Liberals, conservatives at odds as session opens

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House liberals and the conservative forces of Bill Clayton, newly elected to an unprecedented fourth term as speaker, are starting the new legislative session in anything but an era of good feeling. The big event of the 67th Legislature's opening day Tuesday was Clayton's re-election as speaker, climaxing his rebound from the FBI's Brilab "sting" investigation. Clayton, acquitted of corruption charges by a federal court jury in October, told the assembled state representatives it was "only by God's grace" that he stood before them again as their presiding officer. Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, allowed his name to be placed in nomination for speaker but after all the speeches were done, he withdrew. Bryant said he knew he would lose and wanted his pledged supporters to feel free to save their political necks by voting for Clayton. Still, 26 representatives went on record as voting against Clayton's election by acclamation. Clayton is expected to maintain tight control over the process that will draw the districts in which House members will be elected in 1982. But the speakership election didn't put an end to liberal-conservative warfare. Far from it. Bryant's chief ally, Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, was ringleader of a group of 35 representatives, predominantly liberal, who blocked a routine resolution suspending the constitutional order of legislative business. With the constitutional rule in place, the House will need a hard-to-get four-fifths majority — 120 votes — to take up a bill for floor action in the first 60 days of the session. Rep. Buck Florence, D-Hughes Springs, said this meant the House would "waste a great deal of the taxpayers' money the first 60 days due to the fact that we will be virtually crippled." Coleman said the liberal minority would continue the delaying action until Clayton's "team" agreed to talks on organizing the House along party lines. That would mean a Democratic caucus would select a majority leader and exercise considerable control over legislation, taking some power from the speaker. "I don't bother me. I don't care if we don't pass legislation," Clayton said of the liberals' maneuver. He said Coleman's idea of a Democratic caucus had "some merit" but his advisers felt the time for party organization would come when the Republican minority of 36 grew to about 50 members. Later in the day, many of Clayton's committee chairmen and other conservatives packed a meeting of the House Study Group, which had planned to elect a new chairman. Bryant was chairman until the new session began Tuesday. The Study Group provides its members — who pay its expenses from their House operating allowances — with research reports and bill analyses, generally regarded as factual and neutral. Bryant said he wasn't all that interested in running for chairman again, but he clearly was agitated that conservative Rep. Ray Keller, D-Duncanville, wanted the job. Keller brought lots of friends, but the temporary chairman, Rep. Mary Polk, D-El Paso, said they couldn't vote unless they had joined the study group by Monday. Eleven joined Tuesday. There were lots of expressions of outrage by conservative newcomers to the group and by old hands who resented what they said looked like an attempted takeover. "If you are going on with this demagoguery, that would be tantamount to what is going on in Iran," Florence told Ms. Polk after she again refused to allow new members to vote. "I don't appreciate anybody walking in and trying to stack the deck," Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio, told the Clayton lieutenants. Ms. Polk adjourned the meeting without action, leaving herself and a temporary steering committee in charge until a chairman can be elected later in the session. The study group has had trouble with the Clayton administration before, and once almost was shut down by a ruling that deprived it of funding. Clayton rescued it on that occasion but insisted it remain neutral on legislation, which most agree it has done. Some, however, think Bryant used study group reports to his advantage in the speaker's race. And some old hands believe the group would be better off without any active speaker candidate at its head. Things were much more peaceful in the Senate. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby appointed the nine committees that will screen bills, with one key selection being that of Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, to head the Jurisprudence Committee. The committee will receive Gov. Bill Clements' wiretap bill. Hobby opposes the bill. So does Mauzy. Senators also went through the ceremonial task of naming a president pro tempore — assistant presiding officer. The job, rotated among senators in order of seniority, went to Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin.

College segregation study may popularize protested Whaley bill

By DEBORAH BRIDGES Staff Writer Tomorrow's release of a two-year-old state study on the segregation of state-supported colleges and universities may ultimately boost the popularity of a controversial bill proposed by local State Representative Foster Whaley, the legislator said today. Whaley said if government officials rule segregation does exist in the state's higher education system, the most probable course taken by the feds will be threats of cutting off federal funds, unless the institutions come up with integration plans. "Pouring money to a segregated institution will not solve the integration problem, though," Whaley protested. He said higher courts have ruled "separate but equal facilities does not equal the law set down by the U. S. constitution." The representative's bill — to be filed with the state legislature today — outlines the closing down of Prairie View A & M University for integration purposes, with provisions for a permanent education fund for needy black students. Whaley predicted his bill, which has already received favorable reaction from the floor of the House of Representatives, will become a model for the development of remedial plans in the segregation issue. First media accounts of Whaley's bill said the legislation would close Texas' two predominantly black colleges, Prairie View and Texas State University, bringing an outcry of indignation from supporters of the colleges. In fact, the bill — if passed — would phase out Prairie View over a three-year period, provide for monetary incentives to other universities for accepting students and teachers from the college and provide for a perpetual grant fund for black students from the proceeds of the sale of the facility. A stipulation in the proposed bill states transferring students would lose college credits if they enrolled in Texas State University. This is the only mention regarding the other segregated institution. Whaley said he chose Prairie View as the subject of the bill because of his knowledge of the institution. Texas State was not included in the proposal because of his lack of knowledge concerning the college, Whaley said, and added he believes both colleges should be eliminated to aid integration. "It will be difficult to desegregate as long as those two institutions stand," Whaley said. State officials have been given Jan. 15 as the deadline to release results of a 1978 investigation of segregation in higher education system. Gearing up for a potential dispute on the issue, F. Peter Libassi, a former federal civil rights enforcer and counsel to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, has been hired by the State Attorney General's office, according to recent reports. Libassi and Texas Attorney General Mark White are in Washington today reportedly negotiating with federal officials. Missouri and Kentucky have also been instructed to release reports on segregation in higher education by tomorrow. Last week, the Education Department said Alabama, Delaware, South Carolina and West Virginia retained vestiges of a segregated education system. The four states were instructed to develop remedial plans within 60 days.

Panhandle group charges safety risks at Pantex

By SHEILA ECCLES Staff Writer AMARILLO — Although no new information has been received on the future of a lawsuit initiated by a Panhandle environmental group against the U. S. Department of Energy for alleged environmental and safety violations at the Panhandle-based Pantex plant, the group is continuing to gather data on the incidence of cancer in this area and its relationship to certain kinds of jobs. "The Panhandle Environmental Awareness Committee (PEAC) is asking the Department of Energy to perform a full environmental impact statement on the operations at the Pantex facility which assembles nuclear weapons, according to PEAC attorney Betty Wheeler of Amarillo. The PEAC has filed the lawsuit to force the government to make public the safety risks involved at the Pantex plant, Ms. Wheeler said. PEAC members feel the problems generated at the local Pantex plant include hazards to local workers and residents of the Panhandle area. The hazards stem from the nature of nuclear materials and radioactivity. Radiation itself is deadly, but it can also cause cancer and other disorders. The potential for workers and residents to be exposed to radiation or other health hazards because of Pantex's operations is currently unknown, PEAC members allege.

