

Cabot has birthday

Planes, skywriting, parachutists, wing walkers, and clowns were only a few of the attractions during the 50th anniversary celebration of Cabot's Machinery Division here Saturday.

Cabot, celebrating 50 years in Pampa, hosted the celebration for its employees and their families along with an invitation to the residents of Pampa.

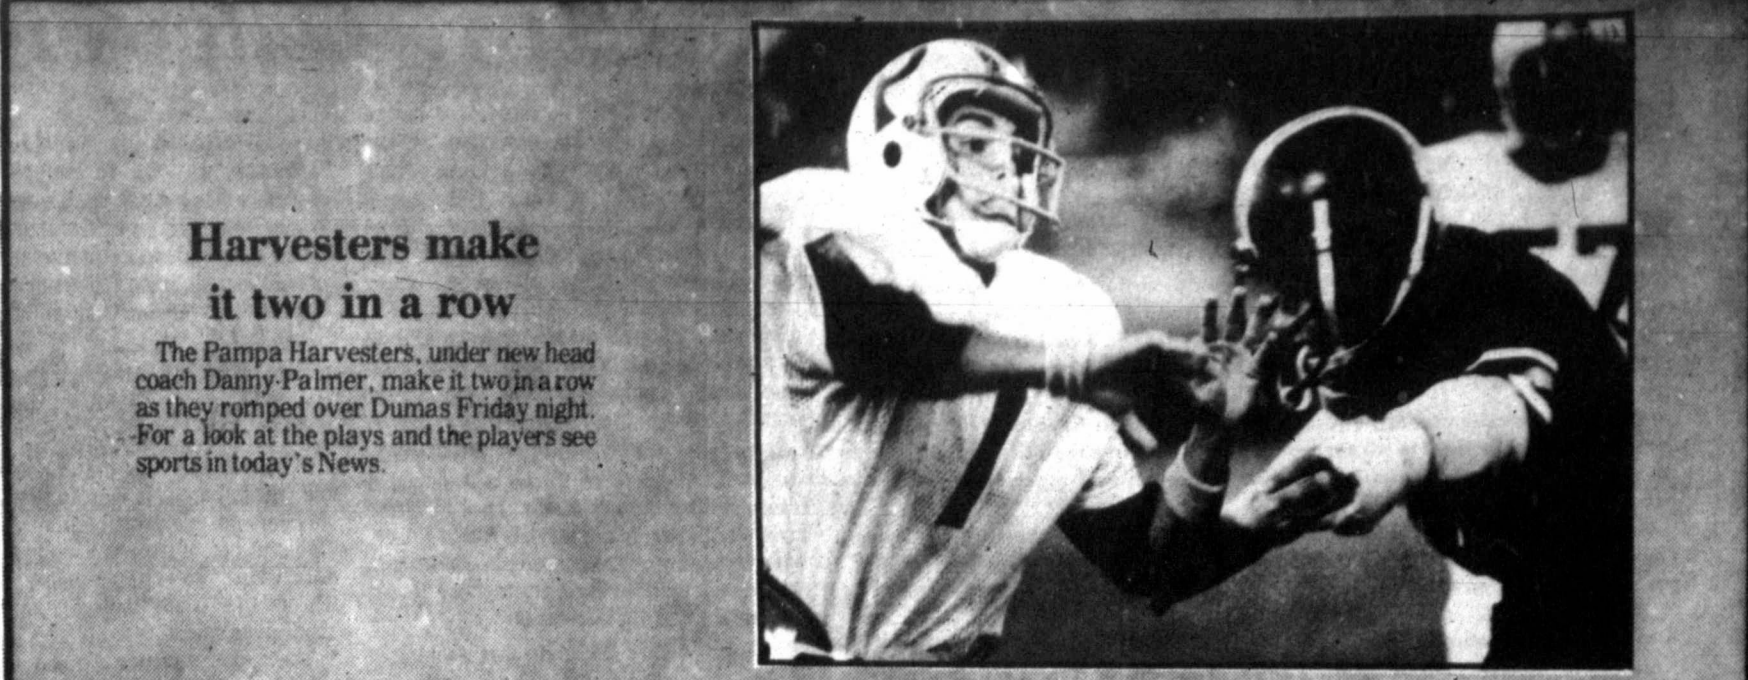

As guests began arriving for the event a vintage bi-plane made loops in the sky signing the Cabot autograph in with a trail of smoke. Hundreds of employees filled the Cabot parking lots as they entered for the day's activities, beginning with registration in front of the massive manufacturing and engineering division's office.

Cabot began its career in the Texas Panhandle with the construction of the Schaefer Carbon Black Plant in Skellytown in 1927 and immediately after, construction was completed the crew began work on plants in Kingsmill and Bowers.

After construction was completed on these plants the work crews began making spare parts for these plants and it soon became evident these men were capable of producing many different types of metal products, and it was decided to open up a machine shop to handle the needs of Cabot in the Western Region. So in the early winter of 1929, the "Cabot Shops" were born.

Since the machinery division came into being it has steadily grown and is now one of the largest employers in the Pampa area. Cabot machinery also plays an important role in the community helping fund various projects and provides valuable leadership in helping form the future goals of Pampa and surrounding communities.

Vic Raymond, vice president of Cabot Machinery, swaid in an open letter to Cabot employees and there families that Cabot was proud of the growth and progress it has made during the past 50 years and showed that pride with the days activities.

Mystery still surrounds death

A Potter County justice of the peace and Pampa police are still waiting for the results of an autopsy performed on Michael Ray Martin, the Pampa man who died Labor Day under mysterious circumstances.

Roy E. Byrd, Potter County justice of the peace, won't sign a death certificate on Martin until he receives the autopsy report. Police are investigating the Martin case as a homicide, but can't pinpoint the exact cause of death until the autopsy results are released.

Dr. Jose Diaz - Esquivel, the Amarillo pathologist who performed the autopsy Sept. 4, refused Friday to say when the report will be ready. Authorities say it could be another week before they receive the results.

Martin, 22, died at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, where he had been in the intensive care unit with head injuries since Aug. 29. He had been found that afternoon lying unconscious at the bottom of the basement steps at Jay's Lounge, 618 W. Foster.

Lounge employees told police that Martin had last been seen in the lounge between 11 and 11:30 p.m. Aug. 28. He reportedly died without regaining consciousness.

The cause of death is believed to have been the result of a blow to the head with a blunt instrument.

District Attorney Harold Comer has indicated he plans to take the Martin case before a Gray County grand jury. But Comer said Thursday he doesn't know when that will be.

"It's just not ready yet to take before a grand jury," he said. "There are still some things I've got to know about. The information that I have is not enough for a grand jury to make an intelligent decision."

Comer said police are keeping him informed on the case.

"They've got some leads now that will help me as district attorney and help the grand jury," he said.

Confessed rapist get 12 years after plea

Danny Deshon Harrison was sentenced to 12 years in the Texas Department of Corrections Friday in 31st District Court after pleading guilty to the aggravated rape of a Pampa convenience store clerk.

Harrison, 25, of Amarillo, was sentenced by District Judge Grainger McIlhenny.

Harrison was originally charged with aggravated rape, two counts of aggravated kidnapping, aggravated robbery, and sexual abuse. He pleaded guilty to the single charge in a plea bargaining arrangement with the District Attorney's Office.

Harrison will be formally sentenced Sept. 25.

Hospitality shown by Pampa residents

Of The Pampa News

A 62-year-old Montana man, crippled with partial leg paralysis and with only seven cents in his pocket, found a friend in a Pampa named Friend Thursday night while hitchhiking from the downtown area en route to Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

Bill Foley, a truck driver for 22 years who says he was forced to quit his job in Big Sandy, Mont. following hospitalization in August, was traveling to Pine Bluff in hopes of finding lodging in a cabin owned by a trucker friend.

He was also hoping to hold out financially until a $124 social security check on Oct. 3.

"That money will be like $500 to me," Foley said Friday. "But I don't see how I can live on that every month. I hope to find me a job."

But Foley's hard lot was relieved somewhat when he hitched a ride with Pampa farmer Stan Friend.

"He thought I was just going a little ways," Foley said. "But I told him where I was headed, and he offered to set me up in a motel. I told him I didn't have any money."

Foley said he had been forced to leave truck driving because of the nature of his illness which involves severe intestinal bleeding. Hospital costs, he said, had discouraged him from remaining hospitalized in Montana.

The former trucker said he had taken a bus from Big Sandy to Rapid City, Dakota last week, but began hitchhiking from there City when money ran low.

Beginning with $38 in Rapid City, Foley slept in $5 and $6 boarding rooms or at roadside parks during his trek south. Foley, who walks with difficulty, said he had little trouble acquiring rides along the way because he was neatly dressed.

And even when in "the gutter" he maintained certain standards for his accommodations.

"I'd go in to towns and look the rooming houses," he said. "If the steps were clean, well, I figured if they keep their steps clean, then the place is clean enough to stay in."

Foley said he sometimes washed in creeks along the way and tried to subsist on a cup of coffee and quart of milk daily.

"Sometimes the people I was riding with would offer to buy me something to eat," said Foley, who added, "When you're used to being independent, it's rough accepting this help like this. But there's a difference between pride and false pride."

Friend put Foley up for a night and two meals at the Black Gold Motel. Luckily, the first night of bad weather since his journey began occurred when he was safely under a roof.

"I knew I had no business being out in this weather today," he said. "I woke up about three this morning, thought, well maybe it'll clear up by the time I'm on my way."

Badly in need of medication, however, Foley was referred by Friend to the Salvation Army Friday morning, which scheduled the weary traveler a doctor's appointment and paid for his medicine.

Salvation Army Lieutenant David Craddock arranged for Foley to take the bus into Pine Bluff.

"Everyone has been very kind to me," Foley said. The traveler said that a waitress had given him $1.50 in change after his breakfast meal.

Foley said that his wife had died in 1949. The couple had no children and Foley said he has no family. He said he has lived in a large number of cities since the death of his wife.

Hurricane victims start digging out of rubble

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Chain saws roared in this port city Saturday as workers cleared a three-day pile of rubble caused by the ferocious winds of Hurricane Frederic. Police and National Guardsmen tried to protect and contain the stunned population.

The death toll from the storm also continued to climb as police blamed the fire deaths of a mother and her three children Friday night on conditions caused by the storm. That brought the storm's toll to 12 in Alabama. At least five other deaths were attributed to the storm as it diminished in size and moved northeasterly, passing through western New York Friday night.

And Radio Havana reported that Frederic killed 10 people when it passed through the island nation earlier last week.

Police in Pritchard said the mother and children, identified as 24-year-old Annie Williams and her child, Eric, 8, Aretta, 2, and six-month-old Michelle, died in a house fire that was caused by "improper cooking."

The Mobile city council established free distribution points for ice Saturday to counter out-of-staters taking advantage of the destruction of parts of Alabama Power Co.'s distribution system.

Police Lt. Vincent Richardson said some ice peddlers from outside Alabama were getting $2 a pound for bagged ice cubes.

Alabama Power said service was still out to about 95,000 people and that a force of 1,100 people was working to restore electricity.

The City Council also established a $500 fine for price-gouging. Richardson said there were reports of $400 to $500 generators being sold for $1,200 and chain saws being sold for $400 to $500 over market value.

"If they're going to sell anything in Mobile, they better have a list price book with them," warned Richardson.

The Alabama National Guard, with local police, was working to contain vandalism and looting with patrols and a 7 p.m.-to-7 a.m. curfew.

Richardson said the looting problem was under control, but that some incidents continued. At least 50 juveniles and 14 adults have been arrested and charged with looting since the storm crashed into the 300-year-old city just before midnight Wednesday.

"We arrested a man with nine pairs of tennis shoes. Not one pair fit him. One guy was running down the street with a fire extinguisher of all things," said Richardson. He said vandals had even stripped insulation from downed power lines and sold the copper wire for scrap metal.

Civil Defense spokesman Jeff Mims said 81 people were arrested Friday night on curfew violations.

THE OUTCOME IS EVIDENT as the expressions of the Pampa Harvesters tell the whole story following their 28-7 win over the Dumas Demons Friday night. Enjoying the

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Americas tax burden grows on all levels

In recent weeks there have been countless headlines in this newspaper concerning action by local governmental bodies on taxes. Most involved budgets, more spending and higher taxes.

This is not altogether a strictly local situation. Local taxation is increasing throughout the land. And spending, too.

We hear, read and think about taxation and government spending increasing so dramatically at the federal level that we overlook what is going on at home — all too often.

Most of us know how dramatic the increase has been in federal taxation and spending and we abhor it. But we tend to overlook the collective size of local taxation and spending in this country, because, for one thing, we focus only on the strictly local taxing-spending activities.

Yet the crushing truth is the collective state and local taxes in America are up even more dramatically than federal spending, having risen sky-high — 166 percent — in the last 10 years.

The awareness of the runaway local taxing and spending is spreading, however, and that is the reason voters in 12 states last year added tax-reform amendments to their constitutions.

Today, the American people as a whole are paying more in taxes than they are paying for food, clothing and shelter. Industry Week magazine reported, adding, "Commerce Department figures confirm that we paid $37 billion more in taxes last year than the $511 billion we spend for our three survival basics. And the difference is widening each year."

Nobel-Prize-Winner Economist Dr. Milton Friedman, who with others on the national conservative scene is sharing in the drafting of a proposed constitutional amendment limiting total federal spending, said much of the tax money is not being spent wisely and "government is getting out of hand." That's an understatement.

In recent days, in Pampa and in other communities where local taxes have been foremost in the news, there has been a display of anger by property owners.

But the anger is not just a local thing, it is national. Herbert Stein, another economist, writing in the Wall Street Journal, described why citizens are angry over taxes. He wrote: "... when the wage-earner gets his paycheck and sees how much has been deducted for federal taxes, he is shocked and enraged. It is not because he thinks the revenue or the GNP would be higher if less were taken from him in taxes that he is enraged. It is because he earned the money fair and square. It is his. He has plenty of things that he wants to do with it. And he doesn't want the government to take so much of it away from him."

All this, and the local burden, too, is more than a sore spot with Americans now. They want to take away the green light from government, turn on the red light — the stop light, and when the taxing and spending increases stop, they want a rapid reversal, to the point, at least, of sheer austerity and absolute fiscal responsibility.

Jan Van Andel, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and chairman, too, of the Amway Corporation, summed it up very well in a recent speech: "We have reached the point where the cost of additional government service surpasses the benefits to be gained. Government today — at all levels — costs $8,000 per year per household, or $160 per week. Is it worth that much to you?"

The man said "... at all levels." He said, and it is worth repeating over and over, shouted to the mountain tops and up and down Main Street: "We have reached the point where the cost of additional government services surpasses the benefits to be gained." The cry becomes louder now on the subject of taxes: "Are we getting our money's worth?" The answer is No. And we never have.

Looking back

Aubra Nooncaster, head football coach at Pampa High School, told members of the Pampa Optimist Club last night that he is trying to get this season's Harvester team into an optimistic frame of mind about winning games. He said if any of his boys thought they weren't going to win, it's time for them to quit football.

Rep. Walter Rogers, U.S. Congressman from Pampa, may be here in his home territory for about three weeks, but he isn't resting. He will be guest speaker at numerous clubs and attend a meeting at the Amarillo Air Force Base.

President Johnson headed west today for two, packed days of exposure to voters in four states. He will also leave the country for the first time since becoming president when he crosses the border into Canada today with Prime Minister Lester Pearson. Pampa Police Chief Jim Conner announced today that the police department has stepped up enforcement of the city's anti-littering ordinance.

Today the 1964 Traffic Count stood at 443 accidents, 96 injuries and one death. The record for consecutive deathless days in Pampa ended at 893.

1969
Pampa recorded a trace of moisture in the early evening hours today as clouds rolled over the city and winds took an authoritative velocity.

Harvester band of Pampa High School stayed long enough at the Tri-State Fair today to capture all the awards there.

1974
New teachers in the Pampa school system were honored at a 6:45 a.m. breakfast today in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room.

Details of the 1975 Top O' Texas Junior Livestock Show were discussed at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Agricultural Committee today.

Dr. Teller on energy

Dr. Edward Teller, "the father of the H-Bomb," professor emeritus at the University of California and senior research fellow at Stanford University's Hoover Institution, has lashed out at Jane Fonda, Ralph Nader "and their kind." In a two-page advertisement placed by Dresser Industries in the Wall Street Journal, Dr. Teller's published message decried using propaganda to frighten people away from the nuclear energy the country needs for survival.

Dr. Teller said "On May 7, a few weeks after the accident at Three-Mile Island, I was in Washington. I was there to refute some of the propaganda that Ralph Nader, Jane Fonda and their kind are spewing to the news media in their attempt to frighten people away from nuclear power.

"I am 71 years old, and I was working 20 hours a day. The strain was too much. The next day, I suffered a heart attack. You might say that I was the only one whose health was affected by the reactor near Harrisburg, No. That would be wrong. It was not the reactor. It was Jane Fonda. Reactors are not dangerous."

This prestigious scientist says that the greatest present-day threat to the prosperity and even the survival of nations is a lack of energy. "Nuclear power is part of the answer to that problem, only a part, but a very important part." He says that high gas prices, growing gas lines and electrical brownouts are only minor irritants. "They are nothing compared to what may lie ahead. In a struggle for survival, politics, law, religion and even humanity may be forgotten. When the objective is to stay alive, the end may seem to justify the means. In that event, the world may indeed return to the 'simpler' life of the past, but millions of us will not be alive to discover its disadvantages.

"When our existence is at stake, we cannot afford to turn our backs on any source of energy. We need them all," the doctor stated.

Teller states flatly that nuclear power is the safest, cleanest way to generate large amounts of electrical energy. He says, "This is not merely my opinion — it is a fact. Due to the lessons learned at Three-Mile Island, the nuclear way will be made even safer."

The scientist said that questions raised in relation to nuclear use are problems because of political indecision or public fear. "Technically, they are non-problems, because the dangers they imply do not exist or else we have the know-how to solve them.

