Gail Cemetery Dedication and Flag Raising Ceremony Held

On Wednesday, June 14th, around fifty Borden County citizens gathered together at the Gail Cemetery not only to recognize and celebrate Flag Day, but also to celebrate the Dedication of the Gail Cemetery Historical Marker.

The celebration began with members of the VFW led by Bob Sealy with a Flag Raising Ceremony followed by the Pledge of Allegiance led by Borden County ISD student Dannelle Copeland.

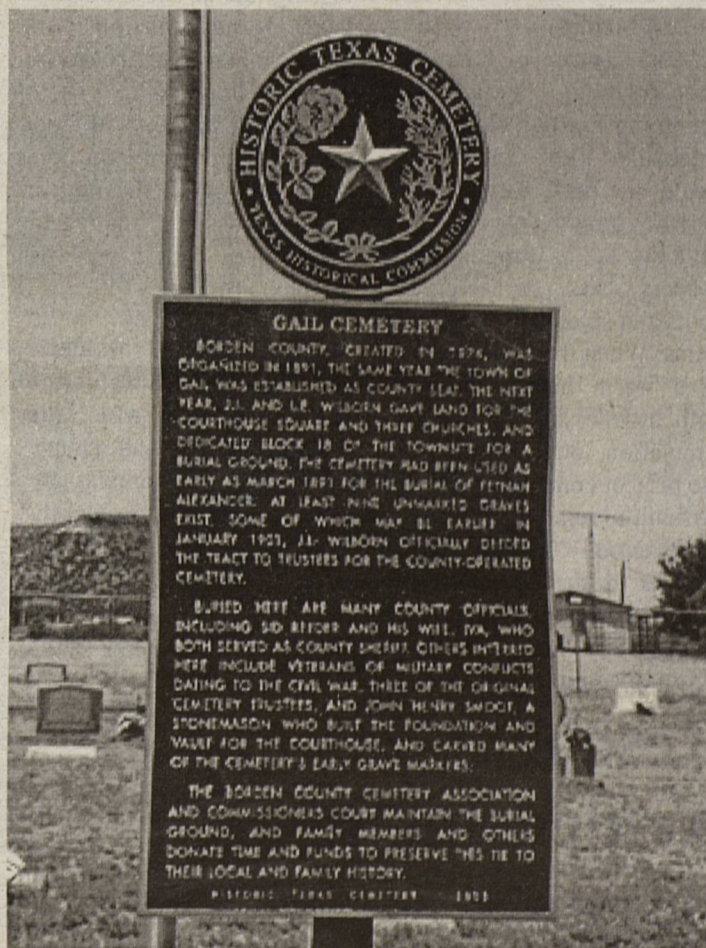

Doris Steadman then began the program with a brief History of the Cemetery and the Criteria for obtaining a Historical Marker. She did a lot of back-ground research on the cemetery and filed it with the State to be able to be recognized as a Historical Cemetery.

The cemetery began in 1892 when J.I Wildbourn and his wife donated land for the courthouse square and three churches, and dedicated block 18 of the townsite for a burial ground. The cemetery had been used as early as March 1891. J.I. Wilbourn officially deeded that tract to trustees for the county operated cemetery.

Special guest attending this ceremony were members of the Wilbourn family, Mrs. Jack Wilbourn and Audrey Mitchell of Midland.

Following their recognition, Judy Kingston read the text printed on the marker. Saddie Ludecke gave more history of several grave sites. There are over 300 graves in the cemetery with several being military veterans and many past county officials. Sharlot Stone read some poems about Gail that were found in the Borden County Historical papers.

Doris Steadman then unveiled the marker and a closing prayer was led by Commissioner Randy Adcock.

A reception at the Community Building followed the dedication. Friends and neighbors enjoyed visiting and talking about the ol'times.

