Commission permission to see hostages okayed

By The Associated Press

A leading Iranian official was quoted as saying the U.N. commission arrived at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran to meet the American hostages, who began their 118th day in captivity today, but one of the militants occupying the mission said the panel has "never been here" and there were no plans for a visit.

The claim that the commission arrived was made by Hojatoleslam Hashemi Rafsanjani, a member of the ruling Revolutionary Council who also said a representative of President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr was with the panel, Tehran Radio said.

But one of the embassy militants reached by telephone by The Associated Press in Nicosia, Cyprus, denied the commission had arrived at the embassy, suggested another telephone call Saturday, then added:

"We don't right now have plans (for the commission) to visit the hostages. If we want them to, we will announce it. The commission is here to investigate the shah's crimes and the U.S. crimes."

On Thursday, however, Tehran Radio reported that the embassy militants agreed to let the five-member commission and Bani-Sadr meet with the approximately 50 hostages.

The reason for allowing the commission to meet with the hostages was not immediately known. But Iran's revolutionary government has insisted there is no link between the commission's work and freedom for the captives, who began their 118th day in captivity today.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's all-powerful leader, has put the fate of the hostages in the hands of the Majlis, or Parliament, which is to be elected in balloting on March 14 and April 3.

Revolutionary Council secretary Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti said Wednesday it would be several weeks after the elections before the legislature could take up the hostage question, indicating at least 10 more weeks of captivity.

A spokesman for the militants was quoted as saying even a decision by the legislature to free the Americans hinged on the militants' original demand that Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi be returned to Iran from exile in Panama.

After the shah and his wealth are returned to Iran "the Majlis may decide to release the hostages," the spokesman told the Tehran daily Kayhan.

"In fact," he was quoted as saying, "We have to get concessions from the U.S. at this stage of the struggle. We will not give in or bow to the U.S. government."

The U.N. commission spent its fifth full day Thursday probing the causes of the revolution and the events that led up to it. The panel visited a prison once run by the shah's secret police and toured the shah's main palace.

Meanwhile, the State Department in Washington announced plans to increase protection at American missions abroad to head off takeovers like the one carried out by Iranian militants on Nov. 4.

U.S. officials said embassies will be equipped with tear gas nozzles concealed in doorways and lobbies so that guards can blast threatening mobs with the gas.

MEMBERS OF THE U.N. COMMISSION investigating alleged crimes of the Shah leave what was described as a torture chamber at Evin Prison in Tehran Thursday. In the foreground is Hector Jayewardene of Sri Lanka. Following him is Syria's Adib Daoudy, assisted by an aide. In doorway, background, is Louis Pettiti of France. The commissioners toured the prison after visiting one of the Shah's palaces.

Yippee! It's Leap Year!

Congratulations to those who have waited four long years to celebrate the event of their birth.

For the rest of the population, who must suffer the annual event and age accordingly, February 29 sounds like a terrific idea.

Surely they celebrate in a grand manner and save up those extra three years just thinking of wonderful parties in which to celebrate the event.

A special Happy Birthday to Dixie Dixon, Pamela Porter, John Haire, Velma Lewter of Pampa, you will certainly stay as young as you feel!

To all the non-birthday people, watch out, it's SADIE HAWKINS DAY!

SWPS files increase

Southwestern Public Service Company officials Thursday filed a request with the 66 cities it serves in Texas for an increase in its retail rates.

The request, if approved, would increase Southwestern's revenues by 14.78 percent.

Information outlining the company's needs was presented to officials of the cities on Jan. 28.

Bert Ballengee, executive vice-president of Southwestern Public Service, said the increase is needed for three primary reasons: inflation, the high cost of money and the cost of switching from gas to coal-fired power plants.

The company also filed a similar request with the Texas Public Utility Commission for an increase in rates for the company's rural customers in Texas.

Americans can now hear Moscow's propaganda

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time in memory, Radio Moscow's English language broadcasts are being beamed to parts of the United States on a standard AM frequency, federal officials say.

"I don't know of any other instance in which we've picked up Moscow's propaganda, in English, coming into the United States... where any average Joe can pick it up in his car," said a Federal Communications Commission source who asked not to be identified.

The broadcasts, monitored in Florida on Tuesday and Wednesday, were relayed by a Cuban station.

"It was pure propaganda aimed at the United States," said James C. McKinney of the FCC. "By broadcasting primarily at night, they were clearly trying to reach as much of Florida and beyond as possible."

Radio Moscow, heard around the world via short-wave transmissions, recently has presented as news the Kremlin's position on the Russian occupation of Afghanistan. The state-run facility typically presents only the government's view of developments around the world, often railing against "American imperialism."

State Department officials said they could not predict whether the Cuban relays marked the start of a propaganda campaign aimed at masses of American listeners.

McKinney, chief of the FCC's field operations bureau, confirmed Thursday night that his bureau's monitoring stations in Fort Lauderdale and Tampa, Fla., had detected the signal.

"It began at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and continued through 9 a.m. Wednesday," McKinney said. "Our bearings indicate it was coming from a radio station which we know as CMCA, in Las Vegas, Cuba, using the 600 kilohertz frequency on the AM band."

"We started monitoring when we received a complaint of interference from WSNY-AM in Jacksonville, which broadcasts on the same 600 kilohertz frequency," he added.

McKinney said he could not immediately determine whether the transmissions were in violation of hemispheric agreements that limit the frequencies used by stations "close to international borders."

He said the station should have at least given its location and added that "there are many stations operating in Cuba now that aren't observing international agreements."

William T. Shinn Jr., director of the State Department's Soviet affairs office, said Thursday night he was not aware of the FCC's monitoring report, adding that he's "certainly never heard of that happening before."