Documents relating to the environmental impact of Pantex indicate there are several potentially hazardous conditions or activities which take place at the Pantex plant. "No one agrees more with the safety violation reports than the people living in the vicinity of the plant. Many of them complain that the bomb factory is technically obsolete, radioactively unstable, and is, therefore, more of a threat to residents in the Texas Panhandle than of the various enemies of the United States," Tom Tiede, a Newspaper Enterprise Association writer wrote in a recent article on the plant and dispute. "Pantex has also been worn by the elements. It is located 15 miles from Amarillo in one of the most hostile climates in the country," Tiede said. The PEAC members' concern is that Pantex operations may be affecting agriculture and the food chain in the area. Hundreds of cattle graze on Pantex land. This land, Pantex's own studies show, has higher-than-normal radiation levels. Waste waters, including water with radioactive wastes in it, are allowed to run into playa lakes, PEAC alleges. The Pantex plant was originally constructed in 1942 as an Army ordnance plant for conventional ammunition and bomb loading. Carroll Wilson of Amarillo, a former newspaper editor in Canyon, reported some weeks back that many of the hazardous conditions at the Pantex plant are also related to its age. One of every four buildings at the complex today was constructed during World War II. Pantex is now the nation's only final assembly plant for nuclear weapons. In addition to assembling the nuclear weapons systems, the Pantex plant designs, experiments with and tests weapons systems. Bomb components are manufactured at the facility. PEAC's position paper on the nuclear weapons manufacturing plant stated, "Nuclear wastes materials from bomb accidents and other incidents throughout the entire nation are also stored at Pantex." The PEAC position paper also reported that Pantex, "In the process of assembling nuclear weapons, plant employees detonate explosives, containing radioactive materials, into the open air." Worker safety has become an issue in the lawsuit particularly because of the emphasis that Pantex places on production over safety for workers, PEAC claims. In March 1977, three men were killed as a result of a machine accident in an assembly bay at the plant. One of the victim's widows, in a law suit filed in 1978, claimed that the explosion was the result of negligence on the part of the Department of Energy. The DOE itself admits the possibility of several kinds of explosions at the plant in an assessment of the environmental impact issued in 1976. The spread of nuclear materials by tornadoes in this area or through turbulent weather is also possible, the DOE has said. Defense officials have said that the suit is a serious matter. If the courts rule in favor of the PEAC, it might have a major effect on national security. If Pantex is not complying with safety and environmental regulations, the nation's only nuclear warhead assembly plant could conceivably be shut down. "Government officials believe the report might reveal classified information. They fear that a negative statement could aggravate an already delicate labor situation at Pantex," Tiede reported. "If the PEAC group wins their suit," a DOE spokesman said, "we'll see a chain reaction — every defense facility in the U.S. will be dragged into court." "Due to the slow federal court system in the Panhandle, we may not have our day in court for many months or even years," PEAC attorney Betty Wheeler said. "However, we are trying every avenue to get the suit heard in 1981," she said. "Residents in the Panhandle note that the Pantex suit may yet be settled out of court. Pantex is located on the approach to the Amarillo airport, and there is the ever-present danger of a plane crash. If that happens, residents feel there won't be anything left at the bomb factory, or in Texas to argue about," Tiede reported.

Iran to release - or try - hostages

By The Associated Press Iran's Parliament approved today one emergency bill aimed at clearing the way for release of the 52 American hostages and Iran's chief negotiator said, "We are going to release the hostages in the coming two or three days or try them." But Parliament adjourned until Sunday without acting on another measure proposed by the Iranian government, which indicated it was seeking to meet a Friday deadline set by the Carter administration for reaching an agreement before President Carter leaves office. Behzad Nabavi, Iran's chief negotiator in the 14-month hostage crisis, mentioned decisive action on the hostages in two or three days in what was seen by observers as an effort to push Parliament into action on both emergency measures. Later in the morning, a spokesman for the Majlis (Parliament) told The Associated Press in Beirut by telephone that the government "will decide on the future of the American hostages" Thursday or Friday. He refused to amplify his remark. Meanwhile, Swiss authorities issued an attachment order on a villa in St. Moritz owned by the family of the late shah of Iran. The order apparently was taken at the initiative of Iran's lawyers in Switzerland, but it was not known if the action was directly connected with negotiations to free the hostages. Tehran Radio reported in a commentary on the situation that in the waning days of his administration, Carter was "forced to deposit 70 percent of Iranian assets in U.S. banks with the Algerian national bank." The report did not elaborate and it was not clear if the commentator was outlining terms for an agreement or part of an effort to prepare Iranian public opinion for an accord. The Majlis approved a bill authorizing appointment of a third government to act as arbitrator to settle financial and legal claims between the United States and Iran. But despite Nabavi's prodding, it shelved until Sunday — after the Carter administration's deadline for an agreement — the other bill to nationalize the wealth of the late Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and his relatives. Nabavi told the deputies their failure to act on the second bill would delay the return of the shah's fortune to Iran. It was not known, however, whether approval of the legislation was necessary before an agreement with the United States could be reached. It is assumed that Algeria, which is acting as intermediary in the negotiations between the two countries, would be chosen to arbitrate their rival claims. Debate on the bills was postponed Tuesday because there were not enough members present from the 12-man Council of Guardians, which must give its assent to all legislation. A parliamentary source said there was no significance to this, that they had not been

Galer murder trial marked by objections

Russell Eugene Galer, accused of shooting a hitchhiker on Interstate 40 two years ago, stared ahead while chewing on his finger as attorneys wrestled over legal points during opening testimony of Galer's murder trial in 31st District Court here Tuesday afternoon. The jury — evenly divided in men and women — paraded in and out of the courtroom as defense attorney, Guy Hardin, objected to testimony from the state's witnesses. District Attorney Harold Comer repeatedly questioned his witnesses as to the demeanor and actions during Tuesday's testimony in an attempt to establish Galer's mental state at the time of the murder. Hardin, testifying Galer's sanity as a key issue in the case, vehemently objected to each question. He asked several times that the jury be taken from the room while reasons for the objections were heard by the court. Bill Turnbow of Shamrock, a self-employed trapper, said in his testimony that he had seen a man roll an "object" from a tank truck stopped on the shoulder of I-40 west, two and a half miles west of Shamrock at about 1:30 p.m., March 19, 1979. "I saw a man open the passenger side door of the truck, pull an object out and roll it over on the ground," Turnbow said. Pointing to the defendant, Turnbow identified the man who pulled the "object" out of the truck as, "this feller right here." Driving his pickup west on the service road running parallel with I-40, Turnbow said "I came on up to see what was happening, but I drove on when I realized it was a body on the ground." The trapper said Galer "raised up" and looked at him as he paused beside the body. Turnbow said he drove to the Lela exit overpass and attempted to get a license number from the tank truck as it drove under the overpass. "All I could get was U. S. government on top of it," he testified. Turnbow said the man was wearing dark clothing and had a beard. The defendant, dressed in a light print shirt, is beardless. Turnbow reaffirmed his identification, however, saying the eyes and the cheekbones are the same. "No sir, this is the feller," he said. Arthur Taylor, a former Wheeler County deputy sheriff, said he was on duty, standing in the office at the Shamrock Police Department when Turnbow reported the incident to dispatcher Lisa Jernigan. Taylor told the jury he and Constable Jerry Bob Jernigan went to the scene and found Hulen's body curled up on the side of the road. The dead man had been shot once near the left ear, the former deputy said. District Attorney Harold Comer's attempt to introduce photographs of the victim's body were objected to by Hardin, and a hearing on the objection was heard out of the jury's presence. Presiding judge Grainger McElhenny overruled the defense counsel's objection of the photos as "inflammatory" and "unnecessary." Testimony in the murder trial continued today at 9:30 a.m.

