

Carter promises cooperation in Billy probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is promising full White House cooperation, perhaps even his own testimony if necessary, in the special Senate investigation of his brother Billy's Libyan connections.

Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said Thursday that Carter did not expect to invoke executive privilege for either himself or his aides to keep them from testifying or providing information. He will instruct his staff to cooperate fully, Powell said.

The Senate Judiciary Committee was meeting today to discuss details of the probe by a nine-member panel — five Democrats and four Republicans — into the Billy Carter-Libyan ties and whether the White House influenced a Justice Department investigation of the president's younger brother.

Hearings are expected to start next week, and the committee is under orders to produce a report a month to the day before the Nov. 4 election.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the special panel, vowed to "pursue the truth wherever it may lead and let the chips fall where they may."

"We plan to investigate... anything that (Billy) Carter may have done while representing a foreign nation that may have had impact on the policy of this country," Bayh said. "We plan to investigate the propriety or lack thereof and what the governmental response has been to that undertaking."

He called on White House aides and Billy Carter to testify voluntarily, rather than under subpoena.

Bayh said he hoped it "would not be necessary" to call the president as a witness, but Powell would not rule out the possibility of testimony by Carter or his wife, Rosalynn.

Powell said the president would "respond fully... in accordance with mutually acceptable procedures consistent with the responsibilities and time constraints of his office."

Gerald R. Ford, who appeared before a House Judiciary subcommittee in 1974 to discuss his pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon, is the only president to testify publicly before a congressional committee.

Presidential counsel Lloyd Cutler told the Public Broadcasting System that it had not been decided whether Carter, if asked, would testify before the special Senate committee, answer written questions or convene a meeting at the White House.

Like other presidential aides, Cutler took pains to discourage any comparison with Watergate, saying he was "confident nothing remotely resembling the obstruction of justice of the Watergate period could have happened."

Billy Carter registered under protest last week as a foreign agent for Libya's leftist government to avoid a full grand jury investigation. He has acknowledged receiving from Libya $220,000 in installments on what he has described as a $500,000 loan.

Both the White House and the Justice Department insist there was no collaboration during the department's investigation of Billy.

"The department has nothing whatsoever to hide with regard to this investigation," said Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti. He said there were no pending investigations of Billy Carter.

Shortly after the Senate created the special panel Thursday, Powell told reporters the White House will provide any information sought by the committee about Billy Carter's ties to the Libyan government and about his contacts with the White House staff and the Justice Department.

"We believe, the president believes, that we will come out all right in the end because we have behaved in a proper manner in regard to this issue and the best way to make that clear to the American people is to provide the maximum possible information," he said.

Powell also said that at the president's request Brzezinski arranged a meeting between President Carter, Houderi and Brzezinski on Dec. 6. At that meeting, Carter registered his strong protest over the burning of the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli, a subject discussed by Brzezinski and Houderi again on Dec. 12, Powell said.

Passengers released Hijackers land in Kuwait

KUWAIT (AP) — A hijacked Kuwaiti jetliner with about 40 people aboard landed here today for the third time in 24 hours, Kuwait Radio said, after it turned back from Tehran when Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr closed the city's airport.

The aircraft flew to Kuwait after trying to land in the Iranian capital on a flight from Abadan, the oil refining city in southwestern Iran. It had spent some seven hours on the ground in Abadan before heading to Tehran, the Iran state radio reported. The Iranian news agency Pars said Bani-Sadr ordered the airport closed.

The Arab hijackers were reported to be threatened to blow up the plane unless they get $750,000 they claim a Kuwaiti merchant owes them.

Fatma Faqih, a Kuwaiti journalist among 37 women and children released by the hijackers in Kuwait Thursday night wrote in her newspaper Al-Anbaa that the hijackers said they would free the passengers and crew still held by them and then blow up the aircraft if their demands are not met.

Miss Faqih and the other released passengers said the hijackers were armed with pistols and grenades.

Pars said there were four hijackers aboard the plane and that they identified themselves as Palestinians. Abadan Radio said two passengers were released in the oil refining city and taken to a hospital after feeling sick.

This left the hijackers, 35 passengers and four crew aboard the plane.

Kuwait's director general of security, Col. Mohammed Kabandi, on Thursday said there were two hijackers aboard the plane. He identified them as brothers Youssef and Khalaf Ahmed-Moufleh, and said they were Jordanians.

They were deported from Kuwait last year for issuing bad checks, and are demanding $750,000 allegedly owed them by a Kuwaiti merchant in return for releasing the plane, Kabandi added.

The Kuwait Airlines Boeing 737 was hijacked Thursday while on a flight from Beirut, Lebanon, to Kuwait. It landed in Kuwait and during a 90-minute stop, the hijackers released all 37 women and children aboard.

The plane then flew to Bahrain, refueled there, flew back to Kuwait for a second time, then took off for Abadan, 60 miles north of Kuwait across the top of the Persian Gulf and the site of the world's largest oil refinery.

City eyes budget increase of 12 percent

Two of the four city commissioners met in a one-and-a-half hour study session of the proposed 1980-81 budget with Mayor H. R. Thompson and city officials Thursday afternoon.

Commissioners Coyle Ford and Clyde Carruth were presented with an itemized-by-account summary of the proposed expenditures for next year's budget. City Manager Mack Wofford said.

The absent commissioners, O. M. Prigmore and Charles (Buddy) Cauthorne, were kept from the meeting due to business matters, a spokesperson for the city said.

The preliminary summary showed a 12.3 percent increase over the current year's estimated total, Wofford said.

The estimated total extended from the nine months actual total for this year, he said, is expected to be $4,933,191.

The proposed expenditure figure for the 1980-81 fiscal year is $5,610,014, Wofford said.

"We're still looking at numbers that could change," the city manager said.

"We went into great detail in some areas," he said.

Ford and Carruth showed the most interest in the capital item expenditures, the proposed Social Security increase from 6.13 to 6.65 percent and in anticipated revenue for the coming year, he said.

Commissioners did not propose any changes to the preliminary expenditure budget in the meeting Thursday.

A second study session on the anticipated revenue is scheduled for 4 p.m. Tuesday, Wofford said.

Death sentence reduced by governor

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements commuted the death sentence of a man convicted of killing a Dallas police officer to life in prison after receiving a request from the Dallas County district attorney, according to published reports.

The Dallas Morning News reported in its Friday edition that Clements commuted Randall Dale Adams' sentence July 11 following a letter from District Attorney Henry Wade.

Adams was convicted in 1977 of shooting Dallas police officer Robert Wood in November 1976. The U.S. Supreme Court overturned the death sentence, but not the conviction, on June 25 — ruling the state had improperly excluded prospective jurors.

The newspaper said in its letter to Clements, Wade wrote.

"Although Adams certainly deserves to be put to death, I do not believe that another 6-week trial would be a wise expenditure of judicial and prosecutorial resources, particularly when federal courts are so reluctant to permit the execution of the death penalty."

Doug Mulder, Wade's first assistant prosecutor, said the district attorney asked Clements to commute the sentence on King's request.

STRUCTURAL STEEL BEAMS provide a "sky frame" on Highway 70, as construction work on the future Coronado Community Hospital continues. Plans by the Rodgers Construction Company anticipate completion of the steel work by July 31.

Pouring of the structural concrete will be started by Aug. 15, and the entire three-floor structure will be enclosed by Dec. 1. The 137-bed facility is slated for completion by December 1981.

Mobeetie Bluegrass Festival opens

A weekend of "pickin' and grinnin'" is in store for Panhandle area residents this weekend as the Panhandle Bluegrass and Old Tyme Music Association kicks off the first night of the 1st Annual Bluegrass Festival at the Old Mobeetie Jail Museum in Mobeetie, 25 miles east of Pampa on Highways 60 and 152.

The event, which will begin at 6:30 tonight and continue through Sunday, will feature such bluegrass groups as the Vinings from Pampa, Prairie Grass, West Texas Grass, Tri-State Bluegrass Express and Panhandle Country, all from Amarillo. Gifford Grubb and the DePew II from Lefors, and the Flatland Bluegrass, which hales from Lubbock. Sunday's happenings will feature that "old time" country gospel.

Camping for spectators will be available in the rough, with food and gas provided nearby.

Bluegrass is a term that has been applied to a wide variety of music, including almost every kind of unamplified country music as well as some amplified kinds. While exact definitions may vary even among people who consider themselves bluegrass fans or musicians, there would be little disagreement over this broad one. Bluegrass is string band music based on fiddle, banjo, acoustic guitar, mandolin and bass, and played and sung in styles similar to those used by Bill Monroe and his Blue Grass Boys.

Monroe himself considers bluegrass to have started in 1939, when he first formed the Blue Grass Boys. Since then the music has evolved quite a bit through the addition of the banjo in the early 1940's and the use of the three-finger rollin' banjo ("Scruggs style") in the mid-40's.

Of course, Bill Monroe wasn't the only musician experimenting with acoustic country music. Others who originally played and sang in the old-time style developed their own approaches, sometimes parallel to those of Monroe, and some of them were members of the Blue Grass Boys for periods of up to several years. Though bands like Flatt and Scruggs and the Foggy Mountain Boys, the Stanley Brothers and the Clinch Mountain Boys, and later the Osborne Brothers and the Country Gentlemen all developed their own distinctive styles, the similarities, especially in instrumentation and instrumental styles, lead many to think of the bands as exponents of one kind of music.

Oil profits rising, but sales fall

NEW YORK (AP) — Mobil, Gulf and several other major oil companies say rising world petroleum prices are continuing to fuel profit gains, but recession and reduced oil use are beginning to take their toll.

Mobil, the nation's second-largest oil company, Thursday reported a 64.6 percent earnings gain in the second quarter to $688 million as profits rose on petroleum inventories overseas. In the first quarter, Mobil reported an earnings gain of more than 100 percent.

No. 5 Gulf, meanwhile, posted a 27.1 percent rise in operating profits to $370 million. Gulf's final net was $470 million, however, reflecting a $100 million gain on its sale of 10 million shares of Gulf Canada Ltd.

Mobil said its U.S. petroleum product sales fell 2 percent in the second quarter to 760,000 barrels a day as soaring prices prompted consumers to cut fuel use. There are 42 gallons in a barrel.

"The impact of the recession was clearly apparent in the second quarter as sales volumes and profit margins fell in several sectors of our business," Gulf Chairman Jerry McAfee said in Pittsburgh.

Citing "the public's resistance to rising prices," McAfee reported Gulf's U.S. refined product sales in the second quarter fell to a 14-year low of 687,000 barrels a day.

But Gulf said second-quarter domestic refining and marketing profits rose $92 million from a year ago to $191 million as higher prices offset the drop in product shipments.

Mobil's second-quarter earnings were equivalent to $3.24 a share and were above earnings of $4.18 million, or $1.97 a share, in the second quarter of 1979. Sales rose to $15.3 billion from $10.7 billion.

Gulf's per-share earnings equaled $2.41, against earnings of $2.91 million, or $1.49 a share, in last year's second quarter. Sales rose to $6.8 billion from $6.1 billion.

Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, earlier reported second-quarter profits rose 24.1 percent to $1.03 billion.

Exxon reported a first-quarter earnings increase exceeding 100 percent.

Railroad amendment approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas congressman says he is confident a razor-thin margin of victory can be preserved for an amendment designed to soften railroad deregulation's impact on coal-using utilities and other "captive shippers."

The approval by seven votes Thursday of the amendment sponsored by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, a Houston Democrat, prompted sponsors of the deregulation bill to withdraw it from immediate consideration.

"My amendment has been more maligned and misrepresented than any amendment I've ever seen," Eckhardt said after the vote. "The White House never really backed away. They used every trick in the book to try to derail my amendment."

Weeks of negotiations failed to produce a compromise before the vote.

Eckhardt freely admitted there had been only an "outside chance" of winning.

During debate, he claimed without his amendment it would be more proper to call the deregulation bill, "The Railroad Revitalization, Recovery and Rip-off Act."

Eckhardt said his amendment would protect shippers that are dependent on one railroad for transporting a commodity, such as the South Texas utilities using rail transportation for coal from Montana and Wyoming.

The Texas delegation supported the amendment almost solidly.

Two Republicans, Rep. Ron Paul of Lake Jackson and Rep. Jim Collins of Dallas, were the only Texas congressmen voting against it. Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., the bill's sponsor, said absenteeism played a part in the 204-197 loss on the amendment.

Florio said he should have enough votes to reverse the outcome when the bill returns to the floor, most likely next week.

He said Eckhardt's amendment preserves the regulatory status quo that has promoted the financial shakiness of much of the nation's rail system.

Its threshold for the Interstate Commerce Commission to review a rate increase in a "captive shipper" case is one-fifth lower than the one proposed by Florio's bill.

