completely. At it turned out they not only were able to take motion pictures of the parade but they had time to cover the nearby oil, wheat fields and cattle ranches. The parade was held up while it waited for Mr. Wilson's horse to arrive. It never did, and nobody seemed to want to get off his own horse and let the Jack Benny program announcer ride it, even though Mr. Wilson looked longingly at the palomino section. Finally Jimmy Dodge, president of the Jaycees, got off his horse and rode on the motorcycle. The parade was moved in about 50 per cent alphabetical order Friday evening, but Saturday only two floats appeared in the wrong sequence.

Texas The Texas float featured gardens of blue larkspur that look so much like bluebonnets on the top of the float. The state flag and the name "Texas" was worked out in colors on the sides of the float. Miss Dorothy Campbell was queen. She sat on a high throne flanked by red maps of the state with a huge star at her back. The floor of the float was artificial green grass. An arch at the front had the greeting, "Texas Welcomes You" on it.

O'Daniel Vetoes Drunk Driving Bill

AUSTIN, June 14. (AP)—Governor W. Lee O'Daniel today vetoed a bill which would make the first offense of driving while drunk a misdemeanor instead of a felony. In a 2,000-word message discussing his objections, the governor declared the bill would encourage the use of intoxicants and increase automobile accidents. The measure, pushed through the legislature by members who contended it would bring about more convictions for drunk driving, provided that the first offense would be a misdemeanor punishable by jail sentence or fine and subsequent offenses would be felonies punishable by prison term of one to five years.

to the proposed change which would "require the state to prove in each case that the defendant was not only partially under the influence of intoxicating liquor but was entirely 'under the influence'." He said that was the effect of striking from the existing statute the words "in any degree" before the words "under the influence of intoxicating liquor." The governor also objected to a provision requiring that before a drunken driver may be convicted of a felony he must have first been convicted of a misdemeanor under the new law.

SERIAL STORY

FOOTSTEPS IN THE FOG

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Stephan is injured. Deborah has been taken to a hospital. Stephan is unconscious. A large-eyed man, whom the doctor identifies as a Federal agent, Hilton, accompanies the party. After long hours of waiting, Deborah hears Hilton talking to reporters. "He was trapped," with information that he was fatally wounded." Deborah is alone.

THE FOG LIFTS

CHAPTER XII

WHEN Deborah struggled back to consciousness, Bridgie, haggard from her long vigil, was sitting beside her bed.

"Sure, that's right!" Bridgie applauded as Deborah tried to sit up. "Brace up now, darling, like the brave girl you are."

"Yes, Deborah remembered wretchedly, she would need all her courage. . . Strange that Bridgie could smile like that!

"Here's Mr. Hilton wantin' a word wid ye," Bridgie was going on cheerfully. "Whist he's here, I'll fetch a cup o' tea to bring the color intil yer cheeks again. The doctor laves ye in to rest."

"Now that's more like it!" He smiled at Deborah. "You gave me quite a jolt, Miss Lovett. It was a minute or two before it occurred to me that maybe my few words had given you an unnecessary shock."

"Why—but you're smiling!" Deborah faltered. "Bridgie was smiling. . . Do you mean that he's not—that he's all right?"

"Well, hardly that yet. I have an idea that the room is still traveling around his head a hand-some clip. But in a few days he'll be ready to whip his weight in wildcats again."

"But I—still don't understand," Deborah said helplessly. "Mr. Hilton, what did happen last night?"

"Plenty, Miss Lovett." He pulled a newspaper from his pocket, began to read.

"A SMALL Cape Cod fishing town was the scene last night of an incident which wrote 'Fins' to one of the most fantastic careers of a decade of international plot and counterplot. It was the career of a man identified only as 'Mr. X,' because out of the dozens of names he used, it is impossible to select his real one."

"When trapped last night by intelligence agents with documents involving important United States defense secrets in his possession, he committed suicide rather than—"

"But," Deborah asked, still helplessly, "what has all that to do with Stephan?"

"Nothing—except that he was the lad who recognized 'Mr. X,' and with the help of Wilhelm and others, ran his operations to earth. Last night, he learned, 'Mr. X' was to meet another European agent here and turn certain papers over to him. Stephan planned to anticipate the meeting, impersonate the second agent himself, and intercept the papers."

