

Poerner blasts Congress, profits tax

BY LYNN HUNTER
Of The Pampa News

Texas Railroad Commissioner John Poerner in Pampa Thursday blasted members of Congress for the proposed windfall profits tax, which he said would remove about $62.5 billion from the Texas economy in ten years.

Poerner spoke Thursday night to about 70 members of the American Petroleum Institute (API).

On his arrival in Pampa Thursday afternoon at the Perry Lefors Airport, Poerner told the Pampa News that the only portion of the Rock Island railroad line still "hanging loose" is 273 miles in the Texas panhandle.

In his comments to the API, Poerner said during 1979 Exxon Corporation, the largest oil company in the world, reported third quarter earnings of $1.14 billion. He said Texaco reported a 211 percent increase in profits, and Standard Oil profits increased 191 percent.

"Washington wasted no time in using these profit reports as a springboard for an intensified campaign to push a strong windfall profits tax through Congress," Poerner said.

"The president has even gone so far as to threaten punitive action against oil firms if Congress fails to get tough with the oil industry," Poerner said.

Poerner said the thinking of Congress seems to be, "In the United States, we found and produced our oil at a profit before the Arab embargo. Therefore, anything over the pre-embargo price is a windfall and undeserved because the OPEC price is artificial."

Poerner said the proposed windfall profits tax could be compared to the purchase of a home. In 1953, a home purchased for $12,000 might be sold for $115,000 today, and the purchase of a new home could cost $115,000.

"If you sell for the appraised value, by present accounting practices, you would have an 'obscene' profit of more than $100,000 on the sale. This would be a 'reportable' profit of about 900 percent on your original investment," Poerner said.

"Here's the rub — every penny will be required just to restore you to where you started (in a home costing today $115,000)," Poerner said.

"It seems that Washington has now declared that these oil profits from inflation are 'windfall' profits and should be partially or totally confiscated," Poerner said.

He said current federal and local taxes now take 55 to 60 cents of every dollar of profit.

"You basically work from January to June just to support the government," Poerner said.

He said it costs an average of $230,000 today to drill an exploratory well, which cost $95,000 in 1970. He said an offshore production platform can cost up to $800 million and a 150,000-barrel-a-day refinery, $750 million.

He said oil companies plan to spend $1 billion this year drilling in the Anadarko basin of Texas and Oklahoma where wells reaching 20,000 feet or deeper cost about $5.4 million each.

He said capital spending by oil firms is about double net income.

He said Exxon spent $5.3 billion in 1978, compared with earnings of $2.8 billion.

"A great deal of this money goes into the search for new oil and gas fields," Poerner said.

He said oil companies estimate they will spend an average of $40 billion a year through the mid-1980s to reverse the "slump" in oil and gas production.

"Profits of American oil companies, when corrected for inflation, were lower in 1978 than they were in 1973," Poerner said.

"I fail to see the reason why we are willing to pay American producers less than we're willing to pay OPEC," he said.

Poerner seemed pessimistic that the proposed windfall profits tax would be defeated in Congress, but encouraged oilmen to "hang together."

"Despite the tax unfortunately, I believe that we are going to hang together and fix whatever is wrong in the Congress — whatever is wrong with the philosophy of the current administration," Poerner said.

"We have more pride in our heritage than ever before and more ability to be free," he said.

"If we can work together, we can restore the common sense approach to the development and conservation of energy," Poerner said.

He said from 1902 to 1974, the United States was the leading oil producer in the world. Since 1975, the Soviet Union has taken the lead with 11.5 billion barrels of oil daily, compared with 8.5 billion for the U.S.

"As we write the last two chapters of the 20th century, we need to get ourselves energy self-sufficient — and get the federal government out of the oil business," Poerner said.

Thursday afternoon at the airport, Poerner said the Railroad Commission was attempting to help the people along the Rock Island line obtain more time "to work out a proposed purchase."

"We need our railroads more today than when we gave away land to build the tracks," Poerner said.

He said after sale of the railroad, purchasers might obtain federal grants for repair of railroad tracks. If grants are obtained, he said the Railroad Commission will be doing the repairs, what he foresees "as the first of many repair jobs."

"Our role now might be to help them in a plea to the referees of the Bankruptcy Court in Chicago to delay the sale so they can prepare for the sale," Poerner said.

He said the Katy Railroad was interested in purchasing the line from Dallas to Houston, of which Rock Island and Katy own 50 percent, and the tracks from Fort Worth to Dallas, which Poerner called "a very expensive piece of real estate."

He said Southern Pacific and Burlington Northern Railroads were also interested in parts of the line.

"All that's hanging in balance now is the sparsely populated area, 273 miles of line in the panhandle," Poerner said.

He said the panhandle portion serves 31 grain elevators as well as some industry.

Pro-con groups draw division line during Zoning Board meet

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

A public hearing on a zoning change for Nelson and Wells streets to allow for mobile homes brought out 18 of Pampa's citizenry to attend the February Planning and Zoning Commission meeting held Thursday at 3:30 p.m. at City Hall.

Apparently inadvertently, the people attending the hearing divided into pro and con groups and sat on opposite sides of the commission meeting room. Women comprised the group for the rezoning, while all men formed the con side of the question.

Bernice Rippetoe of 601 N. Nelson identified herself to the board as the person requesting the zoning change. The reason for the request was, she said, so a trailer could be placed on the lot at 603 N. Nelson.

Flaudie Gallman of 615 N. Nelson represented the group opposed to the rezoning.

"I bought this property in 1946," he said, "and I've enjoyed living in a restricted zone and I still want it that way."

The area residents would lose "at least $1,000," he said, on the valuation of their property if the area is rezoned.

"To keep the status quo," Gallman said, "is for the happiness of most of us who live in those areas." He sat down to applause from the con side of the room.

L. B. Studebaker of 405 N. Sumner read from his abstract in which it stated in part that "any structure of temporary character" is not allowed on the property.

Chairman for the board, Bill Harris, said any action by the board does not override deed restrictions.

Ann Cavaness of 800 N. Wells told board members she would rather have a well-kept trailer home near her than a "trashy" frame house. Mrs. Austin Morgan of Shamrock who owns property in the addition agreed with Cavaness.

Archie Maness of 431 N. Sumner said, "I don't think mobile homes will up-grade the area over all... one or two areas, yes."

Harris said 16 vacant lots on Nelson, Sumner and Wells streets would be affected by the zoning change.

After sending out letters, he said, the board registered 29 protests and 17 letters for the zoning change. In total, the board received 39 protests and 24 approvals from the 277 homeowners affected by the zoning.

After discussion, the board decided to deny the request for the rezoning.

Steve Vaughn, zoning officer, told Mrs. Rippetoe her next step would be to appeal the rezoning directly to the commissioners.

The board approved the zoning change for J. P. Butler dba Butler Nurseries from Specific Use to Office District.

Representing Butler was realtor, Jo Davis. The property can be sold, she said, if the zoning can be changed. It is intended to be used for a medical clinic, she said, describing the building as being a one story brick with parking facing on Perryton Parkway.

No opposition was voiced on the rezoning.

A request for a mobile home in the backyard of Joe Hawkins as a hardship case was rejected by board members after they decided they did not have jurisdiction in the matter. Members pass a motion to submit the matter to the city commission for consideration.

City Attorney Don Lane was given permission by the board to notify Dan Carter, owner of Star Life Acres — located north of the city within one mile of the city limits — he is not in compliance with the city one mile jurisdiction ordinance if he sells the property without final plat approval by the board.

"We should write Carter," Lane said, "to see that he understands the ordinance and give him the opportunity to appear and present his reason for non-compliance."

The board moved to recommend a public hearing to have a tract on Price Rd. north of Kentucky to be rezoned from agriculture to commercial.

Representing Superior Supply Co., Diane Kline told the board the company was petitioning to have the land rezoned so they could expand the pipe yard and oil field supplies business.

Members asked Kline to have a preliminary plat on the expansion drawn and approved by the city engineers before the public hearing.

Students to debate controversial issues in Model Legislature Saturday

By DEBBIE DUKE
Pampa News Intern

Abortions, mercy killings, speed limits, capital punishment, gasohol, equal rights, teacher competency tests and driver retesting are only a few topics of legislation which will be debated by Pampa High School students in the third annual Model Legislature at 8 a.m. Saturday in Pampa High School.

State Senator Bob Price will serve as the president of the Senate, and State Representative Foster

Whaley will be the Speaker of the House of Representatives in order to provide the students with realistic experience in the law-making process.

So far, a total of 208 students have registered for the legislature, according to general chairman John W. Warner.

The project is sponsored by the Pampa Kiwanis Club, Pampa Jaycees, Pampa Jaycee-ettes, Kay Club, Kiwanettes, Student Council, Little Harvester, Pampa Optimist Club, Social Studies Department of the school and the Gray County Bar Association.

Paul Simmons and Phil Vanderpool of the Kiwanis Club are arranging for witnesses to testify before the committees. Joe Jeffers, Doug Kennedy, Kendra Kennedy and Monte Covalt and the Key Club have divided the students into committees. The Key Club will furnish Sergeant-at-arms for each committee. Mary Skoog and Tina Robbins from the Keywanettes have made signs. The Keywanettes will furnish secretaries for each committee.

The Student Council will furnish parliamentarians for each committee. Student Body President Greg Quarles will serve as governor for the day. Richard Peet with the Social Studies Department has appointed chairmen and vice-chairmen for the committees. Valerie Swindle and Melissa Mackey of the Little Harvester are in charge of publicity.

The Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes, under the leadership of Richard Norton and Ava Lowe, will handle registration. These groups are in charge of getting the bills typed and copies made for the students.

"This project allows students to experience the law-making process," said Peet, "This allows them a much better understanding of how laws are made than just reading about it."

Following the morning session, where students will meet to write legislation, a Lobbyists Luncheon will be held, featuring all the pizza students can eat for only one dollar. The students will then report to the library and cafeteria to debate the bills.

Other proposals to be discussed will be competency tests for teachers, periodic driving tests, banning obscene materials, legalization of marijuana, banning of handguns, and gasohol development.

According to Peet, the event proves to be an interesting learning experience for the students.

Anyone wishing to participate may register at the high school Saturday morning.

TEXAS RAILROAD COMMISSIONER John Poerner is greeted by American Petroleum Institute representative Fred Neslage at Perry Lefors Airport Thursday afternoon. In a meeting with oilmen Thursday night, Poerner blasted the U.S. Congress for the proposed windfall profits tax and said the tax, if imposed, would remove about $62.5 billion from the Texas economy over the period of ten years. Poerner also blasted the federal government for its interference in the oil business.

Government claims 'windfall' tax would aid lower income groups

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — How to help lower-income Americans cope with energy prices is the last issue blocking final action by congressional conferees on a "windfall" tax on the oil industry.