Eckhardt said his amendment was designed to slow down rate increases for "captive shippers" but could not halt them.

He also said coal was not singled out for special treatment.

"It deals with any commodity that is subject to rail monopoly treatment," Eckhardt said. "The problem is a national problem, not a regional one."

Some observers had predicted the amendment would not succeed because it was portrayed as taking care of an issue limited to the Southwest.

Texas state officials, including Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Attorney General Mark White, traveled to Washington last month for talks with members of the Carter administration that supported Florio's bill.

White said he warned Vice President Walter Mondale that the Carter-Mondale ticket could be hurt in Texas this fall unless steps were taken to protect the state's utilities and, in turn, consumers of the electricity produced by coal-using plants.

The Senate has passed a railroad deregulation bill containing an amendment sponsored by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., that is similar to Eckhardt's.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
 Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast today for the Panhandle and portions of Southeast Texas.
 But the shower activity was not expected to be widespread enough to make a substantial dent in the heat wave.
 The remainder of Texas was to have clear skies and continued hot temperatures. Highs were to range from the mid 90s to near 104 in North Central Texas and up to 108 in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.
 The Dallas-Fort Worth area was expected to have its 33rd consecutive day of 100-plus heat. It was 101 at Dallas-Fort Worth Thursday, but Wichita Falls was again the state's hot spot with 103.
 Widely scattered showers and thundershowers were reported over the Panhandle and South Plains during the night, but rainfall amounts were said to be well below .25 of an inch. Lubbock, for example, got only a trace of rainfall.
 A few of the showers lingered into the early morning hours, but most dissipated well before dawn.
 Some light, patchy fog was reported early today along the coast, but the remainder of the state had mostly clear skies.
 Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s. Extremes ranged from 59 at Marfa to 83 at Del Rio.

Extended

Sunday Through Tuesday
 North Texas - Clear to partly cloudy with only minor day to day temperature changes. High temperatures upper 90s to 103. Lows in the 70s.
 South Texas - Continued hot days and warm nights with no significant rainfall expected. Highs mainly 95 to 100 except near 90 along the immediate coast. Lows mainly in the 70s.
 West Texas - Chance of thundershowers mainly north Sunday otherwise partly cloudy to clear. Continued very warm to hot afternoons. Highs 93 to 108. Lows in the 60s to upper 70s.

Man charged in threatening president

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A federal grand jury has indicted 21-year-old Majed Ahmad Khamis on a charge of threatening the life of the president.

The indictment, returned Wednesday, was based on statements from two men who said they overheard Khamis say he was a captain in the Palestine Liberation Organization awaiting orders to assassinate whomever is elected president this fall. The men told Secret Service agents Khamis told them he had killed 100 people already.

But Khamis' court-appointed attorney, Joe Floyd, claims the two brothers, also Arabs, made the allegations to get revenge for a "petty dispute" over a car.

The brothers, Fadel and Shawan Shahwan, told agents Khamis also had claimed he killed two Lebanese brothers who were found shot to death near an Irving shopping mall in October 1978.

In a sworn statement, they said Khamis took them to an apartment and showed them a cache of guns and ammunition.

Police found a similar supply of guns, grenades, ammunition and three PLO flags in two apartments where K' amis reportedly once lived.

Khamis was arrested July 15 in San Jose, Calif. He was brought back to Dallas, where a federal magistrate set his bond at $1 million. He is being held in the Dallas County jail.

If convicted, he could go to prison for up to five years. Floyd said Khamis came to the United States about two years ago and enrolled for a while in language classes at the University of Dallas.

The son of an accountant in Amman, Jordan, Khamis later left the university and began taking flying lessons, Floyd said.

"We are talking about a very young man," he said. "He just turned 21, but he seems younger."

Floyd said he was not convinced the guns belonged to his client. "Here he was, a citizen of a country where guns are in evidence every day but where members of the populace are not allowed to own them, and he comes to another country where people are permitted to own guns," he said. "It is not unusual for such a person to become enamored of guns and to acquire them."

Federal questions bog down Easter tradition

LAWTON (AP) - A petition will be circulated in support of the annual Easter sunrise service at the Holy City of the Wichitas in a nearby southwestern Oklahoma federal wildlife refuge, the group that supervises the service decided Thursday night.

The Easter Sunrise Service Association's board of directors met to respond to a federal investigation of the constitutionality of having religious symbols and the more than 50-year-old service on government land.

An anonymous visitor to the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge complained to an Ohio congressman, the U.S. Department of the Interior and the American Civil Liberties Union that the Christ of the Wichitas statue and other religious symbols and buildings in the Holy City are a violation of the constitutional separation of church and state.

The sunrise service association's board of directors voted to begin a petition drive to support "religious symbols such as chapels, chaplains, churches etc. on federal property."

The board acted on the assumption the continued existence of the Holy City will be challenged by the Interior Department and the ACLU.

Billy Carter controversy developments continue

WASHINGTON (AP) - Here, at a glance, are Thursday's developments in the Billy Carter controversy.

THE SENATE
 The Senate created a bipartisan, nine-member panel to investigate Billy Carter's ties with Libya and the way his case has been handled by the Carter administration.
 Without dissent, the Senate approved an agreement worked out by Democratic and Republican leaders calling for a special seven-member subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee, augmented by one Democrat and one Republican from the Foreign Relations Committee.
 The panel, to be headed by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., is to report to the Senate by Oct. 4.

PRESIDENT CARTER
 President Carter does not expect to claim executive privilege to avoid congressional inquiries into his brother's actions, White House press secretary Jody Powell said. Powell said, "The President himself will also respond fully to the subcommittee's inquiries relating to these matters in accordance with mutually agreeable procedures consistent with the responsibilities and time constraints of his office."
 Powell said the president will instruct White House staff members, including national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, to cooperate fully with the Senate investigators.

STATE DEPARTMENT
 Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti held a news conference and said the Justice Department will cooperate with congressional investigations of the Billy Carter case. He said congressional investigators also will have access to department files in the case.
 Civiletti also defended his department's handling of its investigation into Billy Carter, saying: "The department has nothing whatsoever to hide with regard to this investigation."
 Civiletti said department officials did not tell the White House about the investigation and that decisions in the case were made without high-level influence.

Pesticides foul Arroyo Colorado

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) - Fishing should be off-limits in the Arroyo Colorado of the lower Rio Grande Valley until abnormally high levels of the pesticides DDT and toxaphene are reduced, says the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The agency has asked the Environmental Protection Agency to ban fishing in the natural drainage canal that snakes from the Rio Grande through prime agricultural land and dumps into the Laguna Madre.

Hans Stewart, a spokesman for the Fish and Wildlife Service in Albuquerque, N.M., said Thursday it was unusual for such high levels of DDT to show up in fish samples eight years after the chemical was banned for general use.

The chemicals were detected in Arroyo Catfish during routine samples at levels between 20 to 30 parts per million. Compared to the 5 ppm level considered safe by the Food and Drug Administration, Stewart said.

Perry Kennedy, who helped analyze the fish samples for the Fish and Wildlife Service, said DDT and toxaphene can build up in animals and interfere with reproduction. He said the chemicals are known to reduce animal births, result in abnormally thin egg shells, in birds and other debilitating effects.

DDT is a suspected cancer-causing agent in humans. Birds that feed off arroyo fish also were tested and found to have levels of 71 ppm of the chemicals. Stewart said the high level was evidence the pesticides become more concentrated through the natural food chain.

Kennedy said the agency was most worried about Llano Grande, a wide portion of the arroyo near Weslaco used by many local fishermen. He said his office has asked the EPA to post signs and warn local residents about the contaminated fish.

"The problem has been here for a long time," he said of the Valley's historic high level of pesticides found in sampling. "It may be that the chemicals are in the environment and the animal have built up a resistance to them."

Four arrested on murder and robbery charges

BENTON, Ark. (AP) - Three men and a Texas woman have been arrested on charges of capital murder and aggravated robbery in the July 17 death of a Bryant man.

Saline County Sheriff James Steed Jr. said state police and a Pulaski County deputy arrested three of the individuals Thursday in North Little Rock. The fourth individual surrendered to police Monday.

The four are charged in the death of William Hash, 42, of Bryant. Prosecutor Dan Harmon of Benton said Hash was robbed, beaten and strangled.

The three arrested Thursday were identified as William Ekelman, 33, of Little Rock; Don Jeffers, 31, of Alexander and Sandra Strickland Putman, 25, of Lufkin, Texas. Gary Carter, about 30, of Saline County was charged Monday and released on $50,000 bond.

The other three were held without bond Thursday and were scheduled to appear today before Circuit Judge John Cole of Sheridan for a probable cause hearing.

Two charged in robbery

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) - Bank robbery charges were filed Thursday in federal court in Fort Smith against two men in connection with the July 3 robbery of the Bank of Mansfield.

Ross Massey, 21, of Waldron and Robert Horton, 19, of Houston were named in the information filed by the U.S. attorney's office. Massey is being held in the Scott County Jail on charges of forger and burglary. A warrant was issued for Horton's arrest.

The attorney's office alleges the two men robbed bank president Joe McCain of $13,584 shortly before the bank closed. The information said the men had been identified as Horton and Massey through photographs taken by hidden bank cameras.

NO FISH STORY. Pampa resident Arlena Robinson returned from a fishing trip to Oklahoma with these two five-pound catfish, which she caught at a private lake using cut bait. The proud fisherperson couldn't wait to document her catch on film to avoid being accused of telling fish stories. (Staff Photo)

Nursing home under new administration

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A Wichita Falls nursing home under court control has another temporary administrator, after temporary co-managers named by a state district judge asked to be relieved of the positions.

John Heath, assistant administrator of Wichita General Hospital, took over management of the Wichita Falls Convalescent Center Inc. Thursday when he was appointed by Judge Keith Nelson.

On Tuesday, Nelson appointed two Sheppard Air Force Base captains to take over administration of the nursing home. But the two men requested the judge name another temporary manager due to a federal statute that prohibits the Air Force officers from acting in that capacity.

Nelson issued a restraining order Tuesday prohibiting the owners, James F. Cottrell and Loretta Cottrell, from acting as managers.

The order was issued after Attorney General Mark White filed a suit against the owners on behalf of the state health department.

The suit alleges wholesale negligence and inadequate care at the home.

Jury studies alien robbery case

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A federal court jury has taken the controversial case of two brothers charged with robbing three Mexican aliens on an Arizona ranch four years ago.

The all-Anglo jury deliberated nearly two hours Thursday afternoon after lawyers' closing arguments and the judge's instructions.

U.S. District Judge Richard M. Bilby read the jurors an explanation of their duties and details of the law under which Patrick W. Hanigan, 26, and his brother Thomas H., 23, are charged.

They are accused of robbery affecting interstate commerce under the Hobbs Act, which normally is used in anti-rackets cases, but which has been broadly interpreted by the courts.

The trial has drawn attention from Hispanic and civil-rights groups, which in the form of the National Coalition on the Hanigan Case have claimed credit for bringing about the federal prosecution.

The case is based on the story of Manuel Garcia Loya, 28, Eleazar Ruelas-Zavala, 28, and Bernabe Herrera Mata, 22, who said they illegally crossed the international border west of Douglas, Ariz., on Aug. 18, 1976, to seek work on a southeastern Arizona farm.

On the Hanigan ranch about one mile into the United States, they said, a man with a gun accosted them. They identified him as Thomas Hanigan, and said he later was joined by his brother Patrick and father George, both of whom were armed.

The three aliens said they were tied up, robbed of $38 and some personal effects, stripped of their clothing, threatened with death and then shot at as they were released to flee naked back to Mexico. Two said they were hit by buckshot.

The defense lawyers, despite pounding cross-examination attacks on the aliens' credibility, failed to find inconsistencies in the main points of their story, the prosecutors said.

Hawkins cited a thumbprint found in Thomas Hanigan's pickup truck as a key to the prosecution's case. An FBI fingerprint specialist testified that it matched the thumbprint of Zavala.

The prosecution contended that the "chilling effect" of the attack on the aliens interfered with the flow of alien labor to southeastern Arizona farms, thus affecting interstate commerce.

The defense case was built on a claim that the aliens had lied and on alibis for the whereabouts of the defendants.

"We had admissions, by my count, to 225 versions of the truth," Gaynes said.

Volcano may threaten ozone

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Explosive volcanoes such as Mount St. Helens may damage the protective ozone layer of the atmosphere, according to a study by a scientist believed killed while observing the eruption in Washington state.

The report in the July 25 issue of Science magazine was written by Dr. David A. Johnston, a U.S. Geological Survey scientist missing and presumed dead since the first eruption of Mount St. Helens on May 18.

Johnston was part of a survey team taking measurements on the mountain when it unexpectedly exploded, killing at least 34 persons and leaving scores still missing.

