Carter nixes Olympics

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The United States will not participate in the Moscow Olympics since there is no sign the deadline imposed by President Carter for a Soviet troop withdrawal from Afghanistan will be met, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said today.

The administration's position must be ratified by the U.S. Olympic Committee.

During an interview on NBC's "Today" program, White House counselor Lloyd Cutler noted that the USOC said it will "of course" abide by the president's decision, and he added: "We expect the USOC to proceed to formalize what they said last week."

"We don't think the question of the government's power to force the athletes not to go will ever come up," Cutler said. "We're quite clear in the light of what the US committee said — that they, like the athletes, will abide by this very strong showing of public and congressional opinion that they should not go."

In Bonn, the State Department spokesman told reporters: "The United States set a deadline for its decision on whether to participate, a decision to be contingent on the withdrawal of Soviet troops. Today is the day on which that decision was going to be based. It is clear there is no sign of a Soviet withdrawal."

He continued: "The president has made clear that our decision is therefore irrevocable. We will not participate in the Olympics in Moscow."

Carter made the announcement following talks between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher on the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. "The deadline imposed by President Carter passed without comment in Moscow, and there was no immediate reaction to the State Department spokesman's announcement."

On Tuesday, White House spokesman Jody Powell told reporters in Washington. "We have made our position very clear. The question now addresses itself to the United States Olympic Committee. We would like for them to reach a decision as soon as they can."

There was no immediate comment from the U.S. Olympic Committee.

President Carter set the deadline one month ago, insisting then and as recently as Tuesday that if the Russians did not pull their troops out of the Southwest Asian nation by today, he would urge American athletes not to take part in the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow.

Speaking Tuesday to an American Legion convention, the president said the "deadline is tomorrow and it will not be changed." He was given a round of applause and cheers.

Carter has said the Russians have 100,000 troops in Afghanistan. Other government estimates put the occupation army at about 10,000 fewer troops.

One White House official, who asked not to be named, acknowledged that "no one expected the Soviets would be out by the 20th," and added: "I don't think the day has any particular significance."

So, without the demanded withdrawal of the Soviet troops, the question is how many nations will follow Carter's call.

Cutler said 23 nations have said publicly they will not attend the games, "including a number of the major sports countries." Another 13 have indicated privately they share U.S. views on the matter, he said, and 19 are "leaning in that direction."

"That's over 50. We think that at least 30, perhaps 40" will not go, "including most of the major economic and sporting" nations.

Powell said the administration would like to explore the possibility of holding an international sports event somewhere other than Moscow.

Moscow was chosen for the 1980 Summer Olympics by the International Olympic Committee in 1974. The Kremlin has used the decision for its own propaganda purposes, stating that it represented international approval for Soviet policies.

Carter has had no luck in his efforts to get the international sporting panel to postpone or cancel the Summer Games or move them from Moscow.

The U.S. Olympic Committee, which oversees American participation in the Olympics, has said it will support Carter.

But it rebuffed a request by the president that it make its formal decision before the planned meeting of its House of Delegates in Colorado Springs, Colo., April 11-13.

Carter's request was carried to the U.S. committee last Saturday in Lake Placid, N.Y., where the Winter Games are being held without any apparent international repercussions.

Robbery suspect faces multiple charges

By DEBORAH BRIDGES

Of The Pampa News

A 27-year-old Pampa man was arrested by city police Tuesday evening in connection with the Valentine's Day robbery of a local convenience store.

Mario Alberto Luna of 809 E. Malone St. was arrested at Brunow and Tignor streets yesterday at 6:27 p.m. by Detective Michael Hartsock on charges of aggravated robbery.

An inquiry into national and state criminal files, authorities say, found Luna to be wanted by the Plainview Sheriff's office for revocation of probation and felony theft charges.

Bond for the man was set at $9,300 a.m. today by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford at $10,000 for the aggravated robbery charge, $5,000 bond for revocation of probation, and a $2,000 bond had been set by a Plainview grand jury for the felony theft charge.

The city police's case will probably go before the grand jury tomorrow, Det. Hartsock said today.

Luna is in city jail in lieu of the bonds set this morning, he said. A 14-year-old juvenile was also detained in connection with the robbery, Police Chief J. J. Ryzman said, and will be referred to county juvenile probation authorities.

The aggravated robbery charges stem from the robbery at knife-point of the Allsup's store located at 859 E. Frederic at about 11:30 p.m. on Feb. 14.

According to the clerk's report to police, two young males entered the store carrying a knife and ordered her to give them the money from the cash register.

The two then took the money in their hands, told the woman to lie on her face on the floor and count to 20, threatening to hurt her if she moved before she finished counting.

Police believe they then fled from the store on foot.

Khomeini okays commission

Associated Press

The U.N. panel formed to investigate the ex-shah of Iran delayed its scheduled departure for Tehran today and a U.N. spokesman said "clarifications" were being sought from the Iranians on their terms for accepting the mission.

The spokesman did not disclose what new problems may have cropped up.

One of the five U.N. commission members, meanwhile, said there is a "gentlemen's agreement" the American hostages will be released. But he denied reports that a deadline for their freedom had been set.

The commission members had been standing by at the airport in Geneva, Switzerland, for a 1 p.m. (7 a.m. EST) departure aboard a chartered flight, but at about 2 p.m. they left the airport and went to the Algerian U.N. mission in the Swiss city. One of the panel members is Mohammed Bedjaoui, the Algerian U.N. ambassador.

A U.N. spokesman in Geneva, Anthony Currow, said the panel members had not received a final go-ahead from U.N. headquarters in New York, although Tehran Radio announced that President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr had sent a cable to Waldheim giving approval to the mission.

In New York, U.N. spokesman Rudolf Sajuahar issued a terse statement saying Waldheim had received a cable from the Iranian authorities "but some clarifications are needed. We will make an announcement shortly. The commission is ready for departure." Sajuahar would not elaborate.

There was a flurry of rumors in Geneva that the Iranians had set new conditions for the arrangement, but U.N. officials had no immediate comment.

The Tehran Radio broadcast, monitored in London, quoted the Bani-Sadr message to Waldheim as saying:

"Now that the demand of Imam Khomeini and the Iranian nation has been conceded regarding the convocation of a court of inquiry and investigation into past American intervention in Iran's internal affairs, through the regime of the former shah, and the investigation of their treacheries, crimes and corruptions, the commission, whose convocation and scope have been agreed by the Imam and the Iranian Revolution Council, may come to Iran."

Earlier, commission member Bedjaoui, speaking with a reporter on the tarmac at the airport in Geneva, said there is "a gentlemen's agreement for the release of the hostages." He added: "It is not true that any deadline has been set" for their release.

Reports published in the United States Tuesday quoted U.N. officials as saying the hostages would have to be released by Feb. 27 or the panel would stop its inquiry.

Currow said part of a 10-man U.N. support staff would travel with the five commission members in the 12-seat chartered plane with the rest to follow aboard a commercial flight.

After a meeting Tuesday of the Revolutionary Council he heads, Bani-Sadr told reporters that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's ailing revolutionary leader, had approved final terms for the commission and its convening in Tehran.

Aside from Bedjaoui, other commission members are said to include French lawyer Edmond Pettiti; former Venezuelan ambassador to Washington, Andres Aguilar; Sri Lanka lawyer Hector W. Jayewardene and Syrian diplomat Adib Daoudy.

