National lookout issued for Georgia fugitives

REIDSVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Georgia authorities issued a nationwide lookout today for four convicted killers with "nothing to lose" who sawed through a barred window, put fake guard badges on their blue pajamas and slipped away from a maximum security prison.

No one noticed they were gone Monday until the fugitives called a newspaper reporter.

Prison spokeswoman Lucy Justus said today police were looking for a blue 1971 Plymouth Fury, Georgia license EDN-639, which the fugitives may be using.

The fake guard uniforms fooled security guards who challenged the men as they left the 2,100-inmate Georgia State Prison, authorities said Monday.

Their flight from fourth-floor cells was so well executed that more than an hour after Charles Postell of The Albany Herald told prison officials of his "news tip" the escape had not been confirmed.

Postell's call, said Col. William Lowe, deputy commissioner of the Department of Offender Rehabilitation, "was the first time we knew about it."

"It seems very strange" no one heard the sawing of bars numbering in the teens that must have taken several weeks, commissioner David Evans said as federal and state agents combed the Southeast for the four.

Evans said he believed the men fled the prison to avoid transfer to Death Row at the Diagnostic Classification Center at Jackson.

Postell said the fugitives told him "we all decided we'd rather be dead than stay here another day. Conditions here are inhuman."

They were identified as Troy Leon Gregg, David A. Jarrell, Timothy W. McCorquodale and Johnnie L. Johnson, all in their 20s or 30s.

McCorquodale was convicted of the torture-slaying of a teen-ager, a killing described by the state Supreme Court as "one of the most vicious crimes it had ever seen," said Fulton County District Attorney Lewis Slayton.

Gregg's sentence was at issue when the U.S. Supreme Court upheld Georgia's death penalty in a landmark decision in 1976.

Because they face execution, prison officials said the four had "nothing to lose."

They broke out about 6 a.m. Monday after sawing through bars of a window in a fourth-floor exercise area, authorities said.

The four used blue pajamas resembling guards' uniforms in the escape, Evans said.

After scrambling through the window, which led to a ledge and fire escapes, the prisoners sauntered past guards who stopped them briefly, Evans said. They were allowed to continue on their way after they told the guards they had security checks to attend to, he said.

Postell, who has conducted several Death Row interviews, said Gregg called him at 9:30 a.m. and told him that he and three others had escaped and were in Jacksonville, Fla.

He said he called the office of Warden Charles Montgomery about an hour later and told officials he had heard from the four. He was told "everyone is accounted for at this time...Gregg is in his cell," Postell said.

Postell called again at about 11:45 a.m., and was told officials were checking on a possible escape. Lookouts eventually were posted in Georgia and South Carolina, and later throughout the Southeast.

"The real story is that it took me four hours to convince anybody they were not really up in their cells," Postell said.

Alfred Jarrell and Johnnie L. Johnson. A nationwide lookout for the men has been issued. Below is a front view of the prison. The floor from which they escaped is the full width floor beneath the tower at center.

Carter increases crop loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is giving the nation's farmers a billion-dollar boost in federal price-support loan rates in a move that administration officials say will have little impact on food prices for American consumers.

Officials said retail food prices will edge slightly higher as a result of Carter's action.

Carter told farm leaders at the White House that he felt "deep concern about the unfortunate plight of farmers and ranchers in particular this year with the unbelievable pressure on them from the cost-price squeeze."

"Increases in the cost of fuel, fertilizer and other production items have out-paced increases in farm receipts, causing net income for many farmers to fall this year," he said, noting that some of the nation's farmers also have been "hit by the effects of drought."

Jack Felgenhauer, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, said he was "just elated" by the announcement.

"I think this is the best thing that has happened to the wheat industry in two years," Felgenhauer said, adding that it will put more money in farmers' pockets "and we certainly need it."

Price-support loan rates determine the amount of money farmers can borrow from the government using their grain as collateral.

Agriculture Department officials said retail food costs will be slightly higher because of the move, but they noted that "more grain will be in reserve to protect against crop shortages" in the future.

"Consumers of wheat products will pay about $150 million more for those products — less than 0.3 cents per loaf of bread," a background paper said. "If the higher feed (corn and other grains) were all passed on to meat consumers, meat prices would rise by less than 0.5 cents per pound."

Overall, it said, the higher crop supports could boost the government's consumer price index by about 0.1 percent.

The higher loan rates will be available to farmers for their 1980 crops as quickly as new regulations can be put into effect, officials said.

The price-support loan rates for wheat are being raised to $3 a bushel from the $2.50 previously in effect for 1980. The rates for corn, with adjustments also for other feed grains, were raised to $2.25 a bushel, up from the previous $2.10 a bushel. Soybean loans, at $4.50 a bushel for the 1979 crop, were announced at $5.02 for the 1980 harvest.

The package also will raise "release" and "call" levels for the government's grain-reserve program to reflect the increased loan rates.

Railway closing subject of Mobeetie meet

MOBEETIE — A meeting of shippers and persons interested in the proposed closing of the Clinton District railway, a part of the Santa Fe Railway, is scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Mobeetie High School Cafeteria.

Application for the abandonment of the 136.69-mile railway line running east from Pampa to Clinton, Okla., was filed by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company with the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) in Washington, D.C., on June 30.

If granted, the abandonment of the 70-year-old service will affect Gray, Wheeler and Hemphill Counties in Texas and Roger, Mills and Custer Counties in Oklahoma.

This includes railway stations in Heaton, Laketon, Mobeetie and Briscoe in Texas and Reydton, Cheyenne, Hammon Junction, Butler and Stafford stations in Oklahoma.

Santa Fe officials have agreed to continue service on the Clinton railway for a four-and-a-half mile stretch east of Pampa.

Many local farmers, grain elevators and stockyards will be affected if the railway is closed down.

"I expect there will be a pretty good crowd there," State Representative Foster Whaley said, "since there are so many shippers along that 136-mile line."

Whaley will be attending the meeting, he said, along with other interested persons in the area.

Railroad officials gave as reasons for the move to discontinue service as a lack of profits and "substantial maintenance expenditures."

These problems, officials say, are not justifiable from an economic standpoint.

"The application (of abandonment) is subject to public hearings," Susan Metcalf of the Amarillo Santa Fe office said earlier.

The ICC will determine if there is a need for the service through a series of public hearings and will make a ruling as a result, she said.

Pampa receives half-inch of welcome rain!

Thunderstorms pounded the Panhandle last evening — the result of a weak low pressure trough passing through the area and "summer-type storms" due to afternoon heating.

Pampa recorded 58 inch, the most recorded here since the beginning of the heat wave. While most Pampans saw the complete makings of a "downpour," grain elevator workers at Wheeler-Evans Co. in Kingsmill said that it "barely even sprinkled" there.

No moisture at all was recorded at the Heaton Cattle Company, located 12 miles east of Pampa on Highway 152, while Miami received only a trace of precipitation. A spokesman in Miami said though, that it was considerably windy and cloudy. A spokesman at Wheeler-Evans Co. in White Deer said that 1 inch was recorded outside of the city, while .25 inch was recorded in some parts within the city limits.

According to the National Weather Service in Amarillo, no further precipitation is forecast. Conditions are expected to continue fair and warm with highs in the upper 90s through Wednesday.

Weather

Weather conditions will remain mostly fair through Thursday with warm afternoons. The high for today and Wednesday will be in the upper 90s. The high for Monday was 100 degrees.

Rock Island purchase likely

"It looks fairly certain that a national railroad company is interested in purchasing parts of the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad," Gray County Commissioner Ted Simmons said today.

The part of the Rock Island involved in the proposed purchase includes the line from Adrian in West Texas continuing to six miles east of Shamrock," Simmons said.

Simmons serves as a member on the board of directors of the Panhandle Rehabilitation Planning Commission (PRPC) which has coordinated information concerning rail service. He is also a member of a PRPC railroad committee involved with the continuation of rail service in this area.

"There may be an offer to purchase the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad, soon," Vikki Jacobs Economic Development Administrator of the PRPC confirmed.

The name of the national company interested in the purchase and rehabilitation of the Rock Island was not released by PRPC officials. The proposed purchase price and rehabilitation costs for the line were also not available. The name of the national company and price were not released pending confirmation from the Rock Island trustee and the national company involved in the purchase PRPC officials said.

"The PRPC is presently working on a federal funding package for the public purchase of at least parts of the line. It will be operated by the private operator, and we plan for no long term subsidization," Jacobs said.

"We have been in contact with the Economic Development Administration and the Federal Railroad Administration concerning grants and loans," Jacobs said.

"Early this year, the PRPC and its members commissioned a feasibility study to be done by Gerrard McKenna and Associates. The study confirmed just what portions of the line were feasible to be operated on a long term basis as a short line," Jacobs said.

The results of the study were presented to shippers and PRPC members in early June.

"Several operators were then contacted and a July meeting was held. The operator with the best proposal for purchase and rehabilitation of the railroad line was then chosen," Jacobs said.

"One way or another, we are hopeful that most of the track will be served," Jacobs said.

Carter delays answers till after convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter told a House committee today he will answer the panel's questions about his brother Billy's links with Libya by Aug. 18, the day Congress reconvenes after the Democratic National Convention.

The president's letter was received as the Foreign Affairs

Committee considered a resolution demanding a wide range of information about Billy Carter's activities as an agent of the radical Arab nation.

Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., the committee chairman, recommended that the resolution be sent to the House floor without recommendation.

Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman, R-N.Y., argued that the committee should endorse the resolution, clearing the way for the House to act upon it before adjourning next week for the convention, at which the president is seeking renomination.

Carter's letter said "all relevant information" would be made available, but that this could not be done sooner than Aug. 18 because of the time it would take for White House attorneys to conduct the necessary interviews.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., the principal sponsor of the resolution, suggested it be amended to seek information on Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti's recent revelations that he and the president talked about Billy Carter's case.

Two senators, meanwhile, said fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco told them he put the Libyans up to paying Billy Carter in order to embarrass the administration as revenge for prosecuting him.

Tractorcade heads for convention

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Saying a second term for President Carter would be "completely asinine," angry farmers have pledged a tractorcade to New York next month to protest national agriculture policies during the Democratic convention.

Marvin Meek, national president of the American Agriculture Movement, said Monday that the organization also refuses to support either Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan or independent hopeful John Anderson.

Meek told reporters that somewhere between "12 and 50" tractors will make the long trek to the Democratic National Convention in New York City.

Meek said he and several other Texas AAM supporters will attend the convention as uncommitted delegates and attempt to block Carter's nomination.

"It will be completely asinine for the American people and Democratic delegates to give Carter a second term," Meek said. "We are in a recession right now, and if Carter is reelected, it will drive us into a deeper recession or possibly a depression."

AAM farmers have conducted several massive tractorcades to Washington to voice support for 100 percent parity.

Grand jury hears Guthrie case

Evidence is being presented today to a Hemphill County grand jury concerning the July 12 slaying of Hemphill County Sheriff's Deputy Corky Guthrie.

The grand jury began hearing the evidence at 9 a.m. this morning with the case expected to be in the hands of the jury "most of the day," according to Harold Comer District Attorney.

Criminal investigator Kirven Roper and Texas Ranger Bill Baten have spearheaded the investigation into the slaying of Guthrie.

Paul Berry Bush, a 27-year-old Amarillo man, was charged with the slaying and has been held without bond in the Potter County Jail. Bush was arrested near a Dumas apartment complex approximately 15 hours after the slaying, on a tip received by the Amarillo Police Department.

"There is no good evidence at this time to indicate that a second person is involved in the shooting," Baten said.

Guthrie was slain as he answered a silent alarm at Lad's Pharmacy in Canadian, two blocks from the sheriff's office, at 3:45 a.m. Saturday, July 12.

"Guthrie was hit by three shots from a 12 gauge shotgun. The killer fired through the pharmacy window, then climbed through the broken plate glass window and fired from the hood of the car, and then shot Guthrie through an open window in the deputy's car," Baten said.

Guthrie had served as a Hemphill County Deputy since May 28, 1979. He had previously been employed as an officer on the Perryton Police Department for two years.

SEN. DENNIS DeCONCINI, D-Ariz., answers questions for reporters on Capitol Hill Monday after returning from the Bahamas where Robert L. Vesco was interviewed on his involvement in Billy Carter's being named a Libyan agent. DeConcini said Vesco claims to have arranged the payment of $220,000 to Billy Carter by the Libyan government in order to embarrass the Carter administration.

At 1:20 a.m. today, police officers responded to a report of an attempted armed robbery at the Burger King located at 220 N. Hobart. An employee of the fast food restaurant reported to police that he was taking trash to the dumpster behind the business when he was approached by a black male. The man pointed a blue steel handgun at him and instructed the employee to go back into the store and give him the money. A scuffle for the gun followed, according to the police report, and ended when the gunman ran from the scene, the gun still in his possession. There were no witnesses to the incident, Lt. Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Widely scattered showers were forecast today for West Texas and South Texas.

The remainder of the state was to have clear to partly cloudy skies and continued hot temperatures.

