City eyes street improvements

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

The City of Pampa Engineering Department is presently preparing a multi-million dollar street improvement program for the city to be presented soon to commissioners.

Mack Wofford, city manager, said city engineers are looking at cost estimates for improvements on various segments of roads all over the city.

"Reasonably," Wofford said of the proposed plan, "we're looking at several million dollars." He declined to give a fixed figure, however.

"The improvements are not going to be confined to any specific area," the city manager commented. He explained the changes will "probably" include several arterial streets and elimination of "extra-rough intersections" and alleviation of many of the drainage problems which exist throughout Pampa.

Alleviating the severe intersection problems is one area engineers are examining, he said, adding the problems on north Hobart and Hwy. 70 will have to be recognized, also.

Overall, the project will include an annual maintenance program and other capital improvements such as sanitary sewer service and major structure work in the streets, Wofford said.

Priorities will have to be established, he commented, and the amount of money needed will have a lot to do with what can be done.

"All of us realize," Wofford said, "we need a program of this nature." He believes, "the time is such, commissioners would like to go ahead with the program."

A solid program has not been developed at this time, the city manager said, but he feels the commission will begin looking at the plans and making decisions on it during February.

"The commission is going to have to decide," he said, "and establish the priorities on what is to be done." They will also have to decide how to pay for the major renovations, he added.

Wofford did not discount the possibility of commissioners calling for a bond issue in the next election in April.

"Ultimately," Wofford commented, "the people are going to make the decision on whether the money is worth it or not."

"After the program is established," he added, "then we'll let the people decide."

During special session

BC to ask for tax relief

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements — apparently optimistic about the economy — says he will call a special legislative session in August or September to enact a "tax relief" bill of $700 million or more.

Clements said Wednesday he also would ask legislators to approve proposals authorizing state wiretaps in drug cases and enabling Texans to bypass the Legislature in adopting laws and vetoing measures passed by the Legislature.

Clements predicted the 1981 Legislature will probably make the most significant change in the public school system of Texas since the Gilmer-Aikin bill some 30 years ago.

The governor addressed a breakfast meeting of the Texas Real Estate Political Action Committee (TREPAC), which interrupted his speech at least five times with loud applause.

After Clements had concluded his remarks, a member of the audience said TREPAC had made a mistake in supporting former Attorney General John Hill for governor against Clements in 1978 and he wanted to apologize for that mistake.

Clements said the special legislative session would "certainly" consider three of the 82 subjects that have been proposed: surveillance — a $10 word meaning wiretap; initiative and referendum and tax reduction.

Clements said he would have to wait until summer to get a more exact figure on any "surplus" in the state treasury, but he added:

"I'm still saying if we can maintain any kind of stability in the international arena we will have a surplus of $600 million to $700 million and even perhaps higher, and I want to return that money to the Texas taxpayer from whence it came ..."

Clements said wiretap legislation would be directed at halting $3 billion in drug traffic in Texas each year.

"A lot of bleeding hearts have said to me that this is an invasion of privacy and therefore they are opposed to it, and I find that there really isn't very much sympathy for this view — and certainly not on my part. I do agree that it is an invasion of privacy, the privacy of the criminal who is engaging in drug traffic and I intend to lock that person up," the governor stated.

He said his polls show 70 percent of Texans favor initiative and referendum, which would give voters more control over laws and constitutional changes.

King discusses embargo with Vance

By SHEILA ECCLES
Of The Pampa News

Carl King, president of the Texas Corn Growers Assn., met with National Security Advisor Brzezinski and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, Friday in Washington. The meetings were to discuss the impact on farmers of the recent grain embargo.

King, a Dimmitt resident, was one of several farmers from across the nation invited to the meetings. "I feel cautiously optimistic, at the best," King said after the talks.

Speaking of the grain embargo, King explained, "American farmers support the president, but believe all American exports to Russia should be stopped. Agriculture should not have to bear the brunt."

"Many programs are designed for the midwestern states, we are in the southwest, and have different growing seasons and different problems," King said. "Gasohol" according to King, "won't help farmers for two years, we need the help now."

In his report of the Washington meetings King gave this review.

"As of yet the Administration has not announced a program to isolate corn since the Russian embargo. They have only isolated four million metric tons of wheat. They have agreed to buy back from the grain exporters the contracts that were earmarked for Russia, before the embargo. This is an exporter option.

The government has agreed they will help find another buyer for this grain if the exporters do not buy it. This will not help the grain farmers, what they need to do now, is buy out of the market, 13 million tons of corn, in addition to the 4 million tons of wheat. It appears they are not going to do this.

If the market bounces back for a short period of time, our opinion is the government will do nothing because of budgetary advisor intervention.

We anticipate a possible amount of diverted acres to come in two weeks. How many acres and what they are willing to pay for it is the question. A guess is from 9-14 percent cutback. It has been stated that if a diverted acreage is applied, it will be a paid diversion.

At this time the grain farmer is in a position of not knowing what price he will receive in the market next fall."

King told Brzezinski at the White House luncheon "the farmer should not have to bear this sacrifice alone, it is an American problem, not just a farmer problem."

Brzezinski assured King that President Carter would receive his message. Carter received a copy of the Texas Corn Growers' recommendations.

King's report continued, "The Administration has raised corn to 10 cents a bushel in the loan and wheat to 15 cents a bushel. Farmers had anticipated this move even before the embargo.

This minimum amount on the loan rate is an insult to the farmer, it is tossing us another bone with no meat on it."

Grain farmers are in trouble, and it is my opinion that it will take too long for Congress to enact legislation to help this situation."

NTSU scandal: a 'shell game'?

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — C.C. Nolen received about $17,000 in salary supplements during his last year as president of North Texas State University as a result of a "shell game" that shuffled private donations and state money, investigators say.

Nolen has refused to answer any questions from the House General Investigating Committee, which is looking into allegations of financial misdeeds at the Denton campus.

The former president, who says he is now the target of a criminal investigation and is being denied his rights, invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination 24 times Wednesday. Committee counsel Jim Vollers called Nolen to the stand twice after an investigator testified about complicated financial transactions.

Bob Shults, a Houston lawyer with a background in prosecuting white-collar crime, said his inquiry found Nolen received $17,000 in salary supplements during Nolen's last year as president.

Nolen resigned in April as the committee began its study.

A former North Texas student Wednesday told the committee about a donation to the school for the purchase of an economics collection. Harry Friedman said the Mary Potishman Lard Foundation, administered by his father, donated about $16,000 for the purchase of the collection.

School officials later told the Friedmans that other funds had been found to pay for the collection. Shults testified records showed $13,789 of the donation wound up in the president's supplemental salary account.

After Wednesday's session, Shults agreed the scheme was akin to a shell game — with a series of bookkeeping transactions used to rearrange the money to allow for the salary supplements.

He said the economics collection eventually was paid for with university library funds.

Shults said records showed some of the fellowships were actually paid by the university with state money. The funds designated for the fellowships went elsewhere — including printing costs for the NTSU development department and Nolen's salary supplement.

"They used the money to do things they could not do with state money," Shults told reporters.

Luxembourg to honor World War II soldier

OBERWAMPACH, Luxembourg (AP) — On Saturday, this town of 40 houses commemorates a Texas soldier who died here near the end of World War II in a vain attempt to save a small Oberwampach boy clutched in his arms.

"We could never honor a finer man," says Tilly Kimmes of nearby Clervaux. She was speaking of U.S. Army Sgt. Hassel C. Whitefield of Dublin, Texas who was killed Jan. 17, 1945 by a German shell while fleeing a burning home.

With him died Marcel Schilling, 5, whose home Whitefield had entered only moments earlier to seek cover against a barrage of German rockets. When the home was hit, Whitefield then 24, scooped the little boy off the floor, bolted from the dwelling and raced toward a nearby home. They never made it.

On Saturday, a plaque on an outside wall of the local church will be unveiled in Whitefield's honor. The ceremony will be attended by relatives of Whitefield and representatives of the U.S. embassies in Belgium and Luxembourg.

Also attending will be officials of the Cercle d'Etudes sur la Bataille des Ardennes — the Ardennes Battle Study Group. The regional volunteer organization documents the events here during and after Nazi Germany's last-ditch offensive in late 1944 in the Ardennes hills straddling the Belgian-Luxembourg frontier.

The offensive forced the Battle of the Bulge, a three-week Nazi onslaught that ended at Christmas 1944 and in which 16,000 Americans and 24,200 Germans died.

The story of Whitefield, an artillery spotter in the U.S. 90th Division, and the little boy is not unlike many other wartime rescues.

And, in a way, it is a unique one.

Until last year, the identity of the American soldier who tried to save Marcel Schilling's life, was unknown to the study group. Whitefield's name was discovered after Edwin Calvin of Raytown, Mo., a 90th Division veteran, searched the memories of fellow veterans throughout the United States.

"Saturday's ceremony," says Mrs. Kimmes, who is the secretary of the study group, "marks the first time we'll honor an American soldier who attempted to save the life of a civilian."

"We could never honor a finer man."

"The unveiling of the plaque," adds Jean Winkin, an Oberwampach town councillor, "will be an act of gratitude of Oberwampach's population to its American liberators."

Oberwampach, which has a population of about 180, suffered greatly in the Battle of the Bulge which was centered around the Belgian city of Bastogne, 8 mile east of here.

Fifteen Oberwampach inhabitants, including Marcel Schilling, died as a result of the fighting and one-third of the town's homes were destroyed. Many others were badly damaged.

Today, nearly 35 years after the guns fell silent, the study group plans to erect its own monument for those who gave their lives fighting Hitler's forces.

It will be yet another memorial in an area of Europe that already is sprinkled with graves, crosses, cairns, monuments and other reminders of that war.

Pampa police investigating robberies

No suspects have been taken into custody at this time, police say, in connection with the armed robbery of a local convenience store and the theft of a cash box from a Pampa laundry Wednesday.

According to police reports, a tall man with shaggy blonde hair entered the Allsup's located at Hobart and Alcock at about 2 a.m. Wednesday and asked for some gasoline.

The clerk, Evelyn Sepiel, asked for a deposit before turning on the gasoline pump. The suspect replied he had no money and left.

The man then returned to the store, the report said, at about 2:50 a.m. He allegedly pulled a large pocket knife from his pocket and went behind the counter.

The clerk was told by the suspect that he had to have some gasoline. She pushed the $2 selector, but was told that was not enough, and he hit the $20 selector.

The suspect then forced the attendant outside to the pump with him and instructed her to tell the police he did not take any money. After placing 11 1/2 gallons of gas (valued at $12) in a green Chevrolet pickup, the man left the scene in traveling west on Alcock Street.

In an unrelated incident occurring at 11 a.m. Wednesday, police received a call concerning a theft at L & R Laundramat, 211 E. Francis Ave.

The attendant in the laundramat told police she was knitting at the desk located towards the east side of the laundry when a boy walked by her wearing a yellow stocking cap on his face. He reportedly picked up the cash box placed on the desk near her elbow and ran out the back door of the establishment.

An accomplice was believed by police to have been standing by the back door.

The two boys then left the scene in a vehicle described as an 'old model' orange Chevrolet Camaro. The cash box was believed to have over $100 in it at the time of the theft.

police report

Derrel Coffman, 1133 Duncan, reported someone took a 44 magnum rifle, a Derringer 22, a box with nine rings and other items from his residence.

Leha Rae Orrick of Lefors reported that during the summer, between the dates of July 9 to July 25, while she was residing at 2219 N. Nelson, a possibly known subject took a necklace, earring set and a pair of shoes. The reported incident was delayed until the search. The items were valued at $295.

Patrick Langford, 17, of 1926 N. Faulkner, was arrested for driving while intoxicated at the intersection of 19th and Sumner streets. He was also cited for driving left of center and placed in the city jail.

The Pampa Police Department responded to 17 calls during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Thursday.

FORECAST

THE NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE has issued a forecast for rain stretching across most of the nation from the Pacific Northwest through the Mississippi Valley. Mild temperatures are predicted in the northwest and southwestern states. Rain is forecast for the Atlantic seaboard with snow in high elevations and northern states.

TEXAS

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms rumbled throughout Southeast Texas early today and dense fog cut visibility to near zero along the upper Texas coast.

Dense fog was blamed for the collision during the night of a tanker and an offshore crew boat near the entrance to Galveston Bay. Two persons were reported missing.