It was still unclear exactly when and how the approximately 50 Americans would be released from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, where they began their 109th day in captivity today.

After a Tuesday night meeting of the Revolutionary Council he heads, Bani-Sadr told reporters that Khomeini, the country's ailing revolutionary leader, had approved final terms for the U.N.-appointed commission and its convening in Tehran.

Bani-Sadr, who took over as commander in chief of Iran's armed forces on Khomeini's order earlier in the day, said U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim would be informed of the decision by cable.

But in New York, a spokesman for Waldheim said late Tuesday night that no cable had arrived and that commission members gathering in Geneva, Switzerland for a chartered flight to Iran could not leave until the cable was received.

"They can't go before they are appointed," the U.N. spokesman said, adding that Waldheim cannot announce their appointment until Iran formally confirms his choice.

Members are said to include French lawyer Edmond Pettiti; Algeria's U.N. ambassador, Mohammed Bedjaoui; former Venezuelan ambassador to Washington, Andres Aguilar; Sri Lanka lawyer Hector W. Jayewardene and Syrian diplomat Adib Daoudy.

It was still unclear exactly when and how the approximately 50 Americans would be released from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Bani-Sadr's appointment as supreme military commander stirred speculation he might send troops to the embassy to replace the Islamic militants holding the hostages.

Waldheim also was quoted by Vienna's Die Presse newspaper as saying the investigation would take one to two weeks and the hostages would be freed in the course of the panel's work.

But that was disputed by Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, who told reporters on his return Tuesday to Tehran following a European tour the Americans would not be freed until the commission's work was complete.

Ag movement blasts food policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The "cheap food" policy of President Carter and the six presidents before him has fueled military confrontations in the world, the chairman of the activist American Agriculture Movement says.

"This administration and all administrations since 1950 should be put on trial for treason," says Marvin Meek of Texas.

Despite soaring prices for other goods, America continues to export its agricultural products at prices well below their value, denying farmers a fair profit and enabling foreign countries like Russia to spend more for weapons, he said.

"If we doubled the price of the grain we export, that would be more dollars they would have to pay for food," Meek argued. "If they were spending more money on food and less on armaments, we could have world peace."

That argument, Meek said, is one of only many AAM members can use to convince Congress of the need for farm prices equal to 100 percent of parity, the primary goal of the three-year old organization. That would give farmers today the same buying power they had in 1910 to 1914.

Martin Palmer, an attorney who has become involved in the "Bushels for Barrels" movement to equalize the price of grain with the price of oil, discounted arguments that American grain is already commanding prices that reflect its worth.

"Give the Arabs control of grain for one year and you'd see how much you'd get for it," Martin told hundreds of farmers attending AAM's two-day convention.

Although the convention ends today, Meek said as many as 100 farmers from around the country would be in the nation's capital at all times until there is congressional action to improve farm prices.

"They're farmers who are in trouble. They need help," Meek said. "We've got people who are not leaving until something is done because they've got nothing to go home to."

After major demonstrations the last two years yielded little in the way of results, Meek said AAM's toned-down lobbying effort this year is getting a good reception on Capitol Hill.

"They're glad to see us come just with our hats and nothing else," he said. "We put 50,000 farmers up here the first year and 30,000 farmers and 1,200 tractors last year."

"We were trying to get the attention of the people, to make them realize our problems were their problems, and the tractors did that," Meek added. "But they (the congressmen) haven't listened. So now we're going to try to slide in. We're going to work with them, lobby them, answer their questions."

Farmers seeking higher crop prices and continued incentives for gasohol are approaching Congress without the tractors or the anger that marked last year's visit — and it's paying off.

"They're glad to see us come just with our hats and nothing else," Marvin Meek, chairman of the American Agriculture Movement, said Tuesday.

"We put 50,000 farmers up here the first year and 30,000 farmers and 1,200 tractors last year," Meek reminded hundreds of AAM members at the opening of their two-day convention.

Meeks said the tractors, which snarled traffic and caused about $3.6 million damage to the Mall between the Capitol and the Washington Monument, got the attention of the public.

"But they (the congressmen) haven't listened," Meek said. "So now we're going to try to slide in. We're going to work with them, lobby them, answer their questions."

The two-day meeting at the Commerce Department ends today, and will be followed by weeks of lobbying on Capitol Hill.

AAM is seeking support for extension of the four cents-a-gallon federal fuel tax exemption for gasohol, a mixture of 10 percent alcohol and 90 percent gasoline.

But the organization's primary goal remains the same as when AAM was founded three years ago — crop prices equal to 100 percent of parity. That would give farmers the same buying power they had between 1910 and 1914.

In the early 1970s, Meek said, a bushel of wheat and a barrel of oil sold for about the same price.

"Now we're importing $30-a-barrel oil, turning it into wheat and exporting it at $4 a bushel," he said. "How asinine can we be?"

Meanwhile, House and Senate conferees agreed Tuesday on a package of price supports and disaster aid for grain farmers that would cost about $690 million this year.

The measure, for most part modeled on an earlier version passed by the Senate, must be approved by both houses before going to President Carter. The administration is supporting the program.

The bill raises the price support for the 1980 corn crop from $2.20 to $2.35 a bushel, and from $3.40 to $3.63 per bushel of wheat.

The price supports guarantee farmers a specified amount by making up the difference between that and any lower actual market price.

The Congressional Budget Office has estimated the price supports will cost $127 million for this year's crop. The bill also would provide $563 million in subsidies to farmers who suffer losses through disaster to crops of wheat, feed grain, upland cotton and rice.

The Senate-House conference also reached a compromise Tuesday on eligibility for loans and payments in the event the administration asks farmers to set aside or divert land and keep it idle.

Manpower official could regain job

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A local union official who tumbled from power during a federal manpower funds scandal could regain his post if the U.S. Parole Commission goes along with a judge's recommendation.

Don Gray was a central figure in an investigation into misuse of federal job training funds two years ago. He pleaded guilty to state and federal charges and received a five-year probation sentence.

Few clues help police in Midland woman search

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Police admit they are baffled by the disappearance of a 19-year-old Midland woman whose parents believe she was kidnapped.

Kristy Booth was last seen dancing with a man at a disco Feb. 2. But her father, Tom Booth, said she always let them know where she was, and he's convinced she has been abducted.

"I always open the mailbox expecting to find a note saying, 'We've got Kristy' and with instructions on what to do," said Booth.

Miss Booth, a waitress, left home about 7 p.m. on Feb. 2 and was last seen about 10:30 p.m. at the Dimensions Club.

Energy conference could set U.S. - Mexico idea exchange

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sponsors of an International Conference on Energy Feb. 21-22 at Texas A&I University hope it will turn into an annual exchange of educational and technical information between Texas and Mexico.

"To the best of our knowledge, this is the first conference of its kind in the Southwest," said Eddie Aurispa, executive director of the Texas Good Neighbor Commission, at a news conference Monday. The conference is co-sponsored by Texas A&I, the Texas Good Neighbor Commission and Instituto Tecnológico y de Estudios Superiores de Monterrey, Mexico.

About 100 educators and business leaders from Mexico are expected to attend.

Railroad Commission reports decrease in imported petro

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chairman John Poerner of the Texas Railroad Commission noted today a $11 million savings in the importation of foreign oil.