Laundry and Mildew

Laundry — nobody's favorite task. However, it's even more difficult when stains won't come out in the wash. What should you do? We recommend that you start by making sure damp or wet clothes are not placed in the laundry basket and left for several days.

Warm summer temperatures, high humidity, and any remaining food on clothing — especially kids' clothes — creates the perfect conditions for the growth of mildew. Mildew is a fungus and appears as dark-colored spots and splotches on textile items. When the textile is left in a warm humid location with little or no light or air circulation, you have created the perfect condition for very difficult to remove mildew.

Prevention is the key. Experts at the International Fabricare Institute suggest drying any wet textiles before placing them in the laundry and certainly not storing them dirty. Some typical items might include infants' and children's clothing, sports wear, jackets, t-shirts, kitchen textiles, towels, and other common items. Avoid tossing damp clothing in a dark laundry hamper or closet. If you can't get to the laundry immediately, hang the item in an area with good air circulation until the item is dry. Or wash the item as soon as possible, treating the soiled area with a pre-wash enzyme product.

What removes mildew? Actually, only chlorine bleach removed and kills mildew growth and stains. Since not all fabrics are safely treated with bleach, preventing the growth of mildew may be a better solution than trying to remove it later and possibly ruining the item.

Multi-tasking takes a lot of time

Starbucks exploded onto the scene along with the internet, cell phone and dot com booms. Then came eBay and blogs and everybody went to Starbucks (with their computers and cell phones) to try to stave off the mad onslaught of non-stop information. All the caffeine does is make us more hyper and we get less sleep.

Mark Morford, a columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle, says nobody is getting enough sleep because everybody is so stressed. "Everybody is stressed because they have way, way too much to do and far too little time in which to do it."

We have less time because of modern technology. Did somebody say computes were time savers? How about the telephone since it became digitized and dehumanized?

I think people go to Starbucks because they think they will be considered above average, connected to the multi-tasking generation. They think the more stuff whirling around your brain at any given moment makes you more brilliant. The opposite is true, according to ancient gurus and yogis. It is when you calm the mind, breathe deeply and sleep well, cleaning out the toxins and caffeine, that real wisdom and intuition come our way.

On their way to Starbucks, people shave, put on lipstick, check their email, fix their hair, clip fingernails, and tune the radio, all while driving their vehicles.

When I lived in Europe I used to drive through the Alps smoking my pipe, drinking coffee and reading the map. Had there been cell phones and computers then, I probably would have been using those, too.

I sometimes drive while playing my nose flute (it just requires one hand), I was proud of my ability to do that until saw a guy pass me playing a trombone. When I'm hungry I get a meat cup, which requires two hands. I've learned to drive with my knees.

Are you multi-tasking right now? Working on your to-do list, answering your cell, text-messaging your friend, reading this column, burning a CD, programming your Bluetooth? If not, you're behind times.

We are media drenched. We have numerous ways to communicate instantly. How many letters have you written lately? How many email messages have you sent? Many more of the latter, I would imagine. The internet is a deliciously addictive distraction, annoying its users with instant messaging,, iTunes, movie trailers (does Tom Cruise just run and jump all the time?), new car announcements and Amazon.

We drink coffee thinking it is a stimulant. It must be, because it destroys some people's ability to calm down and get some sleep. If coffee was a real stimulant, I could learn about podcasting in Garageband, start my novel, learn Chinese and read that 400 page book on digital photography, all while driving to see my grand children.

Need for Heat Precautions Rises with Temperature

Calendars mean little in terms of Texas heat. Intensely hot temperatures are just as likely in spring and fall as they are in summer. But whatever the time of year, extreme heat can create serious health problems, according to the Texas Department of State Health Services (DSHS).

Preliminary figures for 2005 show 59 heat-related deaths in Texas, up from the 44 year-related deaths marked in 2004 and in 2003. Typically, the most deaths are recorded in July, followed by August, then June.

