ONE WAY TO KEEP COOL. Five-year-old Kirk McDonald illustrates one way to keep a cool head on these hot summer days. With the help of a water hose and an ice chest, he finds a new twist to the ordinary "evaporative cooler." He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee McDonald.

It's 'amazing' damage was not more extensive

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Two people died, thousands were twice forced from their homes and damages will probably exceed $200 million. But Gov. Bill Clements said today it was "amazing" that the damage was not more extensive from Hurricane Allen.

Clements, Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, and other officials toured by helicopter the mid-coast area around Corpus Christi.

Clements then announced he would ask that Hidalgo, Brooks and Aransas counties be added to the federal disaster declaration previously issued.

The governor said that while the damage was significant, it was considerably less than officials anticipated as Allen bore down on the coast.

"It's surprising if not amazing how little damage our coast has experienced," Clements said. "Even though we suffered significant damage, it was no where as extensive as we thought it would be."

The governor also said he anticipated a disaster declaration from publicly owned facilities such as highways and bridges after each county commissioners court requested it.

Frank Cox, head of the state disaster relief office, said "the immediate needs are people needs so we are going with individual assessment first."

He said that centers will be set up throughout the disaster area to aid individual citizens. Teams have begun surveying public damage, he said.

Clements and his party met with local officials after the tour. Robstown Mayor Ricardo Rodriguez of Robstown said he hoped that "we don't get strangled in the state and federal paper shuffle."

State Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said he did not want to downplay the damage to Texas crops but "we came out better than expected."

Allen, downgraded from a gargantuan hurricane to a soggy tropical depression as it meandered over northern Mexico, flung drenching rains and flooding as far as the Hill Country of Central Texas and the Big Bend of Southwest Texas Monday.

The resulting flash floods sent residents in several Texas cities scurrying for temporary refuge less than 24 hours after many had returned home from emergency storm shelters.

However, coastal residents from Corpus Christi northward began returning home and police reported floodwaters were subsiding in most areas Monday night.

Corpus Christi police Monday reported finding two people drowned, the first known U.S. victims of the hurricane, not counting two who died from heart attacks when the storm hit Saturday.

Ruby Bohler, 73, and her small dog were both found dead in her car, covered with water in a ditch near the North Beach area of town. Later in the day, a 52-year-old man was found drowned on the beachfront. His name was not released.

Heavy rains up to 16 inches drove thousands of Rio Grande Valley residents from their homes and closed almost every highway south of Corpus Christi.

"This is the worst flood we've ever had," said Mayor Ronald Case of Edinburg, where 13 inches of rain fell Monday, flooding parts of the city four feet deep. About 850 people were rescued from their homes.

Their switchboards flooded with calls for help, the Edinburg fire department called on the National Guard to aid evacuation efforts, Mayor Pro-tem Pearl Mathis said.

"We'd go to a house to pick somebody up and all the neighbors would run out of their houses and climb on the truck," she said. "We had people wading through four feet of water to get to shelters."

More than 5,000 South Texans ran from the flash floods and spent the night in emergency shelters. In the small town of Linn, about 30 miles north of the Rio Grande, residents had to break into their shelter which had been closed when refugees left it the night before.

Department of Public Safety troopers said they had to rescue three people who tried to drive a flooded state highway to Corpus Christi, despite warnings that the road was closed.

In the Corpus Christi area, Nueces County Judge Bob Barnes said damage would exceed $100 million. County Commissioner J. P. Luby took a boat tour of Mustang Island, off the coast from Corpus Christi, and said a 4,000-foot-long protective seawall was destroyed. It will cost $10 million to replace it, he said.

Ten officers of the Federal Emergency Management Agency arrived here late Monday to help process government relief efforts. Team leader Dale Milford said the government would continue sending relief agents "until we have the manpower we need to help the people of the Gulf Coast."

President Carter declared six South Texas counties disaster areas Monday, making residents eligible for a variety of state and federal aid programs.

Despite Brown's optimism concerning Texas agriculture, McAllen Mayor Othal Brand — a produce grower in the Lower Rio Grande Valley — estimated as much as 40 percent of the region's citrus crop was destroyed by the storm.

He also said nearly half — 180,000 bales — of the area's cotton crop was ruined, a loss he said would exceed $60 million.

October trial date set for Bush

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

The trial date for the capital murder trial of Paul Berry Bush has been tentatively set for Oct. 6, according to the district attorney's office. Bush, 27, has been accused in the July 12 slaying of Hemphill County Sheriff's deputy M. L. "Corkie" Guthrie.

Budget hearing set

Pampa city commissioners considered a 14-item agenda during a regular session in city hall early today.

Sept. 9 at 9:30 a.m. was set by the commission as the date for the first public hearing on the proposed $5 million 1980-81 city budget. Also, two public hearings on the Revenue Sharing budget for the same year were set on Aug. 26 at 9:30 a.m. and Aug. 28 at 5:30 p.m. respectively.

The commission approved first reading of an ordinance restricting parking in the 1300 block of Christine from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on weekdays, except for weekends and holidays.

Three bids were received and tabbed for further study on the painting and floor refinishing at M. K. Brown Auditorium.

Final approval was given on an ordinance annexing and zoning Block 5 of the Cary Subdivision to the city.

Commissioners approved final estimates to R. W. Taylor Construction, Jake Diehl Construction and Merriman and Barber, Consulting Engineers for work done for the city and also okayed all July salary changes and accounts payable.

In other action, commissioners authorized participation in a Texas Municipal League of the $326 million rate increase recently requested by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

"A tentative trial date (for Bush) has been set for Oct. 6," Assistant District Attorney Penny Burt said.

"We're nowhere near setting the venue, however," she added. "We have no idea where it (the trial) will be."

Court-appointed counsel for the accused man, Burt said, will be Pampa attorneys James M. (Rowdy) Bowers and Kenneth Fields. Bush remains in Potter County Jail where he is being held without bail while awaiting trial.

Deputy Guthrie was shot to death during the early morning hours of July 12, when he responded to a silent burglar alarm at Lad's Pharmacy in Canadian.

A shot from a 12-gauge shotgun tore through the windshield of the deputy's vehicle when it turned in front of the store.

A Texas Ranger investigating the shooting, Bill Baten, said earlier that after the initial shot, the vehicle came to a stop in front of the building.

The killer reportedly climbed through a hole in the plate glass window and fired through the windshield, he said, then allegedly walked around to the driver's side of Guthrie's car and fired through the open window.

Bush was arrested in Dumas at approximately 7 p.m. that evening after police there received a tip on his whereabouts from an Amarillo detective.

The man, reportedly suffering from a nervous disorder, had visited Lad's Pharmacy twice in May to fill a prescription for Preludin, the pharmacist said. One of the prescriptions was valid, he said, but the other was not.

Reports that the murder weapon had been located by police have not been confirmed by authorities.

Carter woos Kennedy camp for party unity

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter, his path to renomination cleared in a convention floor battle, is playing ardent suitor to his vanquished rival, Edward M. Kennedy, in hopes of achieving a reconciliation that could energize his re-election campaign.

Carter and Kennedy aides met early today to discuss procedures for negotiations that White House press secretary Jody Powell said would be held today to try to resolve remaining platform issues.

But even while professing optimism about an eventual reconciliation, two top Carter aides reiterated that there were still serious differences between the two sides.

Hamilton Jordan, the president's campaign manager, said in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" show he is confident that "with hard work in the next few days," the party will come out of the convention unified. But he said of Carter:

"Both he and Sen. Kennedy realize that some of the real differences between them cannot be lightly glossed over."

And Jack Watson, who succeeded Jordan as Carter's chief of staff, said the administration was still adamant about rejecting Kennedy-backed minority platform planks calling for a $12 billion job program and wage and price controls.

However, former United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young hinted in a CBS-TV interview that the Carter forces might be willing to go ahead with a compromise that generally supported a massive jobs program but without specifying Kennedy's $12 billion price tag.

Kennedy, meanwhile, made it clear in ending his presidential bid that he would continue fighting to put his mark on the platform and was going ahead with plans to address the Democratic National Convention tonight during the debate on the economic planks.

Today's convention session, starting at 11 a.m. EDT, was being devoted almost entirely to debating the platform.

Kennedy's long-shot hope to take the nomination from Carter ended Monday night when the convention supported a rule binding delegates to abide by the results of state primaries and conventions.

"The effort on the nomination is over," Kennedy told a news conference at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel shortly after that vote.

"I have called President Carter and congratulated him," said Kennedy. "My name will not be placed in nomination."

Powell said the telephone conversation was "a very positive and very productive conversation. They agreed the task now is to get this party together and to deal with the threat that the new Republican leadership poses."

Even before the telephone call, White House staff chief Jack Watson told reporters, "I will say to you unequivocally that the Carter-Mondale people at this convention want to unite the party. We want the senator's support. We need the senator's support."

The key to getting Kennedy's support was the platform. "I continue to care deeply about where this party stands," Kennedy said in his withdrawal statement. "And I hope the delegates will stand with me for a truly democratic platform."

"I will speak to the convention about the economic concerns that have been the heart of my campaign and about the commitments in the future of the Democratic Party. I will speak again for the people I have seen and the cause I have carried across this country."

Under an agreement reached last week, Kennedy will lead his fight for changes in the economic planks of the platform in a convention debate during prime television time.

He plans to press for a roll-call vote on a substitute plank that calls for a $12 billion program to create 800,000 jobs.

While Carter has conceded adoption of some Kennedy proposals including one that opposes using high interest rates and rising unemployment to combat inflation, he has stood fast against the $12 billion jobs program and the senator's call for wage and price controls.

At the raucous opening session of the party's 38th National Convention, the Carter and Kennedy forces were geared for a test of strength on the question of the rule.

But overhanging their internal battle was the reality of public opinion polls showing Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan running far ahead of Carter and other surveys forecasting substantial Republican gains in Congress.

So, even as they fought, the Democrats yearned for unity. Kennedy hinted repeatedly during the final days before the convention, that if defeated, he would join the battle against Reagan.

After he lost the vote on the rule, Kennedy told the Illinois delegation which supported Carter's position by a margin of 153 to 26, that "I look forward to working in the future with all of you."

As the long session neared an end, Rep. Morris Udall, the keynote speaker, urged the delegates to bury their differences and "be gentle" with each other.

He said Kennedy "fought a great fight. We owe him a debt of gratitude. He is a great man and a great American."

Youthful choir director apprehensive of first year

By DEBBIE DUKE
Of The Pampa News

In less than three short weeks, 25-year-old Billy Talley will begin his duties as director of the Pampa High School "Golden Voices" Choirs, replacing eight-year Pampa director John Woickowski, who resigned his position to take a sales position with yearbook publishers Jostin Publishing Company.

"Personally, I'm scared to death!" exclaimed Talley, with a slight grin. "I can never fill Mr. Woickowski's shoes, but I think we will make it. I'll have to adjust to the students, and they'll have to adjust to me."

Talley, a native of Amarillo and a graduate of Palo Duro High School, taught his first time this year as director at Dickinson High School near Houston. He noted that Dickinson had never had a choral program so it wasn't as hard to take over there, as he feels it will be here, replacing a talent like Woickowski.

A 1978 graduate of West Texas State University in Canyon, where he received his bachelor of music education degree, Talley is the son of Bill J. Talley and Mrs. Rosalie Bursey, both of Amarillo. He comes from an extremely musically talented family, having one brother, Randy, currently the award winning choir director at Permian High School in Odessa — one of Pampa's better rivals, — and another, Barry, who is traveling the country with his new wife, the former Debbie Lehnick, and friends with a musical group called "Driftin'." He also has a sister, Ginger, whom he claims could have been "better than all of the boys" if she'd just kept on working in music. She is currently a wife and mother in Fort Worth.

Talley is presently performing in the musical drama "Texas" at Palo Duro Canyon. This is his third summer to do the show — and, he says, his last.

"It was good when I was in college because I could go to school during the day and perform at night," reflected Talley. "But now I think I'll finish it up this season."

In his choral instruction, Talley plans to emphasize good vocal sounds and stress the idea of unity.

"I want them to be successful, but at the same time have a good time," he said.

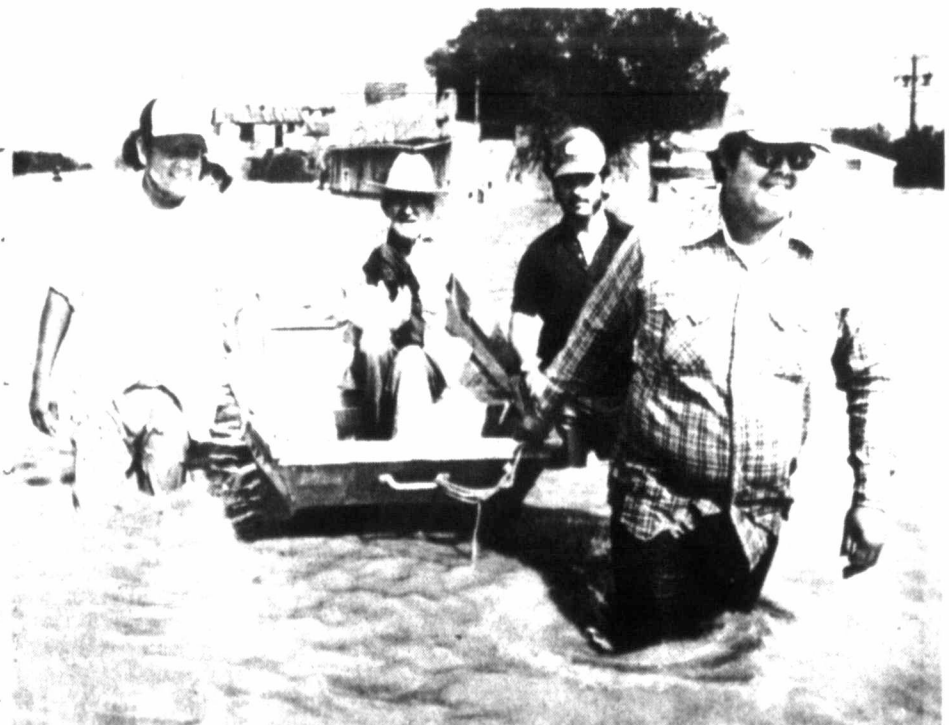

A musical production and a trip to a national contest are planned, as in years past, but the plans are not locked in as yet.

"It really depends on the kids and the booster club," Talley said. "It will be their decision, too."

Fund-raising is one of the first priorities on Talley's agenda for the coming year. The traditional cheese and sausage sale around Thanksgiving will take place, as well as the annual spaghetti supper. Other ideas are the yearly magazine and record sale and selling honey. "Again, I'll have to talk to the booster club before I know for sure," he grinned.

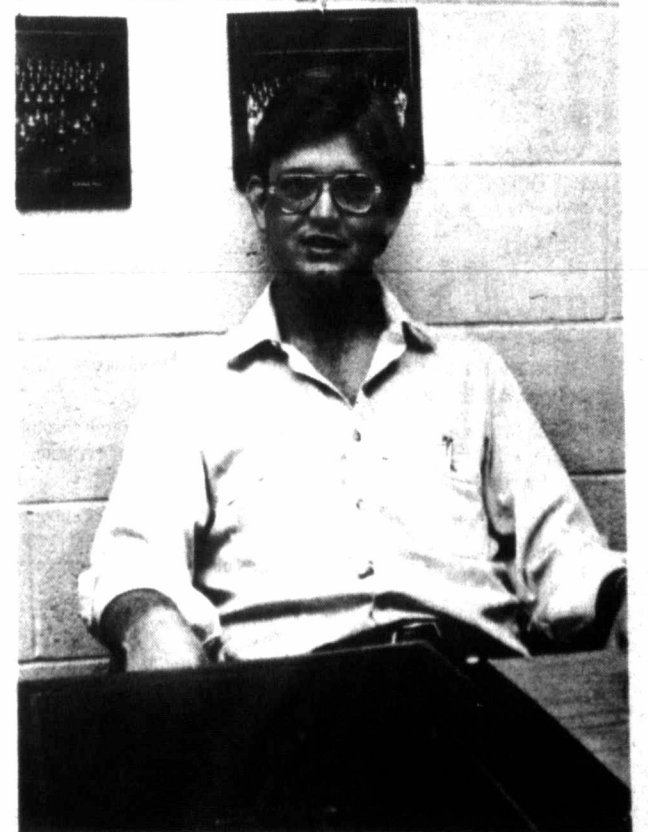

The concert choir will begin rehearsals before school starts with a practice session on Thursday, Aug. 28, from 7 to 9 p.m. At this rehearsal, students will begin work on music in preparation for the All-Region Choir Auditions on Oct. 18.

"I plan on calling Mr. Woickowski for help," Talley said, noting that Woickowski has done a great job with the choir in the past eight years. "Maybe as the year progresses, I'll learn something and won't have to call him as much!"

police report

Activity at the Pampa Police Department increased Monday after a relatively quiet weekend with officers receiving 42 calls during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today. Reports involved two arrests, and investigations of reports of burglary, damage to property and theft.

