Bani-Sadr warns Islamic militants

Iran's president Abolhassan Bani-Sadr praised the aims of Islamic militants who were holding some 50 Americans hostage for the 98th day Saturday, but issued them a veiled warning to obey government decisions, according to an interview with a Persian Gulf newspaper.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, meanwhile, said in a British television interview that force might be used if the Iranian government met resistance in trying to take control of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, which the militants seized 14 weeks ago, when they took the hostages.

Another top official, arrested and briefly held last week after the embassy captors accused him of being linked to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, urged Bani-Sadr to clean up what he called the various power centers in Iran.

There were these other developments: — Andrew Young, former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, arrived in Algeria declaring he had "no plan" for securing release of the Americans at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Young arrived from Rome, where he was asked about reports he would visit Iran. "I wish I could go," Young said. There have been persistent rumors in the Mideast that Young may figure in an international tribunal to investigate charges against deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi as part of a package deal to release the Americans.

— The governor of Turkoman province in northern Iran appealed for calm and warned army troops would intervene after clashes Friday in which four persons were killed and 25 were injured, according to a Tehran radio broadcast monitored in London. The situation in the Turkoman area of Gombad-e-Kavuz was "on the whole critical," it said. Inhabitants of the province are a Turkish-speaking minority.

In the interview with Al-Itihad, a semi-official newspaper published in Abu Dhabi, capital of the United Arab Emirates, Bani-Sadr was quoted as saying, "Let there be no suspicion that our students (embassy captors) are sick people, or bear animosity or any special feelings against the American hostages and the rest of the American people."

According to the newspaper, Bani-Sadr continued: "The students are acting in order to achieve a high and safe objective. When the revolution and the state are sure that the operation of taking hostages has borne the required results, it would become its (the Iranian government's) responsibility to take the proper decision regarding the question of hostages."

"And when the state takes a decision, everybody should obey it and implement its decisions. Anyway, we continue to discuss the subject at the Revolutionary Council and when we take a decision regarding the hostages, we will announce it, and the others (students) will implement it immediately."

In his interview broadcast Friday night on the Independent Television News of London, Ghotbzadeh said force might be used if the Iranian government met resistance from the militants. Force "isn't really necessary at this time," he said, adding: "If at any time the Revolutionary Council, with the backing of the imam (Khomeini) decides anything as such... it will be exercised with, obviously, discussion and persuasion and if necessary with force."

Meanwhile, Information and National Guidance Minister Nasser Minachi, who was arrested last week after the militants accused him of CIA connections, urged Bani-Sadr to do something "serious about the various power centers. We are all Moslems, but are victims of a conspiracy. Today we are appealing for justice," added Minachi, who also denied the allegations of the embassy militants.

The militants broadcast their claims on national radio and television Tuesday night, which led to Minachi's unauthorized arrest hours later by revolutionary guardsmen. Bani-Sadr had him freed Wednesday and called the militants "dictators who have created a government within a government."

Pampa graduate named publisher

D.R. Segal, president of Freedom Newspapers, Inc., announced Friday the appointment of Louise Fletcher as publisher of the Pampa News. Mrs. Fletcher, who assumes duties immediately, replaces Rick Oncken, who on Jan. 1 became publisher of The Telegram in Columbus, Neb.

A 1950 graduate of Pampa High School, Mrs. Fletcher went to work at the News in 1950, as secretary to Ralph Juillard and John Kinard in the advertising department. She worked in various departments at the News and in 1958 was appointed business manager, a position she held until her appointment as publisher.

A native of Mangum, Okla., she is the wife of Ernest Fletcher, an employee of Northern Natural Gas Co. They have one son, Mark, a senior at Pampa High School. The family enjoys sports and traveling.

Women soldiers would share in same risks

WASHINGTON (AP) — If America goes to war, women soldiers will share many of the same risks and hardships as their male counterparts, a Defense Department official says.

M. Kathleen Carpenter, deputy assistant secretary of defense for equal opportunity, says women soldiers might not be in foxholes, but they would be firing long-range missiles and high-altitude anti-aircraft guns, driving trucks and performing other jobs in support of front line troops.

"Women won't be in hand-to-hand combat," she said. "They'll be misslemen, firing Pershing missiles. And where do you think the direct hits will be?"

Despite President Carter's decision Friday to ask Congress for authority to register women for the draft, most experts say it is unlikely that women will be drafted. Congressional leaders doubt that Congress will approve the legislation to register women, much less change laws that generally bar them from combat operations.

Carter made it clear he does not want women registered for potential combat duty.

But in an interview in her Pentagon office, Ms. Carpenter, a lawyer, said Americans are kidding themselves if they think women soldiers, even in support positions, might not be in dangerous situations.

"The whole idea of warfare today is to cut off the supplies first, then the front line troops," she said. "It's not a question of whether our women will be shot at. There's no question they will be. The question is whether they'll be able to shoot back."

It's not unusual for military women to be exposed to danger. Ms. Carpenter said: "During World War II and in Vietnam, the worst place to be was on a transport ship. The object was to obtain insurance contracts for the Teamsters union and International Longshoremen's Association on the Gulf Coast. One source told the Times that as many as 12 indictments might come out of the investigation, and some of them could be returned within 60 days."

The newspaper said attempts to reach Marcello and those political and union officials said to have received money from FBI agents were unsuccessful.

An apparent key to the success of "Bribe" was the cooperation of Hauser, who late last year began serving a 30-month prison term for his 1977 conviction of masterminding similar schemes involving Los Angeles locals of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers and the Iron Workers Union, the newspaper said.

It also quoted sources as saying the FBI took great care in its conversations with the union and political figures and the key informant to avoid illegal entrapment.

Former Texas governor protests

Taking a slap at President Carter's call to register women for the draft, former Texas Gov. John Connally said Saturday the president "gets reckless at times."

Asserting there is no need to reinstate draft registration, Connally accused Carter of "engaging in bluff and bravado and I think this registration thing is part of that."

Connally told reporters that, "I don't think we ought to be talking about war. I'm opposed to women in the draft. I see no reason to register at the moment."

If the chiefs of the armed services said they could no longer perform their duties with a volunteer army, then it might be time to reinstate the draft, but not until then, he said.

Carter had said Friday he is proposing to Congress the registration of women as well as men for the draft, adding that he will seek approval for a $10 million expenditure to finance military registration of men pending a decision on women.

Connally, bringing his GOP presidential campaign to Illinois, said the United States needs to build a stronger military defense, but that it should involve new weapons and not more military personnel. He said the United States should move a fleet into the Indian Ocean to counter Soviet military strength in Afghanistan.

Connally said he supports increasing the federal defense budget by about $15 billion, but that at the same time federal spending should be slowed and the federal budget should be balanced.

Speaking to some 500 Republicans at a fund-raising breakfast, he also called for a relaxation of federal air quality standards to permit the burning of greater amounts of high-sulfur Illinois coal.

"None of us want to have dirty air or dirty water," said Connally. "But it's a question of having to make a decision."

He said the nation's reliance on imported oil should be reduced through greater development of domestic resources and increased production of nuclear energy. Connally said excessive U.S. demand for foreign oil drives up oil prices throughout the world, and breeds resentment in the developing nations.

Cold, snow continue to grip Panhandle

The Pampa area was gripped by cold and locked in by icy roadways Saturday when temperatures failed to rise above the freezing point. The scene below, east of Pampa, was typical of the entire Panhandle area. Jerry Arrington (photo at right) was just one of hundreds of residents attempting to clear away the three inches of ice topped by four inches of snow on Pampa

By The Associated Press
A winter storm painted most of North Texas with a blanket of ice and snow Saturday, icing highways as far south as the Hill Country before drifting out of the state toward Arkansas. Skies began to clear from west to east during the afternoon, and forecasters called for warmer weather Sunday with partly cloudy to sunny skies. Snow that whitened the Hill

Country was melting fast during the afternoon as the sun came out and temperatures rose above freezing.

But most of the state was in store for a cold night. Lows in Northwest Texas were predicted to dip to 10 degrees before dawn.

The moisture in the air, which moved into Texas from New Mexico and collided with very cold air at the surface, formed snowclouds that dumped 3 to 5 inches of snow on the Panhandle and 3 to 4 inches along the area south of the Red River during the day Saturday.

Jayton, between Abilene and Lubbock, had 7 inches of snow on the ground Saturday morning.

The Dallas-Fort Worth area was coated with an early morning sleet storm and then dusted with about an inch of snow. But north of the two cities, in Wise, Denton, Cooke and Grayson counties, 3 to 4 inches of snow fell.

Wichita Falls got 2 inches of snow, but Antelope, 25 miles to the southeast, got 4 inches.

Snow and sleet fell on much of an area north of a line bounded by Texarkana, Temple, and Stephenville.

Highways were packed with snow throughout West Texas, with icy conditions in eastern and north central sections. Patchy ice glazed bridges as far south as Kerrville and Austin.

Temperatures were cold throughout the state all day. At 1 p.m. readings ranged from 23 at Amarillo to 45 at Corpus Christi.

A wet winter storm rolled eastward Saturday, triggering heavy snow warnings from North Carolina to New Jersey, while residents of the Southwest and Plains states dug out from up to 2 feet of snow. Up to 8 inches of snow was expected in Virginia, and winter storm watches were posted in West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Snow showers were also expected from southern New England across the upper Ohio Valley.

Snow changed to freezing rain and sleet from Tennessee into Texas and travelers were advised to be careful. Skies were clear or partly cloudy over most of the rest of the nation.

Before moving eastward, the storm stranded thousands of cars in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, and many remained in ditches Saturday.

National Guardsmen manned four-wheel-drive trucks to ferry doctors to and from hospitals in Springfield, Mo., where 18 inches of snow put public buses out of service and forced the post office to close. Motels along Springfield's main arteries reported they were heavily booked with truckers and other travelers waiting for clear roads.

Guardsmen also provided emergency transportation in Pittsburg and Emporia, Kan. Officials said the 14 inches of snow recorded at Pittsburg was the heaviest in a quarter-century of record-keeping.

Heavy rain and snow continued to fall in southeast Arizona early Saturday, prompting state officials to close a section of Interstate 10 east of Willcox before dawn.

Snow changed to rain in northern South Carolina on Saturday, and temperatures were forecast to drop into the 20s, causing slick spots and bridges and overpasses.

A 29-year-old West Columbia, S.C., woman and her daughter were killed Saturday when their car slid into another on a snow-covered road in Chester County.

Afternoon temperatures around the country ranged from 4 at Lander, Wyo., to 77 at Orlando, Fla.

Here are some other reports from key cities around the nation as provided by the National Weather Service:

Eastern U.S. — Atlanta 37 rain, Boston 32 fair, Buffalo 24 cloudy, Caribou 18 fair, Charleston, S.C., 42 drizzle, Cincinnati 29 snow, Cleveland 24 cloudy, Detroit 26 snow, Indianapolis 26 foggy, Knoxville 45 rain, Miami 75 fair, Nashville 32 foggy, New York 33 partly cloudy, Philadelphia 30 cloudy, Pittsburgh 26 cloudy, Richmond 33 snow.

South Texas — Generally fair through Monday with a gradual warming trend. Highs Sunday in the 50s and in the 60s Monday. Lows Sunday night mostly in the 30s except 40s extreme south.

West Texas — Fair central and south. Partly cloudy in Panhandle Monday. Warmer most sections through Monday. Highs Sunday 48 north to 68 Big Bend valleys. Lows Sunday night 17 north to 35 south. Highs Monday 55 north to 75 south.

A STERN-FACED Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton, right, through his lawyer, Charles Burton, denounced charges that he had taken a bribe from a former political supporter after the speaker had talked to the supporter and others about a health insurance contract covering state employees. Clayton held a press conference Saturday at the Texas State Capitol. (AP Laserphoto)

Clayton denies any part in bribe

By GARTH JONES Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton, implicated by published reports in an FBI "sting" operation, says he has never taken a bribe and never will.
 "As far as I'm concerned it's fabricated and there's nothing to it," he said about a report published in the Los Angeles Times that he accepted $10,000 from FBI men posing as Prudential Insurance Co. agents.
 Clayton, who spent most of Saturday morning talking with his attorneys, acknowledged that he was subpoenaed to appear before a federal grand jury in Houston Tuesday, along with his office records of telephone calls and office visitors.
 Also subpoenaed before the Houston grand jury were Rusty Kelly, Clayton's top assistant, and Bob Johnson, Clayton's appointee to the Texas State Employees Retirement Board.
 The Los Angeles newspaper said Friday night the FBI offered Clayton a $10,000 payment in return for secretly supplying the undercover agents specifications for a state employees health insurance plan so Prudential could successfully win the bid. Monthly payments reportedly were to be made as long as Prudential held the contract.
 That contract now is held by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and is worth $70 million to $80 million a year in coverage of about 80,000 state employees.
 Clayton, 51, serving an unprecedented third straight two-year term as speaker of the Texas House, denied any wrongdoing. He said he has hired Charles Burton, prominent Austin attorney, to represent him.
 FBI agents questioned Clayton Friday before delivering the grand jury subpoena.
 The Austin FBI office refused any comment Saturday, referring all queries to its Washington office.
 Gov. Bill Clements said Saturday he did not believe the allegation.
 "I find it extremely hard to believe there is any foundation to these charges," he told reporters. "I have confidence in Speaker Clayton and do not believe he would participate in such a thing."
 Clayton said he met with the Prudential agents, who actually were FBI undercover agents, "only one time that I can recall. All they wanted was just to be able to bid" on the insurance contract.
 "I'm shocked, I'm appalled," he told a reporter. "I've never taken a bribe and I never would."
 He told another newsman he had "no earthly idea what the allegations are based on."
 Clayton told one reporter it was possible that someone identified as a Prudential agent could have contributed to his speaker's fund, a pool of money he uses to defer certain expenses of the office and to campaign for another term as a speaker in 1991.
 "We have so many contributions from so many people I wouldn't know who has contributed and who has not, but it has nothing to do with anything like that."
 Clayton said he would turn over the records requested by the FBI.