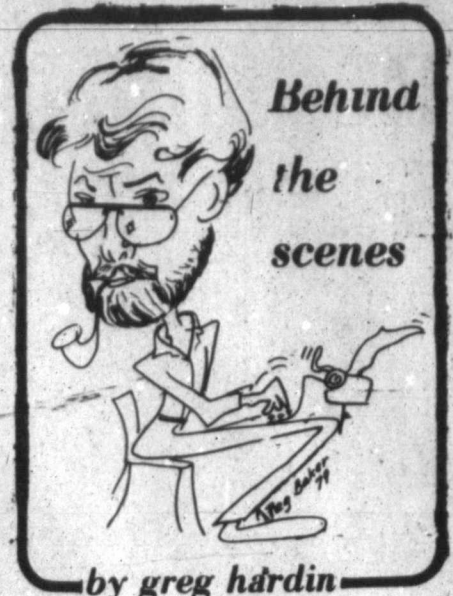

"I am absolutely convinced of this, after a lifetime of work as a nuclear scientist," Teller said. "I believe we have reached a turning point in history. The anti-nuclear propaganda we are hearing puts democracy to a severe test. Unless the political trend toward energy development in this country changes rapidly, there may not be a United States in the twenty-first century," he said.

Experts working at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, for example, which consists of many facilities on a site about the size of Rhode Island, are frustrated by the amount of adverse propaganda and false information being fed to the American people. They are not in the public limelight by virtue of being entertainment stars or legal opportunists. They are many and are the experts to which this nation needs to turn for truthful information.

But these technical and scientific experts do not have the attention of the news media. One told us that when he had important information of news to relate, he was told by an editor that he was not interested. This individual representing the press said, "Call me if you have a big explosion out there."

The negative-minded editor may not be typical of the general attitude of the press, but we must agree that the positive side of nuclear energy has not had the news media attention which it certainly deserves. And, what is more important, the nation's citizens are being deprived of much factual information presented in a manner which would gain prime interest.

There is no greater threat to the people of this nation than that embodied in turning our backs on the use of clean, safe nuclear power. That is a broad statement, but it can be substantiated by facts and logic. Complete and correct information can overcome the attitudes of emotional fear engendered by misleading propaganda.

Well, it sure looks like Danny and the Harvesters are off to a flying start this year.

That second straight win Friday night was icing on the cake after the fantastic game a week ago against Hereford but we all know Dumas never had a chance against the pros from Pampa.

Fellows I just want to say we are all proud of your gridiron magic and wish you well during the rest of your undefeated season.

This week has not been a week of pleasure for several Pampans who have seen loved ones injured in what seems to be a plague of accidents.

Two people were injured in car pedestrian accidents and another shot while visiting with friends. It seems we are really not paying attention to what we are doing with our lives and those of the people we know.

I think a few awareness programs by some of the local organizations might help in getting people back to thinking about what they are doing and what the consequences are for those who don't pay attention to the things they should.

We have been trying to muster up some local support for the newspaper ever since we have been here but we sure could use some more.

We would like all those people who have meetings planned or organizations planning only doing something special to let us know.

Now we have had a few people get behind us and it looks good but we don't want just a few we want them all.

If your club or organization is planning a meeting drop a postcard in the mail with the information on it to us or stop by the office and we will get a meeting notice in the paper about it.

Our buddy Vic Raymond called this week and invited us out to Cabot for their 50th anniversary celebration and was it a smash. Those folks really know how to throw a party.

It sure must seem strange to many Pampans that Cabot is celebrating its 50th anniversary. As someone somewhere once said, "Time flies when you are having fun" and Cabot sure knows how to have fun. Thanks for the invitation Vic. We enjoyed it.

Our nations race relations

My sister and I never suffered any sweat or strain in our "race relations." Our mother brought us up with the casual understanding that "God has flowers of many colors in his garden."

We accepted that as naturally as we accepted Scripture. My son matured in the awareness that a pianist confined to either the black or white keys is limited to his own disadvantage; harmony requires both.

So I have been able now and then to offer some top-sergeant remonstrance to troublemakers of whatever color without sacrificing a mutuality of respect.

I can "tell it as it is" when any black demands special favors in the name of "rights."

I can call him what he is when a Philadelphia mayor urges others to "vote white."

I can call it what it is when blacks, who comprise 12.6 percent of our nation's population, comprise 28 percent of our armed forces.

And when cities 20 percent black have a prison population of 67 percent black.

Blacks, their number multiplying twice as fast as the white population, if not yet in position to lead are in a powerful position to push.

And I can call their misleaders what they are when they dare—as one did on TV the other night—to promote violence.

When unemployment nationally is 5.7 percent—but among young blacks it is 30.9 percent—despite an abundance of help-wanted ads for unskilled workers, I can challenge them to shape up.

Or when they occupy low-rent housing, then misuse it.

When whites abandon cities because they refuse to share them—I can rub their upturned noses in the tenets of their own religion.

Now we come to another facet of our nation's race relations. Asians are moving in unprecedented numbers. Their background, mores and traditions are entirely foreign to our own.

The open-arms response of politicians is understandable, especially since a news-hungry multiplicity of media is dramatizing the "boat people" as martyrs.

Some of us owe these immigrants some reminders that are shirt-sleeve honest. For example: "Don't come to this country because it is what it is and then try to change it into something which it is not."

Understand, Boat People, very many Americans don't want you here. Some because of your color or because you will take jobs or because you will not take jobs.

As the son of an immigrant, I cannot be that selfish.

Instead, I am anxious that you might resist assimilation, divide your allegiance, distort our institutions. Don't do that.

Add spice to the soup; don't spit in it. Then—as generations of immigrants who preceded you, lean, hungry, unspoiled and appreciative, you might make of yourselves better Americans than we are.

Letters

Dear Sir:

Today as I went up Hobart street and found that the clock on the Culberson-Stowers corner had been repaired I was most happy. You see, as I go up that street I always check the time, and I had missed the clock very much while it was being repaired. Thanks to these good people for providing us with this service.

Now I am thinking thankfully of many other free services that our good business people provide for the community and how seldom I take the time to tell them that I am truly appreciative. There is the other clock on the First National Bank on Cuyler street. How frequently I check the time and temperature by dialing 665-5701 and hear the friendly courteous service compliments of Citizens Bank.

These are to mention only a few of the helpful ways of the good business people in Pampa.

Don't you think it is time that something be said to encourage citizens of Pampa to freely express appreciation to those who are providing these things for us? I do. So now, my thanks to all the many business people in Pampa and for their courtesies to the citizens of our community.

Yours truly,
Janie S. Bowers

Republicans approved petition process primary

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Republicans, buoyed by recent Democratic defections in the state legislature but wary of skirmishes within the party, Saturday approved a petition process for their presidential primary.

The process requires potential candidates to gather 5,000 signatures on petitions. State Republican Executive Committee members agreed the process was an "easy one" which will not be difficult for candidates to meet.

Sen. John Tower, delivering the keynote speech before the SREC meeting, called for GOP unity after a nominee is selected. GOP leaders here agreed that John Connally, George Bush and Ronald Reagan are the leading contenders for that nomination.

Tower, saying he was avoiding his usual "Tower unity" speech, called for a "spirited" primary battle ending in solidarity. "I hope that whatever wounds there might be will heal rapidly after the convention," Tower told the committee.

State GOP Chairman Chester Upham of Mineral Wells said the primary skirmish will draw a million voters to the GOP polls. That would more than double the record 1976 turnout.

Texas Democrats have not yet decided whether they will hold a primary.

Several GOP leaders here Saturday predicted that Sen. Edward Kennedy will garner the Democratic nomination.

"It's becoming more clear now who the Democratic nominee will be rather than who the Republican nominee will be," Tower said, referring to Kennedy.

Tower called Kennedy "eminently beatable." "I think most of our candidates easily have his number," he said.

"The views he holds are anathema to the people of the United States and they are going to become aware of that," he said. "Ted Kennedy will be at the peak of his popularity on the day he announces for the presidency. When his views become known his popularity will begin to decline."

Ray Hutchison, a former state GOP chairman, agreed that Kennedy seems to be the Democratic front runner.

"He clearly is the choice of the overwhelming number of 1979 variety Democrats," he said, adding that the "1979 variety Democrat" is more liberal than in the past.

Hutchison, a Connally supporter, said a Kennedy-Connally election would draw the largest voter turnout in U.S. history.

State Sen. Betty Andujar of Fort Worth, a national GOP committee member, also predicted a Kennedy candidacy.

"If this is the dish we have to eat some time it might as well be know," she said.

The committee also was to hear from the two newest Republican state legislators. Sen. Bill Braecklein of Dallas, who switched from the Democratic side recently, said he had no firm predictions on who the candidates might be. Rep. Anita Hill of Garland, also a Democratic convert, also was to speak.

The in-fighting among Texas Republicans showed only briefly during the SREC session. Most of the proposed party resolutions — in support of Gov. Bill Clements, against inflation, against Soviets in Cuba, etc. — passed without opposition.

But committee member David Gardner of Orange, saying he opposes state committee members working for candidates before the primary, objected to a "victory" resolution. Gardner's vote was the only one against the resolution.

During the business session of the meeting the committee selected Houston as the site for the June 21, 1980 state GOP convention.

White thinks SEDCO misled public about spill

DALLAS (AP) — It was more than two months after a well off Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula blew out that the daily press learned the rig involved was owned by a company founded by none other than the state's own governor.

It took another month and the power of a congressional investigation to find out that not only did SEDCO, Inc. own the $20 million rig but they had seven men aboard as advisers when Intox 1 lost control June 3, causing the world's largest oil spill.

Since then about 100 miles of the South Texas coast has been splashed with crude oil from the crippled well 500 miles away.

Now Texas Attorney General Mark White, a

Democrat, feels the Dallas-based company founded by Republican Gov. Bill Clements misled the public by its earlier statements that SEDCO had leased the rig to the Mexican on a "bare boat" basis and could not be held responsible for the spill. A "bare boat" leasing agreement is for equipment only — no manpower.

But SEDCO had a separate and second contract that provided for some SEDCO employees on the rig, and that is apparently one source of confusion.

SEDCO attorney Stephen Mahood was quoted in the Austin American-Statesman on Aug. 10 that four SEDCO workers were aboard the ill-fated rig, but they were non-supervisory workers — a subsea engineer, a toolpusher, a welder and a mechanic.

Mahood said at that time the four SEDCO workers were "down there primarily in the role of looking after the maintenance of our equipment... and they would also be available for any consultation about the equipment or whatever."

But during a congressional hearing Sept. 8 and 9 in Corpus Christi, Mahood revealed there were in fact seven SEDCO employees on the rig when it blew, including a well superintendent and an assistant superintendent. Mahood told investigators the advice the SEDCO superintendents gave the Mexicans just before the blowout was not heeded, but White said the essence of Mahood's testimony was a "revelation" previously withheld from the public.

"All those things cast grave suspicions on their prior statements," White said Friday. "The revelations they made at Corpus Christi... where they first indicated there were seven of their employees that were trying to exert managerial control over that rig directly contradicted their first statements made to the press in which they said, 'We had no managerial control over the rig' and that 'We had a mere bare boat charter.'"

Mystery still surrounds student

DESOTO, Texas (AP) — A 16-year-old college student — found a month after his mysterious disappearance — may have been hiding near Michigan State University, where investigators looking for him combed a maze of steam tunnels.

Authorities feared James Dallas Egbert III, a computer science genius, had become lost Aug. 15 while acting out a strange intellectual game and perhaps died in a labyrinth of tunnels winding beneath the campus.

Three disoriented, emotional, pre-dawn telephone calls from Dallas to a DeSoto-based private detective led to his recovery Thursday from a room at a location the investigator refused to divulge.

However, a Michigan State University campus police captain speculated Friday that the boy never left East Lansing, Mich., the site of the university, until detective William Dear arrived to pick him up Thursday afternoon.

Vial of Life provides medical aid

The "Vial of Life" program, sponsored by the Pampa Board of Realtors, provides free medical assistance for senior citizens, handicapped persons with special medical problems and single adults with young children.

Participants in the program receive a tiny pill box, a medical history form and two blue- and white "Vial of Life" stickers to place on their doors. For some people, the program could mean the difference between life and death.

The medical history form needs to be filled out with a doctor's help, and should list an individual's medical problems, medications taken and any special requirements of persons living in a household.

The completed medical history form is then placed in an ordinary plastic pill vial and attached with a rubber band to the right underside of the top shelf of the refrigerator.

In case of an emergency, ambulance personnel, police or firemen will know by the blue- and white stickers that vital medical information is contained in the vial in the refrigerator.

Handy access to such information could save valuable time in treatment of a patient, and also could prevent a wrong dose of medication being given to the patient.

Guy Hazlett, administrator of Highland General Hospital, described the program as a "pretty good idea."

"The more we know about a person's medical history and the quicker we know it, the more we can do for him," Hazlett said. "This will save the doctors time and the nurses time in obtaining the patient's history. That would be the key benefit in saving lives."

"So I'd encourage people to spend some time and fill out this thing in detail, because it might save a life later."

The Pampa Board of Realtors has purchased the program materials so they can be distributed free. Realtor committees and other volunteers will distribute the materials and complete the medical forms.

Further information can be obtained by calling Exie Vantine at Quentin Williams Realtors, 669-2522, or at home, 669-7870.

Bullock's war nets $900,000 for state

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - State Comptroller Bob Bullock's war on former students who have not paid off their college loans has yielded about $900,000 in repayments.

Bullock, who is withholding paychecks from state employees who defaulted on college loans, now has expanded his effort to include non-employees.

Eighty-two ex-teachers, 50 welfare recipients and five business operators Friday became the latest to learn they won't receive state checks until the debts are paid off.

State law prohibits payment to persons in debt to the state.

Laycock cited after accident

Tommy Laycock, 17, of 2205 N. Wells was cited by police Friday for his involvement in a car-pedestrian accident Wednesday afternoon behind Pampa High School.

Laycock, driving a 1971 Oldsmobile Cutlass, struck 15-year-old Benton Moore in the 100 block of W. Decatur. Moore reportedly ran out in front of the car and was struck after Laycock unsuccessfully swerved to avoid hitting him.

Moore was hospitalized and required surgery. Laycock was charged with "failure to exercise due care to avoid colliding with a pedestrian," which carries a maximum fine of $203.50. He must appear in municipal court within 10 days.

Police reconstructed the accident scene and took test skid marks. Chief J.J. Ryzman said Ryzman got together with City Prosecutor Phil Vanderpool and decided to cite Laycock "after evaluating the evidence," he said.

Wall Street will be watching trends

NEW YORK (AP) - Wall Street will be watching consumer spending trends closely in the next few months for some telling evidence of just how severe the recession is likely to be.

The closing stages of the year, leading up to the Christmas shopping season, are make-or-break time for many retail businesses.

By most accounts, expectations for the final quarter this year are decidedly on the modest side.

"After adjusting for inflation, retail sales have been in a steep and steady decline since the end of 1978, which is marked contrast to the strong gains experienced by many retailers during most of the 1975-78 business expansion," Merrill Lynch.

Pierce, Fenner & Smith analysts noted in their latest monthly report on retailing trends.

The firm said retail sales, adjusted for inflation and seasonal influences, dropped by about 7 percent in the first half of the year. It noted that the drop was evident not only in so-called hard goods, especially autos, but also in soft goods such as apparel.

Kennedy says he is encouraged by response

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy calls the nation's response to his potential presidential candidacy heartening and encouraging, and says a 1980 challenge to President Carter would not be divisive because the Democratic Party already is split.

He said a factor in his decision will be the support generated by his statement that he is considering it.

"I must say that I've been heartened and encouraged by the responses to date," he said.

Carter supporters, led by Democratic National Chairman John C. White, have said a Kennedy challenge would be so divisive as to make the victor vulnerable to a Republican in the fall election. Kennedy disputed that.

He said past contests for the Democratic nomination "seemed to in some sense energize the party, bring new people in."

Kennedy said his differences with Carter on the economy and other issues are less a matter of policy than one of leadership style. "It's back to whether the people have the sense of confidence that he can deal with these issues. I think that's the matter of deepening and increasing concern to people as we come to the 1980s," he said.

Kennedy was vague on alternative proposals to deal with economic woes. He said he might favor a tax cut soon to deal with increasing unemployment, and more forceful wage-price guidelines to combat inflation.

While Kennedy said he has no time frame for a decision on 1980, he added that as a candidate he would expect to compete in the Democratic caucuses in Iowa on Jan. 21. It would take weeks, if not longer, to put together a campaign there.

Here is a partial transcript of the interview:
Q: You had said that you expected Carter to be a candidate and intended to support him. When did that change?

A: I would say during the period of mid-July to the early part of August I had an opportunity to talk to a number of my colleagues here in the Senate and the Congress as well as others, working people, business people, who urged me to give serious consideration to becoming a candidate. And then during the month of August I had the opportunity to give a good deal of reflection ... to my own deep concerns about the direction of the nation, our ability to deal with many of the problems that we're facing here in this country, about the mood of the nation, and by Labor Day had made up my mind that I at least would not preclude the possibility of candidacy.

Q: What were some of the negative factors in your mind?

A: Well, clearly the family responsibilities have always been a major factor in any consideration. Secondly, with the new responsibilities in the Senate, that was an opportunity for very considerable public service and so that's obviously a factor. Third, I think, is the concern I think about what a candidacy would mean in terms of the party itself, whether in thinking through the questions of a challenge, does this strengthen or would this make more vulnerable the party nominee. ... I became convinced that the divisions that existed in the party and in the country ... were very deep-seated and they would be there whether I was a candidate or not a candidate.

Q: Is there any one thing that you think Carter has done wrong? You've had a record of supporting the president in the Senate, so it would seem that you agree with the programs.

A: ... My principal concern is whether we're really addressing the problems, coming to grips with them, in ways which offer some sense of hope for the American people and a sense of confidence in the American people, in their ability to deal with bad problems.

I think it's difficult for people to have a great deal of confidence in their own future when they are wondering about whether they can afford the mortgage on their house, the food bill or home heating bill, tuition payments for their children, medical bills for their parents. But if we're able to come to grips with this issue, I think they'll have a greater sense of kind of confidence. So I don't feel that it's a failure of the spirit among the American people.

Q: Has President Carter somehow failed to do this?

A: I think he's had bipartisan support in some of the areas, and he's had some successes, which I've welcomed the opportunity to support. But I think, again, it's back to whether the people have the sense of confidence that he can deal with these issues. I think that's the matter of deepening and increasing concern to people as we come to the 1980s.

Officials searching for rabies victims

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Eleven persons were taking anti-rabies shots Saturday while police at North Texas State University sought others who came in contact with two kittens while watching a lunar eclipse Sept. 6, campus officers said.