James Calvin Bullard, 19, of 2125 Chestnut was arrested at Hobart and Foster on a charge of driving while intoxicated and cited for two traffic violations.

Nelly Lidy Jr., reported for Mayo Oil Company, 1716 Alcock, that someone had entered the service station. A vending machine had been pried on, but nothing had been taken.

Sometime between 9 p.m. Monday and 6:30 a.m. today, someone had entered the fenced area of the city pool at 800 Sloan. A concession stand was broken into and about $3 worth of candy was taken. The burglary was reported by pool manager Gary Meador.

Richard Wayne Osbin, 21, of 407 Lefors was arrested for fleeing and evading a police officer and cited for violation of a drivers license restricting and traveling 80 miles per hour in a 35 mile per hour zone.

James Edward Helm, 1133 Neel Rd., reported someone gained entry to his residence and removed a container with $15 in change from the bedroom. Nothing else was reported missing.

A spokesperson for Radio Shack, 1820 N. Hobart reported an unknown person took a four-channel scanner without crystals and antenna from the store. The scanner was valued at $129.95.

Ronnie Lynn Ledford, 1116 Juniper reported someone cut the tires on his pickup that was parked on the Ideal Store parking lot at 300 W. Browning. Loss was estimated at $120.

A spokesperson for Marcum-Langen Pontiac, 833 W. Foster reported an unknown person hit five cars on the lot with rocks doing an estimated $1500 of damage to the vehicles.

Dale L. Sterling, 40, of the Davis Hotel, was arrested after a routine check on Aug. 9 indicated he was wanted in Wisconsin on felony theft charges. Sterling signed a waiver of extradition and is presently waiting for Madison, Wis. authorities in city jail.

minor accidents

An unsecured 1974 Ford pickup — left running with two dogs inside the cab — was in collision with a properly parked 1978 Ford station wagon in the 100 block of N. Cuyler Monday. The pickup, apparently knocked into reverse by the animals, traveled 30 yards backward into the parked station wagon. No injuries were reported at the scene. No citations were issued.

A 1976 Buick driven by William Edward Price, 16, of 1345 Williston was in collision with a 1977 Oldsmobile driven by Jerome Anthony Godfrey, 16, of 2236 N. Dwight in the Pampa Mall parking lot. No injuries were reported at the scene. Price was cited for unsafe backing.

Texas weather

Rainfall from the remains of Tropical Depression Allen continue to fall in Southwest Texas today.

Much of the area remained under a flash flood watch through tonight as forecasts called for more rainfall from the remains of what had been a powerful hurricane.

The flash flood watch for much of South Texas was cancelled during the night although forecasters said many rivers and creeks would remain at or slightly above bankfull levels for several days.

Forecasts called for scattered thundershowers over portions of South Texas today.

Some areas of Southwest Texas got as much as 5 inches of rainfall Monday and forecasters said as much as an inch of rain in some of those areas today would likely trigger flash flooding.

Most of the state was to have cloudy skies and scattered thundershowers today.

Highs were to be mostly in the 80s and 90s with readings in Northeast Texas expected to be around or slightly above 100.

Mostly cloudy skies were reported statewide early today. A few light showers were reported during the pre-dawn hours in North Texas.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s. Extremes ranged from 63 at both Amarillo and Dalhart and 65 at El Paso to 83 at Dallas-Fort Worth.

Counsel pledges quick results

CHICAGO (AP) — The new special counsel for the Senate's Billy Carter investigation has promised "a thorough and fair investigation" with results "as quickly as possible." And the chairman of the investigating subcommittee says he wants it all over by Election Day.

Former federal judge Philip W. Tone's appointment was announced Monday at a news conference in the offices of his law firm, Jenner & Block.

"We intend to conduct a thorough and fair investigation and to find the facts and report them as quickly as possible," Tone said.

He said he and Michael Davidson, staff counsel of the special Senate Judiciary subcommittee, will prepare an outline of the purposes and scope of the investigation to be presented to the committee early next week.

Hearings are scheduled to resume Aug. 19. The subcommittee's environment.

"The timing of this particular investigation could not be worse as far as conducting the kind of investigation we must conduct," Bayh said. He said the subcommittee is trying to act as quickly as possible in an effort to have a preliminary or final report ready for the Senate the probe before November and minimize its impact on the presidential campaign.

Tone, 57, said he had put no conditions on his employment by the subcommittee, but added that he had received "an oral guarantee of impartiality" in the conduct of the investigation.

Bayh said he believed Tone could help conduct the investigation "at a pace that will expedite it, but... at a pace that's prudent and not rushing to judgment."

The white-haired Tone is a former judge of the U.S. District Court in Chicago and the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Since resigning from the federal bench in April, he has resumed private practice with Jenner & Block. He said he will continue to serve as a partner in the president Richard Nixon.

Initial reaction to Tone's appointment was favorable. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the ranking minority member of the subcommittee, called Tone "an outstanding judge with a national reputation who will bring his experience to the investigation."

Bayh confirmed that the counsel position had been offered earlier to former Watergate prosecutor James F. Neal and that Neal had turned it down. Neal reportedly felt he had too much pressing business.

Tone said he did not know when Billy Carter might be asked to appear before the subcommittee.

The subcommittee plans to call Billy Carter at public hearings and President Carter has said he is eager to testify in person.

The subcommittee already has hired a chief investigator, Jack McDermott, a former FBI official, and has held background hearings on the Foreign Agents Registration Act, under which Billy Carter registered July 14 as a Libyan agent.

Candidate issue is settled: Demos begin platform fight

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — They say Democrats love a good convention fight.

Now that the battle for the presidential nomination is over, the delegates to the party's national gathering — many of them enthusiastic members of one special interest group or another — can squabble to their hearts' content over the party's 1980 platform.

The next day-and-a-half promise to be filled with passionate platform debate — and to provide the last bits of likely suspense in Madison Square Garden.

There will be the long-anticipated showdown between the forces of President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy over economic policy. Women's groups will be pushing a strong plank in support of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. Pro- and anti-abortion forces will tangle over two abortion planks. Delegates will try to repudiate Carter's support for deployment of the MX missile. And that's not all.

With so many issues in dispute, the Democrats found they had to set aside part of Wednesday as well as today and tonight to squeeze in all the debate. By contrast, delegates at last month's Republican convention needed only one evening to adopt their platform. They didn't have a single floor fight.

For Kennedy, his presidential campaign is over, but his fight to reshape the platform is not. So, he still planned to address the convention tonight to rally support behind an economic program that includes wage-price controls to fight inflation, a $12 billion jobs program to fight unemployment and an absolute pledge to oppose any government action that causes a significant rise in joblessness.

"I continue to care deeply about where this party stands, and I hope the delegates will stand with me for a truly Democratic platform," Kennedy said as he conceded a race he had initiated out of opposition to Carter's anti-inflation and other economic policies.

Carter plans to rebut the Massachusetts senator by sending several top administration officials to the convention podium to defend White House economic policies.

Kennedy's programs resemble traditional Democratic economic prescriptions that appeal to delegates more than does Carter's policy of restrained spending. Thus, even though Carter has a clear majority of delegates pledged to him, party officials were predicting a close vote should Kennedy ask for a roll call on his job-creation proposal.

Over the weekend, Carter made several platform concessions to Kennedy on economic issues in hopes of gaining his opponent's support and unifying the party for the fall campaign against Republican candidate Ronald Reagan.

Carter and Kennedy aides planned to meet again today to try to further narrow the platform differences. However, presidential press secretary Jody Powell said before Kennedy withdrew that Carter would not accept wage-price controls or the multi-billion-dollar jobs program.

"No president can propose or support any policies that are not in the best interests of the country," Powell said.

As of late Monday, the Carter and Kennedy camps also were divided on planks involving national health insurance and energy policies.

A coalition of women's groups was seeking to strengthen a majority plank supporting the Equal Rights Amendment with a minority proposal that the party withhold financial and technical help for candidates who do not support the ERA.

A pro-abortion group was pushing for a minority plank opposing government restrictions that deny poor women abortions financed with federal funds. Meanwhile, an anti-abortion group planned to seek deletion of a plank in the majority report that supports a woman's right to an abortion.

On foreign policy, Carter faced rejection from his party over deployment of the MX missile. Carter's position in favor of the weapons system was narrowly sustained by the 158-member platform committee that drafted the document in June. Opponents of the missile were hoping their position would prevail before the full convention.

Delegates also planned to wage a platform fight over a proposal to regulate oil companies through federal chartering, much as banks are now regulated.

Kennedy predicted to embrace Carter ticket and look at 1984

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy may play hard-to-get for a while yet, but he will almost surely embrace President Carter's Democratic ticket. He comes from a line of political realists, and there's too much at stake to turn away from the Democratic Party now.

There's 1984, for one thing. Kennedy may not be the most vigorous of campaigners for the ticket. He has, after all, spent the better part of a year calling Carter's a mistaken presidency, and accusing him of economic policies that smack of Herbert Hoover.

But words as harsh were spoken when Lyndon B. Johnson was campaigning against John F. Kennedy 20 years ago. That Kennedy chose his rival as his running mate.

This Kennedy can settle campaign grudges, too. He can't afford to do otherwise if he hopes to rekindle his presidential quest four years from now.

A Democratic leader of Kennedy's clout — and it's considerable, even in defeat — would forfeit any claim to a future nomination by sitting out a campaign against Republican Ronald Reagan.

"I believe the senator is going to be supportive," said Vice President Walter F. Mondale. "He's a good Democrat."

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, an old family ally, said he sees the last of the Kennedy brothers as the likely nominee next time — if he goes to work for Carter in 1980.

"He could blow it if he just sits in his tent," Ribicoff said.

Even before Kennedy conceded renomination to Carter and withdrew as a candidate Monday night, the president's men began a political courtship designed to woo their rival to their campaign.

Iran's prime minister says he can have a cabinet soon

Iran's new hardline prime minister, Mohammad Ali Rajaie, said he should be able to form his Cabinet in 10 days, removing the last obstacle to parliamentary debate on the American hostages.

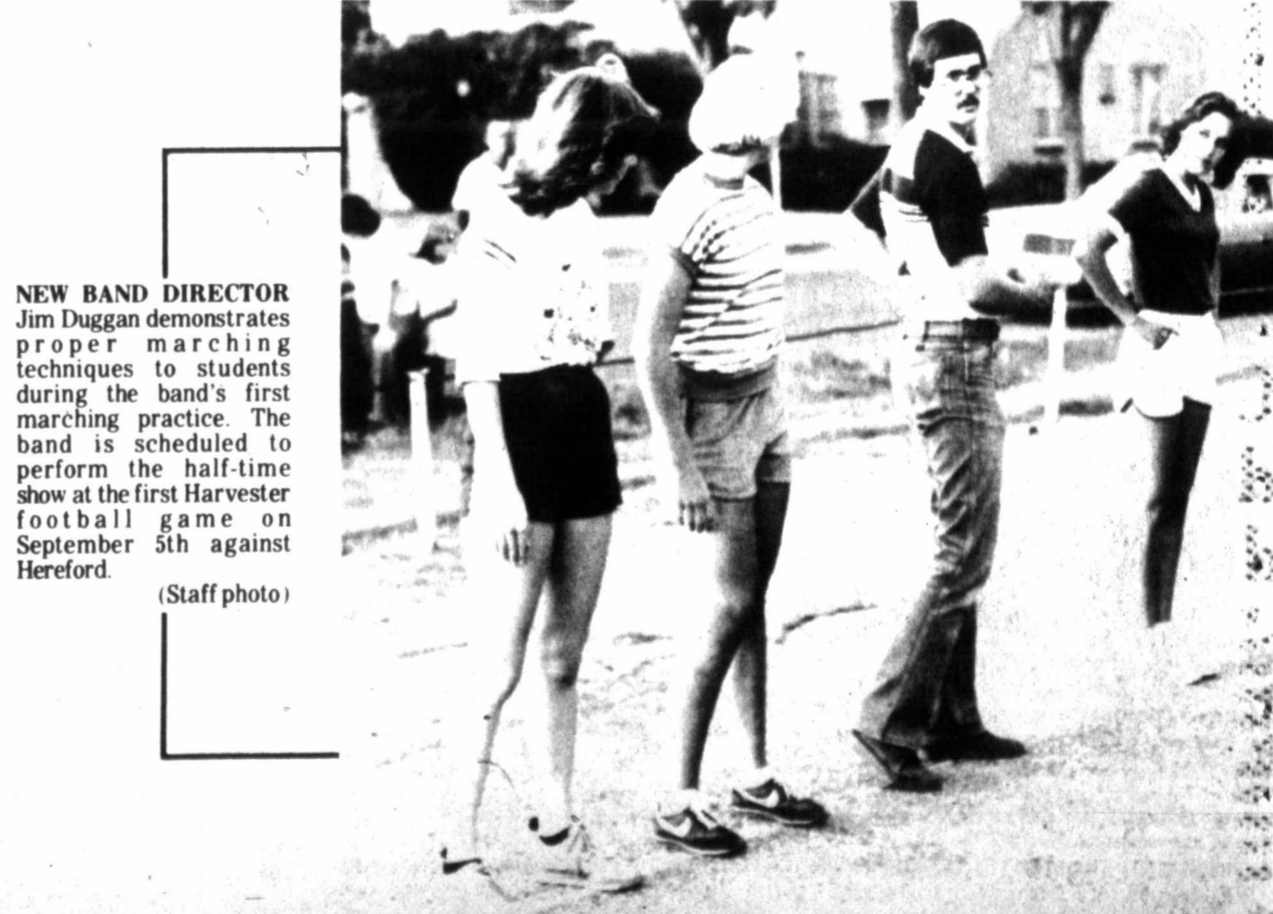

But he indicated no softening in attitude toward the 52 Americans, who spent their 283rd day in captivity today, saying his government would give unbending loyalty to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Rajaie told reporters after receiving the approval Monday from the Parliament, or Majlis, that according to the constitution he has 10 days to form and introduce his Cabinet and that this period would be sufficient.

The Majlis, which meets again Saturday, must approve the Cabinet just as it did Rajaie, and little opposition is expected.

"In forming the Cabinet, I would seek assistance and cooperation from all revolutionary foundations and rely on these institutions," the official Pars news agency quoted Rajaie as saying.

He said so far he has not chosen any Cabinet member, but that the criteria for such selection would be those stressed by Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary leader and Shiite Moslem patriarch who has said the hostage debate cannot begin until a government is installed.

Mail order scheme leads to indictment of three

HOUSTON — On August 4, a federal Grand Jury at Houston returned a true bill of indictment charging Mack W. Daw, age 32, of Pensacola, Florida; Joseph H. Garney, age 37, of Lovelady, Texas; and Lester A. Perkins, age 39, of Houston, with violations of the mail fraud statute in a case involving the "bust out" of a furniture retail and ladies clothing business. These alleged retail outlets were known as Akein Home Furnishings, 17021 Nanes in Houston and My Ladies Shop, 1100 FM 1960 West in Houston. The two outlets were located on the same physical premises although they utilized different addresses of their corner location in submitting orders to suppliers. The indictment charged the trio with fraudulently obtaining a wholesale value of at least $66,000 in furniture and clothing. The defendants obtained credit through the use of a false financial statement and other fraudulent misrepresentations. The items so obtained were then sold at 30 percent to 75 percent of normal retail, but suppliers were not remunerated. Unpaid advertising of the businesses exceeds $38,000 for the less than seven month period of operation. Postal Inspector in Charge, W.R. Newsome stated that the indictment capped a six month investigation by U.S. Postal Inspectors from the Houston Field Office. Assistant U.S. Attorney Samuel G. Longoria, who is handling the case for the government, indicated that arrests are expected shortly.

Offshore production returning to normal

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil and gas operations off the Texas-Louisiana coast are returning to normal following the evacuation of several thousand workers because of the threat by Hurricane Allen. No major damage was reported.

Most companies said some workers began returning to offshore rigs and platforms on Saturday and practically all were back sometime Monday. Shell Oil Co. said production was back to 95 percent of normal Monday and should be at normal levels today. Damages described as minimal were said to have been confined to generators and other support equipment. Amoco Oil, among the first to start evacuation procedures, said some 650 workers began returning Saturday.

Police attempt to lead winos to the waterfront

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Police Chief Otis Adkins believes that one way to rid downtown Huntington of vagrants and winos is to lead them to the waterfront.

Adkins thinks he's found a way to make them drink there. During a city council meeting Monday night, Adkins suggested that wine bottles be buried along the banks of the Ohio River as an enticement to the bums who have been loitering around downtown.

Merchants have been complaining, and Adkins says that because the city does not have a law against loitering, he can't arrest the vagrants.

Another solution, Adkins suggested, would be to give the troublemakers one-way tickets to Florida. The council is to study the problem further.

No Red Ink Here
RENO, Nev. (AP) — A tiny investment allowed bookkeeper Barbara Shelton to mark up a whopper of a credit in her ledger. Mrs. Shelton, 46, of Campbell, Calif., set a casino record at Harold's Club on Monday by winning $67,261.80 with a single quarter in a slot machine.

Naturally, the machine couldn't spit out that much in quarters. So as Mrs. Shelton waited for her big payoff, she threw another quarter in the slot of another machine, and came away with an additional $75.