PAMPA AND SCHLUMBERGER OFFICIALS turned out Thursday to "turn the turf" for construction of a new $350,000 building for Schlumberger Well Services on West Kentucky west of Price Road. Construction of the 50- by 220-foot building is to begin immediately with Tusha Builders of Odessa as contractor. District Manager Stan Harris said company officials hope the building is completed by July or August. He said the building is a more modern facility and will allow room for company expansion if needed. Shown "turning the turf" Thursday are, from left, Kay Fancher, Chamber President Artie Altergut, Schlumberger's division manager Jess Maxwell of Dallas, Mayor Ray Thompson, Schlumberger engineer Tony Gannell, and Gold Coats representatives Don Bigham and Harold Barrett.

Moslem guerillas intense in anti-Soviet attacks

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A newly-organized militia led by Afghanistan's deputy prime minister was arresting and executing members of the minority Shiite Moslem sect following house-to-house searches in their neighborhoods in Kabul, Afghan and foreign sources said today.

The number of Shiites killed by Deputy Prime Minister Assadullah Sarwari's Revolutionary Guard was not known. But reports received in New Delhi from the Afghan capital cited many individual cases of one or two family members shot to death outside their houses.

The official Afghan agency Bakhtar said today that "not one person was executed" during the violent anti-Soviet protests last week. Tass reported. The official Soviet news agency quoted Bakhtar as saying "the reports alleging that 1,000 people were executed during the latest counter-revolutionary disturbances" were spread by "some imperialist mass media."

One well-placed informant quoted a senior police official as saying nearly 2,000 persons have been jailed at Pul-i-Charhki prison, east of Kabul, since last week's violent protests against the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan and the Marxist regime of President Babrak Karmal.

The Shiites, mainly members of the Hazara and Iranian-descended Qili bash tribes, were suspected of instigating the anti-communist street demonstrations, in which at least 300 persons were reported killed and an estimated 1,000 others injured.

Kabul was tense this morning following a night of sporadic machinegun fire, travelers arriving at Delhi Airport said. Afghan and Soviet troops were placed on alert because of a possible repetition of disturbances which followed Friday prayers at the capital's mosques last week.

The Shiites may also have been singled out because of potential links with Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, a Shiite, who has voiced support for the Moslem rebels in Afghanistan, observers said.

The rebels Thursday promised new anti-Soviet demonstrations today, but some Western diplomats were skeptical the guerrillas could mount another citywide offensive so soon after last week's street battles.

Governors endorse Mexico meeting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A meeting of all Mexico's 10 governors to discuss border problems has been strongly endorsed by the neighbor governors of Texas and Chihuahua, Mexico.

"We are both in agreement that such a meeting would be most worthwhile and productive," said Texas Gov. Bill Clements after a daylong visit with Gov. Manuel Bernardo Aguirre of Chihuahua City.

Bernardo Aguirre said he was "completely in accord and the other (Mexican) governors are too."

No date or site has been set for the meeting.

"We feel this would really contribute to the national policy of what should be done along the U.S.-Mexico border," Clements told a late afternoon news conference. "What the 10 governors would say would have a strong influence on the policy of both nations."

Bernardo Aguirre was asked if he thought the children of illegal aliens in Texas should receive free schooling, the subject of a trial in Houston.

He said he thought the problem should be solved in a "humanitarian" manner.

Clements broke in to say the schooling of the children of undocumented Mexican workers in Texas was just a part of the overall problem of undocumented workers "that he and I and other governors will be seeking a solution. If this undocumented worker is legally in the state, as we are proposing, there is no doubt in my mind that this child should be accepted in the schools."

Clements visited Chihuahua City last October and Thursday was the return visit by Bernardo Aguirre. The daylong program was filled with ceremonies and festivities.

DANIEL PELZIG, a member of the Richard Thomas Theatre Ballet, taught a guest class Thursday afternoon for members of the Pampa Civic Ballet and other interested persons. Pelzig and 10 other energetic young dancers from the New York company later presented an evening of ballet for members of the Pampa Community Concert Association. For a review of the performance, see page 2 of today's News.

Thomas ballet shows vitality

By TINA McCLOY
Of The Pampa News
 Violette Verdy would have appreciated Pampa's reaction to the "Pas de Deux" from "Stars and Stripes."
 The Thursday night audience, gathered in M.K. Brown Auditorium to watch the Richard Thomas Theatre Ballet, came alive during the delightful performance of "Stars and Stripes" — a dance endeared to audiences everywhere by Miss Verdy, one of M.K. Brown's first guest artists.
 Bronwyn Thomas and Gino Karczewski, closely following the original choreography, danced with vigor as well as poise. The audience, a bit quiet before intermission, responded enthusiastically to "Stars and Stripes," with the familiar music of John Philip Sousa.
 Thomas conveyed the highest degree of professionalism of the female members of the company. Her parents, Richard Thomas and Barbara Fallin — the company's artistic directors — surely have contributed to her professional experience, but the poise and confidence she displayed are characteristics she, like any performer, had to develop individually.

She performed well again in "Black Swan Pas de Deux" from "Swan Lake." The classical performance, staged after the original, also included the abilities of Andrew Needhammer, who was light on his feet despite a few extra pounds. The only disappointing feature was a distracting tape of Tchaikovsky's beautiful music.
 The Community Concert program got off to a slow start, keeping up with the evening's dancing was somewhat difficult because of several errors on the printed program. The first dance, "Valse-Fantaisie," featured Marissa Benetsky and Needhammer as the sole performers in a slightly modern variation of George Balanchine's original.

The second number of the evening, "Boys Dance," was a bold, masculine performance by the youthful company's five male dancers, attired in tie-dyed tights. The Daniel Levans' choreography reflected the trend of most American ballet companies today — the intertwining of modern with classical.