Poerner said crude and petroleum products imports into the United States totaled 8,462,000 barrels a day for the four-week average ending Feb. 1, a decrease of $379,000 from the same period in 1979.

He said a commission staffer had figured this decline saved the United States $11 million — "certainly a significant savings."

Poerner also told the statewide oil allowable hearing the oil and gas regulatory agency was "doing everything humanly possible and then some" to reduce the backlog of filings under the federal Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978.

What category a well is placed in determines how much may be charged for gas from the well. Since December 1978, Poerner said, the commission has received more than 20,000 applications yet only last month did the commission "for the first time, process more applications in a week than it received."

The commission routinely set the market production factor for March at 100 percent. It has been maintained at that level, with the exception of a few months, for nearly eight years. As usual, the East Texas Field was restricted to an 86 percent allowable to avoid possible waste.

Nominations by major buyers of Texas crude oil totaled 2,631,965 barrels a day for March, a decrease of 21,755 from February. Several company spokesmen indicated their lower nominations merely reflected the amount of oil they hope to acquire rather than a lessening in demand.

Here are the purchasers' nominations for March, in barrels per day, with any changes from February in parentheses:

- Amoco 255,000 (down 5,000)
- Chevron 55,354 (down 4,000)
- Cities Service 90,000
- Conoco 56,000
- Diamond Shamrock 13,101 (up 1,421)
- Exxon 361,000 (down 5,000)
- Gulf 127,000
- Marathon 67,460

Shamrock seed company denies federal charges

The James Reneau Seed Company of Shamrock, has been assessed $2,775 by a federal court in settlement of a Federal Seed Act case. The act, administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture is a truth-in-labeling law designed to protect farmers and consumers who buy seed.

USDA officials said that the case involved 30 violations of the Federal Seed Act. The company denied the charges but did not contest the case.

The U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas determined that the Federal Seed Act had been violated and ordered the company to pay.

The case involved sixteen shipments of rye seed and one shipment each of lovegrass, and sorghum-sudangrass seed made in Florida, Alabama, New Mexico, Oklahoma, North Carolina, Arkansas, and Tennessee from 1972 through 1975.

Area break-ins on the rise

House burglaries have been on the upswing in Gray and two other local counties, according to Sheriff Rufe Jordan.

Four burglaries in Gray County have been reported to the Sheriff's department in the past month. Donley Co. has reported two and Carson Co. has reported one.

Most of the burglaries were taken place at night when the occupants were away.

An investigation by all local authorities is under way.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Sadr could be man to free the hostages

For the first time since the Iranians took American hostages, there is a real glimmer of hope for solving the puzzle.

The hope comes in the form of President Abolhassan Bani Sadr who continues to tighten the screws on the militants.

Americans have come to expect the unexpected in this bizarre chess game. It seemed that all the minds in Iran were charged with keeping the pot boiling.

Now comes a man newly elected to office who seems to approach his job with a fairly good grasp of the situation. He just might be the man who can set the hostages free.

It wouldn't do any good to get our hopes up. That has happened too many times in the past, only to have them bashed to the ground by the next unexpected turn of events.

President Sadr apparently realizes that it is not America that threatens his country but the Russians who now are encamped on a stone's throw across the border.

If time and circumstances dictate the entry of Russian troops into Iran, it would be foolhardy to believe that they would hold back. Some reports indicate that oil will be running low by the mid-eighties. The trek into Afghanistan was only an insurance policy against that day. When oil gets scarce, Russia would be in prime strategic position to take over Iran's oil fields.

The new Iranian president must sense this. And he must know that before he can lay the groundwork for future U.S. support to defend against Russian aggression, he must pluck away the thorny U.S. hostages problem.

Lying directly in the path are the so-called students guarding the prisoners.

He has acted to short-circuit their soapbox by denying them air time on Tehran Radio-TV. There are rumors that he will be replacing the militants with troops who, supposedly, would listen to orders from Sadr.

It is the first time since the hostages were taken that the Western world has had reason to believe that things might be working toward a solution.

About all we at home can do is hold our collective breath.

Of walls and freedom

By Don Graft

Where there's a will there's a way, as they say — and if "they" doesn't include the Chinese, it ought to.

Weeks of debate over the fate of Democracy Wall in Peking have ended in compromise. The wall, which served as a national bulletin board during the People's Republic's headlong rush to rejoin the modern world but lately has come into increasing official disfavor, is not being abolished in practice, merely shifted in location.

Posters will no longer be permitted on the 200-foot-long structure along Changan Avenue in the heart of Peking. Instead, citizens may exercise the Chinese version of free expression on another wall in a park removed from the city's main thoroughfares.

Ground rules have also been changed. No longer may just anyone slap on just any declaration. Poster posters must first register, giving authorities a record of who is speaking out about what.

The Changan wall has not been the only such outlet for comment on public affairs and personal grievances. Poster walls exist in other major cities and did, until recently dismantled, elsewhere in Peking itself. But it has been the most famous, the focus of attention for both Chinese and a world fascinated by China's remarkable political and cultural transformation of the past several years.

But the means for letting off public steam that was initially useful to the post-Mao leadership eventually became a nuisance. A faction whose enthusiasm for experiments in democracy is under firm control would abolish the wall. Rather than doing so, which might have been read at home and abroad as regression to the bad old repressive days, the leadership may have found in the new arrangements a way of allowing an acceptable degree of public expression while curbing excessively outspoken critics.

May have. Habits of expressing opinions openly are unpredictable behavior traits. Once acquired, they are not so easily shed. And where there is a will to speak out, there are usually various ways of continuing to do so.

The Wall Builders

A two-year dispute over freedom of expression on a world scale has ended in a draw.

A 16-nation commission of the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization has adopted a compromise report on the rights and requirements of global newsgathering.

It is the product of an increasingly bitter confrontation between Western representatives and those of much of the Third World and the Soviet bloc. The latter coalition has been seeking to write an international code which they claim is necessary to prevent "cultural imperialism" by Western news organizations. But the West sees many of the proposed guidelines and restrictions as reflecting the standards of authoritarian regimes and designed to extend these to the free world in order to control information.

The full report is not scheduled to be published until after the first of the year, but details that have become known unofficially suggest that the West has won most of the crucial rounds — this time.

Censorship is condemned. The right of journalists to travel freely in all nations with access to all news sources is acknowledged. Proposed international licensing of journalists has not been approved.

But several points have been left open for further consideration. These include a proposed international code of ethics which the West fears could be manipulated to restrict access to information. Also a proposed international group to monitor and oversee development of global communications, opposed for largely the same reasons.

More will be heard on these sensitive points, possibly explosively with the presentation of the report at UNESCO's general conference next fall in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

What is involved here is an attempt to construct a wall. Not one of bricks but one of rules and regulations, one that would not publicize opinions in the Chinese fashion but would contain and, if some interested parties have their way, isolate completely views that might not have official sanction. It will take continuing vigilance in the West to see that it is not completed.

By Oscar Cooley
In 1637, tulip bulbs sold in Holland for 2,600 guilders, the rough equivalent of $780 each. It was during the tulip mania, or insane fever of speculation in tulip bulbs. History has had many such epidemics of speculation when buyers have bid up the price of something or other, often a thing of little intrinsic, or use, value. Today it is gold, which recently sold in London at between $900 and $900 an ounce. Gold is pretty to look at and hence its main use is in jewelry, medals, watch cases. It is too soft to be durable, silver and even copper having more use value. But there are no limits on the market value which even a useless commodity may gain once the public takes it up and makes it an object of blind speculation. Rarity, of course, contributes to such a commodity's market value per unit.