"IT COULD HAVE BEEN WORSE." These are the sentiments of William J. Meyer of Corpus Christi as he stands in water in the cabin of his 26-foot sailboat as his daughter, 19, holds a hose to pump water from the craft, beached along the seawall at Corpus. Said Meyer, as he surveyed the damage caused by Hurricane Allen, "Yes, it could have been worse. Much, much worse."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

The speech we'd like to hear

Some libertarians were enthused over Ronald Reagan's nomination for the Presidency in Detroit in July, hopeful that he represents the best opportunity for changing the statist policies of Jimmy Carter and many of his predecessors. Other libertarians are profoundly skeptical that Reagan can alter the course of federal affairs any more than he did those in Sacramento during two terms as governor. Still others see Reagan as a potentially dangerous intruder in matters of private morality at home and military conflict abroad.

We can appreciate all those points of view and incorporate them into our own long-stated and generalized distaste for politics and politicians as anything but an impediment to human progress. Nevertheless, realities being what they are, somebody is going to be president after next January, and it's apparently going to be Reagan or Jimmy Carter. That's reason enough to pay close attention to the type of Republican nominee that emerged from the July 10's acceptance speech.

Realizing that promises come cheap, we'd nevertheless like to hear the following from Ronald Reagan:

1) A restatement of what's been called his "tax cut." In actuality, the reduction in tax rates that Reagan has proposed is not really a cut in the overall level of taxation. Rather, it is an essential move to counteract what happens when cost-of-living pay and price increases push us into the higher scales of our steep tax schedules. Call it a "cut" if you like, but it's really just a corrective measure to keep the taxpayers above water. Whatever, it shouldn't be sold as some in the Reagan camp would — as a means for raising more government revenue via the Laffer Curve. Not only does that raise false hopes, it avoids a crucial second step in righting our economy: meaningful cuts in federal expenditures, or at least in their rate of growth. They will be necessary if the budget deficit is to be brought into line quickly. And that must happen if the monetary arm, the Fed, is to be relieved of pressure to create more dollars both to finance higher spending and keep interest rates low. Only then will inflation be cured and, later, a solid employment base restored.

2) A pledge to avoid massive new weapons systems that serve little military purpose, but balloon the federal budget. The MX missile system and B-1 bomber are two examples of extraordinarily expensive hardware that better serve to foster false notions of security among Americans and to fatten some arms contractor's pocket than to discourage imperialistic aggression inimical to U.S. interests.

3) Unequivocal opposition to the military draft, and to registration. Reagan has held steady on this issue heretofore, but some of his advisers are known to favor such peacetime slavery as an expedient method of raising armies. This issue is cut-and-dried, and there can be no hedging.

4) Proposals for deregulation of our personal and commercial lives, not only through repeal or revision of laws, but by abolition of specific departments and agencies, starting with Energy, Education and OSHA.

5) A guarantee to end CETA and not replace it with some other make-work program.

6) An assurance that the social conservatism that Reagan and some of his advisers carry with them is not going to be a primary concern of his administration should he win. Stands on the ERA and a constitutional amendment outlawing abortions are drawing considerable attention as the convention nears, but these matters of personal conduct are not the immediate dangers to the liberty of Americans that economic travail and global interventionism are. The closeness to Reagan of men such as Ed Meese, a onetime Oakland prosecutor obsessed with marijuana infractions, and the support for him by religious groups with causes such as the reimposition of mandatory prayer time in state schools, give rise to legitimate worries that rigid patterns of personal behavior might somehow be enforced on all Americans.

7) A refusal to threaten civil liberties by unleashing law enforcement agencies to investigate "subversive" activities in any way they see fit. The proposal by Sen. Paul Laxalt, a Reagan confidant, and others to enact a looser charter for the FBI's snooping on Americans should alarm civil libertarians.

8) Rejection of the traditional Republican alliances with the professional guilds, such as the American Medical Assn., and their opposition to offset methods of responding to customers' needs.

9) A promise that there will be no more bailouts of businesses large or small that are failing because they didn't anticipate changes in consumer demands or are unable to produce efficiently thanks to management or labor shortcomings. This affirmation should include a commitment to free trade without import controls or export subsidies by government.

None of this is unreasonable to ask of a Republican presidential candidate. It is far less than we would like to see, in fact. Nevertheless, it is more than we're likely to get from Ronald Reagan in words or deeds. Only so much can be expected of anyone who's in the business of selling himself for votes. Ourselves, we don't expect a whole lot.

Why pick on 19-20-year olds?

By Oscar Cooley
Should one obey a law even though he believes it unjust?

Some youngsters threaten not to register, holding that the law singles out a certain age group and violates their right of privacy. Others oppose registration on the ground that it is the first step toward a military draft, which they resent because it amounts to forcing people to live - and maybe die - in a certain manner.

There is much truth in these objections, but this truth should be stated and discussed when registration is first contemplated.

If the nation's life is threatened by a foreign foe, defense is necessary. Should the citizens be forced to defend it, or should they be induced to do so voluntarily?

Surely a volunteer soldier, having chosen freely to become one, is likely to fight better than a draftee, who serves under duress. In war, many people are needed to make the weapons as well as use them, but it is not customary to draft workers, only soldiers. To get enough competent workers to man the arms factories, we pay liberal wages. Why not enlist soldiers the same way?

Too costly, might be the quick answer. But are we sure of that? Consider the cost of registering and choosing from an entire age group. But especially consider the quality of the men enrolled and their degree of willingness. Napoleon could make do with cannon fodder, but we cannot.

There has been a good deal of flak over the decision to register males but not females. If volunteering were the rule, this would be a non-issue; who is enrolled in the armed forces could be decided on the basis of fitness and ability, not sex.

Certainly there is a strong case to be made against conscription laws, but there is nothing to be said for willfully breaking them. Just as it is impossible to play a game without rules, so men cannot live together without basic norms of action and morality, that is, accepted rules of conduct. Not all these rules will be popular with everyone. The draft law is one such rule.

Leaders of a New York City policeman's union recently threatened to strike, even though it is forbidden by New York state law. It appeared that the law enforcers themselves were about to turn lawless. What would the Massachusetts governor who, having put down the Boston police strike, told Samuel Gompers, "There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, any time", say to that?

Today there seems to be a decline of morality throughout the world. Is this being caused by the increase of socialization, the substitution of rule by government for rule by self? States have vastly extended their controls over individuals in recent years. Is the worm turning by lashing out at the rule of law, including moral law, and neglecting to substitute self-control and self-discipline? Is man's innate love of freedom moving him to cast off legal restraints, including those that are clearly in accord with moral law?

And what of our ideas of what is just? For example, is it unjust to require foreign-born youth to whom English is a strange tongue to use English in our schools? The U.S. Supreme Court apparently thinks so. In 1974 it ruled that if schools are to receive federal funds they must be prepared to teach bilingually. Just what this means - whether it requires schools to use both English and the pupil's native language in class sessions - is to be spelled out soon by the U.S. Department of Education.

I attended a school that had many youngsters from Quebec who were far more familiar with French than with English. If any official had suggested to the teachers that they should use French in class so that the French-Canadian pupils would better understand, he would have been laughed out the door. English was the language of the land, and it was taken for granted that all pupils must adjust to that fact. "Comment ca va?" might do on the street, but "how do you do?" was the way you said it in the classroom.

In fact, there was considered to be something a little unpatriotic about speaking a foreign language. Having immigrated here and adopted this as their country, people must learn the language with which we communicate. If I moved to China, should I not expect to speak Chinese?

Rules of conduct are not immutable. They may change. But they are principles that grow out of experience and cannot be lightly set aside.

It is well to question the laws and rules of conduct, but before rejecting them, let us ask ourselves how they came into being and what would be the consequences of their discard.

Billy gets a loan

by ART BUCHWALD

One of the advantages of being president of the United States is that you don't have to support your brother. There are so many other people who are willing to do it for you.

I thought of this the other day when I read that Billy Carter had received more than $200,000 from Col. Kadafi's Libyan government in what Billy described as part of a $500,000 loan. (It was done with a handshake, which shows you how trusting the Libyans are.)

There were some people in the U.S. who believed that Kadafi had given Billy the loan because he was hoping that Billy could influence his brother when it came to Arab affairs. But the truth of the matter is that the Libyans have always had a warm spot in their hearts for anyone who owns a gas station in Georgia, and Billy's White House connection was the furthest thing from their minds.

Can GOP broaden its base?

By Robert J. Wagman

DETROIT (NEA) - There is probably no U.S. city more in touch with today's economic realities than Detroit. Local unemployment is pushing 15 percent, and minority unemployment is closer to 50 percent.

Yet it was in Detroit that the Republicans chose to unveil an election strategy that would more properly have been unveiled at Fantasyland in Walt Disney's Magic Kingdom.

Throughout the recent Republican National Convention, certain buzz words cropped up in the vocabularies of party strategists when discussing the fall campaign. Their two favorite expressions seemed to be "broadening the base" and "reaching out to the center."

The meaning of those phrases is obvious. For a minority party to win a two-or even three-candidate election, it must appeal to more than its own members. For Republicans, who are more than ever a party of the right, this means attracting independents and Democrats.

So how did four days of prime-time exposure on all three networks further this extension of Republican appeal? If the American electorate was listening carefully, probably not very well.

As the Republicans were meeting here, the news came out of Washington that the federal budget deficit for the current fiscal year may well approach $60 billion due to the worsening economy. Against the background of this depressing disclosure, consider the campaign promises of presidential nominee Ronald Reagan.

Reagan promised to implement a Kemp-Roth style tax cut immediately upon his election. He would slash taxes by 10 percent in the first year with additional reductions phased in until overall taxes are 30 percent lower than they are today. He pointed out that these cuts should result in a massive spurt in the economy so that federal receipts would increase despite lower tax rates.

This is how the loan came about. The Libyans, as part of their goodwill policy to encourage Americans to use Libyan petroleum products, decided to hold a contest among independent gasoline station owners in the United States. All the names were put into a giant oil drum at a terrorist training camp outside of Tripoli, and Col. Kadafi pulled out one, who was selected as the "American Gas Pumper of the Year." Lo and behold, the name he selected was Billy Carter of Plains, Ga.

A call was placed to Billy, and Kadafi said, "Congratulations, you have just won an all-expense trip to Libya for two. One of our official airplane hijackers will be in touch with you to make the arrangements."

Billy was so excited he couldn't see straight. All his life he had wanted to visit Libya and in less than a month he was winging his way toward the land of his dreams. As Billy got off the plane, he was presented with four gold bracelets, a silver saddle worth $2,000, a serving platter, a ceremonial sword and a suit of clothes.

Then he was given a grand tour of the country.

Finally he got to meet Kadafi, who personally thanked him for all Billy had done to push Libyan gasoline products. "If I can ever do anything for you," Kadafi said, "don't fail to ask."

"Well, I could use a $500,000 loan," Billy said, "to buy a new sign for my gas station."

Kadafi smiled and reached into his pocket. "No sweat," he said, and started to count out the money. "I have only $220,000 with me. We'll send the rest of it to you through one of our assassination squads."

"That's mighty white of you, Colonel. Do you want me to sign anything?"

Kadafi laughed. "For a lousy $500,000? What kind of people do you think we are?"

As Billy put the money into his pocket he said, "I believe I should tell you something, Colonel. I may be just a good ol' boy gas pumper, but my brother is president of the United States. Do you still want to give me the loan?"

"Of course. We never hold it against anybody what his brother does. If we did we'd be out of the personal loan business."

And I say MY candidate makes YOUR candidate look more foolish than YOURS makes MINE look.

Residents who stayed have respect for Allen

BROWNSVILLE, Texas — Despite the warnings, not everyone fled the lower Rio Grande Valley as Hurricane Allen powered its way toward the Texas coast last weekend.

But although the storm subsided unexpectedly and did far less damage than had been feared, it apparently scared those who stayed far more than they had anticipated.

"The calls I got from people who opted to stay at home said when the winds began to hit they weren't quite sure they made the right decision," said Brownsville city manager Neil Haman.

Those who had second thoughts about keeping the home fires burning had no choice once the winds began to blow.

"I think people still have a very healthy respect for these storms. They realize they were very fortunate it didn't come in with the force it approached with."

Most residents of the Valley — many of them veterans of previous hurricanes and tropical storms — did not have to be coaxed to head for the shelters.

About 40,000 people packed up and sought refuge in the public shelters. The area has the lowest per capita income in the nation and many residents realized their simple, wooden homes were no match for Allen, Haman said.

He predicted the shelters will fill just as quickly next time — perhaps even more so.

Haman said the shelters were at capacity. The largest one in town, the civic center, was under repairs and unavailable. It will not be ready this hurricane season.

Officials responsible for battening down the city expressed concern about the shelter they worked from. Haman, who donned a hard hat and worked through the storm at the emergency operations center, said he and his group moved twice.

The center started in a small building at the airport but had to be shifted when a generator got wet and the power went out.

Haman and the others headed for the main airport terminal, but it took them just five minutes to decide they didn't want to spend the hurricane cramped in a small room with reporters.

They wound up at the police station.

Kirby Lilljedahl, South Padre Island city manager, said that even though Allen turned out to be comparatively weak, he heard no one complain about taking the trouble to head for the mainland to get out of its way.

"It appears a wall of water went over the island," he said. "Their lives would have been in some danger here. It would not have been a very friendly place to be."

The narrow island suffered some damage, but very little compared to what the predicted 170 mile-per-hour winds would have done.

Lilljedahl predicted residents of the island will be just as respectful of future hurricanes. The orderly evacuation that preceded Allen will be repeated when another storm threatens, he said.

Reasoner's convention prediction came closest

By PETER J. BOYER

AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS' Dan Rather promised "an entertaining brawl." ABC's Frank Reynolds predicted "a political war." NBC's David Brinkley said "it will be a cat fight."

But Harry Reasoner, wise old Harry of CBS, came closest to the mark in forecasting the first episode of the Democrats' prime time show. "The Democrats talk a lot," Reasoner said, "but there probably won't be any great surprises."

Indeed, the entertaining "brawl" proved to be tame stuff: a lot of talk, culminating in a fairly orderly rules vote in which President Carter's forces prevailed over Sen. Kennedy's forces. The delegates were bound to their pledged votes, locking the nomination for Carter.

The high drama of the Democrats' miniseries was over after a scant four hours when Kennedy conceded the nomination.

Television, consequently, was left to inflate other balloons. Would Kennedy support Carter? Would Carter heed the platform demands of a lame duck candidate? Would Kennedy appear on the podium with Carter Thursday with a unity stance?

This last question especially intrigued network correspondents who posed it repeatedly throughout the evening to almost any Democrat that could be collared. The answer, almost always, was "Gee, I don't know," or a variation thereof.

In an attempt to lessen the dramatic letdown, CBS and NBC took turns interviewing Colorado Governor Richard Lamm, a Kennedy supporter who could be counted on to predict disharmony. "President Carter is going to have to spread some political oil on the water," Lamm kept saying. "Nobody asked him what that phrase meant."

CBS anchor Walter Cronkite, in his last political convention, had a nice chat at evening's end with former anchorman, Eric Sevareid. They both confessed to being political junkies.

NBC, as in the GOP convention last month, seemed to provide the steadiest, most thorough coverage. The longest, anyway — David Brinkley and John Chancellor went on the air at 4 p.m. (EDT) for the convention opening and, except for a 30-minute local news break, stayed on until the very end.

CBS and ABC went to other programming after covering the opening, returning for the rules "fight."

ABC, less dedicated to gavel-to-gavel coverage of these gatherings, cut to its "20-20" show in the midst of the convention.

In all, the Democrats' opening night would be considered a good show to fans of the political process, dull to those who are not. Most viewers apparently fall into that last category and would probably agree with NBC's Tom Brokaw, who mused at night's end:

"As a story, it's a kind of Hindenberg — it crashed and burned a couple of hours ago."

Network coverage listed

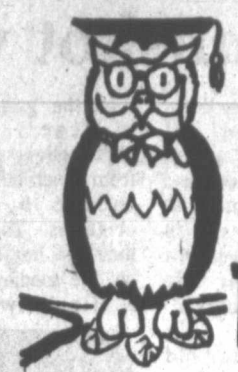

NEW YORK (AP) — Here are the television networks' plans for coverage of the Democratic National Convention today.

Times are Eastern Daylight.

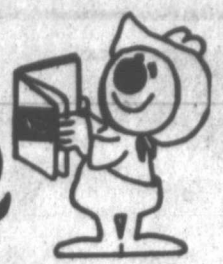

NBC — 4 p.m.-5:30 p.m., afternoon session; 7 p.m., live coverage to end of session.

CBS — 4 p.m.-5:30 p.m., afternoon session; 7 p.m., live coverage to end of session.

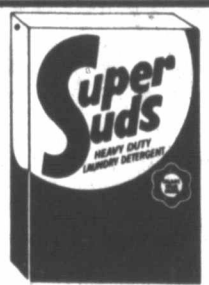

ABC — 11 a.m.-5 p.m., on-hour reports; 7:30 p.m., live coverage to end of session, interrupted when convention schedule permits for special edition of "20-20," tentatively between 8 p.m. and 9 p.m.

