

Domestic spending curbed by revised 1981 budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today sent Congress a 1981 budget totaling $616 billion that proposes major new spending for the military while putting a partial lid on domestic spending, despite his own predictions of sluggish economic growth and high unemployment.

The budget does not include any tax cuts, which Carter warned could worsen inflation, already projected at 10.4 percent this year. He declared the budget is "prudent and responsible" and "will prepare America for the new decade."

It provides for a deficit of $16 billion, making it the 12th consecutive budget to show red ink.

Formally signing the budget document in a Cabinet Room ceremony this morning, Carter said the new spending plan calls for the smallest deficit in seven years.

While emphasizing he was making no prediction, the president contended that if the economy were to avoid an expected recession, with unemployment remaining at present levels, the new budget actually would show a surplus.

This, however, would depend on the unlikely event that Carter would not seek additional money later in the year for spending not envisioned in the budget.

The budget claims to represent a reordering of the administration's priorities sparked by armed Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and terrorism in Iran. But nearly all the military increase was pledged several years ago to NATO allies, and the rest was announced last year to win Senate votes for ratification of the SALT II treaty.

"The uncertain and sometimes hostile world we live in requires that we continue to rebuild our defense forces," the president said in his budget message to Congress. "I cannot ignore the major increases in Soviet military spending that have taken place inexorably over the past 20 years."

The administration predicted a "mild recession" during the first six months of this year. Forecasting continued double-digit inflation, Carter said he was restraining domestic spending for 1981. Yet, his domestic funding plans were up considerably in such areas as housing, social services and youth employment compared to the "lean and austere" budget he unveiled a year ago.

He proposed defense outlays of $142.7 billion, a 3.3 increase over 1980, which includes funds for a Rapid Deployment Force for emergency dispatch to crisis areas like the Persian Gulf, as well as increased spending for NATO forces, the new MX ballistic missile, the bomber-launched cruise missile and a new super-tank.

There was also $20 million for the Selective Service system to begin registering young Americans for a possible military draft.

Though combating inflation is a high priority, Carter abandoned his 1976 campaign pledge to balance the budget. With projected revenues of $600 billion falling short of outlays, there is a deficit of $16 billion. The 1980 deficit is projected at $40 billion.

Energy projects also got a big boost from the Carter budget. Outlays for the Department of Energy would increase $1 billion to $8.7 billion to expand use of coal, coal gasification and solar energy.

The budget, for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, must be approved by Congress, which usually makes significant changes. While spending is up $52 billion over projected 1980 outlays, the administration said $37 billion of that is mandated by existing law, such as cost-of-living hikes in Social Security benefits.

The budget forecast that the mild recession will boost unemployment to 7.5 percent. At the same time, consumer prices are expected to rise 10.4 percent. It is the first time in memory that an administration has forecast so severe an inflation rate a year in advance.

Consumer prices increased 13.3 percent last year, a 33-year high and nearly double the original Carter forecast of 7 percent.

If Carter's 1980 unemployment forecast is correct, the jobless rate will be slightly higher at the end of his four-year term than when he took office. It was 7.4 percent in January 1977.

Reflecting growing tension with the Soviet Union, Carter hurriedly included $800 million in the budget to purchase grain that has been denied to the Soviets, in addition to $2 billion proposed for grain purchases in 1980. Officials said the budget also will be amended to include aid for Pakistan as soon as the amount is determined.

Spending for human assistance programs in the Department of Health and Human Services total $219.3 billion, an increase of $25.5 billion, the most for any department in government. But much of the increase is designed to offset inflation, so there is little, if any, real gain for recipients.

Social Security and disability benefits account for most of the increase, up $19 billion to a total of $135 billion. Benefits will be provided to nearly 36 million Americans with the average monthly payment rising from $315 to $350.

After allowing for inflation, there is virtually no increase in spending from estimated 1980 budget outlays of $564 billion, Carter said.

"By continuing a clear and consistent policy of restraint, the 1981 budget insures that the federal budget will not be an inflationary force in the economy," Carter said.

The projected 1981 revenues include $13.9 billion from Carter's proposed "windfall profits tax" on oil companies. Other revenues will come from individual income taxes, $274 billion; corporate income taxes, $72 billion; and Social Security taxes, $216 billion.

Defense budget upped

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today the United States must spend a record $142.7 billion next year on strengthening its defenses "to contain Soviet aggression" and assure U.S. security in the face of growing Russian military power.

Carter's budget message to Congress had the ring of the Cold War years, when U.S. policy was built around the concept of "containing" communism within its borders.

The president told Congress he could not ignore "the implications of terrorism in Iran or Soviet aggression in Afghanistan."

Only last week, Carter asserted in his State of the Union address that the United States would consider a Soviet effort to gain control of the oil-rich Persian Gulf area as a threat to U.S. vital interests and that America would act to repel such an effort.

"Our forces are adequate to protect us against today's threats, but Soviet military capability is growing," Carter told Congress in the message explaining his budget for fiscal 1981, which begins Oct. 1.

"Our forces must be increased if they are to contain Soviet aggression and continue to assure our security in the future. This will require a sustained commitment over a period of years," he said.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown indicated the administration may come back to Congress later to ask for still higher military spending "in light of events that have occurred in the world after the fiscal 1981 budget was finalized in late December."

At a briefing, Brown said "a clear picture of increasing Soviet pressure... was there before Afghanistan."

Brown said an adverse trend in relative U.S. and Soviet military power has worried U.S. officials for a considerable time "as has the prospect of Soviet attempts to take advantage of that... military buildup" either by exerting political pressure or by military action.

"Those have now begun to happen in more visible ways," Brown added, referring to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan as "the very first direct use of Soviet military power outside the (Warsaw pact) bloc."

As for the SALT treaty, Brown said the Carter administration has "by no means abandoned the idea" of ratifying this agreement to limit strategic nuclear weapons on both sides.

But he said that "we would have to consider substantial expansions" in U.S. nuclear weapons programs if the Soviets "expand their capabilities or begin new programs that would be prevented under the SALT II Treaty."

Carter's request for record defense spending probably will be welcomed by many members of Congress because the Afghan invasion, following the Iranian revolution which exposed the weakness of the U.S. position in the Persian Gulf, has brought a sharp swing in mood. Also, public opinion polls reflect a surge in citizen support for greater defense preparedness.

