Militants make new demands before transfer of hostages

By The Associated Press
 The Moslem militants holding the U.S. Embassy hostages in Tehran today imposed a new condition that must be met before they will allow the ruling Revolutionary Council to take custody of the approximately 50 Americans.

In a telephone interview with a reporter in the Iranian capital, a spokesman for the young radicals at the embassy said they now demand "that the Iranian people know what we have to say" before their captives become the responsibility of the council, as the militants had requested Thursday.

Another spokesman said earlier the group would like to appear "on a television and radio program to explain the truth to the nation."

The statements appeared to throw a roadblock into plans announced earlier today by Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh to transfer the hostages out of the embassy compound, probably Saturday.

It was not clear whether the latest statements from the militants had been communicated to government authorities, who were not immediately available for comment.

The new demand was disclosed after Tehran Radio reported that Iranian protesters, in the second day of demonstrations in support of the militants, marched past the embassy shouting slogans calling on them not to give up the hostages to the Revolutionary Council.

This latest twist in the Tehran drama could set up another showdown between the young militants and President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr. He denounced them last month as "dictators" and "a government within a government."

In their statement Thursday calling on the council to "take delivery" of the hostages, the militants bitterly noted that they still opposed a visit to the hostages by the U.N. commission.

They said such a visit, favored by Bani-Sadr and the rest of the council, was not consistent with the "Imam's line," that is, with the thinking of revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. But they said they would give up the hostages because of pressure put on them by the Bani-Sadr government.

Bani-Sadr says Khomeini gave the council authorization to decide on a U.N. commission visit if it saw fit.

Ghotbzadeh said today that once the hostages were moved to another location the U.N. panel would visit them.

Tehran Radio confirmed that even if the council takes custody of the hostages, they may still face long weeks of captivity.

It said their fate "is to be decided soon by the nation's representatives in the Islamic assembly."

Letters from the hostages and other reports indicate many have been kept individually isolated in cubicles and have been allowed only limited exercise and bathing time. They were blindfolded and loosely bound early in the embassy takeover, now in its 125th day, but the blindfolds at least were reported taken off long ago.

The American hostages probably will be transferred from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran to a new location Saturday in hopes "they will be treated better," and as soon as they are moved the U.N. commission will be allowed to see all of them, Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said today.

He also said the three American diplomats held at the Foreign Ministry will be allowed to rejoin the other hostages if they wish, and that the U.N. panel had already visited the three — Charge d'Affaires L. Bruce Laingen, political officer Victor Tomseth and security chief Michael Holland.

Asked by The Canadian Press correspondent in Tehran whether the hostages would be moved from the 27-acre embassy compound seized Nov. 4 he replied, "Most probably yes." Asked how soon he responded, "Probably tomorrow."

"As soon as the hostages are transferred, the meeting (with the U.N. commission) will be held," he said.

But he declined to say where the hostages would continue to be held by the Iranian government. "Let's do it first and then we'll announce it," he said.

Ghotbzadeh added that he is heading a special commission set up by the ruling Revolutionary Council to take over responsibility for the approximately 50 Americans, who began their 125th day in captivity today.

Ghotbzadeh said the special commission would meet today to arrange for the council to take custody of the hostages. He also indicated Iran's conditions for their release are unchanged.

Ghotbzadeh did not identify the other commission members.

The militants holding the hostages announced Thursday they would deliver them to the ruling council because of pressure put on them by the Iranian government.

The announcement was critical of the ruling body and brought a crowd of 2,000 to the embassy gates Thursday night. The demonstrators burned an American flag, shouted slogans in support of the militants and called on the government not to compromise with the United States.

There was no indication that the ruling council, after taking control of the hostages, would speed up the mechanics of their release prescribed by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the revolutionary regime.

Khomeini said the new Parliament elected next month would decide their fate, and the secretary-general of the Revolutionary Council said the legislators wouldn't get around to the matter before mid-May.

Guerrillas drop money demand

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The Austrian diplomat freed by guerrillas holding the U.S. ambassador and other hostages said today they still held in the Dominican Republic's embassy in Bogota were in "an extremely dangerous situation."

Austrian Ambassador Edgar Selzer called on all to work for a peaceful solution. Otherwise, he said, "Everything else in my opinion can only end in a catastrophic massacre."

Selzer was released by the leftist guerrillas Thursday because his wife is gravely ill in Vienna. He was interviewed by Austrian radio on his return to Vienna today.

Direct negotiations between the government and guerrillas are to resume today. Foreign Minister Diego Uribe Vargas told reporters following a meeting with President Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala. Talks were held Sunday and Wednesday in a beige van parked near the Dominican Republic Embassy and have also continued intermittently by telephone.

A high-level government official said Thursday that negotiations have centered on the guerrillas' demand that 311 alleged political prisoners be released.

The official, who asked not to be identified by name, said the guerrillas "have practically abandoned" their demand for $50 million in ransom in exchange for the safe release of the hostages, seized 10 days ago today during a diplomatic reception.

"They won't give in on their demand that their comrades be given freedom. But the government cannot give in without violating the constitution and the laws of the republic," he said.

The government denies it holds any political prisoners and says any guerrillas in jail are there for crimes they committed and not for political beliefs. Colombia's constitution permits the president to issue pardons only for political prisoners.

A military source said the armed forces support the government's stand against the guerrillas, who belong to M-19, or Movement 19, which takes its name from the April 19, 1970 presidential elections the group claims were rigged.

Along with the ransom and prisoners, the leftists also originally demanded publication of a guerrilla manifesto in major newspapers around the world and safe passage out of the country.

Sources close to the government say it has offered to fly them to either Libya, Syria or Algeria, although there has been no official confirmation of the offer.

On Thursday, the guerrillas released Austrian Ambassador Edgar Selzer because his wife is gravely ill in Vienna. Waiting to change planes in Caracas, Venezuela, Selzer appealed for a "peaceful solution" to the embassy siege.

THE FIRE KNIFE DANCE, performed here by Polynesian dancer Asia Salaua of Samoa, is one of the dances to be performed Saturday during the Polynesian dance show at M.K. Brown Auditorium, following the authentic Hawaiian Luau sponsored by the Pampa High School band. Hawaiian caterers are slated to arrive in Pampa today and begin outdoor pit cooking across from the auditorium tonight. The luau will begin at 5 p.m. Saturday with the show to follow at 8 p.m. Tickets to the show are still available at $10 each.

Drug, robbery cases net three arrests

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

Three arrests were made by city authorities yesterday in connection with two separate incidents involving two armed robberies and transportation of illegal drugs.

Thursday afternoon, Lt. Roy E. Denman and Cpl. L. A. Brown of the Pampa Police Department arrested Anthony Christopher Reed, 19, of 625 N. Faulkner on charges of aggravated robbery.

The charges stemmed from an April 30, 1979 armed robbery of the Allsup's convenience store at the corner of Starkweather and Foster.

According to police records, the suspect entered the store at 11:14 p.m. with his head covered with gauze and plastic bandages. A revolver was shown to the clerk and the subject asked for the money in the cash register, then he reportedly fled on foot from the scene.

Also cleared by the arrest is the May 9, 1979 armed robbery of the 7-11 store located at 1066 N. Hobart in which a subject entered the store at about 2 a.m. with his head and face wrapped with gauze and plastic bandages and showed a pistol. The man ordered the employee into the rear of the store and took money from the cash register and the employee's purse.

Bail for Reed was set at $20,000 Thursday afternoon by Justice of the Peace Nat Lunsford. He is presently in county jail in lieu of bond.

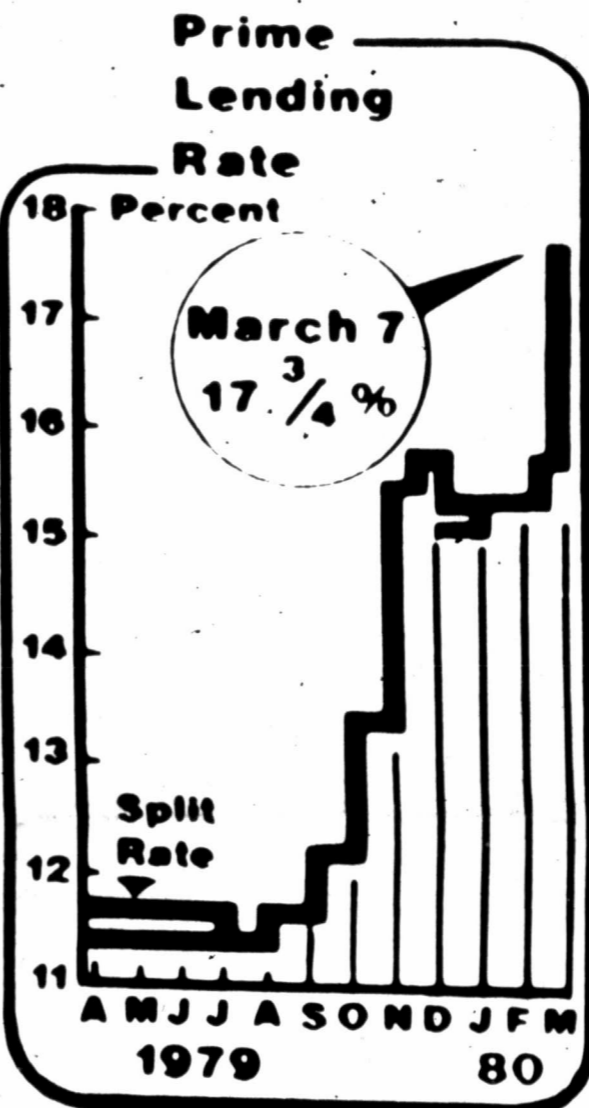

A 16-year-old male was also apprehended in connection with the Allsup's robbery. He is being referred to the county juvenile probation department for further disposition.

Two other arrests were made Thursday night when Brown received information indicating drugs were to be transported by some particular persons.

At 11:41 p.m. Brown and Patrolman J. Womack stopped the vehicle in question. Taken from the vehicle was a small amount of suspected marijuana, 5 capsules believed to be a controlled substance, and two vials — one with an unknown powder and the other with a liquid believed to be morphine.