STEVE GARVEY AND CYNDY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Baseball player Steve Garvey and his wife, Cyndy, say they were misquoted in an article about their marriage and have obtained an order from a judge temporarily preventing the story's republication.

An article in Inside Sports, a new national magazine, quoted Mrs. Garvey, 30, as being critical of her husband, 31, in sexual matters and as saying he was too concerned with his public image. Garvey plays for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The couple filed an $11.2 million libel suit Friday against Newsweek Inc., which publishes Inside Sports.

On Monday, U.S. District Judge Robert J. Kelleher issued an injunction preventing the Los Angeles Herald Examiner from publishing excerpts from the magazine article pending a hearing Aug. 18.

Following the ruling, Frank Dale, publisher of the Herald Examiner, said the decision "is an attempt to handcuff the press. We won't tolerate it and we will fight through the courts to clear our access to publishing the story."

The judge also ordered Newsweek Inc., which publishes the magazine, to produce tapes of an interview of the Garveys by Pat Jordan, author of the article.

Newsweek representatives said they would appeal the order.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Entertainer Jerry Lee Lewis has been ordered to forfeit a $400,000 bond and has been found in contempt of court after failing to appear at a hearing about a contract dispute.

George Cunningham, owner of the now defunct Whiskey Club, filed suit against Lewis in 1978 after Lewis allegedly failed to make a scheduled appearance. Cunningham won a $453,000 judgment against Lewis later that year.

Cunningham contends that Lewis has paid him only $2,000 and a hearing was held Monday to find out why.

When Lewis failed to appear, an Oklahoma County District Court judge found him in contempt and ordered him to forfeit bond.

Lewis's attorney, Tim Kline, said he hadn't been able to find the entertainer since June. Kline resigned as Lewis's lawyer during the hearing.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 1980s will be a more precarious time for the U.S. military than the 1970s or 1960s, according to Adm. Stansfield Turner, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The threat will come from growing Soviet military strength and reduced economic growth in the free world, Turner said Monday in a speech at the San Francisco Press Club.

Turner advocated passage of legislation that would reduce the number of congressional committees that must be informed of the agency's activities and free the CIA from some provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.

The bill would also bar the disclosure of the identities of CIA operatives overseas and protect CIA secrets from disclosure during court hearings.

Fire nears small city

URANIUM CITY, Saskatchewan (AP) — About 700 people in this northwestern Saskatchewan community of 2,500 were evacuated Monday night as a 1,000-acre forest fire threatened the town, a Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer said.

In a telephone interview, the officer, who declined to give his name, said 750 to 800 people might be evacuated later. He said some evacuees went to the site of a proposed mine site about seven miles from Uranium City.

The officer said Uranium City was in no immediate danger, however, and that the evacuation was ordered as a safety precaution.

He said the forest fire was across an unidentified lake, but winds gusty and changed direction, bringing it around the lake toward the town.

Kennedy supporters plan to depart

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Some disgruntled Texas supporters of Sen. Edward Kennedy's unsuccessful run for the Democratic presidential nomination planned to leave the party's convention early after his withdrawal left no suspense.

"I saw a coronation one month ago and I don't want to see another one," state Rep. Paul Moreno of El Paso said Monday referring to the Republican convention that nominated Ronald Reagan. "This place is horrible — $150 a day."

San Antonio councilman Bernardo Euseste, a Kennedy leader in the state, said the candidate's delegates planned to meet today and decide what steps to take next.

Euseste said the decision whether to actively support Carter's fall campaign depends on the extent of the effort to reach out to the disaffected Democrats.

"They're going to have to be serious about it, not superficial," Euseste said.

Carter supporters, however, cheerfully predicted the party would be able to heal any divisions left from the prolonged fight for the nomination.

"I want to put this matter behind us now," former Texas Attorney General John Hill said after the drive to open the convention failed.

"It takes awhile for these things to die down; I'm looking to the future."

Carter's Texas delegates held solidly on the "faithful delegate" vote to bind delegates to their primary and caucus commitments.

The Texas vote was 105-47, with only one of Carter's 106 supporters siding with the Kennedy and uncommitted delegates.

The state was the next-to-last to announce its vote as organizers struggled to tally cumbersome paper ballots, but the outcome already was certain by a wide margin.

Some Kennedy supporters complained of heavy pressure Carter forces placed on any delegates wavering on the open convention issue.

Carter administration officials from Texas stood by the state delegation's section in Madison Square Garden throughout the one-hour debate and long roll call.

The president's Texas leadership had predicted the outcome, if not the prompt withdrawal by Kennedy.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, urged the state's delegates at an opening reception he hosted to put aside any differences in order to concentrate on the fall campaign.

"They want to replay the 70s — the 1870s, that is," Bentsen said about the Republican platform. "I tell you this race is slated to be one of the most important of the century."

Young genius in critical condition after gunshot wound to the head

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — When James Dallas Egbert III disappeared last year, investigators searched a maze of subterranean tunnels at Michigan State University to see if he had been trapped in a real-life version of the "Dungeons and Dragons" fantasy game.

Today, the 17-year-old computer science whiz was in critical condition with a gunshot wound in the head that police say appeared to have been self-inflicted.

Egbert underwent surgery Monday at Grandview Hospital, where doctors removed a bullet from his head. The teen-ager, who had returned to his home town after his month-long disappearance, was found by a roommate who told police he had been asleep when he was awakened by a shot, said Police Sergeant L.M. Kincaid.

Egbert was shot with a handgun recovered at the scene, Kincaid said. Optometrist James D. Egbert II said he had no clues about his son's shooting. Asked whether his son had been unhappy or troubled, Egbert said, "We thought just the opposite!"

But William C. Dear, the Dallas private investigator who found Egbert last September, said recently the youth may have been having some family trouble. In a letter written before the shooting to a Dayton Journal Herald reporter, Dear wrote, "He wanted to meet with me concerning some problem he was having around the house."

Dear was unavailable for comment Monday night.

Egbert, who has an IQ of 145, disappeared last Aug. 15 during his sophomore year at MSU. He was found by Dear on Sept. 13 in a location that has never been disclosed, and the reason for his disappearance remained a mystery.

Campus police had speculated that Egbert, a devotee of an intellectual fantasy game called "Dungeons and Dragons," may have vanished while acting out the role of a medieval character who was hiding out in the "dungeon" of steam tunnels beneath MSU.

In the game, a "dungeon master" designs a make-believe prison on paper from which other players must escape by overcoming obstacles. The Egberts said their son had spoken of acting out the medieval game in the 8-mile network of steam tunnels. After his disappearance, police found a note in Egbert's dorm room saying he wished to be cremated "should my body be found." But it was never clear that Egbert had written it.

Classmates and campus officials said Egbert, who entered MSU at age 15, was a loner and under a great deal of academic pressure.

On Sept. 13, after several pre-dawn telephone calls, the teen-ager was found by Dear, who discounted any connection between the disappearance and the game.

IN CRITICAL CONDITION, James D. Egbert III, the young genius from Huber Heights, Ohio, who disappeared last year for 28 days, was in critical condition Monday night in Dayton, Ohio, with a gunshot wound to the head. Police said the wound appeared to have been self-inflicted.

Tour reveals damage

OVER SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Hurricane Allen chewed at least four 50-foot cuts through Padre Island and the water flowed from the Gulf of Mexico right through to Laguna Madre.

From the air, the damage appeared minimal to the resort villages of Port Isabel and South Padre Island.

Sets of power lines were leaning at 45 degree angles but roads were dried and people were driving around. The same was true in Port Isabel where clothes were drying on the lines behind several houses.

The wierdest thing was the damage to Park Road 100 that goes by Andy Bowie Park on the northern end of South Padre. The concrete was just not there in several places. One car was overturned and lying on its back.

And several mobile homes left at the part were demolished.

The worst damage I could see were several houses right on the beach front where water had washed through at least the first level. There was a lot of roof damage. They weren't torn off, but the roofs on houses and some condominiums will need some repair.

Glass was still intact at the major condominiums and hotels and I could see the strips of tape criss-crossing the big plate-glass windows.

The island was pretty deserted and only three people walked along the beach that usually is packed with sunbathers.

Flood victims pray for help, rescuers arrive

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writer

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — The Medina family returned home from an evacuation center as Hurricane Allen fizzled and moved north of the stricken South Texas area.

Four hours later, they were leaving again.

"We spent the night in the Lincoln Elementary School because of the hurricane warnings and we were here only four hours before the rains and the floods came," Christina Medina said. She and 20 relatives live within three blocks of one another.

"The water was up over the headlights of our car when we were in Lincoln. There were 37 people in one room. By the time they got to us, they had to use a rowboat to get to our front steps," she said.

"The ceiling caved in on my daughter's home because the hurricane had blown the roof off earlier," she said. "So they came to my house. The children were taken away first in the boat. We had to leave behind our pig and our chickens."

"My husband said before the hurricane to slaughter the pig but my daughter said no because she wanted it to have babies later."

Nearby, Rogelio and Teresa Paez anxiously waited for the sound of a man's voice on the bullhorn — the signal that rescuers would carry them to safety.

"We were a nervous wreck by the time we heard it," Mrs. Paez said. "The water kept coming up and coming up."

The Paez couple was among 850 flood evacuees taken to a public storm shelter at a junior high school in this Lower Rio Grande Valley city following heavy rains from Hurricane Allen.

"The water got to be three or four feet deep inside the house," Paez, 23, said. "We called the National Guard about 1 a.m. and they came about 4:30 a.m."

"They called out on a bullhorn for anyone who wanted to be evacuated to stand out in front of their house."

Mrs. Paez said she and her husband spent the time before rescue stacking valuables and furniture on concrete blocks and milk crates — "anything we had. We put some stuff on top of our bed."

For the Medinas, rescued about an hour after the Paez couple, there always was hope.

"We prayed to the Lord to take the hurricane to the deepest part of the ocean where he harms nobody," Mrs. Medina said.

"The whole Valley was praying."

VIETNAM VET PLEADS GUILTY

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — A 31-year-old Vietnam veteran has pleaded guilty to charges of holding a church congregation captive at gunpoint during Sunday services last October.

Circuit Judge Andrew MacQueen on Monday accepted Harold Mann's plea to the kidnapping charge and set sentencing for Nov. 17. Mann, who could receive 10 years in prison, was sent to Huttonsville Correctional Center for testing.

Mann ended the siege at the Church of Christ, in the Charleston suburb of St. Albans, after he was allowed to broadcast an obscenity-filled statement critical of his treatment as a veteran.

FOUR INJURED IN EXPLOSION

PENNSAUKEN, N.J. (AP) — A spark, possibly from a welder's torch, apparently set off an explosion and fire at an asphalt tank that injured four people, two of them seriously, officials said.

The Monday fire was confined to a 100,000-gallon tank owned by West Bank Oil Co. on Petty's Island in the Delaware River. It did not threaten a nearby Cities Service Co. tank farm, authorities said.

A welder working on top of the tank was thrown to the ground by the blast, but authorities were uncertain whether sparks from his torch were responsible for the explosion.

ELVIS FANS OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Fans of Elvis Presley are expected to visit his hometown in large numbers this week for four days of observances leading up to third anniversary of his death on Saturday.

Graceland, Presley's mansion, was opened to the public today to give Presley enthusiasts the chance to visit the gravesites of the late rock 'n' roll star, his parents and his grandmother.

A half-ton bronze statue of Presley will be unveiled and a memorial park will be dedicated during the week. Memphis State University is sponsoring two days of seminars, concerts and Presley films and at the city's convention center, there will be a four-day "Tribute to Elvis."

WHOOPING CRANES STAY HOME!

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — State biologists believe they have figured out a way to increase the nation's tiny population of whooping cranes by preventing them from embarking on dangerous annual migrations.

The biologists plan to obtain some whooping crane eggs and place them in the nests of the non-migratory Florida sandhill cranes. The hope is that the whoopers will adopt the habits of their foster parents and stay put year-round in a protected environment.

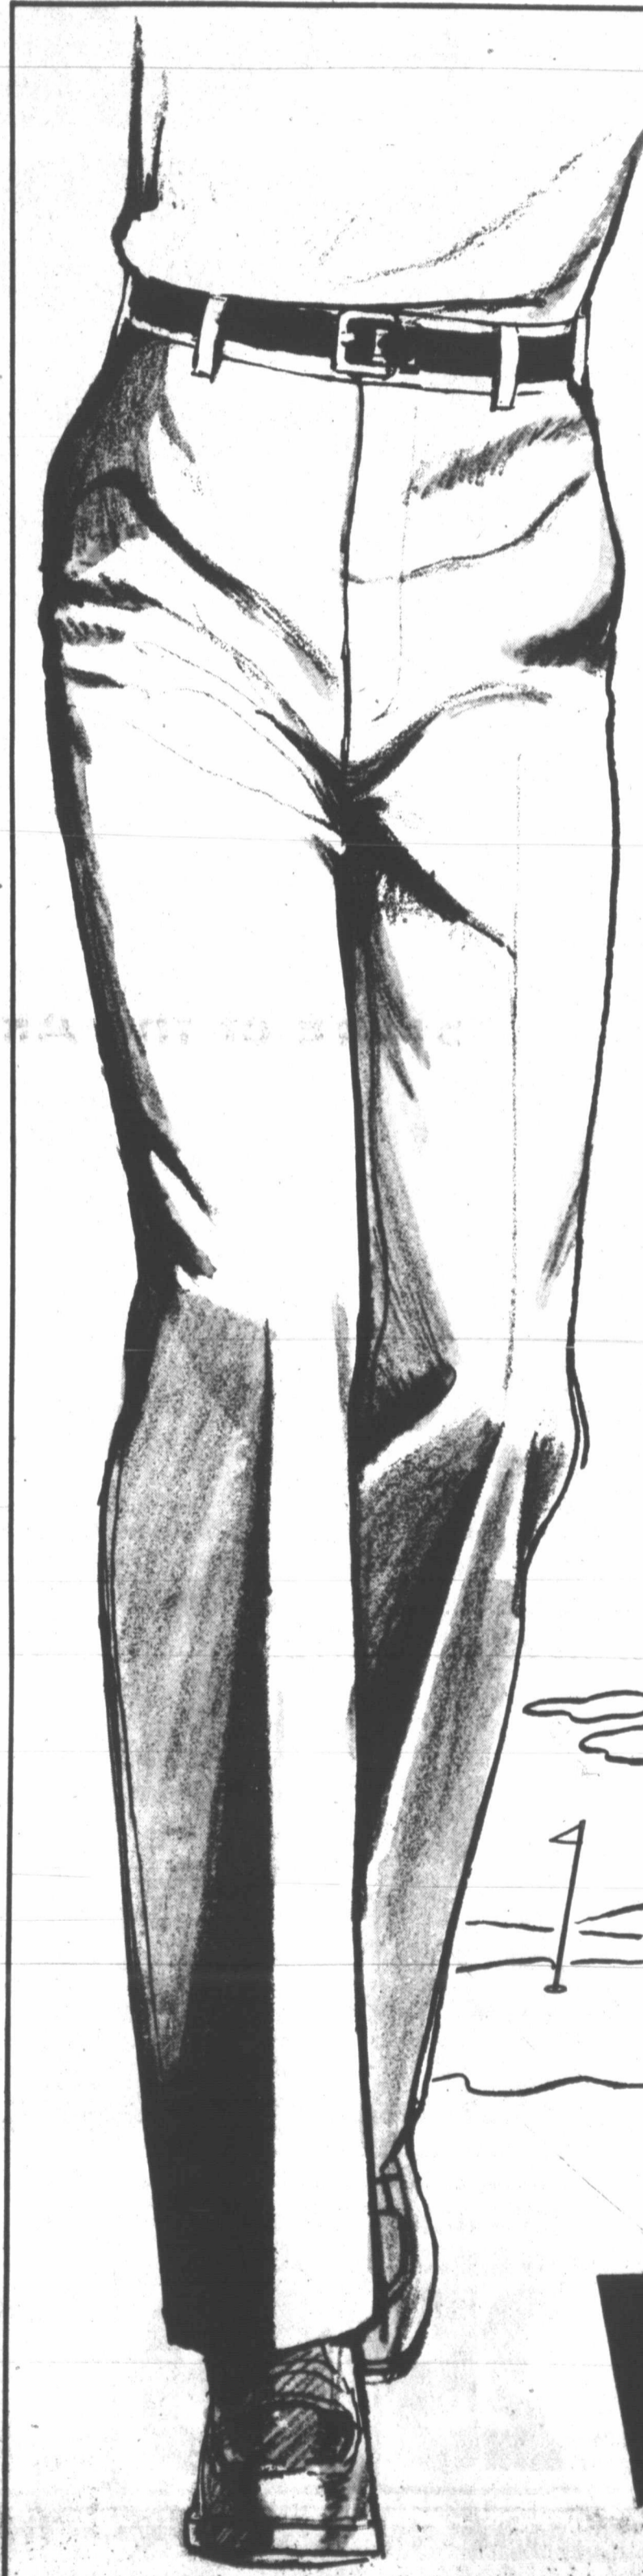

If the experiment succeeds, the whooping crane population, now 120, could double, officials hope. Many of the endangered whoopers summer in Canada and spend winters in Texas.

