

MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY FIELD BAND and Soldiers' Chorus stand on the steps of the Capitol in Washington, D.C. The band and chorus will perform in Pampa Sunday, Sept. 21, at 3 p.m. in M. K. Brown Auditorium. Tickets are free of charge and may be obtained from the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Army Field Band, Soldiers' Chorus to perform in Pampa

Residents of the Pampa area will hear some of the best band music around when the United States Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus of Washington, D.C., performs in concert Sunday, Sept. 21, at 3 p.m. in M. K. Brown Auditorium, sponsored by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

The band is under the operational control of the Army's Chief of Public Affairs at the Pentagon. Known as the "Musical Ambassadors of the Army," the field band travels thousands of miles each year on at least two major concert tours and is considered by music critics to be one of the most distinctive musical organizations now appearing before the public. All concert tours are made as directed by the Secretary of the Army, and performances are open to the general public, free of charge.

The field band was organized on March 21, 1946, when General Jacob L. Devers issued the following order to Chief Warrant Officer Chester E. Whiting, the commander of the Army's First Combat Infantry Band: "I want you to organize a band that will carry into the grassroots of our country the story of our magnificent Army, its glorious traditions and achievements, and of the great symbol of American manhood — the Ground Soldier."

Whiting was the field band's commander until 1960, when he retired. In his 14 years as commander, Col. Whiting guided the fledgling band and literally took it "around the world."

Major William E. Clark of Prestonsburg, Ky., is the band's present commander and conductor. He is the sixth director in field band history. Major Clark has brought to his command more than 27 years experience in military music.

The band is composed of many musicians who have studied at the country's leading conservatories and schools of music. Many have performed with major symphonies and leading dance orchestras before entering the service. All of the musicians — by personal audition — have been specially selected for assignment to the band. The Soldiers' Chorus, an integral part of the band, is made up of 25 highly trained and talented vocalists under the direction of First Lieutenant Gary F. Lamb of Alliance, Neb. The chorus presents its own special arrangements of well known compositions at each field band performance.

The band's concert repertoire is designed to appeal to all audiences, offering classical, semi-classical and popular selections, choral arrangements, novelty numbers and military marches on each of its programs.

In addition to its concert tours, the band is called upon to participate in a variety of ceremonial events. The band has marched in five Presidential Inaugural parades, escorted the President on special occasions and performed for many visiting heads of state.

The field band, as the musical voice of the United States Army, is authorized to carry and display the Army Flag. This banner bears 158 streamers representing the campaigns in which the Army has participated since its inception — from the Revolutionary War to Vietnam. In concert and on parade, this standard is always found to the left of the American flag.

As impressive as the performance of their music is the outstanding appearance of the bandmen attired in the distinctive Army dress blue uniform. Though in striking contrast to the dress of the soldier in combat, the blue uniform has a tradition dating back to the early 1800's when it was worn by the officers and men of the then young United States Army.

Tickets for the performance may be obtained free of charge in person or by mail from the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, P. O. Box 1942, Pampa, Texas 79065. To receive tickets by mail, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Robbery investigation continues

Pampa police today are continuing their investigation of the strong-armed robbery Saturday night of the Cuyler Street Laundry in which a 16-year-old employee was tied up, threatened and left in the bathroom.

Joe Lemke, an employee of the business located at 641 S. Cuyler, told police that three black men entered the laundry at 7:08 p.m. Saturday and threatened to kill him.

The suspects reportedly asked for "all the money." More than $50 was reportedly taken in the robbery.

Lemke told police he was tied up and placed in the business' bathroom. After freeing himself, Lemke said he notified police of the robbery.

Pampa man stable

A city man is reported in stable condition today at Highland General Hospital after being pinned under a dune buggy in an early morning accident Sunday at the intersection of South Barnes and McCullough Streets.

The injured man was identified by police as Ronny Stokes, 38, Star Route 3. Stokes was transported to the hospital by Metropolitan Ambulance following the mishap, reportedly suffering internal injuries, a broken clavicle, lacerations and abrasions.

A passenger in the dune buggy, identified as James Nation III, 38, 401 Price Road, No. 3, also was transported to the hospital but refused treatment.

According to police reports, at 12:40 a.m. Sunday, Stokes was driving a 1971 Renault dune buggy in the vacant lot at a high rate of speed. While attempting a sharp left turn, Stokes lost control of the vehicle causing it to flip over, pinning Stokes.

School board eyes appraisal contract

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Staff Writer

A recommendation for the contracting of a property appraisal firm and hiring additional personnel for the city-school tax office will be heard by the Pampa Independent School District board of trustees during their regular meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

The recommendation for the hiring of an additional appraiser and two clerks, plus supplies and equipment, and that a contract be awarded to Troy Sloan Property Tax Service of Spearman will be presented by E. A. Myatt, a member of the advisory committee for the consolidation of tax offices.

Total cost of the project is estimated by the committee at $65,000 — $50,000 for the tax office personnel and $15,000 for the outside tax appraisal service — according to a letter of recommendation submitted to the school board by the committee.

The committee's letter states that "inequities" exist in the present tax appraisal system.

"These inequities are based primarily upon the outdated appraisals on certain classes of property which do not reflect current market values," the letter says.

The committee recommended in the letter that the city-school tax office conduct a reevaluation of all property in the district according to the stipulations set out by the new Property Tax Code (Senate Bill 621) should be completed by April 1, 1981.

Myatt said the Spearman tax service was recommended to the board because the business had the lowest of three bids from tax appraisal firms which were recently submitted to the committee.

"It was the low bid, and they (Sloan Property Tax Service) were the only ones who could do the work immediately," he said.

The city-school tax office would conduct the appraisal of all residential, business and commercial properties inside and near Pampa, and the appraisal firm would re-appraise all rural properties in the district, according to the committee's proposal.

Also to be considered by the school board is whether to accept the published tax rate or continue with the current rate of $1.50 per $100 valuation.

Most of the district tax payers will continue to pay the same taxes they had last year, whatever the board chooses to do, City-School Tax Assessor-Collector Dwain Walker said.

Any increase in taxes will be due to an increase in the valuation of property, he said, not because of the tax rate.

Gunmen sieze hostages in bungled robbery

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Three gunmen who apparently bungled a robbery attempt took several persons hostage at a popular steakhouse early today, then demanded $500,000 and a getaway vehicle, authorities said.

Five of the hostages later were released, but deputies said seven more were believed still to be held. One of the freed hostages said the gunmen served free drinks and told the captives not to worry.

Another hostage, Jim Wills, 43, of Gresham was released to bring police the keys to the restaurant's van and a demand for $500,000 to put into it, he said.

"Since then, I have tried to relate to the authorities that they want to cooperate. Nobody wants to get hurt. They don't want to shoot anybody," he said. Wills said two of his friends and the owners of the restaurant were still inside.

Bart Whalen, a Multnomah County sheriff's spokesman, said communications had been established with the men inside The Ringside in northwest Portland and negotiations had begun. He said the FBI also had been called in with a negotiations specialist.

The gunmen asked for handcuffs, which were placed on a porch. A hostage crawled out on hands and knees to retrieve them.

An early-morning fog had settled over the area, reducing visibility to less than 200 yards. Deputies said they feared that would encourage the would-be robbers to make a break, but the sun broke through shortly after dawn.

The well-lit building stood eerily in the suburban neighborhood where dogs barked occasionally and deputies ran from hedge to hedge. Residents were not evacuated.

Neither the hostages nor the gunmen were identified.

Deputies said the men apparently were armed with handguns and perhaps a shotgun.

About 20 deputies, at least one of them armed with a rifle, surrounded the building, where the gunmen had drawn drapes over the windows.

The well-lit building stood eerily in the suburban neighborhood where dogs barked occasionally and deputies ran from hedge to hedge. Residents were not evacuated.

In a house across the street, negotiating specialists from the Portland police department and the sheriff's office had their headquarters.

Whalen said the standoff began when a holdup alarm was triggered shortly before midnight Sunday. Deputies came from sheriff's headquarters about a mile away in the suburban area.

At least 15 officers, including a negotiator, were on the scene, near 142nd and Northeast Glisan, Whalen said.

Freeway rape suspect arrested

HOUSTON (AP) — Police said four women have positively identified a man suspected of raping at least 30 women on nocturnal cruises along area highways, earning him the nickname, "The Freeway Rapist."

Another 14 victims are scheduled to view police lineups today, said Houston Detective Dave Frazier.

Frazier would only identify the man as a "fairly young" Houston resident and said he was arrested late Saturday night. Other sources said the man is 22 years old and had not requested bail Sunday night.

Frazier, who led the "Freeway Rapist" investigation, said he feared informants would be jeopardized if details of the arrest were made public.

The man is a suspect in assaults on at least 30 women raped since February, although Frazier said some attacks may date back to 1979.

The man would cruise Houston highways between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. "when he would spot a woman who was alone," Frazier said.

The man would tell the woman sparks were coming out from beneath her car and ask her to pull over before it caught fire, he said.

He would either force the woman back into her car, or get behind the wheel on the pretense of checking her brakes, Frazier said, usually using a steak knife or an ice pick as a weapon.

After asking for money, the man would then force the woman to lie on the floor of the car and rape her or force her to have oral sex with him, Frazier said.