Highs were to range from the 90s in East Texas and Southeast Texas to 105 in West Texas and up to 108 in Northeast Texas.

Temperatures were expected to climb above the 100-degree mark for the 37th consecutive day in Wichita Falls and in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

A few thunderstorms were reported during the night in the Panhandle and South Plains, but the activity died out long before dawn. A few showers were reported early today along middle sections of the Texas coast and some fog was reported along the coast.

No significant rainfall was reported in the Panhandle thunderstorms. Authorities said today they believed lightning caused a range fire that destroyed about 2,000 acres of rangeland some 15 miles northwest of Vega in the Panhandle.

Skies were mostly clear early today. Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s. Extremes ranged from 68 at both Dalhart and Lufkin to 81 at Brownsville.

Billy controversy overshadows convention plans for Democrats

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Billy Carter scandal remains the hottest topic among politicians of both parties today, and that he - and some $200,000 dedicated to "opening" the Democratic convention - will wind up denying President Carter renomination.

Several Democratic governors and party officials are resisting attempts by some Democrats in Congress to break Carter's hold on a majority of Democratic delegates by changing the rules for next month's national convention.

However, one Democratic governor joined the effort, another leaned toward it, and other party leaders acknowledged that they were watching developments, particularly on Billy Carter, and could change their position.

Typical of the watchful officials was New Jersey Democratic Chairman Richard J. Coffee, who said "like anyone else, I follow these things on a day-to-day basis."

And Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California assessed the situation by saying that while he believes Carter has the needed convention votes for nomination, he sees "a few cracks in the ice."

The $200,000 effort to overturn the party rule that would automatically nominate Carter was announced Monday by seven members of the House.

Also Monday: -Vice President Walter F. Mondale, suggested as an alternative to either Carter or Sen. Edward M. Kennedy as the Democratic presidential nominee, said he was not a candidate for the presidency.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., mentioned too as an alternate candidate, also has said he is not running.

White House spokesman Jody Powell said President Carter had told his Cabinet at its weekly meeting that his administration has "nothing to hide" concerning his brother Billy.

Republican candidate Ronald Reagan said, not surprisingly, that he "couldn't be happier" with the strife among the Democrats. He smiled as he said, "I think they've got some very serious problems."

Independent candidate John Anderson said the Billy affair was a valid campaign issue. "When you have a president whose own brother is registered as a foreign agent...for a country led by a man like Colonel (Moammar) Khadafi...who is the very apothosis, I think, of immoderation, of violence, of terrorism...that is bound to be an issue," he said.

Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., spokesman for the "Committee for an Open Convention" said the $200,000 will be spent to lobby Democratic delegates to vote to waive the rule requiring delegates at the convention to follow the results of state primaries and conventions.

That rule, being challenged by Kennedy, would assure Carter of more than 1,900 delegate votes. Only 1,666 are needed for the nomination.

Grand jury dismissed in Fort Worth school case

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A grand jury wrapped up a five-month investigation of the Fort Worth Independent School District by issuing three indictments and a scathing criticism of the "good old boy" methods of school district officials.

A felony indictment of theft and official misconduct was returned against Thomas L. Caldwell, the schools' typewriter repair and shop manager. Two additional indictments charging tampering with government records were returned against Victor Puente, owner of an Arlington company that sold typewriters to the school district, and his office manager Fred A. Wilson, before Judge Gordon Gray dismissed jurors Monday.

The grand jury had been in session since March investigating alleged illegal practices within the school district and returned a total of 16 indictments.

The grand jury's report condemned the business practices of the school district under the last two administrators, and cited instances of mismanagement and improper supervision of employees as actions leading to many of the district's financial illegalities.

Several departments, including the areas of purchasing, accounting, transportation and administration, were sharply criticized in the report.

Iranians plan to discuss hostage problem 'next month'

By The Associated Press

The speaker of the Iranian Parliament says parliamentary committees will begin discussing what to do with the American hostages early next month, according to a Japanese report. But Tehran Radio announced a new delay, the postponement of the lawmakers' vote to confirm the Iranian republic's first prime minister.

Japan's Kyodo news service said Speaker Ali Akbar Rafsanjani told a religious meeting Sunday the death of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi changed the problem of the 52 captive Americans somewhat, and a committee of the Majlis, the new Parliament, would take up the problem in early August.

Later, however, Tehran Radio announced that President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr asked the Majlis to postpone its vote on his nomination of national police chief Mostafa Mir-Salim to be prime minister. Since a prime minister must be installed before the Majlis can get down to other business, the new delay indicated discussion of the hostages would also be postponed.

The postponement of the vote touched off speculation that the nomination of Mir-Salim had run into opposition, and that more weeks of political deadlock and maneuvering were in prospect. Press reports received in London said he apparently was opposed by some

Gov. Hugh Carey of New York joined the House members in calling for an open convention. "Those delegates are not dummies," Carey told reporters during an appearance on Capitol Hill. "They're not robots. They come to a convention to make the last clear judgment of what's best for the party."

However, several of Carey's Democratic colleagues disagreed. "I believe we should maintain the integrity of the process as it is now in place," said Gov. Scott Matheson of Utah, who added that he is watching the investigation of the president's brother and could change his mind.

"The matter must be investigated promptly," said Matheson. "I have supported the president but I am awaiting the outcome of the study before making any final decision."

A spokesman for Gov. Brendan T. Byrne of New Jersey said the governor has not changed his strong support for Carter and would oppose any effort to open the convention.

Coffee, the New Jersey Democratic chairman, also described himself as a strong Carter supporter "at this point...but like anybody else, I follow these things on a day-to-day basis."

Gov. Bruce King of New Mexico said the disclosures of Billy Carter's dealings with the Libyan government "haven't shaken my confidence in the president, but I'm very disappointed the president's brother would be involved in this type of operation."

As for the proposal to open the convention, King said, "I question the advisability of that at this point in time."

Another strong supporter of Carter, Gov. Robert Graham of Florida, said, "The delegates should vote for the candidate they were elected by the people to vote for. We are morally as well as legally committed."

Gov. Brown of California, himself once a candidate for the nomination, said he is remaining neutral on the question of an open convention.

But the congressmen working to release delegates, from commitments to support Carter or Kennedy, told a news conference they are making the move to try to prevent Ronald Reagan from being elected president in November.

"It would be irresponsible for us not to take those actions which will make sure that Ronald Reagan is not the next president of the United States," said Barnes, who has said in the past that he believes it would be hard to get Carter elected.

Barnes said that in addition to Carey, Gov. Richard Larmin of Colorado has promised to "help in any way he can" and would lobby other Democratic governors when the National Governor's Association meets next week in Denver.

Joining Barnes at the news conference were Reps. Jerome Ambr and Tom Downey of New York, James Weaver of Oregon, Norman Dicks and Al Swift of Washington and Edward J. Markey of Massachusetts.

According to the grand jurors report, the purchasing department had "exhibited a cavalier disregard" for laws that require competitive bidding for purchases over a certain amount.

The accounting department had failed to follow up on insignificant signatures on invoices, and purchasing department employees could "order merchandise, acknowledge its receipt and approve payment," the report stated.

Grand jurors accused transportation personnel of using fictitious invoices to cover repairs that were never done, and work on private vehicles.

The administration was criticized for using school workers for private projects, sometimes using the "good old boy" method of asking employees to "help" while on school time.

In addition to the criticisms, the jurors offered suggestions to the school district to "clean up" operations, and adhere to laws requiring stricter accounting procedures and stricter controls on all materials ordered and on hand.

Several persons and firms that made a total of $22,279 restitution to the school district were also named by the report. The district was allegedly defrauded of $600,000 - $417,000 in the transportation department alone - because of illegal business practices.

fundamentalist members of the Islamic Republican Party, which has a majority in the Majlis.

Radio Tehran said the Majlis had set up a committee to examine the qualifications of nominees for the premiership and ministerial posts. It said because of this, Bani-Sadr asked the Majlis to leave the vote on Mir-Salim "dormant until further notice."

The newspaper Islamic Revolution, which is close to Bani-Sadr, said in an editorial that the death in Cairo Sunday of the deposed Shah solved one problem for the United States, but it must still return his assets before the hostages can be released. The paper urged the United States to "come to its senses" and "transfer all of the shah's assets to Iran."

The Iranian government has filed a suit in New York demanding $5.5 billion which it contends the shah and his family diverted from the national treasury and transferred abroad. But Robert Armao, the American public relations man who was the shah's principal spokesman during his exile, said in Cairo that he left a fortune of between $50 million and $75 million.

Today was the 52 American hostages' 269th day in captivity.

In another development, six more people were reported executed by the revolutionary regime. Radio Tehran said they included an Iraqi spy in Abadan, the oil refinery center in the southwest; two drug dealers in the southeastern province of Baluchistan, a man and a woman convicted of adultery, corruption and prostitution in the northeast town of Neyshabur and a man executed in the western city of Kerman for distributing heroin and resisting officers.

District Court cases heard, trial dates set

A Pampa woman pleaded guilty to a charge of delivery of a controlled substance in 223rd District court proceedings Monday.

Connie Jones, 20, of 510 N. Frost was sentenced by Judge Don Cain to 10 years probation and fined $1,000 after pleading guilty to the charge of selling methamphetamine on April 4, 1980, District Attorney Harold Comer said.

Her arrest on the charges on April 14 came after an incident on April 10 when methamphetamines were sold to a Metro Intelligence Agent loaned to the Pampa Police Department from Amarillo.

Judge Cain also stipulated as part of the sentence, that Jones spend time at the drug rehabilitation center in Vernon.

Two other Pampa citizens are awaiting trial in connection with drug-related offenses.

Fareed Abdul Sultan, 19, of Manhattan, N.Y. is scheduled to appear for trial beginning Aug. 4.

Sultan was arrested on a Greyhound bus after the armed robbery of Wilson's Venture Food store in McLean early this summer.

The trial of Kyle Lee Langford is the second trial set for the week of August 4, in 223rd District Court. Langford is charged with delivery of a controlled substance.

Patricia Kim Schultz, 24, of 411 1/2 N. Frost will also be tried during the two-week period the 223rd court will be in session. Schultz was arrested on April 14 and charged by Pampa police officers for delivery of a controlled substance.

Deepwater port nears completion

GRAND ISLE, La. (AP) - The nation's first deepwater port for supertankers - the Louisiana Offshore Oil Port - is beginning to take shape in the Gulf of Mexico.

Huge 2,000-pound sections of the pumping platform are moving into place 19 miles south of Grand Isle, and divers are hooking up buoys - where the huge supertankers will tie up - to one of the biggest chains ever made.

This is the first visible part, other than the jackets sticking up out of the water. This is the first real thing as far as the offshore pumping platform - LOOP spokesman Terry D. Trovato said Monday.

The underwater structures that will anchor the platforms to the seabottom 110 feet below have been up for more than half a year waiting for the platform itself, he said.

While they sat in the Gulf of Mexico, workers on shore assembled everything else - the 46-foot buoys, the pumps, the jumping platform's five deck sections, and the two pieces of a separate three-deck platform where offshore workers will live and work controls for the pumps.

When they're brought out, almost all the equipment is already bolted to them. It's brought out as one giant piece," Trovato said.

The pumping platform's lower deck sections carry three pumps that will work together to push 1,100 gallons of oil a minute through the 37 miles of pipeline between the platform and a salt dome in Clovelly.

The pumps will run on electricity produced by gas turbine generators on the upper deck, where meters will also measure the flow of crude.

Controls will be 150 feet away, on a smaller, three-story platform.

Two of the largest derrick barges in the Gulf, able to lift 1,600 tons each, had to be used together to set three 2,000-pound sections of the pumping platform into place. The other two are lighter and can be lifted by one derrick.

Between the pumping platform and the buoys are more than 1 1/2 miles of pipeline, ending at the 90-foot-wide bases which anchor the buoys. These bases are themselves anchored with 5-foot-wide steel piles sunk 90 feet into the seabottom.

The chains which attach the buoys to them are made of 6 1/2-inch steel forged into links three feet long. They have to be big to hold fast against the ocean's pull on ships that can weigh up to 700,000 tons before they're loaded with crude - ships longer than four football fields.

With the chain attached to its bottom, the buoy is lifted from its barge and onto the water. There valves are opened to let seawater flood into a hollow lower compartment, bringing it upright and pulling it down.

When only the buoy's top 10 feet and a big "birdcage" around lights, a radar reflector and other navigation aids are above water, divers attach the chain to the base.

When the system is in use, two flexible hoses nearly one-fifth of a mile long will connect the supertanker tethered to a buoy to the pipeline at its base. Pumps on the ship will push the crude up to the platform, where the LOOP pumps will take over.

Convicted killer free in government slip-up

NEW YORK (AP) - A convicted killer who should be in Puerto Rico serving a 99-year prison term has walked away from jail here through an apparent government slip-up.

Bernardo Creache-Adorno, 38, who twice fled Puerto Rico while on furlough, was released here last Thursday without bail after Gov. Hugh L. Carey neglected to sign an extradition warrant, apparently because of an administrative mix-up.

