THE WORD "COACH" doesn't always depict a large rough and tough football coach barking orders at his players and throwing towels down at the side lines. It can also be associated with a tall, attractive, soft-spoken woman who teaches girls' basketball. See more about this unusual lady in Sunday's edition of the News.

I-40 road work approved

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

A New Mexico construction firm was awarded the bid on a $20 million road improvement plan by the Texas State Highway Department according to T. R. Kelley, resident engineer for the state highway department.

Kelley announced the work was awarded to Kent Nowlin Construction, Inc. from Albuquerque, N. M. for their low bid of $20,583,553.

The bids for the reconstruction of Interstate-40 located one mile west of McLean to one mile west of Alanreed were opened last week in Austin, Kelley said, at the monthly highway letting meeting of the Texas Department of Highways.

The Kent Nowlin bid was $10 million lower than the second lowest bid, he added. It was also $7 million lower than the $27 million first anticipated by the highway department for the project.

"We don't have a definite date," Kelley said concerning the beginning of the highway construction, "but we believe they will start about the first of February."

According to Kelley, the highway department plans to remove the present west bound lane of the seven mile stretch and retain the east bound lane as a frontage road.

It is then proposed that two main concrete lanes will be built north of the east bound frontage road and an asphalt frontage road will be built north of the two main lanes, he explained.

The east bound frontage road will also be resurfaced as asphalt, he added.

The project will reportedly take until Oct. 1981 to the end of Dec. 1981 to complete, Kelly said.

Bids for three other highway construction plans of interest to this area will be opened in the February highway letting in Austin, the resident engineer said.

To be considered for award by the state highway department will be projects on state highway 152 from Laketon to the Wheeler County line and from Price Road to the Carson County line.

Also to be considered will be bids for the overlay of Highway 60 (the Amarillo highway) through Pampa. This will include Frederic and Brown streets of the city, Kelley commented.

DOE: Allotment will be 'fair'

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

After receiving calls from Ron Rogers — a local businessman, a state representative, an official from Dorchester Gas Corporation and a reporter from the News, Ed T. Barrie has responded concerning the proposed assignment of five gasoline allotments to Atex Oil Company which could possibly endanger the allotments of several area small businessmen.

Barrie, the regional director of fuels regulation for the Department of Energy (DOE) in Dallas says should the assignments of gasoline be given to Atex Oil Company, it will not have a direct effect on the independent operators in Pampa.

"Atex has five gasoline suppliers," he commented, "if we make any assignment, it will be pro-rated among the five suppliers according to a percentage of use figured during the base year of Nov. 1977 to Oct. 1978."

"The obligation to Dorchester will be less than three one thousandths of the total amount," he added. According to his calculations, this would amount to between 100 and 150 gallons of gasoline per year.

Rogers also received a call from Barrie explaining the situation, but he is not convinced he would not have lost his gasoline if he had not protested.

"Evidently, somebody somewhere has done their work," he said.

After receiving a copy of a letter requesting denial of the assignments to Atex sent to Barrie from Dorchester Gas Corporation, the gas station owner attempted to contact the man directly to see what could be done before he lost his allotment.

Unable to reach Barrie after three tries, he called state representative Foster Whaley and asked for his help. Soon after, Barrie called, took the case numbers and said he would call back.

Barrie returned the call a day later and informed him of the facts and figures on the Atex gasoline assignment.

Although Rogers has tried several times for an increased gasoline allotment from the DOE, he has been refused each time.

"Why can't I get any more gasoline?" he asked, commenting on the fact that

"Atex has them (gasoline stations) popping up all over the place."

A Pampa oil and gasoline distributor — who wished to remain unidentified — said gasoline allotments are available from the smaller distributors at a slightly higher price than buying direct from a refinery such as Dorchester.

There is also a state "set aside" in Austin, described by the distributor as a "pool" of unused gasoline assignments. The set asides are granted every month to independent operators who ask for them, he commented.

Oklahoma school children spit on Wizard

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Insisting he's not looking for trouble, Ku Klux Klan Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson said Thursday he will recruit Oklahoma City schoolchildren, visit strife-torn Idabel and stage a cross-burning ceremony at an undisclosed location while in Oklahoma.

Wilkinson, 37, of Denham Springs, La., said despite a Thursday visit to Moore High School where students spat upon him and local Kleagle John Clary, he planned to make further recruiting forays to other schools today.

Klan recruiting efforts will be aimed at people "10 through 17 years old," Wilkinson said.

"Our children are not being taught what their parents want them taught," he said. "We are not going to be talked out of recruiting children."

During a short 45-minute visit near the perimeters of the Moore school, students booed and hissed at Wilkinson and Clary as they doggedly tried to enlist some teenagers in their Invisible Empire.

However, the group of about 12 white students didn't buy the white supremacy pitch from Wilkinson and Clary.

Two girls approached the men and laughed at their regalia.

"Oh, they're putting on their coneheads," cried Allison Badger and Joanna Freeman.

"I see those robes on, and it makes me sick," Miss Freeman told the pair, adding, "This is what I think of you," while ripping apart a leaflet.

Wilkinson rocked back on his heels, smiled thinly and said the girl wasn't showing respect for the school by littering the grounds.

"We're on city property, remember?" she said, reminding Wilkinson that Moore police had allowed the pair to stand on the shoulder of the street as long as they didn't cross the property line of the school.

The students told Wilkinson and Clary that it was "Unity Week" at the school and that the school was hosting a basketball tournament for area high schools.

"And we don't want our names blackened by you," said Miss Freeman.

Hosts and thumbs down gestures accompanied the men as they exited the area about 45 minutes later.

Two persons, one black and one white, were killed during an outbreak of racial violence Sunday night in Idabel that erupted after a black youth was found slain.

Services were held in Idabel Thursday for Ruben Farmer, an auxiliary policeman killed in the outbreak.

Idabel Mayor Rex Helms has asked Wilkinson not to come, but Wilkinson said he plans to go anyway, and he said he hopes the mayor changes his mind.

Wade Watts of McAlester, state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, urged Idabel blacks "not to dignify" Wilkinson's visit by being enticed into "subversive action."

Watts invited "all interested persons" to a Feb. 1 meeting in the Idabel library.

The NAACP also has scheduled an executive committee meeting for Feb. 2 in Idabel.

Regarding Wilkinson's visit to Idabel, Watts said Gov. George Nigh "could stop the whole thing if he would...it can easily be broken up."

Watts said the KKK "couldn't be planning anything but trouble."

Watts said he was sending telegrams to President Jimmy Carter, the Department of Justice and to Oklahoma's U.S. senators and representatives in an effort to get KKK activities stopped in Oklahoma.

In the Oklahoma City area, two anti-klan groups held spirited meetings Thursday night.

About 350 blacks and some whites listened to anti-klan speeches held by the Youth Council of the NAACP in an Oklahoma City Baptist Church for several hours.

A similar crowd attended a rally sponsored by the Black American Law Students Association against racism at the University of Oklahoma in Norman.

Radioactive tritium leak threatens quake area

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — Water laced with radioactive tritium trickled from a storage tank at a nuclear weapons lab today, following an earthquake in Northern California that cracked buildings and roads and injured dozens of persons.

The leak at the Lawrence Livermore lab began Thursday at the rate of a quart a minute and dwindled today to several gallons per hour, according to spokesman Michael Ross.

The tank, on a base of impermeable asphalt, was cordoned off as officials monitored the leak. Ross said the leak might continue for several days.

The seepage was apparently caused by Thursday morning's quake, which measured 5.5 on the Richter scale and was described by one person as a "gentle, rolling motion, not the usual jolts."

Ross said the radioactive tritium content of the water was about half the concentration permitted to be discharged into sewers under federal regulations, and that it posed no health hazard.

Earlier, most of the lab's 7,200 employees were evacuated when officials discovered leaking gas.

Ross said the 640-acre facility, one of two nuclear weapons labs in the nation, suffered only minor structural damage. He said there was no radiation leakage from the plant's nuclear reactor.

About 30 persons at the complex were treated for minor injuries.

In Livermore, at least two dozen persons were treated for minor injuries and released, and Margy Odell, spokeswoman for a local hospital, said six persons were admitted for additional treatment.

Dr. Bruce Bolt of the Berkeley Seismographic Station said the temblor's epicenter was located 12 miles northwest of Livermore. It was followed almost immediately by two severe aftershocks measuring 5.2 and 4.8. Two more strong aftershocks occurred Thursday night, registering 4.6 and 4.4 on the Richter scale.

"Wow! It moved my refrigerator 3 1/2 feet, and threw all my antique bottles off the fireplace," said Lynne Phillips, a Livermore resident.

Among the hardest hit areas was the Springtown Mobile Home Park where residents were evacuated after 133 units were shaken from their foundations.

Classes were held outside for some 12,000 students at 14 schools while officials checked for structural damage. About 16,000 electrical customers were without power.

Mel Leach, a liquor store owner in nearby Dublin, was working in the vodka section of his warehouse when the quake hit. Moments later, gasping from the fumes of wine and liquor, he picked his way through the 16,000 square feet of shattered glass. More than 1,000 containers had crashed to the floor.

Next door, a K-Mart store suffered $100,000 damage, as ceiling lights and braces smashed to the floor and merchandise pitched into the aisles.

UPSET BY AN EARTHQUAKE, these two close neighbors embrace after viewing the damage to the home of Thelma Albach (striped sweater). The earthquake shook thousands of homes and office buildings Thursday and today officials were eyeing the damage to radioactive tanks in the Livermore, Calif. area. (AP Photo)

police report

R. J. Phillips, 720 N. Banks, reported someone entered his residence by breaking a window from the garage into the bedroom. Taken was a 5 1/2" skill saw valued at $30, 50' and 25' extension cords valued at $24, one wonder ban (12" x 1") value unknown. One suspect is listed.

