Two felony trials slated here next week

Both courtrooms of Gray County Courthouse will be buzzing with activity in the coming week with two felony cases to be tried simultaneously.

District Attorney Harold Comer said a docket call of 15 to 20 cases to be heard in 223rd District Court will begin at 10 a.m. Monday in the district courtroom on the third floor of the courthouse.

Tuesday, jury selection for the murder trial of Curtis Lee Wine, 30, will begin in the Gray County courtroom on the second floor of the county building, he said.

Wine is charged with the shooting death of Nathan Bunton, 62, after an altercation over a pool game in a restaurant on South Gray Street

Comer said also on Tuesday, prospective juror's will be filling the district courtroom on the third floor for the 223rd District case on trial.

The District Attorney said he expected two cases to be tried by Judge Don Cain in 223rd District Court next week

Comer said the two cases on the 223rd docket most likely to be called will be the trial of Johnny Rosalez, 22, of 216 E. Tuke - charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon - and that of Bobby Wayne Davis, 22, of Pampa indicted by the Gray County Grand Jury for burglary of a habitation.

Rosalez is charged with shooting Marcus Gonzales, 25, of 429 N. Starkweather at 7 p.m., Aug. 2, 1980.

According to police reports, a bullet fired from a passing automobile struck Gonzalez in the abdomen, seriously injuring him

The shooting was believed by police to have been connected with the stabbing death of Rosalez's brother, Roy Dario Rosalez in April

Davis was arrested by Pampa police officers in connection with the burglary of the residence of Christine Zamora at 1045 S. Somerville on Comer said summonsing two separate jury panels for two different district courts at the same time has caused some confusion among those called for jury duty. "Prospective jurors should be reminded that those summoned to 223rd District Court should appear in the district courtroom on the third floor Tuesday morning," Comer said. The 31st District Court prospective jurors should appear at the Gray County Courtoom on the second floor of the Gray County Court House,

The summons card will have typed on it what court the juror prospect is to report to, if there is a question. Comer said.

City grant application gets preliminary okay

AMARILLO - A Panhandle Regional Planning Commission review committee approved Pampa's pre - application for a $2.25 million Community Development Block Grant and have referred the application to the PRPC's board of directors for a final review, planning commission officials said today.

Gary Pitner, a regional planner for the PRPC, said the A95 Review Committee acted favorably on Pampa's and Borger's pre - applications for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) funds during a meeting of the PRPC Thursday.

The board of directors for the planning commission will also review the city's preapplication submitted earlier this month and send it on to the HUD office in Dallas for final approval. Pitner said.

This approval of the Community Development Block Grant program is the first of two steps which will be initiated before Pampa is given or denied the right to make formal application for the federal money, the regional planner said Pitner said an invitation to make the application will be extended by the federal office in Dallas prior to April 1.

"If we are fortunate enough to be invited to make an application," he added.

Last year, Pampa was twelfth and Borger eleventh on the list of cities applying for the federal funds. Only 10 cities were approved for

"In the past, HUD has tended to fund the cities who have come close to the 10 funded cities before," Pitner said. He added it was a good indication Pampa will be approved for the final

If granted, the $2.25 million will be spent in the south and southeast residential portion of Pampa, city officials had said earlier.

Funds will be used for the renovation of Marcus Sanders Community swimming pool and youth center, street paving, installation of curb and drainage, replacement of water lines and housing rehabilitation in the target areas, local officials said.

Pampa has been unsuccessful in three previous bids for the government funding

Two men injured in Frederic Street wreck

Two Pampa men were injured when the vehicle they were riding in was in collision with a parked vehicle in front of the Black Gold Restaurant at 11 p.m. Thursday.

The driver of the 1970 Oldsmobile, Wesley Dale Oldham, 21, of Albuquerque, N. M., was arrested the scene for driving while intoxicated, driving without a Texas driver's license and cited for unsafe change of direction of travel.

The passenger, Dell Dee Lang, 17, of Clay Trailer Park, was transported to Highland General Hospital Emergency Room by Metropolitan Ambulance, suffering from lacerations to the head and throat.

A-spokesman for Highland General Hospital said Lang was treated for his injuries and

Oldham was taken to the emergency room by police, where he was treated for a head laceration and released into police custody. A spokesperson for the Gray County Sheriff's Office said Oldham was released early today on a personal recognizance bond. According to police reports, the mishap occurred shortly after 11 p. m. Thursday in the 1100 block of East Frederic in front of the Black -Gold Motel and Restaurant.