The $142.7 billion spending request is $15.3 billion bigger than the fiscal 1980 total and represents "real growth" — after inflation is considered — of about 3.3 percent.

Iranian victor: Soviets 'real problem'

By The Associated Press

Abolhassan Bani Sadr, the apparent victor in Iran's presidential election, was quoted as saying today the problem of the American hostages in Tehran could be easily resolved and that Iran's most immediate threat was from Soviet troops in Afghanistan, who "are at our doors."

Bani Sadr, Iranian finance minister and former foreign minister, said Iran would give all types of aid, including military assistance, to Afghan rebels fighting Soviet troops, according to the French newspaper Le Monde.

But he said he disapproved of U.S. aid to Pakistan and rejected as "unacceptable" Washington's promise of military and economic aid to fend off any Soviet moves toward Iran once the hostages are released, the paper said.

"Certainly we intend to resist Russian expansionism, but we are not going to give that to the Americans as a pretext for retaking a foothold here," he was quoted as saying. "Washington will truly help us confront our neighbor to the North by declining to interfere in our affairs, to intrigue and to plot against our revolution."

Le Monde said Bani Sadr would not elaborate on his position regarding release of the approximately 50 hostages, now in their 86th day of captivity, until he had discussed the matter with Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The 79-year-old Khomeini, hospitalized for what his doctors called a minor heart ailment, was reported in satisfactory condition today and was being transferred out of an intensive care unit where he has spent the last five days.

Before freedom could be considered for the hostages, "the American government must first of all issue a declaration acknowledging the crimes it committed in Iran through the imperial regime, as well as our right to begin proceedings against the shah and his followers," Le Monde quoted Bani Sadr. "The problem of the hostages can then be easily resolved."

That statement was similar to others he made over the weekend since claiming victory in the election Friday.

The issue of the approximately 50 Americans who today began their 86th day in captivity at the U.S. Embassy is "one depending on the main issue, namely America's domination over Iran," Bani Sadr told a news conference in Tehran Sunday, Tehran Radio reported.

Thus our main expectation is not only that the U.S.A. should definitely change its attitude on dominating Iran but also that adequate safeguards should be created to insure that it will in no way interfere in our internal affairs in the future either," he continued.

"The moment the U.S.A. desists from its expansionist policy the matter will become different, and then things would be set in train enabling one to say that a solution becomes attainable..."

"The solution to the crisis... depends on when the U.S. government decides to tell the American nation, and the people of the world, that it is going to desist from its expansionist policy and domination over other nations, and when it concedes the right to our people to pursue criminals anywhere in the world."

By "criminals anywhere in the world" he obviously was referring to Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, members of his family and other members of his regime. His demand that the United States recognize Iran's right to seek their extradition appeared to represent a retreat from the demand of the militants holding the hostages that the United States deliver the shah to Iran for trial.

HE SKIED FROM LOS ANGELES TO LAKE PLACID, N.Y., and is still smiling. Though covered with ice, Steve King, 26, is jubilant that his journey is completed. King and three other men roller skied from Los Angeles to raise money for the U.S. Ski Team. King was born in Huddersfield, England and has lived in California for the past eight years. He and his companions finished the journey with a minus nine degree temperature. Winds made the final leg of the long journey even colder with a chill factor of minus 47 degrees. (AP Photo)

Result of Phillips explosion

Area airports feel fuel squeeze

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

Area airports say they will experience an aviation fuel shortage for at least a month due to the Phillips Refinery explosion last Sunday.

"We will receive no allotments (of aviation gasoline) for a month," Sheryl Jenkins, spokesperson for Perry-Lefors Airport near Pampa said today.

"It will be until March 1 before we get any as far as we know," she said.

Howard Buckingham of Mojave Petroleum Company in Pampa said Mojave was told there would be no fuel for the next month, anyway, from Phillips.

"I don't know what it's going to cost me," he said.

"There will be no fuel for us anywhere from a month to six months," Scott Wheeler of the Canadian Aero Service in Canadian said he was told by his supplier, Hoobler Oil Co.

Would the cutback hurt his business?

"Definitely yes," Wheeler said. He's going out of business the first of next month, he said. The lack of aviation fuel is not the only reason for the business reversal, he said, but "it certainly didn't help matters."

Jim Hoobler of Hoobler Oil Co. in Canadian said Phillips told him the aviation fuel can not be produced right now.

He was not given a definite time period before the refinery will resume supplying the airplane gasoline, he said. "They're just working on it," he was told.

"It's most definitely hurt us," he said, but did not know just how much financially.

The aviation fuel shortage is being explained by Phillips officials as a result of the series of explosions in the Phillips Refinery at Phillips Jan. 20.

The blasts occurred in the cracking units 22 and 23 at 7:45 a.m. that Sunday morning, injuring 40 people and hospitalizing seven.

Debris from the blast was found four miles from the center of the explosions and damage was reported in a two-mile radius of the site.

The resulting fire raged in the plant area until 5 p.m. that evening, melting the twisted metal into a blackened mess.

Tanks of aviation fuel, gasoline and kerosene located behind the two units were destroyed in the accident. Norm Berkley a spokesperson for Phillips said there was some question about whether the explosions may have originated in one of the tanks.

Last week, officials from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) arrived in Phillips to survey the blast scene. Findings have not yet been announced by the group at this time, however.

Phillips was fined almost $20,000 by the federal agency after two men were killed in October on Unit 22. The company was cited by OSHA for four safety violations.

Health hazards not new to Globe area residents

GLOBE (AP) — The national attention given to a Globe subdivision contaminated with asbestos has further embittered other residents who claim they've suffered for a decade from effects of a far more serious environmental poison.

The group says a chemical defoliant known commercially as Kuron was dropped on Globe in 1968 and 1969, causing men and women to die in their early 40s and 50s and producing miscarriages, cancer, heart attacks and birth defects.

They note that lawsuits filed 10 years ago against Dow Chemical Co., manufacturer of Kuron since 1954, and the U.S. Forest Service have yet to go to trial, although one has been scheduled for October.

"Why all this hysteria over one little asbestos mill when they just wiped people out 10 years ago?" asked Charmion McKusick.