Arrested were David Sanchez, 25, of 511 N. Cuyler and Janey Jo Balkum, 24, of 511 N. Cuyler. The two were charged for possession of a controlled substance.

The unknown substances recovered in the arrests will be sent to the Department of Public Safety laboratory in Lubbock to be identified, Lt. Charles Morris said.

Amarillo motel destroyed by fire

AMARILLO — The restaurant and lounge of the Travelodge West motel were destroyed last night in a blaze which injured five firemen.

The flames began as a grease fire and quickly spread through the air conditioning ventilation system. They destroyed the kitchen, two dining rooms and a lounge.

A section of the structure's roof collapsed, injuring fireman Ron Hefley, 39, when he and the ladder he was standing on fell to the pavement. Hefley suffered a broken elbow from the fall.

Four other firemen suffered smoke inhalation and were taken by ambulance to the Amarillo Emergency Receiving Center. Treated and released were Bob Stewart, Doug Williams, Ken Carlisle and Teddy Acklin.

The fire was out of control before firemen arrived on the scene because of a delayed alarm which was received at Central Fire Station at 6:38 p.m.

According to Assistant Fire Chief Clyde Gibbins, the fire began when an over-filled deep fryer spilled grease into a grill containing live charcoal. As a cook tried to put the fire out, another employee called the fire department.

"The first company came in on the south side and couldn't see the front of the building," he said. "They went into the kitchen and though they had knocked it (the fire) down. They didn't know the exhaust fan had pulled the fire into the attic," Gibbins said.

The blaze spread through the west side of the building.

"As they were working inside, a civilian passed by on the I-40 overpass and saw flames just beginning to come through the roof," he said.

Because the fire truck was parked behind a two-story section of the building, the firemen did not see the flames coming through the shingled roof.

The passerby turned around and went back to the motel, he said. Not seeing any trucks, the man then called in the alarm.

Livestock show opens Top o' Texas events

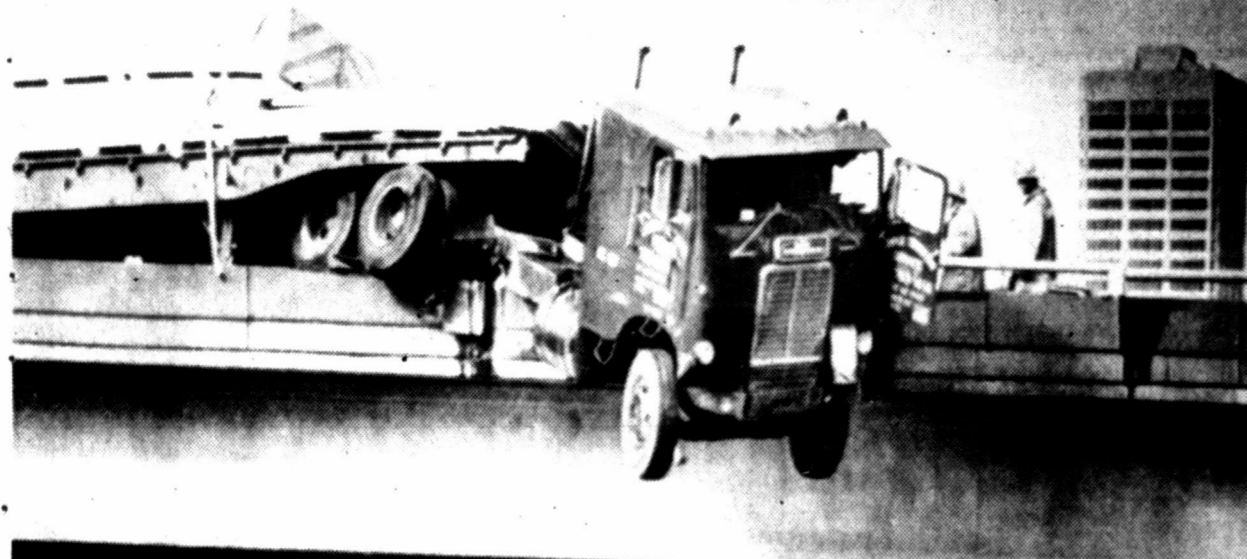

The Gray County Junior Livestock Show, sponsored by the Pampa Noon Lions Club, will kick-off at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Clyde Carruth Pavilion, east of Pampa. The show is a yearly project of the Noon Lions Club, according to show superintendent Joe Wheeley.

This year's entries include about 18 lambs, 15 steers, and 138 barrows. Show judges will be: Don Reaves, county agency from Wellington, for steers; Ken Kensing, vocational agriculture teacher from White Deer, for lambs; and Lanny Tucker from Estilene, for barrows.

The public is invited to come out Saturday afternoon to inspect the livestock and watch the judging. There is no admission charge.

"The spectators will enjoy watching the youngsters reap their rewards of ribbons and trophies on their livestock," Wheeley said.

A REAL BRIDGE-HANGER. The cab of a tractor-trailer hangs in balance over Portage Bay on the Evergreen Point Floating Bridge in Seattle Thursday after crashing through the guard rail. The driver, Guy Scott of Federal Way, Wash., fell 20 feet into the water below and swam to safety. He was hospitalized with minor injuries.

Oil spill threat lessens

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Coast Guard officials have all but abandoned their earlier dire predictions that a second oil spill will douse Texas beaches, saying progress has been made in stemming the gush of a runaway Mexican well.

In January, Capt. Gerald Hinson and others said oil almost certainly would reappear along the South Texas coast if the belligerent Ixtoc 1 well were not capped by March.

Hinson told a news conference Thursday that Mexican crews have reduced the well's flow from an estimated high of 30,000 to 50,000 barrels a day to only 400 barrels.

He said an official of Pemex, the Mexican oil company that owns the well, told the Coast Guard Thursday of the new 400-barrel a day output.

Crews are pouring salt water and drilling mud into the hole in preparation for final cementing.

"If they (Pemex) are successful in the next few days, any new oil coming out now wouldn't be any real threat," at only 400 barrels a day, he said.

Pemex says it needs three consecutive days of good weather and low seas to complete the capping that has eluded workers for nine months.

Reconnaissance flights this week showed a ribbon of oil 40 miles long by 200 yards wide extending east-west about 78 miles south of Texas.

Observers at first thought it was solid brown oil but a closer inspection determined it is mostly light, sheen oil with 5 percent to 10 percent concentrations of heavy oil, Lt. Harry Vaughn said today.

"It should be going offshore," he said. Hinson added he was "concerned" about it but did not consider it an immediate threat to Texas.

Dallas man says Francis called him to find someone to kill Frank Potts

AMARILLO — A Dallas man — one of three allegedly asked by Francis to find a killer-for-hire for Frank Potts — testified Thursday he learned of Francis' partner about a month after the alleged request.

Scott Allen Taylor said he left the Amarillo store where he heard the news and walked down to Francis' store, Barney's Factory-Direct Men's Store.

"There he (Francis) was, standing against this big (clothes) rack with a smile on his face," Taylor said.

"I told him, 'I heard about it, I can't believe it was done.'"

Francis took him back to the back southeast corner of the store, Taylor said, where the 48-year-old Potts had been stabbed 23 times. He said Francis showed him the large hole where police had cut away the blood-soaked carpet.

"Six weeks, eight weeks" before the store meeting, he spoke with Francis, an acquaintance for about six years, on the telephone at his home.

"Yes, I could" recognize his voice, he said.

Francis asked if he thought he knew someone who would kill his "partner", Taylor said. "He didn't give a name."

"I said, 'Wow! I didn't know anybody like that.' 'Let me call you in a few days.'"

Taylor had no intention of seeking a killer-for-hire or returning the call, he said.

"He'd had some bad business ventures and this would get him out of debt insurance," Taylor said Francis told him.

The witness said he did not think Francis would do it, though he thought Francis was desperate.
 Standing at the crime scene with Francis, Taylor said, "It was spooky."
 Taylor asked Francis who did it and was told, "A couple of blacks."

"Don't you think they might be looking at you, Kevin?" Taylor said he asked.
 Francis answered, "I'm an upstanding citizen. I don't think I'd be suspicious to anybody," he said.

When the witness asked who arranged it, Francis allegedly said, "An attorney," but did not name one.

 The attorney's name — James D. Durham Jr. — was dropped in an apparently unguarded moment by defense counsel, Travis Shelton of Lubbock.

Another witness, Jerry Don Gipson, 28, of 908 NW Fourth, alleged in his testimony yesterday he had been told which attorney arranged the killing.

Gipson said he was told Durham, of 2409 S. Hughes, was to pay George Hicks, 34, and Bedale Hicks, 29, of 1206 N. Buchanan, for killing Potts. Later, he said, he was told Durham had paid the two for the killing.

The Hicks are both charged with the Oct. 8, 1977, murder of Potts.
 George Hicks won a mistrial on Nov. 16, 1979, when a single juror held out for acquittal and Bedale Hicks has not yet come to trial.

Trial for the two are expected to be held this spring.
 Taylor was the last witness to testify yesterday.

Three more witnesses for the prosecution are scheduled to testify today.

Five file in Canadian

CANADIAN — The filing clerks for both city and school elections reports a total of five new candidates have tossed their hats into the ring for public office. The action was taken by the new candidates just ahead of the 5 p.m. filing deadline, for the two places on the school board and two places on the city council.

Those filing for city council are David Keahley, Charlie Plumlee, Robert Forrest, and John C. Adling. These four will challenge incumbent Lonnie Donaldson and Warren Ling for the three spots on the city council.

On the school front Claire Kreheil officially filed her name as a candidate for the Canadian School Board. Mrs. Kreheil joins the list with three other challengers in an attempt to unseat Leonard Schaffer and John Ramp for the two places on the school board.
 Other school board candidates are Larry Dorch, Ed Gooden and Leo Thompson.
 The terms for the school board are three years and the city council is two years.

Both elections will be held Saturday, April 5.

