Canadian man killed in truck rollover Tuesday

A Canadian man was killed in a brutal one-vehicle accident Tuesday afternoon after the semi-truck trailer rig he was driving overturned on U.S. 60 east of Pampa.

The Texas Highway Patrol identified the driver as David Bruce Sirmans of 104 Red Deer in Canadian. Sirmans was pronounced dead at the scene of the mishap, 11.5 miles east of the Pampa city limits, by Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge of Lefors.

The 21-year-old man was hauling a load of salt mud to Canadian when, according to Texas Highway Patrol Trooper Johnny Carter, the truck swerved to the right shoulder of the roadway.

A witness to the accident told the trooper that the driver appeared to jerk the wheel to correct the maneuver causing the vehicle to overturn.

Sirmans was pinned in the crushed cab of the wrecked truck for approximately 30 minutes while Pampa firefighters worked to remove his twisted body from the vehicle.

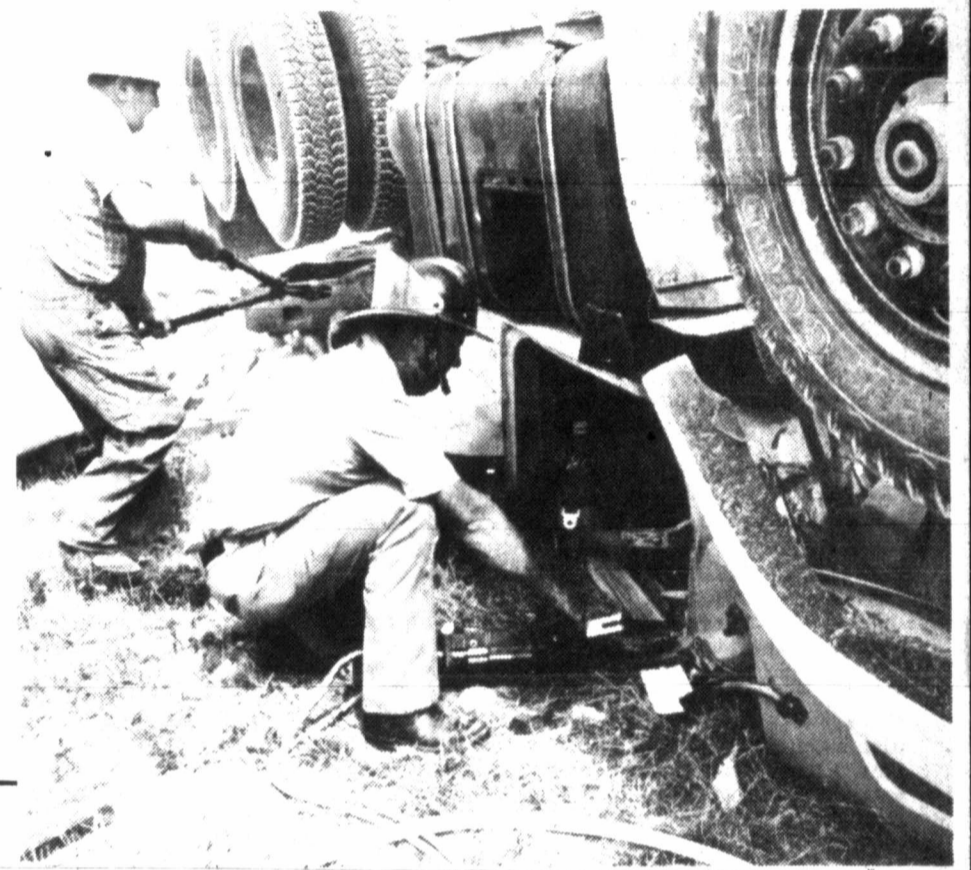

The victim was employed as a truck driver by Magebar Division of Dresser Industries Inc. of Canadian at the time of the accident.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sirmans; two brothers, Mike and Robert Sirmans; one sister, Christy Sirmans, all of Canadian; a grandmother, Mrs. Ruth Tete of Sayre, Okla.; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Campbell of Fairfield. He was a resident of Canadian for 15 years.

DPS increases patrol of I-40

To offset the record of six fatalities within the month of May, the dangerous 10-mile stretch on I-40 near Alanreed in Gray County will be closely patrolled by the Texas Department of Safety.

In a motion that was passed easily, Gray County Commissioners approved the establishment of a temporary Justice of the Peace office to be located near Alanreed.

Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge, Precinct 2, will be working part time in the Precinct 3 temporary office.

The facility will be located in the KOA Kamp Ground at the U.S. Highway 70 cutoff to Clarendon, according to Sgt. Jim Powell of the Texas Department of Safety (DPS).

Five DPS officers are working their off hours in the ten-mile stretch which extends from Alanreed 10 miles west, Powell said. The money to pay the officers is coming from a federal government supplement recently made available.

"Although warning signs are prominently displayed near the troublesome stretch, drivers just aren't heeding the warnings," Powell added.

Through a study conducted by Sgt. Powell and other DPS officers, it was determined that the east-bound traffic is more prone to speeding in the dangerous area.

"East-bound traffic has been clocked at 70 mph average, while we found that the west-bound traffic averaged at 59 mph," Powell said.

"If we can save lives, the project is important to us," Ted Simmons, County Commissioner Precinct 4, said.

In other action, Lewis Construction Company Inc. of Dumas was awarded the contract for a sealcoat to the McLean Airport.

Four bids were received by the court with the low bid of $23,775 received from Lewis Construction.

Improvements to Perry Lefors Airport for overlay work on the apron were discussed by commissioners. Three bids were received for the work. Commissioners tabled further action on the Perry Lefors bids for further study.

Commissioners also approved the redesignation of Justice of the Peace, Precinct 5, to Justice of the Peace, Precinct 4, effective July 1, 1980.

The matter of the precinct numbers had been confusing to voters and residents in general. To improve the situation before the elections, commissioners acted on the redesignation.

In a progressive move in the records department of the county clerk's office, commissioners viewed a microfilm demonstration by a representative of the Comgraphics Inc., Southwest Microfilm Division.

Although the commissioners were interested in the actual monetary figure connected with transferring to the microfilm system, the presentation was informative.

The methods of financing a transfer to the microfilm system and the eventuality of transferring to the microfilm system were discussed by the commissioners, who said they will seek further information before any commitments are made.

Man charged with oilfield murder

BROWNFIELD, Texas (AP) — A 21-year-old Seagraves man has been charged with the murder of a young woman whose battered, partially nude body was found in a West Texas oil field, authorities said.

Michael Roy Sansom was charged with first degree murder in the brutal beating death of Toni Lavonne Barron, 19, of Alamogordo, N.M., who was visiting Seagraves for a family reunion.

Sansom was an acquaintance of Miss Barron, according to Justice of the Peace Pete Cromer, who set Sansom's bond at $100,000.

Sansom was transferred Tuesday to the Terry County jail from the Gaines County lockup, where he had been held on $50,000 bond on a rape charge.

Sansom was arrested on suspicion of rape late Monday and while in custody made a statement about Miss Barron's murder, Cromer said.

"It was a brutal murder, I'll tell you," Cromer said. "There's no telling how long she suffered before she died."

Miss Barron's body, clad only in a blouse, was discovered about 3:30 p.m. Sunday by oil field workers just inside the Terry County line. Her belt was looped around her neck and her head had been split open.

Cromer said Miss Barron was last seen alive around midnight Saturday in the company of Sansom and several other youths.

Draft registration official

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter made it official today: American men aged 19 and 20 are being told to sign up later this month so the government will have potential conscripts waiting if the draft is revived.

The president signed a proclamation at a White House ceremony ordering the young men to sign up at post offices between July 21 and Aug. 2.

Draft registration, he said, "is not to threaten war but is to preserve peace."

"It's a precautionary measure," he said. "It is designed to make our country strong."

Carter proposed renewed draft registration in the wake of the Soviet Union's military thrust into Afghanistan, and he used the Cabinet Room ceremony to renew his criticism of that move.

"We are deeply concerned about the unwarranted and vicious invasion of Afghanistan by the Soviet Union," the president said, praising the "freedom fighters" who have opposed the Soviets in Afghanistan as offering the best deterrent to Moscow. Surrounded by congressional and other supporters of draft registration — all of them well beyond the age of those affected by the proclamation — Carter emphasized that "this is not a draft."

"I am not in favor of a peacetime draft," he said, stating that the United States "will continue to rely on voluntary enlistment" to meet military manpower needs.

The president said that $1 billion was included in the coming federal budget to encourage enlistments and re-enlistments.

Despite its limited scope, registration, the first since 1975, has proven controversial. Congress approved money to run the system only after a Senate filibuster, opponents have threatened demonstrations, and the American Civil Liberties Union has filed suit to block it.

But the director of Selective Service, Bernard Rosker, emphasized Tuesday that only standby registration is involved for now.

Blind youth nears dream of musical fame

BY SHEILA ECCLES
Of the Pampa News

He is 13 years old, and blind, but he dares to dream of fame and fortune.

Jimmy Vinson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ray of Pampa, has a solid basis for fulfilling his dream.

Music is his companion, his hobby, his friend and his love.

With only one song composed, Jimmy has been offered the opportunity to publish his music.

The offer came through the efforts of another man who can understand the importance of Jimmy's music.

The man is Ronnie Milsap. Milsap is also blind, and a very successful song writer and musician.

Jimmy's musical talent became apparent when he was only 6 and has since blossomed into a career for the shy, blond boy.

The actual music started on his mother's pots and pans. Not so unusual perhaps, "but Jimmy sounded good on the old kitchen utensils," his 17-year-old sister, and most ardent fan Kelly said.

After getting used to hearing the musical sounds of cookware, the family relented and presented Jimmy with his first real instrument, a floor organ.

Jimmy now attends the Austin State School for the Blind. Classes at the school consist of regular academics and special classes for the handicapped.

As a student, Jimmy quickly started both clarinet and piano lessons with amazing results.