"Then he would make each girl tell him she loved him, take the money and a lot of time their IDs (identification) and tell them he would call her (sic) or threaten her if she told anyone," Frazier said.

He said the IDs of several women were found when the man was arrested and investigators also found a palm print on the car of an alleged victim.

The man used at least four cars in the attacks, which took place every five to seven days, Frazier said.

Oswald autopsy records viewed

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Lawyers introduced several volumes of burial and autopsy records today in a hearing to determine if the body of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald should be exhumed.

Assistant Dallas County Medical Examiner Linda Norton brought Oswald's military dental and chest X-rays and said it would not be difficult to compare those to X-rays made of the body in Oswald's grave.

Oswald's brother, Robert, has filed suit to keep the grave closed, claiming it would cause him "mental anguish." He testified Friday that he had paid for the plot marked with a metal plate engraved simply, "Oswald."

Manager Neil Rhetberg of Rose Hill Cemetery, where the body is buried, testified his records show Oswald's plot had been deeded to his mother, Marguerite. Attorneys for Robert Oswald challenged those records as hearsay, and State District Judge James E. Wright said he would take the matter under consideration.

A county clerk, Charles Bratcher, testified he found no record of a cemetery plot deeded either to Robert or Marguerite Oswald. Marguerite has made no comment on her son's lawsuit. She previously has maintained the body is that of her son, Lee. Wright concluded the hearing after more than an hour's testimony and took the case under advisement. He gave no indication when he would rule.

But Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter, testified Friday she wants the grave opened because she has heard that "very evil people" may already have removed the body.

"The rumor I have heard lately is that his body is no longer in the grave," Mrs. Porter read from a prepared statement as part of her testimony.

"I strongly believe in the possibility that the body will not be there. I ask the court to move for the opening of the grave."

Dr. Linda Norton of the Dallas County medical examiner's office was scheduled to testify today. A forensic pathologist, she has Oswald's Marine medical records from the 1950s.

If the body were to be exhumed, experts would look at the teeth, the height and the ear of the body. The British author seeking the exhumation said there were discrepancies between the 1963 autopsy report and previous medical records of Oswald.

Miss America says ERA not the answer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The new Miss America, Susan Powell, thinks the Equal Rights Amendment "is beautiful because it's got people talking about women's rights and about women" — but she does not support it.

"But I'm not sure that the ERA as an amendment is the answer," the 21-year-old Oklahoma City University senior said Sunday. "Women without the ERA will have their own rights. Women are very strong."

Miss Powell says she never has encountered discrimination in her own life.

She was appearing today on the "Today" show, and for the next 10 days will be flying between New York and Los Angeles for appearances on behalf of pageant sponsors.

But before she left the site of her Saturday triumph, Miss Powell answered a host of questions on sex, money, drugs, love and her professional ambitions.

"I am very competitive," said Elk City, Okla.'s first Miss America. "As a child, I used to watch Miss America on television, put a sheet around my neck with a pin and sing, 'There She Is.' It's been my dream."

A soprano who won district Metropolitan Opera auditions this year in Oklahoma, the 54th Miss America took the crown with a witty rendition of "Lucy's Aria" from the opera, "The Telephone."

She plans to use her $20,000 scholarship for voice lessons and hopes to sing with a major opera company someday.

The green-eyed Miss Powell says she's a "middle class" woman from a small town who relaxes by watching television.

When she's not at Oklahoma City University, she lives with her mother, Vinita, who is divorced from her father, Wendell Powell.

She doesn't have a boyfriend and said premarital sex is "not right for me at this time in my life."

About marriage, she said, "I will marry only if I meet someone I can't live without."

The new Miss America says abortion should be a matter of choice for a woman and her doctor, but said she personally was against it.

She has never used illegal drugs and supports decriminalization, not legalization, of marijuana, she said.

Miss Powell said she would support a draft for women "if it meant living in a free country," but would not reveal her presidential choice.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Heavy rains drenched the Hill Country and moved into the West Central Texas today, inundating some communities with 2 inches and more. Flash flood warnings were issued for some counties.

The storm remained almost stationary for several hours just east of San Angelo during the night. Junction received .98 of an inch in an hour.

Law enforcement agencies said water covered roads and highways but there was no serious threat to travelers. Some roads were temporarily closed.

Flash flood warnings were up today in Menard, Mason and Kimball counties. Ballinger and Brady were two communities reporting more than 2 inches of rain.

Partly cloudy skies prevailed over much of East Texas with early morning fog developing along the upper Gulf Coast northward to Lufkin and eastward to Beaumont. The Panhandle remained mostly clear.

The weather service predicted afternoon highs in the middle 80s in West Texas and the middle 90s elsewhere.

As the storms plagued West Texas, the southeast corner of the state was drying out from Tropical Storm Danielle, which moved ashore Friday night, causing heavy flooding in the Golden Triangle of Beaumont, Port Arthur and Orange.

Port Arthur residents in the Montrose addition were expected to be back in their homes by tonight. By midmorning, only one evacuation center with about 75 people remained open, the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department said.

The Carter record

Overview: Promises to keep

By MICHAEL PUTZEL, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - En route to the White House in 1976, Jimmy Carter drew a portrait in promises of what a Carter administration would accomplish.

An examination of those promises and of his handling of the critical issues that confronted his presidency shows that Carter achieved few of the goals he set for himself.

Carter's successes include the Camp David accord leading to a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel; approval of major elements of a national energy program; and enactment of the Panama Canal treaties. Nonetheless, with high inflation, high unemployment and foreign dilemmas in Iran and Afghanistan, the president is grappling to overcome poll ratings that put public perception of his job performance near an historic low.

One White House aide, who asked anonymity, characterized Carter's first term this way: "We had little victories and big defeats. Sure it's been frustrating, but given this Congress and this economy, I defy you to name someone who could have done better."

In accepting renomination last month, Carter made no broad claims for his record in office, emphasizing instead, his experience. "We have been tested under fire. We have neither ducked, nor hidden. We have tackled the great, central issues of our time, the historic challenges of peace and energy which have been ignored for years..." Carter said. "We have made mistakes and we have learned from them. But we have built the foundation now for a better future."

He offered few specifics to correct the problems of 1980. Carter was far more circumspect than he was in 1976 when, according to a White House paper circulated in 1977, he piled up 660 promises. (The Republican National Committee numbered them.)

Among the pledges:
-Promise 261: To overhaul the welfare system. His plan met wide disapproval and never emerged from Congress.

-Promise 67: To eliminate tax loopholes and shift the tax load from low- and moderate-income families to wealthier individuals and corporations. A broad tax reform package was proposed by Carter, but was generally dismissed by Congress. Social Security taxes were increased sharply.

-Promise 640: To reduce military spending. Carter reversed himself and now is seeking the largest peacetime Pentagon spending boost in history.

-Promises 208-218: To create a comprehensive national health insurance plan. Carter watered down his goals and did not achieve agreement on a compromise plan. Nor could he win hospital cost containment (No. 212).

-Promise 402: To make the federal bureaucracy smaller and more efficient. Carter won a new personnel policy to make top federal officials more responsive, but made only limited headway in whittling the number of federal agencies from 1,900 "to no more than 200."

Aircraft workers strike in southeastern Poland

By ROLF SODERLIND, Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Dissidents today reported workers have struck an airplane factory in southeastern Poland because a local Communist Party leader sought to keep them from forming an independent trade union, one of the key concessions granted strikers in this country's labor crisis.

The dissidents claimed Alojzy Kotarba, first secretary of the party committee for the Rzeszow region, told workers in Mielec that there was "no need for independent trade unions" in the area.

He allegedly asked workers to sign petitions declaring they would not organize unions independent of party and government control in accordance with agreements made by the regime with strikers in Gdansk, Sazecin and Silesia.

The agreements apply nationwide, according to the government.

Dissidents said workers at the Mielec airplane plant were in the fourth day of their walkout. It was not known how many workers were on strike at the plant, a major producer of airplanes, motorcycles and other transport products.

Bani - Sadr accepts majority of premier's cabinet nominees

The Associated Press

In another step toward debate on the American hostages, Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr accepted two-thirds of Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai's proposed cabinet and submitted the names to Parliament for approval. But the Bani-Sadr and Rajai remained at odds over the other seven ministers.

Tehran Radio reported Bani-Sadr accepted 14 of the 21 ministers nominated by Rajai, who was elected prime minister by the Majlis, or Parliament, after Bani-Sadr's first choice for the job was rejected. The broadcast said Rajai nominated seven other men for the vacant posts, but five of them were the same nominees Bani-Sadr refused to agree to earlier. Hossein Musavi, Rajai's pick for foreign minister, was among them.

In a letter to the Majlis, the prime minister said he hoped

Bani-Sadr "will finalize the investigation of some cases and that I can take the necessary measures to introduce the rest of the members of the Cabinet."

The Majlis will begin consideration of the cabinet nominations on Tuesday, Radio Tehran said. Approval of the lineup will advance the Parliament another step toward consideration of problems facing the country, including the fate of the 52 American hostages who today were spending their 310th day in captivity.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolution, has given the Majlis authority to determine the fate of the Americans taken prisoner when militant Islamic students occupied the U.S. Embassy in Tehran last Nov. 4.