Temperature controls extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans shivering through their second winter with mandatory temperature controls where they work and shop will have to shiver at least a little longer.

President Carter extended the controls, which were scheduled to expire Friday, for another nine months Tuesday.

Whether the controls stay in effect anywhere near that long is far from certain, however. Ronald Reagan can undo Carter's action as soon as he takes office.

Reagan aides refused Tuesday to say what the president-elect will do, but during the campaign Reagan was critical of mandatory energy conservation efforts.

The controls, which have been in effect for 18 months, require thermostats in 2.8 million non-residential buildings to be set at 65 degrees in the winter and 78 degrees in summer.

Carter cited the continuing precarious world oil supply situation as justification for keeping the controls. By law the president can impose the restrictions no more than nine months at a time.

The controls were first imposed in July 1979, when many Americans were sitting in gasoline lines following the Iranian revolution.

Carter said the Iran-Iraq war and other Middle East tensions in the past few months have increased the "risks from reliance on insecure oil imports."

Although businesses that fail to comply with the controls may be fined, no penalties have been imposed. Nevertheless, the Energy Department says the program is saving the country 140 million barrels of oil annually, or 6 percent of U.S. imports a year.

DOE officials estimate the compliance rate for the program is 80 percent, based on 50,000 actual inspections. They say that of 68,000 telephone calls the department has received concerning the program, less than 1 percent have been complaints.

"This program is needed and it works. I just hope the president-elect gives us time to explain the benefits before he makes a decision on rescinding it," said Lorn Harvey, deputy DOE director of emergency conservation programs.

Jim Atkin, a member of the Reagan energy transition team, refused to say whether aides have made a recommendation to Reagan on keeping the controls.

But he said: "To the extent we can live our lives without having a federal regulation tell us how to live, then it is a better way to live."

The program covers all government and private office buildings, restaurants, shopping malls, theaters, airports, bus terminals and other establishments open to the public.

Residences, hospitals, hotel sleeping areas and day-care centers are exempt.

CBS winner in 'prime-time' battle

NEW YORK (AP) — With "Dallas" on top for the eighth time in 10 weeks, CBS was a clear-cut winner in the networks' prime-time ratings competition, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

CBS' margin of victory in the week ending Jan. 11 was slightly better than two points, 20.5 to 18.4 for runnerup NBC and 18.3 for ABC. A huge audience for "Dallas" cont'd to the gap.

The networks say CBS' rating means that in an average prime-time minute during the week, 20.5 percent of the nation's homes with television were tuned to the No. 1 network.

CBS now has been first or tied for first six weeks in a row, while NBC's No. 2 finish was the network's second straight after nine consecutive weeks in the ratings cellar.

The rating for "Dallas," which until three weeks ago had spent seven weeks as the No. 1 program, was 33.9, nearly four points higher than the score for the runnerup show, the American Football Conference championship between Oakland and San Diego on NBC.

Nielsen says the rating means of all the TV-equipped homes in the country, 33.9 percent saw at least part of "Dallas."

The highest-rated of the season's new series was "Too Close for Comfort" on ABC, in 17th place, with CBS' "Magnum, P.I." 23rd and "Flamingo Road" from NBC 24th.

Of the week's five lowest-rated programs, four were from new series and one was a special. ABC's "Breaking Away" was 64th, followed by "Freebie and the Bean" on CBS, a movie, "Momma the Detective" on NBC, CBS' "Secrets of Midland Heights" and "NBC Magazine with David Brinkley."

CBS and ABC maintain the 1980-81 season began Oct. 27, and CBS' average rating for the period is 20 to 18.3 for ABC and 16.6 for NBC. NBC argues the season started Sept. 15, despite the actors' strike, and by that standard, it's CBS 18.7, NBC 18, ABC 17.9.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

"Dallas," with a rating of 33.9 representing 26.4 million homes, CBS; NFL Playoff Game, Oakland vs. San Diego, 30.9 or 24 million, NBC; "Dukes of Hazzard," 29.8 or 23.2 million, CBS; "The Jeffersons" and "M-A-S-H," both 27.3 or 21.2 million, both CBS; "Love Boat," 25.9 or 20.2 million, ABC; "60 Minutes" and "Alice," both 25.2 or 19.6 million, both CBS; "Little House on the Prairie," 24.8 or 19.3 million, NBC, and "Trapper John, M.D.," 24.6 or 19.1 million, CBS.

The next 11 programs:

"One Day at a Time," CBS; "Fantasy Island," ABC; "House Calls," CBS; "Three's Company," ABC; "Diff'rent Strokes," NBC; "Lou Grant," CBS; "Too Close for Comfort," ABC, and "Lobo" and "Real People," both NBC, "Archie Bunker's Place," CBS, and "Laverne and Shirley," ABC, four-way tie.

East's super-cold continuing

A wave of super-cold air that has claimed at least 44 lives since Christmas continued its frosty assault on the East today, icing harbors from Maine to Chesapeake Bay, freezing Florida oranges by the millions and forcing up the prices of some shellfish.

The mercury dipped to 22 below zero in Massena, N.Y., early today after falling to record lows Tuesday in many Southeastern cities. Temperatures hit 7 in Wilmington, N.C., and 8 in Tallahassee, Fla. New England continued to register temperatures from the teens to below zero.

At least 44 deaths — most from exposure and over-exertion while shoveling snow — have been reported in 14 states since Christmas.

The cold meant trouble to people trying to travel in sluggish cars or buses and to people staying at homes affected by sporadic power outages and heating fuel shortages.

There were rotating power blackouts for some 250,000 homes in dozens of Florida communities as cold-weather demand strained generating plants.

In Massachusetts, Gov. Edward J. King declared a statewide energy emergency because of a natural gas shortage and urged residential customers of the state's largest gas company, Boston Gas Co., to keep thermostats at 63 degrees from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m. and lower at night.

Customers of Philadelphia Gas Works also have been asked to roll back thermostats to 20 degrees because of potential shortages.

New York City officials have logged nearly 10,000 telephone calls this week from tenants without heat or hot water.

Mass transit in many cities was affected by the cold — nearly one of every five scheduled subways and buses in New York City was disabled Tuesday by mechanical troubles from frigid temperatures.