Witnesses of Faith

In a court of Law justice demands that truth or falsehood be confirmed by witnesses. Such has become the cornerstone of justice in our nation.
 According to the Hebrew writer in the New Testament a "great cloud of witnesses" surrounds us and teaches us to "lay aside every weight and the sin which so easily besets us" (Hebrews 12:1). He refers to the testimony of faith found in the lives of the great Jewish leaders mentioned in Hebrews 11. The faith of these men was so great that they believed God would fulfill promises given to them though they remained unfulfilled in their lifetime. These men died in faith having not received the promises (Hebrews 11:13) but they knew God who "cannot lie" (Titus 2:1) would be true to His word. It was hundreds and sometimes thousands of years before their faith in God was justified because He fulfilled the promises He had given.
 We will miss the glory of heaven if we rely on immediate fulfillment of this promise of God to maintain our faith. Some promises of God are fulfilled in our lifetime and others will be fulfilled at the end of all time (John 5:28-29). Our faith in God must be obedient just as the faith of Abraham was (Romans 4:16; Hebrews 11:8) and then at the close of time if we have been faithful unto death we shall be rewarded accordingly (Revelation 2:10). Be cautious not to possess an evil heart of unbelief and through such be disobedient unto God lest you incur the judgement of God "they shall not enter My rest" (Hebrews 3:12-19).

Charged drug trafficker to face Texas courts

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Jamie "Jimmy" Chagra, the convicted narcotics trafficker and fugitive, was expected to return to Texas voluntarily on Friday to face a possible life sentence in federal prison.

Chagra, 35, waived extradition proceedings during a brief hearing here Thursday.

A successful blackjack player, Chagra skipped town last August just before he was to be sentenced in Austin on a continuing criminal enterprise conviction. During his trial, prosecutors said he masterminded a massive drug smuggling scheme from Colombia to the United States.

Chagra was arrested Feb. 21 by federal Drug Enforcement Administration agents who followed his car down the Las Vegas Strip.

During a 5-minute extradition hearing Thursday, Chagra sat quietly while his attorney, Oscar Goodman, told U.S. Magistrate Joseph L. Ward his client would waive his right to a removal hearing.

Ward continued Chagra's $3 million bond.

Goodman said a tentative sentencing date of March 17 had been set for Chagra. And he said an appeal would be filed as soon as the sentence is imposed.

"That's why we're anxious to get him back there, so we can start the appellate process," Goodman said.

Goodman declined to say what the specific basis for the appeal would be, but said there were several "novel issues" raised during Chagra's drug smuggling trial, including the "continuing criminal enterprise" statute under which he was convicted.

Goodman refused to comment on why Chagra.

Road changes proposed to Canadian Council

CANADIAN — Leon Wood of the Texas Department of Highways recommended stripping four lanes of traffic and prohibiting parallel parking on U.S. 60-83. Wood made his recommendations to the Canadian City Council, which met this week in regular session.

When asked about the likelihood of additional signal lights on the major highway that winds through Canadian, Wood wasn't very optimistic and said the traffic volume did not warrant such installations. The state highway official did sympathize with local motorists on problems crossing certain unsignaled intersections, but said adequate law enforcement should remedy the situation.

Wood said according to state traffic surveys, some half of the autos and one-third of the trucks were exceeding the 35 mph speed limit at the caution light at Elliott Street where it intersects with the major highway at the southwest end of town.

Councilmen seemed in favor of stripping the traffic along the highway but balked on Wood's recommendation for prohibiting parallel parking. Council members said they were concerned with the business need for parking along the highway and tabled the state project until next month.

The city council also decided not fund its share of the upcoming Hemphill County Library budget.

Council members said they would like to see the county and possibly the school district underwrite most of the expense since their tax structure is much "broader based" and deals mostly with oil and gas companies.

The council agreed on a $5,000 contribution to the library in hopes the county and school district would take on the remaining balance.

The project budget for the library is about $39,000 for the upcoming fiscal year. In past years, the city and county have shared equally in the library's operations costs.

In other city business, the council will soon be announcing a special meeting concerning the city's power needs but chose to wait for word from Southwestern Public Service.

Tax group head indicted

MIDLAND — A federal grand jury in Midland has returned a six-count indictment against Amarillo optometrist and head of a tax revolt group Dr. Austin B. Tibbets.

The indictment charges Tibbets with three felony counts of income tax evasion and three counts of willful failure to file his federal income tax return Forms 1040 for 1974, 1975 and 1976, according to a news release from the U.S. Attorney, West District of Texas.

The indictment alleges that Tibbets attempted to evade his income taxes by failing to make a proper income tax return, failing to pay his income taxes, discontinuing use of checking accounts and using currency, money orders and cashier's checks to cover his transactions; preparing and causing to be filed a protest-type Form 1040 in which he failed to disclose his income, expenses, and deductions; and admitting orally and in writing that he intended not to pay income taxes.

The maximum penalty under the indictment is 18 years in prison and a $60,000 fine.

Tibbets served as the head of the United Tax Action Patriots.

K-Mart proposes purchase of Furr's Cafeterias Inc.

DALLAS — Robert E. Dewar, chairman of the board of K-Mart Corporation, and Don G. Furr, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Furr's Cafeterias Inc., jointly announced Thursday an agreement in principle for the acquisition of any and all shares of Furr's Cafeterias common stock by K-Mart for $28 per share in cash pursuant to a tender offer, to be followed by a merger of Furr's Cafeterias with a K-Mart subsidiary at the same price per share.

The transactions will be submitted to the board of directors of Furr's Cafeterias at a meeting scheduled to be conducted on March 3 and will be subject to board approval of the tender offer and a merger agreement, compliance with regulatory requirements and certain other conditions. The tender offer is scheduled to commence March 4.

Based upon the number of shares of Furr's Cafeterias common stock and warrants and options to purchase Furr's Cafeterias stock outstanding, the aggregate purchase price would be approximately $7.4 million.

K-Mart also announced that it had entered into agreements to purchase 272,029 shares of Furr's Cafeterias common stock, representing approximately 10.8 percent of Furr's Cafeterias outstanding shares, from Don G. Furr, Clem B. Boverie and another major shareholder. The closing of such purchases is expected to occur on or prior to commencement of the tender offer at the same price as that paid in the tender offer.