"No one cares about our problem. It's just crazy. It's just a picky nothing little trailer park where no one had any illness. And they're making a federal case out of it."

Gov. Bruce Babbitt visited Mountain View Mobile Home Estates earlier this month and warned residents that tailings from an abandoned asbestos mine were a potential cause of cancer. He advised 39 families to leave and ordered the state Division of Emergency Services to assist in the evacuation.

Twenty-five families have refused to move, however, citing either inconvenience or lack of proof that their health is in danger.

The residents of this town of 7,500 some 60 miles east of Phoenix say they find it hard to understand the state's concern in a case where no health problems have been reported because the serious health complaints of persons exposed to Kuron were ignored.

Trial testimony continues

PLAINVIEW (AP) — The focus of attention in Loy Dean Stone's murder trial has swung from the defendant to the man who led the investigation of the killing.

Stone is a self-described witch charged in the Halloween 1977 killing of a Dimmitt teenager. But Castro County Sheriff Granville Martin was in the spotlight during the first week of testimony.

Martin admitted to defense attorney Travis Shelton that, during the initial investigation, officers did not tell Stone that a girl had been killed on his property and the Stones were not read their rights, "because they wasn't under arrest."

Stone, 50, is accused in the shotgun slaying of Roxanne Casas, 15, as she sat in a truck in his driveway near Dimmitt in the Texas Panhandle. Mrs. Stone, 49, has been granted a separate trial.

The Stones, both high priests in the Church of Wicca, have pleaded innocent.

The trial was moved 45 miles to Plainview after the killing caused an uproar in Dimmitt's Hispanic community.

Radioed traffic reports studied for Texas drivers

The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation may be about to turn on that increasingly popular radio station feature — the traffic report.

Traffic engineers are experimenting with short-range broadcasts that the average motorist can tune in on his car radio, a gimmick most big-city radio stations already employ during rush hours, often with reports from helicopters.

The state's idea was tested in November on Interstate 35 as tourists inched along toward the Wursthfest celebration in New Braunfels. Highway signs told drivers where to tune in for traffic snarls ahead.

Licenses numbers were recorded and the Wursthfesters were later asked by mail if the tape-recorded service was helpful.

The results will be studied by the Texas Transportation Institute in College Station. Conrad Dudek, a TTI research engineer, said the highway advisory radio could become part of a comprehensive communications system.

"It's one technique where the highway department can transmit the latest information. It would be on-the-spot information, and if something unusual should happen on the freeway the information could be transmitted to the driver," said Dudek.

"Then the motorists should be able to avoid congestion."

But Dudek says he already has run into some logjams in the system.

The Federal Communications Commission has set aside only two frequencies for the 10-watt transmitters, which have a range of about a mile. And in big cities, where AM stations are bumper-to-bumper along the dial, there may be no room for the highway broadcasts.

Dudek said some cities with crowded radio dials now use other innovative communications systems. Dallas has remote control message boards that give drivers updated traffic and weather conditions on the crowded freeways.

The radio system has been tried elsewhere in the state. Dudek said a 10-watt transmitter was used near Beaumont at a construction site on Interstate 10. Houston Intercontinental Airport has used the system to help motorists find parking places.

Nike missile school set at Fort Bliss

EL PASO (AP) — NATO plans to spend about $20 million at Fort Bliss, the huge nearby Army installation, for a training program to help modernize the Nike surface-to-air missile system used in six European countries.

Project coordinator Ulrich Menzel, a German Air Force officer on leave from the military, has taken up residence here to prepare for the school, which will begin in October. It will train specialists to maintain the missile's solid-state circuitry, he said.

The missile system uses nuclear or conventional warheads to break up enemy aircraft formations. "It is a very old system and the U.S. Army is phasing it out in the near future," says Menzel.

"This modification does not significantly increase the capabilities of the system," says Menzel.

However, Belgium, Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Greece and possibly Turkey plan to update their Nike systems, Menzel said.

The countries cannot get spare parts for the systems, according to Menzel. He says manufacturers have nearly stopped making vacuum tubes, for instance.

The Texas school's annual budget will be about $7 million, Menzel said, employing 717 NATO managers and about 120 other workers hired in the United States. He said it could remain in operation for 10 years.

About 150 military students from the six countries will be enrolled in the school, Menzel said, adding that the NATO school will replace classes at Redstone Arsenal, in Huntsville, Ala., and Fort Bliss.

He said NATO will repay the U.S. Army for all buildings, equipment and facilities NATO uses.

Menzel says El Paso was chosen for the school site because facilities in Europe were not available "and we would have had to start from scratch."

"The support we are getting here at Fort Bliss is excellent and without it we never could get the school ready in time," Menzel said.

Pampa's religious community expresses area of challenge

By SHEILA ECCLES
Of The Pampa News

With 38 churches listed in the Pampa directory, two offering inspirational phone messages and several offering Sunday television or radio coverage, the religious needs of the community seem to have been met.

Some of Pampa's religious leaders expressed their feelings on the position of religion in the community today. They elaborated on the difficulties in spreading the word of God and the joy in seeing new members accept their offerings.

The electronic church, youth cults and ceremonial changes have made their mark on religion. The main area of concern for local religious leaders is the family unit.

There are so many ways to separate and divide family members that several local churches are offering family services and seminars to aid people.

"Young people were of major concern. Keeping them on the right road is a daily challenge according to many local church leaders.

"To minister is to try to meet the total needs of the human being, physical and spiritual," according to Claude Cone of the First Baptist Church. "The church can be influential, especially among the young."

February will mark the opening of the First Baptist Church Day Care Center. In an age where the mother is often taken out of the home, Cone feels "Young children have a need. Bible stories have been overshadowed by television heroes. Sampson is no longer the strongest man. The Hulk has replaced him in many young minds."

Daniel Trujillo of the Cruz del Calvario Church, is a young minister who relates to the youth. "Young people are looking for something in their life, and parents are not always the best examples for them to follow." As minister of one of the four Spanish churches in Pampa, Trujillo believes there is a real need for minority churches.

Trujillo feels the way to spread the word of God is to go out and offer something to the people. "It doesn't matter where they go to worship, they just need to get interested in God."