Supermarket chains announce food freeze

By The Associated Press
 Safeway Stores Inc. and the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. Inc. — two of the nation's largest supermarket chains — say they are freezing prices on some products in response to a plea from the Carter administration for help in fighting inflation.

About 50 of the nation's largest food chains were asked to participate, but few had announced their decisions by Thursday.
 Company officials said prices on private label products were frozen for 30 days, effective immediately at the 2,500 Safeway stores and 1,500 A&P groceries nationwide.

"This action is in response to a request by the Carter administration that food retailers consider voluntary approaches to control food prices to halt inflation," said David R. Morrow, president of A&P, based in Montvale, N.J.

"This is the strongest move we could think of," he said.
 Peter A. Magowan, chairman and chief executive of the Oakland, Calif.-based Safeway, said the action was taken "at the suggestion of Esther Peterson, President Carter's special assistant for consumer affairs."

"The president has asked me to determine what more we can do to keep the cost of food from rising so rapidly," Mrs. Peterson said.

TEXAS

By The Associated Press
 A cold front moved into the Texas Panhandle during the night, dropping temperatures below freezing, but most of the state basked in warm spring-like weather.

Forecasts called for widely scattered showers and thunderstorms in Southeast Texas late today after drizzle, light rain and fog dampened eastern and central areas of the state during the morning.

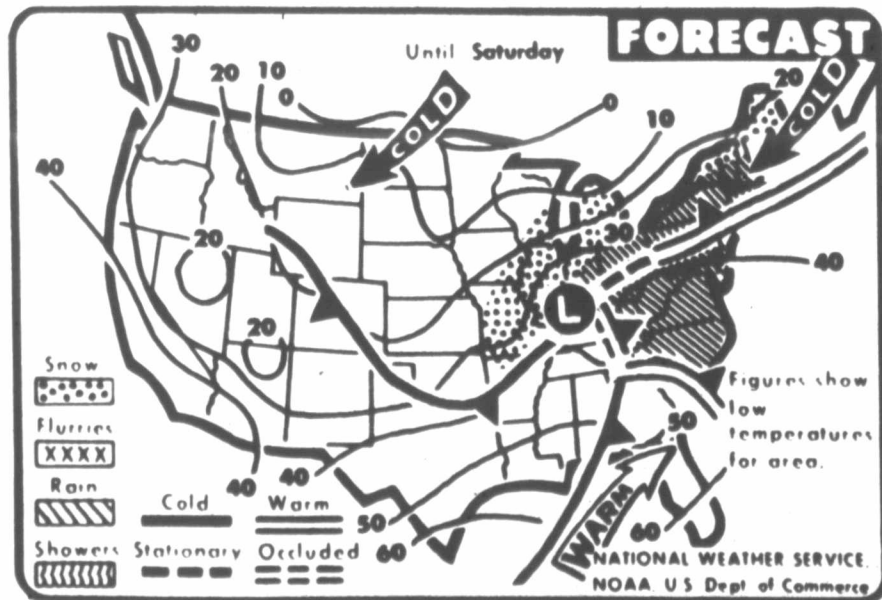

Light rain, drizzle and fog was reported during the night in Southeast Texas, but there were no reports of significant rainfall.

Most of the state had pre-dawn temperature readings in the 60s and expected mostly cloudy skies and warm temperatures.

Judge won't rule in sterilization case

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Texas appellate courts or the state Legislature must decide whether parents of mentally retarded children can legally have them sterilized, says a county court-at-law judge who refused Thursday to grant such permission.

Bexar County Court-at-law Judge T. Armour Ball would have set a legal precedent in Texas if he had allowed the tubal ligation sterilization requested for mentally retarded Sylvia Gonzalez, 22.

But Ball refused, saying he wasn't convinced he even should have jurisdiction in such a case. Attorneys for both sides said the case most likely is headed for an appeals court.

Abelardo and Helen Gonzalez sought court permission to have their daughter sterilized because they said she has no knowledge of sexual reproduction and never would be able to care for a child.

The sterilization was opposed by Donald Bayne, the attorney appointed to protect the retarded woman's legal interests, and by Advocacy Inc., a federally funded organization to protect the rights of the disabled.

Records show there has been only one other case like it in Texas.

In 1969, a county court in Houston refused to grant permission to parents who wanted sterilization for their 32-year-old mentally retarded daughter, who had already borne two children. A state appeals court upheld the ruling.

Ball ruled Thursday that sterilization would not give "present, substantial psychological benefit" to Miss Gonzalez.

"The appropriate way to do it is through the appellate courts or through the legislature," Ball said after ruling. "I went ahead and allowed the trial to give the opportunity to develop the case fully. I hope the appellate court can take this and set the precedent. That failing, there must be statutory guidelines established by the legislature."

Lamoine Holland, attorney for the parents, was angered by the ruling. Asked if the parents would appeal, he said, "I'm sure we will."

"I felt this would be decided at the appellate level. But I think the other side should be the ones filing an appeal. I totally disagree with the ruling of the court," added Holland.

"Yes, I'm upset," said Gonzalez. "Here I am trying to protect my daughter. A lot of parents are waiting for the door to be opened up for them because they are in the same situation. Instead of opening the door even a little bit, this guy comes along and says he doesn't think he has jurisdiction and puts another padlock on the door."

Bayne declined comment until he studied the judge's ruling.

Bayne and Sandra Adams of Advocacy Inc., argued that less drastic measures of birth control should be employed now, because there is some question whether Sylvia could develop more fully, marry, bear children and lead a normal life.

"We're asking the court to give her time to develop," Bayne said in final arguments. "Now is not the time for a sterilization procedure. No one says Sylvia should go out and have a child today. Everyone agrees that would be disastrous. Let's wait and see. Let's give Sylvia a chance."

Bayne said Miss Gonzalez' fundamental right to bear children must be protected, especially since she is mentally incompetent. He said the court hearing raised the specter of the Nazi state-ordered sterilizations during World War II.

Bayne and Ms. Adams presented testimony a psychologist who said it's possible for a moderately retarded woman like Miss Gonzalez to develop in the future. They also argued that Miss Gonzalez could be trained to take birth control pills or take care of an intrauterine device.

'Killer Fleas' absent from city council meet

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — The mayor of this East Texas town became so angry when five of his council members skipped a specially called meeting, he said he will seek action from a federal court.

Jack Rogers, who has been battling the council over construction of a $1.9 million civic center, called the meeting to review petitions that would place a charter amendment on the April 5 municipal ballot. The amendment, which Rogers proposed, would prohibit construction of the civic center, which Rogers claims is already over budget.

Following the abortive session, Rogers told reporters the absent councilmen may have been trying to imitate the "Killer Bees," a group of state legislators who hid out last summer to boycott a bill providing for a separate presidential primary election.

"You remember the 'Killer Bees'?" he asked. "Well, we've got a case of the 'Killer Fleas.'"

None of the councilmen contacted after the meeting would comment on their absence.

"We have an obvious violation of the law," Rogers said after the meeting. "We have shown substantial compliance with laws and council has shown bad faith by their arbitrary action."

He said he would seek action in federal court to force the amendment onto the ballot.

Rogers has refused to sign a city contract approving the civic center, which has been under construction about two weeks.

He and the council have filed criss-crossed lawsuits against one another over Rogers' right to refuse to sign the city contract.

And it was Rogers who began circulating the petitions calling for the charter amendment: Only 397 signatures — 5 percent of the registered voters in Palestine — were needed, but Rogers said Thursday he had 1,454 names, or 18 percent of the registered voters.

Appointee should aid U.S.-Mexican relations

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Julian Nava's nomination as ambassador to Mexico should help smooth U.S.-Mexican relations as well as President Carter's relations with Hispanics, say leaders of the increasingly visible minority.

If his nomination is confirmed by the Senate as expected, Nava will not be the first Mexican-American to serve as an ambassador. He will be, however, the first Mexican-American ambassador to Mexico.

"I think his appointment is certain to improve and strengthen U.S.-Mexico relations and make us more truly friends and partners as good neighbors should be," Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said Thursday.

The Corpus Christi, Texas, attorney said in a telephone interview that the nomination also showed Carter is honoring his pledge to make more top level Hispanic appointments.

Bonilla cautioned against a belief that appointments alone will win over Hispanic voters if the inflationary spiral continues. "We should not lose sight of the needs of the Hispanic working class," he said.

Raul Yzaguirre, president of the National Council of La Raza, called Nava's nomination a historic first.

"It signals a new era that Mexican-Americans will not be excluded from being an ambassador. It was important to establish that Mexican-Americans could be ambassadors to Mexico," he said.

Yzaguirre said the nomination combined with other recent appointments and the expected nomination of Texas state Rep. Matt Garcia of San Antonio as Immigration and Naturalization Service commissioner, helps Carter recoup ground lost by his failure to include a Hispanic in the Cabinet.

"When that failed to materialize, I think the president lost a lot of credibility with the Hispanic community," he said.

Yzaguirre, a native of San Juan, Texas, called Nava a "high caliber appointment."

He's very respected in our community and we expect great things from him."

Vilma Martinez, president of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund, said Nava's nomination was "significant and exemplary of the ways that Mexican-Americans can serve this country."

She said in a statement from her San Francisco office that Nava had earned the respect of the Mexican-American community through his scholarly achievements.

Ms. Martinez, a San Antonio native, is a member of the presidential advisory board on ambassadorial appointments.

Nava, 52, taught history for 22 years in the California State University system before becoming a special assistant to the university president.

He was born in Los Angeles and graduated from Pomona College before receiving a doctoral degree from Harvard. Nava speaks both Spanish and English.

Judge apologizes for offhand remark

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge who said he had never seen anything of worldwide importance published in Spanish apologized for his remark during a hearing on a suit challenging a Texas law requiring illegal alien children to pay school tuition.

The judge, who is presiding over the suit challenging the constitutionality of the state law, read the letter before the trial began Thursday, after conferring with attorneys for both sides.

"It was a most senseless statement for me to make," Seals said. "I simply do not know how I could say that. It was dreadful and I am exceedingly sorry."

