Murder-suicide probed in Alanreed deaths

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Staff Writer

ALANREED — The Sunday morning deaths of an Alanreed couple are being investigated by the Gray County Sheriff's Department as a homicide-suicide, law officers said today.

The bodies of Dorothy Sue Crisp, 56, and her husband, Billy Carol Crisp, 59, were discovered by a neighbor at 8:50 a.m. Sunday, Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan said, in the yard near the front of their white frame home located seven and one-half miles north of Alanreed.

"We are investigating the deaths from the standpoint of a homicide-suicide," Sheriff Jordan said.

Crisp had been shot at least twice in the back and Mrs. Crisp had been shot once, he said.

A .38-caliber Smith and Wesson revolver was found at the scene, Jordan said, and has been retained by the sheriff's office as evidence.

The revolver and other physical evidence from the scene will be sent to a laboratory for testing, he said.

The couple was pronounced dead at an inquest held at the scene by McLean Justice of the Peace Dorothy Patterson, who then ordered an autopsy to be performed by Amarillo pathologist, Dr. Jose Esquivel-Diaz.

The bodies were taken to Amarillo Sunday afternoon for autopsies.

Don Wilson, who lives a mile to the east of the Crisp residence, told police officers he had been asked by the Crisps to watch over the farm while the couple was in Albuquerque visiting a relative of Mrs. Crisp.

The Crisps had told Wilson, he said, that they intended to leave at 6 a.m. Sunday.

At about 10 to 15 minutes after 8 a.m., Wilson told authorities, he went past the Crisp residence to check the water in the alfalfa field near the house.

Wilson said he felt something was wrong at that time, Jordan said.

Then, Wilson said, on his return he decided to check on the couple. Driving up to the residence at that time, he found their bodies lying near their Chevrolet sedan and pickup parked in front of the yard of the residence.

Jordan said he was notified of the deaths at 9:25 a.m. and arrived on the scene at 10 a.m.

Sheriff's Deputy Jim Shelton and Texas Highway Patrol Troopers R. C. Parker and John Holland had already arrived at the Crisp farm, he said.

Dr. A. C. Wood of McLean was also called to the scene to assist in the inquest held at the farm, the sheriff said.

"I don't know when we will complete this investigation," Jordan said, "but I expect it will be a week or so."

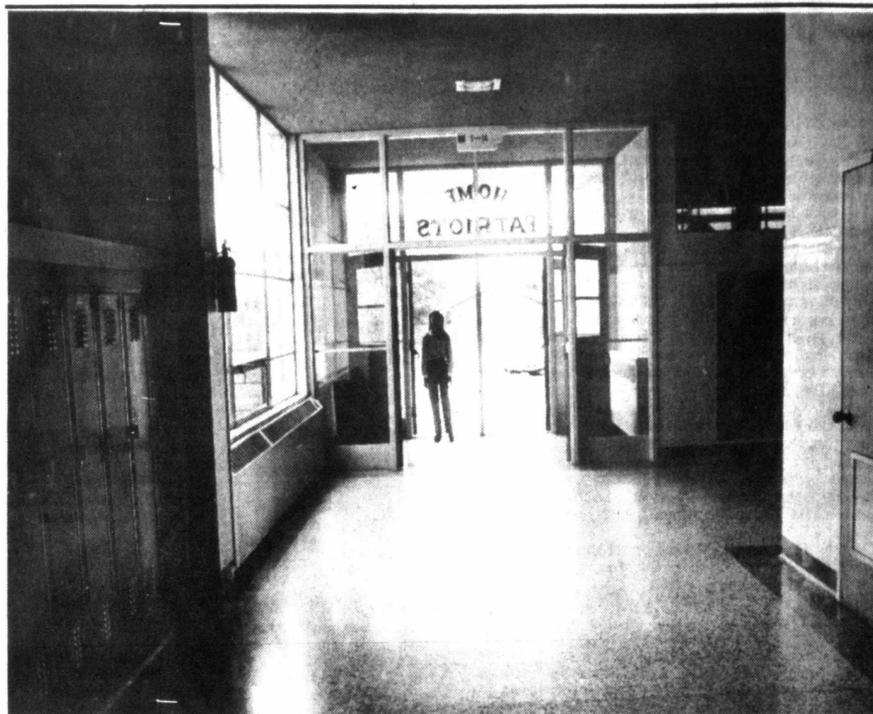

Services for the Crisps were held at 10:30 a.m. today in the First Baptist Church of Lockney with the Rev. James Cooper officiating.

The couple was married in December 1940. They were members of the First Baptist Church of McLean. They had moved to Gray County from Lone Star in 1970.

The Crisps are survived by a daughter, Mrs. David Frizzell of Lockney; and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Crisp is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Henry Loter of Lubbock; Mrs. George McCarty of Albuquerque, N.M.; Mrs. Fred Vaughn of Dumas; and Mrs. Murray Boston of Canyon.

Surviving Crisp, in addition to his daughter and grandchildren, are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Crisp of McLean; and one sister, Mrs. Joe Hudson of Oklahoma City, Okla.

THE FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL at a new school can seem ominous. Shauna Graves, entering her first year at Pampa Middle School, takes a look down the

Libya, Syria agree to merge in Arab defense

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syrian President Hafez Assad has agreed to merge his nation with Libya in an effort to strengthen Arab defenses against Israel, the Syrian government said today.

A government statement said Assad telegraphed his acceptance to Libya's leader Col. Moammar Khadafy minutes after Khadafy proposed the merger in a speech in Tripoli, the Libyan capital, Monday on the 11th anniversary of his overthrow of the Libyan monarchy.

It is Khadafy's third attempt to merge Libya with another Arab nation and Syria's third also.

"The Syrian people and myself were deeply moved by your unity appeal," Assad said in his telegram. "This unity appeal has struck an immediate favorable response amongst us. We stand together on the path of unity.... And we stretch out our hand to shake yours in order to begin at once the work to bring about this great goal."

"Khadafy in his speech proposed the merger to form a 'last trench of Arab defense against the Zionist enemy.' He pledged to take up arms as a guerrilla with the Palestinians if his proposal was rejected by the Libyan people.

"Either this decision is taken or I'm going to take arms and fight in Galilee," said the 38-year-old Islamic militant.

"I am a revolutionary and I am going to be a commando myself if Libya does not follow the line of Arab unity. In the name of God, starting today, I am going to inform the Palestinian movement that I am registered as a commando with them."

Syrian Prime Minister Abdel Rauf El Kassem was among the 50,000 persons in Tripoli's main square for the anniversary celebration, and Khadafy's speech was broadcast live on both Syrian and Libyan television.

Khadafy, a vocal foe of Israel who has never sent troops to fight the Jewish nation, lauded Syria for refusing to negotiate with Israel, accused Egyptian President Anwar Sadat of "defeatist, treacherous" policies and said Libya has a responsibility to defend Lebanon against Israeli raids into southern Lebanon.

He also charged that the United States is willing to go to war against Saudi Arabia, Libya or other oil-producing nations to preserve its access to petroleum. And he proposed to sell Libyan oil at discount prices to Libya's friends, suggesting $20 a barrel compared to the current top price of more than $37.

As he was offering to defend Lebanon, thousands of Lebanese Shiite Moslems were staging a one-day strike to protest the disappearance two years ago of their religious leader, Imam Moussa Sadr, during a visit to Libya. Other Lebanese Shiite leaders claim he was murdered or imprisoned by Khadafy's police; the Libyan leader claims he went on to Italy and disappeared there.

County sends ambulance rate hike to city

By SHEILA ECCLES
Staff Writer

Approval of the proposed $450 per month rate increase requested by the Metropolitan Ambulance Service of Pampa was tabled by the Gray County Commissioners and referred to the Pampa City Council, in today's regular meeting of the Gray County Court.

The rate increase is warranted, and the ambulance service provided by Metropolitan is adequate," Judge Kennedy said.

Both the city and county pay a $1,900 per month subsidy to the ambulance service. Commissioners felt that the issue was more in the city's jurisdiction, as the city audits the monthly ambulance call records.

Officials of Metropolitan Ambulance Service are also considering a rate increase from $75 per run to $95 per run.

"They are facing the same inflation we are all experiencing," Judge Kennedy said. "However, the rate increase may eventually cause a slow down in the ambulance use by county residents."

In answer to a request from the city of Shamrock for payment of fire runs made in Gray County, commissioners found that the runs were actually made to Wheeler County. Judge Kennedy was authorized to provide a letter to the Shamrock Fire Department showing the payments were not the responsibility of Gray County.

The plat for the Industrial Park, east of Pampa, was approved by the county commissioners.

A letter from Phillips Petroleum Company concerning placing a pipeline to cross county roads was discussed by the commissioners. Although no action was necessary by the court, commissioners agreed to request that companies placing pipelines across county roads restore the roads to their previous condition.

Commissioners appointed Larry Cross and Joe Chambers assistant election judges for Precinct 9 and Precinct 11 respectively.

Bids were authorized to be advertised for a new one-half ton truck for Precinct 4 by the court.

Commissioners also approved payment of $136,929 in monthly bills to be paid. The largest expenditure in the monthly budget was $12,157 for Social Security payments.

Poland accepts demands of last hold-out workers in strikes

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist government announced today it had accepted all demands of striking Silesian coal miners and was ready to sign an agreement. But a government source later indicated talks were still under way, without giving any explanation for the apparent snag.

Warsaw Radio reported at mid-day that a government commission led by Deputy Premier Aleksander Kopec had reached agreement in talks with representatives of workers from 10 mines in the Katowice area of Upper Silesia.

But a Westerner traveling in the area said he was told by worker leaders that 17 mines were on strike and as many as 50,000 miners were involved.

"The government commission is comprehensively examining the joint terms of reference for an agreement worked out earlier," the radio reported. "The demands put forward by the workers are acceptable in their entirety. A government commission is ready to sign an agreement with the inter-factory strike committee."

But two hours later, a spokesman for the government information service Interpress said the talks might continue "for hours." He did not elaborate.

Late Monday, the official Polish news agency PAP reported that a tentative agreement had been reached between the government and miners from nine pits. But this morning Warsaw Radio said the strikes were continuing in 10 mines and that Kopec had been sent to join the government negotiating team.

Sources said the miners were holding out for written guarantees of their right to form independent trade unions, go on strike and obtain other benefits granted workers on the Baltic seacoast last weekend.

The miners also were pressing for unspecified safety guarantees and changes in shift schedules, the sources said.

The Warsaw Radio's morning statement was made a few hours after the news agency reported eight miners killed and 18 injured in an accident at a mine near the Upper Silesian city of Katowice. The agency said a string of loaded coal wagons ran out of control in an underground shaft, "devastating the place where the miners were working." The mine was not among those that had been struck.

Mining accidents in the pits of Upper Silesia took 62 lives in the last three months of 1979.

Elsewhere in Poland, hundreds of thousands of workers throughout the nation returned to their jobs Monday following the signing of an agreement granting them concessions unprecedented for a Soviet Bloc nation.

To end the 18-day-old strike that idled some 600,000 workers in more than 20 cities, Communist Party chief Edward Giersek's regime agreed to write a new labor law giving the workers the right to strike and the right to form free and independent trade unions separate from the official unions controlled by the party.

The agreement also promised there would be no reprisals against strike leaders, a relaxation of censorship and increase access of the Roman Catholic Church to the media and the release of dissenting intellectuals jailed for their support of the strikers.

Carter says Reagan throwing 'slurs'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Carter today accused his Republican opponent, Ronald Reagan, of resorting to "slurs and innuendoes" against the South by his remarks linking the region with the Ku Klux Klan.

Carter was asked to comment on the Reagan remark when the president landed here for a day of campaigning for re-election, including a town meeting in Independence, Mo.

"I resent very deeply what Ronald Reagan said about the South, about Alabama, and about Tuscumbia when he pointed out erroneously that I opened my campaign in the home of the Ku Klux Klan," the president said.

Reagan told a Labor Day audience at Detroit Monday that Carter was "opening his campaign down in the city that gave birth to and is the parent body of the Ku Klux Klan."

While Reagan appeared Monday in New Jersey and Michigan, Carter kicked off his re-election drive at a rally in Tuscumbia, Ala.

The headquarters of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan is just outside Tuscumbia. The Klan actually originated in Pulaski, Tenn., about 50 miles from Tuscumbia. Klan members demonstrated against Carter hours before he arrived.

Carter denounced the Klan in his Tuscumbia speech.

Commenting on the Reagan remark, Carter said today that "anybody who resorts to slurs and innuendoes against a whole region of the country based on a false statement, a false premise, is not doing the South or our nation a good service."

"This is not the time for a candidate, trying to get some political advantage, to try to divide one region of the country from another by alleging that the Ku Klux Klan is representative of the South or Alabama or Tuscumbia, Ala."

Later, in Independence, Carter portrayed himself as a beleaguered president and underdog campaigner in the mold of Harry S. Truman, and made it clear he expects the comparison to apply on the morning after election day.

"When I have to make a tough decision," said Carter in remarks for delivery to a town meeting at Truman High School. "I think about the tough decisions Harry Truman had to make."

"When I have to take a step that is not so popular, I think about the unpopular Harry Truman had to suffer before he was finally vindicated."

"When I am criticized in the media or elsewhere, I think of the far worse criticism he had to endure."

"When I look at the public opinion polls, I recall what Truman said about those polls and what he did to those polls in 1948."

Carter flew to Truman's hometown today to visit his widow, Bess, to stop by the Truman Memorial Library and to meet with local residents at the high school.

It was the second day of a re-election campaign in which Carter is portraying himself as the underdog, as a proud southerner and as a Democrat in the tradition of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Truman.

Holiday traffic toll stands at 29

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Twenty-nine persons died on Texas roads over the Labor Day weekend, well under the predicted total of 45 deaths, a Department of Public Safety spokesman said today.

The last five fatalities all occurred after 6 p.m. Monday, the spokesman said, adding that the DPS "had no good reason" for the lower number of holiday deaths this year.

Forty-one persons died last year during the Labor Day weekend. All fatalities occurred between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday.

Junior Bryant, 31, of Hemphill, died shortly after 11 p.m. Monday when the car he was driving ran off the road and overturned on FM 770 one mile north of Raywood in Liberty County.

Wiley Laray Keefer, 33, of Hale Center, and Horace Ray Ashby, 42, of Cotton Center, were killed about 9 p.m. Monday when their pickups collided head-on four miles west of Cotton Center on FM 37 in Hale County.

The collision occurred in front of Ashby's home as he was turning into his driveway.

Pamela Jeanette Morris, 38, of Tyler, died about 7:45 p.m. Monday when the car she was driving went out of control and crashed one mile east of U.S. 69 in Smith County.

Clarence William Mills, 68, died about 6:45 p.m. Monday in a one-car crash two miles south of Leroy on FM 2311 in McClennan County.