While thunderstorms and fog plagued Southeast Texas the remainder of the state had clear skies and mild temperatures.

Forecasts called for the thunderstorms to continue along the upper Texas coast. Northern and western sections of the state were to have clear to partly cloudy skies and continued unseasonably warm temperatures.

Highs were to range from the low 50s in the Panhandle to the 70s in South Texas. Most of the state was to have readings in the 60s.

NATIONAL

Travelers advisories were posted throughout much of the Midwest today as snow sifted down on parts of Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Rain was mixed with snow in central Wisconsin and freezing rain iced upper Michigan.

Rain and drizzle dampened portions of the Ohio Valley, the Gulf of Mexico and South Atlantic states. To the west, rain was scattered from the central Pacific Coast to the Northern Rockies, with snow in higher elevations.

Some pre-dawn temperatures and weather conditions around the nation:

Eastern U.S. — Atlanta 54 cloudy, Boston 28 cloudy, Cincinnati 53 cloudy, Cleveland 51 windy, Detroit 43 cloudy, Miami 63 clear, New York 34 clear, Philadelphia 35 clear, Pittsburgh 45 cloudy, Washington 42 cloudy.

Wheeler volunteers training for emergencies

Members of the North Wheeler County Volunteer Ambulance Service are currently holding an Emergency First Aid Program for the Wheeler High School health classes.

The main classes being taught are the CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) and Hemlich maneuver, to relieve an obstructed airway.

Other first aid training includes correct bandaging, splinting, and recognizing illness and injury.

Dwight Tipps, one of the paramedics teaching the classes said, "The introductory topic of the class is the Anatomy of Specific Systems, needless to say, once students hear that, they think the classes are very hard. However, after the initial topic, the classes are interesting and easier."

According to Tipps, "In cardiac arrest, a person trained in first aid could start CPR immediately and possibly save a life. In a choking victim the Hemlich maneuver may also be performed immediately." Members of the volunteer ambulance service are trying to give students an overall knowledge of first aid.

Oil allowable in 1980's issue

AUSTIN (AP) — Chairman John Poerner of the Texas Railroad Commission predicted today 1980 would be a "crucial year" for the oil and gas industry and urged company executives to attend the March "state of the industry" meeting.

Poerner said the three-member commission, which regulates Texas' oil and gas industry, wants "input from people who have been producing."

The commission routinely set the statewide oil allowable for February at 100 percent.

As usual, however, the large East Texas field was restricted to an 86 percent production factor to avoid possible waste.

The state of the industry meeting is scheduled for March 19 in Austin, and Poerner said, "I would like to ask all of you who represent companies to ask your chief executive officers to be present."

Prior to announcing the February oil allowable, Poerner noted that crude and petroleum product imports into the United States were 8,123,000 barrels per day for 1979, a decrease of 6,000 barrels a day from 1978.

Major purchasers of Texas crude oil said they would like to buy 2,652,720 barrels a day in February, a decrease of 18,758 barrels daily from January.

Company spokesmen said, however, lower nominations for crude oil next month did not indicate the demand for oil was less but merely reflected what the companies hoped to acquire.

L.R. Williams of Union Oil Co. of California said his company's nomination was 1,700 barrels a day lower in February but added, "This doesn't mean we want less crude — it's just closer to reality of what we are getting."

Here are the major purchasers' nominations for Texas crude oil for February, in barrels per day, with any changes from January in parentheses:

- Amoco 280,000 (down 5,000)
- Arco 149,000 (up 4,000)

Texas women face discrimination

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The federal government hasn't effectively enforced civil rights laws, and as a result, minorities and women in Texas face almost as much discrimination now as they did in 1968, says the head of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

It will take "vigorous, stepped up and meaningful" federal enforcement in the 1980s to improve the situation, Arthur S. Flemming said Wednesday at a symposium on civil rights in Texas.

Such enforcement of affirmative action and equal employment opportunity laws, Flemming added, must be supported by a "national movement" of public and private leaders.

The Texas Advisory Committee to the Civil Rights Commission formally released the new report Wednesday.

Blacks, Mexican-Americans and women, according to the study, are still mired in low-paying, low-ranking jobs in the areas of public employment, education, political participation and the administration of justice.

"Given these findings, the Texas Advisory Committee can only conclude that minorities and women have consistently been excluded from the major governing, decisionmaking and policymaking levels in Texas," said TAC Vice Chairman Dr. Denzer Burke.

Flemming said the situation in Texas is "consistent" with what the commission has found in the rest of the nation. "These conclusions identify very clearly the task that lies ahead," he said.

The federal government must bear much of the blame, contended Flemming.

"There hasn't been effective enough enforcement on the part of the federal government as there should have been in this area. The laws on the books are good," he said.

He said he is confident more Equal Employment Opportunity Commission officials will be sent to Texas to help improve the situation.

The federal government, however, was a prime offender, according to the TAC study of Texas' public employees at all levels. "The pattern is most pronounced for minority females who are virtually absent from the higher grade levels and have median incomes that are about one-half that of Anglo males," said the report.

Flemming agreed: "The federal government, functioning in its capacity as an employer, has done a very poor job in developing and implementing affirmative action plans."

The study showed:

- Educational decisions at all levels in Texas are almost exclusively in the hands of Anglo males. "While minority students made up approximately 40 percent of the pupils in Texas, over 97 percent of the superintendents were Anglo males," said the report.
- Anglo males have dominated upwards of 90-100 percent of elected positions at all levels," the report said. Blacks, it continued, have been "virtually excluded," and Mexican-American have been successes confined to predominantly Hispanic counties in South Texas.

Driver sought in Garner beating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The setting: A winding canyon road in the Hollywood Hills.

The scene: Actor James Garner, television private eye Jim Rockford, driving along when a car looms up behind him and tries to pass on the right. Collision.

The action: The driver of the other car jumps out, runs up to Garner's side of the car and begins throwing punches through the window. Garner jumps out, is knocked to the ground and kicked.

Fade out: A dazed and battered Garner on his way to a hospital.

The incident Wednesday was not TV fiction, says West Los Angeles Police Sgt. Lee Spargo.

Garner, star of NBC's "The Rockford Files," was admitted to Cedars Sinai Hospital for observation, suffering from abrasions, cuts and bruises. Larry Baum, a spokesman for the hospital, said Garner was in good condition early today.

Spargo said the incident occurred on Coldwater Canyon Boulevard near Mulholland Drive.

Tito could lose leg

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Josip Broz Tito's left leg is in a state of "gradual deterioration," his eight doctors reported today.

But they said the general condition of the 87-year-old leader "continues to improve," and that his temperature, blood pressure and pulse were "within normal limits."

The doctors gave no indication what they planned to do to relieve a blockage in the Yugoslav president's leg following unsuccessful surgery last weekend.

However, there has been widespread speculation about possible amputation of the leg following last Sunday's surgery.

Doctors tried unsuccessfully for almost a week to remove the blockage with medication before they resorted to surgery on the aging statesman.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveing Commandment.

Another democratic disappointment

India is touted as the world's largest democracy. In a world awash with dictatorship, free elections conducted in the planet's second most populous nation may be reason for cheer. However, democracy is no guarantee of freedom — a point made abundantly clear by the results of India's recent electoral contest.

The Indian voters, much to the dismay of freedom lovers everywhere, mandated the return to power of a woman who once attempted to destroy freedom in that nation. This woman, Indira Gandhi, was prime minister of India between 1966 and 1977. Only three years ago it appeared that her political career was over. Then, because of charges of corruption, it looked as if she would be lucky to stay out of jail. But the corruption of Indira Gandhi's regime was of little importance when compared to the blatant violations of human liberty that took place during her tenure.

While prime minister, Gandhi — she is no relation to pacifist Mahatma Gandhi — moved her nation toward socialism internally and into a special relationship with the Soviet Union internationally. Over the years charges of corruption, including the charges against her son, were never heard in court. But it was Gandhi's forced sterilization program that finally swelled popular opinion against her.

Proving that socialists believe that social problems justify even the grossest violations of personal rights, Gandhi's Congress Party passed legislation requiring the forced sterilization of all couples who had more than two children. Even considering India's population situation, such a monstrous intervention in the family is not justified — a thought echoed by most Indians at the time. Importantly, in a society with a high mortality rate among its children, preventing parents from having more than two children condemns many to the plight of ending their productive years with no one to take care of their needs. In a poor nation, that is an awful eventuality.

Organized opposition to her population control program made Gandhi politically vulnerable. When the opposition appeared on the verge of success the iron lady struck with tactics that must have made her buddies in Moscow proud. Demonstrating her total contempt for freedom, Gandhi, in June of 1975, declared a state of emergency. The only visible emergency at the time was a court decision finding her guilty of election fraud in the preceding election. With emergency powers in her hands, Gandhi, now a dictator, arrested opposition party officials, journalists, and anyone else who got in her way. She then banned any public opposition to her regime. This despotic rule continued until 1977 when she mistakenly thought the public would vote for her re-election.

In the election of 1977 Gandhi and her Congress Party were soundly defeated by a coalition gathered under the Janata Party banner. Morarji Desai, who had been jailed under Gandhi's state of emergency, became prime minister and began to restore some of the basic freedoms the previous regimes destroyed. Once civil liberties were restored, Desai accomplished very little. Unfortunately, the Janata Party was a delicate coalition, and within a year it was torn by internal dissension. And now Gandhi is back.

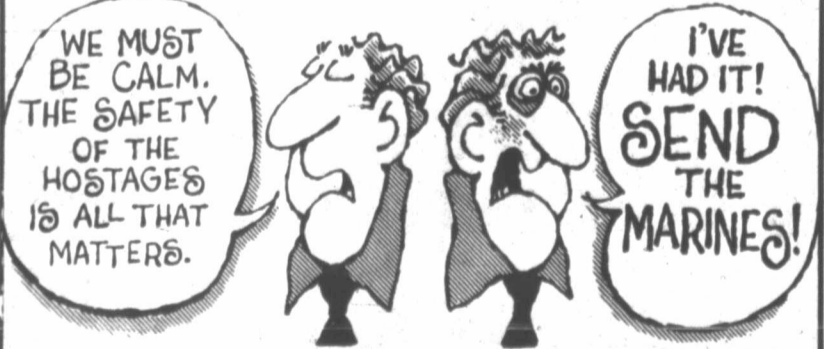

Gandhi's comeback can be attributed to the sad truth that in a democracy a strong-willed and well organized group has the edge, even if that group has proven itself an enemy of the democratic system. Many intellectuals have faith that democracy will result in freedom, a theory discredited by what is happening in India. Of course, one can hope that Gandhi learned a lesson from her brief ouster and that she will now be less inclined to abuse her power. But don't count on it.

Father image newscasters and spoon fed opinions

By M.D. Whitney

The believable father image projected by a senior capsulizer of the news has helped millions of people to form opinions without the effort of utilizing their own faculties. Walter Cronkite tosses out little gems of partial information which are absorbed as quickly as back-fence gossip and with just about the same amount of thoughtful consideration.

With obvious relief, this newscaster revealed the third quarter earnings increases of several oil companies. These were stated in percentages of increase over the same quarter last year. Stated as a percentage, standing alone, such figures can not give anyone a correct view of the actual profit or its relation to previous performance.

It is bad enough to have our politicians and the bureaucracy orchestrating misinformation. Their efforts to clean their own skirts and use a vital industry for a whipping boy is enhanced by faulty news reporting.

Cronkite seemed to zero in on Exxon in his presentation. It is therefore interesting to note a direct comparison between that oil firm and the Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS). If a person had invested $1,000 in Exxon and another $1,000 in CBS in Dec. 1973 and assuming that all returns were reinvested in a like manner for both companies until the third quarter of 1978, CBS would have yielded the greatest return.

Considering that the investments consisted of both capital gains and dividend income, our investor would have derived a gain of $1,151 from his $1,000 in CBS and $711 from the like amount in Exxon.

This is not to say that the profits made by CBS are "obscene" or even out of line. If this television company did not make a profit it could not stay in business. It does seem that the senior commentator of this network should be more concerned when he dispenses his capsules with such abandon.

Many examples of stocks traded in major markets could be shown to have overperformed or underperformed both Exxon and CBS. As a matter of fact, right now it is difficult to find any stock which will yield a profit which will even keep up with the inflation factor. There are so many in this category that it is becoming increasingly difficult for industry to attract capital.