With Jimmy's flourishing talent in mind, a physician friend arranged to take him to El Paso to attend a Ronnie Milsap concert.

"It was my first big concert and I thought that the star, Ronnie Milsap, wouldn't even take time to talk to me, but he did," Jimmy said.

"He listened to my song and promised to get it published. He also offered me a recording session," Jimmy said.

In a more serious mood, Jimmy explained some of his ideas about "fame and fortune."

"I only want to write one song before I graduate from high school. Then I will write full time if I can."

"My first and only song, 'There's No Living Without

You," just popped into my head one day. After that, it took three more days to complete," Jimmy said.

"When Jimmy is home for the summer," Kelly said, he practices, practices, and practices."

Not all has been so perfect for the practicing musician. In a March house fire, the Ray family lost most of their belongings. The most important one, to Jimmy, was his floor organ.

"So he uses the clarinet and the stereo and whatever else he can," Kelly explained.

"I already have an idea what fame is like. I could live with it, but not much of it," Jimmy said.

Giving this, his second interview, made an impression on Jimmy. All the questions and intrusions on his privacy, he could deal with, but more questions would be just too much, he thought.

Jimmy remembered seeing Milsap at the concert and being backstage with all the concert mania.

"Everything just happens real fast, too fast sometimes." "It really could be too much of a hassle," Jimmy said.

RONNIE MILSAP, left, and Pampa youth Jimmy Vinson discuss their mutual interest, music. Vinson, 13, of Pampa is a student at the Austin School for the Blind. He recently was given the opportunity to attend an El Paso concert, featuring blind performer Ronnie Milsap. The meeting proved to be a most important one for young Vinson's musical future.

Supreme Court rules trials should be open

WASHINGTON (AP) — The public and press have a constitutional right to attend criminal trials, the Supreme Court ruled today, telling judges nationwide they can conduct trials or portions of trials in secret only as a last resort to insure fairness to a defendant.

By a 7-1 vote, the justices said the Constitution's free-speech guarantees require public trials.

The decision sparked seven separate opinions, and not all seven justices agreed in their approach to the critical constitutional issue.

But the decision, nevertheless, was a victory for public and press access into the nation's courts.

The decision said a Virginia judge, Richard Taylor, was wrong when he closed the two-day murder trial in 1978 of John Paul Stevenson.

Stevenson was charged in the 1976 murder of a Hanover, Va., hotel owner, and had been tried three times previously. At the start of the 1978 trial, Stevenson's lawyer asked Judge Taylor to close the proceedings "because I don't want any information being shuffled back and forth when we have a recess as to what — who testified to what."

Prosecutors voiced no objection to the request, and Taylor approved it. Two of the persons ordered to leave the courtroom were Timothy Wheeler and Kevin McCarthy, reporters for the Richmond Times Dispatch and the Richmond News-Leader.

Stevenson eventually was acquitted.

The reporters' appeal was supported by numerous news media organizations and the American Civil Liberties Union, which viewed the case as a major constitutional showdown.

In other decisions, the Supreme Court:

— Blocked enforcement of the new standard proposed by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration reducing by 90 percent worker exposure to cancer-causing benzene. The 5-4 decision held that the government had failed to show that reducing exposure would reduce the incidence of leukemia.

— Affirmed by a 6-3 vote the authority of Congress to set quotas that guarantee minority-owned businesses a 10 percent share of federal public works grants.

— Agreed to hear arguments that racial quotas being used to preserve integration in two Chicago high schools place an undue integration burden on blacks.

Investigation reveals 'Good Samaritan' act

The investigation of a report of a possible assault on a child has revealed that the incident was actually a "Good Samaritan" act.

A maintenance employee of the Pampa Mall at 11:45 a.m. Tuesday saw a child which had apparently been separated from her parents, according to Cheryl Every, manager of the Mall.

The man took the three-year-old by the arm in an attempt to lead her back to the mall office to page her parents, she said. A passerby, hearing the child's cries of protest, took the child from the man. The employee believed the woman was the little girl's mother, Every added.

Not realizing the employee's true motives, the parents reported the incident to the Pampa Police Department. The police department this morning completed their investigation and has closed their file in the case.

June report shows more fires

June has been the busiest month this year for the Pampa Fire Department. Firemen responded to 64 calls during the 30 day period, 30 of which were grass and trash fires. Five of the reports were caused by fireworks.
 Vehicle fires were the second largest reports, with nine-calls coming in to the department.

Eight of the fire reports involved dwellings. Flammable items placed too close to a hot water heater were determined by fire officials to have caused three house fires while other fire causes were listed as cooking, electrical shorts, incendiary and undetermined.
 One structure fire was out when firemen arrived on the scene. Eleven days of 100 degree plus weather has contributed to the excessive amount of fire calls, officials believe.

Youth finds "Golden Horseshoe"

Brent Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. L.C. Bailey Jr., 2105 N. Dwight, discovered the Golden Horseshoe Tuesday in Highland Park. According to the Bailey, the horseshoe was under a park bench, which is built around a tree.
 "I just started looking for it (the horseshoe) yesterday," said Bailey. "I figured it was in a park because of the clues, and I just picked Highland first."
 In return for finding the horseshoe, Bailey will receive a $100 savings bond and box seat tickets for six people for all three performances of the rodeo. When asked what he would do with the money, he replied, "Well, my mom wants me to use it for college, but I'm not sure what I want to do."

 Bailey, 14, will be a sophomore at Pampa High School this coming school year, and is a member of the "Pride of Pampa" Band.

Chairperson named for United Way

Reed Echols has been named to head up the chairmanship of the General Division of the 1980 United Way Campaign, according to General Chairman Charles M. "Chuck" White.
 Mrs. Echols, who was Pampa's Woman of the Year in 1977, serves on a number of local agency boards and has been active in the Meals-on-Wheels program for the past several years. This organization became a part of the United Way funding for the first time last year.
 A member of the First United Methodist Church, Mrs. Echols has received the Governor's recognition for outstanding volunteerism. She is also a past member of the Salvation Army and Genesis House Board of Directors, recipient agencies of the funds raised by the United Way.
 Last year she was a co-chairman of the general division, which solicits donations of approximately 600 prospects making donations under $50 each. This group of prospects is contacted by teams from United Way agencies, service clubs, and other civic organizations. Last year this agency produced over $10,650.
 The United Way Campaign will be conducted this fall from September 30 until November 2, according to White.

'Friends for years' wed in hospital

By DEBBIE DUKE
Of The Pampa News
 "She's getting older, she's sick, and she needs someone to take care of her. That's why I want to do it." These were the compassionate words of Cecil S. Langford, 73, prior to his wedding Tuesday at Highland General Hospital.
 The bride-elect, Mildred Davis, 60, was admitted to the hospital a week ago with complications due to diabetes. She was later transferred to the Intensive Care Unit.
 This, however, did not delay the marital ceremony for the couple. After much care and several precautions, Ms. Davis was moved by wheelchair - IV's and oxygen included - into the hospital chapel where the two were united in holy matrimony by the Rev. J.W. Hill, pastor of the Church of God, 1123 Gwendolyn.
 Born in Wichita Falls, Ms. Davis is a longtime resident of the Panhandle, living most of her life in Canadian. She is the mother of four children, two of which, Fern Rains and Mary Watson, attended the wedding.

 Langford, born in Colgate, Oklahoma, spent most of his life in Terrell, a small town southeast of Dallas. He reared his family of eight in Quanah, where he was employed as a carpenter.
 After Ms. Davis' dismissal from the hospital, the two will reside at the new PAM apartments.
 According to Ms. Davis, the two have known each other and been friends "for years." "He just called me up and asked me to marry him," she recalled.
 "I just figured that we had might as well get married," Langford explained. "She's a widow, I'm a widower, and I want to take care of her."

THE REV. J.W. HILL, pastor of the Church of God, 1123 Gwendolyn, reads the marital vows to Cecil Langford and Mildred Davis in the chapel of Highland General Hospital. Ms. Davis was moved from the Intensive Care Unit of the hospital only long

Deceptive island paradise suffers stagnant economy

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (AP) — As with the dodo bird behind the glass case in the Port Louis museum, appearances can be deceiving on this lush tropical island in the Indian Ocean.

The dodo — this nonflying, distant cousin of the swan, was hounded to extinction in the 1600s by early settlers — is only a replica covered by feathers suspiciously similar to those of a chicken.

Likewise, the beauty of Mauritius — thick green carpets of sugar cane fields, craggy peaks of black basalt, jungles populated by deer, white sand beaches and swaying palm trees — masks serious problems.

There is much confusion and contrast in this island, barely 40 miles long and 30 miles wide. The law is French. The culture is Creole. The government institutions are British. The bureaucrats are Indians. Most shopowners are Chinese.

An average of 160,000 sun-seeking tourists wing in to Mauritius every year aboard jumbo jets from Europe and Africa. But an estimated 60,000 of the 759,000 Mauritians have applied to foreign consulates to leave their homeland.

"It's very sad," said a local newspaper editor, whose own parents and other relatives emigrated to Australia several years ago. "Our bodies are here but our minds drift elsewhere."

The stagnant economy, dependent on exports of sugar to world markets, cannot offer ample opportunities to all. So many leave.

Mauritius, with 1,000 people per square mile, is one of the most densely populated countries in the world, in part due to a baby boom sparked by elimination of malaria epidemics after World War II. On a bright note, an aggressive birth control campaign begun in the 1960s has staved off Malthusian disaster.

Resistance was at first strong among the Hindu-Moslem majority but the campaign reached a turning point in 1971, said Nanda Ramenah, director of the Mauritian Family Planning Association.

"That was the year we distributed posters showing people falling into the ocean off the edges of the island," Ramenah said. "The point got across."

The birth rate is down to 1.8 percent, but the government is still hard pressed to find 10,000 new jobs a year for young people. Thanks to free secondary and university education, new job seekers are also better educated and less eager to accept unskilled employment in the labor-intensive sugar industry, the island's No. 1 industry.