The State Health Department notified us Friday that tests on one of the animals confirmed it had rabies. Communications Supervisor Tom Newell said.

The animals were running wild among about 50 eclipse spectators at an abandoned Nike missile base north of here. The area is used by the NTSU astronomy department, the officer said.

Newell stressed the need for immediate action by anybody who was at the base, estimating that about half of those present had not yet been contacted.

"The incubation period for rabies is 10 days, and we're in the 10th day, so it's urgent that we warn anybody who may have been bitten or scratched by the kittens to contact a physician so they can begin taking the shots," he said.

The kittens were described as black with white markings on their paws, about three months old, eight inches high and 10 inches long.

"One of the kittens was run over Monday, so we couldn't test it for rabies. But the other was acting strangely, so we sent the head to Austin, and tests were positive," Newell said.

U.S. not ready for tough economic move

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the continuing ravages of inflation, Americans are not ready for tough economic measures that might stop the upward price spiral at the cost of throwing millions out of work, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

The fear of unemployment is a very present threat to some segments of the public, as the poll found almost one of five Americans is worried about losing his job in the near future.

Taken together, the poll found the public perplexed and worried by the twin demons of inflation and recession and suspicious of the "cures" that have been offered for the nation's economic woes.

Half of those questioned Monday and Tuesday opposed "strict economic policies to control inflation if that meant many Americans would lose their jobs, at least temporarily."

Thirty-seven percent favored such policies. Thirteen percent of the 1,599 adults interviewed by telephone across the country were not sure.

The fear of losing one's job, the spectre of unemployment that has characterized a recession, is real for millions of Americans.

Seven percent of the Americans who work outside the home said they are very worried that they might lose their job in the next six months.

Twelve percent said they were somewhat worried about their job security. The remaining 81 percent were not worried.

The fear about losing one's job is not evenly distributed among the workers. A substantial 27 percent of the blue collar workers contacted in the poll said they were at least somewhat worried about their jobs. Sixteen percent of the white collar workers are worried and 13 percent of the professional and managerial workers.

Similarly, 23 percent of those workers under age 35 are worried about their jobs, while 12 percent of those from 50 to 64 have similar fears.

This is not to say that inflation has faded from the public consciousness.

Americans agree that inflation is a more serious economic problem than joblessness. Sixty-seven percent named rising prices as the top problem, versus 21 percent who chose unemployment. Ten percent named both and 2 percent were not sure.

As with every sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all those with telephones across the country because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than 3 percentage points either way simply because of sample error.

Texas still has surplus despite revenue losses

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The gasoline shortage chipped a $28.8 million hole in state tax revenue this summer as Texans reduced their gasoline purchases by 462 million gallons and briefly curtailed automobile buying.

Comptroller Bob Bullock's staff reported Friday to the House Ways and Means Committee that despite the drop-off, the general revenue closed the 1979 fiscal year on Aug. 31 with a $620.4 million surplus.

There would have been no surplus, however, if fiscal 1979 had not started out with a $675 million balance. General revenue expenditures topped income by $55 million.

Gasoline tax revenue ran ahead of 1978 through much of the fiscal year but hit the skids when oil companies tightened allocations to service stations in June.

There was, for instance, a 49.2 percent increase in February and a 37.5 percent rise in May.

But motor fuels tax revenue dropped 12.1 percent in June, 15.6 percent in July and 20.1 percent in August — a total of $23.1 million compared with the same three months of 1978.

Based on the tax rate of a nickel a gallon, that meant a drop in consumption of 462 million gallons.

My Prerogative

MY PREROGATIVE

Once again my congratulations go to Danny Palmer and the fighting Harvesters or their fantastic win Friday night. The 83 yard run by Bobby Dorsey was an absolute upset to the Demons but the most beautiful thing Harvesters spectators have witnessed in a long time! Keep up the good work guys!

-DD-

While I'm on the subject of Friday night, let me say that the Pampa High School Band did a great job also. Their perfection and discipline was recognized by everyone and I'm sure the students at Pampa High School are extremely proud when they see the band's display of fine professionalism. PERSONAL NOTE: Keep it up, Mr. D!

-DD-

Last Wednesday a Pampa High School freshman was injured when he was struck by a car in back of Pampa High School, shortly after school had let out for the day. The person driving the car was also a Pampa High School student.

Both students were at fault. The pedestrian stepped in front of the driver, and the driver was going above the school zone speed limit.

The whole thing could have been prevented if a little bit of teen responsibility had been taken. I admit I don't usually drive the 20 mile an hour speed limit in a school zone, but I'll tell you one thing, that one accident made me think about it. I could just imagine how I would feel if I ran over someone.

I just hope it made some other people think, too. With a little caution, things like what happened Wednesday can be prevented.

Woosley - more than a teacher

By DEBBIE DUKE
Pampa News Intern

Very seldom does one get the privilege of having a teacher who he can count on to not only instruct him, but also befriend him. But many high school journalism students have found one in Mary Ann Woosley.

Woosley, affectionately known as "Momma Wooz" to her eight publication students, teaches Journalism I and II, English II, Advertising Yearbook and Publications during her eight hour working day, which sometimes lasts anywhere from ten to twelve hours during days when the high school newspaper is in production.

A graduate of Matador High School, Woosley began her journalism career when she was a junior. "I would go up to the Matador news office in the middle of the night and roll papers so they could be delivered the next day," reflected the exuberant 27-year-old. "Sometimes I got called to come and roll the papers at midnight and once I even got called up there at 5:00 a.m."

Succeeding her moonlight rolling job, Woosley and her brother went to work for publisher Douglas Meador in Matador. "I wrote stories, laid out pages, swept the floor, and anything else that needed to be done," she recalled. After graduating from Texas Tech University with a B.S. degree in journalism and English education, she continued to work in the publishing business. "If I wasn't teaching, I'd want to work in a publishing company," she noted sincerely. "Journalism is the most important thing to me and I'd be totally lost without one or the other."

In her third year of teaching in Pampa, Woosley has made many friends among her students. The note of calmness and sincerity in her voice makes it easy for the kids to be close to her. "She's always so understanding," expressed one of her students. "She's made my first year in journalism a lot easier."

After her long hours of teaching, Woosley has many hobbies, many of which she has little time to do. However, her favorite daily pastimes include playing with her two cats, Patches and Charlie, and quenching her addicted thirst for Dr. Pepper.

Following a long pause, with an added sparkle in her eyes, she expressed her true feelings in one simple phrase: "I just love teaching."

Secrets of writing a paper

Papers play an important role in almost every college course. They may even be the sole criterion in determining your grade.

There are four major steps in writing a good paper: research, actual writing, review and revision, and typing.

Research consists of two main steps: defining the topic and obtaining information.

The prof usually assigns the topic or lists the general areas that are acceptable.

Selecting a topic is difficult when the selection is left to you. Here are some ways to check if you have chosen a good topic.

- Does the topic meet all requirements set by the prof? Is it in the assigned subject area?

- Does the topic stick to the main issue or does it cover an unimportant offshoot?

- Will you be able to find enough material?

- Will you be able to answer the essential questions in the space allotted?

- Is the topic informative, interesting and/or creative?

- Has the topic been mentioned or implied by the prof in class?

Efficient collection of information entails becoming as knowledgeable as possible on the topic. It is better to overlearn than learn just enough.

You should have many viewpoints of the same material so you can present a realistic picture. Your ability to offer different explanations shows the prof you are proficient on the subject and that you have not just copied someone's work.

Try to collate information from books, magazine articles and other sources on note cards so that cross-checking among many volumes is avoided and time is saved.

The library is the obvious source of data for your research. Don't try to figure out where to get information by yourself. Save time and ask the librarian.

The writing of your paper is where you must take your time. You must choose your words carefully and say exactly what you mean.

If you read over your reference notes several times before starting to write, you will become aware of where the important facts are noted and you'll be able to pull them out when needed.

After the first draft of the paper has been written, leave it alone for a day or longer and then come back to it.

Read it coldly. Make corrections. Don't hesitate to rewrite any section (no matter how long) that doesn't say exactly what you want it to. Read the paper aloud so you can hear your writing and judge it word by word.

All papers should be typed (double spaced) unless you are told otherwise. The importance of correct spelling, punctuation and grammar -- and of proofreading for typing errors -- cannot be overemphasized.

Papers are graded according to what the prof expects and what the class as a whole produces.

You may feel the prof has graded you unfairly. Don't waste time. Make an appointment to see him and present your arguments.

Harvesters remain undefeated with 28-7 romp

By RANDY LIGHTFOOT
News Sports Editor

DUMAS — After Pampa's 22-0 victory last week against Hereford in the season opener, about the only question still unanswered about the Harvesters' concern their kickoff return team.

Against the Whitefaces, Pampa kicked off to start both halves and, since Hereford never scored, the return team was never needed.

Pampa also elected to kick off to start the game against Dumas Friday night. After being shut out in the first quarter and trailing Pampa 7-0, Dumas broke the Harvesters' string of shutout quarters at five when they connected on a 29-yard scoring pass.

The kick for the point after was good to knot the score at 7-7 apiece and for the first time all year, Bobby Dorsey dropped back near the Pampa end zone to receive a kick.

Dorsey gathered Randy Davis' boot in at the 17 yard line, picked up speed down the middle of the field behind his blocking wedge, angled to the right around the 30 and then simply poured it on to race away from the remaining defenders for an 83 yard touchdown dash.

Billy Grimes then came on for the extra point and his boot sailed through the uprights to give Pampa the lead for good.

"The turning point of the game was that return for a touchdown," head coach Danny Palmer said following the game. "They had just taken the ball and driven for a score and that (run by Dorsey) gave the momentum back to us."

The Harvesters lit the scoreboard on their first possession of the game when they marched 60 yards on seven plays. All but 11 yards of that came on two Greg Quarles passes to the McDougall boys. Junior Steve grabbed the first on a key 3rd - and - 6 at the Pampa 44 and senior Jeff hauled in a 34 yard aerial the very next play to set the Harvesters up at the eight yard line.

Doug Smith, who ran for 64 yards in the game, got the tally three plays later when he cracked over from the two and Grimes' PAT made it 7-0 with 7:21 remaining in the first half.

Pampa was driving again on their next possession, but the drive stalled at the 16 when Quarles overthrew his receivers on third and fourth downs.

The Demons were nearly halted almost before they could get started on the ensuing possession, but a late hit by Pampa kept Dumas' drive alive as the Demons put the ball in play from their own 40 after the penalty yardage was stepped off.

From there the hosts went on to score on a 29 yard pass from quarterback Michael Mowery to receiver Jodie Presser. Randy Jones' PAT kick was good to knot the score at 7-7 with 7:26 remaining in the half.

Penalties were to haunt Pampa all night as they were flagged a total of 11 times for 135 yards.

Then came Dorsey's touchdown sprint and it was all over but the shouting.

The Harvesters scored once more in the first half when Arthur Lee Williams, who rushed 10 times for 36 yards, capped an 8-play, 63 yard drive with a dive into the end zone from the one.

Dorsey collected the final score of the night on a one yard plunge on Pampa's first possession of the second half. The TD was preceded by a 59 yard drive following a Dumas fumble — one of four which Pampa recovered. Grimes toed the extra point following each score.

Harvester fullback Doug Kennedy had an outstanding night running the ball as the 180 pound senior rambled for 124 yards on 23 carries for an average pickup of 5.4 yards. Quarles topped the 100 yard mark for the second straight week in total offense as he had 120 yards, including 97 via the airways.

His top receiver for the night was Steve McDougall with four catches for 63 yards. Jeff McDougall had one catch for 34 yards.

In other games involving district 3-AAAA schools Amarillo upset 9th ranked Odessa Permian 9-0. Palo Duro fell to Hereford 10-6. El Paso Andrew dumped Caprock 21-6 and Tascosa was drubbed by Plainview 35-15 Thursday night.

The Harvesters will host Altus Friday in Harvester Field. Altus was tied for the No. 1 ranking among Oklahoma 4A teams in preseason and were rated third in the latest poll.

Mayers humbled at ATP

WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) — The eighth-seeded pickup team of Tim Gullikson and Bob Carmichael humbled the No. 4-rated Mayer brothers, Gene and Sandy, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2 Saturday to win a spot in the finals of the $150,000 ATP World Doubles tennis championship.

Their opponents in Sunday's showdown for the $31,000 first prize will be second-seeded Americans, Marty Riessen and Sherwood Stewart, who barely got by John Marks and Mark Edmondson of Australia, 7-6, 7-9.

Gullikson, a 28-year-old American, had never played doubles with Carmichael, a 39-year-old Australian, until this tournament. They had won enough points to qualify for the meet playing with other partners — Gullikson with his brother, Tom, and Carmichael with Brian Teacher of the United States.

But Teacher broke his ankle in the U.S. Open, and brother Tom had several reasons for not wanting to play, not the least of which was the fact that he and his wife, Julie, are expecting their first child and are moving into a new home in Florida.

Carmichael and Gullikson had a rough time getting to the finals, however, having to play at least one tie-breaker in all three matches. They dropped top-seeded Wojtek Fibak of Poland and Tom Okker of The Netherlands, 1-6, 7-6, 6-4, to win a semi-final berth against the Mayers.

Houston, Kansas City to be headed by back-up signal callers

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers and Kansas City Chiefs meet in the Astrodome Sunday in a game that could be an indication of the quarterbacks of the future for both teams—Steve Fuller for the Chiefs and Gifford Nielsen for the Oilers.

Kansas City Coach Marv Levy named Fuller, a rookie first round draft choice from Clemson, to the starting assignment against the Oilers based on his performance in the second half of a 27-24 loss to Cleveland last week.

Oiler Coach Bum Phillips may be forced to start Nielsen, a second year backup quarterback from Brigham Young, if injured starter

Dan Pastorini isn't able to throw with a bruise shoulder suffered in last week's 38-7 loss to Pittsburgh.

"The team caught a spark when Steve came into the game," Levy said. "The tempo of the game changed and Steve played well enough that we felt he deserves to start the game so we're going to start him."

Fuller replaces Mike Livingston, one of two remaining Chiefs players from Kansas City's 1969 Super Bowl team.

Levy said Kansas City offensive plays would be called from the sidelines to take some pressure off Fuller.

"I'd rather have him thinking about carrying out his assignments than having to take on the whole strategy of the game," Levy said.

Nielsen, who tossed a three-yard touchdown pass to Guido Merkens for Houston's only score against the Steelers, would be making his first career regular season start.

If Nielsen starts for the Oilers, the two teams would just about be even at the position, Phillips said.

"Fuller reminds me a lot of Gifford," Phillips said. "They both get the ball to the receivers. They are both about the same experience wise. Gifford didn't play much last year and Fuller is just starting too."

Livingston and kicker Jan Stenerud are the only remaining players from the Chiefs Super Bowl glory days. Four rookies have earned starting positions on the team, which has an average of 3.2 years experience.

Other rookie starters are linebucker Frank Manumaleuga, safety Jerry Reese and punter Bob Grupp.

The Oilers will be playing the rest of the season without receiver-kick return specialist Billy Johnson, who underwent knee surgery Tuesday and is lost for the season.

The Oilers signed former Kansas City linebacker Jimbo Elrod as Johnson's numerical replacement. Kickoff is at 1 p.m. CDT.

Cowboys, Chicago meet in battle of unbeaten

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The unbeaten Chicago Bears and Walter Payton come prancing into Texas Stadium Sunday to meet the unbeaten and so far unimpressive Dallas Cowboys, who have never allowed the National Football League's leading rusher a 100-yard day.

In two games against Dallas, Payton has carried the ball 36 times for 101 yards or a 2.8 average. His longest run against the Cowboys has been 13 yards.

"We'll find out what kind of a team we have," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "Payton is just so strong. He just runs right through defensive linemen. They hit him and he doesn't even ripple, just knocks 'em back. He has incredible balance. He doesn't care how he gets his yards. He just knocks you down."

Payton has averaged 5.2 yards per carry in piling up 307 yards in the young NFL season.

The Cowboy defense has yielded 300 yards at a 5.4 yard per carry average.

Chicago Coach Neill Armstrong has a team leading the NFL in defense in victories over Minnesota and Green Bay.

"I feel good about the team right now," said

Armstrong. "They have confidence and better talent than last year's team. You need confidence to play Dallas, and execution, too."

Armstrong added "At this point I don't know how good we are, but we'll find out some things in a hurry."

Chicago quarterback Vince Evans has a bruised left knee and Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach has been bothered by a sore elbow.

The Cowboys hope star tailback Tony Dorsett will round into form for the sold out, nationally televised 3 p.m. CST kickoff in Texas Stadium.

GREG QUARLES, quarterback for the Pampa Harvesters, sets up in the pocket as he prepares to unleash one of his 11 passes Friday night in the Harvesters' 28-7 triumph over Dumas.

Brandt takes WTGA championship

AMARILLO — Marlene Brandt of Pampa defeated Amarillo's Joan Miller 4 and 3 to take the first flight championship in the 58th Women's Texas Golf Association State Amateur Tournament at the Amarillo Country Club Friday.

She led a three-woman charge of local entrants as LaVonna Dalton finished second in the third flight consolation bracket and Maxie Scott was second in the seventh flight championship.

Dalton was defeated 3 and 2 by Erna Day of San Antonio and Scott was defeated by Norma O'Neal of Panhandle, 1 - up.

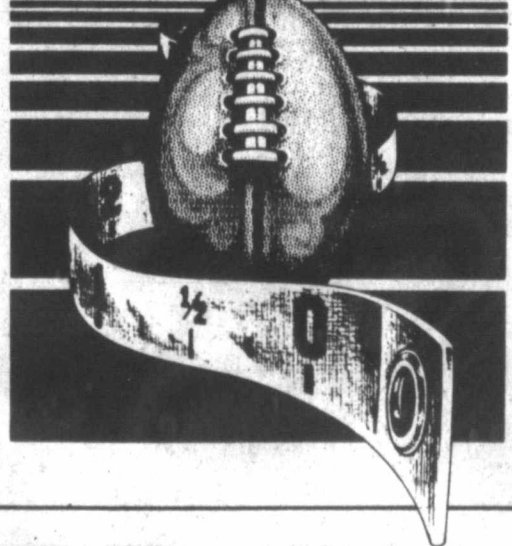

Martha Jones of Houston overcame an early 3-hole deficit to capture a 5-and-3 win over Mary Beth Sullivan of Houston to claim the Championship flight.

