on who are devoting so much of their time to the movement.

Girl Scouts presented Mr. Adams with a pair of spurs to wear with a pair of cowboy boots given him at the chamber of commerce luncheon.

Mr. Adams told the girls that he had studied at length their program and that it was one of major national importance.

"This occasion will be looked upon as a year hence as an important milestone in the development of your community from the standpoint of recreational, social, and cultural activities. These things are frequently neglected, and perhaps necessary so, during the rapid growth of a city like Pampa. Almost until now, you have been more than occupied in keeping pace with many other demands, such as housing your people and providing an adequate trading center for many thousands living both within and outside your city gates. You should not devote all your energies to the organizing of such things as really make for a lasting and inviting community," Mr. Adams said.

Camp Site Praised

"Certainly the project which brings us here in this beautiful spot this evening is as deserving as could be found for the citizens of Pampa and its trading center to rally around. An investment in youth, at this particular time, is as profitable an investment as can be made. Too frequently, other communities have neglected the girls and their activities in an honest effort to devote their energies and support to movements for boys. We are learning, however, that it is equally as important to encourage and support similar activities among the girls.

"The development of the Girl Scout program is fundamentally the development of girls along physical, emotional, mental, moral, and social lines, to the end that there may result not only a personally enlarged individual but also an intelligently participating citizen in our democratic social order.

"This local unit is part of a world-wide organization, which includes approximately a million girls in 26 different nations. The permanent international Girl Scout camp is in Adelboden, Switzerland. The United States is divided up into 12 regions, within each of which are many local councils, such as your own Pampa council.

"I was amazed to learn that the membership fee is only $6 a year, also that the 'Brownies' accept girls from 7 to 10 years of age, the 'Intermediates' from 10 to 14 years, and the 'Seniors' from 14 to 18.

Fampana Challenged

"Not all of the benefits from this organization accrue to the girls 18 years of age and younger. I believe that just as much, or more, fun and benefit come to the girls 20, 30 or 50 years old who are associated with the program. This also applies as well to boys, like myself and older, who occasionally find some little job that the older girls are willing to risk assigning us.

"Right at this point I wish to urge all of you to put your shoulders to the wheel of every phase of the scheduled local Girl Scout program. In making such a recommendation to you, I also wish to demonstrate, in a tangible way, that there are certain individuals, who may find you are far removed from this locality, who have a very vital interest in your youth movements. As you already know, I am only the president of Phillips Petroleum company. Mr. Frank Phillips, its founder, is the chairman of the board. Through the Frank Phillips Foundation, Inc. he has made possible my presentation here tonight of this check in the amount of $1,000. I herewith hand it to your local council with the hope that it may be helpful in successfully advancing your Girl Scout program."

Fampana Praised

The oil industry is behind national defense all the way and will continue to be no matter what hardships will be encountered, Mr. Adams declared. He said that every section of the nation must put its shoulder to the wheel and push.

"It is my personal opinion that you will be called upon hereafter, to a much greater extent than heretofore, to harness your national resources and your particular skills to the nation's defense needs. I understand that you are alert to this possibility and are taking every step to keep your house in order. Possibly one word of caution should be given. Do not belittle the importance of your present operations. Do not mistake yourselves into thinking that the only way you can contribute toward the national defense is through some new, perhaps more spectacular type of operations. You should appreciate that there is hardly anything you can do which will contribute so much as to efficiently produce, transport, and manufacture, through the very wells, pipe lines, plants, and other facilities that past years of ingenuity, manufacturing skill, and astute business management have created here," Mr. Adams said.

"You are well aware that all military activities today is based upon the successful operation of engines that propel ships, aircraft, tanks, trucks, and an endless list of other pieces of military and naval equipment. The effectiveness of manpower has thus been greatly multiplied through the ability to transform petroleum into a great variety of finished products. These are capable of furnishing power and lubrication, not only for the actual military machines, but also for the operation of machinery in industrial plants which are producing a steady flow of defense materials. Without adequate quantity and quality of petroleum products in our own hands, but in the hands of potential enemies, you and I and the rest of our fellow countrymen would certainly not have the same feeling of security that we have today, in the face of world upheaval.

Oil Industry Important

"Let us look specifically at some of the vital roles which products of petroleum are destined to play. Superior performances of aviation engines, through the use of aviation fuels of 100 octane or higher, may prove to be the factor to which future historians will attribute the turning-point of the present conflict. Already greatly outnumbered by aviation gasoline produced largely in this country, have demonstrated their ability to stop daylight attacks from invaders. Undoubtedly, the No. 1 obligation which national defense has imposed upon the oil industry is to greatly in-

MR. AND MRS. RALPH POLLOCK, above, nationally known evangelistic team of the Christian church, will arrive next Sunday, October 5, to assist in a three weeks' revival at the First Christian church. crease its already large production of aviation fuels, of which this nation fortunately has virtually a monopoly, both in raw materials and facilities for manufacture.