The roadblock could be removed today, clearing the way for a final vote in the House and Senate that would send the tax bill to President Carter for his signature in mid-March.

The Senate-House conferees came within a whisker of final agreement Thursday, but deliberations over the energy-aid questions broke down after Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., a key House delegate, left the meeting.

President Carter's energy program calls for federal assistance to help lower-income families pay the rising fuel costs that will result in part from his decision to end price controls on U.S. crude oil.

The conferees must decide two big questions on such assistance:

—How much more than $3 billion a year for poor Americans — those generally with annual incomes under $10,000 — be distributed after 1981?

—What, if any, program should be created for 1981 and 1982 to help working families with incomes up to $22,000, who generally do not qualify for welfare?

On the first question, House members want to use the 1981 formula — which channels money through the welfare system — for all future years. Senators insist no such action be taken until after the program has had a chance to work for several months.

On the second matter, House conferees rejected a Senate plan for a $40-a-year tax credit — subtracted directly from income taxes owed — for every household, regardless of energy costs. The maximum credit would have gone to those earning up to $20,000 and would have phased out at $22,000.

The tax credit proposal, opposed by the Carter administration, would amount to an across-the-board tax cut for any household with income under $22,000 a year.

Still to be considered is another option, weighted toward households that use heating oil.

PRE-PLANNING AND PREPARATION IN GOVERNMENT CLASS. Richard Peet, government teacher at Pampa High School, left; Lynn Pyle and Jana Peercy, students were busy today as final preparations were made for the big day at PHS tomorrow. Parents and interested persons are cordially invited by government students and faculty to attend the sessions Saturday.

Attorney General watches Clayton case

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White has directed an aide to keep him posted on any possible violations of campaign reporting laws in the Speaker Bill Clayton case. Clayton received $5,000 in cash in an FBI undercover operation in 1979 and has been quoted as saying he was offered $800,000 for a race for governor.
 Clayton said the money was mentioned during his Nov. 8 meeting with Houston labor leader L.G. Moore and an FBI informant who posed as a representative of Prudential Insurance Co. Clayton said they discussed the possibility of Prudential landing the group insurance contract for state employees.

 He said he intended to return the $5,000 and denied any wrongdoing.
 White assigned Assistant Attorney General Terry Goodman "to keep him informed of what is going on," said press secretary Mary Hardesty.
 Ms. Goodman, a lawyer, formerly worked with the secretary of state's office, where she was head of the enforcement division under White, who was secretary of state.
 Mrs. Hardesty said the attorney general's office was not conducting its own investigation.

Student government revival applauded at Austin campus

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A constitutional convention aimed at reviving student government at the University of Texas goes to work Monday after receiving overwhelming response from student voters.
 Only 4 percent of the student body voted for delegates to the convention, and many chose "none of the above" as their favorite.
 The students were asked to select five delegates from each class, including graduate students.

Grand Jury session nets 12 indictments

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News
 Eight indictments were returned by the 31st District Grand Jury which met at 9:30 a.m. Thursday involving burglaries, robberies, thefts, sex- and drug-related offenses.
 Three local men were indicted in connection with a burglary ring conspiracy which involved several Pampa residences.
 Paul Gerik, 22, of Pampa received three indictments for burglary; Steven G. Elsten, 23, of Elk City, Okla. (a former Pampa resident) was indicted twice for receiving stolen property and Charles M. Angles, Jr., 23 of 816 Campbell received one indictment for receiving stolen property.
 The indictments were returned after the three men were arrested in connection with the burglaries of residences at 400 W. Harvester, 1408 S. Barnes and one located two miles west of the city.
 The total estimate of the property taken is over $15,000 in guns, jewelry and miscellaneous articles, District Attorney Harold Comer said. Law enforcement agencies recovered part of the stolen items, he said.
 Mario Alberto Luna, 27, of 809 E. Malone was indicted for aggravated robbery and is presently in county jail in lieu of $10,000 bond, Comer said.
 Luna was arrested by Pampa police in connection with the Feb. 14 robbery at knife point of the Allsup's located at 859 E. Frederic.
 James D. Anderson of Amarillo and James A. Thompson of Pampa each received two indictments from the grand jury for theft by check.
 Anderson's indictments involved checks totaling over $8,000, while Thompson's amounted to over $1,000.
 Other indictments returned included one to John J. Jackson, 71, of Lefors for indecency with a child; Robbie K. Stephenson of Pampa for unlawful delivery of marijuana; and Beverly A. Dorgan, 34, of Pampa for forgery.
 Arraignments on these cases, Comer said, were set by 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhenny for Feb. 29 at 3:30. Trial dates are expected to be set at that time, he said.

Chagra arrested, jailed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Convicted narcotics trafficker Jamiel Alexander "Jimmy" Chagra has been arrested by federal narcotics agents who had been searching for him since he skipped bail more than six months ago.

Chagra, 35, was arrested Thursday night as he was driving down the Las Vegas Strip, said Joe Catale, an agent with the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration. Chagra offered no resistance when he was taken into custody.

Chagra, who disappeared last August just before he was to be sentenced in Austin, Texas for his conviction on "continuing criminal enterprise," had $187,000 in cash on him when he was taken into custody about 7 p.m., Catale said.

The money, in 10,000 packets of $100 bills, reportedly was in a diaper box in the car.

Chagra's wife, Elizabeth, was located at a nearby motel but was not charged.

"He would not talk about anything," Catale said. "We warned him of his rights and he refused to make any statement."

Catale denied an earlier report that DEA agents had been tipped that Chagra was in Las Vegas.

"No, we weren't," he said. "We had the suspicion. We saw a car that we recognized from an earlier investigation and we decided to sit on it. And we got lucky."

Catale said that when Chagra was taken into custody by four DEA agents and a Las Vegas police officer "He said something like, 'Yeah, I'm a fugitive.'"

Chagra, a soft-spoken professional gambler known in many casinos here, was convicted last August of masterminding a not-so-successful Colombian dope smuggling venture. He was the alleged leader of what government prosecutors said was a conspiracy to bring in at least 13.2 pounds of cocaine — valued at $2,000 an ounce — from Colombia to Florida in November 1977. He also allegedly masterminded an attempt to smuggle 30 tons of marijuana by freighter from Colombia to Florida the following month.

He disappeared before his sentencing, which had been set for last Sept. 5, and forfeited $400,000 bail.

Following his arrest, Chagra appeared before U.S. Magistrate Joseph L. Ward, who set Feb. 29 for a hearing on his return to Texas. Ward continued the $3 million bail set for Chagra after he disappeared.

Chagra, asked by a reporter where he had been for the past six months, responded, "On the Las Vegas Strip."

Chagra is the brother of the late Lee Chagra, a prominent El Paso, Texas attorney who was murdered in his office in December 1978 during a $200,000 holdup. Three men have been arrested in connection with the case.

Joe Chagra, Jimmy's brother and an El Paso attorney, said Thursday night he was flying to Las Vegas to resume representing his brother.

"I've talked with Jimmy," he said. "He was in good spirits. He said he turned himself in."

Joe Chagra said he was "sure" his brother wouldn't have surrendered "unless he wanted to fight it."

"It's not like my family to be runners and hidiers," he said. "I think he was tired of running and wanted to get it over."

He said his brother's return to custody was a "relief," but added, "we've got a tough fight ahead."

Afghan situation remains tense as resistance grows

Protests against the Soviet military presence spread throughout Afghanistan today, with massive street demonstrations in Kabul leaving at least three persons dead, according to foreign reports from the Afghan capital.

"The city appeared in the grips of crisis," said one report received in New Delhi. Another report, whose source also asked not to be identified, said there was a "fair amount" of shooting.

Foreign residents in Kabul were quoted as saying they saw Soviet troops and armored personnel carriers rushed into the capital and deployed outside government buildings. Soviet MiG-21 jetfighters flew low over the city, buzzing rooftops, the reports said.

Merchants in the mile-high capital shuttered their stores for the second straight day to protest the two-month-old Soviet intervention. Most of the stores would have been closed in any case for the Moslem sabbath. Reports reaching New Delhi said the strike had spread to several provincial cities.

The strike and demonstrations in Kabul were the first outbreaks of disobedience in the capital since the Soviets poured tens of thousands of troops into Afghanistan in late December.

The Afghan Moslem rebels were reported today to be threatening major attacks on the capital. The Kabul correspondent of the Japanese newspaper Asahi Shimbun said the rebels have been distributing handbills warning of a March 10 attack on the capital to be followed by a "Tet-style offensive on March 21," New Year's Day for Afghanistan's Moslems.

The massive North Vietnamese Tet lunar new year's offensive of March 1968 was considered the turning point against American and South Vietnamese forces in the Vietnam war.

So far, the anti-communist Afghan rebels have confined their 22-month-old war against a string of pro-Soviet governments to the countryside, where their forces can mount sniper attacks and then slip away to mountain hideouts.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's effort to get the Russians out of Afghanistan with a mass boycott of the Moscow Olympics appeared to be foundering and he flew home from London.

Vance said he found agreement among America's European allies on the "general objectives" of protests against the Soviet moves in Afghanistan, but "there are differences of opinion on how to carry them out."

Vance said West Germany and Italy promised to consider joining a U.S.-sponsored Olympic boycott, but he was unable to shake French opposition to such a move. The French were said to feel a boycott would disrupt East-West detente in Europe.

Vance ended the European leg of his tour Thursday in London, where Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government vowed to back America to the hilt. Mrs. Thatcher said the sending of athletes to Moscow would be tantamount to "condoning an international crime."

Responding to critics, presidential adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski says the United States has the military power to meet a Soviet thrust into the Persian Gulf area without using nuclear weapons.

"We can certainly threaten military involvement without commitment to an early reliance on nuclear weapons," he said Thursday in outlining the potential U.S. retaliation to Soviet aggression.

Defending the potency of U.S. mobile forces, Brzezinski said if they did not stop the Soviets in the Persian Gulf region the United States might retaliate elsewhere.

Crash kills two students

MONAHANS, Texas (AP) — Investigators are considering the possibility that the 16-year-old driver of a pickup truck may have blacked out just before the vehicle swerved into a crowd of young girls, killing two and injuring 11 others.

"It was possible he had some kind of seizure and blacked out at the wheel," said Monahans police Sgt. Jim Vaughan, who spoke to the driver shortly after the noon recess accident. "He told us he had a history of some sort of seizures."

The driver, identified as Monahans high school student Israel Talavera, was hospitalized, Vaughan said.

The victims were identified as Patricia Odell and Shawna Richardson, both 13-year-old students at Monahans Junior High School.

"The truck went into a group of girls standing on the curbside and just scattered girls everywhere," Vaughan said. Witnesses told him the truck was travelling between 50 and 55 m.p.h when it went out of control, clipped a telephone pole and rammed into the crowd.

Witnesses said several students saw the careening truck and were able to run to safety while others shoved their friends out of the vehicle's path.