As much as a fifth of Florida's orange crop — equal to 49 million gallons of concentrated juice — has been damaged by temperatures hovering in the 20s.

In the ice-bound harbors of New England, fishing fleets were trapped at the docks where ice floes uprooted piers and knocked holes in boat hulls.

Jenrette bills Abscam funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a dozen of the $100 bills the wife of former Rep. John Jenrette said she found in Jenrette's closet last week were part of the Abscam bribery money the South Carolina Democrat was convicted of accepting. The Washington Post today quoted sources as saying, Jenrette, who has denied taking money from FBI undercover agents, could not be reached for comment on the Post report. But he told the Post on Monday, "I can assure you if the money came from Abscam I'll walk into jail right now."

Jenrette said the $25,000 found by his wife, Rita, was from a variety of sources, including his law office, legal funds donated by friends and "money my mother gave me before she died." Rita Jenrette has said she is seeking a divorce from the ex-congressman.

The Post quoted its sources as saying that a complete check of the $100 bills by FBI agents on Tuesday showed some serial numbers matched those of money used in the Abscam investigation. A spot check on Monday had not found any matches.

One Justice Department official, noting that only part of the money found in Jenrette's closet was from the Abscam investigation, said the department is interested in finding out the source of the rest of the cash, the Post said.

"We're always interested in the source of $25,000 in cash in a congressman's closet," he said.

Drought feared by farmers, resort owners

BRIGHTON, Colo. (AP) — John Ehler rubbed his cheek and sighed as he bent over the green stubble growing in his furrowed wheat field.

"If we get some wind, we could lose the whole country," he said as he fingered a clod of dirt that refused to break.

Ehler, 49, a third-generation farmer on the eastern Colorado plains, was surveying what would have been a carpet of 4-inch-high winter wheat in a normal year. In a strange Colorado winter of shirt-sleeve weather days, however, it takes a close look to spot the beginnings of wheat in Ehler's dun-colored fields.

It is not a disaster yet, but danger is mounting for ski resort operators, farmers and possibly even cities like Denver, which is breaking winter water-use records as homeowners try to keep trees and shrubs healthy.

Nolan Doesken, assistant state climatologist at Colorado State University, said 5.12 inches of rain and snow fell in Colorado's central mountains between October and December, down from the average of 8.82 inches. Runoff from the high country snowpack provides most of Colorado's water.

Considering that 26.24 inches of precipitation usually falls between October and May in the mountains, the 3.7-inch shortfall at the end of December does not seem like much, Doesken said, but added, "If the mountains go another month, then it will get tough making up deficits."

Colorado resort operators are now worried a major snow drought may be in the offing. Most of the mountain resorts are surviving on man-made snow and long-made reservations, but the year-end holidays were a near disaster. Two Colorado ski areas have closed for lack of snow, and many are trying to stay open with 18 to 24 inches of snow instead of the 3 to 4 feet they normally have in January.

On the plains, farmers are taking advantage of the warm, dry weather to work on equipment, but many say they're feeling a bit panicky because there may not be enough water for spring and summer crops. Winter wheat farmers, who plant in the late summer or early fall and harvest in the next summer, need rain or snow soon to thwart the crisis taking shape.

On Ehler's farm, where the Rockies' shadowy peaks are visible through a smoky-blue haze, only 60 percent of the winter wheat crop of 1,500 acres has sprouted, for example. Ehler expects he will have to replant 450 acres this spring — if it rains. The last time it rained here was May 18 of last year, Ehler said. "I don't think 1976 was as bad as this," he added.

In the winter of 1976-1977, the situation was much the same as it is this year in Colorado — farmers waiting for rain and ski resort operators praying for snow to cover their patchy slopes.

The snow did not come that winter. Business on Colorado ski slopes dropped 38 percent, and resort areas and businesses wholly dependent on skiing reported losses of $78 million.

Agriculture losses were put at $120 million, and some 3 million acres of parched plains suffered serious wind erosion.

This year, there is still time for farmers to salvage their winter wheat — eastern Colorado's big cash crop — and for resort operators to have a good year. The hope of both is for a lot of moisture, and soon.

But the National Weather Service does not hold out much hope. A high pressure ridge parked over Utah and Idaho is pushing storms north of the Rocky Mountain region, said forecaster Doug Baugh. He said the ridge shows no sign of breaking up, which could signal major troubles for farmers who irrigate in the spring and summer.

Like many Colorado farmers, Ehler said his reservoirs are in good shape now, "but the subsoil being so dry, it won't go far." He said that if conditions do not improve, he will have to plant some grain crop other than his usual spring crop of corn, which requires a relatively high amount of water.

"If you don't get it in the winter, you won't make up for it in the spring and summer — water that is needed for irrigation," said Bernie Shafer, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service's snow survey supervisor in Denver.

Ehler put it in more succinct terms: "If it doesn't rain soon, it will be a disaster for Colorado agriculture."

Court refuses to narrow scope

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, refusing to narrow the scope of the lawyer-client privilege, ruled Tuesday that the Upjohn Co. does not have to surrender certain documents to an Internal Revenue Service investigation.

The decision likely will carry enormous practical impact for American business and the nation's legal profession.

The court reversed a ruling that would have forced Upjohn to hand over documents reportedly related to an IRS probe of $4.4 million in alleged bribes and kickbacks the pharmaceutical firm allegedly paid to government officials in 136 nations.

In other decisions, the court:

— Ruled unanimously that post-arrest discussions by law enforcement agents with a criminal defendant whose attorney is not present do not necessarily invalidate prosecution.

In a Philadelphia case involving a woman accused of selling heroin, the high court said it was not deciding whether such communications violated the defendant's constitutional right to legal counsel.

Reagan using Rose Parade expertise for inaugural parade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan is bringing in the brains behind the Tournament of Roses to put some snap into his inaugural parade.

Under the aegis of California building contractor Terry Chambers, who runs the Pasadena show, the Reagan parade promises to be the shortest, quickest and liveliest in recent memory. Instead of the standard 120 drum beats to the minute, bands will step off at the fast march pace used to speed college bands on and off the field during halftime at the big bowl games.

Well, in Washington at inauguration time it's always a good idea to get the show on the road as quickly as possible. The rule on the weather is to think lousy and plan accordingly. Nature has saved some of its most horrifying days for the installation of new presidents.

In 1841, William Henry Harrison donning a hat and cloak, caught his death of cold riding a white horse in the freezing rain that fell on his inaugural parade. This didn't deter him from delivering an hour and 45 minute inaugural address, still the longest on record. He attended three inaugural balls that night, and at one presided over the cutting of an 800-pound pound cake modeled after the capitol building. His funeral cortege, exactly one month later, was twice as long as his inaugural parade.

Fewer than a dozen people huddled under umbrellas, including faithful wife Sarah, heard James Polk shout his inauguration address into a torrential downpour. The balls that March night in 1845 were also a washout. There were supposed to be two of them, one at $10 a ticket for Washington high society and the other at $5 for the common folk. But someone forgot to invite the diplomatic colony. The diplomats demonstrated their pique by turning up at the $5 bash. The music stopped when the Polks entered the hall; conservative Southern folk, they didn't approve of dancing, drinking or card playing.