LETTER CARRIERS URGED TO VOTE

ATLANTA (AP) — The nation's postal workers have been urged by the head of the NAACP to mount a voter registration drive to flex their political muscles.

"You'd better vote for the least of the evils until we can do better the next time. You'd better vote," Benjamin Hooks told the convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers on Monday.

The leader of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said he also opposed eliminating Saturday mail deliveries. "They want to cut mail delivery to five days a week. How in the hell can you justify putting people out of work?"

Statues in wildlife refuge must be removed

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Christ of the Wichitas statue and other religious symbols in the Holy City of the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge must be removed, an internal government memorandum has concluded.

The memorandum, obtained by The Daily Oklahoman, adds the 20-year special government permit issued to the Easter Pageant Association must be canceled and the Lawton group must compete for use of the site.

The memorandum said the Holy City facilities' location on a federal wildlife refuge gives, "at a minimum, the perception of federal support and approval of a particular religion."

Because the involvement of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service with the Holy City

"lacks a secular effect," it violates constitutional tenets against establishment of religion, the memorandum said.

The legal document, written by Gary Widman, associate solicitor for the U.S. Interior Department's conservation and wildlife division, is dated June 27. But it has not been made public until now.

The threatened removal of the statue and other religious artifacts has prompted an emotional outburst. The wildlife refuge is the only national refuge that contains religious symbols.

Easter service group President Fred Larrance expressed surprise Monday at the contents of the memo. He said he didn't know what the association, which has sent out thousands of petitions to save the statue, will do now.

Nothing has come through officially from the Department of Wildlife. "We've been kept in the dark from the start," he said. Larrance also said he was not informed of a planned meeting with federal representatives.

U.S. Interior Department Secretary Cecil Andrus made reference to the planned meeting in a letter dated July 18. It was addressed to U.S. Rep. John F. Seiberling of Ohio. Seiberling, chairman of the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs' public lands subcommittee, is the congressman to whom an Ohio college professor lodged a complaint against the statue in February.

Andrus' letter states that in general, plans will call for the removal of Christian symbols so that the area can be made equally available to all groups seeking to exercise First Amendment rights.

While the legal opinion did not call for razing the Holy City, which includes some 30 native stone buildings, it stated the association can no longer store its costumes and props at the site.

The department will allow the association to continue holding its Easter drama, which each year draws about 15,000 people, but it will have to compete on an equal basis with other potential users of the site.

The pageant association began its drama in Medicine Park in 1927. It moved the pageant to the wildlife refuge in 1935.

Israel calls on Egypt to resume stalled talks

By The Associated Press

Israel called on Egypt to resume stalemated Palestinian autonomy talks because of "the urgent need of solving the problems." Egypt said it was preparing a formal reply but claimed the Jewish state was creating "almost impossible" conditions.

Osama el Baz, Egypt's undersecretary for foreign affairs, spelled out Egypt's terms for renewing the talks, urging Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to halt moves aimed at further unification of Jerusalem and to declare a moratorium on the creation or expansion of Jewish settlements on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

These would be considered "corrective acts" conducive to reopening the U.S.-mediated autonomy talks, El Baz told a news conference Monday. He spoke only hours after Israel released the text of a letter from Begin to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat urging resumption of the autonomy talks.

Sadat suspended the slow-moving negotiations on home rule for the 1.2 million Palestinians living under Israeli rule after the Israeli Knesset, or Parliament, adopted a law declaring Jerusalem "in its entirety is the capital of Israel."

Egypt sees that law as ruling out proposed future negotiations on the status of predominantly Arab East Jerusalem. Israel captured the Arab sector from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast war and has vowed it will never return the area to Arab rule.

"I have never misled you, nor anyone else," Begin said, referring to Jerusalem in his letter to Sadat. "Time and again I repeated that Jerusalem, in its entirety, is the capital of Israel, a city reunited and indivisible for all generations."

Begin also took a hard line on the controversial Jewish settlements on Arab land, saying they "are legal and legitimate and they are an integral part of our national security. None of them will ever be removed."

The Israeli leader also accused Egypt of violating the 17-month-old peace treaty between the two nations by hostile propaganda and votes against Israel in the United Nations.

At his news conference, El Baz said Begin's allegation were "unfounded."

But while he rejected Begin's appeal for an immediate resumption of the Palestinian talks, El Baz said the situation "was not hopeless" and should not be dropped.

'Catpool' to be tested by Allen damage

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The damage Hurricane Allen did to the Texas coast will be the subject of a joint hearing of two House subcommittees in Corpus Christi or Brownsville on Aug. 23.

Selection of the hearing site was to be determined later this week based on "whichever city was the hardest hit."

Rep. Gene Green said Allen is the first major storm to hit the Texas coast since "Catpool" — a special catastrophe insurance pool — was created in 1971.

The catastrophe pool was formed to provide windstorm damage insurance for coastal residents who are not able to obtain such insurance through normal channels.

"This will give us a chance to see how the system works," said Green, D-Houston, chairman of an insurance subcommittee.

Green said his subcommittee would meet with the House Subcommittee on Natural Disaster Relief, which worked on a proposed report Monday.

"We'll be right there when people are facing problems," Rep. Walter Grubbs said of the Aug. 23 hearing.

Grubbs, D-Abilene, already had scheduled a hearing of his disaster relief subcommittee for that day in Austin and said he would merely switch the site.

A draft of his subcommittee's report suggested "perhaps there is a need" for legislation giving counties ordinance-making powers to deal with disasters.

Subcommittee members also seemed to favor consolidating two laws under which a municipality can pass emergency ordinances.

The report said Wichita Falls "encountered problems in this area" because they passed an emergency ordinance, following the 1979 tornado, under a law that required the city to renew the ordinance every seven days.

The report noted that Rep. Bill Caraway, D-Houston, had testified that better communication was needed during severe flooding in Harris County. "He told (at a Clear Lake hearing) of how residents trying to evacuate were sent into 'oblivion' because of the backlog of vehicles trying to escape," the report said.

Grubbs suggested that houses and business, including shopping centers, in the Friendswood area near Houston "have perhaps been completed without sufficient engineering to handle runoff water problems."

"Evacuation and early warnings have not been timely and have proven to be wholly inadequate during floods in recent years," said Grubbs' statement.

"Although improved early warning systems and improved evacuation routes could alleviate the problems somewhat, the problems basically appear to be of an engineering nature that could necessitate extremely expensive methods," the statement added.

The report said the subcommittee had "found the need for a broader-based communications network" in Wichita Falls and South Harris County.

Rep. Joe Gibson, D-Waco, said he thought Texans should remember that "Government can't do anything about sea level, rain and drainage."

MAN'S BEST FRIEND got a ride across an Edinburg, Texas street Monday. "Boy" seemed to enjoy his mode of transportation necessitated by floods in the area. The high water, aftermath of Hurricane Allen, flooded much of the Gulf Coast region of Texas. "Boy's" pilot declined to be identified.

Oil to be removed from beached tanker

DALLAS (AP) — Twice the captain of the Mary Ellen prepared his crew to abandon ship as the Liberian tanker foundered aimlessly in choppy seas.

And twice they were disappointed when Hurricane Allen's fury forced rescuers back to port.

Slammed about as the raging hurricane Allen filled the Gulf of Mexico, Capt. Francisco Saldani and his 37 men were frustrated again when the Mary Ellen ran aground Saturday just a few thousand feet from north Padre Island.

"You could just feel the island right there," he said in an interview with the Dallas Times Herald Monday. "It was so close, yet we could not reach it."

"If we had been moving, it would not have been so bad, but hard on the bottom like we were, the tanker was like a breakwater. The waves were mountainous." "Before we could recover from one, another would crash on the bridge," he said from his cabin aboard the grounded tanker.

Loaded with 510,000 barrels of oil, the 840-foot Mary Ellen left Port Aransas Friday, hoping to outrun the hurricane, but lost engine power shortly before midnight, the Coast Guard said.

A Coast Guard team inspected the tanker and said it was in "good shape" for today's rescue operations, which calls for most of the oil to be pumped onto barges so the Mary Ellen can float again.

Another Liberian tanker loaded with 350,000 barrels of oil, the Athenian, ran aground Monday night near Port Aransas. But the Coast Guard said it posed no immediate pollution threat.

The Coast Guard said the 735-foot Athenian ran aground on silt thrown into the ship channel by Allen.

Mary Ellen's Italian captain said his mostly Chinese crew stayed calm through the harrowing ordeal, except when the tanker flirted with the drilling rigs that dot the Gulf.

"That got everyone excited," Saldani said. "It is not easy to upset a Chinaman. Some of the had been sleeping and not paying much attention."

But as the tanker twisted about, the crew donned life-jackets and watched with horror as the Mary Ellen skirted one rig by only yards.

Death penalty confession illegal, court says

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A new trial has been ordered for a man sent to Texas' Death Row for the murder of a 10-year-old Cuero girl who was strangled seven years ago this month.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in a decision reached by a majority of the 24 judges, said Monday that only one of two confessions signed by Jerry Lane Jurek can be used against him at his second trial.

The court overturned Jurek's 1974 conviction, saying the unemployed textile mill worker was put upon to sign the second confession in "a prosecutorial drive for the death penalty."

The Jurek case was the test case in which the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the death penalty in Texas.

Wendy Adams, daughter of a Cuero policeman, was abducted from a swimming pool in a city park in Cuero and taken to Hell's Gate bridge, about four miles away, the jury was told during an 11-day trial in Cuero in February of 1974.

Her body, clad in a two-piece bathing suit, was found several days later floating face down in the Guadalupe River near Cuero, which is about 75 miles east of San Antonio.

Although Monday's majority opinion upheld the use of the first confession, nine of the judges said both confessions Jurek signed should be thrown out, and 11 judges said both should be considered valid.

Jurek, 25 at the time of the murder, signed a statement in which he said he choked the girl in a fit of rage after she criticized his drinking and his brother's neglect of his family.

Prosecutors later obtained the second confession in which Jurek said he strangled the 10-year-old girl after she refused to have sexual relations with him.

The victim's father, Ronnie Adams, now the tax assessor-collector for the Cuero school system, said in a recent interview that justice hasn't been done in the delay of Jurek's death sentence.

"I very much want to see Jurek die. I have a feeling that this is not over yet. I mean the death of Wendy," said Adams, 38. "When Jurek dies, I think I will feel it will at last be over and done with."

The federal court noted Monday that Jurek is mildly retarded, and that the second confession — which contradicts the first — is written in language far too complex to be his.

The judges said DeWitt County Attorney Robert Post and District Attorney Wiley Cheatham already had a valid confession from Jurek but pressed for a second, more damaging one.

Despite the fact the victim's body showed no signs of sexual contact, the two prosecutors suggested to Jurek that they thought the first confession was incomplete and that sex had been involved, the court said. The prosecutors "did not explain the deadly effect of his signature on the second confession," the court added.

"Jurek signed what was in effect his death warrant," the court said.

Estes transferred near to family

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — The minimum security federal camp at Big Spring received a new inmate last weekend — Billie Sol Estes. Estes was granted a transfer from La Tuna federal prison near El Paso to the former Webb Air Force Base facility so he could be nearer his family, who live at Abilene, 110 miles to the east, officials said.

Estes arrived Saturday afternoon, a camp official said, with a busload of other inmates who have been assigned to "the proper institution for their level of incarceration."

John W. Allman, camp superintendent, said the convicted swindler will share a room with another inmate in the airman's quarters at the former air base and will be assigned a job this week.

"He will work an eight-hour day, five days a week," Allman said. The Estes family was on hand Sunday to visit him.

Roger Benefiel, La Tuna public information officer, said Estes "was no problem to us" as a minimum security prisoner. Benefiel speculated that was why Estes was allowed the transfer.

Estes was convicted in 1965 and sentenced to federal prison on a federal fraud charge involving mortgages he obtained on nonexistent fertilizer tanks. After six years of serving time in Kansas, Minnesota and La Tuna, he was paroled in 1971 to Abilene, where he lived with his family and ostensibly worked and farmed on his brother's ranch.

But he got in trouble again and was convicted in July 1979 in federal court in Dallas of mail fraud and conspiracy to conceal his assets to avoid income taxes.

Estes received a 10-year sentence, his previous probation was revoked upon the 1979 conviction and he was immediately imprisoned. He will be eligible for parole on Dec. 15, 1983.

Man arrested after spree of violence

DALLAS (AP) — A man who ran over a pedestrian, shouted obscenities and claimed to be Fidel Castro was arrested after exchanging gunfire with an off-duty Dallas policeman.

The man was being held today on two charges of attempted capital murder and one charge each of aggravated assault, failure to stop and render aid and aggravated kidnapping.

Macario Mendoza, 16, was in serious condition late Monday at Presbyterian Hospital where he was being treated for injuries he suffered when he was struck by a car driven by the man.

Witnesses told police the incident began when the man stopped his car on a busy street, began screaming and beating on other several stopped cars. The man then drove away at a high rate of speed.

The car he was driving, police said, left the street, jumped a curb and struck Mendoza as he and two other persons walked on the sidewalk.

"The driver was wild looking, like he was high on something," said Bert Schoolcraft of Richardson, who witnessed the car striking Mendoza.

Officers said the car struck two other vehicles before it was stopped. They said the man got out, taking a duffel bag and a gun. He left the car on foot.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M. D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm very upset about your column that you wrote advising the woman who had had frequent bowel movements that she should eat more bulk. You told her to include bran in her diet. Don't you know that people who have celiac sprue have to avoid gluten that comes in wheat and bran? Some of us celiac sprue patients have to run from one doctor to another for years before we are correctly diagnosed. Then when we are diagnosed, we're not always treated properly. If more of you doctors understood celiac sprue, we wouldn't have so much trouble.

DEAR READER — May I suggest that if you knew more about irritable colon, you wouldn't have made the remarks that you did. The column you referred to was about a woman who had had diagnostic tests by her physician. Her doctor had made a diagnosis of irritable and spastic colon, as was indicated in the column.

Now if you're going to get upset every time a doctor recommends increasing bulk in the diet for the large number of people in the general public who have irritable and spastic colon, you're going to be in a constant state of turmoil and that's not going to help your diarrhea.

The two conditions are entirely different. Celiac sprue is a very rare cause of diarrhea — its principle manifestation. Estimates run as low as three in 10,000 of the general population. The highest incidence in all the world is in western Ireland where it does occur in one in 300. In contrast, irritable and spastic colon is a frequent complaint. And in many of those people dietary changes are extremely helpful, specifically those that involve increasing the bulk in the diet through addition of bran and other foods that provide bulk.

Celiac sprue is caused by a toxic reaction of the lining of the small intestine to a protein called gluten, found in all of the cereals except corn and rice. It's not found in soybeans either. People with this problem have to avoid all of the gluten-containing cereals and any foods that might be made with them. Since flour and cereals are found in such diverse things as hot dogs, ice cream and cream soups, the list of things that have to be avoided is rather lengthy. Since you can't be sure what is in prepared foods, many such individuals resort to preparing all of their food at home from standard known items such as meat and vegetables. Rice flour and corn starch are often used for thickeners since flour is forbidden.

Now I'd like to point out that sprue is only one of many causes for diarrhea. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-8, What You Need to Know About Diarrhea, so you'll have a better understanding of the problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the valuable aids in determining whether a person has celiac sprue as a cause for chronic severe diarrhea is to eliminate all foods containing gluten, which I mentioned above. If the diarrhea problem disappears in two to three weeks, that is at least strong presumptive evidence that the gluten may be an important factor in causing the diarrhea.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please don't tell me I have a crazy husband. I already know that. What I need is some advice on what to do about it.

About two years ago George got on this "cleanliness kick," and now he absolutely refuses to eat anywhere but home! His reason: He doesn't know how clean the kitchens, pots, pans, utensils, silverware, etc., are in other homes. Neither is he convinced that the food was prepared by one with clean hands.

A restaurant? Forget it. George says that even the best of them have roaches and rats!

Naturally we do a lot of entertaining at home, but our friends aren't able to reciprocate. I have quit making up excuses. When we're invited to someone's home, I simply say, "I have a crazy husband who won't eat anywhere but home, but we'll be glad to come after dinner."

In case you think my husband is a total nut, Abby, he owns his own business and his annual income has been in six figures for the last 10 years. He's the only millionaire I know who carries his lunch. What's wrong with him?

LONG ISLANDER

DEAR LONG: Your husband is a mysophobic — one who has a morbid fear of filth or contamination. It won't kill him, but it's unfair to you. Invite a psychiatrist to dinner.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a pest I'll call Cindy. We have nothing in common except that our husbands are best buddies, and now we are neighbors.

Cindy makes a habit of coming over here uninvited when her husband works late. She has two whiny, cranky kids, ages 2 and 3, who are still in diapers and on the bottle. I have no children by choice and do secretarial work at home, so it's not as though I'm a lady of leisure.