Cleo Helker, 309 E. Browning, reported someone removed clothing from his vehicle. The clothing was later reported by Helker to have been found.

C. A. Selvidge, 518 Naida, reported someone took tools, a hoist, and a red Mustang from inside a building located at 1500 Alcock. The value of the tools was estimated at $200.

Michael Supon, 316 Ballard, reported he and his wife surprised subjects attempting to burglarize his residence. The subjects ran from the scene. A radio, dropped in front of a lumber company on Tyng, was taken to the police department to be checked for fingerprints.

The Optimist Club located at 601 E. Craven reported someone tried to gain entry to the building. It was not known at the time of the report if anything was taken.

Malcolm Horton, 328 Anne, reported someone removed the guns from his locked vehicle parked in front of his residence. Taken was a Colt semi-automatic 9mm and a Westfield 22 semi-automatic rifle. The guns were valued at $170.

J. B. Massa reported for Culligan Soft Water that someone entered an unlocked company vehicle while it was parked in the 1900 block of N. Russell. Two keys valued at $4 were taken. The Pampa Police Department responded to 32 calls during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

1979 marks new inflation high

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices climbed 1.2 percent in December, pushing inflation for all of last year to 13.3 percent, the worst annual increase in 33 years, the Labor Department reported today.

What cost consumers $1 in the 1967 base year cost them nearly $2.30 as 1979 ended.

Over the year, workers' real spendable earnings were down 5.3 percent as a result of higher taxes and other rising costs. While average wages before taxes rose 8 percent, they were offset by a slight decrease in hours worked and a very high inflation rate.

The acceleration last year was caused primarily by housing and energy-fueled transportation costs, which rose relentlessly and accounted for about three-fourths of the entire increase in the Consumer Price Index in 1979.

Through the inflation-ravaged year, the price of a gallon of gasoline rose an average of 35.7 cents, while home heating oil jumped an average of 33.8 cents a gallon, the department said.

All energy costs rose 34.7 percent.

Last year also saw:

- Home financing costs skyrocket 34.7 percent;
- House prices shoot up 15.8 percent;
- Food and beverages rise 10 percent;
- All transportation costs, including automobile prices, jump 18.2 percent;
- Medical care climb 10.1 percent.

December's 1.2 percent rise offered little prospect of relief to inflation-weary Americans, for it was somewhat higher than the average monthly increase through November.

The final CPI for 1979 is especially important because it affects the wages and benefits of more than 90 million Americans and the spending of billions of federal dollars.

That's because the index is used to calculate cost of living raises for more than 9 million union and non-union workers; benefit increases for more than 34 million Social Security recipients, and adjustments for 16 million food stamp recipients, 28 million children and elderly persons receiving meal subsidies and millions of other welfare recipients.

Economists estimate the government spends $1 billion to $2 billion for each percentage point rise in the CPI. The index is a survey of the average changes in retail prices for a fixed list of goods and services ranging from food, housing and energy to shoes, tobacco and vacation travel.

As a result of rising consumer

Sen. EDWARD M. KENNEDY, D-MASS., abruptly canceled a four-day presidential campaign trip to New England Thursday, and aides said he would deliver a "major policy address" in Washington on Monday. Kennedy press secretary Tom Southwick said Kennedy will not drop out of the presidential

Pathologist, chemist testify in murder trial

PLAINVIEW (AP) — A bullet pierced the forehead and destroyed the brain tissue of a Dimmitt teen-ager killed by a shotgun blast on Halloween 1977, a pathologist has testified.

Dr. Jose A. Diaz-Esquivel, who performed the autopsy, told the jury hearing the murder of self-proclaimed witch Loy Dean Stone that the victim, Roxanne Casas, died almost instantly after the blast created a 2 1/2-by-1 1/2-inch hole in her head.

Miss Casas, 15, was killed while several carloads of teen-agers cruised past Stone's home. He and his wife, Louise, are members of the Church of Wicca, which practices witchcraft.

Mrs. Stone also has been charged in the slaying, and may be tried later.

Diaz-Esquivel's testimony was interrupted Thursday when State District Judge John T. Boyd sent the jury out of the courtroom while attorneys argued over the admissibility of evidence, including the alleged weapon.

Texas Ranger John W. Dendy arrived to testify and brought two large boxes of evidence with him. Dendy had assembled the evidence, which was found by local officers during searches of Stones' property and in the pickup truck in which the victim was killed.

Dendy said he took the evidence, which included five spent shotgun shells, a piece of wadding, and some shotgun pellets, to the Department of Public Safety laboratory in Lubbock for tests.

Castro County Sheriff Granville Martin previously testified Stone voluntarily gave him the gun when the sheriff went to the Stones' house after learning of the shooting. Martin said he did not consider Stone a suspect at that time, but only wanted the shotgun to avoid any further trouble.

Boyd delayed a ruling on the admissibility so that the defense would have time to review testimony.

During later testimony, former DPS chemist Glen Johnson testified he conducted firearms and measurements.

Using Stone's shotgun, Johnson said he fired several test shots into the bed of a pickup to determine the pattern the pellets should strike metal.

Johnson left the DPS in February 1979 to open a gun shop in Denver, and was one of several witnesses prosecutors had to located before presenting their case.

Childress writer will address Wheeler Chamber

Jean Burchett will be guest speaker Saturday at the annual Wheeler Chamber of Commerce banquet.

The event will be at 7 p.m. in the Wheeler School Cafeteria. The public is invited to attend.

Mrs. Burchett, who writes a weekly newspaper column called "Daze of Our Lives", is a resident of Childress. After some 20 years as an employee of the City of Childress, she now devotes her time to speaking engagements and writing.

Her column is based on what she calls "a peanut of truth and a walnut of exaggeration."

Officers for the coming year will be installed at the banquet. Awards for Man, Woman, Teenager, Farmer and Employee of the Year also will be announced.

Student loan collection target in Bullock plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock has renewed his effort to collect more than $1.2 million in delinquent state-federal student loans for seven Texas colleges and universities.

Bullock said Thursday if the defaulters are working for the state they will get no more state salary until their education debts are settled, he said. Bullock has already cleared up more than $2 million in debts to the state student loan program by holding up checks to more than 1,000 defaulters.

State law prohibits anyone owing the state a debt from receiving state payments.

Bullock said there are 1,802 persons overdue on repayment of loans from the National Direct Student Loan program plus 400 former students of the seven schools that owe money to the state's Hinson-Hazlewood program. A total of 235 owe money to both funds.

Draft registration proposal reactions raise questions

HOUSTON (AP) — Military recruiting offices have been besieged by worried mothers and persons wanting to "sign up" for the draft in the wake of President Carter's proposal to reactivate the Selective Service.

"Most people listened to the proposal with half an ear," said army recruiter Sgt. Ron Murphy. They call and ask "where do we register?" and not when or how. The people are acting like the law has already been passed or something.

The reaction came Thursday in the wake of Carter's announcement during his state of the union message that he would take steps to reopen military draft registration for 18 to 26-year-old men, and possibly women.

The measure would have to be approved by Congress. "It's the mothers that are most scared," said one military man who asked not to be identified. "They are worried that their sons or daughters will be taken away into the service."

Navy Recruiter Chief Petty Officer Jimmy Gilbert said his office had received a lot of calls, but "no one is charging in the door ready to go."

Gilbert feels the navy will do well if the draft is started up again. "People who don't want to get drafted join the navy," he said.

"People were calling me asking me how they can get out of the draft," said Gunner Sgt. W. E. Williams, a marine recruiter. "There isn't any draft yet, but they want to know what they can do to avoid the service."

Commenting on the reaction to the draft proposal, Williams said "I just don't understand it. We don't get rich in the service, but it's travel, adventure and job security."

"They are saying 'leave us alone,'" he added. "I thought people were getting more patriotic since this Iranian thing, but no one seems to have the patriotic feeling anymore."

Carter administration officials say they don't anticipate any serious resistance from young people who will be ordered to register for the draft a few months from now.

But for the time being, they are remaining noncommittal on the question most directly affecting half of those young people: Whether the 16 million women between age 18 and 26 will be subject to registration like their 16 million male contemporaries.

Without referring to either gender, one high official, who asked to remain nameless, said: "They're not being conscripted for some highly unpopular war. They're not being conscripted at all, and I don't think we should assume young people are any less patriotic than their parents."

Nonetheless, officials of the U.S. National Student Association and a coalition of 42 peace, civil rights, religious and student groups pledged Thursday to picket, protest, demonstrate and hold campus teach-ins to register their opposition to President Carter's call to readiness.

As if on cue, students at Stanford University in California burned a facsimile of a draft card Thursday at a rally.

"If registration becomes a reality, we will call for a massive national protest on the day registration is resumed," said Barry Lynn, a spokesman for the Committee Against Registration and the Draft, a lobbying group that claims to represent various activist organizations.

Frank Jackalone, chairman of the National Student Association, said, "We don't believe the youth of this country will tolerate such an invasion of their civil rights."

But the White House clearly thinks they will.

One official acknowledged that the registration requirement would add a measure of uncertainty to the lives and planning of the nation's young people but insisted: "It doesn't intrude on their jobs or their activities as students. The notion of simply being ready seems eminently sensible and one they can accept."

The official noted that Carter has the authority to resume registration of males between the ages of 18 and 26 and only needs to ask Congress for the estimated $10 million the process would require and for some "clean-up legislation" to streamline the registration procedures abandoned in 1975 by then-President Gerald R. Ford.

To institute an actual draft that would order people into the armed forces, however, would require special legislation that the official conceded would be "highly controversial."