"But Stephan was taking a boat out of the Harbor last night. He was—"

"Exactly. If for any reason the first plan seemed impracticable, he intended leaving the Harbor on a fishing boat which was to take Agent Number Two and the papers out to a small freighter which was waiting to pick him up, and disguised as a member of the crew—he had changed clothes in his car—to get the papers by any device he could."

"But why weren't those men simply arrested?"

"Because the situation had developed so rapidly that von Thalmann was not sure we should have time to get here after he sent word to us; and he lacked the proper authority, himself, to make the arrests."

"Then he got the papers?"

"He got them, very neatly, before the boat left the dock. But then the complications arose. A third agent, who had shadowed Stephan here, jumped him and roughed him up pretty badly before we turned up, and stole the papers back again."

"He was warned of that. But why," Deborah demanded indignantly, "didn't this Jose Pastia who warned him do something—and where was Wilhelm?"

"Frankly," said Mr. Hilton, "there does seem to have been something sketchy about the blocking of the home team—largely, I gather, because Mr. von Thalmann got too far ahead of his interference. However, except for his head, which fortunately is hard, it worked out for the best."

"We got Mr. X, with the evidence on his person. Number Two got away, but was picked up later by the Coast Guard. Number Three, the most dangerous, because he was the only one who knew who von Thalmann was, is in a hospital, and will not live."

"Where was Wilhelm?"

"It was Wilhelm who finally took care of Number Three. He's on his way to Washington with my partner, to report."

"I'm frightened," Deborah shivered. "This man who followed Stephan here—how much did he know? And how many more are there in the country who know and hate him?"

"He thinks no more. I hope he is right, because he is going to be very valuable to us these next grin months. His usefulness abroad is ended; but he has access to sources of information here that we might not touch without him—information that may save this country many lives, and millions of dollars in preventing sabotage. Perhaps you've read about the part our American Czechs played in counter-espionage during the last war?"

"Yet it means that always—for years, perhaps—he will be in danger."

"Not always. . . Sometimes, yes," the man agreed. "But, you see, that is what he wants."

"Yes," Deborah said. "I see that. . . But there was a submarine—"

"If there really was, I doubt if it had anything to do with all this."

"And this Pastia—who is he? What?"

"I am afraid," Mr. Hilton said gravely, "that I have told you all I must—and this much only because Stephan thought you ought to know. . . I wonder if you understand that later—for months at a time, perhaps—there will be many things you cannot be told? You will want to ask questions—"

"I only want Stephan safe," Deborah protested pitifully. "Yet often his safety may depend on your knowing nothing."

"I won't ask," Deborah promised herself as much as him. "Oh, I won't ask anything!"

"Stout girl!" said Mr. Hilton.

THEN Dr. Bingham came in and said, "All right, Deborah. But don't let him talk too much." And she went in to Stephan.

Stephan's face, under the iccap, was white, and one eye was completely black and blue; but managed to grin as Deborah came over to the bed.

"How do you like my shiner?" he demanded, cocking the brow over the good eye to make sure his mastery of the American idiom had registered.

"I like everything about you, and will not live."

"Where was Wilhelm?"

"In a moment he said, 'I shall never forgive myself for dragging you into this.'"

"But I was already in, Stephan. We both knew that from the beginning. . . Look!" Deborah pointed toward the window. "The fog has gone. Just as it has between us. . . It was the fog that mattered, Stephan."

Radio Station In Mexico Expropriated

MEXICO CITY, June 14. (AP)—President Avila Camacho has ordered expropriation of the most powerful radio station in Mexico to "dedicate it to the service of the nation," it was disclosed officially today.

The station is 180,000 watt XERA at Villa Ahues, Coahuila state, just across the frontier from Del Rio, Texas, whose programs were well known in the United States.

Informed sources here reported American citizens owned XERA, but the presidential decree mentioned no names.

The chief executive's first expropriation order since assuming office last December ordered the owners indemnified within ten years. An inventory and evaluation will be undertaken at once, it was reported.

A bulletin from the government information office said the president acted after the ministry of communications cancelled the concession of the Mexican Frontier Broadcasting company (Compania Mexicana Radiodifusora Fronteriza), which operated the station, for "not complying with the communication laws."

