Congress — the provision has drawn strong objection from groups including environmentalists, governors and some liberal members of the committee.

Carter, meeting at the White House Tuesday with members of the Senate Energy Committee, said he wants the mobilization board's authority limited to assuring that decisions relating to construction are made promptly.

The president told the senators, as well as a group of governors in a second session, that he does not want the board to run roughshod over state laws or rights.

Carter's position conflicts with the word put out by Energy Department lobbyists who have been working hard to defeat amendments that would water down the waiver provision in the measure.

In his discussion with the senators, Carter also agreed to scale down significantly his $88 billion plan for development of a synthetic fuels industry.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, declared after the meeting that Carter was "more cooperative than I have seen him in a long time."

House members preparing for battle on raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the House of Representatives are girding for the second battle of 1979 in a war over how much money they will pay themselves during the next fiscal year.

The starting point is the current salary of $57,500 a year.

The possibilities for change range from no raise at all to a 12.9 percent increase.

The stage for a showdown within the next three weeks was set Tuesday when a House Appropriations subcommittee unanimously agreed to resurrect legislation that would grant a 7 percent cost-of-living pay boost.

The action of the legislative appropriations subcommittee ran counter to predictions from House leaders that congressional pay would be frozen for 1980.

That public assessment came after the House rejected the original proposal for a 7 percent pay raise last June and returned the bill appropriating money for 1980 congressional operating expenses to the subcommittee for further action.

Instead of revamping that bill to impose a pay freeze as House leaders predicted, the subcommittee voted to keep intact the original recommendation for a 7 percent raise.

The measure now goes to the House Appropriations Committee for further action. It is expected to be voted on by the full House before the new federal budget year begins Oct. 1.

In a related development, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, introduced a bill in the Senate Tuesday to freeze congressional salaries at $57,500.

Judge to decide when Carson's contract expires

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After months of negotiation, NBC and its biggest star, Johnny Carson, have agreed to let a judge decide when Carson's contract as "The Tonight Show" host actually expires.

Ratings-troubled NBC was shaken last spring when Carson announced he wanted out of his duties as host of the late-night talk show at the end of the year.

NBC responded that Carson, who has been "The Tonight Show" star for 17 years, would be expected to honor his contract that runs through the spring of 1981. Lawyers took over from there.

On Tuesday, NBC issued a statement saying: "NBC and Johnny Carson have entered into an agreement to obtain a determination of a legal question concerning the present contractual arrangement between Carson and NBC."

The statement did not explain what the legal question was, but an NBC memo written by an unidentified network spokesman explained the matter this way:

"Carson maintains that his contract expired in April of this year. He bases that on a 1972 contract which he claims expired in April under a California law which, in essence, precludes personal services contracts for more than seven years.

"NBC maintains that since then, there have been at least three new and independent agreements, the last of which was entered into in 1977."

The statement said, "NBC is confident that our contract with Carson, which runs through April 1981, will be upheld."

Carson's lawyer, Henry Bushkin, said Tuesday that Carson would continue his duties as host of "The Tonight Show" and that he has no present intention of leaving.

Carson could not be reached for comment.

ABC tightening grip on prime-time ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC, in an effort to tighten its grip on first place in the networks' prime-time ratings race, shifted some of its most successful programs to new time slots for the upcoming 1979-80 season.

The schedule changes can hardly be declared successful, though, by the same yardstick, they can't be proclaimed unsuccessful, either.

Some examples: —"Mork and Mindy," which had an average rating of 28.5 on Thursday nights in the last season, compiled a rating of 22.7 in its new Sunday night slot in the week ending Sept. 9.

—"Laverne and Shirley," which averaged 30.6 on Tuesday nights in the 1978-79 season, rated 18.6 last Thursday night.

—"Fantasy Island," with a 20.8 average on Saturday nights, pulled a 12.7 rating in its new Friday night time slot in the latest check by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

Indeed, it's difficult to say what effect, if any, the schedule shifts will have in the new season, which ABC began Monday night. The ratings, in any instance, are substantial for the three programs, regardless of position in the schedule.

Nielsen says the rating of 22.7 for "Mork and Mindy" means of all the homes in the country with television, 22.7 percent saw at least part of the show.

ABC, a strong No. 1 in the ratings entering the new season, repositioned the programs to provide lead-in strength for new or comparatively weak existing programs. So the long-range effect may be a boost for ABC, rather than aid for the competition.

The week ending Sept. 9 was the last of the summer season, and ABC, with several specials and sneak previews of new programs, was the big beneficiary in the ratings race.

"31st Emmy Awards Show," with a rating of 27.3 representing 20.3 million homes, and "Three's Company," 26.1 or 19.4 million, both ABC; "Miss America Pageant," 25.2 or 18.8 million, NBC; "The Lazarus Syndrome," 23.1 or 17.2 million, "Mork and Mindy," 22.7 or 16.9 million, and "Breaking Up is Hard to Do," Part I, 22.5 or 16.8 million, all ABC; "M-A-S-H," 22.4 or 16.7 million, CBS; "NFL Monday Night Football," 20.7 or 15.4 million, and "Taxi," 20.2 or 15.1 million, both ABC, and "WKRP in Cincinnati," 20.1 or 15 million, CBS.