What one White House official called the "open question" of whether to require women to register can be expected to cause some controversy — regardless of what Carter decides.

Carter would have to ask Congress for authority to register women, but his long-time support of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution and sexual integration of the armed forces suggests he may be ready to ask for that authority.

Bush: out there to beat em

By Robert Walters

CLINTON, Iowa (NEA) - He's the hottest new item in American politics, and the size of the crowd he has attracted in this Mississippi River Community reflects the surging popularity of George Herbert Walker Bush.

It's 10 o'clock on a Saturday morning, an unlikely time for a political rally, but more than 300 people have filled a local restaurant far beyond its normal capacity to hear Bush campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Bush doesn't disappoint the crowd. "I'm absolutely confident that I would be a better president than any of the others," he proclaims, stabbing the air with an outstretched index finger to emphasize the point.

"I am the only candidate who started a business from scratch and built it. I know what it is to make a payroll," Bush says as his clenched fist comes down on the podium.

"I am sick and tired of people tearing down this country, always pointing to our weaknesses," he adds, slicing an open palm through the air.

Bush is hardly a newcomer to politics, but the confident ring in his voice, the brisk rhetoric and the crisp gestures all are relatively new additions to a campaign that only six months ago was virtually unnoticed.

He quietly embarked on his bid for the presidency in early 1977, holding small meetings with potential supporters and accepting invitations to address any group that would hear him. The substance of his speeches attracted conservatives, while his style appealed to moderates and even liberals.

An indefatigable campaigner, Bush last year traveled 206,000 miles through 38 states, with only 27 days off. Either he or his wife, Barbara, visited 86 of Iowa's 99 counties and appeared at 54 different events in January alone.

When Bush toured eastern Iowa in a private plane during the first week of January, the results of those efforts were obvious. More than 400 turned out for a luncheon speech in Dubuque, north of here. The crowd in the tiny community of West Union, the state's northeast corner, exceeded 200.

At a press conference in the corn crib of a farm outside Davenport — with baby pigs squirming in a pail beside the podium — Bush announced the support of Rep. James A.S. Leach, R-Iowa, in Cedar Rapids the next day, Rep. Thomas J. Tauke, R-Iowa, offered his endorsement.

Selected by Bush to run his national campaign are two of the country's most respected political managers — James Baker, chairman of then-President Gerald R. Ford's 1976 re-election campaign, and David Keene, a longtime political aide to former California Gov. Ronald V. Reagan.

They developed a strategy based on the assumption that Bush would have to make strong showing in this year's first two contests — the Iowa precinct caucuses and the New Hampshire primary — in order to distinguish himself from others in the crowded field trailing Reagan in the early popularity polls.

In Iowa, for example, the Bush organization meticulously constructed a grass-roots organization and a get-out-the-vote operation so impressive that even his opponents grudgingly acknowledge it to be the best of any Republican contender. Heading the statewide operation here have been George W. Wittgraf, a politically savvy lawyer from the small town of Cherokee, and Richard Bond, a brilliant young tactician who has overwhelmed the opposition with his technical skills.

Complementing that organization is a candidate who has become a poised public speaker, abandoning a dreary, lifeless rhetoric style in favor of a more forceful and emotional delivery, while still effectively displaying his intelligence, integrity and sense of humor.

Finally, Bush holds exceptionally strong credentials in the foreign policy field — an asset that usually isn't especially valuable in presidential campaigns that traditionally focus on domestic issues.

But international developments have dominated the race so far this year — and Bush is in a strong position to capitalize on that unexpected turn of events.

Of doctrines and detentie

By Don Graff

Soviet-American relations have gone through so many ups and downs since World War II that they might almost have been conducted in an elevator rather than through conventional channels of diplomacy.

Not, as it happens, that those channels have always been so conventional — or, in fact, have always been used. Sometimes the mode of communication between the two superpowers has been brute force, or the threat of same.

That's the way it was in the very beginning, in what might be termed the "sub-basement" postwar phase. The force was Soviet, entrenched in the northernmost provinces of Iran where Moscow gave every indication of remaining. The threat was American, backed by the military machine the war had established as the world's greatest; and it compelled Soviet withdrawal.

That early confrontation set the pattern for years to come — challenge, usually Soviet with the show or implication of force, and response, American and usually effective.

The late '40s and the '50s are studded with the crises and countermeasures that are the landmarks of the period's history. A perceived threat to Greece and Turkey produced the Truman Doctrine. That seminal event in American foreign policy committed the United States to aid actual and potential targets of Communist expansion and evolved into the Marshall Plan, the stunningly successful reconstruction of Western Europe as a bulwark against Soviet advance.

One after another came the Berlin blockade and airlift, the establishment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Korean war, the East German uprising, Hungary.

With the death of Stalin in 1953, however, a process of change began, slowly at first, but more rapidly as the pragmatic if erratic Nikita Khrushchev consolidated his position as the despot's successor.

This, in comparison with what had gone before, was a definite up period. It brought four-power summit conferences, tentative moves toward nuclear control and arms limitations, prospects of expanded economic and cultural contact, the visit of Khrushchev himself to the United States.

But if it had its ups, there were also plenty of downs. The period also brought the shooting down of the American U-2 spy plane, the threat that the Communist system would not only overtake the West but bury it, the Cuban missile crisis.

A long-term upturn did not begin to develop until Khrushchev had been succeeded by Leonid Brezhnev. It appeared first in cautious contacts with the Johnson administration, motivated in large part by hopes of enlisting Kremlin influence on behalf of a Vietnamese settlement, and flowered under Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger under "detente." This was not a final settling of accounts between the long-time adversaries. Detente was best defined by Kissinger himself as "a process of managing relations with a potentially hostile country in order to preserve peace while maintaining our vital interests."

It involved, over a decade, conclusion of one strategic arms agreement and negotiation of another, European security understandings, increased trade, joint space missions and cooperation in a variety of environmental projects.

Some meaningful moves, some largely for show.

Now Soviet-American relations are headed down again, propelled by the Afghanistan invasion and the intermeshed events in the turbulent Mideast that preceded it. And we have a prospective new doctrine. Jimmy Carter's redefinition of America's vital interests in that region and the measures necessary to secure them.

The likelihood that the elevator will plunge back to the basement is, however, remote. It is a much more complicated world than in Harry Truman's day, or even Richard Nixon's. Detente has, in part, seen to that.

Whether they like it or not, the superpowers are too involved with each other for either to act in total independence. And they still have too much in common — much more to lose than either could hope to gain — to permit themselves to be drawn into a nuclear showdown.

These, every bit as much as American interests and Soviet expansion, are the facts of the relationship today. And any doctrine for the '80s, to be valid, must encompass them.

The corporate ladder

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON--As more and more women join the work force, it follows that many of them are getting the key to the corporate washroom. When these women reach executive levels, it is only natural that companies not only investigate how effective they will be, but also how their spouses will fit in as "members of the team."

There was a time when a man who was being considered for a good job had to produce his wife to see if she was the "right kind of person" to be married to a corporation executive. This was usually done discreetly by inviting the wife to dinner with her husband to meet the other executives and their wives.

But now for the first time companies are taking a harder look at the husbands of women they are planning to hire.

Flagstaff, a pal, had just been put through an ordeal, and he reported back to me the next day about what had happened.

"Janet told me," he said, "that she thought she had the vice presidency of United Globetex all sewed up. The final test, she said, was how the top enchiladas reacted to me. You can imagine how nervous I was. Because her career was at stake, I asked her if I should wear a hat and white gloves—but she said a dark blue suit, a white shirt and a conservative tie would do just fine. Then I said, 'What do I say to all these big shots? I'm not good at small talk...'

"Just be yourself," she told me, "they don't expect anything great out of an executive's husband. But since you'll be traveling with me a lot, they want to make sure that you won't do anything to disgrace the company."

"I asked her if I should bone up on the corporation so I didn't look ignorant when it came to United Globetex affairs. She said she didn't think I should discuss business as I would only make a fool of myself. So I said, 'What should I talk about?' and she replied, 'The children, clothes, football—but don't forget to tell them you went to Harvard so they won't think you're a dummy...'

"Well, last night I went through my ordeal of fire. They took us to the Four Seasons restaurant. There were three executives and their spouses.

"The husband of the president was a mousy type and he gave me the once-over like I was dirt. He wanted to know how my golf game was. I told him I didn't play golf. I thought Janet would die. But the president was very nice and tried to put me at ease. She said some of the husbands of the top echelon didn't play golf either. If you want to know the truth I think she was making a pass at me—but I ignored it."

"After the chitchat, the executive vice-president got down to business. She said a husband's role in the company was just as important as the wife's. She expected us to be a team. That meant I had to entertain important customers in my home or in a restaurant, take the spouses shopping or sightseeing, and make them feel welcome while my wife was trying to close the deal."

"Janet's immediate boss asked me if I had a drinking problem, which I of course denied. She asked me if I minded Janet going to meetings in other cities and being away from home when duty called. I said, of course, I didn't. I was not one of those husbands who always complained when his wife started packing her bag."

"This seemed to satisfy them all, and even the mousy husband of the president gave the impression that I would fit in. As a matter of fact, as we left the restaurant, the executive vice president whispered to Janet, 'I think your husband is adorable, and he seems awfully intelligent for a man...'

"That must have pleased Janet no end," I said to Flagstaff.

"It did. When we got home she hugged and kissed me and said, 'Honey, I'm on my way up the corporate ladder, and whatever happens, I'm taking you with me...'

Trade with Russia

Charles D. Van Eaton, Ph.D.