The Foreign Relations Commission of the Majlis held preliminary discussions on the issue Saturday.

Casualties heavy in Soviet offensive

By GENE KRAMER, Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Heavy casualties on both sides in the war in Afghanistan are reported as Soviet forces advance into a strategic mountain valley northeast of Kabul held by Afghan rebels for nearly 2 1/2 years.

Afghan and foreign sources reported the air and ground attack by special Soviet counter-guerrilla units and 500 Afghan tribal mercenaries was launched on the deep, winding Panjshir valley late last month. They said it produced some of the heaviest fighting since an estimated 80,000 Soviet troops were sent to Afghanistan last December to try to put down the tribal rebellion against the communist government.

The sources said the Soviets apparently were trying to take the valley before the first snowfall in November. They said it was their 13th attempt and that anti-communist tribesmen had controlled it since the first communist government took over Kabul in April 1978.

A source in Kabul who has proved accurate in the past, quoting travelers to the Afghan capital, said rebel Panjshir tribesmen held off the attack for two days before Soviet motorized infantry and armored units backed by formidable air support advanced in bloody fighting from Gulbahaar, at the mouth of the valley, to Rokha, 20 miles away.

Soviet helicopters put troops on the mountaintops, then the troops closed in on the rebels from above and below, according to the reports.

The travelers reportedly said they saw 10 Soviet helicopter gunships and two other planes shot down and that many of the 400 Soviet tanks and armored vehicles in the attack were destroyed or trapped in the area.

Both the rebels and the Soviet forces suffered heavy casualties and 20 to 30 percent of the buildings in the 20-mile stretch were destroyed by Soviet bombardment and shelling, the reports said.

They said most of the 500 mercenaries, from Paktia Province in southeast Afghanistan, were killed. They were reported hired by the Soviets for more than 10 times as much as the monthly wage of $12.50-$15 paid Afghan army troops.

Western journalists have been expelled from Afghanistan and no confirmation of the reports was available.

Cowboys' names scheme fails

DALLAS (AP) - The lure of a youth-oriented bonanza offered by a man claiming to be the brother of a Dallas Cowboy seemed too good to be true for several parents.

And, sure enough, police told them the "bonanza" was a con after checking out complaints from one mother who looked on the deal with a jaundiced eye.

Last week, a man identifying himself as Charles Springs, brother of the Cowboy fullback Ron Springs, offered some Dallas youngsters, nine to 12 years old, the opportunity to participate in a youth football program that was supposed to be part of a Dallas Cowboys' community involvement effort, according to police.

He told the excited children bus service would be provided, as well as free uniforms, a free meal after the afternoon workouts and free tickets to all Dallas Cowboy home football games - and all for a registration fee of only $7 per child.

One mother, though, was not convinced as easily as her neighbors. She checked with the real Springs and the Cowboys' office and was told the whole thing was phony.

Cowboys' officials notified police, but "Charles Springs," carried on business as usual.

However, a group of irate mothers were hot on the con man's trail, telling their friends and neighbors to be on the lookout, and Thursday, when the phony Springs tried to coerce another parent with his offer the scheme backfired.

She saw through the scam and within an hour an angry army of mothers and a Dallas policeman set out in hot pursuit of the con man. Late that afternoon the man was in custody for felony theft.

"There were several angry mothers who suggested that it would let them have him for just 20 minutes, they could see to it that justice was carried out," said police investigator C.E. Robertson.

Education secretary contends all children entitled to school

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - All children in the United States, regardless of whether they're in the country legally, are entitled to a free public school education, Secretary of Education Shirley Hufstедler says.

Her remarks Sunday night came on the eve of a two-day hearing designed to obtain public comment on proposed bilingual education guidelines.

"It is terribly unfair if any community or school district issues ID cards for 5 or 6 year olds to go to school," Mrs. Hufstедler said.

Illegal aliens often have jobs and contribute to the wealth of their communities and country like citizens, she said.

The hearing, the first of six such hearings scheduled around the nation, is being conducted from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. both days at the Institute of Texan Cultures at HemisFair Plaza.

After opening the hearing Monday, the education secretary's itinerary called for her to tour Brackenridge Elementary and Gus Garcia Middle School and the San Antonio Museum of Art.

The secretary made her remarks at a reception in her honor Sunday night by Mayor Lila Cockrell at the Spanish Governor's Palace.

The reception for the cabinet official was attended by numerous local officials and educators.

A federal court recently overturned a Texas statute that allowed local school districts to turn away children of illegal aliens or force them to pay tuition.

Another court subsequently stayed the order, but U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. ruled last Thursday that children of illegal aliens in Texas may attend public schools without paying tuition, pending the outcome of the suit.

The state of Texas, one of the parties in the federal suit, contends state funds should not be used to educate children of illegal aliens.

Mrs. Hufstедler said her stand on the illegal alien issue is based on a personal rather than a legal viewpoint. She declined to comment specifically on the legal issues involved since the matter is in litigation.

The education secretary had harsh words for Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, who has said one of his first official tasks if elected president would be to order that the Department of Education be abolished.

Reagan called the agency a waste of tax money and a bureaucratic wasteland.

"In the first place, President Carter will be re-elected, so we don't need to take too seriously the remarks Gov. Reagan has made," Mrs. Hufstедler said.

She said the former California governor showed himself "seriously uninformed about the department" in making those criticisms. She said he "would be astonished" to learn her department is responsible for providing financial aid to a number of college students - including minority and middle-class students.

Principal proposes attendance pay

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Memorial Junior High School lost $132,000 last year because students played hooky. Principal Bob Amparan figures the school could save some dollars by paying the kids to show up.

"My idea may sound a little crazy, but it ought to appeal to them," says the principal of the school with the worst attendance record in the San Diego area.

"I could drop all these truant kids and let them become a permanent problem on the streets. Instead, it's bold and controversial, but why not convince them that school is in their interest?"

The district-wide school board is to vote within two weeks on whether to experiment for three months with Amparan's proposal. Under the plan, each of the 950 students would be issued a card marked "25 Cents" for each day he or she attended class the month before.

Perfect attendance would be worth $5 monthly, and the "pay" could be spent only for school-related items such as paper, notebooks, gym clothes or library fines. Apples and milk could be bought with the credit money but not "junk food."

Amparan envisions extending the program to discounts to public shows or sporting events like San Diego Chargers football games.

"It's not a giveaway but an earning thing," he said. "If it works, besides enticing these youngsters back for an education, this could save us a thousands of dollars."

In the 1979-80 school year, Memorial Junior High lost $132,000 in state funds because of unauthorized absences for which it is penalized $9 a day. Its absentee rate is about 9 percent compared with 3.5 percent for the San Diego public school district overall.

San Diego loses an estimated $2.4 million for its public secondary schools with its growing number of unexplained absences.

Memorial Junior High, with 90 percent minority enrollment, is located in southeast San Diego — probably the poorest section of California's second biggest city.

"These are children without lawns to mow because there aren't any lawns, or even the possibility of shoe shining jobs without people at home in the daytime," said Amparan, 40, who earned a doctorate in educational administration at the University of California at Berkeley, specializing in equal education and school financing.

"I don't think we want to lose these young people by default. ... And I say the first thing is to get them back in school," he said.

At least two school board members are apprehensive about his idea, but Amparan has been talking about it in the neighborhood during the past week.

"You may not believe this," he said, "but 13 kids have asked us already what day school starts."

It starts next Monday for the district's approximately 300,000 students.

Assad to talk merger

By The Associated Press

President Hafez Assad of Syria flies to Libya today to talk with Col. Moammar Khadafy about his proposal that their two countries unite to fight Israel, the Syrian news agency SANA reported.

The pro-Libyan Damascus newspaper As Safir said diplomats in the Syrian capital expect Assad and Khadafy to return together to Damascus next week to discuss the mechanics of the merger.

The newspaper, which has close Syrian and Libyan connections, also said Assad will visit Moscow later this month to discuss upgrading Syria's defenses against Israel.

Khadafy called for the merger Sept. 1 in a speech marking the 11th anniversary of his coup against the Libyan monarchy. He praised Syria as the last bastion against Israel, and Assad immediately agreed to the merger.

You don't have to wait for Congress to cut your tax bill. You can give yourself a break instead.

Herb Paul, a partner in the management consulting and accounting firm of Touche & Ross, said most people "end up paying too much in taxes."

About two-thirds of all taxpayers take the standard deduction rather than itemizing — a practice Paul said is a mistake. "Most people, if they truly go through their records, should itemize," he said.

The standard deduction — formally known as the zero bracket amount — is $2,300 for single people and $3,400 for married couples. To decide whether to itemize, you have to figure out whether your deductions add up to more than the standard amount.

Here are some questions to consider:

- Are you buying a house? More than half of all families are, and Paul said most of them should

Do - it - yourself tax cut advocated by accounting firm itemize so they can take advantage of deductions for mortgage interest and property taxes.