Manhattan Supreme Court Justice Harold Rothwax was legally bound to order the man's release if his extradition warrant had not been signed within a required period.

Carey signed the order Monday, five days after the July 23 expiration of a 90-day grace period following Creache-Adorno's arrest by New York City police.

The Carey's counsel, Richard Brown, blamed the tardiness on misinformation forwarded to the governor's office by the New York City Police Department. He said the police agency that coordinates warrants told Carey's office that the arrest date was May 14.

Sgt. Peter Sweeney, a spokesman for the police department, said police had been given inadequate information by the Manhattan district attorney's office.

But Barbara Thompson, a spokeswoman for Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau, said that office was not at fault. She denied knowledge of anyone in the office having given any specific office the incorrect date of arrest.

Creache-Adorno was convicted in San Juan in 1970 of the murder of a vacationing Family Court judge from New York City. He was released on a pass in 1974 and fled to New York City. He was arrested here and returned to Puerto Rico after Carey signed a extradition warrant.

Given another pass in 1978, Creache-Adorno fled again, this time to Colombia, South America. He worked there for a time, then came here for a family visit when he learned his mother was ill. He was arrested while visiting her at Mount Sinai Hospital.

Because the warrant has now been signed, Creache-Adorno could be arrested if found and returned to Puerto Rico. His lawyer, William Kunstler, said he will try to arrange continued parole or a low bail.

Summer campers prepare for 1990's

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — In the afternoon, the campers swim and ride horses. In the evening, they sing and dance. In the mornings and just before dinner, they play with floppy disks and a mini-robot named Turtle.

"We're trying to prepare the kids for what it's going to be like a decade from now, when they're getting out of school," said Denison Bolly, a 27-year-old computer consultant and founder and president of California Computer Camp.

The camp opened this year at Rancho Oso deep in the Los Padres National Forest, about 20 miles inland from this seaside resort north of Los Angeles.

The campers, who attend one or more of the five two-week sessions, work on 10 computers, the sort that are set up for home use. The youngsters, about 20 per session, range in age from 10 to 15 and pay $795 each.

Students have come from as far away as New York, London and Tokyo to learn to use the computers, which are equipped with television-type screens and keyboards similar to those on typewriters.

"Computers have a certain fascination," Bolly said. "It's almost like a new hobby."

A decade ago, the current home computers, costing $1,000 to $2,000, were unheard of, Bolly said.

"When I started using computers in 1966 or '67, a computer took up the whole ground floor of the building and cost in the millions," he said. "Yet these little home computers are more powerful than that by a factor of five or 10."

The students begin by becoming "computer literate" — learning computer languages, although Bolly predicts that within five years computers will be able to understand human speech. Some are already equipped with synthesizers that enable them to talk, using limited vocabularies.

One language, aptly named Basic, enables students to give a variety of simple commands using English words and some symbols. It could be used with a home computer to make airline reservations, obtain news or perform other simple functions. More advanced students learn languages geared for more difficult commands.

Greg Berman, a 12-year-old from Santa Barbara, is one of the advanced students. He designs programs that create graphics similar to those used in movie titles. Elaborate combinations of brightly colored geometric shapes form, dissolve and give way to lettering, which in Greg's case reads: "Computer-Camp."

Greg also enjoys explaining the camp's mini-robot, called Turtle

because it looks like one. "You hook it up to a computer and, for instance, when it runs into something, you could program it to say, 'Ouch!'"

Camper Tom McCroskey, 15, of Atlanta, plans to study electrical engineering. "Computers are an expanding field and I'm interested in them," he said.

And Andy Reed of Alexandria, Va., who's 12, said he was given a basic computer for his birthday two years ago and has been adding components since then, as previous generations did with stereos.

California court nixes abortion fund cutback

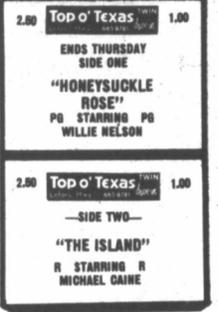

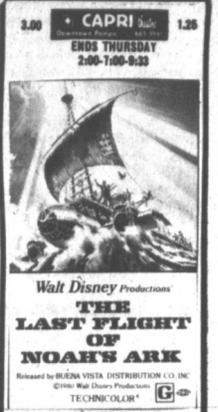

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Supreme Court has ordered California officials not to curtail funds for abortions for welfare recipients until the panel can rule on the issue.

Under the 1980 state budget, funds for abortions sought by women who receive Medi-Cal benefits, a form of guaranteed health insurance available to the state's lower income residents, would be severely reduced as of Aug. 16.

Opponents of the cut filed a petition Thursday, saying 8,000 women a month would be deprived of safe abortions if the reduction occurred.

Stays similar to the one granted Monday by the high court had been granted earlier on petitions filed by the Committee to Defend Reproductive Rights and others against restrictions in the 1978 and 1979 budgets.

After holding hearings, the high court postponed oral arguments on the 1978 and 1979 budgets to September. The 1980

Kidnapping suspect returned to Colorado

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A teenage girl, accused of kidnapping a Colorado Springs toddler last year and then trying to sell him in Texas as a nationwide search developed for the pair, has been returned here from Cheyenne, Wyo.

The girl, identified as Letha Rose Kingsbury, 16, was returned to the El Paso County Jail here Monday night by sheriff's deputies after she waived extradition, authorities said.

Authorities said she is scheduled for a court appearance today in connection with the second-degree kidnap warrant that led to her arrest near Cheyenne on Saturday.

She is accused of kidnapping Jamie Moksheski, now 3, from his parents home last Sept. 25. Charles Moksheski had taken the girl into the family home as a babysitter after giving her a lift. She identified herself as Jo Ann Ferguson. Authorities later determined her real name was Kingsbury, a runaway from Cheyenne.

The family was unaware then that the girl had just been released after serving time for prostitution in the county jail.

The boy was rescued in Liberty, Texas, Oct. 12 after a Texas meat shop operator picked up a teenage girl and child who were hitchhiking and the girl tried to sell the boy.

The girl escaped Texas authorities by climbing through a window during a break in questioning by social workers.

Jamie's parents, Charles and Vera Moksheski, were glad the girl had been arrested but said Jamie cringes and puts his head down when he sees her picture on television or hears her name.

"He had real bad dreams and seizures for awhile," Mrs. Moksheski said. "And he still won't let me wash his head under water. We don't know why or what she did to him while she had him."

"Jamie just drew into himself" when he saw the girl's picture on television after her arrest, Mrs. Moksheski said. "Whenever her name is mentioned" he puts his head down, she added.

Texan among four killed

RUBIDOUX, Calif. (AP) — Authorities were investigating a light plane crash near a small Riverside County airport that killed a Texas man and three other people, authorities said.

Two men in the cockpit of the twin-engine Beechcraft were pronounced dead at the scene of Sunday's crash just west of Riverside, according to fire department spokesman Paul Elks.

The other two passengers, a teen-age boy and girl, died shortly after the wreck at Riverside Community Hospital, investigators said.

A spokesman for the Riverside County coroner's office identified the victims as John Raymond Koo, 61, of San Marcos, Texas; Harvajan Singh Bedi, 44, of La Verne; Gurpreet Bedi, 14, also of La Verne; and Varinder P. Bedi, 16, of Concord.

Investigator Jim Wall of the National Transportation Safety Board said the plane, on its way to Wyoming, had taken off from Riverside Municipal Airport and was about to land at nearby Plabob Airport.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Spectacle of shame

The Olympic Games, such as they are, commenced in Moscow this Monday, July 21. They deserve to be shunned by the world.

As has been widely predicted for months, the rulers of the Soviet Union are attempting to use the event as a showcase for their communist state. In preparation for the festivities, the government has cracked down yet harder on dissidents and foreign press coverage in what was already one of the most repressive societies in the world.

Americans can take pride that their nation is among scores that will not be participating in this disgrace. That the president of the United States felt it necessary to coerce our nation's athletes into not attending was regrettable; we would hope that these men and women of sport would have on their own come to regard the moral imperative of boycott as outweighing even the fruition of their many years of preparation and dreams. It is shameful that many athletes from other "free" nations who were given that choice will be taking part in the Moscow spectacle.

Some have argued that to permit value judgments about the Soviets to affect this quadrennial celebration of sportsmanship is to let politics impinge on the Olympics. In fact, that was what occurred several years ago when the Games were awarded to Moscow. That was when the trustees of sport's greatest tradition cynically and stupidly acceded to the political impulse. They are to blame for giving custody of the event to exploitative dictators, and for all the tragic consequences that have followed.

May this black moment in one of man's finest endeavors be over with soon, but may its lesson not soon be forgotten.

The Afghanistan Olympics

For the population of Afghanistan, the beginning of the Olympics is not as important as the end. It is not that there will be Afghan sportsmen competing in Moscow — most of them have defected. What concerns the people of Afghanistan are Soviet bombs, not gold medals. And the day after the Moscow Olympics close the world can expect to witness a Soviet offensive that will slaughter even more of the stubborn resistance fighters in that mountain nation.

The Soviet army invaded Afghanistan last December and has suffered moderate casualties, possibly 1,000 dead and 6,000 wounded. What the world does not know is how many citizens of Afghanistan — men, women and children — have been butchered by the occupation forces. As of late the Soviets have been introducing new and sophisticated weapons to put down the rebellion.

Some of the weapons are likely in violation of treaty agreements which the Soviets have signed. For example, the Russians appear to be experimenting with a new hollow-point bullet that flattens on impact. The bullet is similar to dum-dum bullets which are strictly prohibited by international treaty. Ironically, the bullet was first used by the British when they were trying to subdue the Afghan people a century ago. The British, even with the dum-dum, never succeeded.

Another example of the Soviets' disregard for international law limiting the use of weapons, is the probable Soviet use of poison gas. Even Hitler on the verge of defeat did not turn to his poison gas stock. The Soviets may not be showing the same restraint. There are reports that gas was used as part of a Soviet drive in a northern Afghan province. It is hard to confirm these reports because, obviously, the Kremlin is not about to let any Western journalists cover the cruel little war.

All of this calls into question any idea of depending on treaties with the Kremlin as a method of maintaining peace or limiting arms. Importantly, the Afghan government had a host of treaties with the Soviet Union. Those treaties did not prevent the Russians from sending 100,000 troops into that small country and summarily executing the country's president.

The United States cannot rely on treaties; nor can it rely on good will. This does not mean this nation should become as militaristic as the Soviets — that, too, would destroy freedom in the name of saving it. Yet the American people must, if only on an individual basis, refuse to deal with the Soviet Union. American companies should forsake the temporary profit of selling their wares to the Kremlin despots. The Kremlin will respect and fear the resolve of the American people as it clearly does not respect or fear Jimmy Carter.

Ideas on liberty

Out of all these material gains none compares to the greater gain in finding that life is more than the bread and bed. This is what America stands for. There was much reward outside of material gain in the pioneer life of our forefathers. To be a good neighbor was rewarding. To be a responsible citizen brought recognition. The secret of our very successful youth agencies such as the Boy Scouts, the 4-H Clubs, the Future Farmers and similar organizations may be that they recognize the worthiness of any achievement or the extra mile of any individual.

In a government-controlled system much of this may be lost, because why go an extra mile when some get rewards just because they exist as numbers. This is why we do not want a system of government where the state and its agents make the rules. But to avoid such an order for the masses, we must each of us become individuals who make it a part of our character to go the extra mile on every road and do every task beyond the call of duty, not just for a state or organization or institution or company, but for much more than these: for the dignity of man and his chance to be worthy of being free to choose.

The reward for the extra miles may come in promotions and increased pay, but more than such remunerations will be the compensation that will come out of the growing inward satisfaction and the respect and love of our neighbors. These gains must be earned.

—George D. Scarseth, "That Extra Mile"

One circus, one to go

By Oscar Cooley

The circus is over. The shouting and laughter have ceased. The horns are quiet, the silly hats no longer waving. The people have gone home.

I refer not to the classic spectacle popularized by P.T. Barnum and the Ringling Brothers but to the Republican National Convention.

It was held to choose a candidate for the presidency of the United States, but it did not do that for the choice had already been made.

To keep the delegates occupied for four days — after all, they could not spend all that time imbibing Detroit's beer — many speeches were made. These were mostly bombast. Nothing said will be remembered by anyone except those who seek utterances to refute.

A couple of months hence, the Democratic National Convention will take place. It, too, will be a circus, a carbon copy of the Republican. It, too, will be called to name a candidate who has already been named.

Our political conventions must mystify the Europeans, who are used to thinking of Americans as worshippers of efficiency — purposeful folk who seek results with a minimum of ceremony and embroidery. One wonders what the Soviet people think about it all.

There was a moment during the Republican convention when it seemed possible that something of lasting value might be achieved. This was on Wednesday, when Gerald Ford was being discussed as a likely candidate for the vice-presidency.