Gold, alloyed with other metal to make it hard, traditionally was used to make coins, and still is in primitive countries where commodity money is still important. This is not the case in the United States. People in this country, in Europe and especially in the Middle East are buying gold, not because they value it highly but because they value other assets less. They are scared that in the present tumultuous period these other assets will go down the drain. They think gold will hold its value simply because it has in the past. Gold has a mystical attraction. Their reaction is more psychological than reasonable. The tulip speculators of the 17th century finally came to their senses and quit buying tulip bulbs. The price fell. More became convinced the market had reached its top and unloaded their tulips. The price fell more, even faster than it had risen. The money, in which all other forms of money were valued. For years an ounce of gold was by law $20. We were "on the gold standard," as they said. No longer. Why? Because gold was rare and all of our other money — paper, mainly — was exchangeable for gold money at will, we could not increase the total supply of money as rapidly as we needed to in order to finance the purchase of the rapidly increasing goods. Result: a shortage of money and a downward trend in prices. This acted as a damper on production. To escape from this depressing influence, the U.S. government first raised the price of gold from $20 to $35 an ounce. But this was only a stopgap measure. So the government took the gold price ceiling off entirely and let the price move freely in response to supply and demand, like the prices of other goods and services. For several years the fluctuation was moderate. Finally began the speculative rise which we are now experiencing. Sudden and drastic changes in the price of anything are disconcerting. We long for stability. But markets are like babies — they never sit still. It is their nature to be ever on the move. This is a fact of life that man has to accept and get used to. No price, whether of groceries or of gold, is static. The maximum degree of steadiness or stability of prices prevails when the market is freest to behave at will. When prices are wholly free to change, they change often but in short hops, not broad jumps. This is a powerful argument for what the French call laissez faire — let do — let prices do what they will. That is, for a free market. In such a market, prices are restless. They are continually in readjustment, but their movements are seldom extreme. The gold speculation now going on is no cause for the average person to be concerned. Only the speculator need worry, for the rise in the price of gold will not go on forever. Those who bought low as compared to recent price will make no mistake to sell while they are sure to profit. That includes the U.S. Treasury, which holds a very large bundle bought at $35 an ounce.

Good guys, bad guys — who's who?

by paul harvey

President Carter says we must be willing to go to war to protect vital American interests in the Persian Gulf. Shall we send American troops to protect Afghanistan, Pakistan, Iran, Saudi Arabia—against dictatorship? Those countries are dictatorships! Before we go again to war, let's at least know what for. Good guys, bad guys—who's who any more? In what's being called the "Carter Doctrine," President Carter warns that any further intrusion by the Soviets "beyond Afghanistan" will be considered a threat to American interests. He says we will strengthen our "political and military ties" with those nations which border Afghanistan.

As a further warning to the Soviets, the President orders young Americans to register for a possible military draft. Columnist Roger Simon says, "President Carter now has the multiple political advantage of being a wartime President in a time of peace." And most members of Congress are applauding. Emergencies in an election year are a convenience to them, too. President Carter now has rejected one of the most important promises that got him elected. As recently as last August he had restated his unequivocal opposition to conscription. Now he orders it. Where registration for a draft is a political prerogative, there can be no drafting without the consent of Congress.

Let Congress be prepared for certain problems. For one thing, how does our government expect to conduct an equitable registration when our government can't even keep track of millions of aliens illegally in our country? From taxation or registration, the honest are punished, the others hide. President Carter indicates that our threatened interest in the Middle East is oil—yet he keeps locked up in the United States, notably in Alaska, potential reservoirs of oil greater than all the oil our nation imports. The President talks of using "American troops" to repel any further Soviet advance. If the thought of all those American footsoldiers has the Russians quaking—it's with laughter. If the Russians must be stopped in the Middle East—and I'm not at all convinced that "oil" is the primary motivation for this saber-rattling—then any threat we make must not be to send marching men into the crossfire between rival dictatorships but rather to dangle our weapons of decision over communism's home office. That is our only effective deterrent. The United States, with 6 percent of the world's mothers, cannot produce enough boy and girl babies to match the limitless hordes of Asia in a bayonet war. We have weapons which could cut them down to our size but they are worthless if, lacking the guts of a Harry Truman, we continue to allow old men in Washington to draft our best men to fight pulled-punches wars with less than our best weapons. Wars which we are ashamed to lose but afraid to win. (c) 1980, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Hazardous to your health

By Julian Bond

ATLANTA (NEA) - Worried about your health? After you've improved your diet, stopped smoking, taken up jogging and sworn once again to follow your doctor's advice, there's not much else you can do. But if you could only change your race, the chances are your health status would improve remarkably. If you were Chinese-American or Japanese-American, for instance, your infant mortality rate would be lower than any other population group. At the other end of the chronological scale, you certainly don't want to be black. Being black in America is clearly hazardous to your health. Black Americans are more likely to have high blood pressure, vision problems and poor dental health. Black Americans die more often from diabetes, tuberculosis, cardiovascular disease and malignancies. No wonder that white Americans feel better than black Americans do.

A recently released study conducted by the Public Health Service details great differences between whites and blacks in their own perception of their well-being. White men — 70 percent of them — reported the highest level of self-satisfaction. White women — 58 percent — were next, followed by black men at 54 percent. Only 37 percent of black women were recorded as having a high level of self-satisfaction. Oddly, suicide rates for blacks remain lower than for whites. Black Americans tend to kill themselves less frequently than whites do. However, they tend to kill each other more often. The homicide rate for blacks is six times as high as for whites. "Homicide rates are down for blacks," says Dr. Julius B. Richmond, the U.S. surgeon general. "But the rates are still too high and should be unacceptable in any civilized society." The current acceptability of the odds against black life are a reflection of the level of civilization in which we live.

More sorrows of Susan

When last reported on in this space, the Susan B. Anthony dollar was in trouble on the Boardwalk in Atlantic City. Slot-machine players were displaying an aversion to the new quarter-sized coin to the extent that it was cutting into the take of the New Jersey resort's casinos. A situation that was giving those business-minded operations thoughts of discontinuing the dollar slots altogether and substituting half-dollar machines in the hope that although the ante might be less, the volume would be much greater and likewise the net. The Atlantic City sporting crowd appears to be giving specialized expression to a general public aversion that has developed since the Anthony dollar was introduced last July. General, but not universal. It now develops that Susan has acquired some champions, although for different reasons and in highly disparate areas — the banking and pinball-machine industries. To take the latter first, a major manufacturer of pinballs, Chicago-based Bally Corp., is getting a business boost from the Anthony dollar.

With the cheapening of the dollar, the standard machine that once offered three games for a quarter is now good for only one. But machines adapted to the Anthony dollar are offering five games for the one coin, a bargain that in test situations is proving appealing to the players and leading to predictions that all pinballs will eventually accept only the new dollar. A bargain is also the tactic employed by a suburban Chicago banking institution. On a series of "dollar" Fridays, the Skokie Federal Savings & Loan Association offered the Anthony at half price. The idea was not to lose money, but to draw customers into the establishment and reacquaint them with savings and loan dealings, which have been suffering in a period of high inflation and fixed interest rates. The response was encouraging, according to Skokie Federal, and might have been much more so had not the offer been limited to one 50-cent Anthony per customer. Which if nothing else goes to show that it's still possible to pass the buck, only these days it may have to be discounted.

