Lawlessness Overtaking USA

Nation To Eye Pacific

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Apollo 12's astronauts aimed for a Pacific Ocean splashdown this afternoon, bringing home ideas of how man can work successfully on the moon.

The fiery re-entry trip through earth's atmosphere was to begin at 3:44 p.m. EST when the spacecraft strikes the first thin wisps of air 400,000 feet over Australia.

"It's something that's been done over and over again," said John P. Mayer, head of mission planning for the space agency. "We feel rather confident."

But he admitted "it's always a critical time of the mission and never over until the parachutes open."

The parachutes—orange and white, 83 feet across—are the final phase of the 1,437-mile braking maneuver that slows the Apollo from 24,500 miles per hour to a gentle plip into the ocean at 22 miles per hour.

Informal Conference
Charles "Pete" Conrad, Alan L. Bean and Richard F. Gordon held an informal news conference Sunday during their final television show from space. Ground controllers radioed questions from reporters.

The astronauts were asked what they would do different if they were planning the mission now.

"I think we'd work over all the tools and the tool carrier and the bags," Conrad said. All three items gave Conrad and Bean some problems during their two moon walks.

"I think it (the tool system) was very good and I think it operated very well since we'd never been there before and attempted to do that kind of work," he said. "Now that we've done it I think we can make some improvements on it."

Geologist Needed
Conrad said he "certainly" thought a geologist should be included in a moon landing crew, but the transportation system needed to be simplified somewhat by practice.

"I'll tell you one thing, however, it took every bit of knowledge I had getting that baby down," Conrad said.

But one on the surface, "there's no doubt that a geologist can do a better job than I can—I'm not a geologist."

Conrad suggested longer moonwalks, pointing out he and Bean had about two hours worth of supplies left at the end of their second walk.

Army Orders Investigation Of 'Massacre'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Army today ordered a special investigation to determine whether the alleged 1968 massacre by American G.I.'s of South Vietnamese civilians was hushed up at the time.

Lt. Gen. William R. Peers was appointed to head the inquiry.

Peers, chief of reserves on the Army general staff, was ordered to "explore the nature and the scope of the original Army investigation of the so-called My Lai incident north-east of Quang Ngai city in Vietnam on March 16, 1968."

Pall Of Fear Increases

WASHINGTON (UPI)—government commission unless American anticrime measures will turn into an armed where citizens will not walk the streets at night, families will live in "fortified cells."

The National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence said crimes of violence and the resulting pall of fear will continue to increase in this country unless immediate steps are taken to upgrade the system of justice and to reduce the incentive to commit crimes.

The commission said that, "lacking effective public action," this is bleak future for American cities.

Central business districts will be "partially protected" during the daytime by heavy police patrols when substantial numbers of people are on the streets and shopping. But they will be largely deserted at night except for police patrols.

Upper-middle and high-income families living in prime locations within cities will exist in "fortified cells" in high rise apartments and residential compounds protected by private guards and security devices.

In the suburbs, ownership of guns will be "almost universal" and homes "will be fortified by an array of devices from window grills to electronic surveillance equipment." In close-in suburbs, armed citizen volunteers will supplement police patrols.

"Extreme left-wing and right-wing groups will have tremendous armories of weapons which could be brought into play with or without any provocation."

High speed patrolled expressways will be "sanitized corridors connecting safe areas. Armed guards will—"ride shotgun" on public transportation.

Slums will be "places of terror with widespread crime, perhaps entirely out of police control during nighttime hours." Armed guards will protect all public facilities such as schools and playgrounds in these areas.

Immediate anticrime action is needed, the commission said, including a doubling of the nation's commitment to the system of criminal justice.

Texans Warned Not To Expect 'Free Prizes'

AUSTIN (UPI)—Attorney General Crawford Martin today urged Texans to be wary of "free prizes" which require purchase of a service policy or another related item.

"The service policy or other item has probably been overpriced to offset the price of the 'prize,'" Martin said.

Martin said sewing machines and stereos are commonly sold through such deceptive practices.

"The customer should check the total price he is paying for all of the merchandise he is receiving to see whether or not he is really getting a bargain," Martin said. "The customer may well find that he ends up paying an exorbitant price for the so-called 'prize.'"

Inflation Battle Will Take Time

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy predicts it will be a long time before interest rates fall back to the pre-inflation levels of three or four years ago.

But it will not take a recession, Kennedy said, to produce lower interest rates or a lessening of any of the other inflationary ailments.

Kennedy, in a UPI "Washington Window" interview, said he could not offer a date when the Nixon administration's battle against inflation will be won. But when that time finally does come, he said, interest rates should begin to fall.

He was asked if the day of the 5½ per cent mortgage was gone forever.

"Forever is a long time," he said, "and I would say that it would not be gone forever. I think it will be a long time before they are back in that range."

Kennedy said he did not foresee a recession because "our program is a gradual program of control of inflation which will bring an orderly adjustment in conditions, and we have so much basic strength in our economy.

"I don't look for any real downturn," he added. "We may have a temporary period of adjustment."

"In any period of control or in any period where you're reducing demand you have adjustments and I think that there will be some adjustments necessary and will take place," he said. "I don't think there'll be serious unemployment. I think it can be done without that."

Tom Rose

Death Takes Former Mayor Of Pampa

Tom Rose, 51, of Canyon, former Pampa mayor and a long-time resident, died unexpectedly today in St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, where he had been a patient for a short time.

Services are pending with Duenkel Funeral Home.

Rose owned a motor company here until moving to Canyon three years ago, where he formed a Country Club.

Born Jan. 15, 1918 in Chillicothe, he moved to Pampa with his parents in 1921. He served as mayor of Pampa from 1953 to 1955; was a member of First Baptist Church; Pampa Masonic Lodge No. 966; and was active in Chamber of Commerce programs.

Survivors are his wife, Harlean; one son, Tommy, a sophomore at West Texas State University; a brother, Rex of Pampa; his stepmother, Mrs. Leora Rose, also of Pampa; two uncles, Bonnie W. Rose, Pampa and Bob Rose, Lubbock.

Third Session Of SALT Talks Continues In Veil Of Secrecy

HELSINKI (UPI)—U.S. and Soviet negotiators today held their third working session on how to limit strategic nuclear weapons. A Moscow — Tass report placed the blame for a nuclear arms race on so-called imperialist nations.

The session at the U.S. embassy lasted two hours, the longest yet. The next meeting was scheduled for 11 a.m. Wednesday at the Soviet embassy.

Sticking to their agreement to maintain complete secrecy, neither side revealed any details about today's encounter in their preliminary round of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT).

In a report on the resumption of the talks, the Soviet news agency Tass said, "the continuation of the arms race, which is imposed by imperialist states, harbors the danger of a world thermonuclear war with innumerable casualties it would bring to mankind."

Conference sources said the preliminary SALT talks may last through this week and next before recessing for Christmas. Full-scale negotiations would then begin in January or February, they said, on the basis of ground rules worked out during this preliminary phase.

One of the most pressing issues in the talks is the need for a moratorium on testing the new multiple warhead missiles, according to the sources.

They said the two nations must agree within a matter of months on such a moratorium if deployment of the missiles is to be prevented. Deployment could come by the end of 1970.

The secret talks followed a three-day weekend recess in which both sides were understood to have sought further instructions from their respective governments in Washington and Moscow.

They were trying to complete arrangements for full-scale negotiations on possible measures to curb the nuclear arms race.

Among the items receiving top priority in the discussions is a possible freeze on tests of nuclear weapons with multiple warheads, called MIRVs for multiple, independently targeted re-entry vehicles.

The U.S. MIRVs have up to 10 warheads and their Soviet counterpart, the SS9, is said to have three warheads and an antimissile system that will enable it to avoid destruction by enemy missiles.

Soviets Add Long-Awaited 'Sig' To Treaty Banning Arms Spread

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Presidium of the Soviet Union's Supreme Soviet today ratified the treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons at a meeting attended by the ruling Politburo, Moscow radio reported in an English language broadcast.

The treaty, known as the Nonproliferation Treaty, was agreed to last year and has already been ratified by the U.S. Senate. West Germany has been one of the major holdouts in signing the accord.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko opened the session with a report on behalf of the Soviet government, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Ratification had been a foregone conclusion ever since the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union initialed the treaty on July 1, 1968.

However, the Soviet Union waited for what it considered a suitable moment before completing the ratification process.

With the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) off to an apparently satisfactory and business-like start in Helsinki, and the treaty awaiting only President Nixon's signature in Washington, the Soviets decided the time was ripe.

Assurances by new West German Chancellor Willy Brandt that he would seek to reverse previous policy and bring West Germany under the treaty provisions also were believed to have played a part in the Soviet decision to ratify

Husband Releases Hostages Following Tearful Plea From Estranged Wife

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI)—A young Bahamian, who held his mother-in-law and her mother hostage for about nine hours in a high-rise apartment, heeded his estranged wife's tearful plea today and surrendered without resistance.