The unemployment rate is officially 9 percent. Unofficial estimates put it as high as 12 percent.

The trade deficit last year was 1 billion rupees, about $125 million. There is enough foreign currency for just two weeks of imports. The cost of living is growing by 10 percent a year and the average monthly salary is 800 rupees, about $100 American.

The labor government of Prime Minister Sir Seewoosagur Ramgoolam called in the International Monetary Fund last year for first aid.

PORT LOUIS IS A TROUBLED PARADISE. Viewed by two young men, Port Louis, capital of the troubled Indian Ocean island paradise of Mauritius, appears serene. There is much confusion and contrast in this island, barely 40 miles long and 30 miles wide. The law is French, the culture is Creole, the government institutions are British, the bureaucrats are Indians and most shopowners are Chinese. The greatest problem appears to be finding enough work for everyone in a stagnant economy. (AP Laserphoto)

Hot, dry weather helps rice crop

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas rice growers are looking to the hot, dry weather to provide them a bumper crop since their fields had been suffering from a cold, wet spring.

"This is one of the better yields in recent years," said Dr. James W. Stansel, head of the rice experiment station near Eagle Lake. He said per-acre yields could be 5 to 7 percent above normal. "For them (rice farmers), this hot weather is the best thing that could happen," he said. "What is generally a bad year for other crops is one of the best for rice."

Stansel said he had projected low yields because spring weather caused grass and weed problems "probably worse than we've ever had."

But, he said, the situation has been reversed by the high light levels associated with hot weather. The change, he said, came just as the crop was in the critical heading stage, when the kernels are being formed.

Stansel said extremely high levels of sunlight, a key factor when all other needs of the rice plant are met, also reduces disease.

He estimates harvesting in the western portion of the rice belt should be under way about July 18-20, with farmers usually draining their fields seven to 10 days before harvest.

"In this area, the crop is essentially made," he said. Stansel said the spring weather delayed maturity by seven to 10 days in the Brazoria County area.

Woman leaves husband for condemned killer

ATLANTA (AP) — Ed Nicholson said it was "horrible" to hear on the radio that his wife was leaving him to marry condemned killer Jack Potts.

Potts, divorced and the father of four, has been sentenced to die for the 1975 kidnap-murder of Michael Priest of Roswell. Potts dropped all appeals of his death sentence last fall and announced he had converted to Catholicism and was ready to die. He has since changed his mind and has appealed to the federal courts.

Diane Nicholson, who had been married to the Decatur heating and air conditioning contractor for three years, announced Tuesday she had left home and would seek a divorce to marry Potts, a former boyfriend, who is appealing a death sentence.

"I love him — very much," said Mrs. Nicholson, who has one son from an earlier marriage.

"This floored me," Nicholson said. "I love her. I would do anything in this world to save my marriage."

Nicholson said that Potts, who dated Mrs. Nicholson 12 years ago, wrote the 33-year-old woman this spring to tell her: "I will not do anything to come between you and your husband because I have made my peace with God."

"Then, he turned around and is asking her to leave her family, forsake her kids and all. Is that a good, true Christian?" asked Nicholson.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Holiday or not it's a day to remember

Three weeks ago, the flags waved and the trumpets sounded in observance of Memorial Day. There was even talk in Washington of building a new monument to one of the men who fought and died in Vietnam. Although May 30 is actually Memorial Day, it might be appropriate to reflect on the awesome possibility that not all the Americans taken prisoner during the Vietnam war have been returned.

Undeniably the Vietnam war was one of the most costly in many respects. It divided the nation and destroyed the optimistic spirit that characterized American foreign policy from the end of the Second World War. The price tag was near $140 billion. The human toll was heavy: 46,463 killed and 303,704 wounded. One of the most controversial statistics of the war was the number of prisoners of war and missing in action.

During the war 565 Americans were taken prisoner who were later released, often after enduring incredible deprivation and sometimes torture. 2,546 men were listed as missing in action. These men never came home, dead or alive. There is weighty evidence that the North Vietnamese are holding many bodies as bargaining chips to be used in negotiations with the United States. Many familiar with the situation in Southeast Asia believe they are also holding up to 100 American prisoners for the same despicable purpose.

There is ample evidence that some of the Americans captured during the war were never returned. In the report, "Missing in Action", numerous such cases are detailed. Navy Lt. Ronald Dodge, for example, was shot down over North Vietnam on May 17, 1967. A photograph of him with a bandaged head and in the custody of the Vietnamese was published in the North Vietnamese newspaper. Later the same picture was published in a French newspaper. He was never returned.

The fate of those captured but not returned remains a mystery. Undoubtedly some of them died in captivity. The United States government, wanting to close the door on the Vietnam war, has reclassified as dead all but a handful of those missing. Only the court cases have prevented the reclassifying of that handful. Yet there are those who believe many Americans are still rotting away in Vietnamese prisons.

In the early 1970s an organization named Voices in Vital America sold millions of POW-MIA bracelets to focus public attention on the issue. Some of the money raised from the bracelets went to pay for an investigation into charges that some men were left behind. Steve Frank, one of the leaders of VIVA, has had numerous contacts with the North Vietnamese since the end of the war. He firmly believes they are still holding up to one hundred Americans.

Reflecting the values of contemporary American, Memorial Day was observed May 26 so people could have a three-day weekend to enjoy. It is doubtful that many of those scurrying to the lakes and campsites took time to consider that some American soldiers may have been left behind in Vietnam. Perhaps it is worth a few moments of reflection even today.

Private college says no to bureaucracy

The federal bureaucracy would like nothing more than to extend its control over all schooling in this country — public and private. In the forefront of the battle against this control is Grove City College, a small liberal arts school in western Pennsylvania.

In 1977, Grove City College, along with all other colleges and universities, was asked by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to sign a document stating that the institution was in compliance with Title IX of the Education Amendment act of 1972. Grove City College refused to sign.

Grove City College prides itself on being an institution run free from government interference. It does not accept tax money, instead concentrating on tuition, donations and foundation grants.

With this background, it felt secure in refusing to comply with HEW's request.

Nevertheless, Grove City College was vulnerable. Although it does not accept tax money, some of its students do, under such programs as the GI Bill and the Basic Education Opportunity Grants Act. This fact did not escape Joe Califano, then head of HEW, and he ordered Grove City students cut off those programs.

In 1978, the college lost its case before an HEW administrative hearing; it then appealed to the federal court. Several issues important to the future of private schooling were to be decided, not the least of which was the government's power to use student grants as leverage to force a private institution into compliance with its policies. The court recently issued its opinion and the outcome is mixed.

The court, among other things, decided that HEW could not summarily take a student off his grant program because of something the college was accused of doing, or not doing as in this case. The court also decided that Grove City College should not be required to fill out the HEW form which precipitated the confrontation. It was a victory, but clearly federal power still threatens.

The court also found that Grove City was indeed a recipient of federal funds through the financial aid provided through Basic Education Opportunity Grants. The court left little doubt that although Grove City College won this round, the issue of federal control had not been defeated. So although a minor victory was won, the battle is far from over.

There is only one way of securing schools from the grasp of the federal planners who desire to manipulate them in order to mold the nation into their ideal society. The people must stop going to the federal government to fund any aspect of instructional programs.

The federal bureaucracy, once aid is requested, will do nothing more than tax the people and, as a precondition to giving back a fraction of the money, demand further controls.

Shall we sign a pact with the devil?

By Patrick J. Garrity
Mr. Garrity is a research associate with Public Research, Syndicated.

On May 25, Chinese Vice Premier Geng Biao arrived in the United States for meetings with American defense officials. Geng Biao, who is also secretary general of the Chinese Communist Party's powerful Military Affairs Commission, urged the Carter Administration to lift its ban on arms sales to China, and make available advanced weapons systems and aircraft to Beijing.

This news item generally received scant attention in the Western media. However, as the United States faces the grave challenge of the Soviet Union in the 1980s, closer relations between America and Communist China offer an attractive geopolitical response to the Soviet global offensive. The proper decision on possible Sino-American military cooperation may well be vital to the future of the West; it is therefore crucial that this determination be made with full awareness of its meaning and consequences.

There are those who argue that US-PRC cooperation against Moscow is bad policy simply because it is immoral. Alexander Solzhenitsyn is the foremost of these anti-China advocates. Solzhenitsyn, writing in the Spring 1980 issue of Foreign Affairs, contends that ANY alliance between democracy and communism is shortsighted, unwise, and mad. As an example, Solzhenitsyn criticizes the West—supposedly committed to the principle of universal liberty—for supporting Stalin against Hitler in the Second World War.

An analysis of this "pact with the devil" between 1941 and 1945, however, reveals that cooperation with Stalin was necessary for the defeat of Hitler—and the preservation of the POSSIBILITY of universal liberty.

The alliance with Stalin was initiated by Winston Churchill, as great a foe of communism as is Solzhenitsyn. Churchill realized that modern tyranny appears in many guises: "The Nazi regime is indistinguishable from the worst features of Communism...It excels all forms of human wickedness in the efficiency of its cruelty and ferocious aggression."

Had an alliance between Britain, France, and the USSR been consummated BEFORE the war, the great conflict might have been localized, if not prevented altogether. Churchill was aware that, in the summer of 1941, Nazi cruelty and aggression were the immediate threat to the free world, and that Britain alone could not stand against Hitler. When Germany turned against its former ally, the Soviet Union, Churchill did not hesitate. "Any man or state who fights against Nazism will have our aid. Any man or state who marches with Hitler is our foe." Or, as Churchill said in private, if Hitler had invaded Hell, at least he would have a favorable reference to the Devil in the House of Commons.

Solzhenitsyn, and those who criticized Churchill's action at the time, believed that the West should have opened an independent front against Hitler and crushed him by its own efforts. This was unrealistic, and Churchill knew it. In June 1941, Hitler had 250 mobilized divisions, 150 of which were deployed against the USSR. In the British Isles there were only 37 partially-equipped divisions, and just enough landing craft for one brigade. If the might of the German Wehrmacht and Luftwaffe had not been tied down on the Eastern front, what chance would Britain have had?

