Pampan critical after accidental shooting

By JOHN PRICE
Of The Pampa News
 A Pampa man received a critical gunshot wound in the head Thursday night while he and a friend were reportedly playing with a pistol at a local residence.
 John Simon, 20, address unknown by police, was shot once in the right temple at 9:43 p.m. by Ronald Eugene Barnett, 19, of 508 Doyle. The two men were at the home of a friend, Steve Frank Carter of 709 Lowry, when the shooting occurred.
 Lt. Roy Denman of the Pampa Police Department said Simon and Barnett were "playing with" a .22 caliber automatic pistol belonging to Carter when the gun went off. The men were in the living room of the house, he said. Barnett reportedly told police he thought the pistol was unloaded.

The shooting has been ruled accidental, although police are still investigating it. Simon was in critical condition this morning at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, where he was taken by Metropolitan Ambulance. He was transferred to St. Anthony's from Highland General Hospital shortly after he was shot. Denman said Simon was at Highland for only about 10 minutes before being transferred. He did not lose consciousness when he was shot.

 Mark King, Metropolitan manager, said Simon remained conscious during the ride to Amarillo.
 According to unofficial reports, Simon was still conscious this morning, but was in shock and not yet undergone surgery at press time. Doctors at St. Anthony's were reportedly afraid Simon might lose the vision in one eye.

Death toll continues in wake of hurricane

President Carter flew South today to personally inspect the suffering cities of the Gulf Coast while the remnants of Hurricane Frederic dumped heavy rains west of the Appalachians, causing flooding in some areas.
 Cutting normal red tape, the White House on Thursday designated 30 counties ravaged by Hurricane Frederic in Mississippi, Alabama and Florida as disaster areas. Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said the recovery of the Gulf Coast "is going to take years."
 Frederic left six confirmed dead and two others missing and presumed dead on the Gulf Coast and property damage so extensive officials were reluctant to make estimates.
 But Florida Gov. Bob Graham said he feared the damage toll from the latest tropical devastation might surpass the $95 million racked up David there.
 The 300-year-old port city of Mobile suffered the brunt of the storm Thursday, along with Pascagoula, Miss., and Pensacola, Fla.
 Driving rains from what was left of Frederic—little more than a low pressure system—swept north to New York state today sending streams over their banks in western New York and backing up morning rush hour traffic in Buffalo. The storm, which already had pelted parts of Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania with heavy rains, had dumped more than 5 inches of rain on Buffalo, N.Y., by 9 a.m., forcing the closing of all schools in the state's second largest city. Many suburban schools also closed.

 Some roads in Buffalo were flooded, stacking up traffic jams several miles long.
 Heavy rains in northwestern Pennsylvania this morning caved in the roof of the municipal bus station in Erie, Pa. No injuries were reported but five buses were damaged.
 Earlier the storm dumped as much as 7 inches of rain on western and central Kentucky and up to 6 inches on eastern Tennessee. Three inches fell on Cincinnati and Erie as the system moved north.
 The National Weather Service issued flash flood warnings for all of western New York and flash flood watches for much of central and northern New York and the Adirondacks as the storm moved across the state in a northeasterly direction at about 20 mph.

Child molester warning issued

Police are warning parents of a "dirty-looking" man driving a blue-green automobile who reportedly approached an 8-year-old Pampa girl Wednesday evening.
 The girl's parents told police their daughter was riding her bicycle home in the 2000 block of Charles when an adult white male, described by the girl as "dirty-looking," drove up alongside her. The man was driving an older model blue-green car spotted with either red primer paint or rust.

 The girl said the man drove up beside her and asked her a question she didn't understand. She then rode away.
 The man reportedly rode up beside her again and asked her if she knew where a service station was. She said she told him "No" and rode home. She told her parents about the incident.

 The approach took place at roughly 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, but was not reported to police until Thursday.
 Noting that a similar incident occurred this time last year, in which a young girl was molested, Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said "We don't know what his intention was but we have to assume the worst."

Weather

The forecast calls for possible showers and thunderstorms today with partly cloudy skies and a chance of rain tonight. Continued partly cloudy skies are predicted for Saturday.

Pampan satisfactory after second car-pedestrian accident in 2 days

A nurse at Highland General Hospital was struck by a car late Thursday night as she was walking across the 1200 block of N. Hobart Street.
 Beulah Wells, 60, of 723 N. Banks was reportedly walking east across Hobart at 10:50 p.m. when she was struck by a 1976 Toyota Corolla driven by Warren Joiner of 1012 Darby. Joiner was traveling north on Hobart when he hit Mrs. Wells.
 The nurse was apparently jaywalking, as the accident occurred 300 feet south of the intersection of Hobart and Kentucky Avenue. Police said no skid marks were found at the scene.
 No citations were issued after the accident.
 Mrs. Wells was taken to Highland hospital by Metropolitan Ambulance. She was listed in satisfactory condition this morning.
 "She is resting fairly comfortably," said a hospital spokesperson. The spokesperson said she couldn't describe the extent of Mrs. Wells' injuries, but added that no surgery was required.

 Mrs. Wells is the second pedestrian in two days to have been struck by a car while crossing a street. Benton Moore, a 15-year-old Pampa High School student, was hit Wednesday afternoon while crossing the 100 block of W. Decatur.
 The youth reportedly ran in front of a 1971 Oldsmobile Cutlass driven by Tommy Laycock, 17, of 2205 N. Wells. The car left an estimated 71 feet of skid marks at the scene.
 Moore also was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Highland hospital.
 Police are studying the statements of witnesses and consulting with City Attorney Don Lane about the possibility of filing charges in connection with the Moore accident.

Buchwald in today's News

The most serious job in the world is being funny three times a week for thirty straight years for millions of newspaper readers. But if any United States humor columnist has weathered three decades of rapidly changing times more gracefully than Art Buchwald, it's the best kept secret in contemporary journalism.
 Buchwald, who began his newspaper career in 1949 as a writer for the Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune, has been called the most dependably witty observer of the American and European scene since Mark Twain.
 His dependable wit will be on tap three times a week in the Pampa News beginning with today's column. Buchwald's doggedly wry deflections of current events will appear on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.
 Born in Mount Vernon, New York, in 1925, Buchwald entered the University of Southern California in 1945, following his war time service with the U.S. Marines in the South Pacific where he edited his outfit's newspaper.
 He edited the campus humor magazine and wrote for the college paper, but left without a degree to savor the life in Paris.
 The rest is a history, as the saying goes. In Buchwald's case, the history of an endless stream of humorlessly intelligent commentary.
 Described by some as "freshly-shaven owl in a Tattersall vest," Buchwald, who at a partly five-foot-nine also looks a lot like a character in a Thurber cartoon, is regarded as the oracle of American political humor. Buchwald has also done his duty as a television humorist bringing to Everyman's critical eye of Washington D.C. the spice of genuine satire—with the well-dependably funny twist.
 Buchwald is the author of several best selling books, including "I Never Danced at the White House," "Washington is Leaking," "I Am Not A Crook," and "Getting Rich in Government Circles."

Pistol death termed accidental

LEFORS—A Lefors man, William Lynch, 57, of 112 Second St., was fatally wounded early last Saturday morning in his home when the loaded .38 caliber German pistol he was apparently cleaning fired, striking him in the left chest, the Gray County Sheriff's Office confirmed Thursday.
 The incident occurred about 1:05 a.m. Lynch was taken by Lefors Volunteer Ambulance Service to Highland General Hospital where he died about 6 a.m. following surgery for internal injuries.
 The victim's death was ruled accidental by Precinct 1 Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge.
 Investigating Sheriff's Deputy Kenneth

Minatrea said no autopsy was ordered in the case.
 "It was a clear case of accidental shooting," Minatrea said.
 Sheriff Rufe Jordan said Lynch called Mrs. J.W. Franks shortly after 1 a.m. and told her he had accidentally shot himself.
 Minatrea said Lynch, who remained conscious until his arrival at the hospital, told emergency medical personnel and Mrs. Frank, "I messed up. I was cleaning my gun."
 The deputy said the pistol, along with rags and cleaning oil, was found on a table in front of which Lynch was seated at the time of the shooting. Lynch, who lived alone at the 2nd Street residence, was partially confined to a wheelchair.
 Minatrea said he was uncertain exactly

Sparse reactions reported to jury summons

By DAN LACKEY
Of The Pampa News
 Whether the low response to the most recent county court jury summons is the result of civic sloth or the law of averages, Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy isn't quite sure.
 Only 15 of 54 prospective jurors showed up at the Gray County Courthouse for the opening of the Aug. 27 jury week, according to records in the county clerk's office. On the following Tuesday, 13 appeared; and on Wednesday, with the help of Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan, the count was up to 16.
 Although Kennedy said there is no legal minimum number of jurors that must be present above the six which are required for misdemeanor court duty, he added that the safe minimum is 18 since the defense and prosecution are allowed six jury cuts each.
 On Tuesday Kennedy wondered aloud if the low turn-out signified a trend away from civic responsibility.