The DPS spokesman said 23 of the 29 persons killed died in one-car accidents.

Two young Fort Worth girls were killed Monday evening in a two-car collision in Fort Worth.

Police said Kimberly Bird, 9, and Leigh Bird, 5, died when a car driven by their mother collided with a car driven by Timothy Mitchell, 27. Pamela Bird, 30, was listed in guarded condition at a Fort Worth hospital and Mitchell was hospitalized in undetermined condition.

Emory Hill Hudson, 78, of Jefferson, died after being hit by a train at 11:12 a.m. Monday, inside the Jefferson city limits, Carter said. The accident took place on FM 49.

INDUCTED INTO HALL OF FAME Cruise C. Duke, left, of Darrrouzett and Harry L. King, right, of Canadian were among 29 inductees into the American Cattle Breeders Hall of Fame in the Southwestern Historical Wax Museum in Grand Prairie, Texas, Friday. The two men are recognized for their accomplishments and support of the industry with a bronze plaque which will hang in the hall of fame section of the museum. They are shown with C. W. Adams of San Angelo, a founder of the hall of fame.

Texas weather

Mostly clear skies covered Texas Tuesday as scattered showers and thundershowers dissipated over the South Plains and southwestern portions of the state.

Predawn temperatures were in the 70s, except for a few readings in the 50s and 60s in the mountains of Southwest Texas and the Panhandle.

Winds were southerly 10 to 15 mph over the Panhandle and South Plains and southeasterly 5 to 10 mph over the rest of the state.

The forecast called for partly cloudy skies statewide with a chance of scattered showers over Southwest and South Texas. Afternoon highs were expected to be mostly in the 90s.

Texas forecasts

North Texas - Clear to partly cloudy through Wednesday. Highs 95 southeast to 102 northwest. Lows tonight 71 to 78.

South Texas - Partly cloudy through Wednesday with scattered showers and thundershowers becoming more numerous along the lower coast and lower Rio Grande Valley. Highs upper 80s along the coast to near 100 inland. Lows in the 70s except near 80 along the coast.

West Texas - Partly cloudy with scattered showers and thundershowers through Wednesday. Highs upper 80s north to near 100 along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend. Lows near 60 north to middle 70s south.

Iran considers Muskie's hostage release appeal

By The Associated Press
Mohammad Ali Rejai, Iran's new prime minister, is studying an appeal from Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie for the early, safe release of the 52 American hostages spending their 304th day in captivity today.

Pars, the official Iranian news agency, said Rejai would discuss his response to Muskie's letter at his "next public interview." It gave no indication when the interview would be or what Rejai's answer might be.

State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty said Muskie sent a letter to Rejai "on the occasion of the new prime minister's appointment...calling his attention to the hostage issue and urging the hostages' early and safe release."

Muskie's note was delivered Sunday afternoon by the Swiss Embassy in Tehran, which has represented the U.S. government in Iran since President Carter broke diplomatic relations with Iran on April 7.

The message appeared to be one of the opening moves in a series of new diplomatic initiatives seeking the release of the American captives. Muskie promised the new campaign in an interview three weeks ago.

A Kuwaiti newspaper reported last week that diplomats from an unnamed Arab country were trying to mediate the hostage dispute.

The Majlis, Iran's new Parliament, received a letter in July from about 200 U.S. congressmen appealing for a speedy end to the hostage crisis, and Tehran Radio said the draft of a reply was read to the Majlis Monday by a spokesman for the foreign relations committee.

The broadcast report said some of the legislators expressed their opinions, and the draft was returned to the committee for revision. The reports gave no inkling of what the draft said.

Tehran Radio also reported that President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Rajai, Majlis Speaker Hashem Rafsanjani and other leaders of the revolutionary regime met Monday night at Bani-Sadr's home to "discuss matters connected with the ministerial appointments and other major domestic issues."

Rajai on Sunday named a Cabinet of hard-liners, and Bani-Sadr was reported opposed to many of his choices. But the Majlis was expected to approve the lineup after a debate expected to start later this week.

Approval of the cabinet will be another step toward the Majlis debate on the fate of the hostages. But there is no indication when that might begin.

Meanwhile, in London, magistrates sentenced three Iranians convicted of offenses stemming from a violent anti-American demonstration outside the U.S. Embassy in the British capital last month.

One man convicted of assaulting a police officer was sentenced to three months in jail and the court recommended that he be deported. Two others were jailed for 14 days for obstructing police.

Reagan rebukes Carter for Southern kick-off

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
Ronald Reagan has rebuked Jimmy Carter for opening his re-election campaign in the South and "the city that gave birth...to the Ku Klux Klan," even as the president used the occasion to denounce the racist organization.

Reagan's complaint came just one day after his national campaign chairman, Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, had declared the Republican nominee "incapable" of using any tactic designed to link the president, either directly or indirectly, to the Klan.

Reagan was speaking to a gathering at the Michigan State Fair, near Detroit, Monday night when he spotted one man wearing a Jimmy Carter mask.

"I thought you were in Alabama today," Reagan said.

Then he added: "You know, I kind of like the contrast, though. I'm happy to be here, where you're dealing at first hand with the economic problems that have been committed, and he's opening his campaign down in the city that gave birth to and is the parent body of the Ku Klux Klan."

Reagan, who opened his own post-convention campaigning a month ago in a southern city which is no stranger to racial violence, referred to Carter's Labor Day visit to a picnic in Tusculum, Ala.

The president's appearance there was preceded by a peaceful march through the downtown area by about 40 Klansmen. Carter denounced them in his remarks, saying that "as a southerner, it makes me angry to see them with a Confederate battle flag."

The president called the Klansmen people "who practice cowardice and who counsel fear and hatred...Sometimes I see the raising of a cross and I remember that the one who was crucified taught us to have faith, to hope and not to hate, but to love one another."

Asked to explain Reagan's reference to the Klan, press secretary Lyn Nofziger said Reagan had seen a newspaper and a television report about a Klan headquarters in Tusculum. But early today, another Reagan aide, who asked not to be identified, said it was Nofziger's idea to raise the Klan issue and that Reagan, in fact, later regretted doing so.

According to the Encyclopedia Americana, the Klan originated in Pulaski, Tenn., about 50 miles from Tusculum. But one of several modern-day Klan groups, the Knights of the KKK, moved its headquarters to Tusculum from Metairie, La., just last month.

Nofziger said Reagan was "trying to contrast the fact that he's up here talking to workers and Carter's down there in a safe part of the country."

But Reagan, in fact, had chosen Philadelphia, Miss., as the site of his own first post-convention speech on Aug. 4, where he affirmed his belief in states' rights. Three civil rights workers were killed near Philadelphia in 1964, and Reagan's appearance — and remarks — there were viewed with distrust by many black leaders.

While Reagan was in New Jersey and Michigan on Monday, his running mate, George Bush, was campaigning in Darlington, S.C., with Sen. Strom Thurmond, a onetime segregationist candidate for president who since has declared a belief in shared opportunity.

On Sunday, Laxalt sent an open letter to editorial writers around the country in which he complained that a Carter cabinet member, Health Secretary Patricia Harris, had said early this summer that when she hears the name Reagan she "sees a specter of white sheets." Mrs. Harris is black.

Laxalt said her veiled reference to the Klan typified the "fear tactics and personal innuendo" which marked Carter campaigns of the past. But Reagan, Laxalt said, is "incapable of similar tactics."

Carter, in his remarks to a crowd estimated at 25,000 to 40,000 persons, declared "It's good to be home" in the South. At one point he said that "after years of decline under Republicans before I took office, we have steadily rebuilt our military capabilities. I wouldn't be a true Southerner if I hadn't done that in the White House."

While the president later played host to 1,000 labor leaders on the White House lawn, Reagan munched a hot dog in a backyard in suburban Detroit and told a group of jobless men and women that Carter's economic plan won't work and is merely "a crazy quilt of obvious election-year promises."

In Park Forest, Ill., independent challenger John B. Anderson said that as president he would call labor and industry leaders together and "We're going to talk — I don't care how long it takes — until we agree on what would be fair and reasonable guidelines for both wage and price increases...so we can restrain inflation."

Anderson headed for Detroit today, while Reagan remained there for talks with auto industry executives and workers before returning to the Washington area. President Carter was off on a traditional trip to Harry S. Truman's hometown of Independence, Mo., where he was to speak at a "Town Meeting" and visit Truman's widow, Bess.

WOMAN ESCAPES JAIL

MULESHOE, Texas (AP) — A woman convicted of the first armed robbery in Muleshoe in over 50 years escaped from jail Monday night, according to Dee Clements, Bailey County Sheriff.

Janice Bates, 25, of Houston, sentenced to 60 years in prison Aug. 14, escaped after stuffing her bed with pillows and crawling through a hole cut in the wire mesh surrounding her cell, Clements said.

The sheriff said the prisoner was first missed about 8 p.m. Monday by a jailer making normal rounds. Clements said he thought the woman had help in cutting through the mesh around the cell.

COLLISION CLAIMS TWO

COTTON CENTER, Texas (AP) — Two men died Monday night in a flaming head-on collision that occurred in front of one of the victim's homes, according to a Cotton County Volunteer Fire Department spokesman.

Ray Keffer, about 40, and Ray Ashby, also about 40, died when their pickups collided around 9 p.m. Monday in front of Ashby's home four miles west of Cotton Center on FM 37, said firefighter Henry Rieff.

Keffer was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Gene Marr and Ashby died later in High Plains Hospital in Hale Center, Texas.

Rieff said Keffer's pickup burst into flames when the two vehicles collided.

NADER BLASTS TRANSPORTATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader says a proposal by the Department of Transportation to pre-empt local ordinances regulating the shipment of nuclear wastes would nullify safeguards without offering significant new measures in their place.

Nader said Monday more than 80 states, cities and counties have enacted laws to provide safeguards, including requirements that law enforcement officials be notified of shipping plans, shipments of high-level radioactive materials be placed under escort and that the shipments be moved only when traffic is light. In a letter to President Carter, Nader claimed that Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt "would become an increasing political liability in the upcoming presidential campaign" unless the proposal is dropped.

WORKING WOMEN AIM AT IMPROVEMENT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Working women's groups agreed at a Labor Day rally at the White House to a platform they hope will improve their lot.

Linda Lavin, star of CBS-TV's "Alice," told a sweltering group of 175 in Lafayette Park on Monday, "We want change. We want and have earned our economic rights." The actress is a commissioner of the National Commission on Working Women, a non-profit group that sponsored the event. The groups will take their platform to the presidential candidates to demand improved treatment of the nation's 43 million working women, who they said earn 59 cents for each $1 earned by men.

AUSTRALIAN SUSPICIOUS OF RUSSIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser is worried that the Soviet Union is embarked on a quest for "global dominance" and he wants the Western allies to assist the United States by increasing their defense spending.

Fraser assailed the "utterly complacent" attitude of those in the West who see no danger in Soviet actions. Without a demonstration of resolve by the West, he said Monday, the Soviets may be tempted to intervene militarily in the Middle East, thereby creating the "very great possibility of a spill-back of conflict into Europe." Fraser remarks were delivered to the 30th general convention of B'Nai B'rith International.

SWISS MANUFACTURER BACKS OFF

BALTIMORE (AP) — Swiss food and pharmaceutical giant Sandoz Ltd. has agreed to drop attempts to take over McCormick & Co., the nation's largest independent spice maker, the companies say.

In exchange, the Baltimore-based spice company will buy all the stock that Sandoz had purchased in an abortive takeover bid at a cost of just over $13 million. The company also said it would dismiss all pending court challenges against Sandoz.

The two companies said Saturday they "have agreed to explore research agreements, joint venture opportunities and other business arrangements which may be in the mutual interest of both companies."

GORILLA BORN IN MEMPHIS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The first lowland gorilla born as a result of artificial insemination is doing fine and appears to be a male, a Memphis Zoo veterinarian said.

Dr. Michael Douglass said the gorilla, born Sunday to 19-year-old Beta, appeared to weigh about 4 pounds. The mother has been so protective of her infant that officials have not been able to get a close look at the baby.

The father is Ozum, 14, from Yerkes Primate Research Center at Emory University in Atlanta. Sperm from frozen semen taken from Ozum was implanted in Beta during the second week of January.

TELETHON WINDS UP OVER GOAL

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The 15th annual Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy ended up about $1 million ahead of its $30 million goal.

Horst Petzall, a Muscular Dystrophy Association spokesman, said the counting Monday closed at $31,103,787. "It's the highest figure ever reached" in the fundraiser, he said.

Money raised in the 21 1/2-hour television marathon, which began Sunday at 9 p.m. EDT, finances research and medical services for victims of muscular dystrophy and 39 other neuromuscular diseases.

CZECH LEADER IN WEST GERMANY

PHILIPPSREUTH, West Germany (AP) — Jiri Lederer, a co-founder of the Czechoslovak Charter 77 human rights movement, has arrived in West Germany with his wife and daughter, Bavarian border police said today.

Lederer was detained by Czech border guards for almost four hours until a reception committee including fellow exile Ludek Pachman left the German side of the border, police said. Pachman, a chess grandmaster, is another prominent Charter 77 member now living in the West.

Lederer crossed the border without making a statement to waiting reporters. He is believed to have accepted a teaching offer from a conservative West German foundation.

THAIS ATTACK GUERRILLAS

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thai government forces recently captured a communist rebel camp in northern Thailand, killing 16 guerrillas and taking at least 130 others prisoner, a military spokesman in Bangkok said today.

The spokesman said the stronghold 360 miles north of Bangkok fell to government troops last week after a week of fighting. Most of the insurgents were described as Hmong hill tribesmen. The spokesman listed government casualties as five dead, four wounded and one missing.

EL SALVADOR VIOLENCE KILLS 25

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Officials in El Salvador say at least 25 people died in weekend political violence in this Central American nation.

Six leftists were reported killed in San Martin, about 10 miles southeast of the capital of San Salvador, when soldiers re-took the city from insurgents. The bodies of 10 persons were discovered in San Marcos, about eight miles east of the capital, police said.

Polish foreman recounts events leading to strike

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Janek has a master's degree in marine architecture, but he makes more money as a shipyard foreman than he could earn designing ships.

Supervising a crew of welders at the Lenin Shipyards is "boring and dull," said Janek, a husky 26-year-old with black hair and blue eyes, "but I have no choice. I need the money. I have a wife and two children."

"I make 10,000 zlotys ($333) zlotys a month, maybe up to 12,000 zlotys if I work overtime every day. My wife cannot work because of our new child, and I have little time for my family."

His paycheck is twice the Polish average.

"I can't tell you my name. We don't know how this all will end," he told an Associated Press reporter visiting the big Baltic shipyard that was the center of the Polish strike crisis.

"This is an historic spot," he said, standing on a drydock in which two 16,000-ton freighters were under construction for Brazil and Switzerland.