"We're supposed to take the records down Tuesday to federal district court (in Houston)," he said.
 Joe Murphy of the Employees Retirement System of Texas, which administers the employee insurance program, said Metropolitan Life Insurance had the low bid last spring.
 The contract is due to be reviewed again this spring, but might not be put up for bids again, he said. Murphy explained that in the second year the current carrier submits a bid and if it is in line with current insurance and inflation rates, it can be accepted without public bidding.
 He said the retirement system trustees make the determination on advice furnished by actuaries; the retirement system staff and the State Board of Insurance.
 The retirement system board consists of six members — three elected by employees and three appointees, one chosen by the governor, one by the chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court and one by the speaker of the House.
 Murphy said that although the contract is worth $70 million to $80 million in premiums, the claims have outstripped premiums in recent years by more than $1 million.

Nixons say goodbye to seaside estate

By LINDA DEUTSCH Associated Press Writer
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon was in seclusion as preparations were under way for his move Saturday from the palatial seaside estate where he has lived since his presidency fell in disgrace.
 The rambling, Spanish-style estate once known as the Western White House, had become Nixon's Elba, the place where he spent 5½ years in self-imposed exile after he resigned the presidency in 1974.
 Nixon and his wife, Pat, are moving to New York City where they have bought a 12-room, $750,000 townhouse. They say they want to be near their daughters who live on the East Coast.
 But he had no public words of farewell on his final day at La Casa Pacifica, the 29-acre estate on a bluff overlooking the Pacific Ocean. And spokesmen for Nixon declined to say exactly when the Nixons were leaving Saturday, shrouding their departure in the secrecy which has veiled the walled estate.
 The prime, oceanfront property was sold for an undisclosed price — believed to be in the millions — to three Orange County businessmen who plan to build 16 single-family homes on the site. One of the men will occupy the Nixon home.
 Associates said the Nixons would visit their close friend,

Charles "Bebe" Rebozo, in Florida before moving to Manhattan in two weeks.
 Then they will settle on East 68th Street between Lexington and Third Avenues. Neighbors include banker David Rockefeller, film director Otto Preminger and historian Arthur Schlesinger.

THE NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE FORECAST shows a broad area of snow due Sunday from the Lakes Area south into Kentucky. It will be cold in the Northeast and North-Central part of the nation, hot in the southern part of Florida and cool elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto)

Number-grows in settlement of OCAW strike

By The Associated Press

A five-week strike by 210 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union ended early Saturday at the Total Petroleum Refinery Co. in Alma, Mich., a union spokesman said.

Al Ropp, president of OCAW Local 5740, said union members agreed to a wage re-opener on the last year of a two-year contract. They went back to work beginning midnight Friday.

Jerry Archuleta, an OCAW spokesman in Denver, said Saturday 10 independent companies have reached agreements with union members. The settlements involve about 1,500 of the union's 55,000 members nationwide, who have been on strike for five weeks.

Talks between the Denver-based OCAW and Gulf Oil Corp. broke off last week without any progress. Negotiations with Atlantic Richfield Corp. were also suspended.

The local settlements have met the union's last counter offer for a two-year contract with a $1 hourly wage increase, $125 a month for medical insurance premiums for family coverage, $20 monthly for dental insurance and increased vacation time for workers with more than 15 years' seniority.

Under the new contract in Alma, for example, the average worker will earn $10.43 an hour, Ropp said.

In Belle Chasse, La., about 225 union members at the Chevron Chemical Plant went out on strike today.

Pampa escaping much of home fund shortage

By SHEILA ECCLES
Of The Pampa News

In view of the continuing inflation, making housing available to all segments of society is becoming a nationwide problem.

Those areas experiencing industry closings, energy shortages, and inflation have seen the real estate market slump considerably.

Pampa is in the unusual situation of not really experiencing the real estate slump. Ranching, farming, industry, gas and oil resources add to the continuing financial stability of the area, according to local Real Estate and banking statistics.

Real estate in Pampa had experienced a slight slow down but according to the current statistics of the Gray County Abstract Co., Real Estate is booming.

Money problems contributed to the slight slow down which occurred locally. Interest rates were high and inflation was rampant.

As of January 1, 1980, "money loosened" and loans were available through local savings and loan institutions. The Federal government gave a 90 day override on the 13 percent Texas Usury Law allowing lenders to charge the current paper rates on loans, thus the "looser money."

Milly Sanders of Shed Realtors explained, "there is always a demand for homes, and if there is a willing buyer, we will find a willing seller."

Financing has had to become more creative to accommodate buying and selling. "Assumptions carried this area through the tight money period," according to Terry Braddock of Gray County Abstract.

Some sellers are carrying the mortgages for buyers, thus allowing their Real Estate business to be transacted. FHA and Va loans were also available and used often during the high interest rate period.

The market area most effected by the current high interest and purchase price was the younger market and first home buyers. Current statistics indicate that in the next five years there will be 16 million people in the prime home-buying age group, 25 to 44.

Several salespersons in the Real Estate business saw high down payments as one of the deterrents to this young market. Families are often having to help finance the first home purchases of their offspring. In addition young marrieds are not conditioned to save money as the generations of first-home buyers before them. The easy availability of credit cards, and their use, can work against these new buyers. The debt ratio they carry, can often preclude them from receiving the large loan needed for a home purchase.

Young single people are also comprising a proportionate number of home buyers in the area and nationally. The youth market may lead to the expansion of the condominium market. The condominium is an ideal alternative to single buyers as well as working couples. According to Ralph Pritchard, president of the National Association of Realtors, "the number of singles purchasing homes now amounts to 23 percent of the buyers market."

Buyers coming from other areas are making up of approximately 40 percent of the realty sales. Transfers by many local industries have introduced newcomers to Pampa, explained Judi Edwards of Quentin Williams Realtors. "People are surprised to hear how well we are doing in Pampa. Amarillo has been harder hit, they are larger, but we have the stronger economy."

Edwards said, "Many people do not understand why money has become so hard to borrow, there is not the available currency to lend. Money market certificates are now netting the saver 11.998 percent interest. Obviously this interest makes the money market certificates more attractive to savers, who are therefore not putting dollars in to conventional savings accounts. Banks cannot loan what is not available."

The Sanders Rental Service of Pampa reported that the rental service is slower now than in the last five years. The Brown & Root construction completion and the moving of Marie Foundations have accounted for the vacancies.

New housing construction has also been slowed because of the high interest rates. There is not the interim financing available for new construction.

Dorothy Jeffrey of Joe Fischer Realtors said, "We must find a way to build lower price energy efficient homes. Less floor space would cut down the cost of construction and allow purchasing for many people."

Terry Braddock gave his view of the growth of Pampa. "The Chamber of Commerce has been influential in attracting industry to the area. There are tentative plans for an apartment complex near the Coronado Center, and money from outside the area is being spent in Pampa. The mall is one example of the growth seen locally. The Price Road area is also attracting industry, and land prices in that area have risen proportionately."

"The 1980s should bring more energy efficient homes to buyers. condominium construction will aid those who want a home but not the upkeep and a continued revitalization of inner cities will be more conducive to builders of smaller and less expensive homes," according to Pritchard.

With loans now available, housing transfers in Pampa should continue to keep well above the national average.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Attack expected upon Section 14(b)

This is election year, and we will be hearing from the primaries and listening on every side to the pleas for voter support. We'll hear the promises, too, and those will intrigue us, because it has been historical that the promises to doing the things to give the government back to the people seldom materialize above a token, but the promises of doing things that will take away the freedoms of a people more often than not become law or in some other manner become shackles on free man.

During the last presidential election year we heard candidates, big and little, make utterances that they opposed big government, the growing bureaucracy, escalating taxation, and wasteful government spending, but it is difficult to find any to count who after election did anything significant to counter those freedom-shifting forces.

Now where they come once more promising, promising, and the gullible fall in step behind them.

We are concerned that big labor will go all out this year to make a show of force and a herculean bid for more power by putting its supporters in the Congress and the state legislatures.

And one may be surprised at the number of candidates who may turn to big labor for support and promise that such support will be rewarded in time.

This should concern all, and especially it should be of great concern in the states that have right-to-work laws. Texas has such laws, and they are strong. Also, they are a frequent target not only of big labor but of big-labor-loving legislators who are obligated to the unions.

One may have to pay close attention to what the politicians are promising. They may be promising some groups one thing, and out of the other side of their mouths they may be promising the unions and the moon and the stars and power over you.

And chances are that again there will be a strong effort on the part of the unions to persuade candidates to come out openly for repealing Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, which reaffirms the right of states to enact right-to-work laws outlawing compulsory unionism.

Union membership as a condition of employment has been regulated by state law in the right-to-work law states under Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act. This is a basic right that should continue to be determined by the states.

What would happen were Section 14(b) to be repealed. One dreads to foresee it, because it certainly would open the floodgates for union assault on personal freedom and private enterprise, such as this country has never seen. It could destroy America.

Right now, one could ask the question: are compulsory union dues being used by union officials for political activities on behalf of handicapped candidates. We think the answer is obvious.

Americans, no matter whether in right-to-work Texas and Florida, or in the liberal East, or in the metropolitan areas or in the hinterlands, should remain alert to the big labor threat and ask all candidates how they stand on retaining Section 14(b).

Digitals to Nagasaki

A world that has become accustomed to seeing Japanese products everywhere is now seeing the Japanese themselves.

They are rapidly becoming one of the most traveled peoples among major nations. Some four million visited foreign countries during 1979 by their government's count. 1.3 million of them including the United States on their itineraries.

They proved true to tourist form by returning home laden with foreign purchases, at an average value of $342 each.

Among the preferred souvenir items are wristwatches. Which might appear to be something like carrying coils to Newcastle, updated. Japan is one of the world's foremost producers of timepieces, showing some signs of taking over in this area of precision consumer products as it already has in cameras and televisions.

Perhaps it's the quaint, old-fashioned craftsmanship of the American and European products that appeals.

If you run a big industry in this country, how can you enhance your popularity and reputation? The answer is simple: Don't be successful. Be a failure.

Take Exxon, for example. Exxon has done all the wrong things. It has produced its product with great efficiency. It hires workers by the thousands, seldom laying any off. It pays good wages. It pays hundreds of millions of dollars in state and federal taxes every year.

Worst of all, it has consistently made a profit. For the most recent quarter, it has turned a profit of $1.1 billion for its shareholders and for further capital investment.

Exxon's reward has been vituperation from President Carter on down. One U.S. Representative called its profit report "pornographic." House Speaker Tip O'Neill said it was "sinful."

By contrast, take Chrysler. Chrysler is losing an estimated $1 billion this year. It has laid off 27,000 workers, with little chance they will ever be hired back. It has closed its biggest assembly plant. It can't meet hundreds of millions of dollars of obligations.

Now Chrysler has come, with its hands out, to the federal government, pleading for $1 billion or more to be bailed out. Its reward?

Tender loving care in Lansing, Mich., and Washington. An offer by the Michigan state government to advance a $160 million mortgage. Talk for a $1 billion credit from the feds. Sympathetic congressmen on all sides. A friendly White House. Every likelihood that the government trough will be filled to overflowing for the benefit of the ailing company. And, of course, no nasty words like "pornographic" or "sinful."

Politicians would rather attack Mom's apple pie than they would question Chrysler's good faith. If anyone wants to know what's wrong with America, maybe the Exxon-Chrysler story will give them a clue.

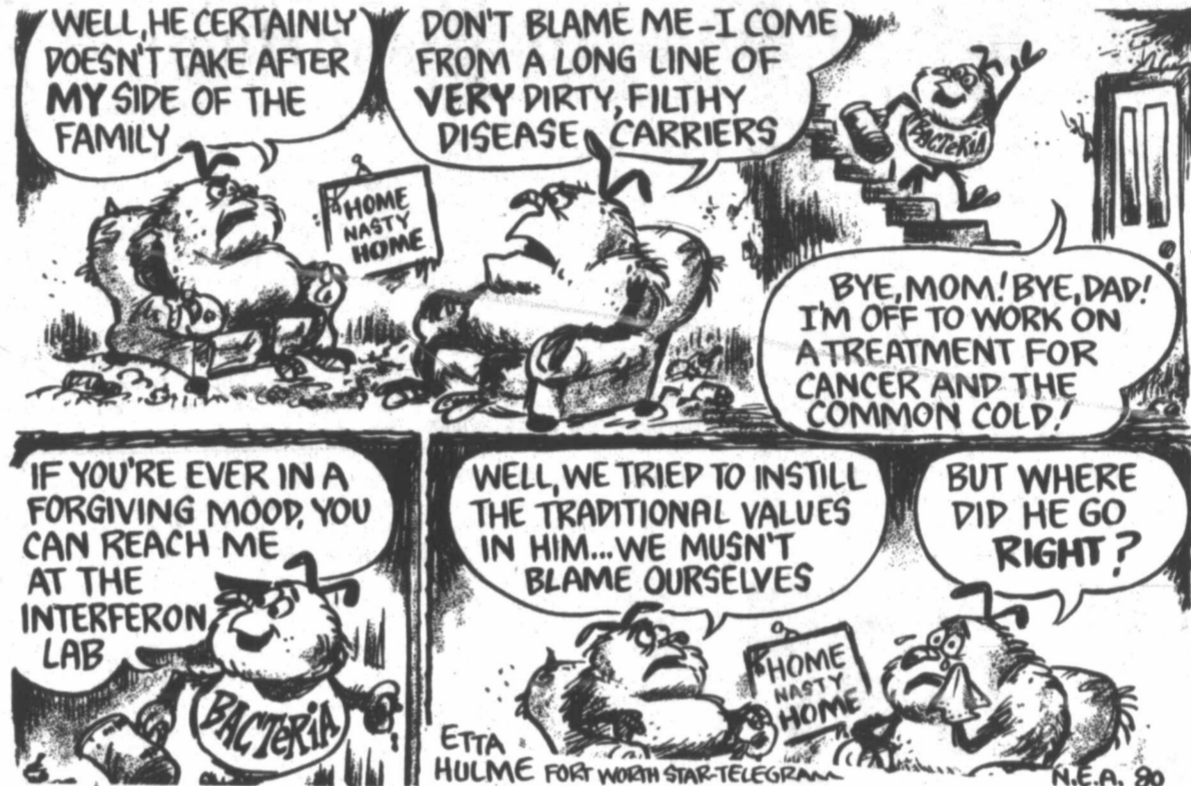

Do impressive figures sell merchandise

By D.R. Segal

This local merchant gave me a copy of an advertising proposal a TV station had made and asked me what I thought of it. And, being honest, I said I thought it was very impressive with all of those numbers stacked up in neat little columns, pretty as you please. It doesn't make any damned sense, he said, and I told him maybe he was asking for too much. I mean, all those numbers and the fancy paper they were written on and all — well, that ought to be taken into consideration.