"I'm curious as to why so many people try to get out of it (jury duty)," he said. "Rather than showing a willingness to serve."
 But the answer could lay in the law of averages. And Kennedy said 72 prospective jurors would be summoned early next month for the county's sixth criminal misdemeanor jury week of the year which begins Oct. 15, in an attempt to up the odds of having more prospective jurors turn up.
 Previously this year lists of 36 prospective jurors have been drawn for call for each jury week, but the county judge called 54 persons for the Aug. 27 week in response to low turnout earlier in the year.
 With a 36-person jury summons an average of about 14 showed up on required days. But when Kennedy increased the list to 54 for the August jury week, the results were the same.
 In recent years, 60 to 80 jurors have been summoned, with the usual drawing being 72 or 80 names. Under the increased call used by the court in 1978 an average pool of about 25 potential jurors would appear.

 One of the problems, Kennedy said, is that the county court hears attorney motions before the jury is impaneled but after it is called. This often necessitates a lengthy wait in the hall for prospective jurors. In district court, formal motions are usually scheduled for pretrial hearings.
 Excuses for dismissal for jury duty have been reduced to one absolute—age over 65, Kennedy said, although a prospective juror over 65 is, of course, permitted to serve. Kennedy said the law automatically exempting women with children under age 10 from jury duty is no longer in force.
 Kennedy said he would be reluctant to take a hard line stand with recalcitrant jurors.
 "You have a public relations problem there," he said. "You don't want to have people mad at the court when they come in. We try to be understanding with people."
 The pay for jury duty is $5 a day for

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Competition levels free market prices

Inflation is a time bomb for all of us. It seems to be worsening, and that is bad.

In the ten years since 1968 the cumulative increase in the Consumer Price Index was 87.4 percent, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington, D.C. That means that a couple who retired in 1968 on a comfortable but fixed income of $15,000 would have needed $28,000 in 1978 to maintain the same 1968 standard of living. The 1979 need would exceed that figure.

We have repeatedly discussed the cause of inflation which largely is the government's printing of cheap dollars and its deficit spending. And we have pointed out frequently that government wage and price controls are not the "cure."

But, one may ask, what does that have to do with the price of hamburger on one's grocery-shopping list?

We mention these preliminaries to stress a point in behalf of a free market place.

We want to say a good word about competition.

All of us are feeling the pressure of inflation. Most of the population would like to see a brake-put on its rampant rise. Meanwhile, though, we worry about paying for the food to put on our tables, and whether the meat we are able to purchase today will be enough to stick to our ribs or whether we will have to depend heavily on filling the void with bread and gravy.

So, let's discuss beef, and pork and chicken and competition in the marketplace.

Last spring when soaring beef prices reached a peak, there appeared all the makings of a full-scale consumer uprising at the meat counter, but somewhere between the cash register in the supermarket and the feedlot on the ranch, the consumer switched to chicken and pork. The consumer simply did not feel like fighting the high beef prices.

During one week in May of this year, the average of choice beef cuts cost the most per pound in the history of the American cattle market, according to economists.

But the unusual happened. There was a reduction in the supply of beef but there was an increase in the supply of pork and poultry at the same time, according to Dr. Ed Uvacek, Texas A and M University livestock marketing specialist. "The timing couldn't have been better, at least for the consumer," he said. "There is a lot more poultry, pork and even turkey, on the market now, than most agricultural economists anticipated."

He pointed out that beef has dropped 16 cents a pound for choice cuts since May.

The difference, of course, Dr. Uvacek pointed out, has been the addition of more competing meats.

There we have it. Competition in the marketplace did it. Now, it is true, as Dr. Uvacek points out, because of inflation and the marketing costs of beef, "prices of beef have gone down about as far as they can go at the retail level." But because pork and chicken appeared in plentiful supplies, the price of beef did level off. Here we have the law of supply and demand at work, and the benefits of the free market emphasized. Inflation could be much worse were it not for the competitive forces in the free marketplace. Believe in them, and in it.

The kings domain

A recent Associated Press story again makes note of the push vacation retreats maintained by the National Park Service. From mountain lodges and beach houses on the mainland to secluded hideaways in the Virgin Islands, they are for politicians and VIPs only. The public is barred.

Like the parks of the kings of old they allow no trespassing on the part of the peasants who pay the taxes. Taking a trout from a stream within the domain would not cause a commoner to lose his head. He would only be escorted quickly from the privileged area.

Those who are allowed to use these facilities are alleged to be charged a fee for their stay, but the Park Service officials are not too communicative about just what is charged what. And it is somewhat difficult to find out just what amount the taxpayers are tabbed to make up the differences between fees and actual costs.

Reservations for VIP houses are handled by Ira Whitlock of the Park Service who also happens to be the liaison chief for the service with the Congress. He is the man who sells Park Service programs to the members of Congress.

A Park Service official said, "We have to live by the legislative dollar. If we want our budgets approved, we have to make people happy."

Just how do members of Congress equate that idea with their attitude in regard to some industry making a foreign customer happy to giving him something he desires.

They call that bribery and tend to make such action a great attempt to stray from ethical practice.

On principle we are compelled to view a federal agency granting favors to obtain more from Congress more odious than industry granting favors to gain customers in foreign areas where the practice is condoned.

We don't care for either practice, but the exclusion of taxpayers citizens from areas reserved for the politicians and their VIP friends galls us no end.

Compared to all the useless waste of taxpayers' money by the federal political establishment, the amount used in these push retreats is only peanuts. However, we view it as just another small beginning which could become a major trend.

As the federal government ties up more "wilderness" for the king's domain we have cause to wonder just where it will lead? Nearly all the major problems with which we are now beset started from beginnings so small as to go unnoticed until it became too late to effect real control.

We did not like the smell of the first set-aside retreat and we are fearful that it will spread to ever larger proportions. Such activities have a contagion about them which could easily cause a spread to other agencies of the government.

The National Park Service is not the only federal agency which has its hand on the controls of land owned by government.

By OSCAR COOLEY

One social problem never solved is crime.

The nation's prisons are full. Ohio's, built to house 11,253 inmates, now have some 13,700. The state's director of prisons, George Denton, asks for more prisons to be built, but the legislature has refused to provide the money.

Perhaps it is because the lawmakers have read Jessica Mitford's "Kind and Usual Punishment" (1973), which holds that prisons do not accomplish their purpose and should be abolished. Some prison authorities agree with her. In Massachusetts, Dr. Jerome Miller, head of youth services, in 1969 closed several juvenile prisons, reducing the number of imprisoned youth by 94 percent. There was no immediate increase in juvenile crime.

But with violent crime now increasing throughout the country—in the first quarter of this year it was up 17 percent over the same period of 1978 -- and with one in four Americans reporting they have been mugged, robbed, assaulted or suffered break-in over a 12-month period, the public is not likely to enthuse over closing the prisons.

What are prisons for? Their immediate purpose is to incarcerate those who have been convicted of crime so they will not, over the period of imprisonment, commit more. From a longer viewpoint, they are supposed to instill fear in the criminal and deter him, after release, from breaking the law again.

Mitford does not believe this long-term aim is achieved. Nor do many others. The deterrent effect of punishment will always be debated since it is impossible to know what the criminal would have done if he had not served a prison term. The prospect to ex-convicts who have plainly reformed. The antis will cite the large proportion, one-half to two-thirds, of those who have served a term for committing a certain crime and appear in court for doing it again.

It seems logical that a person, having suffered for committing a crime, would refrain from repeating the act. Certainly that is the reason my mother spanked me after I got angry with my brother and kicked out a cellar window. Punishment is supposed to deter, to make a good citizen out of a wrong-doer. The number of repeaters in prison seems to belie this logic.

Does punishing one person deter other from committing crime? On the theory that it does, authorities used to hang offenders in public view, as much as to say, "See what you'll get if you commit a capital offense."

But it seems the more prisons we build and the more punishment we inflict, the more crime we have. So, is punishment making people better?

All of us are tempted to sin. What inhibits us from wronging our neighbors? Probably it is not so much the fear of arrest, trial, conviction and punishment by authorities as it is the fear of losing our reputation for decency. We dread the unsavory publicity more than we do the uncomfortable jail cell.

Probing more deeply, is it not true that the great majority wish their neighbors well and do not want to injure them? Civilized men have a law of their own, the moral law. The Golden Rule rules at least a large part of their social behaviour. Perhaps this is the nearest we can come to putting the finger on a "solution" to today's rash of crime.