He said his crew came to work on Aug. 14 and began to discuss their grievances. They were angered by the dismissal of Anna Walentynowicz, a 53-year-old crane operator. The big increases in the prices of meat and arguments with the shipyard management over a proposed monument to workers killed near the dock in food price riots 10 years ago fed the bitterness.

"They just sat down, and then more and more workers came and talked about a strike," he said in a hushed voice. "Then the bosses came to order us to work. But by then there were hundreds of us and we decided it was the moment to strike."

Janek, his friend Richard, 28, Richard's wife and other strikers moved into the office from which Janek ordered electrical equipment from West German firms. Their bedrolls were neatly tucked in a corner. As the strike was ending Sunday, their wives brought cookies and made tea to celebrate.

DUCKING OUT. These quackers, disturbed by the large crowd of Labor Day visitors to Lake Meredith, attempted to elude the throng by sneaking around behind a relatively quiet dock. Summer fun officially came to a close Monday as hundreds flocked to area lakes for one last weekend of lake activities. Classes resumed today in area schools, and the ducks hope, lake-goers slow down for a while, leaving the lake and dock to the feathered fans.

Workers delay runaway well

PORT O'CONNOR, Texas (AP) — Workers held off boarding the twisted wreckage of an offshore runaway gas well for fear the natural plug that choked the flow of gas could fail and trigger another fiery eruption.

Three workers are still missing following the early Saturday morning explosion that killed two, injured seven and turned the rig, located 18 miles out in the Gulf of Mexico, into an inferno.

For more than 24 hours flames spouted as high as 100 feet into the air, hindering search efforts with the intense heat. The blaze was extinguished Sunday when the well bore collapsed — "bridged over" — shutting off the flow of natural gas.

Kent Young, a spokesman for Tulsa-based Cities Service Co., said Sunday that the "bridging" was holding.

"Every once in a while there's a little burp of bubbling water, every two hours or so. But there's no gas coming from the well," said Young.

However, he said efforts to inspect the burned rig "Ocean King" and search for the missing crewmen would be delayed by the threat of another blowout.

"The potential is there," he said. "That's why we're not having anybody go aboard the 'Ocean King' until several days have passed. There's no sign of the missing men."

Young said a water-pumping barge is standing by near the well site "in case it should blow out and catch fire again."

To eliminate the possibility of another runaway, Young said, Cities Service is planning to drill a relief well about 2,000 feet northeast of the current well site.

Young said it could take 60 to 75 days to complete the slant well that will intersect and plug the existing well hole to relieve the gas pressure that apparently caused the blowout.

"We don't know where that bridging occurred," he said, "and the only way to make sure it's properly plugged is to go in and plug it. It (the well) doesn't appear to be salvageable."

Two in custody after officers discover body

LUBBOCK (AP) — Two persons are in custody today after a Department of Public Safety trooper making a routine driver's license check found a blanket-wrapped body in their car, a DPS spokesman said.

A 38-year-old man and a 23-year-old woman were taken arrested about 5 p.m.

Monday after the trooper found the body of Eula Jean Lewis, 18, in the back seat of a car driven by the man, a DPS spokesman said.

Both suspects and the victim were from Lubbock, the DPS spokesman said.

The victim, clad only in red jogging shorts, had been dead about six hours, according to the spokesman.

Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy ordered an autopsy.

The man and woman were held in Lubbock County jail pending possible arraignment on murder charges, according to a spokesman for the Lubbock County Sheriff's department.

Natchitoches would rather stay fat

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — Want to improve your sex life? Live longer? Feel better? Think clearer? Save money?

C.B. "Lum" Ellis is trying to convert this middle Louisiana city of 16,000 to the odd-tasting Pritikin diet with the claim that it does all those good things for you.

"If those five things won't fly, nothing will," he said.

But thus far, "Project Life" — a state-supported program — has done more fizzling than flying.

Too many folks here are like Lonnie Casey, a supermarket manager who is astounded when anybody buys either of the two Pritikin diet items he stocks — bread and a smelly cheese.

"If I got to eat something that chokes me, I'd just as soon stay fat," he said, slapping his ample paunch.

The food they like in these parts is totally immoral — jambalaya, spicy meat pies, fried chicken, thick steaks, gravy, dumplings, dirty rice, cornbread, chitlins, strawberry shortcake, Cane River pie adrip with whipped cream and chocolate.

Ellis says that stuff clogs the arteries with cholesterol, fills the blood with triglycerides and sooner or later — zap!

He started preaching the Pritikin gospel seven months ago, when Natchitoches — pronounced Nak-a-tush — became an experiment in the controversial Pritikin diet.

At the time, Ellis was fresh from a losing, and expensive, campaign for state superintendent of education and his main interest was $40,000 put up by then-governor Edwin Edwards to start a Pritikin program.

Now he's a true believer, with his beloved marmosaine and bologna sandwiches far behind him.

On the diet, which Californian Nathan Pritikin claims can reverse heart disease or diabetes, you get no fats, no oils, no salt, no sugar, no caffeine or alcohol, no egg yolks, not more than 3 1/2 ounces of lean meat a day.

Grocery prices jump sharply in August

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Widespread increases in meat prices took a big bite of family grocery budgets last month and sent supermarket bills soaring, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The increase in grocery prices during August was the second sharpest this year and was more than four times the July rise.

The AP drew up a random list of commonly purchased food and non-food items and checked the price on March 1, 1973 at one supermarket in each of 13 cities. Prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. The list originally included 15 items, but chocolate chip cookies were dropped after the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

The latest AP check showed that the price increases which were predicted because of the drought have arrived at the supermarket. The marketbasket bill increased last month at the checklist store in every city, rising an average of 2.9 percent.

Until last month, grocery prices had remained relatively stable in 1980, except during June, when the marketbasket bill at the checklist stores increased by an average of 3.1 percent. During July, the marketbasket bill rose an average of only seven-tenths of a percent.

The August price rises hit hardest at the meat counter. The price of center cut pork chops went up at the checklist store in nine cities; frankfurters rose in 11 cities; chopped chuck was up in six cities. Meat accounted for 21 percent of the items on the AP checklist, but was responsible for 39 percent of the increases last month.

The increases at retail stores generally reflect increases at the wholesale level. The Department of Agriculture said, for example, that prices for livestock — particularly hogs — rose sharply in July and early August. Prices paid for hogs at Omaha, Neb., went from $43 per hundred pounds in early July to almost $50 per hundred pounds in mid-August.

Consumers trying to cut down on meat without cutting out protein can find some bargains at the dairy counter. The price of eggs, which rose in seven cities during July as a result of the drought, dropped somewhat during August, with decreases reported at the checklist stores in six of the cities surveyed by the AP.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

The ordeal of Walter Polovchak

This election year, more than any other in recent memory, may find presidential candidates addressing themselves to the preservation of the family. Both Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan warn of the impending doom to this basic unit of civilization unless various political measures are taken.

The issue turns mainly on taxation, and how through that oppressive instrument the government has begun to decimate families everywhere. The analysis is true enough so far as it goes, and the candidates vary substantially in their prescription for reversing the increasing incidence of family breakups.

Our first reaction to all such talk is this: "Any family with a chance of staying together should run and hide whenever the politicians start talking about how to save it."

Another sort of dilemma stabbing at the heart of families came up this week in Chicago, and providentially the government — although not the candidates — responded with right reason. Walter Polovchak is a 12-year-old Ukrainian who emigrated to this country six months ago with his family. Walter assimilated himself well in his new neighborhood, happily acquiring new friends, a new school, a new bicycle. His new surroundings represent a future of prosperity and freedom.

Walter's parents, for whatever reason, did not adjust nearly so well to the life of Chicagoans: last week Walter learned they planned to return to the Soviet Union. Walter moved out of the family house, against his parents' wishes, and into the home of his 24-year-old cousin. Poignantly, Walter resisted the efforts of his parents and the Soviet Embassy in Washington to trundle him back to his native, totalitarian land.

The State Department issued a temporary order keeping Walter in the United States until, Monday, the Immigration and Naturalization Service granted the boy political asylum — this from the same INS that worked so ignobly a few months back to thwart the influx of Cuban refugees. Throughout the U.S. government's handling of the affair a Soviet spokesman fumed: "Our position is that a 12-year-old boy should not be able to tell his parents what he wants to do. He does what they say."

Such a mentality is expected in a society in which the government assumes a paternalistic control over the childlike masses. Curiously enough, it is exactly the sentiment we might expect to hear from leaders of the "pro-family movement." There should be no place for it, however, in the land of the free.

That government does threaten the family structure these days distresses us profoundly. We resent it anytime some boorish bureaucrat usurps traditional parental sovereignty. Parental sovereignty, most libertarians hold, applies up to the point an individual is responsible for his own actions and is able to support himself. That point might come well before the statutory years — 18 and 21 — or even well after.

In Walter Polovchak's case it is doubtful he has reached the age of self-sustenance. We trust it impressed the INS that Walter wanted for a free society, suggesting a preference for self-responsibility over the anti-volitional nature of the Soviet state. And he did turn to an American cousin who presumably is eligible to assume custodial authority over him.

In an earlier era it would have been easier for Walter to escape government adjudication of his predicament. He and countless other Huck Finns and Horatio Algiers would simply have slipped away, their pocket knives wrapped in their handkerchiefs, and made their way west, some of them meeting miserable fates, some of them suffering enslaving predators...and many of them participating in the building of modern society.

Walter Polovchak's new found political asylum, we hope, will be permanent. It was made, after all, by an agent of a capricious government that is no longer so committed to freedom as it once was. Given the family-or-freedom dilemma, the INS's proper resolution could only be this: Bemoan the necessary usurpation of Walter Polovchak's parents' authority, indeed issue a cry of heartfelt sorrow, and grant Walter Polovchak: freedom.

Will West come back under Reagan?

By Oscar Cooley

Three weeks after 50 innocent Americans were imprisoned in Tehran and the U.S. government had done nothing but protest, the editor of The Wall Street Journal wrote: "Throughout the world, civilization is receding before our eyes."

His readers may have thought the editor was turning alarmist. Nine months have passed and exactly nothing has been accomplished by the world's most powerful government to free its people held hostage by the bumptious Iranians. Was he?

Much as we were shocked by the hostage seizure, the abysmal failure of our helicopter force to rescue them depressed us still more, and the ensuing months of Carter do-nothingness have deepened the disgust. The Billy Carter fiasco was the last straw. From that moment on, the President's stock nose-dived.

In July, the Republicans nominated Ronald Reagan for president, and the polls indicate that he is very likely to be elected. The nation is swinging behind him, not because he is a Republican, but because he is seen as a man of action, an American in the long-time tradition who will reassert the determination of this country that decency and order shall prevail and that civilization shall not "recede before our eyes."

The people are aroused. Americans are a proud lot, and they have much to be proud of. Freedom and democracy have become established here as nowhere else. We are not about to throw these away and to submit to the moral archaisms of the Moslem East.

The platforms of our political parties make interesting reading, but the voters in November are going to vote for action and for action leaders, not for words put together by compromisers in stuffy hotel rooms.

Twice in this century the United States has rescued the western world from destruction, at a substantial cost in lives and wealth. After World War II, lulled by the appeal of detente, we let our arms get rusty, and today some see us as weak. So did the German power-seekers in 1914 and the Japanese in 1941.

The economy, the government, and the social structure of America are not perfect. They have faults and these are freely aired in our media, for Americans tend to be both critical and blunt. But this country, compared to any other, stands tall. Our economy is more than twice the size of any other. And compared to America of the past, today's nation has nothing to be ashamed of. Our material resources, contrary to some reports, are greater than ever — and we have but scratched the earth's surface. Opportunity abounds, and we are full of hope. According to a national poll, 58 percent of the American people feel they are better off than they were a decade ago.

In technology, we lead the world; our engineers multiply in numbers and in skill. In 1980 we had 8,000 new doctors; in 1977 our medical schools graduated 18,000. Our farmers become more and more productive.

We hear much about our unemployment, but in fact our employment has never been so high. The politicians bemoan our "poor" and as usual promise to succor them, but the fact is that even our unemployed eat high on the hog. If Americans do not enjoy the good life, why do so many foreigners struggle to get their foot in our door?

We enjoy freedom. Not only does it make life superbly worth living but as an economic resource, freedom is without parallel. It spells opportunity. More than any future of our society, tangible or intangible, freedom is responsible for our productivity.

Americans are fully aware that all is not well in the world. Some peoples, not as endorsing of the freedom tradition as we, are embracing regimentation. Russia, stronghold of the regimenters, is aggressing brutally against helpless neighbors in an attempt to drive them into the Communist fold. In other countries, desperate people are trying to shift their problems onto dictators. But the people of the United States, as the coming months will plainly show, have no intention of allowing civilization to "recede before their eyes."

But where do we get the soldiers?

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The Republicans have pledged $100 billion for new arms to "catch up with the Russians." This will presumably include new missiles, the B-1 bomber, super submarines, more surface naval ships, and beefed up tactical forces that can be flown to any part of the world.

The country is all for it. The only thing the GOP hasn't explained is where they are going to get the personnel to man the new hardware.

The truth of the matter is the Air Force, Navy and Army cannot find the crews for the equipment they have now. The mood of the country is to spend money on anything the military says it needs, as long as American sons and daughters are not required to put on a uniform and use it.

What's the answer?
The solution is to draft all the illegal aliens who have come to the United States and swear them into the armed forces.

While military pay may be a pittance to an American, it is a fortune to an illegal South American, Mexican or Haitian refugee. Rather than pick tomatoes or grapes the illegals would be trained to use our new military equipment, and be taught all the latest methods of warfare.

Instead of being hounded by immigration officials, they would be given PX privileges, USO dances and food stamps for their families. We would have Cuban submariners, Ecuadorian pilots, Chinese tank drivers, and Vietnamese missile men.

The officer corps would be made up of foreign generals, colonels, majors and admirals and captains who have been overthrown in their respective countries by Communist takeovers as well as those who have failed in right-wing junta revolutions in their respective countries.

By the time the $100 billion allocated by the Republicans would be accounted for, not one American would have to spend a day in the military to defend the country.

It is estimated that there are over 10 million illegal aliens in the United States right now. All we need is 5 million for a respectable defense capability. The other 5 million could be signed up for the reserve, and be permitted to work in the fields until an emergency required them to be called up.

While the illegals would only be required to serve for four years, those who refused to re-enlist would be immediately deported to their country of origin for being in the United States without a visa.

The beauty of this plan is that we could fulfill all our military commitments without fear of political fallout because we were endangering the lives of American boys. It would also resolve the debate as to whether American women should be required to serve in the armed forces.

But best of all, it would alleviate the bitterness that some Americans feel toward various boat people arriving in the United States. Instead of wanting to send them back, we would welcome these refugees with open arms as fresh mercenaries ready to fight to keep America free.

If the United States wants to become No. 1 in the world again, as the Republicans intend us to be, we are going to need all the illegal foreigners we can get.