In the report written last year and revised in January, Johnston said earlier projections greatly underestimated the amount of chlorine in volcanic material, particularly from those around the Pacific Basin.

Analysis of trapped gas pockets in volcanic glass and other material indicates molten magmas may contain more than 0.5 to 1 percent chlorine, which exceeds by 20 to 40 times or more the earlier estimates upon which volcanic atmospheric impact has been estimated," Johnston wrote.

This means that the amount of chlorine emitted into the atmosphere by volcanoes could be equal to between 17 percent and more than 100 percent of the 1975 world production of chlorine in fluorocarbon chemicals, he said.

If these numbers prove correct, they bring into question the usefulness of efforts to limit production and use of fluorocarbons. These chemicals are used as refrigerants in cooling systems and as propellants in aerosol spray cans.

Fluorocarbon gases rise and accumulate in the upper atmosphere. Once there, sunlight breaks them down and releases chlorine or chlorine compounds that destroy ozone concentrated in a layer 20 miles above the Earth, scientists say.

Ozone is a form of oxygen that shields the planet from the Sun's deadly ultraviolet rays. Some scientists fear that if more of this radiation reaches the Earth, it could lead to widespread increases in skin cancer and possible climatic changes.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covering Commandment.

U.S. needs Saudi help

In 1978, the Carter administration won congressional approval of its package sale of jet fighters to Egypt, Israel and Saudi Arabia partly by promising to restrict the capabilities of the super sophisticated F-15s sold to the Saudis. The promise was a concession to those who feared the Saudi F-15s might wind up threatening Israel's security.

Now, the Saudis are pressing the administration to revoke that two-year old pledge and sell them the extra fuel tanks, bomb racks and aerial refueling gear that would double the F-15s range and give the fighters a ground and sea-attack capability.

The administration appears sympathetic to the Saudi request although no decision has been announced.

This raises two questions. First, is there a military-political justification for enhancing the capabilities of the 60 F-15s the Saudis have contracted to purchase? And, second, would doing so pose a significant threat to Israel?

The answer to the first question is simple enough. The revolution that overthrew the shah of Iran in 1979 and, in the process, wrecked the Iranian armed forces, removed the pro-Western guardian of the strategic Persian Gulf. Thus, Saudi Arabia is now a front-line state in the struggle to contain the Soviet pincers closing in on the Persian Gulf from Southwest Asia and the horn of Africa.

Doubling the range of Saudi F-15s and providing them a potent surface-attack potential simply gives the Russians and their surrogates that much more to worry about as they fashion their strategy for eliminating Western influence in the world's energy heartland.

As for Israel's security, most military experts agree that the Israelis will continue to boast the premier air force in the Middle East for the foreseeable future, whatever additions are made to the range and attack capabilities of the Saudi F-15s. Admittedly, no one can guarantee that Saudi planes would never become involved in a future Arab-Israeli war. But the threat of Soviet or Soviet-inspired aggression against the Persian Gulf oil states must somehow be countered.

The furtive tax man eyes the back door

As Texans close the front door to the tax man, that sly individual is sneaking in through the back door.

The Texas Association of Taxpayers legislative news bulletin points out that the push by cities for an increase in the local option sales tax is not getting a lot of attention but it could turn into one of the big issues of the next session.

One hopes that this comment will suffice as a reminder for Texans to give the matter "a lot of attention" and remain vigilant to any attempts by cities — and counties, too — to pick up a big heap of dollars with the optional sales tax.

The TAT publication reported that the tax already produces "big bucks for cities — $467 million in calendar year 1979."

The publication added that "it has also generally been a good hedge against inflation. While the revenue increase for 1979 as compared to 1978 was only 9.9 percent, the year before the increase was 17.5 percent."

Why so much attention to the sales tax? There is much opposition to property tax increases, the TAT points out, and this opposition is expected to intensify as 100 percent assessment ratios mandated by the Legislature go into effect and as widespread revaluations are conducted by county appraisal districts.

The TAT reported some legislators have predicted that the move to the 100 percent assessment ratio is a political time bomb, and the uproar in Dallas recently over reappraisals and change in a 100 percent assessment ratio appears to bear out these predictions.

There are two traditional methods of increasing property taxes; namely assessment ratio adjustments and substantial increases spaced years apart. But these are about to fade away, the TAT pointed out, because of the assessment ratio prohibition and the tax roll back referendum provisions in the Property Tax Code which was adopted during the last session of the Legislature.

In addition, property tax sources are almost standing still now because capital improvements have been postponed or dropped in many instances because of the collapse of the bond market, and, perhaps, the recession.

Cities also have another cloud over them. They may as well prepare to be victims of some federal budget cutting measures, the TAT pointed out.

Still, the TAT emphasized, questions are being raised about the use of the sales tax for increased revenue, and about need for such a huge increase in taxing capacity by the cities, especially in light of taxpayer demands for reduced government.

Meanwhile, Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock has strongly denounced the idea as one that will lead to a state income tax, just the idea of which most Texans abhor. The TAT also emphasized that cities are not alone in seeking the sales tax. Counties are actively seeking an optional sales tax, and it should be noted here that Gov. Bill Clements was reported to have agreed to this idea at a meeting of the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association in the spring.

The increasing of the sales tax is enough food for worrisome pondering by Texans, but what is even more dismaying and downright disturbing is the fact that despite all tax-cutting and tax-limitation action in recent months throughout much of the nation and in this state, there still are elected officials in Texas searching for another way to rip off the taxpayer.

By Robert J. Wagman
WASHINGTON (NEA) - Defense spending has emerged as one of the chief issues in the fight over the 1981 federal budget. Many in Congress think the Pentagon is receiving too little money. Others — and the White House — think the Pentagon is receiving too much, taking billions of dollars away from needed social programs.

Now comes a congressman who believes he knows how to cut $2 billion or so annually from the defense budget without affecting national security. He is Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., a frequent Pentagon critic. Aspin — who holds a B.A. from Yale, an M.A. from Oxford and a Ph.D. (in economics) from MIT — worked as a Defense Department budget analyst from 1966 to 1968.

Aspin says the money could be saved simply by "expunging a mountain of wasteful programs." He offers this hit list of just 10 of them:

Unneeded installations: Aspin says $400 million could be saved annually by closing unneeded bases.

Moving costs: The Pentagon spends $3 billion a year to move personnel and their families from base to base. Aspin calculates that $600 million could be saved annually by extending every tour of duty just four months.

Empty housing: On-base housing stands empty at many installations while servicemen and servicewomen are paid millions of dollars in housing allowances so they can live off base. Aspin figures that $50 million could be saved annually by just filling existing empty housing with those currently receiving housing allowances.

Servants for generals: More than 300 enlisted people still work full time as domestic servants for generals and admirals, says Aspin. Elimination of this perk would save $5 million annually.

Subsidized lunches: Top Pentagon brass lunch in ornate dining rooms, paying cut-rate prices that cover only a fraction of the cost of preparing and serving their food. Aspin says that eliminating the subsidy would save $1 million a year.

Subsidized pet care: Taxpayers could save $1.4 million a year, says Aspin, if the military charged normal rates for the care provided to the pets of its personnel.

Message sending: Aspin cites General Accounting Office estimates that $20 million could be saved annually if the military sent non-urgent messages by mail rather than by wire or teletype.

Hospital stays: One recent survey found that average stays in military hospitals are one to seven days longer than average stays for the same conditions in civilian hospitals. Bringing stays at military hospitals into line with those at civilian hospitals would save $30 million annually, says Aspin.

Special specifications: The military writes special specifications for thousands of its purchases, thus requiring suppliers to custom make or modify products ranging from soap and room deodorizers to cars and pick-up trucks. If the perfectly acceptable civilian counterparts of many of these items were purchased on the open market, says Aspin, the savings could run in the hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

Finally comes Aspin's pet peeve: commissaries. Last year the Pentagon spent $757 million to subsidize supermarkets and department stores for military personnel and their families.

Says Aspin: "If the military wants to operate stores for its personnel and sell them goods at cost plus exact overhead, that's fine. But I object to the taxpayer footing a three-quarters of a billion dollar tab so that the serviceman can buy his candy bars and cameras at well under actual cost."

"Right now we are spending more on commissaries than we are on cancer research. I think that we have our national priorities rather mixed up."

On the other hand, Aspin supports the current effort in Congress to boost military pay. "But rather than simply appropriate more dollars for pay," he argues, "what we should do is cut the waste and transfer the money where it is needed: into the pockets of the underpaid enlisted men."

Triage

by Paul Harvey

Viewers of the popular television program, M-A-S-H, are aware that this drama about a field hospital in the Korean war is effectively anti-war.

Viewers have also learned about "triage." When a chopperload of casualties arrives from the front, doctors must make discriminatory decisions concerning which ones get treated first based on the urgency of their need and their likelihood for survival.

Triage is sometimes called "the lifeboat concept."

When too many seek safety in the lifeboat, some must be turned away — mercilessly if necessary, beaten off with oars — and left to drown.

When the alternative is to swamp the lifeboat and drown everybody.

Triage. For generations America has been the world's "lifeboat."

But in 1980, limitless numbers seeking refuge from poverty threaten to impoverish us all.

A newsman friend in Miami, Bill Viands, has been describing the situation there from the point of view of the homefolks.

A large section of his once-beautiful city is charred rubble. The immigrant invasion has overburdened welfare rolls and compounded local crime.

From a comfortable distance the national news media preoccupies itself with the "human rights" of the Cuban masses "yearning to breathe free — the wretched refuse" of unhappy foreign shores.

And Bill demands at least some, if not equal, time to reply.

What about the human rights of the native born U.S. citizen who obeys the law and salutes the Flag?

Whose biggest single expense in his entire life is taxes — 25 to 30 percent of his earnings — which he has been paying since he was a teen-ager.

The only government checks he ever sees are the payroll checks received while serving in the armed forces.

He has never been in jail, has always paid his bills. He supports his church, his family and assorted charities.

He votes every election — yet politicians ignore the majority he represents in favor of the noisier, angrier, belligerent groups.

So the majority gets limitless immigration, crosstown busing, ever more welfare, employment quotas and metric measure.

Like it or not! Now his heart breaks to see his city and gradually his country taken over by an illegal invading army.

He feels his government has abandoned him for them.

He feels neglected, helpless, hopeless. He is beginning to know how the American Indians felt 100 years ago.

Those dreadful Japanese cars

By Oscar Cooley

In a cap which I bought at a local store was a tag reading MADE IN KOREA.

According to labor union spokesmen, I am unpatriotic, not to say disloyal. I should buy only caps made in the United States, by American workers at American wage rates. The same holds for automobiles, TV sets, etc.

No. A buyer in his right mind buys the goods that seem to him the best value for his money. That is his sole concern. He buys to satisfy his desire, not to make work for somebody who produces the good. To make work makes gain for nobody. On the contrary, it makes loss, for work is an expenditure of energy, and we should expend as little energy, not as much, as we can get away with. "Job creation" is an economic monstrosity.

MADE IN KOREA. What do I as a buyer and wearer of the cap care where or by whom it was made? That does not interest me. I merely want a good cap, the best for my $3. If I were to buy caps to provide income to the cap makers, my income would soon be capped with disaster.

Some Americans are indignant over the automobiles that are made in Japan and sold in the United States. The number of these we import must be limited by law, they say. One would think Japanese automobiles were booby traps, threatening our healths and lives. If they are, why do so many Americans continue to buy them?

They buy them, of course, because they seem to be a good buy. They are compact, well built, economical. American drivers like them and want more. To limit the number that can be legally imported would be to deny American consumers the simple, human right to procure goods where experience has proved they can be procured best and most cheaply.

Is there any justification for government to make life harder and more expensive for its people than is necessary? The cost of living is high enough without our government making it higher by deliberately excluding foreign-made goods which are offered us at a saving.

A spokesman of the United Auto Workers moves over the "unfairness" of Japan in selling us so many cars — unfairness to American auto workers. He ignores the benefit to the vastly greater number of Americans — including auto workers — who buy and drive Japanese-made cars. If there is any unfairness, it is the UAW's demand that the power of the U.S.

government be exerted to deny American consumers the opportunity to buy their cars in a free market.

Not only the automobile worker union but automobile manufacturers rail against the foreign cars. Philip Bradley, chairman, Ford Motor Company, speaking on "Face the Nation," said we accept goods from foreign countries which exclude ours. We trade; they "protect." This, he said, results in an "unbalance."

Bradley's charge implies that in foreign trade goods are bartered. Of course they are not. We pay for the goods we import, and so do other countries. The only "balance" is in each country's total international transactions. The incoming payments from abroad must equal the outgoing payments; else we will be left owing a debt, called the "imbalance of payments." Our imports from any one country, such as Japan, need not — and never do — equal our exports to that country.