Staying in an air-conditioned area, either at home or in a public place such as a mall, library or recreation center, is the most effective way to combat heat. If air conditioning is not available, open the windows, pull the shades down to keep out the sun and use cross-ventilation and fans to cool rooms.

Symptoms of heat illness include heavy sweating, muscle cramps weakness, dizziness, nausea, weak but rapid pulse and headaches. People with these symptoms should find shade, drink water slowly and make sure there is good ventilation.

If fluids are not replaced soon enough, heat stroke can follow causing extremely high body temperature, red and dry skin, rapid pulse, confusion, brain damage, loss of consciousness and death.

To help a person showing severe symptoms, get the victim into shade, call for emergency medical services and start cooling the person immediately with cool water or by fanning.

Children, especially can quickly become dehydrated.

They need to drink fluids frequently, especially water, and wear light-colored, loose fitting clothes. Avoid drinks that are heavily sweetened or contain caffeine. Check on children often, especially if they are playing outside in high temperatures.

Other heat precautions for DSHS:

- Never leave anyone in a closed, parked vehicle in hot weather, even for a short time.
- Drink plenty of fluids, but avoid drinks with alcohol, caffeine or a lot of sugar. Don't wait until you are thirsty. Start drinking fluids at least 30 minutes before going out.

- Plan strenuous outdoor activity for early morning or evening when the temperature is lower.
- Take frequent breaks when working outside.
- Wear sunscreen SPF 15 or higher, wide-brimmed hats and light-colored, loose-fitting clothes.

- Eat more frequently, but be sure meals are well balanced, cool and light.
- Dress infants and children in cool, loose clothing. Shade their heads and faces with hats or an umbrella.
- Check frequently on the elderly, the ill and others who may need help.
- Adjust to the environment. A sudden

House Passes Bill to Honor Local Iraq Hero

I am pleased to report that the House of Representatives has unanimously approved a bill I authored that renames a Dimmitt Post Office after a local hero who made the ultimate sacrifice in Iraq. Once my bill becomes law, the Dimmitt Post Office will be named the "Sgt. Jacob Dan Dones Post Office."

Sgt. Dones was a Dimmitt native who enlisted in the Army after graduating from Dimmitt High School in 2002. He served his country honorably in both Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom. He served in the H Company, 2nd Squadron, 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment. He was promoted to Sergeant on July 1, 2005 while serving in Iraq as a dismount team leader, Bradley gunner and Bradley section Sergeant.

Sgt. Dones died on October 20, 2005 in the line of duty when his base in Hit, Iraq was attacked by enemy fire. For his brave and distinguished service, Sgt. Dones has been awarded many medals including the Purple Heart, Bronze Star, the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Global War of Terrorism Expeditionary Medal, the Global War on Terrorism Service Medal and the National Defense Service Medal. He also was classified as an Expert Infantry Rifleman.

Sgt. Dones is a hero in the true meaning of the word. He was a natural leader and always the first to volunteer for a mission. I am very pleased that the House can take this small step to honor his life of service and sacrifice for our country.

House Debates U.S. Efforts to Win the War on Terror

An important debate took place last week on the House floor regarding the War on Terror and the U.S. mission in Iraq. Iraq is indeed the central battleground in the ongoing war against Islamofascist terrorists, and it is important that the U.S. succeeds there.

Three years ago, Coalition Forces removed Saddam Hussein from power. Now we are helping to build a free and democratic Iraq. Unlike Saddam's oppressive and brutal regime, a free Iraq will not harbor terrorists, will not use chemical weapons against its neighbors, and will not seek to develop weapons of mass destruction that could be used against the United States.

During two trips to Iraq, I have witnessed first hand the great strides our military has made in Iraq. Because of our troops' efforts in Iraq, terrorists, like Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, are being eliminated. Because of our troops' efforts in Iraq, Iraqi Security Forces are increasingly taking control of protecting Iraqi citizens. Because of our troops' efforts in Iraq, the world no longer has to worry about Saddam Hussein and his ambitions to use weapons of mass destruction.