Should employees buy out employer?

By Oscar Cooley

When U.S. Steel announced it would close its plant in Youngstown, the workers, confronted by unemployment, proposed to buy it (largely with government funds) and run it as a worker-owned plant. Up to now the corporation has refused to sell to them on the ground that it would create another competitor for U.S. Steel.

A far more interesting question is: would it be a smart thing for the steel workers to do?

Understandably, the workers want to preserve their jobs. But to do so they would have to operate the plant as a profit. If the experienced managers of U.S. Steel could not do so — and apparently that was why they were selling — is it likely that the workers, inexperienced in management, would? It seems foolhardy to fire the entrepreneur.

To own the plant, the employees each would have to make an investment in it. Presumably this would be a nominal amount, for Uncle Sam is counted on to pick up most of the tab, through a "loan." However, the worker-owners would hold the equity investment and would run the risk of losing this in case of failure, as every entrepreneur does.

Similarly, the employees of the Dayton (O.) Press, magazine printer that threatens to fold, talk of buying out their employer in order to keep the presses rolling.

The history of employee-owned enterprises is not reassuring. For many years they have been tried, in both the United States and Europe, and many an employee-stockholder has lost both his job and his investment.

In England these used to be called self-governing workshops, or co-partnerships. They are a type of producers' cooperative. Many were organized during the 1800's, and a "Cooperative Production Federation" was set up to promote them. They had no government aid — this was before the days of the welfare state — but they often were aided, financially and otherwise, by the consumers' co-ops, which were far more successful, becoming the supermarkets of Britain. Often the consumer co-ops lost the aid money they had invested in the producer co-ops, and having burned their fingers withdrew.

The employee-owned firms dwindled. Whether any remain in Britain, I doubt. If the British, whose consumer-owned businesses have been such a notable success, could not make this other form of co-op go, it is doubtful if anybody can.

The record in the United States is no more encouraging. Some worker-owned firms, such as the Jeannette (Pa.) Sheet Glass Company and the South Bend (Ind.) Lathe Works, have done well to date but only with financial backing from Washington. Others, including a maker of library furniture at Herkimer, N.Y., are having a struggle, even though supplied with government aid. All are small undertakings compared with the Youngstown steel works.

This much can be emphatically said for such firms: even if the employee-entrepreneurs do not add much to their wealth, they increase their education. They learn what it means to manage a business — to produce and sell at a profit. They learn that those spare millions out of which every employer is supposed to be able to pay wage raises ad infinitum just don't exist. They learn that a productive enterprise exists, not to employ workers, but to produce goods or services for the consuming public, and the buyers are free to shop around for the best buys.

The 330 Jeannette glass workers, each with some $2,000 invested in the business, have no union and pay themselves no large wage raises, but they know a lot more about the glass market than they did, and they do not appear to be unhappy with their new responsibility.

Are the Youngstown steel workers who aspire to enter the steel business prepared to accept substantially less employment and a lower wage rate than they previously got and that was one of the main causes of their unemployment? If not, they had better not press their request to buy the plant, for they could not hope to succeed without reducing the labor cost and passing the saving along to customers.

Fire blackens Texas range land

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Weary firefighters in East Texas got a break when fewer tourists than expected showed up for Labor Day weekend camping, but a large range fire scorched 8,000 acres of North Central Texas, authorities said.

On Monday, firemen battled five or six blazes in East Texas, bringing the weekend total to about 30 fires over 200 acres, Texas Forest spokesman Lou Sloat said.

Sloat said only about a third of the campers expected visited the piney woods over the weekend and cooperated very well with outdoor burning restrictions.

Most of the fires were blamed on lightning or arson, so "the public cooperated pretty well with our debris burning request," Sloat said.

"Many brought their own camp stoves or prepared food so they wouldn't have to have fire at all," he said, adding that other vacationers decided to stay home because of the fire danger and the increased cost of traveling.

"That's extremely low, about 50 percent of the number expected over a similar non-holiday period," he said.

The fire danger in East Texas was downgraded Sunday from "extreme" to "high" as weather conditions improved.

But conditions remained dry and dangerous in North Central Texas, where a large range fire scorched more than 8,000 acres northwest of Iowa Park before it was brought under control late Monday afternoon.

The blaze was battled at first by 11 units, Sloat said. However, firemen appealed for volunteers to help contain the flames, which spread west of Farm Road 2384 and north of U.S. 287.

Sloat said no dwellings or livestock were lost in the blaze.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined, and Sloat said the speed with which the blaze spread illustrated the tinder-dry conditions that kept the area under the highest — Class 4 — fire danger category.

End of summer marked by death, thoughts of Poles

Parades, picnics and politician's campaign kickoffs marked Labor Day across the country, and amid the celebrations on the traditional end of summer there were thoughts for workers in Poland and the hostages in Iran.

Meanwhile, as thousands of people drove home from beaches and mountain resorts, the holiday traffic death toll neared 450.

Before Monday's Labor Day parade in Omaha, Neb., a vintage Ford Thunderbird rolled past spectators with a sign saying, "Captain Paul Needham, Hostage."

Needham, an Air Force captain who is one of the American hostages in Iran, was the parade's honorary grand marshal. As reminders of the hostages' 10-month plight, yellow ribbons hung from light poles and traffic signals along the parade route.

At the end of the parade, the U.S. Army Golden Knights skydiving team made a jump, passing a baton in midair, and presented the baton, engraved with Needham's name, to his parents.

Labor leaders also expressed concern for the hostages, American workers and their Polish counterparts who won demands for free unions.

"On this holiday that honors those who do the work of the world, American trade unionists are deeply conscious of how much the workers of Poland need our help and support," said AFL-CIO president Lane Kirkland.

Teamster President Frank Fitzsimmons said, "We hope for the freedom of the hostages and continued freedom for people everywhere."

President Carter attended a picnic in Tusculum, Ala., his Republican rival, Ronald Reagan, made a speech at Liberty State Park in New Jersey, and independent presidential candidate John Anderson was home in Illinois campaigning at rallies.

Last-minute vacationers crowded beaches in Maryland and other states along the Atlantic seaboard, but some West Coast shores had cloudy skies. And some vacationers in the Northeast sneezed through the day as pollen levels reached record highs.

Temperatures were in the 90s in Maryland, and 200,000 people turned out at Ocean City beach resort. Despite some rain on Labor Day parades in Connecticut, parks and beaches had sizable crowds, with plentiful gasoline supplies as an incentive to beachgoers.

In Longhorn win Key play known only to Akers, Little AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A key play in Texas' 23-17 victory over No. 6 Arkansas was one known only to Coach Fred Akers and his quarterback, Donnie Little. Arkansas scored with 3:11 left in the nationally televised game Monday night to pull within six points, and appeared ready to take over the ball as 10th-ranked Texas faced third-and-13 on its 32-yard line.

Arkansas called time out with 1:40 remaining, and Little conferred with Akers on the sideline.

On the next play, as 10 Texas players swept to the left, Little sprinted around right end for 17 yards and a first down. The play enabled Texas to keep the ball away from Arkansas' dangerous passer, Tom Jones, who hit 12 of 18 passes for 177 yards, until there were only three seconds left.

"The play (called) was a sweep to the left and Carl Robinson was supposed to get the ball," said offensive tackle Terry Tausch. "Then I looked up and saw Donnie with the ball. I didn't know what was going on. Only him and Coach Akers knew."

Akers admitted he had instructed Little "not to tell anybody" because he wanted the blockers to carry out their assignments as if the play was a sweep to the left to confuse the Arkansas defense.

"I called that play," claimed Little. "I talked it over with Coach Akers, and I said I thought it would work, and he just said, 'Go with it.'"

Little, a junior, ran for 49 yards, threw for 82 yards and scored on a 10-yard run. Akers said, "I expect him to get better. He's more confident and more mature. He's spent two years learning, getting the bumps and bruises."

Halfback A.J. "Jam" Jones, returning from knee surgery late last year, sped for a game-high 165 yards and two touchdowns on 29 carries, and Akers said, "Any questions about the ability of his knee (to hold up) he answered them tonight."

"I had no trouble with it at all ... no soreness, nothing. It held up real good ... It didn't faze me at all. I just wanted to go all out," said Jones.

His running partner, halfback Rodney Tate, was held out most of the game with a sprained ankle, but Jones predicted when Tate returns, "We could be one of the best combinations in the country — if we stay healthy."

Texas lost cornerback Vance Bedford for the season with a knee injury, however, causing Akers to refer to the victory as a "costly" one. Bedford was Texas' only experienced back in the defensive secondary.

Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz, who has lost three out of four to Akers' Texas teams, said, "You can point to 100 different things, but it all comes down to the fact we couldn't get the ball from Texas. ... Our team came back, and we had a chance late in the game, but we couldn't get the ball."

The deceptive Mr. Little saw to that.

American League baseball roundup

Reggie Jackson is back. No, he hasn't been away — he just hasn't been hitting home runs.

"I'm glad I finally hit one...that was a long time for me," said the New York Yankees slugger after breaking a dry spell with a tape-measure shot that helped the American League East leaders beat the Oakland A's 5-0 Monday.

The Jackson blast, a moon shot deep into the right-center field seats at Yankee Stadium, was his 35th of the season, but only his first since Aug. 19. The power-hitting outfielder had gone through 11 games and 37 at-bats before connecting.

Over his career, he has averaged a home run every 13 times up.

The victory kept the Yankees 1 1/2 games ahead of the Baltimore Orioles, who defeated the Seattle Mariners 5-4 Monday night.

In other AL action, Boston beat California 4-3; Milwaukee defeated Kansas City 6-1; Texas routed Toronto 9-1; Chicago whipped Detroit 11-3 and Cleveland stopped Minnesota 5-2.

Jackson's homer followed one by Oscar Gamble, his 10th, in the sixth inning to provide the Yankees with their final margin.

Orioles 5, Mariners 4
Ken Singleton drove in three runs with two homers and Gary Roenicke added a solo shot, as Baltimore defeated Seattle. Singleton connected in the first inning after Mike Parrott, 1-12, retired the first two batters. In the fifth, Singleton's 20th homer followed a single by Al Bumbry.

Roenicke's eighth homer came in the sixth. The Baltimore left fielder also threw out Mario Mendoza at the plate in the fifth when he tried to score on a line drive out by Larry Milbourne with the Orioles ahead 2-1.

Winner Dennis Martinez, 4-3, allowed 10 hits before getting relief help in the eighth.

Red Sox 4, Angels 3
Dick Drago, making his first start in more than a year, allowed five hits in 6-2/3 innings and Boston used a four-run third inning and three relief pitchers to beat California.

Drago, 5-5, whose last start was Aug. 5, 1979 in Milwaukee, blanked the Angels on three hits for six innings before needing help from Bob Stanley in the seventh. Bill Campbell gained his 20th save after entering the game in the eighth.

Brewers 6, Royals 1
Bob McClure, making the first start of his major league career, pitched a six-hitter to lead Milwaukee over Kansas City. Cecil Cooper drove in two runs with a pair of singles to lift his AL-leading RBI total to 103. Kansas City's George Brett, meanwhile, was held to one single in four at-bats as his average slipped to .401.

McClure, 2-4, had made 212 consecutive relief appearances before getting the start in place of injured Paul Mitchell. The left-hander struck out one and walked four, retiring 13 of 14 batters during one out.

Indians 5, Twins 2
Ron Hassey hit a two-run homer and Jorge Orta added a solo blast to propel Cleveland past Minnesota behind Len Barker's seven-hitter.

Len Barker, 10-1 since the All-Star break and 17-8 overall, pitched his eighth complete game. He struck out 11 — including four in a row at one point.

Key to hitting .400 is handling the media, says Brett's brother

By DANGEORGE
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Cab drivers, magazine salesmen, your Aunt Sally — it seems everybody has an opinion on George Brett's chances of hitting .400.

So perhaps it's not too surprising that the Kansas City Royals third baseman's brother, pitcher Ken Brett, also has a thought or two on the subject.

"Vegas says it's 3 to 1 against it," smiles the 31-year-old left-hander.

You get the impression that Ken, long one of baseball's exponents of life in the fast lane, would like a piece of that action.

"We're not allowed to bet. The commish (Commissioner Bowie Kuhn) wouldn't like it," he said regretfully.

"But if it was 10 to 1...well, I might put my career on the line for that...I think he's got a chance."

Ken, whose father has always regarded him as the best of the Brett athletes, was one of baseball's most promising pitchers before arm problems relegated him to journeyman status.

Now he's a member of the Kansas City Royals — his 10th major league team — and the hand-lettered sign above his locker reads "George Brett's Older Brother."

Ken, who the Royals hope can provide the left-handed relief help they've been missing, says George's personality may be the key to his pursuit of the .400 mark.

"I think the talent is always the most important," he said. "But I think the ability to handle the media is going to be more and more important down the stretch."

It's hard to argue with him. Never mind that stuff about the effect of night baseball, air travel or the specialized relief pitcher.

Brett's biggest hurdle in becoming the first .400 hitter since Ted Williams did it in 1941 is the voracious attention of the print and electronic media.

In 1941, the press was simply not as omnipresent. Except for The Sporting News, there were no national sports publications of note, and the broadcast media consisted of little more than a couple of radio networks.

Brett, batting .401 after Monday's game, finds a microphone or a reporter's notebook under his nose virtually every moment he is not between the white lines.

When the Royals are on the road, the telephone in his hotel room rings at all hours. When the team is at home, reporters want to make house calls.

Ellis successfully defends Top O' Texas crown

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Editor
"There's no place like home" must be Richard Ellis' favorite song.

Ellis, a former Pampa resident now living in Plano, claimed his second consecutive Top O' Texas Invitational Golf Tournament title Monday at Pampa Country Club.

Ellis carded a four-round total of 273, four strokes better than runnerup Mark Jarrett of Lubbock.

It was the third time that Ellis has won the prestigious tournament. He won the championship the first time as a member of the Texas A&M Golf Team in 1969.

Ellis trailed Jarrett by one stroke after three rounds, and it wasn't until the back nine of the final round that he finally took command.

Ellis' 20-foot birdie putt on No. 11 gave him the lead he never relinquished. His 15-foot downhill putt for a birdie on No. 12 gave him a three-stroke lead over Jarrett, who had bogied No. 10 and No. 11.

"I felt fortunate to make that birdie on No. 12," Ellis said. "I just didn't think I hit it very good. "I thought that hole was probably the turning point for me."

There were some anxious moments for Ellis, however, after he double-bogied No. 13 by missing a two-foot putt.

"I think that was my only mistake in the round," Ellis said. "My ball either rolled over a heel print or else I just plain missed the shot."

Jarrett moved within a stroke after Ellis' double-bogey, but fell back to two after bogeying No. 14.

Ellis added frosting on the cake when sank a 70-foot eagle putt on the final hole, a par 5, 440-yarder.