Last evening Cindy came over (at dinnertime, as usual) and kept saying, "I really should go home and fix dinner for me and the kids because Dick (her husband) is working late tonight." I took the hint and invited her to stay and eat with us.

Immediately after dinner my husband left the room, and I had to entertain her.

Cindy smokes constantly, and always my cigarettes because she doesn't want her husband to know she smokes. She's always borrowing groceries from me and never pays back anything. Last night she used my last drop of milk to fill her baby's bottle!

When I tell my husband I am sick of Cindy, he says, "Be nice to her. She's my buddy's wife." What should I do?

LOVE THY NEIGHBOR (?)

DEAR LOVE: Nobody can impose on you without your cooperation — not twice, anyway. Cindy doesn't sound too bright, but she may need your friendship, so sit her down and have a heart-to-heart talk with her about the ground rules of visiting. And tell your husband if Cindy doesn't play by the rules, he will have to entertain his buddy's wife — and kids.

(Everybody has problems. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

To those who have ordered Abby's new teen booklet, please be patient. The demand again has been overwhelming.

DEBORAH DERR, 17, will perform a dance number during the Miss Top O' Texas pageant. Miss Derr is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie E. Derr of Borger. She is sponsored by the Borger Chamber of Commerce.

Gary Cooper: 'The Last Hero'

By LIZ MITCHELL

American Library Association

"If you made up a character like Coop, nobody would believe it," Gary Cooper's friend Ernest Hemingway said. "He's just too good to be true."

From his start as an honest-to-goodness Montana cowboy, Gary Cooper developed into one of our most famous, durable and beloved motion picture actors. He was a complicated yet plainly likable fellow with a screen persona that grew to stand for integrity, courage and simple goodness — a person biographer Larry Swindell calls "The Last Hero" (Doubleday, 343 pages, $12.95).

Coop was born Frank James Cooper to English parents in Helena, Mont. in 1901. His father loved the American West, while his mother longed to return to the genteel world from which they had come. Young Frank and his elder brother were sent back to England for schooling, but World War I intervened, so they returned to Montana after three years abroad. When, years later, actor Gary Cooper played Lou Gehrig in "The Pride of the Yankees," he had to be taught how to play baseball.

Frank had trouble with school — he was expelled from high school and later dropped out of Montana State College. After working as a cowboy on his family's Seven-Bar-Nine ranch and as a tour guide in Yellowstone National Park, he entered Grinnell College to study commercial art. He left college as a sophomore when his father — a rancher, lawyer and judge — was temporarily faced with financial troubles.

There was a brief, unsuccessful search for work as a commercial artist in Chicago. Frank Cooper was determined not to return to ranching, later recalling, "The work was just too damn hard. Not that I wasn't capable of doing the work, because I was and I did it. But having to work hard never had any real appeal for me, and there may have been some connection with me being in the movies."

So he went to Hollywood, where a Montana friend was a movie extra. A year later he changed his name to Gary because of the highly-publicized Los Angeles murder trial of another Frank Cooper — who was subsequently convicted. The new name was suggested by his agent, who hailed from Gary, Indiana.

And the rest, as they say, is history.

Gary Cooper's early film career was plagued by rather public love affairs. His hot-tempered relationship with Clara Bow fizzled, it seems, because the "It" girl didn't want to settle down. Gary moved from his parents' house to live with the "Mexican spitfire," actress Lupe Velez, in a mansion given her by a former lover. And Coop's involvement with a fabulously wealthy "older woman," the married Dorothy (Countess) di Frasso, introduced him to the sophisticated world of globetrotting and African safaris.

But it was 20-year-old socialite Veronica "Rocky" Balfe whom Coop married, and to whom the formerly famous "skirt chaser" stayed married until his death in 1961. After his marriage, he and his family led a private existence, except for several incidents that made scandal-sheet headlines, such as a 1934 luncheon at which Rocky allegedly returned jewelry the Countess had given to Coop. Biographer Swindell recounts the events in our hero's personal life with restraint and balance, noting only those incidents or relationships he can document, and then handling them sensitively.

"The Last Hero" was both a simple and highly complex person. A devoted family man, a notorious "stud," a natural understated actor, an Academy Award winner, and a "good guy," Robert Taylor said of him, "Everybody likes Coop because there's no pose. He accepts you as you are, and asks only that you accept him in the same spirit. He isn't temperamental, and just being around him is relaxing because of that."

Swindell's assessment is that Gary Cooper "liked to be liked, hated to be hated, and wished he could be friends with everyone." For those who have loved his movies, he was.

For more about Coop, try "Gary Cooper: An Intimate Biography," by Hector Arce (Morrow).

AT WIT'S END

By Erma Bombeck

COPENHAGEN — The family is here for a vacation. It is Sunday morning. We have rented bicycles and are all going to Mass. We look like a Norman Rockwell poster for "FREEDOM OF RELIGION."

The silence of the journey is interrupted by our son's voice: "Dad! Why don't you stop and ask someone?"

Dad says, "If the map says there's a church here then there ought to be!"

There is a cramp in my right leg and I must stop to massage it. I am in the bus loading zone. It is a blessing I only eat Danish and do not understand it.

One child suggests we go to an amusement park and say we tried. Dad is clearly three blocks ahead of us like he is racing the Italians in "Breaking Away." I hate him when he gets in that mood.

He yells and says he's found the church. One son reminds him that once in Hawaii he said he found a restaurant we were looking for and it was a funeral home.

Another son says it looks like it is closed. It is not a good neighborhood.

I say someone will steal our bicycles. Two sons volunteer to stay and watch them.

My husband says, "We are all going to Mass and pray together for love and forgiveness if I have to break some heads to do it."

The church is definitely not Catholic. We told him so. There is no holy water, no statues of Mary and no confessionals. I say excuse me to the man on the pew. He is a wino who has passed out. The minister-priest-rabbi (select one) turns to give the sermon. It is in Danish. He is dressed in black with a ruffe around his neck.

I tell my husband if he hadn't been so stubborn and asked someone, we might have found the church. He nudges our oldest and tells him to sit up, pay attention and show a little respect: I send the other kid to check on the bicycles. The minister walks toward us and I suspect he is going to ask us to keep it down.

He takes the wino's pulse and seems pleased. We thank him for his sermon.

Outside, a man weaves over to my husband and offers him a drink of his beer. For a moment, I thought he was going to take it.

The family that prays together... gets on each other's nerves.

Lindbergh flew in Texas

By MYRA HARGRAVE McILVAIN
Texas Historical Commission

In 1923 Charles Lindbergh was not famous, but like all barnstormers, he wanted to be able to say he had flown in Texas. When he bought his first World War I surplus Jenny in Georgia, he flew it to Texarkana. The following year, on a trip to California, Lindbergh mistook the Nueces River for the Rio Grande and by the time he discovered his error he had to land in a sheep pasture outside Camp Wood, Texas. The pasture proved too small for a takeoff with both Lindbergh and his partner, Leon Klink, in the cockpit. "Slim," as Camp Wood residents called Lindbergh, flew the plane into town and landed on the town square. The Canuck's 44-foot wings had to fit between telephone poles 48 feet apart for the takeoff. All went well until one wheel dropped into a rut in the street causing the plane to swing around, strike the pole, and then crash into a hardware store. No one received an injury and the storekeeper refused payment for damages. After a week of hosting the young aviators while their plane was being repaired, the town took a real liking to the pair, especially the quiet and courteous Lindbergh.

Two weeks after his Camp Wood experience, Lindbergh became a U.S. Air Service Cadet at Brooks Field, San Antonio, completing his advanced flight training at Kelly Field in 1925. Two years later, May 20-21, 1927, Lindbergh became a world famous aviation hero by making the first solo flight from New York to Paris.

Later that year, he returned to Texas to survey the first commercial transcontinental air route through Amarillo. Two years later he introduced U.S.-Mexican airmail in Brownsville.

The Texas Historical Commission has placed an official Texas historical marker in Lindbergh Park at Camp Wood, Real County, in memory of Lindbergh's activities in Texas. Other preservation programs of the Texas Historical Commission include the National Register of Historic Places, archeological investigation and services to historical museums.

'Cover Girl' finalists lead active lives

NEW YORK (AP) — Though they come from towns all over the country and their interests and goals vary, the 10 finalists in the High School Cover Girl contest have some things in common: all get top grades, are involved in school activities and sports, and firmly believe that careers and marriage are a good mix.

"Sports are a big part of my life," says the 1980 national winner, Jamie Jacobs, 14, of Quinlan, Texas, who is planning a career in business. A cheerleader who likes basketball, track and horseback riding, the class valedictorian has worked as an extra in the TV series, "Dallas," and in a movie.

As winner of the 19th annual contest, she received a $2,500 education scholarship from Noxell, and appears as the cover girl on the October issue of Co-Ed magazine and in a national advertisement for Cover Girl makeup.

Lori Hakola, 17, of Hibbing, Minn., one of the finalists who were awarded a week of sight-seeing in New York City, wants eventually to be a top-level business executive. "I think women are certainly capable of handling big jobs, as long as we are judged by how well we do the job, not by our sex," she says. Her more immediate goal is honors in figure-skating, on which she practices as much as eight hours a day.

"Every woman should have a career, even after marriage," agrees Stephanie Macon, 18, of Henderson, N.C., who wants to be a fashion buyer. "It's important to be independent and know how to make it on your own." She plays on her school basketball and softball teams and holds a part-time job to save for college.

"I plan to be a dentist," says Lynnette Derryberry, 17, of Atkins, Ark., who wins prizes for sculpture and horsemanship. "I want to have a good income so I can live on a farm and raise horses. But I would also like to donate dental services to underprivileged children."

According to Elizabeth Johnson, 17, of Billings, Mont., who wants a career in acting, "women have many more opportunities now than they did before. It's just a question of working hard for what you want," adds the award-winning pianist and golfer, school newspaper reporter, actress in school plays, and model and sales clerk in a local department store.

"I'm a 'people person,' so I'm aiming for a career in public relations," Lori Fee, 16, of Paradise Valley, Ariz., reports.

"I plan to study business and communications when I get to college." Meanwhile she holds down school and sorority offices, practices for — and wins — piano competitions, models in department-store fashion shows, teaches Sunday School and maintains honor-roll grades.

"I want to be able to help people and have an interesting career too. Nursing seems like the perfect choice," says Tina Tolar, 17, of Orlando, Fla. She plays on the school tennis team, lifts weights, gets top grades and models as a member of a local department store's Teen Board.

Get that porch in shape

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Autumn traditionally is the important season for home redecorating projects. But there's one home project that is almost sure to be done in the late spring and early summer. It's redoing the porch.

Whether your sun porch is indoors or out, chances are you will spend more time there during summer. And if that porch reflects the season with leafy plants, wicker furniture and delightfully cool breezes, so much the better.

Decorators asked for advice on how to decorate a summer porch came up with some practical suggestions. First of all, several agreed, furnishings depend on whether the room is for year-round use or is only a warm weather place.

However, if you have an unheated, uninsulated porch or even an outdoor porch and are in need of more space, you may be able to convert your one-season room to a year-round room. Insulating and installing windows and a floor covering may be possible. Check with a building contractor or a home center if such a project seems possible, since summer is a perfect time to work on such a conversion.

If you have an indoor porch, start with the window coverings. Choose coverings that offer flexibility in light and air circulation. It is usually necessary to provide some protection for rooms from the hot summer sun while at the same time allowing for air circulation so that cooling breezes may enter.

Coverings such as blinds, either vertical or horizontal, or inexpensive Japanese matchstick or bamboo blinds are excellent because they permit air to enter but can be adjusted to keep out the sun.

Cotton print curtains of a loose weave are another possible choice.

Floors can be left bare during the warm months. Choose a surface that will take spills in stride, such as a painted wood floor treated with polyurethane or another hard surface flooring. An easy-care rug that can go into a washing machine or rugs of natural fiber such as sisal also are excellent.

Furniture should be durable, comfortable and easy to care for. Choose furniture covers that are not too susceptible to fading in the sun. Look also for stain release treatments on the fabrics. The amount and type of furniture obviously depends on the size of the porch and the activities that occur there.

But it is easy to see that by keeping the atmosphere informal and cheerful, you will make your porch a more welcoming place. A rustic, country style of furnishing is particularly appropriate to a porch.

Furniture that can be moved around as need arises is also useful. Wicker and rattan furniture with cheerful, printed fabric cushions fulfill this need. Also highly useful is molded plastic furniture as well as all sorts of outdoor furniture such as wrought iron and cast and wrought aluminum framed pieces with cushions or strap seats.

Furniture which has been found useful on a sun porch includes comfortable, cushioned seating, a combination game and dining table with chairs, side tables for lamps and accessories, and storage furniture in the form of an etagere or bookshelves or built-in shelving and cabinets.

For a year-round porch that can change with the seasons without much trouble or expense, paint the walls and floor a neutral color. In warm months, use a cotton fabric with smooth textures and garden colors. Leave the floors bare and accessorize with plenty of potted plants.

When fall comes, add a textured rug and replace the cotton print with a nubbier sort of fabric. Use a different and warmer window treatment. Remove some or all of the plants and bring in some wintry accessories. Candles and brass objects provide an air of warmth to a wintry room.

For economy, consider reversible cushions, summer-like on one side and wintry on the other, or have slip covers for summer use.

Starting at the top

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Blueprint makers didn't work their way to the top, they started there.

The first blueprint shops used the sun to develop copies of architectural and engineering plans called blueprints. The shops were always located on the top floor for maximum exposure to sunlight, reports AM

Bruning, a manufacturer of engineering reprographics equipment.

The blueprint was made with an original drawing laid over special photosensitive paper that was exposed to the sun. The paper turned blue, except for the lines of the original drawing, which were left white making a "blueprint."

Singing for a cause

Some celebrities prefer not to make public their political and social views, but it's not so for the members of MUSE, Musicians United for Safe Energy, the group that produced the current film, "No Nukes."

Singer-guitarist Bonnie Raitt, one of the founding members of MUSE, has had a lifetime of causes. Her father, actor John Raitt, headed a family of social activists, and Miss Raitt has spent much of the last decade doing benefits for women's centers, farmworkers, listener-supported radio stations and such.

"We're people first, many of us with families," she says, explaining the motivation for MUSE. "We felt an obligation to bring to light issues that aren't usually covered in the press. People protested nuclear energy for years and didn't get fair and accurate coverage. As public figures, we knew we could get attention."

"Unfortunately, the poor credibility of artists' handling of money after the Bangladesh concert was a major hurdle. We had to really carefully plan the MUSE concerts in New York last September."

Although she names MUSE as her primary interest, Miss Raitt is also working on a documentary of the life and music of blues singer, Sippy

Wallace, an 81-year-old black woman who travels with Miss Raitt and has become her music mentor.

"We've looked everywhere for money," says Miss Raitt. "Here I am an educated, middle-class woman, with plenty of connections and unable to get funding. I've tried getting money on several levels: American heritage, music, minority, feminism. Sippy Wallace is a national treasure, and when she's gone, it's the end of a tradition."

"It's ironic, I know people who spend thousands of dollars putting stuff up their nose, and I can't get the money to finish this film."

Something which has been a long time coming to fruition may be completed this coming year, and your rewards will be good. However, take time before impulsively wasting your efforts in a helter-skelter manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Things at home won't be running like a well-oiled machine today. If you're prepared for the unexpected, you'll not get flustered if mishaps occur. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Hunches, yours or someone else's, aren't that reliable today. You could be dismayed if you follow one impulsively, so don't look for shortcuts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Revolutionary or progressive products have a special appeal to you today. You could buy a white elephant unless you fully investigate the new-fangled items beforehand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You operate effectively today so long as everything goes as you expect it to, but let a setback occur and you may throw in the towel without even trying.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Check everything out thoroughly, especially as the hours get late and you get tired. A mental mistake could slip through, which would create a problem.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're sticking to your promises today, so there's no reason to let someone else off the hook just because this person doesn't want to live up to an obligation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) All your hard work may be for naught today if you bank more heavily on a rather undependable ally than you should. Don't expect miracles from non-producers.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may get cooperation from one who is difficult to convince, but unless this person has his heart in it, he may not be as methodical as the work calls for.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) When you are tending to your business and doing your chores, everything goes fine today. It'll be your social plans that later prove disappointing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Domestic tranquility could be disturbed when an unexpected situation occurs today. Unless you're prepared to be quite flexible, it could be frustrating.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The lamp may be burning quite late in your house today when you find out a necessary chore can't be put off until tomorrow.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful in whom you place your trust today, especially if money is involved. Just because someone is trustworthy in one area doesn't necessarily make this person reliable in everything.

Democratic strength lies in diversity

NEW YORK (AP) — For the Democratic activists who struggled a decade ago to broaden participation in the party, the opening Monday of the 1980 convention should have been a moment to celebrate the completion of their work.

Instead, it went largely unnoticed, overshadowed by the fight over a rule they adopted with far less argument.

Nonetheless, after the smoke clears from the battle over the rule requiring delegates to abide by the results of state primaries and conventions, the diversity promoted by other changes in party rules could be a major strength for Democrats in the fall campaign against the Republicans.