Business, mechanics good job bets

Editor's note: This is the second of a two-part series by Jerry Yates on the job outlook for the new decade.

Recruiters from many of the nation's big corporations descend on the campuses of well-known business schools such as Wharton at the University of Pennsylvania, Harvard, the University of Chicago and Stanford every year.

Students in their final year of MBA programs at these schools average four job offers from such recruiters, indicating that the competition among the corporations for the students is as great as the competition among students for the jobs.

More and more MBA candidates are also preparing themselves for the possibility of running their own businesses, through entrepreneurial studies programs offered in many of the nation's business schools.

Harvard was the first to offer courses in entrepreneurial studies, in 1947. This year could see as many as 215 schools offering similar courses, which already claim an enrollment of more than 4,000 students. The Wharton school, The University of Southern California and Baylor School in Waco, Texas, now offer MBA degrees with a major in entrepreneurship. Other schools are considering offering similar degrees, and Babson College in Wellesley, Mass., now offers an undergraduate entrepreneurial major.

Auto mechanics will be among the blue-collar workers in high demand in the next few years. The Automotive Information Council says the auto industry is currently faced with a severe shortage of mechanics, and the situation is expected to get worse. Those in the industry blame government criticism for the lack of manpower.

"We get blasted so often that the rotating public now looks on us as a bunch of crooks," one shop owner said. "No wonder we're having trouble attracting Jersey City, N.J., Buffalo, N.Y., Youngstown, Ohio, and Philadelphia are expected to be the worst cities in the next five years in terms of job growth, none of them recording more than a 1.5 percent gain.

Of course, all the jobs in the world won't do you any good if none of them are the one you want. The booming sunbelt communities are built largely on agriculture, defense, technology, oil, real estate and leisure industries, along with government, chemicals and all the basic services — health, education, banking and finance.

Business executives speaking of management level positions in Canada mentioned factors in employee selection that can be applied to just about any job.

"The applicant's ability to convince the employer he can make a contribution," is what one executive said. Others agreed that the most important factors were "qualifications, followed closely by chemistry between client and applicant." Happy hunting.

Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Alaska, Maryland, Delaware, New Hampshire and Vermont will all have 10 to 26.8 percent job growth rates over the next five years. According to one industry estimate, more than 270,000 people must be trained to perform proper engine maintenance before the entire U.S. vehicle population can be maintained according to specifications recommended by the vehicle manufacturers.

Currently, the United States has a ratio of about 250 privately owned vehicles per mechanic, compared to 68 vehicles per mechanic in England and 74 per mechanic in Japan.

In response to the problem, several of the industry's largest companies actively recruit mechanics through various programs. For 25 years General Motors has offered free summer workshops for high school and community college automotive teachers, designed to improve their teaching of student mechanics. Last year the program attracted 1,300 teachers. Ford ran a similar program that last year attracted 1,700 teachers. And the Plymouth Trouble Shooting championship, now in its 18th year, has brought an estimated 28,000 mechanics into the field.

February is the month for being honest — made famous by George Washington and his cherry tree — and the same thing applies if you're preparing a resume.

When you lie on your resume, you open up a can of worms that costs you interviews and jobs, says Don Rehner, executive recruiter and author of "How to Do Your Own Resume with Professional Results".

Stick to the facts, don't lie or embellish, and keep it short and simple, he advises. Falsehoods may even cost you the job a resume helped you get.

Don't use gimmicks such as over- or under-sized paper or vivid paper and ink combinations; stay with black ink on white or pastel paper.

But, the author advises, it is important that you do a critical self-assessment to define who you are and where you want to go, then start your resume. When you do, tell your story to "sell" the reader on giving you an interview.

The book defines opportunity bases, where potential employers are and how to reach them, how to change geography more easily and have interviews waiting, even if you move without a job. Turning unexpected dismissal into opportunity is detailed.

Resume formats — recent graduate, chronological, functional, combination — are shown with variations.

Reasons for using each format, why the combination format is usually the best format to use, and why you should use two separate formats, are all shown.

Lay out your resume for maximum readability; be clear, concise and organized. Above all, be neat.

What to do with the completed resume, what not to do with it, and where "teaser letters" work to get more interviews, are discussed in this complete resume manual.

For more information about the book, write to RESUMES, Box 455, New Canaan, Conn. 06840.

DR. LAMB

By Laurence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had heard that there was some kind of a pap test for men for their prostate called the acid phosphatase test. So I told my husband when he went to see the doctor to have that test done. The doctor said he would be glad to request it and it was a blood test. They simply drew blood from the arm. This puzzles me. How can you check for the prostate without doing something more direct to it?

DEAR READER — The acid phosphatase test is often helpful in determining whether a cancer of the prostate has spread. This is simply a chemical reaction that results from the action of the spreading cancer. It can also be found in some other disorders in which there's active destruction of bone tissue. So it's not a specific test.

There are a lot of blood tests either developed or in the stage of being developed that are used for the early detection of cancer. Many cancers cause chemical changes in the body. As these tests are refined, it will probably add a whole new dimension to the early diagnosis and treatment of cancers that are too small to be felt or detected by physical examination.

There are some new blood tests in the developmental and testing stage for detecting cancer of the prostate, too. These always have to be evaluated over a period of time in enough people to find out how often they're positive in people who are perfectly normal and how often they are negative in people who have cancer. In any case, it certainly is a step in the right direction and looks promising.

At this time the most commonly used test used for the early detection of cancer of the prostate is by feeling the prostate. The doctor feels the little lump that's developed. This has to be done by means of a rectal examination. I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-6, Prostate Gland. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It includes information on early detection.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why is so much emphasis placed on sex these days? Like eating and sleeping, sex is just another bodily function. Some people require more than others. And there are a lot of folks who hardly ever think about it.

Today, everywhere you look you see articles and books telling you how to have "good" sex. There are even therapists to teach people how to do something that comes naturally when two people love each other. My sainted mother would turn over in her grave if she knew that people are actually going to specialists to get instructions on how to make love.

Let's be realistic, Abby. The average person falls in love once (maybe twice) in a lifetime. Unfortunately, some people never fall in love, but they find other things in life that are equally fulfilling and rewarding.

Maybe if we stopped talking about sex so much, we'd have fewer hookers, rapists and sex-crazy people. Right?

LEVELHEADED

DEAR LEVELHEADED: Wrong! Hookers have always been with us. (Isn't prostitution known as the oldest profession?)

And it's time that myth about rape is put to rest. The rapist is more interested in degrading and humiliating women than he is in achieving sexual gratification.

Finally, sex between two people who love each other does not always insure mutual satisfaction nor does it come naturally. Our early training has conditioned many of us to regard sex as nasty and sinful. But thanks to therapy ("lessons," if you will), we can be taught to overcome our inhibitions and hangups, and enjoy sex without guilt.

DEAR ABBY: I have some standard answers for nosy people who ask me how old I am. I always say, "Plenty nine." And when I'm asked how much I weigh, I say, "One hundred and too much."