Father Hynes of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church explained, "The pendulum is swinging back, from non-attending people to an awareness of God and Church."

In discussing the popularity of John Paul II, Father Hynes felt that, "The Pope has not really increased the Catholic flock, but it does make those who are members feel proud. He adds the human factor."

The Catholic Church had undergone several changes in ceremony in recent years. Change is always difficult for some, and according to Father Hynes the changes and attendance records were proportionate, however he added, "The Catholic Church is through changing."

Rev. Vernon Martin of the New Hope Baptist Church feels that "Religion cannot promise more than it can deliver, a congregation needs to hear the truth, and life sometimes causes suffering."

Impact of new budget will affect Texans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A first viewing of President Carter's proposed 1981 budget offers glimpses of the myriad impact of federal spending on Texas.

Although there is no breakdown on a state-by-state basis to show how much of the proposed outlay of about $615 billion would be bound for Texas, a budget appendix released today provides information on topics as diverse as a helium plant in the Panhandle and Lady Bird Johnson's pension.

Last year, federal hand-outs accounted for about one-fourth of Texas state government's total revenue.

A special analysis of how federal aid is distributed by region shows that Texas and its four neighboring states fared less well for 1979 than the national average on a per capita basis.

The 5-state region received $7.5 billion in federal grants for 1979, according to preliminary estimates.

That works out to $320 per person for the year, below the national average of $373 per person.

The per capita figure represents a substantial dollar increase over 1969, when $112 per person in federal grants came to the area. In 1969, however, per capita grants to the region were above the national average of $100 per person.

The increase in human resources program relative to physical resources spending such as highway construction and the development of general revenue sharing programs to state and local governments have helped equalize the disparity among regions, the analysis said.

One branch of the federal government that holds particular interest for Texas is the Immigration and Naturalization Service and its border enforcement programs.

The budget proposes a 1981 outlay of $347 million for the INS, an increase of $12 million.

"The administration's proposals do not provide for the full border patrol increase authorized in the last session of the Congress because the administration does not believe that this increase would, by itself, make a significant contribution to border enforcement," the budget said. "Illegal immigrants are drawn to the United States by high wages, and there are no federal restrictions against hiring those who are in the country illegally."

Large budget increases would not be productive until laws are changed to remove incentives for illegal immigration, the budget said.

It added that no one knows exactly how much federal money spread among several agencies goes strictly for border enforcement, but the information will be developed during the next year.

The civil works budget request from the Army Corps of Engineers asks for $168.9 million for Texas projects in the 1981 fiscal year, down from the $181 million requested last year.

The biggest difference is the absence of the $34 million that was requested last year for the full funding of a flood control project in Baytown.

Among the biggest budget outlays requested for Texas corps projects are:

- $32.5 million for flood control construction at Lake Lakeview.
- $17.8 million for operation and maintenance of the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway, up from the $6.1 million asked for last year.
- $13.3 million for flood control construction at El Paso, up from the $8.2 million asked for last year.

It is the opinion of the Grandview-Hopkins Independent School District Board of Trustees that Senate Bill 621 is not in the best interest of the citizens of Texas, and does not provide adequate representation for all taxing entities. However, Grandview-Hopkins, McLean, Lefors, and Alanreed made an effort to provide more uniform representation by implementing Subsection I of Senate Bill 621 which provides an opportunity for three-fourths of the entities involved to change the method of selecting and the number of members on the Appraisal District Board.

In a letter of January 10, the Pampa Independent School District and the Pampa City Commission proposed a compromise for the taxing entities involved; but, at the same time filed an amended petition with the 223 District Court of Gray County citing the other entities and the appointed members of the Appraisal District Board. In order to make a thorough evaluation of this compromise presented in a meeting at Lefors, Texas, on January 17, the Grandview Hopkins Board will need additional time to study the effects of the resolution presented.

Since Senate Bill 621 tends to eliminate the power of taxing from the local people, Grandview-Hopkins will proceed with the utmost caution in order to provide our constituents and all the taxpayers in Gray County with the best representation possible.

Two energy tax breaks pay off for filers

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the fifth in a series of five articles entitled "Coping With Your Income Tax." They were written to help taxpayers prepare their 1979 tax returns.

By GLENN RITT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last year, nearly six million taxpayers claimed $600 million in tax breaks for such energy conservation schemes as installing storm windows and building windmills. With oil prices still climbing and the Middle East a perpetual powder keg, these energy credits appear even sweeter this year.

And Congress could expand the preparation incentives by the time taxpayers sit down to prepare their 1979 forms.

At the moment, there are two distinct energy breaks: You can reduce your taxes by up to $300 for household improvements such as replacing your thermostat or weather stripping your doors.

You can also claim a tax credit of up to $2,200 for more ambitious endeavors — installing what the law calls "renewable energy sources." These include devices that transmit some solar, wind, or geothermal energy to heat, cool or provide hot water for a residence.

That must be your "principal" residence, the IRS cautions.

Household improvements include:

- Insulation for floors, ceilings, roofs, hot water heaters and pipes.

- Exterior storm, or thermal, window and doors.

- Caulking or weather stripping for exterior windows and doors.

- A furnace replacement burner that reduces the amount of fuel used.

- A device to make flue openings for a heating system more efficient.

- An electrical or mechanical furnace ignition system that replaces a gas pilot light.

- An automatic, energy-saving thermostat.

- A meter that displays the cost of energy usage.

Your tax bill is $5,000, but you spent $1,000 to install storm windows last February. You can claim 15 percent of that expense as an energy credit of $150 and pay total taxes of $4,850.

Renewable energy sources:

This credit is computed by taking 30 percent of the first $2,000 and 20 percent of the next $8,000 spent for solar, geothermal and wind devices.

As with energy conservation expenses, the full $10,000 limit can be spread over several tax years. A new $10,000 limit applies for each principal residence you occupy.

These larger projects must be expected to last at least five years.

This credit does not apply to solar devices such as extra-thick walls, windows, skylights, greenhouses and roof overhangs.

Congress is considering expanding these credits to include heat pumps and other solar schemes, the IRS advises.

Taxpayers also may be able to take some deductions for home heating expenses.

If such changes are made by Congress, the IRS will distribute a separate form, in addition to the already-published 1040 form.