Furr stated, "I am delighted with the prospect of combining with K-Mart."

Dewar added, "We are very pleased with the proposed merger and look forward to working with the entire Furr's organization and combining the strengths of our two outstanding companies."

Furr's Cafeterias Inc., based in Lubbock, operates a chain of 76 cafeterias in the Southwestern United States. Furr's Cafeterias recently announced 1979 revenues of $98.9 million, an increase of 17 percent over 1978 revenues of $84.6 million, and net earnings of $5.02 million ($2.06 per share).

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coving Commandment.

Britain learns what we haven't

We can't speak for the political viability of Margaret Thatcher's government in Great Britain, about which doubts continue to be raised. We remain impressed, however, with the courage and correctness of many of her policies. In several respects, socialist England is on a far sounder course than our own nation.

Earlier this month, for instance, Thatcher's deputies announced a major step away from state-owned rental housing. Having considerable experience with that arrangement, Britain is beginning to recognize some strengths of an alternative in which consumers and suppliers must agree to a free exchange. Here, increasingly, we tend to think there is some omnipotent force — the state — that can alter this relationship for the greater good of all. In actuality, it can only interfere in the voluntary dealings between two parties with something to offer, probably discouraging one or the other from the deal.

Only about 30 percent of Britons rent, but the government is landlord to virtually all who do. Because of strict regulation of rents and the difficulty of evicting tenants, the New York Times reports, the private rental market has dwindled to virtually nothing. For tenants who can obtain accommodations, the terms are seemingly advantageous. Rents average $14.50 a week, and two-thirds of the units are houses, not apartments.

Why would anyone want to disturb such a cozy set-up? Aside from a basic preference for the expansion of individual rights of ownership and use that the transfer of about a million housing units to private hands would constitute, the Tories have a very immediate economic consideration in mind. Through this and other moves, they want to set a stagnant economy in motion.

The maintenance of long-term tenancy through bargain-rate rents (which decline once a building has been paid off) discourages movement. Workers or managers whose skills might give them mobility in a productive, vibrant economy are induced to remain static either because their present rental is incomparably cheap or because nothing is available in their desired locale. There is built into the present system a tremendous immobility of labor, a Thatcher minister observed.

The Conservatives intend to sell off most of the government housing to individual buyers at considerable discounts and excellent terms. The British plan is, of course, analogous to the condominium conversion movement here, which many local governments have acted to stifle. The effect of their ordinances is to keep housing prices below the level at which anyone wishing to pay a seller's price is able to obtain shelter. The result of such policies can be seen by looking at the economic state of England. It is not a pretty sight.

Should we persist in our present legislative bent, we shall not only be moving directly counter to the enlightened policies of Britain, but we shall incur the further harm of discouraging investment in the privately offered stock of RENTAL housing, a component of our market which most other nations lack and whose owners are justly fearful not only of bans on their eventual right of conversion, but of the controls on rent prices and rights of refusal that are both in vogue. It is these market-priced rentals, even more than the owner-occupied units that the British are trying to foster, which are conducive to social mobility.

Perhaps the trend in our housing policy can be reversed before we must descend into the English abyss to recognize the error of our ways.

Your federal tax return forms came in the mail, probably the day after Christmas. By now you should also have your W-2 form from your employer, showing your wages for 1979.
So now all you have to do, from the Internal Revenue Service's point of view, is be honest.
Fear. The IRS counts on it to keep you and 132 million other taxpayers in line. Massive intimidation. And it works.
Two million of us last year cheated ourselves out of money, we were so honest. About $152 each, on average.
But the IRS never relaxes in its effort to keep us guessing. While the IRS won't talk publicly about its methods, bits and pieces slip out all the time.

IRS 'fear tactics'
Sometimes ex-agents talk about their old jobs. Sometimes other government agencies spill the beans. Often, hidden policies slip out in Tax Court. And last month a federal judge ruled the IRS must release internal memos on how it makes rulings.
The problem is not that taxpayers are afraid to turn into criminals — fraud on your tax return is a crime. By far the majority are honest.
The problem is that IRS regulations are not all cut and dried. Many are open to interpretation.
But the IRS is determined to get the benefit of the doubt when there is a doubt about what taxpayers should do.
This year, the IRS is trying something new. Its current strategy seems to be to lean on tax preparers and accountants, trying to force them to take a hard line with their customers in favor of the IRS.
Almost half of all taxpayers find they have to go to a tax preparer for help in filling out their tax returns. In fact, if they have highly complicated returns, the IRS gets suspicious if they don't go to a tax preparer.

For whom the sting stung

by Paul Harvey

I was on R&R in the mountains of Arizona when the sting stung.
Several members of Congress were revealed as having received bribe offers from FBI agents posing as wealthy Arabs.
Immediately, the American Civil Liberties Union cried "Foul!"—blasted the FBI, called the disclosures "outrageous."
Ralph Nader pronounced himself "offended."
Sen. David Pryor of Arkansas accused the FBI of "a new McCarthyism." He did not appreciate this public investigation of public officials—some of them in his state. Though Sen. Pryor is a member of the Senate Ethics Committee.
After breathing all that fresh Arizona air, then flying back into this ugly overcast, one gets the impression that y'all can't tell the good guys from the bad guys.
Unless when I wasn't looking somebody shuffled the Stetsons, y'all are shooting holes in the white hats—protesting that somehow it's the FBI which has been naughty.