The police report said the Oldsmobile driven by Oldham came into collision with a properly parked 1974 Chevrolet owned by Joe Bridwell, Box 101, Canadian.

Following the accident, Lang reported to the Pampa Police Department he had been forced to leave the Catalina Club, located south of the city, by a person holding a knife.

Reunion with families Sunday

Stress, guilt haunt hostages

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — The freed being told his mother was dead and finding out when American hostages are scheduled fly to the United States on Sunday for reunions with their families, U.S. officials said today. And the chief of the medical team examining them said some show guilt feelings and other signs of temporary psychiatric illness.

State Department spokesman Jack Cannon did not say where they would meet their families, but Pentagon officials indicated Thursday it might be the U.S. Military academy at West Point

Dr. Jerome Korcak, head of the State Department medical team examining the former hostages in Wiesbaden, said they were "generally very happy" at the news. But he also spoke of psychiatric symptoms and physical ailments following their 141/2-month ordeal in Iran.

Korcak said some hostages feel guilty about statements they made to the Iranians during the 444 days of captivity

The Iranians, meanwhile, denied reports that the hostages were treated brutally by their captors.

Korcak said the psychiatric symptoms include episodes of flashbacks and disrupted sleep, part of what he called "post - traumatic stress syndrome." Asked whether he thought they will recover, he said: "It's variable, but it passes with time and proper

"As might be expected, the 52 Americans are in varying states of mental and physical health," Korcak

"A number of those released are showing signs of transient psychiatric illness, including post - traumatic stress syndrome which is directly related to their captivity in Iran.

Korcak refused to discuss individual cases, saying that would violate the patients' rights to privacy. He said the treatment begun here would continue in the United States

He said "some feel guilty," mentioning that one hostage had made anti - American statements on condition some of his colleagues would be released.

Korcak said another hostage made a television statement after being told his mother had died and that if he made the statement he would be allowed to return to the United States for the funeral

He apparently was referring to U.S. Marine Set. Johnny McKeel of Balch Springs, Texas, who reported the hostages were freed that she was alive.

Iran on Thursday denied that the hostages had undergone brutal treatment at the hands of their captors. Iran's chief hostage negotiator, Behzad Nabavi, called the Americans "comfort - seeking diplomats" who were "ungrateful" and who did "not understand the meaning of kindness.

Korcak said weight losses by the former hostages ranged from 10 to 80 pounds, and some were so depressed they are not leaving their rooms or participating in activities at the hospital.

"Many of the hostages have described beatings to us," Korcak said, adding that the beatings were administered in ways that would not leave marks on

One hostage who was beaten into unconsciousness continues to suffer from a ringing in the ears, he said.

The beatings were administered at times during interrogations to obtain safe combinations and other information, Korcak said, and others were beaten as punishment for escape attempts. "We're seeing about what we expected, but you can't tell from looking at a person," Korcak said of the psychological toll of the hostages' captivity. "Some of them have been more severely affected by the experience than others. 'We feel these people will not be permanently disabled by their illnesses," Korcak said

Fifty-one of the 52 freed Americans slipped out of the hospital before dawn today and went on a $15,000 shopping spree for clothing, personal items and cameras, Air Force spokesman said.

"It was like every Christmas I've ever had," said Bruce German, 43, of Rockville, Md., former finance officer for the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

"There was a big run on underwear," said a spokesman for the Hainerburg Base Exchange, a mini-shopping center for U.S. military personnel a few miles from the U.S. Air Force Hospital at Wiesbaden.

It was the freed Americans' first excursion from the hospital since arriving Wednesday from 444 days in Iranian captivity. It was not known which of the ex-hostages passed up the first taste of American Exchange saleswomen, called in especially for the freed hostages, wore yellow ribbons in their hair as they greeted the Americans, who browsed through all departments of the shopping complex for 90 minutes.

FRIDAY

Several ex-hostages bought new shoes, and those who did deposited their thin and worn Iranian sandals at the Exchange, the spokesman said. He quoted some of them as saying: "I don't ever want to see them again."