There's one other way the government is inducing energy conservation.

No longer can taxpayers deduct state and local gasoline taxes. That will further increase the cost of driving, on top of record-high gasoline prices.

The sweater girl is back

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — Knit one, knit two, what's the difference? Why not knit a whole collection for spring? Which is what Givenchy Sport did, in a knitting mill in Reading, Pa., no less.

Why the company did (knit, that is) has to do with the weather, for one thing: knitted garments, they say, hold in the heat in winter and let it out in summer.

Plus which, if you put Qiana and combinations of acrylic and Antron on the knitting machine's needles, as Givenchy Sport has, the machine will present you with an "opulent" texture, i.e., a vest for $52 that feels like velour, or a pullover for $57 in white and pastels that does the same.

Or boucle knit cardigans and skirts, or the raised-pattern trumpet-gored skirt, which means it's fitted at the hip but not at the bottom (in black, cream, navy, white, orange or red, for $52).

Then again, if you arrange it, the machine can come up with a herringbone texture in a pull-on skirt for $48 and a cardigan jacket for $52, in hot coral, emerald, marine navy or white, and lots of other things in sizes 6-16.

Some of them, it knits "full fashion," which means that each component of, say, a pullover, is knit exactly to size. That means, they aren't cut out of a large piece of knitted piece goods and sewn together, which may result in frayed edges, sagging or constricting armholes if the seamstress is thinking about lunch.

Of course, Givenchy Sport also cuts and sews some of its knitted things, but knowing the hazards involved — very carefully, one assumes.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm a rather large woman, 55, neat, well-groomed and far from ugly. I've been married for 35 years to a handsome man who neither drinks nor smokes, but he loves to dance. I love to dance, too, but I have arthritis in both knees, so my dancing days are over.

I have no money worries, live in a nice home, own my own car, so I can come and go as I please. I play bingo about three times a week.

My problem is that my husband goes dancing every Friday and Sunday, while I'm playing bingo. Different friends have told me that I'm a fool to let my husband go dancing without me, but it's no fun to go and sit while he dances with other women. He tells me that all the women he dances with know he's married. He always wears his wedding band and is usually home before I am. I could make things miserable by telling him I would rather he didn't go dancing since I can't dance, but why should I begrudge him the pleasure of doing something I know he enjoys so much?

Abby, I'm so afraid that one day he will come home and tell me he has found someone else. I don't nag him about it, but do you think I'm a fool for letting him go dancing without me?

WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WORRIED: Yes, as long as you feel threatened. Go with him for a while. It may not be "fun," but it may clear up some of those doubts. It's usually the fear of the unknown that creates uneasiness and worry.

THE PEOPLE'S PHARMACY

By Joe Graedon

An important new blood pressure medication just bit the dust. And the saga of its removal from the market is one that should make everyone feel more secure: the procedures for detecting unsuspected prescription drug hazards really work.

Selacryn (ticarfen) first came out in May of 1979. This drug represented an important new breakthrough for people who suffered from both hypertension and gout. Instead of raising uric acid levels (which can precipitate gout) the way many other diuretics do, it lowered them. And it worked just as well in keeping blood pressure down.

But this success story came to a screeching halt Jan. 15. Representatives from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and the manufacturer met to discuss the disturbing results of the adverse drug reaction reports. They were alarmed that doctors nationwide had seen 52 cases of liver damage in patients using this medication, apparently as a result of an unusual type of allergic reaction.

Five of these people died, and though no one knows whether Selacryn actually caused the deaths, the feds and the firm agreed that prudence is the best policy.

Smith Kline and French immediately suspended all sales of the drug. Pharmacies and hospitals will be sending their stocks of the medicine back to the maker.

If you are currently on Selacryn, however, do not panic. The FDA and the drug company urge you not to stop the drug on your own, but get in touch with your doctor promptly. He can prescribe another medication to keep your blood pressure under control.

Talking with a company spokesman, we were impressed with Smith Kline and French's commitment to safety. Naturally, this development is a big disappointment to them for they spent five years and millions of dollars testing Selacryn carefully without discovering this danger.

The research on any new medication is a tremendous gamble for a drug company, since the compound could prove to be unsafe or unsuitable at any step along the way. Ticarfen (Selacryn), for example, was first developed in France in 1967. Smith Kline acquired it in 1973 and began its own extensive testing, which eventually involved clinical trials in about 4,000 patients in 27 different countries.

In these tests, which satisfied the FDA's rigorous requirements for new drugs, no cases of liver damage were detected. And there have been reports of problems from Europe, either through over a million people have taken ticarfen since it was introduced there in 1976.

How is it possible that in all of this testing no one discovered this dangerous reaction sooner? Animal studies do pick up many hazards, and thousands of new drugs must be abandoned at that stage.

But rats aren't people, and in this particular instance they are apparently less sensitive than humans to the hypersensitivity reaction.

Then, too, the liver damage problem is relatively rare — perhaps affecting only about 1 person in 5,000 taking the drug. Clinical studies on 4,000 people just weren't extensive enough to detect a reaction this infrequent.

More disturbing is the silence from other countries where the drug is being used. We can be proud that the adverse drug reporting system used by the FDA and the firm turned up information on the problem so quickly.

We agree with Dr. Richard Crout, director of the FDA's Bureau of Drugs, when he said, "This is a responsible move by the manufacturer. The public should know that a good reporting system, properly utilized by physicians, the manufacturer and the FDA, has worked the way it was designed to, promptly and effectively to protect the public health."

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By Robert Wallace

Dr. Wallace: Please allow me to tell my story. It is very important to me.

I'm not writing for help. I've already learned my lesson and I'm receiving my help. This letter is for the kids who think it's cool to get high.

I'll tell you where it got me — right into a detention center. But I still hadn't learned my lesson. I still kept on getting high. In order to get my kicks and money for my habit I started breaking into houses.

I was lucky because one of the houses I broke into was mine and my own father turned me in. At this very moment I'm sitting in a children's home. But I consider myself lucky. I'm getting out soon and I'm alive. One of my friends didn't make it. She died of an overdose.

Teens, please listen to what I've said. I'm speaking from experience. — Jeanette, West Texas Children's Home, Fyote, Texas

Jeanette: You are very kind to take the time to share your touching experience.