The enormity and ferocity of the German-Soviet war dwarfs the conflict in all other theaters. Hitler's generals had estimated in June 1941 that the Soviet army had 200 divisions; by August, they had already identified 360 divisions. Despite nearly capturing Moscow in December 1941, the Germans suffered almost 1.2 million casualties in the first year of the war against the USSR. In March 1942, of 162 Axis combat divisions in the East, only eight were ready for offensive operations.

The frightful carnage on the Russian front continued throughout the war, and finally wore down the German military to a point where a Western invasion of the continent was feasible. Even so, it was a very near thing for the British Commonwealth and the United States. Rommel's famed Afrika Korps, comprised of THREE German divisions (two armored and one motorized infantry) and eight Italian divisions, drove to within miles of the Suez Canal.

Rommel was eventually defeated at El Alamein by 10 British divisions under Montgomery in October 1942. A few months later, the Germans would lose 22 divisions at Stalingrad alone. If the West had not supported the Soviets, many of these German divisions might well have been available for a knockout blow against the British in Africa.

By June 1944, Hitler had just 58 divisions in the West to defend against the Allied invasion of France. Of these, only 24 divisions would have been classified as fit for duty on the Eastern front. Because of a shortage of landing craft, only 150,000 Allied soldiers took part in the initial D-Day operations. Even though this was the largest amphibious operation in history, its success was dependent on deception and Hitler's preoccupation with the deteriorating situation in the East. The German nightmare of a two-front war was at last a reality, and the end of the war was finally in sight.

The casualty figures tell their own grim story. In World War II the United States suffered 292,000 dead, while Britain lost 388,000 men. (The British Empire had 908,000 dead.) By contrast, the German military lost 2.85 million men, and the USSR admitted 7.5 million dead. Unofficial figures of Soviet war casualties, including civilians, are generally in the 20-30 million range.

This is not to belittle the enormous contribution of Britain and the United States towards the defeat of Hitler—but it does indicate the staggering task facing the West if the democracies had been forced to fight alone. Once the USSR had been defeated, a German drive through the Middle East and India could have linked up with a Japanese thrust through Southeast Asia. Hitler would then have had the leisure to turn his full attention to an isolated Britain, to be conquered through invasion or a submarine blockade. The position of the United States in such an event would have been difficult, if not untenable.

Political liberty was saved from this doubtful fate through the statesmanship of men such as Churchill, who saw the NECESSITY for an alliance with Stalin. Cooperation with a communist dictator was not sought for its own sake, but because there was no alternative.

Churchill, unlike so many others then and today, did not lose sight of the essential nature of communism. He did not unsay any work that he had spoken about its tyranny. Churchill could distinguish between prudent, necessary, and TEMPORARY commitment to a tyrant, as opposed to an acceptance of tyranny.

Stalin needed the West as much as the West needed Stalin during World War II, but many in the West mistakenly felt that "Uncle Joe" had purchased legitimacy with the blood of his subjects. He had not. Nor had Stalin, in freeing the people of Eastern Europe from Hitler's slavery, gained the right to enslave them himself. Liberty was not threatened by the wartime alliance with Stalin; it was — and is — threatened by the Free World's inability to see that alliance for what it actually was. Temporary cooperation with a Stalin to combat more immediate foes does not necessitate a Yalta, as long as the guiding principle of policy is human freedom and not expediency.

The advancement of that freedom ought to be the foundation of any decision about China. It will not be an easy choice, but Churchill said about the Soviet alliance: "Statesmen are not called upon only to settle the easy questions. These often settle themselves. It is where the balance quivers, and the proportions are veiled in mist, that the opportunity for world-saving decisions presents itself. Having got ourselves into this awful plight... it was vital to grasp the larger hope."

That star-spangled banner

by Paul Harvey

The American Flag was a do-it-yourself project in its beginning.

While the Continental Congress had adopted the "red, white and blue" in 1777, Americans continued to improvise alterations.

In 1842, when James Fremont set out to survey what was to become Washington and Wyoming and California he carried a flag of 13 red and white stripes, but the stars were blue.

And the stars encircled an angry Eagle with arrows in his claws.

Before that expedition ended, he had substituted for those arrows — a peace pipe.

Other Americans improvised modifications of our Flag to suit themselves.

The Flag Custer carried into battle featured crossed swords on a blue background.

His militant ensign did not undo the Sioux.

Creative license has been disallowed now.

But the American Flag has had to survive a lot of abuse. It's been burned in Iran and Pakistan, profaned in Cuba — even disdained by restive homefolks.

But it is still there.

Indeed, renewed reverence seems to have begun with our Bicentennial celebrations. That was the year baseball's Rick Monday rescued our Flag from the fire at Dodger Stadium.

Recently, the star player of the United States Olympic team skated past the eyes of the world proudly draping himself in The American Flag.

Today millions of American Flags in thousands of cities fly half-staff in recognition of 53 of our citizens held hostage.

Flag Day, officially June 14, is the most important of all holidays on American Samoa.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was the first fraternal organization to mandate membership observance of Flag Day — in 1907.

President Woodrow Wilson made it official nine years later.

President Harry Truman made it law in 1949.

But Old Glory has had to endure a lot of disrespect between then and now.

Why are Americans again respectfully closing ranks behind their Star-Spangled Banner?

Two reasons: The spoiled brats of the sixties are growing up.

And the national disillusion of the seventies has spent itself.

Now the world is televised for us in focus and Americans are re-reminded every day that, all things considered, there is no place like home.

Our United States of America is yet imperfect. Our homeland, even as each homestead, requires constant, year in and year out renovation, renewal and repair.

Enterprise flourishes

By Anthony Harrigan

The Fords and Edisons of the past, who developed the free enterprise system, weren't the last of their breed.

John Chamberlain, distinguished journalist and economic historian, writes in a special paper prepared for the Heritage Foundation that "Our private-business enterprise system continues to be spurred in the development of new frontiers by an endless flow of creative frontiersmen."

Americans often tend to think that the enterprisers belong to history, that in this age of bureaucracy and regulation the enterprising spirit cannot survive. Happily this isn't the case.

Almost 20 years ago, Mr. Chamberlain published a book entitled "The Enterprising Americans," which told the story of America's business and industrial pioneers. His latest essay adds important chapters on present-day enterprisers.

Who are the new enterprising Americans?

They are Jon Lindbergh, son of the Lone Eagle, who has "deserted the upper air for the seas, raising salmon for the restaurant market in protected tanks in Puget Sound."

Henry Parks, a black American, who put his Pork Sausage Company on the national map. Robert Noyce and Gordon Moore who created Intel Corp. based on microminiaturization "involving the production of transistors that can be inscribed on a silicon chip."

Other enterprising Americans are An Wang who developed an electronic mail system; Anastasios Kyriakides who developed a system of instant translators; E.H. Clark who created oil-service tool supplying companies; Frederick W. Smith who organized Federal Express, an air freight parcel service that owns a fleet of 52 planes.

One of the best known of the new enterprisers is Ray Kroc, who at age 50 formed McDonald's, the fast-food chain that dispenses billions of hamburgers. He provides work for hundreds of thousands of teenagers.

Despite a hostile government and a multitude of Ralph Nader types, free enterprise is doing fine in America. As Mr. Chamberlain says, the "business scene of the past 20 years completely discredits those who sing the monopoly blues." New builders, new manufacturers, new providers of services are entering the market all the time.

In describing the fecundity of the free enterprise system, Mr. Chamberlain points out that "the work of the new enterprising Americans is the key to this country having the best fed, best-dressed and best-housed people in the world... All of this work, the work of enterprising Americans is dismissed contemptuously by Ralph Nader's anti-growth legions. In the face of all the enterprise and accomplishment, it's amazing that Ralph Nader, the ultimate know-nothing, has an audience for his pitiful tales.

It does.

White warns Carter to heed rail - coal fights in Texas

WASHINGTON (AP) - Texas Attorney General Mark White says he notified the Carter administration that support for rail deregulation can cost it votes unless Texas utilities and their fight with the railroads over coal rates are taken into account.

He said he told Vice President Walter Mondale that the rising cost of electricity in Texas will be a key issue at the polls this fall.

White was a member of a Texas government and industry delegation that visited Mondale on Tuesday asking support for extra protection of "captive shippers" - dependent on one railroad without competition - in the railroad deregulation bill up for House consideration.

The delegation - including Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, several Texas congressmen and Railroad Commissioner John Poerner - expressed the fear that deregulation would allow railroads to raise rates too high for hauling coal from western states to the Southwest.

Utilities would be able to pass any increases along to consumers.

Twenty-two of the 24 Texas congressmen have endorsed an amendment by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, a Democrat from Houston, that would allow the Interstate Commerce Commission to review a railroad freight rate at a lower trigger price than allowed by the deregulation bill.

The amendment applies the ICC review only for "captive shippers."

Rep. Jim Collins, a Dallas Republican, and Rep. Ron Paul, a Republican from Lake Jackson, have not endorsed the amendment.

White said the vice president did not commit the administration to supporting the amendment, but Mondale encouraged Eckhardt to meet with the House bill's sponsor to try and work out a compromise.

"I think for the first time the administration understands fully the impact deregulation would have on electric consumers in our state," the Texas attorney general said.

Eckhardt said that deregulation as a solution to bureaucracy is an idea whose time has come politically.

He said railroads should be able to lower prices and make quicker economic decisions after deregulation, but it will only work on routes where there is competition.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., has said that amendments are being offered to preserve the regulatory status quo. He said the bill offers sufficient safeguards for the "captive shippers."

In a memo to the Texas congressional delegation, White said the issue is not limited to one region.

Consumer groups challenge PUC

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texans need a "Bill of Rights" to protect them from companies that try to cut off electric service when it's too hot, too cold, or would endanger health, according to two consumer organizations.