Short, slender Albert Lewless, 22, was allowed to talk with his wife, Nancy, 22, for about five minutes before he was led off handcuffed to jail. Officers said he would be charged with assault with a deadly weapon and discharging a weapon in an occupied building.

A postyard employe and former crewman on a cruise liner, Lewless had taken Mrs. Mary Snyder, his wife's mother, and Mrs. H. Gillen, mother of Mrs. Snyder, hostage Sunday night following a quarrel with his wife. The couple was separated and a friend said Lewless was "very jealous" of his black-haired wife.

Lewless had defied police through the night and fired his 30 caliber rifle six times harmlessly into the doors and walls of the eighth-floor luxury apartment. Police said he had 20 rounds of ammunition, including armor-piercing bullets.

Police Lt. Roy J. Jason and several officers had slipped in through an adjoining apartment in the Royal Admiral apartment hotel and onto a common balcony where he could observe Lewless. He started once to shoot Lewless through the balcony window with a shotgun, but said Mrs. Snyder was too close to him.

Police had talked with Lewless by telephone through the night, and Mrs. Lewless talked with her husband several times, the last time for about 30 minutes. She broke down and sobbed, Jason said, and Lewless also cried. Lewless then agreed to surrender if he could meet with his wife.

Jason said Lewless had been drinking, but the "more he drank, the calmer he got."

Gregory Fahrion, a friend of the family, said Mrs. Lewless had been seeking a divorce. He said Lewless "has a very jealous nature."

City Officials In Austin For Gas Rate Talks

Three Pampa city officials were in Austin today representing the city's interests at the Texas Railroad Commission hearing on Pioneer Natural Gas Company's request for an increase in its gate rate charge.

The three are Mayor Milo Carlson, City Manager Charles Hill and City Attorney Bob Gordon.

Pampa joined the protest with approximately 50 of the 66 cities and towns that would be affected by the proposed gate rate increase from 28 to 34 cents in the gas company's West Texas system.

The gate rate is the rate charged by the utility to deliver gas to the city limits of communities involved.

Utility company officials say the gate rate would have no immediate effect on current rates being charged to domestic consumers inside the cities.

Pioneer has stated the increase is necessary because of increased costs of gas in the field, labor, materials and supplies, as well as higher interest rates.

City's protesting the increase until it is determined if the request is justified, retained legal counsel, an accounting firm, engineers and a rate consultant to represent them at today's hearing.

Pampa was one of the last cities to join in participation at the hearing. The city council voted at its meeting one week ago to send the three representatives to the hearing.

The Pampans at the hearing were due to return tonight and report on the hearing at tomorrow morning's regular meeting of the council.

Medal Of Honor To Three For Acts Of War Bravery

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Three Army sergeants who carried out their fight above and beyond the call of duty in Vietnam went to the White House today to receive the Medal of Honor.

President Nixon planned to drape the nation's highest military honor on: Sgt. Webster Anderson, 36, Winooski, Vt., who was with the 101st Airborne in 1967 when two North Vietnamese grenades exploded throwing him to the ground wounded. He continued to direct his men, unable to stand, and seized yet a third grenade tossed into his position, only to be wounded again when he tried to hurl it away.

Sgt. Nicky D. Bacon, 23, Cadaway, Ark., who was a squad leader with the American Division in 1968 when his company came under attack. Bacon destroyed a bunker with grenades and led a single-handed assault on a machine gun crew. He later took control of another platoon, killing four Communist soldiers and silencing an antitank gun.

Sgt. Paul R. Lambers, Holland, Mich., who was with the 25th Infantry Division when his platoon leader was seriously wounded by a Viet Cong attack. Lambers helped repair a recoilless rifle, directed fire point-blank at the attackers and then single handedly repulsed the attack by exploding mines and throwing grenades, killing nine Viet Cong.

Massacre Claim Allegedly For Viets' Profit

DA NANG, Vietnam (UPI)—A South Vietnamese general said today villagers may have deliberately exaggerated the number of civilians slain in the alleged Song My massacre in order to receive more money from the U.S. government.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, commander of government forces in South Vietnam's five northern provinces, said in a report to the government's high command in Saigon that civilian casualties at the village of Song My in Quang Ngai Province were caused by U.S. air and artillery strikes in an "operational accident."

Villagers of Song My, 318 miles northeast of Saigon, have claimed American troops using automatic rifles and machine guns shot to death 300 to 600 civilians in March, 1968.

Lam said he believed villagers distorted the incident when they talked to reporters who visited the village this month. "Maybe the local people hope to receive some indemnification from the Americans so they have exaggerated the number of houses burned down and the number of persons killed," the South Vietnamese general said.

The U.S. government pays civilians for casualties and damage caused by American actions.

Grand Jury Hands Down 12 Indictments

Twelve indictments were handed down by the 31st District Court Grand Jury Friday. No trial dates were scheduled.

Bid For Freedom Nipped In Bud

ALTUS, Okla. (UPI)—Jesse Kennedy, 19, sawed through the bars of his Comanche, Tex., jail cell while a radio was turned up loud, but an alert patrolman took him back into custody Sunday.

Kennedy, convicted of burglary, was to sign extradition papers to return to Texas today.

An Oklahoma highway patrolman spotted a car with a burned out taillight near Altus early Sunday. He stopped the car to give the driver a warning.

The driver was Kennedy. His 17-year-old girl friend was with him.

The patrolman held the pair for a routine check and learned of Kennedy's escape.

His girl friend was charged with aiding and abetting the escape. She owned the car and was accused of supplying hacksaw blades.

Ohio St. 'Dropout' Bequeaths Money

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—A man who completed only three semester credit hours at Ohio State University has bequeathed the school $840,314, the second largest gift it ever has received.

William H. Dickinson died in 1950 and a trust in his name was created in 1951. He had decreed that after payments to certain persons the trust be terminated and the property be vested in Ohio State University for the college of medicine. The gift was in the form of preferred and common stock in 26 corporations.

The largest gift ever received by the university was $7 million, bequeathed by Col. Ralph D. Mershon, who died in 1952.

Army

(Continued From Page 17) Infantry Brigade. The conclusion then was that there was no reason for further examination of the details and no cause for disciplinary action.

The new investigation was announced jointly by Army Secretary Stanley R. Resor and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff.

Both emphasized that their action did not necessarily mean that they felt the original investigation and review were inadequate, but said this would be determined.

The Army said last weekend that Lt. William L. Calley, leader of a U.S. platoon at the time of the incident and who is now at Fort Benning, Ga., has been accused of "the premeditated murder of approximately 100 Vietnamese civilians."

The Army said Peers' investigation would be independent of another inquiry in progress since last April under the direction of the Army's Criminal Investigation Division.

Peers was in Vietnam at the time of the My Lai incident, but his command had nothing to do with that zone, which was under the Americal Division.

In Vietnam today, the commander of South Vietnamese forces in the five northernmost provinces, Lt. Gen. Huong Xuan Lam, said villagers who had told of 300 to 600 persons—men, women and children—being slain in the incident may have deliberately exaggerated the toll.

The general said he believed the natives distorted the incident after talking to reporters who visited them.

"Maybe the local people hope to receive some indemnification from the Americans, so they have exaggerated the number of houses burned down and the number of persons killed," he said.

The United States pays civilians for casualties and damage caused by American actions in South Vietnam.

Young Homemakers, Please Note!

For all the young homemakers who may try the News' version of Mrs. Rufe Jordan's fruit salad recipe... sugar and vinegar just won't thicken!

1/2 pint cream, whipped 2 c. Queen Anne cherries, pitted 2 c. pineapple tidbits 2 oranges, chopped 1 1/2 pound marshmallow Mix well and let set for 24 hours.

Tiniest Of Spanish 'Quints' Succumbs

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI)—Doctors said today the four surviving Castro quintuplets, born one month premature, are in good condition. The fifth infant died Sunday night from heart trouble.

Lino Castro weighed two pounds, three ounces at birth, the smallest of the five, and had breathing trouble from the moment he was born in nearby Tarrasa.

A medical bulletin said, "at 9 p.m., the baby had a heart stop and there was no possibility of reviving him."

His two-pound, four-ounce brother, Victor, also has had respiratory problems but doctors said he was improving. They also were keeping a close watch on Yolanda, Francisco, Jorge and Volador.

It was the first recorded birth of quintuplets in Spain and surprised doctors. The quint's mother, Mrs. Isabel Castro, 38, had not taken fertility drugs.