He said something which I will not repeat, seeing as how I've gotten in enough trouble lately.

He was a little put out and asked what would I do if I were a merchant and I said, well, I will tell you. What I would do would be to buy about 30 seconds of TV time and get Shirley and the kids all gussied up and take them down to the store to be on this homemade commercial with me. I'd tell all my friends to be sure to watch and I'd practice smiling sincerely for a few days and I'd ask their writers to write down something about how I keep my overhead low and my hopes high, and for 30 seconds I'd be a TV personality. A 30-second shot shouldn't cost all that much and the kids would get a real bang out of it.

Where workfare works

by paul harvey

Politicians are forever talking about getting people off welfare-while voting for more.

The Wall Street Journal has been seeking exceptions: found a dandy in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee has a "Work Assistance Program" which has saved that city $25 million in welfare costs.

You've heard of "Sheltered Workshops"? Those are places of business-mostly operated by private charitable agencies-to employ the handicapped.

Some 200,000 handicapped people across the United States are employed in these "Sheltered Workshops."

The handicapped are allowed therein to work for less than the minimum wage.

What Milwaukee has done is to sift the county's welfare rolls and designate many individuals as "handicapped" who have no physical infirmity-yet they are "vocationally handicapped" because they lack job training or are "handicapped" because they've had to many birthdays or they are "mentally in need of rehabilitation."

That means that just about everybody on welfare-with the exception of those caring for dependent children-can be taken off welfare and placed in productive jobs.

Thus Milwaukee County in less than three years has trimmed its welfare rolls from 6,500 to fewer than 1,000.

So far Milwaukee is the only city which funnels able-bodied people into these jobs intended for the handicapped, but municipal officials from all over the country are visiting Milwaukee to observe. All the county officials have done is to broaden the definition of "handicapped." Also they turned over to the local Jewish Vocational Service the responsibility for screening, counseling and training the welfare recipients.

The JVS also operates the "Sheltered Workshops." If you are deemed employable and don't show up for work, no more welfare.

County executive William F. O'Donnell says, "Around here if you don't work, you don't eat!"

Of course, the project has critics. Some of them insist that the bona fide handicapped workers in these workshops should not have to work alongside winos, drug addicts and street toughs-and there have been some unhappy incidents.

But workshop administrators insist that problems are minimal; that after all these people intermingling on buses, on sidewalks, everywhere else-why not their places of employment?

Nonetheless, JVS is making a concerted effort to segregate the potential "people problem."

Let me add that JVS has been in hot water with the Department of Labor for hiring out some of its workers to other businesses, but that problem appears to be ironed out.

And JVS argues that if it can divert these people into regular employment instead-why not? Then rather than tax receivers they become taxpayers.

Some states show 'em how

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - While federal officials maintain a fumble-and-mumble approach to energy conservation, innovative state governments throughout the country are implementing meaningful measures to save scarce fuels.

Despite a widely hailed change in leadership several months ago, the Department of Energy offers little indication that it is ready or willing to provide the nation with the guidance necessary to deal with a permanent and profound energy crisis.

The department's most recent display of incompetence and mismanagement was the announcement by Energy Secretary Charles W. Duncan Jr. of a gasoline conservation plan for 1980.

With considerable fanfare, Duncan pegged the ceiling for gasoline use during the first three months of next year at 6.8 million barrels per day — exactly what DOE's own analysts expect motorists to consume in the normal course of business without any federal restrictions.

Duncan's proposal, termed "embarrassing" by one knowledgeable White House official, actually would allow some states to consume more gasoline in the first quarter of 1980 than they did in January, February and March of 1979.

In contrast with DOE's continuing ineptitude, the National Governor's Association has prepared an impressive compilation of energy-conservation initiatives being undertaken by various state governments.

In Iowa, state employees who agree to use mass transportation for home-to-office commuting receive direct subsidies from the state in the form of monthly passes valued at one quarter of the mass transit costs. Almost half of those participating previously were drivers of single-occupant autos.

In Minnesota, the state legislature has approved an energy-disclosure law that requires the seller of a home to reveal to the buyer the results of a certified inspection of storm windows and doors, weatherstripping and insulation.

In Colorado, the Public Utility Commission has approved a time-of-day rate schedule for industrial energy users, encouraging off-peak use through lower rates. A cut in peak-load requirements allows a reduction in generating capacity.

The California legislature has enacted a law allowing a tax credit of 55 percent, up to $3,000, on the cost of newly installed solar-heating systems. Other conservation measures are being implemented in Maine, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New York, Illinois, Ohio, North Carolina, Arkansas, New Mexico, Montana, Oregon and elsewhere.

On the other hand, the conservation advice given to the states by Duncan and President Carter generally has been limited to encouraging implementation of odd-even gasoline-sale plans to cope with short-term crises.

That approach, the governors note, is limited to management shortages rather than conserving fuel. In addition, the governors — not the president — deserve credit for conceiving and implementing odd-even sales, minimum and maximum purchases, weekend closings and other emergency measures required during the gasoline shortfall last spring.

Not all of the states merit praise for creative responses to energy problems. Some Gulf Coast states, where much of the country's oil production and refinery capacity is concentrated, deserve contempt for their "let the Yankees freeze in the dark" attitude.

In other states, governors and legislatures continue to pretend that there is no energy problem, an approach that protects insecure politicians from the risks involved in making difficult and often unpopular decisions.

But the states surely are faring no worse than DOE in handling the energy crisis. Duncan is less abrasive than his predecessor, James R. Schlesinger, but there's still no evidence that he's especially qualified to handle his new job's

Yes, he said, that is dandy except one of the kids probably would get the measles and I couldn't be sure my friends would watch; but even so, how am I going to sell this merchandise?

And I said, well, that is simple. What you do is buy an ad in this newspaper and tell the people how much the stuff costs and what it is made of or things like that, and if they are in the buying mood you'll get rid of a lot of this clutter.

And he said that is what he has been doing for 25 years now and it is not very exciting. I said we would get up some very nice columns of figures on fancy paper if he would like them and he could put kids pictures in his ads if he wanted to, but I could see I wasn't hitting a nerve at all.

He said I was not being much help to him and I said what do you want me to do, sell you TV advertising? And he said no he didn't because it was all crazy numbers that didn't make sense and they must think he is dumb just because he comes from a small town, so what could I say?

I sort of agreed and asked if he'd like one of the ladies in our ad department to drop around and help him work up an ad and he sighed and said he guessed maybe I'd better because he had an awful lot of stuff to sell before the new merchandise came in and he couldn't afford all that glamour and excitement at a time like this.

I always try to be helpful.

Blackthorn skipper refuses to answer board of inquiry

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The skipper of the Coast Guard Cutter Blackthorn refused Saturday to tell investigators anything about a wreck that sent his ship to the bottom of Tampa Bay.

An oil tanker's attorneys then began taking steps to end the 10-day-old inquiry into the incident.

Lt. Cmdr. George J. Sepel, under the advice of admiralty lawyer Jerome Flanagan, would give only his name and rank to the Marine Board of Inquiry looking into the collision between the buoy tender, bound for its home port of Galveston, Texas, and the oil tanker SS Capricorn. The Jan. 28 accident killed 23 Coast Guardsmen.

Capricorn attorneys asked Rear Adm. Norman Venzke to adjourn the hearing to give attorneys time to "rustle up a district judge" with whom to file motion seeking an injunction preventing the Coast Guard from investigating an accident involving one of its own vessels.

Venzke noted that it was the weekend and adjourned the inquiry until 1 p.m. Monday.

"I think it's unfair for the Coast Guard to investigate itself," said Kieron Quinn, who represents Kingston Shipping Co.

Attorney Dewey Villareal, representing Capricorn owner Apex Marine Corp., told Venzke that because Sepel would not testify and the board would not order him to, "we really must ask the district court to consider the case and to rule on it."

Earlier, Capricorn attorneys asked Venzke to either grant immunity to keep the Blackthorn's officers from being criminally prosecuted for anything said at the hearing, or to release a statement Sepel gave investigators shortly after the wreck.

Venzke, presiding over the board, refused to grant immunity but withheld judgment on whether to release Sepel's statement.

"My client has no intention of taking the Fifth Amendment," said Capricorn attorney Quinn.

Meanwhile, salvage crews were working in Tampa Bay, planning to right the ship, which is resting at an angle on its port side some 50 feet below the surface at the mouth of Tampa Bay, near the Sunshine Skyway Bridge. When the ship is eventually refloated, it will be searched for the bodies of any of the 14 crewmen still missing. Twenty-seven men were pulled from the chilly waters after the wreck, which caused no injuries aboard the tanker.

Sepel spent 15 minutes on the stand Saturday morning, but refused to give even his address when questioned by Lt. Cmdr. John Carney.

"Sir, upon the advice of my attorneys, I am invoking my rights under Article 31 of the United States Code of Military Justice. I respectfully decline to answer your questions," he said.

Article 31 is similar of the Fifth Amendment, which protects against self incrimination.

Doctors indicted

DALLAS (AP) — A federal grand jury has returned indictments accusing two doctors of prescribing large amounts of drugs which investigators believe were later sold on the street.

Both of the accused physicians have practices in suburban Irving. One of them, Bobby Mack Via, was charged in 1977 with plotting to hire a killer to murder another doctor, but those charges were dropped three weeks before the case was to have come to trial. Prosecutors said they decided they did not have enough evidence in the case.

Federal indictments returned Friday accuse Via and Dr. Darryl N. Steele, a native of Canada, of illegally dispensing narcotics to patients. They are accused of prescribing mainly Dilaudid, Percocet and Percodan — usually used as pain killers — in "inordinate amounts."

Investigators said they believe many of the pills were eventually sold on the street for $7 to $10 per tablet.

The two doctors were indicted in separate, but similar cases, and Drug Enforcement Administration officials said other doctors in the Dallas area are under investigation.

Bond was set at $20,000 on Via and $50,000 on Steele by U.S. Magistrate John Tolle. Both doctors were freed on bond. Arraignment was scheduled for Feb. 14 before U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes.

COLD WEATHER IN THE PANHANDLE prompted area residents to really bundle up to face the day Friday and Saturday. Temperatures are predicted to be warmer today...much to the pleasure of those like Lisa Harris, pictured, who had to don snow boots and go right on to work in spite of frigid temperatures. Speaker's office called 'campaign headquarters'

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas Rep. John Bryant, who wants to unseat Speaker Bill Clayton in the 1981 Legislature, says the speaker's office is nothing now but Clayton's campaign headquarters.

"He is spending six times as much money as the previous speaker and he has a personal office payroll of $300,000 a year," Bryant said on a radio panel program (Capitol Dateline) that was taped Friday and broadcast Sunday.

"He's running a $300,000 a year campaign office preparing himself to run for statewide office," Bryant said. "While seeking a fourth term as speaker he has amassed thousands and thousands of dollars through these lobby fund-raising events that he has about bimonthly to save that money to make a statewide race."

Clayton, who was the first Texas speaker elected to the job for three consecutive terms, claims he has more than the necessary 76 votes to be elected to a fourth term in January 1981.

Cost of education goes up

Part I: The expense
EDITOR'S NOTE — The Texas system of publicly supported higher education is one of the largest in the nation and accounts for billions in expenditures from the state budget. In the first of six parts, Associated Press newsman Lee Jones examines the cost of a college education.

By LEE JONES
 Associated Press Writer
 When Laurie Valentine of Plano drove away to start her junior year at Stephen F. Austin State University last fall, her parents' love and hopes and dreams for her future rode along.
 So did a substantial portion of their savings.
 Laurie, 20, is one of 331,074 Texans who came up with the sizeable amount of cash needed to enroll in a state-supported university this school year.
 College officials estimate the cost of four years at a state university at $10,800 to $15,280 in today's dollars if a student lives in a dormitory, as Laurie does.
 Actual expenses probably top the estimates, however.

Stephen F. Austin estimates a dormitory student's expenses for a year at $2,700, among the lowest in Texas. But Laurie, whose life style is not extravagant, spent $2,882 her freshman year and $3,100 her sophomore year. It appears inflation will drive her expenses this year even higher.

The net cost of sending a child to college, of course, is total outlay minus the portion of the normal family budget attributable to that child.
 A cost-cutting option most Texans can take is to live at home and commute to college or junior college.

Clayton Stromberger, a freshman at the University of Texas at Austin, lives with his parents in Northwest Austin and drives five miles to and from school each day.

Clayton's $3,010 budget is $810 less than the university says it would be if he lived in a dormitory. By the time school lets out, young Stromberger estimates he will have spent $580 on tuition and fees, $170 on books, $910 on automobile upkeep, $600 on meals out and $750 on such personal expenses as clothes, movies, dates and records.

Ernest and Mary Gayle Stromberger, Clayton's parents, have another son, who will reach college age in 1981.
 "If both wanted to go away to college, there's no way we could do it — period," Stromberger said.

Estimated annual expenses run $5,300 for a dormitory student at Baylor, $7,126 at SMU and $5,665 at Trinity.

Some experts fear inflation might push the middle class out of the higher education market.

"Although median family income may roughly keep pace, many families will ... feel they are being priced out of college," said Dean Lorrin Kennamer of the University of Texas College of Education.

Yet attending a state college is cheaper in Texas than almost anywhere else in the nation.

College and junior college financial aids officers estimate "reasonable expenses for typical students" each year for use in their loans and grants programs.

Here is a sampling of estimated expenses for a single Texas resident student for a nine-month school year:

	Off-campus	Dormitory	At Home
Baylor	$5,600	5,300	5,300
El Centro	3,546	---	2,745

My prerogative

By DEBBIE DUKE
 Pampa News Intern

Last week I did an article reviewing the choices we, the students at Pampa High School, have when choosing electives for pre-enrollment. I must say I received quite a lot of response — both good and bad.

First, I would like to apologize to a couple of organizations which I failed to mention in the last column.

VOE (Vocational Office Education) and OEA (Office Education Association) provides a great opportunity for those longing to begin in the field of office work.