The government bulletin said agents of the ministry of communications already had taken possession of the station.

FALL FASHION PREVIEW ACHIEVES NOVEL EFFECTS WITH FUR

NEW DESIGNS ORIGINAL

'AMERICANA' THEME

New York's first showing of fall fashions proved again that New York designers have more tricks up their sleeves than variations of the shirtwaist theme in a wide assortment of colors.

Among the news-making styles in the show, which highlighted Uncle Sam's own fur, Alaska sealskins, were: dresses with lowered waistlines, achieved by skirts with yokes; slim skirts with front and hipline draping; dolman sleeves, cardigan jackets of fur; a ten-gallon hat, shown with a pepper-pot red gabardine dress with a dark trim and pockets of sealskin. The use of fur flourishes on coats for the young is an enchanting as well as a new fall 1941 idea.

New and unusual looking was a dinner suit of navy bengaline, shown at the left. Trousers are extremely wide, the wild west trimmings, Florence Reichman's ten-gallon hat, and the suit was teamed up with a tiny hat, entirely covered by a bird, and a safari brown sealskin cape.

The pepper-pot red gabardine dress is shown in the center. Notice the wild west trimmings, Florence Reichman's ten-gallon hat, and a sealskin refer, tossed casually over the shoulders.

The other photograph, at the right, shows Lan's smart little beige wool reofer, trimmed with stem and pockets of sealskin. The use of fur flourishes on coats for the young is an enchanting as well as a new fall 1941 idea.

FDR Freezes Italian Assets

By RICHARD L. TURNER
WASHINGTON, June 14 (AP)—As President Roosevelt's direction, the treasury today froze the assets of Germany and Italy...

How much the freezing order might accomplish was brought into question, however, by those who recalled that Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau recently said the Axis powers, acting in anticipation of such a move, had already withdrawn sizeable portions of their American funds...

Nevertheless, to determine the extent of whatever German and Italian holdings remain, and to acquire information of general usefulness in the present situation, the president also ordered an immediate census of all foreign-owned property in the United States...

In view of the sweeping geographical nature of the order and the fact that Japan is an Axis partner, some surprise was expressed that that country was not included...