"There was kids laying everywhere and people were crying and screaming," said Lowell Richey, a high school student who stopped to help after the accident. "Pat was bleeding real bad and the other girl was thrown onto the top of a bus nearby."

The injured girls were transported to a Monahans hospital in ambulances, fire department vehicles and the police chief's private car, Vaughan said.

Vaughan said late Thursday the driver had not been arrested and investigators were discussing the possibility of charges with the Ward County District Attorney's office.

"It's too early to tell now," he said. "It may be possible that the kid did black out."

Monahans Junior High School principal Francis Apple was hardly able to discuss the accident.

"Both girls were top students," he said. "We had a terrible afternoon. We had 13 kids down. It's tragic when anyone dies, but when they are that young..." he said, his voice breaking.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covington Commandment.

The 'Stingagate'

This nation's lawmakers have a myriad of motivations. Some are power seekers who desire to exercise their will over the population. Others are altruistic dreamers trying to create a new society through legislation. And, if the news coming out of Washington is correct, some are looking for a fast buck.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation in recent months has been running a sting operation aimed at catching lawmakers inclined toward larceny. Some people claim that the near-entrapment method used by the FBI is unfair. It is, nonetheless, an approach used to catch other lawbreakers and there is no reason to believe that public officials should be exempt. Furthermore, Congress, including some of the members now under suspicion, approved of past FBI sting operations.

If the reports are to be believed, an extraordinarily high percentage of legislators took advantage of the situation when placed in a position to peddle their influence. Of the nine members of Congress approached, eight evidently stepped beyond legal bounds. Unfortunately news of the operation was leaked before other members of Congress were put to the test. At the same rate of honesty, it is unlikely that there would be enough members of either house left to make a quorum had the operation reached every member.

Only Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., was completely cleared by the investigation. The eight others, seven Democrats and one Republican, were willing in some way to have money exchanged with someone seeking their aid. Interestingly, there are several legal methods available for those seeking to buy government influence. Trade associations or labor unions can, for example, pay large honoraria, for speakers at their dinners or conventions. If a congressman votes the wrong way on an important bill, he doesn't get invited to speak, or collect a speaking fee. These very same groups can invite a congressman to write articles for their publications; some trade and professional journals pay top dollar for articles written by elected officials. With all of this money exchanging hands it is not surprising eight hapless members of Congress took the FBI's bait. Pressler, importantly enough, was the only freshman legislator of the nine contacted.

There is no reason to believe that elected officials are more or less honest than the citizens who elect them. In fact, several members of the House have been re-elected even after their involvement in shady dealing was exposed. The honesty question simply underscores, again, the necessity of not granting politicians — the government — power to control the lives of the people. It is too great a risk.

Free to condemn

The United Nations General Assembly recently voted to condemn the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. Although the Soviet Union was not mentioned in the resolution — instead the wording simply called for the "total withdrawal of foreign troops from Afghanistan" — it was nonetheless a major propaganda defeat for the Russians. The vote: 104 to 18, with 18 abstentions. The makeup of the vote is almost as important as the outcome. It provides an important tool in judging the various nation states.

Three of the 18 votes against the condemnation came directly from the Soviet Union. That's right, Russia has three votes in the United Nations. This absurdity is a result of the diligence exercised by the tough negotiators appointed by President Roosevelt and Truman during the formative meetings of the United Nations. One of the men representing the United States at those early meetings of the United Nations was Alger Hiss. Thanks, Alger.

All the Soviet Union's Eastern European neighbors voted against the resolution. Only tiny Romania, which does not actually border the Soviet Union, failed to vote the party line. It was inexplicably absent during the voting.

The other nations that voted not to condemn the presences of the foreign troops in neutral Afghanistan: Cuba, Angola, Grenada, Mozambique, Southern Yemen, Ethiopia, Mongolia, Laos, Vietnam, and, as one might expect, Afghanistan. All these nations, coincidentally, either occupy other nations with their troops or are occupied nations.

India, unwilling to break its long tradition of never condemning communist aggression, abstained. Finland also abstained, demonstrating the lack of independence of nations dominated, although not occupied, by the Soviet Union. Other nations unable to bring themselves to condemn the invasion of a neutral nation by Soviet tanks include a scattering of African states, the marxist government of Nicaragua, and the supposedly Moslem government of South Yemen. The Yemeni rulers showed just how religious they really are.

There were, importantly, 104 nations voting to condemn the invasion. One of these was Iraq, a Moslem nation thought to be dominated by the Russians. Even three communist nations, China, Yugoslavia, and Albania, voted against the Soviets. Apparently there are more nations of the world with independent leaders than previously thought.

Sex in advertising

While the exit from the Carter cabinet of Joseph Califano, former secretary of health, education and welfare, removed an outspoken foe of smoking from the government, the tobacco industry may have scant cause for celebration.

Califano's successor, Patricia Harris, may be less aggressive in her approach, but she is known as a formidable campaigner once she defines a goal.

Recently, she drew a bead on cigarette hustling. While stressing that at the moment she hasn't any plans to propose new restrictive regulation or legislation on the subject, she sharply criticized the industry practice of pushing brands by giving away free samples, which go in quantity to young people. That practice, she said, is "absolutely beyond the pale."

Mrs. Harris added that cigarette advertising in general should be handled with "great caution" and that in particular advertising featuring "sexy guys and sexy gals" should be discontinued.

Delete sex from advertising? That's more than caution. That's virtually un-American.

By Oscar-Cooley

Time was when old age was not an institution but merely a period of life that one drifted into, much as the weather drifts from fall into winter.

Some got old earlier than others because of deterioration in health; others because their children married early and suddenly they heard themselves addressed as "Grandpa" and "Grandma." Now — and this is since Social Security came into the picture — one gets old at 65. It is official.

Now, too, people are living longer, due to modern medicine, more grapefruit and less bread, etc. So the number and indeed the proportion of people over 65 are increasing. There are some 24 million in the U.S. — quite a club.

Middle-aged people dread that milestone, the day they will graduate into the class of "senior citizen." It is so inevitable, like a day of execution. Once, you could put it off by living right, not eating too much, avoiding alcohol and continuing to work as if you were 40, rising early and going to your office, shop or farm as though nothing had happened and time had stood still.

Now, the day after your 65th birthday you do not work. You are just not supposed to. You are now "retired." Now your wages stop and your pension payments begin. You have graduated from worker to retiree, from middle age to old age. You have moved into a new class.

Maybe you feel as fit to work as you did yesterday. Perhaps more so, because you have had another day's experience, but officially and in the eyes of the world you are now unfit.

All aging people do not react in the same way to this change in society's attitude toward them. Some resent the abrupt transition, holding that there is no real change — that the 65 deadline is purely artificial. Others look forward to their graduation day at 65 when they will begin doing what they please when they please. Or so they think.

But people are not eager to be classified. They like to think that they are "different," and they are. Every person is different from every other. His inherited character, his education, his experience are different. So are his tastes and his ambitions for the future.

People are alike in that most of them want to keep busy, but busy at activities of their own choice. They dread the boredom they suffer when they somehow are prevented from doing what they want to do and find themselves doing nothing. As Ellen Goodman writes, "There is something absolutely terrifying about those elderly who spend the last time they have killing time."

When I was a child, I often teased my mother for "something to do." It's human to shrink from killing time. Young or old, people want satisfying activity. A senior citizens club that did not offer a choice of activities to its members soon wouldn't have any.

The Japanese have been accustomed to retire at 55, their average life span being shorter than ours. Evidently, their lives are stretching out, for more and more they are postponing retirement until age 60. It's another way they are becoming like Americans.

With the advance in health care, average life span here, too, is lengthening. This is another reason why no one age should be adopted as the official retirement milestone.

Let us not have any such milestone, I say. Let each "retire" if and when he jolly well chooses to.

This, of course, does not mean that employers are under obligation to keep on the payroll people who they think are no longer earning their salt. Whatever their age, these should be let go. But it is said, after an employee has given the best years of his life to an employer, should that employer throw him on the scrap heap?

This is a sentimental view. An employee does not "give" but rather sells, and at the highest price he can get, the best years of life. Having paid that price, the employer owes him nothing more.

From the employer's point of view, to lay on the shelf able, vigorous people, experienced on the job, is a waste. It is unfair, not to the workers but to the owners. Am I the only one who is appalled to see the homes for the elderly going up on all sides and the "senior citizens" becoming our most numerous class?

American pie

by Paul Harvey

Socialist governments seek to feed everybody equally by slicing the pie in identical slices.

Our capitalist system prefers to feed everybody better by baking a bigger pie.

At least, we used to.
Last year for the first time ever we baked a smaller pie.

The productivity of American workers—the output per manhour—last year declined nine-tenths of a percent.

Always theretofore* per-man-hour productivity in the United States had increased each year. Not last year. Last year it decreased almost one-percent.

And the problem was not strikes; there were fewer work days lost to strikes last year than any year in several.

The problem was less efficient production facilities and less efficient workers.

While the great American pie was getting larger every year, we all enjoyed more of it and paid less for it.

But when workers are paid more while turning out less goods and services, naturally the goods and services we turn out cost more.

So the lack of productivity becomes a major factor in inflation.

Let's not imagine that lazy workers are the whole problem.

You give an average worker a machine to assist him and he can turn out more. Give him a better machine and he can turn out more yet. Nobody has demonstrated this fact better than the American farmer who, with efficient machinery, can produce enough for himself and 50 other people.

The Japanese are instinctively and by tradition industrious. They have been further aided in their productivity, however, by steel mills that are more modern than most of ours.

As an aside, our government, in helping defeated Japan back to its feet following World War II, assisted the Japanese in developing steel-making capacity which now is eclipsing our own.

Japan leads the world in per-worker productivity—and West Germany is close behind—because both came out of the Big War with a come-from-behind spirit and with newer and better and more efficient industrial equipment.

The average factory in the United States is using machinery that's 20 years old. In Japan the average production machine is 10 years old.

Americans have further curtailed productivity with environmental restrictions which other nations ignore.

There are those who believe that "a military war would be good for us," that a national emergency would "put the spurs to us."

What an awful price to pay for increased productivity.

But if ours continues to decrease we may lose an economic war and reap a whirlwind almost as devastating.

ACLU to the rescue

By Don Graff

Jaywalking will not ordinarily get you deported. Not, that is, unless you happen to be an Iranian student.

Just ask Mohammed Hemmatipour. On his way to pick up some hamburger for dinner the other night, he stepped off a Washington curb into the path of a patrol car. A mistake, certainly, but not his big one. That was being in possession of a student visa that had expired in September.

As a result, he immediately became the front-running candidate to be the first deportee under the dragnet thrown out by the government in response to the occupation of the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

Not, however, if the American Civil Liberties Union has its way. It is challenging the inquiry into the status of Iranian students in the United States on behalf of all 50,000-plus of them. Hemmatipour included.