He said most of the purchases were clothing and personal items, such as dress clothes for the return home, pulloyers, ties, belts and a few pairs of jeans. The two women among the freed Americans, Katheryn Koob, 43, of Jesup, Iowa, and Elizabeth Ann Swift, 39, of Washington, D.C., bought dress clothes and a small range of cosmetics. The Americans have been undergoing intensive psychiatric testing and counseling at the hospital in Wiesbaden, with a specialist assigned to each three or

Hostage return set for NY base

WASHINGTON (AP) - The 52 Americans freed from Iran will be reunited with their families Sunday at Stewart Air Base, Newburgh, N.Y., and then will be driven to the nearby U.S. Military Academy at West Point for a few days of rest, Pentagon sources said

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass. announced, meanwhile, that the former hostages will be flown to Andrews Air Force Base near Washington on Tuesday for an official welcoming at 1:30 p.m. EST.

Although the Reagan administration apparently is trying to avoid publicity on details of the return of the former hostages from their intermediate stay in West Germany, it was learned that the 50 men and two women, along with their families, would be put up at the Thayer Hotel on the West Point reservation.

The Thayer Hotel is normally used by visitors to members of the West Point cadet corps.

The Pentagon sources said the returnees and their families would travel by bus from Stewart to West Point, about 30 miles away. Stewart is owned by the state of New York. It once was a military airfield.

According to the Pentagon sources, the returnees and their families probably will stay at West Point until Tuesday when they will all be flown to Washington for outraged at brutality

Congress are reacting with outrage at reports of brutality against the American hostages during their 141/2 months in captivity.

Two resolutions were introduced Thursday encouraging President Reagan to renege on the deal that freed the 52 Americans. Other congressmen urged Reagan to plan swift, harsh measures against any future hostage seizures. "I think we have been humiliated by a bunch of bums and I don't think the nation's honor hangs on the thin thread of any agreement with people like that," Sen.

Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said. But while denouncing the reports of Iranian beatings. death threats and indignities against the hostages. many senators and House members said both Congress and Reagan should let tempers cool before deciding whether to carry out Jimmy Carter's deal that brought the captives to freedom.

White House press secretary James Brady said Thursday the accounts of mistreatment would not affect Reagan's decision on whether to honor the hostage accord. The State Department said the administration intends to meet U.S. obligations if they are "consistent with domestic and international law

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker called Iran's justification for setting aside any part of the treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Denouncing Iranian captors treatment of the hostages "barbaric" and said the which he deems inimical to U.S. interests." as burns, barbarians and blackmailers, members of Senate Foreign Relations Committee "will inquire fully into the brutal treatment" but only after "the wounds heal a little.'

deal part of a comprehensive U.S. policy against such terrorism in the future "I think the president would do well to keep his counsel," Lugar said, "until he really has something to

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Rep. Ronald Mottl, D-Ohio, urged Reagan to develop a policy promptly to head off attempts in other countries to copy the Iranian hostage seizure. Mottl, urging plans for a "quick, swift and harsh military response" if U.S. diplomats are taken hostage again, told the House, "We must vow to never again to crawl before international terrorists. Jackson said Reagan should establish a presidential commission to develop the anti-terrorism policy. 'We should make it clear to friends and adversaries alike around the world that the U.S. government's response to Iran's hostage seizure is not a governing precedent for the future," Jackson said.

Reagan seeks support for economic package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid new indications of inflation's impact on the economy, President Reagan met today with the Republican allies who will have to provide the push he needs if his economic program is to get through Congress.

While the president and Congress' Republican leaders were conferring in the White House, the Labor Department announced that inflation in 1980 ram at a 12.4 percent rate. Without referring to that figure, Senate Republican leader

Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee said after the meeting that "the economic situation ... is much worse than we had thought. But Baker, talking to reporters, did not discuss any of the specifics dealt with at the meeting in the family dining room of the White House He said the economic program the administration is expected to have ready for submission to Congress late next month will bear "a injurious," he said. The Labor Department's report today showed that consumer prices rose at double-digit rates for the second straight year. Not since the World War I years of 1918 and 1919 has the pace of inflation topped 10 percent for two years running. Despite the severe recession in the spring, the department said, the year's price rise nearly matched the 13.3 percent climb in 1979. Housing and transportation costs were the principal contributors to last year's inflation rate, the government said.

The Labor Department also reported today that high inflation cut the typical worker's after-tax buying power by 4.8 percent last year. Over the last two years, buying power shrank by 10.1 percent. Reagan also planned to hold his second Cabinet meeting in three

NEW YORK - Service Fracturing Company (Serfco) sales in the third quarter of its fiscal year, - three months ending Dec. 31, 1980 - totaled approximately $4,360,000 for a 65 percent increase over the 1979 period.