It is true that some other countries practice more protectionism than we — Brazil will import nothing unless it contains 90-percent Brazil-produced material. More is the pity from their people's standpoint. They are willfully impoverishing themselves.

The U.S. automobile industry's war on Japanese competitors is aided by the nationalist and racist tendencies that still exist in America. It is far easier to arouse prejudice against Japanese imports — cars made by those little yellow men — than it would be against similar imports from Great Britain, or Scandinavia.

We have just celebrated Independence Day. This is a day set aside to commemorate not merely our country's leap from colonial to national status, but our devotion to individual freedom and democracy. The people of every nation look up to the United States as the world's stronghold of freedom. Witness the frantic desire of people of Cuba and Mexico to come here and escape the tyranny in their own lands. It is not just freedom within America that we celebrate. It is the idea of freedom everywhere — freedom of humans to live their own lives.

In the economic sphere, freedom means being free to produce goods and to sell them in a free and open market. From the viewpoint of a person as a consumer, it means being free to seek out and buy from any source, regardless of political boundary lines.

Letters

Dear Sir:
In regards to the increase in the city water, sewer, & trash which the Pampa City Commission has before it, I would like to say that it is the most outrageous thing I ever heard of.

There are two or three citizens, who have no connection with our business, who have decided to increase the rates on our business.

They want to tax 1-3rd of the rent business, & exclude 2-3rds of that same rental business (Hotels & Motels). The commission wants the apartment owners to run down to the city water department, everytime they have a vacancy, which we don't have time to keep books for them.

The water, sewer, and trash, makes a profit each year of nearly 1/2 million dollars, therefore, there is no need to increase the rates on apartment occupants. Now if they want to equalize the rate, then they can reapportion the rates that they now charge all the consumers.

The motels have efficiency apartments, just like the ones that I own, and they do visit them by the month, therefore they (the commissioners) are discriminating against the apartment owners when they try to exclude them from these ordinances.

I was drafted and spent some time in Korea, (I thought to preserve our freedom from oppression), and it is unfortunate that our elected officials can vote, (3 out of 5), and discriminate against us like this.

If the commission votes in these ordinances, I will devote all my time & energy to see that they are not re-elected.

Singles club slated

There will be an organizational meeting on Thursday, July 31, at 416 W. Browning at 8 p.m. for all singles (never married, divorced, widowed) who wish to be a part of a weekly discussion group. The group will attempt to plan weekend activities that will appeal to Christians and non-believers alike.

The purpose of the group will be to provide opportunities for spiritual growth through discussion groups and periods of recreation and fellowship.

A schedule will be worked out so that meetings will be rotated from house to house of the various members of the group. Anyone unable to attend the meeting can write Clovis Shipp at the above address.

Schuller's dream come true-- a 'little glass shack'

By Dick Kleiner

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. (NEA) — They are calling it everything from "the little glass shack" to "the most important religious building erected anywhere since the Cathedral of Notre Dame."

Whatever you call it, the Crystal Cathedral is an amazing structure. It doesn't look much like a church, but that's what it is, and it's a whopper. Although the official dedication will not be held until next September, all intents and purposes it is finished. All that is left to install is an organ — more on that later — and lighting and sound systems, plus underground (an acre and a quarter) rooms for various purposes.

But, those details aside, the Crystal Cathedral is ready. A first event has already been held inside it: a benefit concert (at $1,500 a seat) to raise enough money so that when it opens, it will open debt-free.

Beverly Sills was the soloist. This was her last solo recital — meaning her last appearance with only a piano accompaniment — and she pronounced the Crystal Cathedral "breath-taking."

Afterwards, she said she couldn't judge the sound system, because from the stage an artist cannot hear what the audience hears. Music critics rapped the sound for its echos, but there was only a makeshift sound system, and everyone hopes the permanent system will be as breathtaking as the rest of the place.

First, the cold statistics: It is big enough so that the entire Cathedral of Notre Dame could fit inside, with room left over for a few basketball players laid end to end. It is all glass, some 12,000 panes of special glass so you can see out but not in. There are marble altars and poured white concrete pillars, and Styrofoam washers so the place can withstand an 8.2 earthquake.

It is built in the shape of a four-point star. Standing outside, you can see images of the clouds as they float by, and sitting inside at dusk you can see the sun set just to the left of the altar.

There is no air conditioning. New York architect Philip Johnson designed the building so nature cools it. Hot air rises and escapes via a glass chimney, and fresh air replaces it constantly. It has not, however, yet gone through a Southern California heat wave.

Inside, there are close to 3,000 seats. There were going to be more, but the original plans called for bare wooden pews. When it was decided to use theater-type seats, that eliminated about 500 seats. Plans are to use the cathedral for cultural as well as religious events, so it was believed advantageous to have comfortable seating.

The Crystal Cathedral is the dream-come-true of Garden Grove's pastor, Dr. Robert Schuller. His Garden Grove Community Church has long been a theological pioneer. His TV show, "The Hour of Power," and his philosophy of a walk-in, drive-in church have made him a national figure.

He still hews to that philosophy. The cathedral has two immense, 90-foot high glass doors that swing wide so he can turn and face the parking lot and its regiment of drive-in worshippers.

It is Dr. Schuller who calls the place "the little glass shack." But it is much more than that, of course. He has been dreaming of this building for years and found a kindred spirit in the architect, Philip Johnson. It took four years to build, plus $16 million, which Dr. Schuller raised personally.

DR. ROBERT SCHULLER personally raised the $16 million for the Crystal Cathedral, an all-glass star-shaped church in Garden Grove, Calif.

The Rev. Roy Martinez, pastor of Iglesia Bautista, 512 E. Kingsmill, will participate in a crusade for Christ in the Republic of Ecuador, South America, beginning July 31 and running through August 12.

Twenty-seven Baptist churches have invited American Baptists to join them in their effort to proclaim the gospel of Christ to their people. Baptist work began in the city of Guayaquil and surrounding area in 1854. There are forty-seven churches and fifty-one missions in the area.

Rev. Martinez' assignment is in Manglaralto, a town about two hours from Guayaquil on the coast.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life, in thy presence is fulness of Joy..."
PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

What Does It Take To Build A Church?

Perhaps you glance at the church on the corner once in a while and wonder what it would be like to visit during a service. What is it that draws those people to that particular building every week? What built that church?

The only possible answer is — the love of God. Their love of God prompted them to sacrifice and give so that the sanctuary might be built. The love of God compels them to meet there with others who serve Him. Their love of God compels them to "go, and tell others".

We pray that you will be drawn to such a church this week and that you will align yourself with it. You can help build it into something even better.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Cherry cream: updated favorite

CHERRY CREAM is summertime dessert made with fresh sweet cherries.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Cooks who enjoy serving a summer dessert made with fresh fruit — for both its flavor and nutrients — may be interested in this updated version of Bavarian Cream. Old-time Bavarian is made with an egg-yolk custard, gelatin, egg whites, cream and flavoring. The following recipe omits the egg-yolk custard but uses the gelatin, egg whites and cream — plus fresh sweet red cherries for the flavoring. It unmolds and stands up well on a warm day because it calls for 2 envelopes of gelatin.

CHERRY CREAM
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
¾ cup cold water
2 cups pitted, diced fresh sweet red cherries
½ cup sugar

1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 egg whites
1 cup heavy cream
¼ teaspoon almond extract
Garnish: whole fresh sweet red cherries

In a medium bowl sprinkle the gelatin over the cold water and let soften — 5 minutes or so. In a saucepan over moderate heat stir together the cherries, sugar and lemon juice until sugar dissolves and mixture boils; pour over gelatin; stir until gelatin dissolves; chill until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites until stiff. Without washing beaters, beat cream until stiff. Into the cherry mixture fold the egg whites, then the whipped cream and almond extract. Turn into a 6-cup mold; chill to set. At serving time, unmold. Garnish with the whole cherries. Makes 6 servings.

Christmas tree crop little affected by ash

While some Christmas tree plantations in Oregon and Washington received varying amounts of ash fallout from eruptions of Mt. St. Helens the crop destined for harvest in December and shipment across the U.S. is in excellent shape and the supply should be normal, according to Dave Schudel, President, Northwest Christmas Tree Association, Salem, Oregon.

Even in the relatively few areas downwind from the mountain which received heavy deposits of ash "the trees are growing and doing nicely," Schudel said.

"To this time, and barring unforeseen circumstances, many growers consider this one of our better growing seasons," he said. "We believe ash now on trees will wash or blow off before the harvest season and if it doesn't, it will be removed before shipment by the growers."

Schudel said, "it is important to remember that the entire Northwest was not blanketed under ash."

"Some growers have received only a light dusting or no ash at all, while some relatively close and downwind received considerable amounts which to this time does not seem to affect growth or health of the trees," he said.

Growers report that the ash seems to have no toxic effect and there is no discoloration of foliage, even on tender, new spring growth which is abundant this year.

One grower said some very small seedlings were virtually buried by ash but are showing normal growth and color.

Hundreds of thousands of trees are grown on plantations and seeded wild stands in Oregon and Washington, specifically for Christmas use.

An average Douglas Fir Christmas tree is 7-9 years old when harvested, while Noble and Grand Fir trees are ready for the holidays when 10-12 years old.

In the area very near Mt. St. Helens there was extensive damage to stands of Noble Fir whose boughs are often used for Christmas swags and wreaths.

New Westlake novel keeps reader laughing

CASTLE IN THE AIR. By Donald E. Westlake. Evans, 189 Pages. $9.95.

"Castle in the Air" is a lovely bit of nonsense.

Its plot is outrageous and so is its large and zany cast of characters, but in the skilled hands of master story-spinner Donald E. Westlake all is blended smoothly together and the book becomes a first-rate piece of entertainment.

It seems that in the land of Yerbadoro all is not going well for President Escobar Lynch. Neither the guerrillas on the left nor the Army on the right cares for the way he is running things so he decides to get out while the getting is good.

Unfortunately, Lynch can't openly take his fortune with him. So he comes up with a plan. It calls for hollowing out the blocks of a castle, stashing the loot in the blocks, sealing them up and then transporting the entire castle to France.

A fine madness results. There are plots and counterplots, doublecrosses and triplecrosses. Most funny of all is the multitude of chases, involving at times a London taxi, a bike, a motorcycle, and a scow, as well as regular autos.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I need an answer soon. I am a good-looking woman in my late 30s. I want more than anything in the world to send my two children to college, but it will take more money than I have.

I have recently met this older man who wants to marry me — right now! He is very rich and he's crazy about me. We are the same religion, but we live in different parts of the country.

It will take seven years to get my children through college and on their own. After that, I plan to terminate my marriage from this rich old man.

If I live with him for seven years, I might as well stay 10, as I have been told that if I do, I will be entitled to half of everything he has. Is that true?

Please, no lectures on my reason for marrying him. You and I both know that since the beginning of time, younger women have been selling themselves to older men for security, and older men have been happy to make the deal. Hurry your answer.

NORTH AND SOUTH

DEAR NORTH: I offer advice on affairs of the heart. There's no heart involved here — only money and the law. Consult a lawyer. And be prepared to sign a prenuptial agreement with this "rich old man." I've never known a rich man who wasn't also very smart.

DEAR ABBY: My husband recently gave a bachelor party for one of his co-workers who is being married soon. He wanted to have the party in our home, which I agreed to until he told me he had hired a dancing girl to strip down naked, then jump into the lap of the prospective groom while someone took pictures of all this as a joke!

I told him I wouldn't permit this sort of thing in our home, whereupon he informed me that this is routine for all bachelor parties.

Seeing as how I refused to let him have the party at home, he made arrangements to have it somewhere else.

What is your opinion of entertainment like this, Abby?
GEORGIA WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I think it's over-baring.

DEAR ABBY: I notice you sometimes use your column to help a lot of people, so I sure hope this letter makes it, because now that the tourist season is here, we motel owners sure could use a break.

We own a small motel in Independence, Kan., and, Abby, you wouldn't believe what some people do with our towels! They use them to polish their shoes, mop up the floor, dye their hair, take makeup off their faces, wipe mud off their shoes and clean their cars.

We provide plenty of facial tissues and toilet paper that would serve these purposes nicely, but no, everybody goes for our clean white towels!

There is no bleach, detergent or spot remover that will restore these towels to their original whiteness, regardless of what the TV commercials say.

Maybe we shouldn't complain. At least the towels are left behind so we can use them for rags. A lot of people just steal them.

HURTING IN KANSAS

DEAR HURTING: Here's your letter. Readers, have a heart and reach for a tissue instead of a towel.

Farm women defy rural stereotypes

By GALE TOLLIN

Associated Press Writer
BROOKLYN PARK, Minn. (AP) — Farm women drive trucks and combine grain. They milk cows and feed chickens. They cook and sew and garden and launder. Right?