Cronkite was not the only source of misleading information concerning oil company profits. Other television networks, radio and newspapers added a share of handling this news in a manner which did not present a true picture. However, when Mobil Corp. tried to buy time for rebuttal to the information it wished to extend, CBS still turned that oil company down. Mobil then turned to page ads in newspapers to state the facts, but these did not reach the same audience.

The actual average earnings on sales of the 25 leading oil firms in the third quarter came to seven percent on the dollar compared to 4.6 percent in the same period of last year. Lending money to our profligate government by buying bonds will yield more than oil industry profit.

Buying stock in American industry may not keep us ahead of inflation right now, but at least it will not help add to inflation by investing in government debt.

With all the uproar raised over the oil industry's increase in profits, we heard nothing about the windfall tax increase gained by the government as it stood ready to receive the lion's share of any and all gains.

Only a few months ago, the Department of Energy revealed that out of the gasoline dollar government got 20 percent while profit to the industry was only three percent. Keeping that relationship of taxes to profit in mind, just how great was the "windfall tax" the bureaucracy milked out of the gain shown by the oil industry? Also it might be interesting to find out to what great purpose it was used.

Use of the funds in such a tax gain might easily be of the nature of an incident reported in the Wall Street Journal which stated: "With Congress having now funded its massive synfuel program, we were more than mildly interested in a letter to a Journal reporter from a Michigan lawyer detailing his experience with an existing federal energy program. He had recently inquired in Washington, on behalf of a Michigan researcher, about getting a grant from a $10 million Energy Research and Development Administration earmarked fund. Sorry said ERDA, only $1 million was left; the other $9 million had gone for "administrative expenses." Think of how much "administration" the $2 billion synfuel appropriation will buy.

When we listen to Carter and his administration aides talking of the anticipated "windfall profits" tax it might be well to consider just what segment of our society can utilize profits for the best ultimate advantage of obtaining oil and the kind of gas we can use in our furnaces.

The oil industry, unfettered by government and operating in the private enterprise marketplace can and will make better use of its earnings than anything the bureaucracy can dream up. And if the investors in this great industry derive some long overdue increases, it also will be put to better uses than letting government get it.

Investors are people who through effort and thrift have capital which can be used to expand industry. As they re-invest earnings they provide the capital which leads to economic progress. If we are ever to become independent of foreign control over our energy fuels we must look to the private sector for that accomplishment.

The politicians keep telling us that they want energy independence then move to hamstring industry and try every way to grab industry's investment capital. When that money is taken, a healthy part of it is skimmed off for the bureaucracy as "administrative expenses" and what is left is transferred. Such transfers are either to the non-productive segment of society or to dead end programs which add nothing to the health of the economy.

It is easy to point the finger of scorn at any company or the industry it represents. But, before we send our productive, competitive oil industry down the drain, we had better have an alternative to produce the energy fuels we must have for economic survival.

Putting the oil industry in the stocks of public ridicule will only speed up government regulations and interferences which already have that vital part of private enterprise reeling on the ropes.

The most vocal detractors are suggesting that the oil industry be nationalized. This would mean that it would be controlled by the same bureaucracy which has crippled it.

To look at the present status of Amtrak, Conrail, the Postal Service and everything else the government has attempted to operate not only gives us pause to reflect but should cause shudders of fear to run up our spines.

Bad headlines, poorly researched stories and sketchy facts, taken out of context by television and radio commentators, can lead this nation into the morass of socialized existence. The more believable a television personality appears, the more dangerous he can become when he misleads either by commission or by omission of salient facts.

To say that people should not be gullible and swallow so much without question only begs the issue. We in the news media have a grave responsibility to our readers, viewers and listeners. If we do not have the time or space to give a subject proper treatment, we should leave it alone. The sins of omission can only result in misleading those who depend on us.

Steel workers pay for inefficiency

by Paul Harvey

Recently the head of the Auto Workers Union said he would rather see Chrysler go out of business entirely than agree to a three-year wage freeze.

That's what he-Douglas Frazer-is willing to see happen.

In other words, he demands higher wages for Chrysler workers even if it costs them their jobs.

Really, Mr. Frazer?

It was sobering for dues-paying Americans this Christmas season to see so many gifts "imported."

Increasingly Americans have been shopping overseas for everything from cars to shoes, from TVs to toothbrushes.

Much ado is made of our country's dependence on foreign oil-yet there are almost no expressions of concern for our equally critical dependence on foreign steel.

And this dependence will increase as Brazil and South Korea and Taiwan-especially Taiwan-improve their steelmaking technology. Combine more efficient plants with lower wages in those countries and U.S. steelmaking could collapse.

Already U.S. Steel and Jones & Laughlin have announced that they are closing down 16 mills and fabrication plants in the United States.

These first-to-close plants are inefficiently small, antiquated, and they are helpless to meet government pollution requirements without an astronomical capital investment.

So, all things considered and despite the elimination of 14,500 steelworkers' jobs, the steel companies had no other viable option.

United States steelworkers' wages have helped to price us out of the marketplace.

A dozen years ago our steelworkers received 18 percent more than the average industrial wage. Today they receive 67 percent more.

And they have not increased their output of steel correspondingly.

Also, where U.S. steel companies had a headstart on the rest of the world, they now are stuck with a lot of obsolescent installations while the late-comers-Japan, for example-have built new steelmaking facilities incorporating major innovations: basic oxygen furnaces, continuous casting, computerization.

In the United States most steelmaking facilities are up to date and competitive by world standards-but the 25 percent that are out of date and inefficient are a drag on the entire stateside industry.

Competition will not tolerate inefficiency.

Some Americans agitate for closing our doors to foreign cars and TVs and toothbrushes and steel!

However, that shortsighted solution would most certainly result in less competition and higher prices in the domestic marketplace.

No, American-made products will cost less-only when our factories are more efficient-technologically and otherwise.

The way to bring prices down is for American workers to produce more before they charge more.

In my mailbox, a Mr. Jim Lenaway of Kane, Pa., offers to "work without pay one extra hour each week."

He wonders if anybody will join him.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, Jan. 17, the 17th day of 1980. There are 349 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Jan. 17, 1945, Soviet and Polish troops liberated Warsaw from the Nazis.

On this date:
In 1595, King Henry IV of France declared war on Spain.

In 1707, Benjamin Franklin was born.
In 1974, Egypt and Israel reached agreement on separation of their fighting forces along the Suez Canal.

In 1977, Gary Gilmore was executed, the first execution in America in 10 years.
In 1978, Middle East peace talks opened in Jerusalem, with the foreign ministers of Israel, Egypt and the United States taking part.

Ten years ago, beaten Biafran guerrillas began trading weapons for food from Nigerian officials.

Five years ago, Israel's foreign minister said American officials had given him "the notion" that Egypt might be ready to negotiate another Sinai withdrawal treaty.

One year ago, President Carter appealed to the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, still exiled in Paris, to give Iran's new civilian government a chance to survive.

Today's birthdays: Diplomat Kenneth Rush is 70.

Bomb terrorizes London residents

LONDON (AP) — A bomb explosion ripped through six rooms of a popular London hotel this morning, killing a man of "Arab origin," injuring a West German and sending terrified guests, many in nightclothes, fleeing into the chilly streets, police said.

Nearly five hours later, a second bomb exploded, apparently in the rubble. It injured no one, police said, but it created a second emergency and streets which had been reopened after the first blast were closed again.

Commander Peter Duffy of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad said the dead man had been very near the bomb when it went off, but he could not say if he had been assembling the device at the time. The injured guest was named as Gerhard Buhme and detectives were at his hospital bedside.

Both blasts were on the fifth floor of the 702-room Mount Royal Hotel near Marble Arch and Hyde Park's Speaker's Corner, two noted London tourist attractions. The first blast occurred at 7:30 a. m.

Caesar Beaudoux, a Dutch businessman who was in a room 30 feet away from the blast, said most of the guests on the fifth floor seemed to be Turks and Iranians.

AS A BASIC SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY, the Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross has completed supplying the Pampa Police Department with first aid supplies for the department's 13 cruisers with the presentation of an additional seven first aid kits. Officer Rocky Ferguson is pictured as he places one of the supply kits in a police vehicle. Taxing situation: resorts to charity

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — When taxes were reduced under Proposition 13 in California, the residents of this wealthy San Francisco suburb conducted a charity drive to pay for city services. This year they decided to just go back to taxing themselves more.

"It's simply a matter of survival," said City Manager Bob Davidson. This town, where the average price of a home is $500,000, is one of the wealthiest communities in the nation.

Residents voted Tuesday under a state law that took effect Jan. 1 to levy a special tax of about $190 on each household to make up for a $742,000 shortage in the $2.7 million budget.

If the tax proposal had failed, Davidson said the community of 9,000, located south of San Francisco in San Mateo County, would have been forced to fire 23 of 74 employees and would have had to reduce services, including police and fire protection.

Because the community is largely residential, and has little commercial tax revenue, it was particularly hard hit in 1978 when Proposition 13 was voted in to limit property taxation, Davidson said.

Last year, residents made up for shortages with a charity drive that raised $465,000. They sent letters to the townspeople and received contributions averaging about $50 per man, woman and child.

But local officials had promised there wouldn't be a repeat performance this year.

So a heated battle developed with anti-tax forces as a minority.

Mexico buying 4.8 million tons of embargoed grain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexico will buy part of the grain and other products President Carter embargoed for shipment to the Soviet Union this year.

But the new deal, announced at the Agriculture Department late Wednesday, still leaves huge amounts of wheat and corn left unsold as the result of Carter's embargo action on Jan. 4.

All told, the agreement, announced by U.S. and Mexican representatives, calls for Mexico to buy an additional 4.8 million metric tons of farm products this calendar year.

The agreement includes 1.7 million metric tons of corn, 1 million of sorghum, 650,000 of wheat and 500,000 of soybeans.

Other commodities listed include: edible beans, 250,000 metric tons; sunflower seed, 300,000; soybean meal, 200,000; tallow, 80,000; rice, 50,000; and soybean oil, 30,000.

President Carter announced the suspension of sales of 17 million metric tons of wheat and corn that the Soviet Union was to have received this year, along with about 740,000 of soybeans, 400,000 of soybean meal, and 30,000 of soybean oil.

Dale E. Hathaway, undersecretary of agriculture, told a news conference the 4.8 million metric tons of commodities represents an increase "above and beyond" what Mexico had already ordered so far this year. Now, he said, total sales will be around 7 million metric tons.

By comparison, he said, Mexico bought 3.5 million metric tons of the same products in calendar 1977; 3.6 million in 1978; and an estimated 3.7 million in 1979.

Other officials later said Mexico's total orders of the commodities listed now are 7.15 million metric tons. Also, they said, Mexico's purchases prior to the hastily-staged announcement were projected at about 6 million metric tons.

Thus, if those figures are correct, the net effect of the new package would be to increase Mexico's purchases by about 1.1 million metric tons from what officials thought it would buy this year anyway.

The official announcement said the agreement makes available to Mexico "some of the quantities of wheat, corn, soybean and soybean products resulting from the suspension of exports to the Soviet Union."

Officials said the agreement involves commercial transactions and that no U.S. government credit package was involved.

Hathaway said negotiations on the deal began Tuesday with the arrival here of Jorge de la Vega, secretary of commerce for Mexico, and were completed shortly before the announcement was made.

Father searches Dallas for abandoned daughter

DALLAS (AP) — Jamie Fernando Ponce de Leon, fearing his 6-year-old daughter soon may be adopted by a Dallas family, has begun a frantic search to locate the little girl who was taken by his ex-wife and probably abandoned in this area.

The child, Mary Rosana Ponce de Leon, has been involved in a see-saw custody battle since her parents were divorced in 1975, according to New Orleans police.

Ron Cannatella, a New Orleans child abuse investigator, said Mary was taken by her mother, Linda Faye Chammiss, in August and police believe she was abandoned here before her mother left town.

"She may have just abandoned her little girl near Dallas and the family that took her in believes they have an orphan," he said. "They probably do not realize the child has a father who desperately wants his child back."

Ponce de Leon says he is frantically trying to locate the family before the adoption is finalized.

"We don't want to lose her," he said. "We all loved her very much. I don't want anyone else taking her."

Miss Chammiss, 28, originally was given custody of the little girl following the divorce, Ponce de Leon said, but returned her to him while having financial problems. Ponce de Leon said he eventually got legal custody.