The ACLU has no argument with the government's authority to scrutinize foreign students or to deport any whose papers are not in order, only with its singling out the Iranians alone in this instance. In so doing, in the ACLU view, it is being selective and discriminatory.

It is the sort of distinction that to the ACLU is elemental justice but that to much of the public may appear as obstructionist nitpicking. And it is on an issue so emotionally charged that the ACLU may become the focus of the wrath of that public.

Considering the consequences of the last such display of wrath, it's a wonder the ACLU is in any shape to take on the case of the Iranians.

Its long court defense of the right of American Nazis to march in the overwhelmingly Jewish community of Skokie, Ill., was one of the most bruising battles in the history of the organization, and not only because it relies so heavily itself on Jewish support. If there ever was an unpopular cause in the public at large, that was it. And while the ACLU won its points in court, it lost something like half its members and was forced to the wall financially in the process.

It now reports that it has recovered much of the lost ground, although far from all. Even had it not, the Iranian students represent the sort of basic question of the right way and the wrong way to conduct a free society that it would have been incapable of resisting had it meant selling off the office furniture to pursue it.

So it is again wading into the fray, again taking a position contrary to inflamed majority opinion and indifferent to the wrath it consequently draws upon itself.

It is the sort of behavior that requires thick skins and something even more serviceable.

Firm convictions.

Denim 'n diamonds

Tired of tight jeans? Baggy is better — more comfortable and more flattering — for many a body, and today's denim fashions feature offerings to please just about any body.

Even wealthy, high-society gals will go for the new styles, one of which is encrusted with diamonds.

Ball, an Italian mens-womenswear company, is a strong advocate of the baggy jean, which it claims to have invented. The firm makes jeans in a range of styles and trimmings, with most tapering narrowly at the ankle.

Their "West Side" is a style in between baggy and tight, featuring flat, unusable western pockets on the front. The waistline still fits snugly, but the thighs leave enough room for the wearer to comfortably climb stairs and cross his or her legs.

Ball also makes functional jeans, featuring honest-to-goodness pockets which some makers of high-fashion jeans seem to have forgotten. The "Big Time" jean has modified baggy legs and billowing pockets for hands or loose change.

The company goes a bit further with the "Ranger" to offer really baggy baggies, which accommodate well-endowed hips. But the style isn't suited to big stomachs or the very short-waisted. After all, Italians prefer to keep their jeans tight enough to show off the "bottom line."

You've got until fall to scrape up $300,000 if you want to invest in a pair of Adolfo's black-velvet, one-of-a-kind diamond jeans.

Featuring five pockets and 228 REAL diamonds, the jeans are only made in a size eight. But, come on, folks, if a size 5 or 10 or 16 shows up with $300,000, you can bet your "bottom" dollar that the jeans will quickly be altered to fit.

Back to the diamonds — all 228 of them. Nine diamond studs, roughly 2½ carats each, adorn the pockets — two on each back pocket, two on each big front pocket and one on a little pocket on the front. Four other diamonds, about a carat each, secure the "Adolfo" label to the back right hip.

Running from the thighs to the ankles of the pants legs, you've got 215 diamonds totaling about a hundred carats. Every gem has been set by a diamond setter in a faceted, pronged setting, then riveted through the pants.

Bernard Gimbel, board chairman of the industry which owns Adolfo Jeans, dreamed up the "ultimate" in denims because he wants to attract attention to the rest of the jeans line, which has been on the market since last April.

And if the diamond-velvet jeans happen to get soiled, the wearer can put a filter over a washing machine tube and "wash and wear." After all, you wouldn't want a little diamond — or a big one — to go down the drain.

NEW DENIM baggies are included in the lines of many jeans designers. "Ranger" and "Big Time" are featured in the styles created by Ball, an Italian mens-womenswear company. The ultimate in new denim fashions is a pair of Adolfo's black velvet, diamond-encrusted jeans, which sell for a mere $300,000.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have gout but I'm not taking any medication for it. I was controlling it, I thought, by dieting. Several years ago a doctor gave me a diet. Through the years I've lost it. Could you send me a copy of a gout diet if you have one?

I have some painful joints — my left knee and hip and my right shoulder and sometimes my fingers. Should I be taking medication and if so what would you suggest?

DEAR READER — The classic gout diet eliminated organ meats which included kidneys, liver and sweetbreads, the so-called high purine foods. This included anchovies, beans, bouillon cubes, broth, cauliflower, eggplant, lentils, mushrooms, oatmeal, sardines and spinach. All rich and fat foods were to be eliminated. Beer, ale and wine were to be avoided but hard liquor was not thought to be a problem.

This diet was devised in the days before gout was completely understood. We now know that gout is caused by the formation of excessive amounts of uric acid. This excess is formed by your own cells rather than coming from what you eat.

The trick to controlling gout then is to prevent your body from forming too much uric acid. There are new medicines that help in this regard. To give you a better understanding of gout, I'm sending you The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid.

Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Gout has a tendency to occur in people who are active and prominent. That may be because the tendency of the cells to produce excessive amounts of uric acid is inherited. In any case, gout occurred so frequently in royal families of Europe in the past that it was often called "the disease of kings and the king of diseases."

If your uric acid level is significantly high, you should be taking medicine. Most individuals who have gout need to have medicines for life to control the problem.

It is important to follow a diet but not necessarily the classic gout diet. The main objectives of the gout diet today are to eliminate fats, particularly the saturated fats, cholesterol and to limit the calories sufficiently to avoid obesity.

You may recognize this as the same diet we recommend for people to help prevent fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. The truth is that heart attacks and strokes occur frequently in people who have gout and that's why this type of diet is recommended today, along with the proper medicines to control the gout itself.

Even the strictest limitation on purines, and hence uric acid, in the diet will not significantly lower your uric acid level. A classic experiment to prove this was the milk diet. Milk contains no purines or uric acid or cellular materials such as you find in meat. While consuming only milk, calves continue to produce uric acid.

Remember you can only lower the uric acid level a little with the old gout diet plan. Thus, if you need to lower your uric acid, it is important to take medicines continuously to avoid the complications of gout rather than rely on diet alone to do the job for you.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I was touched by the letter you ran in a recent column about an 11-month-old child who choked to death on a piece of apple.

Five years ago, my employer, a life insurance company, began a public service program to prevent choking deaths. During this time, we have distributed more than 5 million pieces of choking-prevention literature to individuals and businesses in the United States and Canada.

It's gratifying to report that the program works and lives are being saved. We have received unsolicited reports of 37 rescues in which people applied emergency procedures they learned from our materials.

We would like to make our materials available to more people and invite your readers to write us for free copies at Fireman's Fund American Life Insurance Co.; 1600 Los Gatos Road, San Rafael, Calif. 94911. The enclosed samples are for you. — Frederick Newirth, M.D., Vice President and Medical Director, San Francisco, Calif.

Dr. Newirth: The materials you sent were excellent. Be ready to add to the 5 million free samples.

The readers of this column will respond.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 19-year-old woman who happens to be — well, let's say — a few pounds overweight. I'm now on a diet and doing fairly well but I'm confused about caloriecount. Can you please give me some information on that "Old Devil," the calorie? — Terry, San Pedro, Calif.

Terry: Food is measured in calories. If you don't use all the energy in the food you eat, the energy is stored as fat, hopefully to be used at a later date. To lose weight one must use more calories than are consumed.

It takes 3,500 extra calories to produce one pound of fat.

China exhibit Monday, Tuesday

Handpainted china by several local artists will be featured Monday and Tuesday at Lovett Memorial Library.

Hours for the exhibit are from 2 to 5 p.m.

Sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association, the show will feature the works of Frances Appleby, Anne Hinton, Lou Griffin and the late Mamie Maguire, all of Pampa, and Velva Hopkins of Miami.

China in many shapes and forms will be exhibited. Included in the display will be bowls, glasses, plates, vases, platters, tiles, pitchers, tables, lamps and other decorator items.

Birds and animals, flowers, fruits and portraits are included in the range of subject matter.

Mrs. Appleby has been painting since 1950, when she began taking china painting lessons in Amarillo. Past president and charter member of the Pampa Art Club, she is also a member of the Pampa Fine Arts Association.

Anne Hinton has pursued china painting as a hobby for 14 years. Mrs. Griffin has taught china painting in Pampa for 24 years.

Mrs. Maguire, who had begun preparations for the exhibit before her death a few months ago, took up china painting with lessons from her neighbor, Olive Hills. Her works will include Dresden flowers and butterfly-motif bathroom fixtures.

Mrs. Hopkins, now teaching some classes in the art, has been involved in china painting for eight years.

Wine, air travel aggravate allergy

When traveling by air you should avoid wine, especially port and sherry, because they contain histamines that aggravate allergies, says Dr. Len Lister, assistant medical director at Phillips Petroleum Co.

If you have a cold, postpone your trip if at all possible. Stay awake when the plane is ascending and particularly when it is descending. Pressure changes which can cause ear and sinus disorders are greater then, so swallow, chew gum or yawn.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My friend and I have a bet on. She says you have had a face lift. I say you haven't. I have $10 riding on your answer.

JOHNNY G. IN PHILLY

DEAR JOHNNY: You win. (Would I lie to you on George Washington's birthday? Besides, if I were to have something lifted, it wouldn't be my face.)

DEAR ABBY: May I add to your advice to READY TO SCREAM — the lady apartment manager who complained about a divorced, retired gentleman who lived across the hall. She said he would ring her doorbell at least 10 times a day to find out if she "needed" anything; he would ask her stupid questions and try to engage her in conversation, and he was a bore and a pest.

You said he was probably just lonely, and needed some "friendly understanding." He needs more than that, Abby. He needs something to do.

After all, since she's managing the apartment, she could find some odd jobs to keep him busy. Sweeping the sidewalk, vacuuming the hallway, polishing the brass, carrying in groceries for tenants — anything to make him feel useful.

Too many retired people are made to feel useless and "in the way." They desperately need to be treated as contributing, respected human beings. If they're treated that way, instead of merely tolerated or humored, they will be happier, more productive and healthier.

HARTLAND, MICHIGAN

DEAR HARTLAND: (Heartland would be more appropriate.) Your answer was better than mine. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for Allen, the soldier stationed in South Korea, for asking you to encourage the folks back home to write to their servicemen overseas.

He said, "When there's mail call, you should see those young soldiers run to see if they got anything. It's sad to see so much repeated disappointment as they hang their heads and slowly walk away empty-handed. Some of those guys are only 17 or 18 and have never been away from home before."

Abby, I would love to correspond with a lonesome soldier, and so would some of my friends. I would even send a batch of homemade cookies if I knew where to send them.

Can't you please tell us how to get a correspondence going with one of those young men?