Igor Glogolev visited Hillsdale College this past spring in conjunction with our Center for Constructive Alternatives program. He lectured to classes as well as to a general assembly of students, faculty, and visitors. Dr. Glogolev spent several days with us and was available to anyone who might want to speak with him. I took advantage of his kindness to ask a whole host of questions.

Dr. Glogolev was a member of the Soviet Union's Salt II negotiating team. He defected and now lives in this country.

During the time he was with us he asked the obvious question, "Should the United States ratify the Salt II treaty with the Soviet Union?" His answer was a resounding NO. Glogolev argued that he knew from first hand experience as a Soviet official that Russia fully intends to put itself in a position to dictate the terms under which it will allow the United States and the other nations of the free world to exist. The United States ratification of Salt II, he argued, is essential to that goal.

Our ratification of Salt II is not all Russia needs. In response to a question I asked during a question and answer period following one of his lectures he said that the United States was making a grave mistake by exporting goods to the Soviets — especially high-technology goods. Without these goods they would not be able to allocate resources to the military at the same high rates which currently prevail. I presume that Igor Glogolev knows more about the contribution which our exports make to the Soviet military build-up than the folks in Washington — after all, he was part of the plan.

What do we ship to the Soviet Union anyway? Everyone knows that we ship grain to that country — 25 million metric tons were scheduled for shipment this year before the President announced an embargo on 17 million tons of that total. (A metric ton is 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.) But grain is not the only thing we export to the Soviet Union. We export high-technology equipment such as computers, micro-processing gear, and lasers. In addition we ship oil and gas drilling equipment, aluminum-smelting technology, and the total developments and engineering of the very plant which built the trucks which carried Russian troops into Afghanistan.

The theoretical argument for free markets begins with the argument for free trade which states that free exchange of goods across international borders is mutually beneficial when nations specialize in the production and export of those goods which they can produce at lower costs, relative to other nations, while importing those goods whose production costs are relatively high. In this model goods are ultimately traded for goods and everyone is better off as a result. That is all good and well except that the United States + Soviet trade doesn't fit this model.

In discussing our economic relationship with the Soviet Union I have tried to avoid the word "trade." We haven't really traded with the Russians. We have exported goods to Russia — and therein lies a distinction with a critical difference. Mutually beneficial trade involves the movement of goods and services in both directions with the greatest benefit from this movement accruing to the nation which obtains the largest amount of imported goods and services for the least sacrifice of exported goods and services.

What have we obtained from the Soviets as their exports to us in payment for our exports of food and technology to them? Nothing! In fact our exports to them are shipped on credit extended by the United States Government at interest rates below what you and I pay for our own credit. In effect we subsidize Russia's ability to reallocate their own resources to military adventures — they do not have to use labor and materials to produce goods which they can sell to us. Theirs is the best of all possible worlds.

Igor Glogolev wonders if the United States has a death-wish. I'm beginning to wonder the same thing. Perhaps the Washington folks think that Russia pays us by permitting us to exist. I don't think it has worked. Lenin was probably right when he said that the capitalist would sell you the rope with which you hang him. I'm not anxious to hang.

SENIOR GUARD Steve Glover scored a season-high 20 points in Pampa's 62-46 District 3-AAA win over Tascosa Tuesday night. The Harvesters visit Palo Duro at 7:45 p.m. tonight. (Staff Photo)

Pampa visits Palo Duro tonight for key game

By L.D. STRATE

In a pre-season interview on the District 3-AAAA basketball race this season, Palo Duro coach Ed Smith said he rated his Dons as the team to beat, but he expected strong challenges from Amarillo High and Tascosa.

Smith forgot to mention his neighbors to the east, but action often speaks louder than words.

Going into tonight's crucial 3-AAAA contest at Palo Duro, the Pampa Harvesters stand 2-0 in district standings with victories over Caprock and aforementioned Tascosa.

Recalling Smith's statement, Pampa coach Garland Nichols said, "I don't think we're that far out of it. If we win tonight, we should at least end up in a tie for the title. We also stand a good chance of clinching it if we win because Amarillo High would have to beat both Palo Duro and us. That's how important this game is tonight."

Nichols admits Palo Duro won't be easy to take. "They're tall, they like to press and they're a high scoring team," Nichols said. "If they've got a weakness it's defense because they try to outshoot everybody and tend to forget how many points the other team is scoring."

The Dons are led by 6-7 center Todd Loftis and lighting-quick guard Tony Westmoreland. Their only district outing was last week's 70-56 win over Tascosa. Overall, the Dons are 11-10.

Nichols has been pleased with the Harvesters shooting 50 percent or better the past 8 games, but not so pleased with the turnovers.

"The kids have learned where their shot is and when to take it, but we've got to cut down on the mistakes," Nichols added. "We've got to limit our turnovers to 12 or 13 a game. That's an area we've been working a lot on this week."

The Harvesters evened their record at 11-11 with the 62-46 win over Tascosa Tuesday night. Ronnie Faggins, the team's leading scorer at 20.8 ppg, was held to his lowest output (8) of the season, but senior guard Steve Glover and freshman forward Mike Nelson more than made up the difference. Glover drilled in a season-high 20 points while Nelson accounted for 17.

The duo did more than just score points. Nelson grabbed off 7 rebounds, had 2 steals and set up his teammates four times for baskets. Glover swiped the ball three times and had 2 assists.

Since coming from the ninth grade team eight games ago, Nelson is averaging 8 points a game and has scored in double figures his last two appearances.

Senior pivot Cedric Parker carries an 8.1 average and has pulled down 143 rebounds. Charles Nelson, Mike's sophomore brother, is clipping along at 6.8 ppg while starting off and in 16 games. Glover and fellow guard Joe Jeffers are averaging 6.6 and 5.6 points respectively. Jeffers had 3 assists and 2 steals against Tascosa.

Looking ahead at Amarillo High, next Tuesday night's opponent, Nichols said the Sandies are just the opposite of Palo Duro.

"Their strengths is defense. They concentrate on trying to push you out of your offense," Nichols said.

New football bowl alignment to be studied

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Relief could be in sight for those who have grown weary of watching Houston, Oklahoma and Alabama play in the same bowl games for the past few years.

The man with a possible remedy is Body McWhorter, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference.

McWhorter has a plan that would involve rotating champions from the Southwest, Big Eight and Southeastern Conferences among the Cotton, Orange and Sugar Bowls.

His idea is in its infancy and has not been formally discussed, but executives from each of the three bowls have expressed interest in considering its merits.

Jim Brock, executive vice president of the Cotton Bowl, told the Corpus Christi Caller, "The plan appears to be a little confusing at this time and there could be some problems with it."

However, Brock added that he hopes to meet with officials from the other bowls this spring and discuss the plan.

McWhorter said he mentioned the idea to Brock and Sugar Bowl executive director Mickey Holmes earlier this month at the NCAA meetings in New Orleans.

"This is something that was discussed several years ago when the Southeastern Conference entered into its contract with the Sugar Bowl," McWhorter said. "It seems logical to set up a system to prevent teams from coming to the same bowls year after year."

Houston has represented the SWC in three of the last four Cotton Bowls. SEC Champion Alabama has gone to the Sugar Bowl and Oklahoma of the Big Eight has been in the Orange Bowl for the last three years.

The SEC and Big Eight each have two years remaining on current contracts with their respective bowls. The tradition filled Cotton Bowl, however, has been without an SWC representative only in 1940 when Clemson played Boston College. In October of that year, the Cotton Bowl became an agency of the SWC and a decade later the conference pledged its champion to the bowl.

"I realize there is tradition attached to the bowls, especially the Cotton," said McWhorter. "I don't know what the Cotton Bowl's exact position is on this, but I can appreciate it."

"One way it could be done is to have each conference involved in a different bowl once every three years," McWhorter said.

For example, the SWC champion might play in the Orange Bowl one year, return to the Cotton Bowl for the following two years and appear in the Sugar Bowl the next year.

Holmes said, "This thing never gained much momentum before, but with the recent repetition of teams in these bowls it has started gaining momentum. I don't think it's infeasible, although it would take the agreement of all three bowls and conferences. But if there was ever a time the idea should be investigated thoroughly, it is now."

Dan McNamara, executive director of the Orange Bowl, said he has heard of the plan although he has not spoken directly to McWhorter about it.

"Any such proposal would have to be presented to the Orange Bowl Committee for review, consideration and proper action," McNamara said.

SPORTS

Pro Bowl means fun for Rams

HONOLULU (AP) — They came oh, so close. Then the bubble burst. Now all that's left is an exhibition game.

But there's still the matter of pride.

That's what drove the Los Angeles Rams to the brink of National Football League supremacy, and that's what's going to keep them going next Sunday in the Pro Bowl, the all-star game that comes as an annual anticlimax to the Super Bowl.

"We've come from a game that meant the whole world to us and now we're coming to a game that's a little bit more enjoyable, a little bit more fun, and we're looking forward to it," guard Dennis Harrah of the Rams said Thursday after another light workout at Aloha Stadium. "It's not the Super Bowl, but there's no doubt that we're going to try to win. We have our own personal pride."

Harrah, a 6-foot-5, 250-pounder, acknowledged that the intensity with which the Rams went into last Sunday's Super Bowl against Pittsburgh will be missing in this all-star competition that pits stars of the American and National conferences against each other. "If I play this game as hard as I tried to play the Super Bowl, there's something wrong with me," Harrah said.

His NFC teammates from the Rams, who lost 31-19 to the Steelers, voiced similar feelings.

"It's definitely going to be an emotional difference," said defensive tackle Larry Brooks. "But by the time game time comes around I think the preparation will have us ready to play."

Linebacker Jim Youngblood added: "It took me about two or three days to get over losing the Super Bowl, but before Sunday, I'll forget about it."