"I wasn't really trying to make it," Ellis confessed. "I was just trying to get it up close to the hole."

Ellis' five-under-par 66 was his best round of the tournament after three consecutive 69s.

Ellis said his second straight Top O' Texas victory topped the thrill of winning the Texas State Amateur Championship earlier this summer.

"It's just a pleasure to come back and have the hometown people pulling for you," Ellis said. "I used to caddy here for a lot of folks that were out there watching me."

Ellis and John Farquhar of Amarillo are the only three-time winners of the tournament. Ellis is only the fourth golfer to win back-to-back titles.

Pampa's Wiley McIntire, who led after Sunday's second round, had trouble hitting the greens in Monday's final round and slipped to third at 279.

Chris Brown, Midland, and a member of the foursome (Ellis, Jarrett, McIntire) finished in a three-way tie for fourth at 281.

National League baseball roundup

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Pete Rose might have been the man with the least to gain from a pep talk, but the words of Philadelphia Phillies general manager Paul Owens were not lost on "Charlie Hustle."

"That pennant is there for all of us. It's going to go to the team that goes out and gets it," Rose said.

For the first time since July 12, the Phillies grabbed hold of first place in the National League East by rallying to beat San Francisco 6-4 Monday. The Phillies (.5348) led Montreal (.5343) by one-half percentage point, with Pittsburgh (.5338) one point back. Pittsburgh split a pair with Houston, losing the opener 10-4 and winning the nightcap 7-5. The Expos defeated San Diego 5-3.

The Phils won the game in the eighth inning, snapping a 4-4 tie. Larry Bowa, who had four hits in the game, singled and went to second on a wild pitch by Greg Minton. 3-5. Boone brought him home with a single. An unearned run scored later in the inning on a fielding error by Giants second baseman Rennie Sennett.

Phils lefty Steve Carlton tossed a seven-hitter for his 21st victory against only seven losses.

In the other pennant race, Los Angeles defeated the New York Mets 5-2 and moved within a half game of Houston in the NL West, while Cincinnati whipped St. Louis 8-1 to move within 2½ games of the lead. Atlanta downed the Chicago Cubs 5-2 in the other NL Labor Day game.

Astros 10-5, Pirates 4-7
Terry Puhl and Rafael Landestoy each drove in a pair of runs for Houston in the first game as the Pirates lost their eighth straight. It was Pittsburgh's longest losing streak since 1968 when the Pirates lost 10 in a row and wound up sixth.

Bill Madlock hit a pair of homers in Pittsburgh's losing effort, and Ed Ott homered once.

The Pirates finally snapped the losing streak in the second game. Pitcher Rick Rhoden smacked a two-run homer and two doubles, driving in three runs, and Mike Easler also homered for Pittsburgh.

Red Sox 4, Angels 3
Dick Drago, making his first start in more than a year, allowed five hits in 6½ innings and Boston used a four-run third inning and three relief pitchers to beat California.

Drago, 5-5, whose last start was Aug. 5, 1979 in Milwaukee, blanked the Angels on three hits for six innings before needing help from Bob Stanley in the seventh. Bill Campbell gained his 20th save after entering the game in the eighth.

Brewers 6, Royals 1
Bob McClure, making the first start of his major league career, pitched a six-hitter to lead Milwaukee over Kansas City. Cecil Cooper drove in two runs with a pair of singles to lift his AL-leading RBI total to 103.

Kansas City's George Brett, meanwhile, was held to one single in four at-bats as his average slipped to .401. McClure, 2-6, had made 212 consecutive relief appearances before getting the start in place of injured Paul Mitchell. The left-hander struck out one and walked four, retiring 13 of 14 batters during one stretch.

Rangers 9, Blue Jays 1
John Grubb drove in five runs with a three-run homer and a double as Texas defeated Toronto behind the seven-hit pitching of Doc Medich.

Grubb's fourth homer keyed a six-hit, five-run third inning off Toronto's Joe McLaughlin, 4-8.

Indians 5, Twins 2
Ron Hassey hit a two-run homer and Jorge Orta added a solo blast to propel Cleveland past Minnesota behind Len Barker's seven-hitter.

Like father, like daughter

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Sports Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — When pony-tailed, teen-age Andrea Jaeger is out on the tennis court belting those powerful top-spin forehand shots for winners, the TV cameras occasionally veer off to catch the face of her dad watching intently from the stands.

It is a strong Teutonic face of a man who looks much younger than his 46 years — blond, bushy-browed, roughened by the sun and the fists of 72 ring wars.

Born in Germany, of a German father and Swiss mother, he was an outstanding amateur fighter as a youth (69 wins, three defeats) and one of the best soccer players in the border village of Schaffhausen.

At 19, he migrated to America, worked as a bricklayer and ultimately settled in Lincolnshire, Ill., on the outskirts of Chicago. At the urging of his wife, he took up tennis 10 years ago and got good enough to become a professional coach.

His daughter, Andrea, 15, became his prize pupil. This bouncy, tomboyish kid with the robust growlup's tennis game and blithe spirit is the fresh, new sensation of the sport, the darling of the galleries at the U.S. Open Championships at Flushing Meadow.

You only have to know her father to understand why the 100-pound tyke with bobbing pony tails and braces on her teeth is so good, yet so natural and unspoiled.

"No, we never pushed her into tennis and we were never doting, demanding parents," said Roland Jaeger. "My wife and I both enjoyed the game. Andrea and her older sister, Suzy, took to it quite naturally."

Suzy, 17, a good player, has chosen to pursue her education, entering Stanford in the fall. Andrea, already a tournament pro at 15, is intent of being No. 1 in the world.

Texas rolls past Blue Jays

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — John Grubb had been sitting on the bench. And sitting. And sitting.

Three weeks ago, when the owner of the Texas Rangers indicated manager Pat Corrales would be rehired again next season, Grubb's not finally boiled. He steamed into the office of Eddie Robinson, the club's executive vice president, and demanded that he be traded.

Since then, for some reason or another, Grubb has been in the lineup regularly, and he exploded Monday night for his best output ever as a Ranger. He hit a 3-run homer and drove in two more runs with a double that led Texas to a 9-1 mauling of the Toronto Blue Jays.

"That's my biggest game of the year, for sure," the outfielder said after the victory, which raised Doc Medich's record to 11-9. "I felt good. I had five RBIs in a game one other time, when I hit a grand slam and drove in another run somewhere when I was with Cleveland. But I only had 15 RBIs for the whole season going into tonight."

Through mid-August, Grubb had only 137 at bats, but he's gotten 5 more in the past two weeks alone, since he made the trips to Robinson's office.

"I don't know if I handled the situation right or not. Maybe I should have gone in and talked to Pat first. But I'm not one that expresses his feelings very much, but it got to the point that I just couldn't take much more of it," Grubb said.

"At that time, I wasn't playing and wanted to go somewhere that felt the manager would give me some playing time. Lately, I see my name in the lineup and that makes me feel good. It shows confidence in me, and that's important to a player."

49ers whip Chiefs

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) —

Third-team running back Jerry Aldridge scored two second-half touchdowns to lead the San Francisco 49ers to a 31-21 NFL exhibition victory over the Kansas City Chiefs here Saturday night.

But it was the passing of reserve quarterback Joe Montana in the second half that opened the Kansas City defense and set up Aldridge's two second-half one-yard runs.

Aldridge plunged for his first score midway through the third quarter and gave the 49ers a 4-21 lead they never relinquished.

The score capped a 13-play drive that covered 85 yards and saw Montana hit on four of seven passes for 49 yards.

The key play was a 12-yard pass interference call on offensive back M.L. Carter that gave San Francisco a first-and-goal on the one.

There were 42 major college football games in 1979 decided in less than one minute to go.

Navratilova falls by the wayside

NEW YORK (AP) — During the first week of the U.S. Open, Martina Navratilova said she would "avoid this tournament at all costs if I could."

Since the Open is one of the world's two most prestigious tennis events, Navratilova has been unable to skip it. Instead, she finds ways to miss out on the Open finals.

This year, it was a fourth-round 7-6, 6-4 loss to 18-year-old Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia. Navratilova's native land. Once more, Martina couldn't find happiness at the National Tennis Center.

"I finally felt I played better than I had been," said the second seed, who was the biggest name of the four women's seeds to fall Monday. No. 6 Dianne Fromholtz of Australia was eliminated by No. 13 Pam Shriver 3-6, 6-1, 6-1; Tracy Austin, the top seed, booted No. 10 Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-4, 6-0, and No. 11 Kathy Jordan was beaten by Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 7-5, 6-3. No. 3 Chris Evert Lloyd blasted JoAnne Russell 6-2, 6-1.

"But I still was out of it on some volleys.

"I feel good about my game for the rest of the year. I still don't think I've reached my potential." The men also got into the upset act as Wojtek Fibak of Poland, seeded 14th, ousted No. 4 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3. Top seed Bjorn Borg of Sweden blew out No. 15 Yannick Noah of France 6-3, 6-3, 6-0 and Roscoe Tanner, No. 11, outlasted Brian Teacher 6-3, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2.

Hoping to stave off the upset bug today were No. 2 John McEnroe, who played Pascal Portes of France; No. 3 Jimmy Connors, who will face Bernie Mitton of South Africa at night; No. 7 Harold Solomon, who figured to have a tough match with No. 10 Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, and No. 13 Brian Gottfried battled Eliot Teltscher.

Among the women, No. 8 Andrea Jaeger faced Renata Tomanova of Czechoslovakia; No. 14 Ivanna Madruga of Argentina played Candy Reynolds, and the unseeded Barbara Hallquist and Lucia Romanov of Romania squared off.

Mandlikova's victory was her second over her idol in two weeks. She beat Navratilova at Mahwah, N.J. prior to the Open, then topped Jaeger in the finals.

"I beat her last week and thought this would be harder," said the No. 9 seed. "Sometimes Martina gives you the ball, misses shots. She's not like Tracy or Chris, where you must win every point."

"I was nervous the other time but not this."

Navratilova lost to Shriver in the 1978 semifinals here, then to Austin in the semis last year.

Shriver, 18, was slow getting started before assuming command against Fromholtz, who has been sidelined much of this year with assorted injuries. A finalist here in 1978, Shriver next faces Austin, whom she hasn't played in 21 months.

"I look forward to playing Tracy," said Shriver. "The only pressure on me is the situation, the quarterfinals of the Open. But she's the defending champion and top seed and she must be feeling some of that. She should."

She didn't against Ruzici, winning the last 10 games of the match and dropping only eight points in the second set.

Lloyd has breezed through all her matches thus far — indeed, she's breezed through every tournament but Wimbledon since returning to the tour in April. She lost in the finals at Wimbledon to Evonne Goolagong — ripped Russell even though her opponent felt "I played good tennis."

"JoAnne pushed me a little," admitted Lloyd. "But it wasn't that tough a match."

Borg next meets Roscoe Tanner, a 6-3, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 winner over Brian Teacher. It was Tanner who upset the top seed in the quarterfinals here last year in a night match.

"I've requested to play him at night," quipped Tanner, who had little chance of that happening. "I've played well the last couple of weeks and I'm putting more pressure on opponents. I'm better fit this year and quicker in some areas; I'm lighter on my feet."

Borg seemed to float through the scorching, humid court-side conditions, where temperatures reached 123 degrees for his match.

Vilas was bothered by pain in his right thigh in his loss to Fibak, Poland's only professional athlete and the 14th seed here.

"I couldn't move sideways," said Vilas, the 1977 Open champion. "He didn't play anything special but I didn't play well."

The triumph was a very special one to Fibak. "I think this match was more important to me than any other," said Fibak. "I was reading how I do well but never in the majors. That's a real challenge to me."

Recipe pairs yogurt, pears

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
If cookbook shelves can attest to Americans' interest in yogurt, an old-world specialty, mine can. Resting on them now are almost a dozen cookbooks devoted to using yogurt.
When I came across the following recipe for a yogurt and fresh Bartlett pear coffecake I looked through my yogurt cookbooks to see whether the recipe was in any of them. It was not.

YOGURT AND FRESH PEAR COFFEECAKE

1 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 medium-size fresh Bartlett pears
1 large egg
2-3/4 cups sugar
1/4 cup butter, at room temperature
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup plain yogurt
Streusel, recipe follows
On wax paper sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt.
Cut unpeeled pears in half and remove seeds and center membranes. Finely chop 1/2 pear (or as much as needed) to make 1/2 cup. Cut each remaining pear half into 6 lengthwise slices.

FRESH FRUIT COFFEECAKE — This one is made with yogurt and fresh Bartlett pears.

In a medium bowl beat the egg until foamy; thoroughly beat in the sugar, butter and vanilla. Add the chopped pear and the yogurt; beat to blend; batter will look curdled. Add the flour mixture; beat gently until moistened. Turn into a buttered 11 by 7 by 1 1/2-inch baking pan. Arrange the pear slices over the top. Sprinkle with the Streusel. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 35 to 40 minutes. Serve warm.

Makes 8 servings.
Streusel: In a small bowl stir together 1-3/4 cup sugar, 1/4 cup all-purpose flour and 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon. With a fork, work in 2 tablespoons butter to make a crumbly mixture.

Stamps feature coral reefs

Beautiful coral reefs are featured on a new block of four U.S. commemorative stamps soon to be released. The designs depict corals found in waters of the U.S., its territories or possessions and underwater scenes displaying coral formations and tropical fish.

The upper left stamp in the block of four illustrates two brain corals. In the foreground is a soft coral known as a sea fan and a baugregory fish. The upper right adhesive shows elkhorn coral with two porifera swimming through it. The lower left stamp pictures chalice coral with a moorish idol fish. Soft corals and crustacean coralline appear at the bottom of the chalice coral.

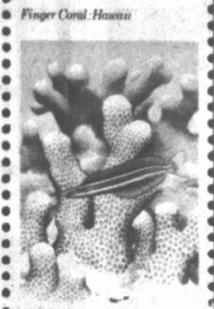

Across the top of each stamp in one line of black type is "Coral Reefs USA 15c." Beneath that line, in small black type, is the common name of the featured coral and the name of the state or U.S. territory where it is usually found.

Corals are not plants. They are small marine animals known as polyps, found almost exclusively near coastlines in the warm waters of tropical oceans. They are known to have existed for at least 500 million years.

The first day of issue ceremony was scheduled for late August at Charlotte Amalie, the capital of the U.S. Virgin Islands.

Researchers study limited custody

LUBBOCK — What was the woman's side of the story in the award-winning movie "Kramer vs. Kramer"? The film never showed, but this fall two Texas Tech University researchers hope to reveal the range of real life stories of mothers with limited or no custody of their children.

From 1960-1972, fathers who gained custody of their children in divorce cases increased from 10 to 13 percent, said Dr. Judith Fischer, a Texas Tech home economics researcher. She and Mrs. Jane Cardea, another Tech family life specialist, will interview mothers volunteering such information.