HAZEL IN PIKETON

DEAR HAZEL: Ain't it the truth!

CONFIDENTIAL TO WASHINGTON STAR READER: You can either earn it or marry it. But if you marry it, you will more than earn it.

How far can we go and still be safe? Get Abby's new booklet: What Teenagers Ought to Know: Send $2 and a long stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to ABBY: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Skellytown wins district championship

MIAMI—Skellytown seventh graders wrapped up the district title Monday with a 42-6 victory over Miami seventh grade.

Will Brown topped the winners in scoring with 14 points. Kent Tice followed with eight points. Ricky Chavez, six; Johnny Furgason and Joe Fitch, four points each; Doyle Garrison, Tim Lane, and Randy Wise, two points each.

"The boys started the season a little ragged, but they developed better as a team as they played more games," Panther coach Don O'Dell said. "They became a winning team."

Brown was selected as the team's most valuable player because of his shotmaking ability while Furgason and Ray Payne were the most improved.

"I look for them to do very well next season in all sports because they've learned how it feels to be a winner and how to play as a team instead of individuals," Brown said.

Other team members were Brent Barbour, David Lawrence, Jacki Ramirez, Lee Parks, and Glen Wise. Managers were Daniel Chavez and Tony Gallegos.

Groom rolls past Wheeler in bi-district

WHITE DEER—Betsy Krizan drilled in 33 points to lead Groom to a 60-38 victory over Wheeler Tuesday night in a girls' Class B bi-district basketball game here.

The Tigerettes, 23-8, meet Nazareth in the first round of the regionals at 7 p.m. Friday at Spth Plains College in Levelland. Nazareth routed Sudan, 63-49, in bi-district play. Krizan, a 5-10 pivot, scored 22 or her total points the first half as Groom ran up a 47-13 halftime advantage.

Karen Kuehler added 12 points to the Groom attack, followed by Lenora Wieberg, six; Jenny Treadwell, four; Dot Kuehler, three, and Beth Kuehler, 2.

Missy Wiggins led Wheeler with 16 points. Beth Brown had 10, Elisa Christner, eight; Mona Jennings, three; Lynette Gaines, one.

For the game, Groom hit 28 of 54 from the floor for 51.8 percent. Wheeler downed 14 of 39 tries for 35.9 percent. Wheeler closes with an 18-13 record.

Track squad hurdling obstacles

In between the unpredictable weather and conflicting athletic schedules, coach Mike Brent is trying to build a sturdy foundation for Pampa High's track and field program this spring.

"Right now we're about two weeks behind," Brent said. "The weather has really been a factor and then we're short some athletes who are involved now in basketball and swimming."

Yet, Brent remains optimistic about the upcoming season.

"I've got guys that are working hard and coming along real strong," Brent added. "We're going to be hurt in depth and experience, but I'm going to make it fun for everyone that comes out. That's my philosophy. To make track fun and see that everyone has a good time."

The high school track, which has been covered with snow and ice off and on for the past two weeks, has been a rugged training ground for the thinclads.

"The track's not marked off yet and there's no place to put the starting blocks, but once the weather clears up we hope to get going real good," Brent added.

The Harvesters open the season Feb. 29 by hosting the Top O' Texas Meet.

There are 34 athletes listed on the roster, but only five are seniors. Brent hopes to work at least 30 freshmen with the varsity squad.

"We've got a good future to look forward to in track," Brent said. "We've got some good, strong athletes coming up. This year I'll be looking for the seniors to make us respectable."

Kyle Bradford, high jump; Danny Buzzard, shot put; Joe Murray, 800 meters, and Mike Wheeler, mile, are expected to carry Pampa's District 3-AAAA hopes.

Bradford took first in the district in high jump competition last year while Murray and Buzzard placed third and fifth respectively in their specialties.

"Joe is going to be out of action for awhile with a sprained ankle and Kyle will be about a week or so behind because of basketball," Brent said.

Brent said the sprint relay team (Steve McDougall, Jeff McDougall, Leroy Kuhn, Mark Kotara and possibly James Borchardt) should be district contenders if they can overcome the disadvantages of playing two sports at once.

"These guys are doubling in baseball, so it makes it pretty tough on them," Brent added. "Right now they're running in the mornings, so they can play baseball in the afternoons."

Radio control meeting Thursday night

A meeting for persons interested in forming a radio control club with airplanes, cars, and boats will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday at Cabot Kingsmill Gas Products Plant, coordinator Danny Martin announced today.

Martin said the public is invited to attend the meeting, particularly wireline experts.

"We've had two previous meetings, and so far 19 people have shown an interest," Martin said. "We'd like to get more people involved."

Interested persons may call Mike McComas (669-3617), Gary Wood (669-3039) or Tom Spencer (665-5990 after five) for more information.

Panhandle turns back S-F, 43-37 in bi-district

AMARILLO—Panhandle, keyed by the all-around efforts of 5-5 Cindy Wright, held off a Sanford-Fritch rally Tuesday night to post a 43-37 1-A bi-district victory.

Wright led Panhandle's balanced scoring attack with 15 points and was the defensive ringleader due to her quickness in the backcourt.

Rhonda Holland contributed 10 points to the Panhandle attack, followed by Kim Kuehler with nine, Polly Avent, five, and Patricia Kotara, four.

Lori Barries paced the losers with 13 points. Karen Durr added nine, Tracy Tryon and Melanie McCoy, six apiece; Tammie Tucker, two, and Kyrrha Hodges, one.

Heiden speeds past opposition

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Some skaters would like to see Eric Heiden take his speed skating medals and go away.

"That's what we are waiting for," Norwegian Frode Roenning said with a rueful smile Tuesday after Heiden had won his third gold medal of the XIII Winter Olympics, this one in the 1,000-meter race.

Heiden, 21 and four times the world champion, became one of four men who have won three gold medals in a single Olympics. And on Thursday he could win an unprecedented fourth in the 1,500, one of his strongest suits. There is a fifth race, the 10,000 meters on Saturday. He will have plenty of competition in that one.

In the 1,000, he set an Olympic record of 1 minute, 15.18 seconds. Gaetan Boucher of Canada won the silver with 1:16.68, and Roenning and Vladimir Lobanov of the Soviet Union tied for the bronze with 1:16.91.

The skater Heiden had most feared in this race, Peter Mueller of Dousman, Wis., finished fifth in 1:17.11. Mueller was the gold medalist in 1976, the first time the 1,000 meter men's race was included in the Olympics. It was Mueller's 1:19.32 mark that Heiden discarded from the record book.

"There's no excitement to racing now," said the 20-year-old Roenning after Heiden had set his third Olympic record in as many races. "The medals are delivered before the races are run."

Heiden skated in the first pair with Boucher, so the first two medals were decided before strong gusts intervened to impede some of the skaters. He paced himself well, faltering only briefly in the final backstretch when he kicked himself in the heel. Boucher seemed to hang on in his wake to finish a full 1 1/2 seconds behind.

Boucher says Heiden brings out the best in a racer, and he is not so eager as Roenning to see Heiden take up cycling or go back to school.

"I'd like to see him skate a few more years because I'd like to beat him," said Boucher, a 21-year-old clerk from Ste. Foy, Quebec.

Heiden was not in the room to hear his colleagues discuss his future. But he has already decided to go seriously into competitive cycling after the Olympics and to return to the University of Wisconsin next fall. He wants eventually to be a doctor, specializing in sports medicine.