If the people attending the two major party conventions are any indication, the Democrats retain roots among groups who made theirs the majority party. Whether Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan can break those ties is a major question in the 1980 election.

The Democrats can point to their delegates as far more representative of the national population than were the delegates to the Republican National Convention last month in Detroit.

The Democratic delegates are younger and less affluent than their Republican counterparts. There are higher percentages of women, blacks and Hispanics. There are more union members, including white-collar teachers and blue-collar auto workers and teamsters.

So, if diversity is strength, the Democrats have it.

But don't declare the Democrats sure winners in November despite public opinion polls this month that say they are behind the Republicans. First, recall that this convention is only slightly more representative of the national population than the 1972 conclave that nominated Sen. George S. McGovern for president.

The diversity of his party convention did McGovern little good in November when he carried only Massachusetts and the District of Columbia in his landslide loss to Richard M. Nixon.

In 1972, the party imposed a quota system on states that forced them to include women, young people and minority groups "in reasonable relationship" to the state population.

The quotas and a host of other changes in party rules were adopted in reaction to the turbulent 1968 convention in Chicago. Party activists, acting in the name of reform, were determined to break the grip of old-line bosses like Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

The 1972 convention in Miami Beach turned out to be nearly as chaotic as the one in Chicago. Scores of credential challenges had to be resolved.

Among those who failed to win a delegate seat was Daley.

After McGovern's defeat, affirmative action replaced quotas and led to the makeup of the 1980 convention.

The percentages of women and minority delegates dropped at the 1976 convention that made Jimmy Carter the presidential nominee. But this year the percentage of women is at an all-time high while minorities have about the same proportion of seats they had in 1972.

Among the Democratic delegates, 49.4 percent are women, 14 percent are black and 4 percent are Hispanic. Thirty percent of the Republican convention delegates were women and 95 percent of the GOP delegates were white.

The average age of Democratic delegates is 43.9, nearly five years younger than the figure for Republican convention delegates.

In his presidential campaign, Reagan is reaching out to traditionally Democratic groups, calling on them to desert the Democrats and join him in a new coalition he terms a "community of shared values."

Reagan and his advisers believe that many Democrats, particularly blue-collar workers, are growing increasingly conservative and impatient with the traditional liberal solutions to domestic problems. The Republican nominee also believes that these Democrats also are more hawkish than their party leaders.

Yet, some of the Reagan's strongest supporters within the Republican Party have opposed efforts to broaden the base by reaching out to voting blocs normally considered strongly aligned with the Democrats. They have argued that if the country is growing more conservative, there is no need to make the GOP more liberal.

When Reagan accepted the Republican nomination in Detroit with a speech quoting Franklin D. Roosevelt, the delegates who listened bore little resemblance to the broad coalition Roosevelt built into the nation's majority party of its time.

But then, neither did the delegates who nominated Roosevelt in 1932 and three times thereafter.

Senators still like to be read to WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., says he liked to be read to when he was a child, but he gets a little tired of it as an adult.

Leahy voiced his objection during Senate hearings on the Billy Carter affair, and he is not alone in his view.

When witnesses present written testimony before congressional committees, the members are provided with printed copies in advance so they or their aides can read them.

Often, senators try to get the witnesses to summarize their statements. Often, the witnesses read the whole thing anyway.

Thus, Leahy was dismayed when Libyan expert Henry Schuler arrived with a 30-page history of U.S.-Libyan relations which Leahy had just finished studying.

"As a child I always enjoyed being read to, but I would hate to insult Mr. Schuler by having him read through the whole 30 pages again," he said.

Schuler agreed to a 10-minute summary.

At the next hearing, when the witness was J. Kenneth Fasick of the General Accounting Office, Leahy tried again. This time Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the Billy Carter panel, chimed in.

"Perhaps it is only a senatorial temptation, but I sometimes succumb to the temptation to take a 10-minute statement and summarize it in 30 minutes," Bayh told Fasick.

Fasick agreed to summarize his 10-page statement. He then read it, skipping a paragraph here and there. It took 15 minutes.

At one point, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., literally spelled out his meaning.

Thurmond speaks with the accents of his native state and, to a northern ear, the letter "t" sometimes seems to disappear.

So when he was questioning Associate Deputy Attorney General Thomas H. Keuch about the Foreign Agents Registration Act, his question came out, "Weeah ah those documents stohed?"

Keuch, leaning forward, asked, "Stohed?"

"Stohed," said Thurmond. "Ess, Tee, Oh, Ah, Ee, Dee, Stohed."

Keuch then told him where they were stored.

Entertainment planners for the Democratic National Convention take note: Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., says he may be irked if you have somebody else up on the platform playing the fiddle.

The Senate majority leader took to the Senate floor recently to make fun of a newspaper report that he had been "irked" because he wasn't invited to speak at the convention.

"I would have been irked if someone else had been invited to play the fiddle at the convention and I had not been asked," joked Byrd, who has recorded an album of country fiddle music.

Five Pac-10 schools ruled ineligible

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The presidents and chancellors of Pacific-10 conference schools have tackled the issue of widespread transcript and academic credit scandals in the conference — in effect creating a Pac-5.

At a meeting Monday in Denver, the panel of chief executives cut in half the number of schools eligible for the 1980 Pac-10 football crown and for postseason football competition. The panel dealt out a variety of penalties to the universities whose athletic programs have been cited with academic violations. Oregon was the hardest hit, receiving two years' probation.

The panel's unanimous ruling eliminated five schools — Southern California, UCLA, Arizona State, Oregon State and Oregon — from contention for any bowl berth, including the Rose Bowl. The panel decided, however, that all conference games played during the 1980 season will count in the standings.

Reaction from the affected schools ranged from bitter melancholia to apologetic acquiescence, but one voice said it didn't matter too much.

"We're sorry the five colleges have been ruled ineligible," said Bill Nicholas, chairman of the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena, "but those things happen. People will still come to the Rose Bowl game."

Elsewhere, however, comments were less sanguine.

Southern Cal football Coach John Robinson: "We're very disappointed about the decision."

UCLA Coach Terry Donahue: "The incident for which we are being penalized occurred three years ago. I am embarrassed that the academic integrity of UCLA has been subject to question, and I feel very sorry for our players and coaches."

Arizona State Coach Darryl Rogers (whose school already has forfeited its 1979 victories after investigation found that eight players were ineligible because they had received credit for coursework they never did): "...We've already been penalized more than any other school. Things that have happened to ASU have already done damage."

Oregon State Coach Joe Avezzano: "We're just going to have to sacrifice for past mistakes. I'm not sure we weren't on a runaway car ready to self-destruct, and I think that having someone come in and help clean up your house makes you more aware of the situation and puts everything maybe back in the proper perspective."

Oregon athletic director John Caine: "The conference has acted thoroughly and promptly. Obviously, the penalties are hard to accept because they mean that we will not be able to participate in a bowl game this season. However, we are pleased that there is only a one-year penalty involved."

The five universities were penalized for "violations of conference rules and standards in the areas of unearned credits, falsified transcripts and the unwarranted intrusion of athletic department interests into the academic processes of the respective universities," the panel's report said.

No other action is contemplated, said Pac-10 spokesman Jim Muldoon. He said any penalties for non-academic violations would come from the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Washington State University's Dr. Glenn Terrell, who chairs the presidents and chancellors group, defended the penalties.

"We feel these actions were necessary to preserve the academic integrity of the conference, our institutions and our athletic programs," he said.

The chief executives' panel also meted out a variety of other sanctions against member schools:

—Southern Cal: ineligible for the track and field conference championship in 1981 and for participation in the 1981 Pac-10 or NCAA track and field championships; adjustment of all dual meet and conference championship meet results for the 1978 season to eliminate points won by ineligible athletes, resulting in Southern Cal vacating the 1978 Pac-10 track and field title.

That penalty came on the heels of revelations earlier this year that former NCAA 400-meter dash champ Billy Mullins was accepted into Southern Cal with a transcript that included 28 credits allegedly received from four different junior colleges, widely separated geographically, during the semester before he entered Southern Cal in 1978. The school already had been stripped of its national collegiate title by the NCAA for the same violations.

—UCLA: forfeit all of its 1977 football games in which any ineligible athlete played.

UCLA Athletic Director Robert Fischer called the penalties "very severe," and said, "What happened three years ago was an unwilful transgression and could not happen today under our present academic safeguards."

—Arizona State, previously declared ineligible for the 1980 football championship: declared ineligible for any postseason football competition.

—Oregon State: forfeit all its 1977 and 1979 games in which any ineligible athlete participated.

National League baseball roundup

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Editor

Charles Leibrandt has shown he can win in the major leagues — especially if he pitches against the San Diego Padres.

The rookie left-hander of the Cincinnati Reds has a 10-7 record in his first full season in the National League, nicely padded by three victories over his personal patsy — the Padres.

Leibrandt, who has only given up four earned runs in 29 innings against San Diego this season, continued to torment the Padres with a 1-0 victory Monday night as Tom Hume provided late relief help.

"I've been struggling a lot lately, but I felt pretty good tonight," said Leibrandt. "This was probably my best effort since I shut out the Padres 1-0 earlier this year. Hume did a heck of a job in relief."

The right-handed reliever gained his 20th save after replacing Leibrandt with one out in the seventh and runners at first and third. He got Ozzie Smith on a fly ball to right, and Rollie Fingers, the runner on third, was cut down at the plate trying to score.

In other NL games, Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 3-2; San Francisco edged Houston 5-4; Pittsburgh beat New York 2-1 in a game called because of rain after 5½ innings; St. Louis walloped Montreal 16-0 and Philadelphia and Chicago played to a 5-5 tie in a game called after 10 innings by darkness at Wrigley Field.

Braves 3, Dodgers 2

Rick Matula and Rick Camp combined on a five-hitter and Chris Chambliss smashed a two-run double as Atlanta beat Los Angeles.

Matula, 7-10, struck out four and walked four, including two in the ninth, before needing Camp's relief help. Camp recorded his eighth save, getting the last two outs after walking the bases loaded and giving up a two-run single to Pedro Guerrero.

Chambliss' double capped a three-run eighth off loser Don Sutton, 8-4.

Giants 5, Astros 4

Vida Blue, with relief help from Al Holland and Greg Minton, won his first game in two months as San Francisco defeated Houston.

Blue, 10-6, allowed six hits and three runs over five innings in his third appearance since coming off the disabled list. Holland worked three innings and Minton came on in the ninth to record his 12th save.

"I guess I'm fortunate that after throwing 100,000 or so pitches in the big leagues, that's the only serious problem I've had," said Blue. "I've pitched three times now since that injury, and I can honestly say I haven't felt anything."

Pirates 2, Mets 1

Lee Lacy's sacrifice fly and Ed Ott's RBI-grounder produced the winning runs in the second inning as Pittsburgh beat

New York in a game called after 5½ innings due to rain. It was the eighth victory in row for the streaking Pirates, who moved into sole possession of first place in the National League East over Montreal.

Right fielder Mike Easler and second baseman Phil Garner each made great defensive plays for Pittsburgh in the sixth inning, saving the game for Eddie Solomon, 7-3.

Roy Lee Jackson, 1-3, was the loser.

Cardinals 16, Expos 0

Tony Scott and Ted Simmons combined for seven hits and six RBI and Leon Durham belted a two-run homer as St. Louis scored eight runs in the first inning and went on to rout Montreal behind Bob Sykes' four-hitter.

Sykes, 6-8, also drove in two of the Cardinals' runs with a single in the first and a sacrifice fly in the third. While registering his second consecutive shutout and third of the year, Sykes struck out five and walked five.

Phillies 5, Cubs 5

The Phillies and Cubs was suspended after 10 innings because of darkness with the teams locked in a 5-5 tie. They will resume the game prior to today's regularly-scheduled afternoon contest.

The Cubs tied the game 5-6 on a double by Billuckner and run-scoring grounder by Barry Foote.

American League baseball roundup

When in trouble, go to the veterans.

That's what the New York Yankees did Monday night after dropping three straight games to the Baltimore Orioles over the weekend. With their American League West lead shrinking to 2½ games, the Yanks needed a boost. They got three of them — from Reggie Jackson, Aurelio Rodriguez and Rudy May, who total nearly 40 years of major league experience among them.

Jackson slammed his 400th career home run, Rodriguez contributed a dramatic two-run blast in the bottom of the ninth and May threw a four-hitter as New York edged Chicago 3-1.

Meanwhile, the Orioles sneaked past Kansas City 2-1 and Detroit nipped Boston 8-7 in an abbreviated AL schedule.

THE WAY IT WAS

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Feller, the one-time strikeout king, was being interviewed by a radio reporter who asked him about his legendary duels with Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee slugger.

"Joe was tough," Feller admitted. "I didn't really learn how to pitch to him until the end of my career."

A short while later the same reporter conveyed that information to DiMaggio, who pondered it for a moment and then said: "It was the end of my career also."

The Bird is back

DETROIT (AP) — Forget about the stiff shoulder, the cortisone shots, the stiff back, the heat treatment, the injured knee, the rehabilitations, the tendonitis, the demotions to the minor leagues and the hypnosis.

For better or worse, Mark "The Bird" Fidrych is back — again.

The popular Detroit Tigers right-hander will attempt his fourth comeback in four years tonight when he takes the mound against the Boston Red Sox in a sold-out Tiger Stadium.

The irrepressible Fidrych, the American League's 1976 Rookie of the Year, was back in Tiger Stadium on Monday night, clowning around in the outfield and joking with teammates, reporters and friends before Detroit's 8-7 victory over Boston.

He vowed he would be the Bird of old, talking to the baseball, manhandling the pitcher's mound on his hands and knees, giving teammates handshakes and pats on the back with his boyish, contagious enthusiasm.

But will he be able to pitch like the Fidrych who went 19-9 in 1976, with a league-leading 2.34 ERA? Or will he resemble the sore-armed shadow of himself who has struggled to bounce back from a series of frustrating ailments?

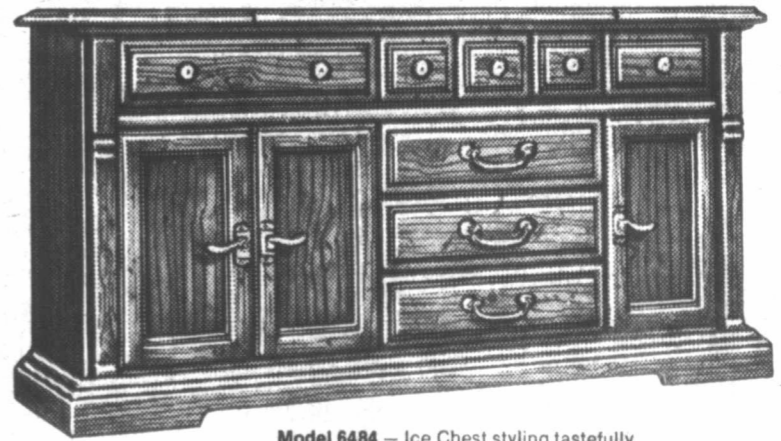

"Can I do it? That's the question," says Fidrych, who has not started a big league game since May 22, 1979, and who has not won a start since April 12, 1978.

"I'm satisfied that I'm ready because I've been in the minors and I've worked my way back. I threw 117 innings in Evansville (Detroit's Triple A farm club) this year. It's not like my other comebacks, when I came off the disabled list and never faced any hitters until batting practice."

Fidrych compiled a 6-7 record in Evansville with a 3.92 ERA before he was called up last week. The numbers are hardly impressive, but pitching Coach Roger Craig and other Tiger brass say Fidrych has rebounded from a horrendous early season and is ready to return.

To reduce errors Rice switching to veer offense

By MICHAEL S. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — As Rice University Coach Ray Alborn sat reviewing the debris of last season's 1-10 finish, he looked at his team's 58 turnovers and then he looked at Texas Christian University.

Suddenly, the veer offense was born at Rice. "TCU proved last year that if you select your plays carefully and don't turn the ball over, you can be competitive," Alborn said. "They had Arkansas beat and came back the next week and beat us. They are the classic example of what play selection can do."

"Then you look at our film and the times we put ourselves out of ball games with our mistakes. It kind of hits you between the eyes. It's a case of let's don't beat ourselves."

Simply changing offenses hasn't solved all Alborn's problems. Senior quarterback Randy Hertel has spent three years as a passing quarterback, although chased and harassed by enemy defenses. It won't be an easy transition.

"It was a difficult transition for Randy," Alborn said. "Not because I don't think he's good enough to make it, but because Randy had been a throwing quarterback for three years. We just changed philosophies suddenly and it's tough to pick up quickly."

Hertel is not assured of a starting job as fall practice begins. Sophomore Scott Clements and senior Robert Hoffmann battled with Hertel through spring training and Alborn also is excited about incoming freshmen quarterbacks Philip Money of Edinburg and Doug Johnson of Pasadena Dobie.

Alborn hopes a simplified offense will cut down on mistakes.

"We harped and harped on the fact in the spring that we've got to eliminate the turnovers," Alborn said. "There were so many times last season when we would play really well and then make a disastrous mistake and never recover."

The Owls lost only four starters are gone among the top 22 players.