Not necessarily. Pat Nobbe is a skilled Brailleist. Aase Hannes toured farms in China and worked as a translator when her husband's seed firm negotiated with Scandinavian suppliers.

Mildred Thymian, in her first political effort, sought a congressional nomination.

Mrs. Nobbe's husband, Doug, farms with his brother on about 300 sandy acres in Brooklyn Park, eight miles northwest of Minneapolis. Their main crop is potatoes.

Mrs. Nobbe, who considers herself a city person at heart, doesn't like to pick potatoes or ride tractors. Her one tractor ride, many years ago, left her "so scared I haven't been on one since," she says. "I feel farming is my husband's job," she adds. "If he were selling insurance, I wouldn't be selling insurance with him."

With her husband working 16 hours a day and their two teenage daughters at school or work, Mrs. Nobbe figured she had lots of free time. Three years ago she studied Braille in classes sponsored by State Services for the Blind. "I love a challenge," she says.

Afterward, she transcribed a manuscript, sent it to the Library of Congress and was certified as a member of Volunteer Braille Services.

Mrs. Nobbe, who has a part-time job in a dental office, does volunteer Braille in her home about 20 to 25 hours a week. "Whenever I have a half-hour, I do it," she says.

Any blind person who wants something in Braille, maybe a textbook or a cookbook or bus schedules or knitting instructions, can make a request that might be funneled to Mrs. Nobbe.

In northwestern Minnesota, the annual Farm Wives Luncheon at Marshall County attracts about 200 people. The current chair, Charlene Truhn, works in the hospital at Warren, where a number of the nurses and dietician Jenney Kruger also are farmers' wives. Verona Poolman, a farmer's wife and an office worker in Warren, guesses that 75 percent of the women attending the last luncheon are employed in offices, stores or other businesses.

At a recent luncheon, the featured speaker was Aase Hannes, whose husband, Bruce, farms near Stephen, ships certified seed all over the world from the Stephen Seedhouse he owns, and is president of the Minnesota Crop Improvement Association.

Mrs. Hannes went to China with a tour group of Minnesota farmers, educators and food processors, and prepared a slide show of the visit.

Mrs. Hannes, the former Aase Reigstad of Bergen, Norway, says she "wasn't reared to be a farmer." She immigrated with her parents to Moorhead, Minn., in 1952.

"It's quite a life," she says. "I have driven a combine. I feed people. I drive a truck. I run for parts. Farmers' wives are partners in what their husbands do."

Mrs. Hannes keeps the farm books. The Stephen Seedhouse has Swedish-made Linde equipment and Mrs. Hannes uses her Scandinavian language ability to translate part lists, to make overseas phone calls and to converse in person with people from the equipment company.

In extreme western Minnesota, Mildred Thymian and her husband, Donald, operate an Ortonville dairy farm. When her four children were grown, Mrs. Thymian enrolled at the University of Minnesota. Upon her graduation in 1975, she established a management consulting business which takes her all over the country. She is also vice president of the Board for Homeland Ministries of the United Church of Christ.

Yielding to the pleas of some Republican men, Mrs. Thymian sought the 6th District congressional nomination this year. Vin Weber, a political pro, beat Mrs. Thymian, 165-93, but her achievement was considerable for a first-time political effort in a district which has never sent a woman to Congress.

"A lot of people are interested in my political future," she says. "I'll be talking with all of them. I'm still interested in politics."

Potter prefers useful craft items

By STRAT DOUTHAT

Associated Press Writer

ROCK CAVE, W. Va. (AP) — Scottie Wiest lives on a remote, mountaintop farm in central West Virginia and practices a craft that dates back to man's beginnings.

The short, dark-haired woman is a potter. And although she lives with her head in the clouds and her hands in the dirt, so to speak, she says she can see big trouble looming on the horizon for the state's hundreds of artisans and craftsmen.

Mrs. Wiest recently got a taste of what may lie ahead this summer, when the craftsmen take their wares to the various fairs that have sprung up around West Virginia over the past few years.

"I was at a big craft fair in Baltimore," she said. "And, the number of people I saw agonizing over a $5 purchase made me think that the fairs may be in serious trouble because of the economic crunch."

But she said crafts people, at least the ones who make useful, low-priced, everyday items, had a good history of surviving hard times.

"Some of today's crafts people may have to make the decision as to whether they want to pursue 'art' or turn out everyday, useful things," she said. "The way things look now, only rich people will be able to buy the big, expensive pieces."

Mrs. Wiest, who has sold at the State Arts & Crafts Fair at Ripley since 1968, concentrates on practical earthenware items, such as cups, bowls, pitchers and the like. The Upshur County resident is recognized as one of Appalachia's top potters, and is in demand at fairs across the country.

"I'm getting ready right now to go to a show in Dallas," she said, as she and her husband, Jim, built several years ago. "On a good, productive day, I'll throw between 50 and 100 pounds of clay."

The Elkins native began serious pursuit of her craft as a student at Agnew Scott College. But, she said, she still has vivid recollections of her first introduction to clay, which occurred much earlier.

"I was playing with clay in the ground near our house at Elkins," she said, staring at the shelves of cups and bowls all around her as she traveled back in time. "I was about 5 at the time, and looking back now I can see that that was when I had my first metaphysical experience. I can remember a feeling of soaring, like a meditative state, when I reached into that clay."

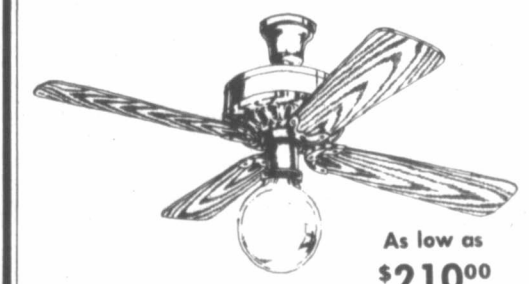

She said she still found pottery-making a form of meditation.

"Many potters struggle to express their art," she said. "But, I've stuck with the old, traditional forms, and they come easy to me. I don't have to dig it out, but I do strive for a refinement, for a subtlety in the use of the form."

A granddaughter of the late Gov. Guy Kump, Mrs. Wiest said she wanted only to live peacefully and pursue her craft.

"I feel that I'm making a creative, contribution to our society," she said. "I like making useful things."

Teddy bears run gamut of sizes and shapes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Teddy Roosevelt would never have believed it," says a toy company executive, speaking of the current boom in teddy bears, named after the 26th president of the United States.

"Teddy bear production will break all records this year," adds Harold A. Nizamian, president of a major producer of the cuddly toys, estimating that close to 100 million plush bears of all types, sizes and shapes will be made in 1980.

His own firm, R. Dakin & Co., makes some 54 different types of teddy bears, and production is running around the clock to keep up with the demand.

It is a far cry from 75 years ago when just one type of teddy bear was made, Nizamian notes. Today, there are teddy bears in white tie and tails, Smokey the Bear versions complete with stovepipe hat, advertising types in gray pinstripe suits and "sincere" ties, bears in car coats and boots, and bears in sailor suits.

"You name the outfit, somewhere there is a teddy bear dressed in it," says Nizamian, who says that many people collect bears the way others collect stamps or coins.

The varieties from which to choose are almost infinite, he points out. Even the basic bear now comes in every possible size and color, and they range in price from a few dollars for a tiny one to upwards of $100 for special versions.

Dakin, for example, makes teddies in blue, green, maroon, brown, black, magenta, gold and white. They are produced in standing, sitting and lying positions.

"While we make some 600 different animals, teddy bears are our largest single category," says Nizamian, whose firm, now in its 25th year, started making teddy bears almost from the day it began producing stuffed animals.

Why this positive mania for teddies?

"Teddy bears fulfill longing for security," says the toy industry executive. "When you clasp a teddy bear to your heart, you know he will always be faithful, obedient and kind. No backtalk; you know who's boss."

Mrs. Coday honored at surprise reception

Mrs. Howard Coday was recently honored with a surprise retirement reception in the Skellytown Community Center. Hosting the reception were Mrs. Charles Harper, Mrs. M. Cowan and Mrs. Harold Reid. Chris Harper attended the guest register. Special guest was Mrs. Hugh Lane of Pampa. Larry Brown, fire chief of the Skellytown volunteer fire department, transported Mrs. Coday by fire engine to the Community Center. Mrs. Coday has been an employee of Wilson's Venture Foods, formerly Horner Bros. Grocery, since July, 1956. Mrs. Coday and her husband, who is an alderman, have long been active in the civic affairs of Skellytown. They are members of the Mary Ellen Harvester Church of Christ in Pampa. The couple has one son, Bryan. Bryan and his wife Brenda have five children, Kelsey, Wendy, Kris, Kent and Kim.

Innovative home heated by stove

If you yearn for your own home, can't hack it financially, and are fearful of the high cost of fuel, your answer could be in a factory-built house, heated by a wood stove.

Dubbed the Stovehaus, according to an article in the August issue of Popular Mechanics, it incorporates an airtight wood stove with a central heat-distribution system, thereby making the most of the stove. It also allows the interior to be naturally air-cooled during the summer.

The house is square to allow even radiation of stove heat to all areas — and to minimize the exterior area exposed to the weather. Hence, heat loss (gain in the summer) is minimized. The square format also economizes materials and manpower. The square is topped by a pyramid-shaped roof that creates a large volume to draw hot air away from the living areas. The specially made metal roof cap allows roof ventilation, as well as venting of the stove flue gases. Dormers, with door openings that extend the upstairs loft areas during mild weather, act as large natural vents.

In the center of all this is an airtight wood stove. The stairwell, next to the stove, allows natural convection of the warmed air to the loft. A duct and blower system "catches" the rising warmed air and recirculates it to every room. A standby furnace (oil, gas or electric) uses the same blower and distribution ducts to heat the house when the stove is not in use. It's located in a large upstairs closet. An air conditioner, for summertime cooling, can also be added.

The cost of this panelized seven room house with two baths is about $22,000, reports Popular Mechanics, but that excludes land, foundation, mechanical, electrical and plumbing systems, interior finishing and roofing.

For further information, write to Mayhill Homes Corp., P.O. Box 1778, Gainesville, Georgia.

CUTAWAY DIAGRAM of Stovehaus, as illustrated in Popular Mechanics' August issue. Air, warmed by stove, rises via stairwell and then is recirculated through ducts in house. Thermostat in loft area activates the blower when temperature reaches a pre-set limit. The 14' x 21' great room provides a comfortable focus for family activities. Low dividers separate the entrance hall from the great room and help prevent air drafts.

YCC excavates Lake Meredith site

An archeological site at Lake Meredith Recreation Area is being excavated by the Youth Conservation Corps. The site has turned up some significant artifacts according to Joe Bagot and Bruce Anderson, archeologists directing the dig.

The site is an Indian village that was inhabited circa 1350-1450 A.D. The technical term for this time period is Antelope Creek Focus. The Indians of this time period grew corn and squash and hunted bison. They exploited the Alibates flint that occurs locally, and it is believed they traded bison bi-products and Alibates flint to outlying groups of Indians. Materials found in the site, which are assumed to be derived from trade, are from New Mexico, Minnesota, and from the Texas Gulf Coast.

The work this summer is being centered around a better understanding of the layout of the village. Thus far, a number of walls thought to represent storage rooms and houses have been uncovered. Other features uncovered include fireplaces and trash pits.

This site is an area that will eventually be lost to erosion. Materials recovered will be taken to West Texas State University for proper cataloging and analysis. When development takes place at Alibates Flint Quarries National Monument, these items will be available for display.

YCC enrollees involved in the project are Audie Apple, Carlton Griffing, Karen Hagburg, Whitney Hargis, Kay Lynn Bethel, all of Borger; Robert Contreras, Sandra Herring, Linda Isbell, Ofelia Contreras, all of Stinnett; Brock Graves, Jeff Hatfield, Blane Lynch, Ricky Parrish, Todd Washington, Kimberly Ford (youth leader), Lorie Smith (youth leader), Rita Vermilion, Sheila Williams, Sherri Williams, all of Fritch; Troy Reno of Sanford; Craig Stavenhagen of Dumas and Kay Chase of Phillips.

Ice coming back in air conditioning

NEW YORK (AP) — Ice, the oldest cooling ingredient known to man, is making a comeback in air conditioning due to the energy crisis, reports an energy industry journal.

Several utilities are demonstrating systems now that make and store ice during off-peak hours for use in cooling during peak times, according to Energy User News.

An ice storage system manufactures ice during the hours of a utility's off-peak rate and stores it. Then during peak hours a pump — which draws less energy than an ice maker — circulates water over the ice and sends the cooled water into a coil within the supply air duct, providing air conditioning.

The heat produced when the ice is made can be ducted into the building for domestic hot water or ducted to the outside, the publication reports.