- Do you live in a place where there are relatively high state and local income taxes? If you itemize, you can deduct these taxes on your federal return.
- Do you throw away old clothes and furniture? Give them to charity and get a receipt. The donation is deductible.
- Do you use credit cards and pay off your bills a little bit at a time? The interest is deductible — if you itemize.
- Do you spend more than average on items on which there is a sales tax? Paul said the estimates for sales-tax deductions in the government-provided tables are too low for many people. If you keep even a rough record of your spending, you will probably find extra dollars to deduct, particularly if you have made a major purchase like an automobile.

"There are little techniques that ease the (tax) burden," Paul said, and one of them is timing. You may be able to lump your deductions together in one year so it pays to itemize.

Suppose, for example, a married couple expects deductions that would add up to about $3,100 this year and again in 1981. At first glance, it seems as though it would not pay to itemize.

Suppose, however, that couple can transfer some deductible spending from one year to another — by paying a medical bill early or making a charitable contribution in December instead of January. Assume the couple can boost 1980 deductions to $3,700 while cutting expected 1981 deductions to $2,400. They can itemize on the return they file next April — taking advantage of the $3,700 in deductions — and can still take the full standard deduction of $3,400 in the following year. Without spending anything extra, they have boosted the value of the two years of deductions to $7,100.

Investigators mum on kidnapping

DALLAS (AP) — Youth investigators are tight-lipped about their search for the kidnapper of a 7-year-old boy who broke free from his abductor while his frantic parents and authorities tried vainly to rescue him.

More than 28 hours after he was snatched from his northside neighborhood, Matthew Mueller was reunited with his tearful mother.

"That's my baby! I want a kiss!" Beth Smith, cried as a police car carrying Matthew turned into her driveway late Saturday night.

Mrs. Smith spent many of the anguished hours after her son was taken driving to several designated drop-off points, only to stand up by the kidnapper.

Youth Sgt. W.D. Cobb said Sunday night investigators were looking for a specific individual, but he declined to elaborate other than to say the search had narrowed.

"We have a general idea of who we are looking for," he said. "But I really can't tell you anything specific."

However, Cobb told another reporter the same day: "We've got a whole bunch of suspects, but no one single, solid-type suspect."

He said the boy was "both mentally and physically OK. He's a very bright child with a good, lucid memory and has been able to help us a lot."

The drama began shortly after 6 p.m. Friday, when Mueller disappeared while riding his silver, Sting-ray bicycle.

Less than two hours later, authorities said a caller whose voice was identified as that of a black male told the Smiths if they wanted Matthew alive to produce $50,000.

Diet facts & fallacies

by Sherry Coklin

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

Good health is a product of heredity, environment, nutrition and exercise. Nutritional deficiency, resulting in malnutrition or disease, is one of the major problems in modern society despite adequate food supply, primarily because of ignorance of good nutrition. A well balanced diet, rich in all essential nutrients, is necessary to maintain a healthy body and mind. Authorities have found that a number of diseases can appear when there is a deficiency of one or more nutrients. Most diseases caused by such deficiencies can be corrected when all essential nutrients are supplied. However, in some instances of severe deficiency, irreparable damage may be done. Overweight is often a by-product of nutritional deficiency, since foods lacking in nutrition are often high in calories. Diet Center can teach you to correct overweight and keep it in check by eating a totally balanced diet. Call your local center today.

Somebody has to pay for 'free' education

Texas Attorney General Mark White said the cost of U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals' order requiring the state to educate children of illegal aliens could run as high as $200 million a year.

He said also that he is campaigning with Texas congressmen for federal money to pay for educating the illegal alien children in Texas public schools because "this is faster than litigation."

He pointed out that federal help in paying the cost would be similar to the aid given school districts that are "impacted" by large numbers of children from military bases.

There are two or more things wrong here. In the first place the federal judge was showing the muscle of federal government in making the decision he did. His action is just another example of the federal government tampering with the state's business, and in this case it affects the Texas taxpayer, too.

Attorney General White's asking for federal funds to help Texas comply with the judge's "order" is also wrong, for he is simply asking for tax money from another pocket.

But here comes the Texas conference of Churches, an official of which commended the ruling by Judge Seals that Texas must provide free public education to all resident children, including 'illegal aliens.'

The official is Dr. James C. Suggs, executive director of the ecumenical agency. He also decried the announcement by Attorney General White that he will appeal the decision and seek a stay of the judge's order.

He said that Texas remains the only state with a law prohibiting the "free" education of children of undocumented immigrants.

Dr. Suggs made other comments on why Texas should join the herd, but it seems he never got around to explaining how the taxpayers will raise the money. One knows how the money will be raised: the government will take it by force, from the taxpayers.

It may be only implied force, but it will be force, nonetheless. We have a suggestion for Dr. Suggs. Since his Texas Conference of Churches is so concerned, why doesn't that body establish a chain of private church schools throughout Texas for the education of the alien students? This would be an indication the organization is putting its money where its "heart" is. If it is a little short of money at this time, welcome to the club. Most Texans (those who pay taxes) are a little short at this time, too, but Judge Seals and Dr. Suggs tend to overlook that. Meanwhile, though, the taxpayer would not have the problem the judge created if the Texas Conference of Churches established all those private schools to educate the alien children. Chances are, the endeavor might even influence everyone's turning to private schools, thus effecting the demise of the Texas public school system, which would be good.

With the public school system eliminated, the illegal alien children would have a freedom of choice, whether to attend a private church school or some other kind of private school, or whether to attend school at all. Meanwhile, we do wish that Dr. Suggs and others would stop using the word "free" so generously. There is no "free" school education. Somebody has to pay for it.

Nearly half a century has elapsed since the American farmer has sold his staple products in a freely competitive market. Since the 1920s, the federal government has bought wheat, corn and various other farm products in great quantity, reducing the supply on the market so that the prices received by farmers have risen. It still does. The cost is a very large item in the government's yearly budget.

Washington has allowed some of this stuff to go to waste because to sell it would depress the market. People in poorer countries are starving because governments have held food out of their reach.

Today's generation of farmers hardly knows what it is to sell in a free market. They take for granted that farm products must be "supported," that the farmer would go bankrupt if he had to sell for what the traffic would bear. Yet, his grandfather did, and Grandpa made out.

Born and bred on a farm, I have always thought of farmers as freedom-loving and self-dependent. None of the American population are more so. If farm folks are losing their love of freedom, it is a matter for concern.

The phenomenon extends beyond America. In Europe, too, farmers are subsidized by government. The governments of the European Common Market, which include Great Britain, spend billions each year to support their farmers' prices. They have supported the price of butter at so high levels that farmers of western Europe have produced huge quantities of butter which consumers do not buy and hence which has been sold to Soviet Russia for a song - at 65 cents a pound for butter that brought the producer $2. What has this accomplished except to make a market for margarine in the West?

One can explain this insanity only by saying that there are many farmers and that each - plus his wife - has a vote. So one may allege it is due to "politics." This explanation is not very flattering to the farm folks.

Numerous as the farmers are, they are becoming less so. Due to technology, the trend is toward larger farms and fewer farmers. Farm machines are replacing farm labor, and machines don't vote. Farmers' political clout must be weakening.

As farms get larger, more fertilization and pest control, as well as machinery, are employed. All this makes for greater efficiency; each bushel of corn costs less to produce. This should make the farmer more prosperous, not less so.

We could look back more than a half century and recall that American farmers have long been favored by government. The agricultural experiment stations and state ag colleges were established. In 1889 the secretary of agriculture was promoted to the President's cabinet. Early in the 1900s, agriculture departments appeared in the public high schools. All this represented free education for farmers. No other occupation was so favored.

Maybe farmers have been aided too much. Free as the farmer seems to be, agriculture is a most highly socialized occupation.

Has this paternalism been healthy for the farmer? One wonders what agriculture today would be like if, from the beginning - from the time the Plymouth Pilgrim put a fish under each hill of corn - our political authorities had left the farmer alone to grow his crops and market them as best he could.

Farmers produce food, which is a necessity, not a luxury. Therefore, as long as there are hungry mouths, there is demand for the farmer's products. Eating never goes out of style.

He grows crops from the soil, warmed by the sun and watered by the rain. These are gifts of nature. But he must plow, plant and harvest. Good soil plus diligent labor equals income.

Basically, as an occupation farming seems favorable to the farmer, an occupation to be followed voluntarily and freely. And as an occupation, it has no danger of disappearing as horse-shoeing and carriage-building did.

Government intervention in agriculture, like all intervention, reduces product and results in forcing human beings to live more meagerly than they could and would were the markets free.

Today in history

Today is Monday, Sept. 8, the 252nd day of 1980. There are 114 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Sept. 8, 1974, President Gerald Ford granted former President Richard Nixon an unconditional pardon for any crimes he may have committed during his term in office.

On this date:
In 1565, a Spanish expedition landed at what is now St. Augustine, Fla., and founded a European settlement in North America.

In 1855, the Crimean War ended.
In 1935, Sen. Huey Long was shot in Baton Rouge, La. He died two days later.

Ten years ago: The Red Cross was named to negotiate with guerrillas holding hostages on board two hijacked airliners in Jordan.

Five years ago: Federal marshals and national guardsmen in Boston protected students riding buses in a court-ordered integration plan.

One year ago: Former President Ford assailed President Carter for implying that a Soviet combat unit recently discovered in Cuba may have been there during the Ford administration.