Cardinal Cushing's prayer script catching fire at John F. Kennedy's windswept swearing in, and Jimmy Carter, striding the length of Pennsylvania Avenue from the Capitol to the White House on foot.

But nature saved her worst for Ulysses S. Grant's second inaugural in 1873. The temperature hovered below zero all day. West Point cadets dropped out of the line of march with frost bite.

At the ball held in the "Muslin Palace," a huge unheated temporary marquee, instruments stuck to the lips of the musicians, the coffee froze over, the food congealed and guests danced in their fur coats and gloves. One lady reportedly froze to death. Hundreds of canaries hired to provide a triumphant chorus huddled in their cages and refused to chirp. Some dropped dead from their perches.

By midnight the guests had all gone home to thaw out.

Maybe the Reagans this time can import some California weather along with the parade experts.

State surplus forecast at $568 million

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock issued the new Legislature a revenue forecast Tuesday that said the state will have a $568.9 million treasury surplus at the close of this fiscal year on Aug. 31, 1981.

The surplus is included in the $27.9 billion total revenue, including $6 billion in federal funds, the state will receive in the two years that begin Sept. 1.

Not all that revenue may be spent — $1.7 billion will go into the Permanent University Fund and the Permanent School Fund. Only the earnings from investing those two funds may be spent.

The Legislative Budget Board has recommended biennial expenditures totaling $26.7 billion, which approximates the spending ceiling established by the Texas Constitution. A 1978 provision of the Constitution says state spending may not grow faster than the state's economy.

Bullock's forecast assumes Texas' economy will perform better in 1982 and 1983 than that of the nation as a whole, largely on the strength of the state's oil and gas industry.

"Good economic news more than offsets the bad news in economic projections for 1982 but the impact of the new national administration cannot be assessed at this time," he said.

Bullock predicted personal income in Texas would grow by 25.4 percent and retail sales would increase 26.2 percent over the two-year period, yielding sales taxes of $6.6 billion. Oil and gas taxes are expected to produce $5 billion, he said.

Bullock said his revenue estimates have become increasingly accurate and fell only 1.4 percent short of actual state income during the 1980-81 biennium.

There have been many bitter cold inauguration days. One recalls

Two Air Force planes crash in Germany

RAMSTEIN, West Germany (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force planes attached to bases in West Germany crashed today at separate sites and the fate of the crews was unknown. Air Force spokesmen said.

Nine people were believed aboard a C-130 American transport plane that crashed near Ramstein and two men were aboard a Phantom jet that crashed near the Spanish town of Molina, an Air Force statement said.

The C-130 crashed within the Weilerbach storage area just northeast of the air base here, the statement said, adding, "nine persons are believed aboard the aircraft and their condition is unknown at this time."

The crash site is in the vicinity of Kaiserslautern, a garrison town near the French-German border.

LEONID AND VALENTINA KOZLOV      GOV. FOB JAMES      MARTY ROBBINS

Names in the news

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Alabama Gov. Fob James, whose morning shave was interrupted by a neighbor seeking help with gun-toting burglars, says the hero of the day was a youth who got a good look at the getaway car.

James was in his private antebellum mansion Tuesday when a neighbor called him to the door.

"She was crying and saying there were burglars in the house and her husband was still in there," the governor's wife, Bobbie, said. As James called the police, a man identified as Jeff Cox came up and said he saw the burglars leave the home of Roger Herrick.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bess Truman, the oldest surviving former first lady, has walked for the first time since she was admitted to Research Medical Center on Dec. 30, hospital officials say.

Dr. Wallace Graham, the Truman family physician, said the 95-year-old widow of President Harry S. Truman took a few steps in her room Tuesday. He said that her condition was continuing to improve and that her spirits remained good.

Mrs. Truman is being treated for a urinary tract ailment and skin irritation, Graham said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Leonid and Valentina Kozlov, who defected from the Bolshoi Ballet in 1979, are joining the Australian ballet for the 1981 season.

Mrs. Kozlov made her debut with the company in Sydney last October as Anna in Andre Prokofyev's "Anna Karenina."

Company administrator Peter Bahen announced the signing of the Russian couple as principal artists on Tuesday.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country music singer Marty Robbins, recovering from a heart attack, may be able to go home by the end of the week, a St. Thomas Hospital spokeswoman says.

The 55-year-old Grand Ole Opry star was reported in fair condition Tuesday and won't have to undergo surgery, the hospital official said.

Meanwhile, Grand Ole Opry veteran Ernest Tubb, 66, was released from another Nashville hospital where he was treated for a mild case of pneumonia.

Selection of jury could stall

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A state district judge says he's happy that three jurors were selected from the first five potential panelists questioned in the capital murder trial of Billy Wayne Alexander, but cautions that jury selection may start slowing down.

State District Judge Bob Wright said Tuesday attorneys for the prosecution and defense had "a streak of luck" in agreeing on three jurors so quickly, but said he was afraid the process would "stall out."

"We might not get another one (juror) until Thursday," Wright said.

Alexander is charged with the Oct. 5 shooting of DPS trooper Jerry Don Davis of Slayton. The trooper was found shot to death in his car after making a traffic stop.

Attorneys Monday picked a 45-year-old mother of four who told the court she was active in the Mormon Church.

On Tuesday, the second juror selected was a 38-year-old hospital business manager who is also a deacon in the Baptist Church. The third panelist is a 23-year-old man who is an administrative assistant at a hospital.

The trial enters its third day of jury selection today. It was moved to Abilene after defense attorneys requested a change of venue.

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Guerrilla leaders fighting for independence for South-West Africa said they will go to the United Nations for mandatory economic sanctions against South Africa following the collapse of a conference called to arrange a cease-fire in the war for control of the big territory known also as Namibia.

The week-long conference was to end formally today. But it broke down Tuesday night when South African observer Danie Hough declared it was "premature" to fix a cease-fire date because of alleged U.N. bias toward the South-West African People's Organization, which has been fighting a guerrilla war for independence from South Africa for more than a decade.

SWAPO President Sam Nujoma was to address the final conference session before he and his delegation flew to New York to renew demands that the Security Council vote mandatory sanctions against

Memories haunt Coast Guard survivor

MIAMI (AP) — Sometimes, in the quiet of a night, the nightmares return and Ron Litterell relives another night, a moonlit evening almost a year ago when his sinking ship almost sucked him beneath the murky waters of Tampa Bay.

He recalls the sickening crash as an oil tanker's anchor gouged a great hole in the side of the Coast Guard cutter Blackthorn. He remembers the ship shuddering, then tilting as it rolled over and sank, so fast that most of the crew never had a chance to get to the life rafts.

The 31-year-old chief machinery technician was lucky. Along with 27 crewmates, he survived the worst peacetime disaster in the 190-year history of the U.S. Coast Guard. But it's the memory of the 23 men who died last Jan. 28 that haunts Litterell.

Capricorn's anchor hooked its side. It sank within minutes.