The post-Super Bowl letdown isn't the sole property of the Rams, of course. Consider the Dallas Cowboys, preseason and pre-playoff picks by most observers to return to the Super Bowl. They were knocked off by Los Angeles in their first playoff game.

"The layoff is the toughest part of the whole situation," said safety Cliff Harris, making his sixth Pro Bowl appearance. "When you're playing, performing week after week, you have a certain level of performance in your mind. But when your season's over and you lay off for three or four weeks, or in some cases longer than that, it's a problem to get that competitiveness going."

"But I'm sure when we get on the field it's all going to come back," Harris added. "It's going to be a competitive game and it's going to be a fun game."

"I think watching the Super Bowl has helped a lot of players get back up," Cowboys offensive tackle Pat Donovan suggested. "You wish you were there and maybe this will help release a little of that frustration you developed over watching the game last Sunday and not being in it."

And Dallas' flashy wide receiver, Tony Hill, added: "There's anguish that you didn't make it to the Super Bowl and I think that makes some players a little more hungry to show they're good."

The "Big Green Monster" at Fenway Park, Boston, is 60 feet high, 37 feet of wall and topped by a 23-foot screen.

Boilermakers rout Wisconsin in overtime

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP sports writer

Mike Scarce should know better than to listen to the Wisconsin Badger basketball fans.

But he did Thursday night — and it almost cost the Purdue Boilermakers a game.

With the score of their Big Ten contest tied 50-50 and 20 seconds left, Purdue had possession of the ball and a chance to win. But Wisconsin fans began a 10-second chant at this point, duping Scarce into rushing up a premature desperation shot that missed.

There was still time for the Badgers to take a shot of their own. Luckily for the embarrassed Scarce, it missed, and the Boilermakers went on to win in overtime, 73-60.

"That sure was great crowd support," Purdue Coach Lee Rose said of the deceitful Badger crowd.

Rose did have some time to soothe Scarce when the Badgers, planning their last shot in regulation, called time out with nine seconds remaining.

"I told him to forget it because he was going to be in there and I don't want him thinking about it," Rose related.

Badger Coach Bill Cofield was reluctant to respond when asked whether the game reflected rumors of selfishness on his team.

"We executed our game plan very well," Cofield told sports writers. "The only statement I am going to make is my original one: we executed very well."

"Whenever we play them," said Syracuse Coach Jim Boehm, "it doesn't matter which team is good or bad, it's always a close game."

Syracuse trailed 35-32 at halftime and Boehm said the first half problems resulted from the Orangemen's inability to get the ball to Boe.

"Everybody says that something must have been wrong when a ranked team has a tough time," Boehm said. "But I think that we should give Rutgers some credit, they played well."

Rutgers Coach Tom Young was pleased with his team's effort despite the loss.

"It's amazing we even had a chance to win it at the end," he said. "I admire the heck out of our kids."

Reggie Carter led a balanced attack with 11 points, and also contributed four steals, five assists and six rebounds to lead St. John's over Davidson. Darryl Mitchell sank four clutch free throws in the final minute to spark Minnesota over Indiana. Danny Ainge scored 30 points to pace BYU's victory over San Diego State.

Elsewhere, Seton Hall beat Columbia 66-58 behind Dan Callandrillo's 22 points. Kevin Boyle's 24 points powered Iowa past Northwestern 86-64. Ronnie Valentine and Ronnie McAdoo teamed for 45 points to pace Old Dominion past Duquesne 65-60. Indiana State beat Tulsa 68-63 as Brad Miley scored 19 points. Jay Vincent's free throw with three seconds left in overtime led Michigan State over Michigan 59-58. Jack Washington and Bill Bryant scored 12 each as Western Kentucky defeated Middle Tennessee 62-58. Rod Foster's 19 points helped UCLA beat Washington 76-59 and Don Collins had 36 points to lead Washington State over Southern Cal 77-57.

Pampa's Lady Harvesters don't stand a chance of winning the first half of the District 3-AAAA title, but they could play a spoiler role against Palo Duro tonight in the Green Pit.

The Lady Harvesters are 0-3 in district play, but they could prevent Palo Duro (2-1, 14-9) from tying Amarillo High for the first-half lead with a victory tonight.

However, the Lady Sandies must lose to Tascosa tonight for that to happen. AHS girls are 3-0 in district action and 16-5 overall. Tascosa is 1-2 and 5-15 overall.

New York Mets sold

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets, last-place finishers in the National League East the past three years, have been sold to a group headed by the huge New York publishing firm of Doubleday & Co. for a reported $21.1 million, a record price for a baseball team.

In a five-paragraph announcement Thursday that ended a two-month bidding war among as many as 21 bidders, Doubleday said it had purchased controlling interest in the Mets from the family of Charles Shipman Payson, the team's principal owner since the franchise was awarded by the National League in 1960. The Mets began play two years later.

The announcement said Doubleday would have two minority partners — City Investing Co., a diversified firm which was formed in 1904, and Fred Wilpon, chairman of the board of Sterling Equities Inc., a Manhattan, N.Y., real estate firm.

The key men in the deal are Nelson Doubleday, president of the publishing company and a great-grandnephew of Abner Doubleday, credited in some quarters with inventing baseball in 1839, and John O. Pickett Jr., chairman of the board of the New York Islanders of the National Hockey League.

Miami girls win

MIAMI-Miami girls routed Booker, 80-56, Thursday night, but Miami boys lost a nip and tuck thriller, 61-60.

The Warriettes had little trouble while jumping off to a 27-8 first-quarter advantage.

Susan Bean and Tracy Klasek paced the scoring with 17 points apiece.

Booker was led by Linda Godino with 13 points.

Miami boys overcame a one-point deficit, 18-17, at the end of the first quarter to go on top by seven, 35-28, at halftime. Booker rallied after trailing by four, 51-47, after three quarters to win it.

Ron Francis topped Miami in scoring with 23 points. Brad Billingsley followed with 16.

Roger Hilbig paced the winners with 19.

Dennis Anderson has taken over the Miami coaching duties after the death of basketball coach Edward Francis in a traffic accident last week.

Pistol shoot held

Seventeen shooters in the Pampa Rifle and Pistol Club held their monthly Hunter's Pistol Silhouette Match Sunday in cold, sleety weather.

"The lack of wind made the shooting conditions better than they have been for the past three months," said secretary-treasurer Fran Gross.

Match winner was Juanita Nichols with a 23. Other winners were Gary Clark, Class AA, 22; Jim Barnes, Class A, 15; Gary Clark Jr., second, Class A, 12 and Greg Wilkins, Class B, 9.

The next match will be Feb. 17 at the outdoor range six miles west of Pampa.

YOU DON'T have to live in the past to dress like a Victorian lady. Florence Alper for Contessa Monique designed this romantic blouse of ivory polyester satin with a Chantilly lace-trimmed flip tie jabot for the modern woman.

Help for the all-thumbs set

By Ellie Grossman
NEW YORK (NEA) — Dinner was at eight, but at a quarter to, Lady Agatha was still at sixes and sevens. She'd been trying since half past five to tie the tie on her blouse.

"Self-tie indeed," she mumbled, extricating a lifeless finger from the noose she'd tightened over it.

There was a knock at the door. "Yes," Lady Agatha rasped. The door opened and Simpson's wizened head appeared. "My lady, my lord wishes to know when he can expect you."

"Tell your lordship he can expect me when hell freezes over."

Simpson bowed out. "Very good, my lady."

It was downhill from then on. She took to drink, he took to "club activities," and the manor took to rot.

Florence Alper found out about the Lady Agathas of this country 20 years ago when she designed her first "stock tie" blouse. She did it because she was tired of designing "dumb blouses with little short sleeves and jewel necks," and thought the old-fashioned buccanear look was suitable for suits and however else women wanted to wear it.

She, of course, knew how to handle the narrow panels of the tie winding down 44 inches from each side of the collar: first wrap one side all the way around the neck, then the other all the way round the other way, and then flip the two ends over each other and straighten out what's there — which is the stock-tie loosely tied, which you can then bow.

But other women, the Lady Agathas, didn't know that. "So I invented the flip tie which takes the place of a stock tie," she says. With the flip tie, all you do is flip it over itself. Like the stock tie, it's a self-tie, only the flip is short because you don't have to wind it. You just flip it and it lies there.

However, the ruffled flip tie that she did on a georgette Monet-like print, for $54, in sizes 4-18, has a little wire in its border so the tie doesn't just lie there. It preens.

But the stock tie on her popular Qiana blouse for $45 in solids and jacquard prints doesn't.

Neither does the ruffled collar on her V-neck, polyester Victorian blouse for $54, whose cuffs are trimmed with val lace — like the collar which is lined with tulle and which doesn't stand because it's designed to cascade.

That one's for the woman who won't have time to tie anything. These and the other blouses Ms. Alper created for Contessa Monique went on sale during the holidays.

THE CHARM of turn-of-the-century fashion — a cascade of Chantilly lace on ivory polyester satin — was designed by Florence Alper.

TIE IT, bow it, wear it as a belt — those are just a few of the ways to change the mood of this versatile stock tie blouse in a jacquard print Qiana nylon, available in royal blue, lilac, white, beige and hot pink, by Florence Alper for Contessa Monique.

DEAR ABBY: Every year my husband and I send over 200 Christmas cards. I spend a lot of time selecting an appropriate card that comes with our names printed in gold letters. These cards are not cheap. They cost 40 cents each, plus 15 cents postage, and I personally address each envelope by hand.

Yesterday I received the following note from a couple who live out of town and send us one of those boring, bragging, four-page mimeographed newsletters every Christmas:

"Dear Eunice and Norbert, We appreciate being remembered at Christmas. Your card was decorative, but very cold and impersonal. If you can't take a minute to add a personal word or two, or sign it yourselves, please take our names off your list. Emily and Harold"

Abby, would you care to comment?
SHOCKED IN UPSTATE N.Y.