George Gallup, the pollster, seems to agree. He says "the U.S. is suffering a moral crisis of the first dimension." His surveys reveal that street crime has "frightening proportions," hundreds of school teachers are being physically attacked, the use of alcohol and drugs by youth is "reaching epidemic proportions" and cheating in schools and colleges is widespread.

Does this mean that Americans are losing their religion? Gallup wonders that, too. He concludes from his surveys that Americans still pay lip service to religion. Ninety-four percent believe in God, 89 percent pray, 41 percent or about 90 million go to church regularly.

But, he says, "Too many belong to a category of 'not-quite-Christians' who believe but without strong convictions, who want the rewards of faith without the obligations, who say they are Christians or Jews but tend to keep the news to themselves."

In short, the millennium has not arrived. Men still prey upon one another. Incarceration of people convicted of crime is not a solution. Religion, teamed with education, still offers the best hope.

You could be arrested

by ART BUCHWALD

"Sergeant Riley, Fifth Precinct, Homicide Division, speaking."

"Sergeant, I would like to report a crime. Someone tried to poison my entire family."

"Are you sure?"

"I'm certain. I had my water and food analyzed by a laboratory and they were full of pesticides. Someone dumped the poison in our wells and rivers and not only my loved ones but all our neighbors may be croaking at this very moment."

"This is serious. Anybody have any grudges against you?"

"No one that I know of. Certainly we don't have enemies who would want to poison us."

"Maybe it's a crazy person who has some beef against the community. We better put out a dragnet."

"It's possible, but the person would have to have access to a lot of poison. Our pigs and cows are all sick and our horses are dying too."

"Let me get this straight. You think there is a mass murderer in your neighborhood?"

"Sergeant, I think there is a mass murderer in the county."

"You're not a kook, are you?"

"No, sir. If you check my record I am a very respectable person and have never been trouble with the law."

"Okay, do you have suspects?"

"Well, the Frankenstein Chemical Co. is about two miles from my house and they've been dumping all sorts of sludge in the river."

"Sometimes it's green, sometimes a dark red and other times it's a deep brown. They do it mostly at night so no one will see them."

"Wait a minute. The Frankenstein Chemical Co. is a multi-million dollar corporation with plants all over the United States. I know the men running the one in this county. They're lodge brothers of mine. Are you accusing them of poisoning people?"

"I know it sounds hard to believe, Sergeant, but I have this niece who works in the company's office and she has memos signed by two of the officers instructing the Frankenstein employees to dump all the waste in the river at night. The memos say that if anyone questions them about it to deny they did it, because if they get caught, Frankenstein will have to close down the plant and they'll all be out of jobs."

"So what's the crime?"

"They're knowingly poisoning all of us.

Isn't that a felony?"

"No, that's an environmental problem."

"Let me ask you something, Sergeant. If someone came into your house and started sprinkling arsenic on your food and fed your dog DDT and poured cyanide into your children's milk, would you arrest him?"

"What's the difference between that and a company doing the same thing to an entire community?"

"The police only deal with individual crime. We have no authority to arrest company officials just because they have no way of getting rid of their pesticides."

"Then you mean the average citizen has no recourse when a large corporation knowingly tries to kill him?"

"If the government thinks they're doing anything wrong they have ways of punishing people who dump their waste in the wrong place."

"What's the punishment?"

"I think it's a $5,000 fine. It could be less. But you better be careful before you make wild charges such as you have."

"Why?"

"I can arrest you for harassing a respectable business establishment."

The UAW write-in

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

In a characteristic bit of political exhibitionism, the United Auto Workers called a brief work stoppage Aug. 22 to have the members write postcards to Congress.

The message that the UAW leadership decreed was that Congress should approve "a taxpayer-owned federal energy corporation, which would explore for, produce and market oil and gas from federal lands." The UAW bosses say that the "corporation would compete with private oil companies and provide a yardstick against which to measure their performance."

It's hard to believe that the American people will accept this nostrum. When has a bureaucratic operation provided a yardstick for managerial success? One may ask: Is the U.S. Post Office such a yardstick? Sensible business rely on private companies such as the United Parcel Service wherever possible, in preference to the slow, inefficient postal system with its government monopoly on first class mail.

The UAW proposal is absurd on its face. Exploring for oil and producing and marketing it are enormously complicated operations, requiring great expertise and experience. The only source of that expertise and experience—for a government "corporation"—would be the personnel of the investor-owned oil companies.

The UAW write-in is aimed at phased nationalization of the oil industry. It would be the first step in a federal takeover. Nationalization, however, has proven to be a disaster wherever it has been tried. In Britain, nationalized industries have cost the public, which supplied the capital through taxes, colossal sums. These industries have a record of losing millions of dollars and making political decisions regarding plant location and product selection.

The members of the UAW have everything to gain from a healthy free enterprise system. Unfortunately, they are the victims of union bosses who are determined to push for the socialistic political experiments of yesteryear.

The write-in ordered by the UAW hierarchy is part of a broader effort by something called the Progressive Alliance, of which the UAW is a part. More than 100 liberal-left organizations have joined in this effort to radically restructure the American economy.

If the Progressive Alliance has its way, free enterprise will be dismantled and a regimented economy installed in its place.

Missing student found; under doctors care

DESOTO, Texas (AP) — Three disoriented, emotional, pre-dawn telephone calls led to the recovery of a missing 16-year-old student genius who had been feared dead because of his involvement in a strange intellectual game.

"We agree this is the most bizarre case we've ever been involved with," private detective William Dear said Thursday, after he located James Dallas Egbert III at an undisclosed location and put him under a doctor's care.

Dear said he was hired by the boy's family five days after the Aug. 15 disappearance to find their son, a Michigan State University computer science student with an IQ measured at 145. Egbert had last been seen in the cafeteria at the university dormitory where he lived.

Authorities feared Egbert became lost and died in a maze of winding steam tunnels beneath the campus while acting out an intellectual game called "Dungeons and Dragons."

Police found a note in his room saying he wished to be cremated "should my body be found."

"We crawled through tunnels after tunnels, we climbed through holes and crevices we didn't even think existed," said Dear, who added authorities were never convinced Egbert wrote the note. And he said the fantasy game played no part in the disappearance.

Dear said he was unable to develop any concrete leads into Egbert's whereabouts until he got three early morning phone calls within a 30-minute span Thursday.

"I was able to talk to the boy. He was crying intermittently and a man in the background was telling him 'Cool it, man, cool it.' Then later this (Thursday) afternoon I was able to make arrangements to pick up the boy," said Dear.

The detective said no kidnapping was involved in the disappearance. However, he refused to say if the boy had been held against his will.

"The boy's been through a tremendous ordeal," Dear told a news conference at his home in this Dallas suburb late Thursday night. "We hope that this thing will end fairly quickly so the boy can get well and regain a normal life."

The detective said Egbert appeared to be in good physical shape except for minor cuts on his chin and elbow.

"The boy's alive," said Dear. "As far as his mental condition, that's up to a doctor to determine. We have agreed not to expose where the boy is or any details involved in the boy's activities at this time."

Dear said he and his agents also spent three days aloft in a helicopter around the MSU campus, trying to see if a map found in the boy's dorm room could be a clue to his location.

"We had astrologers and all sorts of people looking at that map, trying to make some sense out of it, but nothing worked," Dear said.

When the boy was located, the detective said an individual — he declined to identify — asked for a written guarantee from Dear that there would be no prosecution in the case. Dear said he did not accede to the request and instead made other arrangements to pick up the boy.

Houston attorney files suit for Texans

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston attorney has filed a $155 million lawsuit on behalf of a group of fishermen who claim they have lost money because of a giant oil spill that swept from Mexico into Texas waters.

Joe Jamail, who has won millions of dollars in damages for clients during the past few years, named the defendants in the federal court class action as PEMEX, the Mexican oil monopoly, and SEDCO, a firm founded by Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

Jamail told The Associated Press. "Since the governor of this state has refused to represent the people of Texas, somebody had to. I filed the suit to force some people's hands and, by God, I think, I know, we can win a judgment."

Spillage from Ixtoc I, a PE-MEX oil well in the Bay of Campeche, has stained more than 100 miles of Texas beaches and sent oil slicks over a wide area where Gulf of Mexico fishermen harvest shrimp, oysters and crab.

The well has pumped more than 2 million barrels of oil into the Gulf since it ruptured in early June. Efforts still are underway to seal the runaway well.

Clements, Texas' first Republican governor in more than 100 years, placed his interest in SEDCO in trust and disassociated himself from the multi-million dollar firm before his election.

The Dallas-based company had leased an offshore rig to the Mexican government. It was this rig that collapsed.

PEMEX officials refused to comment on the oil suit.