Litterell remembers scrambling above decks and leaping overboard into an oil slick that burned his eyes and skin, then helping other crewmates before scrambling to safety aboard a rescue boat.

After recovering from his physical injuries, Litterell was examined by the Coast Guard and ruled ineligible for sea duty, largely due to his uncertain mental state. He will be re-examined in two years.

"At that time, hopefully, everything will be OK," he said.

In a telephone interview from his Texas City, Texas, home, Litterell said he had just made a "long, hard decision" and extended his enlistment for two more years.

"It has been an up and down year, the Coast Guard trying to decide what I could do. You see, I couldn't re-enlist (for a four-to-six-year stretch) because of physical reasons. Though I'm getting better physically, I think it's better that I don't go back to sea right now," he said.

"To be in the position of a chief right now, I could probably go on a ship. But if an emergency would occur, could I compose myself from the memories I would have? I don't think it would be fair to the men looking to me for leadership to be wondering if I could compose myself."

"There's still a part of me that asks: 'Are you OK? What's going to happen to me in a similar situation?' Until I come to grips with that, I can't put others into that kind of situation," he said.

Litterell, who is awaiting assignment to active land duty, said he still longs to return to the sea.

"Part of me, being a family man...naturally I don't like to serve away," he said. "But I think you tend to be more comfortable at sea. You feel a closeness to your shipmates. There is a closeness in sea duty that you don't develop ashore."

"My hopes are that I will be able to handle the situation and the problems and that I'll be able to go back," Litterell said.

Since the accident, many of the enlisted men who survived have left the Coast Guard, Litterell said.

"Most of the ones I've kept in touch with have gotten out or are getting out," Litterell said. "This has affected different people in different ways."

Before the accident, Litterell said, he had planned to make the Coast Guard his career. Now he is not so sure how long he will wear the Coast Guard blue.

"As far as myself, as long as I remain in the Coast Guard, I can see the accident having an influence on me as far as my whole attitude towards a lot of things."

"It was beneficial in a lot of ways — I now have an understanding of the importance of a lot of things I didn't have before it happened." He mentioned having a greater appreciation of life and feeling more able to cope with emergencies.

Litterell doesn't know what will happen at the end of his two-year extension. But he knows he can never forget the terror of that night on Tampa Bay.

"I think," he said sadly, "that it will be with me as long as I'm in the Coast Guard. It will probably be with me my whole life."

Sale of natural gas is approved

OKLAHOMA CITY — A limited, two-year term sale of natural gas by Cities Service Gas Company to El Paso Natural Gas Company was approved recently in an order issued by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

The agreement by the two companies provides for the sale and purchase on a "best efforts" basis of up to an average of 150 million cubic feet of gas daily during the first year and 100 million cubic feet per day during the second year.

"Our existing customers will benefit greatly from this new sales arrangement," commented J.W. Morton, president of the Oklahoma City-based Cities Service Gas Company. "First, it will permit us to operate our system more efficiently and with greater throughput, resulting in potentially lower unit transportation costs. Secondly, it will permit us to continue our aggressive program of acquiring long-range reserves to satisfy the future needs of our customers. And, the new agreement will eliminate the possibility of having to pay penalties under the 'take-or-pay' provisions of our gas purchase contracts. Such penalties are ultimately paid by consumers."

Morton stressed that the needs of existing customers throughout Cities' five-state, mid-west market area are thoroughly protected in the agreement because any sales made under it are subordinated to existing customer requirements.

Morton also noted that the agreement serves the national interest of energy independence by demonstrating that natural gas can easily be transported voluntarily from a section of the country which has a current supply to an area presently experiencing a shortage of supply. Such a capability reduces the potential of foreign energy supplies filling the void left by shortages. It is even more significant in this case because we are providing the cleanest form of energy to an area where environmental concerns are most critical.

Cities Service will deliver gas through a transportation exchange agreement with Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America (NGPL) in Ford and Barton County, Kansas. NGPL would then transport the gas to El Paso for delivery at an existing interconnection in Lea County, New Mexico.

Cities will sell the gas at a rate equal to Section 102 of the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978, less transportation costs incurred to deliver the gas to El Paso's system.

Cities Service Gas company delivers natural gas to local distributors serving more than 500 communities and towns in Texas, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Real estate agents attending session

A large contingent of real estate professionals, headed by Melvin Jayroe of Hereford, is making the Austin Hilton Inn and the Marriott Hotel its headquarters during the Texas Association of Realtors' Mid-Winter meetings which end Wednesday.

As David L. Stinton of Houston, 1980 association president, pounded his last gavel as chief officer of the 54,000 member organization, Benny McMahan of Dallas assumed the job. Jayroe was installed as a vice president in special ceremonies Tuesday night in the Marriott along with McMahan, Hub Bechtel of Austin, first vice president, and Guy Chipman of San Antonio, secretary-treasurer.

The vice presidents include Harry Lee Wood, Forth Worth; Don J. Manning, Longview; Fred C. Gage, Odessa; John Nunnally, Marble Falls; Mack Fulbright, Beaumont; Frank Tompkins, Corpus Christi; and Jayroe.

Reading the oaths of office was Erv Luedtke of Austin, past executive vice president of TAR, and Julio S. Laguarda of Houston will be the master of ceremonies. Laguarda is due to become the National Association of Realtors president in 1982.

Amarillo Board of Realtors president, Pearl Thompson, James Self, Hereford president, and Pampa board president, Neva Weeks, joined many other real estate executives in committee meetings and in hearing Austin attorneys, Charles M. Babb and Mark Hanna, give legal updates. Also gaining everyone's attention was the name of Dr. Jack Carlson from Chicago and Washington, D.C.

Carlson, who holds his doctor's degree in economics from Harvard University, is the NAR executive vice president. His forecasts and knowledge in upcoming developments in housing attracted a large audience Tuesday morning in the Marriott.

Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton addressed the noon luncheon meeting of the Texas Farm and Land Institute Monday and Governor William P. Clements Jr. spoke to a limited audience this at a breakfast meeting of the Texas Real Estate Political Action trustees.

Committees were to take up a great diversity of subjects, including Community Revitalization, energy conservation measures for homeowners, legislation to come this spring, education seminars in specialized topics such as financial procedures suited to the challenges of the '80s, and more.

Taking active roles from the Amarillo, Hereford and Pampa area were such leaders as Franklin Jeffers, Ted Schuler, Don Mason, Della Dunn, Jodi Roach and others.

James T. Sawyer of Austin is the executive vice president of the 54,000 member association.

Texas may restrict California fruit

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas may have to post a quarantine against California citrus fruit because of the Mediterranean fruit fly, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Tuesday.

"The Texas citrus fruit industry is valued at $40 million to $60 million and we cannot afford to jeopardize this valuable agricultural production," Reagan said in a statement.

The Texas Department of Agriculture has received requests from several producers in the state to continue close surveillance of the Medfly problem and to establish a quarantine if there is an immediate threat to our citrus producers.