DEAR SHOCKED: There's a lot to be said for airing one's grievances, but Emily and Harold are about as subtle as a klop in the chops. Take their names off your list. Congratulations, you have just saved 55 cents!

DEAR ABBY: I am extremely fond of a young woman and am considering marriage, but something bothers me. Having a meal — just the two of us — in the privacy of her apartment is something of an ordeal because she is terribly strict about table manners. Elbows off the table, knife and fork properly placed on the plate when not in use. Chew food well, absolutely no talking with food in mouth. No resting the arms or hands on the table while eating, etc., etc.

I would like to dine in a relaxed, comfortable manner without worrying about the rules of etiquette constantly. Be assured, I do not eat like a hog, and my manners wouldn't offend even the fussiest lady. But what would marriage with such a woman be like?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Like being 9 years old again, and being married to your mother.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago my parents were divorced. Dad promptly married the woman he had been seeing for three years before that. This is a small town, so everybody knew about it. My brother and I (then in high school), my mother, and even my father and the other woman suffered from the talk.

Now that I am older and (I hope) wiser, I look back on the ordeal as a valuable, if painful, learning experience. My brother and I have spent a lot of time with my father and his new wife, and although we were prepared to hate her, we cannot hate a woman who has made our father so happy. I can't recall that Mom ever made Dad smile or laugh. She picked at him, criticized, and put him down constantly. He could never do anything to please her.

Dad's present wife treats him with such respect, consideration and love, that he has never known such happiness. He glows in her presence.

I still love my mother, and while I do not condone what my father did to her, I can now understand why he did it.

STILL LEARNING IN STILLWATER

DEAR STILL: I hope you remember that valuable "learning experience" in the event that you choose marriage — or marriage chooses you.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 25-year-old Army man stationed in South Korea. I've been here for a year and have another year and a half to go. Life isn't easy in this outfit. We're on 24-hour guard. We eat out of cans and sleep in tents and stay combat-ready at all times.

When there's mail call, you should see those young soldiers run to see if they got anything. Abby, it is sad to see so much repeated disappointment as they hang their heads and slowly walk away empty-handed.

Why don't Americans who have relatives and friends in Korea write to these kids? I've never seen such a bunch of forgotten soldiers anywhere. Some of these guys are 17 and 18, and have never been away from home before.

I'm lucky. My people write to me often, and my Mom even sends me cookies which I share with my buddies. Abby, you wouldn't believe how one letter from home can make a rough day better. Please ask your readers to write to their young men in the service wherever they are, but especially in Korea.

And don't ever stop writing your column. We get it in the Stars and Stripes and the Korean Times, too. You are the only contact some of these soldiers have with home. Love you.

ALLEN

DEAR ALLEN: I'll print your letter as a timely plea to the folks back home. Readers?

Stockholm museum exhibits on blue jeans

By MIKE CLARK

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Tucked away in a corner of this Scandinavian city's massive Nordic Museum is an exhibit far removed from the usual displays about Vikings and Swedish kings.

Instead of delving into the past, this exhibit attempts to describe the present day in this country of eight million.

This exhibit is about blue jeans.

Inga Wintzell, who works in the textile department of the Nordic Museum — Sweden's version of the Smithsonian — says the exhibit isn't as far-fetched as it sounds.

Walk down any Stockholm street, through any of the neighborhoods scattered about the massive archipelago, walk into any restaurant — and blue jeans hit you right between the eyes. Everybody seems to be wearing blue jeans in some form.

Some boys and girls wear the looser variety; others seem poured into the pants. Girls wear denim bikinis and skirts, swing denim purses and wear clogs covered in jeans material.

Underwear, although cotton or silk, is designed like a pair of jeans. Soap, deodorant, after shave and even soft drinks are packaged in denim-design containers.

"The denim fashion is very profound here in Sweden," Mrs. Wintzell said. "Swedish museums have decided to give priority to documentations of today, and the textile department here decided to document jeans because jeans are so very typical for today, for this time."

"This exhibition," she continued, "is not an exhibition of pants, but an exhibition of an epoch of today."

Hence, the title of the exhibition: "Jeans — and Much More."

"It was about 1950 that they started producing jeans in Sweden," she said. "Of course, it was their connection with the United States — the people coming from there and the Swedish people going to the United States and coming back with impressions — and when you started wearing jeans in the United States, they wanted them here."

That was easier said than done.

"It was only in 1960 that they could import to Sweden from the United States," she said, a breakthrough that proved to be a gold mine for American producers. The Swedish appetite for jeans appears to be insatiable. The Swedes pay $50 — and more — for a pair of American jeans, even though the Swedish counterpart costs half that.

The exhibit examines the blue-jean phenomenon from many angles. Posters depict the sales pitch used to sell jeans, while other posters use jean-clad "with it" models as a come-on to sell cars, tennis rackets, record albums, even dog food.

Display cases contain new jeans, old and faded jeans, refurbished and decorated jeans, a facsimile of the first pair of American jeans and a pair of the first jeans produced in Sweden.

There's also a section picturing Sweden's leading citizens decked out in denim. King Carl XVI Gustaf is shown wearing jeans while crewing his yacht.

Average American family has inadequate life insurance protection

What do most American families have that is worth tens of thousands of dollars to them but still is not enough? Life insurance protection, says the American Council of Life Insurance.

For example, Council data shows that life insurance per insured family amounts to only about two-and-a-third years of income protection. Most experts believe the average family should have enough insurance to provide at least four to five years of income replacement.

In 1979, according to estimates, the average amount of life insurance in force in the U.S. per insured family was $44,300, compared to $20,300 in 1967.

Merten club meets

The Merten Extension Homemaker Club met Tuesday in the home of Audrey Huff, for a program by Marilyn Butler and Janice Carter of the Extension Homemakers Council.

They discussed the moonies and also showed a film on the 4-H Center in Brownwood.

Marta Schwede, president conducted the meeting. Polly Benton was nominated as candidate for Woman of the Year.

The next meeting will be Feb. 5 in the home of Anita Kerns.

B&PW has program on communication

Mrs. Jimmie Kay Williams was the guest speaker Tuesday at a meeting of the Pampa Business and Professional Women's Club. She spoke on communications.

Vena Cain, public relations chairman, was in charge of the program.

Sharon King, January Girl of the Month, was a guest at the meeting. She is a senior at Pampa High School.

A recent party honored Neshia Pope, Theresa Baird, Kathy Kite and Princess Kilcrease. Girls of the Month for September through December.

Hypertension research results in new approach

By GENE SCHROEDER
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Research into the mysteries of high blood pressure — known as "the silent killer" — has brought a new approach to treatment of the disease, according to an award-winning scientist.

DR. JOHN LARAGH

"This doesn't mean we have the final solution to the problem," says Dr. John H. Laragh, chief of the Hypertension and Treatment Center at New York Hospital-Cornell University Medical Center.

"But it does mean we've taken one more layer off the onion as our understanding of high blood pressure gets closer and closer to the origin."

High blood pressure — "hypertension" in medical terminology — afflicts some 25 million Americans and is the underlying cause of hundreds of thousands of deaths yearly from stroke, heart attack and kidney failure.

It is called the silent killer because it gives virtually no warning before the victim is struck down.

The disease — some types of which are malignant — may hit at any age, but the chances of having it grow with advancing years. Most cases can be controlled with drug therapy, Laragh says.

"If our research has done anything," he said in an interview, "it has established beyond all doubt that all high blood pressure is not alike."

Historically, Laragh says, as doctors and scientists have studied it, the assumption has been that high blood pressure is one disease.

been that high blood pressure is one disease.

"But our research established that cases can be divided up because they are quite different biochemically in terms of the hormones that regulate blood pressure."

Laragh, co-winner of the $50,000 Stouffer Prize in 1969 for his research work, says a key role is played by renin, a kidney hormone produced in response to a drop in blood pressure.

"There are people with hypertension who have low renin activity in the blood, those with medium activity and those with high," he explained.

"We have shown these three kinds of essential hypertension have different causes and different susceptibility to stroke and heart attack. In turn, they respond to entirely different types of drug treatment."

Laragh and his research team have developed a simple test based on laboratory analyses of blood and urine samples to determine the patient's renin and sodium levels. These readings tell the doctor which drugs should be prescribed.

What is good for the low-renin patient may be the wrong drug for the medium and high, he said.

These renin-sodium profiles, as the tests are called, also disclose whether the patient has kidney or adrenal disease, which are curable surgically, he added.

The profiles, Laragh says, also sort out which patients are more likely to have strokes or heart attacks and which could live to be 80 even though their blood-pressure readings are extremely high.

The next step for Laragh and his fellow researchers?

"We now know that renin is a very important factor in many cases," he says. "But we don't know yet why the renin is too high in some patients, and that's what we're working on now."

"We also don't know why in low-renin patients there is too much salt and water in the body. We've directed ourselves to a new point of attack — and the final solution seems nearer than ever before."

Organ recital slated

Charles Velasquez will present an organ recital Sunday at 3 p.m. in St. Matthew's Episcopal Church.

Velasquez, a student of Bill Haley of Pampa, will play four of the "Little Preludes and Fugues" by Bach and also Bach's Toccata in D minor.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Velasquez of Amarillo, he is 16 years old and is a junior student at Alamo Catholic High School in Amarillo. He is preparing for an February scholarship audition in Dallas.

The public is invited.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 13 and want to go to this disco called "Studio C," but my parents say no. They must not trust me. They think I'll meet a bunch of creepy boys. Actually, I only want to dance and have fun. No drinking is allowed and all my friends' parents let their kids go. Please give me your opinion. — Nina, Nashua, N.H.