Today's birthdays: Comedian Sid Caesar is 58. Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia is 42. Song writer Howard Dietz is 84.

Thought for today: There is nothing so powerful as the truth, and often nothing so strange. — Daniel Webster (1782-1852).

The wolf and the bear

by Paul Harvey

This won't sit well with some - but the immediate grievances which have been distressing the people of Poland are not unlike the grievances which distress many Americans: government mismanagement, inflation, high food prices.

Neither communism nor capitalism is able to provide a utopian existence with plenty for everyone.

Ours comes closest. Meanwhile, the Soviet Union has its hands full of restiveness in Afghanistan, Poland, next Yugoslavia.

The Soviet Union is discovering that dominating neighbor nations may cost more than it's worth.

During this political campaign time, candidates of both parties will expeditiously revive fear of the Soviets.

May I suggest - and may I have your undivided attention so that this will not be misread - that every Communist in the world, foreign and domestic, could drop dead at ten o'clock tonight and at ten o'clock tomorrow morning we would still have ninety-nine and forty-four one-hundredths of our urgent problems unresolved.

The homefront problems which threaten to do us in, with or without the complicity of the Communists, include crime, laziness, limitless immigration, energy starvation, overt polluters and overzealous depolluters, overburdensome bureaucracy and a dollar with cancer.

If there was a time when the most immediate threat to our nation came from overseas, that is not true now.

And the candidates of both parties had better address themselves to the most acute threats to national survival.

While shaking a fist in the face of Moscow may bring veterans' audiences to their feet cheering, that's a devious device for distracting the electorate.

While firing up our war machine may temporarily alleviate unemployment, that's a cop-out substitute for sound fiscal policy and the guts to implement it.

The Soviet discomfiture in Poland should re-remind both them and us that seeking domination of other nations is the way to weakness, not strength.

It bankrupted the Roman Empire, the British Empire and the French Empire and it is a real and present threat to both the Soviets and us.

Vietnam almost did us in. Vietnam and the price we paid in lives and drugs and domestic unrest and solvency shook our nation to its social and economic foundation.

Now while the Soviets are kept broke and busy for the next decades, let us - U.S. - elect some mind-our-own-business leaders who recognize the urgency of domestic housekeeping.

The Red Bear, 6,000 miles away is right now a lesser threat than the wolf at the door.

The Unelected

By Anthony Harrigan

The American people are focusing on the presidential and congressional elections. These are tremendously important, for the making and executing of our laws affects almost every aspect of our lives. We need to be rid of the lawmakers who would increase government control over the economy.

Unfortunately, there is a class of official that is entrenched in our system. I refer to the bureaucrat.

In a brilliant address at Hillsdale College, U.S. Rep. Dan Quayle of Indiana described this new class. "Out of three million civilian employees," he said, "the President can appoint only 2,000, and 500 of these are in the White House."

Congressman Quayle said, "the people have lost their economic and political freedoms because they have lost their government. Unelected bureaucrats make many more laws through rules and regulations than does the elected Congress. In any given year there are 15,000 rules and regulations adopted by federal agencies, whereas only 365 new laws are passed by the Congress."

Rep. Quayle performs a public service in focusing on the un-elected elite that rules. This elite exercises great power because liberal senators and representatives have allowed them to do so. The liberal powers-that-be in the Senate and the House have surrendered the rule-making power to the federal bureaucracy. They have abdicated their responsibility as lawmakers.

The first task, then, in disarming the bureaucrats is to replace the national legislators who have aided and abetted the power plays of the bureaucrats. Wholesale changes are needed in the Senate and House to end this extra-legal form of government that has emerged in this country in the past generation.

Congressman Quayle had other important things to say in his Ludwig von Mises lecture at Hillsdale, a college noted for its defense of freedom. He said, "We must reassert the capitalist system."

"We have drifted," he added, "and what we have now is not capitalism, but a strange perversion in which the government can and does step in and dictate the rules of the game. Business must always obey. Under these circumstances, business is never free to compete."

These comments again bring to mind the oppressive character of bureaucratic power. The EPA, OSHA, FTC, ICC, etc. - all the bureaucratic regulatory agencies - throttle competition as they restrict individual and corporate freedom. If these bureaucratic agencies had their way, business wouldn't have any freedom at all. Instead, business would be a creature of government.

The country is fortunate that it has outspoken critics of the bureaucracy such as Congressman Quayle. They are the hope of the nation as the American people struggle to regain their government from the unelected bureaucrats.

Press issues offbeat books

By MIKE HENDRICKS
Associated Press Writer
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Not many publishing houses would touch a book on the cobblestone landmarks in New York state, or the history of Welch's Grape Juice.

But the Syracuse University Press will. The non-profit publishing house, located just off campus, has put out books on those subjects in recent years to join their list ranging from the history of prohibition in northern New York and the role of the Iroquois Indians in the Revolution to the politics of water use in Egypt and how to deal with autistic children.

The press puts out 20 to 25 books a year, many of which are not expected to turn a profit and would have no chance of interesting a commercial publisher, according to Arpena Mesrobian, editor of the publishing house.

"Publishing is highly competitive," she said. "Commercial publishers select their books as much on sales potential as on the value of the material."

"Scholarly works are not appealing. The whole rationale behind a university press is to provide an outlet for scholarly work, otherwise we would have a censorship of the marketplace, a censorship that would be as real as any censorship."

One of the house's best sellers is "A Vanished World" by Anne Sneller, an account of her girlhood on a Cicero, N.Y., farm, written when she was in her 80s. It has sold 45,000 copies.

Another large seller was "A Teaching Method for Brain-Injured and Hyperactive Children" by William Cruickshank. It has been printed eight times in 11 years and is a classic in its field, press officials said.

"It's smart for a smaller publisher to have an identity," said Mrs. Mesrobian. "Large publishers can support a wide range of programs. Smaller publishers need to focus on a particular area they can do well in. We feel we can compete successfully with other publishers in our area."

The publishing niche carved out by Syracuse University Press includes New York state and Adirondack Mountain history, special education topics and the Middle East.

Publishing scholarly works is more difficult than just putting out a book, says Mrs. Mesrobian. Before a book can carry the house's imprint, it must be approved by a faculty committee.

"It requires far more than just the knowledge of the physical nature of how a book is put together. You must understand the subject matter, who the readers are, and what they are doing," she said.

"Just because we don't make a profit doesn't mean we should not have a solid operation." Sales have been increasing every year and reached the $400,000 mark this year for the first time in the publishing house's 37-year history.

While some profitable books help meet the expenses incurred by the books that do not return a profit, the Syracuse

Homemade pudding mix

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: There used to be a vanilla pudding mix sold at a chain of supermarkets, that was flavored with pure vanilla. But alas, it's no more. Nowadays all the vanilla pudding mixes I see in stores contain artificial flavoring and coloring. Do you have, among your copycat recipes, directions for making such a mix at home? I'd like to have it on hand so I could use real vanilla in it when I make it into pudding for my husband and myself. — TWOSOME.

DEAR TWOSOME: I also regret that the vanilla pudding mix flavored with pure vanilla extract is no longer available, because I, too, used to buy it. But your query came at the right time. When it arrived I remembered that the first chapter in "Pure and Simple" by Marian Burros (Berkley, $2.95) gives some recipes for "convenience foods" minus chemicals and preservatives. Sure enough, when I checked, I found a recipe for the pudding mix in the book. My adaptation of it follows.

I've used Marian Burros' proportions for making the mix. But because, like you, I love the flavor of pure vanilla, I've added it in making a batch of pudding mix. I think the addition helps mask the flavor of the nonfat dry milk in the mix.

HOME PUDDING MIX
3½ cups nonliquidized nonfat dry milk
¾ cup sugar
¾ cup cornstarch

In a large bowl thoroughly stir together the dry milk, sugar and cornstarch. Turn into a jar with a screw-top lid; cover tightly; store in the refrigerator. Before using, stir thoroughly. Makes about 5 cups.

To make Vanilla Pudding: In a 1-quart saucepan thoroughly stir together ½ cup of the Home Pudding Mix and 1 cup water. Stirring constantly over moderate heat, bring to a boil — mixture will bubble and pop when it boils — and boil for about 1 minute. Off heat, stir in ½ teaspoon butter and 1 teaspoon vanilla extract until butter melts. Pour into two individual serving dishes; chill to set. Makes two ½ cup servings.

Walter Smith observes 86th birthday

Walter Smith, a resident of Leisure Lodge in Pampa, recently celebrated his 86th birthday with the congregation of Hi-Land Christian Church. A special cake was presented and the traditional song, "Happy Birthday," was sung to honor Smith.

KEEPING WARM and saving energy are the orders of the day, and sweating legs in attractive colors and styles helps to do the job. At left, tights in soft Orlon and nylon patterned in cables appear in fall's newest colors; at right, anklets on top of knee-highs is one way to show off new legwear dressed up with horizontal stripes, chevrons, ribs, bright heels, toes and cuffs — all on grounds of soft, fuzzy sweatshirt gray of Orlon-cotton-polyester. DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What does a healthy, normal, 25-year-old girl do when no man will date her because she looks like she's "for girls"?