The percentage of fathers gaining custody was thought to have increased in the 1970s and expected to continue to increase in the 1980s, Fischer said. The trend results from no-fault divorce laws in 41 states and the women's movement, which has inspired more women to pursue careers, she said.

Hence, fewer women are playing the role of custodial parent, she said.
Yet, the non-custodial role — an unusual one for women — has received most attention and research when it applies to men, Fischer said.

"We plan to interview women who have been divorced or separated, who are working or going to school and who share a variety of custody arrangements," she said. Fischer and Cardea are appealing to the public for volunteer respondents because women in these new roles are less visible than the traditional mothers.

"We want to hear the women's stories. They have much to tell us about the stresses of modern life and how people cope with unusual situations," Fischer said.

Sculptor starts work by moving stones

By FRED CRAFTS
Eugene Register-Guard

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Little by little, sculptor Steve Gillman is moving a mountain into his back yard.

Gillman spends much of his time prowling around hillside rock quarries searching for large chunks of columnar basalt that he can haul to his studio in Eugene, where he shapes the pieces into gorgeous, massive sculptures.

Gillman's task is just as difficult as it sounds. So much of it is backbreaking work that he also spends an enormous amount of his time trying to figure out easier ways to do it. "This whole thing," Gillman explains, gesturing toward the collection of impressive stone sculptures in his studio, "centers around being able to move the stuff. If I can't move it, I can't do anything with it."

The stones Gillman works with are so big and so heavy that it is often impossible to handle them by hand. So he relies on large mechanical devices to load and unload them from his truck and to place them in his studio while he works on them.

Nevertheless, through this struggle Gillman has discovered ways to transform rough quarry rock into silky-smooth, human-size abstract sculptures. As a result, the art world has recently discovered him.

His work is included in an invitational painting and sculpture show at the Kairos Gallery in Eugene, he exhibits in San Francisco and New York, where he has new shows opening this fall. In addition, he has won three large commissions from the Washington State Art Commission's Percent for Arts Program and recently installed sculptures at the University of Oregon.

For a medium, Gillman has chosen basalt, one of the hardest rocks available. He says basalt offers challenges that test his patience, ingenuity and drive.

"I enjoy it immensely," Gillman grins. "I like the way it sounds when I'm working on it. I like the resistance that it offers me. Soapstone, way off on the opposite end, is so soft it just goes away before my eyes. I need that resistance. I need to have the stone slow me down."

The 34-year-old former teacher, who received a master's degree from the University of Oregon in 1976, started doing sculpture "seriously" in 1969, when he made a sheet-metal piece that resembled a fanciful automobile.

Although Gillman has worked with stones as heavy as 7,000 pounds, he says the average chunk weighs from 200-500 pounds. Thus, he also had to make equipment for his studio that would allow him to move the pieces so he could work on them.

At first, he used primitive methods, like brute strength and wooden ramps. Last December he put a roof on his studio and installed a heavy-duty hoist. Now he can do just about anything he wants with a stone.

"I really taught myself how to do this," he says. "It's been kind of groping in the dark."
Despite the technological advances, Gillman says one of the hardest parts of his process is finding the right stone in the first place. To the untrained eye, all chunks of basalt in a pile in a quarry look pretty much the same — sometimes even to Gillman.

"My imagery is a confusion of human forms and life forms in general," he says. "When I go out to the quarry and look at that incredible pile of stones, I have all those images in my mind: vertebrae images, mol-usk images. They're all jumbled in there together. That's what I'm looking for in stone.

At the studio, Gillman hand-polishes certain of the stone's surfaces until they glisten. "In all of my work I want very much for people to come up and touch them, feel the surfaces. I get very excited about the contrast between the highly polished and the very rough surfaces," he says.

Even with the help of power cutting-and-grinding tools, stone carving is a slow process.

AT WIT'S END

By Erma Bombeck

There's at least one in every crowd — the woman who does not want to "bring a child into this lousy, mixed-up world."

I met one the other night who said children were just "ego trips" for parents who liked to see their own image staring back at them over the breakfast table. She added, "I can't come up with one reason for having them."

What a pity. According to my children, there were a lot of reasons for my having them.

I needed a personal slave...someone to answer the phone, get my sweater, find my glasses, get my keys out of the door, unload the groceries, go to the store, let the dog out, and move the hose.

I needed someone around the house to eat the leftovers the dog wouldn't touch.

I needed someone to shove out of the car to throw their body over the last picnic table while we found a place to park.

I needed a live-in who would assist in raising a younger brother or sister by taking them to the bathroom every five minutes and sitting with them for free on New Year's Eve.

I needed an excuse for my saddlebag hips and flabby upper arms.

I needed "material" for the Christmas newsletter and a three-times-a-week column.

I needed someone to mail letters for me when it rained.

I needed someone to practice medicine on. ("Turn down that record or you'll go deaf!")

I needed someone to spy on and make me feel important.

That's their story. Mine is even more biased.

I brought children into this lousy, mixed-up world because when you love someone and they love you back, the world doesn't look that lousy or seem that mixed-up.

I gave them life because they have the same right I was given to make up their own minds as to what makes a good or a bad world.

More than an image over the breakfast table, they are special to this universe now and will be long after I am gone.

Some parents must take the risks...if we don't who will be left to listen to the young people who lament, "I don't want to bring children into this lousy, mixed-up world"?

THE WEEDERS GUIDE

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

An old growing technique, a ring, plus new ingredients, is helping tomatoes to grow rings around conventional plantings. And the man who devised the system is named Ringer.

The Japanese, says Judd Ringer, have used the organic process he calls Tomato Grow Ring for many years to obtain abundant crops from small space. He adapted it for growing a number of vegetables at his Eden Prairie, Minn., base. It involves biological fertilizers and products that speed composting activity and feed the surrounding plants.

The biological fertilizer, the compost flakes and organic waste are key elements in the grow ring system. Tomato Booster feeds the plants and the compost flakes help break down organic wastes from garden and kitchen. Ringer developed a heavy gauge wire-mesh ring to encircle the compost and to support vining vegetables such as melons, beans and tomatoes. If you want to do it yourself, make a ring of 4-foot mesh fencing and metal stakes.

The fencing is placed in a sunny garden spot, in a 3-foot circle. Within the ring, garden debris such as grass clippings, branch prunings, and old leaves is spread and compost flakes are shaken over each layer. Outside the ring set as many tomato or other plants as you can fit properly around the fence. Feed the soil and inner ring debris through the summer with the booster.

The result, Ringer contends, is yields of crops double or more those of ordinary methods, withstanding weather and disease better.

Plant a tree and help the U.S. Forest Service observe its 75th birthday this year.

The Forest Service and the American Association of Nurserymen have joined forces to reach a goal of 75 million trees planted in 1980. They have enlisted Woody Owl (Give a Hoot...Don't Pollute) and Green Survival, another symbol of environmental improvement organizations, to help out. Smokey Bear is another.

The anniversary sponsors explain that trees beautify our lives and are important to our survival; trees filter harmful pollutants from the air; they change wind patterns around the home, saving heating energy in winter and providing shade and insulation against the sun in summer.

Trees muffle noise, attract wildlife, and serve as living fences. They discourage soil erosion, provide food and fragrance, remove carbon dioxide and give oxygen. They are one of nature's "most remarkable inventions."

Nursery garden centers are offering special trees with "Plant a Birthday Tree" tags. Part of the sale price will go to help the Forest Service's Woody Owl environmental improvement education program.

June Havoc tells tale of mother's neglect

MORE HAVOC. By June Havoc. Harper & Row. 277 Pages. $11.95.

Vaudeville died in the early 1930s, but its child star, Dainty June, refused to die with it. To her, the stage was "home," and she just had to stay on it, if not as a vaudevillian, then as an actress.

The problem was that nobody wanted her.

Dainty June, also known to the world as June Havoc or Gypsy Rose Lee's little sister, tells her post-vaudeville struggle in "More Havoc," a sequel to her 1959 autobiography, "Early Havoc."

The book bubbles with Miss Havoc's high spirits and inexhaustible energy that kept her afloat in those difficult years.

It opens as Miss Havoc is trying to support herself as a marathon dancer, competing in those endurance dance contests for prize money. Her teen-age marriage to a fellow vaudevillian has gone on the rocks.

In between the contests, she rushes back to New York to answer every casting call, only to be rejected. She doesn't even have the support of her mother any more. Mother Rose, who created Miss Havoc's early career, is now concentrating her attention solely on Gypsy.

But nothing stops her from getting back to the footlights. In 1940, when she was 24, she finally landed a role in the Broadway production of "Pal Joey." Walking across the stage before the curtain rises, she whispers: "Please, don't send me away again... please."

She becomes a hit, and goes on to blossom both on Broadway and in Hollywood.

The book ends in the '50s with her mother dying, again without showing any interest in her. Why? Sister Gypsy puts it succinctly: "You didn't turn out to be exciting enough to create the kind of reflection she needs to live in. No tabloids, no carnival, no sirens, no arrests."

Strawberries are old favorite

By TOM HOGE
AP Wire and Food Writer

When I was a boy, frozen foods had not yet been perfected and commercial air freight was in its infancy.

There was no such thing then as having fruit of all kinds within reach the year round, so we appreciated them all the more when the season arrived.

I can still recall the parade of berries that brightened the fruit stalls as they reached their prime.

Strawberries came first, and in those days they were allowed to ripen on the vine before being picked. None of those little green pellets you all too often find at the bottom of the basket today.

The growers in those days prided themselves on the aroma, color and flavor of their wares.

When the first strawberries appeared in the market in June, the price was usually high and we limited ourselves to a few for breakfast sprinkled with sugar and topped with cream from a nearby farm.

Soon the season hit its peak and as the price dropped we began indulging in our favorite dessert: old fashioned strawberry shortcake made from two layers of home-baked biscuit drenched in butter, filled with crushed sugared berries and blanketed with whipped cream.

The strawberry, as we know it, came from Chile, where Indian tribes acquired a passion for the fruit. Eventually some enterprising tribesmen selected the best plants and cultivated them, prompting French travelers to take specimens home.

During the 19th century, the cultivated strawberry found its way across the Atlantic to America, and by 1850 commercial production was under way.

Here's a favorite recipe of mine for strawberry cream pie.

20 ladyfingers
1 1/2 tablespoons cream sherry
1 package (3 1/4 ounces) instant vanilla pudding mix
1 1/2 cups milk
2 cups fresh strawberries
6 tablespoons currant jelly

Arrange enough ladyfinger halves (soft side up) to cover bottom of 9-inch pie plate. Cut remaining ladyfingers in half crosswise and use to form sides of pie shell. Sprinkle ladyfingers with sherry. Prepare pudding mix according to directions on package, using only 1 1/2 cups milk. Spoon pudding evenly over ladyfinger shell. Arrange strawberries in 2 rings around edge of pie. Melt jelly over low heat, stirring constantly; spoon over berries. Chill pie and serve.

Agency to screen for birth defects

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A state agency is planning a $3.75 million-a-year campaign to reduce the number of children with birth defects born to women on welfare.

It could mean fewer children with genetically transmitted diseases such as hemophilia, Down's syndrome ("Mongolism") and sickle cell anemia.

The State Board of Human Resources is expected to vote in October to offer genetic screening to Medicaid recipients. Its 1982-83 budget request includes $375,000 a year for the state's one-tenth share of the cost. Federal funds would pay the rest.

Screening tells a couple its chances of having a child with a genetically transmitted disorder. Scientists have identified over 2,000 such conditions.

"Texas will be the first state in the nation to separately identify genetic services to be included in its family planning program," said Beth Weber, director of the board's family planning division.

If the program is started, welfare case workers will spread the word.

"I don't think it is a matter of wringing anyone's arm. I would think anyone would want to know what is causing a child's medical problem and, ... if it can happen again, do I want it to happen again?" Mrs. Weber said.

She said genetic disorders occur in about one in 14 births, and screening can help high-risk couples to "make informed reproductive decisions."

"For example, one in every 10 black people is a carrier of sickle cell anemia. If two carriers marry, they could be making a reproductive decision without being informed. Or take cystic fibrosis, if two carriers marry, their child would have a strong chance of having it," Mrs. Weber said.

Genetic screening could result in long-range savings of tax dollars because treating some genetic disorders is an expensive burden on Medicaid.

The State Health Department and the March of Dimes now will pay the $250 to $750 cost of a genetic work-up for needy people, but many who need it don't get it.

Mrs. Weber said adding genetic screening to the list of Medicaid services will make it available to more people.

Medicaid would pay only for genetic services prescribed by a doctor for a patient with a suspected genetic condition "which has implications for reproductive decisions." It would not pay for tests to learn if a baby will be a boy or a girl.

A potential controversy lies in a provision allowing payment for amniocentesis — the taking of amniotic fluid from a pregnant woman's uterus with a needle. Analysis of the fluid can disclose such defects as Down's syndrome.

'Scorpion Signal' is entertaining thriller

THE SCORPION SIGNAL. By Adam Hall. Doubleday. 230 Pages. $10.

"The Scorpion Signal" is the ninth Adam Hall thriller to feature superspy Quiller, and it's not a bad piece of work.

Novels such as this aren't meant to be memorable. Their purpose is to entertain for the few hours it takes to read them, and this one surely does.

Quiller works for a hush-hush British intelligence agency. Its employees, Quiller notes more with resignation than sarcasm, are "loners, most of us ... we're born alone and we die alone and no one really notices. At the Bureau, a prerequisite of our service is that we agree not to exist."

Quiller, of course, may give lip service to this but in actuality he has every intention of existing — for as long as he can. Which is why he is not at all happy when he is abruptly pulled in from a well-earned leave — he got only two weeks off out of a promised eight — and asked to take on an extremely difficult case.

Quiller says he won't but, of course, he comes around and not too many pages into the book he's off to Germany and eventually the Soviet Union.

His job: Find an agent of the Bureau who was taken by Soviet intelligence, managed to escape and has now disappeared, and bring him back to England. If he balks, Quiller is to kill him. Why? The man, code name Schrenk, knows all about Bureau Operations in Russia and if retaken he might tell all to the KGB.

Quiller is not happy. Schrenk is a friend of his. In the past they have worked on some very tough operations together — operations they were lucky to survive. Happy or not, Quiller goes after Schrenk and the result is

Vietnam cooking takes a bow

During a fairly recent trip to France, I visited a number of the delightful Vietnamese restaurants that flourish in Paris. Since then I have had an urge to try to reproduce some of the dishes of Vietnam and report on the adventure to you.

The urge became a reality when the new "The Classic Cuisine of Vietnam" by Bach Ngo and Gloria Zimmerman (Barron's) came across my desk. It's a practical and fascinating cookbook to use.