Nina: I also used to tell my parents, "But all my friends' parents let them do it" and it still didn't do any good. In fact, it did more harm.

I can't honestly give you an answer. I don't know anything about "Studio C." You know what it's really like and if you should go there.

Dr. Wallace: I disagree with you when you advise teens to wait until they graduate before getting married.

I met "Mr. Right" when I was 13 and we were married when I turned 14. Nine months later I had a beautiful daughter.

Now three years later I buy what I want and go where I want and I have a happy marriage.

Don't be telling teens to wait until they are of age. For your information, I wouldn't go back to school for anything. — Barbara, Elizabethtown, Ky.

Barbara: Sorry, but I'll stick with my original advice. Your letter, more than ever, convinced me that I am right.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace in care of this newspaper.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Since being advised to stick to a high-protein, low-carbohydrate diet to help maintain a more even blood sugar level, I discovered dry roasted unsalted peanuts were a handy emergency food. Now not only am I dependent on them but I'm very fond of them. I substitute peanuts for at least one of the small frequent meals I must eat daily. I'd like to know how peanuts compare to other protein foods. Are there any other nuts comparable, such as blanched almonds? Is there any reason to limit my intake of peanuts other than the calorie count?

DEAR READER — Peanuts do have lots of calories. You can get an idea of what your dry roasted peanuts contain by looking at the values for raw peanuts. Three-and-a-half ounces contain 564 calories. Your roasted peanuts, because of loss of moisture, will have more calories per gram. Raw peanuts by weight are nearly half fat and over 70 percent of their calories is fat. Approximately 15 percent of their calories is saturated fat.

Now, like all other plant substances, they contain no cholesterol but they must be considered a high-fat food. The high-fat content and the consequent high-calorie intake really are the chief disadvantages. They do contain a reasonable amount of protein of reasonably good quality, although it could not be classed as a source of complete protein.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Hypoglycemia, Low Blood Sugar, to give you a better understanding of the relationship of diet to low blood sugar problems. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now it's perfectly true that peanuts and other nuts would be a fairly good food for such a diet other than the enormous number of calories that they contain. After all, they're not particularly high in carbohydrates and what they have takes a while to digest. Since the nuts are eaten in solid form, it takes a while for them to be emptied out of the stomach and for the nutrients to be absorbed into the bloodstream. Therefore, they won't run your blood sugar up and cause rebound low blood sugar.

There are some animal studies that show that animals eating large amounts of peanuts are more prone to developing fatty-cholesterol deposits. However, there was also a lot of cholesterol in the diet.

Almonds and most of the nut family have similar problems in that 70 to 80 percent of the total calories is from fat. That may not be good from a circulation point of view but for a person who has low blood sugar, the fat content delays emptying of the stomach and may be helpful if you really do have low blood sugar.

The nuts that have the least amount of saturated fat are: walnuts, pecans, almonds, hazel nuts and hickory nuts. About 80 percent of the fat in coconuts is saturated fat and the same applies to coconut oil.

Your leadership and managerial qualities will become more pronounced this coming year. Projects and situations in which you personally take a hand will have splendid possibilities for success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be a giver, not a taker, today even if you feel there is something that you really need from another. Make do with what you have. Travel resources, romance luck, possible pitfalls and career for the months ahead are all discussed in your new Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Challenges are character-builders and they should not be avoided today. Overcoming obstacles will enhance your pride and give you a sense of achievement.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions are favorable today regarding something you've been hoping for. However, your opportunities may be only partially realized if you put things off.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Where your finances are concerned today, you may run the full gamut between prudence and extravagance. Balance your budget, don't bust it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Treat youngsters in your care with consideration and compassion today, but don't overindulge them. Pampering may lead them to believe the world owes them something it doesn't.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Avoid taking unwarranted bows today regarding something accomplished in tandem especially if the other person did more than you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 2) Friends find your company extremely enjoyable today. They'll appreciate you for what you are, not for what you have to offer. Grabbing checks is not necessary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have the talent to accomplish what you set out to do today, but you must be realistic regarding the size of reward you expect.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your charm, personality and warmth makes you a delightful addition to any social gathering today. Enjoy yourself and others without overindulging.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Matters which could mean something to you materially and to your associates should be given priority today. Don't play until you've made your pay.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In order to get your views across today, use a creative approach. Let others think the ideas originated with them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be willing to share any good fortune that comes to you today with persons who have been kind to you in the past. Your generosity will yield a future harvest.

Scientist will discuss Shroud of Turin Saturday

The Altar Society of St. Vincent dePaul Church is hosting a meeting Saturday at Pampa Middle School which will feature Dr. Ray N. Rogers, physical scientist, Los Alamos Laboratory, Los Alamos, N.M. The program, to be presented free of charge, will be centered around a report of Dr. Rogers, a member of a team of scientists recently returned from Italy where an examination was made of a burial cloth, thought by many to be the shroud of Christ.

Acclaimed as the Shroud of Turin, the cloth has an imprint of a man from a much debated source. Mrs. Ervin Akst, president of the Society has extended and invitation to the public to attend the program which will commence at 7:30 p.m.

Pastor continues sermon series

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ordered silenced in his advocacy of women's ordination, a Jesuit priest, the Rev. William Callahan, has been reassigned to the Jesuit School of Theology in Chicago — but head of that archdiocese apparently doesn't want him there.

Chicago's Cardinal John Cody reportedly raised objections, and although the Jesuits have authority to staff their own institutions without approval of local bishops, the transfer is being reconsidered in view of Cody's protests.

Callahan, founder of the Quixote Center, a justice group, and of Priests for Equality, which advocates women's ordination, was ordered transferred by his regional Jesuit superior, the Rev. Edward O'Flaherty of Boston, after earlier being silenced by the Rev. Pedro Arape, the Jesuit superior general in Rome.

Wherever he winds up, Callahan said the Quixote Center would continue under co-directors and Priests for Equality through volunteers.

Religion roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ordered silenced in his advocacy of women's ordination, a Jesuit priest, the Rev. William Callahan, has been reassigned to the Jesuit School of Theology in Chicago to help it raise funds.

Callahan, founder of the Quixote Center, a justice group, and of Priests for Equality, which advocates women's ordination, was ordered transferred by his regional Jesuit superior, the Rev. Edward O'Flaherty of Boston, after earlier being silenced by the Rev. Pedro Arape, the Jesuit superior general in Rome.

Callahan said the Quixote Center would continue under co-directors and Priests for Equality through volunteers.

Most members and pastors of the 3-million-member Lutheran Church in America want to see racial minorities and women assume more leadership in the church, according to a survey of clergy and laity.

Marking the seventh anniversary of the Jan. 22, 1973, U. S. Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion, Cardinal Terence Cooke termed the more than a million abortions now occurring yearly a "national scandal."

Cardinal Cooke, archbishop of New York and chairman of the U. S. bishops' committee for pro-life activities, issued a statement saying each abortion destroys "a child, made in the image and likeness of God."

He added: "We once again...call upon the members of the government and all our brothers and sisters to reverse the tide of tragedy and to protect the God-given dignity of the unborn child."

Popular assumptions are that most women clergy are young, single or divorced, but it's not so according to United Methodist research about its 1,000 clergywomen.

The findings show that the average age of the women is 39 and more than half of them are married. Under 8 percent of the women clergy have been divorced, while 13 percent of the male clergy are divorced.

Jews have achieved prominence in the academic world far beyond their representation in the population, sociologist Seymour Martin Lipset said in a lecture at Yeshiva University.

Citing statistics, he said Jews make up about three percent of the population, but make up from 15 to 30 percent of those in various academic fields and tend to occupy the highest ranks in those fields.

Orthodox Judaism tries to block American reform

JERUSALEM (AP) — One of the strongest movements in Orthodox Judaism has decided to try to block the more liberal American Reform and Conservative branches from official recognition in Israel.

In effect, the first open international convention of Agudat Israel in 15 years declared war both in Israel and in the United States against the strains of Judaism which dominate American Jewry and have made modest inroads in Israel over the last decade.

Agudat Israel, spokesman say, accounts for one million of America's 5.7 million Jews. Many of its believers are Hasidic Jews, adherents of Jewish mysticism whose menfolk are easily identified by their long black caftans, earlocks and untrimmed beards. Much of the convention's business was conducted in Yiddish.

In Israel, Agudat Israel controls four of Parliament's 120 seats and is a key partner in Prime Minister Menachem Begin's ruling coalition. Aligned with the larger National Religious Party, Agudat Israel has political clout over such matters as marriage, divorce, abortion and Sabbath-observance laws.

The convention, or Great Assembly, which closed Jan. 13, marked the emergence of the Orthodox from a self-imposed isolation that followed World War II when most of Europe's Orthodox Jews perished in Nazi death camps. For most of the post-war period, orthodoxy concentrated on regenerating the Jewish people.

"But now," said Rabbi Menachem Lubinski of New York, "we have grown to such a point that we are ready to assume a leadership role in Judaism in general. We are no longer concerned with our little corner."

Lubinski said the movement is concerned that Israel is ripe for the Reform and Conservative branches to make inroads, so Agudat Israel will watch its opponents closely and try to prevent them from receiving government funds to build schools.

The Assembly formulated a plan to dispatch teams of rabbinical students to the affluent American suburbs and small towns where the Conservative and Reform Jews are virtually unchallenged.

To the Orthodox, the liberal movements born in Germany 150 years ago and which spread swiftly to the United States preach watered down and unauthentic Judaism. They blame these movements for intermarriage, assimilation and the loss of Jewish identity in the United States.