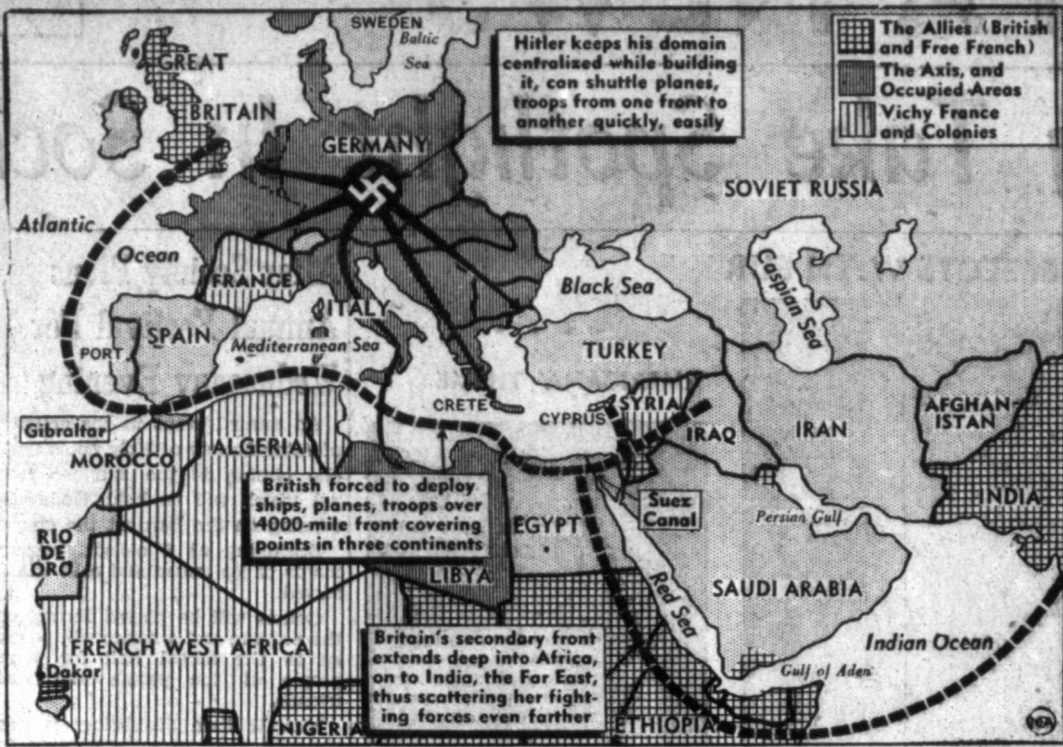

The Russian aspect of the development aroused extensive speculation. Technically, Mr. Roosevelt included all the countries of Continental Europe in the freezing order...

Thus, the president made it clear to Russia that her American funds may be frozen, if it is found that they are being used to finance the purchase of food and materials intended for trans-shipment to Germany...

Transfers of credit by any bank. Payments to or by any banking institution. Transactions in foreign exchange by an person in this country...

The export or withdrawal of gold or silver by any person in the United States of securities or interest in securities which are not physically situated within the United States...

How Nazis Force British to Fight on Far-Flung Front

Big war handicap to Britain is necessity of stringing out her forces to cover many fronts, any of which may be next striking point for Hitler. Nazis on the offensive, meanwhile, pick their own battlefields and draw on troops and planes concentrated nearby, for Germany's many conquests still center in one compact area.

Process Of Using Cotton Seed Oil In Milk Substitute Announced By Texan

By L. T. EASLEY
WASHINGTON, June 13 (AP)—A potentially large market for cotton seed oil in the manufacture of a substitute for whole milk was discussed before Texas members of congress at a luncheon given by Burrus Jackson, Hillsboro cotton man...

Plans for a gigantic barbecue here sometime next fall, for all Texans in Washington, are being worked up by Representative Wright, Patman of Texarkana, chairman of the Texas congressional delegation and newly-elected president of the Texas Club of Washington. More than 1,000 Texans working in various governmental departments and agencies belong to the club.

Jackson told the congressmen that the product might substantially increase the annual cash income to Texas farmers. It was pointed out that while large commercial milk producing areas might oppose the product as competitive, outlets for the substitute lay among American low-income groups and in exports to England.

Sample six-ounce cans of the substitute milk were distributed among the congressmen. Cans of 14 ounces were said to retail at about five cents.

One of the new midget "blitz buggy" scout cars, under test by the army, appeared at the capitol for the inspection of congressmen. Representative Nat Patton of Crockett was among those who climbed into the two-seated vehicle and drove it.

The order was described in some quarters as an alternative to freezing the American resources of all foreign countries. This had been urged by one administration faction on the grounds that it would be non-discriminatory, but was opposed by the state department with an argument that it would work a hardship on friendly countries, particularly Latin-America.

No accurate figures on the holdings of the countries involved was available, but the total of German-Italian holdings was estimated at more than $500,000,000.

Russian holdings were described as small, and Swiss holdings as very extensive.

GARY COOPER AND BARBARA STANWYCK STARRED IN CAPRA MASTER PRODUCTION

"Meet John Doe" Opens Week at LaNora; Academy Award Winners Top Cast of "Vivacious Lady"; Tuneful "Sunny" One of Year's Best Musical, Showing On Crown Screen

By BROWNWOOD EMERSON

Whenever you see a picture, full of songs, that leaves you humming and singing and whistling, when you leave the theater, believe you me, you've got something there.

That's exactly what "Sunny," RKO Radio-Wilcox picture will do. Its running time is 98 minutes—and you'll probably wish it was twice that, when you see the results of such top liners as Anna Neagle, Ray Bolger, John Carroll, and Edward Everett. Horton, in the cast and this impressive comedy.

Sig Hermy's screenplay from the original production by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II. Musical direction by Anthony Collins. Producer-Director Herbert Wilcox. Those grand tunes, "Who" and "Sunny" from the roaring 20s.

Welford Beaton in the Hollywood Spectator, describes the pic, which opens a three-day run today at the Crown:

"Of all the musical pictures we have had since sound came to Hollywood, I think this is the best. To start with, it has a story, a nice clean love story, which keeps its continuity intact even when winding its way through an assortment of musical and dance numbers."