Ponce de Leon, a 31-year-old car salesman, said he last saw his daughter in August, when his ex-wife, Miss Chammiss, came to visit.

"She told me she wanted to take our daughter to see her grandfather, who was very sick," he said. "She said her father was about to die and she wanted him to see our daughter one more time. They left, and I haven't seen either one of them since."

New Orleans police say Ponce de Leon recently was contacted by a New Orleans attorney who said he had been in touch with Miss Chammiss. The attorney, Hugh Exnicious, told the father in a letter Miss Chammiss left Mary with a Dallas family who was going to adopt her, police said.

Cannatella said the search has been slowed by the court systems.

"Court records involving adoptions are listed in the name of the prospective parents," he said. "Since we don't know who they are, the courts have not been able to help us."

Contacted by a Dallas reporter, Exnicious declined to answer questions over the telephone, but said he would respond to written questions.

Cannatella said Exnicious told them he does not know how to contact Miss Chammiss, who may be in Washington.

AMERICAN GRAIN IS RELOADED from a Monrovia bulk carrier, to a smaller Russian freighter after a trip across the Atlantic from Houston. Hamburg is the transshipment port for the giant bulk carriers which are often too big to pass the Baltic Sea. Carter administration on Jan. 4, suspended shipment of 17 million tons of U.S. wheat and corn the Soviet Union was expected to import this year in response to current Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan. Announcement today indicated Mexico has agreed to buy a portion of the embargoed grain as a result of negotiations Wednesday.

Open house set for Browers

The 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brower will be celebrated Saturday with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. in their home at 916 Terry Road and at a Mass of Thanksgiving at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church.

Hosting the event will be the couple's children, Mr. and Mrs. Rick Brower of Wichita, Kan., Roy Brower of Stillwater, Okla., Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Trimble of Ulysses, Kan., and Janice Brower of Pampa.

The couple exchanged wedding vows Jan. 17, 1955, in Hoisington, Kan. Brower is employed with Cities Service Oil Company. They have lived in Pampa the last three years, moving here from Moore, Okla.

Friends are invited to attend. The couple requests no gifts, please.

MR. AND MRS. BOB BROWER

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

Brighten surroundings: be an apple polisher

Contentment is uppermost in everybody's mind, I believe. We'd rather be happy than rich or influential or President.

So let's examine happiness by age groups. A recent issue of "U.S. News & World Report" carried an interview with Angus Campbell, professor of psychology and sociology at the University of Michigan. He said that, in general, there has been a deterioration in people's sense of well-being since 1957. At that time, 35 percent of Americans said they were "very happy", whereas now only 30 percent say so.

But there is a bright and, for us, a bombastic side to those statistics. It's the fact that the only age level reflecting increased happiness is the group of Americans over 60 years old. In 1957, 25 percent of those in or near retirement gave the "very happy" answer to the survey. Now 31 percent testify to their complete contentment.

According to Professor Campbell, the young people have dropped from 40 percent happy in 1967 to only 29 percent now. It's good to know we showed an increase. But it's nothing to stand up and cheer about. The percentage of happiness among us is still only 31 percent.

Why are some of us extra-mature ones happy while others are sad and disillusioned with life? The "U.S. News & World Report" says that happy older marriage has a lot to do with it. It states, "The marital relationship is the basic source of social support among adult Americans — the single most important contributor to a person's sense of well-being."

Professor Campbell adds, "The happiest male in America is the man between 50 and 70, married and living with his wife at home after the children have grown and moved away. He feels satisfaction that he controls his life rather than being controlled by outside forces."

That's encouraging, of course. But let's try to increase the percentage of older happy couples.

How can we do it? We can keep our moods pleasant, making our associates, especially our wedded partners, glad to share our delight in living.

We all know disagreeable people, young and old, who are not pleasant company. When we see a mean youngster, we are likely to say, "It's just a tantrum. He'll outgrow it." But when we are with older grouches, we often comment, "He'll be a crosspatch as long as he lives!"

If we groan and grumble, unnecessarily and constantly, we'll be shunned. If we smile, whether we feel like it or not, we'll be much more popular, perhaps even pampered. We'll talk, think and act ourselves into feeling fine.

People

By Louise Pierce

So let's do it. Let's polish apples. By that, I mean let's offer something special to those around us.

DEAR LOUISE: My wife and I are supposed to be retired and working at home, remodeling the bathroom (other rooms later), growing vegetable and flower gardens, enjoying the Senior Center and doing church work. But Bee is still running back to the office whenever they call her to help out, and she's always too tired to help me with anything at the house. I'm sick of yelling at her all the time. I'm about ready to give up and move to a retirement home and just sit till I die. What would you think of that? M.H.

DEAR M.H.: I'd think absolutely nothing of it. You have the will and the energy to enjoy your work at home, and you should not give it up. Have you ever thought that perhaps your yelling is what keeps your wife away so much?

If you change your tactics, you might find that she suddenly wants to stay at home with you and share your household plans and tasks. Tell her you need her help — but, more importantly, say that you love her and miss her when she's not with you.

THE PEOPLE'S PHARMACY

By Joe Graedon

Q. I am 67 and often have trouble with arthritis in my hands. The childproof caps on prescription bottles and even aspirin drive me crazy.

My grandchildren live in another state and don't visit often so it doesn't seem fair that I have to struggle a long time to get to my aspirin, especially when I need it the most.

I often leave the lids off my medicine bottles, but they spill and those little pills are hard to pick up. Isn't there anything else a person like me can do?

A. Yes, indeed: anyone in a similar situation can simply ask their doctor or pharmacist for easy-to-open caps. Even if the patient doesn't ask, a doctor could specify a non-child resistant cap for a person who has trouble with childproof ones. And your pharmacist should stock some aspirin in easy-off containers.

Leaving your medicine open is a big mistake. For one thing, some drugs deteriorate when left open to the air and for another, if a child did happen to visit you it would be an invitation to disaster.

Childproof caps are not designed to make you miserable, but to save lives. And they ARE saving children's lives. Deaths from accidental poisonings have dropped dramatically since safety lids have become mandatory.

That's why we recommend you request the new reversible caps from your pharmacist. On one side they have a safety closure, but flip them over and they become a simple, easy-off lid.

Remember, kids can get into trouble very quickly, so when your grandchildren do come to visit, or you have a cup of coffee with your neighbor whose toddler loves to explore your handbag, be sure to use the childproof side. Then when the coast is clear, you can make it easy for yourself without risking a tragic accident.

Q. I am a diabetic controlling my blood sugar with diet alone. The unpleasant aftertaste of those no-calorie sweeteners marketed everywhere bothers me. I've been told I could use fructose as a sweetener. Is this true?

A. Regardless of any manufacturers' claims or implications, fructose is a sugar and is used as a sugar in your body. In fact, you produce some fructose whenever you digest plain table sugar.

Fructose is a bit sweeter than regular sugar, so you get the same sweetening power from slightly fewer calories. But keep in mind that it's still sugar and not a miracle substance.

Q. For the past two years I've suffered from a chronic vaginal yeast infection. Can you bring me up-to-date on current treatments for this problem?

A. There are three basic treatment options for handling yeast infections and they all involve application of a cream or vaginal tablet.

The first line of attack is usually with a drug called nystatin (Mycostatin). Side effects are minimal though some people who are super sensitive may develop a vaginal irritation. Therapy usually lasts for seven to 14 days.

The two other drugs that are commonly employed include miconazole (Monistat 7) and clotrimazole (Gyne-Latrimin). The regular dose is one application a day for seven days. Adverse reactions are uncommon, although occasionally women experience burning or itching.

One of these three drugs should do the job but to prevent a recurrence you may have to stop taking birth control pills or any broad spectrum antibiotics like tetracycline. If your sexual partner is responsible for causing reinfection, using a condom should eliminate that problem.

Some people find an acidic douche helps (two tablespoons of vinegar to one quart of water) and others claim success with yogurt. You and your doctor will have to work together to find the solution to your problem.

Got a question? Write to Joe Graedon in care of King Features Syndicate, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Stamp program

"Collecting Stamps for Fun and Profit" is the topic of a program slated Monday at 7 p.m. at the Opportunities Center, 930 Illinois, in Borger.

Eck Spahich, a founding member and past president of Hutchinson County Stamp and Coin Club, will address the members and guests of the club.

Juanita Wilson, president, invites collectors to attend the meeting, which will include an auction of stamp and coin material. Wayne Ingram will conduct the auction.

A drawing for a door prize also will be held.

Membership information in the club is available from Mrs. Wilson, 106 B. Ave., Phillips, Texas 79007.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had some rectal bleeding and went in for an examination and the doctor did a proctoscope, barium enemas and all the usual things. He said I had internal hemorrhoids, muscle spasms in the colon and a few moderate diverticula. The doctor had his nurse tell me that the situation was normal for me and to continue as I am. I am 47 years old, don't drink, smoke or take in caffeine or other drugs. I am trim and in general good health.

What I want to know besides the cause and the meaning of these findings is what I could possibly do to lessen or remove them. Irritation can cause cancer, can't it? Is it a matter of trying to live as calm a life as possible or exercising or perhaps eating or avoiding eating certain things?

DEAR READER — First, let me say you did the right thing by having an examination. Anyone who has unexplained rectal bleeding must have an examination because it is sometimes the first sign of cancer. You can't just guess that it's due to hemorrhoids. Not only that, some hemorrhoids pop out from the pressure caused by a tumor further up in the rectum above the hemorrhoid area.

I'm glad your doctor didn't find anything that was really serious or life threatening and you'll be happy to know that irritations of the sort that you're referring to do not cause cancer.

Obviously, I can't cover all your problems in this one column but I can send you three different Health Letters that will give you a lot of information on them: Number 13-12, Hemorrhoids: New Treatments For An Old Affliction; Number 5-6, Diverticulosis; and Number 2-1, Irritable Or Spastic Colon And Constipation.

The best thing you can do is to develop good bowel habits. That will help relieve the colon spasms which some people think are the cause of the diverticula, those little pockets that develop on the side of the colon.

The bowel training program should include adding an adequate amount of bulk to your diet.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Jim, 16, lives in the beautiful city of Klamath Falls, Ore., and is having girlfriend troubles and would like to hear from our teen guest writers. Maria Conners, 16, from London, Ontario, Canada, and Jack Bloomquist, 15, from Galesburg, Ill., will do the honors. Welcome.

Dr. Wallace: At the beginning of this school year my girlfriend broke up with me and I was crushed. We got back together again but again she took off. This time I wasn't quite so crushed.

I'm a 16-year-old junior and she's a 14-year-old freshman. I really like her a lot and maybe I love her. Her mom likes me but won't let us date because she's 14.

I'm not very popular or very cute so what I'd like to know is should I go after her one more time. We have a high school formal coming up soon and I'm thinking about asking her. I found out her mother will allow her to attend this dance if asked.

Please have the guest writers give their views also. — Jim, Klamath Falls, Ore.

Jim: It's time you started looking elsewhere for a dating partner. Don't put yourself down. Nothing will make you forget an old love faster than having a new love. Forget "going after her one more time" and invite another girl to the dance. And don't be too shy to ask. Remember the worst thing that can happen is to hear "no." The best thing is that you will have a great date.

Hi Jim: By all means, ask this girl to the dance. If you love her and yet have never taken her out, you deserve the experience. After all, if she shines you on, you can ask another girl. By the way, I know lots of guys who are not cute but are desirable dates. — Maria, London, Ontario

Hello Jim: I live on a farm and my former girl who lives in town broke up with me because I had to harvest and couldn't take her to a football game. That was a year ago.

I, too, was crushed and hurt, now I hardly remember her name. I met my new girl, Lucy, at a church youth meeting. This year she helped me harvest and we plan to be married after we graduate.

So I guess what I'm telling you is don't ask your former girlfriend to the dance. Instead, hopefully, you'll find your "Lucy" and ask her. — Jack, Galesburg, Ill.

If you would like to be a teen guest writer, please write to me, in care of this newspaper, stating your sex and age.

Farenthold is still in the public eye

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — Frances Tarlton Farenthold — whom everyone has been calling "Sissy" since her childhood in Corpus Christi, Tex., because her brother couldn't say "sister" — is exhausted.

She rests her cheek on her hand and her elbow on the table in an office of the public relations firm representing Wells College, the small, liberal arts women's college in upstate New York of which Mrs. Farenthold has been president for three years.