Also overlooked was the agricultural courses at Pampa High. Many of the students are into this type thing, several of them being raised on a farm or a ranch.

I extend my sincere apologies to these groups. I'm sorry they went unmentioned.

Second, while talking to a faculty member about the article, I was told that I had overshadowed some organizations with others. I was also informed that many got the impression that I was cutting our Art department and others.

I meant nothing of the sort. The purpose of the column was to encourage students to get involved in at least one or even more of these organizations. NONE of these organizations are better than another! That's the way I feel about it. I am, like everyone else, extremely partial towards the groups that I, myself am involved in — choir, speech, journalism — however, I have never said that one is whatsoever greater than the others.

All of these organizations are terrific! They are a combination of some of the finest instructors in the state and extremely intelligent and talented students. And as long as they represent our school in a professional manner, I say more power to them! And I can say with pride, I think our school is more than well represented.

So if I offended anyone by my column last week, I'm sorry. However, I would like everyone to realize what I really meant.

I would like to congratulate several high school students on being voted to school favorites recently by the student body. Lori Rosenbach and Greg Quarles were selected by their peers at Pampa High as the All-School Favorites. Also chosen were Valisa Fellars and Keenan Henderson as the high school Pin-Ups. Class favorites were as follows: Teresa Glover and Brad Voyles, Freshman; Angela West and Greg Trollingler, Sophomore; Renae Hess and Rod Walker, Junior; and Lori Rosenbach and Blake Howard, Senior. Again, congratulations to these favorites.

Cookies crumble for Girl Scouts

HOLLY, Mich. (AP) — Girl Scout cookie sales may be a national tradition, but that doesn't exempt them from permit requirements in this village of 4,300 — and a violation could mean 90 days in jail or $500 fines for the scouts.

Scout leaders are in an uproar since the village council stopped the sale because a troop leader forgot to apply for a permit. But overall sales seem to be doing fine — outside the town limits.

Meanwhile, one scout's parent, a member of the village council, says the young peddlers may learn something from the ban.

An ordinance in this community south of Flint forbids non-commercial groups from selling goods in public places without a permit. And only one organization can get a permit at any given time. A local fifth-grade class got the cookie permit first.

Janie Armstrong, head of the 200-member scout troop, said she forgot to ask for a permit although the ordinance appeared in the classified sections of five newspapers that circulate in Oakland County. A permit must be requested 10 to 30 days in advance.

Village President James

Herrington gave the Scouts special permission to sell their cookies last week after getting several complaints from local residents. But the village council rescinded the action after three days.

"Some of the kids didn't know what to do," Ms. Armstrong said Thursday. "I've heard of three different girls where some people at the door said, 'Do you have a license for this?' I think it kind of hurt the girls; it scared them."

Another scout leader, Linda Brown, said some of the girls, who range in age from 9 to 17, could not meet the quota that would win them a trip to summer camp as a result of the ban. She said the controversy had created "a lot of tension."

"We are tremendously sorry (the ordinance) has brought such pressure on the Girl Scouts, but it has taught the girls a lesson in civics," said council member Ardeth Regan. Her daughter, Angel, is a scout.

Meanwhile, Ms. Armstrong said the three-day sale before the ban and sales outside the village seem to have pushed overall cook sales above last year's 1,500 cases.

"With the publicity, I think it helped," she said.

Vance pushes for U.S. boycott of Olympics

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. government will oppose sending an American team to Olympic Games "in the capital of an invading nation," Secretary of State Cyrus Vance told the International Olympic Committee on Saturday.

"To hold the Olympics in any nation that is warring on another is to lend the Olympic mantle to that nation's actions," he said.

The text of Vance's speech to the committee, opening a three-day meeting at the Winter Games at Lake Placid, was made available in advance at the State Department.

President Carter has asked the committee to postpone, cancel or move the Summer Games from Moscow if the Soviet Union does not withdraw its troops from Afghanistan by Feb. 20. If the occupation continues past that date, the president does not want U.S. athletes to participate.

State Department officials said, meanwhile, they have received information the Soviet Union is planning to make a "token" withdrawal of troops within the next three-to-four weeks to defuse Western opposition. The Soviets began moving troops into the country in late December and installed a puppet government.

The International Olympic Committee is on record as being opposed to any change in the Moscow Games, and even the IOC's two U.S. members have said they would oppose moving the Games or taking part in any type of boycott.

Some members of the committee have said a decision might be delayed until the Winter Games are completed, on Feb. 24, and possibly until April, when the IOC meets again.

Vance, an honorary vice president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said the Games had symbolized peace from their beginnings.

"In the view of my government," he said, "it would be a violation of this fundamental Olympic principle to conduct or attend Olympic Games in a nation which is currently engaged in an aggressive war, and has refused to comply with the world community's demand to halt its aggression and withdraw its forces."

"Let me make my government's position clear: We will oppose the participation of an American team in any Olympic Games in the capital of an invading nation."

He said the United States would support setting up a permanent home for the Summer and Winter Olympics. He did not suggest a place.

Pistol Pete a Celtic now

In the National Basketball Association, you can't tell some players even with a program, unless the program was recently updated.

—In his debut with Boston, Pete Maravich played six minutes and scored two points as the Celtics trounced the Indiana Pacers 130-108 Friday night.

—Bob Lanier, playing his second game after a trade from Detroit to Milwaukee, scored 18 points in the Bucks' 115-90 breeze over the Washington Bullets.

—Bill Walton, making his third appearance with San Diego since recovering from a foot injury that sidelined him for almost two years, scored 13 points against his former Portland team as the Clippers trimmed the Trail Blazers 118-104.

Maravich, signed as a free agent last month after being paid off to the tune of a reported $1.8 million by the Utah Jazz, watched as reserves helped Boston starters Cedric Maxwell and Nate Archibald break open a close game against Indiana with a 43-point second period.

Then, with the Boston fans chanting, "We want Pete," Coach Bill Fitch sent him into the game in the fourth quarter. Given a standing ovation, Maravich, still not in playing condition after a bout with a pulled groin muscle, played the Celtics' game, trying to pass to open teammates.

He took only three shots. The first two missed the mark. The third, from the corner, went swish to the delight of a crowd of 15,300, the Celtics' 20th sellout in 29 home games this season.

"I felt loose, but then again I guess I was a little scared," Maravich said. "The fans were fantastic. I didn't expect that kind of reception and they made things a lot easier for me."

Elsewhere, the Kansas City Kings downed the Golden State Warriors 107-100, the Seattle SuperSonics whipped the Philadelphia 76ers 109-94, the Los Angeles Lakers shaded the New Jersey Nets 125-100 in overtime, the Phoenix Suns edged the Chicago Bulls 133-109 and the Houston Rockets nipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 105-104.

Although the Boston fans went wild over Maravich, it was Maxwell who led the way by scoring 11 of his 23 points in the second quarter. Nate Archibald and Chris Ford had 18 and 16, respectively, as the Celtics boosted their record to 42-13, best in the league.

Bucks 115, Bullets 90
Junior Bridgeman scored 23 points for the Bucks, who opened a 19-point second quarter lead and coasted the rest of the way. Fast-breaking easily against the slower Bullets, the Bucks scored 12 successive points to open a 39-25 lead as the Bullets failed to score a field goal for four minutes.

Clippers 118, Trail Blazers 104
Freeman Williams, picking up the slack in the absence of Lloyd Free, scored 29 points, 22 in the second half. Free, the league's No. 2 scorer, is sidelined with a sprained ankle. Trailing 70-57 with eight minutes remaining in the third quarter, Portland cut the margin to 82-79, but the Clippers pulled away again with an eight-point streak.

Kings 107, Warriors 100
Phil Ford's free throw after a technical foul call on the Warriors' Wayne Cooper sent Kansas City ahead to stay with two minutes remaining and the Kings shut out Golden State over the last three minutes. The Kings, led by Otis Birdsong's 23 points and Sam Lacey's 20, broke a three-game losing streak.

SuperSonics 109, 76ers 94
Gus Williams scored 18 points as Seattle posted its eighth victory in its last 10 road games. Seattle led by as many as 12 points in the second quarter and the 76ers, who had won eight straight home games, never got closer than 11 in the final half. Julius Erving led the 76ers with 29 points.

Lakers 125, Nets 120, OT
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 31 points and Jamaal Wilkes added 28 to help offset a 40-point performance by New Jersey's Mike Newlin. Los Angeles broke fast in the extra session. Michael Cooper hit a jumper and a free throw and Abdul-Jabbar added a layup to give the Lakers a 117-112 lead. The Nets scratched back from a 112-106 deficit with 1:34 to play in regulation.

Suns 113, Bulls 109
Reserve guard Mike Bratz, averaging only 8.2 points a game, hit eight consecutive shots in the final quarter, including three in the last two minutes. Chicago, which has lost seven games in a row, led by as many as 15 points in the third quarter and by 12 with seven minutes remaining. Bratz led Phoenix with 20 points.

Rockets 105, Cavaliers 104
Calvin Murphy's free throw with 17 seconds left gave Houston the victory despite 46 points by Cleveland's Mike Mitchell. Mitchell scored 30 points in the second half as the Cavaliers fought from a 15-point deficit. Moses Malone scored 24 points and Murphy had 23 for Houston.

Heiden favored in speed skating

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Eric Heiden, the publicity-shy superstar of speed skating, was primed to display his unique talents before an international press corps and on national television today.

The occasion is the World Speed Skating Sprint Championships, scheduled for today and Sunday at State Fair Park's Olympic-style oval rink. Crowds of about 3,000 — extremely large for a speed skating meet in the United States — were expected. The sprints represent a final tuneup for the Winter Olympics, starting Wednesday in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Nearly 100 of the top speed skaters in the world have entered this meet, but it nonetheless was expected to be dominated by Heiden — just as the 21-year-old Madison, Wis., native has dominated the sport the past three years.

Heiden, who placed seventh in the 1,500-meter race in the 1976 Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, achieved instant celebrity status in the skating hotbeds of Europe when he unexpectedly won the world championship in The Netherlands in 1977.

He repeated in 1978 and 1979, and has so overwhelmed his competition that he is given a good chance for a gold medal sweep in all five events he plans to enter in Lake Placid.

Until recently, Heiden could walk the streets in his hometown unrecognized. He preferred it that way, but his fame is spreading. His picture has adorned the covers of two national magazines this month, and the sprints competition here was to be shown on the "CBS Sports Spectacular" television program.

Heiden appears to be at a physical and mental peak for the sprints and Olympics, having set two world records in competition in Europe last month. He broke his own 1,000-meter record with a time of 1 minute, 13.6 seconds, and later trimmed .39 seconds off the previous 1,500-meter record held by Jan Egil Storholt of Norway.

Inconsistency still prevails in International Olympic Committee

SCENE: Helsinki, Finland, Land of the Midnight Sun, summer of '52. Olympic flags flutter over the home of the great Paavo Nurmi. But on the mezzanine floor of the Finnish capital's swankiest midtown hotel controversy rages in the councils of the International Olympic Committee. It's China vs. China. Little Taiwan, the refuge of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's battered Republic of China forces, against the swelling tide of Mao Tse-Tung's vast Communist domain. Both want to compete in the Olympics. OK, said the IOC. Mainland China is welcome but it must compete alongside the forces of Taiwan's Republic, which holds official Olympic membership. No boycotts. Nevertheless, the Soviet Union invites a token team of the People's Republic to attend as its guest. The Communist Chinese arrive with their brown uniforms and impassive countenances. SCENE: Lake Placid, N.Y., 28 years later, site of the 1980 Winter Games. This time the People's Republic of China didn't have to sneak in the back gate as uninvited guests. The IOC and the courts have given it official status as the lone representative of the people of China. Eight members of the outlawed Taiwan delegation come knocking at the door. "Out!" they are told brusquely. There is no room in the inn. The refugees scramble around for a place to sleep and eat. The IOC has spoken again. Thus the weird inconsistencies of that austere body of counts, princes and monied stuffed-shirts who hold unchallenged sway over what should be the grandest, most democratic and most fairly conducted sports carnival on Earth. It's a sad commentary. Lord Killanin, head of the IOC, chides President Carter for urging a withdrawal from the Summer Games in Moscow because of the incursion of Soviet forces in Afghanistan. He repeats the cliché about the Olympic movement superceding politics and ideological rivalries. The shoddy treatment of the Taiwanese is proof enough that it might be healthy if, as some warn, the present crisis shatters the modern Olympic movement and sends architects back to the drawing board.

MEMBERS OF the Taiwanese Olympic team wave and display their flag outside their housing area. A New York judge has decided that the Taiwanese could carry their own flag during the Olympic opening ceremony. However, the IOC said they would appeal. Earlier this week the Taiwanese team made a symbolic attempt to enter the Games, but were turned away that time. (AP Photo)

After years of trying, Atlanta now a big league sports city

NEW YORK (AP) — A few years ago when Barnum & Bailey Circus came to Atlanta, it had to pitch its tents in Macon 75 miles away. When the city got its National Basketball Association franchise in 1966, spectators had to watch the Hawks from backless student benches in the cramped Georgia Tech field house. "It was embarrassing," Thomas Cousins said. "For 13 years Atlanta was zero in major league sports franchises. Today it has five pro teams. No other city in the Southeast has more than one. We're the sports capital of the South, the core of an area of 35 million people. We've moved fast — I trust, not too fast. There's no doubt we have brought Downtown Atlanta back to life." If Atlanta has been resuscitated, it owes its renewed breath to Cousins, a trim, dark-haired real estate tycoon out of whose head and billfold came the Omni. The Omni is Atlanta's Madison Square Garden—a sprawling complex in the heart of the city with a modern skyscraper hotel, business offices, shops, restaurants and a $17 million Coliseum seating between 15,000 and 16,100 for hockey and basketball. "We were still nailing down the seats when the first hockey game was played Oct. 14, 1972," Cousins said. Cousins is owner of the National Hockey League Flames, who have missed the NHL playoffs only once since their conception eight years ago. He twice owned the NBA Hawks before selling to Ted Turner, who manages also to control the baseball Braves and the North American Soccer League's Chiefs while expanding his cable TV empire and establishing himself as the premier yachtsman of the world. Atlanta, which gave us Coca Cola, "Gone With the Wind," and the South's second president of the century (via Plains, Ga.), now is bustling its buttons over its sports and entertainment enterprises. And with good reason. Cousins visited New York Wednesday with a group of Atlanta businessmen who form a coalition called the "Greater Atlanta Project." Sports represented a part — though not all — of the message they wished to leave in the "Big Apple," the center of finance and communications. "We wanted to tell the world about it, and New York was the place to start." The Flames set up shop in 1972. The Falcons, Braves and Hawks were already open for business — having put out their shingles in 1966. The Chiefs' soccer team joined the growing sports family in April, 1979. Atlanta, just up the pike from the Augusta Masters, is a regular stop on the pro golf and tennis tours, both men and women. The Peach Bowl crowns the college football season. "Now that we've got the teams," said Thomas R. Williams, a banker who heads the South's Olympic fund-raising campaign, "all we need are some winners." Quick, now, who'll be Atlanta's first champion?