In my kitchen, we started out by trying the recipe for Laque Duck because the authors recommend it so highly. They write: "Inviting in appearance and irresistible in taste, it will vanish in a trice." At my house, every one of their words turned out to be true. One note from our recipe testing that you may want to follow: We lined the roasting pan for the duck with foil to minimize cleanup. In addition we scraped the drippings from the foil and heated them with a little water to make an extra sauce ingredient.

The joint authorship of "The Classic Cuisine of Vietnam" is a happy event. Bach Ngo was accomplished in the cooking of all three sections of Vietnam, her native country, before she came to the United States five years ago. Her co-author, Gloria Zimmerman, is an American cooking teacher who was well-acquainted with Oriental cuisine when she and Bach Ngo met. Because they live near each other, they were able to work together in testing the recipes and writing the book. Their chapters on the equipment and special ingredients needed, plus their list of mail-order sources (in case there are no Vietnamese or Oriental stores in a particular neighborhood) are indispensable for questing cooks.

BACH NGO'S LAQUE DUCK
4 teaspoons achiotte (annatto seeds)
¼ cup hot water
5 scallions, both white and green parts

¼ cup black soy sauce
¼ cup dark corn syrup
¼ teaspoon five spice powder
Sprinkling of freshly ground black pepper
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
Dash of monosodium glutamate (optional)
1 duck (4 to 4½ pounds)
3 sprigs coriander (Chinese parsley), cut into fours
¼ of an 8-ounce package dried rice noodles, the thinnest available (banh hoi)
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
Basic Vegetable Platter, recipe follows
Nuoc Cham, recipe follows

Break the achiotte seeds in a mortar with a pestle or in a food processor. Soak in the hot water for 1 hour, then strain the liquid and discard the seeds.

Cut 4 of the scallions into 4 pieces crosswise; chop the remaining scallion and set aside.

Combine the colored water, soy sauce, corn syrup, five spice powder, black pepper, sugar and monosodium glutamate. Pour 3 tablespoons of the marinade inside the duck, together with the quartered scallions and coriander. Close all the openings with lacing pins, then place the duck in a bowl, pour the remaining marinade over, and allow to marinate for at least 2 hours (or as long as overnight in the refrigerator).

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place the duck on a rack in a roasting pan, placing the pan on the middle rack of the oven. Roast for 45 minutes, then reduce the heat to 300 degrees, turn the duck over, and roast for 45 to 60 minutes longer. Use the marinade remaining in the bowl and paint the duck every 15 minutes while roasting, until all the marinade has been used.

While the duck is roasting, bring 2 quarts of water to a boil. Drop in the noodles and boil for 1 minute. Drain in a colander and rinse under cold running water, then allow the noodles to dry for 1 hour. While the noodles are drying, fry the reserved chopped scallions in the 2 tablespoons of oil for 1 minute. After the drying time is up, transfer the noodles to a large platter and sprinkle with the chopped scallions.

Cut the duck, with the bones, into bite-sized pieces. Each person should be served a bowl of noodles, a few pieces of duck, some vegetables from the platter, and a sprinkling of nuoc cham.

Basic Vegetable Platter: Arrange a mound of 2 cups soft lettuce leaves (Boston or similar, not iceberg) in the center of a platter. Around the lettuce, and touching it, arrange separate mounds of 1 cup each fresh mint leaves and fresh coriander (Chinese Parsley). Arrange 1 cup cucumber (peeled in lengthwise strips and with green strips in between, then cut in half lengthwise and into thin horizontal slices, forming semicircles) in overlapping slices around the complete outer rim of the platter.

Nuoc Cham: Peel 1 clove garlic. Split 2 dried chili peppers down the center (or use ½ fresh hot red chili pepper) and remove the seeds and membrane. Cut into pieces and put into a mortar, together with the garlic and 2 heaping teaspoons granulated sugar. Pound into a paste. Squeeze the juice of ¼ of a fresh lime into the paste, then with a small knife remove the pulp from the lime section and add it as well. Mash this mixture and add 2 tablespoons fish sauce (nuoc mam) and 3 tablespoons water.

DR. LAMB

By Laurence Lamb, M. D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a male, nearly 70 years of age, and for many years I've had such bad colds. Mostly they start out as head colds or sinus trouble. When I have a cold I can't go outside as the cold tightens up and gets worse. What can you do for sinus? Do you think that a gas heater makes it worse? Would a humidifier help? Would changing climates help? Would cold shots help prevent sinus or what other medication should I take?

DEAR READER — As you know, we still don't have a cure for the common cold. I wish we did. There is some hope upon the horizon, though. The future possibility of being able to produce interferon cheaply with bacteria also raises the possibility that the common cold may be quickly aborted by administering interferon when it first starts. Colds and a gamut of upper respiratory infections are caused by viruses and interferon looks like one of the most promising anti-virus agents that we've had yet.

If everything works well, possibly within a few years people will be able to be quickly treated for colds rather than just getting sympomatic treatment as occurs today. You might see an ear, nose and throat specialist to see if you have a chronic sinus problem that deserves treatment. Some of these are bacterial and do respond to antibiotics. But the viruses that cause the usual colds and bronchitis are not as affected by antibiotics.

What to do about colds is discussed in The Health Letter number 3-2, Colds and Flu Group, Prevention and Treatment, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Gas heaters and other forms of dry heat do tend to dry out houses. Some of the houses, particularly in the North, are as dry in the dead of winter as the Sahara desert. This dries out the delicate linings of the respiratory system.

A humidifier would help provided it's kept clean. Humidifiers that aren't properly cared for can sometimes cause problems in their own right.

Changing climates may not help as much as you think. Don't forget that the respiratory infections are just contagious diseases, which means that you get them from other people.

I've always been amused by the story of the Eskimos who had never experienced a cold in the history of an Eskimo village. A group of scientists went to study the Eskimos and, you guessed it, they infected them with the virus and for the first time the Eskimos had colds. Not because of cold weather but because they had contracted a contagious disease from the scientists.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Someone recommended using a straw to drink water and milk with to prevent excess gas from swallowing air as one drinks. It works. I no longer have gas.

DEAR READER — Thank you for your tip. It will help some people. There will still be some air in the back of the mouth and you may still swallow some air but it can help decrease the amount of air you swallow with liquids.

Eric Carmen performs rock, ballads

By MARY CAMPBELL, AP Newsfeatures Writer
Eric Carmen's newest record album, "Tonight You're Mine," on Arista, is more rock 'n' roll than one expects from him. He says people ask if this isn't a big change of pace, and the answer is no. He always has written and sung both rock and ballads. But "All By Myself," on his first solo album, "Eric Carmen," became a big hit and was a ballad, so people think of him as a balladeer. Both LP and single are gold.

The Raspberries, the group he formed in Cleveland in 1972, he says, "made our first album, which consisted of some rock 'n' roll and mid-tempo ballads. Out of it came 'Go All the Way,' a three and a half-minute rock 'n' roll number. Everybody went so crazy for that record.

"When the second album came out, everybody gravitated immediately to the three and a half-minute rock tunes and ignored the ballads. They thought all the Raspberries were players of high-energy rock songs."

Carmen laments that having residence in both Beechwood, Ohio, and Los Angeles "totally negates any possibility of a social life. I bounce back and forth between the two. I'd like to be married. It gets very lonely out on the road sometimes. But I have to find myself in one place long enough to create some kind of relationship."

Still, he's much happier as a solo performer than he was as a Raspberries. He's mobbed in Japan, he says, like the Beatles used to be.

"The Raspberries were together two years for one century. It was a very successful failure of a group."

"We had the mistaken concept of being a democratic band, based on the idea there is equal distribution of talent among four people. I sort of accidentally became the lead singer and all the egos and typical things that happen in rock 'n' roll bands began to flare up and it was the beginning of the end. I no longer wanted to contend with people who hated my music. I figured I'd be better off by myself."

"It started out that everybody sang a few songs. Capitol kept picking songs I wrote and sang for the singles. The rest got upset. They decided the only way to get back into the picture was to change the total format of the band. They didn't care if it was like Bad Company or the Eagles. They decided I was the king of teeny boppers and my music was holding them back."

The Raspberries made four albums and a best-of album was released.

Carmen was upset with the other three because they would cancel recording sessions to go squirrel hunting. He says, "we didn't part on the best of terms."

When he made his first solo album in 1975, Arista Records sent the song "All By Myself" to a computer testing service.

"The results came back that no one under 30 was going to buy the record. It didn't have a chance," Carmen says. "I thought it was a hit and Clive

Davis, president of Arista, thought it was a hit, so he went with it.

"Companies still test records on computers. They send two or three and release the one that tests best as a single."

"I'd rather play an album for people who aren't in the music business, like my brother and his girlfriend, and see which they think is the best one."

Carmen, who is 30, is proud of his brother, calling him a "brilliant kid." He'll graduate soon from law school. He's also 6-foot-1. The slim, short older brother says ruefully, "I don't know how that happened. We could have been both made 5-foot-10 or something." Carmen was born and reared in Lyndhurst, Ohio, a Cleveland suburb. His parents now live in Mayfield, another suburb. One grandfather was born in Leningrad and the Carmen grandfather in London.

Eric Carmen is his real name. His middle name, Hector, is after his Carmen grandfather. "In Mexico they think I'm Mexican," he says. "In Italy they think I'm Italian. My name has worked out to be great."

"Carmen in Spanish means song and Eric in old Norse means bold warrior. I guess I'm a bold warrior of song."

Carmen's father's sister was a prodigy on violin and viola and has played viola in the Cleveland Symphony for about 30 years. "I kind of grew up around classical music and never heard of pop until I was 16.

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.

"I'm 69 and my husband is 79, and I have been pretending for years that he satisfies me. He doesn't, but he'd be crushed if he knew, and besides, it takes less than a minute."

FIRST CLASS ACTRESS

"After 35 years of marriage to the same man, I equate sex with any other bodily function—like blowing one's nose. I'm with TIRED."

BORED IN TEXAS

"Just before I was married (at 19), my mom gave me a little pep talk about sex. She said, 'Honey, sex is a man's game, and women aren't supposed to enjoy it, they are just men's playthings. So pretend you're enjoying it and put up with it to make him feel like a man.'"

"I said, 'But, Mom, what if I like sex?'"
 "She said, 'You're just like your father!'"

ALLENTOWN, PA.

"Tell TIRED IN LINCOLN, NEB., if she's still faking it after 30 years she can send her husband to Milwaukee. I'm 62 and my husband is dead; but I'm not."

WILLING IN WISCONSIN

"So TIRED submits to sex as a favor to her husband. Tell her if she wants to do something 'nice' for the man she loves, to bake him a cake!"

ALASKA LADY, AGE 56

"Thanks for asking for this survey. I thought I was the only 50-year-old woman who was tired of sex. I'm also tired of cooking."

WINNIPEG, CAN.

"Would you believe after 25 years of marriage my husband still sets the alarm for 6 a.m. so he can have sex before breakfast? You'd better believe I am also tired!"

HOUSTON

"Ask TIRED IN NEBRASKA if she wants to negotiate a trade. I'm 53, my husband's impotent, and I'm hungry for love in Iowa."

SIOUX CITY

"I'm 82 and my wife is 80, and after 50 years of marriage, we still enjoy our conjugal relationship. Abby, why are you asking only the women? Please take a survey to poll the men. It will open your eyes, Dearie."

Long hair rejected in Singapore

By KENNETH L. WHITING
 Associated Press Writer

SINGAPORE (AP) — A government campaign against long hair on males has been extended to schoolgirls, with several female students at Whampoa Secondary School having had their locks trimmed by Principal Liu Man Lang.

Madam Liu, who has headed the school for 12 years, said her students had been warned repeatedly against long hair.

Impromptu haircuts were given at an assembly to girls as well as boys who had hair touching their collars or even longer. The principal said girls with long tresses in braids were spared, but ponytails succumbed to the scissors.

Newspaper accounts said several girls at the Chinese high school broke into tears, at least three fainted and two of them were treated at a hospital as outpatients.

Education director Chan Kai Yau defended Madam Liu's action as necessary discipline: "If she is not given the authority, she would not be able to run the school properly..."

Although Madam Liu said the snipping of long hair on both girls and boys was common at her school, it was the first widely publicized incident involving females in a nine-year drive which has official sanction. Long hair is rejected as a characteristic of "Western hippie drug culture" which has no place in Singapore's "rugged society."

Hundreds of men with long hair arriving at Singapore airport have been ordered to see a barber before being let into the country.

Those who insist on lengthy locks should not be surprised when they are slighted in government offices where posters in Chinese, English, Malay and Tamil warn: "Males with long hair will be attended to last."

Unacceptably shaggy hair is defined as "falling across the forehead and touching the eyebrows or hair covering the ears or hair reaching below an ordinary shirt collar."

Civil servants who flout hair policy are referred to the Public Service Commission. One official said disciplinary action starts with a warning and may include dismissal.

Parliament occasionally gets a report on the war against long hair. In 1973, for example, five government workers were sacked, 4,000 warned and two quit rather than comply. Four years later, three men were fired, 20 fined and 325 warned. Also in 1978, 620 males were barred from entering the country and another 810 were let in only after a haircut.

Outside official circles, the campaign is backed by the Chamber of Commerce, the National Trades Union Congress and the Singapore Manufacturers Association. Short hair enforcement teams with representatives from management and labor check results.

Summer beauty hints

Makeup for problem skin

If you have acne, trying to cover it up with heavy pancake makeup is likely to make your skin worse. Instead, use a water-based foundation with light coverage designed for oily skin. Some have powder already mixed in for a pore-minimizing effect. Apply a second coat over broken out areas. Fluff on loose powder with a cotton ball. You can throw it away to avoid the bacteria buildup that can occur on a puff.

Vacation exercise tips
 Don't forget your exercises when you're on vacation. If you jog regularly but won't have a place to run, pack a jump rope for five minutes of daily jumping in your hotel room. Take advantage of lawns — grass makes a wonderful exercise mat. Put your hair in a ponytail and wear a sweat band under bangs to keep cool and protect your complexion from sweaty, greasy hair.

Sheer flattery
 Sheer blouses and dresses are so pretty and airy in summer. You'll look sensational if you wear a lace bra underneath, in white or a color that blends with your skin tones. Pick the most natural looking bra you can find — a seamless one in your skin tone. If you're small-busted, you might try a feminine camisole. Choose one with a bit of lace or a scalloped border.

Comet dust becomes target for space center hunters

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A golden trap for tiny particles of cosmic dust hurtling through space at speeds exceeding 10 miles a second may help a Johnson Space Center scientist examine the nature of comets.

Comets, which travel the solar system in elliptical orbits, are thought to contain material that originated at the time that the planets were forming.

And Fredrich Horz, a space center petrologist, wants to gather pristine samples of comet dust for his experiment on the chemistry of such micrometeorites.

Horz plans gather the microscopic particles with plates fashioned from solid gold and inserted into Earth orbit by a space shuttle crew.