Clements is in Moscow on a sight-seeing tour and not available for comment.

Gil Clements, the governor's son and chief officer of SEDCO, said, "I can't say I am surprised by a lawsuit being filed. I am surprised that anyone thinks they can document any damages against us."

Jamail said, "I am representing this group of fishermen who have suffered the million-dollar losses in just the past year. This will increase as their losses increase, and I expect the owners of hotels and motels and others along the affected beach areas to eventually join in this action."

"We have a right to sue these people for the loss by the victims of the oil spill. Just think what this oil spill has done to parts of Texas," he said.

McCrorry still on stand

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Prosecution witness David McCrorry says that Cullen Davis searched him several times during secret mass murder negotiations last summer.

The millionaire defendant did not search McCrorry during the two crucial meetings that led to Davis' arrest on murder-for-hire charges, the witness testified Thursday. McCrorry said Davis searched him at least twice, but did nothing about the .38 caliber pistol McCrorry carried during the discussions.

Davis, 45, is standing trial on charges he tried to buy the murder of Joe Eidsen, his divorce judge.

Lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes expressed mild surprise at McCrorry's statement during cross-examination. And although he did not give the witness the chance to explain, McCrorry left the impression that Davis was looking for recording equipment.

"Did Cullen Davis take the .38 (pistol) from you?" Haynes asked.

"No," McCrorry replied.

"Is it your testimony that Cullen Davis let you keep the Smith and Wesson after the pat-down search?"

Haynes queried, an incredulous tone in his voice.

"Yes, sir," McCrorry said. "It wasn't the Smith and Wesson he was looking for."

FBI agents hid a body recorder on McCrorry to tape the ominous meetings on Aug. 18 and Aug. 20, 1978. While reviewing transcripts of the Aug. 20 tape, Haynes asked if McCrorry was scared of Davis.

"Mr. Haynes, he's always carried pistols," McCrorry said.

"Didn't you have your own .38 stuck in your pants?" Haynes asked.

"Yes, but I didn't want to use it," McCrorry said.

"But didn't you just tell the jury that one of your options to get out of your problem, as you call it, was to kill Davis?" Haynes asked, looking over the rim of his glasses at jurors.

"Yes, sir," McCrorry said.

The husky witness earlier testified he carried $4,400 to the Aug. 18 meeting, hoping to use to money to get out of his murderous alliance with Davis.

"It was something I thought might get me out of this case," McCrorry said.

Jury recommends Dixon spend six years in prison

COLORADO CITY, Texas (AP) — A state district court jury has recommended William Clarence Dixon spend six years in prison, after convicting him of involuntary manslaughter in a collision between a school bus and Dixon's oilfield equipment truck that killed four students.

The jury recommended the punishment late Thursday, after convicting Dixon on the charge Wednesday, after four hours of deliberation.

Dixon was indicted on charges he caused the four deaths Dec. 8, 1978, by failing to stop at a stop sign near Roby at a rural West Texas intersection.

As Judge Weldon Kirk prepared to read the sentence, Dixon sat at the defense table, eyes closed and hands folded as though in prayer.

Dixon showed no emotion after he heard the verdict, but glanced at his wife Pam who appeared to be fighting tears.

Kirk set Sept. 28 as the date for formal sentencing, and Dixon has ten days to ask for a new trial.

Dixon's truck hit a bus carrying the boys' and girls' McCaulley High School basketball team to a tournament.

Four students were dead at the scene and another died three weeks later. In addition, 20 people — including Dixon — were injured.

TEXAS

By The Associated Press
EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Charlie, a 5'-foot green iguana with long spines down his back, is missing. The oversized lizard wandered out of Julie Potter's El Paso apartment.

"We were keeping him on the back porch," she said, "and apparently he pushed open the screen door and walked out."
She said Charlie is not dangerous — if he is left alone.

"He's a very calm animal. He's not going to attack, but if somebody tried to pick him up he would probably scratch hell out of them," said Ms. Potter.

GARLAND, Texas (AP) — State Rep. Anita Hill announced Thursday she was switching her party affiliation from Democrat to Republican.

"I don't consider that I am leaving the Democratic Party, but that it has left me. I can foresee no circumstance under which I might support any of the three potential Democratic candidates for president and as a loyal party member I would be bound to support them.

"Besides, the people of my district want conservative representation and I believe I can more adequately serve the conservative cause as a Republican rather than a Democrat."

Her change follows that of State Sen. Bill Braecklein of Dallas, who switched from the Democratic to the Republican camp earlier this summer.

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County Sheriff Carl Thomas will be forced to pay $134,000 in damages to 14 deputies he illegally demoted or transferred in 1977, unless an appeals court intervenes in his behalf. U.S. District Judge Robert Porter has ordered Thomas to put up $311,000 in bonds if he wants the execution of the judgment postponed pending the outcome of the appeal.

The sheriff's legal advisor, W.C. Davis, said he filed an "emergency appeal" of Porter's order requiring the bonds with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

EL PASO (AP) — Authorities searched Thursday for two El Paso area men charged in an alleged diesel fuel smuggling operation.

Dale Drake, 49, and Oscar Perez were indicted along with two others by a Travis County grand jury in Austin. Santiago Borunda and Gustavo Aguilar were arrested here earlier this week.

TEXAS

By The Associated Press

High pressure dominated the Texas weather scene today, bringing cooler temperatures and drier air to most of the state.

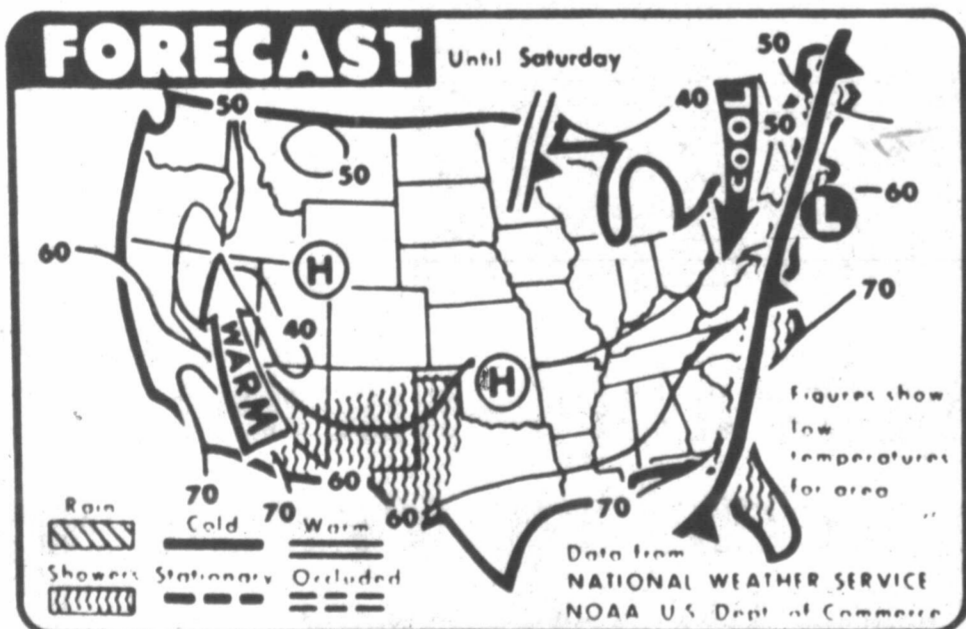

Forecasts called for mostly sunny skies across the eastern half of the state and partly cloudy skies across the western half. A few showers and thunderstorms were forecast for the South Plains and Panhandle.

A few showers and thunderstorms were reported in the Panhandle and on the South Plains during the night as an upper level disturbance moved southward out of Colorado. Dalhart had the heaviest rainfall reported, only about .10 of an inch.

NATIONAL

A low pressure zone, all that was left of Hurricane Frederic, spread rain throughout the Ohio Valley and into the Great Lakes early today and heavy rains pounded Tennessee and Kentucky.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected to reach across the southern Atlantic Coast states and dampen the Texas Panhandle and the southern Rockies. Rain also was forecast in Michigan and the Tennessee and Ohio valleys.

SHOWERS are expected in the forecast period, Friday until Saturday morning for parts of the southwest. (AP Laserphoto)

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I am 16 and my mother introduced me to Glenda who is 24. I care very much for her and I know she likes me. The problem is Glenda is afraid that if we are seen in public that people will laugh because of our age difference, but I read somewhere that the woman should be older by eight years because women live that much longer than men.

I don't get along with girls my own age because I am mentally ahead of them.

Can you offer any help? — Bryan, Elizabethtown, Ky.

Bryan: It's true that women outlive men and I see nothing wrong with men dating older women, but wait until you are a man.