In praise of direction, Beaton says:

"Herbert Wilcox makes his people real, makes them talk like real people, keeps the story moving along smoothly."

Summing up, he says:

"It is a stirring demonstration of the screen's superiority over the stage as a medium for the presentation of a love story with a light opera complex."

"Sunny" is aces, but it is only one of the three top flight pics of the week.

The other two are "Meet John Doe," with Gary Cooper and Barbara Stanwyck, today through Wednesday at the LaNora and "Vivacious Lady," today through Wednesday, with Ginger Rogers, at the Rex today, tomorrow, and Tuesday.

Director Frank Capra has turned out another of his consecutive hits in "Meet John Doe."

The Film Daily describes it as socko drama, effective comedy, and full of suspenseful action, and says:

"Cooper, of course, was a natural for the character of the ex-bush league twirler who is transformed by a circulation-seeking newspaper owner into a symbol of protest, the mythical 'John Doe.' The part fits with all the nicety of Fifth Avenue tailoring, and Cooper gives it the seal of honesty."

"Incidentally, the gift of Capra for providing exactly the right touch to scene and character was never better demonstrated than when Cooper for the first time delivers his 'message' over the radio. The natural awkwardness, the uncertain delivery heighten the dramatic impact materially."

Miss Stanwyck also finds the part of newspaper columnist who conceives John Doe made-to-order. And for a better played emotional scene than that in which she prevents the suicide of Cooper and makes him see that a cause worth dying for is worth living for, you will have to seek considerable cinematic distance."

Rare in the annals of film history, "Vivacious Lady" is a screen production that boasts of two winners of the Academy Award for best performances. Both its stars, Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, received this high honor for the year 1940. Ginger Rogers received this distinction through her great work in RKO Radio's "Kitty Foyle" in which she plays the role of Christopher Morley's white collar girl. James Stewart was voted 1940's outstanding actor for his work in "The Philadelphia Story."

Although most pictures end with an engagement and a suggestion of future bliss in wedlock, "Vivacious Lady," starring Ginger Rogers and James Stewart, begins with a whirlwind marriage and swiftly builds up through the complications so typical of modern newweds.

In this case, Ginger and Stewart, as the bride and groom, come from vastly different social strata. The difference is so marked, in fact, that Stewart, as a studious botany instructor at a small college hesitates at breaking to his puritanical family the news that he has married a night-club entertainer after knowing her scarcely six hours.

Congress To Be Asked To Write Own Version Of Property Seizure

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt will ask congress, informed legislators said today, to write its own version of legislation permitting the government to requisition private property for defense purposes.

These legislators said the President was expected soon to address letters to the chairmen of the senate and house military affairs committees setting forth the objectives the government wished to accomplish and suggested that congress phrase a bill as it sees it.

A property seizure bill submitted to congress last week by the war department aroused a storm of controversy because of its sweeping nature. It proposed to authorize the President to requisition "temporarily or permanently" any property, tangible or intangible, which he decided was needed for defense.

The President would decide the value of the property and, if the owners thought his figure was too low, they would be paid 15 per cent of his price and could sue for any additional sum they thought was due.

Some legislators charged that the powers sought were so comprehensive that the President could take over the private property where its use would be only remotely connected with the defense program.

Senator Byrnes (D-S. C.), acting majority leader, told reporters that revisions would have to be made in the bill to define more clearly the powers to be exercised.

Administration men said needs of the current situation would not be met by the legislation, already approved by the senate and pending in the house, which would permit the government to take over defense plants when production is stopped or restricted.

They pointed to a war department memorandum which said that many machine tools, "probably our most critical item," were being used in industries not manufacturing defense articles or were "held by second hand dealers who demand unreasonable prices."

It also said that there were large stocks of aluminum and other critical raw materials in plants not producing for the defense program which could be taken over and sold to manufacturers of airplanes or airplane engines under the proposed law.

In addition, the department said it desired authority to commandeer some privately-owned airplanes and boats whose owners had refused to sell them to the government.

The matter of foreign patents also would be covered.