"Fortunately, the American oil industry has no serious bottle-necks. Temporarily, some misadjustments have occurred, through no fault of the industry, as a result of the sudden diversion of a large number of coastwise tankers into convoy service to foreign nations. This has placed a heavy temporary responsibility upon inland producing areas and transportation facilities. You have read much in the press about the rationing of gasoline in the populous areas of the east coast. Although the press reports indicate a high degree of controversy, the trend of the statistical facts, in my opinion, indicates that the effect to avoid shortages has been fully justified.

"Other unforeseen demands, such as the sudden participation of Russia and our nation's decision to lend aid to that country, have thrown abrupt demands upon the oil industry, particularly for finished products whose manufacture is not possible abroad, due to lack of the special processing facilities required. I should mention that foreign requirements for the more conventional petroleum products, such as automotive motor fuel, decline rather than increased when the war started. This was for the reason that civilian consumption was greatly curtailed.

Price Hike Needed

"Unfortunately, prices for the products of the petroleum industry are restrained by more or less arbitrary price ceilings, so that the full force of increasing demand cannot reflect in much needed price increases. In the face of tremendously increased taxes, wages, costs of materials, and other items of expense, it does not seem reasonable to expect the oil industry to continue indefinitely with present prices, particularly when it is expected to spend large sums to aggressively search out new underground crude reserves and to continue producing marginal stripper wells.

"We are gathered in one of the most famous oil and gas producing areas of the entire world. I am sure that each of us would be amazed if we could only trace each barrel of crude oil and each cubic foot of gas to their ultimate points of consumption. We would thus learn firsthand the great contribution which your daily efforts already are making toward the future protection of our democratic system of living. The fact that the products of this area fit so well into the special demands of the present emergency, however, imposes upon you who live here, as well as those of us who work with you through our local organizations, some extraordinary responsibilities. We cannot avoid these responsibilities if we are to fulfill our obligations to a system of government and business enterprise which has all but vanished from the face of the earth."

were very high.

"Thus a victory was won which is unparalleled in history. The exploitation of these successes is in a swing."

The German radio blared forth the communique with a flourish of trumpets, and the press rolled out its blackest headlines. The German public listened and read with stolid faces.

Informed Germans said the invasion had reached to the source of the Volga river, 200 miles southeast of Leningrad.

A Russian communique reported more than 4,000 enemy soldiers slain on the approaches to beleaguered Leningrad, with 66 planes and 34 tanks captured or destroyed, as well as local successes on the central front, scene of repeated Russian counter-attacks.

Authoritative military quarters in London said a German attack on the Crimean peninsula was developing into the biggest assault possible in the confines of the Perekop isthmus.

They expressed belief the Germans could not take the peninsula without destroying the Soviet Black sea fleet, however, and the Russian spokesman in Moscow, S. A. Lezovsky, said the Germans had not yet been able to set foot in the Crimea.

The British commander-in-chief for India, General Sir Archibald Wavell, arrived in Iran (Persia) Saturday on a mission of an admittedly urgent and secret nature. Having already conferred with the commander of the British general staff, Wavell was expected to discuss defense plans thoroughly with the Russian military leaders in Iran.

The British moved to help Russia in another way by publishing a warning to Finland that she would be considered an enemy if

The local church has been making extensive plans for this revival. Enthusiasm has already reached a high point. Rev. B. A. Norris, local pastor, is to be the evangelist for the revival. While this will be the second revival within the year which Mr. Norris has preached in his own church, the church membership is backing him enthusiastically.

Revival services will be held each evening at 7:30 except Saturdays. The public is invited.

she carried on an aggressive war on territory of the Soviet union. The Finns have won back virtually all the soil they lost to Russia by the peace of March, 1940. If they seek more, Britain will consider them as Axis members, the foreign office warned.

Two more Frenchmen were shot in Paris for illegal possession of firearms, and the Brussels press reported execution of 30 "Communist" hostages in Belgium and northern France for stealing explosives with which to attack trains.

Two Germans were executed for listening to foreign radio broadcasts.

Reinhard Heydrich, chief of security and right hand man to Heinrich Himmler in the German Gestapo, was appointed Reichs protector of Bohemia and Moravia, replacing Baron Konstantin von Neurath. His health was the ostensible reason for the retirement of the chief of those remnants of the republic of Czechoslovakia.