Zucchini makes a unique Italian antipasto

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Is Zucchini al Aceto Neapolitan or Sicilian? I wish I knew.

According to Frances Monteforte — an excellent American cook of Italian heritage — this antipasto comes from Italy's Naples. A few years ago when she was visiting there, she complained that she hadn't found a recipe for this savory zucchini appetizer in the United States. Her hosts made sure she had one to bring home.

But according to a young man who comes from Sicily, Zucchini al Aceto is Sicilian. I thought I'd settle the controversy by consulting Ida Boni's "Regional Italian Cooking," but Boni doesn't mention the dish.

In any case, if you would en-snack, we urge you to try Zucchini al Aceto. One note: In Italy this dish is undoubtedly made with olive oil. joy serving your family and friends an unusual and piquant

ZUCCHINI AL ACETO

- 4 medium zucchini (about 1 1/4 pounds, each a scant 8 ounces)
- 6 tablespoons (about) corn oil
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2-3rds cup mint leaves
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup red wine vinegar

Trim ends of the zucchini; cut lengthwise in 1/8th-inch-thick slices; cut crosswise to make slices about 2 inches long. In a 10- to 12-inch skillet heat 3 tablespoons of the oil; add zucchini slices in a single layer and cook over moderate heat, turning once, until lightly browned — a couple of minutes on each side; drain on paper towels. Cook remaining slices in the same way, adding more oil as needed. Arrange 1-3rd of the zucchini over the bottom of a 10 by 6 by 1 1/4-inch dish or similar utensil; sprinkle with about 1-3rd of the garlic, mint, salt and vinegar. Make 2 more layers the same way. Cover; refrigerate overnight. Spoon marinade over the top — mint will have darkened. If you like, turn into a 1-quart container. Serve, drained, on Italian bread.

'Chance encounter' ends with death of opera star

NEW YORK (AP) — Deep in the bowels of the Metropolitan Opera House, past the giant Chagall paintings and the crystal chandeliers, someone tossed the bound, nude body of a blonde violinist down an airshaft as the Berlin Ballet danced on the main stage.

Helen Hagnes, who disappeared after telling friends she was going to meet star Valery Panov, apparently died after a chance encounter backstage Wednesday night, police said.

The mystery deepened when Panov said he did not know Miss Hagnes.

An autopsy was scheduled today to determine what caused the death of the 30-year-old professional musician, whose body apparently was dropped 60 feet from the opening of a rooftop air duct to a protruding beam below. Police said there were no apparent wounds on her body.

The murder occurred some time after Miss Hagnes left the orchestra pit between portions of the ballet company's program.

The company performed its scheduled ballet, "The Idiot," with the orchestra playing music by Dmitri Shostakovich on Thursday night as more than a dozen detectives combed the building for clues.

Although the murder was a topic of conversation among the crowd of some 3,200 ballet fans, neither the ballet troupe nor the orchestra of free-lance musicians publicly mentioned the killing.

"They're very upset," opera spokeswoman Johanna Fiedler said of the dancers. "But everyone's professional. There's just the feeling that the show goes on. It's something that's ingrained through years of practice."

Dancers were escorted in groups around the opera building by police detectives. Ms. Fiedler said the normal house security force of eight would be doubled until the troupe moved on to Washington after Saturday night.

Miss Hagnes had performed for the first two selections of a four-ballet program Wednesday night. Theater officials said she left her violin on her chair, stopped in a dressing room and then left around 9:30 p.m. for what was described as an "artistic discussion" with Panov, the Soviet emigre dancer and choreographer, in his dressing room.

But she was never seen in or near Panov's dressing room, and police said Panov is not a suspect in the case.

Miss Hagnes' disappearance was noted when she did not return at 10 p.m. for the fourth ballet of the night and when her husband, Janis Mintiks, a sculptor, could not find her at the end of the show.

Detectives began searching the 14-year-old building, which has a white marble edifice with an imposing front of glass. They followed the red-carpeted hallways that run through the building.

Chattanooga violence surges in worst night of rioting

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Tactical police teams shot out streetlights and cordoned off a predominantly black housing project after eight officers received minor gunshot wounds in the worst of three nights of violence in this racially tense city.

The shooting occurred about two hours after a dusk-to-dawn curfew took effect Thursday, closing all retail businesses in this southeast Tennessee city of 170,000. The curfew was imposed after two nights of firebombings, looting and rock-throwing that followed a city's heavy industrial, predominantly black Alton Park area where the ambush occurred.

Early today, at least 19 people had been arrested for curfew violations and jailed, police said. Four of the arrests were made in the area of the shooting.

All eight police officers were hit in one burst as police attempted to get people off the streets. A ninth officer cut his hand while trying to rescue comrades who were in the line of fire.

The streets were generally empty Thursday night in the city's heavily industrial, predominantly black Alton Park area where the ambush occurred.

But there were reports of scattered sniper fire in other areas and reports of at least two firebombings.

Mayor Charles "Pat" Rose said his curfew order probably would continue through tonight.

It was the latest eruption of violence that began in Chattanooga's streets Tuesday night. Trouble began a few hours after an all-white jury acquitted two Klansmen and convicted a third on reduced charges in the April 19 shotgun wounding of four black women.

Clements tells views on vice-president

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he advised Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan in Detroit that sharing presidential responsibilities with a vice president would never work.

Clements said at his news conference Thursday that "in the final analysis" Ford declined a place on the GOP ticket because of just such a concern.

He also dismissed as "media words" the notion that Ford had insisted on becoming "co-president" or "demanded" more than the usual vice presidential powers if he went on the ticket with Reagan.

"I never heard anybody, including the two principals, talk about a shared presidency or a co-presidency," said Clements, who was involved in the Reagan-Ford negotiations at Detroit.

But, he said, there was discussion of shared responsibility and delegation of presidential duties to a vice president.

Clements, deputy secretary of defense under Presidents Nixon and Ford, said, "I have seen presidents try to delegate responsibilities to a vice president. I have never seen it work."

He said he shared that view with Reagan and Ford. Clements said "staff jealousies and nuances in the bureaucracy" are among reasons why delegating presidential responsibilities to vice-presidents has failed.

He said Reagan initiated the discussions of a Reagan-Ford ticket and also ended them.

"In my judgment, he cut it off at exactly the right time," he said. Clements is Reagan's campaign chairman in Texas, and Ernest Angelo of Midland is campaign manager.

The governor denied rumors of disagreements between him and Angelo and said they work together "comfortably."

"But I want to emphasize that when decisions are made, I will make the decisions," Clements said.

He said he expects a $1,000-a-plate dinner in Houston on Sept. 16, which Reagan and GOP running mate George Bush will attend, to raise $1.6 million of the Texas campaign's $2.2 million budget.

Mike Smith Memorial Tournament slated this weekend at Meredith

A law enforcement pistol tournament will be held Friday and Saturday in memory of Sgt. Mike Smith, an Amarillo police officer who died in an auto accident last winter.

Law enforcement pistol teams from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Colorado will participate in the two-day meet, which will be an annual event.

Sgt. Smith, along with his wife, were killed in a car crash in Oklahoma last February. Smith was a Lefors native.

The Mike Smith Memorial Tournament is sponsored by the Amarillo Police Officers Association and is approved by the National Rifle Association.

Proceeds above expenses will go to the Smith's son, James Ernest.

There will also be an Annie Oakley Match for wives, daughters and girl friends of the officers. Officers will compete against each other in a 4" Duty Match, in which only factory-made guns with four-inch barrels or shorter can be used.

The public is invited to watch the tournament, and civilians may enter the Bowling Pin Match following the tournament matches.

Matches start at 9 a.m. Saturday.

READY TO BUCK OFF, Kent Derr, of Borger had to settle for a "no score" in his battle with a tough bareback bronc from 3M Stock Producers of Spearman, called "Trailer Hitch". The action occurred during Thursday night's opening performance of the 21st Annual White Deer Rodeo. The second performance will get underway at 8 p.m. today, with a wagon train scheduled to leave Pampa

Saturday morning. Participants will arrive in White Deer in time for the 5 p.m. Saturday Rodeo Parade. Final performance of the rodeo will be Saturday night. White Deer Riding Club and White Deer Lions Club are major coordinators for the event. Steer roping fans can attend at 9 a.m. slack roping Saturday.

All-Star cagers tip off tonight

HOUSTON (AP) — North Coach Leland Caffey of Seminole and South Coach Jesse Walker of Lufkin have provided defensive drills for their all-star basketball teams at the Texas High School Coaches Association coaching school on the fundamentals of defense.

But don't expect to see much of it tonight when the two teams meet in Hofheinz Pavilion.

"Sure we've worked on defense this week and we stress it all the time but that's not what people come to see in an all-star game," Walker said. "They come to see the kids play and I'm sure that's what will happen."

Caffey agrees the firepower is there for an offensive contest.

"Being from a small school like I am, you seldom see that much talent in one place at a time," Caffey said. "What a super group of athletes we have. They can flush (dunk) that ball anyway you can handle it."

"You've got to work on defense but it's going to be run and gun all the way. In these all-star games that's the way it always is."

Pittsburgh routs San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — On a team full of superstars, the Pittsburgh Pirates' Tim Lincecum feels about as conspicuous as the mashed potatoes that accompany a steak and lobster dinner.

"With all the super, super athletes we have on this club, I just try to do the basics and fit in," said the 29-year-old shortstop after concluding a four-hit night Thursday against the San Diego Padres in a 7-1 Pittsburgh victory.

Since coming off the disabled list June 13, Folli has batted .341, is hitting .292 overall, and is in the midst of a 13-game hitting streak.

"Bob Skinner (Pirates' batting coach) has helped me make some little adjustments in my swing," Folli said. "I just try to hit the ball hard and hit it up the middle."

Although the Pirates are red-hot, winning 10 of their last 12 games to move 1½ games ahead of the Montreal Expos in the National League East, all may not be happiness within the Pirate

"Family." Bert Blyleven, 5-7, who stifled the Padres on six hits and had them shut out until Dave Winfield homered with two out in the ninth, says he still wants out.

"I'm looking forward to this season ending," said the veteran right-hander, who left the club for nine days earlier this year. "I want to pitch in the World Series. Then next year, I hope to be somewhere else."

When asked why he still wanted to leave, Blyleven replied: "No comment on that. I don't want to get into that."

Dave Parker, who said on Tuesday he wants to be traded because of abuse from Pittsburgh fans, supplied a two-run homer in the 16-hit Pirate attack.

Pittsburgh jumped on Bob Shirley, 6-7, making only his second start after 43 straight relief appearances, for five runs and eight hits in the first two innings.

Sports

VB team loaded with sophomores

Pampa High volleyball coach Lynn Wolfe will be taking a long hard look at a large group of sophomores that will try out for the 1980 squad.

They include Joan Burns, Kendall Cross, Shelly Duenkel, Teresa Glover, Vicki Green, Brandi Huff, Gay Hurst, Carla Rogers, Dion Simmons, and Denice Thompson. All were members of the freshmen team last year.

"I'm expecting these girls to play a lot of junior varsity ball and some could make the varsity," Wolfe said.

Wolfe will be looking for a lot of help since only four seniors return to the varsity. They are Jeanete Britt, Jeana Porter, Deana Porter, and Susan Richardson.

Moving up from the junior varsity are Whitney Caswell, Amy Beyer, Leslie Albus, Alecia Brewer, Paula Fulton, Sharolyn Saulsbury, Lena Young, and Lisa Sims. All are juniors.

Practice starts Aug. 11 with the first game scheduled for Aug. 19 at Hereford.

The late Thurman Munson's first major-league hit came against Catfish Hunter of Oakland, a pitcher he caught later on for the Yankees.

Manager Joe Torre of the New York Mets led National League skippers in being thrown out of games in both 1978 and 1979.

Giese command Defending champion takes Tri-State lead

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Editor

It wasn't the most exciting round of golf Bob Giese has ever played, but the end result was rewarding as the defending champion from Amarillo rallied from seven strokes back to take command of the Tri-State Seniors Tournament Thursday at Pampa Country Club.

Giese, who won the tournament the first time he entered last year, shot a one-over-par 72 for a three-round total of 215 and a two-stroke lead. The championship flight will be completed after 18 holes today.

"I really didn't shoot that good," Giese said. "It was just that everybody else shot bad."

"Hart (Warren, Country Club Pro) decided not to be so nice to us this year. There were some real tough pin placements that gave everybody trouble."

Harold DeLong, who held a three-stroke lead after shooting a torrid five under par 66 Wednesday, slipped into a second-place tie (217) with J.B. White of Lubbock after carding an 80 Thursday. White shot 78.

"It was just a bad day for Harold. Something we all have. I figured I'd have to shoot a 65 or 66 to have a chance of catching him," Giese said.

"Harold and J.B. both started off with bogeys and I guess it was just too hard to come back after that."