"It has been charged," the memorandum said, "that through patent controls the Nazis are obtaining valuable information and large revenues from this country and that they control some of our vital industries. These patent rights and stock controls could be requisitioned by our government under the proposed legislation."

Also to be covered would be defense articles or contracts for their manufacture "held by foreign governments who are unwilling to sell to us."

Applications from more than 1,000 localities for air mail pickup are on file with the government.

News Columnist Writes Article For Religious Magazine

R. C. Holles, co-publisher of the Pampa News and editor of the daily column, Common Ground, has recently sold an article to The Christian Advocate, an official publication of the Methodist church, which has a circulation well over a quarter of a million subscribers.

Mr. Holles' article was published under the title of "Christian Harmony in Competition" in June 12 issue of The Christian Advocate. The columnist gave his article that title because, when the editor of The Advocate requested him to write the article he said: "Write something in 1200 words which might be called a defense of the competitive system. Include as much of the religious element in it as you can." The editor of The Advocate wrote the sub-head to the article, "An Interpretation of the Economic Order."

It will be remembered that Mr. Holles sometime ago was successful in marketing one of his articles in Barron's Weekly, one of the leading financial weeklies in the United States. It is usually believed to be difficult to write interestingly enough to merit publications in a leading religious journal and a financial journal, and indicates that Mr. Holles' philosophy and economic principles have quite a varied range of appeal.

Mr. Holles says, however, as he has attempted to demonstrate in the article in The Christian Advocate, that "true Christianity and good business are very closely allied and very much in harmony, instead of being at odds as many people think."

Air Corps Now Open To High School Grads

High school graduates who are ambitious to become pilots in the regular army air corps now have the opportunity. Even if their educational qualifications will not permit them to become commissioned officers, they still may fly army airplanes and may look forward to careers as pilots.

All they need to do is enlist in the army air corps and this course of training will be open to them after July 1, 1941, as soon as administrative details can be arranged. They will be taught to fly and they will be paid while learning. After they have qualified as pilots their futures as regular army pilots are assured.

All this is made possible by a bill which has just passed congress and which has been signed by the President. It authorizes the secretary of war to detail men for training and instruction as aviation students, in their respective grades.

All qualified young men who are interested should apply to the nearest army recruiting station.

Corporal Harvey M. Gist is in charge of the Pampa recruiting office, located in the basement of the postoffice.

Just give it Air— and it'll give you Action

MAYBE you didn't know that an efficient gas mixture for your car has about 9,000 parts of air by volume for every one part of gasoline.

That being so, you can see how important air-handling capacity is to your power plant.

Take this stunning Buick FIREBALL straight-eight, with Compound Carburetion! stepping up its horsepower.

Ordinarily, this engine purrs along sweetly with only one of its two carburetors functioning.

But step down on the gas treadle and what happens?

A second carburetor opens up. Doubles the air-handling capacity. Steps up power, lift, life, action. You go swooshing off like a scared boy with a bee behind him.

Would feeding more gas accomplish the same result?

After a fashion, yes—but why be spendthrift? Why feed your engine gasoline when what it wants is air?

Why not enjoy power as you want it and when you want it—plus gas economy that runs as high as 10% to 15% over last year's Buicks?

For that matter—why get less room, less style, less comfort, less value than Buick offers at such little prices?

See your nearest Buick dealer now—and at least get the delivered figures.

"Meet John Doe"

In a little New England town, Capra's all-seeing camera-eye found "Mr. Deeds." Further west, it discovered "Mr. Smith." Now, the eyes of Capra rove the country to seek out Mr. Doe to capture all the drama, the humor, the warmth, the romance that make him such a grand guy... and make this such a great, great picture!

Texan Leads 6 In Qualifying For B. A. Degree In 20 Months

(By The Associated Press) Six American youths, led by a Texan, have just finished the first lap of a unique educational experiment—qualifying for four-year bachelor of arts degrees in less than 20 months.

They face four more years of study which Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe university, believes will make them "the best educated college men ever to graduate from an American institution."

Marshall Asher, Athens, Texas, led the brain team with an average of 95. The other five and their scholastic averages are: Edgar Vallette, Shreveport, La., 94; John Goldthwait, Pittsburgh, Pa., 93; Frederick Goss, Proctor, Vt., 90; John Meacham, Jr., Scooba, Miss., 89; and Keith Lane, Mountair, N. M., 88.