The Texas Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now and Consumers Union asked Tuesday that the Public Utility Commission adopt rules restricting utility cutoffs.

The groups are asking PUC to ban all service disconnections for non-payment when the temperature is below 55 or extremely hot. They also asked that service shutoffs be banned at all times to customers with health problems.

"We stand firmly against the utility companies' arbitrary power over the life and death of its customers," ACORN spokeswoman Willo Hardin said outside the PUC offices. "In times of extreme weather - the current heat wave is a perfect example - the need for a strict policy on shutoffs is an urgent one."

Attorneys for the two groups filed a petition asking PUC to convene hearings on the proposed rules.

Consumers Union, said service cutoffs could endanger some Texans during heat waves. However, she said no Texans have died as a result of service cutoffs during the current hot spell.

Steve Gardner, an attorney representing ACORN, said the group had not set a maximum temperature at which electricity could be disconnected, but he said 90-95 degrees "would be reasonable."

"Honest to God," he said, "we are trying to be fair to the utilities."

He said many Texas utility companies have decided not to cut off service for non-payment during the heat wave. However, he said that decision should not be left up to the companies.

Southfork to be sold by foot

DALLAS (AP) - Viewers who have followed the wheelings and dealings of the despicable J.R. Ewing on the popular television show "Dallas" may soon be able to own a tiny piece of the ranch he calls home.

The Dallas Times Herald reported Tuesday that plans are underway to sell square-foot pieces of the Southfork Ranch for $20 to $25. The newspaper said details of the venture are being kept secret until the real estate business involved in the sale is complete.

Neither the real estate firm, the Justice Mortgage Co., nor Natalie Duncan, wife of Southfork owner J.R. Duncan would comment on the proposed sale. Mrs. Duncan said her husband was out of town.

The newspaper said one of the reasons given for the secrecy is the desire on the part of some involved to announce the sale in England, where the show is considered a smash hit.

The idea is to sell four acres of the ranch in square foot pieces.

Arrests dent rustling ring

TYLER, Texas (AP) - Two men have been jailed in connection with an alleged horse rustling ring authorities said may have been responsible for hundreds of horse thefts in the last year. Smith County Sheriff J.B. Smith said Tuesday.

Nineteen horses, valued at more than $30,000, also were recovered, Smith said.

"A lot of the horses we recovered had been neglected. They were starving and some of them had been cut pretty bad," he said.

Stolen horses often are sold to rendering plants for about $500 each, the sheriff said.

Horse owners in Kaufman, Anderson, Leon and Smith Counties have reported hundreds of horse thefts in the last year, he said.

A 51-year-old Tyler paint contractor was jailed after his arrest on cattle theft charges. Smith said information on the horse thefts surfaced during questioning and the 19 horses were recovered on a ranch leased by the contractor about six miles east of here.

The contractor was being held Tuesday night in Leon County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond, Smith said. He posted $5,000 bond and was released from Smith County jail, but faces felony charges in three other counties, the sheriff said.

A 38-year-old Tyler man was arrested at the ranch Monday, Smith said, and was in Leon County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond Tuesday night.

Five of the recovered horses were appaloosas owned by a Palestine rancher who said one of the animals was valued at $6,000. Three other horses belonged to a Kaufman County rancher and the others were of various breeds and stolen from several other ranchers, Smith said.

"This has become a serious problem in East Texas, and I hope breaking up this ring slows it up some," the sheriff said.

Saturday mail escapes ax

WASHINGTON (AP) - Saturday mail, once considered a prime target of congressional budget-cutters, appears to have escaped the ax and may end up even more secure than before.

The House Post Office and Civil Service Committee refused Tuesday to comply with a House Budget Committee plan to scrap money for Saturday mail as a way to save the government $500 million.

The Post Office Committee then went even further, voting to require the U.S. Postal Service, a quasi-independent agency, to continue six-day-a-week deliveries.

That order was attached to a $947 million savings bill the committee approved in response to a congressional mandate that it cut programs under its jurisdiction by $1 billion.

TRY MAKE-YOUR-OWN Burgers for Fourth of July barbecues.

Ideas for Independence Day barbecue

This Fourth of July, declare your independence! Break away from the run-of-the-mill backyard barbecue foods and try something new and different. Here are some ideas to get you started.

Cast a favorite vote for freedom of choice with Make-Your-Own Burgers. Corn flakes cereal helps stretch the ground beef. But the real vote getters are the assorted toppings which individualize each burger. What about a Taco Burger with those favorite taco toppings: cheese, lettuce and tomato? Or a Stroganoff Burger with mushrooms, onion rings and sour cream. Or...make up your own topping combination!

Three-Bean 'N Swiss Salad stages a revolution against everyday salads. It's all the good flavors of three different beans in Vinegar-Oil Dressing. Plus, there's thin strips of Swiss cheese. Mix it up ahead, then stir in herb seasoned croutons at barbecue-time for added texture.

For dessert, let a summer vegetable take a stand. Serve squares of Orange Zucchini Cake, a moist cake using shreds of wheat bran cereal. Cream Cheese Frosting tops it off deliciously.

MAKE-YOUR-OWN BURGERS
2 cups corn flakes cereal, crushed to fine crumbs or 1/2 cup corn flake crumbs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
3 tablespoons milk

1 egg
1 lb. ground beef
Hamburger buns
Measure cereal crumbs, salt, pepper, mustard, milk and egg into large mixing bowl. Mix thoroughly, add ground beef. Mix only until combined. Divide mixture into six portions. Shape into patties. Grill patties over hot coals about five minutes on each side or to desired doneness. Serve on hamburger buns with one of the following toppings:

Stroganoff Burger: Onion rings, fresh mushroom slices and a dollop of sour cream.
Taco Burger: Lettuce, shredded cheese, tomato and chili sauce.
Luau Burger: Pineapple ring and cole slaw.
Chef's Salad Burger: Julienne cheese and ham, chopped green pepper and creamy salad dressing.
Yield: 6 servings.

THREE-BEAN 'N SWISS SALAD
1/4 cup margarine or butter
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1 1/2 cups herb-seasoned croutons
1 can (8 oz.) cut green beans, drained
1 can (8 1/2 oz.) lima beans, drained
1 can (15 oz.) red kidney beans, drained
1 cup (4 oz.) thin strips Swiss cheese
Red onion rings
Melt margarine in medium-size frypan over medium heat. Stir in garlic salt.

Add croutons. Cook, stirring constantly, until croutons are crisp. Remove from heat. Set aside.
Place beans and cheese in large mixing bowl. Refrigerate. Just before serving, combine croutons, bean mixture and Vinegar-Oil Dressing, tossing lightly. Garnish with onion rings.
Yield: 8 servings.

VINEGAR-OIL DRESSING
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon basil
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
Dash pepper
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon honey
1/4 cup vegetable oil
Measure all ingredients, except oil, into small mixing bowl. Add oil gradually, beating constantly. Refrigerate.

ORANGE ZUCCHINI CAKE
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
1 cup shreds of wheat bran cereal or morsels of wheat bran cereal
1 cup coarsely chopped nuts
2 cups grated, unpeeled zucchini squash
1 cup vegetable oil
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
2 teaspoons vanilla flavoring
Stir together flour, baking powder, soda, salt, cinnamon and sugar. Set aside.
In large mixing bowl, beat eggs until foamy. Add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Add flour mixture, mixing only until combined. Spread evenly in greased 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan.

Bake in oven at 350 degrees F. about 40 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool completely. Spread with Cream Cheese Frosting.
Yield: 24 servings.

Circus family

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Two rockets support Johnny Zoppe Jr. and his wife, Betty, high above the center ring of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus while they perform aerial stunts dangling beneath.

Guiding the air-propelled rockets from a console at ground control 60 feet below is 11-year-old Mario Zoppe, who has his parents' lives and safety in his hands.

"Mario's actually flying the rockets," said his father. "It's like the little remote-controlled airplanes you see — except his are a lot larger and his parents are on them. If he were ever sick for a performance, we would not go on. We feel secure only when he's on the console."

Zoppe, 32, is a 10th-generation circus performer, the first aerialist in a long line of bareback riders.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago I married a beautiful woman. She had the kind of beauty that most men can only dream about. She was cuddly and loving before we were married and until about a month after, then Bobby, her 9-year-old son, took over.

She prepares only Bobby's favorite food (mainly hamburgers) and never asks me what I want. When I suggest something, I'm told, "We aren't used to eating that!"

She speaks of her rights and Bobby's rights. Never mine. She buys him any toy he wants. He already has more than 100 in cartons and tires of them quickly.

She allows Bobby to hold and touch her, but I am told it's not "proper" for a husband and wife to show physical affection in front of children. She's 43, I'm 46, but a 9-year-old rules our house. We have to watch his favorite TV shows, and when we eat out, we go where Bobby wants to go.

Abby, I was willing to accept her son; he's part of her. But I feel like an outsider looking in. Until he was 7, he slept with her. (He had no bed of his own.)

How can I get Bobby to share his mother with me? I'm not even allowed to correct him. If I try, she jumps all over me, so I just pay their bills and get nothing out of our marriage. What is your advice?

OUTSIDER IN CHICAGO

DEAR OUTSIDER: Tell your bride that you are dissatisfied with your marriage and will need her cooperation (and Bobby's) to improve it. Family counseling, involving all members of the family, will be required. If she refuses to cooperate, you can either dissolve the marriage or hang around while the lady "with the kind of beauty most men dream about" continues to use you.

DEAR ABBY: About three weeks ago I met a real neat kid. We hit it off swell together. He asked me for my telephone number and I gave it to him.

The next day he called and we made a date for that Friday night. He never showed up and never called. Yesterday I bumped into him by accident, and he said he was sorry about what happened last Friday, but something unexpected came up and he couldn't make it.

He asked if he could see me that night and I said yes. Well, he didn't show up and didn't call. Next Saturday night my girlfriend is having a party, and she told me to bring my own guy. Do you think I should give this kid another chance? I still like him.