McDonald going to Rangers?

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers are expected to offer New York Mets General Manager Joe McDonald a similar position with the Rangers, according to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. Brad Corbett, chairman of the board of the Arlington-based American League baseball team, declined comment on the newspaper's report. "I don't want to comment on that. We're always interested in any talented person. I will say that if anyone does any hiring like that, it will be Eddie Robinson, not me," Corbett said. Robinson, who was in New York this week for a league meeting. He declined substantial comment on the report, but said he would see McDonald at the meeting. Contacted at his home in Yonkers, N.Y., McDonald told the newspaper, "I can't comment on that. I still work for the New York Mets." Eddie Chiles, a member of the Rangers executive board, said McDonald is being considered for a position on the team. "But I don't know what his title will be," Chiles said. Chiles said, however, that McDonald will not replace Robinson in running the front office. Robinson was brought to the Texas team three years ago over the head of then-general manager Dan O'Brien, who left the Rangers last year to become president and chief operating officer of the Seattle Mariners. "Nobody's going to replace Eddie Robinson," Chiles declared. "If we hire him (McDonald), he'll be in addition to Eddie Robinson." Chiles said it would be McDonald's job to handle the paper work and details regarding rules, regulations, laws and the "gobbledygook" of the American League office. "Somebody's got to see that we comply with the rules," added Chiles, an oil drilling company executive who is well known in Texas for his radio and television commercials attacking the federal government's bureaucracy. "I guess they (the American League) are about as bureaucratic as the government, where you have to file a bunch of foolish papers. Somebody's got to keep up with all the paperwork," Chiles added. The need to keep up with the rules may have resulted from the incident last year in which the Rangers had a deal vetoed by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. Before the matter was resolved, the Rangers lost the services of Oscar Gamble, who hit .335 with them before he went to the New York Yankees, where he hit .389. The trade between the Rangers and Yankees was voided when the Rangers announced the names of several minor league players involved in the trade before getting waivers on them. Although he says the final decision on hiring McDonald will be made by Corbett and Robinson, Chiles said the Rangers need to add more staff to the front office.

Texas Christian football player placed on four-year probation

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — A jury didn't go along with the defense argument that a look-alike abducted a 19-year-old clerk at a convenience store last August and that Texas Christian tight end Brad Bowen fell into a trap intended for his brother. The jury convicted Bowen, 22, of Brownwood, Thursday but of a lesser charge of kidnapping and recommended a four-year probation sentence for the crime last Aug. 13. Bowen originally faced the more severe charge of aggravated kidnapping. "Right now, Bowen has no criminal record. He can go back to school. He's on scholarship and I feel they'll let him return," assistant defense attorney Keith Woodley said. Bowen, a junior, started the first seven games for Texas Christian last fall while on bond from the Brownwood charge. F.A. Dry, head football coach of TCU, testified as a character witness. Bowen was arrested last Aug. 13 outside Brownwood, after the young woman was abducted about 3 a.m. from a convenience store by a man she said wore a towel over his face with holes cut out for his eyes. No money was taken. The woman escaped unharmed on a road about 10 miles south of Brownwood, she said, after feigning nausea. She said when the man opened the door for her, she escaped while he was reaching under the car seat for a gun. She made her way to a farm home about 7 a.m. and called authorities. Bowen denied any knowledge of the incident. District Attorney Gary Price said the defense tried to establish that Bowen was the victim of mistaken identity, that his brother Lane, 29, had been "set up" and that Brad was the unintended victim. A large part of the defense testimony focused Lane Bowen's divorce and domestic troubles. The defendant testified he got an anonymous call claiming that a friend of his brother's was in trouble and needed help immediately. Price said the claim apparently was intended to indicate Bowen had been set up. "I don't believe the jury bought that story. It was, in fact, a little far-fetched. It was really quite a deal," the district attorney said. Defense attorneys said they felt their testimony established a conspiracy instigated by the family of Lane Bowen's ex-wife. They indicated they plan to appeal the conviction.

Nelson may not retire until she wins gold

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Cindy Nelson, a bronze medalist in the last Winter Olympics, says if she doesn't win a gold medal in the 1980 Games, she may have to postpone her retirement. "Initially, I thought this would be my last year," said the 23-year-old downhill specialist from Lutsen, Minn., "but I had to reassess my position, and I may ski next year. It depends on how I do here." "There are a lot of things in the outside world I want to see, and this can be kind of a sheltered lifestyle," she said at a news conference Thursday. "I see my career coming to an end," she said. "Whether it's this spring or next, I don't know. The Winter Olympics is a really big event for me. If I can muster up all 24 years of my energy and just put it in one run, I'll have a real good Olympics." Nelson said if she could win a gold medal here, it would be the crowning achievement of her nine-year ski racing career. "I'd like to see what my potential is, to find out what my limits are. I don't think I have yet," Nelson said. "If I quit before I find out, I'll have thrown all these years away." Nelson is the only medalist on the team chosen to represent the United States in the Alpine events at the Winter Olympics here Feb. 12-24. Her medal came at the '76 Innsbruck Games in downhill. "I'm not satisfied with my World Cup season to date," she said. "I was sick all January, but I'll just start from scratch." "I think I have as good a chance as Nadig or Moser when I step into the starting gate. If I didn't, I probably wouldn't be here," Nelson said. So far this season, Marie-Theres Nadig of Switzerland has dominated the ladies downhill. She has won six of seven, conceding only once to six-time World Cup champion Annemarie Moser-Proell of Austria.

Houston upsets Arkansas

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Larry Rogers calmly sank four free throws in the final 13 seconds of the third overtime Saturday as the underdog Cougars fought off Arkansas's come-back attempts for a 90-84 Southwest Conference basketball victory.

Rogers, who led the Cougars with 28 points for the game, hit two free throws with 13 seconds to play to give UH an 88-84 lead and then hit two more with one second on the clock.

The loss dropped Arkansas to a 10-2 SWC record while the Cougars evened their standing at 6-6.

Houston's Ken Williams provided the winning points with 2:51 to play in the third overtime when he sank a pair of free throws for an 86-82 lead.

Williams, who finished with 12 points, had missed a jump shot with two seconds to play in the first overtime that would have given Houston a victory.

Williams hit a 15-foot jumper with four seconds left in regulation play that gave the Cougars a 76-74 lead.

But Arkansas's Scott Hastings whipped the ball inbounds to Keith Hilliard who dribbled the length of the court and shot a 10-foot jumper over Williams at the buzzer to force the first overtime.

Hastings, who had hit six of seven free throws in the first half, went one for four in the second half and missed a shot with one second to play in the first overtime that would have given the Hogs a victory.

U.S. Reed led Arkansas with 23 points, despite playing the second half with three fouls. Hastings added 21 points and Robert Williams scored 18 for the Cougars.

Austin wins in overtime

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — Karl Godine and Alan Howard hit two free throws each in the final 25 seconds to give Stephen F. Austin a 56-52 overtime victory over Angelo State Saturday afternoon in a Lone Star Conference basketball game.

Angelo State, which fell to 1-10 in league play, had a chance to win the game in regulation. Jeff Burdick hit the first half of a 1-and-1 with 6 seconds left to tie the game at 48-48, but missed the second shot and the game went into overtime.

Mike Peppercorn followed his own shot to break a 50-50 tie with 31 seconds left. Godine's two free throws after an offensive foul made it 54-50. Dan Klier scored with 4 seconds left to make it 54-52, but Howard made two free throws for the final points with 1 second remaining.

SFA raised its record to 14-9 for the season and 8-3 in conference action. Angelo State fell to 5-18 for the year. The victory set up a Monday night confrontation with conference leader Abilene Christian in Nacogdoches.

Godine scored 17 and Sherman Kossie 13 for SFA. Tommie Tyler scored 20 and Klier 10 for Angelo State.

Louisville trims Providence

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Wiley Brown scored 24 points Saturday as No. 3-ranked Louisville posted a 79-73 college basketball victory over Providence College.

The victory raised Louisville's record to 21-2, while Providence dropped to 11-11.

Providence's zone defense gave the Cardinals some headaches in the early going, and the Friars held a three-point lead with 7:38 to go in the first half.

The lead then changed hands several times, with Brown and Rodney McCray scoring in the closing seconds of the first half to give Louisville a 34-30 edge at halftime.

In the second half, Louisville used its height advantage to stretch their margin to as much as 13 points.

Kentucky rallies past Alabama

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Senior guard Kyle Macy scored 20 points and poor second half shooting by Alabama helped fifth-ranked Kentucky to a 72-63 come from behind victory in a regionally televised Southeastern Conference basketball game Saturday.

Alabama led the league-leading Wildcats by seven in the first half and had a 37-31 halftime advantage.

But Kentucky, led by Macy's 12 second-half points, came back and outscored Alabama 12-6 in the first 5:30 of the second half. The Tide shot 27.6 percent in the final period from the field, while the Wildcats hit better than 87 percent from the field and 94 percent at the line.

Jay Shidler, who had 14 in the second half, added 18 for Kentucky.

Taiwan skier to compete

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The victory was sweet but short for Taiwanese athletes who want to be listed as representatives of the Republic of China if they compete in the XIII Winter Olympics.

Minutes after state Supreme Court Justice Norman Harvey signed a formal order Saturday allowing a Taiwanese skier to compete as a representative of the Republic of China, Justice A. Franklin Mahoney of the Appellate Division stayed execution of the lower court order.

The Appellate Division, a middle-level appeals court which sits in Albany, N.Y., has agreed to hear an appeal of Harvey's decision Monday, but the stay leaves Taiwan's athletes in legal limbo at least until then.

"I have full confidence in U.S. justice," said Tom Hsueh, a spokesman for Taiwan's Olympic Committee. "But to allow discrimination to continue on and our athletes are kept away from practice is very, very disappointing."

He and other officials had gathered at the Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee headquarters in town hall to serve committee lawyers with Harvey's order. Then they received word that the order had been stayed.

LPOOC chief counsel William Kissel said the athletes would be given housing and accreditation only if they agreed to use a new name, flag and anthem mandated by the International Olympic Committee last year in an attempt to keep Taiwan in the Olympic movement while allowing mainland China to rejoin it.

Taiwan's delegation has refused to comply so far, insisting that it is entitled to the Republic of China designation.

Harvesters win in overtime

AMARILLO—A run and gun offense almost backfired, but a 20-foot jumper by Ronnie Faggins with two seconds on the clock gave the Pampa Harvesters a 53-51 overtime win over upstart Amarillo Tascosa Friday night.

Pampa evened its overall record at 13-13 overall and stand unbeaten at 2-0 in the second half of District 3-AAAA play while Tascosa drops to 5-19 overall and 0-2 in second-half action.

Faggins winning bucket wasn't the only clutch shot he pulled off during the hectic district clash which saw the score tied nine times.

His short jumper with 27 seconds left knotted the score at 49-all to send the game into overtime.

The Harvesters came out shooting instead of operating out of their usual pattern offense, but the shots just weren't going in. Pampa hit only eight of 20 attempts the first quarter and finished with a 39 percent (25-63) night.

Tascosa shot the same percentage on 24 of 61 tries, but key buckets by Scott Milton and Pat Farrell, particularly in the second half, kept it close most of the way.

After neither club could muster more than a three-point advantage the first half, Pampa went ahead by 10 early in the third quarter, 34-24, on Cedric Parker's goal.

However, that was all the breathing room the Rebels would allow. Tascosa outscored the Harvesters, 12-2, in the next four minutes to knot the score at 36-all after three quarters.

The final eight minutes was a furious affair with the score deadlocked four times before Tascosa went four-up, 48-44, on baskets by Milton and Mark Jackson with 3:08 to go.

After Parker's basket and Mike Nelson's foul shot pulled Pampa within one, 48-47, Tascosa's Farrell hit from the charity stripe to make it 49-47, with 44 seconds remaining. That set up Faggins' first act of heroism with his shot that drew the score even at 49-all.

Nelson's rebound of his own miss sent Pampa ahead early in the three-minute overtime, but Farrell's two foul shots tied the score with 1:31 to go. The Harvesters maneuvered for one final shot with Faggins dropping in the game-winner.