Giese's chances of moving up appeared depressingly slim after consecutive bogeys on No. 2 and No. 3, but he finished the front nine with a birdie and four pars to put him just one over par. After starting out with a bogey on No. 10, Giese strung four pars and a birdie together.

"Everybody was real nice to me," Giese said. "I just hope I can shoot a good score tomorrow and win it again. That would be nice."

Rounding out the championship flight after Thursday's scores are Glen White, Amarillo, 72-219; Roy Peden, Kermit, 78-220; J.T. Webb, Miami, 83-231; Brooks Hart, Grand Prairie, 73-221; Bill Winslow, Bartlesville, Okla., 74-223; Mel Shaffer, Van Alstyne, 75-226; Web Wilder, San Antonio, 228; Dr. Foster Elder, Pampa, 228; Oliver Waters, Canadian, 82-233; Hugo Lowenstern, Amarillo, withdrew; Bud McKinney, Dallas, withdrew; Dick Roden, Dallas, failed to turn in scorecard.

In the president's flight, Pampa's Deck Woldt moved into a first-place tie with W.W. Gray of Del City at 231 after shooting a 78 yesterday. Gray finished with a 77.

There's a three-way tie for second between Ed Myatt, Pampa (79); Jay Satterwhite, Sinton (78), and Harvey Esleman, Kemp (75). All have three-round totals of 232.

Others in the presidential flight include Haskell Graves, Oklahoma City, 79-235; Wendell Berry, Granite, Okla., 79-235; Bill DeFee, Amarillo, 81-237; Jim Tracy, 80-237; Hugh Gardner, 88-142.

OSU golfer breaks record

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Tway of Oklahoma State fired a five under par 66 Thursday to set a record and grab a two-shot lead in the Southern Amateur Golf Association championship.

Tway, from Marietta, Ga., had a 134 at the end of 36 holes, one stroke better than the record of 135, set in 1972.

"I hit the ball fairly well and putted good," said Tway, who shot a 68 on Wednesday.

Cecil Ingram III fired his second straight 68 to move ahead of third place Dennis Walsh of Port Arthur, Texas, who has a 139 total.

Griff Moody of Athens, Ga., is in fourth place with a 141. The top four players are the only members of the 200-man field shooting par or better.

Tway finished in a two-way tie last year for second place in the tournament, but had to settle for third after a coin toss.

Free TV sports may be in danger

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Last Saturday, nearly one month after Roberto Duran proved he was more macho than Sugar Ray Leonard, the American TV viewer was able to see the fight for free on ABC. Although this doesn't prove sports on free TV is in serious trouble, it points up some real danger signals.

At a recent press conference, Fred Pierce, president of ABC-TV, warned that the lucrative Duran-Leonard closed-circuit title fight was "the start of the have and have-not era of television." One million people (paying roughly $20 each) saw the fight; 49 million did not, he said.

"Pay television is far beyond the threat stage now," Pierce said. "Today what you receive free, tomorrow you're going to have to pay for. The big loser is going to be the American viewer."

For the commercial networks to have been competitive with closed circuit, an advertising minute would have had to go for over $550,000. At that price, few sales would have been made and the televising network would have seen more red than the combative Duran.

"We'll be hard-pressed to compete for special events," said Jim Spence, senior vice president of ABC Sports.

Certainly for events of the magnitude of Leonard-Duran and Ali-Holmes, when and if, the commercial networks are at a distinct disadvantage. But they still have the edge for showing the major team sports, the major golf and tennis events and the catch-all events seen on the networks' anthology sports shows.

Their interest in these sports, however, may be waning. The networks don't want to finance and promote Sugar Ray Leonard's career and then get his biggest fight on taped delay 29 days later. And how valuable are their national games in baseball or basketball when the rest of the week is filled with dozens of local games on free and cable TV?

Pro basketball's ratings on CBS were up 13 percent, after dropoffs of 20 and 26 percent the previous two seasons. CBS is midway through its four-year, $74 million contract with the National Basketball Association. But CBS and the league have serious concerns about the value of the national package when local games on free and cable TV make Sunday's game less than special.

"I can sit in my apartment and watch 250 NBA games a year without ever leaving my living room," said NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien at the Board of Governors meeting last month. "That may be nice for the fan, but I'm not so sure it's a good thing for the league."

"When you get that many games, it's really hard to identify any one as a Game of the Week, and of course that is of concern to CBS, which pays us a considerable sum and expects something in return."

The best protection is to play a 16-game schedule, put every game on network television and call yourself the National Football League.

But even the NFL has to be concerned about its network TV deal, which fills each of the 28 clubs' coffers with $5.2 million each year of the four-year contract. A television source who has been close to the network negotiations with the NFL predicts that the next commercial TV contract the NFL signs with the networks will be the last one.

The greatest?

Teofilio pans for more gold

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Sports Correspondent

MOSCOW (AP) — Teofilio Stevenson starts the rocky trail toward his third gold medal in the Olympic Games Friday — a quest he says will prove he is the best heavyweight fist fighter in the world. Pro or amateur.

Stevenson, the distant, silent man of the Moscow Olympics, reclined on a sofa in the foyer of the Olympic Village training quarters, watching swimming competition on TV, but he finally consented to discuss his illustrious career and future plans.

A pretty Russian guide sat next to him. People kept pushing forward to request autographs. Teofilio responded coldly, never showing recognition. A few newsmen pushed into the circle.

The 28-year-old Cuban fighter appeared to notice no one as he kept his eyes glued on the TV set.

Stevenson is a handsome 6 feet, 4 inches tall and weighs 220 pounds, with a long, strong-looking neck that is associated with aristocracy and busts of the great.

He closely resembles Muhammad Ali and has many of Ali's characteristics — whether by accident or design — without the latter's bombast, occasional puckishness and flair for the limelight.

To English-speaking interviewers, he holds up a hand and says, "No speak English." It is his handy weapon. Yet he understands and speaks English very well.

When a Swedish reporter with a sprinkling of Spanish interceded, the Cuban heavyweight was stripped of his defenses and acceded to an informal interview. It suited his fancy. Otherwise, he would have gotten up and walked away.

"Ali is coming back again and fighting Larry Holmes in October," someone said. "Who do you think will win?"

Without looking away from the TV screen, he replied: "Holmes. Ali, he is too fat and out of shape. He should quit."

"Do you ever wish you had fought Ali or Holmes?" he was asked.

Stevenson shrugged his shoulders.

"I asked Ali to fight me once — three, four rounds," he replied. "I say, 'Yes.' Ali, he say, 'No.'"

Would he be willing to fight Holmes the same way?

"Yes," he replied in Spanish. "I ask him, too. He say, 'No.' Only three, four rounds, no more," Stevenson repeated.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rona Barrett, the Hollywood reporter on ABC's "Good Morning America," will leave the show in October to join the "Tomorrow" show on NBC.

Miss Barrett, who was instrumental in bringing the ratings of "Good Morning America" up to par with NBC's "Today," will also make regular appearances on "Today," an NBC spokesman said Thursday. ABC had been negotiating to renew Miss Barrett's contract, which expires Oct. 24, but the talks reached an impasse, according to a statement issued by the network.

Miss Barrett will be an NBC news correspondent, a status she was refused at ABC. And that was what prompted her move, Miss Barrett said. She said she has been trying to change her image to an entertainment industry newswoman from that of a gossip reporter.

Neither ABC nor a spokesman for Miss Barrett would say what her ABC salary had been and her new salary also was not disclosed. An NBC spokesman said Miss Barrett would be the West Coast co-anchor of a revamped "Tomorrow" show with Tom Snyder, who currently runs the show solo from New York.

ORONO, Maine (AP) — Stephen King, the author of best-selling horror stories, has donated six boxloads of papers to his alma mater, the University of Maine at Orono.

The papers, deposited in the university's special collections division, include original typescripts and drafts of King's novels, as well as some letters, said library director James MacCampbell.

King's novels include "Carrie," "Salem's Lot," "The Shining," "The Stand" and "The Dead Zone."

In accepting the gift this week, university trustees said the papers had an estimated value of $5,000. A formal appraisal is planned.

King, who taught at the university in 1978-79, decided that the papers "were piled up around home and they might as well be here as somewhere else," MacCampbell said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Deborah Raffin has filed a $1 million suit against Paramount Pictures Corp., alleging the company failed to honor her contract for the projected television series "Foul Play."

Ms. Raffin contended in the suit, filed Wednesday in Superior Court, that Paramount failed to pay her $40,000 per episode for her starring role in the series, which is based on the movie "Foul Play."

The suit alleged that the contract, signed last March, called for 13 episodes to be filmed and for her to be paid whether or not the series was ever broadcast.

Ms. Raffin's complaint said Paramount has only filmed one episode and continually postponed further filming.

Officials at Paramount were unavailable for comment.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A team of Mexican doctors are claiming they have cured some cancers with a treatment that includes several drugs not approved for use in the United States.

Dr. Antonio Quiroz G., who operates a new cancer clinic in Ciudad Acuna, Mexico, across the Rio Grande from Del Rio, Texas, will explain the treatment to immunologists from throughout the world this week in Paris, France, the San Antonio Express reported Thursday.

The newspaper earlier published interviews with two Americans who said they were cured at the border clinic.

In a telephone interview from Mexico City prior to departing for Paris, Quiroz told the newspaper he would report to the International Congress of Immunology on 33 cases of early melanoma treated in Mexico City in the same manner cancer now is being treated at the border clinic.

"The patients in Mexico City are now living free of cancer and have been for more than three years," the physician said.

Tourist dollar losses reflected in tribe audit

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Alabama-Coushatta "tribal enterprises" showed higher profits each year in the 1970s until the Bicentennial year of 1976, when "it started the other way," says Executive Director Walter Broemer of the Texas Indian Commission.

"Without offering a direct explanation, Broemer said the tribe depended on "word of mouth" among tourists for 70 percent of its advertising and, starting in 1976, "some people were not as happy."

Broemer said the financially troubled tribe should have achieved financial independence by this year if projections had proved correct.

However, he said, "You can predict on paper but you can't see what the human relations will be."

Broemer testified before budget analysts from the Legislative Budget Board and the governor's office, who are reviewing the commission's 1982-83 money request.

Tribal representatives have told the Legislature for years that the Alabama-Coushattas could reach the point where they would no longer have to ask lawmakers for state funds.

Now, Broemer said, "For awhile we'll have to live from year to year and see where we are."

Emmett Battise, 58, was fired as superintendent of the reservation this year after financial statements revealed the tribe lost $92,000 in fiscal 1979. Broemer said he learned from the state auditor Thursday the loss actually was $122,000.

He said the tribe had used up operating capital of $300,000 in the past few years in an attempt to cover losses in tourist revenue.

The new superintendent, Roland Poncho, 36, said, "We are faced with the tremendous task of getting $1 and making it into $4, where in years past we got $3 and made it into $2."

Poncho said he had recently hired a business manager and accountant.

A special auditor's team is expected at the reservation on Monday.

Governor eyes oil taxes to ease budget

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has opened a possibility that the Legislature could increase state oil production taxes by about $2.6 billion a year and blame it all on Congress.

The added revenue would greatly ease the financial pressure on the 1981 Legislature for major spending items such as teacher pay raises and higher welfare costs.

Clements raised the issue publicly in a letter urging Attorney General Mark White to sue the federal government immediately to invalidate the Windfall Profits Tax.

He said the Windfall Profits Tax would "invade the sovereign power of the state by coercing Texas" to increase its own oil tax from 4.6 percent to 15 percent of market value.

The Windfall Profits Tax Act allows oilmen to deduct up to 15 percent for state taxes before computing what they owe the federal government.

"By not raising the rate in Texas to 15 percent, the state would deprive its citizens of tax dollars which would otherwise go to the federal government for distribution to the other states," Clements said in his letter to White.

Texas' oil production tax is one of the nation's lowest and is less than half of Louisiana's 12 percent.

Comptroller Bob Bullock's office estimates a 15 percent oil production tax would raise $3.8 billion a year, compared with $1.2 billion under the present rate, assuming June oil prices and no drop in production.

Prices will be decontrolled in October, however, and are expected to rise. Clements predicts the Windfall Profits Tax would cause oilmen to shut down some marginally productive wells.

Clements said at his weekly news conference he has discussed the 15 percent production tax with Lt. Gov.

Bill Hobby, Speaker Bill Clayton and the staff of the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council.

"All we are doing is exploring this. There has been no conclusion reached," Clements said.

Asked if raising the production tax would violate his no-new-taxes policy, Clements said:

"I could make a case it does not violate it. ... We would in fact be retaining a major portion of that Windfall Profits Tax within the state."

On another money matter, Clements said that despite state agencies' requests for major budget increases, he remains convinced the Legislature can give Texans some tax relief in 1981.