A court at Avignon, France, sent 14 persons to prison on charges of Communism.

In Italy, a bread rationing was ordered effective next Wednesday in addition to rationing of shoes and clothing. Spaghetti long has been rationed. Taxes were increased and the Mussolini regime took steps to weed out suspect Fascists from public office.

A British compilation showed Italy had lost 29 troop and supply ships in the Mediterranean in September, plus 30 badly damaged.

The RAF also continued active blows at Germany, reporting destruction of 21 German planes in day-long sweeps over northern France, with a loss of 14 British machines. This followed bombings of the Rhineland and northern France Friday night. The Germans broadcast a loss of 17 British planes.

Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini exchanged telegrams of felicitation with Premier Prince Fumimaro Koye in observance of the first anniversary of the signing of the German-Japanese-Italian tripartite pact.

The Japanese observed the anniversary very quietly, and a prominent newspaper commentator, Tei-ichi Muto of Hochi, suggested that if the Axis aims for a "new world order" were to be realized Germany had better fix up a peace with Russia and turn all her energies against Britain.

The Japanese military command announced capture of Changsha, capital of Hunan province, in hand-to-hand fighting with the Chinese defenders. The city was the objective of a new Japanese drive after two years of comparative quiet since the Japanese suffered one of their worst defeats of the war in that area in October, 1939.

Shortly before the Japanese made their claim, a Chinese spokesman said the Chinese still firmly held Changsha.

Meanwhile, British nationals sailed from Japan for home on a special evacuation ship after undergoing a rigid personal search by Japanese authorities.

TAX ROAD

When visitors come for a game of bridge, he will pay a levy of 13 cents a pack for cards. When he wants to take a picture of his family there will be the 10 per cent photographic apparatus.

The telephone bill will go up—5 per cent on local bills and 10 per cent on most long distance calls—and a new typewriter will invoke the 10 per cent tax on business machines.

If Mr. Jones is a laundry operator he will have to pay 10 per cent more for his washing machines, but he could buy one for his home without tax.

Keeping a safe deposit box will cost him 30 per cent of the rental price, and belonging to his club might bring on the 10 per cent levy by the assembled crowds awaiting his arrival, paying tribute again to Mr. Warren.

Other distinguished guests at the barbecue included U. S. Rep. Gene Worley, Shamrock; State Rep. Ennis Favors, Pampa; State Sen. Grady Hazlewood, Amarillo; State Rep. Richard Craig, Miami; Dr. J. A. Hill, Canyon; and Col. E. A. Simpson, of Amarillo; James Donohue, Tyler, executive vice president of the Texas Press Association; and Deskins Wells, Wellington, secretary of the Texas Press Association.

60,000 Fans May See Nova-Louis Bout Monday

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP)—Touching off a loaded sports week that has Pa. Knickerbocker's children going around foggle-eyed, Joe Louis and Lou Nova tangle in the Polo Grounds at 9 p. m. (CST) Monday before what may turn out to be one of the top dozen fight crowds of all time.

Chortling over a combination of things that has brought the good old days back to the business of bashing heads, Promoter Mike Jacobs officially estimated today he wouldn't be at all surprised if close to 60,000 customers clipped in a gross gate within hog-calling distance of $600,000 to see what will be Louis' last fight for eight or nine months, possibly the last of his great career.

Leading off with the fact that there's a lot of ready money around, everything hooked together just dandy to make this the biggest financial affair since Louis put on his big rouse scene with Max Baer three years ago. Of course, $600,000 doesn't live on the same street with the $2,500,000 Dempsey and Tunney drew, but it's still a mighty nice touch.

Heading the list of lures which have attracted the faithful is Nova, big, strong and determined as a horse-purter putting his case—deuced on a three-to-five shot. He is rated by many experts as the strongest challenger to take a crack at the Brown Bomber since Joe climbed to the world heavyweight throne over gallant Jim Braddock's flattened form in 1937. Secondly, the world series follows this nose-busting extravaganza into town by just two days.

Finally, the lure of Louis still is box office magic. Up to this week, the fists with which he has stiffened 46 of 54 opponents and successfully defended the fight game's richest prize 18 times for an all-time record, have attracted 11 gates of more than $300,000. Except any possible exhibitions that may come along, he won't do his stuff for the public again until next May at the earliest, when he may meet up with Billy Conn once more, or with the winner of a Conn-Nova get-together.

Gus Pan realizing he may even decide to hang the gloves up for good with a term in the army in sight, don't want to miss the finish. Louis ruled a 5 to 12 favorite along the 49th street betting stores. He may have slipped some, and he may have looked like only 20 cents worth of the old Louis in his last trip to the post, but he still can whistle those shots off his fists.