Jimmie Smith of Amarillo won the consolation championship with a 1-up win over Nannette Wheelif of Waco.

Rains and temperatures no higher than 50 degrees hindered play.

Cincinnati increases lead in NL West

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dan Driessen slugged a solo home run with two out in the top of the ninth inning to break a tie and give the Cincinnati Reds a 2-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

Mario Soto, 3-2, who relieved starter Fred Norman, earned the victory with two scoreless innings of relief. Rookie Joe Beckwith, 1-2, who relieved Bob Welch in the fifth, took the loss, giving up both Cincinnati runs.

Dusty Baker homered in the fourth inning, his 22nd of the year, to give the Dodgers a 1-0 lead. Shut out for seven innings, the Reds tied the score with one out in the eighth when Dave Collins cracked his third homer of the year.

Collins' home run snapped

Cincinnati's scoreless streak against Los Angeles pitching at 23 innings.

Astros-Giants
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Larry Herndon's two-out, two-run pinch triple capped a five-run eighth inning as the San Francisco Giants defeated the Houston Astros 5-3 Saturday.

Herndon hit a 3-2 pitch off Astros center fielder Joe Sambito to left center field, scoring Mike Iye and Darrell Evans with the winning runs.

The loss dropped the Astros 1 1/2 games behind Cincinnati in the National League West. The Reds earlier defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1.

Houston starter Ken Forsch was sailing along with a three-hit shutout entering the eighth but then Dennis Littlejohn belted a leadoff triple to ignite the Giants' rally. Terry Whitfield, batting for winning pitcher Pedro Borbon, 6-5, singled home the Giants' first run. Bill North walked and Rob Andrews bunted the runners into scoring position.

Astro Manager Bill Virdon went to his bullpen for Joaquin Andujar, 12-12, who wild-pitched pinch-running Jack Clark home while walking Iye.

Sambito came on and retired Willie McCovey but Darrell Evans singled to tie the game at 3-3 before Herndon's game-winning hit.

Greg Minton, the last of four Giant hurlers, pitched the ninth inning and recorded his second save.

Ron Davis, 12-2, the second of three New York pitchers, was the winner in the second game. The rookie right-hander came on in the third inning after starter Don Hood was removed with a bruised left shin sustained on Lynn Jones' infield hit in the second. Jim Kaat pitched the final three innings for the Yankees and gained his second save.

Davis, who allowed only one hit in four innings, appeared when the Yankees had already built a 5-0 lead against Detroit starter Mike Chris, 3-2. New York scored five times in the second inning when Chris issued three walks and gave up three hits. Fred Stanley drove in the first run with a sacrifice fly and both Randolph and Beniquez contributed two-run singles.

Indians-Blue Jays
TORONTO (AP) — Bob Bailor tripled home two runs to back the pitching of Balor Moore and reliever Tom Buskey as the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-2 Saturday.

Moore, 4-6, scattered seven hits, striking out three and walking four over the first seven innings. Buskey pitched the last two innings, giving up a run on three hits.

Toronto scored an unearned run in the first off Cleveland starter Len Barker, 6-5, on a pair of walks, a passed ball and Roy Howell's double-play grounder.

The Blue Jays took a 2-0 lead in the second on a run-scoring single by Luis Gomez. Cleveland got a run in the fourth on Ron Pruitt's RBI single but Toronto took a 3-1 lead in the bottom of the inning on a pair of singles and a double-play grounder by Gomez.

Paul Reuschel relieved Barker in the fourth and was touched for Bailor's two-run triple in the sixth.

Cleveland got its other run off Buskey in the eighth on an RBI single by pinch-hitter Jim Norris.

A's-White Sox
CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie southpaw Steve Trout, backed by the timely hitting of Alan Bannister, scattered five singles as he hurled the Chicago White Sox to a 3-0 victory over the Oakland A's Saturday.

Trout, 9-8, walked two and struck out five in recording his second shutout of the year. The White Sox broke a scoreless tie with two out in the fifth against Oakland loser Rick Langford, 12-14, on Bannister's RBI single.

Chicago loaded the bases in the sixth on singles to Lamar Johnson and Chet Lemon, a sacrifice by Jim Morrison and an intentional walk to Marvis Foley. Claudell Washington, pinch hitting for Pryor, bounced to first baseman Dave Revering, allowing Johnson to score the second run of the game.

A one-out double by Bannister in the seventh and a triple by Thad Bosley gave the White Sox their final run in the seventh.

Mets-Pirates
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill

Robinson's two-out, tie-breaking single in the seventh inning gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets Saturday.

The Mets had scored twice in the top of the seventh to tie the game 4-4 before Robinson's game-winning blow for the Pirates.

The Mets took a 2-0 lead in the first on Richie Heber's RBI single and a sacrifice fly by Ed Kranepool.

Steve Nicosia led off the Pirate second with a single, took second on a sacrifice, went to third on Omar Moreno's single and scored on a single by Tim Foli. Moreno stole second, went to third on Foli's single and scored on Dave Parker's sacrifice fly to tie the game at 2-2.

The Pirates took a 4-2 lead in the fifth on a run-scoring single by Foli and an RBI grounder by Robinson.

White not missed as Southern Cal roars over Oregon St. 42-5

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Playing only the first half, quarterback Paul McDonald completed 8 of 9 passes for 108 yards and two touchdowns Saturday as No. 1-ranked Southern Cal methodically destroyed Oregon State 42-5 in a Pacific 10 Conference football game.

The Trojans were without all-America tailback Charles White, who watched the game in street clothes because of a bruised shoulder.

But White was never missed as McDonald directed the defending Pac-10 champs to touchdowns the first five times they had the ball.

By halftime, Southern Cal held a 35-3 lead, and coach John Robinson benched most of his starters for the final 30 minutes.

The Trojans drove for 337 total yards and 18 first downs in the first half.

Fullback Marcus Allen scored Southern Cal's first two touchdowns on runs of two and five yards in the first quarter.

Southern Cal scored three times in less than two minutes to put the game away early.

Notre Dame-Michigan
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Chuck Male, a walk-on who became Notre Dame's regular placekicker last year, booted a school record four field goals Saturday, rallying the ninth-ranked Fighting Irish to a season-opening 12-10 college football upset over sixth-ranked Michigan.

Male, a 5-foot-11, 180-pound senior from Mishawaka, Ind., in the shadow of the Notre Dame campus, kicked a 40-yarder in the opening period and then brought the Irish from a 10-3 deficit with field goals of 44 yards in the second quarter and 22 and 39 yards in the third period.

However, the triumph was not secured until Michigan's Bryan Virgil had a 42-yard field goal attempt blocked with one second remaining. Virgil booted the ball low and directly into the teeth of the Notre Dame rush.

Male's winning three-pointer with 3:46 left in the third quarter came on the fourth play after Scott Zetek and Tom Gibbons partially blocked a punt by Virgil from his own end zone, and the ball went out of bounds on the 28.

The upset victory — Michigan was favored by a touchdown — enabled Notre Dame to avoid losing its second straight opening game, something that hasn't happened since the school's first two football seasons in 1887-88.

Iowa-Oklahoma
NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Rookie Kelly Phelps briefly added some muscle to a disjointed Oklahoma offense as the No. 3-ranked Sooners defeated Iowa 21-6 in a non-conference college football game Saturday.

The Sooners proved to be a sleeping giant as Iowa runner Dennis Mosley and defensive back Cedric Shaw barely missed putting together an upset.

Iowa started the scoring in the first quarter when quarterback Phil Sues hit a short pass to Mosley in the end zone. Then the Hawkeyes protected that lead until only four minutes remained before the half.

Sooner starting quarterback J.C. Watts was shaken up briefly and was replaced by Phelps, who started a Sooner scoring drive with a pass to tight end Forrest Valora for a 27-yard gain. Three plays later Phelps kept the ball and raced 18 yards to set up an easy 1-yard scoring drive by 1979 Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims.

The Sooners finally awakened in the fourth quarter, scoring on a 1-yard run by Watts. Then Sims put it away with a 3-yard jaunt.

Oregon-Michigan St.
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Tailback Derek Hughes ran for three touchdowns Saturday, one of them a 100-yard kickoff return, as 10th-ranked Michigan State swamped Oregon 41-17 in a non-conference college football game.

Tailback Steve Smith ran for a fourth TD and place-kicker Morten Andersen booted two field goals against the scrappy Ducks.

Hughes' electrifying third-quarter kickoff return, which snapped a 33-year Michigan State kickoff return record, broke the game open after the Ducks had narrowed the score to 20-17 on an 8-yard run by tailback Dwight Robertson.

Oregon kicker Doug Jollymour put the Ducks in front 3-0 on a 39-yard field goal. But Andersen tied it 3-3 with a 30-yard boot after the Spartans intercepted a Reggie Ogburn pass.

Hughes' first TD came on a 2-yard run, three seconds into the second quarter. Eugene Byrd took a 41-yard scoring pass from Bert Vaughn but Ogburn hit split end Rich Ward with a 20-yard scoring pass play to make it 17-10. Anderson kicked a 51-yard field goal at the end of the half before Robertson closed the gap.

Rutgers-Penn St.
STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Curt Warner scored three touchdowns and accounted for 281 total yards in the best performance by a freshman in Penn State's 92-year football history as the seventh-ranked Nittany Lions opened their season with a 45-10 victory over Rutgers Saturday.

After a 3-3 first period, Warner broke the game open with touchdown runs of 6 and 18 yards and a scoring reception on a 62-yard pass play from quarterback Dayle Tate.

Utah St-Nebraska
LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — I.M. Hipp scored three touchdowns and rushed for 167 yards to lead the eighth-ranked University of Nebraska Cornhuskers to a 35-14 football victory over Utah State Saturday.

While Hipp enjoyed the 10th 100-yard game of his career, Husker quarterback Jeff Quinn combined on a 43-yard scoring play with tight end Junior Miller and became the first Nebraska signal-caller to gain 100 yards rushing in a single game. It was a hard fought season opener for the Cornhuskers, playing before their 100th consecutive sellout crowd at Memorial Stadium and winning their season opener for the first time since 1975.

WHEELER — The Wheeler defense performed flawlessly before a homecoming crowd in holding Chillicothe to a minus-five yards total offense in leading the Mustangs to a 23-0 victory Friday night.

The Mustangs, in what was termed by the coaches as an "off game" produced 318 yards, but it took a 49 yard gallop by fullback Benny Baker on Wheeler's first possession of the second half to produce the game's first touchdown.

Rich Brown tossed two TD passes of 15 and 17 yards to Mike Evans and Russell Gaines, respectively, and had 114 yards in total offense. Gaines had a 25 yard field goal for the first score of the game.

GROOM — Vince Britten scored 16 points in the second half to lead a Groom rally and hand White Deer a 30-20 loss here Friday night.

It was the first win ever as a head coach for Groom's Jim Henry and evened the Tigers' record at 1-1 for the year.

Britten rushed for 186 yards in the contest and scored on runs of 3 and 19 yards as well as scoring both two point conversions. White Deer is now 0-2 for the year.

CANADIAN — Canadian ran its record to 2-0 as they ran roughshod over Stinnett in collecting a 24-7 victory.

The Wildcats scored two touchdowns by rush, one on a pass, kicked a field goal and had a safety for their points.

MIAMI — Claude rolled up 212 yards in total offense, but was never able to cross the goal line as they settled for a 0-0 tie with Miami Friday night.

Miami was held to 128 yards for the game in a contest which each team give up the ball on turnovers a total of three times.

IN AGRICULTURE

By JOE VANZANDT COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

WHEAT VARIETIES:
In our Wheat Variety Demonstration on Keith Davis last year the results are as follows: Payne - 40.9 bushel per acre, Danne - 38.8, Larned - 37.0, TAM W101 - 36.7, Eagle - 36.4, Palo Duro - 34.8, Scout 66 - 34.2, and Sage - 32.6.

This was a dryland field and the yields were obtained by hand - harvesting a small plot from each variety. Therefore, there was room for sampling error and the yields may not be representative of each variety over a number of years. The test weight on all of the varieties were above 62 pounds.

ESTABLISHING FORAGES:
Many livestock producers are considering planting permanent grasses and alfalfa to get away from the hasty and high energy requirement of establishing annual forage crops. Now is the time to plant cool season grasses such as tall wheat grass, smooth bromegrass, orchard grass and fescue as well as alfalfa.

A firm well prepared seedbed results in the best stands in most situations. Where wind erosion is a hazard planting directly into standing stubble works well. Excess loose crop residue should be removed as it tends to bunch up either preventing germination or smothering small seedlings. The possibility of rain showers to aid emergence is good at this time of the year, however, arrangements should be made to apply one or more irrigations in the event of crusting or an extended dry period. A winter irrigation of newly established stands pays dividends in better stands as well as earlier production.

SECOND GROWING SEASON FOR PASTURES:
The second season for improved pastures such as Weeping Lovegrass is here.

During September and October, growing conditions become similar to spring in terms of day length and temperature. With moisture and proper management, pastures can produce a lot of hay or forage for grazing. The most crucial management step is to make sure pastures have sufficient nitrogen for growth. Nitrogen is the key element in forage growth.

Available nitrogen in most pastures is used rapidly. Pastures that have had no nitrogen fertilizer or have had only one moderate spring application have used most of the available nitrogen for spring and early summer growth. So there is little if any nitrogen available for fall forage growth.

Application of 30 to 50 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre in early September will boost fall forage production and allows for good forage growth prior to frost if moisture is available. And, although there is an element of risk involved, probability of rainfall during September and October is greater than in July and August.

Fall application of fertilizer also provides for a more vigorous plant that will be less subject to winter damage. Anyone who has suffered from an excessive weed problem or a missed hay cutting because of winter kill of summer grass can appreciate this factor.

In addition to good production during the second growing season, grasses become higher in digestibility during this period when compared to mid - summer grasses.

McDonald to speak at revival

David McDonald of Hollis, Okla., will be the Evangelist at Barrett Baptist Church's Revival, September 16-19.

Brother David attended North Texas State University and is a Honor Graduate from Criswell Baptist College and has a Masters and Doctrate from Luther Rice Seminary International. In 1973 he was called to preach and pastored Corinth Baptist Church in Mesquite, Texas. He has also preached at conferences and revivals throughout the Southwest.

Marion Warren of Euless, Texas will be leading the music at the revival.

Brother Warren, a graduate of the University of Corpus Christi and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, has served as Music and Youth Director at several Texas Baptist Churches. In 1968, he entered Music Evangelism which he is still serving. Brother Warren has been involved in Crusades in Japan, Argentina, Bolivia, Germany, Australia, and Canada.

Classical Grace

"I don't want anything fancy — just do it perfect." With a quick clap of her hands, the petite ballet teacher calls her students into position and puts them through an exercise.

"Stretch up, up, up, up," she says, demonstrating what she wants to see. "Pull up, like you're in a toothpaste box. Stretch your body, pull your muscles tight."

"Now lift your leg, lift, lift — that's good," she praises with a quick smile.

The students watch attentively as their teacher, Jeanne Willingham, shows them what a few months ago they were doing with much less effort, before a summer hiatus. Grasping the practice bar, class members hesitantly follow their teacher through an exercise — pile in second position, close in first,

French dance terms slide in and out of Willingham's instructions — "arabesque", "port de bras", "soubresaut", "tendu", "pirouette".

The music starts again and the class, now with more confidence, performs the intricate steps. With watchful eyes, Willingham walks down the row of dancers, lifting an arm here and there, adjusting a knee to the proper position, tilting a chin to the right angle.

The students range from just-developing pre-teens — already exhibiting more grace than many of their peers — to young married women, intent on keeping their bodies lithe through the rigorous demands of ballet.

Outfitted in tights of pale pink and a leotard of traditional black or possibly of jewel-tones, each dancer's feet are enclosed in well-worn ballet slippers of soft pink kid.

Their teacher is similarly dressed, with no hint of unwanted weight anywhere on her tiny frame. Willingham, who goes through the exercises with her students, has taught in Pampa nine months of each year for a number of years.

But every summer she travels to Hollywood, where she becomes a student again, working with her long-time teachers and friends, Harriet and Al DeRea.

"You can always learn and it's so invigorating and stimulating," says Willingham, who also is a guest teacher in the professional school. "It gets me ready to teach here again."