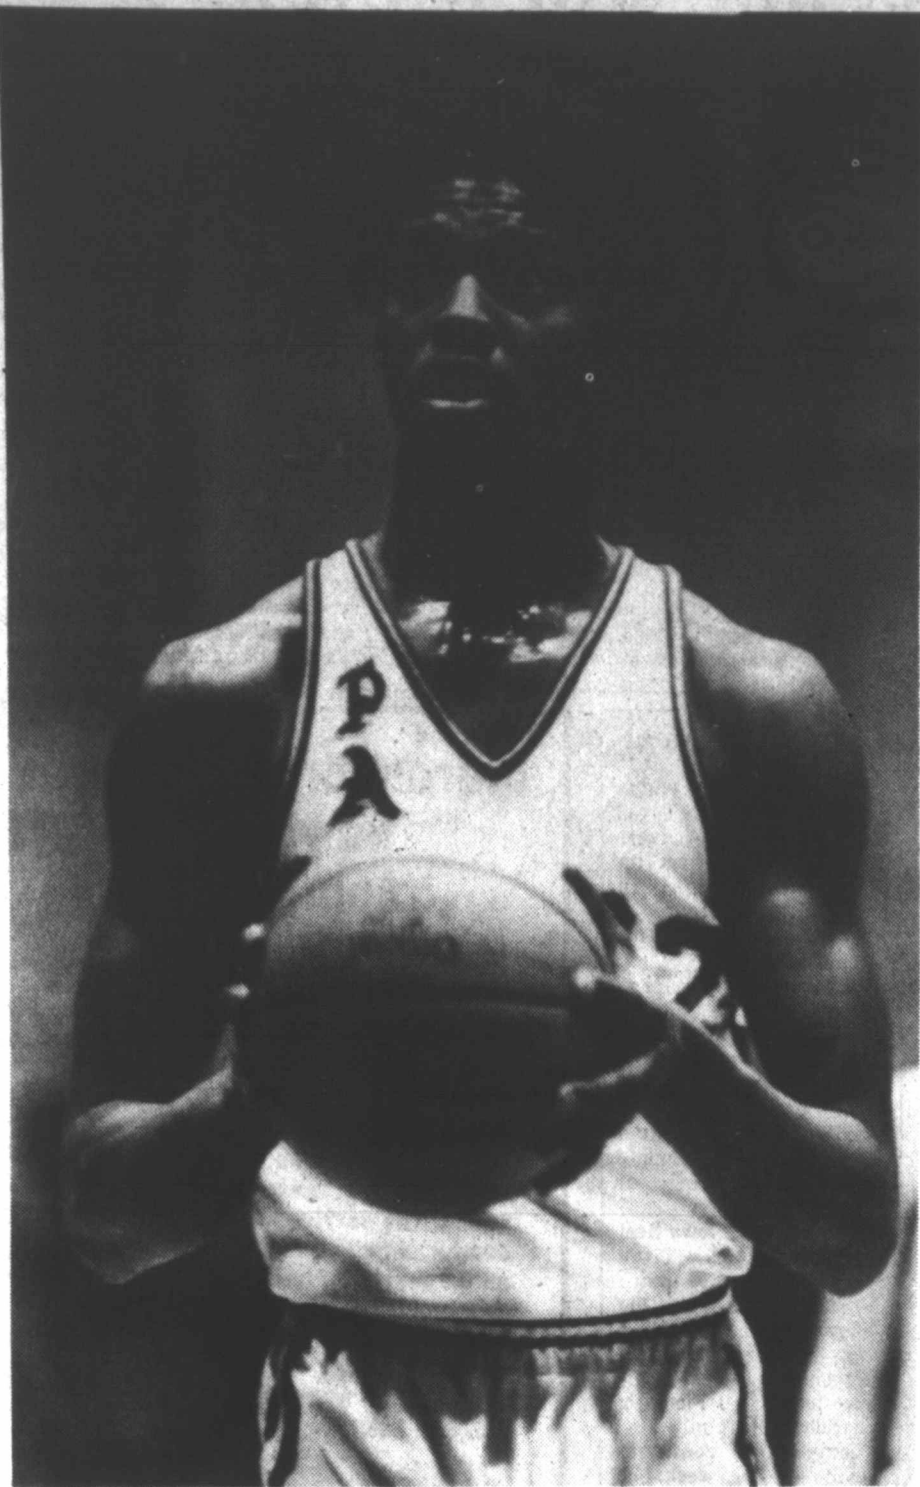

Faggins, who has had two sub-par games because of a sore arm and shoulder, returned to normal Friday night. He hit seven of sixteen shots from the floor and was a perfect two of two from the foul line to finish with 16 points. Joe Jeffers and Parker chipped in eight points apiece. Mike Nelson had seven, Charles Nelson and Steve Glover, four points each. Kyle Bradford, Jim Agan, and Damon Fleming, two points each.

Milton and Farrell had 18 and 14 points respectively for the Rebels, who have now lost all six of the district games they've played.

Parker had eight rebounds while Faggins and Mike Nelson had seven apiece to lead Pampa to a 33-22 rebounding edge. Turnover were just about even with Pampa committing 14 and Tascosa one less. Glover was credited with a half-dozen steals.

Pampa now focuses attention on a vital district meeting with Palo Duro at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night on the homecourt. Palo Duro, the first-half district champion, leader, can go into the state playoffs for the first time since 1971 if it can win, or tie for the second-half crown. The Dons won the first-half title with a 4-0 record.

Pampa must win Tuesday night's outing and also Friday night's confrontation with Amarillo High to have a chance for the post-season playoffs.

CEDRIC PARKER, Pampa's high-jumping center, pulled down eight rebounds and scored eight points as the Harvesters sneaked past Amarillo Tascosa, 53-51, in overtime Friday night. Pampa hosts first-half district champion Palo Duro at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night in the Green Pit.

Clemson upsets Maryland

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson had three players with 20 or more points — Larry Nance with 24 and Horace Wyatt and Billy Williams with 22 apiece — as the 16th-ranked Tigers upset seventh-ranked Maryland 90-81 Saturday in a regionally televised Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game.

The Tigers took control early by scoring 10 straight points for a 22-13 lead. Maryland, suffering its second ACC loss of the season, got closer than four points only once after that — on a second-half Buck Williams' dunk which brought the Terrapins to within two, 55-53.

Clemson, now 17-5 overall and second to Maryland in the ACC with a 7-4 mark, responded with seven quick points and had a 62-55 lead with 10 minutes to go. Maryland never seriously threatened the rest of the way.

"I wish all I had to do was sit around the house all day" ... it's been said many times, but is it really like that for the woman of the house — so called because she isn't active in other occupations?

Debbie and Danny Stokes admire their newborn daughter, Kelly Lynn. The love and joy are here already ... the work will begin when Danny's best girls arrive home. Debbie is a longtime employee of a local bank, but her hardest task has just begun.

Grocery buying ... nobody in his or her right mind (unless he or she is a mother!) would even attempt such a task with an eager, active toddler crowding the cart. Mothers do it all the time.

Buying groceries is not what it seems. Ask Cynthia Hammett, braving the hazards with daughter Misty.

This task also involves occupational talents required in the fields of nutrition, home economy, cuisine and efficiency.

Leslie Epps is shoe-shopping with her son, Jerad. The photo appears to show a mother buying her son a pair of shoes ... but she really represents that legion of women who daily procure clothing for armies of little tykes.

This time-consuming chore involves needed skills in budget planning, cost-reduction measures, fashion coordination, child psychology and referrals to the "Stress Handbook".

Linda Bridgeman's day starts early. Husband Bill and daughters, Yvonne, at left, Chel and April, first must be fed, then the older girls delivered to school. Then it's time for Linda (like others who sit at home all day) to clean the house, do the laundry, take messages for her husband's business, shop, pay bills, make lunch, run errands for her husband, pick up the schoolgirls, bandage a cut leg, catch the dog and put it back in the yard, plan and prepare the evening meal, do the dishes, ready the girls for bed, mend a few things ... all this out of the way and she can rest.

And while she rests, she plans chores for the next day, goes over the telephone messages with Bill, and takes mental notes between bits of conversation.

Usually after about a 14-hour day devoted to two dozen or more occupations, most "just mothers" can relax.

Multiply this by seven days a week, 52 weeks a year and the "stay-at-homes" are worth about $25,000 ... a conservative estimate.

This reporter is glad to say, "I JUST go to work!"

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE By Louise Pierce

Don't overdo it -- take a vacation!

I write and talk a lot about staying busy in our older years, keeping old jobs or starting new ones, filling our minds so full of error for work that we have no time to fuss or fume at our gray-haired mates.

But there is such a thing as overdoing it. Many of you have suggested this, so I've been taking a second look at the workaholics who put spouse and house so far below the stress and strain of their time-taking toil that marriage compatibility is non-existent.

A friend wrote on a Christmas card:

DEAR LOUISE: You probably can't solve my problem, but I'll tell you about it anyway. It's D's refusal to take a vacation. We've been married 37 years. Our kids are grown and long married. We have plenty to do and to travel wherever and whenever we want to. But in all our years together, we've never had a vacation. The few hours of the night that he's home, he's either running his computer or telling me how much work he has to do tomorrow.

He says he's devoted to duty. But I say he's wearing himself out and me too. Is there any way I can persuade him to leave what he calls his "demanding executive position" long enough to let us get acquainted and fall in love again — or is he too far gone to be salvaged? S.T.

I wrote her. DEAR S.T.: Nobody is too far gone to reform, not as long as he's warm and breathing. But the longer a man has been a workaholic, the tougher it can be to change his ways. I'll tell you what I do.

My husband, Otis, glories in success and lives by the Rotary motto of "Service Above Self", often carrying that admirable admonition far beyond the borders of intent. I've had to devise devious plans to keep him close to me.

My first shot at his shutting me out was unintentional. I quit teaching school when we were married and planned to write and speak and bake cakes for my beloved for the rest of our lives. But a clerk quit and a bookkeeper moved away and the janitor got a better job. I found myself in all three store vacancies, resulting in a 25-year labor of love that I had never anticipated.

However, it kept us in close harmony. We went downtown together and came home in each other's company. Dear Otis couldn't have strayed if he'd wanted to. And I'm sure, I hope, that the thought never occurred to him. Now after 43 years of marriage, we're still together much more than we're apart. If I weren't a writer, I'd work at something else that would put me beside him on all the trips he takes. He's never found out how much fun it might be to go traveling alone, and I don't intend that he ever will.

So, Reader S.T., if there is any way you can spend part of the time on the job with your husband, do it. If his work won't permit a wife's presence, meet him for lunch or dinner, have a happy visit (on topics you suggest before he can start talking work) and let him know that you respect his office but would like to be a little closer to it in importance to him.

Then when a few downtown meals have brightened your togetherness, tell him you want the two of you to have a short weekend together (Friday night through Sunday afternoon, which wouldn't take him away from his job for long). If he consents, don't nag or try to pin him down to promises to reform. Just make the weekend a romantic dream. Be the sweetheart he courted, the wife he wed, the woman he still loves when he lets himself take time to remember her.

At best, he might find out how much happiness he's been missing and agree to longer trips, even a yearly vacation of two weeks or more. At the least, he will know that you still love him. And love is the mainstay, the only stay, of our older marriages.

Write problems to DEAR LOUISE, Box 616, Pampa, Texas 79065.

SPRING FLOWERS impart many sentiments on Valentine's Day. One whiff of a full pot of hyacinths is sweeter than a hundred "be my Valentines".

Flowers say more than 'Be mine'

People don't hear flowers speak, but that doesn't mean they aren't saying anything. There is a language of spring flowers, and it can impart many sentiments on Valentine's Day.

Pleasant supplies of these cut spring flowers and potted flowering plants couldn't be more welcome than they are now to say the things that words cannot.

In their jolly fashion, pots of blue hyacinths say, "There's no one or me but you."

White hyacinths pay tribute to loveliness, both physical and spiritual. Purple hyacinths sportively apologize for quarrels.

The association of tulips with love is older than Valentine's Day. According to an ancient Middle Eastern legend, the first tulip sprang when the tears of a lovesick Persian boy hit the scorching desert sands.

Today cut and potted tulips are appropriate Valentines for all stages of courtship. Those with bicolored, striped flowers say, "Your eyes are beautiful. I see love in them."

Red tulips, like wedding engagements, are emphatic declarations of love. Yellow tulips go all the way, vowing, "Today I love you more than yesterday, less than tomorrow."

Irises are provocative because they say that a message is about to be delivered but do not offer any clues to its content. That's for the giver to supply.

Irises, especially the miniatures, are charming in dish gardens.

A pot of flowering crocus plants tells the recipient that there are reasons to be glad. One reason is that it's Valentine's Day and someone has remembered.

Another reason is that crocuses, the first flowers of spring, are reminders that warm weather is just weeks away.

Cut spring flowers and pots of flowering bulb plants should be selected before their buds open.

As the days pass, buds will take on more and more color until finally they burst with brilliant blooms of special sentiments.

Spring flowers should be purchased when they are tightly budded. Tulips should reveal just a hint of color.

Select irises that are in the "pencil" stage with their buds straight and pointed. Daffodil buds should be bent like goose necks.

Cut spring flowers need some care in order to prolong their freshness. Cut one quarter of an inch from each stem on a slant, using a sharp knife.

Wrap stems in wax paper and leave them to soak in a bucket of warm water in a cool room for three to six hours.

Wrap buds of tulips, but not of irises or daffodils. Stems will straighten and buds will open slightly.

If you Valentine's Day gift comes growing in a pot, water it every day or two. Make sure soil never dries out.

Place the flowering bulb plant where it can enjoy indirect sun, without the drying blasts of heaters.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please don't laugh, this is a serious problem. I am a girl, nearly 17, who wants more than anything else in the world to become a bullfighter. When I tell people that this is my ambition they think I am kidding, but I'm not. I know it is an unusual profession for a woman, but I can't see any reason why a woman shouldn't be as good as a man when it comes to bullfighting, do you?

I have never been to see a bullfight, but those I've seen in the movies and on television look like the most exciting sport in the world. It takes grace, and lots of guts, and I've got both.

Can you tell me how to get into this line of work? I know I can't get any training in this country, but I am willing to go to Mexico. Or even to Spain if necessary.

Thanks for any help you can give me.

FUTURE BULLFIGHTER

DEAR BULLFIGHTER: Since bullfighting is outlawed in the United States, you would have to get your training in a country that permits it. But before you do anything, may I make a suggestion? Ask yourself why you want "more than anything else in the world" to excel in the brutal and bloody business of torturing and killing animals for sport and entertainment.

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married soon, and am keeping my own name instead of taking my husband's name. When we have children, what last name should we give them?

We don't want to hyphenate our last names since both are quite long.

B.J.

DEAR B.J.: In America, children traditionally take their father's last name. But since you have already broken with tradition by keeping your own last name, you're obviously not concerned with tradition, so choose whichever name you prefer.

Out of consideration to your children, I recommend they take their father's last name, or use the hyphenated combination of both your names—regardless of how long they are. Either would create fewer identity problems throughout their lives.

P.S. If anybody out there has had to deal with this problem, I am interested in knowing how it was handled.

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired United Methodist minister who makes house calls on people who attend our church as visitors, particularly new people in the area looking for a church. I make between 50 and 60 house calls per month. Most of these calls are made in the afternoon, and those in the evening are made by appointment only.

I am amazed at the ease with which I gain entrance to the home even though I am a total stranger to the family. I always have my identification card handy, but no one ever asks to see it.

I have had the door opened by children as young as 3 and 4! I never enter the home until an adult comes to the door. If I were a thief (or a rapist) I could gain entrance in over 50 percent of the homes I visit without any difficulty whatsoever.