Largely because of that, and the fact that during a three-month lay-off he forgot about the fight game and just vacationed—except for the time he spent straightening out his marital mix-up with Marva—he is this corner's choice to chalk up the 19th defense of his record run by chopping the California giant down in six rounds or less.

herance of the defense program. But," the congressman emphasized, "there are criminals in the labor unions who are there for the sole purpose of fattening their purses and who attempted to keep a man from working when he wants to. I believe in the right of every man to work as long and for whom he pleases."

Mr. Worley said that Texas, and the Panhandle in particular, had the most conscientious, most patriotic labor class in America. "I wish the east had the kind of laboring class we have in the Panhandle—I would like to fill the eastern defense plants with our kind of labor. I would like to take them back to the east just to show the nation how quickly we could get this defense production into high gear."

"That is the reason, Mr. Worley said, why the Panhandle of Texas should be allocated defense plants. "We have the fuel, the water, and all the facilities, including a laboring class that is without parallel."

He emphasized that the allocation of defense projects is strictly a business proposition. "I think that every member of congress would resolve himself into a one-man uprising if he thought for a moment that the projects were awarded on a political basis, or any other basis except business."

Mr. Worley pointed out that he is working for the interests of the entire Panhandle and not any one section. He recounted his efforts to bring defense or industrial projects to the Panhandle, and stated his belief that in time his efforts and the efforts of the many people who are taking the lead in this would be rewarded.

There was rare attention as Mr. Worley read quotations of vertising men, and reporters were asked to stand and be introduced, preceding the governor's speech.

Press Praised

Governor Stevenson commented on the profession's commendation of the "virile, active press" of the state.

Representative Ennis C. Favors, Pampa, of the 122d district, introduced the governor.

"He is truly a self-made man," said Rep. Favors. "As a mere boy he started a freight line between Brady and Junction, then was a bank janitor, and rose to be president of that bank."

"Twice he has been speaker of the house. He was elected lieutenant-governor in 1938 and in that capacity presided for two terms over the senate."

Presents Given Coke

There were two presents given the governor. One was a 233-foot cake given by the Puritan Bakery, and inscribed, "With our compliments to Coke Stevenson."

The governor cut a slice of the cake, after which those at the luncheon were invited to get a slice of the cake as they passed out of the cafeteria.

A framed photograph, taken only a few hours in advance of the luncheon was the second present. The picture was taken on the east steps of the Pampa city hall. In the picture were the governor, Rep. Favors, Senator Grady Hazlewood of Amarillo, Rep. Dick Craig of Miami, Mayor Thompson, Rep. Paul Eubanks of Matador, Frank Culberson, president of the Pampa Board of City Development, Wilma Jean Favors, small daughter of Rep. and Mrs. Favors, County Judge Sherman White, and Rep. B. D. Thornton of Mt. Pleasant.

Inspects High School

After the luncheon, the governor was taken on an inspection tour of Pampa's new $400,000 high school, before leaving for Borger where he was the honor guest at a barbecue given Saturday afternoon by the Texas Press association complimenting their president, David M. Warren, Borger newspaper publisher and banker.

Governor Stevenson was met in Amarillo Saturday morning and accompanied to Pampa by Mayor Favors, and Senator Hazlewood. The party made the trip to Pampa in the governor's automobile, arriving here about 10:30 o'clock.

Mayor Presides

Mayor Thompson presided at the luncheon. Introduction of out-of-town groups was conducted by BCD President Culberson. Opening the luncheon was the invocation by the Rev. Edgar Henshaw, pastor of St. Matthew's Episcopal church.

During the meal, cowboy songs were played by the Guthrie trio. A radio broadcast of the governor's speech was given over Radio Station KFDN.

Scouts On Duty

Pampa Boy Scouts served as escorts for the governor, helped in seating the crowd, and were doormen at the high school building. Scouts performing these services were Buster Walker, Jack Jones, and Bill Bellamy, all of Troop 17; Gene Barber and Gene Grist, both of Troop 16; Jimmy Wanner, Carl Tillstrom, and Jack Roberts, all of Troop 14.

Out-of-town visitors were introduced by one person from each town giving the names of the persons from that town.

Represented at the luncheon were delegations from Borger, Panhandle, Miami, Wheeler, McLean, Shamrock, and Clarendon.

Worley's Campaign Manager
Congressman Eugene Worley received enthusiastic applause when he was introduced, after which he called for, and met, Johnny Campbell, Pampa Junior high student, who works in the "campaign manager," because of his work in the campaign of "Mr. Worley goes to Washington."