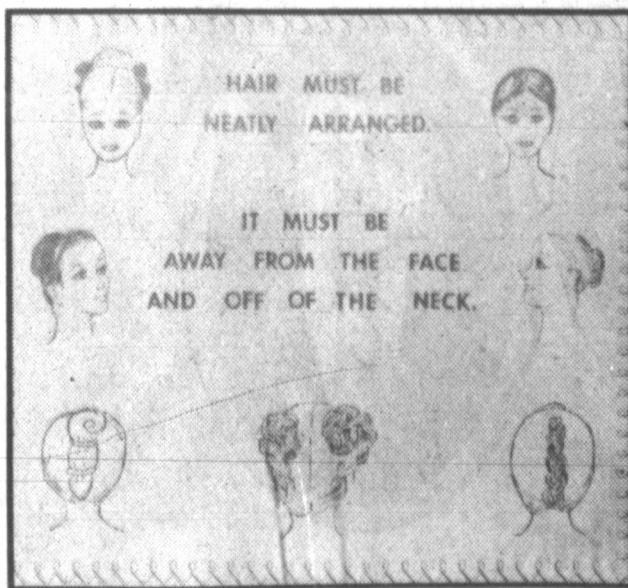

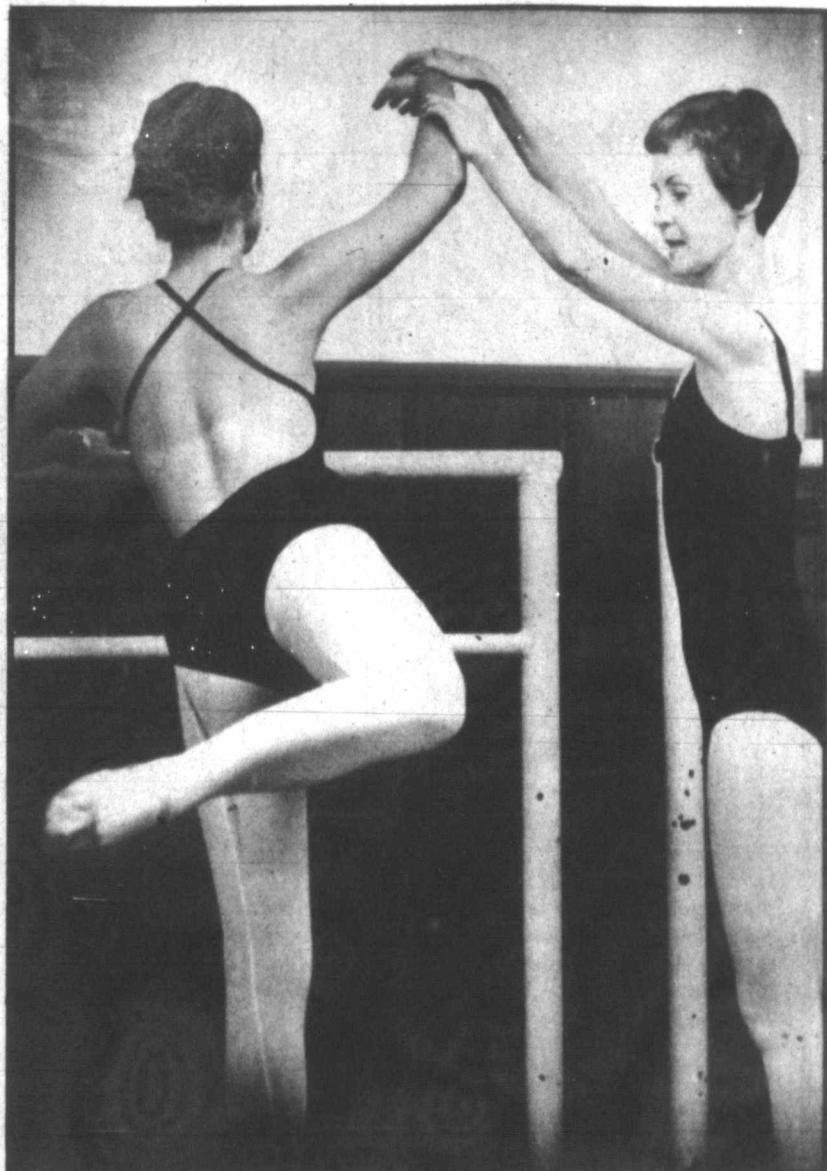

"I hope to keep improving all the time," she says with enthusiasm. "To keep reaching to improve makes it exciting. It's not any fun to stop."

At the California school, she's watched many dedicated dancers grow up and branch off into various areas of show business. She declines mentioning names because she considers these students her friends rather than television or 'show biz' personalities.

"Everybody out there is in show business of sorts — children in commercials, adults, directors, producers, actors, actresses, models, artists."

"And nearly everybody working in every form of show business realizes the importance of dance," she adds. "You just do everything better if your body is in shape."

Willingham has been a student of ballet since she was a young girl, when her mother marched with her around the room keeping time to a record. "I guess I've always known I wanted to dance," explains the teacher, who studied in New York and London and is director of the Pampa Civic Ballet Co.

Fund chairman is Dick Stowers

General chairman for Pampa United Fund is Dick Stowers, who says the fund-raising preparations are running ahead of last year's schedule.

"It looks like we're at least a week ahead of where we were this time last year," says Stowers. "It looks like everyone's got all their workers lined up and ready to go."

As chairman Stowers sees his main responsibility as overseeing the situation as a whole, making sure each division does what it is supposed to do, and seeing that each division has prepared its volunteers.

The United Fund chairman has been involved in Pampa fund-raising since he came here about 29 years ago.

"I'm a firm believer that if you're going to live in a town you ought to contribute to it," says Stowers, who serves on the board of directors for Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, the Salvation Army and Red Cross, among other civic activities.

Stowers will deliver a speech during the United Fund Chamber of Commerce kickoff dinner Oct. 1.

Dick Stowers

Osman directs UF campaign

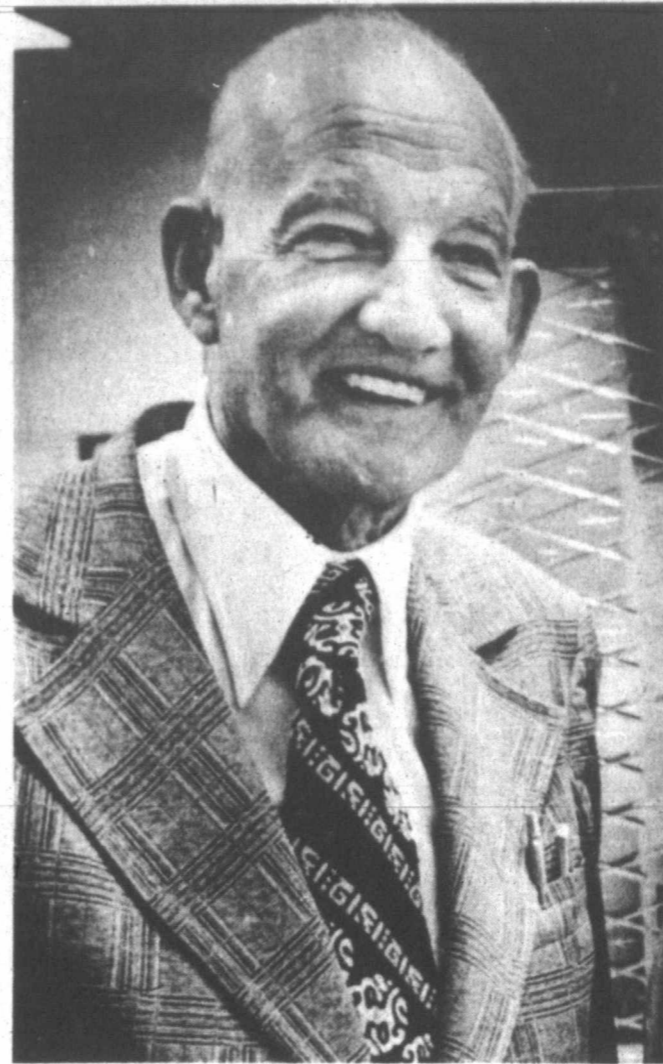

Campaign director for Pampa's United Fund effort is Ken Osman, a veteran of fund-raising activities.

"My duty is to see that the volunteers take and complete their assignments and to keep motivation going throughout the whole effort," says Osman, who recently retired from a 21-year career as executive director of the El Paso United Fund.

"The campaign director keeps the records and maintains a day-to-day calendar and keeps the volunteers aware of what's going on," explains Osman. "It's easy for an organization with volunteers who have their own daily schedules to slow down in their volunteer efforts."

"But you have a good local set-up in Pampa and most of your volunteers are experienced," he adds.

Osman, who with his wife recently moved to Indiana, arrives in Pampa next week for the employee gifts division luncheon. He will be in town through Nov. 2, when United Fund efforts wind down.

Pampa United Fund sets goal of $181,788 for '79-80

A budget of $181,788 was announced for the 1979-1980 United Fund, according to an announcement made by Dick Stowers, general chairman, and Rick Oncken, president of the United Fund board.

Of that sum, approximately 97 percent of the funds collected will remain in Pampa, says Oncken.

The organization budgeted for the highest portion of funds is the Boy Scouts, set to receive $40,875. Next is the Salvation Army, budgeted for $33,000.

Girl Scouts will receive $25,615 for the new year. The American Red Cross is budgeted for $23,980 and Genesis House will receive $20,710.

The Senior Citizens Center will get $16,000; next is Meals on Wheels, which is down for $10,000 in the budget.

Pampa Day Care Center is allocated for $4,251. The Epilepsy Association is set to receive $3,542, with $2,725 budgeted for the Pampa Family Service Center.

Gonzales Warm Springs will receive $436, and Southwestern Diabetic Foundation in Gainsville will get $327. United Service Organization has been allocated $327.

Two of the agencies, Meals on Wheels and Senior Citizens, are new to the United Fund effort in Pampa.

Kim Harris

Kim Harris to wed in October

Mr. and Mrs. L.E. Harris, 1336 N. Russell, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kimbra Renee, to Casey Lee Robertson of Nacondoches.

The couple will exchange wedding vows Oct. 27 in Central Baptist Church.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Cora Lee Robertson of Plainview, and the late Ray Robertson.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Pampa High School and is employed at Clement's Flower Shop. Robertson, also a graduate of PHS, is employed by Haney's Plumbing Company of Nacondoches.

Famous folks donate items for auction

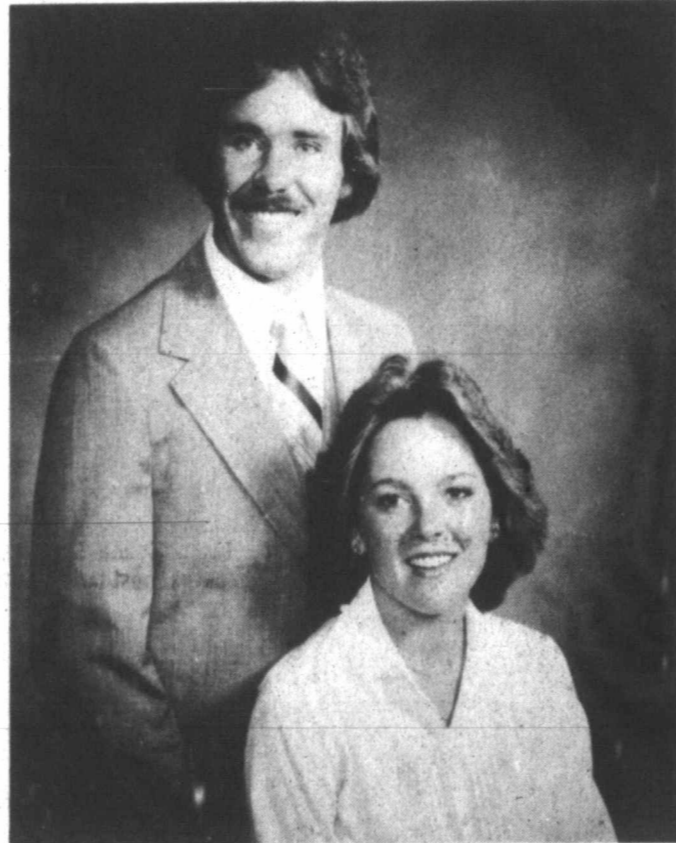

Collector's items donated by famous personalities and politicians such as Bob Hope, Roger Staubach, Mamie Eisenhower and others will go up for bids Oct. 6 in Pampa during a "Gift of Life Auction", sponsored by the Kidney Foundation of the Texas Panhandle.

Scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. in M.K. Brown Heritage Room, the auction will feature items like Bob Hope's key ring, emblazoned with the likeness of old "Ski Nose" himself; an autographed golf ball signed by President Dwight Eisenhower and given to his grandson David; an autographed picture of Staubach; and a purse contributed by former First Lady Mamie Eisenhower.

Master of ceremonies for the auction will be Bedford Forrest of Amarillo.

The major fund-raising event of the year, the auction proceeds will assist area kidney patients, educate the public about kidney disease and go toward research.

Georgia Mack and Ruth Osborne, co-chairmen of the event, encourage everyone to attend the auction, which will also feature entertainment and fun.

Kim Stowers and Jerry Ray Brazile

Kim Stowers plans fall wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Stowers, 2530 Beech, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kimberly Sue, to Jerry Ray Brazile. The couple will be married Nov. 9 in the First Presbyterian Church.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brazile, 1810 Williston.

The bride, a graduate of Pampa High School, is employed by Citizens Bank and Trust. Brazile is also a PHS graduate and is employed by Northern Natural Gas Co.

Collingsworth brings program to homemakers

Lottie Reynolds hosted the Worthwhile Home Extension Club last week.

Janice Carter, president, called the meeting to order. Gladys Stone gave the council report.

The group discussed the Christmas in October project planned for Oct. 11 at the First Christian Church. Lil Hall will conduct a workshop Sept. 18.

Razelle Collingsworth brought the program on the Labo International Exchange Foundation.

The next meeting will be Sept. 21 with Corrine Wheeler.

CRAFTY COOKING

By Sally Shaffer Miller

The crafty cook is moving again. This time it's from a three-bedroom-den house to a one-bedroom apartment. I didn't realize how many holiday candles and decorations we had until we started packing. Worse than that, I didn't realize how many cook books and clothes and knick-knacks we had accumulated since our last move.

When you're moving, there are several items you should not pack. Keep out your slow cooker, the thermos, paper plates, plastic forks, and paper cups. And a thing to keep things cool.

When you arrive, you know that you're in for work. Your spouse and friends can help you move in with trips to and from the car or van. What you need to do is find the nearest market and hope that the move will take at least two days. (I find it terribly ambitious to count on just one day!) If it's all done today, go out to eat. Or even if it's not done today, tomorrow, go to the market early enough to get the ingredients for THE MOVER'S FRUIT-BEEF STEW. The leftovers can be frozen.

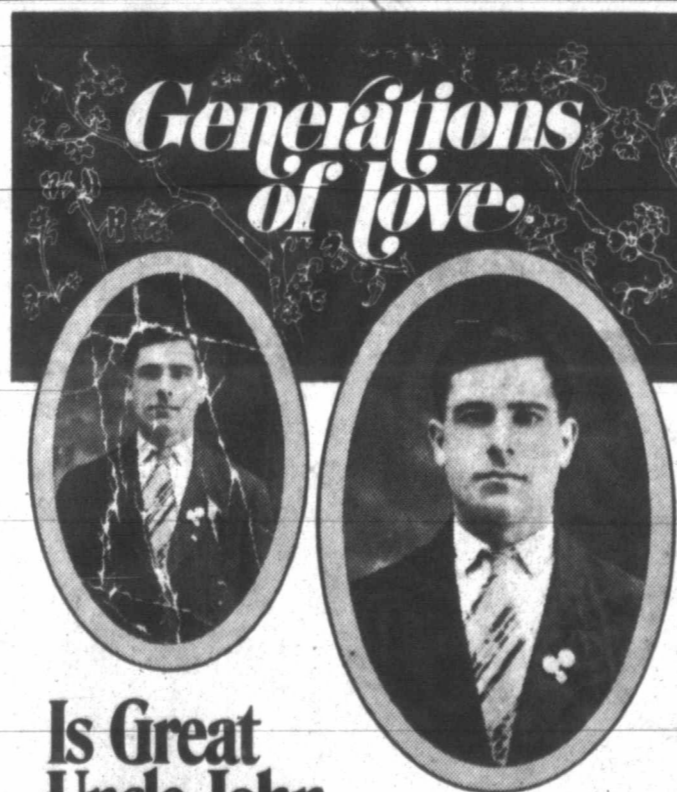

HAVE ON HAND: (that is, excuse yourself and shop for)

- 1 1/2 pounds beef chuck, which you will cut into 1-inch cubes
- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 3 medium sweet potatoes
- 1/2 cup cooking sherry (optional)
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes, undrained. Chop them, if necessary
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper (optional)
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 ears corn, cut crosswise in 2-inch pieces
- 2 medium zucchini, cut crosswise
- 1 can (16 oz.) peach slices, drained

NOW DO THIS:

Cube the meat and brown it in cooking oil and butter. Drain off the fat and put half of the meat into a slow cooker. Peel the sweet potatoes and cut them into wedges. Add them to the meat. Add the onions and pepper. Add the undrained tomatoes, and the rest of the meat. Add the water and sherry. Now add cinnamon, garlic powder, nutmeg, salt and pepper. Stir the mixture and set your cooker on the high setting for two hours.

Lower the heat to low for two hours more. Add the corn. Wait for two hours. Add the zucchini and cook for at least two more hours. You may cook longer, but about 1 hour before you plan to serve the stew, stir in the drained peaches. Serve with cornbread.

George Boutwell

Rural scenes inspire Boutwell's watercolors

One of the many talented artists exhibiting at the Pampa Fine Arts Festival in October will be George Boutwell, whose paintings show an unlikely combination of watercolor and detail.

The Connecticut-born artist, devoted to capturing the Texas landscape in his painting, will be a guest artist Oct. 13-14 during the Pampa Fine Arts Festival. Sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association, the festival will be at M.K. Brown Heritage Room.

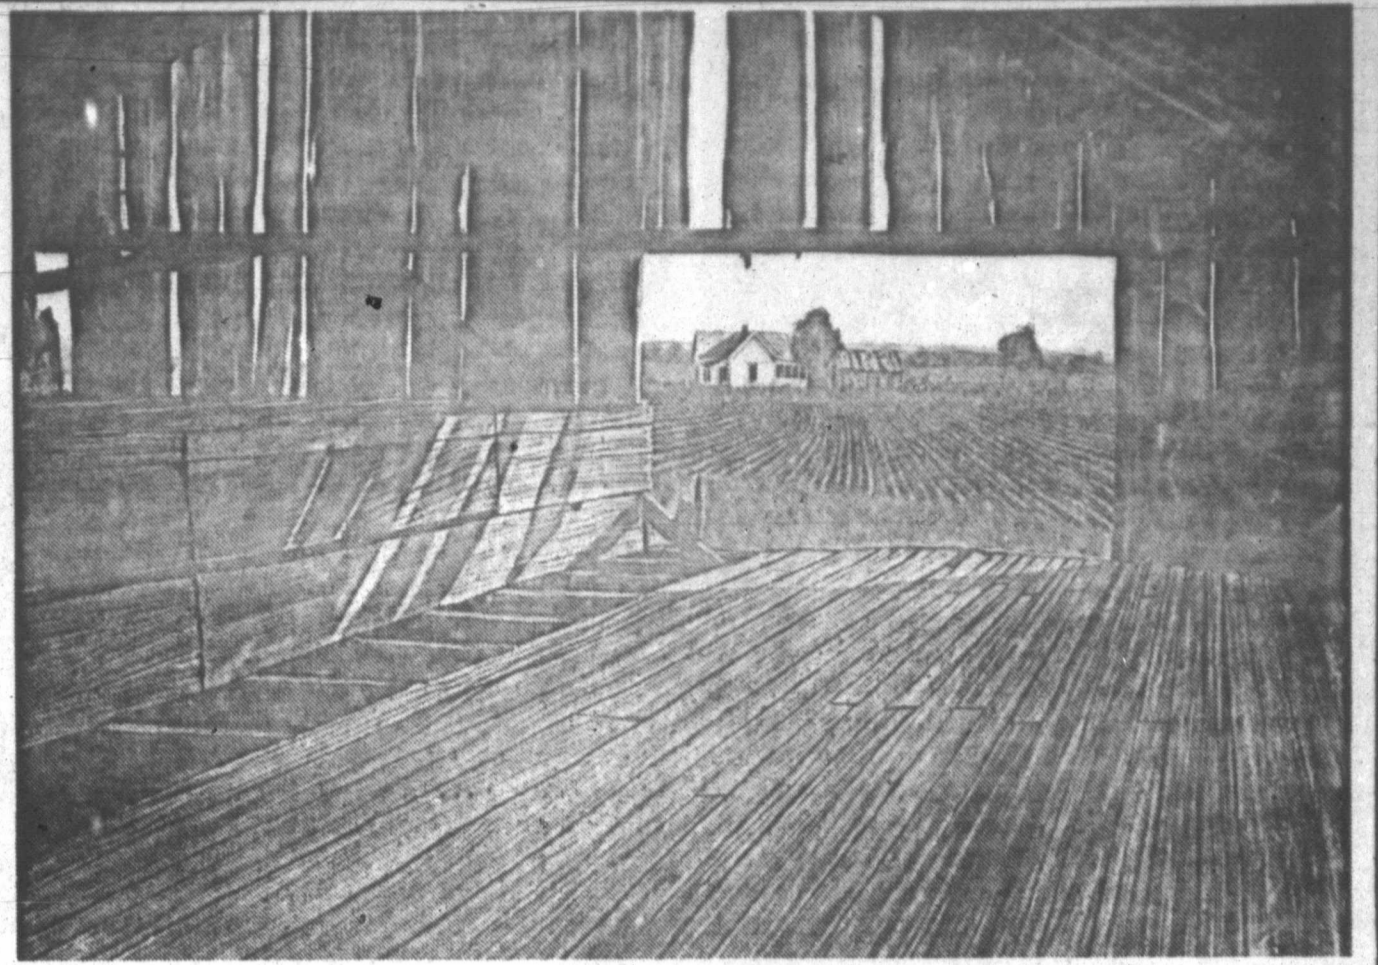

Receiving inspiration from rural scenes, the Austin artist collects ideas during solitary drives in the country, when he closely observes deserted farmhouses, weathered barns, worn windmills, lonely-looking trees, and rusting equipment.