His achievement Tuesday put him in league with Ivar Ballangrud and Hjalmar Andersen of Norway and with Duchman Ard Schenk, who won three golds each in 1936, 1952 and 1972 respectively.

Craig Kressler of Midland, Mich., the only other American in Tuesday's race, was 11th with a 1:18.37 record. Of 40 skaters who finished the race, 16 surpassed Mueller's old record on the fast ice here.

St. John's trims Temple, 63-58

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

For some time now, Curtis Redding has been saying that he belongs in St. John's starting lineup.

With Reggie Carter benched by the flu Tuesday night, Redding made some points for his argument against Temple.

The player they call "Hollywood" for his flamboyant court manner scored 17 points, including a crucial field goal in overtime, to lead the nation's seventh-ranked college basketball team to a 63-58 triumph over the Owls.

"St. John's was ripe to be beaten," said Temple Coach Don Casey, referring to a possible letdown after Saturday's tough 72-71 loss to Syracuse. "But you have to make the kill, and we didn't. We outscored them in field goals (21-19), and we held the game in the low scoring range. But we did what we've been doing — making the key mistake at the end."

St. John's did appear to be a bit off its game, and Coach Lou Carnesecca gave credit to Temple for playing aggressive, yet patient basketball.

"We just made some shots at the end and some fouls," he said. Redding's field goal in the first 17 seconds of overtime gave the Redmen a 55-53 lead and Temple never caught up. Wayne McKay led the St. John's scoring with 18 points while Alton McCullough had a career-high 23 points for the Owls.

The St. John's-Temple game was the opener of a doubleheader at Philadelphia's Palestra. In the second game, Bryan Warrick hit a 12-foot jump shot with eight seconds remaining to give St. Joseph's (Pa.) a 54-52 victory over Providence.

St. John's, incidentally, was the only Top Twenty team in action Tuesday night.

In other games, Randy Wright's two free throws in the last 20 seconds gave Oklahoma State a 69-67 victory over Iowa State; Phil Kydd and Kevin Whiting came through with key free throws in the final two minutes as Rhode Island held off Brown 71-67; John Danks' 20 points led Texas over Texas Tech 76-63.

Battered baby dies: mother waits in jail

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Seguin mother has been charged with murder after doctors, acting under a court order, removed the woman's battered 6-week-old daughter from life support machines Tuesday and allowed the "brain dead" infant to die.

Attorneys say the unusual case is apparently the first under a 1979 state law that establishes a legal definition of death. That law says a person is legally dead if brain functions have ceased.

Tiny Dianna Paniagua, pictured in the hometown newspaper Jan. 2 as Guadalupe County's first child of 1980, had been sustained by a respirator at Santa Rosa Hospital here since she was allegedly beaten Feb. 5.

Her mother, 32-year-old Juanita Paniagua, had been jailed on child abuse charges. But Guadalupe County officials upgraded the charges to murder less than three hours after Dianna died.

Mrs. Paniagua remained jailed today in lieu of $25,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Charles Davis.

Attorney Charles Butts, who represents the woman, has requested psychiatric tests to determine if the woman is mentally competent to stand trial.

State District Judge Judge B.B. Schraub ruled last week that the respirator should be shut off after doctors testified the infant's brain had ceased to function Feb. 12.

"They've been running the electroencephalograms on the child's brain fairly regularly. All of them have been flat. That indicates no activity in the brain, or brain death," said Santa Rosa spokesman Jack Finger.

Dianna was born early Jan. 1. A photograph of the infant and her mother appeared in the Jan. 2 edition of the Seguin Gazette-Enterprise.

Dianna was taken to Santa Rosa on Feb. 5 with fractured ribs, leg injuries and brain damage, said Finger. He said she was placed on the respirator shortly after her arrival.

Schraub said he would stay his order to give attorneys an opportunity to appeal the ruling to the Texas Supreme Court. But Butts and Seguin attorney Jim Frost, guardian ad litem for the infant, decided not to appeal.

"It was all handled very carefully in court. The EEGs were not showing any sign of brain function, and there were five doctors who testified. An appeal seemed to me to be a misuse of the law," said Butts.

Butts said the Texas Department of Human Resources has taken custody of the other three Paniagua children pending disposition of this case. Those children range in age from 1 to 5.

Butts said the children's father, Antonio Paniagua, 30, is employed full time as a carpenter in Wimberley. He must commute every day and was at work when the beating allegedly occurred, Butts added.

Blackthorn crew accounted for: 14 bodies recovered

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Navy divers attacked the wreckage of the refloated Coast Guard cutter Blackthorn with sledgehammers and crowbars and forced their way into its compartments to find the bodies of 14 missing crewmen.

As cranes hoisted the cutter Tuesday, a dozen pumps spewed muddy water and the Blackthorn listed toward its gashed port side.

Strapped to the mangled railing of the gored buoy tender were five motorcycles and a bicycle, several still upright after 3½ weeks at the bottom of Tampa Bay.

They belonged to some of the 50 Blackthorn crewmen steaming home to Galveston, Texas, the night of Jan. 28 after several months in drydock for repairs.

Twenty-three men died when the 180-foot cutter collided with an oil tanker at the mouth of the bay in the Coast Guard's worst peacetime tragedy. Ironically, it came on the Coast Guard's 65th anniversary.

By 2 p.m., the shipping channel was completely open to regular traffic for the first time since the accident. A temporary channel alongside the Blackthorn had allowed small and medium-sized ships to pass.

Only nine bodies had turned up before Tuesday. The other victims weren't able to escape as the ship went down in less than five minutes.

After an American flag was dramatically hoisted above the cutter, the divers began their gruesome task. Several of the 14 missing men had apparently died at their duty stations or while trying to abandon ship, a spokesman said.

Ten bodies were found in the cutter's engine room, five piled up under an escape hatch, said Lt. Norris Turner. Three more were behind the mess deck where emergency equipment was stored and the last was found in the chart room behind the bridge, Turner said.

"I expect, after it went over, they could have been working or perhaps that's where an air pocket was," Turner said. "I guess we'll know better after they're identified."

The badly decomposed bodies were loaded into green body bags and taken ashore.

BODIES OF MISSING CREWMEN OF THE BLACKTHORN were recovered Tuesday when the sunken cutter was raised from the channel of Tampa Bay. Twenty-three crewmen died as a result of the collision which sent the Coast Guard vessel to the bottom of the bay. (AP Photo)

Tito's job passes to new commission

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Control of Yugoslavia already has passed into the hands of the unglamorous collective leadership designed to succeed President Josip Broz Tito.

The leadership is made up of a nine-man Presidency and a 23-member group in charge of the Communist Party. They have been in control of Yugoslavia ever since Tito first entered the hospital January 3.

Tito, the 87-year-old Communist Party chief and president-for-life, had his left leg amputated Jan. 20 because circulation problems threatened fatal gangrene. He is now suffering kidney and heart complications.

Members of the Presidency met at their circular table Tuesday to discuss unspecified organizational and constitutional issues, the national news agency, Tanjug, said.

The meeting was chaired by Lazar Kolisevski, the 66-year-old vice president who would become its president if Tito dies.

The Communist Party is headed by 60-year-old Stevan Doronjski, a wartime political commissar who would rise to the top in case of Tito's death.