Dr. Wallace: I have a complaint about teachers. We have a 20-minute lunch period so you can see we have a very short lunch period. What really "bugs" me is that teachers go right up to the front of the lunch line cutting in front of all the starving students. Do you think this is right? — Alden, North Benton, Ohio

Alden: I see a few things that could be changed. First of all, 20 minutes are too short to feed a student body and staff. Next, teachers lose credibility when they cut in line, but yet they cannot be expected to stand in the student line. An alert administration might set up a special line just for the staff.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and I'm in love with one of my teachers who is 23. Please don't tell me to find guys my own age because as I said, I'm in love with my teacher. What should I do? — Nameless, Huntsville, Ala.

Nameless: You should come to your senses, and soon.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 25-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace in care of this newspaper.

Scott, Stout, McBride honored at 22nd annual hall of fame ceremony

AMARILLO—Coach Steve Scott and pitcher Steve Stout of Pampa combined to sweep honors in baseball during the 22nd annual Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame ceremony held Sunday in Amarillo College gym.

Jasper McBride, of Pampa, picked up a special achievement award, along with Nancy Holt, Amarillo and Texas Tech, Sam Bryan, Happy, and Ann Dunavin, Amarillo High School.

Scott, selected as baseball coach of the year, coached the Pampa Harvesters to the first District 3-AAAA title in school history. Stout, baseball athlete of the year, led the mound staff with an 8-1 regular-season pitching record and a 1.15 earned run average.

McBride, a well-known referee-umpire, was honored for his work with youth in the Pampa Optimist baseball program.

Dr. Floyd Golden jokingly introduced McBride as one of the few umpires that was well-liked.

McBride came to Pampa from Wichita Falls in 1934 to play semi-pro baseball. His playing days came to an end in 1945 when part of his left foot had to be amputated due to a circulatory disease.

Highlighting the ceremony was the installation of three new members to the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame. They were Johnny Allen, former football and track coach at Carver High; George Ray Colvin, all-time basketball great at Turkey High School and West Texas State, and Carl McAdams, an All-American linebacker two years in a row at Oklahoma University.

Wardell Gilbreath, a world-class sprinter, and Bill Yung, West Texas football coach, were winners of the HOF athlete and coach-of-the-year awards.

The Dee Henry Memorial Award went to Leonard Duncan of Stratford, who bounced back from a serious auto accident to earn a letter and a scholarship on the Texas Tech football squad. The award is presented to an area athlete or sports person who has overcome adversity with courage and determination to achieve in the field of athletics.

Honored along with Scott as coaches of the year in the various sports were Kelly Chadwick, basketball, Amarillo College; Bill Yung, football, West Texas State; Pat Drake, golf, Amarillo High; Bud Birks, tennis, Nazareth High School, and Bob Kitchens, track, West Texas

USOC making plans for sports festival

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Committee, supporting President Carter's wishes to move the Summer Games out of Moscow, has begun to make contingency plans to hold a national sports festival as an alternative to the Olympics.

There is even talk of a July Fourth ticker tape parade to honor American athletes who have trained for years to participate in the quadrennial Games that are now embroiled in international politics.

At the same time, however, the USOC refrained from making a decision on Carter's request that no American athletes be sent to Moscow because of the Soviets' military occupation of Afghanistan.

The USOC executive board, with 68 of its 86 members attending, voted unanimously Saturday to support Carter and to ask the International Olympic Committee to transfer, postpone or cancel the Moscow Games unless Soviet troops are withdrawn from Afghanistan by Feb. 20.

President Carter, returning to the White House Sunday evening from Camp David, Md., where he spent the weekend, was asked if he was pleased by the board's action.

"Yes; very much so," he replied.

The USOC will present Carter's proposal to the IOC before the start of the Winter Games, which open Feb. 13 in Lake Placid, N.Y.

USOC representatives are testifying today before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Carter's recommendation. The House voted overwhelmingly last week to back the president.

Meanwhile, the USOC voted Sunday to continue efforts to develop an Olympic team which most likely would compete this summer in Colorado Springs, the site of two previous National Sports Festivals, although Montreal and Philadelphia were mentioned as possible sites.

Larry Bird, Magic Johnson looking like veterans in National Basketball League

Larry Bird and Earvin Johnson may be rookies in the National Basketball Association, but they're both looking like old pros.

The two heralded tyros both played dynamic roles for their teams Sunday. Bird scoring 36 points to lead Boston over San Diego 131-108 and Johnson collecting 25 to pace Los Angeles past Milwaukee 112-102.

"We called his number quite a bit today," said Boston Coach Bill Fitch of Bird.

"We thought he could be effective against San Diego, so we looked for him more, especially with Dave Cowens out."

In addition to his career-high point total, Bird grabbed seven rebounds and made three steals.

Johnson, meanwhile, started for the first in seven games and scored 25 points to help the surging Lakers win their eighth game in the past nine. After suffering a groin injury, Johnson had missed two games and came off the bench in two others.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Washington defeated Golden State 116-107; Indiana nipped Cleveland 123-121; Phoenix stopped Philadelphia 125-118; New York turned back Detroit 98-93; Atlanta whipped San Antonio 118-111 and New Jersey edged Chicago 128-127.

With the help of Bird and Rick Robey, who filled in for the injured Cowens with a 24-point performance, the Celtics broke open a close game in the third period and pulled away to their 22nd victory in 26 home starts.

Along with Johnson, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was a big gun for the Lakers, scoring 23 points. The victory gave Los Angeles a 24-3 record at home, best in the NBA.

Bullets 116, Warriors 107

Elvin Hayes scored 34 points as Washington snapped a six-game home losing streak by beating Golden State. Hayes, who also had 11 rebounds, sparked a rally late in the third quarter to give the Bullets a lead they never lost.

Pacers 123, Cavaliers 121

Alex English tipped in a missed shot at the buzzer and was fouled and sank the free throw to lift Indiana over Cleveland. The Cavaliers had gone ahead 121-120 with six seconds to go on Randy Smith's layup.

Suns 125, 76ers 118

Paul Westphal scored 26 points and Walter Davis added 24 to lead Phoenix past Philadelphia. The 76ers, with the NBA's best record going into the game, lost for only the 13th time in 49 contests.