A completed Boutwell watercolor usually is a combination of structures and scenery from several locations. He uses all sorts of devices to achieve his realistic style of watercolor.

He calls his approach experimental watercolor because he developed most of the techniques on his own. Included in his array of tools are brushes, knives, pieces of plastic, scratchboard tools, sponges, worn out ballpoint pens, and other odd objects.

His watercolors, many emphasizing the effects of wind, weather and time, are a combination of drybrush and wet techniques. By developing his own methods, he paints rigid things rigid and free things free, achieving a natural effect.

A successful commercial artist several years ago, Boutwell concentrates heavily on preparation before he begins painting, first putting a detailed drawing on paper to work out proportion and detail. He strives to produce eye entrapment, seeing a painting's center of attention as a method of communication.

Miss Reed says vows with Mr. Gromowsky

Miss Linda Diane Reed of Seminole became the bride of William Vincent Gromowsky, Jr., of Friona, during a recent garden wedding in Canyon. Mr. Bob Shepard of the University Church of Christ in Canyon officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Don Reed, 1413 N. Russell, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Luquette of Canyon. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Vincent Gromowsky of Bovina.

The bride wore a formal wedding gown fashioned of white organza and re-embroidered lace, featuring a sweetheart neckline and a fitted waistline. The bodice and sleeves were of re-embroidered lace.

The A-line skirt was softly gathered in the back, falling gracefully to a chapel-length train.

Attending the couple were Miss Linda Shulz of Lubbock and Mike Ware of Bovina. Providing wedding music were Bill Grissom of Seminole on the guitar, accompanying the bride, Kelly Forehand and Betty Williams at various times during the ceremony.

Ushers were Randy Reed of Dalhart and Joe Reed of Lubbock. Serving at the garden reception were Mrs. Pebbie Comer of Amarillo, Miss Terri Reid of Canyon, Mrs. Jyl Grimsley of Friona and Mrs. Jan Smith of Sudan.

The bride is a Pampa High School and West Texas State University graduate and is teaching in Friona. Her husband graduated from Bovina High, attended Lubbock Christian College and farms near Friona.

Mrs. William Vincent Gromowsky, Jr.

Jr. Auxiliary met

The Highland General Hospital Junior Auxiliary finished their summer volunteer work with a pizza party last week.

The teenagers gave 640 hours of volunteer service to the hospital, working in the gift shop, information and admitting, television and physical therapy areas.

Any teenagers interested in volunteering for weekends during the school year should call Nancy Kotara, director, at 669-3974 or 665-3721.

Miss McCausland wed to Joel Howard Weaver

In a recent ceremony in Jonesboro, Miss Joanne Doreen McCausland, formerly of Pampa, became the bride of Joel Howard Weaver. Officiating was the Rev. John Weaver, father of the bridegroom.

The bride is the daughter of Joyce McCausland of Amarillo and John McCausland, also of Amarillo. Parents of the bridegroom are the Rev. and Mrs. John Weaver of Hamilton.

The bride designed her dress of candlelight bridal satin, which featured a V-neckline edged with chiffon and an empire bodice, also covered with chiffon. Lace appliques highlighted the bodice and long chiffon sleeves, cuffed in ruffles. The satin skirt fell to a chapel length train.

Her finger-tip veil of illusion, edged with chantilly lace, rested on a headdress covered with lace and pearls.

Attending the bride were Jennifer Schell of Dallas, Cindy Alexander and Theresa Walsh, both of Pampa, and Jennifer Weaver, flower girl, of Hamilton.

Gary Babbitt of Stephenville was best man. Groomsman were James Weaver of Hamilton and Vaughn Weatherford of Austin. Serving as ushers were Stanley Gardner of Hamilton and Greg Salley of Lubbock.

Providing music were Mrs. Amy Moore, vocalist, and Mrs. Susan Kitchens, pianist.

A reception honored the couple before they left on a honeymoon to South Padre Island. They are at home in Lubbock, where the bride, a 1976 graduate of Pampa High School, is studying microbiology at Texas Tech University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Hamilton High School and is a business major at Texas Tech.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Should high schools have designated smoking areas for teens who smoke? This question brought 2,810 interesting responses from teens in Canada and throughout the United States, and one response (not included in survey) from a high school principal from Morgantown, W. Va.

Being a former high school administrator, I was very interested in the results and surprised that only 48 percent (1,349 teens) were in favor of such an area.

The girls (1,712 responded) answered with only 39 percent in favor of the smoking area. The boys (1,098 answered the question) had a significantly higher percentage — 681 (62 percent) teen boys liked the idea of a school smoking area.

The comments were varied so let's hear what the teens had to say.

From Robert Beachy, 14, Goshen, Ind.: Many teens aren't allowed to smoke at home, so why should they be able to at school? Workshops to help smokers stop would be more like it.

From Sharyn Smith, 16, Astoria, Ore.: My high school had a smoking area but many kids skipped class to join the "group" and smoke.

From Liz Williams, 17, Marysville, Calif.: Many kids in high school are 18. Since 18 is the age to buy cigarettes, then they should be able to smoke them — anywhere.

From Karen Davy, 15, Zanesville, Ohio: Yes! Because otherwise the smokers use the restroom to smoke and they only ruin it for us non-smokers.

From Doug Beal, 17, Odessa, Texas: No! Smoking causes cancer.

From Linda Hamilton, 14, Nashua, N.H.: No! The kids wouldn't only be smoking tobacco, they would also be smoking pot.

From Donna Morgan, 13, Gadsden, Ala.: Yes, but the smokers must have permission from their parents.

From Dianna Zupp, 13, Fresno, Calif.: No! Smoking areas will only encourage smoking.

From Carla Darlington, 16, Snohomish, Wash.: If teachers can have a designated smoking area, why not students?

From Melanie Meyer, 14, Valparaiso, Ind.: No, schools should not encourage bad habits.

I'm awarding a TWEEN 12 AND 20 T-shirt to Rose Alvarez, 16, from McAllen, Texas, who said it best: "... We learn the evils of drugs, tobacco and alcohol in school, then we allow teens to smoke on campus. I say never. Next thing we will be selling beer in the cafeteria in states where 18-year-olds can legally drink. ..."

Our next question comes from Alice Chung, 17, from San Mateo, Calif., who asks: "Should a girl be permitted to play on boys' athletic teams if the girl has sufficient talent?" This should bring some interesting letters. Please state why you gave a yes or no answer.

As usual, I will award a TWEEN 12 AND 20 button to all teens who answer the question. The teen who "says it best" will receive the TWEEN 12 AND 20 T-shirt. Please write to me in care of this newspaper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, stating your sex and age.

Mrs. Ricky Marsh

Toni Jones wed to Ricky Marsh

In a ceremony Friday evening in the home of her parents, Miss Toni Rabecca Jones became the bride of Ricky Lynn Marsh. The Rev. Lonny Robins, pastor of the First Assembly of God Church, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Jones, 406 E. Kingsmill. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Marsh.

Serving as maid of honor was Tammie Madonia. Other attendants were Cindy Jones, bridesmaid, and Donna Madonia, flower girl. Best man was Mike Marsh of Houston. Also attending the bridegroom were Jimmy Keough, usher, and Chris Jones, ring bearer.

Registering guests was Melody Marsh. Performing vocal and piano selections were Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Danner.

Assisting at a reception were Pat Keith and Mrs. J.D. Pierce, both of Pampa. The bride will be a 1980 graduate of both Pampa High School and Pampa College of Hairdressing. Marsh, a 1979 graduate of Pampa High School, is a mechanic at Dale's Automotive.

Mrs. Joe Swan

Baird - Swan vows read

A recent ceremony at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly united in marriage Miss Karan Ann Baird and Joe Steven Swan, assistant pastor. Officiating was Steve Rogers, pastor.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Baird, 1100 McCullough. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Doris Swan, 1933 N. Wells. The bride wore a beige silk linen gown featuring a high waistline, a standing collar and front inset circled with a lace ruffle. The gathered cap sleeves were caught by wide cuffs trimmed in lace. A wide ruffle at the hem fell to a small train.

Mrs. Keith Eastham

Lisa Nichols weds M. Eastham

Miss Lisa Gaye Nichols and Robert Keith Eastham were married recently in a ceremony read by Mr. Glenn Walton of Amarillo. Setting of the wedding was Mary Ellen at Harvester Church of Christ in Pampa.

The bride is the daughter of Randol Nichols of Pampa and Lynette Nichols of Medina. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eastham of Pampa.

The bride made her gown of chiffon crepe, which she wore with an oriental-style jacket trimmed in lace. Her veil of white net was accented with a halo of flowers.

Her attendants were Maggie Leamons of Pampa and Molly Mitchell, also of Pampa. Serving the bridegroom were Mark Eastham of Pampa and Nick Nichols, serving with the U.S. Navy in the Coral Sea.

Providing music were Mickey, Andy and Linda Lee and Beula and Bill Cox. Assisting at the reception were Wanda Mitchell, Irene Webb and Doris Gage.

The bride is employed at Fern's Flowers and the bridegroom is employed by Arthur Brothers.

Auditions set for Pampa Civic Ballet

DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 29-year-old male and I'm 5 feet 6. I jog three to four miles a week for 20 minutes each time, usually on a dirt or grass surface. Is there any possibility that continued jogging through the years will cause some kind of settling or compaction of my spine or back causing me to become even shorter, if even only by one inch?
I know it will cause my muscles to shorten in my legs but I don't think that would actually make me shorter. Also is there absolutely any way, either through foods or exercise, that I could increase my height? I've read ads in magazines saying there is.

DEAR READER — You may be surprised to know that most normal people vary in height at different times of the day. A person is usually tallest in the morning when he first gets up and shortest at the end of the evening before he goes to bed. The reason is related to the little pillow-like structures between the vertebrae. They are filled with fluid and semi-solid material. In the normal course of walking through the day, these little pillows become moderately compressed so a person's height may vary from one-half to one inch as a result of this process.

Your jogging is not going to cause any structural change in your back and it's not going to make any major difference in your height. Certainly the vertebrae themselves will not be decreased in size.

At the onset of the manned space program, I was amused by some of the astronaut candidates who were just barely tall to fit in our early space vehicles. A couple of these potential astronauts went out and walked and ran all day and asked to be measured again at the end of the day to see if they could then fit into the space couch for the launch vehicle.

When you're lying down at night, the little pillows between the spine regain their full vertical expansion because they're not subject to body weight. I should point out to you that simple standing will compress these little pillows due to the body weight factor alone even without jogging. Since you are a jogger you might as well learn now about the safe and sane way to jog to avoid future risks. I am sending you The Health Letter number 13-4, A Perspective On Jogging Deaths. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I wish there were some way that you could increase your height at this age but there isn't, short of having bone grafts to extend the length of your thighbones. Incidentally, jogging will not shorten your leg muscles. In fact, well-done stretch exercises, which should accompany jogging, tend to cause your leg muscles to be more supple rather than contract.

A normal person's skeletal growth stops at least by the early 20s and usually sooner. Bone growth stops when the growth zone in the long bones in the legs calcify completely. Up to that point in time, there is a zone of cartilage that continues to grow causing the increase in height.

Canyon museum exhibits artifacts of 1554 Spanish shipwreck off Padre

The Panhandle - Plains Historical Museum in Canyon presents "Treasure, People, Ships and Dreams" in an exhibit which begins today and runs through Nov. 6.

The Texas Antiquities Committee's display features artifacts from the "Costa de la Madalena", a small Spanish fleet which was shipwrecked in 1554 off Padre Island. Included in the exhibit are cannons, silver coins, gold bullion, an anchor, a crossbow, and the oldest known astrolabe in existence.

Museum hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday. For additional information and arrangements for guided group tours, call 655-7191 or 665-7194.

STUDY GROUP
The "September song" is back-to-school, and study hours ahead. Finding a way to make the youngster's bedroom function for study, sleep and storage can be a headache — or a welcome decorating challenge.
A practical solution often involves making full use of wall space in the small bedroom. Coordinated pieces that can be used singly or placed together along the wall (even in the corners) allow you to use every inch of space.
You'll need a desk unit for study, perhaps a bookcase, and as many chests for storage as you have space and need for. When placed together, these units not only make a small room function like a larger one, but the continuous line of the matching pieces makes the space look larger, too.
"Suit the pieces to the person" is a good decorating maxim that applies here. A handsome wood finish might please a boy, while his sister might prefer her furniture in a white or pleasing color finish. Suggestion: let the room's occupant have his or her input in the selection.
Whether you're choosing bedroom furniture for your children, or looking for quality pieces for your own bedroom, be sure to look over our selection of bedroom groupings, beautifully crafted for enduring pride and satisfaction.

DEAR ABBY

Gentle hints for tough customers

DEAR ABBY: I am a salesperson selling women's wear in a large department store. We make the minimum wage and no commission. We take great pains to be polite and helpful regardless of how rude or inconsiderate the customer is. I'm sure thousands of salespeople encounter the same problems that I face daily. As a favor to all of us, will you please print this:

HOW TO MAKE A SALESPERSON'S DAY

If you are approached by a salesperson who offers to help you, ignore her.
 Ask if you may take more than the permitted number of garments into the fitting room.
 If you are refused, sneak in with an armload and leave the rejects on the floor.
 If your makeup soils a garment, don't tell the clerk so she can have it cleaned.
 Let your children pull off price tags and chew on your fitting room number.
 If you normally take a 14, try to squeeze into a 12. (What do you care if you split the seams? It's not yours.)
 Should you accidentally break a zipper or pull a button off, keep quiet. Let the next person who tries it on mention it.
 If there's a NO SMOKING sign in the fitting room, light up anyway, and say you didn't see the sign.
 If the salesperson is sufficiently conscientious to carefully compare your signature to the one on your charge plate, act insulted.
 If you return anything, throw away all the tags and receipt, and demand a cash refund!

HAD IT IN BUFFALO

DEAR ABBY: I believe that nursing a baby is a private affair. If a nursing mother wants to return to her job, she should pump her breasts and put the milk into sterile bottles and place them in the refrigerator for the proper dispensation by the sitter. What do you think?

ANOTHER POINT OF VIEW

DEAR POINT: If the mother can have her child brought to her for nursing (at her own expense) and forego her coffee break for her baby's milk break, I'd go along with it. But demanding that employers provide a special set-up for nursing mothers would be a costly accommodation for which the consumer (or taxpayer) would have to pay, and I'm opposed to it.

U.S. must begin journey for secure energy future

HOUSTON (AP) — John F. Bookout says the nation must begin a journey toward a more secure energy future. "We are looking for the refueling stop for the nation in the 21st century," said Bookout, president of Shell Oil Co. "It's not a journey measured in miles and distance, but one measured in time. We must move from an era, where oil and gas have been plentiful and have fueled our economy, to a new era, where we must get most of our energy from raw materials in other forms."

To reach the refueling stop destination, Bookout said, there is need for a map, a compass, and a fuel gauge.

"At this point, however, we have problems," he said. "First of all, we're floundering for a sense of direction. We don't have the road map. And the compass can't find true north. Perhaps the needle has been magnetized by shifting political policies."

Bookout said there also is need for the nation to agree on what its fuel gauge is reading.

"Many politicians seem to feel our 'tank' of oil and gas is empty. But there is much more oil and gas yet to be found in the United States. As much again as we have used to date. And we must get on with finding it now."

Bookout said the nation, every day, consumes 19 million barrels of oil for heating homes, driving cars, running factories, generating electricity.

To meet such demand, he added, the nation must import 8.5 million barrels of oil a day in that domestic production accounts for only 10.5 million a day.

"Our jobs, our businesses, our economy, our lifestyle depend on these imports and we depend therefore on the nations that provide them," Bookout said.

But he said, there is no way to control how much oil those nations, primarily members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, will make available.

"That is the root of our problem," Bookout said. "The solution in simple and stark terms is reduce dependence on foreign oil. And the reduction of dependence on foreign oil is quite simply two things, boost domestic production and conserve energy vigorously."

Bookout said he is concerned that President Carter's energy program does not focus sufficiently on the supply problems of the next two decades.

Answers to such problems, he said, involve realistic energy conservation, imaginative use of alternatives to imported oil, and vigorous development of domestic oil and gas.