He would accept, according to report, only if, assuming his election, the office of vice-president be given more important responsibilities than it now has.

Assuming that to accede to Ford's suggestions did not require a vital change in Reagan's announced policies, it was a reasonable request. If granted it might have led to some real improvement in the U.S. government.

The presidency has become a very complex and burdensome office. Weighty decisions, having to do with a wide variety of issues, domestic and foreign, have to be made. One senses that no human being is equal to the demands made on the president of the United States. Unexpected dilemmas, like that of the hostages, continually burst upon him.

When a job becomes so complex an individual cannot handle it, it has to be simplified through delegation of duties. It is high time this be considered for the job of president.

What is more logical than that the vice-president be made an assistant president and given certain specified areas of responsibility? This would not only lighten the crushing load on the president but would give the vice-president practice in the office which he may, at any moment, be called upon to fill. It would also lend dignity to the office of vice-president, who is now looked upon as a mere spare part.

But this was not done. Ford's request was refused and George Bush was chosen. Was this because Reagan seeks power and is reluctant to share it? It is impossible to say, at least until the details of the Ford-Reagan interchange are known.

However, it is possible to say that the man who came off best in this episode was Gerald Ford. His services as a candidate for the vice-presidency were highly desired. He agreed, under one condition: that in case he were elected along with Ronald Reagan, changes would be made in the job of vice-president — changes which seem highly desirable in the interest of better administration of the government.

Surely Gerald Ford, who has been both president and vice-president would not have made this proposal unless convinced by experience that it would be beneficial.

His condition was refused by Reagan. What may one conclude except that the Republican nominee for president, in his first decision following his nomination, missed an opportunity not only to strengthen his ticket politically, but to take a step toward a change in government that could result in genuine benefit to the nation?

Letters

Editor, The Pampa News:

In the recent past, you will recall, the Carter Administration proposed a sneaky ripoff in the amount of 15 percent from our interest on C.D.'s stocks and bonds. Also, you will remember that we became active immediately by sending letters of protest to all of our area Congressional members, keeping our fingers crossed in anticipation of favorable replies.

Our previous letter to the Editor acknowledged receipt of a communication from Senator Lloyd Bentsen, in which he firmly rejected Jimmy Carter's ignoble intention to make another "grab." At the time you published our letter we were still waiting for replies from Jack Hightower and John Tower — which we have now received and would like to share with you some short excerpts from them.

Rep. Hightower states: "It is an untimely and inappropriate proposal...we have to do everything we can to encourage savings...this proposal would have the opposite effect...extremely unlikely to become law."

Senator Tower says, "The Administration's proposal to withhold interest will certainly not encourage people to save...it amounts to forcing retired citizens or others to make interest-free loans to the government...its only use would be to help 'balance' the budget...If the proposal actually reaches the full Senate, I will make the strongest effort to give it a swift burial."

And there you have the gist of how our elected members of Congress feel. Thank God there are some level heads up there in Washington! And thanks, too, to all of those who joined us in protest by writing letters (something in which we hope that we had a small hand) because there MUST have been many others who took pen in hand and jotted down their objections. One letter doesn't carry much weight, but a flood of them will make our men in Washington wake up and sniff the bacon!

Last flat in Paris

by ART BUCHWALD

It is incumbent on every columnist to see "Last Tango in Paris" and comment on it. Some critics have called it the greatest movie of our time. Others have written that it is one of the great ripoffs of the film industry.

But having seen the movie, I would like to advance the opinion that most critics have missed the point of the picture.

"Last Tango in Paris" is not, as it has been described, the story of an aging American (Marlon Brando) and a young girl (Maria Schneider) in a desperate sexual battle for survival.

It is really a simple heartwarming film about two people trying to rent the same apartment in Paris.

Only those who have ever searched for an apartment in Paris can appreciate what Brando and Miss Schneider go through for this lovely flat near the Seine.

In the film, Brando plays a washed-out American, whose wife has just committed suicide. He wants the apartment in the worst way. So does the young French girl.

They meet by accident in the empty flat, and you see Brando's mind working. He figures if he rapes the girl, she'll go away and he'll get the apartment.

But Miss Schneider, a child of the French bourgeoisie, is made of sterner stuff, and she puts up little resistance to Brando's assault. As a matter of fact, while she is being bounced around by Marlon, she is really measuring the floor to see how much carpeting it will take.

The next day they are back at the apartment again. Brando has brought a table, chairs and a bed to assert his claim to it. But Miss Schneider is not impressed and walks about the place as if it were hers.

This infuriates Brando and he throws her down on the bed and keeps muttering, "It's mine, it's mine." Miss Schneider just laughs at him.

All the time they are making love, she is looking at the window, trying to figure what size curtains she'll need for the room.

Brando, exhausted and fearful that he'll lose the flat, visits his mother-in-law and dead wife. We see the tiny hotel he lives in and realize why Brando is so intent on getting the apartment. Miss Schneider goes off with her fiancé and we discern why she wants a new place to live.

Back to the apartment. Rather than being frightened by Brando's brutality, Miss Schneider becomes more determined than ever to wrest the key away from him.

The next time they meet, she's in her wedding dress and Brando is so mad he throws her in the tub. Miracle of miracles, the plumbing works and Brando gives Miss Schneider a bath while she figures out what color scheme would go best with the white medicine cabinet.

By this time, Brando is worn out and figures the apartment isn't really worth it. He leaves without telling Miss Schneider his name.

A little battered from the sexual encounters, Miss Schneider returns triumphantly with her fiancé to show him the flat. But after all Miss Schneider's been through, the fiancé takes one look at the place and declares, "It's too big."

This is when I started to cry.

I don't know if "Last Tango in Paris" is a great movie or not, but I believe that director Bertolucci has made an important social statement about one of the real outrages of our time, which happens to be the housing shortage in France.

Communist Poland: still a slave state

By Edward S. Rankin
Executive Director
Americanism Educational League

Recently many American newspapers carried an AP dispatch from Warsaw, Poland, with some incredible quotes from Dr. Armand Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum Corporation of Los Angeles.

We believe that these statements should be publicly refuted, so that our citizens will realize Communist Poland is still very much a slave state.

Dr. Hammer is quoted as saying, "There may be curtailments in the freedom of speech (in Poland), but as Oliver Wendell Holmes once said, no man should abuse that freedom and cry fire during a theater show."

"Polish dissidents are not exactly liked by the government here", he added. "But even in America, dissidents are often brutally dealt with by police."

The first statement, implying that Polish dissidents are "abusing freedom of speech", is patently absurd.

The Polish People's Republic is a Communist state closely structured on the Soviet model. Its 35 million people have no freedoms. The Polish Communist Party — 6.6 percent of the people — and its top leadership controls the life of every citizen.

Poles are not free to travel abroad. The media are rigidly censored. Military service is compulsory.

Over 72 percent of the people work directly for the government...only the small, private farmer has any degree of job freedom.

There is no meaningful political opposition — no Kennedys, Reagans or Andersons to challenge the head of state. The Court system — top to bottom — is entirely subordinate to Communist party policies and directives.

Food is inadequate. The waiting period is 5 or 6 years for a tiny apartment. Why shouldn't the Polish people complain about these conditions of life...or rather, conditions of slavery? "Abusing" freedom of speech indeed!

On Dr. Hammer's second point, actually dissidents in Poland are routinely harassed, jailed or tossed into psychiatric hospitals.

In America, contrary to Dr. Hammer's statement, dissidents are only very occasionally "brutally dealt with by police". The independent Court system in our country has gone to great lengths for decades to insure the rights of barbaric criminals, as well as mere "dissidents".

Under our free system, Dr. Hammer has built a gigantic business enterprise — Occidental Petroleum Corporation, with over 34,000 employees...$9.95 billion in annual sales (1979)...and $5.56 billion in assets.

Could he have done so well in the Polish People's Republic?

Judge denies request to delay alien children rule

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP)— U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals says school boards in Texas are "not waging a successful war against the great enemy-ignorance", has refused to delay his order that Texas must give a free public education to the children of illegal aliens.

Seals ruled July 21 that a Texas law requiring children of illegal aliens to either pay tuition or be denied an education, depending on each school district, was unconstitutional.

Attorneys for some of the 17 school districts involved in the federal lawsuit and lawyers from the state attorney general's office said a delay was necessary because of the financial burden that would be placed on many Texas schools come September.

Seals said "appeal to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals. I will not stay this order. Time is important. If I stayed this order, the public would suffer, the children would suffer. The school districts would not suffer and the taxpayers would not suffer."

Attorneys for the Houston Independent School District and others said property taxes, which support the state school system, would increase from 5 to 7 percent.

The judge said he wanted a hearing after the first week of September to determine how many children of undocumented children had enrolled.

State attorneys claimed there would be an influx of 111,000 youths. Lawyers for a group of Hispanic parents said there would be no more than 20,000.

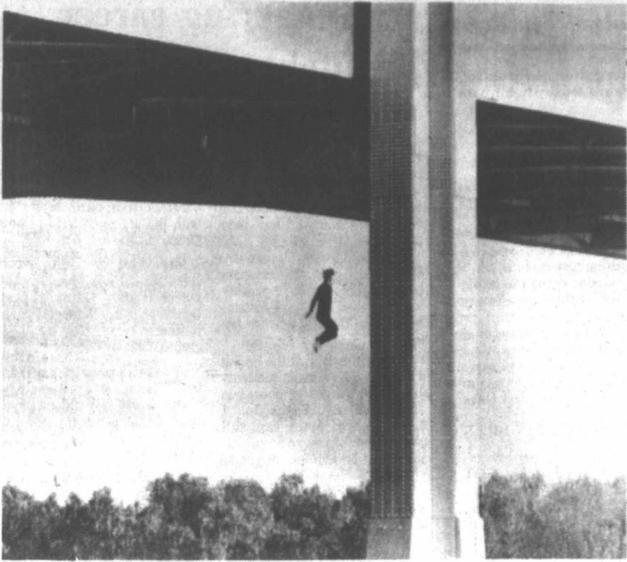

"It is time to find out how many children are involved," Seals said. "We will know in September. I have found that school boards and school administrators are very competent and resourceful. I think they can meet this challenge."

"We can't put off this case any longer. We must determine how many children will register. It is very easy for the state to appeal to the 5th Circuit Court for a stay. I am certain they will decide very quickly on this issue."

Gregory Wilson, an assistant attorney general, said such a request would be made immediately.

A group of Hispanic parents filed lawsuits against 17 school districts where their children were either forbidden to attend public schools or were required to pay tuition as high as $1,000-a-semester.

Imposter: "I'll never do it again"

By PAT LEISNER
Associated Press Writer
BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — Jeffrey Streeter's second day in court went much better than the first. This time he went home.

Two weeks ago, Streeter thought he was doing a stranger a favor when he agreed to stand in for a man charged in an assault case. He never dreamed he would be convicted. But he was.

Polk County Judge Edward Threadgill reversed that conviction Monday, saying the wrong man had been found guilty in the July 15 trial.

"I sat there thinking what if I had to go back to jail," said Streeter, who could have been sentenced to up to a year in jail. "I was nervous. Some words they were using I couldn't understand. It was making me scared because I didn't know what they were saying. 'I didn't relax until the judge told me I could go.'"

Streeter's trials began when Tampa attorney Warren Dawson spotted him in a hallway outside the courtroom and asked him to sit in for defendant Lee Marvin Anderson.

Dawson didn't tell the judge about his spur-of-the-moment switch, an idea he concocted to prove that witnesses couldn't identify Anderson. Three eyewitnesses then proceeded to identify 19-year-old Streeter as the person who beat up an old man in a parking lot on April 17.

Before delivering his verdict in the non-jury trial, Judge Threadgill was told of the substitution, but he said he had no alternative but to find Streeter guilty based on the evidence.

Streeter spent the night in jail before being released on his own recognizance. He called it "the worst day of my life."

To untangle the mess, Threadgill heard motions Monday from three attorneys who all wanted to clear Streeter. But:

—The state wanted Anderson brought to trial and Dawson held in contempt.

—Dawson wanted the record corrected but didn't want Anderson to be brought to trial.

—And Streeter's attorney simply wanted his client's record cleared.

Dawson, who apologized for the switch in a letter to the court, argued that to try Anderson again would constitute double jeopardy and violate a state law requiring trial within 90 days of an offense.

Assistant State's Attorney James Horrell objected, calling the request "preposterous and ridiculous." Horrell contended Anderson was never tried.

Threadgill, who denied contempt motions against Dawson on grounds that he had not intended to obstruct justice, sided with the state and ordered the Anderson case docketed for trial on the original charges of assault and battery.

IMPOSTER, Jeffery Streeter, 19, says he'll never do a favor for a stranger again. He agreed to impersonate a real defendant in an assault and battery case and wound up in jail. The judge, who knew nothing of the charade beforehand, reversed the conviction Monday saying the wrong man had been found guilty. The defense attorney said he engineered the switch because he thought the witnesses in the case didn't know what the real defendant looked like.