Brown said two infestations of the fruit fly were found in California in 1980. One

Fish cookbook is good reading

By TOM HOGE

AP Wine and Food Writer

Most cookbooks stand or fall on the quality of the recipes — which is as it should be. But it's nice when they contain something more.

"The Fish-Lovers' Cookbook" by Sheryl and Mel London not only boasts 300 original recipes, but it contains some of the most sprightly writing we have seen in such a work in some time.

For instance, there's the chapter with the provocative title, "How Can Anything That Ugly Taste That Good?" It refers to monkfish, eel, shark and other marine types that would never win a beauty prize but are delicious.

There are also profiles of fishing characters like the two lobstermen from Martha's Vineyard and an affable Maryland crabber.

The authors inject a chilling comment that the fish you buy at the market may well be fresher than the ones you catch by the time you have brought them home and made them ready for the table. This can be avoided, they point out, by cleaning your catch at once, then placing it in an ordinary cooler with a layer of crushed ice on the bottom.

Freshness is the answer to tasty fish, wherever you get them. If you are shopping in the market, be sure that the fish that catches your fancy does not have a strong odor, is clear of eye and has a bright, shiny skin.

The book is a tribute to fish in general. It notes that the oceans of the world are a rich storehouse of minerals, so it follows that denizens of the deep are good sources of the elements our bodies require.

For the diet-conscious, the authors point out that most fish are considerably lower in calories than meat and are also high in protein. Salt is omitted from the recipes, incidentally, on the grounds that it takes from the delicacy of the fish.

There is one sad note. Since pollution has become so prevalent in waters everywhere, the authors decided to omit any recipes for bivalves like oysters, clams, mussels and scallops, since they are usually found near centers of pollution.

This does not include such crustaceans as lobsters, shrimp and crabs, since they live in deeper water.

Here's a recipe the Londons included for sauteed soft-shell crabs.

12 small soft-shell crabs, cleaned
 1/2 cup whole wheat pastry flour
 1/4 teaspoon cayenne
 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
 1/2 cup butter
 1 small clove garlic, crushed
 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 1 tablespoon finely minced, fresh parsley

Dredge crabs with flour seasoned with cayenne and pepper. Heat butter in heavy skillet and when hot add crabs. Cook till golden brown on both sides. Place on warm platter. Add garlic to skillet and stir. Add lemon juice. Pour sauce over crabs and sprinkle with parsley. Serves 6. Good with chilled dry white wine.

("The Fish-Lovers' Cookbook," is published by Rodale Press.)

January begins flu season

AUSTIN — If you're suffering from a fever, coughing, sore throat, runny nose, and generally just ache all over, guess what you have? January marks the beginning of the peak influenza season, so brace yourself to ward off or weather the attack says the Texas Medical Association (TMA).

Anyone can come down with the flu, especially if it is widespread in a community. It is more likely to be serious for those with chronic diseases, the aged or pregnant women.

The flu usually takes one to three days to develop. When it does come out into the open, you may notice chills, fever, headache, backache, muscular pains and a loss of appetite. Your temperature may go up quickly during and first day of symptoms, and will gradually drop over a few days. Fever usually lasts for about three days, but it may go on for as long as seven.

As your fever drops, you may notice more stuffiness in your nose and the cough may continue. There might also be a pus in the discharges from your nose and throat. From that point on, however, you'll begin healing quickly.

While most patients recover completely within a week, many continue to feel usually tired for some time. The standard remedies of getting plenty of rest, drinking fluids and taking aspirin still hold true says the TMA.

STEPPING OUT IN STYLE. Nancy Reagan will wear these rhinestone and crystal bead hand-embroidered evening pumps of cream-colored satin to inaugurate festivities the evening of Jan. 20. They were designed by David Evins, who also designed footwear for two former First Ladies: Jacqueline Kennedy and Lady Bird Johnson.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who is wearing a NO button to let guys know that I'm a virgin and intend to stay that way. It's a sure way to cool down horny boyfriends who keep pressuring a girl to give in even after she has said, "NO!"

These NO buttons are put out by the Pro-Life Commission in Denver, and they're really catching on. I've even seen guys wearing them. They admit that they aren't ready for sex and don't want to be pressured by girls.

I hope you think enough of this idea to pass it on to your readers.

PAMELA B.

DEAR PAMELA: I'm for anything that keeps kids from becoming sexually active before they're sufficiently mature to handle it. The button could serve another purpose. If the aggressors refuse to take NO for an answer, remove the pin and stick 'em with it. They'll get the point.

(P.S. For a free button, write to: NO Button, P.O. Box 6480, Denver, Colo. 80206. Please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.)

DEAR ABBY: My 10-year-old son, Jimmy, is taking clarinet lessons in grade school. He told me that his music teacher, whom he likes very much, will very often take his (Jimmy's) clarinet and put it into his own mouth to teach him how to play something, then hand the clarinet back to Jimmy to use. Abby, keep in mind that the mouthpiece and reed go from Jimmy's mouth to his teacher's, then back to Jimmy's.

I'm not excessively fussy about germs, but let's face it, a simple swipe across the shirt sleeve before and after using another's mouthpiece is not very sanitary.

Jimmy will have this teacher another three years, so I don't want to spoil their good relationship, but I would like to put an end to this unsanitary practice if possible. Can you help?

JIMMY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Show Jimmy how to disinfect the mouthpiece of his clarinet by wiping it thoroughly with a tissue that's been saturated with an appropriate germicide. Give him some to use at school with instructions to always disinfect his mouthpiece after his teacher has used it.

And in the interest of diplomacy, have Jimmy tell his teacher, "This is my mother's idea. She says, 'With so many colds and so much flu going around, it's best to take no chances.'"

***

DEAR ABBY: Well, another Christmas has come and gone, and here I sit, counting my newly acquired "blessings." They include six boxes of candy, two tins of fancy cookies, three fruitcakes and 5 pounds of nuts!

What more could a 220-pound diabetic ask for? PLOTZING IN PLATTSBURGH, N.Y.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "G" IN MODESTO: Don't ever ask for a present. It's usually much cheaper to buy it yourself.

Restyle home for extra space

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Ever wish you owned a house with a place for everything? You can have it — and not even have to move. With inspired remodeling or by adding a ready-made storage wall system, you can restyle your home to help you get the space you really want. Here are some ingenious ideas from "House Beautiful's" current issue:

Open up the ceiling: Does your living or family room have an attic above it? You can change a simple living area into a dramatic, soaring space by eliminating the attic floor. The two-story height adds dimension and gives the room a whole new look. For further drama and light, add a skylight to the new ceiling.

Knock down walls: To give your home a sunny, spacious feeling, try converting a few small rooms into one large one. This remodeling idea is especially useful in older houses, where a butler's pantry or servants' rooms can be transformed into a huge, airy kitchen. For super efficiency, divide the space with a work island that has a preparation area on top, lots of built-in storage below.

Extend the space: An addition can make all the difference. Let your house's original plan be your inspiration. Replace an old bay window with a fabulous new greenhouse or make over a porch into a new, roomy dining alcove.