Both movements have made some religious observances optional, like wearing skullcaps and strict adherence to dietary and Sabbath regulations. Reform Jews are less stringent than Conservatives.

Rabbi Richard Hirsch, leader of the small Reform movement in Israel, calls the Agudat Israel an "anti-modern, anti-progressive force," and says it is the uncompromising attitude of the Orthodox that leads Jews to abandon their religion.

January is March of Dimes month

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life, in thy presence is fulness of joy..."
PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

Whiter than Snow...

"Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." The Psalmist desired to be pure and white as snow, and knew that this could come only from God. Complete joy, and gladness of a pure heart can be yours too, when you walk close with the Lord.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

ORDINANCE NO. 859
AN ORDINANCE PROHIBITING THE PARKING OF MOTOR VEHICLES ON A PORTION OF CERTAIN STREETS WITHIN THE CITY OF PAMPA, TEXAS, FROM 8:00 O'CLOCK A.M. UNTIL 5:00 O'CLOCK P.M. ON ALL DAYS EXCEPT SUNDAYS AND HOLIDAYS FOR A PERIOD OF TIME LONGER THAN TWO HOURS; DEFINING TERMS; PROVIDING FOR THE EFFECTIVE DATE HEREOF; AND PROVIDING FOR A PENALTY.
BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY OF PAMPA, TEXAS:
SECTION 1.
That on and after the effective date of this ordinance, it shall be unlawful for any person to park a motor vehicle upon portions of a PORTION OF CERTAIN STREETS WITHIN THE CITY OF PAMPA, TEXAS, between the hours of 8:00 o'clock A.M. and 5:00 o'clock P.M. except Sundays and holidays, for a period of time longer than two hours, said portions of such streets being described as follows: On The East side of Frost Street, between Francis Avenue and Kingsmill Avenue.
SECTION 2.
The following words when used in this ordinance shall have the meaning respectively ascribed to them in this section:
A. PERSON-Every natural person, firm, co-partnership, association or corporation.
B. PARK-When prohibited means the standing of a vehicle, whether occupied or not, otherwise than temporarily for the purpose of and while actually engaged in loading or unloading.
C. VEHICLE-Every device in, upon, or by which any person or property is or may be transported or drawn upon a highway, except devices moved by human power or used exclusively upon stationary rails or tracks.
SECTION 3.
It shall be a misdemeanor for any person to violate any of the provisions of this ordinance and upon conviction, be fined in a sum of not less than $1.00 nor more than $50.00 and each and every violation shall constitute and be a separate offense.
SECTION 4.
This ordinance when passed shall become effective 10 days after its passage as provided by law.
PASSED AND APPROVED on first reading this 27th day of December, 1979.

Dutch Harbor lights beckon fishermen

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The lights of Dutch Harbor cut through the rain and mist of Alaska's remote Aleutian Islands, luring unskilled workers with promises of "big bucks" for working overtime in the nation's richest fishing port.

But labor leaders say the Asian immigrants and others who come to process the $100 million worth of king crab and fish sold on the Dutch Harbor docks run into some of the nation's worst working conditions.

Critics say workers are paid wages below the legal minimum, receive inadequate medical care and may lose all their earnings if they do not complete six-month, 7-days-a-week contracts with fish processors.

State and federal inspectors say complaints are exaggerated, some of the assailed practices are quite legal and that tough conditions are just a fact of life in the windswept, treeless Aleutians. "I don't believe anybody in Dutch Harbor is out to violate the law," said Don Wilson, an Alaska Department of Labor investigator.

Wilson said there are no more problems in the fish processing industry than with "migrant laborers picking lettuce" in the Lower 48 United States, and that both involve transient populations and their attendant problems.

"Asians that come here migrate to the seafood industry because they understand it," Wilson said. "Why not? I thought we were trying to help the boat people. Why not get people (who are) satisfied to work in those conditions because that's inherent to their way of life? Most Americans won't do that work..."

"Face it, why go to an isolated area where the weather is cold and damp — and work in an industry where it's laborious, tedious, wet and smelly — for wages you could make serving in a fast-food joint?" Wilson asked. "They come out to make the overtime, to make those big bucks."

But a union official says "that approximately 50 percent of the workers at Dutch Harbor are minorities, such as Filipinos, Vietnamese or South Americans," many of whom speak little or no English and may be completely unfamiliar with U.S. labor laws.

Larry Cotter, president of the Alaska Council of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, also said workers get no wages until debts against their accounts are paid off. Those debts include the cost of gear such as oil skins and boots, room and board and the $580 roundtrip air fare from Seattle, nearly 2,000 miles away, where most of the workers are hired.

"What happens is that cannery workers are held in bondage by the companies because they cannot afford to get back out of the Aleutians," Cotter said.

"Conditions are terrible. I have an affidavit signed by a man who said he was sleeping in a converted freezer. The floor was covered with ice and sewage backed up, sloshing back and forth across the floor..."

Like the oil boom towns that sprang up overnight, Dutch Harbor mushroomed as king crab profits soared. In 1976, $48.3 million in crab and other fish products were landed in the Dutch Harbor area. By 1978, the figure was $99.7 million.

The 3,000 workers who flood the area at the peak of each fishing season are paid Alaska's minimum wage, $3.60 per hour. The "big bucks" are made working days of 12 and 18 hours.

Scott McKinney, 20, and Jeff Pitts, 24, both of Seattle, were working 17-hour days on a crab processing boat owned by Trident Seafoods of Seattle.

They said when they complained that their wages were averaging below minimum, Capt. Charles Bundrant handed them survival suits and told them to jump into 20-foot seas to be picked up by another boat and taken back to shore.

Bundrant, who said the two were paid "as per agreement," explained that jumping from the boat is normal procedure for transfer to another vessel in rough waters, and that he has done so many times himself.

Rod Andersen of Burley, Idaho, filed an affidavit with the ILWU in Juneau claiming that he left Dutch Harbor seeking medical care when crab guts and hot water splashed into his eyes. When he tried to claim back wages from the Seattle firm which hired him, he was told he had nothing coming because he had quit.

One point of contention is Alaska's return transportation law, which requires that an employee hired out of state be returned to the place he was hired. It is a violation of that law if an employer subtracts the cost of the employee's air ticket from his pay, causing that amount to drop below the minimum wage.

"I'm not saying the companies are lily white clean," said Wilson. "They're in business to make money. Anybody will occasionally try to take a short cut..."

Dale Cheek, director of the Alaska Labor Department's wage and hour division, said the long hours are just part of the industry.

HANS TUCH, acting director for the Voice of America in Washington is pictured in their studios recently. Tuch said the VOA had three objectives in reporting Afghanistan - to alert the Islamic world about the actions of the Soviets; "to tell the Soviet people what their government had done" and to stress to the non-aligned countries how their leader, Cuba, had sided with the Russians at the United Nations. (AP Photo)

Voice of America: Mid-East watchdog

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of anti-Khomeini demonstrators huddles over a radio in Tabriz, Iran, listening to someone in a studio on Independence Avenue in Washington describe events occurring 300 yards from where they stand.

Officials of the Voice of America cite the incident to illustrate that the Voice is finding an audience, even where America is considered the enemy.

Broadcasts to Iran — cut off 20 years ago to save money — were resumed with the shah's overthrow. Recently, the Voice boosted its daily Iranian airtime from 30 minutes to three hours, and intends to double that soon.

To catch the world's ears, America speaks not only in Farsi, the language of Iran, but also in Tatar and Turkish, Azeri and Arabic, Latvian and Lao, Hindi and Hausa, Swahili and Spanish — and in English and a few dozen other languages.

There are three "voices": the Voice of America, Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty. Congress spends about $165 million a year on the three networks.

VOA's mission is to explain America to the world. RFE, which beams into Eastern Europe, and RL, which aims its broadcasts into the Soviet Union, try to operate as though they were internal organs of the countries they address.

The two "Radios" were set up as CIA operations. They came in from the Cold War six years ago to be openly acknowledged as instruments of the U.S. government.

Responding to the Soviet move into Afghanistan, Radio Liberty doubled its efforts to reach the Moslems of Soviet Uzbekistan but still broadcasts to them only 32 minutes a day in each of seven languages.

In its Iranian broadcasts, VOA stresses that most of the world has condemned Iran. It carried the Security Council debates, sent a correspondent to the World Court and broadcast profiles of six of the hostages so Iranians would think of them as individuals, not symbols.

In its broadcasts on Afghanistan, says acting director Hans Tuch, the VOA had three objectives — to alert the Islamic world about the Soviet action; "to tell the Soviet people what their government had done" and to stress to non-aligned countries how their leader, Cuba, had sided with the Soviet Union at the United Nations.

The Voice started with World War II. Seventy-nine days after Pearl Harbor, VOA went on the air with this pledge:

"Daily at this time, we shall speak to you about America and the war; the news may be good or bad; we shall tell you the truth."

Tuch says his agency still tries to tell the truth, good or bad. He served VOA in Brazil during Watergate, and says he feels VOA established its credibility during that era: every night on his shortwave radio, he heard a U.S. government agency describe efforts to oust a U.S. president from office.

Executives of VOA and of the Board for International Broadcasting, which supervises RFE and RL, say they function on a biblical premise: "The truth shall make you free."

"We go on the assumption that the more informed people are, the more rationally they behave," says James Critchlow, research officer at the board.

Another operating assumption is that even a totalitarian government responds to its people. "Telling the people in the Soviet Union the truth about Afghanistan could create the kind of internal pressures that might inhibit a Soviet decision to invade Iran," Critchlow says.

Critchlow notes that some of the RFE and RL staffers are emigres and fervent anti-communists who must be cautioned against becoming too propagandistic. "We must refrain from any appeal to action, or even to any emotional appeals," he says.