Please print this, Abby, and tell your readers to be very, very careful about whom they let into their homes. And to never allow a child to open a door to a stranger.

A CONCERNED MINISTER IN PHOENIX

DEAR CONCERNED: Here's hoping your letter causes more eyes to be opened and more doors kept shut.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (25 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: A girl moved into our community about three weeks ago. She is having a slumber and skating party and I am invited. Yesterday, one of my best friends told me that this girl has a bad reputation and that she takes drugs and smokes marijuana. Now I don't know if I should go. Please help. — Tyrenna, Rock Island, Ill. Tyrenna: Go to the party. I think it's wonderful that the girl is having a party to meet new friends. If by chance there are drugs or pot at the party, ask your parents to pick you up. If not, have a great time and gain a new friend. Something tells me that your friend wasn't invited.

Dr. Wallace: I'm desperate. How does one collar a pair of thieves? My two little sisters (I'll call them Bonnie and Clydette) have been "lifting" a lot of stuff from my room. Makeup, stuffed toys, scissors top the list, but there are many more things. I've gone to my parents but nothing is ever done. Yesterday I "accidentally" found two bottles of my best nail polish in their room, but Bonnie said she didn't know anything about it and Clydette claimed she saw the polish fly into their room. To make matters worse, Bonnie is mom's pet and Clydette is dad's. I'm 16 and my sisters are 11 and 10. Help. — Alice, Everett, Wash. Alice: Win these darlings over with sweetness. Tell them you will share some of your better things with them if they promise to keep their "hands off." Then keep your word. Allow them to borrow things. With your permission (perfume, nail polish, jewelry, etc.). If this doesn't work, put a lock on your door.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wine prescribed for edery

"A meal without wine is like a day without sunshine" — it's an old saying but new evidence suggests wine is helpful to edery people, but only when taken in moderate amounts, cautions the Health Insurance Institute, citing a study of Medicare patients.

The study, conducted at Wrightwood Extended Care Facility in Chicago, concluded that edery people do better in an institutional setting when they drink a small glassful of wine with their dinner.

The ground rules at the facility were: During a 90-day period, patients were permitted wine with dinner provided they wanted it, their health allowed it, and their personal physician agreed.

Among the findings were that those who drank wine, compared to those who didn't, were satisfied with visiting hours and regulations, their nurses, food and its serving, bed and room — and they fell asleep more easily at night.

The professional staff agreed that those who had wine with their dinner were better and happier patients who needed less sedation and sleeping medication than those who skipped the wine.

NATIONAL CHICKEN COOKING CONTEST:

Practically anyone may enter. All entries must be in by March 15, to be eligible for this year's Aug. 6 cook-off in Atlanta, Ga.

The Texas Cook-Off is in Austin on May 23. For more details, contact the County Extension Office at 669-7429.

TEXAS BEEF COOK-OFF:

The Texas Cowbelles are sponsoring a Beef Cook-Off this spring. Sizable money awards will be given to the first and second place winners. The winners will advance to the National Beef Cook-Off, Sept. 3-5, in Scottsdale, Ariz.

Any beef recipe using chuck, round, rump or fresh brisket cut of beef in any form may be entered. The dish must contain at least two pounds of beef and not more than five pounds of beef. The meat must be exclusively beef.

A contestant may submit a recipe by March 15. Five recipes will be selected to compete in Amarillo April 17-18. For more details, contact a member of the Cowbelles or call the County Extension Office at 669-7429.

BEWARE OF HOT-TUB SOAKS:

Electrical "hot tubs" can injure or kill unless their users follow safety steps. Make sure such tubs or residential spas are wired according to the requirements of the National Electrical Code. Have an electrical inspector approve the installation. His approval will help ensure that your electrical system does not pose shock threats.

Hot tubs present some of the same hazards to children as swimming pools do. If children use the tubs, make sure they have adult supervision. If water in the hot tub is more than 104 degrees F., it's too hot. Make sure your tub has a thermostat.

If you feel drowsy in your tub, regardless of the thermometer reading — or thermostat setting, get out of the tub and turn the thermostat down before using the tub again. A good rule for new tubs would be to set the temperature no higher than 100 degrees F. — and later to make it slightly warmer, maybe two degrees, after users have experience in using the tub. Actually, a thermometer in the tub can tell you the temperature better than a thermostat, so make sure to include an accurate thermometer.

Finally, be especially careful not to combine excessive heat with alcohol or other drugs. Excessive use of alcoholic beverages before immersion in the tub or heated spa may have been a factor in some deaths of people using them.

COST-PER-WEARING... A KEY IN BUYING:

"Cost-per-wearing" will stretch clothing dollars if you pay attention to it. It's like figuring cost-per-serving in food buying. To find the cost-per-wearing of a garment, just divide the number of times you'll wear it into the purchase price.

Here's an example: You've found a sweater on sale for $20, you buy it, then don't like it, so you only wear it twice. Its cost-per-wearing is $10 — expensive for most people's budgets, even if it was on sale. On the other hand, say you buy a seemingly expensive all-weather coat for $100 and wear it four times a week for six months. Its cost-per-wearing is only $1 — a very reasonable cost-per-wearing. Also, if the coat lasts two years, the cost-per-wearing would be 50 cents or for three years, just 33 cents. Remember, a bargain is never a bargain unless it fits a need.

When buying clothing, consider color, pattern, comfort and need. For wardrobe basics that get lots of wear, buy the best quality you can afford. Think of high-quality basics as investments, and don't just buy "bargain-priced" garments each time you need a clothing item. Of course, when high-quality basics actually have sale prices, they can mean a great savings and a really wise investment.

Finally, "bargain-priced" items can have a place in your clothing budget — especially for very limited needs, such as unusual occasions. To help you decide, always figure the cost-per-wearing of high-quality items and "bargain-priced" items.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Executive lifestyle is risky

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband is 38 years old. He's 6-foot-1 and weighs 210 pounds. He has an executive job (big money, big worries). Every night he drinks from three to five drinks of scotch or gin (about 40 ounces every week). He reads the paper for an hour and then we have dinner. I've tried to cook good food — no fried food or sauces, lots of vegetables and not too much beef. Then he goes back to the paper for another hour and the rest of the evening we watch TV. We do have weekend activities. He probably smokes a pack a day. Of that, I'm not sure.

I don't want to be a widow when I'm 50. Tell me how I can keep my husband alive for 40 years. My husband says I'm a perpetual pessimist and a party pooper. I need your help.

DEAR READER — No, you're just realistic. Your husband needs to make some executive decisions and minimize his risks and maximize his rewards.

The lifestyle you describe is typical of many men in our modern civilization. This also has a lot to do with why heart disease and strokes are so common in men. The human body just wasn't constructed for a lot of inactivity and excessive amounts of mental stress.

Rather than argue with your husband, you might give him some facts to read so I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-2, How To Measure Your Risk Of Heart Disease. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue sets forth the relative risk that a person takes from being overweight, developing high cholesterol, high blood pressure and cigarette smoking. And it also recommends what you should do about it.

I suspect your husband is overweight, which means he's consuming more calories than he's using. You can help some with diet but he could help, too, by increasing his level of physical activity. A person who is overweight tends to develop high blood pressure and high cholesterol levels. And, of course, cigarette smoking will significantly increase his risk of heart attacks or strokes.

Wives have an opportunity to significantly help their husbands with these problems. The first and most obvious help they can offer is in the kitchen. Under these circumstances a wife should make an extra effort to provide satisfying, nutritious food that's low in calories and it sounds like that's what you're doing. It's important to find out how to eliminate all the fat you can from the food because that will help eliminate an enormous number of calories.

The second thing you can do is to interest your husband in evening activities that will involve some physical exercise. Rather than nagging, it's a better idea to be a participant. A good approach here is to establish an evening walk because you enjoy it and ask him to go with you.

New Valentine look

Traditional Valentine cards with red hearts and white lace are giving way to romantic mood photography, simple floral designs and bold, modern graphics, according to design specialists at Hallmark Cards. The dramatic departure also includes new background colors such as shiny black, cranberry and burgundy.

Soviet defectors thank U.S., Japanese governments

NEW YORK (AP) — While in Japan the Bolshoi Ballet promised the show would go on, two more defectors from the Soviet dance world arrived here after being granted asylum in the United States. Soulamif Mikhailovno Messerer, 71, a top Soviet ballet teacher, and her son, Mikhail Messerer, 31, an occasional solo dancer with the Bolshoi Ballet, on Wednesday thanked the American and Japanese governments for their aid in the defection. Mrs. Messerer had been in Japan for the past three months giving ballet lessons to the Tchaikovsky Memorial Tokyo Ballet troupe. She is a widow, had visited Japan frequently over the past 20 years and speaks fluent Japanese. Messerer joined his mother in Japan when the Bolshoi arrived there for a 12-city tour, and the two defected Tuesday in Tokyo. The troupe's first performance was in Tokyo last Saturday.

During a tour of the United States in August and September last year three better-known dancers with the famed Moscow company defected. A spokesman for the U.S. embassy in Tokyo, John Ohta, said the Messerers "wanted a freer environment for artistic activities." The Tokyo newspaper Asahi Shimbun quoted police sources saying the two "despaired of life in Russian society." When she arrived in New York, Mrs. Messerer read a statement in English to reporters waiting for her at Kennedy International Airport, saying she wanted to "thank the American government for the opportunity to be here and thank the Japanese government for their help." "The Soviet embassy (in Tokyo) didn't do anything against us," she said. There was no immediate comment from Soviet officials.

Valentine hearts still popular as time goes by

NEW YORK (AP) — They still say "I love you" — every February 14 — on that you can rely. And you can also rely on the fact that to speak the eloquent language of love, "you gotta have heart," advises the Jewelry Industry Council. A gift of a heart locket or pin has always been a Valentine's Day favorite, the council points out. This year, however, there are an abundance of hearts to choose from, ranging from mad to mod. Select your own valentine from pendants in heart shapes that could be plain, fluted, cut out, filigreed, free form, or embellished with gemstones. Most popular gemstone for Valentine's day is, of course, St. Valentine's own birthstone, the amethyst. Ever since television star Arlene Francis started the "heart on a string" fad by wearing heart pendants today is the little gold heart with tiny seed pearls, which captures all of spring's new dictates about jewelry, she says. Gold is riding high; so are chains, and pearls are enjoying a renaissance of popularity.

(and never taking off) the little diamond-studded heart given her by her husband, heart pendants have been "in," fashionably speaking, says Kae McCulloch, fashion consultant for the council. One of the most popular

Of course, the recipient will be equally delighted with a pair of heart-shaped earrings, a heart pin, or a solid gold heart ring, Ms. McCulloch notes. Or why not give her her very own birthstone set in a gold heart ring?

SHE'S ALL HEART, and ready for Valentine's Day with the latest in jewelry with a sentimental touch. There are all types of hearts, reports the Jewelry Industry Council, including heart pendants ranging from cutout and free form to solid; heart pins that have many variations, sometimes forming a heart flower with a cluster of six cutout hearts; and rings and earrings that also pick up the romantic motif.

Ask the HEARING AID SPECIALIST
A.W. McGinnas, M.S., M.H.A.S.

Q. If a Hearing Aid Dispenser should test a patient and recommend a Hearing Aid, should the patient still see a doctor?

A. By the Federal Drug Administration rules, the patient must sign a Medical Waiver or see a physician before receiving the Hearing Aids. Beltone sends a copy of the test results to the physician as a matter of routine.

Q. Before a patient purchases a Hearing Aid, must they be tested?

A. Most definitely yes. Texas State Law requires a complete battery of Hearing Tests, including Air Pure Tone, Bone Pure Tone and Discrimination Tests be given prior to the purchase of a Hearing Aid.

Book offers data on American women

Biographies of more than a thousand American women who have contributed to the growth of the nation are included in a new book, "Liberty's Women." "American history has usually been told through the lives of men," says William Llewellyn, president of G. & C. Merriam Co., publishers of the volume. "Virtually the only female characters mentioned have been figures of legend — Pocahontas, Betsy Ross, Molly Pitcher."

"Liberty's Women," three years in preparation, documents hundreds of other women who have made "a significant contribution to American life," he adds.

Chronologically they range from Virginia Dare, who in 1587 was the first European child to be born in America, to such contemporary figures as Chris Evert, Susan Sontag and Julia Child.

Biographies include sketches on artist Mary Cassatt, Clara Maas, who gave her life to yellow-fever experiments, orchestra conductor Eye Quelar, businesswoman Sarah Walker, and Harriet Quimby, "the first woman to fly the English Channel."

'Winterize' feet for cold weather

To help keep feet warmer and more comfortable during winter walks, foot care experts offer these suggestions:

- Be sure there's room to spare inside boots. Extra space will provide "breathing room" for feet, and will channel body heat throughout the boot, to act as an insulating layer of warmth.
- Leave fashion for better weather; comfortable, low-heeled walking boots are best bets for battling snow drifts, slush and cold. On icy or muddy days, opt for rubbery corrugated boot soles that grip slippery pavements.
- Winterize footwear with insoles that shield feet from the weather. Insoles provide extra-thin insulation for fluffy warmth in winter boots or work shoes, block out cold and dampness to help feet stay warmer.
- Invest in a pair of oversized, wooly socks as a second layer for warm padding. Extra socks also will help protect against heel or ankle chafing inside heavy, rigid footwear.
- Leather boots should be "weather-proofed" with oil, polish or spray, available at shoe stores.

SOUND COUNTRY

RCA Records and Charley Pride will prove that the "third time's a charm" with the Pride LP titled There's a Little Bit of Hank in Me. Charley was displeased with the voice track on the first recording session, and being hoarse also left him unhappy with the second voice track. The third attempt pleased Charley, which in turn, pleased RCA Records, which in turn should please country music fans right up to and including their hip pocket money. There's a Little Bit of Hank in Me is, of course, a collection of Hank Williams songs, with one exception—the title track which was written by John Schweers. Pride intends to release 'Honky Tonk Blues' and 'I'm So Lonesome' as singles off his latest LP. RCA is mum about the possibility of any further single material from the album.