She's tired because when she's not "presidenting" she's lecturing here and there or fulfilling her duties as a public person. Since graduating from the University of Texas School of Law in 1949 (one of three women in a class of 800) and serving two terms in the Texas House of Representatives, she's gathered enough titles to fill a phone book: a founder of the National Women's Political Caucus; member, the National Advisory Council of the American Civil Liberties Union; member, Board of Trustees of the Mental Health Law Projects, etc., etc.

It all takes its toll. "Public life is particularly tough," she says, in a soft drawl. "There's a lot of wear and tear, but from my own experience, there's some compensation as well being involved in public policy, helping to make decisions that are worthwhile."

She began making those decisions years ago the only way women did, then. "You would finally get to participate in the public sector by going through 20 years' work in the community and then running for the legislature, and you weren't getting any encouragement along the way."

Well, other women weren't, perhaps. Mrs. Farenthold's family always supported her. "Even after I married and started having children, my father, a lawyer, was still paying my bar dues. He'd say, you'll come back to the law, which was extraordinary for a person born in the Edwardian era." A person who, unlike most, didn't think women were only suited for private affairs.

So she was the female exception to the rule — which still applies and which she's trying to change. "Whether we want it or not, women are public people as well as private people, but the whole idea of public leadership for young women as an alternative hasn't ever been discussed with young women. And by public life, I don't just mean electoral politics, which is where I come from. There are all kinds of ways of being in the public administration, government. The foreign service, for instance, was closed to women but now that it's getting hazardous, ironically, it's open to women."

And when women know about those opportunities, they want them, says Mrs. Farenthold. "Between '72 and '76, I spoke at many colleges around the country and many young women would come to me and say, we're interested in getting into politics. How do we get started? All I could say was, get into someone's campaign and see if you like it. I knew that wasn't adequate but it was the only suggestion I had."

But not her final one. She came up with the concept of PLEN — the Public Leadership Education Network, which is now in its second year at five participating women's colleges. Its purpose — to tell those women what public life is all about.

"PLEN is a network of five women's colleges (Carlow in Pittsburgh; Goucher in Towson, Md.; Spellman, the oldest black women's college in the country, in Atlanta; Stephens in Columbia, Mo.; and Wells) and two resource groups, the National Women's Education Fund and the Center for the American Woman and Politics."

"The project is funded by the Carnegie Corporation, and this is the first funding of its kind."

Each college has its own program, for academic credit or not; limited to the campus or open to the community; but all programs encourage young women to consider public life as a career.

"At Carlow College," she says, "they reach out to women in the community to familiarize them with campaign techniques. They have workshops on public speaking, for instance, which is terribly important for public life. Goucher fosters one-semester internships for its students with women in the Maryland legislature. Spellman calls on a great number of black women in Atlanta who lecture on different aspects of leadership and how they came to take that forward step."

"And at Wells, we hold Saturday seminars trying to look at public issues as issues that concern women. How, for example, energy shortages affect women, and discrimination against female athletes in college."

"These give women the scope of political life," she says. And as far as she knows, no other program is doing that. No other program is saying, "We'd like women to consider public life much, much earlier than they did before, so they don't just stumble into it in later years."

SISSY FARENTHOLD, former Texas legislator, president of a small women's college in New York, and developer of a public leadership education program, says, "We'd like women to consider public life much, much earlier than they did before, so they don't just stumble into it in later years."

Empty nest syndrome affects dads, too

While psychologists have made much of the "empty nest syndrome" or depression some mothers feel when their last child leaves home, few researchers ever thought to ask how fathers feel. Now a systematic survey has been conducted, which shows fathers have some similar feelings.

According to "Psychology Today," the study polled 118 randomly selected couples from a wide variety of socioeconomic backgrounds in Northeast Georgia. Nearly as many fathers (22 percent) as mothers (23 percent) said they felt "very unhappy" or "somewhat unhappy" after their last offspring packed up and took off.

Other recent studies have shown that fewer women than psychologists once assumed are depressed by the empty nest; many women now look forward to new interests or careers once their children leave.

Ironically, suggests the study's main author, "the number of despondent paternal fathers could be multiplying at the same time it appears that fewer mothers are experiencing crises with the launching of their children."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: At 16 I married a 21-year-old man I thought I loved. We had a son a year later, but the marriage didn't work out, so we were divorced when the boy was 6. I'm now married to wonderful man who adopted my son.

Meanwhile, my ex dropped out of sight for three years. Yesterday, out of the blue, he called saying he had something very important to tell me, and would I meet him downtown—alone.

When I met him, I nearly fainted dead away! He was dressed like a woman. He said he was a transsexual who had been living as a woman for two years and was scheduled for a sex change operation next month! He said his name is "Anita" now, and he's in show business. Abby, I couldn't believe my eyes. He had electrolysis to remove his facial hair, took hormones to develop a female figure, and was wearing a wig, makeup, and stylish clothes. He looked like a beautiful woman! This was a great shock to me because he was all man when we were married. Our sex life was normal, and I never dreamed he had these tendencies.

My problem is how to tell our son. Or should I tell him at all? (He's 9 now.) My ex lives in another state and has promised not to come near our son without my approval. If the boy ever saw his father as "Anita" he would die, and so would I! I am so afraid someone in this little town will find out about this and blab it around. What should I do?
SMALL TOWN MESS

DEAR MESS: A 9-year-old is too young to comprehend what transsexualism is all about, so hold off telling him, but prepare to tell him one day by educating yourself now. Write to The Janus Information Facility, University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston, Texas 77550 for enlightening, up-to-date literature. They are a legitimate, non-profit facility, dependent on private donations, so send $5 to cover cost of literature and mailing.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter met a smooth-talking fellow nine months ago and really fell for him. She's 22 and he's 21. He isn't working now and he's not even looking. He keeps saying that the jobs he wants don't pay enough. In the meantime he borrows from my daughter, drives her car, eats every meal at my table, and his clothes are washed in my machine! He never mentions marriage, but my daughter looks at him like he's god, and she calls this "love." Would I be wrong to ask this guy what his intentions are?

FED UP

DEAR FED UP: You can ask him, but I think I can tell you. His intentions are to eat at your table, drive your daughter's car, get his clothes washed in your machine, and freeload off you and your daughter as long as you let him.

January 18, 1980

Many opportunities are going to be presented to you this coming year. At the outset some might appear difficult, but your persistence and wisdom will direct you to the brass ring.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you set your mind to it you can get quite a bit accomplished where your self-interests are concerned. Get going. It will be quite rewarding. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There should be no doubt in your mind today regarding the do's and don'ts related to achieving a personal goal. You'll know the formula for success.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may have an opportunity today to reinforce a friendship that needs a little shoring up. It will please this person to know you're loyal.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Being surrounded by progressive people gives you the courage to put to work some ideas you've been pondering. It'll prove rewarding.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You know how to take a philosophical view of things today. This will help you to simplify complex situations and take problems in stride.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An earnest discussion with a non-sensense approach will help correct a condition at home that has been causing you some frustrations lately.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Aiding others will come easy to you today because you have the knack of looking at things realistically and the courage to call a spade a spade.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Careful planning and common sense give you a fine head for business today. Negotiate now for those deals on which you've had your eye.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The way you organize your time today gives you a good balance between work and play. By day's end you should feel fulfilled in both areas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Family interests and responsibilities are top priority over outside affairs. You'll get joy out of handling them effectively.

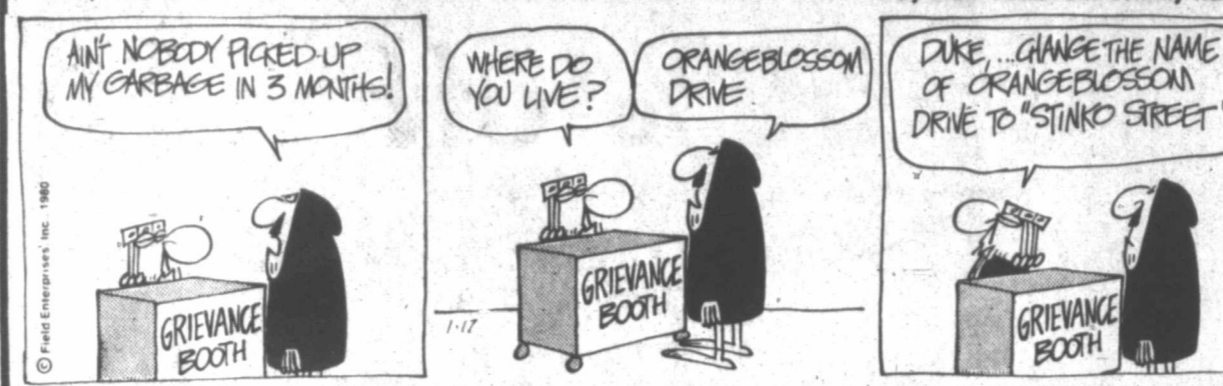

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone you may not have seen for a long time might try to get in touch with you today. If he or she does, include them in your family function.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is something that may be presented to you today that could be profitable to you personally. It won't come on a silver platter, though. You'll have to work for it.

Hi-ho Silver and away... (up a tree)

HIGHLAND PARK, Texas (AP) — A man who made headlines for two decades in Ohio as "The Silver Burglar" is now making ripples in Texas.

Kermit Francis Gabel Jr. is accused of stealing three valuable cases of silverware from a home in this exclusive Dallas suburb last week.

And now that police have learned of his penchant in the past for stealing silver, they're questioning him about 18 burglaries here in the past 18 months in which $200,000 in silverware has been taken.

The father of three was arrested last Thursday night as he jumped from the upper branches of a tree outside a Highland Park residence. A resident called police and said he found several sets of silverware and a silver coffee service when he went downstairs to investigate suspicious noises.

Dressed in Army fatigues, combat boots and a baseball cap, Gabel carried no identification, and he was charged only with breaking into a home and stealing three valuable cases of silverware.

Then, Highland Park police learned he had been arrested 14 times since 1956 in connection with silver and jewelry burglaries in swank neighborhoods near Cleveland and Youngstown, Ohio.

Gabel made $25,000 bond from the Dallas County Jail Tuesday but by 2:40 a.m. Wednesday he was back in custody again. Police chased a man they saw running near some houses and, minutes later, found Gabel hiding under a tree between two houses.

It was less than two blocks from where he was picked up last week. This time, police filed a habitual criminal charge against Gabel, which carries a life prison sentence. He was arraigned Wednesday and bond set at $200,000.

"We call him the silver burglar" because he allegedly steals silver and melts it down, said Harry Eidan, a detective in the Cleveland suburb of Shaker Heights.

Gabel has served a half dozen jail sentences since 1955 for burglary, grand larceny, arson, mail fraud and possession of burglary tools, Ohio officials said.

Gabel currently is awaiting trial in Cleveland on two counts of aggravated burglary and two counts of possession of criminal tools, Eidan said.

Bond probe jails two

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A city jailer and a jail information officer have been suspended from duty and accused of accepting favors from employees of a bonding company in return for referring clients to them.

Charges of accepting bribes were filed late Wednesday afternoon against jailer Robert Hines and first-shift information officer Katie Collier.

Hines and Ms. Collier, a 27-year-veteran of the Wichita Falls Police Department, were released on $1,500 bond each.

A bail bondsman was arrested Wednesday, and a warrant was issued for another employee of the same company, but neither had been charged by late Wednesday.

Three other jailers were questioned, police said.

Police Chief Curtis Harrelson said the arrests culminated a 2-year investigation that began after attorneys, bonding companies and citizens complained one bonding company was getting an edge on its competitors by receiving restricted information on inmates.

Competitors complained the company was soliciting business from prisoners at the city jail without being called by the prisoners or members of their families.

According to the charge, Hines — a jailer for 17 months — accepted lizard skin cowboy boots from an employee of the bonding company last Oct. 10. He accepted smoked turkeys from the employee the previous two years, the charge said.

Hines in turn gave the employee information about persons in the jail needing bonds, the charge alleges. Ms. Collier's part in the alleged transactions was not specified.