Here is what the Texan, scholastic leader of the group, tells of his experience: "I got to school a week late and met 10 other boys who were there for the experiment. First I was notified of the conditions governing my scholarship. I was guaranteed my room, board, and regular school fees if I would follow a set of instructions necessary to the fulfillment and success of the experiment. The most important of these were that I buy all my books and keep them, that I attend each Sunday a different church to be designated by Dr. Jacobs, that I not smoke, drink liquor, gamble, or swear, that I remain in my room every evening except Saturday for the purpose of preparing my next day's lessons, and that I follow a daily schedule of living with time allotted for classes, meals, exercise, reading in the library, study, and sleep. Then I was told that the education that I was to receive would include every subject taught in the university and would take six years of study at 11 months a year. And probably the most important thing I was told was that I would take twice the load of the average student and be expected to make an average of 90 or better. These conditions were necessary to make possible the experiment which was designed to prove that the college student today is wasting half his time and that if he was removed from the country club activities of the modern college he could do twice the work he is now doing. And so we 11 boys went to work to try the experiment. We were all far from home, strangers to each other, and facing a rather difficult and bewildering task. However, under the leadership of our "Don," Frederick Goss of Proctor, Vt., we soon got acquainted and down to our work.

The first semester we carried 26 hours, including astronomy, Latin, Greek, geology, mathematics, ancient history, history and appreciation of music, old Testament, mythology and etymology, and cosmic history. These courses came in our first year according to Dr. Jacobs' plan that we take the subject from year to year in their natural chronological order. In order that we might to a certain extent unify these subjects, we also took cosmic history, a subject usually limited to juniors and seniors.

At the present time we have narrowed down to six as the result of boys dropping out for different reasons. But we six are going strong and have proven the first step of the experiment. Now remains to be seen how our extensive education will mean to us. "In order to make it more practical and concrete, each year from now on each of us will teach some class in the university for the experience and the mastery of the subject. The idea is that we master each course so well that we will be able to teach it. At the end of our six years, and not until then, we will be given the degree of bachelor of arts, the master of arts, and a special degree for this extensive, the doctor of arts and sciences. As I said, we are going strong and the reasons for this are more than just the view of a very good education. The attendant advantages and gains are just as powerful and may be more attractive force. By that I mean first the fellowship that has grown between us which, as a result of almost constant association, is very close and very strong. Also we have enjoyed and profited from our association with other members of our classes, which, though limited by our schedule, has been most pleasant. We have been able to enter the intramural activities of the school and take part in a good share of the social activities. And in my opinion there are some more or less intangible gains that I have acquired as a result of my participation in the experiment which the college student does not usually get and which I value on par with my education.

Among these are such things as

Trinidad Not Bad

Here is one reason why tourist travel to Trinidad is expected to spurt. Caribbean cruise is Marguerite Huckleby, recently named Summer Travel Queen.

the order in which I am taking my courses and the fact that they are planned by an experienced person and will avoid the usual errors of the hit-or-miss planning. Also I have been able to learn to evaluate time as a result of my minute schedule and have been able to form habits which otherwise would have possibly been discarded.

I have been required to keep my books and build up a library, a thing which no college student does and which every college graduate wishes he had done. But the thing that I value most as my profit of my experience of the past two years has been the gradual formation of a sound and happy philosophy of life as a result of my study of different religions, and as a result of the courses I have taken.

I think our experiment has been and will be a success and regardless of its effect on American education, I am looking forward to the seventh year so that I might further prove it when I leave school.

Agreement To Avoid Strikes Asked By U. S.

(By The Associated Press) The government asked 55 eastern shipyards at work on defense orders yesterday (Saturday) to approve a two-year agreement designed to avoid strikes, stabilize employment, and prevent needless migration of workers.

The agreement was drafted at Washington by a shipbuilding stabilization committee set up by the labor division of the office of production management and composed of representatives of employers, the navy, the maritime commission, the CIO, and the AFL.

It would be a counterpart of master contracts already established on the Pacific coast, and projected for the Great Lakes area.