Darryl Dawkins led Philadelphia with a season-high 34 points.

Lamar visits Arkansas State

Lamar University, fresh from its 27th straight home basketball victory, travels to Arkansas State Monday night for an early clash between leaders in the Southland Conference race.

Lamar opened its title defense with a 74-60 victory over Louisiana Tech before a standing-room-only crowd Saturday night in Beaumont, raising the Cardinals' record to 13-8 for the season.

It was their sixth victory in their last seven games, the only loss coming by two points to DePaul, the nation's No. 1 major college team.

Arkansas State is 2-0, having beaten Louisiana Tech 61-54 early last week and edged Texas-Arlington 82-78 Saturday.

McNeese State, which is 1-0, tries to keep pace in a game Monday night at Texas-Arlington, and Southwestern Louisiana plays at Louisiana Tech.

Mike Oliver and Clarence Kea combined for 57 points in Lamar's victory over Louisiana Tech. Lamar jumped off to a 10-0 lead and was never headed, although the visitors battled to a 45-45 tie midway through the second half. Lamar has not lost at home in three years.

Southwestern Louisiana lost its second league game Saturday night as Andrew Toney, the nation's seventh-leading scorer, did not even suit up. McNeese State, winning its 10th straight game at home, pulled out an 84-81 win.

Arkansas State ended Texas-Arlington's seven-game winning streak with its triumph Saturday. The Indians scored nearly half their 82 points at the free throw line, as 66 personal fouls were called in the game.

Seven players fouled out, but despite being outshot 60-42 from the field, Arkansas State made 40 of 58 free throws to only 18 free throws for Arlington.

Lilly, three others to enter grid hall of fame

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — The lives of Bob Lilly, Herb Adderley and Deacon Jones continue on parallel courses. They were all pro football draft choices in 1961. They all blossomed into defensive stars. This summer they all will enter the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

The three will be joined by long-time Oakland Raiders center Jim Otto as inductees into the sport's shrine in Canton on Saturday, Aug. 2, moments before the Green Bay Packers and the San Diego Chargers perform in their annual Hall of Fame exhibition game.

Their inductions will increase the number of members to 106.

The shrine's 29-member board of selections elected Lilly, Otto and Jones in their first year of eligibility, five years after their retirements from the game. Adderley made it in his third year.

Lilly, who was an All-American while playing at Texas Christian, was the first-ever draft choice of the Dallas Cowboys 19 years ago. For 14 seasons, he stood out as a defensive end and defensive tackle for the Cowboys as they became a dominant force in the National Football League.

Adderley, a defensive back from Michigan State, also went in the first round in 1961 to Green Bay. He becomes the sixth Packer, counting the late Green Bay Coach Vince Lombardi, to be elected to the hall.

The Los Angeles Rams waited until the 14th round to draft Jones after his obscure college career. The defensive end played for one season at South Carolina State in 1958, sat out 1959 and performed for Mississippi Vocational in 1960.

Otto joined the Oakland Raiders in 1960 from the University of Miami.

NFC ends pro bowl domination by AFC

HONOLULU (AP) — "I can remember when we seemed to lose this one just about every year, too," coach Tom Landry said. "Well, now that we've got this one under control, it would be nice to get the same thing going with the Super Bowl."

The "we" Landry talked about is the National Conference. "This one" is the Pro Bowl — which the NFC won Sunday by beating the American Conference 37-27.

It's about the only thing the NFC can seem to win with regularity. The AFC has won seven of the last eight season series (the eighth was a tie) and seven of the last eight Super Bowls, too.

Terry Bradshaw, though, displayed a cavalier attitude. Unlike a week earlier, when he won Most Valuable Player honors for his superb quarterbacking of the Steelers in their 31-19 Super Bowl victory over Los Angeles, Bradshaw wore the goat horns here for throwing two interceptions, both of which preceded NFC touchdowns.

Winning is very important to Chuck Muncie and Archie Manning of New Orleans and the rest of the NFC stars. After all, $5,000 is not something to be ignored. That's how much each winning player received, twice what each loser got.

Muncie was the runaway choice as the MVP in his first Pro Bowl. The Saints' running back, who led all rushers with 71 yards in 12 carries, scored touchdowns on a 1-yard dive at the start of the second period and on an 11-yard sweep early in the fourth quarter. And Muncie's halfback option pass to Dallas wide receiver Tony Hill accounted for a third NFC touchdown.

"I'm gonna use the money to pay off the bills my wife and I have been running up here," Muncie said of his winning share. And Manning, who completed a sparkling nine of 10 passes for 112 yards — including a 13-yard scoring strike to Detroit's David Hill just 75 seconds before Muncie's toss — added, "I had a lot of motivation for this game. I brought my whole family over here and I needed the $5,000 to break even."

It was virtually an all-Saints show, another star of the game being New Orleans safety Tom Myers. With the NFC leading by 10 points at the start of the fourth quarter, Bradshaw completed passes of 17 yards to Cleveland's Mike Pruitt and 18 yards to Stallworth to put the AFC at the NFC 12.

Then, as John Stallworth slanted across the field, Myers stepped in front of him at the 7, picked off Bradshaw's pass and ran it back 40 yards. Six plays later, Muncie scored from the 11, the NFC lead ballooned to 37-20 and the second of Earl Campbell's two short TD runs didn't hurt a bit.

The score went to 30-10 in the third quarter when the Eagles' Wally Henry, outscore on kick returns most of the day by Denver's Rick Upchurch, took a punt and sprinted 86 yards for a touchdown. It was just four yards shy of Billy Johnson's Pro Bowl punt-return record.

But in a game which in recent years had become ho-hum affairs (NFC victories by 13-7 and 14-13 scores the past two seasons), the NFC's 37 points and the two-team total of 64 broke scoring marks set in 1973 when the AFC won 33-28.

Ramsey leads Ohio State to win over Virginia

If Ohio State had a hangover from the Wisconsin game, it didn't show.

Actually, Kelvin Ramsey says, "the best thing that happened to us was to lose Saturday night. I just relaxed, shot my normal shot and prayed a lot today."