"As of this time, I have reason to believe the surplus (at the close of this biennium) will be in the range of $800 million to $1 billion," he said.

Plant officials say no link in cancer and workers' jobs

HOUSTON (AP) — Petrochemical workers at two Texas Gulf coast plants have contracted a rare form of brain cancer at twice the average rate and federal investigators are trying to determine why.

Plant officials say there is no evidence to link 42 brain cancer deaths over the past three decades to the workplace, but federal investigators disagree.

"They are finding a correlation between deaths from brain tumors and employment at the plants," Greg Coffey, a spokesman for the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health in Washington, D.C., said Thursday.

Coffey said the cancer, predominantly of type glioblastoma, may be caused by chemicals at the plants. But he said investigators have not been able to link any particular chemical to the tumors.

Occupational Safety and Health Administration officials first noticed a higher-than-normal incidence of glioblastoma tumors in Union Carbide's Texas City, Texas, plant more than a year ago, according to Davis Layne, director of OSHA's Clearlake area office.

Federal investigators also found a similar brain tumor rate — twice the national average — at Dow Chemical's Freeport, Texas, plant, Layne said Thursday.

Damon Engle, manager of the Union Carbide plant, said he is not convinced the rate at the plant is higher than in the general area.

"If it is," he said, "we'd be just as anxious as anybody to get to the bottom of it."

Consumer Finance Association looks at growth in bankruptcies

NEW YORK (AP) — Bankruptcies this year are occurring at a greater rate than in 1975, when a record 224,000 were filed, and some lenders are blaming the Bankruptcy Reform Act, which took effect last October 1.

"Consumer Bankruptcies Grow ... Is Greed A Reason?" asks the National Consumer Finance Association in one of a series of position and background papers sent to news people during the past week.

The association concedes the recession's role in the increase, which it estimates at 24 percent greater than a year ago, but it suggests the public is exploiting the law rather than merely seeking its protection.

It asks provocatively: "Are Americans becoming less concerned about their financial responsibilities and any possible social stigma attached to bankruptcy?" Other suggestions are also posed as questions.

"Are consumers rushing to this traditional last resort merely to avoid paying debts?" it asks. "Are others motivated by greed encouraging people to declare bankruptcy when it is not necessary?"

The association, made up of consumer finance and other loan companies, appears to place much blame on lawyers who advertise their "bankruptcy expertise" and urge clients to exploit the new, more liberal law.

It suggests also that people are being encouraged to declare bankruptcy when it is not really necessary. "I am not suggesting that bankruptcy should never be used, but it is a last resort," Walter Kurth, NCFCA president said. "Alternatives should be explored first."

U.S. and Mexico form spill agreement

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Mexican and U.S. response teams will work together to battle oil or hazardous material spills that threaten the coastline of either nation, says Ambassador-at-Large Robert Krueger.

The ambassador-at-large for Mexico announced Thursday in Corpus Christi that Mexican and U.S. negotiators had reached a joint spill response team to monitor and combat potential pollution problems.

However, Krueger said the agreement does not include provisions for payment of damages or cleanup costs from any such spill. And he said damage payments for the blowout of a Mexican offshore well in the Bay of Campeche last summer were "not discussed."

"Several lawsuits filed would have made discussion of that matter difficult," he said.

In the 25-page agreement each nation will appoint members to a team that will meet to prepare procedures for battling any future spills.

An on-scene coordinator would be present if a spill in one nation's waters appeared to pose a threat to the waters of the other.

Krueger said the agreement covers response to spills from offshore wells or tanker collisions and also would cover hazardous wastes.

Terms of the agreement require each nation to tell the other of potential trouble areas in the waters, such as tankers that have run aground but are not leaking or offshore wells with drilling problems — even if they are not spewing oil, Krueger said.

The United States Coast Guard and the Mexican Navy would work together in dealing with any spills.

Krueger said the United States began negotiations in 1968, but Mexico did not show an active interest in the agreement for another 10 years.

NOW! HESSTON RE-DESIGNS THE SQUARE BALER!

Hesston Beeline Baler

This innovative, new square baler is one of a kind with exclusive center-line design. Looks like no other you've ever seen...and builds the straightest, squarest 14" x 18" bales on the market.

- Advanced design baler moves crop in a straight line from pick-up until it drops out back as a finished bale.
- Uses exclusive Hesston pre-formed flake concept for better hay distribution throughout bale.
- 72" Maxi-sweep pickup is largest of any conventional baler.
- New, positive bale length control maintains uniform length, bale after bale...makes mechanical bale stacking easier and more precise.
- Eliminates need to move a row of bales when opening a new field or border. Also ends need to switch from road to field position.
- Optional hydraulic control keeps bale density and weight consistent in varying crop conditions.
- Hydraulic bale thrower option provides kid-glove bale handling.

NBC Saturday night fare offers surprisingly good show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC wouldn't have you know it, but there's a pretty good show running on that network on Saturday nights, a quick-witted newspaper sitcom called "Goodtime Harry." Catch it soon, because it is fast bound for that oblivion reserved for network unwanted.

"Goodtime Harry" is Ted Bessell, an irresponsible womanizer whose considerable sportswriting talent is almost enough to balance his transgressions, but not quite. He has returned to San Francisco to beg one last chance from Gene Roach, a crusty old sports editor who had been Harry's mentor, as well as the first in a long line of bosses to fire the boy.

In last week's premiere episode, "Goodtime Harry" revealed itself a sort of newspaper version of "Taxi," with good, fast humor (worth some genuine laughs), solid characters and some very clever writing that gently lampoons the newspaper game without vilifying it.

When Harry misses the first assignment in his last-chance bargain with Roach, he explains, truthfully, that he was helping a friend keep her daughter out of the clutches of the child's gangster father.

"Is your story about a fight more important than a child's life?" Harry pleads.

"Well," responds Roach, deliberating the matter. "...It wasn't a title fight."

NBC ordered six episodes of "Goodtime Harry" from Universal, but decided not to put the show on the fall schedule. It apparently didn't score well in audience tests (a popular programming tool that allows the executive cop-out, "Gee, boss, it tested well" — almost every show on the air, even the biggest losers, "tested well" before making a network schedule).

GENERAL AUDIENCES

ON THE MEND. Comedian Richard Pryor is interviewed by ABC News' Barbara Walters Thursday in the yard of the Sherman Oaks, Calif., home of an unidentified friend. Pryor says he feels he's been given another chance, after miraculously recovering from burns in which he was given a three-to-one chance to live. Pryor has said he will reveal the cause of the fire in a later interview.

Pryor says he's been given second chance

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Richard Pryor, who was given a one-in-three chance of survival after a freak accident melted his polyester shirt over his body last month, walked unassisted from a hospital and said, "I feel like God has given me a second chance at life."

There was no visible sign that he had undergone three skin graft operations in the six weeks since police found him badly burned and running down the streets of a Los Angeles neighborhood. He had suffered third-degree burns over the upper half of his body.

"My face was burned — luckily nothing happened to it other than I'm still as ugly as I ever was — and my neck, chest and hands," a spirited and healthy-looking Pryor told ABC's Barbara Walters in an interview conducted Thursday, shortly before he was discharged.

The 39-year-old comic had left the burn ward at Sherman Oaks Community Hospital for the interview at the home of an unidentified friend. He returned at about noon, and was officially discharged at 2 p.m. PDT, a hospital spokesman said. Family members and close friends accompanied him.

"There wasn't any crowd to greet him because nobody knew he was leaving," spokesman Gary Swaye said. "He wanted it that way. The last thing he wanted was a crowd and 500 newspaper people."

Drs. Jack and Richard Grossman, who treated Pryor during his hospital stay, were impressed with Pryor's rapid recovery and after a discussion with him Thursday decided to dismiss him earlier than planned, Swaye said. The comedian was not scheduled for release until next week.

Swaye said a nurse therapist was waiting at home for Pryor and would assist family members in taking care of him for awhile. In addition, the comedian is to return to the burn center for routine checkups and therapy.

No further operations are scheduled, Swaye said, unless Pryor decides to undergo plastic surgery. That decision will probably be made in several weeks, when and if scarring sets in, Swaye said.

In the ABC interview, Pryor revealed flashes of his old humor when he was asked "On my finger," he replied, "I hurt this finger and it hurt so much."

Then he added, "I feel like God has given me a second chance at life."

When Ms. Walters asked Pryor about his plans, he told her: "I don't know. I just take it like this, a moment and the next moment, and I really don't know what I want to do. I have no plans, I'm not going to work for a while. I don't wish to do anything."

Fighting back tears, he said he had received thousands of letters from people across the country during his hospital stay.

"It overwhelms me that so many people love me... The prayers people sent out for me and just the love I felt helped tremendously because sometimes you can be down and think that nobody cares."

Ms. Walters said Pryor promised to reveal in a later interview "exactly how the accident happened."

Pryor's attorney said a glass of rum exploded June 9 when Pryor lit a cigarette lighter, but police said that what exploded was either being used to make the cocaine derivative "free base."

Cowboys bounce back despite bad weather

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Just like Wednesday, rain and cold winds visited the Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo Thursday but the cowboys and stock seemed to be getting used to being wet and cold.

Most of the riders, ropers and wrestlers seemed to have regained some of the form they showed in the first go-round, during the second day of the second go-round.

A Big Spring, Texas cowboy, Rusty O'Donnell, wound up tied for second in Thursday's bull riding sections with a 74 but his total score for two bulls was 149, putting him on top of the standings. In second was Rick Zier, Hardin, Mont., with 148 total points in 72 in his last ride.

Zier is tied for second in the bull riding standings with Doyle Parker, Billings, Mont., who also has a 148 on the strength of a 76 scored Thursday.

In the saddle bronc riding Jim Meeks, Interior, S.D., and Cody Woodson, Prescott, Ariz., both had 74s. That wasn't good enough, though, to catch Redmond, Ore., cowboy David Botham whose total score after two rides was 147. Clayton D. Hines of Canada was in second place with a total of 144 points.

Gary Heststead of Anderson, Calif., successfully defended his lead in the bareback event with a wild, leading ride good for 74 points. That gives him a total score of 143, a slim edge over Inola, Okla., rider Buck Taylor's 142 points.

Dave Erfman of Whitewood, S.D. had a poor second ride in the rookie bronc division, dropping him from first to fifth, followed closely by Billie Rowe of Berger, Texas, with 127.

John Burdine of Eufula, Okla., knocked Rapid City, S.D., steer wrestler Paul

Terney from first to third place in the standings, downing his animal in 12.5 seconds. That gave Burdine a total time of 23.6 seconds for his two animals. Danny Torricellas, Eugene, Ore., had a 14-second time Thursday for a total time of 24.3 seconds and second place in the go-round.

Bobby Goodspeed of High Ridge, Mo., was as good as his name in the calf roping with the time of 12.7 seconds. Unfortunately that wasn't good enough to put him among the leaders. Terry Davidson of Saunderson, Texas, leads the crowd with a total of 26.9 seconds, followed by Doug Johnson, Peyton, Colo., with 29.3 seconds.

Leading the steer roping after two head was Don McLaughlin of Fort Collins, Colo. with a total of 37.9 seconds. In second was Roy Cooper of Durant, Okla., with 38.3 seconds.

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Here are the average leaders after Thursday's competition in the Cheyenne Frontier Days Rodeo. There were no payoffs Thursday.

Bull Riding:
Don McLaughlin, Fort Collins, Colo., 77.9 seconds; Roy Cooper, Durant, Okla., 78.3; Kenny McMillan, Billings, Mont., 79.9; Mel Potter, Marana, Ariz., 80.3; Jim Baker, Casper, Wyo., 80.4.

Saddle Bronc Riding:
Terry Davidson, Saunderson, Texas, 38.3 seconds; Doug Johnson, Peyton, Colo., 39.3; Kenny McMillan, Billings, Mont., 39.9; Ray Sparks, Twin Falls, Idaho, 39.9; Randy Lawson, Westminster, Colo., 32.3.

Steer Wrestling:
John Burdine, Eufula, Okla., 23.6 seconds; Danny Torricellas, Eugene, Ore., 24.3; Paul Terry, Rapid City, S.D., 24.3; Colin Treedy, Helena, Mont., 24.8.

Bull Fighting:
Rusty O'Donnell, Big Spring, Texas, 149 points; Rick Zier, Hardin, Mont., 148; Doyle Parker, Billings, Mont., 148; Dick Miller, Cheyenne, Wyo., 147; Rusty Franklin, Casper, Wyo., 146; Jody Tolson, Boardman, Ore., 146.

Bareback Riding:
Gary Heststead, Anderson, S.D., 147 points; Clayton D. Hines, Canada, 144; Jim Meeks, Interior, S.D., 143; Paul Hays, Joplin, Texas, 142; Jim Keltis, Canada, 141.