By golly, we're going to have to get that straightened out!
The sting that stung members of Congress is nothing new. Generations of local police officials have set up their own fencing operations to receive stolen goods and filmed the transactions and arrested the thieves and recovered the goods.
Nobody objected to this standard police tactic as "unfair" or "unbecoming" until members of Congress and other public officials were caught in the act.
Political corruption cases are very difficult to prove. The difference between a campaign contribution and a bribe involves a matter of "interest," and in a court of law there is nothing more difficult to prove than "intent."
Only by setting up a sting operation are lawmen able to film transactions, record negotiations, establish motives.
Already, however, one of the congressmen implicated, Richard Kelly of Florida, has protested that he participated in the bribe-taking—accepted $25,000 in cash—only because he was planning his own investigation of this caper.

While all this furore was going on over who stung whom in Washington, D.C., and elsewhere, the state of Arizona was allocating millions of dollars to wage all-out war on criminals and-or corrupt politicians in that state. And the appropriation specified half a million additional dollars for the Department of Public Safety to pay for "sting operations" to be conducted by state, county and city lawmen.
Maybe it's different in the West, but neither the media nor anybody else raised any objections.
Two of the state's lawmakers, West and Corbin, reflected the majority view in a dozen words: "The alternative might be the eventual takeover of the state by mobsters."

Ilk year known as lepe

By Don Graff
This is not to claim that you're hearing it here first, but just to remind that 1980 is a leap year.
And to recall that we have Julius Caesar to thank for it. It was 2,025 years ago, by best estimates, that he decided to straighten out the calendar much as he had the affairs of Rome.
Because the earth requires about six hours more than 365 days to complete an orbit of the sun, the year back then was not the precise measurement of one full circuit we know today. There was slippage of a quarter of a day per year which over the years amounted to quite a few days. Caesar brought the calendar into synch with earth and sun through the simple expedient of every fourth year dropping an extra day into the shortest month.
That, save for some fine tuning by Pope Gregory XIII in the 16th century, would be the end of the story had not the Scottish parliament had an impulse in the (leap) year of 1288, for the details of which we are in 1980 indebted to the National Geographic Society. To wit, a decree declaring:
It is statut and ordaint that for ilk yeare known as lepe yeare, ilk maiden ladie, of bath high and low estait, shall hae libertie to bespeke ye man she likes.
Before long, similar legislation was on the books in England, France, Italy and so on. And there you have it — one year in every four of reversed sexism in which woman has the liberty of pursuit of man, in case she prefers that to happiness.
That is not, however, all there is to leap year. There is the matter of being born on that extra day, for example. Technically, such people have birthdays only once every four years. Which about half those affected may consider a greater boon than being authorized to pursue the other half.
As a matter of fact, this is the situation with any specific occasion falling on that extra day. All such are once-in-four-years affairs, which suggests that Caesar and the Scottish parliament didn't go nearly far enough.
If they had really wanted to do us a favor, if not the Internal Revenue Service, they would have arranged to have April 15 fall on February 29.

Farewell, George
More on the subject of anniversaries, there is one that is not being observed by the House of Representatives this year.
The House has cancelled its customary special George Washington's birthday session for the reading of the first president's farewell address.
The reason is attendance — or rather, lack of same. Virtually nobody except the designated reader has been showing up in recent years, so it was decided that no point was served in carrying on a tradition to an empty chamber.
Not, as it so happens, that it has been such a lengthy tradition. The first rereading in the House was not until 1919, 123 years after the original delivery — which was not by Washington personally, but in writing. And it was a sporadic affair for most of the next decade.
Nevertheless, there is always something sad about a cancellation for lack of interest. But perhaps it is just as well in this case and at this time.
The farewell address is remembered primarily for the advise against entangling foreign alliances and here we are preoccupied with efforts to entangle our allies in common policies on Afghanistan, Iran, the Olympics, oil...
Sibling Service
There may be grounds for debate on the advisability of conscripting women for combat roles, but there should be none as to their combat ability.
At least so argues psychologist Louise H. Kidder of Temple University.
In reference to the furor accompanying President Carter's call for the registration of women as well as men for possible military service, she gives her professional opinion that there is no doubt women are up to the challenge although it may take some relearning.
"Women," she observes, "usually feel fear rather than anger when someone threatens them because they've been taught from the time they are young not to fight."
It's a point. But possibly one difficult to sell to legions of men who grew up with older sisters.

Berry's World

One immediate result seems to be that some tax preparers may be in no mood to give you the benefit of the doubt this year. Without exact, detailed records for every penny involved, you may find your tax preparer won't let you take a charity deduction for the TV set you gave Goodwill or a casualty loss for the roof damage that happened in last winter's storm.
The best defense, of course, is to maintain records in minute detail. If you're audited — more than two million returns are audited, supposedly at random, each year — the IRS agents involved often call by incredibly nit picky in their demands for records.
The IRS also seems to be determined to crack down on delinquent taxpayers. A Supreme Court decision in 1977 stopped IRS agents from going onto private property without the owner's consent or a court order. But a recent IRS memo reaffirmed that the agency's revenue officers still have authority to seize and sell property, liquidate bank accounts and garnish wages to settle an outstanding tax bill.
And speaking of that, the IRS has doubled the interest rate it charges on past due taxes and penalties for underpayment from 6 percent to 12 percent. Just another gentle jab to make you think twice about any funny business.
But there are ways, according to a new book by a former IRS agent, to try to second guess the IRS, file right on deadline during the grand April 15 rush to try to avoid an audit, and relax if you have normal deductions — the IRS figures you probably have the records to prove them.
For the first time, the IRS has set up an ombudsman's office to centralize the complaint departments in the 58 district offices and review IRS policies from the taxpayer's viewpoint. It's too soon to know if this will produce anything for the taxpayer's benefit. On the other hand, it can't hurt.
If you do take a chance, you'll never rest completely easy. And that, of course, is what the IRS counts on.

Medicine man performs rites; returns to jail

PRIOR LAKE, Minn. (AP)—The young Indian medicine man, let out of prison to conduct the healing rites, chanted and prayed over Ron Petite, a dying leukemia victim.

"We appeal to you, Spirits, come, and help this man!" intoned Godfrey Chipps, an Oglala Sioux holy man who Vice President Walter Mondale's office had helped to get out of prison to pray for Petite.