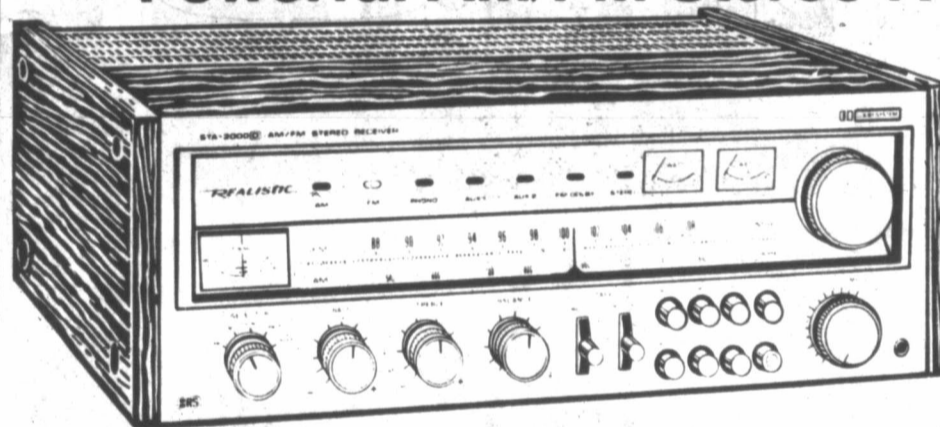

The chief asked that the Civil Service Commission suspend Ms. Collier.

District Judge Temple Driver ordered the release of a bail bondsman Wednesday after he had been arrested. An attorney had argued there was no grounds to hold the man until charges were filed.

County Judge Tom Bacus said an emergency meeting of the newly formed County Bail Bond Board will be called for next week. The board can refuse to allow a bail bond company under investigation to issue bonds.

Industry fighting regulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — American industry is lining up for a fight over a new government regulation designed to increase worker protection from hundreds of potential cancer-causing chemicals found on the job.

Several industry groups are going to court to challenge the regulation, which the government hopes will speed up the lengthy process of identifying and regulating some 500 chemicals that may threaten the health of hundreds of thousands of workers.

The regulation, announced Wednesday by the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration, would replace the current policy of regulating carcinogens on a slow case-by-case basis.

OSHA's administrator, Eula Bingham, estimated the new approach would enable the agency to establish worker exposure limits on about 10 chemicals a year, up from the current two per year.

A 1977 survey by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health indicated that 1 million Americans may be exposed to known cancer-causing substances on the job.

The government also estimates that between 20 percent and 40 percent of the nearly 400,000 cancer deaths each year are attributable to job-related factors. The chemical industry, however, contends that only 1 percent to 5 percent of cancer cases are occupationally related.

Representatives of the chemical, petroleum and plastics industries complained Wednesday that the new regulation's method of identifying carcinogens is scientifically flawed, and that compliance could cost business billions of dollars.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce called the government policy "regulatory extremism" and "administrative overreaction."

The American Petroleum Institute, contending that the government's criteria for labeling a chemical as a carcinogen are too lax, said it has asked the U.S. Court of Appeals in New Orleans to review the regulation.

The Society of the Plastics Industry and a group composed of industrial producers and users of chemicals said they would join in the appeal.

Organized labor said it also would seek an appeals court review of OSHA's action, but for different reasons.

Marine's family appealing case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The family of a dead Marine recruit from Texas has taken to the Supreme Court its bid to recover millions of dollars in damages.

Lynn McClure, whose family contends he was mentally retarded and should never have been recruited, was knocked out Dec. 6, 1975, during a succession of pugil stick bouts at a San Diego training center.

The 20-year-old recruit from Lufkin died three months later at a Houston veterans hospital.

McClure's family filed a federal court suit in California seeking $14 million for wrongful death and personal injury from the U.S. government and other defendants.

U.S. District Judge William Enright dismissed the suit in 1977, referring to a previous U.S. Supreme Court ruling that servicemen cannot sue the government for injuries suffered during active duty.

Last September, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Enright's decision.

"The problem is we can never get to try the case because it's always dismissed summarily," Myron Cohn, the attorney for McClure's family, said in a telephone interview Wednesday. "It's a very, very tough case."

Cohn filed a petition in December asking the Supreme Court to review the case.

"Our argument is, of course, that he (McClure) was incompetent to enter into the contract," Cohn said.

According to Cohn's argument, McClure's agreement with the Marines therefore was void from the beginning and a damage suit can be filed.

The federal judge who first dismissed the case found that neither incompetence nor alleged recruiting violations would have created an exception allowing McClure's family to sue the government.

Cohn quoted from a letter written by Betty Calhoun, McClure's mother, that said: "You can't know how deep it hurts me that nothing can be done. ... He just shouldn't have been in the Marines; there is no way he could have passed the test himself."

Reports on the circumstances surrounding McClure's death won a Pulitzer Prize for his hometown newspaper, the Lufkin News.

An investigation followed the death and five officers were suspended from duty involving recruit training. Three officers and a drill instructor were sent letters of reprimand.

Marine spokesmen have said that among the changes prompted by the case was the disbanding of the "motivation platoon," the unit McClure was sent to after twice going on unauthorized leave.

Arc of Instability

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet move into Afghanistan raises worries about possible bold new Russian military adventures in a vital region where U.S. alliances have crumbled and local defense forces are weak.

Months ago, several of President Carter's advisers, notably Zbigniew Brzezinski, started talking about a need to prepare for possible Soviet adventurism in the 1980s when, for a time, the Russians will enjoy an edge over the United States in strategic nuclear power.

That view provided the impetus for Carter's $10-billion plan to equip a "rapid deployment" military force of Marines and soldiers for movement into the Persian Gulf or other world trouble spots.

But the transport planes and depot ships essential to such a force will not be ready at least for several years, assuming Congress votes the required funds.

Meanwhile, geography works against the United States in trying to safeguard U.S. interests in the Persian Gulf-Arabian Sea region. The area lies about 12,000 miles from the U.S. East Coast.

In contrast, geography is on the side of the Russians. Afghanistan is next door to the Soviet Union, as is Iran. Supply and reinforcement of Russian forces occupying Afghanistan present no serious logistical problems, certainly nothing comparable to the difficulties that will be faced by the United States in landing and supporting a major military force sent from the United States to the Middle East.

In occupying Afghanistan, Soviet troops are in position to threaten Pakistan. With a major base in Pakistan, U.S. strategists say, the Russian navy would be able to clamp a grip on the West's jugular, the oil tanker routes leading to and from the Persian Gulf.

Thus, Pakistan now finds itself in a vice between its traditional rival — India — and the new threat from the Russians in Afghanistan.

President Carter has indicated the United States will offer Pakistan the sort of military aid which was recently denied them, but Pakistan may not be prepared to resume a close relationship with this country. Instead, U.S. officials believe the Pakistanis may forge a close cooperation with China, which supplied Pakistan with arms while India got support from the Soviet Union.

India, in the American view, remains the dominant country in the whole region and the experts believe that New Delhi is concerned about heavy-handed Soviet moves such as the Afghan invasion, but will not join in any international moves to censure the Soviets.

Even without intervention in Pakistan or a closer alliance with India, the Soviet Navy already has access to bases in South Yemen and Ethiopia, from which it could choke off oil shipments through the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden.

Soon after the Soviet intervention, a team of Pentagon officials was dispatched to speak with authorities in Oman, Somalia and Kenya to determine whether American military units might be allowed to use their bases more than for occasional rest stops and port calls, as now. Prospects look good, U.S. officials say. And last week, the Carter administration moved to build up Naval capability on Diego Garcia while it was disclosed that the U.S. and Egyptian air forces conducted joint exercises recently to test the capability of U.S. warplanes to deploy out of Egyptian airfields.

It adds up to quick effort to expand U.S. defense capabilities in the Middle East.

For decades, U.S. strategic planning for the Persian Gulf area centered on an assurance that Iran and its American-equipped forces would be a reliable bulwark in containing Russian aspirations.

However, this strategy had to be scrapped last winter after the Iranian revolution. The focus of U.S. planning then shifted to Saudi Arabia, one of the wealthiest and most conservative of the oil-producing countries in the Persian Gulf and an ally of the United States.

The Saudis have bought more than $25 billion in American arms and U.S. technicians are helping train Saudi forces into first-class fighting units. Still, the Saudis shy away from allowing any permanent U.S. forces to be established within their borders.

Iraq, which considers itself a national socialist republic, rates the strongest military force in the Persian Gulf region. In the past, Iraq has closely associated with Russia, but in recent years the Iraqis have disengaged from the Soviets as much as possible, using their rising oil income to buy military equipment from the French and other Western countries.

Iraq and Saudi Arabia have lived uneasily side by side without fundamental ideological differences escalating into warfare.

However, Saudi officials remain nervous that the much bigger and well-equipped Iraqi army of about 200,000 men might some day move toward the rich Saudi Arabia oilfields, and Iraqi border skirmishes with Iran frequently threaten to erupt.

SENIOR GUARD Joe Jeffers leads the Pampa Harvesters in assists with 53 going into Friday night's District 3-AAA clash with Amarillo Caprock on the homecourt. (Staff Photo)

Basketball stats released as Pampa enters league play

Won-lost records don't always give a true picture of a basketball team's progress during the season.

Although the Pampa Harvesters have lost more games than they've won (10-12), they lead the opposition in field goals made, field goal percentage, rebounds, steals, and assists.

However, the enemy has the edge on the Harvesters in free throws made, free throw percentage, total points, fewer turnovers and fewer fouls.

Individually, Ronnie Faggins leads in points scored (310), blocked shots (22), and rebounds (176). Guards Steve Glover and Joe Jeffers have been the most accurate shooters.

Glover has hit 52 of 108 field goal attempts for 48 percent while Jeffers has been successful on 24 of 30 free throw efforts for 80 percent. Glover also leads in steals with 55 while Jeffers is No. 1 in the assist department with 53.

Team statistics are listed below:

Pampa
Field goals made 425, field goals attempted 977, field goal percentage 44 percent, free throws made 147, free throws attempted 245, free throw percentage 60 percent, rebounds 563, assists 149, steals 150, turnovers 295, blocked shots 41, personal fouls 314, total points 997.

Opponents
Field goals made 403, field goals attempted 989, field goal percentage 41, free throws made 226, free throws attempted 339, free throw percentage 66 percent, rebounds 560, assists 102, steals 127, turnovers 284, blocked shots 15, personal fouls 249, total points 1032.

Individual statistics are as follows:

Pampa
Scoring: Steve Glover 125, Joe Jeffers 104, Ronnie Faggins 310, Cedric Parker 161, Kyle Bradford 75, Jim Agan 73, Charles Nelson 91, Mike Nelson 33, Damon Fleming 2.

Field goal percentage: Glover 48, Jeffers 40, Faggins 47, Parker 45, Bradford 42, Agan 37, C. Nelson 45, M. Nelson 41, Fleming 100.

Free throw percentage: Glover 64, Jeffers 80, Faggins 68, Parker 53, Bradford 50, Agan 53, C. Nelson 54, M. Nelson 63.

Rebounds: Glover 32, Jeffers 47, Faggins 147, Parker 125, Bradford 37, Agan 62, C. Nelson 46, M. Nelson 17.

Assists: Glover 51, Jeffers 53, Faggins 12, Parker 7, Bradford 7, Agan 2, C. Nelson 3, M. Nelson 8.

Steals: Glover 55, Jeffers 22, Faggins 17, Parker 11, Bradford 12, C. Nelson 7, M. Nelson 12.

Turnovers: Glover 62, Jeffers 57, Faggins 27, Parker 31, Bradford 26, Agan 20, C. Nelson 24, M. Nelson 20.

Blocked shots: Glover 1, Jeffers 2, Faggins 22, Parker 9, Bradford 1, Agan 1, C. Nelson 2, M. Nelson 2.

Personal fouls: Glover 42, Jeffers 41, Faggins 57, Parker 54, Bradford 36, Agan 26, C. Nelson 18, M. Nelson 18.

Super Bowl tickets high

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Tickets for Super Bowl XIV sold originally for $30 each yet those trying to secure them now reportedly pay up to $350 for choice seats.

End zone seats go for $125 and up. A multi-million dollar business, Sunday's game will sell out in the Rose Bowl, which has more than 100,000 seating capacity. The television rights were sold to CBS for approximately $6 million.

Businesses in Pasadena, Los Angeles and environs also realize big profits from the game which matches the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Los Angeles Rams.

Mustangs may drop baseball program

DALLAS (AP) — Unless somebody "steps forward with $50,000," Southern Methodist University will eliminate its baseball program or at least reduce it to a non-scholarship status, the SMU athletic director says.