Bookout said potential supply contracts for natural gas from Mexico and Canada should be finalized promptly and the nation must use its abundant coal resources more extensively.

"As a nation, we must face the problems which have inhibited greater use of coal— environmental concerns, transport problems, plant siting— and deal with them decisively," he said.

On nuclear power, Bookout said the nation must learn from the Three Mile Island experience.

"But we must go forward from it and not retreat in fear," he said. Bookout said many of the areas where domestic supplies of oil and gas can be found have been posted by the government and are off limits to the oil and gas industry.

"There is a new term creeping into the oilman's vocabulary, 'icebox,'" he said.

Sierra Club is more than it set out to be

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Before the turn of the century a small group of men gathered in the downtown office of Warren Olney, a San Francisco attorney. They shared a common goal — the conservation of the lands they knew and loved.

So they sat down and wrote the Articles of Incorporation for their small explorer group: "To explore, enjoy and render accessible the mountain regions of the Pacific Coast, to publish authentic information concerning them, to enlist the support and cooperation of the people and the government in preserving the forest and other natural features of the Sierra Nevada mountains."

The Sierra Club was born and John Muir, well-known conservationist, explorer and writer, was elected president. That was in 1892.

At that time, the group worked to establish national parks, national monuments and wilderness areas in California and surrounding areas.

Now, the organization has grown tremendously — from 200 to 180,000 members, from a meager treasury to an $8 million yearly budget, from one state to all 50 and several foreign countries.

The club has expanded its political and environmental scope, taking on developers, corporations, and anyone it considers hostile to its efforts to keep environment pristine and wilderness areas wild.

The club wields its substantial influence through an organization embracing 8,000 local chapters, a lobbying force in Washington, a national headquarters in San Francisco and an international headquarters at the United Nations building in New York.

The club has its critics, many of whom don't oppose its objective but feel the club often fails to draw a reasonable balance between environmental and economic concerns.

"They have a blind love affair with the concept of wilderness and don't care how it affects the residents of the state," says Rep. Don Young, a Republican from Alaska, where the club has been involved in much controversy.

The basic philosophy of the group has not changed from its humble beginning. Besides legislative efforts, the club gets its message across through publications, organized outings and other services.

"I inherited the American dream and I wanted to see my children inherit that same dream. Berkeley Hills was my wilderness. Now my children can no longer see them," says David Brower, the Sierra Club's first executive director and later the founder of Friends of the Earth, another conservationist organization.

Under Brower's leadership, which began in 1952, the club developed a professional staff, a strong lobby and expanded publishing programs.

Eventually, Brower, 72, resigned as director in a dispute over location of a controversial nuclear power plant in California. The board of directors favored a site near San Luis Obispo, midway between San Francisco and Los Angeles, where the plant was built. Brower opposed it.

The club later reversed its position. By then, Brower had formed Friends of the Earth, but he's kept a close relationship with the Sierra Club and remains active in it. In 1978, he won the John Muir award for outstanding contributions to the conservation movement.

If it weren't for groups like the Sierra Club, he says, "things wouldn't stop. Redwood wouldn't be a national forest, the Grand Canyon would have dams and there would be fewer than 300 miles of salmon streams in California." Brower recalls there were 6,000 miles of salmon streams when he was a child.

Brower predicts rough times for the club and its kind, largely because of the energy crunch.

Fantasy collection has uneven quality

Fantasy writing is a form that readers either like or dislike. There doesn't seem to be any middle ground.

Unfortunately, those who don't like fantasy are going to find little in this collection of nine tales that will lead them to change their minds, and those who do like fantasy aren't going to find overly much to bolster their conviction.

Ray Bradbury has been writing top-quality fantasy for a long time, and he can always be counted on for a well-thought-out, well-written, tale. Such a story is "Gotcha!" a bittersweet tale of a love that blooms and then curdles and dies when it encounters evil.

Harlem Ellison also has long been writing good things, and he does so again with "The Man Who Was Heavily Into Revenge." This is a chilling item in which Ellison artfully uses one man to symbolize evil and then, with the reader barely noticing, expands his theme so that by the end all men symbolize evil.

September 17, 1979

This coming year you are likely to experience improved financial conditions, particularly if you put your imagination to work to open new channels for additional revenues. Ways will be found.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is nothing wrong with your hunches today, in fact they could put you on to something good. What gets you into trouble is jumping to conclusions as to what they mean. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Friends can be extremely helpful today, but only with advice or counsel. Don't borrow anything or make any loans to them without due deliberation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Personal ambitions and goals you deem important can be realized today if you keep your impulsiveness in check. Walk in carefully measured steps.

SAGITTARIUS (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There is a special friend who may require your moral support today. Say only that which will prop up his ego say nothing that could cause him to think less of himself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In business dealings today avoid departures from methods you know work successfully. Testing new techniques could prove too costly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Base your decisions today on relevant facts not suppositions or "maybes". Logic should prevail over wishful thinking.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A situation you wish to change that's affecting your work or career should not be attacked too hastily today. Be sure no one will be hurt by your actions.

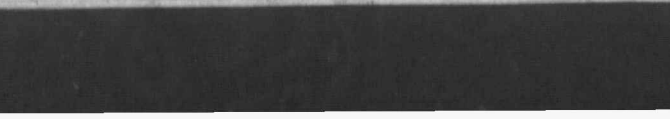

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A friendship can be reinforced today if you begin to look deeper into this other person's make-up. It will be worth the effort to pump his or her qualities further.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Beneficial changing conditions, which may not be evident, are in the offing today. Don't balk if your routine is disturbed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you say and how you treat people are especially important today, so be extra careful you don't sound off and unload your irritability on another.

CANCER (June 21-July 20) Another's kindness could put you in a better financial position today. Unfortunately, you may treat this as "easy come" and blow it away.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may have more understanding for friends and acquaintances today than you do for your family. Try to give them equal consideration.

Kahn says environmental regulations must meet economic tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — For 18 inflation-fraught months, Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, and other White House economists have preached the new gospel: environmental regulations must meet economic tests.

Their words have resounded through the bureaucracy.

—Ozone standards would cost $19 billion, not $9.5 billion as the Environmental Protection Agency originally suggested.

—Interior Department strip mining rules would be $325 million more than needed to assure environmental safety.

—Regulations for drinking water, diesel engines and highly toxic benzene were not cost-effective enough.

The dollars-and-cents strategy, generated initially by concern over skyrocketing inflation, has intensified with the newest energy crisis. President Carter's proposed Energy Mobilization Board is aimed directly at environmental rules the administration says contribute to costly delays of critical energy projects.

Environmentalists find themselves in temporary retreat, talking about the future in anxious tones.

"We find ourselves increasingly at the barricades," says Richard Rauch, a lawyer for the Environmental Defense Fund.

In the early '70s, engineers believed the right gadget would vanquish pollution. Politicians were convinced the right bureaucracy and set of rules would clean up air, land and water.

"As important as technology, politics, law and ethics are to the pollution question, all such approaches are bound to have disappointing results," says economist Larry Ruff. "They ignore the primary fact that pollution is an economic problem."

Environmental regulations, as never before, are perched on a precarious balance, weighted on one side by their costs and on the other by their economic benefits.

"It's relatively easy to top up the costs of regulation," says Roy Gamse, an economist with the Environmental Protection Agency.

"But it's damned hard to measure the benefits."

Environmentalists claim regulations stimulate the economy, create jobs, and conserve energy.

Businessmen say pollution controls cut productivity, create capital shortages, cause unemployment, fuel inflation, and stifle energy production.

Protest can be heard from coast to coast:

—About 100 million tons of excess coal can't be burned because of clean air laws, yet the President's Commission on Coal wants a dramatic increase in use of the plentiful resource, says Carl Bagge, president of the National Coal Association. Regulations also keep 16,000 to 17,000 miners out of work, he contends.

—Federal regulations of the auto industry could imperil the ability of Chrysler and American Motors to weather a recession, a federal study reports.

Ford Motor Company says it must spend the equivalent of $400 per car to meet 1981 emission standards.

—Kaiser Steel Corp., in Fontana, Calif., estimates it costs $250,000 a day in lost production to comply with smog warning alerts.

Some economists estimate Los Angeles area industries may have to spend $200 million a year to meet clean air mandates by 1987.

—Construction of a coal-generated plant in Montana has been delayed by court tests and environmental regulations since 1974. Montana Power Company claims the delay has pushed an original $500 million price tag to $1.7 billion.

The Environmental Protection Agency says federal pollution control programs will cost about $290 billion between 1976 and 1985.

Last year, total public and private anti-pollution spending came to $13.1 billion, according to the Council on Environmental Quality.

Private industry spends 51 percent of current anti-pollution dollars; the federal government, about 13 percent; and consumers, a whopping 36 percent — mostly for auto emission controls, the EPA says.

Business' bill has risen dramatically. In 1970, it spent $2.5 billion for pollution controls, 1.9 percent of its total capital investment. By 1984, it will pay out $8.4 billion, nearly 5 percent of its investment dollar, says Data Resources, Inc., an economic forecasting company.

This spending will cause a 1.4 percent drop in productivity in 1986, contributing to reduced profit margins, eroding corporate profits, and higher inflation, DRI says.

Consumer prices will be 3.6 percent higher in 1986 because of pollution controls, which currently add between 0.2 percent and 0.4 percent annually to the inflation rate.

For some consumers, the rising prices will make it increasingly difficult to afford new emission-controlled, fuel-efficient cars.

Housing also will be affected, DRI predicts. Huge environmental projects force companies to borrow, pushing all interest and mortgage rates up. By 1986, housing starts will be 100,000 or 4.7 percent less than in a regulation-free economy.

Electricity by 1985 will cost 6.6 percent more as a direct result of environmental controls, says the EPA.

The agency also says: "There is increasing concern that small communities may have difficulty financing local expenditures for sewage treatment and drinking water, and that costs to citizens in such towns may be prohibitive."

Annual environmental costs exceed $100 per household for 40 percent of communities with a population under 50,000, EPA estimates. For another 10 percent of small localities, the annual cost is $200 per home.

In 1971, state and local government invested $490 million for pollution controls, DRI says. Next year, that figure should reach $3.2 billion.

Pollution controls also increase energy consumption about 1 percent to 2 percent, due primarily to scrubbers on coal-generating plants and huge water cooling towers, the EPA says.

The president's Energy Resources Council, in assessing prospects for a synthetic fuel industry, said: "Some of these (environmental) requirements could easily hold up or permanently postpone any attempt to build and operate a synthetic fuels plant."

Says Gus Speth, acting chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality: "Expenditures to improve the environment can and do greatly increase consumer welfare — in public health, reduced property damage, increased agricultural and resource yields, and enhanced recreation and enjoyment of leisure time — but these benefits to consumers are poorly reflected in the Consumer Price Index or GNP."

Despite the obstacles, a growing number of scientists and economists are trying to calculate the advantages of pollution control.

—A 50 percent reduction in urban air pollution could save between $250 million and $500 million in costs to treat bronchitis; $1.2 billion to care for lung cancer; and $68 million to tackle cardiovascular disease, say Lester Lave and Eugene P. Seskin in a study for Resources for the Future, Inc., a Washington think tank.

If the 1970 Clean Air Act is implemented fully, improvements in human health, as of this year, could be valued at $16.1 billion. In 1977, the nation spent $6.7 billion to control air pollution from stationary sources, but benefits of the Clean Air Act were $8 billion, economists at Wyoming, New Mexico and Southern California universities concluded.

EPA rules shut down plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1972, a synthetic soda ash plant in Barberton, Ohio, closed down and 950 people lost their jobs.

The old factory needed to be modernized and production costs were rising, but the final blow, say officials of PPG Industries Inc., was an order from the Environmental Protection Agency.

The government told PPG to install pollution control equipment to reduce discharges into a local river. "Such an investment would have been economically unfeasible," said Richard Peak, PPG's director of governmental affairs.

PPG Industries, headquartered in Pittsburgh, is a leading manufacturer of flat glass, paint, resins, chemicals and fiberglass. With sales last year of nearly $2.8 billion, the company employs 37,000 people in 18 states.

Not since 1972 has the company reacted so drastically to environmental regulation, Peak said in a recent interview, but it continually grapples with the costs of antipollution steps.

In 1977, the company estimates, it spent about $40 million to meet EPA regulations alone. This translates into increased costs to consumers, its officials say.

National Journal, a weekly magazine that covers the government, recently investigated the extent of regulations on PPG activities. Among its findings:

—PPG spent about $7 million to install huge electrostatic precipitators at a generating plant in Natrium, W. Va., to remove particulate matters.

—To control sulfur emissions at the same plant, PPG must use low-sulfur coal, transported long distances at a yearly cost of $1 million.

—To install antipollution scrubbers at an Ohio plant, PPG may have to spend as much as $50 million. It will cost an additional $10 million in operating costs each year after its installation.

"Even regulations that have no direct bearing on PPG can have an indirect impact on the company," the National Journal said.

Agency plans tests on 'Angel Dust'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A federal agency plans to bankroll experiments with "angel dust" on human beings, and a University of Texas scientist says the government is taking an "immoral" risk of destroying minds.

The National Institute on Drug Abuse in Rockville, Md., invited grant proposals in April for human experimentation with phenylcyclydine — commonly called PCP or "angel dust."

Several research organizations responded by the June 4 deadline. Nancy Coleman, a contract officer for the institute, said it could be December or later before a grant is awarded.

The research planned by the institute also envisions human experimentation with marijuana, valium, librium, methaqualone and other abused drugs. But the institute wants answers on PCP first, within a year of the contract date.

"I think this is an immoral proposition. The risk (to the human subjects of the experiments) is greater than the possible benefits," said Dr. Alan Combs, a pharmacology professor at the University of Texas at Austin.

But Dr. Gene Barnett, a research chemist for the institute, said morality is on the side of the federal agency.

"It's the moral issue that got us involved...I believe it (the research) will have a substantial contribution to make in the treatment of the overdose patient," he said in a telephone interview.

Dr. Marvin Snyder, the institute's research director, said time is the only treatment now available for persons suffering psychotic reactions to "angel dust," and it can be a very long time, 30 days or more in some cases, he said.

The institute, a branch of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, wants to know what happens to phenylcyclydine after it enters the body — both orally and by injection.

Whoever gets the three-year federal grant will try to learn how rapidly the body processes the drug, how long it remains in the body, in which organs it concentrates and how the body reacts to it.

Snyder said the cost would be "substantially under $1 million for one year...I doubt it will be over $1 million for three years."

PCP was found in the bloodstream of Ir. Attebery, who killed two and wounded dozens of people when he opened fire on the Fiesta parade in San Antonio on April 17.

Combs said it is impossible to know whether the drug caused Attebery to kill but it is known that hallucinogenic drugs such as PCP are "linked to people trying to fly and looking at the sun for three hours and burning their retinas out."

A 1978 article in the American Journal of Hospital Pharmacy said persons using PCP might become combative, appear catatonic or show symptoms of paranoid schizophrenia.

"Deaths attributed to phenylcyclydine intoxication are usually the results of accidents. Drownings, jumping off cliffs, automobile accidents or inability to flee from fires far outnumber deaths occurring as a direct result of the drug," the article said.

Snyder said human volunteers for angel dust experiments would be fully informed of "the potential for toxic reaction and psychological reaction."

Religious leader pledging salary back to church

DALLAS (AP) — A chorus of 200 voices backed by a full orchestra swells to a rousing finish. The audience bursts into applause punctuated by "Amen" and "Praise the Lord."

The man in white stands. There is silence. He strides to a pulpit flanked by microphones and beams into four television cameras trained on his unlined face. He bows his head and 2,500 members of the congregation follow suit.

He's Dr. W.A. Criswell, pastor of the largest Southern Baptist Church in the world, upholder of conservative Biblical doctrine, leader of a multimillion-dollar religious complex with more than 20,000 worshippers.

Evangelist Billy Graham has been a member of the First Baptist Church of Dallas since 1953. After converting from Catholicism, Dallas Cowboys placekicker Rafael Septien became the church's 20,000th member earlier this year. The same night, commentator Paul Harvey became the 20,001st member.

At 70, Dr. Criswell has been at the helm for 35 years and nobody expects him to retire.

"I believe in what I try to do. I want to do what I do all my life. I have just loved doing it," he says. "I would rather do what I do for nothing, than do what anybody else does for money."

Dr. Criswell announced five years ago that he would give back "every penny" he has ever earned at First Baptist — a figure he estimates at more than $600,000. He says he has been plowing his salary back into the church since then, and has "consummated my pledge in my will."

Income of $600,000 over 35 years, and perhaps over two years, would strike some members of his congregation as modest indeed, and it's modest, too, in the general aura of First Baptist's affluence. Business director Gene Clowe said the church already has gone over its $5 million budget for 1979, and projects the budget will exceed $6 million next year. In the latest of a series of building projects, the church is about to construct a parking garage with a price tag between $5 million and $6 million.

The 15 grades of Sunday School classes have an enrollment of more than 11,000. The classes are set up so that an expectant mother could enroll her unborn child in a Cradle Roll class, and that child could continue study through the Senior Adult or over-65 level.

There are special classes for Japanese members, and the Chinese, Koreans, the underprivileged and the deaf have their own pastors. There are special classes for the mentally handicapped and for doctors, nurses and other medical personnel. There is even a special silent paging system in the sanctuary for doctors.

A radio-television hookup broadcasts services to overflow congregations via closed-circuit television and local stations have aired the Sunday services for years.

The church's fulltime music director, Gary Moore, coordinates an orchestra, a group that plays handbells and more than 15 choirs.

The high school choir has traveled around the world and the music division cuts several records each year.

The church owns two gymnasiums, an indoor-track, a sauna, steam bath, whirlpool, racquetball courts and a bowling alley.

"My idea of a church is one that reaches all aspects of a family...all the interests, avocations in their life would be the church," Dr. Criswell says. "You can't do that without a tremendous outlay."

First Baptist is one of downtown Dallas' largest property owners, holding six blocks of prime land and multi-story buildings.

Teens target of drinking risk program

WASHINGTON (AP) — A true-false test on the risks of drinking and driving, designed primarily for new drivers, has been prepared by the U.S. Brewers Association as part of its new Alcohol Awareness Program.

The test is included in the association's leaflet on drinking and driving, being distributed by motor vehicle bureaus, law enforcement officials, state highway departments and driver education classes.