HOLES IN MY HEAD

DEAR HOLES: If you do, you should borrow the rocks in his head to fill up the holes in yours.

DEAR ABBY: Would you care to speculate on why a man would lose three wedding rings in the first four years of his marriage?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: He either consciously or unconsciously doesn't want to a) be married, b) look married, c) feel married. Or a combination of all three.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Used car tips

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — People in the market for a used car need to know more than kicking the tires to spot a good one.

Fram Corp., a manufacturer of auto products, recommends doing the following to avoid buying trouble:

- Ask the dealer for the car's history;
- Talk to the previous owners to determine how the car has been driven and maintained;
- Be wary of a car with paint on the chrome and hinges. This can suggest extensive repainting, meaning that the car has been in a major accident;
- Examine the tires for cuts, imbedded objects, flat spots and uneven wear;
- Look for worn brake or accelerator pedals which can indicate higher mileage than is on the odometer;
- Avoid cars with sagging front ends. This suggests extensive wear.

Testicular tumors detected by early self-examination

SEATTLE (AP) — Researchers have launched a program of self-examination for early detection of possible malignancies in the testicles of men.

Testicular tumors are relatively rare but usually malignant, according to Dr. William B. Hutchinson, director of the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle, which is conducting the program.

Hutchinson said testicular cancer is often curable if detected and treated in its early stages. But, he added, most cases are now diagnosed in the late stages, making treatment difficult.

The self-examination program for men has been combined with the Center's breast self-examination presentation for women and is being presented to high school students throughout the Pacific Northwest, Hutchinson said.

Economic forecasting a business in itself

NEW YORK (AP) — Having established that a recession is indeed here, after having prematurely forecast it last year, the forecasting fraternity is now busy with the next questions: How long, how deep? "You should prepare to hear information that the economic decline is slowing down," says Citibank, giving the sound if not substance of a fortnight prediction of things to come, a device used by others too. Morgan Guaranty has entitled an article in its economic survey "The Recession: Sharp but Short?" And over at Chase Manhattan they see "some hope that the current decline may be relatively brief."

The truth, as you very well know, is that none of them know what's ahead. Business is business, however, and the forecasting business, big as it is, isn't by any means the least honorable way to make a living.

Business needs economic forecasts because success depends on planning for the future. Politicians need them, because voting attitudes are linked to economic status. Everyone, in fact, seeks to know the future.

The economic forecasting business therefore has legitimate credentials if it doesn't have provable results, and its attitudes are as much an element in how the future evolves as almost any other factor.

And so, the question of "Will we have a recession?" having been answered, the current big challenge becomes the duration and depth of the recession. They're all in on it, with often surprising verdicts. Julian Snyder, who has built a large following for his newsletter, "International Moneyline," and who sees the U.S. economy doomed to long-term inflation, still argues that the recession will be brief. "Recovery ... will be one of the most rapid in history," he states. "The U.S. rate of inflation will decline for the balance of the year," says Snyder, who's bearishness had been legendary.

He hasn't forsaken it altogether, and perhaps not at all for the long term. That inflation decline, for example, "sets the stage for the next inflationary wave." But talk of monetary collapse, with which he is so often associated, was absent from a recent letter.

For straight talk, Albert H. Cox, Jr., president of Merrill Lynch Economics, ranks high among forecasters. He is "impressed with the arguments of the 'very deep and very long' school," he says.

This is his general forecast: "For the economy as a whole, we predict a downturn that would rank as the second most severe of the seven in the postwar period. "We remain confident that a new expansion will hatch in 1981, fueled in part by sharply lower rates of inflation and interest rates."

The Conference Board tends to agree. The twice-yearly economic forum of the board, a nonprofit research organization, expects the recession will last into 1981, giving way to growth in the April-June quarter.

Inflation has its supporters

NEW YORK (AP)— Inflation has its supporters and don't you forget it.

On reflection, that admonition might be unnecessary in your case because, the statistics suggest, there's a very good chance you already are a supporter. Inflation, like ecology, has its constituency.

While deeply in debt, many homeowners are also deeply indebted to inflation, which has helped to double the median price of existing single-family homes since 1974. That beats the consumer price index.

"Home ownership," says the U.S. League of Savings Associations, "is one of the most distinctive characteristics of American society." Nearly 65 percent of all residences, it notes, are owner-occupied.

Most are mortgaged too. About 69 percent of consumer debt is in the form of home mortgages, according to the National Consumer Finance Association. It put the year-end 1979 figure at $859 billion.

The owner of a mortgaged house doesn't have to rely on appreciation only for his gains. If interest on his mortgage is less than the inflation rate he automatically comes out ahead. If inflation continues he repays in cheaper dollars. And he gets to deduct the interest on his income taxes. In effect, he has joined forces with the enemy.

Homeowners are only part of the constituency. Almost all borrowers benefit to some extent so long as inflation continues. And almost all Americans are or have been borrowers. Some are constantly in debt.

Last year the total of consumer debt outstanding was $1.241 billion, again according to the Finance Association, and $311 billion of it was for installment loans, mainly to finance consumers goods such as cars.

There are other supporters.

often tacit ones, because few people like to declare themselves in favor of something almost all people regularly denounce. You might even include recipients of Social Security checks.

Checks now being mailed to recipients this week are swelled by 14.3 percent "cost-of-living" increases — increases based on the consumer price index, which often overstates retirees' cost-of-living increases.

Business often benefits from inflation, particularly for products in strong demand and short supply. Collectibles of various sorts — art, stamps, coins, gold, to name a few — are beneficiaries. Oil might be. Housing often is. Even Japanese small cars can sometimes be included.

Government can't be excluded from the list. In fact, it is considered by many to be the prime cause and the No. 1 beneficiary since politicians, it is observed, create inflation with spending programs designed to win votes.

Texans may see crowded highways

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas motorists would have to weave through increased truck traffic if the state gives up its control over the trucking industry, a House subcommittee has been told.

Robert Floyd, vice president of the Texas Motor Transport Association, Monday warned the House Subcommittee on Trucking Industry Deregulation that deregulation could cause "chaos."

Floyd cautioned deregulation would make it easier for independents to get into the trucking business. He said such operators sometimes are more concerned with profits than safety. Deregulation would crowd Texas highways with more trucks, he predicted.

The independents are more likely to "take chances and go further than the law allows."

"For a certain amount of money down, a man can get into the business fairly easily," said Floyd.

Faced with financial problems, an independent "will take more risks than perhaps a regulated carrier might," he said.

President Carter is expected to sign today federal legislation greatly reducing Interstate Commerce Commission control of interstate deregulated intrastate trucking. Florida's deregulation law goes into effect today.

Antitrust claimed in baseball cards

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal judge has "popped the bubble in the baseball card business by ruling that the Topps Chewing Gum Co. and the Major League Baseball Players Association violated antitrust laws."

U.S. District Judge Clarence C. Newcomer ruled Tuesday that "Topps and the players association have unlawfully restrained and monopolized trade in ... pocket-size pictures of active major league baseball players."

The suit was brought by a former competitor in the baseball trading card market, Fleer Corp. of Philadelphia. But while Fleer, which claims to have invented bubble gum, had asked for $16 million in damages in the suit that was filed five years ago, Newcomer awarded it $3.

Based in Brooklyn, N.Y., and regarded as the world's largest bubble gum manufacturer, Topps has dominated the market for almost a quarter of a century.

Newcomer's ruling gives Fleer the right to seek an agreement with the players' association.

Friends who meet this coming year who are from a foreign land or who live at a distant place could prove lucky for you. Take advantage of all opportunities to make this type of contact.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be very careful today about passing on hearsay information or gossip. Don't relate anything to another unless the facts can be fully verified. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Business or commercial matters could be far more complicated than usual today. Be extremely careful in your dealings whether they are large or small.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's important to weigh your alternatives today, but not to the point where it makes you indecisive. Too much introspection will immobilize you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be selective regarding the tasks that confront you today. Tackle only those you feel persistent enough to finish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be able to distinguish between sensible risks and outlandish gambles. Losses could occur if you are foolish with your resources.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There may be some unnecessary rambles on the domestic scene today and the finger of guilt could be pointing at you. Beware of stirring up still waters.

CAPRICORN (DEC. 22-Jan. 19) We all make mistakes; this could be the day for yours. Don't look for scapegoats on whom to shift the blame.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be helpful to your friends today, but be careful about lending them money or possessions you prize. It's also not a good day to borrow anything from them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Instead of imagining how difficult something may be today, try thinking of how easily you can do it. Don't make things harder than they are.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Beware of tendencies to put obstacles in your own path. You could complicate situations that really aren't all that complex.

TAURUS (April 20-May 10) You can't be all things to all people today, so your best course of action is "to thine own self be true." Pretenses will work against you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep as few irons in the fire today as possible. If you begin to spread yourself too thin, it's not likely you'll achieve the things you set out to do.

Politicians stampede to take credit

WASHINGTON (AP) — When a major bill passes Congress, there's often a stampede of members to take credit for it. The size of the role they play seems to matter little, especially in election years. Sometimes 100 or more members will co-sponsor a particularly popular piece of legislation — and many will then seize the opportunity to crank out press releases claiming authorship. When a $20 billion bill to spur development of synthetic fuels passed Congress a few days ago, a press release from Rep. S. William Green, R-N.Y., was on reporters' desks soon after the final vote was tallied.

Green's statement announced: "The Energy Security Act, the major energy legislation of Congress in 1980, was substantially shaped by House Banking Committee members last year including authorship by Congressman Bill Green of provisions introducing the role of conservation..."

Others have been known to change the emphasis — or even the name — of a bill to suit their needs.

House Agriculture Committee Chairman Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., whose link with the same energy bill was a section on fuel from agricultural products, put out a press release that began:

"The Biomass and Alcohol Fuels Act, passed by the House today as part of the new Energy Security Act, is a major step..." Foley then went on to describe what the bill meant for farmers.