Jerry H. Guinn, Serfco president, announced the results at a meeting of security analysts and brokers here today. He added the net income figures were not yet available.

Headquartered in Pampa, the firm will be opening a new district office in Okmulgee, Okla. in February in order to extend its oil and gas well servicing services to that state, Guinn said. Currently, the district office is in Drumright, Okla. Other district offices are in Pampa, Perryton and Liberal, Kan.

The company officials recently announced intentions to acquire W W Pump and Rental, a well servicing company of Woodward, Okla.

Guinn said today that he expected the acquisition to be completed on Jan. 26.

Polish union stages warning strike

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Streetcars and buses stopped, factory sirens blared and more than 60 plants and offices shut down today as Solidarity, Poland's largest independent trade union, carried out a four-hour warning strike in Warsaw to protest the government's rejection of a five-day work week.

Solidarity has ordered its estimated 10 million members to stay off the job this Saturday, a government-scheduled work day, as a further protest. It will be the second Saturday strike this month. Government officials said the first Saturday strike Jan. 10 cost Poland millions of dollars in lost productivity.

Both blue and white-collar workers took part in the 8-to-noon shutdown today, including the Polish Lot Airlines, the Academy of Sciences Institute for Physicial Chemistry and the staff of the Warsaw mint. Dozens of other institutions flew Polish flags and banners supporting the strikers.

Similar walkouts were reported in the southwestern coal-mining city of Walbrzych and in Grudziadz in the north, a union spokesman

The strikes coincided with a Soviet newspaper report of joint "field training" between Soviet and Polish troops. No date was given for the exercise, which appeared aimed at putting pressure on the union

Solidarity went ahead with the strikes despite a government spokesman's statement that the communist regime will not be

"pressed" into a compromise. The strikes are the latest in a series aimed at forcing the communist government to comply with terms of the Aug. 31 Gdansk agreement, which ended last summer's nationwide labor rebellion and authorized the Soviet bloc's first labor organizations independent of Communist Party control.

Warning strikes Thursday shut down more than 800 plants in the tri-city region of Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot, the Baltic seaport spearhead of last summer's strike wave. Initial reports said a dozen cities were hit by strikes Thursday, but the official PAP news agency listed only five strike centers.

Union leaders are pressing for a five-day work week, while the government, claiming Poland's tottering economy cannot afford a five-day week, wants two Saturdays of work a month from the nation's workers.

Union representatives took notice of the nation's economic woes and offered to compromise over the hours to be worked each week. The two sides have moved to within one hour of each other, with the union proposing a 411/2 hour week, while the government wants 421/2

However, they are still divided over Saturday work. Solidarity has ordered its estimated 10 million members to stay off the job this Saturday, a government-scheduled work day. It will be the second Saturday strike this month.

Consumer prices up 12.4 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices climbed 12.4 percent in 1980, marking the second consecutive year of double-digit inflation, the government reported today. The report confirmed the nation's longest spell of high inflation since the end of World War I.

The year-end report by the Labor Department showed that despite a deep recession last spring, consumer prices rose nearly as much as in 1979, when inflation jumped 13.3 percent. Not since 1918-1919, when the United States was returning to a peacetime economy, has inflation exceeded 10 percent for two The government said the Consumer Price Index rose 1.1 percent in December, about the same as in the three preceding months.

Once again, substantial increases for mortgage interest costs, transportation and food paced the latest rise. For the full year, housing and transportation costs were the principal contributors to the inflation rate, as they were in 1979, the government said. Inflation forecasts for 1981 show no relief for consumers. Most economists expect large gains in food and energy prices to maintain inflation at current levels. In a separate report today, the Labor Department said that the after-tax buying power of the typical American worker declined by 4.8 percent last year because of high inflation. It was the second year in a row that real earnings were eroded by inflation. Over the last two years, buying power shrunk by 10.1 percent, the

Housing costs rose 13.7 percent in 1980 after jumping 15.2 percent the year before. The largest increase was for mortgage rates, which were up 23.3 percent, while house purchase prices were up 11.4 percent

Transportation prices increased 14.7 percent in 1980, compared with an 18.2 percent increase the year before. Prices in this category were paced by an 18.3 percent rise for used cars, an 18.9 percent for gasoline and a 25.6 percent jump for public

Food and beverage prices rose 10.1 percent last year, almost identical to the rise in 1979. Sugar and other sweets showed the largest increase, up 35.7 percent.