"WEST SIDE STORY"

WEST SIDE STORY will begin its final three-nights' run with a theater-in-the-round performance at 8 p.m. tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday in Travis Elementary School, 2300 Primrose. Jeree Pitts, pictured above, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Pitts, 1701 Chestnut, will again apply stage makeup tonight for her role as Anita, girlfriend of Bernardo, leader of the Sharks, played by Mark Watkins. (Staff Photo)

Agnew To Leave U.S.A.
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will visit American allies in the Pacific at the end of this year. He is expected to represent President Nixon at the inauguration of Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos Dec. 30. He will also visit several other Asian and Pacific allies. A detailed itinerary is expected to be announced sometime next week, White House sources said. The trip will last several weeks and probably will include a Christmas season visit to American troops in Vietnam.

'Whoop' Cranes Return To Arkansas Pass

ARANSAS PASS, Tex. Two migrations — oil men and whooping cranes — have occurred at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, drawing the annual pilgrimage of bird lovers to see the rare and majestic birds. Drilling crew of Continental Oil Company voluntarily have departed the "hunting grounds" they share with the whooping crane colony. A welcoming party of anxious rangers have already counted 49 of the cranes which have been arriving at their winter headquarters since mid-October. A few stragglers — airborne on 7 1/2 foot wing spans — could push the population of the Texas refuge beyond the previous high of 50 birds, recorded in 1968. In 1941, there were only 15 whoopers counted. Visions of the eradication of the passenger pigeon filled the minds of conservationists. The balance of nature is still drastically out of kilter.

Continental, which has been active on the refuge since 1940, worked with wildlife authorities, year to protect the whoopers. In recognition of its continuing efforts, Continental was the first U.S. corporation to be honored by the U.S. Audubon Society.

"Finding oil is important," Continental Vice President J. E. Fineley said, "but so is the conservation of wildlife. Whatever we can do to encourage survival of the whooping cranes, we're going to do. It's just that simple," he said. The cranes will join more permanent residents in the protected area. There are 300 species of birds, alligators, javelina, armadillos and an occasional red wolf, rangers said.

LOSES DIRECTION
SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—As the Intrepid and the Yankee Clipper came within a few feet of each other for docking Thursday, Clipper commander Richard F. Gordon instructed Charles "Pete" Conrad to drop down "toward the moon." Conrad moved the Intrepid in the opposite direction. "When you say down, that's 'up' to me, pal," Conrad told Gordon. "I'm upside down." "Sorry, I don't know where the moon is," answered the man who made a pinpoint landing on the lunar Ocean of Storms.

SETS RECORD
SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Richard F. Gordon, forgotten astronaut orbiting the moon while his lunar-lander comrades were exploring the Ocean of Storms, set a U.S. record Thursday for solo space flight. Gordon flew the Yankee Clipper alone for 37 hours, 11 minutes—from the time the lunar lander Intrepid departed from the command module until it docked—breaking the record of 30 hours, 20 minutes set by L. Gordon Cooper Jr. 15-16, 1963, in Faith 7, last of the solo Mercury flights.

TRAGIC WAIT
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI)—A man and woman were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes during the night as they sat in a car with the motor running outside Memorial Hospital while a friend got emergency care for her baby, authorities reported Saturday. Annie Ruth Stenson, 30, was dead and Warren Olden, 23, unconscious when they were discovered two hours after they parked outside the hospital.

SCOUTING SCOOPS
 By MRS. PAUL MITCHELL
 Girl Scout Leaders participated in an Arts and Crafts workshop conducted by Mrs. Jerry Davis, at the Girl Scout Little House recently. Learning to make inexpensive and simple decorations for the holidays were Meses Kirk Smith, Ben Holland, Virgil Beard, Ralph McDonald, Daniel Ginardi, Bernard White, Malcolm McClelland and Virgil Flowers, all of Pampa, and Mrs. James McNear, Jr., Clarendon.

Mrs. Richard Stowers, president of the Quivira Girl Scout Council, announced the council is working on the possibility of having as guest speaker at the annual council meeting, Miss DePhane Tabor. Miss Tabor is one of only three National Pipers in the United States, Debbie Reynolds being an honorary one. Miss Tabor's home is in Midland, but she is on the National Girl Scout Staff in New York.

Brownie Troop 60, alternately led by Mrs. Leon VanAlstine and Mrs. Douglas Luedecke, were taken on an educational tour of City Hall by Mrs. Luedecke. Pampa Police Chief Jim Conner personally conducted the tour of the city hall. He assured one little Brownie that the jail cells were not the "gas chamber", Conner also showed the group how fingerprints are taken.

At the Red Cross office the girls discussed Red Cross week with Mrs. Libby Shotwell. During their visit to Corporation Court, Mrs. Mildred Cook, clerk, explained court proceedings. They were served refreshments and met a Meter Maid who come in to explain to them her duties.

Mrs. T. M. Whiteley acquainted the girls with the badges they will be working on next year during their visit to the Girl Scout office.

Making the tour were Robbye Cunningham, Mary Ann King, Dana Kindle, Misti Luedecke, Terri Landreth, Jo Ellen Jones and Leann VanAlstine.

Mrs. E. B. Jackson, leader of Cadette Troop 41, is the new neighborhood chairman for Sunrise Neighborhood, which includes Brownie troops, Junior troops, and Cadette troops in Baker and Wilson Elementary Schools.

Mrs. Steve Odum is Sunset Neighborhood chairman which includes Mann, Lamar, and Houston Elementary Schools and Pampa Junior High.

Highland Neighborhood which includes Austin and Travis Elementary Schools, Lee Junior High and St. Vincent School is without a chairman at this time. Anyone interested in performing this public service in Girl Scouting should call Mrs. Richard Stowers, 665-1784.

Cadette Troop Three, led by Mrs. Ralph McDonald is studying and planning work on their Active - Citizenship Challenge. They recently held an all-day Crafts Workshop on a Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Girl Scout Little House. Mrs. Oran Carter assisted Mrs. McDonald in Tole Painting with oils. The girls made boxes for their dressers, wall plaques, and several made "mood-o-meter" plaques, by painting old 78 rpm phonograph records to put on their bedroom doors.

Cadettes participating were Cindy Burns, Kathleen Lindsey, Sheri Whiteley, Laquita Carter, Sheryl Hilton, Ruth Felter, Vicki Carter, Dona Chisum, Stephanie Secrest, Debra Baggett, Jeri Bohlander, Vickie Joutett, Barbara Whiteley, Melanie Miller, Kim Hoover, Marita Carter, Debra McDonald, Jane Shaw and Brenda Wallace.

Brownie Troop 72, led by Mrs. Tom Dunn, recently held an Investiture Ceremony to which parents were invited. Assisting Mrs. Dunn were Mrs. George Eggleston, Mrs. Max Robbins, Mrs. J. C. Albin and Mrs. Lacy Lee.

The Girl Scout office will be closed for Thanksgiving Holidays, Nov. 27 and 28.

School Official Speaks To PTA

Lamar Elementary School Parent Teacher Association met recently in the school auditorium with Cub Scout Den 4, Pack III, presenting the flag ceremony. Mrs. Bill Henry and Mrs. Clarence Reeves directs the cub unit.

Joe Page, principal, introduced Dr. James Malone, superintendent of Pampa schools, as speaker. Discussing the Pampa school system and its future, he explained what construction is planned to improve school facilities.

Austin Ruddick's room won the room count for the most parents present and will be served ice cream.

Page won the door prize, a cake baked by Mrs. Gene Pitmon. Mrs. Charles Terrell read the poem "Teachers Prayer-Parents Prayer."

Church Class Has November Party

The Gleaner's Sunday School Class and families attended a November Thanksgiving dinner party at the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church.

Those present were: Messrs. and Meses, Buford, Minter, Bill Earls, Floyd McMinn, and Mark, Billy Keith and Dwight.

African Violet Society Sees Slides

Pampa African Violet Society, meeting for dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Dan Glaxner, 701 N. Gray, honored members with birthdays and anniversaries, and participated in a program of colored slides of Canada and Japan and of Mrs. Glaxner's flower garden.

During the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Norma Walberg, president, members learned all tote bags had been sold, and accepted committee assignments for January, 1970.

Mrs. Glaxner, program chairman, showed picture slides of roses, peonies and other flowers grown in her flower garden and displayed slides of Canada and Japan.

Members having birthdays and anniversaries in October were presented secret pal gifts. Those attending were Meses. Walberg, R. F. Dirksen, Holly Gray, Lee Moore, V. N. Osborn, Marion Roberts and the hostess, Mrs. Glaxner.

Members' next meeting will be a Christmas party Dec. 9 at Mrs. Walberg's home, 621 E. Kingsmill.

Mrs. Harrell Hosts Area Church Class

GROOM (Spl) - Esther Class of Groom Baptist Church met in the home of Viola Harrell for a regular meeting as the President, Loula Wall, presided. Beadie Brown brought the devotional on "Prayer." The scripture was on the 61st Psalm and Thessalonians 3-17.

Refreshments were served to Marie Rogers, Stella Lamb, Corrine Wheeler, Othelle Driskill, Ellen Dickerson, Beadie Brown, Loula Wall, Mattie McAdams, Grace Henderson and the hostess, Viola Harrell.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Recently at our son's college homecoming, he and three of his friends invited their parents out to dinner in appreciation of "all we had done for them."