Neither man would be permitted to stay in office beyond rigidly fixed terms — May in the case of Kolisevski, November for Doronjski.

Their jobs would then rotate automatically to others who would serve equally limited terms.

Neither man would be able to make big decisions on his own.

Even when Tito was healthy enough to take an active part in government, the system he designed required that all members agree on major moves.

This was to prevent the building of personal power and prevent any one of Yugoslavia's widely varying political regions from acting against the will of another.

Still, many see a distinct assignment of roles among certain members of the party leadership, the group which appears to wield the greater power.

THE STORM DID THIS. A neighborhood youngster wields a broom outside this demolished home in the San Francisco suburb of Pacifica on Tuesday after the latest of the major storms which have lashed California for one week swept across Northern California during the night bringing wind gusts and heavy rains.

Damage mounts as West Coast storms continue

A Malibu home toppled into the Pacific Ocean and others were overrun by mud or threatened by pounding surf as Southern California braced today for its sixth rainstorm in a week and the toll of property damage from foul weather in the West climbed past $300 million.

More than 4,000 persons were forced to flee as mudslides and walls of water up to 15 feet high destroyed or threatened homes. Nearly 100,000 in Northern California were without power.

At least 27 deaths have been attributed to the storms that began a week ago today.

As water cascaded over the tops of dams in Utah and levees crumbled in Southern California, a tornado struck near an airliner taking on passengers in Fresno, Calif. Two persons received minor injuries.

Pounding surf and rain-softened bluffs threatened more homes along the Malibu beaches, where at least one home was lost to the storm, according to Los Angeles County officials.

Food shortages were reported north of downtown Los Angeles in the Topanga Canyon, where a 15-foot wall of water gushed through the exclusive neighborhood.

Traffic jams stretched for 10 miles in Phoenix, Ariz., after the usually dry Salt River flooded even more, cutting the number of crossings from ten to two.

State Emergency Services Director Alex Cunningham estimated $252 million property damage in Southern California, where the rain forced farmers to leave crops rotting in soaked fields. Crop damage so far in the fertile region that supplies much of the nation's winter lettuce and citrus was estimated at $26 million.

Arizona officials estimated damage at $40 million, and Utah officials, more than $1 million.

Rainfall in Los Angeles since Feb. 13, when the storms began, has measured 11.65 inches, pushing the total for the season to 20 1/2 inches, nearly 11 inches above normal.

A flash flood watch continued over much of Southern California today as bands of rain fell on the area. Storm No. 6 was about 1,000 miles out in the Pacific and expected to hit Thursday.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., whose home in Laurel Canyon was flooded, returned Tuesday from a presidential campaign swing through New Hampshire to sign an emergency proclamation adding four counties to the two where property owners already were eligible for low-interest disaster loans.

President Carter declared central Arizona eligible for federal aid. Streets approaching the two remaining bridges in Phoenix took on a carnival atmosphere as people began selling coffee, sandwiches and soft drinks to motorists who faced waits of more than six hours.

At seven Salt River crossings, the road runs through the bed of the normally dry river. The Interstate 10 bridge was closed Tuesday, when officials feared it had been weakened by churning water gnawing at its underpinnings.

"I've moved one block in three hours," said Vivian Vensel. "If I knew it was going to be this bad, I would have stayed at work and slept in the office."

A United Airlines 727 jet was loading at the Fresno airport for a flight to San Francisco when a tornado touched down, ripping most of the roof off the terminal.

"Almost everybody was on the plane," said Michael Olmstead, a passenger from Ridgecrest, Calif. "They closed the door, and the rest of us went back inside. Then it hit."

More than 95,000 customers throughout Northern California were without power Monday and Tuesday, said a spokeswoman for Pacific Gas & Electric. Roberta Palm said some in the Santa Cruz mountains would still be without power today.

More than 300 elderly persons were without power for a third day in Woodland Hills near Los Angeles at the Motion Picture and Television Country House, which was hit by a six-foot wall of water that caused more than $500,000 damage.

The famous sufferer with the unknown, "Tonight Show" host Johnny Carson told his audience that the basement of his Bel Air home was flooded and his swimming pool was filled with mud.

Agricultural officials said hard-hit crops in Southern California included citrus, strawberries, broccoli, cabbage, lettuce and flowers. Irrigation systems suffered $10 million damage, they said.

The muddy waters began to recede at Point Mugu Naval Air Station in Ventura County, where 3,000 residents were evacuated after 550 homes and some other facilities were inundated with up to six feet of muck following the collapse Sunday of an earthen levee holding back nearby Calleguas Creek.

Southwestern Utah expected more flooding while northern Utah coped with mud from Monday's waters, estimated to have caused $1 million damage in Cache County. In southwestern Utah, both the lower and upper Enterprise reservoirs were overflowing.

Reyes Syndrome deaths alarming Michigan parents

SHERWOOD, Mich. (AP) — An eerie silence hangs over Sherwood Elementary School, a five-room schoolhouse in this tiny south Michigan town, where two students have died of mysterious Reyes' Syndrome in the last four months.

The unusual child-killing disease claimed at least one more victim in nearby Battle Creek. Officials in Sherwood where two have died of Reyes' Syndrome were forced to close schools today because parents refused to send their children to classes.

There also have been deaths in Minnesota and Ohio, authorities say.

"People are panicky, they're scared," said Kay Golden, who runs the general store in this community of 400 persons.

Only 23 of the 96 students at Sherwood Elementary School showed up for classes Monday and Tuesday after the death Friday of 8-year-old Michael Duttlinger. In November, Holly Jo Burgett and her brother Andrew contracted Reyes' Syndrome and 7-year-old Holly died.

The disease, which often follows a bout with influenza or other viruses, has symptoms that include swelling of the brain, nausea and high fever. There is no universally accepted cure, according to The Merck Manual of Diagnosis and Therapy.

Despite state officials' assurances that it is not believed contagious, Sherwood parents said they would not send students back until they know how to spot Reyes' Syndrome and what to do about it.

Meanwhile, 8-year-old Tiphany Wheeler of nearby

Battle Creek died Monday. Michigan's third confirmed victim of 1980. Tracy Williamson, 12, died Saturday in Battle Creek, 18 miles from Sherwood, and preliminary pathologist reports indicated the suspected cause of her death was Reyes' Syndrome.

"We want to be concerned about this, but not panicked," said William Tebbe, Sherwood interim school superintendent. "If my child gets it, he gets it. There's not a lot I can do about it."

Tebbe said health officials would meet with parents tonight to answer questions. He said he closed the district's four schools because of a flu outbreak and the high absenteeism.

Paula Langdon, a neighbor who tried to comfort Michael Duttlinger's mother the week before the boy died, said the real issue in Sherwood is the fear that illnesses commonly spread around schools could develop into Reyes' Syndrome.

"The only way to keep the children from getting sick upon sick is to keep them out of school until some of the bugs are gone," she said.

During the peak of the flu season last year, 48 Michigan children contracted the disease and seven of them died, authorities said.

In Duluth, Minn., on Monday, Reyes' Syndrome claimed the life of 8-year-old Richard Alan Shimmin. It was the first known case in that city.

The state Health Department reported last week that there had been six cases of Reyes' Syndrome in Minnesota this year. Officials say the mortality rate among those who contract severe cases is 20 to 25 percent.