Other introductions included those of Ernest Boyett, secretary to the governor, Harry Crozier of Paint Rock, newspaperman, and all legislative members at the luncheon.

Introduction of newspapermen was by Mr. Warren, who amazed the luncheon crowd by correctly calling the names of all but one of the profession.

ber of Commerce Industrial committee discussed with Mr. Worley and Mr. Adams the possibilities of bringing defense plants and industries to the Panhandle. Mr. Worley and Mr. Adams promised definite help, and Mr. Adams said that he would assign technical experts of the Phillips Petroleum company to assist Pampans. The first thing the chamber of commerce will do will be to find out what projects remain to be built.

"It's getting pretty late, now," Mr. Adams said. "Most of the heavy train has already gone by."
Members of the industrial committee are now making plans to negotiate for the possible construction of several chemical plants in this area.

At the noon luncheon Mr. Adams was presented with a pair of tan boots made in Pampa by F. O. Gurvey. Mr. Adams was introduced by Sid Patterson, who made arrangements with the Phillips president to come to Pampa. Mr. Culberson introduced Mr. Worley.

Mr. Adams said that it was the first pair of boots ever given to him. He declared they fit perfectly and immediately put them on and wore them the remainder of the day.

In his response, Mr. Adams said that he had always heard that Pampa's chamber of commerce was at the top of them all and that now he knew that to be true. He invited Pampans to come to Bartlesville and visit the Frank Phillips museum.

He said the Phillips company would do everything it could for the Panhandle.

Probably the most significant remark made by Mr. Adams was that the Phillips industries in the Panhandle are permitted and when there is no more oil left Phillips will be running it in. He pointed out that Phillips does not run any oil out but uses all it can get here. The greater allowance the Panhandle gets, he said, the more permanent facilities will be built, and the greater will be the permanent stability of the Panhandle.

The lower auditorium was filled to capacity and many could not be seated at the table. John Osborne introduced numerous visitors from nearby towns. A dozen high officials of the Phillips company attended, also heads of carbon black plants in Borger.

FRED MACMURRAY AND ERROL FLYNN head the cast of Warner Brothers spectacular new air drama, "Dive Bomber," filmed in Technicolor. The pic will have its first local showing today at the LaNora theater. It's timely, and Michael Curtiz's direction is smooth. There are tense diving scenes. Some idea of the size of the pic is contained in The Film Daily's comment that "Robert Lord, in his production chore

McLean Woman Dies Of Injuries In Fall

Special To THE NEWS
McLEAN, Sept. 27—Mrs. W. C. Cheney of McLean met her death Thursday night when she fell down the basement steps of her residence in the city, where she had resided many years.

Survivors of the elderly lady include her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Tom Ashby of McLean, and four grandchildren.

About 90 per cent of the trousers sold have cuff buttons.

GEORGE STEVENS' ROMANTIC STORY, "Penny Serenade," which stars Irene Dunne, with Cary Grant, now returns to Pampa today and tomorrow at the State. The Columbia picture tells a story covering 10 years, and the gradual passage of time is denoted by Stevens with the music hits and dances of the day that were then in vogue. These include "Missouri Waltz," "Penny Serenade," and "That Old Gang of Mine"; dances are the Charleston, turkey trot, shimmy, one-step, and the black bottom.

"THREE FACES WEST"—with John Wayne, Sigrid Gurie, and Charles Coburn featured, opens the week's program at the Crown. On Wednesday and Thursday the Crown is showing "Ellery Queen, Master Detective," with Ralph Bellamy, Margaret Lindsay, and Charles Grapewin. It's a Columbia-Dar-mour picture, 66 minutes, latest in the Ellery Queen series. Faced with the doctor's decision that death is imminent within two months, John Braun, noted physical culturist, makes a new will, cutting off his daughter's inheritance, in order to thwart her marriage to his own doctor, who has unbeknownst to the rest, faked the rays that prove Braun's illness. Disappearance of the will, Braun's murder, disappearance of his body, Queen's entry into the case, all mix into a final denouement. Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette come to the Crown screen Friday and Saturday in "The Old Corral."

WARNER BROTHERS' "DIVE BOMBER," NAVY AVIATION STORY, OPENS TODAY

Fred MacMurray and Errol Flynn Starring in Exciting Technicolor Production, Expertly Directed By Michael Curtiz; All Performances Good In Magnificent Film By BROWNWOOD EMERSON

The thrilling world of roaring planes, 400 mile an hour speed, is glamorized up to the hilt in Warner Brothers 133-minute air spectacle, "Dive Bomber," starring Errol Flynn and Fred MacMurray, opening a four-day run today at the LaNora.