The bill came to well over $60, plus tax and tip. Apparently the boys did not have enough money with them, so in order to minimize the embarrassment, my husband paid the bill with his credit card and left the tip in cash.

Our own son and one of the other boys paid us their share the next day; one other parent mailed his son's share, and the fourth will probably never pay us.

Our questions: When we see these boys again, should we bring up their inexcusable lack of preparation to pay the bill that night in order to help them avoid such situations in the future? Also, do you think my husband did the right thing in rescuing the boys the way he did? Or should he have let them solve their money problems in their own way?

A MOTHER
 DEAR MOTHER: I think your husband did what any other father would have done in the same situation, and I don't fault him for it. (It would have taken a super-disciplinarian to witness one's son and his friends trying to scrape up enough money to pay the tab for a "parents' treat" and let them solve it in their own way.) I do think you should tell your son in no uncertain terms that he is a big boy now, and old enough to come prepared to pay his share of the check when he's host. And as for the other boys, it's up to their parents to give them the same lecture.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 29 years old, and he decided that washing his hair will make his hair fall out, so will you please put something in your column to set him straight?

Melvin is a very good-looking fellow, but he's got this thing about losing his hair. He won't use a hairbrush at all because every time he sees a few hairs in his hairbrush he practically bawls. And he doesn't use a comb any more than he absolutely must.

He's a wonderful guy, but, Abby, you don't know how hard it is to sleep with a man who hasn't washed his hair since last July. Help!

MEL'S WIFE
 DEAR WIFE: Tell Mel that a clean scalp is essential to the healthy growth of human hair, and he stands to lose more hair (and friends) by allowing rancid oils to collect on his head.

Sirhan Finding Death Row One Of Life's Loneliest Places

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI)—Sirhan B. Sirhan, assassin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, completed his first six months in death row isolation Sunday—a life as lonely as any on earth. Sirhan has a stark, concrete and steel cell 4½ feet by 7 feet, at the end of the south side condemned unit 1 on the sixth floor. He is in cell 33. The cells on either side of him are empty. A guard—a different one every day—brings Sirhan his two meals and may pause for a few words with him. Another guard passes within speaking range, occasionally. The other 25 condemned men in the same unit with Sirhan can, if they choose, approach Sirhans cell. But no closer than 15 feet because two mesh steel screens create a no-man's-land around the 25-year-old Jordanian immigrant. Sirhan 'Quiet' Associate Warden James Park said Sirhan is quiet and does not seem particularly anxious for the society of the other prisoners. Sirhan averages about one visit a month, from his attorneys, his mother or his brothers. "He is very quiet," said Park. "His routine doesn't change. Lot's of reading very little TV." He listens a lot to Arabic music on a phonograph his family gave him. The reading material is heavy on subjects like theology, psychology and mysticism, according to Park, but Sirhan also gets Playboy magazine in the mail. "He remains interested in the Middle East situation, reading English language pro-Arab journals, but no newspapers," the associate warden said. "Two Guard Escort Sirhan leaves his cell only for medical appointments and to meet visitors. When he goes out, the other prisoners are ordered to clear a 30-foot wide path for him to pass with his two guard escorts. Prison officials fear strongly that Kennedy's killer would be in peril of his life if other men, already condemned to death, were allowed access to him. "Our basic obligation is to keep him functioning until the courts decide his case," says Park. That may be a long task. Sirhan's attorneys, George Shibley, Luke McKissick and Abdeen Jabara of Los Angeles, hope to have their appeal from his death sentence ready by next March. If he loses that one, an execution date will be set by the court.

Indians Invade Alcatraz

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Coast Guard boats blockaded Alcatraz in San Francisco Bay Saturday while 100 Indians who have occupied the island for three days waited for Interior Secretary Walter Hickel to tow to their demands. An attempt to supply the invaders with a food drop from a balloon Saturday morning was unsuccessful. The Indians, representing about 25 tribes, have given Hickel two weeks to surrender the island. The government has given the Indians until tomorrow afternoon to beat a retreat. "We expect them to be off the island tomorrow afternoon," said Thomas E. Hannon, regional director of the general services administration. "If they don't leave, I'll take them off one at a time, if necessary," he said. But Hannon said he was attempting to convince the young Indians they would be better off to push their demands for possession of the island "in the courts or by other avenues."

Young John Kennedy Notes Sixth Anniversary Of Dad's Death

HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI)—Young John F. Kennedy Jr. lit candles symbolizing the eternal life of Christ at a Mass Saturday commemorating the sixth anniversary of his father's assassination. Serving Mass for the first time in his life, the blonde, 8-year-old son of the late President wore a black cassock and a white surplice as he brought the water and the wine to Msgr. William D. Thomson who celebrated the memorial service at St. Francis avier Church. At Arlington National Cemetery in Washington, roses were laid on the President's grave and small lines of the faithful braved a cold wind to pass before the eternal flame which burns before his tomb. All the remaining members of the tragedy-stalked Kennedy clan gathered for the 9 a.m. service in the large white church where only three days ago a funeral Mass was held for Joseph P. Kennedy, patriarch of the family, who died Tuesday. About 250 persons sat in the dark oaken pews along with the President's widow, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, and her daughter, Caroline, 11. Mrs. Rose Kennedy, once again garbed in mourning black, sat with her only surviving son, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, and his wife, Joan. A source close to the family said neither Mrs. Kennedy nor other members of the group planned to visit the President's gravesite in Washington. However, Jacqueline's mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, laid a small bouquet of roses on John Kennedy's grave Saturday morning and a similar bouquet on that of another slain Kennedy, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Sen. Edward Kennedy, whose 8-year-old son, Edward Jr., also participated in the Mass, visited his brother's grave Friday. A slight disturbance marred the quiet observance here when two young men tried to hand out antiwar literature to the Kennedys and others in the church. No member of the family, however, appeared visibly disturbed by the incident.

Indira Gandhi Re-Establishes Her Supremacy

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Indian Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi established her supremacy in the ruling Congress party beyond doubt Saturday with the ouster of the party president, who led the attempt to expel her, and replaced him with a trusted ally. The premier wept as she spoke to her supporters during the proceedings. A resolution removing party President Siddavvanahali Nijalingappa, an old guard politician, was adopted unanimously by all of the more than 400 members present at a meeting of the all-India Congress Committee, the party's policy-making body. The committee has a total of 705 elected members. Mrs. Gandhi presided at the session and her supporters quickly filled the vacancy by electing Chidambaram Subramaniam, one of the prime minister's most trusted men, interim president. A new president will be elected to a full two-year term at a meeting of the party's plenary session in Bombay in late December.

ABANDONED SHIP THE HAGUE (UPI)—The crew of the 4,900-ton Greek freighter Martha abandoned ship Saturday after the vessel caught fire off the Hook of Holland, Dutch coastal stations reported. The 26 crewmen were picked up by a tug and a fishing boat.

Poverty Contributing Cause To High Crime Rate In U.S.A.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States has the highest rate of violent crime of all the "modern, stable nations" in the world, the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence reported Sunday.

The main reason was poverty, the commission said, reporting that more than five million families or one-sixth of the nation's urban population could be classified as slum inhabitants.

A commission "task force victim-offender survey" of 17 cities showed most violent crime is committed in the ghetto slums by persons "at the lower end of the occupational scale."

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, chairman of the presidential commission, told reporters it found violent crime concentrated in the slum ghetto. "The correlation is not one of race with crime, however. The correlation is poverty with crime," he said. "Our homicide rate is more than twice that of our closest competitor, Finland, and from four to twelve times higher than the rates in a dozen other advanced countries, including Japan, Canada, England and Norway."

sanitized highways will connect these areas with the cities." Already, the commission pointed out, surveys show half of the women and one-fifth of the men fear to walk outdoors at night, one-third of American householders keep guns, and nearly one-third of some urban dwellers want to move.

It contended the only hope lies in a massive, billion-dollar rebuilding of the cities. If this is not done, Eisenhower predicted the city of the future will be "a guarded mixture of business enterprises and high-rise apartments... a flight of people to the suburbs where they will be guarded, some by private and some by public police... where houses will have every kind of burglar device known... where

Washington Window

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Dr. Austin Ranney, professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin, leaned on the horseshoe desk in the Senate committee room to preface some remarks with a paternal warning.

The 1972 Democratic National Convention, he said, is sure to have "a record number" of challenges to the seating of delegations sent by the 50 states.

There was no visible wincing on the part of his fellow members of the Democratic party's commission on party structure and delegate selection.

Yet that committee was created to write standards to be followed by state Democratic organizations to avoid contests over seating delegates. It was set up at the behest of followers of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, who felt they had been cheated by party bosses in the delegate selection for the 1968 convention.