Petite, wrapped in a blanket and bound with leather thongs, sat on the floor of a sweat lodge set up in the basement of the community center at the Shakopee Mdewakanton Sioux Indian Reservation during the four healing ceremonies.

About 35 persons, mostly American Indian men and women, prayed in unison for the spirits to return him to health.

Doctors say Petite, of Rosemount, Minn., likely will die within weeks. After twice undergoing chemotherapy at University of Minnesota Hospitals, he has been told he won't survive another treatment.

Petite, a 44-year-old Chippewa Indian, felt his only hope lay in Chipps, 22, the fourth generation medicine man in his family. Chipps says that spirits speak through him, and in this ceremony they intend him with the power to heal.

The holy man is serving the last year of a three-year sentence in a federal prison in Wisconsin for a non-fatal shooting that occurred when he was off duty as a police officer on the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota.

Petite and his lawyer pleaded with prison authorities — and enlisted the help of the vice president's office — to get Chipps freed long enough to administer the religious ceremony.

Accompanied by a prison guard, Chipps arrived Wednesday afternoon. He was due back at the federal correctional institution at Oxford, Wis., by midnight Thursday and left the rite at about 11 p.m.

Petite had built a sweat lodge outdoors on the reservation for the healing ceremonies. The lodge, used for purification purposes, is a small hut of pine boughs that fills with steam when water is poured on heated rocks in the center. But doctors urged the rites be moved indoors, saying Petite would almost certainly get pneumonia if the rites were conducted outdoors in the traditional manner.

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—An award of $1 million in damages from Howard Hughes' Summa Corp. to Las Vegas Sun publisher Hank Greenspun has been wiped out by the Nevada Supreme Court.

The 3-2 decision Thursday, written by Justice Gordon Thompson, left Greenspun with just $53,204 of the initial award made to him by District Court Judge Joseph McDaniel of Elko in the case.

Justice Al Gunderson and Chief Justice John Mowbray dissented. Gunderson wrote the dissent, contending it was wrong to absolve Summa from paying the $1 million in punitive damages for its "misconduct" in a land title flap.

But Justice Thompson wrote that Judge McDaniel found the late Hughes, not Summa Corp., "acted with malice and ill will toward Greenspun" in the case.

Thompson said Summa officials didn't know that their eccentric boss "deliberately withheld information" regarding the land case — but Judge McDaniel found the corporation liable for damages anyway.

Thompson said "This was grievous error." He added that any justification for punitive damages ceased upon the death of Hughes April 5, 1976.

Greenspun initially had asked for $142 million on grounds Summa executives engaged in a malicious attempt to slander title to land he owned. He said that was done by filing of a deed of trust in an alleged effort to block sale of the land.

But Summa lawyers said there was never any hard proof that Hughes had made a deal with Greenspun to erase the trust deed on the Greenspun property.

Summa filed the trust deed after Greenspun allegedly defaulted on a $4 million loan from Hughes.

Greenspun went to court and won the ruling from Judge McDaniel — a ruling which also cancelled the controversial trust deed.

Court reverses decision

Mother believes son died in Jonestown

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The gravemarker is simple enough to look at. But the space it marks contains no grave, and the epitaph is bitter.

Jerry Bibb Balisok, Born Sept. 8, 1955. Murdered in Guyana Nov. 18, 1978. Buried in Oakland, Cal. May, 1979. Damn the State Dept.

Balisok's body is not here. Indeed, he may not even be dead. But his mother, Marjorie Balisok, is convinced her son, his wife and his step-child died in the horror of the Peoples Temple mass murder-suicide at Jonestown, Guyana, and she ordered the tombstone placed in the family plot.

Mrs. Balisok, a widow and a retired hospital worker, is obsessed by a Life magazine photograph of some of the more than 900 bodies at Jonestown. She believes the photo, which appeared two months after the atrocity, shows her son's body lying next to that of his wife, Debbie, and her 5-year-old son, James Kindred.

"I have tried in every way to have my son's body returned to me for burial," she said. "I have insurance policies of all kinds that I cannot cash in until I have a death certificate or a certificate of presumed death."

FBI agent Dick Marx of Huntsville is searching for Balisok for other reasons.

Balisok was indicted three years ago by a federal grand jury in Birmingham on a charge of writing bad checks. He never stood trial and left town two weeks before he was indicted. A federal warrant charges him with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

"I'd like to catch this one," Marx said.

Mrs. Balisok is well-known among officials connected to the State Department's Jonestown Task Force.

Col. William Cowan, a military pathologist who examined the bodies, said none was "anywhere close" to being Balisok. Cowan said that Mrs. Balisok apparently cannot be convinced of that.

Another Task Force official, Reid Clark, said dental X-rays were taken of all of the bodies at Jonestown. He said he also had

"I defy anyone to say that's him (Balisok)."

Added Clark: "You'd think she'd be thanking us instead of damning us."

Mrs. Balisok said she sent the Task Force an X-ray of her son's hip as well as his dental charts. A steel pin had been placed in one hip to repair an injury from a motorcycle accident, and Mrs. Balisok tried in vain to get officials to perform complete X-rays on the bodies.

Clark said many of the bodies were too decomposed to permit such an extensive undertaking.

Last spring, 248 unidentified bodies of cult members were buried in Evergreen Cemetery at Oakland, Calif. At least 20 were adults, and Mrs. Balisok believes Jerry's and Debbie's were among them.

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., wrote to Mrs. Balisok about her son's disappearance. "Apparently, the State Department and the FBI have investigated your son's case and these agencies are thoroughly convinced that your son never left the United States."

"That's all they know — nothing," said Mrs. Balisok.

She said her son telephoned his lawyer from San Juan, Puerto Rico, a year before the Jonestown incident. She said she found out Jerry and his family had been in the Bahamas when she got an American Express bill for almost $10,000 worth of goods and services her son had charged on her card.