Russ Potts, the Mustangs' AD, said he probably will decide on one of the alternatives by April 1.

Baseball coach Steve Adair said Potts told him no new money will be spent on baseball next year, although the 15 athletes, receiving parts of 6½ scholarships will be allowed to keep their scholarships.

"I can't print money. I've told Steve and the alums who've phoned that we'll go first class in baseball if someone steps forward with $50,000," Potts said.

Adair said he opposes operating a baseball program without scholarships. Ten of the 15 players with scholarships are seniors. "What would be the use of playing in the conference without scholarships? I would hope we'd withdraw from the conference," Adair said.

In his three years at SMU, Adair's teams have had records of 14-33, 25-29 and 21-25. His best SWC record was 9-15 in 1977 and his worst was 1-22 in 1976. SMU plays its games in a city park.

"No, we haven't been able to contend," Adair said. "We'll be competitive this year because we have the right guys at the right spots."

Federal judge dismisses Houston fans' lawsuit

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge says the Super Bowl can be played as scheduled Sunday in Pasadena, Calif.

Judge Carl O. Bue Jr. dismissed Tuesday a $12 million lawsuit filed as a result of a controversial call on a Houston Oilers pass play in the American Conference championship game Jan. 6 in Pittsburgh.

Bue referred to the two plaintiffs, William Pabst and Diane Simons, as "two disheartened Houston football fans" but said they had failed to show that any federal laws had been violated or that constitutional rights had been impinged.

The suit contended the plaintiffs had suffered "anger, consternation, embarrassment and sleeplessness" because of the ruling by side judge Donald Orr that nullified a touchdown pass reception by Oiler Mike Renfro. In addition to damages, the suit sought an injunction against the Super Bowl game between Pittsburgh and Los Angeles.

Pabst said Bue's ruling will be appealed. Meanwhile, another Oiler fan, Nick Clayton, said petitions bearing 166,464 signatures and demanding a replay of the game Pittsburgh won, 27-13, have been delivered to the National Football League office.

School board meets today to discuss Palmer's resignation

A Pampa board of education member dispelled rumor's Wednesday that Harvester football coach Danny Palmer was fired by the school board, prompting him to apply for the head coaching position at Wichita Falls High School.

"Contrary to stories that have been going around, Coach Palmer was not terminated by the board or was his resignation requested," school board member Paul Simmons said.

Bob Phillips, Pampa Superintendent of Schools, said Palmer's resignation has been received and a special meeting of the school board has been called at noon today. Phillips said he would recommend that the board accept Palmer's resignation and that a search begin immediately for a replacement for the vacant head coaching position.

Palmer was named head football coach at Wichita Falls High School during a school board meeting at Wichita Falls Monday night. He is expected to assume his duties there Monday.

Soviet track team to compete in Mason-Dixon meet

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A track team from the Soviet Union will compete in the Mason-Dixon Games scheduled here Feb. 8-9, according to meet director Charlie Zipprich.

Mason-Dixon officials made a commitment to the Amateur Athletic Union last month to accept the Russian team, Zipprich said Wednesday.

They were forced to reconsider, however, because of tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union that arose after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan earlier this month.

"We had made the commitment before the Russians went into Afghanistan," Zipprich said. "There were no controversies at all. It sounded like it would be fantastic if we could get the Russians.

"But then we had to start weighing our position more. We talked about it amongst our people, began taking their temperature, so to speak. We decided it was in our best interest to take the Russians at this time. It would be good for the meet, good for the sport and good for the people of Louisville in general."

Zipprich said he received a letter Monday from AAU headquarters in Indianapolis confirming that the Russian team would compete in Louisville as part of a five-meet, three-week tour of the U.S.

Greene admits he's not mean

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — Is Mean Joe Greene really mean? If so, how mean is he? Not mean at all, Mean Joe insists. Even his unerring nickname bears a false connotation.

"I got it when I was playing at North Texas State," he said. "Not because I was rough on the field. The guys tacked it on me because it was a rhyme."

"Mean Greene," get it? They couldn't call me 'Mean Greene' not when I weighed 280 pounds."

Mean Joe's massive body shook with the depth of the guffaw that erupted from his own private joke.

He doesn't weigh 280 now. The guide lists him as 6-foot-4 and 260 pounds. In his pads he looks 8-3 and 400.

He is an awesome creature with powerful shoulders, arms like wagon tongues, hands as big as catcher's mitts, a face covered by mustache and sinister beard.

For most of his 11 years in the National Football League he has epitomized bone-crushing defense for a team that has won three of the last five Super Bowls and is going for an unprecedented fourth against the Los Angeles Rams Sunday.

Now that Oakland's Jack Tatum has hit the stands with his controversial autobiography, "They Call Me Assassin," and TV's "60 Minutes" has put a national spotlight on escalating football injuries, Mean Joe has emerged as one of the most interviewed personalities of Super Bowl Week.

I haven't read the book," Greene said of Tatum's opus, "but I don't like the expression 'assassin.' We're sportsmen, we're athletes."

"All players belong to the same fraternity. We try to help our teams win. It's not a personal war. We don't purposely try to maim and destroy. We meet force with force."

Tatum, whose crashing tackle of Darryl Stingley in a 1978 exhibition game left the New England player paralyzed from the neck down, has written that to pro defensive players it is not enough just to stop a man.

Rams cornerbacks may hold key to victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "How do you defend against Lynn Swann and a John Stallworth? Simple," says Dave Elmendorf. "You do it with a Pat Thomas and a Rod Perry." That may well be the most critical matchup in Sunday's Super Bowl game, with Thomas and Perry, the Los Angeles Rams' cornerbacks, trying to muzzle the Pittsburgh Steelers' terrifying tandem of deep threats. No other team has really been able to stifle both wide receivers. Double-covering one meant handing Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw an engraved invitation to exploit the other. "But no other team has two cornerbacks that are as capable as ours," Elmendorf, the Rams' strong safety, said Wednesday before the team began what Coach Ray Malavasi described as its two hardest days of workouts. "When you've got guys who are as capable as Rod and Pat and you're matching them up against Stallworth and Swann, you've got two natural battles there — and I think that in the past we've won the battles," said Elmendorf, reflecting on the Rams' 10-7 victory over the Steelers during the 1978 season. In that game, Pittsburgh's two wide receivers were limited to just 69 yards on five receptions. "We'll be up in their faces just about all day," said Thomas, who missed half the season with a knee injury and returned as a starter in the Rams' 9-0 shutout of Tampa Bay in the National Conference championship game. Swann's biggest asset, Thomas said, is his concentration. "The guy can catch a needle in the dark — he can catch anything," he said. "If the ball hits his hands, he's got it. That doesn't intimidate me at all — but I think we can do a few things to intimidate him...I think it's my job to destroy the will of the receiver. Swann is a man; he's human. And you can destroy his will to catch the ball." That sounded strangely like talk from Oakland's Jack Tatum and George Atkinson and Dallas' Cliff Harris a few years back, when Swann suffered a concussion in the American Conference championship game against the Raiders, then killed the Cowboys in the Super Bowl with one magnificent catch after another. "Making a sure, solid tackle; that's basically what Pat was talking about," said Perry. "If you hit him hard enough, maybe you can make him lose his concentration. We're not talking about going in trying to deliberately hurt a person. But when you get a person thinking, 'Where's Pat Thomas?' or 'Where's Dave Elmendorf?' get him thinking about something other than the ball for one split second, you've got an edge on him."

Tamburo may be going to Michigan

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Michigan State University may be interested in the services of Texas Tech Athletic Director Dick Tamburo, according to published reports here and in Lansing, Mich. But Tamburo told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal Wednesday he has not been contacted by anyone in Michigan. Tamburo was an outstanding player for MSU. Also, former Tech President Cecil Mackey is now president of MSU. There were also rumors that Michigan State is interested in Tech football Coach Rex Dockery, now in his second season. MSU officials have been looking for a replacement to Joe Kearney, who moved to Arizona State as athletic director. They also need a head football coach to replace Darryl Rogers, who has left MSU and hopes to be named head coach at Arizona State soon.

Is the Super Bowl going too far?

By Murray Olderman

PASADENA, Calif. (NEA) — The story of the athletic contest called ingloriously the Super Bowl (edition XIV coming up) is really the super bucks involved. For the privilege of bringing it to an expected audience of 100 million people on Jan. 20, in living color, the CBS television network is investing the nice round sum of $7.5 million. Of that sum, $6 million alone goes to the National Football League for the telecast rights. The rest of the money goes for such tidy items as importing an armada of 150 people (the production moguls camping in at the lush Century Plaza in Los Angeles' Century City while the technicians get to mingle with the little old ladies of Pasadena, closer to the scene of Super Sunday's action); entertaining maybe 1,000 agency persons, clients and sponsors; setting up 31 TV cameras, 20 of them at the Rose Bowl, the others at eight live remote locations for a 90-minute pre-game show; using three videotape machines with slow-motion capabilities and three slow-motion stop-action discs plus three character generators (for show titles); stringing 20 miles of video and audio cable; 75 microphones, 100 monitors and 20 vehicles at the game site... where? "It's our biggest show every two years," says Frank Smith, the white-haired gentleman who is the CBS vice president in charge of sports. "Nothing in the total scheme of our operation is as big or successful. The last time we had the game, in January of 1978, it had the highest rating of any show in TV history." Actually, that claim is a little extravagant. The audience for Super Bowl XII in New Orleans was the largest ever for a sports show. But it was not as great as that for the last segment of "Roots" on ABC — or for Super Bowl XIII on NBC. "The Super Bowl," notes Smith, "has become an event." The intimation is that it has superseded the mere playing of a football game. There is the tremendous hoopla of Super Bowl week, starting with the arrival of the teams, fanning out to parties in Beverly Hills, where most of the NFL owners will be ensconced, with a couple of thousand of media people scurrying around Southern California from their headquarters hotel near the airport, looking for legitimate stories. On Friday night, the commissioner of the NFL has his annual bash for 3,000 or so guests at the Pasadena civic center. Big Bands is the theme for this year. On Saturday night, among assorted galas, CBS has a private little party for 500 couples. And then there's the presentation of the actual event. "The show begins at 4:30 p.m. (EST) with a one-and-a-half hour pre-game show," details Smith. This will find Lindsey Nelson in Stuttgart, Germany, getting ready to watch the game with the U.S. Army Seventh Corps; Paul Hornung and Carroll O'Connor chiming in from the Ginger Man restaurant in Los Angeles; Jayne Kennedy perched in a helicopter over Southern California; and other assorted entertainment from remote locations. Jack Whitaker will open it all up with an essay from a hill overlooking the Rose Bowl. "The game will start around 6 p.m.," Smith continues, "and should end at 9:40, followed by a 20-minute post-game show. We should be off the air at 10 o'clock. "That'll be 15 minutes of concentrated football action in a five-and-a-half hour telecast." Don't snicker. CBS won't be a loser. Any company wanting to peddle its wares or message during the game has had to come up with $238,000 for a 30-second spot, which means $476,000 a minute. Since there will be the normal 22 minutes of commercial time during the game, there's a tidy yield of $10,472,000. That doesn't count the dozen or so commercial minutes of interruption during the pre- and post-game shows, at a lesser but still hefty rate. That isn't pure gravy. A 15-percent commission goes to advertising agencies, and the 214 CBS affiliate stations (plus 55 on the Canadian Broadcasting Company) come in for 12 percent of the action.

"The money we have tied up in this game," admits Smith, "is a reasonable amount. We can make it work. Peter (Rozelle, the commissioner of the NFL) has never used the Super Bowl for leverage. The networks have been able to live with him successfully. He drives a hard package, but he sees to it we come out a little ahead." Yet there is uneasiness, in and out of the broadcast industry, over the escalating costs of sports television. There is it heading, with one game representing a $7.5 million venture, NBC paying $85 million to put on the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, and ABC having committed itself to a whopping $225 million for the rights to the 1984 Games in Los Angeles? "NBC will come close to breaking even on the Olympics," predicts Smith. "If you have the prestige of an event and break even, you can justify the concept of staging such an event." "But ABC way overpaid. They outbid us by 75 million and NBC by $95 million. And it may cost them another $50 million as the host-country broadcaster for the rest of the world." "I think we have a problem in the sports world. We've been bidding each other up. People will get hurt. You start to lose relationships. We (CBS) made hockey work on television. Then the NHL chose to leave us for a relatively small amount and has since bombed out. None of the networks want it."