Under the chairmanship of Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, it has agreed on a set of 19 guidelines to be followed by the states in picking delegates for the 1972 convention.

Some state Democratic organizations probably will be docile in their acceptance of the new standards and others rebellious. Members of the commission disagreed about the impact of the product.

Dr. Aaron Henry, Negro Mississippi party chairman, felt that it had surrendered to conservatism. Will D. Davis, former Texas state chairman, said some of the commission's proposals were so radical that they never would be carried out.

John F. English, national committeeman from New York, suggested that all state chairmen be invited to a meeting to hear the commission's decisions explained and defended. Each state party organization, he said, felt that it alone was the target of the McGovern commission. The commission voted to require delegations to include representation for minority groups, women and people under 30 in "reasonable relationship to the group's presence in the population in the state." A majority of the commission opposed winner-take-all presidential primaries but merely urged that they be abandoned. In the quilted pattern of practices followed by 50 state party organizations, each state is asked to give the presidential candidates their share of delegates.

Foreign News Commentary

Reports reaching Vienna Vietnam massacres, if they are confirmed. Both laborite and conservative members of Parliament want a renewed U.S.-British effort to fly food and medical supplies into beleaguered breakaway Biafra.

Policy Switch: A more independent foreign policy may be in sight for Poland. Polish leader Wladislaw Gomułka already has offered to negotiate recognition of the Oder-Neisse line with the new West German government of Chancellor Willy Brandt and is awaiting Brandt's reply. The bait—Gomułka omitted the usual coupling of such recognition with Bonn's recognition of East Germany.

East German Rebuff: The East Germans are expected to rebuff West German attempts to secure better agreements on access to West Berlin in return for the West's recognition of East Germany's existence as a state. The Communists say there is no connection between the two problems.

Contradictory Voices: Officially, the French are saying they hope the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) being carried on by the United States and Russia come to a successful conclusion. French defense officials take the opposite view. They say the talks do not diminish the threat of nuclear war, that they would strengthen the bloc system and thereby enhance the threat of war in western Europe. They plan no reduction in production of French nuclear arms and are planning more nuclear tests in the Pacific next year.

Nixon-Wilson Meeting: British lawmakers will put heavy pressure on Prime Minister Harold Wilson, in coming weeks to take up both the Vietnam and Biafra wars with President Nixon when they meet in Washington Jan. 27-28. Laborite rank-and-file members are putting the heat on Wilson to protest sharply the alleged

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The "no-sonse war of words" over wage-price controls continues to divert attention from credit controls, which have been needed for more than a year and which would buy time to stabilize the situation, according to the Janeway Service. Wage and price controls are not in the cards and wouldn't work if they were, it says. And credit controls are not in the cards either—at least "not this side of a check in the credit situation conspicuous enough to create fears of a crash," the firm says.

While the stock market is giving ground, it is doing so in grudging fashion and not doing too badly under the circumstances, E. F. Hutton Co. says. The news background has turned quite negative with hopes for credit relaxation in the near term completely faded away and Vietnam in the stalemate-and-no-progress status, the firm adds.

Happin Bros. & Co. detects "emanations from several quarters that seemed to mark the beginnings of a more concerted opposition to the President's economic policy." More disturb-

Hollywood In Review

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sid Caesar finds himself in a most peculiar bind wherein all three networks are his Brutus, slinking knives into him severally, crying they are doing it for his own good.

One of the immortals of early network television, Sid is limited by some sort of agreement to making only a dozen guest appearances a year.

It is not that he is being harassed by the medium. Sid is victimized by an ancient plot to restrict appearances by guest stars on musical variety shows for purposes of exclusivity.

"Last year I did 11 shows," the comedian said. "And maybe this season I'll do about the same—a couple of Hollywood Palaces, two Dean Martin shows, a Kraft Music Hall or two. But I'll be limited to 11 or 12."

Gets 29-Day Clause
Great Caesar's Ghost! Why? "Well, a guest star gets a 29-day exclusivity clause in his contract when he signs up for a show," Caesar explained.

"He promises not to appear 21 days before the air date of the show or for eight days afterward. That means you can't do more than one guest shot a month.

"Sometimes you can ask producers to waive the clause." Caesar's problem is this: Say he is doing a Dean Martin show one week and a Carol Burnett show the next. Both Martin and Burnett—or their producers, networks, spouses or poodles—would feel that the impact of Sid's appearance would be diminished by this overexposure.

"I'd like to do more guestings," Sid said wistfully. "But then I would like to have my own variety hour every week."

To enact the exclusivity is Room For Satire.

"No. Because I think there is room for a good musical-variety program that gives a lot of thought and time to satire as we did in the old days."

In the era when Milton Berle and wrestling were all viewers had to choose from, Caesar came along with "Broadway Adrenaline."

The multi-talented comedian was an instant hit. From 1950 to '54 he starred in "Show of Shows," and in "Caesar's Hour" 1954-57, bringing televi-

Arguments End In Trial Of Two San Antonians

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Both sides closed their arguments in a special Saturday session of the conspiracy trial of two San Antonio men accused of trying to trade a $100,000 federal loan for part of a business.

Edward Montez, a local businessman, and Albert Fuentes Jr., a former special aide for the Small Business Administration, are on trial for trying to obtain 49 per cent of an ironworks business for the SBA loan.

Jury arguments by the defense and the prosecution will start at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday. The case is expected to go the jury Tuesday afternoon.

Federal District Judge Adrian Spears took time out from the proceedings to dismiss accounts that he criticized U. S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio for refusing to appear at the trial.

The judge reviewed his statements concerning Rep. Gonzalez' failure to honor a summons: "Let's just assume—and for the benefit of everyone here including the press I am just assuming this for the purpose of argument—let's just assume that the congressman talked when he should have been listening; let's assume that he interfered with

The Los Angeles Rams are making winning a habit and the Dallas Cowboys are making losing an art.

That was the story in Los Angeles Sunday when the Rams became the first National Football League team in seven years to start the season with a 10-0 record and the Cowboys continued to find a way to lose the "big" games.

The Cowboys had the edge in the first downs, 17-16, rushing yardage, 130-88, and passing yardage, 222-202, but they also led in mistakes and lost the game, 24-23. Dallas has now lost just twice but they've been key losses to the Century Division leader—Cleveland—and to the Coastal Division leader—Los Angeles. Sunday's victory clinched a share of the Coastal Division crown for the Rams. Roman Gabriel, who lost count of the downs a year ago when the Rams were eliminated from the title chase by Chicago, tossed 35- and 58-yard touchdown passes to Wendell Tucker and ran a yard for the Rams' other TD.

Of the Dallas mistakes—Craig Morton had two of his passes intercepted, Dan Reeves lost a pass and a fumble and Mel Renfro dropped a punt—the most costly one was made by Bob Hayes. He caught a pass from Morton in the third period and was straggling past Jim while St. Louis was losing to Philadelphia, 34-30.

New Orleans topped San Francisco 43-38, Baltimore nipped Chicago 24-21 and Washington beat Atlanta 27-20.

Throws Two

It's supposed to be difficult to win a title by alternating quarterbacks but Gary Cuozzo replaced Joe Kapp in the second period for the second straight game and it worked again Sunday for Minnesota. Cuozzo threw two touchdown passes and ignited a Viking romp over Pittsburgh.

Former Packer Errol Mann kicked three field goals in the first half and the Detroit defense lifted the Lions past the Packers, who have now lost three straight for the first time since 1959.

Leroy Kelly scored three touchdowns in the first 16 minutes, as the Browns routed New York and Norm Snead tossed a 23-yard scoring pass with 22 seconds left, as the Eagles edged the Cardinals.

Lou Michaels carried a 17-yard field goal off the uprights with 12 seconds left, as the Colts scored 10 points in the final five minutes to beat Chicago. John Unitas came off the bench with 7:04 left to spark the Colts.

Ernie Wheelwright's three-yard TD run with 26 seconds left capped a seven-play, 72-yard drive that gave New Orleans the victory over San Francisco.

Charley Harraway broke loose for a game-deciding 68-yard touchdown run with a safety valve pass from Sonny Jurgensen in the third period as Washington rallied from a 10-point deficit to beat Atlanta.

Bullets Not Letting NY Make Runaway

By United Press International

The Baltimore Bullets aren't letting the New York Knicks out of sight yet.

Baltimore won its seventh straight National Basketball Association game and 7th of its last 12 by mauling the Los Angeles Lakers, 129-97, Sunday night. The victory cut the Knicks' lead to 5½ games over second-place Baltimore in the Eastern Division.

Earl Monroe led a balanced Baltimore attack with 31 points as Los Angeles, down to six healthy players, found the lack of manpower too much burden and lost its five-game winning streak.

Four Laker players scored all but three of the team's points. Jerry West, bearing the scoring brunt with both Wilt Chamberlain and Elgin Baylor sidelined by injuries, had a game-high 38 points. Mel Counts did most of the rebounding as he drew down a career high 22 rebounds.