I'm tall, slim, athletic and a college graduate. I keep my hair short because it's more convenient for tennis, swimming and sailing. I wear very little makeup and prefer tailored clothes. Get the picture? I love fun, but I'm not asked for dates, so I do what other dateless girls do — I go out with the girls.

Several people have told me that guys think I prefer girls. Nothing could be further from the truth, but I can't wear a sign to that effect.

So tell me, Dear Abby, how can I let a man know I am a warm, loving female who would be thrilled to death to have a date, a love affair and eventually a husband, without throwing myself at a guy's feet?

FRUSTRATED IN SANTA MONICA

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Don't throw yourself at a guy's feet, but do pitch a little. Come up with tickets to something or an invitation somewhere, and invite a man to be your escort. If you strike out, don't be discouraged; try again with another man. God helps those who help themselves.

interrupt with, "May I get you a chair?" She doesn't take the hint, but instead says, "No, I'll only be another minute." Abby, by that time I am really ticked off. Had you been in my shoes, what would you have done?

CHICAGOAN

DEAR CHICAGOAN: I'd have put my shoes under my table.

DEAR ABBY: Re: PROBLEM ROCKER: This may not help the lady with the 19-year-old son who still rocks in his bed, as this may have become some kind of habit. I had a "rocker" baby, and because I noticed that he panted when climbing a set of stairs, I took him to the doctor. The doctor asked me if my child rocked in bed. The diagnosis was that he had enlarged adenoids, and the rocking moved these adenoids and allowed him to breathe better.

After having the adenoids removed (age 13 months), he never rocked in bed again. Maybe this will help some new mothers.

M.L.R. IN HOUSTON

DEAR M.L.R.: I heard from a surprising number of "rockers." Many claimed they were cured by meditation, vitamins, prayer, hypnosis and marriage. Readers of all ages, men and women, reported that they're still rocking, and other than an occasional poke in the ribs from a sleepy spouse, it hasn't hurt them.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your multiple letters column on barking dogs, I suggest to all those frustrated readers, FIGHT BACK! Raise roosters! Sincerely, JONATHAN M. WILLIAMS, M.D.

Rare pieces shown in exhibit

By DAN HALL
Associated Press Writer
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The frogs in a walnut-sized skull and the eater of bad dreams once had about the same significance for 18th-century Japanese merchants as a gold watch fob has today in New York.

They were exquisite symbols of wealth, hung from merchants' kimonos.

But in a new display at Yale Art Gallery, the 133 tiny, intricate netsuke — or sash toggles — are treated as "miniature sculptures." They offer a glimpse of Japan that few Westerners ever saw. Many of the netsuke have never been on public display before.

Netsuke, Japanese for "root to hang," developed in the early 1600s as decorated pieces of apparel, usually wood or ivory, each used to counterbalance a pouch or other container hanging by a cord from the sash of the wearer's pocketless kimono.

The netsuke became a mark of wealth because of rigid laws against wearing gaudy gold and silver.

One fanciful figure, the badger-man, illustrates the Japanese legend that badgers and foxes were able to assume human forms in the moonlight and rob travelers.

The small 19th-century wood carving shows an eerie form in a priest's habit with a badger's paws and face on the left side but a human foot and facial features on the right side. "Some Japanese would place the baku, an eater of bad dreams, beside their head at night to ward off nightmares," said Mary Gardner Neill, gallery curator of Oriental art.

Two of the fantastic, fanged, dog-like creatures are among the exhibit of "Real and Imaginary Beings," which came from the outstanding netsuke collection of Joseph and Edith Kurstin of Miami and Washington, D.C.

The exhibit brings together some of the finest netsuke of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries, Mrs. Neill said.

"We're trying to show them in a way that people can appreciate as miniature sculptures," she said.

Low lighting gives an air of mystery to the room. Overhead lighting picks out each piece sitting on its individual pedestal.

The rays revealed things that startle the unwary viewer: an octopus peering from the bottom of a thimble-sized jar; a detailed spider clinging to closely spaced bars inside a miniature cage.

As the centuries passed, the netsuke became smaller and more refined, but the lack of size diminished their artistic standing among the Japanese, Mrs. Neill said.

When Westerners were admitted to Japan in the mid-19th century, bringing with them Western dress, netsuke lost their usefulness but began to gain in appreciation.

Today they are collected for their beauty and their rapidly growing monetary value, said Mrs. Neill, who with Japanese art specialist Barbra Teri Okada mounted the exhibit and also prepared a catalogue of the pieces on display.

Lovett Library to sponsor 'Story Time'

Friends of the Lovett Memorial Library are brushing up on their story-telling techniques in anticipation of "Library Story Time."

The weekly story hour for four- and five-year-olds begins its seventh year Thursday. Along with the stories there will be puppets, songs, activities and an occasional short film, according to Margaret Nadler, chairman of the Friends-sponsored project.

"Library Story Time" will meet at the library every Thursday from 10 to 10:30 a.m. and from 3 to 3:30 p.m.

Parents who wish their children to attend these free sessions may register now at the library. Enrollment for each session is limited to 30 children.

Once you dive in, it will all go well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're very lucky today when teamed up with others, provided they have your high standards. Avoid those who don't. They spell trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In making important decisions today, be careful you're not just seeing things as you'd like them to be. Without your rose-colored glasses, success will still be yours.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The only thing that can stop you today is indifference to your work. If you get past that, you're in for an extremely pleasant surprise.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're quite lucky today, but not with others' possessions. Do things with them, but let them maintain control over their own belongings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be advised not to bank too much on advice today. You might be better off to figure things out yourself as each step unfolds.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Yesterday you were quite secure in your thinking, but today a little confusion may set in concerning your work. A pal will be there to put you on the right track.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you're feeling rich today it may be just an illusion, so don't be too quick to run off and buy any frivolous items. Think about your family first.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Stay in control and don't let involvements with acquaintances lead you down the garden path today. You can still get what you want by buying a little time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'd be wise today to keep your successes or lucky breaks to yourself. Jealous listeners may undermine or even do something to reverse your good fortune.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't let self-doubts over whether you can handle something big that has been offered you stop you from tackling it.

Steelers roll over Oilers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Houston Oilers may be back here this season. They may get another chance to kick in that door. Ken Stabler may make the difference.

But maybes aside, the Pittsburgh Steelers beat Houston 31-17 Sunday to open the National Football League season and launch their drive for a fifth Super Bowl title.

"The more we win, the more spoiled we get. We don't want to accept anything else," cornerback Mel Blount said after he grabbed two of the five interceptions thrown by Stabler.

"I didn't play as well as I'll be playing in four or five weeks, but we got it done," said quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who helped the Steelers to a 17-0 lead, watched the Oilers rally for a tie, and then broke the game open in the last quarter with a touchdown sneak and a 50-yard scoring pass to John Stallworth on a broken play.

"The Steelers are a great football team," said Oiler Coach "Bum" Phillips. "But I always had a lot of respect for Pastorini. It was a surprise to me that they traded him."

For two years running, the Steelers have finished just ahead of the Oilers in the American Conference Central Division. Each year, the Oilers have made it to the AFC title game as a wild-card and lost in Pittsburgh.

After last year's title game loss here, Phillips pledged his team would "kick the door in" this time around. And the Oilers acquired Stabler in a trade that sent Dan Pastorini to the Oakland Raiders.

After Sunday's victory, Joe Greene of the Steelers downplayed the "door" business.

"That's a hot potato that's being tossed around by you guys who don't block and tackle," he told reporters.

"I don't have my losin' speech prepared," said Phillips. "It's one game. There's 15 to go."

A year ago, the Oilers lost 38-7 here the second week of the season. The Steelers intercepted five passes that day, three off Pastorini and two off Gifford Nielsen.

Stabler threw all five interceptions Sunday, while hitting 24 of 43 attempts. Oiler receivers dropped several balls, and tipped three of the five interceptions.

"We just didn't play well. We didn't execute and we got beat," said Stabler.

But beyond the dropped passes and tipped balls, the Steelers suggested Stabler was forcing some passes.

"We had seen in the films that Stabler will throw the ball even if you've got the man covering it," said Blount.

Does Stabler give the Oilers something they lacked with Pastorini, who threw two touchdown passes Sunday as Oakland beat Kansas City?

"I'm not saying that. You'll have to ask Bum Phillips that," Blount said. "But I always had a lot of respect for Pastorini. It was a surprise to me that they traded him."

The Steelers took a 17-0 first-quarter lead on a 29-yard touchdown reception by running back Sidney Thornton, a 1-yard run by Franco Harris and a 27-yard field goal by Matt "Mr. X" Blair, set up by Blount's second interception.

The second quarter was scoreless. But the Oilers, who didn't cross midfield the first half, erupted for 17 points in the third quarter.

"We got off to such an early, quick start. At halftime there was kind of a downer for our guys," said Steeler Coach Chuck Noll.

Toni Fritsch booted a 31-yard field goal on Houston's opening series of the second half. Later, Oiler fullback Earl Campbell heaved a pass to Billy Johnson for a 57-yard touchdown.

"It was one of those things we had worked on three or four days in practice," said Campbell.

It was Campbell's first pass as a pro, but the Steelers halted his string of seven straight 100-yard rushing games, which ties the NFL record also held by O.J. Simpson. Campbell had 57 yards on just 13 carries.