"Even though the test is aimed generally at young persons, many adults cannot give all the right answers," says George Minshew, senior vice president of the association. He suggests that parents check and discuss with family teen-agers the following test statements:

TRUE OR FALSE?

—1. All states prohibit driving under the influence of alcohol.

—2. A 16- or 17-year-old person who commits a moving traffic violation would be treated differently than an adult offender.

—3. By law, it is never possible for a person under 18 to be sentenced to prison.

—4. If, while driving, you are at fault injuring someone and drive away without stopping, you may have committed a criminal offense.

—5. If you are arrested as DWI (Driving While Intoxicated), you can lose your license and be subjected to a fine, but you cannot be imprisoned.

—6. The highest proportion of alcohol-related accidents occur in the 21-24 age group.

—7. If you cause an accident while driving, your car-insurance rates will not be affected.

—8. Under certain circumstances, one drink may affect a driver's judgment, resulting in such actions as running through a red light, passing on a curve, speeding.

—9. Consumption of alcohol by persons riding with you constitutes a public offense in many states.

—10. If you have been drinking at a party, coffee will sober you up quickly before you drive.

ANSWERS

—1. True.

—2. False. Some states provide that a minor shall be treated as an adult for motor vehicle offenses.

—3. False. A state juvenile court can determine that a minor shall be treated as an adult.

—4. True.

—5. False. You might be fined or imprisoned or both.

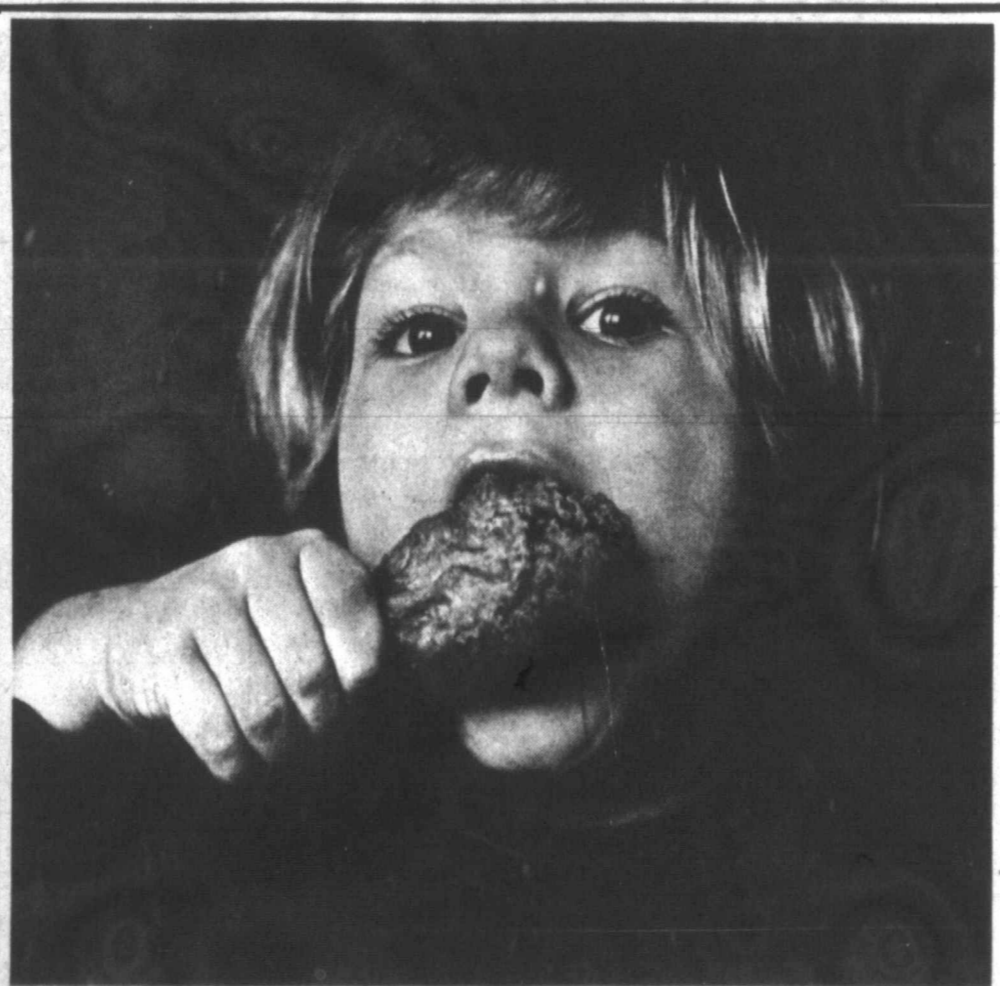

—6. True.

—7. False. Most insurance rates are directly and upwardly affected by an accident.

—8. True.

—9. True.

—10. False. Coffee can help keep you awake, but it won't improve your judgment or sharpen your reactions.

Jerry Reed's critique of himself is "I'm no actor. The only thing I know how to play is me." That seems to be enough. His latest screen effort, "Hot Stuff," is the fifth movie in which Reed has appeared, and it follows four money makers—including the box office champ "Smoky and the Bandit." "I'm a singer, a picker and a songwriter. Most of my life has been spent entertaining live audiences. Since I stumbled into movies a few years ago, I've been going two directions at the same time," Reed admits. "Until I figure out whether I'm a musician or a movie actor, I'm scared to let either go." As for his new-found success as an actor, Reed says, "I got lucky. I did good pictures with good casts. When you're working with winners like Burt Reynolds, it's hard to be a loser."

Dinner shows McInnis still has friends

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — More than 2,000 people recently paid $5 a ticket for a barbecue dinner honoring Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis. Not a bad turnout for a prosecutor who faces federal perjury charges, possible removal from office and disbarment proceedings.

McInnis' year-old legal problems involve an alleged plot to arrange the murder of a friend's former husband. The reputed target of the scheme was not killed.

The 63-year-old prosecutor has succeeded in getting federal and state charges of murder-conspiracy dropped. However, the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals last week said he must stand trial on charges of lying to a federal grand jury.

A suit to kick him out of his 12-year post has been thrown out of state court, reinstated and appealed again to the Texas Supreme Court.

On Monday, the State Bar of Texas opens civil proceedings to convince a jury of McInnis' constituents that he should be stripped of his law license.

Presiding at the disbarment trial will be State District Judge Joe B. Evans, who lost to McInnis in the 1966 race for district attorney.

Evans says he wants to treat the case like any other. But he admits that will be almost impossible.

He has ordered lawyers in the suit not to discuss it with reporters and has met informally with the media to caution against trial disruptions, sensationalism and a circus atmosphere.

McInnis established a reputation in this border county as a crackerjack prosecutor. He won two murder convictions over the skilled arguments of defense attorney Percy Foreman.

His popularity made it hard for many Hidalgo County residents to believe the news they heard June 7, 1978.

On that day, the Brownsville federal grand jury named the trim, graying prosecutor and Patricia Parada, a 24-year-old McAllen nurse in indictments charging them with trying to lure Miss Parada's former husband, Noe Villanueva, across into Mexico where he would be killed.

McInnis was arrested in Raymondville in the adjoining county and spent the night in jail. He posted $25,000 of his $500,000 bond the next day and was released.

Federal prosecutors said McInnis thought Villanueva had been murdered when shown his wallet by a man cooperating with police.

However, the federal murder-conspiracy charges were dismissed by a U.S. district judge who agreed with McInnis' lawyers that the alleged crime did not take place in the United States and therefore could not be tried in U.S. courts.

McInnis had told the federal grand jury he knew nothing about the alleged kidnapping and murder plot. The grand jury two months later accused him and Miss Parada of lying.

The Texas Prosecutors Coordinating Council filed suit to remove McInnis because of the dark allegations against him. The district attorney was disqualified immediately from handling prosecutions until the removal suit is decided.

President drops out of race

President Carter dropped out of a six-mile foot race Saturday and immediately returned to Camp David. There was no word on whether he was injured.

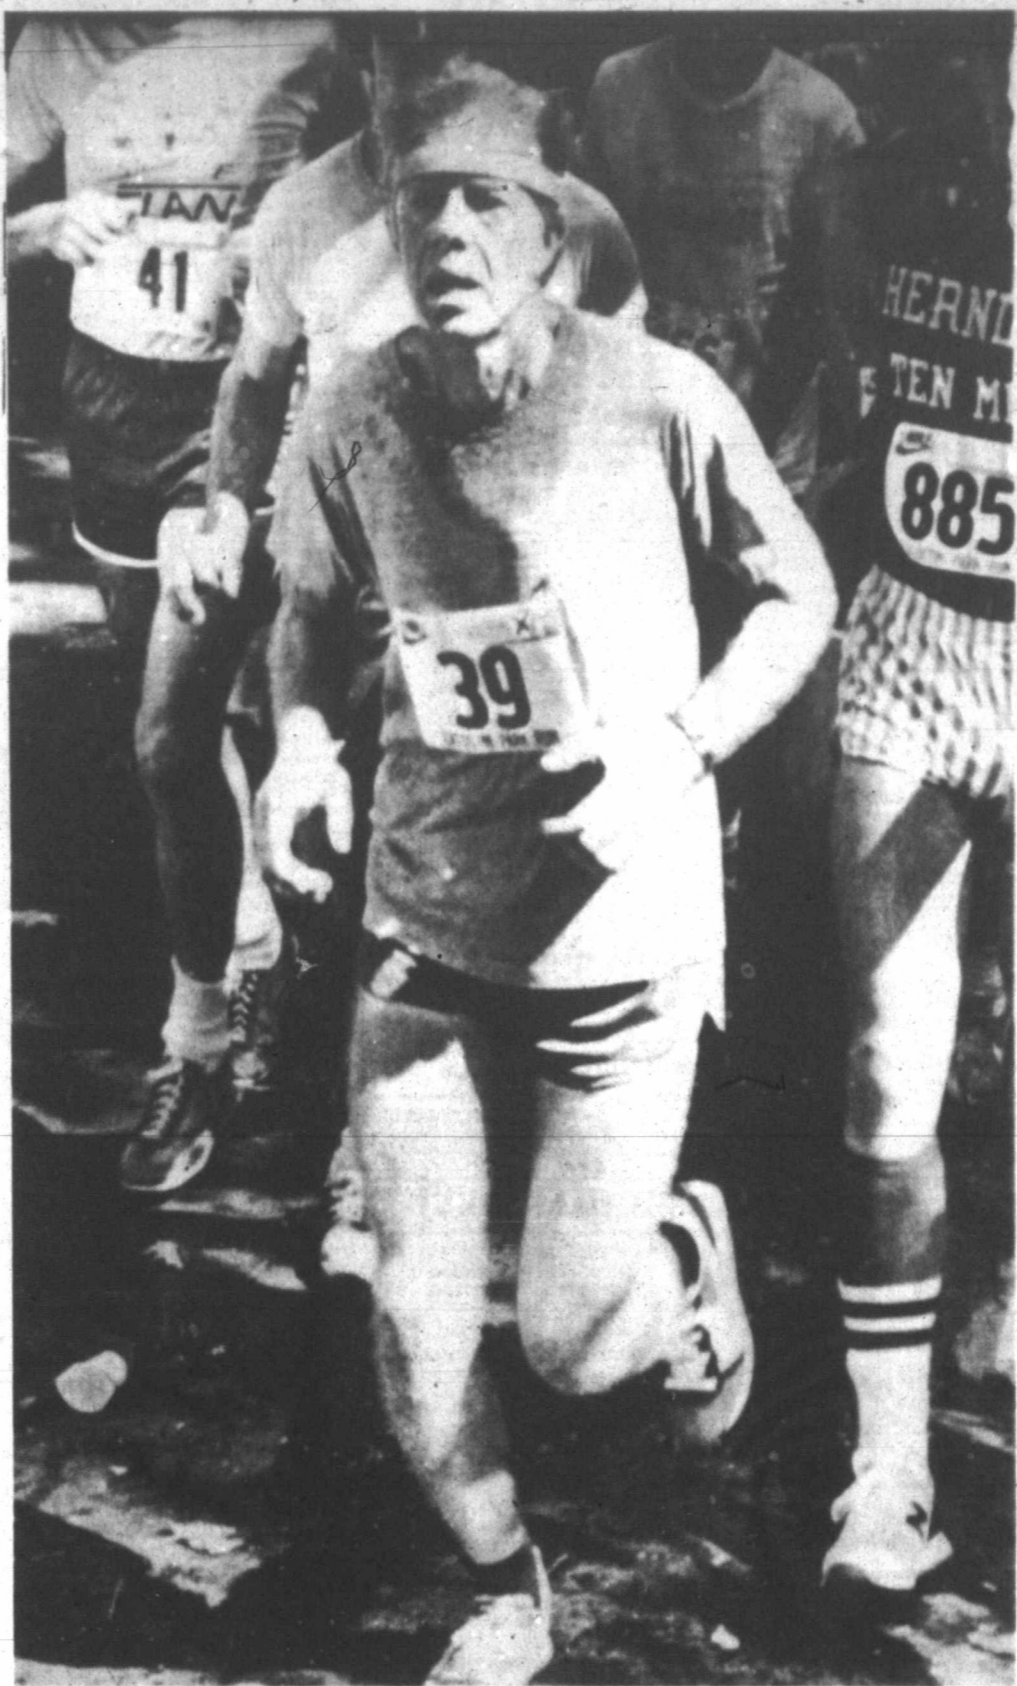

Rosalynn Carter, awaiting her husband at the finish line, immediately entered her limousine and returned to the presidential retreat.

Asked if the president was all right, she said, "I think so."

Carter, an avid jogger, dropped out after running about four miles. Though few spectators were nearby, one reported that he sat on the seat of a golf cart then moved to a car to be driven back to Camp David.

Dr. William Lukash, the president's personal physician, was running in the race and was believed to be having been running alongside the president.

Carter, who is spending the weekend at the presidential retreat, entered the 6.2-mile course up and down hills along with about 900 others.

Bradley honored with special day festivities

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The nation's only living five-star general — pride beaming from his still-tough face — sat tall in a wheelchair at his banquet table and quietly listened to the praise.

General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, 86, receiving honors from the Association of the U.S. Army, heard speakers call him "a living legend of inspiration — a soldier's general."

More than 2,200 soldiers and civilians watched as the bald, bespectacled Bradley raised his large hand to a strong salute when the Army band played the National Anthem Friday.

The general's wife, Kitty, a former television script writer, sat at his side.

"She accepted a plaque for the former Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman and said: 'I accept this for my husband with our gratitude. Thank you for Bradley Day in the Southwest. Thank you for the caring and love that made it all happen. We bask in that love.'"

Mrs. Bradley, dressed in a jeweled black dress somewhat matching the general's uniform, told soldiers to "serve our nation faithfully — we deserve it."

El Paso Mayor Thomas D. Westfall said Bradley "earned his promotions on the battlefield."

Telegrams from President Carter and Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, were read. Tower's urged enlisted men to emulate military and moral aspiration for which Bradley is known.

Bradley, suffering a longtime ailment, has made all recent appearances in the wheelchair. The ailment has not been identified by Army sources.

The band played the general's favorite song, "The Missouri Waltz," as Bradley, born in Clark, Mo., entered.

John K. Thompson, president of this Army Association which bears the general's name, said Bradley "is on active duty as long as he lives."

Davis trial turning into tape contest

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Like an absurd trench coat story of double espionage, the Cullen Davis murder solicitation trial is beginning to look like a contest between attorneys to determine which side has the best set of secret tapes.

Two tapes recorded with hidden body recorders lie at the heart of the state's case against the millionaire defendant. Defense attorneys introduced a secretly recorded tape of their own this week, with hints that there are more recordings to come.

The tapes have become a standing joke and trial participants have begun to greet each other by talking into the clips and cufflinks as if they are hidden microphones. And as one witness quipped outside the courtroom last week, "I've gotten so evasive in ordinary conversations, wondering if they are recorded. I even hedge when someone asks me what I had for breakfast."

The defense tape — made almost two weeks before Davis was arrested Aug. 20, 1978 — depicts a conversation between defense attorney Steve Sumner and key prosecution witness David McCrory.

Sumner said he hid a small recorder in his briefcase to capture an interview with David McCrory on Davis' multimillion dollar divorce from Priscilla Davis.

The Aug. 7 Sumner tape has sparked an ethics controversy among attorneys and was the hottest topic of courthouse and barroom gossip last week. Sumner said he finds himself defending his position that the tape was made to protect his own integrity.

"I have not recorded everyone that I've talked to," he said. "I just found it necessary to record conversations with McCrory because of the circumstances I found myself in. We knew his capabilities, his potential to get you in trouble."

Sumner's tape could be considered a violation of February 1978 advisory opinion of the State Bar of Texas Professional Ethics Committee.

"Except under extraordinary circumstances, ethical considerations... prohibit an attorney from electronically recording a conversation with another party without first informing the party that the conversation is being recorded," the opinion reads. "The secret recording of a conversation offends the sense of honor of most people."

The defense position is that conversations with McCrory should be considered "extraordinary circumstances."

The scratchy Aug. 7 tape was introduced to impeach McCrory's credibility during the 7-day defense cross-examination last week. Before the tape was introduced, McCrory testified he didn't recall the specifics of the conversation, but said he remembered lying to Sumner to bolster his position with Davis.

"You have a right to preserve the content of a conversation for your own protection," Sumner said. "I do not like the connotation it leaves for me personally to be secretly taping conversations," Sumner said. "I do believe under these circumstances, dealing with David McCrory, he could have put my whole career... all the years of training... in jeopardy with his unconscionable ability to lie."

Not unexpectedly, prosecutors say Sumner was out of line in taping the conversation.

Educators not doing their jobs?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Textbook critic Norma Gabler said Saturday she expects a great deal of parent unrest across the nation because educators have not done their duty preparing children for college or jobs.

"There will be many problems this year across the nation," she said.

Mrs. Gabler, a Longview woman who has appeared at state textbook hearings annually for the past 18 years, was interviewed on State Capitol Dateline, a production of the Wendell Hayes radio stations.

She said she and her husband, Mel, a retired oil company employee, devote full time to analyzing textbooks offered for use in Texas and other states.

This year, Mrs. Gabler said, she has crossed the country twice, from coast to coast.

In her travels, she said, "I find parents are concerned, they're disturbed... I don't think there will ever be a time now that parents are going to sit back and say, 'OK, you can have total control of my children.' I don't think that will ever happen any more."