Judge asked to admit alien

DALLAS (AP) — Lawyers for a group of illegal Mexican alien children have asked a federal judge to order the Dallas Independent School District to admit alien pupils this fall.

U.S. District Judge Robert Hill took no action on the request filed Monday. He said he had not yet received a copy of a ruling made last week in Houston that declared a Texas law prohibiting the use of state funds to educate illegal aliens is unconstitutional.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals last week serves to open Texas public schools to illegal aliens since school districts had cited the state law in either charging tuition or turning aliens away.

Seals did not actually rule in a case filed by a group of illegal aliens in Dallas, but sent the case back to Hill for final disposition.

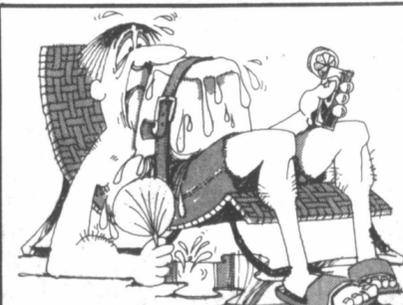

The Dallas case was to be heard by Hill until it was consolidated with 16 similar cases and assigned to Seals.

The Dallas suit was originally filed by a group of 19 illegal aliens and their parents in April of 1978. Hill refused to grant a temporary injunction mandating enrollment of illegal aliens in Dallas last fall.

Dallas School Superintendent Linus Wright has appointed Joe

Martinez, an administrator in the elementary learning department, to implement enrollment of the expected group of about 5,000 illegal alien children.

Surveys by the school district indicate that 26 schools, located in west Dallas, Oak Cliff and areas near downtown will receive the brunt of the illegal alien children. Most of the schools are operating near capacity and district officials have said they may have to purchase as many as 200 portable classrooms to handle the additional pupils.

Indonesians relocated to ease crowding

By KENNETH L. WHITING
Associated Press Writer

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The moving of Indonesians from three overcrowded islands to others with fewer people has fallen so far behind schedule that a day-and-night airlift is planned.

Nocturnal flights to air strips equipped with portable lights should get under way by the end of the year, one official announced.

The official timetable calls for moving half a million families, about 2.5 million people, by 1984 from the intensely cultivated rice-growing Java, Bali and Madura. The three islands now hold 64 percent of the population of 140 million.

The pioneers go to some 25 locations in sparsely populated and less developed areas of Sumatra, Sulawesi (Celebes), Kalimantan (Borneo) and Irian Jaya (West New Guinea).

President Suharto ordered a speedup several months ago when it was announced there was a three-year backlog of 79,205 families awaiting resettlement.

The government allocates each settler family 12.5 acres and promises to have the first 2.5 acres cleared by the time they arrive. A one-year subsistence allowance, a two-room house, farm tools, seed and fertilizer are provided.

Transportation is free and, if the airlift meets its targets, 1,500 people a day will be moving.

The priority project is a key weapon in Jakarta's attack on the chronic problems of food, jobs and population. None of the experts say transmigration will ease overcrowding on Java, but most expect it to provide opportunities and to help develop the outer islands.

Mass resettlement is now new. The then-colonial government of the Dutch East Indies shipped thousands of Javanese to Sumatra beginning in 1905, only to conscript many of them as plantation labor.

Records show the Dutch were shifting about 40,000 people a year by 1940. Transmigration was interrupted by World War II, but resumed afterward in newly independent Indonesia under the late President Sukarno. Almost 300,000 people were moved from Java in the 1950s.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to be married in the eyes of God only? As the widow of a retired railroad man, if I marry again, I'll lose my widow's retirement benefits.

Five years ago I fell in love with a fine and decent man—a retired disabled widower. We love each other and want to marry, but that means giving up my widow's benefits, and we can't make it on his check alone. So we are forced to live in sin.

I'm a God-fearing woman, Abby, but we love and need each other, so we're living together.

We are trying to get a law passed (like Social Security) that will permit widows of railroad men to marry, but until we do, we are in a bind.

Please print this, Abby, because we railroad widows don't have anyone fighting for us. We are the forgotten people. Thank you.

M. IN PASSAIC

DEAR M.: I have heard that there are some compassionate ministers who will bless a common-law union such as yours, enabling you to be married in the eyes of God even though you are not married in the eyes of the law. If there's one in Passaic, I hope he contacts me. I also hope someone champions your cause so railroad widows can remarry without losing their benefits.

DEAR ABBY: A very good friend of ours is in the real estate business. Several months ago we gave him a referral, and he got the listing and sold the house. He said when it closed escrow he would either give us a gift certificate for a department store, or he and his wife would take me and my wife out to dinner.

Last night we went out to dinner with them at a very nice restaurant. When the check came, you can imagine our shock when he said, "Well, let's split the bill."

He must have forgotten his offer, so I paid my half and didn't say anything.

Should this be ignored? Or is there a way-I can mention his promise without causing embarrassment on either side? JUST DON'T KNOW

DEAR JUST: He's probably forgotten his promise, so don't mention it. But if he reads this column, you may collect after all.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I am always in debt and can't seem to get out. I don't know what to call myself except maybe "stupid."

My husband makes a good living, but the only bills that get paid on time are the rent and the utilities because he pays them. I write checks for everything else and also do a lot of charging. Right now I am overdrawn at the bank, have several unpaid bills staring me in the face and am scared to death to tell my husband.

I am not extravagant with myself. It's usually something I buy for the children or the house. This is nothing new—I have always been behind in my bills—but this time I can't see my way clear. I'm ready for a nervous breakdown. I'm considering borrowing some money, but the interest rates are so high. What should I do?

DROWNING IN BILLS

DEAR DROWNING: First I will tell you what NOT to do. Don't borrow any money without your husband's knowledge! Then close your charge accounts, hand your husband your checkbook and tell him about the mess you're in. If he doesn't immediately remove you from the treasury department, resign! You can learn how to budget if you really want to, and you should. But until you do, let Hubby handle the family fortune.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do you have any diet for a person with a hiatal hernia? I've been getting terrible pains in my chest and went to the doctor to check for a gallbladder and he gave me an upper GI series X-ray and electrocardiogram. It seems like everything I eat either comes up and I have to retch it or else I have a sour stomach and I need to burp all the time.

I waited for several weeks and called my doctor's nurse and she checked the results of my tests and said the only thing I had was a small hiatal hernia that most people have and are not aware of. She said it would never go away unless operated on and that I just had to not eat spicy foods. I asked about coffee, and I drink a lot of it, and she said that it was OK.

I asked if she could send me a diet and she said they didn't have one but just to watch what I eat and if I got any pain to take some Donnatal tablets that they gave me. They didn't say anything about antacid pills which I just about live on.

I spent this money on X-rays and still don't know what to do. She said to lose weight but I don't know what type of diet to go on. I am overweight. I'm 5 feet 2 and weigh 150 pounds. Could you give me some information that would help?

DEAR READER — It sounds like you need quite a bit of help. To start with, there's no special diet for hiatal hernia other than not to eat very large meals. You may need to eat frequent small meals to satisfy your nutritional requirements. Any time you overload the stomach it's apt to leak back into the lower esophagus and cause the problems that you're describing.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia, to give you more complete information on what you can do to control your symptoms. This includes keeping the head of the bed elevated, not wearing a tight belt or girdle and not lying down for at least two hours after eating. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Wallpapering career profitable for women

By BETTY SUE MORRIS
The Portland Oregonian
VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Shirley Peak is mixing colored paper and paste and coming up with greenbacks — greenbacks that stuff her pocketbook but don't compromise her independence.

The 35-year-old mother has started her own wallpapering business, an endeavor a growing number of enterprising women in Clark County are trying.

Closing the door at the end of a day's work on walls suddenly alive with stripes or checks is "fun, creative and satisfying. I make money, but I can still control my own work schedule," said Mrs. Peak, owner of The Paper Chase.

The ability to control their work schedules is the factor apparently enticing many women into the locally burgeoning wallcovering service industry.

Their involvement ranges from Mrs. Peak's two days a week — "I'm strictly labor. I'll pick up sample books from the paint store and help a customer select one if they want me to, but mostly I just hang what they already have" — to Vi Tiniakos' "26 hours a day" of consulting, buying and hanging what she calls an endless variety of wallcoverings that are flooding today's market.

"If you go to work part time for someone else, pretty soon you find it's not your part time. Your days aren't your own any more, and I need the time for my family," commented Mrs. Peak, adding, "With my own business where there's just me and my customer, I can work on the days I want to and still be able to do the things I like to do at home."

"We could probably make more working for someone else, and we wouldn't have all the headaches and tax forms to fill out. But then we wouldn't have our freedom either," observed Virginia Kern, business partner with Billie Jean Woolf in Paper Dolls.

Mrs. Kern and Mrs. Woolf, like Mrs. Peak, began their business after taking a practical look at the financial possibilities of a skill they had been, giving away for years.

"I've hung so much paper for free," said Mrs. Woolf. "A friend would say, 'Come over and help me paper my wall,' so I'd go and wind up doing the whole thing."

"I finally decided I might as well make money at it. With two kids in college, every little bit helps," she said.

Their capital investment was small: some razor blades for cutting, a straight edge, a couple of ladders, the fees for bonding and a required state subcontractor's license.

"We're just labor. We don't carry any sample books," said Mrs. Woolf.

Vi Tiniakos, however, is not "just labor."

Seven years in the wall-covering business has made Tiniakos Interiors a respected and well known local decorating award winner.

Sales from the 200 wallpaper sample books that jam Mrs. Tiniakos' den closet gross annual revenues near the six-digit mark, and pay the salaries for two nearly full-time employees.

"Wallcoverings are the cheapest and best way a woman can redecorate her entire home on a budget," she says.

Accused church slayer incompetent for trial

DAINGERFIELD, Texas (AP) — Alvin Lee King III, the accused slayer of five people gunned down during a church worship service, stuck out his tongue at news photographers after a jury found that he is not competent to stand trial at the present time.

The jury ordered King, facing five charges of murder and 10 of attempted murder, to return to Rusk State Hospital for continued psychiatric observation and said he could be found competent to stand trial at some future date.

King, a former high school math teacher, is accused of shooting 15 worshippers at the First Baptist Church of Daingerfield on June 22. Five churchgoers died during the rampage.

The only evidence submitted during Monday's hearing was a letter from Rusk clinical director Dr. James A. Hunter, who requested that King be returned to the maximum security facility for further observation.

"With regards to the question of the insanity of the defendant ... I would respectfully decline to judge on mental competency at the time of the shooting because I do not have sufficient information," Hunter said in the letter.

King's attorney, Percy Foreman, and Morris County District Attorney Charles Mac Cobb agreed with the recommendation.

Foreman told jurors the hearing was merely a formality since State District Judge B.D. Moye already had committed the defendant to Rusk for evaluation. The two attorneys said Moye's order would be binding for only 21 days and a jury would have to make the commitment decision after that time.

King recently was transferred to Rusk from a Galveston hospital where he was recovering from what police said was a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head.

Although Moye placed a gag order on the attorneys, Foreman said he would seek a verdict of innocent by insanity should the charges ever come to trial.

Suicide note found at scene of fire

BRADLEY BEACH, N.J. (AP) — A suicide note has been found in the rubble of a boarding house where a fire killed 23 people last week, but it is "highly unlikely" the woman who wrote it had anything to do with the fire, officials say.

The note was written Thursday, two days before the blaze, County Prosecutor

Alexander Lehrer said. The woman who wrote it survived.

The note said in part, "I'm sorry I have to do this. I have nothing to live for. I'm a loner. I'm better off dead."

Lehrer said he has "not ruled out any possibility" regarding the fire, but said the origins probably were not suspicious.

"At this juncture, there is nothing at the scene to indicate the fire was set," he said.

Meanwhile, the New York Daily News reported today that the boarding house, most of whose residents were elderly or mentally handicapped, may have been overdue for an inspection.

The report quoted an unnamed official in the state Division of Human Services as saying the 55-year-old building — the Brinley Inn — required an inspection every three years under.

The building was last inspected on July 7, 1977, the newspaper said.

The report said the 1977 inspection revealed no evidence of building or safety violations and that a notice of reinspection was to have been sent to the home's owners this week.

The official said the delay was caused by a shortage of building inspectors.

Lehrer said he would not comment because he had not seen the newspaper report.

Bus crash survivor sues

DALLAS (AP) — An $8.5 million damage lawsuit was filed Monday against the Central Texas Bus Lines by a survivor of the June 5 bus crash on a state highway near Jasper, Ark.

Lelia Pate, 59, of Irving, filed the lawsuit in the 14th State District Court in Dallas for damages incurred from the crash.

It is the first lawsuit to be filed against the Central Texas Bus Lines by a survivor of the accident. The accident on Round Top Mountain in north Arkansas killed 20 people and injured 13.

The lawsuit also asks for a temporary injunction to prohibit the bus company from disposing of the wrecked bus or altering its condition in any manner.

Mrs. Pate is seeking $8 million in punitive damages and $500,000 in actual damages. Her husband, Alexander Graham Pate, was one of 20 people killed in the accident.