RED, WHITE AND SOMETIMES BLUE

DEAR RED: All right, you asked for it, and you got it. (And I am not sending you a Toyota.) Those who wish to correspond with a man in the U.S. Armed Forces may send letters to:

COMMANDING GENERAL
EIGHTH ARMY
SEOUL, KOREA
APO SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF. 96301

I was assured that your letters will be distributed to those soldiers who get very little (or no) mail.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old woman, divorced for four years, and have no children.

The man I've been dating for five months has asked me to marry him. He has already bought the ring. I told him I wanted to wait until I know him better. I think I love him, but I want to be sure my feelings are real.

There are a few things about him that bother me. He is 27, and has had only one semester of college. This certainly isn't going to set well with my family because we are all college graduates and have professions. The age difference isn't going to set too well with them either.

He is mature, responsible, hard-working and earns $35,000 a year, but it's only a job — not a profession.

My parents have met him once, briefly, and they don't know he's only 27, and not a college graduate.

Something else bothers me: I don't like the ring he bought for me.

VIRGO

DEAR VIRGO: Don't say yes until you don't give a hoot what your family thinks about his age, his non-professional job, or anything else. And should you ever reach that point, if the ring still bothers you enough to influence your decision — say no!

Contentment

Alexander the Great, having conquered the world, died of heartbreak. He had no more worlds to conquer. His happiness was in the quest and the conquest. Rarely does contentment come to those who have no more mountains to climb or worlds to conquer.

Consider, though, Paul, the apostle of Jesus Christ, in contrast to Alexander, Paul wrote to his own brethren of his continual contentment in "any and every circumstances" (Philippians 4:11). He was a man striving for heavenly perfection of which goal he wrote:

"Brethren I do not regard myself of having laid hold of it yet; but one thing I do: forgetting what lies behind and reaching forward to what lies ahead, I press on toward the goal for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:13-14).

Herin, lies the key to his contentment. He had a continual goal for which to strive. It was not a goal to be quickly attained or easily achieved, but was of such nature that at the close of his life he could say, "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith." (2 Tim. 4:7). Such were the words of a satisfied man.

New uses seen for old schools

FARMINGTON, Conn. (AP)

— Recycled school buildings could make more than a $30 billion rehabilitation market in the 1980s, according to projections made by a multinational hardware and machinery producer here.

Some 10,000 school buildings will be abandoned in the next 10 years as high-school enrollments drop off by 2½ million in this period, the Emhart Corp. study indicated. A panel of experts assembled by the company to peer ahead into the next decade believed these unused facilities could be converted into community centers, offices, adult and cultural centers, and apartment buildings.

Tiny church cared for by builder

HORSE SHOE RUN, W. Va. (AP) — In a garden in the Potomac Highlands, a tiny church sits all but unseen, the precious offspring of a childless couple who built it to honor their parents and ended up loving and spoiling it like a new-born baby.

"Our Lady of the Pines," one of the smallest churches in the world, measures 16 feet by 11 feet inside. Its carved wooden pews hold 12 worshippers with room for another dozen in the aisles.

The church's tiny domains are watched over by Elizabeth Milkint, whose Lithuanian-born husband, Peter, built the Roman Catholic church by hand in the late 1950s as a memorial to his parents. The Milkints watched as it first was used for services and later for births and christenings, whenever a priest could be persuaded to come up from a distant town in the valley below.

Mrs. Milkint proudly remembers the day when the fledgling structure was consecrated and what had begun as a simple memorial became a house of worship.

At the age of 77, Mrs. Milkint continues to tend to the church and its garden, sweeping away snow in winter and leaves in fall and tending the wild cherry, dogwood and sarvis trees whose blossoms scent the breeze in spring.

"I run it for him," she sighed, referring to her husband who died in 1979. "He just wanted to do something for his parents. It's a nice pastime for me."

In every detail but size the church mirrors the churches in every town and city — from the latticed stained-glass windows and resplendent altar to the confessional perched in a corner and the tiny bell whose chimes peel over the hillside.

Fashioned from dark wooden beams and stone hewn from the surrounding mountains, the church was built in odd moments that Milkint was able to spare from running his nursery, his wife said. With time the church became the main preoccupation of the aging couple, who lavished it with gifts and finery.

"My husband came to this country when he was 6," she said. "America was good to him and he always felt he wanted to do something for his parents so he thought of the church. The altar cloth was woven in Lithuania 90 years ago by his grandmother."

Over the years word of the little church has spread, carried by passers-by who have paused at its door on their way elsewhere.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life, in thy presence is fullness of joy..." PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

Roller Coaster Spirit

There are days when we feel on top of the world. Everybody loves us and shows it. Nice things are done for us. Sunshine and happiness drenches everything. And then there are other days — when we're blue; people are busy. We're alone. We're afraid. It might as well be raining. Nobody knows the trouble we're in. Needed is a little self-discipline, not a lot of self-pity. We must learn to face the fact that life is not always a flowery bed of ease, and pleasure. Children dodge hard places, responsibility, and painful experiences. A mature person stands on his own two feet under God. Time, insight, and the grace of God can remove mountains — and take away that roller coaster spirit. Begin the road to spiritual maturity by attending church this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man, and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

'S*H*E's' a C. Sharpe

by Steve K. Walz

New York—She does her own death-defying stunts. She loves to water and snow ski, and do some scuba diving. She possesses the uncanny ability to transform herself from a hazel-eyed exotic blonde beauty into a seductive, dark-haired Mid-Eastern belly dancer. She's already completed three starring roles in which she has played a seductive intelligence agent. Who is 'She'?

She's a knockout

Meet gorgeous actress Cornelia Sharpe, who will be featured in a lavishly produced multi-million-dollar CBS tele-flick aptly titled "S*H*E*." This adventure film, a takeoff on the James Bond movies, takes us overseas where Cornelia portrays U.S. intelligence agent Lavinia Kean, a woman of many disguises who does battle against a terrorist organization hell-bent on upsetting the free world's oil supply.

"It's got glamour, romance and style," Cornelia said of "S*H*E*," from her New York home. "It's a visual film with beautiful music by Donna Summer's sister. I'm constantly surrounded by beautiful men including Omar Sharif, and though it's a spoof of Bond, the characters are larger than life. I might also mention that this film is done so well that it's going to be released as a major motion picture overseas."

The Alabama-born beauty, who lost her southern-belle twang when she came to New York City to study dancing with noted choreographer George Balanchine, came up through the acting ranks the hard way.

"I started out to be a dancer and then got into making TV commercials, and by the time I was 21, I'd had been to Spain, Italy and France. Where else can a gal get a mink coat by the time she's 21?" Cornelia quipped as she continued to talk about her rise up the ladder.

"After I had done all those commercials I never seriously intended to go into acting, but I went to a Broadway audition for a David Merrick play. And after playing roles in shows that closed quickly, I finally was given a role to play on the national tour of 'Play It Again Sam,' with John Denver and Diane Keaton. From there I got a bit part in 'The Way We Were' 'Busting' with Elliot Gould and then into 'Serpico' as Al Pacino's girlfriend. After that it was a breeze. But it wasn't as easy as it sounds since I was going through a difficult part of my life [an unfortunate divorce] during my Broadway days. And with some of those plays opening and closing quickly, I was very frustrated."

She continues onward

After 'Serpico,' Sharpe's talents were used in 'Cover Girls' and 'The Next Man,' two films that cast Cornelia in glamorous double agent roles. Hence, her choice as agent Lavinia Kean was a natural.

Said Cornelia of her character, "I'd definitely play Lavinia again, and I can tell you that a second script is in the works. I doubt if I would do her for a series, though I'd rather do quality instead of quantity, and the characters within this movie are so strong and funny. I just don't think I'd want to make the same mistake that Robert Conrad made in 'A Man Called Sloane,' NBC's ill-fated Bond ripoff."

Cornelia, who aspires to do a picture based on her life back home, is happy with the direction her career is taking at this stage of her life and credits her perception of people as being instrumental in playing many different characters. "I enjoy looking different, and just by sitting in Central Park and studying people I can come up with so many ideas for characters. There are just so many things I'd like to do," she said.

If the viewers at home react favorably to "S*H*E*," Cornelia may well indeed have producers at their mercy, offering, "Your wish is my command." She'd love every minute of it. Go to it, Cornelia!

Seven-year-olds losing Sunday morning T.V.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's a matter of scientific record that past a certain age — 7 years old, or so — the inclination to arise early on a Sunday morning has very nearly vanished from the normal human soul.

But life's forces sometimes work at cross purposes, and while the soul whispers "sleep," the kid or the neighbor's lawn mower (or in my case, Cleo the pointer dog) cries "Wake Up!" and there you are, with a Sunday morning on your hands.

Still, there are little pockets of pleasure hidden in the corners of early Sunday; one of them, "Sunday Morning" with Charles Kuralt, is uncovered by the mere flip of a switch.

In the year since its inauguration, CBS' version of the Sunday paper has gently eased reluctant risers into consciousness (in reverse of the way prime time TV usually works), and, I suspect, has quieted some raging reminders of misspent Saturday nights.

First and foremost, there is Charles Kuralt, CBS' poet-in-residence. There is comfort in the fact that Kuralt — friendly, rumpled, sympathetic Charles Kuralt — is up this early, too. A bumptious young network climber, spilling vim and vigor, would never do.

Kuralt doesn't try to make television watching on an early Sunday morning seem reasonable, he's just there to make the best things, like you are.

Last "Sunday Morning" was a representative sample. Kuralt opened the program with a promise — by the end of the show, he said, we'll show you a sunrise. A simple thing, that, but it spoke directly to the mood of a Sunday morning.

By the end of the first half-hour, "Sunday Morning" had provided a capsulization of the news, drawing on CBS News' considerable resources to provide as much of the world's doings you can possibly stomach at that hour, without cutting down to superficiality.

Then came a lovely feature piece on photographer Jill Kramenz, whose collection of authors' photographs is hanging in some museum or other. It was a nice, leisurely visit, including some warm appreciation from Kramenz's husband, writer Kurt Vonnegut and some nifty snaps of Truman Capote, Eudora Welty and others.

As the morning progresses and eyes clear, the tempo picks up. Richard Threlkeld conducted a tour of "The New FBI," focusing on the FBI's ABCSCAM caper and offering this interesting observation:

"The Hoover FBI would never have besmeared a congressman... although it would have blackmailed him."

There was a visit to Hanoi and a sports feature on hockey player Dave Shultz, the one-time ice tough now mellowing down in the minors; and "Sunday Morning" TV critic offered an opinion on an FTC investigation into advertising on children's TV. All more than one could reasonably hope to get from a television set early on a Sunday morning, all under the gentle influence of Charles Kuralt.