Castaneda had written the judge protesting statements Seals made during the trial in which Seals questioned the need for the teaching of Spanish in public schools because most major scientific work is published in English, German, Japanese, Russian or Chinese.

Seals said he had no defense for his remarks. "Sometimes when you're tired, there's a possibility you might make such statements," he said.

Media law expert Harvey Zuckman of the Catholic University School of Law in Washington, called Seals' apology unusual.

Seals' apology came at the beginning of the final day of the plaintiff's testimony. A child psychologist took the stand and told the court undocumented children are being harmed by not going to school.

The final witness for the 17 groups that filed suit to have the law changed was Texas Education Commission Alton Bowen, who said the state could come up with the money to educate children of illegal aliens if they were admitted into public schools.

The state opened its case by calling Raul Vesteiro, superintendent of the Brownsville Independent School District.

Vesteiro testified that his school had trouble keeping up with about 1,200 legal immigrants that came to Brownsville each year and said the state tuition law benefitted the school district.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Lesson from Lake Placid

Mankind is able to attain new heights of achievement with each successive sporting event through relying on individual effort and courage. Meanwhile, we have not advanced too far in those pursuits that involve planning for others, as the winter Olympic Games point out again.

For those wishing to witness the ongoing athletic spectacle, or those fortunate enough to live in or near Lake Placid, N.Y., the first week of the competition was a disaster. It saw an attempt to replace the private auto with public transportation fail miserably.

Cars were banned from the isolated hamlet because the crowds were expected to overwhelm the place if everyone drove himself. Instead, hundreds of buses were commissioned to ferry spectators from distant parking lots to various venues. But there weren't enough buses, and those there weren't seem to operate on any sort of schedule. Fans who had paid stiff ticket prices for seats were left waiting hours in frigid weather to get to them or get back. Many didn't make it; attendance was sparse at several events. Townspeople, too, faced the prospect of miles-long walks to their homes and jobs. Merchants in the village were starting for business, with the streets deserted.

The calamity of Lake Placid is an extreme indictment of mass transit, to be sure. It was born of unusual circumstances, yes, but it is the result of years of planning, and is an attempt to deal with a demand that is hardly unfathomable. The Olympic site is not a sprawling metropolis; there are several thousand people in a rather limited area — just the sort of thing transit planners say they need to make a system work. But they failed.

Public transportation rarely proves more efficient than the private automobile because it involves party "A" relying on "B" to look out for A's interest when B has no reason to do so other than a job description. If A is prudent, he will know that no one is going to look out for him better than he can.

When public transit is accompanied by measures to force reliance on it over private means of transportation, all of us lose one option for looking after ourselves. Some mass transit systems function better than others, in Orange County, we happen to have a fairly dependable, though very costly bus operation. All such agencies are susceptible to mismanagement, strikes and other breakdowns, however. Each of us as a person is, too, in a way, but our failures tend to affect very few besides ourselves. Public transportation, especially when there is no alternative available, impacts multitudes with its flaws.

That's the cold reminder from Lake Placid as we approach a new transportation age, here where the sun always shines...

Abortion -- the court's easy way out

The United States Supreme Court voted Tuesday to uphold a lower court's ruling that taxpayers must be forced to pay for abortions. The decision is yet another example of the lack of courage demonstrated by the current Supreme Court. While choosing not to decide on the merits of the case, the Supreme Court justices simply let stand an obnoxious ruling by U.S. District Judge John Dooling. Dooling's mandate of taxpayer-funded abortions deserved to be rejected. The Supreme Court's acquiescence to Judge Dooling is doing nothing less than condoning the power grab by an arrogant member of the federal judiciary.

Last year after considerable debate Congress passed a Medicaid appropriations bill with a specific restriction on the use of tax money to provide abortions. Both houses decided that tax money should be used to provide abortions only for women whose lives are endangered by their pregnancies and to victims of rape or incest. It was a hard decision to make, and not taken lightly by those elected officials.

In an act of unabashed judicial arrogance, Judge Dooling last month decided that he, not the U.S. Congress, has the final say on how tax dollars, or how many tax dollars, will be spent when it comes to abortion. He struck down the limitations set by Congress, and proclaimed the taxpayers obligated to pick up the abortion tab for any low-income female. He insisted his broad definition of medical necessity would be the guidepost for determining who gets tax money for abortions instead of the limits set in the appropriations bill. Tuesday, in a 6-to-3 decision, the Supreme Court backed him.

This decision violates the principles of both freedom and democracy. First, it forces those who consider abortion immoral to pay for the abortions of others. This loathsome practice makes such people less than slaves. Second, the United States government is supposedly based on the concept of no taxation without representation. Has that government now evolved to the point that unelected powerbrokers — judges — can tax the population at will? The Supreme Court's failure to confront Judge Dooling does not bode well for the future of freedom or democracy in this nation.

The abortion issue has caused heated debate since the 1973 Supreme Court ruling legalizing the practice. Knowing that many taxpayers consider abortion immoral, Congress was prudent to limit the use of tax money in this area. The interference of Judge Dooling is unconscionable, as is the Supreme Court's refusal to prevent that interference.

Better to keep it quiet

By Robert Walters
WASHINGTON (NEA) - After suffering through a decade of embarrassing disclosures of its illegal and unethical activities, the Central Intelligence Agency is moving to stifle future revelations of its unlawful conduct.

The CIA isn't necessarily going to clean up its act. Instead, it has convinced sympathetic members of Congress to introduce legislation that would shield the agency from having to publicly release information about its transgressions.

The legislation takes the form of amendments to the Freedom of Information Act that would restrict the right to request data under the FOIA to U.S. citizens seeking only information about themselves maintained in CIA files.

Thus, individuals would retain limited access to their personal files, required under provisions of both the FOIA and the Privacy Act, but the agency would be protected from ever again having to reveal humiliating information about conduct such as:

—Project CHAOS, a massive domestic spying operation during the late 1960s and early 1970s that involved infiltration, espionage and surveillance of critics of the Vietnam War, civil-rights activists and other purported dissidents.

—Illegal "bugging" and wiretapping.

unlawful break-ins, interception of personal mail and maintenance of dossiers on individuals whose only suspected "crime" was expression of their disagreement with various government policies.

—Extensive domestic operations in which the targets were U.S. citizens — in direct violation of a congressional mandate that forbade the CIA from exercising any "police, subpoena or law enforcement powers or internal security functions."

—A wide range of extra-legal projects — operated under code names such as MKULTRA, MKDELTA, MKNAOMI, ARTICHOKE and BLUEBIRD — in which American citizens were used, often without their knowledge, for drug experimentation or research in "brainwashing" and other forms of behavior modification.

The CIA claims the proposed restrictive legislation is necessary to prevent foreign nations, especially the Soviet Union and its allies, from using the FOIA to extract sensitive information about the agency.

But the law already contains a provision, repeatedly relied upon by the CIA in past years, that exempts from FOIA disclosure requirements any material that must "be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy."

Other exemptions preclude the disclosure of information relating to internal agency practices, personnel matters, internal agency memos and investigative files.

As recently as last year, CIA Deputy Director Frank C. Carucci told a House committee: "It is undeniable that, under the current FOIA, national security exemptions exist to protect our most vital information."

Two years earlier, another CIA official told a Senate subcommittee that compliance with the law initially was a traumatic experience for the agency, then added: "We have been able to make the necessary adjustments. I am pleased to report that, in fact, I think the agency is better off for it."

Because the CIA never has casually released any information, even when complying with FOIA requests, there is no persuasive evidence that the law ever has been successfully used to the detriment of this country's national-security interests.

Indeed, the CIA can cite no specific examples of such FOIA abuse. Instead, it relies upon the vague claim that cooperative intelligence agencies in various nations and other sources of information are uneasy about possible future disclosures of sensitive information.

In fact, the security-conscious CIA never has been reconciled to the democratic concept of promoting government accountability and encouraging an enlightened electorate through public disclosure and discussion of federal activities.

Now that the 1970s criticism of the CIA is fading, the agency is anxious to insure that it never again will have to admit to its misjudgments, its excesses and its failures.

George Wallace president

by Paul Harvey

Alabama's Gov. George Wallace was sweeping party primaries in the spring of '72.

He beat home-stater Sanford in North Carolina.

He carried every county in Florida, every county in Tennessee.

Then when Wallace proved a vote-getter in Pennsylvania and Wisconsin — where he beat Humphrey — that did it!

Hubert Humphrey made a phone call. In essence it said, "With Wallace's help I can get the nomination; let's establish contact."

That call was to a friend and political confidant in Columbus, Ga., who promptly established contact with Wallace's friend and political adviser, Jimmy Faulkner of Bay Minette, Ala.

During lunch at Faulkner's home, Humphrey was quoted as saying that he could not win the election without the active support of Wallace.

"He could be a kingmaker," Faulkner replied bluntly. "George Wallace is no kingmaker, he is a king! The only way to get Wallace to be an active campaigner for a Humphrey ticket," said Faulkner, "would be for Wallace to be on that ticket."

Humphrey's emissary responded that the important thing was to keep open a "line of communication for negotiation." Faulkner, in turn, promised to report the conversation to Gov. Wallace.

Wallace was campaigning in the Midwest. A meeting was scheduled for the following Friday — May 19, 1972. But on May 15 in Laurel, Md., Gov. Wallace was shot.

The next day, while hospitalized, he won primaries in both Maryland and Michigan, received an outright majority in Michigan. He outpolled Humphrey in both states.

On Wednesday following the attempted assassination, Faulkner was contacted urgently. Humphrey now wanted to include Wallace on the ticket "on crutches, in a wheelchair or any way I can get him."

Faulkner promised to relay the offer promptly.

Wallace, hospitalized in Silver Springs, Md., 10 days following the attempt on his life, even though gravely ill, listened to Humphrey's offer of the Vice Presidency, was delighted.

Philosophically, a Humphrey-Wallace ticket appeared incompatible. But, agreed Wallace, "Humphrey is the best of the bad guys — and we've got to stop McGovern."

The Democratic National Convention was in Miami in July. On Sunday night, Jimmy Faulkner was invited to Sen. Humphrey's suite. Humphrey said, "Gov. Wallace will be good for me. I think I will be good for him. In my opinion, we will be an unbeatable team."