Clothing costs were up 6.8 percent for the year, medical care prices rose 10 percent and entertainment costs were up 9.6 percent. Overall, the Consumer Price Index in December stood at 258.4. which means that a marketbasket of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $258.40 at the end of 1980.

The Carter administration, in its final economic report last week, predicted that inflation will continue at about 12.5 percent during the first year of the Reagan administration.

President Reagan, who is seeing his first Consumer Price Report since entering the White House on Tuesday, has vowed to fight inflation and reinvigorate a sluggish economy by slashing the federal budget and tax rates. Reagan's economic advisers say it could take a year or more for the new president's policies to work.

However, departing Carter administration economists warned that Reagan's planned tax cuts would only worsen inflation by over-stimulating the economy.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' budget director says the governor has not given up on direct tax relief even though he offered no specific ideas on the subject in his "state of the state" address to the Legislature.

The governor made only one proposal Thursday for soaking up the treasury surplus: create a State Water Trust Fund as a savings account against a future water shortage His $26.2 billion 1982-83 budget leaves a $300 million surplus, based on Comptroller Bob Bullock's latest revenue forecast. It is $500 million below the Legislative Budget Board's spending proposal, which exceeds estimated state income by $200 million. Paul Wrotenbery, the governor's budget director, briefed reporters on Clements' spending proposal Thursday afternoon and said his boss' attitude toward tax relief was wait-and-see.

"We found several ways (to offer tax reductions), none of which was free of problems or concerns. ... Since we don't know the amount of the surplus now, he wants flexibility to do it later," Wrotenbery said.

The governor said the state's booming population will raise the demand for water. There is no more important or critical issue facing the state of Texas - and I mean all Texans, from all parts of the state, from all size cities and towns and from farms and ranches," Clements told

A water trust fund to hold surplus tax dollars in reserve has a 'high priority" and would be a form of tax relief, Clements said. Without money in reserve, future water projects could create an 'onerous tax burden' in later years as declining oil and gas production causes revenue from that source to wither, he said.

"It (the water fund) is indeed a tax savings in the long-term sense, and I support it wholeheartedly," Clements said. Speaker Bill Clayton, from whom the governor borrowed the idea, applauded loudly and grinned with delight when Clements voiced his support for the water fund. Legislative committee chairmen who will receive Clements' major anti-crime proposal, a bill allowing the Department of Public Safety to tap the telephones of suspected drug dealers, did

In fact, it is possible that entire populations of any industrialized region may be carrying thallium "loads" that become biologically active in certain circumstances, theorized Ron Tisdell and his colleagues at the University of Texas Poison Control Center here.

Tisdell and his co-workers have confirmed eight cases of thallium poisoning, suspect the metal in six other illnesses and are checking another seven people hospitalized in Dallas with the symptoms, he said.

The severity of the problem alarms us," he said. "It would appear that the poisonings have gone unrecognized until now.'

Thallium was once used in dozens of consumer products. ranging from hair dye to rat poison, but was banned from consumer use in 1972. It still is purposes and occasionally is a byproduct of metal smelting. It changes from a solid to an odorless, highly toxic gas at room temperature.

Tisdell said three new cases of suspected thallium poisoning were reported to his office Thursday, making a total of six suspected cases in addition to the eight already confirmed.

Later that day, he said, a Dallas physician telephoned him to report he was treating seven people exhibiting poisoning symptoms.

Tisdell declined to name the doctor or the hospital where he was treating the patients, but said tests would be conducted on them as part of an extensive effort to trace the source of the poisonings. Part of that effort will be a Monday conference of

Six - year term in White House?

The idea which presumably would transform first - term politician presidents into unsullied statesmen has a certain appeal and some powerful supporters. Would - be reformers of the presidency are active again now, as they usually are after nearly every presidential election. For example, John B. Connally, the former governor of Texas and once - candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, thinks the single six year term is a good idea as does former Attorney General Griffin Bell.

And a year ago President Carter said if he could change the Constitution "just by the stroke of a pen" he would limit the presidency to one six - year term. He lamented that many of his non - political actions were "colored through the news media" as possible re - election

These advocates have confined their support to talk. But now comes solid action from an odd congressional couple. Sen. Strom Thurmond, the conservative South Carolina Republican, and Rep. John Conyers of Michigan, a Democrat and a militant leader of the congressional black caucus, have announced they will sponsor a constitutional amendment to limit the presidency to a single six - year term.