Three-year letterman Earl Cooper, guards John Joyce and Paul Garcia are gone on offense and cornerback Don Rutledge is the only defensive loss.

Calvin Tim Sanders and Frank Wilson are in a three-way fight for the two running back positions. Tight end Robert Hubble, after an impressive sophomore season, also returns.

Lamont Jefferson is expected to step in at cornerback along with Rickey Thomas. Mike Downs and David Darr will be the safeties.

The Owls are 3-19 the past two seasons but Alborn says the team's attitude is positive going into the 1980 campaign.

"When we started the season in 1979, our attitude was as positive as any team since I've been here," Alborn said. "But some things happened that caused us to lose confidence. But now all these guys realize, not thin, that we can win."

Tampa Bay downs Oilers in exhibition

HOUSTON (AP) — The new Houston offense ushered in by quarterback Ken Stabler took two pages of statistics forms to fill in players who caught passes but it was Tampa Bay's Chuck Fusina who got the statistic that counted—a 21-7 exhibition victory.

Stabler, noted for his diversity on offense, played his first game in an Oilers uniform as 13 Oilers caught passes. Fusina, meanwhile, played the winning hand in the National Football League exhibition game in the Astrodome.

"I was jittery at the start but after I quit worrying about getting the ball from center it started to be fun," said Fusina, who completed a 13-yard touchdown pass to Gordon Jones in the first quarter.

"I didn't know how long I would get to play so I tried to make the most of it. I have a long way to go. I am still trying to be a good quarterback."

The quarterback duo of Fusina and Mike Rae, combined with a 61-yard halfback pass by Jerry Eckwood for a touchdown, were good enough to beat the Oilers.

Fusina completed five of 13 passes for 61 yards while Rae hit eight of 15 for 83 yards. In addition to his TD pass, Eckwood led all rushers in the game with 45 yards on nine carries.

"Jerry is a very good football player," Tampa Bay Coach John McKay said. "We believe with Jerry and Ricky Bell not many teams have any faster backfield than we do."

WORKERS ARE remodeling the landscape around the Pampa High tennis courts before school starts this year. Besides using a welding torch and a bulldozer to repair the bleachers (above), they have been busy tearing up the ground and asphalt on the west side of the courts so the area can be replaced by concrete. Tennis coach David Martin said the concrete section would extend from the courts to the high school fieldhouse in background. The fieldhouse itself is receiving a new floor this year as part of the school system's summer renovation project.

Hilliard transfers to Lamar University

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Keith Hilliard, who left the Arkansas Razorbacks basketball team last week, has decided to transfer to Lamar University and sit out a year of eligibility.

Lamar Coach Pat Foster, who was an assistant coach at Arkansas last season, said he's "tickled to death" to have Hilliard coming to Lamar. The Beaumont, Texas, school is a member of the Southland Conference.

Hilliard, a 6-foot-2 senior point guard, basically has a run-and-gun background which did not fit in well with Razorback Coach Eddie Sutton's more deliberate style.

The circumstances behind Hilliard's leaving Arkansas, however, were not known. The announcement came when Sutton was out of the state, and the university refuses to talk about it.

Hilliard, a native of Memphis, played for two years at Northeastern Oklahoma A&M

Junior College, where he earned junior college All-America honors while averaging 24.8 points as a sophomore.

Hilliard averaged only 4.1 points a game at Arkansas last season, but earned a starting berth on the strength of his quickness and ball-handling abilities.

Under NCAA rules concerning transfers from one major college to another, Hilliard must be redshirted this season at Lamar. He will be eligible for his senior year in 1981-82.

Reds win all-star tilt

The Reds rolled past the Blues, 18-3, Monday night in the Pampa Women's Slowpitch All-Star Softball Game at Lions Club Park.

Winning pitcher was Peggy Terrell and losing pitcher was Carmella Caldwell. Terrell and Caldwell were also named the game's outstanding players.

All the players received an award for being selected to the all-star team while the members of the winning team received individual trophies.

In a women's fastpitch invitational tournament last weekend, Lindsey Furniture routed Pampa News, 22-7, in the championship finals.

Winning pitcher was Peggy Terrell and losing pitcher was Rosie Santacruz.

Pampa News advanced to the finals by slipping past the Borger Bombers, 15-11, in the semi-finals. Santacruz was the winning pitcher.

Lindsey Furniture downed Borger, 13-12, the Pampa News, 15-5, and Con Chem Co., 17-6, to reach the championship round. Terrell was the winning pitcher in all three games.

Borger advanced to semi-finals by defeating Gordy Trucking, 16-1, and Con Chem Co., 12-10. Linda Thurman was the winning pitcher in both games.

In a first-round game, Pampa News defeated Gordy Trucking, 19-14.

Santacruz was the winning pitcher and Peggy Poole was the loser.

Hill wins club title

Nita Hill rallied in the second round Sunday to win the Pampa Ladies Club championship with a 164.

Hill was locked in a three-way tie for second with an 83 after the first round of play. She shot an 81 in the second round.

Ava Warren took second with a 169.

Sue Winborn, who was the first-round leader, had a low net score of 137. Eva Kitchens followed with a 141.

Flight placings are as follows:

Flight One—1. Mackie Scott, 175; 2. Darlene Dunnam, 179. Low net—1. Joan Terrell, 135; 2. Margaret Lawyer, 151.

Flight Two: 1. LaWanda Baker, 202; 2. Donna Parks, 203. Low net—1. Beth Heiskell, 145; 2. Clara Graham, 152.

Rookie Flight—1. Pam Deeds, 135; 2. Deana Milliron, 137. Janice Piersall, 138.

The Ladies Panhandle Tournament gets underway today at the Pampa Country Club.

Footwear to be issued

Pampa High varsity and junior varsity football prospects will be issued footwear at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday night at the Harvester Football Fieldhouse.

Head coach Larry Gilbert urged all players to be present.

The Harvesters begin two-a-day workouts Monday, Aug. 18.

Carter, Nomination in Hand, Plays Sultor to Kennedy
 NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter, his path to renomination cleared in a convention floor battle, is playing sultor to his vanquished rival, Edward M. Kennedy, in hopes of achieving a reconciliation that could energize his re-election campaign.
 Carter and Kennedy aides met early today to discuss procedures for negotiations that White House press secretary Jody Powell said would be held today to try to resolve remaining platform issues.
 The convention reconvenes at 11 a.m. EDT for a session to be devoted almost entirely to debating the party platform.

Platform Will Provide More Squabbles For Democrats
 NEW YORK (AP) — They say Democrats love a good convention fight.
 Now that the battle for the presidential nomination is over, the delegates to the party's national gathering — many of them enthusiastic members of one special interest group or another — can squabble to their hearts' content over the party's 1980 platform.

There will be the long-anticipated showdown between the forces of President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy over economic policy. Women's groups will be pushing a strong plank in support of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. Pro- and anti-abortion forces will tangle over two abortion planks. Delegates will try to repudiate Carter's support for deployment of the MX missile. And that's not all.

Texas "Truly Blessed" Allen Did Not Obliterate Coast
 CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Two people died, hundreds of thousands were forced from their homes and the damage will probably exceed $200 million. But Gov. Bill Clements says Texas is "truly blessed" that Hurricane Allen did not obliterate the Gulf Coast.

However, in the Caribbean, where Allen raged last week with winds of up to 170 mph, evidence was uncovered that the death toll may have been more than 240, instead of about 100, as officials had been saying.

"Missing Genius" Apparently Tried Suicide, Police Say
 DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — When James Dallas Egbert III disappeared last year, investigators searched a maze of subterranean tunnels at Michigan State University to see if he had been trapped in a real-life version of the "Dungeons and Dragons" fantasy game.

Today, the 17-year-old computer science whiz was in critical condition with a gunshot wound in the head that police say appeared to have been self-inflicted. Police said Egbert was found by a roommate on the floor of his apartment.

Pro-Khomeini Cabinet Expected in 10 Days
 By The Associated Press
 Iran's new hardline prime minister, Mohammad Ali Rajala, said he should be able to form his Cabinet in 10 days, removing the last obstacle to parliamentary debate on the American hostages.

But he indicated no softening in attitude toward the 52 Americans, who spent their 283rd day in captivity today, saying his government would give unbending loyalty to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The president of the U.S. Olympic Committee for the 1928 Olympics in Amsterdam was Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Heat slashes 1980 corn and soybean crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — This summer's withering heat and drought have slashed 1980 harvest prospects sharply for many farmers, particularly those who grow corn and soybeans.

The Agriculture Department said Monday the corn crop now is estimated at 6.65 billion bushels, 14 percent less than last year's record of 7.76 billion.

Perhaps more dramatically, the new estimate — based on field surveys as of Aug. 1 — was down 9 percent or more than 630 million bushels from USDA's initial forecast a month ago of 7.28 billion bushels.

It is the first decline in U.S. corn production since bad weather shrank yields in 1974, reducing the harvest to 4.7 billion bushels, a 17 percent drop from 5.67 billion bushels produced in 1973.

Overall, the department's "all crops" production index for 1980 was shown for the first time this year at 133 percent of crop production in 1967, a base year used for comparison. Last year, the index rose to an all-time high of 144 percent.

Even so, the index as of Aug. 1 was the second highest on record, according to the report.

The department's Crop Reporting Board, in its initial estimate of soybean production this season put the harvest at 1.88 billion bushels, a 17 percent decline from last year's record of 2.27 billion.

But farmers are expected to have record harvests of rice and wheat, the report said.

Rice production was estimated at 146.1 million 100-pound bags or hundredweight, up 7 percent from 136.7 million in 1979. The boost is due to a larger acreage, however, because the yield per acre is expected to decline sharply.

This year's wheat crop, most of which has been harvested, was estimated at a record of 2.32 billion bushels, up 9 percent from 1979 production, virtually the same as the July estimate.

The 1979 wheat crop came within one million bushels of the previous high of more than 2.14 billion bushels in 1976.

Cotton production, estimated for the first time this season, was put at 12.8 million bales, down 12 percent from 14.6 million in 1979.

Sorghum grain, also surveyed for the first time, was estimated at 552.7 million bushels, a 32 percent decline from the 1979 harvest of 814.3 million.

Corn is the largest grain crop grown in the United States and, as livestock feed, is a vital element in the production of meat, poultry and dairy products for American consumers.

Along with wheat and soybeans, corn also is a leading commodity among U.S. agricultural exports to scores of foreign markets, including the big overseas buyers such as Japan and the Common Market countries.

Grain prices at the farm have risen lately from earlier slumps. The most recent five-day average prices computed by USDA show wheat at $3.83 a bushel and corn at $2.91 a bushel.

A year ago wheat prices at the farm averaged $3.71 a bushel and corn $2.49 a bushel, according to USDA records.

Meanwhile, the production report said 1980 corn yields are expected to average 93 bushels an acre, compared to 99.3 indicated last month and the record of 109.4 bushels for the 1979 crop.

Wheat yields, including all types, were estimated at 32.5 bushels per harvested acre, compared 31.8 in July and the 1979 record average of 34.2 bushel an acre.

Winter wheat production, which makes up about three-fourths of the U.S. output, was estimated at a record of 1.87 billion bushels, up 16 percent from 1.61 billion produced last year and 1 percent more than the July forecast. Yields were estimated at 35.9 bushels an acre, compared to 36.9 in 1979.

Producers made up for the reduced yield by having more acres of winter wheat for harvest this year.

Durum wheat was estimated at 100.2 million bushels, up from the July indication of 90.5 million. But this year's total durum harvest will be down 6 percent from 1979 production of nearly 106.7 million bushels. The yield was put at 20.7 bushels an acre against 18.1 indicated last month and the 1979 average of 27.1 bushels.

Spring wheat other than durum was estimated at 354.5 million bushels, compared to the July estimated of 378.4 million. The yield was put at 24.0 bushels an acre, compared to 28.2 in 1979.

Other crops in the August report included:

— Oats, 440,655,000 bushels and a yield of 49.7 bushels an acre, compared to 534,386,000 and 54.4 last year.

— Barley, 340,000,000 bushels and 46.2 an acre, compared to 378,067,000 and 50.6 last year.

— Rye, 16,189,000 bushels and 23.1 an acre, compared to the 1979 harvest of 24,549,000 and an average of 25.9 an acre.

— Flaxseed, 7,070,000 bushels and 9.3 an acre, compared to 13,539,000 and 13.3 last year.

— Peanuts, 3,699,010,000 pounds and 2,448 pounds an acre, compared to 3,980,440,000 and 2,611 last year.

— Hay, 124,452,000 tons and 2.08 tons an acre, compared to 145,878,000 and 2.39 last year.

— Dry beans, 23,199,000 hundredweight and 1,299 pounds an acre, compared to the 1979 crop of 20,665,000 and 1,457.

— Tobacco, 1,850,832,000 pounds and 1,995 pounds an acre, compared to 1,526,682,000 and 1,848 last year.

— Sugarbeets, 22,044,000 tons and 18.7 tons an acre, compared to 22,073,000 and 19.6 last year.

— Sugarcane, 27,660,000 tons and 37.9 tons an acre, compared to 26,532,000 and 36.2 last year.

Surgeons object to Art Buchwald column

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Some textbook critics apparently take humor columnist Art Buchwald seriously.

A proposed sociology text that includes a Buchwald column on hospitals was the target Monday of the Texas Medical Association, a doctor and a hospital official.

Written objections to "Sociology: People in Groups" were made available on the first day of a week-long hearing on $29.7 million worth of proposed public school textbooks.

Protests have been filed against 30 of 33 national publishers who submitted materials for adoption, including Science Research Associates, Inc., publisher of the sociology book.

Buchwald's column said to cut down on surgery and improve hospital cooking, surgeons should be taught how to cook so they could make hospital cuisine the "best in the land."

By doing this, Buchwald said, patients would "extend their stay in their rooms as long as their Blue Cross would let them."

"Empty beds are no more the problem of hospital prices than wet streets cause rain," said John Gravas, president of the Dallas-Fort Worth Hospital Council. "To keep hospital beds full will not decrease prices and is not the practice of hospitals."

R.F. Beston, vice president of Science Research Associates, responded that Buchwald's column should not be taken "literally or seriously." He said students had ample clues to realize the column was not serious.

"The entire book is a biased diatribe ignoring history and current reality, discrediting almost every aspect of American heritage and traditional values we have as a people," said Dr. Reginald McDaniel of Grand Prairie. "One passage in the book states: 'Access to adequate health care, as well as to education and legal counsel, often remains the right of only the prestigious and powerful groups.'"

McDaniel said the "author is ignorant to the fact that the poor classes and the wealthy combined have the best access of all the populations in the world to receiving health care. They wealthy can pay any price — the poor can get it free...."

McDaniel said the book contains "dismal pessimistic bleeding for the oppressed poor" and pleads for "their lack of opportunity in this country."

"I am particularly incensed by it for I am the son of a man who never made over $1,100 in one year," said McDaniel. He said he worked his way through high school, college and medical school.

Beston said the author "is simply making the observation that expected class behaviors tend to operate against change in social position. In no way is it the intention of the writers to suggest that such changes are not possible in the United States."

The proposed textbooks include three elementary subjects and eight at the high school level.

State Education Commissioner Alton Bowen and the State Textbook Committee are conducting the hearings. The State Board of Education will make the final decisions on the textbooks, which would be for use in September 1981.

No 'Allen' babies

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Doctors advised more than 30 expectant mothers to report to Spohn Hospital as Hurricane Allen approached, saying the lower barometric pressure might cause the women to deliver prematurely.

But by 9 a.m. Sunday, only six babies had been delivered.

None of the mothers planned to name their children after the storm, although such names as Allen, Stormy, or Windy were suggested.

"I don't want any memories of this (the storm)," said Celia Zamora.

New methods of protecting officials ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — As part of a study of U.S. nuclear capabilities, President Carter has ordered new methods of protecting top government and military officials should a nuclear war begin.

Defense Department sources said Monday that the goal of the changes are to ensure that top leaders are protected as much as possible from a Soviet attack.

The sources, who declined to be identified, said the new procedures include another look at plans to move top leaders out of Washington in case of attack and more secure communications facilities.

The changes are part of a major new look at U.S. capabilities compared to the Soviet Union, the sources said.

The Pentagon sources said the renewed evaluation of the government's ability to protect its leaders and command structure is partially a response to an increase in numbers and accuracy of Soviet missiles.

Farm workers sue Clayton for back wages

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Farm workers — claiming they were paid under minimum wage for two years by Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton and other West Texas cotton farmers — have filed a class action suit in federal court seeking total damages in excess of $18,000.

The Texas Rural Legal Aid, Inc., represented the 63 migrant and seasonal workers in the suit, filed Monday in the court of U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward.

The suit said Clayton and 20 others paid them $1.85 an hour instead of the minimum hourly wage of $2.65 in 1978 and $2.90 in 1979.

The workers seek $500 each for each of four alleged violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act.

The suit alleges the farmers, all from the Lubbock area, also used an unregistered contractor and failed to keep statutorily required records.

According to the suit, the farmers employed a farm labor contractor by the name of Maximo Bosquez during the two-year period. Bosquez, who allegedly supplied the workers, is not a defendant in the suit.