There was pragmatic political evidence to support that prediction. The appeal of George Wallace, in a wheelchair, was greater than ever. A dozen governors were demanding Wallace be included on the Democratic ticket.

Humphrey was confident of his own following in the North. Wallace could deliver the West and South. The then-governor of Georgia, Jimmy Carter, agreed: "A Humphrey-Wallace ticket would be unbeatable."

Wallace, though not even on the primary ballot in California, had received three hundred thousand write-in votes there.

However, at the July convention in Miami, it was the "outlaw delegation" from California which was seated. The California delegate vote was split.

And when the roll was called — out of 3,200 votes — McGovern won by 12.

McGovern was nominated — subsequently, resoundingly defeated.

Now to project what would have happened had seven California votes tipped the balance instead to a Humphrey-Wallace ticket.

Assuming the combination would have been in fact "unbeatable," Humphrey would have died of cancer in the first year of his second term — and George Wallace would have been President of the United States.

But for seven votes.

The facts of labor life

By Don Graff

It may not be feasible teaching an old dog new tricks, but how about a dinosaur?

Lane Kirkland, for one, is inclined to try. The new president of the AFL-CIO has decided to introduce Big Labor, at its very respectable age, to a couple of facts of American life.

Sex and race.

Such is one of the more interesting developments out of the recent gathering in Florida of the AFL-CIO executive council, a session otherwise noteworthy for not being under the firm — not to say rigid — grip of the late George Meany who dominated such federation proceedings for the preceding quarter of a century. And there may well be a connection.

Kirkland has designated two seats on the 35-member council to be reserved for, respectively, a woman and a minority-group representative.

Not exactly earthshaking news, you say. It may be somewhat more so when you consider the existing composition of that power center of the 19-million-member labor federation. Under a longstanding rule restricting council participation to heads of member unions, it includes at present only one. And there has never been a woman member.

So? So women today account for more than 40 percent of the total national work force. Further, one in every five union members is a woman.

Blacks and Hispanics also have sizable representation in the labor force and union ranks, and would have even more were they not so over-represented in the unemployed statistics.

Not only is it about time that Big Labor took note of the actual situation, it is long past time for its own health.

While women are increasingly numerous in unions, only 16 percent of all those millions of working women are as yet organized. Much the same figures apply to minority workers. Many of both are in service occupations, a booming employment category where more than 5 million jobs have opened up in recent years. Yet only some 15 percent are unionized.

Meanwhile, as the total national work force has been expanding rapidly in recent years to the current numerous neighborhood of 100 million, organized labor has been essentially stagnant in total membership. And proportionately, union membership has actually declined — from about a quarter to under a fifth of all workers in the last 10 years alone.

There could be a connection with the long disinclination of Big Labor's leadership to change with the changing work force, a connection that Kirkland has recognized and, in contrast to his predecessor, is prepared to do something about.

Kirkland, Meany's longtime aid and personally designated successor, has said he is "no lover of novelty." If so, he must have considerably more in mind. Two seats out of 35, considering the composition of the labor movement as a whole, would be exactly that — a novelty.

Give him credit for first tricks, but it will take quite a few more to accommodate the institutional dinosaur he has inherited to the times.

Fly now, search later

Leave it to the Soviets.

Just when the West is concentrating on Afghanistan, they roll out a challenge on another front — air travel.

This June they will be putting into service on domestic routes a new Airbus, the A-300, with a 350-passenger capacity — 70 more than its Western equivalent, the A-300 developed by a French-German consortium.

More, it represents a breakthrough in passenger convenience with a time-saving baggage arrangement. Passengers first enter a lower compartment where they place their own luggage in bins numbered according to seat assignments, proceed to upper-deck seating compartments for the journey and at the end of trip reverse the process to retrieve their own gear. Self-service loading and unloading can be accomplished in as little as 20 minutes, Soviet authorities claim.

It has all the signs of a mass-travel innovation Western airlines will be hard-pressed to catch up with — do-it-yourself baggage loss.

But don't think they can't do it. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Bad food, great service on French rails

By JEFFREY ULBRICH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — From the moment the first train pulled out of Paris, bearing Queen Marie-Amelie on the 13-mile trip to St. Germain on Aug. 27, 1837, the French knew they were on to something.

The intervening 142 years have done little to change that view, and France now possesses one of the finest rail systems in the world.

"The railroad is, and must remain, an essential factor in our system of transportation," says Transport Minister Joel le Theule. "The government, for its part, believes in the future of the railroad and shows it by its enormous subsidies."

The state-run railroad, the Societe Nationale des Chemins de Fer Francais, commonly known as the SNCF, had total operating expenses in 1978 of $8.35 billion.

The government picked up the tab for some fare reductions and to continue service on some unprofitable lines. It also pays for the railroad's huge retirement program. That comes to an additional $3.75 billion in subsidies.

In fact, France spends as much on the railroads as it does on building and maintaining its highways.

"When a Frenchman thinks of going somewhere, particularly if it is more than 300 kilometers, it is sure he will think of the train," said Jean Albertini, an SNCF official. "In each town there is a station, and the railroad is something that is always there, with precise schedules."

Apart from a reputation for serving the worst food to be had in this land of gastronomes, French trains are comfortable and nearly always on time and offer a wide range of services and fare reductions.

The trains have a computerized ticket and reservation system hooked into most major travel agencies, facilities to rent a hotel room, a car or even a bicycle. Some lines can carry cars. The SNCF will pick up baggage at home and deliver it to a destination. It offers special help to the handicapped and even provides companions for children traveling alone.

The list of special fares is almost endless, some reductions ranging up to 75 percent and including price cuts for soldiers, retirees, veterans, large families, families traveling together, even couples in some cases.

There are special weekly and monthly rates for people who travel often, once-a-year reductions for vacationers and low income people and special prices for very long trips.

The trains even welcome dogs and cats — if owners are willing to buy their pets second-class tickets at half price.

Most major European nations have some sort of fare reduction plan. In West Germany and Sweden, almost everyone qualifies in some way or another for special fares. In Britain, where fares were raised by 20 percent last month, pensioners and families still get price breaks.

Contrary to the United States, where the railroad was a part of the conquest of the West, rail transport in France developed to connect established towns inside existing borders. It thus became an integral part of France.

The move toward high-speed trains in Europe is not unique to France. British rail has 32 high-speed passenger trains, with top speeds of 125 mph, most of them linking London with other major cities.

In West Germany, where some lines already permit speeds of 125 mph, two routes are being built to carry trains at speeds of 155 mph.

After 10 years of steady increase, the number of riders on French trains was stagnant in 1979 in spite of another oil crunch, according to Pierre Gentil, SNCF director-general.

That contrasts with Britain, West Germany and Sweden, all of which report ridership increases. Officials of the West German federal railway estimate that 10 percent of their ridership increase was due to people leaving their cars at home in favor of taking the train.

Railroads throughout Europe can haul more passengers than they do now, particularly in non-peak hours and during the week. These are the periods officials are trying to fill by using fare reduction schemes.

In spite of the fare increases, British rail has launched a huge advertising campaign, urging people to "Let the Train Take the Strain."

SNCF officials say oil problems so far have played a relatively small role in the growth of passenger service. With 17 million cars on French roads, there's still no evidence the crunch has reached crisis proportions.

"People are still attached to their cars," said Albertini. "The cost of gasoline (now $3.10 per gallon for premium) is still not dissuasive. It's beginning to... If rationing ever comes, we'll certainly benefit from it. But we are not there yet."

Soviets may not need U.S. grain

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Soviet Union gets good weather this spring, its grain production could rebound sharply from last year's dismal harvest, according to Agriculture Department analysts.

As it looks right now, prospects for Soviet grain production are much more favorable than a year ago, officials said Wednesday.

Moreover, grain crops planted last fall throughout the northern hemisphere "appear to be fairly normal" for this time of year, the analysts said.

The study by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service was based on field reports as of early February from observers in Europe, the Soviet Union, and parts of Asia, the Middle East and North Africa.

Although the agency did not include the United States, other reports by the department say the U.S. winter wheat crop is in "fair to good" condition at the present time.

The report said winter grain crops to be harvested in the northern hemisphere in 1980 "could be larger than last year's when various areas had poor crops." No production estimates were included, however.

"Weather conditions during the remainder of the winter and spring will still be the key in the final outcome of these northern hemisphere winter grain crops," it said.

"Planting of grains this spring is still several months away, and in various countries these make an important contribution to the overall grain output."

In the Soviet Union, as an example, spring-planted crops usually account for two-thirds of the total grain area, while in Canada they account for almost all.

The report said the Soviet Union planted 37 million hectares in winter grain last fall, an increase of 3 million from plantings for the 1979 harvest. A hectare is about 2.47 acres.

Soviet grain production plummeted to 179 million metric tons last year, a 25 percent drop from the record harvest of 237.2 million in 1978.

Moscow has set a 1980 harvest goal at 235 million metric tons of grain, the report said.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7

bushels of wheat, as an example.

"To reach the 1980 target would require near ideal conditions and, based on the situation to date, conditions appear less than optimal," it said.

"However, with area (of plantings) up and conditions generally good, the crop should be well above last year's poor output."

Besides the Soviet Union, winter grain output this year could increase in Western and Eastern Europe, and in Turkey, assuming "no adversities strike later in the season," the report said.

Looking at the situation in Asia, the report said China's winter wheat crop "got off to a poorer start" than last season, including problems with too much precipitation last August and early September, and too little later in the fall.

"Prospects for the winter wheat crop (in China) at this time are less favorable than they were a year ago, when a record wheat crop was produced," it said.

Some of the White House 'characters'

EDITOR'S NOTE — In this last of six articles on the United States presidency, Joe Wing, former general editor of AP Newsfeatures, offers some miscellany about the men who've held the office.

James Buchanan was the only bachelor president. When Lincoln said he owed everything to his mother, he was speaking of his stepmother.

For his family, bankrupt U.S. Grant fought off cancer long enough to write his memoirs and earn $450,000.