Besides the stars, other attractions of the film are that it shows of the most beautiful Technicolor yet seen and it is timed right up to the teletype.

Michael Curtiz' direction is smooth and during the diving scenes, tense.

Performances are all good. Flynn takes top honors for smooth acting.

The story: Flynn, a naval surgeon, loses a patient, injured in a dive bombing demonstration crash in which he "blacked-out," and becomes the subject of the flier's pals' ire.

Because he is interested in flying, he enlists in aviation and takes instructions from his enemies, MacMurray and Regis Toomey.

Through a series of incidents in which he proves his ability to take it and his earnest desire to further the cause of aviation medicine, he wins MacMurray's friendship only to be forced to ground him for ill health.

MacMurray, realizing he will not be able to fly much longer, takes up a plane to test an altitude suit he and Flynn have invented and is killed.

However, before he crashes he scribbles the secret of why the suit failed and is awarded, posthumously, a decoration for his valor.

A heart-warming dramatic story is Paramount's 90-minute, "Reaching for the Sun," with Joel McCrea, Ellen Drew, and Eddie Brackman. It's on the Rex screen Wednesday and Thursday.

With lost of laughs, the pic is first-rate entertainment. McCrea is fine in the lead role, that of a backwoods claudigger who goes to Detroit merely to earn enough money to buy an outboard motor.

Miss Drew is both pretty and wholesome to look at, and competently carries off her role as a wise city girl who marries the backwoodsman.

A corking comedy touch is turned in by Eddie Backen, and Albert Dekker does well in a small role.

"One Foot In Heaven" World premiere of Warner Brothers' "One Foot In Heaven," will be held Thursday night at the Earle theater in Washington, D. C. Fredric March and Martha Scott are co-starred in this screen version by Hartzell Spence.

The author was for a long time manager of the special service bureau of the United Press. In one respect the book is an autobiography, since this is the author's own story as well as that of his father.

Carl E. Milliken, director of the community service department of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., lauds the film in a letter to the screen editor of The Pampa News. Says the director:

"One Foot In Heaven" may well be described as the biography of any or all Protestant ministers whose service to religion has encompassed the past 50 years of almost revolutionary change in our thought and way of life. In short, this minister and his family are the actors on a stage which is America, itself doing a play in which the theme is the evolution of Main street as that has been influenced by the continuing guardian shadows of the spires of our churches.

SERIAL STORY

BRIDE FROM THE SKY

BY HELEN WELSHIMER

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Judy Allen has bailed out. Floating through the sky in the wedding dress she was wearing when impulsive sister Sandy Ammerman kidnaped her an hour before she was to marry handsome, stable attorney Philip Rogers, magazine career girl Judy is making her escape from Sandy, whom she once thought she loved. Rumors romantically linking Sandy with heiress Peg Gordon decided Judy on marrying Phil, convinced her that Sandy was just an infatuation. Now, floating earthward, she is in real danger, because as Sandy climbs his plane to give her parachute—she has invented—plenty of room, she sees below her, at a strange airport, another plane, ready to take off in her path.

IN REAL TROUBLE

CHAPTER XVIII
JUDY pulled on the parachute with all her strength as she came down, the rising sound of the motors following her. No, she decided, she couldn't bear to the south enough to save herself.

Sandy had done this to her... Sandy whom she hated.

A great silver light picked her up then, and she realized she was being placed in the center of a searchlight to call the attention of the oncoming pilot to her fate.

She watched the strange plane start down the runway, turn, come to a sudden halt that rolled it over on its side, crashing a little dizzily as it took this unexpected and undeserved punishment. Two men, bewildered and bruised, climbed from the injured airplane.

And she, Judy Allen, associate editor of Under Twenty, was floating down to earth like a white moth or an angel.

She wasn't afraid suddenly. She didn't mind descending from the purple sky in her wedding dress, clinging to a parachute. When she touched the ground, she became aware that one white satin slipper was gone. Lost in the flight. Or maybe left in Sandy's plane. She was glad that the train on her wedding dress concealed her unslipped foot. The earth was cold, though.

She must look funny—a bride who took to hurtling earthward. She started to laugh and could not stop.

Why, there were hundreds of people at the airport to watch her.

Yet there was an air of unreality about the scene.

A dozen hands had released her from the parachute as it touched earth. Amazed voices began an artillery of questions.

"Oh boy, what a story! 'Bride Falls From Sky!' a newspaperman crowed.

"Talk about luscious art!" Now a photographer spoke, focusing his camera on Judy's face.

THERE was a newsreel truck present, too, and the operator was just winding up the crank. Looking around more carefully, Judy realized that a dozen news cameramen had been on hand to make her arrival everlasting.