Oscar Robertson played the iron man role as he stayed in the entire 48 minutes in leading the Cincinnati Royals to a 137-123 win over the Phoenix Suns. The Big O dominated the scoring with 39 points, eight more than Jerry Chambers netted for the Suns, who lost their sixth straight game.

Larry Siegfried scored 26 and John Havlicek 23 points for Boston in the Celtics' 125-116 drubbing of the Seattle SuperSonics. Bob Rule tallied 14 points in the first period and had a game top of 33, but his one-man scoring effort couldn't cope with the Boston attack.

American Football League Roundup

Oakland 'Steals' Victory From Chiefs

By United Press International

The Oakland Raiders' pass defenders may have literally stolen the American Football League's Western Division title away from the Kansas City Chiefs.

The Raiders intercepted five of Len Dawson's passes Sunday, including two which they returned for touchdowns, and edged the Chiefs, 27-24, to take over first place.

Linebacker Dan Conners and safety George Atkinson each went all the way for a touchdown with an interception as the Raiders boosted their record to 9-1-1 and moved one-half game ahead of the Chiefs.

Defense Sparkles

The Chiefs were leading 14-3 in the second quarter when

Atkinson outwrestled tight end Fred Arbanas for a pass and sped 22 yards unmolested into the end zone. That proved to be the spark the Raiders needed as they bounced back to tie the score 17-17 at halftime on a 22-yard scoring pass from Daryle Lamonica to Warren Wells.

Conners' interception proved even more timely. The Chiefs, trailing 20-17, were threatening in the third quarter when Conners stepped in front of Wendell Hayes at the Oakland 25, grabbed Dawson's swing pass and ran it back 75 yards for a touchdown.

Moments later, Dawson connected with Frank Pitts on a 42-yard pass to make it 27-24, but the veteran quarterback had two other drives halted by interceptions in the final two minutes of play. Dave Grayson stopped one drive by picking off a Dawson pass at the eight-yard line and Gus Otto halted another by intercepting a pass at midfield with only 30 seconds remaining.

The victory was the Raiders' sixth over the Chiefs in their last seven meetings.

In other Sunday action, New York routed Cincinnati 40-7, Houston clobbered Miami 32-7, San Diego crushed Denver 45-24 and Boston defeated Buffalo 38-21.

The touchdown passes from Joe Namath to George Sauer and four field goals by Jim Turner paced the Jets to their seventh victory in their last eight games. The Jets' defense also shared in the triumph, throwing rookie quarterback Greg Cook for losses on four occasions and setting up tw touchdowns with an interception and a fumble recovery.

Clutch Playoff Spot

Pete Beathard threw two touchdown passes and Roy Gerela kicked three field goals as the Oilers clinched a playoff spot in the Eastern Division by whipping the Dolphins. Rookie defensive end Bill Stanfill scored the Dolphins' lone TD on a pass interception.

Dick Post ran for three touchdowns and quarterback Marty Domres scored twice and passed for a third TD in sparking the Chargers' victory.

Domres, a rookie starting in place of veteran John Hadl, completed 11 of 20 passes for 235 yards and engineered the most explosive attack by the Chargers this season.

Mike Tallafiero passed for three touchdowns and rookie Carl Garrett raced 44 yards for another score, as the Patriots whipped the Bills. Jack Kemp connected on a pair of scoring passes with Haven Moses in a losing effort.

Hull, Hawks Back In NHL Groove

By United Press International

The Chicago Black Hawks never thought they'd see Bobby Hull's 473rd National Hockey League goal.

Hull, the Hawks' glamour boy since 1957, only recently decided he would return to the hockey wars after a contract dispute and his presence was instantly felt by Chicago.

The Blond Bomber scored his first goal of the season and No. 473 of his NHL career Sunday night as Chicago edged Pittsburgh 3-2 to stretch its unbeaten string to nine games.

Hull's goal tied the score at 2-2 at 5:33 of the third period and Stan Mikita broke the deadlock at 15:08 with the winning goal that moved Chicago into a fourth-place tie with Detroit in the Eastern Division.

New York routed Oakland, 5-2, Montreal tied Boston 2-2 and Toronto edged Philadelphia 3-2 in other games.

Juha Widing, New York's Finnish-born center, scored twice as New York extended its unbeaten string to eight games in the first of seven straight home contests. Widing's goals came in a four-score second-period outburst. Rod Gilbert and Vic Hadfield tallied the other goals and Dave Balon added a New York goal in the third period. Bill Hicke and Brian Perry scored for Oakland.

Ramirez Wins Staff Picks For 3rd Time

Chico Ramirez became the first Pampa Daily News staffer to win the weekly football selections three years. Ramirez faltered just a bit the final week but his closest competitor Jim Casey gained only one game.

News publisher Al Bassett finished the season just like he started, by winning. Bassett guessed correctly on 21 of the 25 games while Casey was second with a 19-6 record.

Ramirez, Bill Heckathorn, Ron Cross and Ricky Clark all tied for third with 18-7 marks; Doris Wilson finished at 17-8 and Tex DeWeese was 14-11.

For the season Ramirez edged Casey by three games. Ramirez had a season record of 186-60; Casey, 183-63; Heckathorn, 182-64; Cross and Bassett, 175-71; Clark, 164-82; Wilson, 161-85; DeWeese, 156-90.

Besides being the best guesser among the staffers for three different years, Ramirez has been runnerup twice.

MIKE WALTON of the Toronto Maple Leafs is chasing after an elusive puck, but there it is — hanging in the back of his jersey.

LUCAS SIDELINED

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Recently acquired forward Jerry Lucas of the San Francisco Warriors is expected to be out of the lineup two to three weeks with a broken hand.

The injury occurred during Saturday night's 106-98 loss to the Los Angeles Lakers. It was Lucas' 15th game with the Warriors since being acquired from Cincinnati in a trade for Bill Turner and Jim King.

Dr. James Raggio, Warrior team physician, said the injury would sideline the 6-foot-8 stellar rebounder for about the next 10 Warrior games.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TEXAS PANHANDLE TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me!

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

They Go Together

The President of the United States has called for unity on the thorny question of Vietnam. Unfortunately, Vietnam is not the only problem used as a divider of the people of this country. There are more — high taxes, inflation, loss of local control over schools, unruly mobs, so-called urban blight and other facets of living which invite denunciation daily. There seem to be gremlins all over the place, slipping the catches to open Pandora's boxes full of woes. Above the din they emit are heard the cries of the people, echoing pleas for unity in many sectors of the home front.

We are reminded of another time in history when the union of the country was threatened. How one statesman, Daniel Webster, felt about it was expressed in his reply to the senator of South Carolina, Robert Y. Hayne. Webster concluded:

"I have not allowed myself, sir, to look beyond the Union, to see what might lie hidden in the dark recess behind. I have not coolly weighed the chances of preserving liberty when the bonds that unite us together shall be broken asunder. I have not accustomed myself to hang over the precipice of disunion to see whether, with my short sight, I can fathom the depth of the abyss below; nor could I regard him as a safe counselor in the affairs of his government whose thoughts should be mainly bent on considering, not how the Union may best be preserved but how tolerable might be the condition of the people when it should be broken up and destroyed."

"While the Union lasts, we have high, exciting, gratifying prospects spread out before us. For us and our children. Beyond that I seek not to penetrate the veil. God grant that, in my day, at least that curtain may not rise! God grant that on my vision never may be opened what lies behind! When my eyes shall be turned to behold for the last time the sun in heaven, may I not see him shining on the broken and dishonored fragments of a once glorious Union; on states dissevered, discordant, on a land rent with civil feuds, or drenched, it may be, in fraternal blood! Let their last feeble and lingering glance rather behold the glorious ensign of the Republic, now known and honored throughout the earth, still full high advanced, its arms and trophies streaming in their original luster, not a stripe erased or polluted, nor a single star obscured, bearing for its motto no such miserable interrogatory as, 'What is all this worth?' Nor those other words of delusion and folly, 'Liberty first and Union afterward!' But everywhere, spread all over in characters of living light, blazing on all its ample folds, as they float over the sea and over the land, and in every under the whole heavens, that other sentiment, dear to every true American heart — Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable."

Union, unity, need not go by the board just because there are differences of opinion. Troubles as long as there are even two people on earth, there will be differences of opinion. Troubles do not come from the difference of opinion but from exertion of force by some to inflict their opinions on others. Most men want to live in harmony with their fellows, because when they do they are freer to pursue their individual, peaceful enjoyments. As all men recognize that union, unity, harmony, is the goal of everyone and forego force as a method of attaining it, they will demonstrate Webster's sentiment that liberty and union, freedom and unity, are inseparable.

Bogus Memorabilia

Counterfeiters are stepping up their activity in a small but apparently lucrative field — political campaign buttons and paraphernalia.