Hide your storage: Super storage doesn't have to be obvious to be functional. A dining room, for example, can double as a playroom with the addition of a built-in cabinet (try tucking it behind a sofa). Attach a ledge to the inside of the door to be used as a play table; put children's chairs and other toys inside when they're not needed. A closet that's hidden in the wall is another terrific way to store gear. "House Beautiful" suggests that you give the doors the same finish as the walls, or cover them in padded fabric to give the illusion of a luxurious screen.

Build a bed: If your guest room needs extra space, try constructing a cupboard bed against the wall. Built-in closets at the head and foot provide needed storage and added charm. Or, try a platform bed — use carpet-covered plywood as a platform for the mattress (the space around it can hold a breakfast tray or magazines) and use storage cubes as night tables.

Mustangs upset Houston

By The Associated Press
"It's just another typical Southwest Conference basketball game," Southern Methodist University coach Dave Bliss said after the Mustangs upset Houston, 72-70, in triple overtime Tuesday night.
It was the second overtime upset for the Mustangs in as many weeks as they beat the University of Texas Longhorns in overtime at Austin last week. It also continued a string of SWC upsets, coming one night after Texas upset Arkansas.
In other Southwest Conference action, Texas Tech edged Texas Christian, 57-54, and Baylor whipped Rice, 72-61.
The hero in Tuesday night's upset victory for SMU was Gordon Welch, who earlier made a jump shot at the buzzer to give the Mustangs the upset victory over Texas. Welch scored 13 of the 20 points SMU scored in the three overtime periods and finished the night with 21.
"We just played our hearts out the whole game. It was 55 minutes of good, solid basketball," said Welch.
Houston coach Guy Lewis had little good to say about the game.
"This is certainly the worst first half of basketball we have played this year," Lewis said. "I kept thinking it would get better as time went on. But time went on and on and we didn't get any better." SMU held a 29-26 halftime lead.
SMU was able to keep Rob Williams, the SWC's leading scorer, slightly below his average.

Only one home run was hit in the 1980 five-game pennant playoff between the Phillies and Astros. It was hit in the first game by Greg Luzinski of the Phillies.

Horatio Alger is a quarterback

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
Take a letter, Dana, please, and address it urgent to Sherry Lansing, President, 20th Century Fox Studios, Hollywood, Calif.
Dear Ms. Lansing:
I am offering you the first shot at a terrific scenario for either a movie or a two-hour TV drama which, while perhaps unrealistic, is bound to appeal to basic American instincts. It has a genuine sports hero, pathos, early hardship, failure, frustration, determination, grit and finally, in the old Horatio Alger tradition, a rags-to-riches road to success.
It will be tough to get someone to play the main role. He must be a strapping guy of about 6 feet, 2 inches and 205 pounds but not in the usual matinee idol mold. Forget Robert Redford. Also Paul Newman. Too old. Too good-looking.
This must be a quiet, self-effacing kid with pimples on his face. Try to get someone with an Indian look, dark-skinned to denote a mixed Mexican-American heritage. None of the Joe Namath flashy style and bravado "We're gonna win!" stuff.
The kid has to be so timid he almost lives in a shell.
He grows up in a place like San Jose, Calif., in underprivileged circumstances.

His mother — let's call her Carmen — has been blind since she was 20. His father — William, say — who worked as a news vendor, was stricken with progressive blindness and died when the kid was 21 years old.
Right there, you see the kid was headed for a hard life.
But he never whines and he never wavers. He draws strength from his devoted blind mother. He suffers a childhood bone disease and doesn't play football in elementary school.
But in the eighth grade he discovers he can throw a football. So in high school he goes out for the team, sharing his interest with track, wrestling, baseball and basketball.
He is too young for the varsity so they shift him to the junior varsity. When he finally makes the team, the game is cancelled because of the assassination of President Kennedy.
He changes schools. The coach discovers his great throwing prowess. He makes all the all-star teams and gets a lot of scholarship offers, finally deciding to enter Stanford so he can be close to his mother.
After entering Stanford, it is discovered he has a thyroid tumor, requiring an operation. It takes more than a year for him to break in as quarterback. First time out, he completes 10 of 13 passes for 277 yards. He goes on to beat the West Coast powers such as Southern Cal and UCLA, finally leads Stanford to the conference championship and a 27-17 victory over Ohio State in the Rose Bowl. His final coup in college is winning the Heisman Trophy.
He is the No. 1 pick in the pro football draft. Good money. Career assured. Great. So the film fades into a "happy ever after" ending, right?
Nope. Guess again.
The kid has a fine rookie year in the pros, but his team goes from good to bad to worse. They bring in another quarterback. The kid is traded to another team in his old California stamping grounds. This team is bad, too.
The kid is put on waivers. Nobody claims him. The kid goes into seclusion and broods. What's happened?
Then a maverick general manager — a fellow like Oakland's volatile Al Davis — puts in a call. Come over and let's talk about it. The head coach doesn't want the kid but the boss says, "Give him a uniform."
That's all he gets at first. There is an established Super Bowl-winning quarterback at the helm. Later a young hotshot moves in. So the onetime college wonder boy is left watching and wishing. He goes a whole season without throwing a ball.
Then the hotshot quarterback — let's call him Dan Pastorini, a good headline name — breaks a leg. The kid gets the call.
Suddenly the team starts winning. Nobody knows why. They say the kid is awkward and erratic, throws too many interceptions. But the team wins nine of its last 11 games, qualifies for the playoffs, then sweeps to the conference championship.
He gives his gutsiest performance in the title game, sealing the victory with a quarterback sneak for a first down late in the fading seconds after the coach ordered him to pass.
Strong stuff, Ms. Lansing. For the dynamite climax, tune in to Super Bowl XV in New Orleans Jan. 25 and see if Jim Plunkett can make it a storybook tale come true.

Cowboys to change jerseys

DALLAS (AP) — While insisting he does not believe in a blue-jersey jinx, Dallas Cowboys president Tex Schramm says he plans a change in the team's dark-colored football shirts before next season.
"We've been working on this the last couple of months," Schramm said. "It's no secret."
Dallas, wearing blue jerseys, lost to Philadelphia 20-7 in the NFC Championship game Sunday. That loss made the Cowboys' blue-clad record 1-4 in the 1980 season, 10-11 overall.
National Football League teams are required to have two sets of uniforms, one with dark jerseys and one with white jerseys. Normally, a team wears dark jerseys for its home games and white ones on the road, but the Cowboys wear white at home and rarely don the blue shirts.

However, some in the NFL believe the record proves the Cowboys are jinxed when they wear blue and force Dallas to wear the dark shirts as a psychological ploy.
Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil put the Eagles in white jerseys for Sunday's championship game, instead of their usual home green, to force Dallas to wear blue.
Schramm, Dallas Coach Tom Landry and most of the Cowboy players sneer at the idea of a jinx.
"I personally, and several others in the organization, have never been happy with the combination of the (silver pants and) blue jersey," Schramm said.
"We might go lighter or darker. I don't know," Schramm said.