There surely must be a girl or two in your school who can challenge your mentality. You should be smart enough to find one, but don't ask for Mother's help!

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 12-year-old girl and my problem is my 11-year-old sister. She gets all the gravy and I get all the work.

My mother had a baby a couple of days ago. I had to stay home and clean the house while my sister got to go to the hospital to pick up my mom with my dad and my grandma. When they got home, my sister was carrying my new baby sister and she wouldn't let me see or hold her.

I can't ever go anywhere by myself without my sister tagging along. I've talked to my mom and she is sympathetic, but that's all. Help. — Nancy, Michigan City, Ind.

Nancy: Usually the oldest child is given the most responsibility when it comes to helping out. Add this to the fact that younger sisters enjoy copying older sisters and you have your situation.

It's nice to know that as you both grow older, your sister will be given new responsibility and she will develop her own friends.

I know it doesn't seem fair, but just have patience. It will only get better.

Jeans: all things to all people

NEW YORK (AP) — Little did Levi Strauss know back in 1853 that the jeans he made for California gold miners would one day dictate international fashion. Indeed, in this country, jeans reign virtually supreme as the American national costume for both men and women, fashion authorities agree.

To learn why, a major nationwide retailer of casual wear and jeans polled a group of psychologists and fashion authorities on the "jeans message." They came up with these points about jeans as a psychological statement.

— A preference for jeans may indicate that a person is relaxed in his attitude toward himself.

"I never get out of jeans. I work in them," says psychologist Mildred S. Lerner, past president of the National Psychological Association of Psychiatry. "In fact, it goes beyond that because I use jeans to make other people feel at ease. I can almost use the way a person dresses as an indicator of how to work with him. The more uptight a person is, the more into high fashion they can get."

— The jeans wearer is often seeking a sort of "uniform" which nevertheless allows for a certain amount of individuality.

"Jeans serve a purpose as a uniform, providing a sense of belonging when needed," says psychotherapist and image consultant Mara Gleckel. "Today, there is a striving for individuality with styles like French jeans and the status jeans, although the risk of looking very different isn't tremendous to the wearer no matter what kind of jeans he or she wears."

New York psychoanalyst Stephen Adler has a similar opinion. "Different segments of society use jeans for uniformity — to express a need to belong or a need to feel they're doing the right thing. That's OK if they're already sure of themselves," he commented.

Adler added: "The fact that a person wears jeans does say a lot about a person. But, even with jeans, there are different looks. You can tell if a person projects an 'alive' message or a static message — the latter being a controlled look that is made to appear 'right'."

According to George Arvan, general merchandise manager of The Gap, the firm that conducted the survey, jeans symbolize the youthful nature of America.

"Most people go to Europe to get ideas and forget that many important ideas in young-looking fashion usually come from the United States and are part of the American lifestyle," he says. "The youthful free-spirited jeans' image has had a profound impact on all casual wear in this country and abroad."

— Jeans represent a pride in and an affirmation of America. On a deeper level, the fashion expresses a need to identify with the "frontier" spirit.

"After Watergate, the 1976 Bicentennial was a show of faith in America which demonstrated that there was belief in the country, if not in the government," says Gladys Toulis, an expert on the social significance of dressing and head of the fashion department at Pratt Institute in New York. "Jeans are an example of fashions that come from the streets as a statement of belief in what we are."

In fact, notes Dr. Adler, "The whole Western look in jeans and other clothing is very important. Psychologically, it goes back to our earliest history when durability was important. There is no more physical frontier now. Here we are going to outer space and human development is left behind."

— Jeans indicate an active, busy lifestyle that requires a person to be appropriately dressed at all times. "Jeans don't cost a lot, you can buy them quickly and they don't require a lot of care," says Donna Lawson, author of "Superjeans."

"They also pack easily, clean easily and wear a long time. Aside from fitting well and being comfortable, they are non-seasonal fashion — wise, which is good for an inflationary time."

FALL JEANSWEAR is popular in both denim and corduroy. His batwing - shape taupe wide wale corduroy jacket has epaulets, band neck, zip front, button pockets and knit webbing at waist and cuffs. Matching jeans have two slit-top pockets. Her indigo denim shirt - jacket has two roomy flap - top envelope pockets and orange stitching; she wears it with buckle - belted jeans. (His by Levi's Pantela; hers by Levi's Juniors.)

EXPECTANT MOTHERS don't have to give up their favorite casual wear. Straight-leg designer maternity jeans in indigo cotton denim have all the fit and panache of their popular counterpart, down to the label on the back pocket. (By Sassoon Maternity Jeans in Cone Mills fabric.)

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has diabetes and his feet have really been bothering him lately. He has tried aspirin and Ben Gay but nothing seems to help. He has been up all night lately because his feet hurt and the toes are numb and sting. I read where people with this trouble could take a number of medicines but I don't remember what they were. Any help you can give on this would be appreciated.

DEAR READER — Anytime a diabetic starts having trouble with his feet, he ought to see his doctor. It's too easy for diabetics to lose a foot.

The likelihood is that your husband has diabetic neuropathy which means an involvement of the nerves to his feet. This usually affects the sensory nerves and the person may complain of numbness and pain as you describe. As the condition progresses, there may be other changes that indicate involvement of the nerves. Diabetes does affect the nervous system. That's how it causes impotence. It involves the nerves that control normal sexual arousal.

There are a limited number of things that can be done to control nerve involvement from diabetes. Most authorities think that the best approach is to try to control the blood sugar level as well as possible. Beyond that, most of the medicines that can be used for this condition are really those that relieve pain.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-11, Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention And Management, to give you more information on your husband's diabetic problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. The other possibility is that your husband may be developing changes in his circulation to the legs. That is common in a person who has diabetes.

I'm pleased to see there is hope that there will be improved methods of managing diabetics in the not-too-distant future. The National Institutes of Health has let a contract for the production of small mechanical devices by 1981 to continuously provide insulin. These will change the whole picture of the control of the diabetic who needs to take insulin.

The little device is about the size of a cigarette package and can be worn in the shirt pocket. It will deliver insulin as needed at different times of the day in a controlled manner. This will help to control the marked swings in blood sugar levels that are inevitable with the currently available forms of treatment. It's possible that this improved control may decrease the number of the complications that we now see with diabetes.

Rho Eta sorority has fashion show

Rho Eta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Monday for a program on "Little Fashions", given by Monty Schaub, owner of Lad and Lassie.

Models for the program were Alyn and Krista Schaub, Robi Franklin, Bradley and Ty Newman, John David Callison and Sissy Giddon.

The group, meeting in the home of Lisa Crossman, president, discussed the area convention, set for Oct. 21-22 in Wichita Falls. Members selected matching shirts to wear to the convention.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I'm 23 and happily married. My problem is my mother. She's a sick woman. Not a day goes by that she doesn't play bingo!

Abby, it is driving our family nuts. I have two younger sisters at home who complain because Mum is gone all the time. She knows where all the bingo games are, and she plays night and day. It takes all the money she has, and when she's broke, she borrows from her children.

My father left her because of this. I know it sounds outrageous, but it's the truth. You never in your life saw a woman so crazy over anything as my mother is over bingo. She hardly ever wins, but she keeps going in hopes of winning a big one.

Is there a cure for a bingo freak?

WORRIED ABOUT MUM

DEAR WORRIED: Your mother is addicted to gambling just as surely as an alcoholic is addicted to drink. But she can be helped if she truly wants to be. Urge her to call GAMBLERS ANONYMOUS. If they aren't listed in your phone book, write to P.O. Box 17173, Los Angeles, Calif. 90017.

DEAR ABBY: About a year ago I met a nice-looking man at the shopping center. (I was fishing around in my purse for change for the parking meter and he put his own money in as a gentlemanly act.) After I finished my shopping I came back to my car and this same man was waiting for me. He reminded me of my dear, departed husband, so I offered to buy him a cup of coffee.

We really hit it off from the start. I told him I was a widow and he said he was a widower. We exchanged phone numbers. He said if I called him and a woman answered to hang up because he was living with a nosy sister and he didn't want her to know his business.

We started seeing each other (always at my place and during the afternoon) and we just plumb fell in love. I'm 62 and he's 66.

Suddenly I was served papers! To make a long story short, this man had been married for 42 years, his wife was suing him for divorce and she named me as the cause!

I swear I never knew this man was married. He muddied up my name in this town. How can I teach him a lesson?

TAKEN IN IN MISSOURI
DEAR TAKEN: Never mind the "lesson." This senior swinger has already graduated. Just let his wife handle the punishment.

DEAR ABBY: I am a truck-driver's wife. A few days ago my husband called me long distance to tell me that he was considering changing companies. He asked me to think about it for a few days and let him know how I felt about it.