"He was a rotten kid," said American Express investigator

MacPruitt, a native of Lubbock, began preaching at the age of 16. He later taught speech and journalism in Lubbock High School and taught one year at Abilene Christian High School. He served three years in Frankfurt, Germany teaching in both German and English.

Religion in the news

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — No Malaysian version of Iran's Aytollah Ruhollah Khomeini stands in the wings, but Islamic fundamentalism flourishes among a minority in this predominantly Moslem island nation.

Dakwah (missionary) sects have a faithful following. Some opposition politicians want Islamic law applied more strictly to Moslems and non-Moslems alike.

However, the inspector general of police has denounced those who predict the divine appearance of a local "mahdi" (messiah). Government leaders urge the people not to be misled by fanatics.

"Islam does not preach extremism but moderation and what the government has done has always been in line with Islamic teachings," says Deputy Prime Minister Mahathir Mohammad.

About half of Malaysia's 13 million people are ethnic Malays, almost all of them followers of the Sunni branch of Islam. Freedom of worship is guaranteed by the constitution and Islam is considered the official but not a state religion.

Education Minister Musa Hitam says fanaticism has joined subversion and racism as threats to the New Economic Policy, the country's development blueprint.

"Where previously the government had only to deal with communist influences and racialist politics, it is now faced with a new threat — false Islamic teachings — in its efforts to implement the NEP," Musa said in a recent speech.

Ultraconservative religious zeal is seen as an obstacle to government efforts to move Malays into the mainstream of business life, an area dominated by the British in colonial days and by the Chinese minority. Some Dakwah groups teach that Malays should shun material things and concentrate on preparing for the hereafter.

"Disunity among Moslems will weaken us and will give the opportunity to subversive elements to destroy the country," Prime Minister Hussein Onn has warned.

The longest trial in Malaysian legal annals grew out of religious fanaticism. Eight Hindu temple guards who killed four Moslems officially described as vandals were sentenced recently to from 30 months to four years behind bars.

The eight were convicted of "culpable homicide not amounting to murder" after a trial that lasted more than a year.

The case, the so-called Kerling incident, occurred when five white-robed Moslems raided the Seri Subramaniam Temple in the village of Kerling 30 miles north of Kuala Lumpur on Aug. 19, 1978. They were smashing idols when 10 guards appeared and a bloody brawl erupted.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy..."

The Knowledge of the Lord

Habakkuk 2:14. "For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

The Church is chosen of God to spread the good news that God has a plan to redeem men and reconcile them unto Himself through the vicarious sacrifice of Jesus Christ our Lord. The Church will be so successful in spreading this glorious knowledge in the world that God says the earth will be as full of it as the waters that fill the ocean. Attend church and become a part of this great undertaking.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Leap year: Avoiding a lady's proposals

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I don't get the newspaper regularly, but I heard you had something in your column about THE LIVING WILL. The way it was explained to me, that is exactly what I need to have peace of mind. I am 74 and so many of my friends (and two relatives in the last year) have died lingering deaths because nobody wanted to turn off the machines that kept them alive. There was so much suffering and needless expense for the patient and it was terribly hard on the loved ones.

Exactly what is THE LIVING WILL, and how do I get one? I happen to be Jewish. It is against my religion? Is it euthanasia or mercy killing?

READER

DEAR READER: THE LIVING WILL is a document stating that should you fall victim to a terminal illness from which there is no hope for your recovery, you instruct your physician not to prolong your life by artificial means, such as machines, tubes, pumps, etc.

Copies of this document may be given to your physician, clergyman, lawyer and to as many family members and friends as you desire. To sign such a document, you must be 18 or older and of sound mind. (If at any time you wish to revoke the document, you are free to do so.)

The Jewish view of THE LIVING WILL is as follows: It is not euthanasia or mercy killing! There is a clear distinction between actively killing a person and "allowing him to die."

According to Jewish law, when a person suffers irreversible brain damage and can no longer recite a "bracha"—a blessing to praise God—or perform a "mitzvah"—an act to help his fellowman—he is considered a vegetable and there is nothing to save. It is thus an act of compassion to spare the family the anguish and expense of artificially prolonging the breathing and heartbeat when death is inevitable.

THE LIVING WILL does not give anyone permission to end the life of another in a mercy-killing manner. It is simply a document that one signs, stating that he (or she) does not want to have his (or her) life prolonged artificially after the physician decides that there is no hope for recovery.

I have signed such a document. You may get one by writing to CONCERN FOR DYING, 250 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019. The document is free, but please send a few dollars (it's tax deductible) for the cost of printing and mailing the document to you. I sent $10 for six documents and have given one to my physician, clergyman, lawyer and members of my family.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: All those folks who write to ask if they should report suspected infidelities among their neighbors remind me of an incident which happened here in Minneapolis.

A husband occasionally jumped the marital fence and strayed into fresh pastures. His wife was tolerant of these actions because otherwise he was a kind, thoughtful and loving husband.

One day Mrs. Blabbermouth phoned the wife and said, "I think you should know that your husband was seen coming out of his secretary's apartment!"

The wife replied, "Don't be jealous, honey, he'll get around to you pretty soon."

READER

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR DR. LAMB - It is my understanding that every cancer more or less follows a certain pattern. For example, breast cancer many times moves to bone cancer. Could you please tell me what is the cause of cancer of the colon?

DEAR READER - We really don't know all the factors that cause cancers. Certain conditions are associated with an increased likelihood of having cancer. Some environmental factors increase the likelihood a person will have cancer if he's susceptible to it to begin with. Viruses have been involved in producing some animal cancers but we don't have positive proof of this in humans. We know that certain chemicals and even the radiation from sunshine is capable of inducing cancer.

It follows that I can't answer your question about what causes cancer of the colon. Cancers of the colon and rectum are the second most common cause for cancer deaths in the United States. Not nearly enough has been done to educate the public on this problem and that's one of the reasons these are the second most common cause of cancer deaths.