The writing is voiced by Dale Science instructor at the University of Akron and president of the 100-member Ohio Political Items Collectors. Artifacts from America's colorful political campaigns of the past — portrait pins, tin-tyfes, watch fobs, handkerchiefs, plates and banners as well as buttons — have emotional as well as historical significance to many people. This, plus the fact that rare items from some campaigns bring up to $100, attracts the inevitable forgers.

Oddly enough, the buttons most likely to be counterfeited are those of defeated candidates, due to the curious fact that in this area of politics losers eventually become winners if they wait long enough.

Authentic Teddy Roosevelt buttons, for example, bring $3 to $4 among collectors. But original pins and buttons of Roosevelt's 1904 presidential opponent, Alton B. Parker, are worth $10 or more.

The reason, explains Wagner, is that political losers frequently lose because they lack financial as well as popular support. Parker suffered from this monetary malaise in 1904, which meant his side issued fewer buttons with consequently higher value for today's collectors.

Hang onto your "Hubie, Baby!" buttons. Those three inch mod discs that were current in 1968 might be worth something to your grandchildren.

U.S. Honor On The Line

The immediate and natural reaction to the charge that a patrol of American soldiers gunned down 367 South Vietnamese civilians and destroyed their village in March, 1968, is one of utter disbelief.

Then, horribly enough, there creeps in the suspicion that it might be true and, even worse, the willingness to shrug it off as one more of those unfortunate atrocities that inevitably happen in war.

But this is not another Green Berets case involving the liquidation of a double or triple agent, nor an episode of misdirected bombs or artillery shells. The crime, alleged by the survivors of the village, is cold-blooded mass murder of men, women and children committed not by Viet Cong or North Vietnamese Communists but by American fighting men.

The Army is investigating the stories of the villagers and has brought murder charges against a lieutenant of one of the platoons involved and charges of assault with intent to murder against a staff sergeant.

Justice demands that the investigation be pursued until the full truth is known and until any and all who may be guilty are brought to light. The national honor demands it.

H. L. Hunt Writes

A WORD TO LIVE BY
Individuals are sometimes described as "extremely conservative" or "extremely liberal," and in either case the term is usually meant to be critical. But no one is ever smeared as being "extremely constructive."

The word "constructive" is recommended as a self-description by Americans who want to have a role in the effort to maintain freedom in our Republic. It is far more meaningful than those other terms "moderate" and "middle-of-the-roader." These too often imply that the person described does not really stand strongly for anything, and it should always be kept in mind that the man or woman who does not stand for something will fall for anything.

The constructive is one who has no time to waste in talking about what a bad pass things have come to in America. In working to keep freedom alive, he knows he has truth on his side, and knows, also, that error cannot stand against truth properly presented. The constructive does not rant, for he has no need for ranting. With the facts about the freedom fight clearly in mind, he can go joyfully about performing the duty he has given himself of making converts to the freedom side.

Constructives hold the future of our country in their hands. On their efforts depend the answer to the question of whether the United States can observe in freedom the 200th birthday of the Republic. If this freedom can be maintained for the next five years, it will be safe for the foreseeable future.

That is the challenge faced by constructives in this year of 1969.

We have sent a bunch of ear-bangers over to Helsinki for the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT).

We are going to set our own Red Bear trap and spring it on ourselves. If anybody thinks the meetings will open a new dawn for mankind they had better look backwards for a minute.

Russia has never opened up the secret Soviet inspection of their installations for 20 years and if they woeley us into thinking they will now you can bet it is just a bunch of hokum.

If they can get us to neutralize by agreement the U.S. intercontinental nuclear power then intervention in Western Europe would amount to a duck egg. This would leave Soviet "conventional" power unchallenged and insure their domination.

All our team members are soft-liners who have records of trying to play footsie with the Ruskies. One, Paul Nitze, has some weird ideas on nuclear disarmament.

In 1960 Nitze said, "I propose we multi-lateralize SAC to NATO command and inform the United Nations that NATO will turn over ultimate power of decision on the use of these systems to the General Assembly of the United Nations."

The other members of the delegation, Smith, Farley and Brown are of the same ilk. With these Hammertails going to Helsinki fast we will all wind up like the rabbit at an Indian picnic.

Nixon Begins To Soft-Pedal Military In Foreign Policy

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—This nation is groping seriously but in some puzzlement toward fundamental and highly significant changes in its foreign policy across the globe.

The Washington Moratorium march, huge though it was, does not represent the crucial evidence of the country's deeply changed mood.

The altered condition of the people's state of mind is less highly visible but much more impressive than the unnumbered tens of thousands who walked down Pennsylvania avenue on a cold Saturday in November.

The change is of sufficient magnitude, affecting tens of millions of Americans across the broad age spectrum, to have caused President Nixon to assert in Guam on July 25 what he now calls a "major shift" in U.S. foreign policy.

It is great enough, too, to have led the politically acute Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird to put the Pentagon on a downward spending course (though there are other reasons for this undertaking).

If what the President is saying and Laird is doing have not yet made heavy impact, it may be because they themselves have not fully measured the national mood and are treading tentatively.

You cannot find out how far these leaders really intend to go in pulling back or, in the current vogue phrase here, "lowering the American profile" around the world. Most likely they have not decided.

The difficulty lies in the fact that the turn toward new directions must be set against a backdrop of national attitudes which until recently were quite different.

Until our large-army participation in the Vietnam war was widely perceived in America as a futile stalemate, if not an outright failure, countless millions accepted a foreign policy whose tone for 25 years has been strongly military.

It has taken perceptive men like former White House security aide McGeorge Bundy and Paul Warnke, former assistant defense secretary for international security affairs, to see the full meaning of this broadly held outlook by the American people.

While many of the college young and a good number of adult doctrinaire liberals have been thundering against the "military-industrial complex" as if it were some evil conspiracy concocted by generals and businessmen who love to kill people for money, Bundy and Warnke have looked deeper and approached an underlying truth.

Said Warnke recently in The Washington Monthly: "Our military-industrial complex exists because we have asked for it. In the broadest sense, we now ask our 'government: Make us safe from any attack by any foe.'"

Said Bundy in Foreign Affairs magazine: "The fault is less in our leaders than in ourselves."

Thrust after World War II into the role of free world guardian, we saw no way to respond but in the hardest military terms. The generals did not hatch a juicy plot, though there may have been some among them who have been carried away by the scope of things.

The fact is, as Warnke notes, that we, the people, laid upon the Pentagon the most sweeping assignment imaginable—"protecting" us and our free world friends in nearly every corner of the earth where trouble flared.

The American people's response may be understandable, if not excusable. Through two world wars it listened to the sophisticated diplomats and generals of Western Europe complain of this nation's "unpreparedness" for its military responsibilities as a power in the free world.

Shaken out of historic isolationism and left standing alone as a free world colossus after the second of those wars, the United States could conceive of its burdens only when they bore the brand—"survival."

Virtually all our votes of aid, most of our diplomatic pacts with other nations, had to be given a "military cast" or fail. We—often with public but sometimes hypocritically private encouragement from many foreign leaders—created the massive military. It is small wonder moving away from this course is slow.

"More Life for Your Years."

A fact sheet for older persons, is a monthly leaflet that covers a wide variety of health and money-saving subjects. From time to time a few items to cheer your day are also included. You may get it by writing to the American Medical Association, 535 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610.

Q—I have lichen planus. What causes it? Will it cause my hair to fall out? Is there any cure for it?

A—The cause of this itching skin disease is unknown. It may involve the scalp and cause scarring but loss of hair is not a characteristic feature. Valisone, Synalar, Kenalog and Cordran creams will clear it up.

Q—I have neurodermatitis. Nothing my skin doctor has given me stops the itching for more than a few hours. What do you suggest?

A—This disease is closely related to lichen planus. The same treatment is used for both diseases.

Q—Is lichen sclerosis or atrophicus a rare disease? Is it curable?

A—This relatively rare disease is related to scleroderma rather than to lichen planus. It may last for several years but it clears up in time and doesn't come back. Soothing lotions or creams and antihistamines are given to control the symptoms.

Q—How successful is the use of the laser beam in the treatment of diseases, especially of the eye? Will it stop ringing in the ears?

A—Because it can be focused on a very small spot, it has been used to destroy skin cancers without injuring the healthy adjacent tissues. It will remove tattoos and port wine birthmarks. It has also been used to repair detached retinas. Because the beam works with lightning speed, the patient doesn't have to hold his eye still for more than 1-1,000th of a second. In diabetes with retinal disease the beam has been used to stop or to prevent hemorrhage. It is useful in treating small tumors and aneurysms inside the eyeball.

I doubt that it will stop ringing in the ears in most victims of this common complaint. Although highly promising, its use is still experimental and is reserved for persons who can't be treated effectively by more conventional methods.

Shriver in Maryland Saga — Kennedy '72 Candidate? JOHN GOLDSMITH ROBERT ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Lofty-aspiring politics was behind Ambassador Sargent Shriver's recent hush-hush trip to the capital.