Chester A. Arthur, a machine politician, shocked Tammany by becoming a reform president.

There have been two Johnsons in the White House, two Adamses, two Harrisones, two Roosevelts. Each of the same-named was related except for the two Johnsons.

Dolley Madison "loved everyone and was beloved by all." Abigail Fillmore installed the first White House library and its first bathtub. Eliza McCord Johnson taught unschooled Andrew how to read. Straitlaced "Lemonade Lucy" Hayes wouldn't serve liquor. Edith Bolling Galt, Wilson's second wife, played a key role during his long illness. Eleanor Roosevelt traveled half a million miles in this country alone, gave FDR her findings.

Florence, whom Harding called the Duchess, sometimes gave him advice based on astrology. Jacqueline graced John F. Kennedy's administration. Lady Bird Johnson, with "the touch of velvet and the stamina of steel," sparked highway beautification.

to make the choice among those two and two other candidates.

Wilson went to bed on election day in 1916 thinking he had lost to Charles Evans Hughes; late returns from California gave him the edge.

Franklin Pierce, a reluctant candidate, made not a single speech, won hands down.

William Henry Harrison, touted as the "log cabin and hard cider" candidate, never lived in a log cabin and did not drink.

John Tyler, first vice president to take over as president, died a Confederate congressman.

Theodore Roosevelt, a recognized historian, explorer, conservationist and author of 30 books, was also a world-class trophy hunter. Professional Woodrow Wilson wrote limericks. Franklin D. Roosevelt suffered. Dwight D. Eisenhower starred on the gridiron before injuring one knee; as president he, golfed and painted. Ford, a skier and standout college football player, might have played pro football.

Big men who have filled the country's biggest office include 6-foot-4 Abraham Lincoln, 6-foot-3 Lyndon B. Johnson, 6-foot-2 Washington and 300-pound Taft. Then there was that good little man, James Madison, who stood all of 5 feet, 4 inches tall.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, the second and third presidents, died the same day, July 4, 1826. At 90 years 8 months, Adams was the longest-lived president.

John Quincy Adams served his country longest, starting at age 14 as secretary to the U.S. minister in Russia, and continuing until death at 80 as a distinguished congressman.

J.Q. Adams' popular and electoral votes were smaller than Andrew Jackson's yet he came out ahead when the House of Representatives had BEST C.A.F.E. HURRY!

Ford has the best Corporate Average Fuel Economy of any major U.S. car maker. C.A.F.E. is the government's measure of auto companies' progress in gas mileage each year. It is an average using the EPA rating system and projected 1980 total model year car sales mix as submitted to the U.S. government in December, 1979.

Only Ford among the major U.S. companies ranks first on this basis.

Remember, C.A.F.E. is an average, so consult EPA ratings for individual car's mileage.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, E.D.

Dr. Wallace: I have been smoking for three years and for the last two, I have been smoking at least a pack a day. My boyfriend has been sweet and understanding about it, but I know it bothers him, so I want to quit smoking for him as well as my health.

I have tried not buying cigarettes but I always wind up "bumming" one.

Do you or your guest writers have an easy way for me to stop? I have already tried substituting gum for cigarettes but it didn't work. — Darlene, Klamath Falls, Ore.

Darlene: I know of no "easy" way to stop the nasty habit of smoking. Actually, I don't think there is any easy way but one can break the habit if one sets his or her mind to it.

I think you should set reasonable goals and then work to obtain them. Let me explain. For the next week, allow yourself three cigarettes a day — one before noon, one after noon and one in the evening. The following two weeks limit your intake to two cigarettes a day. The fourth week limit your cigarette smoking to one per day. On the fifth week stop smoking entirely, and keep track of the days you are not smoking.

As the number of days increases, so will your confidence. Also, if by chance you should give in (heaven forbid), don't throw away the program. Stop smoking and start counting the days again.

It worked for me (I haven't smoked in two years) and it can for you, but you must want to quit. — Dr. Wallace

Hi Darlene: I'll admit I'm a smoker and I'd like to quit but I know that I don't have the courage or confidence (I'd like to say guts) to quit.

But if I did I would quit "cold turkey." I'd throw away all my cigarettes and give away my two lighters. Then I'd get involved with good food and gain a few pounds (I'm always on a diet). Then when I felt I had the smoking hang-up licked, I'd go back on my diet. Good luck and I hope you quit. — Jill, London, Ontario, Canada

Hello Darlene: I don't smoke but my mother did and she quit (I think). About a year ago our doctor told my mother to stop smoking because she had a breathing problem.

She tried everything but the most successful method was by going to a center for cigarette smoking (I forget the name). It cost her over $200 but it has worked so far (27 days).

I realize going to a center is expensive but at today's prices, so are cigarettes and no amount of money is worth lung cancer. — Ron, Rock Island, Ill.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a stroke four years ago. I'm able to get around and cook and do light housekeeping but I tire easily and quickly. I saw an advertisement for energy tabs containing fructose to provide energy and pep. Do you know if these are good?

DEAR READER — You can get fructose from any fruit that you eat and it's half of the sugar in ordinary table sugar. Yes, it does have energy in it and so does table sugar.

Ordinary table sugar is a combination of glucose and fructose hooked together to form a disaccharide (double sugar), thus half of the sugar in the bowl is glucose and half of it is fructose.

When you eat table sugar in any form or any foods prepared with it, the double sugar is broken apart in the intestine by enzymes, leaving you ordinary glucose and ordinary fructose. That fructose is no different than that which you saw advertised.

Fructose is absorbed into the bloodstream and broken down to carbon dioxide and water, releasing energy. In the process it has to be converted to glucose which happens in all of us.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 3-8, Sugar and Starch: Carbohydrates. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It will give you the basic information that you apparently need about carbohydrates.

All carbohydrates, whether they're in fruits, vegetables, bread, other cereals or milk are made up of three single sugars: glucose, fructose and galactose. The latter occurs only in milk so almost all the other carbohydrate foods that we eat contain glucose and fructose.

Now, there are lots of reasons for being tired and having a loss of energy which is your basic problem. About 80 percent of the people who have a loss of energy don't have any discernible medical problem that causes it. Nevertheless, that means about one out of five do have an underlying medical problem. For that reason, I suggest that people who have unexplained persistent fatigue should see their doctor for an examination.

Food bills boosted by sugar costs

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Sugar prices added a sour note to family grocery bills last month, helping boost supermarket prices by an average of just over 1 percent, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey.

The price of a five-pound sack of sugar went up at the stores checked in 12 of the 13 cities on the survey list and was unchanged in the 13th city. The increases, ranging from 4 cents to 45 cents, more than offset declines in the price of pork chops and eggs.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list at the end of November 1973 because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

The latest survey showed that the marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in eight cities during February, rising an average of 2.6 percent. The bill declined in five cities, down an average of 1.2 percent. On an overall basis, the marketbasket bill at the checklist store was 1.1 percent higher at the start of March than it was a month earlier. The increase compared with a seven-tenths of a percent boost during January and a 1 percent decline during February 1979.

Comparing today's prices with those seven years ago, the AP found that the marketbasket bill at the checklist stores is an average of 87 percent higher today than it was on March 1, 1973.

The increase in sugar costs reflects higher prices being paid on world markets which, in turn, reflect a smaller sugar crop. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the world price averaged about 8 cents a pound during the first half of 1979, but had risen to 21 cents a pound by the first week in February 1980.

There was some encouraging news at the meat counter. The price of a center-cut pork chops declined during February at the checklist store in seven cities, reflecting the steady increase in hog production. The USDA says federally inspected hog slaughter during the first six weeks of 1980 was up 26 percent from a year earlier.

Egg prices also dropped, according to the AP survey. The price of a dozen eggs declined at the checklist store in 11 cities. On the average, the price of eggs in the AP survey dropped by about 7 percent during February, following an 11 percent decline in January.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm happily married and the mother of three. My problem is my mother. She is 68 and blind. She started losing her sight 10 years ago, and became totally blind two years ago. Since that time she has been depressed, and says there is no reason to live if you can't see.

My father is living, but he's no help at all. He has been uncommunicative, withdrawn and sullen ever since I can remember. His relationship with mother appears to be based on mutual repugnance. He collects trash and "treasures," which he places all over the house. Even a sighted person would have trouble getting around that house.

I am afraid mother might be suicidal, and as an only child I feel responsible. All she cares about is her grandchildren. She won't leave the house, and she falls and bumps into everything there.

I know that lots of blind people lead happy, fulfilled lives. How can I help my mother overcome her depression about her blindness?

My parents have plenty of money to pay for any kind of treatment or counseling. What can I do to help?

We live in the same town and I have more than enough time to spend with her. Tell me, please...

WHAT TO DO

DEAR WHAT: Both your parents, particularly your mother, need professional help. Your mother must learn how to live with her disability. Call the Braille Institute and ask for suggestions. If there is none in your area, inquire at your Family Service Association. Don't give up. Sightless people can learn to accept their limitations and live productive, happy lives. Write again, and let me know if you are making progress. I care.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (a physician) hired a new office assistant who is active in a theater group. She insisted that we attend a play in which she was appearing. She even gave us free tickets. The play was "Equus."

We went. Halfway through the play, this girl took most of her clothes off! I was mortified.

Now I feel uncomfortable when I see her in the office. I am also suspicious about her motives. Her next appearance was in "Godspell." We received no invitation or free tickets to that one.

What do you think?

DOCTOR'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Give the girl the benefit of the doubt. If she just wanted your husband to see her with her clothes off, she could have booked herself for a physical.

DEAR ABBY: We need advice desperately. We have a dear young relative (married a year) whose house looks like a disaster area.

Would it be wrong to ask if we could go in and clean it up for her?

You never saw such a mess in all your life!

ABSOLUTELY ANONYMOUS

DEAR ABSOLUTELY: There's a wise old truism, "Give a man a fish and he can eat for a day; teach him how to fish, and he can eat for a lifetime."

Subtly offer your young relative a few tips from an "old veteran" on how to make housekeeping easier. If she reacts with appreciation, dig in and teach her. If she reacts with indignation—back off.