There is some reason to believe that individuals who eat a very bland diet that doesn't contain adequate bulk in it may be more susceptible to cancer of the colon. There's also some evidence that eating a high fat diet may contribute to cancer of the colon. Also there are some new studies that suggest that chlorophyll as found in leafy green vegetables may help to protect against cancer of the colon.

There is enough circumstantial evidence for the prudent person to eat a diet that contains an adequate amount of bulk, particularly cereal fiber as in bran. The diet should also include an adequate amount of leafy vegetables and be moderately restricted in fat content.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-8, Cancer: A Fact Of Life. It will update you on a lot of the common current knowledge about cancer. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The Health Letter I'm sending you will also explain cancer spread. A cancer literally drops off cells that are circulated to the rest of the body. Cancer of the colon, for example, may drop off cells that are carried and lodged in the liver. Breast cancer may have cancer cells that are shed into the lymphatic circulation and carried to lymph nodes under the arm. Circulation of blood and lymph explains most of the ways that cancer spreads throughout the body.

A number of our major cancers can be prevented, such as cancer of the lungs associated with cigarette smoking. It's possible that a number of the cancers of the colon that you asked about can be prevented. On the bright side, a lot of cancers that are detected early enough can be cured.

New opportunities will open up for you this coming year if you work on developing better understandings with present allies. Be prepared to make some major adjustments that will ultimately benefit all.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your interests and those of someone else are likely to be in conflict today. However, things can easily be rectified with a little give-and-take. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph Letter, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Rather than suppress your irritation with the way another is handling a situation for you, find a diplomatic way to air your grievances openly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The poor taste displayed by an arrogant individual doesn't have to spoil a social situation for you today. Either ignore this person or walk away.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take a second look at your own behavior if you feel you are being unjustly harassed today. Be sure you weren't the instigator before you erupt.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Jumping to conclusions today might be the reason you're having such a hard time seeing another person's point of view. Think before you speak.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Hidden factors may distort the true value of something you are interested in purchasing. Investigate thoroughly what you'd be getting for your money.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Support promised you by another may be withdrawn today. The best way to avoid disappointment is to depend solely on yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A thorn in your side today could come from an associate who grandstands while leaving the real work up to you. Select your coworkers wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's someone who could throw a monkey wrench into your social plans today. Don't exclude this person from your group, just let him know the majority rules.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) By failing to give proper credit where it's due, hard feelings are likely to result today. It takes only a minute to pat the other party's back.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's fine to make future plans, but not so far ahead that you won't be able to see a stumbling block that could impede your progress. Move cautiously.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Exercise prudence in the management of material or financial situations today. If you make a mistake it would also affect others involved.

All-Stars edged

Pampa All-Stars were nipped by Coronado of Amarillo, 40-37, Thursday night in the Top O' Texas 5-6 grade boys tournament at the Optimist Club gym.

The All-Stars will now have to win three games to get back into the championship bracket of the double-elimination tournament.

The All-Stars meet Skellytown at 6 p.m. tonight, followed by Dumas-White Deer, 7:15 p.m., and Amarillo Whittier-Amarillo Coronado, 8:30 p.m.

The third-place game will be played at 6 p.m. Saturday, followed by the championship finals at 7:30 p.m.

Games will also be played Saturday morning, at 9:30 a.m. and 11:20 a.m.

Harvester lineup

Junior righthander Sam Edwards will get his first mound assignment when the Pampa Harvesters open the baseball at 10 a.m. Saturday here against Dumas in the first round of the Pampa Baseball Tournament.

Coach Steve Scott's lineup is tentative, but he expects to go with a batting order of Steve McDougall, centerfield; Monte Covatt, leftfield; Mark Jennings, secondbase; Keenan Henderson, firstbase; Clyde Coffee, catcher; Andy Richardson, shortstop; Brad Atchley, rightfield; Edwards, pitcher, and Greg Quarles, thirdbase.

"I don't know too much about Dumas, except that they have two good pitchers," Scott said. "Their coach says they're farther along than they were last year at this time."

Hereford and Canyon meet at noon in the other first-round game. The consolation finals and finals are scheduled for 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.

NBA expansion coming to Dallas

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association said it received formal notification Wednesday from a Dallas group that the group had accepted expansion terms for the 1980-81 season. The NBA Board of Governors will meet March 6 in Chicago to consider realignment of the league, which will have 23 teams with the expansion to Dallas.

Perfect record

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A quintet who will become the 1980-81 varsity basketball team at Austin Johnson High School has never lost a game.

Five players remain from a 7th grade team that started a winning streak at Pearce Junior High School in 1975.

In four years the team has stretched its record to 78-0, including a 21-0 junior varsity mark during the recent season.

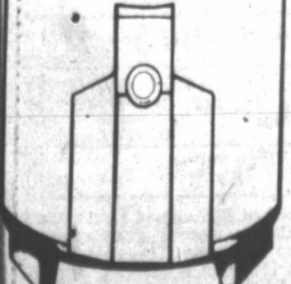

The Johnson varsity was 8-22 this season, and Coach Morris Mayo said, "It took a lot of guts not to cut some of the seniors and bring these young kids up, but I felt it would be more valuable for them to win this year. Winning builds winning."

BEST C.A.F.E.

Ford has the best Corporate Average Fuel Economy of any major U.S. car maker. C.A.F.E. is the government's measure of auto companies' progress in gas mileage each year. It is an average using the EPA rating system and projected 1980 total model year car sales mix as submitted to the U.S. government in December, 1979.

Only Ford among the major U.S. companies ranks first on this basis. Remember, C.A.F.E. is an average, so consult EPA ratings for individual car's mileage.

*1980 EPA ratings for comparison. Your mileage may differ depending on speed, distance and weather. Actual highway mileage will probably be lower.