Well, Abby, the next day he called to tell me that he had already changed jobs. Then he informed me that his new boss was a woman, and also his co-driver!

He assures me that nothing will happen between them, but he has been unfaithful before and I don't trust him. I was terribly upset with this news and I let him know it.

Do you think I'm "childish" for objecting to my husband's driving with a woman partner? He says I am. And what should I do about it?

ALABAMA WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You can't be blamed for feeling as you do. A man who would change jobs without waiting to hear his wife's opinion obviously doesn't much care what she thinks. What you should do depends upon your options.

Huge grain crops to net lower prices to farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Huge grain crops this year will mean slightly lower prices for farmers than Agriculture Department experts had forecast a month ago.

But a new "supply and demand" report issued Thursday indicated exports — a major factor in farmers' financial status — are not expected so far to be jeopardized by strikes at rail and port facilities.

Farmers are harvesting record crops of corn and soybeans, and a near-record crop of wheat. A strike against the Rock Island railroad and at Great Lakes port facilities at Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., have raised fears that exports will suffer.

The new analysis issued by the department's World Food and Agricultural Outlook and Situation Board included no reference to the grain-handling problem nor indicated any change in export prospects from a month ago.

According to sources who asked not to be identified, senior department officials, including Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, believe no substantial impact will be felt because of the strike for at least several more weeks.

The reason, the sources said, is that the huge corn harvest — estimated Wednesday at a record 7.27 billion bushels — is later than usual in the main producing areas of the Midwest.

Similar delays face the soybean harvest, estimated at a record 2.17 billion bushels.

Thus, goes the theory, the big harvest crunch will not be felt for another month or so. But if the stoppages continue for another three to eight weeks, exports as well as the internal movements of grain and soybeans will be significantly affected, meaning huge pileups of commodities and a disruption of market prices.

Corn exports in the year beginning Oct. 1 were projected at around 2.5 billion bushels, the same as a month ago, the report said.

Also unchanged were export figures for 1979 shipments of wheat at 1.4 billion bushels and soybeans at 825 million bushels.

Rice, also with a record harvest this year of 135.3 million hundredweight, was shown at a 1979-80 export level of 83 million hundredweight, also unchanged from the August analysis.

But the improved harvest prospects, by themselves, have had an impact on the prices farmers can expect over the coming months.

For example, corn prices at the farm are now expected to average $2.40 to $2.70 a bushel over the entire 1979-80 marketing year, down five cents at the top end from last month.

Wheat prices were projected at $3.60 to $3.90 a bushel, compared to last month's range of $3.50 to $4.25.

Soybean price forecasts now are $5.75 to $6.50 a bushel against the projection in August of $6.50 to $7 a bushel.

An exception to the downward price trend was for rice, which showed a decline in harvest prospects from a month ago. Thus, the report said, prices for 1979-80 are expected to range from $8.25 to $9.25 per hundredweight, compared to August's projection of $8 to $9.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says it will boost dairy price supports by about 6.8 percent on Oct. 1.

Although the exact support price will not be determined until later, officials said Thursday it appears the new rate will be $11.22 per 100 pounds.

Families encouraged to visit rest homes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — TV blurbs encouraging families to check on aged relatives in nursing homes would improve the care they receive, suggests a report by a special subcommittee.

"Since nursing homes are sometimes depressing places, people often would prefer not to visit them," the report said. "One of the most effective things might be simply to have a televised awareness campaign — 'Have you visited or called your aged relative today?'"

On another issue Thursday, the chairman of the subcommittee on health services for the elderly told the staff to pursue the idea of a state-funded hospice for dying patients.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, also said he favored packaging drugs for nursing home patients in single doses to save possibly millions of dollars a year in wasted drugs.

The subcommittee is part of the Special Committee on the Delivery of Human Services, eight citizens and four senators appointed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. Hobby says he considers it especially important.

Staffer Jan Reutz said there was so much public support for Texas' first hospice in Orange that the $30,000 used to start the hospice was raised primarily from contributions of $5 and $10.

She said a doctor is on call free-of-charge 24 hours a day, and the hospice has treated 28 terminally ill patients at a cost of $1,000 each, which is much cheaper than they could have been treated in a hospital. One of the goals of hospice care is to keep the patient at home as long as possible.

"Hospice" is a term used to describe programs created to relieve the emotional and physical suffering of dying patients. It includes counseling for the families as well as the patient.

"Once a patient is diagnosed as terminally ill, the family often becomes very uncomfortable and doesn't know what to say or do — it's devastating," said Brooks.

Ms. Reutz said Holy Cross Hospital of Austin was one of three Texas applicants for federal funds to pay for a pilot hospice.

She said, however, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare plans to fund only 30-40 hospices throughout the nation, and it has received 400 applications.

If none of the Texas applications is accepted, she said, "the committee might consider funding a pilot program in the state."

"Let's pursue that," Brooks responded.

Brooks also estimated that $2 million of the more than $4 million in unused prescription drugs that are destroyed each year in Texas could be saved through individual packaging of pills.

By law, Ms. Reutz noted, once a prescription medication has left a pharmacy it cannot be returned because it is considered contaminated after it is opened.

Nursing home residents use large quantities of prescription drugs, and when they stop taking a medication or die, the unused drugs must be destroyed, she said.

Brooks said a talk with the president of the state pharmaceutical association had led him to believe the association is "completely supportive" of delivering prescriptions in single unit dosages.

Roloff welcomes girls back to home

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Evangelist Lester Roloff welcomed 50 girls he called "prisoners of war" back to the fold and promised that a dispute with the State of Texas over licensing of his child-care centers would not send them away from him again.

The girls were among more than 180 who left his Rebekah Home for Girls last June after Roloff agreed to close the homes — rather than have the state do it for him — because he refused to apply for licenses from the Department of Human Resources.

"If there is another battle it would be on new grounds," Roloff said Thursday as he, the girls and several hundred supporters gathered on the grounds of the newly renamed People's Baptist Church, which now is the parent organization for the homes.

"None of the homes are under the evangelistic ministry," Roloff said. They previously were under the control of Roloff Evangelistic Enterprises, Inc., which Roloff dissolved last month.

Roloff's attorneys have declined to discuss details of the religious reorganization.

Roloff said the restructuring puts all holdings formerly under the evangelistic enterprise under the control of the church. He said that involves about $5 million worth of property.

Roloff claimed the reorganization makes the church legal custodian of the homes and should stop state officials from pursuing the license requirements because of constitutional questions involving church and state relations.

"We are doing what we believe is the right thing to do," Roloff said. "We believe the church is free to take care of widows and children."

But officials with Texas Department of Human Resources are monitoring the situation, according to Attorney General Mark White. In a telephone interview from El Paso, White told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times he wants to examine the situation closely before ordering any action.

The preacher and his backers greeted a bus filled with the Roloff refugees as it rolled onto the church grounds late Thursday. They had spent what one called "a summer of sadness" in Georgia after Roloff shut down the Rebekah home.

DHR employees and Department of Public Safety Troopers had been assigned last June to carry out a court order closing the home because Roloff would not permit state inspection or apply for state licenses for his three homes — the Rebekah home and the Lighthouse Home for Boys here, and the Anchor Boys Home near Zapata.

Roloff emphasized Thursday he has made no deal with the state, and said the homes would not be licensed. Asked about the possibility of state inspections, Roloff said, "We will meet it as it comes out."

TELEVISION

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The drawn-out beginning of the 1979-80 television season enters its second week this Sunday, with CBS and NBC joining ABC in the scatter-start opening of the new TV year.

Although this is ABC's official "premiere" week, the network gave three of its new shows a head start by airing them last week, a programming gimmick that paid off in the ratings. "The Lazarus Syndrome" finished fourth and "240 Robert" finished 18th. Premiere week for NBC and CBS doesn't officially start until Monday, but both networks are really kicking off Sunday night.

This must be the real start of the new season. The networks are back at the business of head-butting, scheduling three major programs opposite each other Sunday night.

Who better to kick off NBC's new season than Bob Hope? He checks in Sunday night with a three-hour special, "On the Road to China," a variety extravaganza that features an array of talent Chinese and American.

It's a fine entertainment, highly recommended.

CBS offers a TV movie called "The Tenth Month," a soap opera that features Carol Burnett, adultery, illegitimate children and a Modern Woman theme. Yeah.

ABC offers Woody Allen's 1977 masterpiece, "Annie Hall," the Oscar-winning tale of a crazy romance. Woody is neurotic Alvy Singer, a Jewish comic from Brooklyn who falls in love with flaky Shiksa Annie (Diane Keaton). Alvy's trip to Hollywood may be the best bit of satire ever. Watch this movie.