"What we are doing is cometary science in Earth orbit," said Horz. "Scientifically, the experiment could be very important because no one knows anything about cometary solids."

Project manager Richard T. Walter, a space center engineer, designed a clam-like device that will capture the comet dust on its golden plates and return it in as near its original condition as possible.

Microscopic specks of comet dust, traveling at tremendous velocity, make minute craters when they strike spacecraft windows. Scientists also have collected cometary particles with devices on ultra-high flying spy planes.

But Horz, who specializes in impact craters, said the particles were not protected against contaminating material. After spending considerable time examining the contaminated craters, Horz devised a project for gathering the particles in space.

His experiment, along with more than 80 other scientific and engineering experiments, will be aboard a satellite called the Long Duration Exposure Facility.

A space shuttle crew will drop the satellite into orbit in about three years and another will retrieve it about a year later.

Horz anticipates that after a year, the golden trap will contain about 30 craters that can be protected from contamination during re-entry.

The satellite will carry two trays containing six 3-by-4-foot 99.9 percent pure gold plates, 132 of an inch thick and weighing 17.8 pounds apiece. It also will carry two trays of six 99.9 percent pure aluminum plates that will not be protected during launch or recovery.

Horz said the gold will be borrowed from the federal government. If all goes as planned, he will collect the craters he needs on about one ounce of the precious metal and return the remainder to the government.

Psychologist develops stress quotient tests

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston psychologist says he has developed a test that helps a worker measure his ability to manage aggression, anxiety, endurance and other stress factors that lead to hardship on the job and trouble at home.

Michael S. Haro, an associate professor in the School of Education at the University of Houston at Clear Lake City, calls his test the "Tension Quotient."

He has given the 33-question quiz to 500 oil company workers who volunteered to take the TQ test during the last year.

"I think the TQ could be of help to just about anybody holding a job," Haro said. "It points out areas where someone might be particularly vulnerable to problems and yet might not be aware of them."

He said the scores belong to individual employees and will never be used for or against employees.

"They can discuss the tests with others if they wish but no one but the employee and I know the scores," he said.

Haro said most people have no major tension-related problems until something extraordinary is added, such as divorce, death of a loved one, a too-demanding boss or a serious disease.

"Just because someone has a high-stress job, though, doesn't mean he or she cannot handle the tensions," he said. "In fact, lots of people seem to thrive on their stresses."

The TQ test is divided into six categories and includes an assessment by the employee of his personality type.

Many individuals are "completely unaware of just how stressful their jobs may be," Haro said.

"And then if they have serious stresses in their families or even on the freeways they can get into trouble," he said.

British immigrants wallow through miles of red tape

HOUSTON (AP) — A British family that sold its home in England and journeyed to Houston to follow an "American adventure" now finds bureaucratic roadblocks turning its trek into a bad dream.

David and Christine White said governmental red tape has prevented their two children from attending free public schools.

"We're being treated as if we were illegal," Mrs. White said. "If you're here legally, you should be entitled to a free education."

"I defy you to define us," White said. "We're in some kind of gray zone with immigration. And I thought British bureaucracy was bad."

The Whites said they arrived in June with proper immigration papers, but Houston-area school districts have refused to honor the documents.

White has a written job offer as a computer consultant with a Houston company, but has been told he must wait for labor certification from the Texas Employment Commission before he can apply for permanent resident status.

"In the meantime, two children are dying to go to school," Mrs. White said. "They have nothing to do all day around this apartment. They were at the top of their class in London."

But the attendance chief of the Houston Independent School District offered no apologies for the White's problems.

Fannin County grand jurors look at voting

LEONARD (AP) — Fannin County grand jurors are investigating a disputed Democratic primary runoff election where a recount showed the apparent winner lost 110 votes and the election.

"I've been ripped off," said Ray Grisham of Howe, whose apparently commanding lead in state representative race vanished in a recount.

"Leonard's a vicious town when it comes to politics," said David London, a Bailey horse rancher who demanded the recount and won the turbulent runoff.

That second tabulation angered many Leonard voters who have asked for a federal investigation while insisting that their ballots were changed.

"Why should we (bother to vote)?" asked one Leonard resident, who refused to give his name. "When the ballots get to Bonham (the county seat) somebody will just change them."

The night of the runoff, 625 ballots were cast in Leonard. Election officials announced the results as 392 for Grisham, 200 for London and no votes in that race on 33 ballots.

A month later, the recount showed London's votes in Leonard had grown to 337, Grisham's had dropped to 282 and there were only six ballots with no votes in the race.

"I will never believe I lost that box," Grisham told the Dallas Times Herald. "But in these rural counties that sort of thing can happen ... somebody knows how to get in there and change those votes."

"They made the mistake," London said of the Leonard election officials. "I don't know how they made it or why they made it or if they were paid off to make it, but they made the mistake."

Grisham filed suit to get the recount results overturned.

"I lost," he admitted, "but I

New technique predetermines chemotherapy effectiveness

DALLAS (AP) — A technique developed by San Antonio medical researchers may allow doctors to evaluate the effectiveness of chemotherapy, radiation and other cancer treatments before trying them on patients. The experimental procedure, called a stem assay, allows researchers to study tumors on laboratory plates before choosing which drugs could be most successful in treating individual cancer cases. "Using the technique, we have been able to eliminate some drugs as ineffective in specific cases and to identify some drugs which will work in certain patients even though the drugs had not worked in other patients with the same type of cancer," Dr. Daniel Von Hoff told the Dallas Morning News. Von Hoff said the test could also be used to study the effects of heat treatment, interferon and radiation on human tumors. But the assistant professor of oncology at the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio said the tests need more work before they go into widespread use.

Men's Rights founder raises questions on 'man's world'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — According to the old saying, it's a man's world.

But what's so great about that a man's life expectancy is even years less than a woman's? Or if men pay more for car insurance because the industry assumes they're "reckless"? Or if few divorced fathers get custody of their children?

Is a "man's world" so great if men, and not women, are subject to a military draft? Or if men always are expected to make the first move, accept a date, be a success, and never seem "unmanly"?

Those are the sort of questions Fredric Hayward raises as he fights what he sees as sexism against men.

His job, as the founder of Men's Rights Inc., is to fight laws that discriminate against men and stereotypes that belittle them.

Since the advent of the women's movement, people have learned to recognize ways that women are discriminated against, but they fail to see discrimination against men, Hayward says.

Hayward, 33, a New York native, founded his non-profit corporation in 1977. Once a teacher and a State Department employee in Thailand, he now subsists by working two nights a week at a hotel.

Hayward has testified at hearings that helped make it unlawful in Massachusetts for young men to pay higher auto insurance rates than women, regardless of individual driving records. He filed suit and won a ban of ladies' nights in bars.

He's filed suit in an effort to bar insurance companies from charging men higher life insurance rates than women just because women live longer. The Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination ruled in his favor, but the life insurance companies have appealed.

And he's planning to launch an attack on the practice of awarding custody to women in 90 percent of divorce cases.

Hayward, who is divorced, says he is not anti-woman or anti-feminist. But he feels feminists "made a mistake in not incorporating the male perspective."

For example, he said feminists and school officials "didn't think it was a problem" when a dress code was established for boys but not girls where he taught.

And people actively support campaigns "against violence against women," but they pay little attention to the fact that four out of five victims of homicide and aggravated assault are male, he says.

"Violence is a man's issue as much as a woman's," he says. "Women say they can't walk the streets, but it's the same for men — but they're afraid to say they're afraid."

As women begin to get a share of political and economic power formerly reserved for men, men have not gotten an equal share of the social and cultural powers once reserved for mothers, wives and lovers.

Salvadorans held in Phoenix following smuggling attempt

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Forty-one undocumented Salvadorans and Mexicans found packed "like cattle" in the back of a 24-foot rental van were being held here today after police and firefighters shared food with them and turned them over to border agents.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Border Patrol moved to arraign the van's two drivers. The 41 aliens — 34 Salvadorans, a Mexican woman and her six children aged three months to 11 years — could be returned to their native countries within two or three days, agents said.

It was believed to be the largest group of aliens intercepted since the July Fourth holiday weekend, when about 40 Salvadorans tried to enter the United States by crossing the desert on foot near Ajo, according to the Arizona Republic.

That attempt resulted in 13 deaths, including those of two men said to have been among the smugglers.

The aliens seized Monday were all reported to be in good condition.

The aliens were brought here from Globe, where the van had stopped at a convenience store before city police discovered its cargo of 11 men and 30 women and children. Many said they had been without sufficient food or sanitary facilities for more than two days.

"They were just packed in there like cattle," Globe Police dispatcher Della Peterson said. "It was a mess."

"They were all upset and crying about having to go back to El Salvador because of all the violence there," Ms. Peterson said. "One woman said all four of her brothers had been killed there. She said she and her son were the only ones left in the family."

Police and firefighters shared their own food with the aliens before handing them to the drivers over to the U.S. Border Patrol.

"I told the dispatcher that if they needed any help with grub, we had a big pot of beans if they wanted it," said Fire Department engineer Steve Arthur.

Ms. Peterson said at least one of the drivers was a Californian who officers recognized from a previous smuggling arrest in Globe.

Assistant Chief Ronald Johnson of the Border Patrol confirmed that one of the drivers had been arrested before in Globe on a smuggling charge but declined to identify the men further.

Federal officials said the two would be charged with alien smuggling.

The drivers and the 11 adult Salvadoran males were being held at the Glendale city jail, but the women and children were being housed at an undisclosed site "more compatible with family care," officials said.

Johnson said none of the aliens had requested political asylum, and those not needed as witnesses could be home "in two to three days."

Increasing numbers of Salvadorans fleeing from their Central American country's political violence have been entering the United States illegally. Many of them enter through Arizona, although the rental van was believed to have entered the United States sometime Friday through the border station at El Paso, Texas.

Policeman's stray bullet injures veteran Grand Ole Opry performer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A policeman's stray bullet put a veteran Grand Old Opry performer in the hospital when officers fired at a young burglarly suspect, authorities say.

Hubert Gregory, 71, a member of the Fruit Jar Drinkers, one of the original performing groups on WSM radio's country-music show, was in satisfactory condition Monday with a bullet wound in the leg.

He was returning to his home Sunday after taking his wife to church when he got caught in the middle of a police chase. Two officers were responding to a burglary call at a home when a youth "bolted out the back door of the house," said assistant Chief Paul Uelton.

The officers "hollered at him to stop" before each fired once as the youth turned into Gregory's yard. Gregory was just stepping out of his car when the shots were fired, Uelton said.

The officers were placed on administrative leave pending an investigation. "I don't think there's any question that it was an accidental shooting," Uelton said.

Charles W. Reed, 17, later was arrested at his home and charged with second-degree burglary. The youth was released to his father's custody.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Cheryl Prewitt, nearing the end of her reign as Miss America 1980, says she's too busy with her evangelizing and singing careers to consider marriage.

"My career is too full for anybody or anything else right now. It's my fault, but I'm happy with it," Miss Prewitt said Monday as the Miss America Pageant got under way.

Miss Prewitt, 23, of Ackerman, Miss., gives up her title Saturday night after earning a $20,000 scholarship and more than $80,000 in personal appearance fees in her year-long reign.

Even when another beauty wins the crown, Miss Prewitt is booked for personal appearances into next summer and plans to finish a book about her comeback from a crippling car accident.

Miss Prewitt said she has donated 10 percent of her earnings to various Christian church and missionary groups while the rest was "sent straight home to my Daddy," she said.

But the job sometimes got her down, she admits.

"It turns out that when you live it, it's not so glamorous after all," she said. "Washing out your laundry out back and blowing it dry with a hair dryer is not so glamorous."

"It was the shortest year of my life. But it wasn't the ultimate. Now I realize it was just the beginning."

Tung nuts eyed as boll weevil repellent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tung nuts might become popular again. Not to eat, mind you, but as a way to repel the boll weevil, a pest that has chewed through cotton fields for generations.

Some Agriculture Department scientists think tung nuts may be the answer. At least the tests so far have been promising.

Only a few years ago the government had a price-support program for tung nuts, an oil seed once grown on trees along the Gulf Coast, from Florida to Louisiana.

The USDA even had a special section that took care of price supports for tung nuts.

But Hurricane Camille in 1969 destroyed more than 60 percent of the tung nut orchards and freeze damage put another squeeze on the industry in later years. By 1973, production of tung oil dropped to zero.

The Agriculture Department, as required by law despite the demise of the crop, continued a price-support program for tung nuts before dropping it after 1976.

Although tung oil, once popular as a drying agent, is not essential for making paint and varnish, it still is important in the manufacture of high-grade protective coatings.

Most of the tung oil required now is imported from China, the ancestral home of the tung nut.

How did the tung nut become involved with the boll weevil? The USDA's Science and Education Administration says research began in the early 1960s on the possible use of tung oil to make weevil repellent.

At the agency's research center in Beltsville, Md., Martin Jacobson says two organic "feeding deterrents" were extracted from tung oil, labeled Deterrent I and Deterrent II.

Tests showed that a derivative of Deterrent I "almost completely repelled the weevils" after cotton buds were dipped in the substance.

Jacobson, chief of the Biologically Active Natural Products Laboratory at the Beltsville facility, first reported his findings in Denver, Colo., at a meeting of the Entomological Society of America.

Now, the agency says, the weevil repellent made from tung oil is so promising that the USDA has applied for a patent on it.

Meanwhile, the substance will undergo further tests. The department's Boll Weevil Research Laboratory in Mississippi plans to spray cotton buds in field tests, the agency said.

One reason for looking harder at tung oil is that it would be much cheaper to use than many of the chemical pesticides now sprayed on cotton fields, officials said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now here this, good buddy, the Agriculture Department has set up a telephone "Dial-A-Truck Report" so those who haul fruits and vegetables can get the latest weekly truck rate and cost information.

Assistant Secretary P.R. Smith, who oversees USDA marketing services, said truckers now can call a Washington, D.C., number, 202-447-2599, and 10 a.m. EDT Friday of each week.

The telephone call, however, is not toll-free.

"They will hear weekly fruit and vegetable truck rate highlights and rates that have been reported for shipping produce from the more important shipping points to selected cities of destination," he said.

And during the first week of each month — in the same time period — the report will include truck cost information such as fuel and maintenance costs as well as insurance and licensing costs per vehicle mile.

In addition to the recorded telephone report, the information is available free by mail from: Market News Branch, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250, or from the Office of Transportation, Room 1405, Auditor's Building, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public comments are being sought until Oct. 28 on provisions of the government's 1981 cotton programs, says the Agriculture Department.

The department is required by law to announce next year's upland cotton program by Nov. 1. There is no deadline for announcing the program for extra-long staple cotton.

Comments are being sought on next year's price-support loan rates and other provisions that affect growers.

The comments can be sent to: Director, Production Adjustment Division, ASCS, Room 3630, South Building, USDA, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.