Authorities said the bus crashed against an embankment, crossed the road and plunged 50 feet down into a wooded ravine.

An official investigating the crash said the driver, James Jefferson Thigpen, 60, of Lancaster, may have had trouble shifting the bus because of mechanical problems. Tom Calderwood of the National Transportation Safety Board said investigators found the clutch in the bus was out of adjustment and that the shift linkage was binding against the rear axle.

Another investigator, Claude Harris, said the brakes on the bus had only "70 percent effective braking" power. He said that would not have been enough to stop the bus.

Calderwood said the problems could have made it difficult for the bus driver to downshift as the bus careened down the steep mountainside.

Family of performer set funeral

NEW YORK (AP) — The family of murdered violinist Helen Hagnes Mintiks, who was found nude and bound at the Metropolitan Opera House, may now claim her body since tests by the city medical examiner have been completed.

Funeral services for the violinist have been held up because of extensive tests in the complex case. However, it was not immediately known when the body would be released to her family.

Her death was caused by the fall from the roof of the opera house, specifically by multiple fractures of the skull, Dr. Elliott Gross, chief medical examiner, reiterated Monday.

But Gross again refused to elaborate on the injuries Mrs. Mintiks sustained before her fall. "Those are details of the autopsy that I am not going to go into," he said.

The tests completed Monday revealed "no evidence of rape," Gross said.

He had released partial autopsy results late Friday.

Mrs. Mintiks was last seen at the Met during a performance of the Berlin Ballet last Wednesday. Her nude, bound and gagged body was found Thursday morning in an air shaft in the opera house. Officials say the body was thrown from the roof.

Names in the news

FREMONT, Neb. (AP) — With the help of a crooked smile and some good connections, 16-month-old Wesley Ivan Hurt may become the year's biggest little movie star.

The toddler, grandson of director Robert Altman and son of writer John Hurt of Fremont, steals scenes from the likes of Robin Williams and Shelley Duvall in Altman's latest film, "Popeye." Wesley plays Sweetpea, the "orphan" left abandoned to the maritime cartoon hero.

"He was terrific," said proud mother Christine Hurt. "He followed everyone who was talking. He didn't stare into the camera. He acted completely natural."

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A former drug rehabilitation counselor says the arrest of David A. Kennedy for investigation of drunken driving doesn't signal a recurrence of personal problems for the 25-year-old son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Don Juhl, who supervised Kennedy in three months of drug related therapy that ended earlier this year, said Monday, "As far as the problems of the past go, they're all over. He is in no kind of trouble."

Police said Kennedy was driving the wrong way on a downtown street shortly after midnight Saturday. After failing a roadside sobriety test, he was booked at the Sacramento County Jail for investigation of drunken driving and failure to have a driver's license. He was released on his own recognizance, authorities said.

SEATTLE (AP) — Egil "Bud" Krogh is taking the Washington State bar examination in hopes of returning to the law practice he lost after being disbarred for his work as a "plumber" in the Nixon White House.

Two months ago, the state Supreme Court voted 7-2 to allow Krogh to be readmitted to the bar if he passed the bar exam. Krogh, 40, of Bellevue, was one of 715 persons taking the three-day law examination that began Monday.

Krogh was disbarred in 1975 for his role in the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Ellsberg had released the classified "Pentagon Papers" about the Vietnam War.

Krogh pleaded guilty in 1974 to a federal conspiracy charge for the illegal search. He served four months and 17 days in prison before parole.

The results of the exam are not expected for three months.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Huey Newton, co-founder of the Black Panthers, faces up to two years in prison following an appeals court decision upholding his 1978 conviction on felony weapons charges.

The California Court of Appeals ruled Monday that Newton's conviction on charges of being a felon in possession of a firearm was justified.

Woman guilty of forgery

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Lalla Francis Sanders, 28, of Houston was sentenced Monday to 16 years in prison on a negotiated plea of guilty to 20 counts of forgery.

Miss Sanders had been charged with directing a group that cashed more than $7,000 in forged checks in Little Rock in three days in December.

Investigators estimated the group of four women and two men allegedly passed more than $300,000 in forged checks in Houston, Birmingham, Ala., New Orleans and Little Rock. The forgeries occurred over a period of one year.

Mennea may retire after winning gold

MOSCOW (AP) — Two track stars who stand today with Olympic gold medals around their necks are at different stages in their athletic careers. After receiving the highest recognition in amateur sports, one is talking retirement and the other is looking forward to his next major meet.

Pietro Mennea of Italy is 28. The gold medal he won Monday in the 200-meter dash was the culmination of a decade of sacrifice and dedication. His is the perspective of the man who has won the war but has grown tired of the fight.

"I won the race I wanted to win. This caps my career. I've won everything. Now I can consider retiring," he said. "After 10 years of competition, if they offered me $6 million dollars to start all over again, I wouldn't accept."

Lutz Dombrowski is a 21-year-old from East Germany, a nation fiercely devoted to excellence in sport. From the age of nine, when he started jumping, Dombrowski has been on a schedule programmed to winning Monday's Olympic long jump competition. His is the perspective of the warrior who lives to fight.

"My next ambition is to compete in next year's World Cup," he said.

Meanwhile, while Mennea and Dombrowski were reaching their goals, America's disenfranchised Olympic team arrived in Washington for a 5-day honor program as guests of the U.S. Olympic Committee. The U.S. team is boycotting the Moscow Games as a protest against the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

In a statement signed by 81 members of the team, the athletes said there is no greater honor for an amateur athlete than to represent his country at the Olympics.

"While we strongly deplore overt aggressive acts by one nation against another, we question whether the boycott of the Olympic Games is the best means available to assist the cause of peace," the statement said.

The Games, the first ever without an American team, moved into today's program with the Soviet Union the runaway medals leader with 46 golds and 124 total, one short of their Olympic record haul at the Montreal Games. East Germany, with one-fifteenth the population of the Soviet Union, was second with 88 medals, including 34 golds.

Today, the Soviet basketball team, the pre-tournament favorite, needed to beat Cuba and have Spain beat Italy to advance into Wednesday's gold-medal game against Yugoslavia. Both Italy and Yugoslavia upset the Soviets over the weekend.

Another highlight of today's schedule was the second bout for two-time defending heavyweight champion Teofilo Stevenson. The 29-year-old Cuban has won all eight of his fights, over the course of three Olympics, inside the three-round limit. He was matched against Grzegorz Skrzecz of Poland.

Today is an off day for track and field.

A new Olympic category, food-throwing, was unofficially added to the program Monday. About 30-40 athletes in Australian, British and Brazilian jackets, frustrated by the 11 p.m. closing of the disco, went on a rampage in the dining hall at the Olympic Village. They left a mess, but no real damage.

"They came through the exit and started hollering 'Music, Music, Music,'" said Mike Perry, the American coaching the Swedish basketball team who witnessed the incident. "Then they went to one end of the dining hall hollering 'Russians out of Afghanistan, Russians out of Afghanistan.'"

Perry, who said there were an equal number of male and female athletes involved in the food fight, attributed the rowdiness to Olympic steam-blowing and boredom.

"It's really the first thing that's happened here in terms of excitement at the Village. One of the reasons, I think, is that many athletes have finished competing, and now it's partytime."

"I'm afraid for the rest of the week it's gonna be a lot like this. There's nothing for them to do — the disco closes at 11. All the cartoons and movies are in Russian."

"They wanted something to do. What you had was a lot of young people with a lot of energy."

But most of the athletes expended energy in more conventional ways Monday. Dombrowski recorded the second longest jump, winning the event with a leap of 23 feet and one-quarter inch. Mennea blew by 100-meter champion Allan Wells of Great Britain in the final strides to win the 200 title in 20.19.

Dombrowski didn't know until three weeks ago that he would be able to compete here. He had suffered a pulled leg muscle earlier in the year, and he did not compete until the East German Athletic Federation arranged a special meet July 5 to test his condition.

He responded with a leap of 27-8/16, third best in the world, and moved into second place alltime on Monday, actually becoming the first athlete to land near the 28-foot mark.

PIETRO MENNEA, center, gold medal winner of the men's 200-meter Olympic race, holds up the hands of silver medalist Allan Wells of Britain, left, and bronze medalist Don Quarrie of Jamaica during the awards ceremony Monday night in Moscow. All three runners finished within a tenth of a second of each other.

Pizarro faces tough bout

MOSCOW (AP) — Luis Pizarro, a 17-year-old Puerto Rican featherweight boxer, is the only U.S. citizen with a chance of winning an Olympic medal. But it won't be easy.

The teenager's next fight will be a 125-pound class quarterfinal match Wednesday night against Adolfo Horta, a Pan American Games and world champion from Cuba.

The quarterfinals of the 13-day boxing competition began with a 12-bout card this afternoon, including heavyweight Teofilo Stevenson's second bout in his bid to win a third consecutive Olympic title.

The 29-year-old Cuban, who, through three Olympics has won all eight of his fights inside the limit, was matched against Grzegorz Skrzecz of Poland. If he gets past the Pole, Stevenson will fight the winner of today's bout between Anders Eklund of Sweden and Istvai Levai of Hungary.

"He's good, but I'm just as good as he is," Pizarro said of Horta. Pizarro looked good in beating Fitzroy Brown of Guyana for his second win to remain the only fighter from Puerto Rico, a U.S. commonwealth in this competition being boycotted by the United States and 35 other nations.

Pizarro's teammate, Luis Molina, a 139-pounder, also won two fights but had to scratch from tonight's scheduled bout against Serik Konakbaev because of a hand injury.

Coach Jose Martinez said Molina, 21, sustained muscle damage in his right hand while outpointing Dietmar Schwarz of East Germany Saturday night.

Alberto Mercado, considered the best of the three Puerto Rican boxers, was stopped in the first round of his 112-pound bout against Roman Gilberto of Mexico Saturday because of a cut right eyelid sustained from a butt.

The powerful Cubans and Soviets each qualified the ninth and 10th members of their 11-member teams Monday for the quarterfinals, while 18-year-old Nicholas Wilshire became the fifth Briton to make the quarters when he upset European 156-pound champion Miodrag Perunovic of Yugoslavia.

Wilshire, a left-hander who jabbed well and held up well in the infighting, was knocked down by a right hand late in the second round but quickly got up and eked out a 3-2 decision.

The other Cuban to win Monday was 18-year-old Orlando Martinez who put on a display of power punching to stop Ugandan George Kabuto at 2:20 of the first round of a 156-pound bout. Martinez floored Kabuto with a right hand, forced him to take a standing eight-count, then knocked him down with a left-right to the jaw before the bout was stopped.

Horta's match with Pizarro was set up when the sharp-jabbing Cuban scored a unanimous decision in the afternoon over Titi Cercel of Romania.

The two Soviet winners Monday were Aleksandr Koshkin, 156, in the daytime and Viktor Rybakov, 125, at night.

Koshkin knocked out Salah Jassim Beden of Iraq with a left hook that dropped him on his back, where he remained for about 30 seconds.

Rybakov, the European 125-pound champion who was a bronze medalist in the 1976 Olympics, counter-punched his way to a unanimous decision over Peter Hanlon of Britain.

Pampa High coach Larry Gilbert and his staff returned from the Texas High School Football Coaches Association in Houston doubly determined to win the District 3-AAAA title in 1980.

"Most of the head coaches from across the state picked Tascosa to win district with Amarillo a close second," Gilbert said. Most of them picked us to finish third. We're going to try and do something about that."

Pampa's spring practice was another topic of conversation.

"Everyone talked about how impressed they were with the spring we had," Gilbert said. "That got the staff excited and made them look forward to football season even more."

The Harvesters open the season Sept. 5 at Hereford.

The Harvesters face a real test before the season even starts when powerful Lubbock Estacado comes to town for a controlled scrimmage at 5 p.m. Aug. 29.

Estacado is top-ranked in Class AAAA and possesses a super swift backfield led by 190-pound Calvin White.

"White is rated by many scouts as the best back in Texas and that's not just me talking," Gilbert added. "He runs a 4.5 40." It will be quite a challenge for us. It will also help the players get ready for that first game."

Estacado's Louis Kelley was the regional nomination for coach of the year by Texas sports writers.

"I think that speaks well of our area," Gilbert said.

Pampa's Duane Avery, who was overlooked when the colleges were passing out scholarships, has another chance to sign on the dotted line.

Avery, a first-team district defensive pick this past season, has been chosen to play in the Greenbelt Bowl Football Game Aug. 9 in Childress.

"Duane was our best defensive back and he's definitely college material," Gilbert said. "This game is made up mainly of guys who missed getting scholarships, so I'm very excited about Duane getting to play in it. He's a very deserving player."

Avery will be on the East squad.

Lineman Vic Bradford and quarterback Rich Brown, both of Wheeler, will also be on the roster.

Danny Buzzard will represent Pampa in the annual Oil Bowl Football Game between Texas and Oklahoma Aug. 8 in Wichita Falls.