DEAR ABBY: Years ago, when married people were invited to weddings, the invitations were addressed to "Mr. and Mrs."

Have times changed? Recently my physician husband received two wedding invitations addressed to him only. One was from a nurse, the other from a patient. He said both knew he was married.

He attended both weddings by himself because he is dedicated to his profession; but I feel my not being invited, and his accepting without me, was rude.

Can you update me on the present customs?

INVISIBLE PARTNER

DEAR PARTNER: Forget customs, etiquette and all the rest. Kindness and common sense outranks propriety and tradition in my book.

The invitations should have included you. But since they did not, your husband should have either requested permission to bring you—or stayed home himself.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BETTY IN BUFFALO": If you want to please your man, (and you insist that you do) dress the way he wants you to, and throw all the fashion magazines in the trash can.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet. "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS." Send $1 plus a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to ABBY: Letters booklet: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212.

PAMPA DIET CENTER 669-2351

Diet facts & fallacies

March is "National Nutrition Month". Why not spend this entire month weeding out poor nutritional habits and planting some good ones? A good place to start is your refrigerator and cupboards. Check the labels on all food containers. You'll be surprised how many packaged foods contain salt, sugar, hydrogenated oil, artificial colors and preservatives.

Frequently these long lists of ingredients make for complex reading. Labels also fail to list the quantities of each item. Although on any label, ingredients are listed in order of predominance, specific amounts are not given. Any label with B H A and B H T means these products have preservatives and chemicals for better shelf life.

Why not avoid all this confusion, and buy wholesome fresh food for your family? If a packaged food has ingredients that sound foreign to you then it would be better to leave it on the shelf at the store.

Rev. Roy Martinez

THE REV. ROY MARTINEZ, pastor of Iglesia Bautista, 512 Kingsmill, departed Thursday for Cochabamba, Bolivia, South America to participate in a Crusade for Christ. Twenty-five teams went on the trip, at the invitation of 25 Baptist Churches in that country. Martinez has participated in crusades in Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Spain, Peru, Columbia and Nicaragua. International Crusades, Inc. of Dallas has been in charge of making the arrangements.

FBC sets singles event

First Baptist Church of Pampa will sponsor a second weekend conference for single adults in the Panhandle area on March 21, 22, and 23.
Conference leader will be Dr. Dan Russ of Pine Cove Christian Conference Center, Tyler, Texas. Russ currently directs "The Carpenter's Workshop," a special ministry for single adults.
The first general session will begin at 7 p.m. Friday in the Fellowship Hall of First Baptist Church. Following registration Russ will introduce the series topic, "What Am I Afraid Of?"
Saturday's activities will begin at 10 a.m. with the second general session. Saturday afternoon will feature two specialized sessions, one at 2 p.m. and the other at 3:30 p.m. A family style meal is scheduled at 6:30 p.m. and will be followed by the third general session.
The conference will conclude Sunday morning with a continental breakfast beginning at 8:30 a.m.
Fee for the conference will be $3. Late registration fee is $4. Child care will be provided for all scheduled events.
For more information contact George Warren at 669-3348.

Beaver to speak Sunday night at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly

Missionary Gene Beaver, presently engaged in preparing for mission work in the Honduras, will be at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly at 7 p.m. Sunday. Beaver, previously involved as director of ventures of Faith Mission in Nicaragua, says he now feels directed to the Honduras, the second largest country in Central America and one of the poorest.
Pastor Gene Allen invites the public to attend. A nursery will be provided.

Pastors more sure of life's purpose than congregation

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Pastors seem to be more sure what life is all about than do rank-and-file church members.
That's the finding of a recent extensive survey in the Lutheran Church of America, which found that 86 percent of the pastors say they've found an answer to the question of the purpose of life.
However, less than half that percentage of lay people — just 41 percent — say they've found the answer.
Another 42 percent say they believe "there must be an answer, although I don't know what it is," and 11 percent think it's impossible to know, while the rest couldn't say.
The replies were part of results from wide-ranging questionnaires returned by 1,472 scientifically selected laity and 549 clergy in the denomination's "Listening Post" project to be used in planning programs through the mid-1980's.
Big majorities both of pastors and lay people say they've learned much about life's meaning from Bible reading, sermons and their parents. Pastors are most likely also to list other sources — books, education, meditation and psychology.
Few of either — 14 percent of clergy and 18 percent of laity — list watching television as a source of such understanding.
The study reflects a pattern that has developed in several denominations in recent years of polling members about various matters in order to help guide operations and activities.
But the studies by the 3 million-member Lutheran Church in America, largest of three major Lutheran bodies, are among the most probing and detailed in turning up the range of attitudes.
Altogether, it has taken seven surveys in the past year, each dealing with a variety of matters. Several have brought out marked differences between pastors and members.
For example, more than half the lay people think "God has given very clear, detailed rules that apply to everyone" in making day-to-day decisions.
But two-thirds of the clergy doubt that, believing instead that "God has given us some general rules, but we have to decide how to apply them to our own situations."
Clergymen also were much less likely to classify various specified acts as "always wrong" such as "showing disrespect to parents, missing an appointment and not calling to apologize, smoking marijuana, working to overthrow the government."
It depends on the situation, the biggest share of pastors said, while most laity tended to make absolute condemnations.
A big proportion of both groups — laity and clergy — say they regularly spend some "quiet time" reflecting about their lives, many of them doing so nearly every day.
Those periods often include prayer, Bible reading or being outdoors, where most nearly all of the respondents report they have experienced "awe and wonder" at nature.

Protestant enrollment up

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The country's biggest Protestant school system, run by the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, reports increases this year in enrollment, teachers and schools.
Enrollment in pre-school and primary levels now totals 160,020, up 5,086, and in high schools, 15,663, up 471. Number of primary schools now totals 1,327, up 37, and of high schools, 38, up 2. Teachers now total about 9,100.
About 38 percent of the primary pupils are non-Lutheran and 13 percent are non-white. In the church high schools, 15.1 percent are non-white and 26.5 percent are non-Lutheran.

Charismatic priest marries

LARGO, Fla. (AP) — A prominent Roman Catholic priest active in the healing ministry of the charismatic movement, the Rev. Francis MacNutt, was married here last month before a United Methodist evangelist, the Rev. Tommy Tyson.
It was a "very typical Methodist wedding," says Tyson, in which MacNutt married Judith Carole Sewell, a Catholic psychologist active in counseling charismatic Christians.
MacNutt, formerly based in St. Louis and an internationally known dominican priest, has requested laicization from the priesthood, but as not yet received it, associates say.

NET

One of the definitions for a net is a trap or a snare. A net is used to catch a fish. There are times in every man's life when, like Job, he feels that God has trapped him in a net. Job 19:6 reads, "Know now that God hath overthrown me, and hath compassed me with his net."

But our troubles and afflictions are never caused by our God. Moreover, His Word says He is ever faithful to deliver His people. The Psalmist asserts: "Mine eyes are ever toward the Lord, for he shall pluck my feet out of the net."

How wonderful are His promises. These promises are proclaimed from the pulpit by your pastor each week for the blessing and edifying of God's people. Won't you attend church this week and partake of this blessing?

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

March 8, 1980

This coming year you are likely to be more adventurous where your goals are concerned. Your willingness to work hard and take calculated risks could reap the rewards you desire.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's very important to think for yourself today. Listen to advice if it is wise and prudent, but don't discount your own judgment in the process. Getting along with other signs is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your Astro-Graph Letter, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A failure to take your responsibilities seriously could cause you needless headaches. Perform duties that are expected of you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are going to jake any gambles today, bet on yourself and your abilities, rather than on someone else's. Banking on a loser could cause you to be one also.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A companion or associate could make lavish promises that he or she may not be able to deliver. Logically assess what is offered you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't make tasks you don't enjoy doing harder than they really are. Today you may have a tendency to exaggerate the difficulties of your work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Treat your resources and possessions with respect today. Losses could occur if you permit yourself to be careless or indifferent.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be very careful today not to blow petty domestic grievances out of proportion. Such behavior would only add fuel to the fire.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you're not the type to hold a grudge, but today you may treat someone poorly because you didn't like the way this person dealt with you in the past.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Before participating in pleasurable pursuits today, have some idea of what you intend to spend. If you don't, you could blow your budget.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is not a day to take things relating to your status or career for granted. The luck you're counting on may not be there to bail you out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Having preconceived notions about the ways another will act in a given situation could lead you astray today. Keep an open mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It would be wise not to get involved in the financial affairs of friends, or let them become enmeshed in yours. Things could get a little sticky in both cases.

Pampa edges Hereford, 4-3, to win tournament crown

By L.D. STRATE
Timely hitting by Mark Jennings and a masterful pitching performance in the late innings by Mark Qualls lifted the Pampa Harvesters past Hereford, 4-3, Thursday in the championship finals of the Pampa Tournament at Optimist park.

The Harvesters won the tournament title in 1978, but last year's event was canceled because of rain.

Jennings, who had drilled a two-run homer in the third to knot the score at 2-2, hit a sacrifice flyball to leftfield in the ninth inning to score Steve McDougall with the winning run.

The contest went into extra innings after Qualls helped his own cause, with a triple up the middle to score Greg Quarles in the seventh to knot the score at 3-3.

McDougall led off the ninth with his third base hit of the game. He went clear to third on a perfect bunt by brother Jeff McDougall and a little help from third sacker John Torres, who dropped the ball after fielding it.

Qualls scattered eight hits and seemed to get stronger with each inning. The junior righthander didn't allow a baserunner the last three innings, striking out six of the nine batters he faced.

"I was extremely pleased with the way Mark pitched," Pampa coach Steve Scott said. "His pitching, Mark's (Jennings) homer and sacrifice and our defense was the story of the game."

Pampa was charged with only two errors in 16 innings yesterday, both coming against Hereford.

The Harvesters turned in pair of defensive gems in the fifth inning. Third sacker Greg Quarles made a diving catch on a short pop up down the thirdbase line and centerfielder Steve McDougall threw out a runner going to second.