Judy found her voice. It sounded strangled, though she fought for a casual tone. "Who told you I was taking off from Capricorn?"

"Nobody told us. We've all been waiting around for a couple of movie stars coming in from Hollywood."

"It's a bridal couple. Maybe she jumped, too," somebody else said as his flashlight exploded.

"You're aces, sister." Another voice cleared itself of the motley tones. "Come on, give us your name and town and why you were your flying leap."

Judy ignored the questions. Her wild brows were drawn into a sudden, startled line. She would be in the tabloids and the movies now instead of the rotogravure section where Judy Allen belonged.

Phil would wipe the grounds up with Sandy. Or maybe it would be the other way.

It would be best to get Sandy behind four strong walls as quickly as possible. Not the kind of walls that made a home, either.

The wide field, the darkness pierced with tall balls of guiding lamps, the murmur of the water in the distance, the people who kept appearing from everywhere—all this made Judy feel that she had dropped down to a strange, weird place.

Her bronze curls blew around her shoulders, her eyes smoldered with purple fire, her white dress was thin and it was fragile.

"Is there a phone near?" she asked, all the haughtier because her stockinged foot stood partly in a mud puddle. "And I want to swear out a warrant for someone's arrest."

Everybody laughed at that except a heavy-set man who had elbowed his way through the crowd. "Can't give you the second request, sister," he stated bluntly. "But you can't get away with a phony landing!"

"Phony landing!" She stamped the foot that still wore a slipper. "That's the idea. It's your own arrest that's taking place. We're taking you to Headquarters now, this minute."

THE whole crowd of people seemed to have taken the incident as a public show by this time. People were following Judy, pushing against her, tearing pieces of lace so lavishly that at last she turned to one of the officers and let him clear a path.

The siren on the police car sounded eerie and dangerous as the patrol rushed through the streets of the town. A crowd collected quickly when the patrol wagon drew up at the station. Judy hung back.

"Disperse the audience, please," Judy moaned. "I invited my own friends to my wedding."

"When was that?" another officer asked. "Eve'ybody come?"

"I don't know. I couldn't make it." She didn't let a tear trip her sweet, husky voice.

A moment later she realized the seriousness of her offense. The airport police charged that she had been endangering lives and holding up transportation.

"We've had enough outrageous pranks of this kind," the desk sergeant explained. "This morning a debutante got hold of a fire engine and went with her gang for a joy ride. You need a lesson—you and your kind. Holding up real aviation."

There were more words. Something was said about Judy's bail being arranged at the police court in the morning, and suddenly she was placed in a cell, the barred door closed, and the jailer turned his rusty key.

KPDN

Radio Chat

Oh, Boy! Bill said the whole column was mine today... to say what I please. Gee, this is gonna be fun!

Now, let's see, what would you like to talk about... huh? Our programs?—we got some new ones, or—wait a minute... how would you like to take a trip behind the scenes of KPDN? I mean, meet our personnel—bet you haven't met half of us. Why don't you come up more often? We're nice people and we don't bite! Like to come along today? You accept? Okay, give me your hand... here we go!

Yes, we're gonna install an elevator some day, but until it comes along, we'll have to climb these stairs. Well, here we are... come on in...

The desk here on the left is mine—darned, I thought I cleaned that off when I left... well, anyway, I'm not going to start talking about myself and duties right now, so let's go over here. Now, here's Mr. Kreiger's office—the boss... Herman's a swell fellow... know what?—he holds down two jobs... yeah, that's right. He's both Manager and Chief Engineer. His hobby is horses... he's got several. But look, don't think you can trust him not to tell anybody if you take a pillow out to ride one of 'em—he'll tell you and add to it! Take it from me!

Now this office here—what? the desk tops? Well, they were all clean this morning—I dunno—but well know so fast and furious all day—well you know... Now, over in this corner we have Miss Dean Weiss. You know, she was the Jorga Peach in the Fiesta. She writes copy and sells advertising and is a pretty capable person. No, I don't think she ever lived in Arkansas... just likes to take her shoes off... helps her to concentrate. Who's this one? Oh, that's Johnny John Wells, to be formal. He's our Commercial Manager—you've seen him, haven't you... running in and out of places over town with his little broom case under his arm? He was Pampa's very slight bachelor, till Helen Blacklock took him for better or worse a while back. Helen's a knockout, prettier than Ginger Rogers!