A conference was scheduled in the capital for next Friday for final action on the proposal.

Secretary of the Navy Knox, Chairman Emory S. Land of the maritime commission, and William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman of the office of production management wrote each of the yards asking prompt consideration of the proposals.

The agreement proposes a basic wage rate of $1.12 an hour for first-class skilled mechanics and a ban on lockouts by employers or suspension of work by employees during the tenure of the pact.

The agreement, if adopted, would eliminate the differential which has existed heretofore in east and west coast shipyard wages. The western wages have averaged higher by "several cents" an hour, OPM officials said.

One of the big west coast yards did not sign the master agreement and a strike developed in which the defense mediation board yesterday said it had been unable to bring about an accord. Board officials said a panel had been set up to bring representatives of the Bethlehem Steel company's shipbuilding division and the Bay Cities Metal Workers council (AFL) into agreement and therefore the board would take its final step and draft recommendations for settlement.

Flashes Of Life

MIAMI, Fla., June 14 (AP)—Every morning the methodical man—an elderly gentleman who wears a striped bathrobe and sandals—walks into Burdette's department store and without comment goes to the washrooms to comb his hair and wash his face.

Then he silently walks out again. A noon he repeats this procedure. He's been doing this about two months now and the clerks are getting curious about his identity, etc.

LUMBERTON, N. C., June 14 (AP)—A motorist, seeking a duplicate title for his automobile, was sent back to get the serial number. When he returned he was hugging an unwieldy chunk of metal with figures on it.

"Is that what you want," he asked the clerk as he showed a patent number plate he had sawed from the car.

He was told the desired number plate was in the chassis, but please, not to bring the chassis along.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 14 (AP) A woman walked into the shoe department of a store, kicked off a shoe and said to the clerk: "I've got a corn that's simply killing me. Will you trim it for me?" The clerk was unwilling.

OSHKOSH, Neb., June 14 (AP)—District Judge C. G. Perry noticed the anguished face of a witness who for 20 minutes during questioning grabbed at his side with both hands.

When finally excused, the witness explained to his honor: "I had some wooden matches and a pen knife in my pocket. When I sat down the knife touched off the matches."

Canadian Building Bought By Allens

CANADIAN, June 14—The two-story brick building erected on corner of Third and Main streets in 1907 for use of the First National bank was recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Allen.

The entire floor of the building is used by the Canadian Valley Production Credit association of which Mr. Allen has been secretary since 1924. Business offices occupy the second floor.

The First National bank was successor to the old Canadian Valley bank which opened for business in 1903. To make way for the two-story brick in 1907, the old frame building was moved down on First street for rental purposes.

The First National bank purchased the Canadian State bank in September, 1927. In April, 1929 it united interests with the Southwest National bank, retaining the charter of the former and moving to the building previously used by the latter at the corner of Second and Main streets. The First National is now the Canadian's one bank.

Sentiment had something to do with Mr. Allen's wish to own this building. He became an employee of the First National bank in 1906, was made cashier in 1912, and became vice president in 1914.

Mr. Allen served actively in the latter office until 1937 and held a position on the board of directors until the bank merger in 1939.

Mr. Allen purchased the brick building for a consideration of $2,500 from Robert Ralph Young, grandson of Robert Moody, one of the founders of the Canadian Valley bank, and son of D. J. Young who for many years headed the First National bank.

Noted Research Physician Dies

CALVESTON, June 14 (AP)—Dr. Meyer Bodansky, 44, professor of pathology and chemistry at the University of Texas school of medicine here and internationally known for his research in the field of physiological chemistry, died at John Sealy hospital this afternoon after an illness of several weeks.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later. He won the 1937 award of the Texas Pathological society for outstanding work in the field of medical research, his work on the chemistry of heart action being termed by medical men the greatest contribution to medical science by a Texas chemist that year.

Several of his books are used as textbooks at the university. Besides directing laboratories at John Sealy hospital and John Sealy Memorial research laboratory, he was visiting professor of physiological chemistry at the American university at Beirut, Syria, in 1932-33. He was graduated from Cornell university in 1918 and received his master's degree from the University of Texas in 1922 and his doctor of philosophy degree from Cornell in 1923.