Danny made all-district as an offensive tackle (first team) and a defensive lineman (second team).

He will attend Texas Tech on a football scholarship.

Tam Bailey, starting linebacker and offensive center for the Harvesters last season, will be undergoing surgery today.

"I don't know when he'll be back," Gilbert said. "It's going to hurt not having him in the lineup. We'll have to do some shifting of personnel to take up the slack."

American Little League All-Stars travel to Plainview for the Regional 11-12 tournament Thursday. The All-Stars meet the host team at 8 p.m. with the winner advancing to the state.

Martina moves

DALLAS (AP) — Tennis superstar Martina Navratilova has decided to live full-time in her 27-room mansion in Charlottesville, Va., and has put her North Dallas home up for sale, her secretary said.

Navratilova already has transferred the headquarters of her corporation, Brat Inc., to Virginia, Bobby Williams said.

When the world's No. 1-ranked woman tennis player bought the Virginia estate earlier this year, she had said she would divide her off-tour time between the two homes.

"Martina wanted to play this low-key, because she still has a lot of friends," Mrs. Williams said. "In fact, she said if she's going to live in a big city again, it will be Dallas."

Navratilova's parents and younger sister will stay in the $125,000 home she bought when they joined her in Dallas last year, Mrs. Williams said. The family had been separated since Navratilova's defection from Czechoslovakia in 1975.

Her younger sister, Jana, now is enrolled in a private school here and is taking tennis lessons, Mrs. Williams said.

tournament Aug. 11 in Waco. "If the boys get their hitting down they should do all right," said American Little League Director Kenneth Mumford. "Their pitching and defense has really looked good."

Wendall Palmer, Pampa Middle School coach, is sore but happy after winning three gold medals, four silvers and one bronze at a Masters Track and Field Meet last weekend in Waco.

Palmer competed in eight events within a 3½-hour span and it took almost as much effort to pull himself out of bed Monday morning.

"I'm going to have to recuperate a little bit to get the soreness out," Palmer said. "I think I strained a muscle because I'm really hurting right now."

Competing in the senior division, the 48-year-old Palmer won the discus with his best throw ever, 134-8, and also brought home the gold in the shot put (36-0) and javelin. He placed second in the long jump, high jump and triple jump.

Pampa little league pitcher Cap Pitman, who created quite a controversy with his "reverse" pitching style, is featured in the August issue of Texas Magazine. Since the article was written, Cap's pitch was ruled legal by National Little League headquarters.

NFL football 1980. Don't look for a new Super Bowl champion, but watch for a surprise challenger.

The Pittsburgh Steelers have won four championships in the past six years under coach Chuck Noll and there's no reason why the dynasty shouldn't continue.

The veterans of the Steel Curtain defense, plus Terry Bradshaw, Franco Harris, and Rocky Blier, will be permanently sidelined someday, but Noll knows just how to nurse Steeler youth along. There will be somebody with plenty of talent and savvy to step in and fill the gaps.

Fellows like Dennis Winston, Steve Courson, Sidney Thornton, Gary Dunn and Greg Hawthorne are cases in point.

Who will oppose the Steelers? Don't bet against the Washington Redskins, who almost won the NFC East title in a rebuilding stage last season.

Only a Cowboy comeback, via

Roger Staubach, in the last three minutes of the Washington-Dallas playoff game, prevented it from happening.

Joe Theismann could emerge as the best quarterback in football, but it's the defense that will guide the Redskins to the promised land.

Youthful linebackers Monte Coleman, Rich Milot and Neal Oskewicz, along with veterans Ken Houston, Lamar Parrish, Coy Bacon and Diron Talbert, helped the 'Skins finish second in the conference in sacks and interceptions.

Washington was also the least-penalized team in the NFL and had the best kickoff and punt coverage.

For the first time in ages, the Redskins had both first and second round draft choices.

Several polls pick either Philadelphia or Dallas to win the NFC East, but the Redskins should scalp them both.

Texas Rangers land Figueroa

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers have acquired one sore-armed pitcher and sent another to the minors, the team announced Monday.

The Rangers acquired New York Yankee pitcher Ed Figueroa, a former 20-game winner who has been on the sidelines with elbow problems at various times during the current season.

To make room for Figueroa, the Rangers sent right-hander Steve Comer, bothered by shoulder problems throughout the season, to their Tulsa Drillers farm club in the Class AA Texas League.

"We are hopeful that Steve will be able to work out his difficulties," Ranger president Eddie Robinson said Monday. "He'll have a chance to get in the groove with Tulsa and we hope he'll be back with us shortly."

Comer was forced to leave the mound in a May 4 game against Baltimore and had a 2-4 record and 7.99 earned run average in 12 outings.

Figueroa, 31, had a 16-13 record with California in 1975, then followed with 19-10 and 16-11 record with the Yankees. The native Puerto Rican went 20-9 for New York in 1978, but was only 4-6 last year before undergoing surgery on his right elbow.

Doriss signs one year contract Barber remains lone Oiler holdout

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Houston starters defensive end Andy Dorris and tight end Mike Barber began trying this week to get to Oiler training camp. So far, only Dorris has made it.

Dorris, anxious not to lose the toehold he gained on the starting position last year, signed a one-year contract Monday, but will continue negotiations with the Oilers on an improved deal.

Barber, meanwhile, remained the lone holdout as Oiler veterans went through their third day of drills on the Angelo State University campus.

"I needed to be in camp to get started working," said Dorris, who finished second among Oiler defenders with 9½ sacks last season. "I've worked too hard to get where I am now to let it all go."

Dorris said the one-year contract was only a device "to get me on the field. I don't think we're too far from getting the real contract settled."

The Oiler defender said he would continue negotiating with Oiler executive vice president Ladd Herzog when he returned from Cleveland.

Barber, who played out his option last year, continued his holdout despite a phone call to Oiler Coach Bum Phillips following Monday's workout.

"He just wanted to tell me why he wan't here," Phillips said. "He knows he needs to be here, but he said he has something he believes he must do."

Barber caught 26 passes for 377 yards and three touchdowns last season in an offense that, he said, did not utilize his receiving skills.

He reportedly is seeking a contract exceeding $100,000 annually. His old contract paid less than $60,000 a year.

While Barber fumed over his contract, new Oiler quarterback Ken Stabler left the afternoon workout early after he became overheated in the 100-degree West Texas temperatures.

Phillips said Stabler lost about eight pounds during the sweltering workout and started having stomach cramps. Stabler's departure allowed No. 2 quarterback Gifford Nielsen and rookie Craig Bradshaw to get extra work.

Bradshaw is the younger brother of Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw and is bidding for the third-string spot among Oiler signal callers.

"Craig has a bright future," Phillips said of the seventh-round draft choice. "He has improved tremendously since he came here and I think he will improve that much again by the time camp is over."

Soviet cagers struggling

MOSCOW (AP) — The once-favored Soviet Union now must depend on help from Spain to reach the gold medal game in the Olympic basketball tournament.

The Soviets, overwhelming favorites to take the gold in the absence of the boycotting Americans, can reach the gold medal game only if Spain should beat Italy today.

The Russians, twice upset victims over the weekend, also must win, but they're expected to have little trouble against winless Cuba. Brazil plays Yugoslavia in today's other game, which completes semifinal action.

Yugoslavia, unbeaten in the semifinal competition, already is assured of a spot in the gold medal game. Italy can gain a spot with a victory over Spain. Spain and Brazil, because of critical losses to the Soviets, can only reach the bronze medal game.

While the Soviet men's team is struggling, their women's team is well on its way to a successful defense of the Olympic title it won in Montreal four years ago. They scored another top-sided victory Monday, 120-62 over Hungary.

In other women's semifinal games Monday, Bulgaria defeated Yugoslavia 81-79 and Cuba beat Italy 79-62.

The Soviet women, led by 6-foot-11, 284-pound Iuliyana Semenova, walloped opponents by margins of 35 to 66 points. Semenova is the top scorer of the women's tournament with 105 points, mostly little flips from beside the basket.

The women's final will pit the Soviets against Bulgaria, which succumbed to the host team 122-83 in the early round. Yugoslavia and Hungary will play for the bronze in the all-Communist finals.

Italian men's Coach Alessandro Gamba said momentum was the key to the big game against Spain, a team the Italians have beaten twice this year. "It's very difficult for us to play our best all the time," he said.

Led by veteran center Dino Meneghin and including a native born American in their lineup — guard Michael Sylvester of Cincinnati — the Italians pulled off the upset of the tournament by beating the Soviets 87-85 Saturday, but 24 hours later they lost to Brazil 90-77.

Spain, also featuring American native Wayne Brabender of Minnesota, has been more consistent.

Sylvester and Brabender have changed their citizenship to play for Italy and Spain.

CHICAGO'S CLIFF Johnson has his wings spread as he tries to stop San Diego second baseman Tim Flannery from completing a double in the sixth inning of their game Monday night in San Diego. Flannery was able to get the ball to first in time for the double play.

NL roundup

Weird double play helps San Diego get past Chicago, 4-2

By the Associated Press

It finally happened: San Diego's loquacious manager, Jerry Coleman, was lost for words. Still, it seemed understandable after the bizarre double play the Chicago Cubs pulled off against his Padres.

It came in the 10th inning of a game eventually won 4-2 by San Diego Monday night. The bases were full of Padres when Dave Winfield tapped to Chicago third baseman Mick Kelleher.

Kelleher stepped on third to force Gene Richards and had a double play on his mind when he threw to catcher Tim Blackwell in an effort to get Dave Cash at home.

"That's where things got muddled. When Kelleher stepped on third, he eliminated possible force plays at any other base but first. That rule seemingly escaped the memory of Cash, who simply stopped running when Kelleher's throw reached Blackwell at the plate.

Cash, assuming he was out, headed across the diamond toward the San Diego dugout and ended up being out for running out of the basepath.

"When you threw it to me, I figured you didn't touch third," said Blackwell to Kelleher, citing one possible explanation.

"I didn't see the play. I just saw him throw home and assumed I was out," said Cash.

"It was a crazy play. I've never seen it before," said Coleman, who then was asked if he said anything to Cash.

"I said nothing," said Coleman, who usually has something to say to everyone about everything. "What can you say?"

Coleman argued Cash would not have run out of the baseline if the umpire hadn't incorrectly signalled he was out. The Padres, however, did not file an official protest of the game.

Cubs Manager Joe Amalfitano, a former infielder and the voice of reason in all the confusion, may have said it best.

"If it had been me," he said, "I would have touched third and thrown to first base."

In the other National League games, the Cincinnati Reds beat the Montreal Expos 3-2 in the opener before losing the nightcap of their two-nighter 5-4. The Houston Astros edged the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 in 10 innings, the Atlanta Braves beat the New York Mets 6-3 and the Pittsburgh Pirates topped the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4.

The Padres won the game in the 11th inning on a two-run homer by Gene Tenace off Cubs reliever George Riley.

Reds 3-4, Expos 2-5

Dave Collins cracked a two-run double with two out in the ninth inning to give Cincinnati its victory in the opener before 37-year-old Fred Norman combined with three relievers on the seven-hitter that boosted Montreal to victory in the nightcap.

The Expos carried a 2-1 lead into the ninth inning of the first game, but starter Charlie Lea allowed Reds runners to reach first and second before being replaced by Elias Sosa. Sosa then fumbled a bunt by Ron Oester, loading the bases for Collins.

In the nightcap, 40-year-old Woodie Fryman set down the last three Cincinnati batters to preserve the triumph for Norman. Combined, Fryman and Norman have 27 years of major league experience.

Astros 3, Phillies 2

Cesar Cedeño's 10th-inning triple drove in Jose Cruz with the run that gave Houston its victory over Philadelphia.

Jose Cruz collected a two-out walk from Ron Reed before Cedeño rifled a 1-1 pitch to the right-field corner.

Braves 6, Mets 3

Dale Murphy had three hits, including a seventh-inning homer, while Gary Matthews had three hits, including a two-run single in the fifth, to back Doyle Alexander's seven-hit pitching and carry Atlanta over New York.

The Mets' Pete Falcone, who has made his 17 starts this season but still hasn't pitched a complete game, gave up three first-inning runs to start New York to its eighth loss in 11 games.

American League baseball roundup

AP Sports Writer

One of these days Len Barker is going to take one of his no-hit games all the way.

"I'm starting to learn how to pitch," the Cleveland Indians' right-hander said Monday night after flirting with a no-hitter for the second time in six nights, both of them against Seattle.

On July 22 he pitched five perfect innings in the weatherproof Kingdome before losing his no-hitter. That time he finished with a four-hit, 4-0 triumph.

This time, in a game delayed at the start and hampered in the late innings by rain, Barker went 6-3 innings before Bill Stein singled. And he didn't even finish what he started. But he was delighted nonetheless with his 72-3 innings of four-hit work and the 7-3 victory that gave him an 11-7 record.

"I'm 25. It's taken me a long time (to become a successful pitcher), but it's worth it," he said.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York outlasted Minnesota 7-6 in 10 innings. California edged Detroit 3-2 and, in a rain-shortened 72-3 innings, Oakland beat Toronto 5-3.