These are important accomplishments that have made our nation more secure. As a result, it is vital that we continue to stand behind our troops as they protect Americans by taking the fight to enemy to win the War on Terror

Need for Heat Precautions Rises

change in temperature – an early heat wave or travel to a hotter climate – will be stressful to the body. Limit physical activity until you become accustomed to the heat.

- Check with a doctor about the effects of sun and heat when taking prescription drugs, especially diuretics or antihistamines.

The body normally cools down by sweating. But under some conditions, sweating is not enough. The body's temperature may rise rapidly to dangerous levels, leading to the possibility of heat illness or death.

A combination of high temperatures and high humidity especially can cause this natural cooling system to work overtime. When humidity is high, sweat may not evaporate efficiently, preventing the body from releasing heat quickly. The stress of hard physical activity, fatigue, dehydration, heart disease, obesity, poor circulation, sunburn and prescription drug and alcohol use also contribute to heat-related health problems.

Prevention is the best defense against heat-related illness. Staying cool, drinking plenty of fluids, wearing cool clothing and monitoring outdoor activities are essential to staying healthy in hot weather.

Time to Bury the Death Tax

Weekly Column by Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison

America is the land of opportunity. Since the formation of our republic, hard-working men and women in search of a better life have arrived on our shores, inspired by the hope that they would one day pass the fruits of their labor on to their children and grandchildren. This is the American dream.

The death tax walks away from the American dream. Instead of rewarding hard work and saving, it interferes with freedom and free enterprise. Many of the members in Congress know this is true, and we are making progress in eliminating the un-American death tax permanently. Unfortunately, the wheels of progress often turn slowly, and in the Senate a majority of my colleagues and I were recently prevented by a minority of senators from moving forward.

Under the Tax Relief Act of 2001, the death tax has been gradually phased out, with a full repeal scheduled for 2010. However, the death tax is slated to return in 2011, when the government once again will seize up to 55 percent of savings that should rightfully be passed on to children and grandchildren. This is fundamentally wrong on both moral and economic grounds, and it breaks up family farms and businesses.

To combat the death tax's unwelcome return, I co-sponsored a Senate bill that would repeal it permanently. The House of Representatives has already passed a bill that would put the death tax to rest once and for all, but the Senate version of the bill is being held up by technical procedures.

The rules of the Senate allow for unlimited debate on a topic. This tactic, known as a filibuster, can prevent bills from ever being put to a final vote. The only way to stop a filibuster is to have 60 votes in favor of ending debate, or invoking cloture. Compared to the simple majority of 51 votes that are required to pass a bill, it is often challenging to pass legislation when 60 votes, not 51, are required.

This is exactly what happened in the Senate on June 8 regarding the death tax. I was joined by 56 senators in voting for cloture, but we fell three votes short. We intend to try again and convince three senators allow the bill to proceed.

Death tax proponents contend that it affects only a small percentage of the population – the super-wealthy. In reality, the most affluent people are able to afford teams of attorneys and accountants to carefully navigate estate tax laws to minimize the exposure of their assets and estates. Those most affected by the death tax are not the super-wealthy but the ranchers, farmers and small-business owners whose primary assets are land, property and inventory.

Often, the only way for families to pay the death tax is to sell the land or business. Only 30 percent of all family-owned businesses are passed down to a second generation, and only 13 percent reach a third generation. These property and business owners have paid taxes on this property every year – income, capital gains and real estate taxes. To double- or triple-tax them upon their death is a final insult to a life of hard work.

When businesses are sold to pay taxes, the employees lose their jobs. This tax disrupts more people than the family forced to sell; it affects the livelihoods of the families who work for and supply the property that is sold.

Texans know the difference between right and wrong, and the death tax is wrong. I will not give up this fight until the true American dream is restored and the death tax is dead once and for all.