CRUISING might be classified as a raw exploitation film except for its star, writer-director and production values. Its basic aim is shock — male bodies writhing in Dante-esque gay discos, sadists in leather and metal, knives plunging into flesh, cops using terrorist tactics. William Friedkin ("The French Connection," "The Exorcist") knows how to create visual excitement and a sense of impending horror as a director, but his script is confused and confusing. Plot points are left dangling, mysteries unsolved. Al Pacino as the young cop gone underground to catch a killer of homosexuals seems as much in a quandry as the audience. Obviously he is transformed by his ordeal. But how? Why? Friedkin fails to provide the answers.

Former Miss America brand new mother

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Phyllis George, Miss America 1971, may have beaten fellow Denton resident, Shirley Cothran, to the Atlantic City crown by four years, but in the race to the maternity ward, it was Shirley over Phyllis by four months.

Thursday, Miss Cothran — now Mrs. Richard Barret, gave birth to an 8-pound, 3-ounce boy in a Denton hospital. Miss George — now Mrs. John Brown and the first lady of Kentucky — isn't due until June.

The boy, named David Kyle, was born at 10:55 a.m. CST at Flow Memorial Hospital here.

Talking daily from the country store

By GEORGE W. HACKETT

Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Bailey's Country Store has just about everything, including what may be the longest-running radio talk show in Kentucky.

It went on the air 32 years ago dispensing back-fence gossip — not the malicious type — as well as humor and announcements, but little music. Only one record is played during the 30-minute program and most of the time it's interrupted by a telephone call from a listener.

"Lots of mornings we may have 200 personal notices that we can't get to," said Bart Bailey, one of four brothers who answer such as questions as: "How's the fishing today?" "I'm looking for a wife. Can you help me?"

WTSU stuns Creighton

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — George Sims scored 22 points, leading a quintet of other double-figure scorers for West Texas State and pacing the Buffaloes to a 103-86 win over Creighton in Missouri Valley Conference basketball Thursday night.

For the second straight game Sims dominated WTSU's inside play, adding 13 rebounds Thursday night and running his two-game totals to 48 points and 26 caroms.

West Texas, now 8-7 in the conference and 16-9 overall, kept alive its hopes for a first-division MVC finish. The top four teams in regular-season play win the home-court advantage for the first round of next week's post-season tournament.

Creighton, also in the first division hunt, dropped to 9-7 and 15-11. The Bluejays concluded their regular season Thursday.

West Texas grabbed a 46-44 halftime lead. Then, midway through the second half, Steve Ornelaz scored six points and Sims added two more to put the Buffaloes on top for good, 63-59.

Guard Terry Adolph keyed a wide-open stretch run with 12 points and 12 assists.

Others in double figures for WTSU were Mike Lorenz with 16, Erskine Robinson with 13, and Carl Johnson and Eddie Harris with 11 each.

McKenna finished with 24 for Creighton.

UTSA tips off next season with Division One foes

By Greg Thompson
AP Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The University of Texas at San Antonio hopes to break in its first basketball team the hard way — with an ambitious NCAA Division I schedule that will include several Southwest Conference teams.

Officials at the 7-year-old, 9,000-student school announced Thursday that the UTSA Roadrunners will begin competition in the 1981-82 season.

Athletic Director Rudy Davalos said several SWC coaches has already expressed an interest in playing the fledgling Roadrunners.

Davalos said the NCAA should automatically grant UTSA its top status once the Roadrunners fulfill requirements that include a firm, two-year basketball schedule in which 85 percent of the games are against Division I teams.

UTSA plans to field men's and women's teams in cross country, basketball, tennis and outdoor track — the minimum four sports required for Division I status.

The Roadrunners will begin as an independent, but hope to affiliate with a conference as soon as possible.

"We'll be an independent not necessarily because we want to, but because it's the only way we can go early," said Davalos, who is eyeing the Sun Belt, Midwestern Cities and Missouri Valley conferences as leading possibilities.

No football program is planned immediately because it is too expensive, said UTSA President Dr. James Wagener.

"Down the road we may have it, but I don't know," said Davalos.

"The program will be kept lean and clean, but we hope first rate and competitive," said Wagener.

"UTSA now has over 9,000 students, a number large enough to make a first class, but limited intercollegiate program possible."

"By golly, it's here. I'm really excited," said Davalos, who resigned his job as an assistant coach with the National Basketball Association's San Antonio Spurs four years ago to go to UTSA. "There's no question that San Antonio will support a major college team."

"We will not have a luxury deal, but it will be good enough to be competitive," said Davalos. He said the total of the athletic budget has not yet been finalized.

Davalos, who has also coached basketball at Auburn and the University of the South, said he does not plan to coach the new UTSA team because it would detract too much from his responsibilities as athletic director.

Davalos said the search for a basketball coach is his top priority since men's basketball will be UTSA's top drawing card.

Pampa, Palo Duro meet for loop title tonight

Pampa High basketball coach Garland Nichols has a winning feeling about his Harvesters' District 3-AAAA championship game tonight against Palo Duro.

His Harvesters have been working hard to eliminate costly mistakes this week and Wednesday morning he learned his brother's Cameron, Okla. team had routed Midwestern, Texas, 115-76, the NAIA's third-ranked team, Tuesday night. Lonnie Nichols' Aggies avenged an earlier loss to Midwestern, much the same way Pampa had reversed the tables on Palo Duro last week.

Palo Duro had whipped Pampa, 53-49, on Jan. 29, but then the Harvesters bounced back in the return match to win, 59-51.

"I feel like it's going to come down to who wants to win it the most," Nichols said. "We're going out and try to keep our mistakes to a minimum and just take it to them."

Pampa, the second-half district champion, enters the contest with a 15-13 record, while Palo Duro, the first-half titlist, carries a 16-11 mark.

Ronnie Faggins leads Pampa in scoring at 18.3 ppg, but it was 6-2 center Cedric Parker (7.7), who was the hero in the win over the Dons. Parker scored 17 points, collared 13 points and did an excellent defensive job on Palo Duro's 6-7 Todd Loftis.

The Harvesters also had a 30-28 rebounding edge over the Dons and Nichols wants to keep it that way.

"We've been putting a lot of emphasis on rebounding this week and blocking out on the boards," Nichols added.

Pampa also had another sweet taste of vengeance last Friday night with the 45-39 win over Amarillo High that clinched the second-half district crown. Earlier, the Sandies had overwhelmed the Harvesters, 55-25.

Ironically, the two teams had perhaps played their best defense of the season against each other. The Harvesters were held to their lowest point total of the season in the first meeting. However, after the second-half district matchup it marked only the second time this season that Pampa had held another team under 40 points.

Joining Faggins and Parker in Pampa's starting lineup tonight are Steve Glover (7.4), Joe Jeffers (6.1), and Mike Nelson (8.2).

Gametime is 7:45 p.m. in West Texas University Fieldhouse in Canyon.

Although Nichols would rather be playing in the friendly confines of the "Green Pit," he's not complaining.

"I'm just happy to be where we're at," Nichols added.

Club holds pistol match

Clear skies, mud, near freezing temperatures and a mild wind was the setting for the monthly Pampa Rifle and Pistol Club Hunter's Pistol Silhouette Match held Feb. 17.

Most of the 31 shooters were from Pampa, but eight were from Amarillo and one was from Bartlesville, Okla.

Ironically scores were lower than last month's meet, which was held in sleeting rain.

This month's high scorer was Pampa's Jim Barnes with a 17.

Class winners were Jerry Todd, Amarillo, AAA, 16; Richard Nicholas, Pampa, AA, 16; Don Tidwell, Pampa, B, 11. Gary Clark Jr. of Pampa shot a 15 to take second in Class A.

Betty Helms of Amarillo shot a 12 to win the Class B women's division. Steve Barnes, Pampa, had a seven to win the Class B junior division. In the unclassified group, David Stratton, Amarillo, had a 12 while Craig Jones, Pampa, took second.

The big surprise among the winners was Stratton, who had shot a pistol only a few times. He came to the match with his brother just to watch, but decided to enter instead. He had never shot at metal silhouettes before.

Next match will be March 16 at the range west of Pampa.

Billy Martin named manager of Oakland A's

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Martin, dismayed at the prospect of sitting on the sidelines "even for a couple of months," has accepted the managerial reins of the Oakland A's.

"I don't want to watch my baseball over a television set or from the stands," said Martin, fired as New York Yankees manager by club owner George Steinbrenner last October after Billy was involved in a fight with a marshall's sales.

"I want to be on the field," Martin added. "I love baseball. I wouldn't enjoy the summer without baseball."

"I could have waited, maybe a couple of months, and other jobs would open. But Charlie Finley has given me a great opportunity. It's a young club, and I enjoy working with kids."

Martin, 51, has had success both as a player and a manager, but the main question now is whether he will get along with A's owner Charles O. Finley.

Finley put together five division and three World Series championship teams at Oakland before the free-agent draft stripped him of his stars.

What if the volatile Finley decides to dictate to the quick-tempered Martin as he has with former managers?

"As owner and general manager of the club, Charlie has a voice in everything," said Martin.

Heiden goes for fifth medal tomorrow

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — It's four gold medals down and one to go for speed skating superstar Eric Heiden, who continues to rewrite the Olympic record book with bold, broad strokes that have turned these Winter Games into a salute to his individual brilliance.

They have become the Heiden Olympics, unquestionably dominated by the long, lean 21-year-old from Madison, Wis., the first man in history to win four golds in a single Winter Games.

By himself, Eric has matched the best gold medal production any entire American team has managed in the Winter Olympics since the United States won six events in the 1932 Games — the last time Lake Placid served as host. Only once since then — in 1952 at Oslo — has America won as many as four winter golds and now Heiden has done that all alone.

And he still has one more race to go.

Heiden's latest gold came in Thursday's 1,500 meter race when he was timed in a record 1 minute, 55.44 seconds. That followed victories at 500, 1,000 and 5,000 meters. All that remains is the 10,000 meter race on Saturday and you know who the favorite is in that one.

Two Norwegians, Kai Arne Stenshjemmet and Terje Andersen, finished 2-3 behind Heiden in the 1,500, timed in 1:56.81 and 1:56.92 respectively. That silver and bronze combined with a third place bronze medal in women's 4 x 5 kilometer cross country relay race gave Norway nine medals for the Games and third place in the overall standings.

East Germany took the gold in the cross country race and added a silver from Jan

Hoffman in the men's figure skating and moved in front of the Soviet Union in the medal race 19-18. The Russians, second in the cross country, still lead in golds 8-7.

Heiden's gold was the seventh speed skating medal won by the United States and Charlie Tickner's figure skating bronze gave the United States a total of eight medals for the Games. America won 11 medals at the 1976 Games at Innsbruck, but only three of them were gold.

Tiny Liechtenstein claimed its first Olympic gold ever and third skiing medal of these Games when Hanni Wenzel won the women's giant slalom. The silver went to Irene Epple of West Germany and France's Perrine Pelen claimed the bronze by the narrowest of margins — one one-hundredth of a second ahead of teammate Fabienne Serrat.