Then there are those who don't list any qualifications when it comes to taking credit.

About two dozen House members and senators played a direct role in the effort which led to congressional repeal of President Carter's politically unpopular 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline fee.

After it was killed by wide margins in each chamber, Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, a member of the House energy and power subcommittee, put out a statement asserting in underlined capital letters: "ECKHARDT GETS CARTER DIME GAS TAX REPEALED."

Rep. Thomas B. Evans Jr., R-Dei., says he thinks vultures — not doves — should be released at the opening of the summer Olympics in Moscow.

He told a recent meeting of the House Banking Committee that a "flock of vultures should be set free at the start of the Olympic games to emphasize that the host country is a nation which is currently engaging in an aggressive war..."

Commodities, farm prices show increases in June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taken as an average, farm commodity prices have been edging higher the last couple of months but, from the producer's viewpoint, still are discouragingly under year-ago levels.

Also, farmers' production expenses continue to rise.

Based on preliminary figures — mostly mid-month averages — prices that farmers get for raw products rose 1.3 percent in June, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said higher prices for hogs, apples, cattle, peaches, tomatoes and cabbage contributed most to the increase from the May average.

Lower prices for lettuce, wheat, grapefruit, hay, cotton and milk partly offset increases for other commodities, however, the report said.

Despite the increase, the price index trailed year-earlier levels for the fifth straight month, averaging 14 percent below June 1979.

The report also included revised figures for May showing that the price index also rose 1.3 percent. A month ago the preliminary report showed an increase of only 0.9 percent.

Meanwhile, prices farmers pay to meet expenses rose 0.7 percent from May and averaged 11 percent higher than a year ago.

According to the preliminary June figures, prices of meat animals as a group rose 2.9 percent from May, including increases for cattle and hogs. But the livestock index still was down 11 percent from a year earlier.

The fruit price index climbed 8.4 percent from May, including increases for oranges, lemons, apples and strawberries in addition to new-crop peaches. Even so, the index averaged 12 percent below a year ago.

Department economists are predicting retail food prices will rise by about 8 percent or 9 percent in 1980, but add that the actual increase could range between 7 percent and 11 percent, depending on inflation, weather and what happens to food supplies in foreign countries.

On the average, retail food prices rose 10.9 percent in 1979, the largest annual increase in five years.

Economists do not consider changes in the farm price index for a single month to be reliable indicators of future trends at grocery stores. For example, in 1979 farm prices increased in six months, dropped in four and remained unchanged in two.

So far in 1980, they declined slightly in January, edged up in February, dropped in March and April, rose in May and, according to the preliminary figures, gained again in June.

More than 60 cents of each grocery dollar spent by consumers goes toward paying middleman expenses for transporting, processing and merchandizing food after it leaves the farm.

Farm prices in June averaged 230 percent of a 1967 base price average used for comparison. The revised index for May was 227 percent.

The June parity ratio for farm commodities was 61 percent, the same as the revised May ratio.

In June 1979, the ratio was 72 percent. At 100 percent, the indicator would mean, theoretically, that farmers have the same buying power they had in 1910-14.

For example, the average actual price of wheat in June, according to the preliminary figures, was $3.55 a bushel. That was 55 percent of the June parity price for wheat of $6.51 a bushel.

The report also said: —Cattle averaged $61.20 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally, compared to $60.60 in May and $66.80 in June 1979. Those are averages for all types of cattle sold as beef.

—Hogs averaged $32.40 per 100 pounds, compared to $28.60 in May and $39.60 a year ago.

Utility cutoffs protested

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two consumer organizations Tuesday asked the Texas Public Utility Commission to bar electric companies from cutting off service in cases where a customer's health might be endangered.

The Texas Association of Communities Organized for Reform Now and Consumers Union asked PUC to adopt rules establishing new rights for utility customers.

The rules proposed by ACORN and Consumers Union call for the PUC to ban service cutoff on any day when the minimum temperature is below 55 degrees. Attorney Steve Gardner, representing ACORN, said the PUC should also bar cutoffs during heat waves, such as the current hot spell which is tormenting Texans.

ACORN and Consumers Union also want the commission to force utility companies to give 10-day notice — in English and Spanish — of the company's intention to terminate service for non-payment.

Gardner said PUC must now decide whether it will convene hearings on the request.

Braves wallop Astros

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves, with their power hitters and lethargic defense are supposed to have an advantage on the smallish expanses of natural grass of Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

But it also took a bit of luck to whip the first-place Houston Astros 13-4. Balls struck on checked swings fell in for hits and hard-hit balls which had been right at somebody in the past found openings Tuesday night.

The Astros, with their team speed, are best on artificial turf where the ball bounces faster and where there is plenty of room for outfielders to roam.

"I have to admit we have a pretty awesome lineup in this ballpark," Braves Manager Bobby Cox said. "We'll keep that lineup. It's going so well I don't want to change it in any way."

The Braves have won five out of their last six. The lineup belted out 15 hits, including a home run and a double by Jeff Burroughs, who also had four RBI, and three singles by Dale Murphy.

"I'm glad we finally broke out" of a scoring slump, said Cox. "I think this was our first night in double figures." The Braves' previous high score this season was nine. "We've got the momentum. Phil (Niekro) is going tomorrow and I hope it carries over."

"The balls were falling," said Bob Horner, who got two hits and three RBI. "We needed something like this. To score that many runs we had to put a lot of hits back-to-back."

Borg advances to quarterfinals, Evert-Lloyd turns back Jaeger

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Wojtek Fibak advanced to the quarterfinals at Wimbledon for the first time in his life and was as surprised as anybody by his success.

Bjorn Borg did nothing surprising in making the quarterfinals by defeating Balazs Taroczy 6-1, 7-5, 6-2 Tuesday for a record 32nd straight singles triumph. The victory broke the mark of 31 straight set by Australian Rod Laver.

"It's satisfying for me to break Laver's record," Borg said. "That was my practical aim when I came here. I decided I would first go for the record and after that think about winning the title again."

Winning the title wasn't even on Fibak's mind after the first two sets against Vitas Gerulaitis.

The Polish doubles expert staged a remarkable recovery to upset fourth-seeded Gerulaitis 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 8-6 before rain interrupted the day's program.

"I feel nervous talking to the press for only the second time in five years at Wimbledon and I suppose that sums up my lack of success in the big tournaments," said Fibak.

Fibak now meets another American, unseeded Brian Gottfried, in the last eight. Gottfried has not dropped a set in his four matches.

Six of the eight quarterfinalists in the men's singles are Americans, with defending champion Bjorn Borg and Fibak the exceptions. Either third seed Jimmy Connors or unseeded Hank Pfister will round out the field of eight. Their all-American matchup was suspended due to darkness and rain with Connors ahead 6-4, 5-5. Second-seeded John McEnroe quickly wrapped up his fourth-round match against big serving South African Kevin Curren, winning 7-5, 7-4, 7-6 after resuming at 3-3 in the third set.

McEnroe meets his close friend and doubles partner Peter Fleming in the quarterfinals. No. 7 Fleming took only six points to win his resumed match against New Zealander Onny Parun 6-3, 6-2, 6-7, 7-6.

Borg plays sixth-seeded American Gene Mayer, who is in the last eight for the first time.

SPORTS

while last year's beaten finalist Roscoe Tanner meets either Connors or Pfister.

Three of the four women's quarterfinals had been completed but defending champion Martina Navratilova had just won the first set tiebreaker against Billie Jean King when rain halted play.

Andrea Jaeger, 15-year-old darling of the Wimbledon fans, was abruptly stopped in her tracks. Chris Evert Lloyd beat her 6-1, 6-1. But the pony-tailed teen-ager from Lincoln, Ill., gave her a good fight and went to deuce in five of the games she lost.

Tracy Austin won 6-3, 6-3 against Greer Stevens, a South African. Evonne Goolagong defeated Australian Wendy Turnbull, 6-3, 6-2.

In the semifinals, Lloyd was to play Navratilova or King and Austin was to meet Goolagong.

Mariners slip past Rangers in ninth, 6-5

SEATTLE (AP) — Bruce Bochte's bases-loaded single with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning brought home the tying and winning runs as the Seattle Mariners defeated the Texas Rangers 6-5 Tuesday night.

The Rangers used three pitchers in the ninth, trying to hold their 5-4 lead. Jim Kern, 2-10, walked Bob Stinson and allowed a single to Julio Cruz with one out before Danny Darwin relieved to load the bases on a walk to Juan Beniquez. Then Bochte singled off Sparky Lyle to score pinch-runner Joe Simpson and Cruz.

Two-run doubles by Bump Wills and Richie Zisk highlighted a five-run Texas rally that overcame an early deficit.

Trailing 4-0 entering the seventh inning, the Rangers rallied against Seattle starter Floyd Bannister and reliever Shane Rawley, 4-2, who pitched the last two innings for the victory.

Minter saves English summer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — John Bull is a tough old codger. He's survived bombings and wars. He drinks his whiskey straight and gulps down his stout by the pints. He will bet his week's pay on the landing of a fly.

His veins pump with red sporting blood and he wears his fierce national pride on his sleeve.

When Virginia Wade — "Our Ginny" — loses at Wimbledon, for instance, the final British remnant in these hoary tennis championships, as she did Monday, you can hear the groans and moans from the Channel to the raging North Sea.

On the other hand, when a pug-nosed British fighter named Alan Minter turns an American challenger's features into mincemeat while defending the undisputed world middleweight crown, as he did

Saturday night, the exultation lasts for days.

If it hadn't been for Minter, a popular restaurant owner from nearby Crawley, old John Bull might just have raced out to the nearest pub and got himself stinking loaded.

It's been that kind of a summer for the proud but famished British.

Their national soccer team, qualifying for the first time in 12 years, has failed to make the final four in the European championship. The British rugby team has lost three straight tests to South Africa. In cricket, the natives are getting clobbered by the West Indies.