The modish Kennedy son-in-law had nothing less than running for President on his ambitious mind.

From what the one-time Peace Corps director and anti-poverty chief said and did, he is apparently the Kennedy family mount in the 1972 presidential derby. That's the only inference that can be drawn from Shriver's astonishing overtures to Maryland politicians.

It's a fascinating story, as follows:

Sen. Joseph Tydings, already busily running for a second term next year, was the first to be propositioned by the dapper hold-over envoy to Paris. Shriver asked for a talk, and Tydings invited him to dinner at his Havre de Grace, Md., home. From the start, the meeting got off on a bad footing.

Amazingly, Shriver didn't show up until 10:30 p.m. By that time, Mrs. Tydings had indignantly retired — after delaying dinner several hours. When Shriver finally got down to cases, he disclosed he intends to seek the Maryland Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and proposed a joint ticket with Tydings.

Tydings' reply was an immediate and cold "no." Shriver's plan could mean only one thing — he will oppose Democratic Governor Marvin Mandel, who assumed the office last spring when, as speaker of the Assembly, he was chosen by the Legislature to fill the vacancy created when his Republican predecessor, Spiro Agnew, became Vice President.

In Maryland there is no lieutenant governor. The last thing Tydings, facing a tough re-election battle, wants to do is to antagonize Mandel. Tydings is working hard to court all Democratic factions. So while he has been aligned with the Kennedys, he brushed off Shriver brusquely and sharply.

He told Shriver he is running strictly on his own and making no alliances. Their parting was decidedly chilly.

HIGH FLIER — Undiscouraged, Shriver then sought out State Attorney General Francis Burch, Democrat, and uncorked an involved and high-flown proposition, as follows:

They would team up, with Burch seeking another term and Shriver challenging Mandel for the gubernatorial nomination. If elected, Shriver would appoint Burch lieutenant governor — as Maryland's next governor would be empowered to do if the voters approve a referendum amendment on the 1972 ballot creating the office of lieutenant governor. It also authorizes the governor to name the first lieutenant governor; thereafter they would be elected.

Gilding this already highly lily lily, Shriver disclosed that his sights on the White House if elected governor he would see in 1972. He didn't say a word about the Kennedy candidacy, but the inference was unmistakable. And if he won the presidency, Shriver sonorously pointed out, Burch, as lieutenant governor, would move up to governor.

It was very glittering, intriguing and alluring.

Burch was more amiable than Tydings. After all, he wasn't kept waiting 2½ hours for dinner. But he was no more receptive. Like Tydings, he told Shriver he was running on his own and making no alliances.

And that was that. What Shriver does next remains to be seen.

In nearby Virginia, Mrs. Ethel Kennedy has flatly turned down proposals that she challenge Republican Rep. Joel Broyhill, serving his ninth term. The widow of Sen. Robert Kennedy explained, "My first concern is raising my young children. I have my hands full being both father and mother to them."

Question Box

We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.

QUESTION — How can Freedom Newspapers substantiate their statement that the law against stealing is as universal as the law of gravity? Man can't very well violate the law of gravitation, but he does constantly violate the law against stealing. So how can you compare them and say that "Thou Shalt Not Steal" is a natural law as is the law of gravitation?

ANSWER: There are laws of nature which operate in our physical environment such as the law of gravity, the laws of planetary motion, the laws of thermodynamics, etc. These laws of nature, as we call them, are simply statements by men of what they have discovered of how things work in the physical universe. They show cause and effect. If two bodies of a certain mass exist within a certain distance of each other, they will attract each other in a certain way. If the temperature of a gas is raised, the gas will expand at a certain rate. Man cannot change these cause-and-effect relationships, but he can learn what they are and how to use them to his advantage, as our scientific technology constantly strives to find new and better ways to do.

Physical objects do not have any choice in how the laws are used. Man does. By his very nature, man chooses. But each time man chooses to act in a certain way, there will be effects from his act. The effects of his acts will either be to man's advantage or his disadvantage, with the same immutability of the cause-and-effect relationship which exists for physical objects. And because there is this immutable cause-and-effect relationship between man's acts and their consequences, man can discover how this acts, and if he can precisely identify it, he can call it a moral law in the same way that he can call the cause and effects of gravity a natural law.

Any act of coercion, and by definition stealing is an act of coercion, by one man against another will have effects to the disadvantage of at least that one man and, when understood, it can be seen that those disadvantageous effects do, in the long term, in greater or lesser degree spread to all men. This cause-and-effect relationship cannot be canceled by man any more than he can throw himself off a cliff and not fall. It is a moral, natural law, just as the known, stated effect of gravity is a natural physical law.

Man can, of course, attempt to defy natural physical laws. And he can attempt to defy moral law. But in neither case can he escape the consequences of the attempt. As man's knowledge and understanding of natural physical law has increased he has been able to live more and more in harmony with those laws and use them to his immense benefit. When he has equal knowledge and understanding of natural moral law, and is able to live in harmony with it, he will be able to eliminate war and crime and injustice, and he will prosper materially and spiritually to a greater degree than he has ever before been able to do.

Galveston Gunmen Back In Jail After Wild Break For Freedom

FLATONIA, Tex. (UPI)—The three killers — one in boots, one in brown pumps, one barefoot — ran out of running room.

"Cages are for animals," said William "Butch" Ainesworth, wrapped in a white straight-jacket, and sitting tall, belligerent in the back seat of a police car.

"I came out here to be free," he said, shaking his long brown hair at nearby live oak and mesquite trees and a country clearing.

"There are no bars out here."

That was the defiant end of freedom Saturday for Ainesworth, 25, and his two buddies Carl Bruce Harris and Ronnie Roper, both 20.

They were put back behind bars an hour later at the rustic old jail at Richmond, Tex., under charges of murder.

Death was nothing new to the three Galveston gunmen. They had all killed before. Harris killed his mother and aunt and was condemned to the Texas electric chair. Ainesworth and Roper were accused of slaying a man with a baseball bat.

Their flight that started with a jailbreak Friday and covered 130 miles and 31 hours and five minutes, five stolen cars and eight hostages, ended Saturday in Fayette County, three miles outside Flatonia.

"I got caught," growled Ainesworth, the ringleader. "That's the only regret I got."

Interviewed by UPI in the patrol car at the scene of their capture, Roper and Harris looked like whipped pups.

Weightlessness Can Be Fatal

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Soviet space scientist warned Saturday that weightlessness during long flights through space could prove fatal to future space travelers.

V.V. Parin, in an interview with the Young Communist League newspaper, said the absence of gravity made men's bones brittle and their bodies dry. The problem must be overcome, he said, before extensive space travel can become a reality.

"It is quite possible," Parin said, "that man will not be able to remain weightless indefinitely. The first flight of Soviet and American cosmonauts showed that it is necessary to be careful and attentive to weightlessness."

As his three killers — one with brown hair, one with black hair, one a blond — sat in the police car, another youngster came to the car and peered into the window.

"They were going to travel at night. They talked about going to Mexico. They held a gun on me most of the time."

Her son, like any 13-year-old, thought of his stomach before anything else. He got La Grange, Tex. Constable H. L. Adamcik to buy him some french fried potatoes.

"All this for 20 cents. Wow!" said Tommie Alexander.

"He's a brave little rascal," Adamcik said.

Trials Made To Clean Up Air

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—A number of experiments are being conducted with cars using such power sources as natural gas and steam in an effort to find ways to cleaning up the air pollution caused by cars.

But one government expert says such experiments need to be viewed with a little more perspective.

Apollo Families Relax As Crewmen Coast Earthward

NASSAU BAY, Tex. (UPI)—The families of the Apollo 12 astronauts relaxed with a round of leisure activity Saturday while the crew coasted earthward.

Peter Conrad, 15, oldest of the four boys of Charles "Pete" Conrad, went on a weekend deer hunting trip. His youngest brother, Christopher, went shopping with his mother and picked out a bicycle as a gift for his ninth birthday Wednesday.

The three wives, Jane Conrad, Barbara Gordon, and Sue Bean, attended a private luncheon Saturday at the Lakewood Yacht Club. They planned to go to mission control center Sunday evening to witness the final television show from the spacecraft.

All three families planned to attend church Sunday—Mrs. Conrad to the 9:15 a.m. services at the St. John's Episcopal Church in La Porte, Tex. Afterward she planned to attend a picnic at Clover Field at Friendswood, Tex.

That is the field for glider and soaring planes where Neil Armstrong, among other astronauts, is a soaring enthusiast.

Mrs. Bean planned to attend the 11 a.m. service at the Clear Lake Methodist Church, of which she and her husband are charter members. She will have dinner Sunday evening with astronaut Eugene A. Cernan and his wife.

Mrs. Gordon planned to attend the 8:30 a.m. mass at St. Paul's Methodist Church in Nassau Bay.