The men's figure skating crown was won by Robin Cousins of Britain who overtook Hoffman in the Thursday night's free skating portion of his program. Tickner, third after the compulsories and short program, remained third for the bronze.

Earlier, world champion Linda Fratianne of the United States put on a dazzling short free style program to take over second place in the ladies figure skating competition. She trails East Germany's Annet Potzsch halfway through the event with Dagmar Lurz of West Germany third. The gold medal will be decided in the long freestyle program Saturday night.

Tonight, the ambitious, unbeaten United States hockey team moves into the medal showdown portion of its tournament, facing the defending champion Soviet Union.

Finland plays Sweden in the other medal round game.

The Americans are seeking their first hockey medal since 1972 and with four victories and a tie so far, they have done almost as well on their ice as Heiden has on his in these Games. For the United States, it has been all hockey and Heiden at Lake Placid.

"It was not as hard as I thought it would be," Heiden said of his latest gold. "To tell you the truth, I feel pretty good."

And he looked good, too, despite a near-slip on the third turn that sent a gasp through the crowd. His right hand touched the ice, but he regained his balance in an instant and zoomed on to the victory.

"I think there is a rut in the ice and I really didn't step in it, but just the pressure from my left foot going around the turn broke the ice and I fell into it," he said. "I came pretty close to falling and I had to put my arm down, but it didn't sit in my mind too long after that. It passed pretty quick and I was able to concentrate on the race again."

The fourth gold tied him for the individual Winter Olympic record set by Russian speed skater Lydia Skoblikova in 1964. No athlete has ever won five. Will that mean extra pressure Saturday when he goes for No. 5?

Wenzel, who had won a silver medal in the downhill, captured Liechtenstein's first-ever gold with a 1:27.33 second run, third fastest of the day, for a two-heat total of 2:41.66. Epple's two-run total was 2:42.12 for the silver and Pelen took the bronze in 2:42.14, a bare one-hundredth of a second ahead of Serrat.

Questions and answers

By Murray Olderman

Q. Is the receiving team in football permitted to call for a "fair catch" on a kickoff? If it's legal, then why — if the ball is a free ball (unlike a punt) and the kicking team has as much right to it as the receiving team, providing the ball travels 10 yards? — Robert Valley, Gladstone, Mich.

The receiving team can call for a free catch on a kickoff. As long as the ball is in the air, the receiver must get an unobstructed opportunity to catch it — as, for instance, George Andrews of the Los Angeles Rams catching that short onside kickoff in the Super Bowl. Once the ball touches the ground, however, it's fair game for anyone.

Q. Do you know if they are going to come out with 1979-80 basketball cards this year? If not, why? — Ron Baker, Ojai, Calif.

They are out, and in national distribution. Topps Basketball Cards have been on the market continuously since 1969. There was one previous edition, in 1957, tried as a one-year experiment. You can probably get them at your corner store, wherever chewing gum is sold.

Q. A player, team or coach is penalized when an apparent rule is broken, but officials constantly make blaring mistakes. Are they penalized in any manner? What is the main objection to television replays on disputed calls? Is Pete Rozelle complacent in this regard? — H. Latchford, Rancho Cordova, Calif.

They're penalized, all right. They don't get cushy assignments to the post-season games if they foul up — or they're even dropped from officiating. On TV replays, the main objection continues to be unwieldiness and high costs. No, Rozelle isn't complacent. And I thought the mistakes were glaring rather than blaring.

Q. Why couldn't major college football teams start the first Saturday in December with the eight best teams and have a championship in two weeks, by mid-December? No problem with bowls — the four major bowls take conference champions anyway. — E.H. Moore, Ashland, Ky.

By my calculations, your plan would take three weeks. And then what would be the purpose of having bowl games after that? It'll never swim, as they say on Mad. Ave.

Bear receives Scovell award

DALLAS (AP) — Paul "Bear" Bryant, head coach of Alabama's national football champions, received the prestigious Field Scovell Award Thursday night at a gala 16th All Sports Association Awards Banquet.

Bryant trails Amos Alonzo Stagg as the winningest collegiate football coach in history.

A sellout crowd of 1,200 jammed the Lowes Anatole as Bryant was joined on the dais by other honorees including Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, tennis star Martina Navratilova and Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips.

Oiler running back Earl Campbell was not able to appear because of a previous commitment.

Gene Stallings, defensive coordinator of the Cowboys, a former player under Bryant at Texas A&M University, and also an assistant at Alabama, presented the award to his old mentor.

Norm Brinker, the founder of Steak and Ale Restaurant and the husband of the late Maureen

Staubach and Texas Ranger Gold Glove third baseman Buddy Bell were presented Distinguished Service Awards.

Staubach's award was presented by backup Danny White, a last-minute replacement for Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who was at home with the flu.

The other awards were the result of balloting by the Texas Sports Writers Association. Phillips was named Texas Professional Coach of the Year, and Campbell, the Pro Athlete of the Year.

Other honorees included Texas-Arlington Coach Bud Elliott, Southern Methodist soccer coach Jim Benedek, and Ron Harms of Texas A&I, coach of the NAIA national football champions.

Four-way deadlock

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Today's second round of a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament resembled a bargain basement rush with 26 pros grouped within a 3-stroke spread.

In front of the line with 3-under-par 69s were Bonnie Lauer, Lynn Adams, Sandra Post and Barbara Mizrahi.

One stroke behind were 1979 rookie of the year Beth Daniel, Donna H. White, Marga Stubblefield and Silvia Bertolacci.

Alternate site

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Officials at the Border Olympics, a 44-year-old South Texas track meet, have offered their brand new indoor facilities as a site for any alternative 1980 Summer Olympics.

Border Olympics president Alan Jackson Thursday wrote a letter to President Carter, suggesting the border town site.

"We of the Border Olympics Inc. ... are at this time offering our facilities should the United States sponsor a "Free World Olympics" this summer. Our facility includes an all-weather track fully measured in meters and would accommodate the running events," the letter said.

Carter announced this week that the United States would not participate in the 1980 Moscow Olympics.

The Border Olympics will be held in the new facilities Feb. 29 through March 1.

Promise of drier weather for California

C.W. MIRANKER Associated Press Writer

Caskets floated out of rain-sodden graves as levees crumbled and dams overflowed in Southern California, forcing thousands of persons to flee as rain continued to fall in the West. A sewer line ruptured in Phoenix, Ariz., dumping 35 million gallons of raw waste daily into swirling flood waters.

Drier weather was expected today in Southern California, but 10 days of rainstorms pummeling the West have left at least 31 persons dead. Damage estimates have hit nearly $425 million, and officials predict "it will go much, much higher."

The rains have destroyed much of California's strawberry crop, with losses likely to exceed $10 million. Also threatened is the almond harvest, which represents the entire U.S. output.

Six California counties — from Ventura just north of Los Angeles to San Diego on the Mexican border — were declared national disaster areas Thursday by President Carter. About 500 National Guardsmen were helping with evacuations and disaster work.

More than 7,000 people — some plucked from the water by helicopter — fled their homes Thursday in Riverside County, which stretches from Riverside, about 60 miles east of Los Angeles, to the Arizona border.

Los Angeles has received 12.75 inches of rain in a nine-day period. And the season total so far — more than 21 inches — is nearly a foot above normal for this time of year. The rain season runs from November through April.

Meanwhile, the Northern California coast braced for more rain, and heavy snow fell in the mountains. In Idaho and Utah, the threat to brimming dams abated.

At least 10 caskets were unearthed by floodwaters at the Verdugo Hills Cemetery just north of Los Angeles, and others bulged just below the topsoil. The area was declared a health hazard, and crews were removing the coffins as they slid toward a roadway.

In Phoenix, Ariz., officials said there was no immediate health hazard from the sewage spilling from a broken 66-inch pipe into the raging Salt River. The waste was being diluted by floodwaters, but it could pose a hazard when the flow eases, officials said.

Travel across the Salt, which cuts through Phoenix, remained snarled and authorities said the Interstate 10 bridge over the river would be closed until next month because of erosion around its support piers.

Gov. Bruce Babbitt has called for congressional action to help with the state's perennial flooding. Damage in Arizona is now estimated at $90 million.

In California's Riverside County, the entire town of San Jacinto was awash, and its 6,500 residents fled after a levee along the raging San Jacinto River burst.

In Palm Springs, water poured from a breached levee, inundating three foothill communities and sending more than a thousand people to evacuations centers.

In a desert area in the southwest part of the county, homes were reported under water and about 5,000 residents were isolated by floodwaters. The Air National Guard and Marines were lifting people out by helicopter and ferrying in supplies to other residents.

In San Diego's fashionable Mission Valley, hotels, shopping centers and homes were flooded. Six major San Diego reservoirs reached their highest levels since 1941, and the El Capitan was threatening to spill more water into the Mission Valley area. But officials said none of the dams had been weakened or was in danger of breaking.

In Northern California, emergency crews were racing to shore up eroding levees in the Sacramento-San Joaquin River Delta before another storm hit the area. Two islands in the delta were inundated by water Thursday, and several others were evacuated. "It's a very nervous situation," said Bill Ward of the Office of Emergency Services.

Heavy snow fell in the Sierra Nevada on Thursday, closing a 40-mile stretch of U.S. 50 because of mudslides and danger of avalanches.

In Malad, Idaho, 60 people returned home after the water level in a reservoir dropped. State officials continue to monitor the stability of a 30-year-old earthen dam.

In Utah, the flow of water cascading over a dam near the town of Enterprise is slowing, and officials said deterioration had stabilized. Damage in the state stood at more than $3 million.

THE OLD SWIMMING HOLE WAS NEVER LIKE THIS. Andy Schaeffer walks to his Mandeville Canyon backyard to survey mud damage to his pool after torrential rains subsided in this Los Angeles area neighborhood. Severe flooding and mudsliding throughout this area may subside today with a promise of drier weather issued through the forecast today.

Double digit inflation still with American consumers

By EILEEN ALT POWELL

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans probably won't get much relief early this year from the double-digit inflation that raged through 1979, experts say.

The Labor Department was releasing today the Consumer Price Index for January, which many economists feared would show inflation at least as strong — or stronger — than December's 1.2 percent increase.

If prices rise for 11 more months at December's pace, the year would end with an inflation rate above 15 percent.

Prices last year rose 13.3 percent — the worst inflation since World War II price controls were lifted in 1946.

The Carter administration forecasts that prices will rise 10.4 percent this year. For that to occur, monthly increases would have to average about 0.8 percent — a phenomenon last seen in 1978.

Fear that today's announcement would show a worsening of inflation at 1980 helped send the stock market into a nosedive on Thursday, market analysts said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 18.34 to 868.52, its largest loss since it tumbled 26.45 points Oct. 9. And declines outnumbered advances by more than 2-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Several recent events have made inflation relief less likely:

—Prices at the wholesale level rocketed 1.6 percent in January for the largest monthly gain in more than five years. These increases, mostly reflecting higher oil and metal prices, generally show up quickly in supermarkets, drug stores and other retail outlets.