The public apathy which greeted the Thurmond - Conyers

Obviously a vast majority of Americans believes there is nothing wrong with a president feeling political pressures and being accountable at the polls. The founding fathers, who considered the single six - year term, apparently felt the same way. Moreover, U.S. history has proved them to have been correct. Almost invariably, poor presidents have been turned out of office after serving only one four year term and good presidents, who stayed in touch with the people, have been re - elected. Thus, our national experience suggests the single six - year term would lengthen a poor president's term by two years and shorten a good president's term by two. We see no advantage

Moreover, the exercise of presidential authority could be diminished by a single six - year term, which by fixing the date of exit from the beginning would tend to transform the president into a permanent lame

To be sure, the U.S. presidency has been troubled of late, with a series of White House incumbents being rejected after failing to meet public expectations. But, as real as the problem is, the answer is not likely to be found in removing the president from politics. To the contrary, better times will come in the White House when the president is more in touch, more accountable, and less isolated from reality and

Threats to security revive Senate panel

Republicans taking over the Senate Judiciary Committee have decided to revive the Internal Security subcommittee. Let's not assume the worst. There is no reason to believe they intend to license a latter - day Joe McCarthy to roam the country looking for subversives under every bed.

Internal security has a meaning for the 1980s that is quite different from the real or imagined menace of disloyal government employees or closet Communists which inspired some lamentable witch - hunts by congressional

A report came out of the Georgetown Center for Strategic Studies last summer saying the United States is ripe for the kind of terrorism which so far has been more prevalent in Europe. Latin America and the Middle East.

In this context, internal security means a defense against terrorists who assassinate their enemies on the street. plant bombs in public places or take hostages to demand ransom or redress for their grievances. They conduct a form of political warfare that is secret in its organization and planning, but blatantly public and destructive in its execution.

Puerto Rican nationalists have carried out scores of bom bings in U.S. cities, the most recent being in New York City's Penn Station. Just Monday. Puerto Rican leftists bombed 10 Air National Guard jets at San Juan. An anti -Khomeini Iranian leader was gunned down outside his home in Bethesda, Md. last July. American is not immune to the international spill - over to Middle East fanaticism. The Georgetown Center has identified no less than 55 organizations in the United States which have been connected with acts of terrorism in the last decade This problem is especially challenging to a free society. Our constitutional principles of personal freedom and rights of privacy make it difficult for law enforcement and intelligence agencies to track individuals or groups suspected of having terrorist intentions. The subject is a legitimate concern of Congress, with its power to write federal criminal statutes and to define the powers of agencies like the FBL

So the question is not whether a new subcommittee on internal security. replacing the one that was disbanded five years ago, would have a reason to exist. The question is whether the Senate can define its mandate in terms that would keep a headline - hunting chairman from the kind of performance that added McCarthyism to the vocabulary 30 years ago. The Republicans are off on the right foot. The new body has been renamed the Security and Terrorism subcommittee, which homes in on the specific area of its concern. The chairman is Sen. Jeremiah Denton of Alabama, a career paval officer who became a Vietnam prisoner of war and retired from the Navy with the rank of admiral in 1977. If Sen. Denton keeps his eye on the target, the new subcommittee can be a

Reaganaut policies and impacts

By Thomas Gale Moore

Only about half the electorate cast their ballots in the last election. Why? Probably because most feel that it makes little difference who wins the election. The same political pressures are brought to bear on a Republican president as on a Democrat. Historically, it is hard to see that the political party of the president matters. Social welfare programs grew more under Republican Nixon than under Democrats Johnson or Carter. Regulatory agencies sprang up faster than sinners at a revival meeting during the Republican White House years, while Carter can look with pride to some roll - back of government interference in the market place. The Nixon administration almost doubled the rate of capital gains taxation; under the Carter administration it was sharply lowered. On the surface it would seem that the electorate is right.

But, I contend that Reagan's administration WILL make a difference. The President has a philosophy of government that will guide his approach to economic problems. He feels, justifiably, that he has a mandate to make changes. With the Republicans sweeping the Senate in the last election, political power in the Congress was substantially altered. While the Democrats do still control the House. many of the more liberal members lack power. Thus, Reagan's policies are likely to receive a more sympathetic legislative ear than Nixon's or Ford's. Moreover, Reagan comes with a group of able committed individuals; who are serving not simply because they want the trappings of power, but because they have a vision of government's proper role