It's been another embarrassing Wimbledon. No British male got past the second round in men's singles. In ladies' singles, only Wade, the 1977 champion, won more than a single match and she was cut down by 15-year-old, pony-tailed Andrea Jaeger in a fourth round match on Centre court.

"Oh, No, Ginny, No, No, No," will scream the headlines of the British tabloids Tuesday morning.

In a couple of weeks they will be playing the British Open golf tournament at Muirfield, Scotland. Britain, which has produced only one champion (Tony Jacklin) in this generation, will be pulling for an adopted son, Seve Ballesteros of Spain, in the absence of any realistic homecountry threat.

What makes this dearth of legitimate British contenders and potential champions so face-reddening is that these islands are conceded to be the birthplace of golf, as they provided the roots for lawn tennis, soccer and rugby.

Minor leagues produce few NFL stars

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Player directors of National Football League clubs descend at this time of the year to the strewn fields of minor league or semipro football.

There, in a gloom never penetrated by television cameras, they sift through rosters in search of a prospect overlooked by the NFL, but rarely are they successful.

"It's not likely to happen because the scouting for the draft has become so extensive," says Doug Hafner, the Buffalo Bills' director of pro scouting. "Each club has its own scouts and we have four combines that operate for clubs in the league. They just do such a thorough job scouting for talent coming out of the colleges that very few people are overlooked."

"Still, it happens. We get a lot of calls from guys who haven't played for a few years or who don't have a college background. I recommend that they try out for their local teams. I try to catch them in June — before we get involved in our camp."

The images of semipro football are myriad: the halfback who runs like a man going down a fire escape, the quarterback who throws a spiral reminiscent of modern art, the linemen who build their girth hoisting beer bottles instead of weights.

But it is helpful to remember that players like wide receiver Lou Piccone of the Bills, center Jeff Van Note of the Atlanta Falcons and the retired Baltimore Colts quarterback Johnny Unitas got started in the hard-scrabble world of sandlot play.

"You have to remember that in Unitas' day, there was less opportunity to play," Hafner notes. "There were only eight teams and he was a 17th-round pick, which in our day was about sixth round."

Joel Bussett, who keeps track of rosters in the NFL office, says, "A handful of players come up from what we call the minor leagues each year."

He estimated about 50 would be given tryouts and as many as a dozen could sign with NFL teams in a given year.

Minor league football may reap exposure beyond its wildest dreams with its first annual national championship game, a brainchild of Pro Football Weekly, says Ray Mansfield, the commissioner of the Atlantic Football Conference and a former All-Pro center with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The title game will be played Nov. 15 in Sacramento, Calif.

Skellytown wins big

Skellytown ripped eight homeruns on the way to a 41-7 shellacking of Lefors in a little league game last week.

Before the dust had settled in a wild first inning, Skellytown had scored 18 runs as 24 batters came to the plate.

Glen Wise, Lance Cross, and Joe Don Brown pitched for Skellytown.

Addington, Cates, and Conway pitched for Lefors.

Leading the homerun parade were Rabbit Rogers, Brent Bridwell, and Ty Cross with two each. Glen Wise and Keith Tice, one each.

Rogers was Skellytown's top run-producer with nine rbis while scoring five times himself.

Others with runs and rbis were Bryan Thurmond, three runs; Max Hinds, two runs; Glen Wise, three runs and four rbis; Joe Don Brown, five runs and two rbis; Lance Cross, four runs; Ty Cross, one run and eight rbis; Brent Bridwell, two runs and seven rbis; Turtle Furgason, two runs and three rbis; Keith Tice, one rbi; Ronnie Jones, three runs; Daron Adkison, one run; Todd O'Dell, two runs and one rbi.

Skellytown hosts Groom Thursday in the Lions Club ballpark. Skellytown is coached by J. L. Furgason and Gene Rogers.

Brown places fifth in finals

Shane Brown of Pampa just missed going to the National High School Rodeo.

Brown participated in the Texas High School Rodeo Association Finals in Seguin and finished in a three-way tie for fifth in bareback riding (short go round) with 59 points.

The top four in each event qualified for the Nationals at Yakima, Washington.

In the first go around, Brown was locked in a three-way tie for eighth place with 57 points.

Bowling roundup

There's not a chill in the air yet, but sign-up sheets and team schedules for the winter bowling leagues have still been posted on the bulletin board at Harvester Lanes.

Bowlers are invited to sign up now for winter league activity. Most of the winter leagues begin the last week in August or the first week in September.

Meanwhile, the summer leagues are going full blast. One of the hot spots on the summer scene is the Monday Night Men's Trio, which is filled with high-average bowlers.

The winners are currently in first place with a 24-4 record and it's not hard to see why. Forrester Cole is sizzling along on a 209 average while teammates Kevin Davis and Darrell Danner are carrying 189 and 183 averages respectively.

Not far behind are The Super Bowlers, led by Blain Smyth and his 178 average. David Hemphill (163) and Doug Lee (161) are his teammates.

Cole is the only league bowler that has better than a 200 average, but Van Vandebrook (195), and Donny Nail (193) are threatening to reach that mark. Cole boosted his average by bowling a 300 game last month.

Besides the summer leagues, there is a 3-6-9 Mixed Alibi Doubles Tournament currently underway at Harvester Lanes.

Tournament leaders are Karla Taylor and Donny Nail with a 1469, followed by Helen Lemons and Al Lemons, 1437.

The tournament ends Aug. 15 and the entry fee is eleven dollars per couple. Bowlers may enter as many times as they want to, but they can only play with one person.

The prize fund so far is $42.30.

Gardening by moon signs

By LOIS BOYNTON

The moon will be decreasing: 1-11; 28-31. The moon will be increasing: 12-27. The fruitful signs are: 2-3 (Pisces); 11-12 (Cancer); 20 through 22 (Virgo); 28-29 (Scorpio); and 29-30 (Pisces).

The semi-fruitful signs are 6-7 (Taurus); after 4 p.m. the 17 through 19; 25-26 (Capricorn). The barren signs are: 1 (Aquarius); 4-5 (Aries); 8-10 (Gemini); 13-14 (Leo); 15 through 5 p.m. 17 (Virgo); from 5 p.m. 22 through 24 (Sagittarius); 27-28 (Aquarius); 31 (Aries).

The fruitful signs are also the wet signs, so use them for irrigating. The soaring 100-plus days of June have us discouraged, but take heart July certainly can't be any worse, and we are thinking it will be better.

To continue with pruning of Clematis from last month's article, go over the plant thoroughly, shortening all growth, cutting out all the dead branches and thinning out any you go.

Clematis are slow to get established. They do not like heavy soil, so if you have heavy soil, mix in a lot of peat moss. Once growing, they will bloom beautifully year after year. When planting them, the crown should be covered with two or three inches of soil. This is a must. A light mulch around the plant is helpful to retain moisture.

This is the month for digging, transplanting and buying new varieties of iris. The best method of digging iris is to dig the entire clump, then wash clean with a hose. Carefully inspect the rhizomes for rot and borer damage. Keep only the healthy roots.

To produce a beautiful bloom display, plant three fans of one variety, with all leaf-fans facing in the same direction. Space them about five inches apart. They should be planted in a circle with all fans facing out. They will have a tendency to produce a hollow-centered ring rather than a clump. If fans are planted facing inward, they will become a confused mass that will need to be transplanted in a couple of weeks.

Take care to plant iris firmly with no air pockets beneath the rhizome. They should be covered completely, but not deeply. We always put a handful of bone meal in the bottom of the hole before planting. We do not dig and divide the iris, for we feel that the foliage helps to provide food for next year's bloom. Order some new ones to put interest in your garden.

A few sources for iris that we have found reliable are Wedow Iris Garden, 535 S. Elm, Denver, Colo. 80222; Schreiner's, 3625 Quinby Rd., Salem, Ore. 97303; Melrose Gardens, 309 West Road South, Stockton, Calif. 95205; Cooley's Gardens, P.O. Box 126, Silverton, Ore. 97381; and Fleu de Liw Gardens, P.O. Box 344, Oregon City, Ore. 97045.

When cutting roses for arrangements or just trimming off the dead-heads, always cut back to the eye above the first outside four leaf branch. Put some of these cuttings down for rooting. They should be about 6 inches long. Remove the bottom leaves and dip them in rootone and place them outside in a sandy, shady place. Then cover them with a glass jar. Given constant care, they do not dry out. The best time to do this will be July 10 and 11.

The 17 through the 22 (until 5 p.m.) you should plant seeds of pansies, canterbury bells, columbine, sweet William and others. The soil should be kept moist at all times. Some garden seed need to be sown at this time. These include Kohlrabi, broccoli, cabbage, mustard turnip greens, and leaf lettuce. Turnips and carrots should not be planted until July 29 and 30.

Before herbs bloom, they should be cut for drying or freezing. Put excess cuttings in the vegetable row to discourage insects.

The best time for mulching is after a shower, if we are so favored. It will protect the fresh moisture and smother out tiny weed seeds as they sprout. Put it up close to the stems of the plants. If you have nothing better, newspapers make a good mulch. Tie them down well with soil so they stay put.

The compost pile should be kept moist during dry weather. It will also help to turn the pile to aerate it.

Since the most serious problem associated with summer planting is poor germination because of dry soil, wet the ground by sprinkling it the day before planting. If the weather stays dry, keep the rows moist with a sprinkling can or a fine spray for about a week. Most seeds should germinate by this time.

If you are losing out to the wasps on your grapes, tie each cluster in a brown paper bag. It is not necessary for the sun to reach the grapes for them to ripen. You will be surprised at the lovely bunches of grapes when you remove the bags.

When making out your fruit tree list for fall planting, consider the sweet cherries. We have a large big tree over 30 years old and it had over 25 gallons of lush big cherries. We grow garlic around these trees for bore protection.

The big bad bore trouble several years ago. We treated with boreol, painted the effected part of the trunk with creosote and washed it with soapy water. The wound healed and the bark soon grew over the effected part of the tree.