Qualls struck out 11 and walked only one in nine innings to register the win in his first appearance of the season.

Steve McDougall led Pampa's 8-hit assault with three base raps. He scored the first of his two runs in the third when Jennings poked a 2-2 pitch over the 343-foot barrier in centerfield.

Jennings, Jeff McDougall, Andy Richardson, Quarles, and Qualls had one hit each.

"I still want our hitting to come around a little better," Scott said. "We're not as aggressive as we should be at the plate, but that should come with more experience."

Scott said he wasn't going to worry too much about the Harvesters' hitting since the team is carrying a .400 batting average after the win over Hereford.

Pampa opened the tournament Thursday morning with a 10-0 rout of Dumas to avenge a 3-2 loss to the Demons Tuesday.

Behind an 11-hit assault it took Pampa just five innings to dispose of Dumas. Jennings, Clyde Coffee, and Richardson had two hits apiece while Steve McDougall, Monte Covalt, Scott John, Kennan Henderson, and Jeff McDougall added one hit each. Richardson banged a two-run homer in the fourth inning.

Scott John, another junior righthander, allowed four hits while striking out five and walking two.

"I was extremely pleased with John's pitching," Scott said. "He showed a lot of poise and confidence as did the entire team."

Pampa, 2-1, hosts Borger at 4 p.m. today. Like Pampa, Borger is defending champions of their district.

Dallas lands NBA team

CHICAGO (AP) — It's official now. Dallas will have a team in the National Basketball Association in the 1980-81 season.

Commissioner Larry O'Brien made the announcement in Chicago Thursday after a one-hour meeting with the league's 22 owners.

The news was expected. The league owners had given its approval last month for Dallas to get a franchise if the team's investors would go along with some last-minute adjustments.

O'Brien called Dallas, the third city from Texas to be awarded a league franchise, "a strong addition to the NBA." He also said that no other applications for new franchises were before the board.

The Dallas franchise was awarded to a consortium of 24 investors, among them Norm Sonju, a former general manager of the NBA's now-defunct Buffalo franchise; actor James Garner, and singer-songwriter Willie Nelson.

Dallas Mayor Robert Folsom, a previous part-owner of the Dallas Chaparrals of the now defunct American Basketball Association, appeared before the NBA board on behalf of the Dallas group. The former Dallas ABA team moved to San Antonio and became the Spurs.

The board said Dallas would be allowed to select players in an expansion draft in May after all of the 22 existing NBA franchises protected eight players on their rosters. The Dallas franchise was also given the 11th spot in the June 10 collegiate draft.

The team, which will be named in a contest this spring, has signed a lease to play its home games in Dallas' new Reunion Arena, which opens April 28 and is expected to seat between 16,000-18,000 for basketball.

The expansion necessitated a realignment of the league. Dallas will be in the Western Conference's Midwest Division, along with San Antonio and Houston, who are being shifted from their old spots in the Central Division of the Eastern Conference.

"It was important to me that the three Texas teams be kept in the same division," Sonju said.

Milwaukee and Chicago, now in the Midwest Division, will move into the Central Division in place of Houston and San Antonio.

Three of the NBA's four divisions now will have six teams. The Atlantic Division of the East Conference will remain the only conference with five teams.

The three other teams in the Midwest Division with Dallas, San Antonio and Houston will be Kansas City, Denver and Utah. Jerry Colangelo, general manager of the Phoenix Suns and chairman of the NBA's Rules and Competition Committee, said the inclusion of Dallas and the realignment "makes sense geographically and economically, and is in the best interests of the league."

Colangelo said the playoff format would be unchanged and that the teams would continue to play two games against each interconference opponent.

He also said changes in divisional play would be such that the "average fan won't notice them."

Netters defeat Dumas

Pampa High tennis teams warmed up for the Hereford Tournament this weekend by sweeping a dual with Dumas on the homecourt Tuesday.

The Harvesters finished third in the tournament a year ago, but coach David Martin said he expects his charges to do much better this time around.

Pampa swept all matches in defeating Dumas.

In the boys division, top-seeded Mark Spence disposed of Guy Craniff, 6-2, 6-1. Greg Trollinger routed Mark Gillespie, 6-2, 6-2, and Mark Elliott won over Tom Gillespie, 6-0, 6-0.

Elliott and Trollinger teamed up to shut out Crandell-Gillespie, 6-0, 6-0, in the only doubles match.

Laura Johnson, top-seeded in the girls division, extended her fall-spring record to 18-3 with a 6-2, 6-1 decision over Tammy Burgess.

Leslie Eddins dropped the first set, 7-5, but then bounced back to defeat Janet Brewer, 6-3, 6-2. Alissa Kirksey toppled Kim Watson, 6-3, 6-4, and Tricia Hawkins downed LeAnn Goule, 6-3, 6-2.

In doubles competition, Johnson-Eddins defeated Burgess-Brewer, 6-3, 6-4, and Kirksey-Hawkins won over Watson-Goule, 6-2, 6-2.

TEXAS BRIEFS

By The Associated Press
 AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Some former employees of Sunny Isle Dress Co., Mart, may be eligible for government assistance because they lost their jobs due to foreign competition, the Texas Employment Commission said Thursday.

TEC said the employees involved were employed at the plant from March 2, 1979, to Jan. 31, 1980. Those eligible will be notified by letter.

"The workers affected lost their jobs when sales declined, possibly due to foreign competition, and thus qualified under provisions of the Trade Act of 1974," the TEC said.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Congressional cutbacks have forced the Texas Department of Human Resources to cut social services to welfare recipients by $28.6 million this year, Commissioner Jerome Chapman said Thursday.

The department's commissioner said a congressional conference committee has voted $2.7 billion for such services, nationwide, a $200 million drop from last year.

Chapman said services that will suffer include day care, family planning, emergency family services, employment services and licensing activities.

He said state legislative mandates, however, mean there will be no cutback in protective services to children and help for the needy aged, blind and disabled.

The Texas social services budget has been cut because of the federal reduction from $227.5 million to less than $198 million, Chapman said.

DALLAS (AP) — Lynn Swann Haag, 39, executive editor of the chamber of commerce magazine "Dallas," was killed Thursday when a van jumped a downtown curb and struck her as she walked along the sidewalk.

Mrs. Haag was pronounced dead at the scene, said Dallas traffic investigator John Cannon.

The 51-year-old driver of the van was uninjured, Cannon said, and later was arrested for investigation of involuntary manslaughter.

Mrs. Haag was walking northbound and the van was traveling southbound when it jumped the curb and slammed into a vacant building, Cannon said. Mrs. Haag was crushed under the wheels and dragged 10 to 12 feet along the sidewalk before the vehicle struck a light post.

Cannon said the slant of the street pavement may have caused the driver to lean away from the steering wheel and lose control of the vehicle.

Mrs. Haag previously directed the News and Information Services at the University of Texas at Arlington and had worked for the Jerre Todd public relations firm in Fort Worth and as a reporter for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. A graduate of Texas Christian University, she lived in Arlington.

She is survived by her husband, Marty Haag, executive television news director for WFAA-TV in Dallas.

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Six Amarillo firefighters were injured in a three-alarm blaze that destroyed a motel restaurant, club and swimming pool Thursday night.

Firemen said all guests at the Travelodge on IH 40 in midtown Amarillo were evacuated safely.

Four firefighters suffered from smoke inhalation, another sustained a broken elbow and a sixth reportedly injured a leg.

The cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A federal court jury here has convicted suspended Municipal Court Judge Glen Sutherland in a ticket-fixing operation.

Also convicted were bail bond worker Grace Walker and retired city policeman Edward Maynard.

The jury listened to seven days of testimony in the case.

U.S. District Judge Harry Lee Hudspeth said the trio could remain free on bond until sentencing March 28.

They could receive a 20-year sentence on the racketeering conviction.

The government argued successfully that Maynard and Mrs. Walker sent traffic tickets, keeping $10 above the price of the tickets for themselves.

to 1969 to break the million mark but the second million required only 11 years.

The company expects to have 137,000 additional installations this year.

 (c) In any alley or easement adjacent to the premises or between the centerline of such alley or easement.

B. Uncultivated grass, weeds, and plants - objectionable accumulations.
 It shall be unlawful for a person in control of the premises as described above to permit the accumulation of weeds, rubbish, or any other objectionable, unsightly or unsanitary matter of whatever nature on such premises.

C. Uncultivated grass, weeds, and plants - duty to cut and remove.
 It shall be the duty of the person in control of the premises as described above to remove or cause to be removed all such grass, weeds, rubbish, brush, rubble or any other objectionable, unsightly or unsanitary matter of whatever nature as often as may be necessary to comply with this article.

D. Adjacent streets and alleys; obstruction and removal.
 It shall be unlawful for any person to willfully obstruct or injure or cause to be obstructed or injured, or to maintain an obstruction in any manner whatsoever upon any street or alley adjacent to any premises owned or controlled by the person within the corporate limits of the City.

E. Responsibility for removing tree trimmings, shrub cuttings, etc.
 Any person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of cutting or trimming trees or shrubs, shall be responsible for the disposal of trees, tree and shrub cuttings and trimmings at the expense of the person, firm or corporation. It shall be unlawful for such person, firm, or corporation to leave any trees, tree or shrub cuttings or trimmings of any nature or location on the lot where cut as trash for pick up by the City.

Section 6
 Any person, firm or corporation who shall violate any provision of this Ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon a conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than One Dollar ($1.00) nor more than Fifty Dollars ($50.00) for each day said violation shall continue.

Section 7
 All ordinances or conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Public Notice

Southwestern Public Service Company pursuant to law and the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of its intent to apply for a general rate increase affecting all classes of its retail consumers in the county of Gray whose rates are subject to the original jurisdiction of either the municipalities of Pampa, Lefors or McLean or the Public Utility Commission of Texas. A copy of the Company's statement of intent and proposed tariffs has been filed with said municipalities and said Commission.

The revised tariffs are proposed to become effective April 4, 1980. Applied to all affected consumers in the 31 counties comprising the Company's Texas service area, they will increase the Company's retail operating revenues by approximately 14.8 percent.