Nets turn back Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Newlin can't explain the New Jersey Nets' dominance of the Houston Rockets, but said "we'll take anything we can get" after the Nets' 122-112 win over Houston Wednesday night. It was the Nets' third win in four meetings this year with Houston, and Newlin dumped in 30 points — 14 in the fourth quarter — to snap a five-game Rocket winning streak. The Nets led 62-53 at halftime, then Houston rallied in the third quarter to take a 90-89 lead as the quarter ended. But the Nets took off at the start of the final quarter, outscoring the Rockets 17-8 in the first six minutes to move back into a comfortable 106-96 lead. And the Nets not only outshot the Rockets, they out-rebounded them by a 17-7 margin, despite Houston center Moses Malone, who pulled down a game-high 19 rebounds and led all scorers with 31 points. "We didn't have top effort," said Houston coach Del Harris. "Coming in, I thought we would play well. We had won five in a row and had a good practice Tuesday." "We weren't there defensively, and we just got outplayed." Harris said the Rockets "threw everything" at Newlin in an effort to slow him down, but nothing worked. New Jersey Coach Kevin Loughery said his team "had control of the game most of the way. We've lost 15 games by six points or less this year. We've stayed close by control. Tonight, we came through." "We've been lucky to play them (Houston) well," said Newlin. "Every win is exciting to us because we scrap hard. That's how we win." Rick Barry hit the 25,000th point of his NBA-ABA career in the second quarter, joining Wilt Chamberlain, Oscar Robertson, John Havlicek and Jerry West in the exclusive club. Rudy Tomjanovich had 20 points for Houston and Barry added 16. Cliff Robinson hit 22 and Calvin Natt had 19 for New Jersey.

Nuggets drop seventh in a row

By the Associated Press

The price of gold soared to a record $770 an ounce in New York Wednesday but Denver had a couple of far less valuable Nuggets. Actually in Indianapolis, where James Edwards scored 21 points and six teammates also hit double figures as the Indiana Pacers trounced the Nuggets 117-99. Back home in Denver, the Nuggets announced that David Thompson, who has missed seven recent games with a bruised heel, will have his left foot placed in a cast and is expected to be sidelined for three to six weeks with strained ligaments. And Nugget George McGinnis, an ex-Pacer, was back home in Indiana, where he managed a measly seven points as Denver's losing streak reached seven games overall — and 15 in a row on the road. The Pacers, who led at halftime 49-45, outscored the Nuggets 12-4 in the first three minutes of the third period and again by the same margin in the last 3 1/2 minutes of the quarter. Besides Edwards' 21 points, Alex English and Clemon Johnson had 16 apiece. In other National Basketball Association action, the Boston Celtics defeated the Chicago Bulls 114-104, the Philadelphia 76ers downed the Portland Trail Blazers 121-110, the Kansas City Kings edged the Milwaukee Bucks 112-108, the New Jersey Nets beat the Houston

Rockets 122-112, the Phoenix Suns whipped the Utah Jazz 115-108, the Los Angeles Lakers nipped the Golden State Warriors 97-96 and the San Diego Clippers shaded the Atlanta Hawks 111-108. Celtics 114, Bulls 104. Nate Archibald scored 22 points, including 20 from the foul line, and Dave Cowens triggered a decisive spurt in the final three minutes. Boston blew a 13-point lead at the outset of the fourth period but rallied for its 19th victory in 21 home games. Cowens, who had 21 points, broke a 100-100 tie by grabbing a rebound and scoring on a layup for his 21st point. Chicago's Reggie Theus led all scorers with 26. Julius Erving scored 26 points and Philadelphia snapped the 19th tie of the game and went on to beat the Blazers. Portland's Kermit Washington tied the score 69-69 with 5:51 left in the third quarter but Darryl Dawkins hit on a reverse layup to start a 20-9 surge that carried the 76ers to an 89-78 lead after three periods. Erving scored 13 points and Maurice Cheeks 12 to lead the Sixers' third-quarter assault. The victory was the sixth straight, 10th in the last 11 and 20th of 23 for Philadelphia. It was the 14th loss in the last 15 road games for Portland. Kings 112, Bucks 108. Bill Robinzine banked home an off-balance rebound of a missed shot with 25 seconds left, helping Kansas

City defeat Milwaukee and widen its Midwest Division lead over the Bucks to three games. Otis Birdson scored 28 points and Robinzine and Wedman 19 each for the Kings. Robinzine's basket gave the Kings a 110-108 lead and Wedman added two free throws. Nets 122, Rockets 112. Ex-Rocket Mike Newlin scored 30 points and rookie Cliff Robinson 22 as New Jersey snapped Houston's five-game winning streak. The Nets led 62-53 at the half but Houston rallied for a 90-89 lead going into the final quarter. Newlin then scored 14 points as the Nets outscored the Rockets 17-8 in the first six minutes of the period. Houston's Moses Malone led all scorers with 31 points and teammate Rick Barry hit his 25,000th point as a pro in the second quarter, joining Wilt Chamberlain, Oscar Robertson, John Havlicek and Jerry West. Suns 115, Jazz 108. Truck Robinson scored 27 points and Paul Westphal 23 as Phoenix handed Utah its fifth consecutive setback. Terry Furlow led Utah with 24 points and Adrian Dantley, back in the Utah lineup after sitting out four games with a pulled hamstring, managed 14. Lakers 97, Warriors 96. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 10 points in the final quarter and sent Los Angeles ahead to stay on a free throw with 1:44 remaining.

Lombardi awards dinner tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — The legend and philosophy of Vince Lombardi apparently knew no bounds, flourishing in the 1970s in such diverse locations as Freer, Texas; Hinckley, Ohio and Natchez, Miss. "Back when I was growing up, as little information as we got in a small town, I read Vince Lombardi's book," said Texas defensive tackle Steve McMichael, a Freer native and one of four finalists for tonight's presentation of the 10th annual Vince Lombardi Award. "I decided that's the way to win so I've tried to pattern my football career around his philosophies. So winning this award would just be the epitome of what I've tried to achieve."

$125 per plate affair to name the nation's outstanding collegiate lineman of 1979. Proceeds from the dinner go to the American Cancer Society for research. Other finalists are North Carolina State's Jim Ritcher, Hinckley, Ohio; Pittsburgh's Hugh Green, Natchez, Miss. and Southern California's Brad Budde. Ritcher, who earlier won the Outland Trophy as the nation's outstanding interior lineman, also recalled Lombardi's influence on his career. "The main thing he's known for is discipline and that's sort of what I think about," Ritcher said. "I've always respected people with a lot of discipline so that's why it would mean a lot to me to win it."

Green, the lone junior among the four finalists, said Lombardi's philosophies pervade southern football. "I've read his different philosophies and I think any player that grows up in the deep south, grows up by those theories," Green said. All four finalists were first or second team Associated Press All-American selections last season. Budde, 6-5, 253, was a first team All-America offensive guard, who led USC steeps for Heisman Trophy winner Charles White, the nation's leading rusher. Green, 6-1, 224, a first team All-American defensive end, led Pittsburgh in tackles with 126. McMichael, a first team All-America defensive tackle, led the Longhorn defense with 133 tackles and nine quarterback sacks. Ritcher, a 6-3, 245 center, played in the Hula Bowl and Japan Bowl earlier this month. Six of the previous nine Lombardi Award winners also won Outland Trophies. Penn State's Bruce Clark won the Lombardi Award last year.

Memories of the former Green Bay and Washington coach who died of cancer in 1970 will be rekindled tonight at the 10th annual Lombardi Award dinner, a

'Skag': monument to old ideals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pittsburgh, in case you haven't been reading your sports pages, is the latest edition of "America's City." "America's City" used to be Dallas, back when progress and boom were popular notions. But troubled times call for the reassurance of more basic values, and Pitt's is a burgh that oozes basic values. Hard hat and hard work, no-nonsense sweat-of-the-brow stuff.

According to sports stories I've read lately, the town has managed to infuse these qualities into its sporting clubs. Thus the baseball Pirates and football Steelers are champions because they're like their town: Tough, honest and hard working.

Ridiculous, perhaps, but convenient. If the work ethic needs a symbol, Pittsburgh is as good as any; better than most, probably.

Which leads us to NBC and its new series, "Skag." This is a monument to old fashioned ideals, with Karl Malden as a tough steelworker patriarch trying to hold together a disintegrating way of life.

It is, I suppose, offered as a study of America in microcosm. That, it may well be.

Malden plays Peter Skagza, hard-working son of hard-working immigrant Serbs, the very personification of the urban workingman ethic. At times, you get the feeling that if Malden bumps into a sharp corner, America will come spilling out.

He lives, of course, in Pittsburgh.

The course of the new series (which begins tonight) was mapped out in a three-hour premiere last week. The opening scene was a synopsis: In the furnace room of a steel mill, two steelworkers are trapped beneath a conveyor carrying smoldering steel. Fire and sparks everywhere. Our hero, Blood 'n' Guts Skag, ignores the dangers and works the men free.

Skag goes home, where things aren't as easy. His son John (for whom Skag has worked and saved lo, these many years) is home from college. He has brought his girlfriend with him. Said girlfriend, being rich and modern, is a Class-A wrongo in Skag's thinking.

She wants to sleep with John, just as she does at school. "All I know," Skag tells his wife (Piper Laurie), "is that I don't want us running a house of ill-repute around here."

Rock star remains in Japanese jail

TOKYO (AP) — Rock star Paul McCartney faces a second night in a Japanese jail as narcotics officials question him about half a pound of marijuana customs officers said they found in his suitcase.

The Clear Light Society, which is campaigning to legalize marijuana smoking in Japan, called for the immediate release of the 37-year-old ex-Beatle. Tokyo newspapers predicted he would be expelled from the country without being brought to trial.

If convicted of possessing and smuggling marijuana, he could be sentenced to seven years in prison and fined $2,000.

McCartney was arrested Wednesday when he, his wife Linda, their four children and his rock group Wings arrived for a 11-concert tour. He waved cheerfully to a group of high school students when he was brought from police headquarters to the Central Narcotics Bureau today for questioning. He also was to confer with a Japanese attorney recommended by the British consulate.

MORK AND MINDY, Robin Williams, right, and Pam Dawber, center, admire the watch of their new friend Tom Bickley, played by Tom Sullivan, a blind singer who is performing in a local night club in 'Mork Learns to See', and episode of Mork & Mindy airing today. (The series' new time slot on ABC-TV.)

Sixth wife's death prompts police probe

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Before she died, Edward James Huggins' sixth wife said she had been shot by her husband. Now the county sheriff is reopening his investigation of the unsolved shotgun slaying of the man's fourth wife and the drug overdose death of the fifth.

District Court Judge John Kilby on Wednesday ordered Huggins, 48, to stand trial for murder in the shooting death of his sixth wife, 38-year-old Rose Lynn Williams Huggins.

Huggins was divorced from his first three wives but his last three wives died and Wilkes County Sheriff Kyle Gentry says he is investigating.

Rose Lynn Huggins was shot in the chest with a pistol at the couple's mobile home last month. She died a short time later at Wilkes General Hospital after telling investigators that she had been shot by her husband, authorities said.

Huggins was first married in 1955, when he was 21, to Arlene Lola Wilke of Taylorsville. She divorced him, remarried and moved to Ohio, according to relatives.

Sylvia H. Adams, a divorcee with three children, eloped to South Carolina with Huggins in 1964. They lived together for two weeks before Huggins left, she said in her 1968 request for a divorce.

In 1969, Huggins was married for six months to Pansy Elizabeth Bare of Ashe County. She asked that her divorce papers be served on Huggins in prison.

Huggins was often in prison. He has served 13 alcohol-related prison terms in the past two dozen years.

Late in June 1978, a man walking along a Brushy Mountain path found the decomposing body of Blanche Huggins in the dense undergrowth.

Huggins told detectives he and Blanche had gone for a drive to a scenic overlook on the mountain near their mobile home where they drank for a while. He fell asleep, he said. When he awakened, his wife was gone. She had been shot in the head with a shotgun.

About five months after Blanche's death, Huggins married Eva Marie Nichols Whittington and moved to the northern part of the county.

On Jan. 2, 1979, Marie Huggins died of a drug overdose after consuming between 20 and 30 Darvon capsules.

The death was ruled suicide.