Remember the one about the guardian angel sent down to earth to help a troubled soul? ABC does. Thus, "Out of the Blue," a new series that made its debut last Sunday and precedes "Annie Hall" this Sunday. The hour-long premiere episode featured a guest shot by Robin "Mork" Williams. Unfortunately, he won't be around this week (or next, or any week thereafter) to save the thing.

Might be some fun here for toddlers. If you're past the age of five (Nielsen viewers, exempted), watch "60 Minutes" while waiting for "Annie Hall."

BOOK CHAT

By DAN SNIDER

For the past few years, physical fitness has been foremost in everyone's mind. Magazine articles, billboards and the government have all been urging us to eat less and exercise more. All over the country, men, women and children are running and jogging to keep their bodies fit and trim.

If dieting is an unacceptable option-- and running, out of the question-- then "The Complete Book of Walking" by Charles T. Kuntzleman may be just the book for you. Kuntzleman's well-researched guide provides a sensible and fun way to lose weight and keep fit that nearly everyone can participate in.

Right now you may be asking yourself how anything as easy as walking can possibly be beneficial.

but Kuntzleman's sub-title, "Total fitness-- step-by-step," tells you clearly. "The Complete Book of Walking" corrects those who mistakenly believe that exercise has to hurt to be effective. With Kuntzleman's counsel, there is no suffering, no gasping for breath.

You don't have to strain so much that you wake in the morning with aches and pains-- you just don't have to suffer in order to feel good. What you have to do, says the author, is find the exercise program that is right for you-- an exercise program so appropriate that you can stick with it for the rest of your life. Walking could be that program.

"The Complete Book of Walking" is indeed complete.

Salaries up in executive suite

NEW YORK (AP) — A battle for talented managers is leading to sharply higher salaries in the executive suite, with incomes of some key people jumping 50 percent and even 60 percent at a time.

"Corporate America is on the biggest binge of hoarding and pirating key executives since the early 1960s," said Eugene Jennings, an authority on corporate affairs who has been tracking the situation.

The surge of increases isn't unique in U.S. industrial history, but it is pushing incomes to previously unheard of levels, and seems destined to make million-dollar incomes far more common.

"We'll see more million dollar salaries in the next five years than we did in the previous ten," said Jennings. "The clear winners are top level executives with good records as general managers."

The condition leading to the higher salaries results from an economy in which some old-line companies are stagnated while newer concerns are forging ahead. Needing talent, the latter raid the former.

As an inducement, the expansion companies once offered 40 percent or a bit more to obtain from a stagnant company a key executive, usually a the manager of a corporate division, or even the corporation itself.

Now, with professional search firms adding to the pressure, the pot has been increased to as much as 60 percent of existing salaries.

"Good general managers are scarce," said Jennings.

Jennings, a professor of management at Michigan State, author of many books on corporations, and confidential adviser to top corporate officials, has spent years tracking executive routes to success.

Intensifying the present battle, he believes, is the tenacity with which the stagnant corporations, the ones so often raided, are fighting to retain their best employees.

Once, said Jennings, they would fight to the extent of offering their key people up to 20 percent to 25 percent to turn down the raider's offer. Now, he said, many companies will go as high as 40 to 50.

When the executive is likely to be tempted, the package is presented.

Mondale's political life riding on Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter F. Mondale got his election bet down early: Jimmy Carter to win, with his own career in national politics riding on the outcome.

Those are high stakes for a man who can't do very much to change the race. But that's the way it is for vice presidents.

So long as Carter is running, Mondale has no options. And Carter has made it clear that he intends to run all the way to the Democratic National Convention, no matter what happens in the early primary elections.

That could change, and Mondale hasn't foreclosed the possibility that he'd be a presidential candidate if Carter were not. That is not likely. Besides, if Carter did falter during the primary season, it probably would be too late for Mondale to move in anyhow.

Mondale says he doesn't know what Kennedy is going to do. But he does know what Carter will do, and that is run for a second term. Mondale says he believes Carter will be renominated and re-elected, and will be proud to run with him.

Mondale's political career and that of his mentor, the late Hubert H. Humphrey, always had intertwined. Now Vice President Mondale faces a situation not unlike the one that confronted Vice President Humphrey in the 1968 campaign.

Humphrey was tied then, as Mondale is now, to a president whose popularity was on the wane. Lyndon B. Johnson faced a challenge in the presidential primaries, first from Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, then from Sen. Robert F. Kennedy as well.

Expos edge into lead in National League East

By the Associated Press
Whatever it is — luck, talent, clean living — that makes a winner, the Montreal Expos seem to have it.
"It's not only being good, you've got to be lucky in this game too," Expos outfielder Ellis Valentine says. "We've had the talent for two years, but now we're getting the breaks to go along with it."
A big break gave Montreal a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Thursday night and helped the Expos open up a .003 lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.
Trailing 3-2, pinch-hitter Rusty Staub came to bat in the bottom of the ninth with two out and the bases loaded. Cubs super-reliever Bruce Sutter was looking for save No. 36.
Staub chopped a grounder down the first-base line. It hit a seam in the carpet at Olympic Stadium and bounded away from Chicago first baseman Larry Bittner, scoring two runs.

"There are seams all over this ballpark and there's no way you can adjust quickly in a bad hop," Staub said. "We've been getting some breaks, but we're playing like anything and it sure makes you feel like this is our year."
The Expos entered the contest a half-game behind Pittsburgh but actually in first place by less than one one-hundredth of a percentage point since they had played five fewer games. The Pirates had a home game against St. Louis rained out Thursday night. Montreal now has won six in a row and 16 of 17.

Braves 4, Giants 1
Phil Niekro picked up victory No. 18 with a six-hitter, going the route for Atlanta for the 20th time this season.
Gary Matthews drove in two runs for the Braves. He capped a two-run fourth inning and gave Atlanta a 3-0 lead with a forceout grounder. His RBI single made it 4-1 in the ninth.
Niekro struck out nine, including Willie McCovey three times, and lost his shutout in the eighth when Mike Ivie homered. No. 25 Niekro has lost 19.
Phils 2, Mets 1
Philadelphia left-hander Steve Carlton went 81-3 in 1978, getting last-inning relief help from Tug McGraw to withstand a Mets rally. Pete Rose had four hits for the Phils and scored a run.
After Carlton allowed a run on Dan Norman's infield hit with one out in the ninth, the Mets loaded the bases for McGraw.

Doug Flynn lofted McGraw's first pitch into shallow center. Greg Gross made the catch and threw home on one bounce, where catcher Bob Boone made the tag on Joel Youngblood to complete the double play.
The Mets disputed the call, however, saying Boone had dropped the ball. Television replays seemed to support the Mets, but home plate umpire Terry Tarta stuck with his original call.
Dodgers 8, Padres 6
Bill Russell slugged a two-run homer and drove in three runs as the Dodgers held off a late San Diego rally.
Russell's fifth-inning homer, his seventh of the season, gave the Dodgers a 4-1 lead, and Los Angeles picked up two runs each in the fifth and sixth innings.

San Diego scored four runs in the eighth, capped by Dave Winfield's three-run homer off reliever Dave Patterson. It was No. 31 for the San Diego slugger.
Jerry Reuss, 6-13, got the win with five innings' work before leaving for a pinch-runner. Ken Brett relieved Patterson after Winfield's homer and got his second save of the year.
Orioles 10, Blue Jays 4
Mike Flanagan's blister caused him more problems than Toronto's bats Thursday night.
And when that happened, it was time for Don Stanhouse, as usual.
The Baltimore Orioles continued to throw the strongest arms in the American League at opponents, beating Toronto behind the combined four-hit pitching of Flanagan and Stanhouse.

"They're always easier when you're given a big lead," said Flanagan. "But this is a year where everything's gone my way. When I've been a little off, the team's scored some runs and when the bats haven't come around, I've been on my game."
Flanagan was on his way to his 16th complete game of the year when the blister developed on his pitching hand, and Manager Earl Weaver took him out in the ninth inning.
"There was no sense going further with him," said Weaver. "That's why we've got guys like Don and Tippy (Martinez) on the club."
The victory, incidentally, stopped a three-game losing streak for the Orioles and solidified their lead in the AL East. The Orioles are up by 11 games over Milwaukee.

A's 8, Brewers 3
Jim Essian drove in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly and Dave Revere hit two bases-empty homers, leading Oakland over Milwaukee. Steve McCatty, 11-9, beat the Brewers for the third time this season.
"I've just been lucky against these guys all year," McCatty said. "It seems every time I pitch against them we get runs and good plays behind me. Of course, you expect to score a few runs after you get shut out three games in a row like we were."
Yankees 10, Red Sox 3
Ron Guidry fashioned his 11th straight victory since the

All-Star break, pitching New York over Boston. Guidry allowed three hits, including a pair of doubles by Carlton Fisk, but struck out 11 in boosting his record to 17-7. It marked the sixth time this season and the 15th of his career that Guidry has struck out 10 or more in a game.