During the campaign and transition period, Ronald Reagan clearly enunciated his goals. A major objective is to strengthen America by restoring our military might, with more spending on personnel, equipment and training. There must be an increase in pay for military personnel, both to curb the outflow of trained officers and non - coms and to attract new recruits. There must be new weapons systems; however, high technology equipment requires a considerable lead time to design and build, so little additional money can be spent wisely on hardware during the first year. In the short - run, most funds will go to personnel and maintenance of equipment. Nevertheless, in two or more years, military expenditures will increase

In the domestic arena, the new administration will be proposing (1) tax cuts. (2) reduced expenditures on non defense items, and (3) changes in the direction and scope of regulation. Reagan and his financial advisers are committed to ask Congress for a ten percent income tax cut this year. While he may not get an across - the - board ten percent cut retroactive to January 1, 1981, as he wishes, Congress will surely vote a major tax reduction. So, we all will be paying higher taxes, but the tax rate increase will be reduced. Unfortunately, inflation will continue to transfer more of our earnings to the federal government.

It will be more difficult to reduce expenditures. The largest single expenditures are entitlement programs such as social security, food stamps, welfare outlays, and medical benefits. These programs affect millions of poor and needy people; consequently, Congress will resist cutting aid to the indigent and the near - indigent. Other budget - cutting possibilities will also be difficult. Dam projects, as Carter learned to his dismay, have strong vocal political support by local interests. Agricultural price supports benefit farmers, who naturally resist tampering with their programs. Mass. transit programs are incorrectly perceived as methods to reduce energy use and receive strong support by contractors, cities, and environmental groups. (Fixed rail systems like BART use more energy in construction than may be conserved in operation.) Obviously, if a program lacked beneficiaries who strongly oppose cutbacks, the program would cease. Every president since George Washington has. looked for ways to reduce government outlays and would eagerly cut a program no one supported. As a consequence although some outlays may be reduced, it would be surprising if large cuts could be made in the budget. The best that can be expected is that the Reagan administration will slow the growth of government

The third goal of the administration, reducing and mollifying government regulation, may also be difficult to achieve. Again, regulatory programs would not exist without a strong constituency. One of the most costly regulatory programs is air quality control, and, under existing rules, major energy projects cannot be built in the United States. It is almost impossible to construct a new facility in an area that does not currently meet governmental air quality standards. Further, current regulations prohibit degrading the atmosphere in clean air parts of the country. So, American industry will be unable to build new modern plants to compete in world markets. Moreover, additional power sources for industry will be scarce. The new administration is definitely committed to doing something about this situation. Instead of general standards, it proposes to evaluate projects on a cost - benefit basis. It wants "fast trac" legislation that will permit these projects to move ahead quickly after a relatively short but thorough environmental review: however, legislation to amend the air quality act will be difficult. Certainly, no major change in environmental regulation can be expected in the next few months; and it is more likely that change will come only after a protracted fight that may take several

The Reagan administration would also like to reduce safety regulation, or at lest put it back on a cost - benefit basis. For example, the Delany Amendment bans any substance that is found to be carcinogenic in experimental animals, but it fails to consider the benefits of other substances such as saccharin and nitrates. Congress has had to propose special exemptions. Amending the Delany Amendment and reducing other costly safety regulations will be difficult.

It seems likely, however, that the Reagan forces will continue deregulation in the areas of air, carrier, truck, and railroad transportation. There will probably be further freeing of banking. communications and security industries. Energy regulation, especially oil and gasoline, will be phased out. Reagan will propose further decontrol of natural gas regulation, although here, too, Congress will resist.

Consequently, the electorate can expect positive action from the Reagan administration. A tax cut is likely, as well as an increase in military capability, a slowing in the rate of growth of some government programs, a reduction in regulation of specific industries, and, to a lesser degree, a reduction in environmental and safety regulation.

Should U.S. presidents be elected to one six - year term instead of campaigning for re - election almost from the day of their announcement suggests the single six - year term is not an idea whose time has come, if indeed it ever does. An electorate which just signified in no uncertain way that the country needs a change in leadership is not ready to buy the idea that giving Mr. Carter two more years in the White House would be preferable. Indeed, a Gallup poll last year showed almost 70 percent of Americans oppose limiting the presidency to one six - year term.

'Baptist Layman Day' slated Sunday

Sunday, Jan. 25 has been deisgnated Baptist Laymen's Day at Highland Baptist Church, according to pastor, Rev. John D. Davey. 'Our purpose is to provide an opportunity for our laymen to participate actively in the Ministry of the Church. We are thrilled to have a growing number of laymen at Highland Baptist Church who serve in this manner." Rev. Davey said. Laymen, under the direction of Troy Ledbetter, Chairman of the Board of Deacon's, will participate in every phase of the two Sunday services, at 1 a.m. and 7 p.m. They will also lead the Hour of Power Service, Wednesday Jan. 28.