So the fourth-ranked Buckeyes, after a 72-71 upset by Wisconsin Saturday night, salvaged something from the weekend by beating No. 17 Virginia 70-65 Sunday.

Ramsey, as usual, was the catalyst for the Buckeyes, scoring in double figures for the 80th straight game with 18 points.

"I don't want to see any better than Ramsey," said Virginia Coach Terry Holland. "He was a big factor. He was awfully good. Ohio State has great quickness in the backcourt."

That backcourt also includes Carter Scott, who scored 21 points for Ohio State Sunday. Ramsey and Scott teamed up to score all but 19 of the Buckeyes' points in a seven-minute period near the end that gave them a 69-63 lead.

"He's been brilliant all year," said Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller of Ramsey. "His assists are three times his turnovers consistently. I thought his play today was phenomenal."

In another game Sunday involving a Top Twenty team, seventh-ranked Louisville defeated Florida State 79-73.

In Saturday's games, No. 1 DePaul defeated Evansville 105-94. No. 2 Oregon State beat California 86-55. No. 3 Duke whipped Pitt 78-69. No. 5 Kentucky stopped Georgia 56-49. No. 6 Syracuse beat Connecticut 99-89. No. 8 Notre Dame nipped No. 15 Maryland 64-63. No. 9 St. John's defeated Villanova 81-75 and Oklahoma upset No. 10 Missouri 78-73.

Also, No. 11 Louisiana State tripped Florida 66-58; 13th-ranked North Carolina edged No. 12 Clemson 73-70; 16th-ranked Indiana beat 14th-ranked Purdue 69-58. No. 17 Virginia nipped North Carolina State 49-47. No. 18 Weber State walloped Idaho State 84-67. Alabama stunned No. 19 Tennessee 72-59 and No. 20 Brigham Young edged Hawaii 34-33.

The Cavaliers built a 41-34 lead in the first six minutes of the second half before the Buckeyes rallied behind the play of their guards in the nationally-televised game. Virginia's Ralph Sampson outscored Ohio State's Herb Williams 14 points to 13 in their heralded battle at the center position.

Less than 24 hours before the Virginia game, the Buckeyes lost a close one when Wisconsin's John Bailey delivered a three-point play with 12 seconds remaining.

Louisville, meanwhile, ran its winning streak to nine games behind a 27-point performance by Darrell Griffith. Florida State was a tough team for Louisville to put away, as Cardinal Coach Denny Crum pointed out.

"Every time we got something going," he said, "they just kept coming back. That's the mark of a good team."

Mark Aguirre's 27 points led DePaul over Evansville for the undefeated Blue Demons' 17th victory this season. The Purple Aces made a run in the final minutes, but came no closer than 10 points to the Blue Demons, who won for the 36th straight time at home. The triumph was the 612th career coaching victory for Ray Meyer.

Henderson wants to come back

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys head coach Tom Landry will agree to one more visit with fired linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, but he's not sure they have much to talk about.

During the weekend, a penitent Henderson revealed he will make another effort to rejoin the Cowboys, who dismissed him in the middle of the 1979 National Football League season.

Henderson said his approach to Landry will be simple: "I'm going to ask him to forgive me."

"I don't know if it would work or not but if I made up my mind to conform and prove I could do all the things I didn't do with the Cowboys, and if I said I wanted to conform... would he (Landry) give me another chance?"

Landry, in Hawaii to coach the NFC Pro Bowl team, said, "I cannot comment until I talk to him. I just talked to him last week."

Landry and Henderson had several meetings before the firing, during which Landry said he told the linebacker about areas in which he needed to improve.

The coach often expressed distress at Henderson's outspokenness and braggadocio, Henderson admitted.

"We've met before," said Henderson, "but all he's said is, 'When I get back from the Pro Bowl we'll see what we need.' I said, 'Well, you need me,' and his reply was 'We could always use you.' He said it kind of jokingly," Henderson said.

Watson wins play

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "I thought I had it won on 17, then I thought I had lost it on 18," Tom Watson said.

Neither happened.

He had to go to an extra hole to subdue D.A. Weibring in a sudden death playoff Sunday for the title in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

The playoff, a one-holer which Watson won with a two-putt par against Weibring's bogey, was more or less routine. Little of the rest was.

Watson had a wild series of adventures in the cool, cloudy, breezy weather. He'd started the day with a two-stroke lead, later trailed by three, again led by two, was tied, led again, then was tied.

The last lead was established on the 17th hole. Watson's 35-40 foot birdie putt paused, tantalizingly, on the lip of the cup. It sat there for a couple of seconds while Watson turned his back in disgust. Then it dropped, sending Watson leaping into the air and scampering around the green.

But he gave it back on the par-5 18th. He put his second shot over the green, chipped back poorly, then three-putted for bogey 6, missing a three-foot second putt that sent it into a playoff.

"If I'd lost in the playoff, I'd have deserved it," Watson told wife Linda.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

January 29, 1980

This coming year others may do you more favors with fewer strings attached than they have in a long time. Be grateful to your benefactors and take full advantage of your opportunities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Material items could come to you today from two different sources. One is through your personal effort, but the other might be an unexpected gift. Romance, career, travel, luck, resources and possible pitfalls for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph Letter that begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could begin to feel more independent and in control of things today. This is the time to push forward. You make the breaks come easier.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't be stuffy or sensitive about letting another go to bat for you if he or she offers to. It won't damage your image one bit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Because of your charm and wit, you won't have much difficulty swaying those with whom you come in contact today. People are drawn to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Goals that are important will appear to come more easily today, but in reality it's because you blend the perfect amount of diplomacy with drive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Situations calling for imagination and creativity will be your cup of tea today. Don't hold back putting into use any ideas you get.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others will look favorably on any request you make today for material needs. If the timing is right, your approach won't be too demanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Ally yourself with teammates today whose aims parallel your interests. Much more can be accomplished when things are done in tandem.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You get exactly what you want today because you know how to use the soft sell. You refrain from putting a strain on anyone else.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your plans today include not only you but others who have the good fortune to know you. Your thinking is intelligent and will be successful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're very adept today at getting lots of mileage out of any materials offered to you. The use you put them to will benefit the whole family.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Trust answers you come up with to solve puzzles today. You have the ability to step back and get a clear perspective on things.