Victor Cruz came to Barker's aid in the eighth and notched his fifth save.

The Indians got a first-inning run off Jim Beattie when Miguel Dilone tripled and Jorge Orta singled. Then they struck for five in the sixth, the last three on Rick Manning's first homer of the year, off reliever Byron McLaughlin.

Yankees 7, Twins 6

Catcher Rick Cerone crashed two homers, a three-run blast in the eighth inning that put the Yanks on top 6-5 and a leadoff belt in the 10th off John Verhoeven for the victory.

A defensive gem by right fielder Reggie Jackson in the bottom of the ninth gave Cerone the chance to play hero. With the bases loaded, Rob Wilfong singled for the tying run, but Reggie's throw to Cerone at the plate nailed Jose Morales trying to score the Twins' winning run from second base.

Angels 3, Tigers 2

You can go home again. Rick Miller did — and for a change, he did something worthwhile.

"I was a little surprised tonight, frankly," Miller said after rapping out three hits, including the tie-breaking single in the Angels' two-run seventh inning. "I've never hit well here in Tiger Stadium, probably because my family's always here," said the native of Grand Rapids, Mich.

A's 5, Blue Jays 3

Although Jim Essian drove in three of Oakland's runs, one of them with a homer, it was a typical victory for the A's — and not because it was achieved in a rain-shortened 7-3 innings.

They scrambled for their runs and had two runners thrown out at the plate, one on an unsuccessful squeeze bunt.

Gervin, Spurs come to terms

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — "Iceman" George Gervin, lured by a prizefight-type bonus that compensates him for every game above 35 the San Antonio Spurs win each season, has come to terms with the team after a summer-long stalemate.

Gervin and Spurs president Angelo Drossos told a Monday news conference they had agreed to a re-negotiated contract that likely would cause the NBA's scoring champion to play out his career here.

Drossos and Gervin announced they had settled on "a substantial increase" in salary and a bonus package that would compensate Gervin for each victory above 35 each season. Drossos likened the bonus package to prizefighters being well rewarded for each victory.

Although declining to reveal the terms or length of the contract, Drossos said it would put Gervin "among the top" in pay for professional basketball players.

The smiling Gervin, too, would not discuss figures but said, "it's been a heck of a summer for me, being under a lot of pressures. I feel like a big load was lifted off my shoulders. We got it together on years and money."

Drossos said the agreement should end Gervin's periodic dissatisfaction with his contract, which has been renegotiated twice in the past two years. Gervin still had three years left on a five-year pact that was paying him a reported $375,000, far below what other league superstars collect.

"George felt he did not want to come back continually requesting a change in his contract. Once and for all, we wanted to finalize his agreement in such a way to compensate him for his playing ability, and to provide security for his career."

The contract was believed to assure Gervin a salary somewhere between a reported $650,000 a year "final offer" by the team and the $1 million Gervin said he wanted to provide security for his family.

Drossos added that the Spurs were doing away with individual merit for all players and that each team member would be rewarded with bonuses for each game won from 35 victories to 56 triumphs, a policy he said would cost the team up to $1 million a season if the team wins 56 games.

Head coach Stan Albeck said he believed the bonus approach was unique for the NBA, but might set a pattern.

"From my standpoint, it makes coaching easier," Albeck said. "I think it'll start a trend. It's a nice arrangement. You know the guys are going to play hard every night."

Kenny Rogers is rapidly making his way back up the charts with his current UA single "Love The World Away". The bearded one has been guilty of going up the charts with one release while coming down the charts with another. And that's a problem many entertainers wish they had!

I've been getting a lot of exercise this year.

To celebrate the 25th anniversary of Elvis Presley's exclusive signing with RCA Records, the company has announced plans for simultaneous worldwide release of 250,000 copies of a deluxe, numbered limited edition 8-record album, Elvis Aron Presley. The set contains 87 performances, 65 of them never before released, by the world entertainer whose career catapulted music into the rock 'n roll era.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

July 30, 1980

Joint ventures this coming year with persons you love and trust should work out well for all concerned. In fact, your involvements will do much to strengthen the existing bonds.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Should it be necessary for you to borrow something of value today, take as good care of it as if it were your own. Carelessness will be costly. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Steer clear of situations today where one friend may try to manipulate you to take a negative position against another pal. You could be caught in the middle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for personal gain are rather good today, but be careful you don't offend another in while attempting to feather your own nest.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your cautious nature could desert you today and you may be tempted to gamble on things you shouldn't. Seek long-term gains, not short ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your goals are reachable today, but the road to success may be rocky. It will take all the ingenuity and persistence you can muster.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Some valuable information could be passed on to you today, but you may not fully appreciate its worth because you are not too fond of the source. Don't be biased.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you've accumulated a bit of a surplus, it's a good time to apply some of it to old obligations. Go to your creditors before they come to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't expose your bright ideas today to persons who may not fully appreciate their value. Their negative remarks could discourage you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful to whom you repeat hearsay or gossip today. Talking out of turn could undeservingly damage the reputation of another.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Tips given to you today by "insiders" on ways to make or save your money could be misleading. The information may be only partially accurate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unless you are willing to cooperate and share today, it's not likely others will be supportive of your interests. If you divide equally, they will.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try to be complimentary toward coworkers today, rather than critical. Good results will come only if you keep your collective efforts amicable.

Rona joins television news roundup

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Circle the name that doesn't belong on this list:
Roger Mudd, John Chancellor, David Brinkley, Marvin Kalb, Rona Barrett.

Foiled you. All the names belong. It is a list NBC News correspondents.
This fall, Miss Barrett becomes part of the proud NBC News Division, courtesy of her longtime benefactor, Fred Silverman.

ABC, where Rona currently does her Hollywood reports, wouldn't make her a news correspondent. Fred Silverman would, and has.

Miss Barrett's hiring is a clear statement from NBC President Silverman that, with his back to the wall, he's going to pull off the velvet gloves and fight the fight his way. Once so self-conscious about his reputation as a dealer in schlock, bringing to NBC classy, high-risk programs like "Studio 8H" and "United States," Silverman has decided to go with his instincts.

A year ago, Silverman would have probably balked at hiring Miss Barrett, whose background as a gossip dispenser has followed her into her career as an entertainment reporter.

Today, admitting that he'll probably be out at NBC if things don't improve quickly, Silverman is going with what he knows best — getting audiences. It was Silverman who, when he was at CBS, brought Miss Barrett in for celebrity specials; and it was Silverman, while president of ABC Entertainment, who brought her to "Good Morning America."

Some "Today" show principals and admirers will resent the addition of Miss Barrett to the staid, news-oriented show.

"But that's because the perception of what she does is not exactly what she does," says "Today" producer Steve Friedman. "She's no longer the gossip queen she may have started as ... she's a solid Hollywood reporter."

Miss Barrett is a bit testy on the subject.

"Other people have always described me as a gossip columnist," she says, "because that label is automatically attached to women who write about the world of entertainment."

It should be pointed out that Miss Barrett's focus in her fan-mag days was more on the personal aspects of celebrities lives than on entertainment news.

"But I think that in the last five years on 'Good Morning America,' I've presented the business side of show business, not based on gossip, but based on fact."

To be sure, Miss Barrett was the first to reveal the identity of Charlie's latest angel, and, on a weightier matter, she was among the first to report the ascendancy of Sherry Lansing to the presidency of 20th Century-Fox.

Miss Barrett will also co-host the new "Tomorrow" with Tom Snyder. "with his approval," she points out. "Tom will be No. 1 star-billed. He reportedly insisted that I join him."

Carter may be called on carpet

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — No matter what you may have read, no president has ever gone before a congressional committee to discuss the conduct of a member of his family—at least not yet.

The possibility that President Carter may testify about his brother Billy's activities as a Libyan agent has revived a story that Abraham Lincoln appeared before a congressional panel to defend his wife against allegations of treason.

Not so, say the Library of Congress and the authoritative publication Lincoln Lore, the bulletin of the Louis A. Warren Lincoln Library and Museum.

The story was given currency by Lincoln biographer Carl Sandburg, who wrote in "Abraham Lincoln: the War Years" that the Civil War president testified before Senate members of a joint committee on the conduct of the war.

Sandburg said Lincoln appeared voluntarily at a secret meeting to deny rumors that his wife, Mary Todd Lincoln, was disloyal to the Union.

Sandburg, however, was a poet, not a professional historian, and scholars say the story does not hold up.

In 1974, when President Gerald R. Ford appeared before a House subcommittee to discuss his pardon of Richard M. Nixon, experts with the Congressional Research Service at the Library of Congress said it was the first time a president had testified at a congressional hearing on any subject.

The researchers said they could find no authentication of the Sandburg account.

Plains: Scouts climb silo

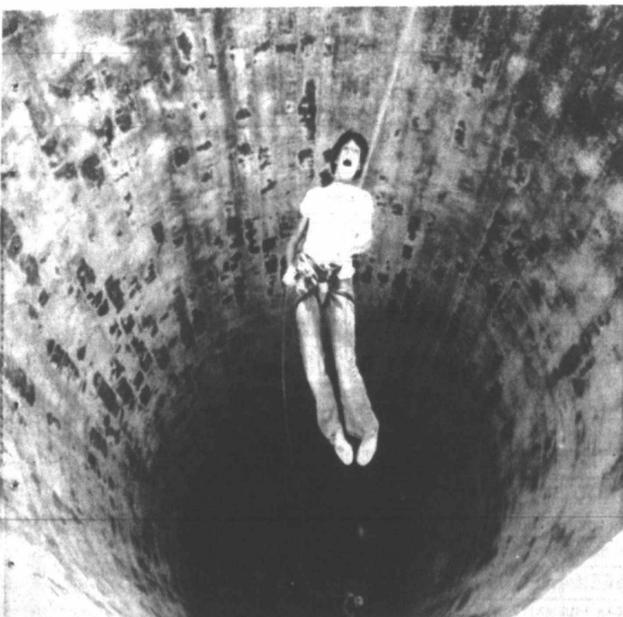

SILO CLIMBS IN KANSAS are common for Scouts who wish to practice climbing and rappelling. Senior Patrol Leader Mark Bolat of Peck, holds a rope as Eagle Scout Scott Gustin of Troop 509, Wichita, climbs up a grain silo in the flat farmlands of Kansas.

(AP Laserphoto)

PAUSING AT THE TOP, Scott Gustin takes a brief rest after scaling the 45-foot silo. The view from the top includes the skyline of Wichita, 20 miles away.

(AP Laserphoto)

GOING DOWN, Mark Bolat lets out a yell as he rappels down the inside of an empty grain silo near his Kansas home. Members of the innovative Troop 509, bear the resounding echo and await their turn at the bottom of the shaft.

'Rembrandt of forgery' is 'very likable guy'

BOSTON (AP) — Those who know him say Arnold D. Green is intelligent, warm, loving. Even officials who for decades have matched wits with the 'Rembrandt of forgery' say the quiet 60-year-old is a 'very likable guy' who just got hooked on gambling.

In the past 33 years, he hasn't spent four straight years out of jail. And now he's been nabbed again.

Police said Green and three companions were arrested near the South Station train terminal last week after they took from a locker a package containing $250,000 in corporate checks and dozens of falsified identifications. All were charged with conspiracy of forgery and uttering and conspiracy to commit larceny.

They all pleaded innocent and are to appear in Boston Municipal Court on Wednesday for a pretrial hearing. Conviction could mean a 10-year prison sentence for Green, who is recovering from open heart surgery and appears pale and run down.

"For the last 20 years I never stopped thinking about Arnie," said veteran detective Joseph McCain, an expert on organized crime in the Boston area.

"He's the country's premier paper man, xthere is. The funny thing is, he's a very likable guy."

First arrested at 17 for pulling a false fire alarm, Green has spent more than 20 years in jails from Louisiana to Massachusetts to Nebraska. He has been arrested 24 times.

"Compulsive gambling pushes him to do what he does...he's born to lose," said Suffolk County Assistant District Attorney Robert J. McKenureen studied Shakespeare and business administration while he served four years in the Army. But he was kicked out in 1947 for being a "common notorious criminal," discharge records say.

Green is currently on parole from the McNeil Island, Wash., federal penitentiary. All his convictions have been on charges related to bad checks and violations of banking laws, police say.

He has declined to talk to reporters, calling the case "a publicity stunt by police." His lawyer, Frank Kelleher, also refused comment.

Detectives call him "one hell of an organizer," a master at his work. But he's also a "sort of modern day Robin Hood," one associate said, because he'd loan money without expecting repayment.

"If he had $40, he'd give you $20," said Pat DeFrancisco, his third wife. "Once he brought a stray Doberman home for one of the kids, and the other kids said they wished they had a dog. So the next day he comes in the door with three more dogs, and he named them Faith, Hope and Charity."

"I'm praying Arnie comes out of this jam without any problems," she said. "Because if he's got to do time, I'm worried they'll take him out on a slab."