—Late last month, Saudi Arabia, the largest supplier of oil to the United States, raised the price of its crude oil $2 a barrel to $26. The increase, which had been expected, was retroactive to Jan. 1. What hadn't been expected was that a number of other Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries also boosted prices. Meanwhile, more and more domestically produced oil is being "de-controlled," resulting in higher prices.

—Federal Reserve efforts to fight inflation by tightening credit resulted in boosts in a key lending rate Oct. 6 and again last Friday. As a result, consumer credit costs — notably home mortgage interest rates — have continued to rise sharply.

Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told a House Banking Committee hearing earlier this week that inflation could worsen before getting better.

"Price increases, at least as recorded in the most widely read indexes, could well accelerate in the first quarter, partly because the latest round of oil price increases will be reflected in those numbers," Volcker said. "The real question is how much progress can be made in reducing the inflation rate in the latter part of the year."

But White House press secretary Jody Powell said that the Carter administration would stick with its current anti-inflation policy and would continue to oppose mandatory wage and price controls.

Most needed now, he added, is congressional approval of Carter's energy program, which is designed to lower U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

The rise in the Consumer Price Index was the biggest since a 1.8 percent jump in August 1973, when then-President Richard M. Nixon lifted price controls and beef prices shot up dramatically.

"Rising fuel prices were responsible for more than a quarter of the change," said department analyst Patrick Jackman. "Basically, it's the recent increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries starting to work their way through the system."

A number of OPEC nations — including Saudi Arabia, the United States' largest crude oil supplier — raised prices last month. In recent days, several of them have announced cutbacks in production, which could increase prices further.

Major price increases also were reported for housing, which rose 1.4 percent from December because of higher fuel oil costs and higher mortgage rates. Medical care costs also rose substantially, up 1.3 percent because of new year price adjustments at hospitals and in doctors' fees.

Consumer prices had risen 1.2 percent in December after increases of 1 percent in each of the preceding two months.

If prices rise for 11 more months at January's 1.4 percent pace, the year would end with an inflation rate of more than 18 percent.

By contrast, prices last year rose 13.3 percent — the worst inflation rate since World War II price controls were lifted in 1946.

The Carter administration predicts prices will rise 10.4 percent this year, but that would require monthly increases in the range of 0.8 percent or less — a phenomenon that has not occurred since 1978.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported that wage increases did not keep pace with soaring prices.

Average weekly earnings fell 1.1 percent from December to January. A 0.3 percent increase in average hourly earnings was more than offset by the 1.4 percent surge in prices.

Polygraph effectiveness questioned by professor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A roll of the dice would do almost as well at detecting lies as a polygraph, a psychology professor told legislators Thursday.

Dr. Donald J. Foss of the University of Texas urged the Sunset Advisory Commission to recommend that the Legislature outlaw the use of law detectors by employers.

But a spokesman for more than 3,000 retail stores said polygraph tests are "absolutely necessary" to merchants plagued by thefts and embezzlements.

The commission will recommend whether the 1981 Legislature should abolish the State Board of Polygraph Examiners. An alternative offered by the commission's staff would let the Department of Public Safety license polygraph testers for law enforcement agencies but prohibit lie detector tests by private employers.

Foss said 72 percent accuracy is "the best that has been obtained" in various studies of lie detectors, and that's "just a little above chance."

"A tremendous number of innocent people are getting hurt (by polygraph testing)... If it's no good and employers are permitted to use it, then they are rejecting employees for no valid reason... The evidence is pretty strong they are no good," he said.

Researcher claims aliens pay own way

By ROB WOOD

Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A College of Mexico researcher says his studies show that only about 9 percent of the illegal aliens who come to the United States remain in the country and "most of these pay their fair share of taxes."

Jorge Bustamante, testifying Thursday in a federal court trial, said the immigrants "come looking for jobs. And those who stay in the United States are the kind of people who refuse to accept things as they are and want to better themselves. They have a desire, a determination and ambition."

A group of Hispanic parents recently filed lawsuits against several Texas school districts for refusing to enroll the children of illegal aliens.

A Texas statute, enacted in 1975, prohibits free public education for the children. Some school districts admit the youths under a tuition program, costing an average of $1,000 a semester. Other districts bar undocumented children entirely.

U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals ordered the lawsuits held in abeyance until completion of this trial on the constitutionality of the state law.

Bustamante said between 500,000 and one million

Mexican nationals enter the United States year and 45,000-90,000 stay.

Asked by attorneys for the plaintiffs if the promise of a free public education would bring a wave of Mexican nationals to the United States, Bustamante answered, "No. They come here only looking for jobs."

Bustamante testified, "a great majority of the aliens come from Mexican states that offer the best educational systems in Mexico. The illegal aliens are not always the unemployed or the very poor. Generally, they have jobs in Mexico, but want to improve themselves and the status of their families."

Susan Dasher, an assistant state attorney general and chief counsel for the defendants in the trial, argued that the admission of illegal alien children would bring chaos to many school districts.

She said some districts along the Mexico-Texas border would be swamped and face bankruptcy.

Ms. Dasher also said a large influx of Hispanic children would turn from serious to critical the shortage of bilingual teachers.

Testifying earlier Thursday, Dr. Thomas Carter of Sacramento-State University of California, said Texas would have trouble hiring additional bilingual teachers until salaries are raised.

Carter said Texas teacher salaries are now $2,000 to $3,000 lower than those of other large, growing, industrial states.

He testified, "There are many Mexican-Americans graduating from the University of Texas at El Paso who would be capable bilingual teachers. I don't know how many are being certified by Texas. I do know that school districts in California are recruiting them."

The trial is expected to last from three to five weeks.

A and M president suggests schools be source of aid

WASHINGTON (AP) —

American universities should be given a bigger part in foreign assistance programs, says the president of Texas A&M University.

"American universities should be called upon to assist in those areas where they have been traditionally strong," Jarvis E. Miller told congressmen Thursday.

He listed the areas as institution building, extension and research.

Miller, drawing on his experience as an agricultural economist abroad, testified before the House subcommittee on Inter-American affairs.

He said in a prepared statement that the United States may be putting too much weight on aid programs to the "poorest of the poor" countries.

"That is not to say that they should be left out but rather that they should be included along with the other countries which need and qualify for assistance," Miller said.

"Middle income countries tend to be cut off from the unique U.S. resources which may be most critical."

Miller defined low income countries as those where per capita income is below $300.

'Energy centers' in farming future

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new plan to set up two "energy centers" to help farmers generate their own energy could result in their having a surplus to sell on the side, say officials for the Agriculture Department.

"By 1990, farmers and ranchers should be able to create as much energy as they use to produce our harvests of food and fiber," officials said Thursday in a background paper.

"Beyond 1990, they should be able to produce enough farm-generated energy to power other parts of the economy, too."

The centers are being established in Tifton, Ga., and Peoria, Ill., where the department, in cooperation with states, already has extensive laboratory and research facilities.

The projects initially will cost about $6.2 million. An estimated 10 persons will be involved in the work at the two centers but will have access to many other scientists now working at the two locations.

Programs at Peoria will focus on the conversion of "biomass" products from farms and forests into fuel alcohol or substitutes for petroleums. Crop residues, trees and manure are examples.

At Tifton, scientists "will seek new and better ways to generate energy on the farm" and better ways to put that energy to practical use.

The department's Science and Education Administration will provide $1.6 million to the Tifton energy center during the first three quarters of 1980, plus $200,000 for extension activities.

In Peoria, the agency has allocated $2 million, including $100,000 for extension work. Another $2.4 million will be used for university research projects related to agricultural energy.

Regional solar energy research and development centers were specified by Congress in the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977. The law defines solar energy as energy derived from all forms of renewable resources, including direct solar heat, wind and biomass.

James L. Butler, an agency engineer who will manage the Tifton facility, said plans call for three main research units, with three energy programs already under way at universities:

- New methods and equipment to harvest and store farm-produced biomass, which could include ordinary crops, aquatic plants, crop residues, prunings, unmarketable crops and crops grown specifically for biomass energy sources.
- Unlocking the energy within biomass by turning it into methane gas or alcohol, converting it chemically by heat, or simply by burning it in effective ways.
- New methods and equipment to collect, store and use solar heat for such purposes as crop drying, refrigeration and heating water.

The Tifton center also will coordinate projects at Iowa

State University and Texas A&M to develop better ways of using wind energy, and at the University of Missouri on the production and use of methane gas from hog manure.

Edward B. Bagley, an agency chemical engineer who will be in charge of the center at Peoria, said about half of the center's research will be on basic fermentation and chemical methods for converting biomass into alcohol.

The Peoria scientists also will work on:

- Recovering plant hydrocarbons and their use as replacements for petrochemicals.
- Ways to use low-proof alcohol as fuel.
- Stabilizing agents for effective low-proof blends of alcohol and gasoline, and of alcohol and diesel fuel.
- Methods to recover byproducts from alcohol and methane gas fermentation and convert them into new food and feed products.

No indictments returned in health department probe

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — District Attorney Ronald Earle says the grand jury has decided not to return indictments after receiving his report on the investigation of the State Health Department.

Earle said, however, grand jurors "have asked me to express their concern that all public employees" — not just those on the health department payroll — "understand they should not conduct private business during regular working hours or use public supplies available to them because of their employment."

Earle's Public Integrity Unit began its investigation following a series of allegations that included sexual harassment and misuse of equipment.

Two high-ranking officials — Personnel Director Frank Hejl and Deputy Commissioner Al Joe Hunt — were fired, effective Jan. 16.

Earle said in a statement Thursday his staff had reported its findings to the Travis County grand jury on Wednesday and added, "No indictments were returned."

He said his staff interviewed more than 20 past and present employees of the health department and reviewed numerous records, files and internal memoranda.

Dallas police get no reports of missing girl

DALLAS (AP) — A team of police officers suspended its search late Thursday night for a young girl witnesses say may have been kidnapped because no one has reported the child missing.

"They've pretty much done what they can do," said police spokesman Ed Spencer. "They've knocked on all the doors and they're at the end of the road right now."

Thursday morning, witnesses reported a young girl was pulled screaming into an old station wagon by a man who had chased her down the street on foot.

As the car sped away with the child inside, "I got scared and I went to screaming," said Cora Case, an East Dallas resident.

Another nearby resident, Eunice Harris, said she heard the child scream "Let me go, let me go, leave me alone," investigators said.

Miss Case said the child could be Mexican-American or Anglo, about 4 to 6 years of age. She wore a red dress, witnesses told police.

Several young girls have disappeared from that area of Dallas in the past few years and later turned up dead. Most of those cases are unsolved, although investigators usually hesitate to link them together.