After Pittsburgh's Theo Bell fumbled the ensuing kickoff, Houston drove 21 yards for a game-tying touchdown by Campbell.

The Steeler offense was dormant in the third period, except for the fact that Harris got the yards he needed to move past Jim Taylor into third place on the all-time NFL rushing list.

With the score 17-17, the Oilers punted on fourth and inches at the Pittsburgh 44-yard line late in the third period.

Pittsburgh followed with an 80-yard touchdown drive that ended with a sneak by Bradshaw. A series later, Bradshaw scrambled and threw a 50-yard touchdown pass to Stallworth. Oiler safety Greg Stenrick tipped the ball but Stallworth caught it.

Later, Steeler safety Don Shell made his second interception to seal the victory.

"We both have games next week," said Steeler linebacker Jack Lambert. "It's important we don't get overconfident. And if Houston lets this game bother them, they're in trouble."

The Steelers visit Baltimore next Sunday; Houston visits Cleveland Monday night.

On Dec. 4, the Steelers play in Houston. "They're not going to beat us in Houston," said Stenrick. "I believe that."

Medich reaches century mark

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers gave Manager George Bamberger an error-tainted retirement sendoff in the form of career victory No. 100 for Texas Ranger pitcher Doc Medich.

Having announced last week he had decided not to wait until the end of the season to return to his home in Redington Beach, Fla., Bamberger waved Sunday to a cheering crowd and remarked later to sportswriters: "Now, instead of cursing the umpires, I have to cuss the fish."

Medich (12-9) got ninth-inning relief assistance from John Henry Johnson to secure his 100th victory in 11 major-league seasons, a 7-2 decision for Texas.

Bamberger, 55, saying he would be on a plane Monday for Florida, is retiring from managing, but is to stay with the Brewers as a scout, adviser and pitching instructor.

He has insisted he is quitting not because of health — having missed much of the season recovering from heart bypass surgery, nor because his team had slumped to fifth place in the American League's East Division.

Bamberger said Sunday it "is no big deal" to be stepping down from a business which is familiar with personnel turnovers.

"I was just smarter," he joked. "I quit before I got fired."

"It has been a strange year all the way through," he reminisced. "We've been erratic."

He cited a seven-game losing streak as "the roughest streak we had in three years," followed by a five-game winning streak, then by a loss of two of the three games in the weekend Rangers series.

"My career has had its ups and downs," the former Baltimore pitching coach said.

Quarterbacks win Sunday's NFL battles

By the Associated Press
 Pro football had its opening during baseball's summerfest, so it's fair to steal this basic from the national pastime: After the first week of the season, the pitchers (quarterbacks) are way ahead of the hitters (cornerbacks).

Translated into Xs and Os, that means quarterbacks, an endangered species that did a lot of limping around last season, easily won Sunday's battle with cornerbacks, those aggressive head-hunters who try to keep up with the Joneses of the National Football League by running backwards.

—Phil Simms, the second-year quarterback of the New York Giants, tossed five touchdown passes — four to Earnest Gray — in victimizing the St. Louis Cardinals 41-35.

—Dan Fouts, who set a single-season record with 4,082 passing yards in 1979, fired four TD strikes, two of them to John Jefferson, as the San Diego Chargers crushed the Seattle Seahawks 34-13.

—Tommy Kramer, emerging from Fran Tarkenton's long shadow, completed 30 of 42 passes for 395 yards and three touchdowns, rallying the Minnesota Vikings past the Atlanta Falcons 24-23.

—Terry Bradshaw ran for one touchdown and passed for two others in leading the Pittsburgh Steelers over the Houston Oilers 31-17.

—Ron Jaworski's three touchdown passes carried the Philadelphia Eagles past the Denver Broncos 27-6.

—Bert Jones, who missed all but seven games of the past two seasons with a damaged shoulder, ran for one touchdown and passed for 257 yards in leading the Baltimore Colts past the New York Jets 17-14.

—Dan Pastorini, playing his first regular season game for Oakland after being traded by Houston for Ken Stabler, tossed two TD passes to Bob Chandler and set up another score with a 52-yard bomb as the Raiders downed the Kansas City Chiefs 27-14.

—Steve Grogan of New England threw for three touchdowns in the Patriots' 34-17 triumph over the Cleveland Browns.

—Doug Williams hit tight end Jimmie Giles with a pair of TD passes, the second one coming with 1:47 left, to give the Tampa Bay Buccaneers a 17-12 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals.

In other games, rookie running back Billy Sims rushed for three touchdowns and 153 yards in pacing the upstart Detroit Lions over the Los Angeles Rams 41-20; Chester Marcol picked up his own blocked field goal try and scampered 25 yards for a touchdown six minutes into overtime to give the needy Green Bay Packers a 12-6 triumph over the Chicago Bears; the Buffalo Bills beat Miami 17-7, their first triumph over the Dolphins since November, 1969 — an NFL record 20 games; and Ray Werschling booted a 37-yard field goal with less than four minutes remaining, giving the San Francisco 49ers a 26-23 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

The Washington Redskins host the Dallas Cowboys tonight to round out the first week of the NFL season.

Giants 41, Cardinals 35
 "I think I went to the right passes with the right coverage every play," said the Giants' Simms, who was an effective pass partner to Gray, who caught a club record four TD passes. Gray finished with nine receptions for 174 yards.

The Giants, who scored just 36 points in losing three of four preseason games, beat the Cardinals in St. Louis for the first time since 1972. Chargers 34, Seahawks 13

San Diego, which rode Fouts' strong arm to the playoffs last year, bounced back from a losing preseason game against Seattle. "We showed a lot of our offense today, but we didn't show all of it," said Fouts. The pass-happy Chargers gained 224 yards in the air and ran for 197.

Vikings 24, Falcons 23
 Rick Danmeier's 27-yard field goal with 25 seconds to play was the game-winner, but the Vikings' Kramer was the offensive hero, taking Minnesota 69 yards in less than three minutes in the final drive.

"That's Fran Tarkenton still playing," said Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski, who passed for 265 yards for the Falcons. Steelers 31, Oilers 17
 "Same Houston-Pittsburgh rivalry," said Bradshaw, who broke a 17-17 tie with a 1-yard TD dive. "No secrets. No surprises." The final score was no surprise, either. As good as the Oilers have been the past couple of seasons, the Steelers have been better, winning the last two Super Bowls and four of the last six.

The Oilers, whose quarterback, Stabler, was intercepted five times, rallied from a 17-0 first-quarter deficit. "Y'all caught me off guard," Houston Coach Bum Phillips said. "I didn't have my losing speech prepared." Packers 12, Bears 6, OT

With some citizens in Green Bay howling for Coach Bart Starr's scalp after a winless preseason, placekicker Marcol came to the rescue with his first TD in nine NFL seasons. "It was the thrill of my life," said Marcol. "But I'm sure it won't sink in until tomorrow, because it was one we really needed to win." Lions 41, Rams 20

For finishing last in 1979, the Lions picked Sims, from Oklahoma, as the NFL's first draft choice. He paid off immediately with TD runs of 10, 1 and 41 yards and two pass receptions for 64 yards, doing it all against a Ram defense that took Los Angeles to the Super Bowl last season but took the day off Sunday.

"We played a lousy football game," said Ram Coach Ray Malavasi. "We weren't ready to play. The defense wasn't ready to play." Bills 17, Dolphins 7

"It's my greatest feeling," said veteran guard Reggie McKenzie after the Bills finally beat the Dolphins. Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson passed 4 yards to Roosevelt Leaks with 3:47 left in the game to give the Bills a 10-7 lead, prompting Ferguson to kiss the ground in appreciation.

Eagles 27, Broncos 6
 Jaworski and the Philadelphia's stifling defense, which picked up five quarterback sacks, were too much for Denver and quarterback Matt Robinson, playing his first regular season

Booster Club to meet tonight

Harvester Booster Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. tonight at Pampa High School. The meeting will be over before the Dallas-Washington kickoff.

Donkey ballgame at Mobeetie

Mobeetie Booster Club is sponsoring a donkey softball game at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the school ball field.

High school students will take on their fathers or anyone else interested in playing in the game.

Admission will be two dollars for adults and one dollar for students 12 years old and under.

Proceeds will be used to purchase livestock projects from Mobeetie FFA and 4-H youth in the spring.

'Lou Grant' big winner in star-barren Emmys

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The stars didn't come out for the 32nd annual Emmy Awards. Ed Asner watched from home as his "Lou Grant" chalked up the most wins, and more than 80 stars boycotted the presentation to support an actors' strike against movie studios and television networks.

The Television Academy Awards presentation on NBC was bereft of acceptance speeches, glamour and excitement as Emmy winners were announced Sunday.

A few variety stars — such as Steve Allen and Dick Clark, who stepped in as hosts at the last minute — showed up to keep the program going. Allen quipped, "We've got a star-studded audience — three stars and 14 studs."

The only actor who appeared to accept his award was Powers Boothe, named best lead actor in a limited series for CBS' "Guyana Tragedy: The Story of Jim Jones."

"This is either the most courageous moment of my career or the stupidest," said Boothe. He said he supported both the Television Academy and the actors' stand.

The Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists walked off their jobs July 21 in a dispute over money for pay television and sales of video cassettes.

CBS was the night's numerical winner, with 13 Emmys, followed by ABC with 10 and NBC with five. The rest went to PBS or syndicated shows.

"Lou Grant," CBS' series on life at a Los Angeles newspaper, was named best dramatic series and picked up five additional awards — for Asner as best actor in a drama series, absent Nancy Marchand as best supporting actress, writer Seth Freeman, director Roger Young and in the technical area of music composition.

ABC's "Baryshnikov on Broadway" got four awards. Three went to ABC's "Taxi" and NBC's "Moviola" and "The Miracle Worker." Some of the awards, in technical categories, were announced Saturday.

It was the fifth Emmy for Asner, who plays the irascible city editor, and his second for best lead in "Lou Grant." The other three were supporting awards for "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

"I'm delighted with the success of the show," Asner said later. "I'm sorry we're not there, but hopefully we can contribute a little bit by not being there. It will call attention to the fact that we have a strike to take care of."

Johnny Carson, voted the academy's Governor's Award, also stayed home, sending John McMahon, president of his production company, to pick up the statuette.

Patty Duke Astin was named best lead actress in a limited series for her role as Anne Sullivan in NBC's "The Miracle Worker," which was named best drama or comedy special. She had won a supporting Oscar in 1962 for playing Helen Keller in the movie version.

Britain's "Edward & Mr. Simpson" was named the outstanding limited series.

Barbara Bel Geddes, Miss Ellie on CBS' "Dallas," was named best lead actress in a dramatic series. Richard Mulligan, the spaced-out Burt of ABC's "Soap," and Cathryn Damon, his suffering wife, were named best lead actor and actress in a comedy series.

Elderly tenants fight conversion to condos

By CLAIRE SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Irish immigrant Oliver Plunkett came to Milwaukee 10 years ago, selling Dale Carnegie courses on how to win friends. He has precious few these days at the Knickerbocker on the Lake Hotel.

Plunkett, now a real estate developer worth more than $11 million, owns the Knickerbocker, many of whose residents are elderly. In July, some of those residents got 30-day eviction notices — Plunkett planned to turn the graceful East Side hotel into condominiums.

"We may have 90-year-old bodies, but we've got 40-year-old minds and we're going to stop it," 65-year-old Esther Jepson says from her wheelchair.

Miss Jepson heads a committee of about 100 permanent hotel residents who want to halt the building's conversion. But preliminary construction began last week, tenants' vows notwithstanding.

The fight began when tenants on the sixth floor, to be converted first, received the eviction notices. Plunkett later verbally retracted the notices and told residents they would merely be moved to another apartment while their units are being refurbished.

He also told residents they could continue renting the apartments and would be given first option to buy the condominium units, as required by state law.

But residents contend Plunkett has failed to put his promises in writing. Many say if even if they stay on, they fear rent increases will force them out.

Residents of the "The only real estate most of us plan to acquire is a cemetery lot," Knickerbocker resident Andrea Swift said in a letter to the editor of The Milwaukee Journal.

Daily newspaper and television stories have thrust Plunkett into the limelight.

At a recent Mass at a downtown church, when a priest criticized the condominium development, Plunkett strode out of his pew, faced the congregation and defended his plans.

Plunkett, who still speaks with a faint brogue, defends the conversion as constructive rather than destructive. He says the 52-year-old building needs repairs and that selling apartments as condominiums will help finance the estimated $1 million renovation.

"I'm not really all that interested in making money," he said. "I want the accomplishment of developing the East Side, of making it what it used to be. When I look back down the beach at where I've been, I want to be able to see footprints."

He's already made some footprints. Although Knickerbocker residents and sympathizers regard Plunkett as a villain, others see him as the classic rags-to-riches hero.

His investments on the East Side include two dozen commercial, office and apartment buildings and condominiums. He bought the Knickerbocker in 1978.

He and his wife, Monica, who have eight children ranging in age from 3 to 20, also own a resort hotel on a seven-acre island just off St. Croix in the U.S. Virgin Islands.

Knickerbocker residents, buoyed by offers of free legal aid and support of local East Side churches, are threatening legal action to halt the conversion.

They argue the conversion will destroy the character of the Knickerbocker as a residential hotel for the elderly.

"When Mr. Plunkett bought the Knickerbocker Hotel, he also bought a particular concept of hotel life — a residential hotel for the elderly," said the Rev. James Leech, dean of the All Saints' Episcopal Cathedral.

Leech said the conversion plan has affected the physical and mental health of some of his parishioners who live at the hotel.

Names in the News

LONDON (AP) — The critics have branded it "Macflop" and "Macedath," but that hasn't deterred fans from flocking to see Peter O'Toole's performance in Shakespeare's "Macbeth" at London's Old Vic theater.

"People were hammering at the doors, shouting for tickets. It was bedlam," said a theater security guard. "All the phones are ringing all day long and all through the night as well."

Timothy West, the theater's artistic director, publicly blamed O'Toole for the adverse critical reaction in which one critic decried the production as "the most ridiculous thing I have ever seen on the London stage." West said the 48-year-old Irishman had demanded total control over the production and ignored all advice.

The Old Vic box office staff said Saturday that 35,000 of the 38,000 seats available for advance booking have been sold. There also has been a rush for seats at theaters where the production will tour.

"Macbeth" marks O'Toole's return to the London stage after a 15-year absence during which he worked mostly in films. He is best known for his leading role in the 1962 film "Lawrence of Arabia."

PORTO SANTO STEFANO, Italy (AP) — For Italian high society, it was a major social event when the 30-year-old son of movie producer Carlo Ponti exchanged wedding vows with Priscilla Rattazzi, niece of Fiat auto chairman Giovanni Agnelli.

The wedding, uniting two of Italy's most prominent families, blended politics, entertainment and commercial power. The 23-year-old bride is the daughter of Susanna Agnelli, mayor of this port city and sister of the auto tycoon. The groom, Alessandro Ponti, is the son of Ponti and his first wife, Iola Fiastri.

Ponti and his present wife, actress Sophia Loren, did not attend Sunday's ceremony. Ponti, convicted in absentia early this year by an Italian court of illegally transferring $11 million out of the country, has been living in self-imposed exile. Both he and Miss Loren are now French citizens.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Five years after threatening then-President Gerald R. Ford's life, Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme says she "was not determined to kill the guy, obviously, because I didn't do it."

The member of the Charles Manson "family," imprisoned at the Federal Correctional Institute for Women at Alderson, W.Va., spoke about the 1975 incident in an interview with the Sacramento Bee, published Sunday.

"I was fed up. With lots and lots of things," Ms. Fromme said. "Here's this guy coming in to Sacramento, smiling like everything's all right with the world, and we got all these problems over here."

Oil firm eyes Dallas move

DALLAS (AP) — A move from New York City to Dallas may be in the making for a top money-making oil company with more than 60 foreign operations, according to a published report.

In a copyright article in Sunday's editions, the Dallas Times Herald quoted sources as saying officials of Caltex Petroleum Corp. have been flown to Dallas in recent weeks on highly secretive trips.

If Caltex moved to Dallas, city officials say it would be the city's largest corporation in terms of revenues and would bring immeasurable international prestige to the growing area.

Caltex, co-owned by Standard Oil Co. of California and Texaco Inc., reported revenues of $14.6 billion in 1979, according to company officials.

Caltex's revenues were twice the combined revenues of Diamond Shamrock and American Airlines, Dallas's two biggest companies, the newspaper reported.

The executives, many of whom only gave their first name or never identified what company they worked for, re-established ties with contacts in this Texas city after remaining silent for more than a year when rumors of a move first surfaced, the paper reported.

Caltex officials, however, would neither confirm or deny reports that they are considering a move to the Dallas area, according to the Times Herald.

Miss America: 'It's a whole new world'

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Susan Powell, Miss America 1981, is stepping into a new world — one bound to affect the rest of her life, former Miss America and Miss Oklahoma Jane Jayroe said Sunday.

"In a manner of seconds, your life changes drastically," said Miss Jayroe, who was crowned Miss America in 1967. "You're in a different place in terms of friends and relationships for a whole year."

Miss Jayroe, from Laverne, was the second Miss America from Oklahoma. She currently works for a Fort Worth television station. The late Norma Smallwood Gilcrease Bruce, of Tulsa, won the title in 1926.

Miss Jayroe said she watched this year's show at home, as she does every year, and she was glad to see the title return to Oklahoma.

"I'm thrilled," she said. Miss Jayroe and the new Miss America both attended Oklahoma City University.

During her reign, Miss Jayroe traveled an estimated 350,000 miles by plane and private chauffeured limousine. She visited 40 states and nine countries, including Vietnam. She also earned $70,000 in cash and scholarships, through personal appearances, endorsements and performing.

The entire year was hectic — and lonely.

"I missed my friends horribly that year," she said. "You're never in one place long enough to make real friends. You're in one town one day, then you're off somewhere else the next day."

Miss Jayroe said she thinks Susan Powell's vocal music training will help.

"I think Susan will do terrific," she said. "She has had the physical and emotional training which requires a great deal of self discipline. She is used to scheduling her time and pacing herself physically."