Hey, slow down, Bill, that can wait! Want you to meet some people. This is Bill Browne, folks... Oh, you've already met? Oh, of course, you met him first on the Sports Picture and have gotten to really know him on the baseball and now the football broadcasts. Confidentially, as soon as we get out of his hearing range, I'll tell you that Bill is a most versatile sort of person. Besides his sports broadcast, he handles two newscasts daily. Yeah, and remember the Staff Frolic we used to have?—Bill was perfect as Boke, the toughie, and he's still entertaining organizations over the country as Lord Cedric Bassington Blinksinop! Bawler!

Shall we move on? Okay, this way. Let's look in here. Hi, Claudia. I present Claudia Bengue with a word of warning... choose your words carefully, if you let anything personal slip, you'll find yourself on her "What's Doing Around Pampa" program. Cute, isn't she? We all like her around here. Claudia, shall I mention they oughta listen to your 10 a. m. program, "The Woman's Page of the Air"? Okay, I will.

Wanna see our Control Room? That's where we'll find the rest of the staff. Let's go through this studio and here we are... There's Ray Monday and Lester Aldrich. Be silly of me to ask you if you know them... they're in your homes every day (we hope). Ray practically grew up with KPDN... nice guy to have around. I like his voice, don't you? Besides being Chief Announcer, he's our Program Director. Funny thing about Ray... you'd think, wouldn't you... that after 5 1/2 years of hearing music 7 days a week, the dope didn't grow tired of it... but, no siree... Practically every afternoon when we're off the air Ray goes in, warms up the Turntables, slips on a disc, wanders out and says, "Listen to this, Miss Blue. Boy, that's pretty!" Beats me!

Lester hasn't been around with us long, but I think he likes us. Takes his job pretty seriously and is really a conscientious worker. A lady called the other day and said she thought he sounded like Major Bowes. For-got to tell Lester about that... Well, let's stroll back through the lobby. Lowell got down off that chandelier! He nearly drives me crazy doing things like that! See that sign on the door. "Stop, have you covered your typewriter?" That's Lowell! Makes him sore when we don't... he's our janitor. See that freshly made newspaper file over there... that's Lowell! He's our Carpenter! See him in there in the Control Room now... He's our Control Operator, too! Last name? Fendrick...

Well, guess you've heard about everybody... shall we...? Ah, you're kidding, you don't wanna hear about me... you do? Well, I'm Elleta Bullard, but if you hear something about Miss Blue, I'm afraid that's me, too. I'm the gal whose voice usually greets you on the telephone... who prepares tomorrow's work sheets and questions for the street broadcast, and who performs a number of other such duties. Yeah, I'm practically my own boss up here except between the hours of 8 and 5. So much for me!

Oh, must you go? Wish you had time to run out to the transmitter with me. George Fenner is out there. He's our engineer. Capable one, too. Gotta a wife with red hair named Mabel. Nice mild temper, though, despite her hair. They're newlyweds!

There's another gal on the staff, incidentally. She's over at the Burger office. She's married, too, has a nice husband and two of the cutest red-headed kids. She does a sweet job of pounding the piano. Her name is Jerry Dunaway.

Well, look, we're glad you decided to come up and meet everybody. You did? Thanks, I think they are, too. Come see you sometime? Aw, you're kidding, aren't you? We're in your home every day. So long! longuh, kxvin-haidHime...youdeaiG

Well, thanks, Bill, for the space, and thanks, folks, out there for listening! Hey, where am I? What I mean is, thanks for readin'!

A few Sundays ago we mentioned that there were to be guest columnists in this corner. Finally we have one. She is Miss Elleta Bullard, secretary and smile girl in KPDN's front office. Take it away, Miss Blue... BB

(By The Associated Press) New Style In Caddies HARTFORD, Conn.—Just as the Hartford Golf club was beginning to become alarmed because defense jobs had created a caddy shortage, a pair of young women showed up and announced they were available as bag-keepers.

Super-Salesmanship TAMPA, Fla.—A kind but practical Tampa woman took three motherless kittens to the humane society, planning to give them away. But society officials performed a job of super-salesmanship and when the woman went home she had: The three kittens, she started out with, plus a mother cat that had lost her kittens, plus two other orphan kittens.

Hi-eh EUREKA, Mont.—The siren was going full blast but not a peep came from the motor when the fire engine finally reached Mrs. William Porter's blazing home. En route, the engine stalled. A passing truckman towed it to the fire in time to save the family wash, dripping on a backyard line.

Traffic Bouncer LOS ANGELES—Ed Townsend has a system all his own of dealing with speeders.

There is no traffic signal at a busy intersection near Townsend's service station. To protect his own two youngsters and those of his neighbors he appointed himself crossing watchman for two hours each day.

He rules with a rubber mallet—with which he whams the fenders of drivers who refuse right of way for the children.