Twins hand Kern 1st home loss

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Not only did the Minnesota Twins gain ground in the American League Western Division pennant chase Thursday night but they did it in style by handing Jim Kern his first loss of the year in Arlington Stadium.
The Twins trimmed the Rangers 7-4 in 12 innings and moved to within five games of idle California and just two games in back of second-place Kansas City.
"We got stretched on the rack pretty good tonight," said Twin's Manager Gene Mauch after his club blew a two-run lead in the ninth inning.
"Kern has just worn us out all year," said Mauch. "Finding Kern is not infallible just might mean something to us. Kern has annihilated us and Mike Marshall has no luck against any of their hitters."

It was only Minnesota's second victory in ten games against the Rangers and it snapped a five-game Texas winning streak against the Twins.
The Twins coasted into the bottom of the ninth inning with a 4-2 lead and starter Paul Hartzell quickly cut down the first two batters.
Then Richie Zisk singled and Mauch charged to the mound because the next batter was rookie Pat Putnam, who had homered off Hartzell in the seventh.

"I made up my mind Hartzell was not going to face Putnam again," said Mauch. "Then what happened just made me sick."
The Rangers tied the score 4-4 with five straight singles off Marshall and Pete Redfern. Catcher Jim Sundberg's RBI single sent the game into extra innings.
Kern came in to relieve Sparky Lyle who had earlier relieved starter Steve Comer. Kern was greeted with a lead off homer by Ken Landreaux in the top of the 12th. Butch Wynegar doubled. Lonnie Jackson walked. Bombo Rivera singled home the sixth run and John Castino squeezed in the seventh.

It was Kern's fifth loss against 12 wins. He was 8-0 at home before the loss to the Twins.
Lefty Darrell Jackson evened his record at 4-4 in three innings of two-hit relief.
The Twins send Dave Goltz, 14-10, against the Rangers' Fergie Jenkins, 13-13, in the second game of the four game series tonight.
Dennis, are you still cutting hair? Of course I am, I'm just not sure where!

Richards faces Dallas

CHICAGO (AP) — The next pass Golden Richards catches for the Chicago Bears will be his first this season but the star wide receiver who came from the Dallas Cowboys last year is not overly concerned.
In fact, Richards, whose last touchdown pass came in Super Bowl XII which clinched a 27-10 victory over Denver, talks about his blocking.
"I would like to catch some passes if it would help and I'm sure I will," said Richards. "The important thing is we won and I'm delighted with my downfield blocking. The last two games have been the best back-to-back games I've ever had in downfield blocking."
Pass receiving and downfield blocking were not the subjects of importance at this time. The Bears, who have won their first two games this season, last played the Cowboys in the playoffs two years ago and were humbled 37-7. They play Dallas Sunday and Richards was being asked about the Cowboys' mystique, their aura, their glamour, their winning ways.

"You must make the big plays against them but you must not panic," said Richards. "You have to do things differently but they have to be logical. You can't play against them and live on a diet of junk plays."
"There is no question that their opponents are awe struck."

'Fever' vs. 'Mania' tops SWC

By the Associated Press
To get things started, four paratroopers will bail out of an airplane and try to deliver the game ball to the referees on the 50-yard line.
Next, 400 high school cheerleaders from Tarrant County will lead the first cheer of the year in Anson Carter Stadium.
By this time some 3,000 youngsters will have received free T-shirts.
Then "Frog Fever" meets "Mustang Mania."
But this Southwest Conference game Saturday night in Fort Worth needs no hype.
Texas Christian Coach F.A. Dry would tee this one up in the parking lot.
He wants to beat Southern Methodist and Coach Ron Meyer so bad he'd play in a cornfield.
Dry let his true feelings slip about Meyer and SMU during the SWC press tour, saying the game "was just about as personal as a game gets."
Dry was nettled when Meyer made some remarks a year ago about his son who played briefly for Meyer at SMU.
Both coaches, of course, have downplayed their feud this week.
"I look for TCU to be a lot like Rice in that they will be vastly improved over last year," said Meyer, diplomatically. "F.A. Dry has really done some good things to get their program back on its feet."

Dry said "They are much more talented than last year. SMU's running game is the best it has been since Meyer has been there."
Even the players have picked up the downplay cue.
"The players don't really pay that much attention to all of the things that are said in the press about the coaches," said SMU defensive tackle Harvey Armstrong. SMU was an 18-point favorite with some 30,000 fans expected.
In the other SWC matchup, Texas A&M was a three-point pick over the Baylor Bears in their meeting in Waco.

On the intersectional front, Houston was a 10-point pick in a home game over Florida, Texas Tech was a 16-point choice over New Mexico in Lubbock.

Sept. 15, 1979

If you feel yourself disenchanted by conditions, put your clever ideas to work for you this coming year. Your inventiveness and originality have a larger role to play than you may suspect.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Others will look to you to show them where the action is today, because you have a way about you that expresses self-assurance and knowledge. Discover with whom you best get along romantically by sending for your Astro-Graph Letter which begins anew with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You may keep it to yourself, but there'll be no uncertainties about what you want or how you plan to go about getting it today. Your vision is clear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good day to exchange viewpoints. Even though your opinions are strong, they show precision thinking and good organization.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have the ability today to get to the bottom of things. Probe into that which has had you puzzled.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) When it comes times for orders to be given, people will sit up and listen to you. You know how to state purposes or set directions diplomatically.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It may not always be true of you, but today you possess technical efficiency and are able to figure out complicated mechanisms or systems. Put this skill to use.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be exceptionally popular today, especially with members of the opposite sex. Make sure you're seen by that special somebody.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your energies and thinking are in tune today, allowing this to become a most productive time for you. Tackle a big job.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Associate with friends today. You're receptive as well as communicative, and your pals will welcome the camaraderie you offer.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If there is something you've been wanting, put your bright ideas to work today. They show promise of making or saving you dollars.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Speak up. Don't take a back seat when dealing with others. You'll know how to be aggressive without being offensive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could take charge of a situation indirectly and show others how to get what they want. Chances are, you'll be making some people very happy.

Today's sports action in brief

TOKYO (AP) — Dianne Fromholtz of Australia easily defeated Laura Dupont 6-1, 7-5 and Evonne Goolagong Cawley got by Anne Smith 6-7, 6-0, 6-4 in the second round of the $150,000 Toray Sillook Tournament.

In other matches, Australia's Wendy Turnbull beat Sharon Walsh 6-2, 7-5; Kerry Reid of Australia defeated Kate Latham 6-3, 6-1; and Billie Jean King got by Peanut Louie.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Romanian Ilie Floroiu completed a distance double, the United States won two gold medals and world-record holder Pietro Mennea led a winning Italian 400-meter relay team in track and field events that closed the 10th World University Games.

Floroiu, who previously had taken the 10,000-meter run, won the 5,000 in 14 minutes, 12.9 seconds.

Evans White of Ecorse.

Mich. won the men's 800-meters with a time of 1:48.87. Meanwhile, the only American relay team that made it to the finals, the men's 1,600, won in the absence of the favored West Germans, who made a last-minute decision not to run.

The Soviet Union won more medals than any other country, taking 34 golds, 28 silvers and 24 bronzes for a total of 76. The United States was next with 21 golds, 14 silvers and 16 bronzes for 51, while third-place Romania captured 13 golds, 3 silvers and 14 bronzes for a total of 30 medals.

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Ed Dougherty waited out a one-hour and eight-minute rain delay, then rammed home a 12-foot birdie put to earn a share of the first round lead with Cesar Sanudo in the $150,000 Buick Open.

Dougherty and Sanudo each fired a 5-under par 67s. George Burns, George Archer, Dave Eichelberger, Bob Eastwood, and PGA champion David Graham were one stroke back of the co-leaders.

Pampa JV wins home opener

Football coaches have never been known for the art of the overstatement and Pampa head football coach Danny Palmer was no exception when he labeled the Pampa Shockers' 2-0 win over the Borger junior varsity "a defensive battle."

The only score of the game came in the second quarter when James Borchardt and Johnny Kadingo teamed to nail the Borger punter in the end zone for a safety after the snap from center sailed over his head.

The win evened the Shockers' seasonal mark at 1-1 while Borger suffered their first loss of the season to drop to a 1-1 mark.

Defensive standouts for Pampa included Harold Anders and Robbie Lefel as well as Borchardt and Kadingo. Offensively, Derek Bigham, Ronnie Ledbetter and Joe Ryzman were singled out as having top performances.

"The defense had a very good game," Palmer said. "We held them (Borger) six times from inside our own 20."