FARM & RANCH NEWS

IN AGRICULTURE

By JOE VANZANDT GREENBUG TIME

Reports from the Rolling Plains say that greenbug populations are being found in almost every field inspected. Control measures were necessary in some counties the week of Jan. 14th. Reports have been received that greenbug populations are building on the High Plains. Population counts of 200 plus foot drill - row and damage symptoms were showing. These observations were made prior to the last cold period. Even severe weather kills very few greenbugs. Essentially, all it does is cease reproduction and cause them to retreat into cracks in the ground or in closer to the crown of the plant. When the weather warms they return to feeding and reproduction increases in a direct correlation to temperature.

Reports from New Mexico are saying that Oat Bird - Cherry Aphid populations are very high in many of their small grain fields. It's apparent that the weather prior to this last cold period has been conducive to aphid increases. So, as we get a break in the weather, inspect your wheat for greenbugs.

CROP SYMPOSIUM

On Thursday, Feb. 14th, starting at 10 a.m., a crop symposium will be held in Amarillo at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd. - West, Amarillo.

The theme for the program is Energy in Agriculture - Use and Production.

Several outstanding speakers will discuss a wide variety of topics related to the theme. The program should be concluded by 4 p.m.

TREE PLANTING TIME AT HAND

Think back to last summer's heat and imagine what a difference a green canopy of shade would make around your home and neighborhood.

Trees around our homes provide more than landscape beauty. They provide more than landscape beauty. They provide climate control and make important contributions to improving our environment. They add increased value and esteem to our property. Trees filter and clean the air we breathe, provide oxygen for living, and serve to reduce urban noise and sound.

Trees are one of nature's best gifts and are a mighty fine investment for our homes and communities.

If you have been thinking of adding trees to your landscaping, the time is at hand.

Plant trees as soon as possible so that root systems can develop and become well established before hot weather arrives.

A list of trees recommended for this area is available at the County Extension Office - call or come by the Courthouse Annex for your copy.

Most nurseries now have good supplies of container, balled and burlapped, and bare - rooted trees. So take time now to visit him and make your selection.

After selecting the tree, your next step is proper planning. Here are a few guidelines on getting that job done right.

1) Dig a hole large enough in diameter so that the root system has at least 6 inches clearance on all sides. Some people will dig their hole twice the width of the root ball, which is an excellent idea if you can manage it. It's not necessary to dig the hole much deeper than the root ball as the ball should rest on a solid soil foundation.

2) Plant the tree at, or slightly below, the level at which the tree was growing in the nursery. The original soil line can be seen as a discolored ring on the trunk.

3) Be sure to provide internal soil drainage. If you are unsure as to whether or not your soil drains well, try this test: Dig a hole and fill it with water. If the water doesn't drain through the soil in a day or so, plant roots will suffer from lack of oxygen. To improve drainage, dig a trench leading away from the bottom of the hole and fill it with gravel so that excess water can drain to a lower area of the yard.

4) Carefully place the tree in the hole. Handle it by the ball and not by the trunk. A broken ball of earth can mean a dead plant. Always remove any container before you plant.

5) Backfill the hole carefully, using good topsoil or a mixture of soil, sand and organic matter, such as peatmoss. Firm the soil around the plant and water thoroughly to settle the soil around the roots and to eliminate any air pockets.

6) Do not fertilize the tree after planting. Wait until early spring and then fertilize the tree after planting. Heavy applications of fertilizer will burn and injure the root system and could possibly kill the plant.

7) Stake the newly planted tree and tie with guying wires to provide stability and prevent wind damage.

FERTILIZING ALFALFA

To maintain high production levels producers should apply fertilizer during the winter season. Alfalfa requires adequate levels of phosphorus for efficient production. As phosphorus is not subject to leaching or volatilization the annual requirement of 100 lbs. of P-205 per acre can be applied in a single broadcast application.

P-205 Nitrogen fertilizer is not needed for alfalfa production if the seed was inoculated with nitrogen - fixing bacteria at planting and the plants have developed nodules on their roots. The nodules contain the beneficial bacteria which are capable of obtaining as much as 300 lbs. of nitrogen per acre from the air. Atmospheric nitrogen is not directly usable by most plants. Texas High Plains soils are usually high in potassium so its application is not necessary or recommended except in some sandy soils where a soil test may indicate a low level.

Where the above special conditions exist, it would be feasible to haul feedlot waste a greater distance than when phosphorous is the only soil nutrient needed for the crop.

February 11, 1980

Your social circle is likely to be greatly expanded this coming year. Many new friendships will be developed with persons from all walks of life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If your motivation is to do the greatest good for the greatest number today, all you touch should be successful. Think in terms of "we," not "me." Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Take the bull by the horns today concerning important goals, and do what's needed by yourself. Sluggish allies could impede your progress.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Prime yourself properly today so that you won't settle for second best. You have what it takes to realize your hopes, so don't let down prematurely.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your possibilities for gains through joint ventures are quite promising today. The one exception could be a situation in which you lost previously.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your cooperative nature will be greatly appreciated by friends today, but there's a chance the family won't see this splendid side of your character.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Changes you hope to make today will go smoothly, provided they benefit others as well as yourself. Don't alter something at another's expense.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Seek the type of activities today in which you can enjoy yourself without spending any money. Expensive pursuits won't guarantee pleasurable results.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Focus on situations that could mean something to you materially or financially. Your luck lies in these areas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Holding a positive and assured attitude today will take you into the winner's circle. Some negative thoughts will try to creep in, but discard them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your financial aspects are very encouraging today, so be alert for opportunities. Breaks will come through business associates, not social contacts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your friends are willing to go to bat for you today, but don't make them feel that they have to. Let their desire to help be their inspiration.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be extremely logical and practical in career or financial matters today and you should come out on top. Take your chances with a grain of salt.

February prime month for TV scheduling

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Watching prime time television a year ago this month was like witnessing a demolition derby between Cadillacs and Bentleys. It was ratings sweeps month and the networks went at each other with "Gone With the Wind," "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "Rocky."

It was something to behold, a television bonanza. "Roots II," "American Graffiti," "Backstairs at the White House," "Marathon Man," "The Sound of Music," "Elvis," "Centennial."

But this is another February, another derby. CBS and NBC showed up this time in beat-up Studebakers. And ABC has the Winter Olympics, fifty-two hours of good ratings right in the middle of sweeps month, when ratings are used to set local stations' advertising rates.

ABC's Olympic coverage begins Tuesday night and runs through Sunday, Feb. 24. Against this, CBS and NBC are offering a collection of mostly ho-hum movies and specials, and regular programming.

If ABC's Olympics package draws the ratings expected, the network will fatten its slender lead in the season-long ratings contest, and may gain enough momentum to keep the network on top through the end of the season.

CBS goes against the Olympics on Tuesday with "The Exorcist," and on Wednesday with "Exorcist II." Incredibly, "Exorcist II" follows a CBS lead-in of "Bugs Bunny" and "Popeye" specials, a display of insensitivity reminiscent of CBS' leading a Christmas kiddies' special into the ghoulish vampire movie, "Salem's Lot," last year.

NBC starts the week with the final three hours of Bob Hope's retrospective of his tours for U.S. troops, and follows it something called "The American Movie Awards," a kind of man-on-the-street version of the Oscars.

On Thursday, NBC has what may be the best competition for ABC's Olympics coverage, a Steve Martin special called "Comedy is Not Pretty." Martin at his best; funny enough to make you forget "The Jerk."

On Friday, NBC is back with the second line stuff; okay, but not enough to take most folks from the Olympics. First there is a Doug Henning magic special, then something called "Valentine Magic on Love Island," a TV-movie about "the hilarious romantic adventures of vacationers at a tropical resort."

This is NBC's way of conceding the night.

THE DEEP

Nick Nolte, Robert Shaw and Jacqueline Bisset (left to right) can bring up a fortune in sunken Spanish gold—if they stay alive long enough—in a new two-part version of "The Deep."

The new version restores almost an hour of previously unseen action to the superhit. "The Deep" Part one and Part two will air as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie" and "The ABC Monday Night Movie" SUNDAY, FEB. 10 and MONDAY, FEB. 11.

Dolby promotes music industry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It must have been a memorable sight.

Ray Dolby, in 1966, inventor, audiophile, physicist, walking the streets of New York City like a medicine-show peddler with some black boxes he said would eliminate unwanted noise from recorded music.

At age 46, Ray Dolby is now the owner of a $13 million-a-year business. His name is synonymous with noiseless music reproduction.

"Things were really getting pretty desperate," he recalls. "The recording studios just said, 'We don't have any noise problem.'"

Now, nearly every major recording studio in the world contains a series of 1 x 6 x 7 1/2-inch, brushed-aluminum boxes labeled "Dolby System A-Type Noise Reduction." Inside are 520 resistors, transistors, capacitors and other things designed to remove the annoying background hiss from recorded sound.

Dolby, who grew up in Palo Alto, Calif., first tried to sell his invention in London, where he still maintains a factory. Decca Record Co. wanted to buy all the units it could. But their British competitors balked.

"I imagined that the other recording studios would be just as eager, and they weren't," Dolby recalls.

So he sent 30 letters to major U.S. record companies. Immediately, he got two telegrams back. Arriving in New York City, he sold the two firms on his idea. Others were quick to follow.

Fourteen years later, you can't walk into a stereo shop without seeing Dolby's name. In the advertising of Dolby Laboratories Inc., now based here, his name is "the sound of silence."

For years, audio engineers had sought the perfect way to eliminate tape hiss, a byproduct of magnetic recording that had plagued the music industry since the 1940s.

Various schemes had been tried. Dolby came up with a system unique in several respects.

12 GOOD REASONS WHY YOU'LL FIND THE DAILY NEWSPAPER AN IMPORTANT PART OF YOUR CHILD'S EDUCATION...

1. It's an adult medium. No big seventh-grader with a reading problem likes to be seen carrying around "Six Ducks in a Pond." But he's proud to be seen reading the newspaper.

2. It deals in reality, in what is happening here and now. Motivation is built in for reading and discussions.

3. It bridges the gap between the classroom and the "real" world outside.

4. It contains history as it happens, reported as completely and objectively as is humanly possible.

5. It contains something for every student: comics for the slow reader, editorials for the bright youngster; real math problems for the child who hates textbooks; science as it happens.

6. It contains practical vocabulary, the words students will use over and over again throughout their lives.

7. It can be marked, cut, pasted, colored-important to young children who learn by doing and seeing.

8. It contains in its news stories the best models for clear, concise, simple writing.

9. It is the perfect model for teaching students to write for a purpose and for a particular audience.

10. It is the only up-to-date social studies text there is.

11. It is the only text the majority of children will continue to read throughout their lives.

12. It is an influential and integral part of our free society. Its freedom is guaranteed under the Constitution which some have said is "less the right of the newspaper to print than it is the right of the citizen to read."

Life's necessities account for higher inflation rate

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of energy, food, housing and health care jumped 17.6 percent last year, a group of private economists said Saturday, in a stinging critique of President Carter's anti-inflation policy.

The National Center for Economic Alternatives, an academic research organization that studies economic problems, said skyrocketing prices for these "necessities of life" accounted for virtually the entire increase in 1979's overall inflation rate of 13.3 percent.
Prices of all other items rose 6.8 percent, only slightly more than in 1978 and actually less than in 1976, the center said.

Center co-director Gar Alperovitz said the administration's "failure to face up to the real causes of inflation now require wage and price controls."
Thus, he joins a growing number of economists, including the former head of Carter's anti-inflation program, Barry Bosworth, who advocate controls to battle the worst inflation in 33 years.

The Carter administration and a majority of private economists still oppose controls, saying they have not worked in the past and would prove burdensome and costly.

Energy, food, housing and health care make up two-thirds of the household budget for 80 percent of American families, Alperovitz said.

The center considers these items necessities because they can't be avoided easily. Families must pay the rent or mortgage payment; buy groceries, gasoline, fuel and electricity; and seek medical care when illness strikes.
As recently as 1976, the prices for these necessities rose only 3.7 percent, while non-necessities increased a much higher 7 percent, the center said.

Tight monetary controls have pushed interest rates to record-high levels, while price decontrol of domestic oil is fueling energy inflation, Alperovitz said.

Alperovitz said wage and price controls are "inevitable." But, he warned that unless the administration and Congress "address the underlying causes of inflation and not its symptoms," wage and price controls could be a disaster for Americans.

"Controls by themselves won't work. The day they are lifted will be the day inflation re-explodes," Alperovitz said.

The center says inflation won't be solved unless the government invests more heavily in solar energy and mass transit, while pushing much harder for conservation, including gasoline rationing.

It also calls for a massive expansion in the supply of housing, with federal help; and hospital cost-containment legislation and a program to stabilize cattle and grain supplies.

Citizens of Pilot Point hot about train traffic

PILOT POINT, Texas (AP) — Tempers here are hot these days because of trains that stop in the middle of town and block traffic for long periods of time.

The problem flared into a heated controversy after one occasion when a 100-car train blocked traffic because the crew stopped to eat breakfast.

"There's no excuse for this type of behavior," said Bobby Whisenant, an auto parts store owner. Residents of this small town north of Denton say they frequently sit in their cars 15 to 20 minutes waiting for the trains to get out of the way.

"On one occasion one of our school buses was half an hour late because we were blocked off," said Mayor Bill Davis. He said he fears emergency vehicles will be unable to get to a crisis on the other side of the tracks and it could cost a life.

"I'm not saying it's going to happen," he said. "It's just that the possibility is there. It's just a problem and we want to see it corrected."

Police Chief Bob Merrill took action last week by fining the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad $2,800 for blocking all seven railroad crossings in town for 20 minutes. That represents a maximum fine of $100 per intersection blocked, for every five minutes it was blocked.

The tracks split the town of 2,150 residents, leaving half the area and one third the population on one side, cut off from the other side when trains stop. The side of town with two-thirds of the population is where the volunteer fire department is located.

There has already been an instance in which a train delayed firemen on their way to put out a house fire, according to Fire Chief Everett Boerner.

"It was a total loss by the time we got there," Boerner said. "We would have had a better chance of saving some of the furniture if we had been able to get there sooner." He said his men waited about five minutes at a railroad crossing until a train moved.

MKT attorney Joe Crawford said, "We do not deliberately or intentionally block railroad crossings for extended periods of time." He promised to cooperate with the city "to work something out."

Meantime, Police Commissioner Bill Hilz said more fines will be imposed until the situation improves.

"If we see a condition that needs correcting, we will correct it," he said.