A men's quartette will sing, and the men of the church will provide the choir for the day, under the direction of Mr. Roy Blanscet, Director of Music. Mr. Frank Parrish, local contractor, and layman at Highland Baptist Church will preach at each of the Sunday Services. Others taking part in the services are Robert Vaught, Frank Slayton, George Lawley, Jess Tuggle, G.F. "Gib" Morris, Reggie DeHay and T.C. Drinnon.

Parrish was recently named Director of the Highland Baptist Men's Brotherhood.

"I am excited about the involvement of so many laymen in this special week at Highland Baptist Church. It is encouraging to recognize the interest and cooperation of local businessmen in this endeavor." Rev. Davey said.

Religion in the news

NEW YORK (AP) - Ecumenical specialists say work for Christian reunion has generally faded from the limelight, but the effort still goes on in quiet yet substantial ways. That was a common assessment this week as churches observed the annual "Week of Prayer for Christian Unity" Jan. 18-25. worshipping together and giving thanks at the release of U.S.

"There is a variety of gifts, but the same spirit," goes the joint Catholic-Protestant theme for the week

Yet despite such mutual celebrations, church historian Robert T. Handy of New York's Union Theological Seminary says "the grip of the denominational system seems largely unbroken.

The Rev. Lewis H. Lancaster Jr. of Atlanta, ecumenical coordinator for the Presbyterian Church U.S. (Southern), says the world usually has "a hard time seeing unity when it looks at the Citing continued denominational divisions and rivalries, he says that although Christian oneness is the "given" imperative of one Lord, "we don't demonstrate that given unity very well." The Rev. Charles V. LaFontaine, co-director of the Graymoor Ecumenical Institute of the Catholic Atonement Friars at Garrison, N.Y., says some observers see a "new turn inward, a kind of neo-denominationalism" that will wreck ecumenical efforts. But others think the more conservative doctrinal attitudes will make ecumenical relations "more serious" he says, with "more modest but far more substantial gains than in the past." Despite impressions of waning ecumenical drive and scattered new fifts, several recent initiatives are under way to heal denominational divisions. Other such prospects are in sight. Among U.S. Protestants, four sets of reunion talks are in progress

Negotiations between Presbyterians, split North and South since the Civil War, were moving toward a decisive stage, with a plan of union to be completed this year and presented for assembly votes in

At the same time, three branches of Lutheranism have begun a massive, grass-roots study of means for closer ties.

Taking a somewhat similar but longer approach, conregations of the United Church of Christ and the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) have started discussions about whether to enter union negotiations

On the Catholic-Protestant front, more than 10 years of dialogues have produced somgreements, mainly between Catholics and Anglicans (Episcopalians) and between Catholics and Lutherans.

But along with the advances, there also were setbacks. More than 40 congregations recently have broken away from the United

of water...

Many important events have taken place at the well. In days long ago it was a meeting place, where all came because of the necessity to obtain life-sustaining water.

Jacob met his beloved Rachel at the well. Moses met the daughters of his future father-in-law at the well in Midian. Much later Jesus Christ met a woman of Samaria at the well and said, "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst: but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life."

The church of God today is a meeting place where many come to obtain this life-giving and lifesustaining water of which Jesus spoke.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the ruth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Pullum moves to her new position as assistant secretary from duties as secretary in the corporate financial office. She began her career with the electric utility as a clerk - typist during 1963, and attended Amarillo College

In other board action, the present corporate officers were re-elected.

At the annual meeting, stockholders voted to amend the company's articles of incorporation to increase the total authorized capital stock from $180 million to $330 million. This increases the number of common stock shares from 30 million to 55 million and the preferred shares from 3 million to 5 million. This amendment was necessary to allow the company to continue financing its ongoing construction program.

Also, the board declared a regular quarterly dividend of 341/2 cents per share of common stock, payable March 2, 1981, to holders of record at the close of business on February 13, 1981. Regular dividends were also declared on preferred stock, payable May 1, 1981, to holders of record at the close of business on April 20, 1981, The stockholders re - elected the incumbent

Last year's surviving crops worth more

WASHINGTON (AP) - It doesn't help a farmer who was wiped out by last year's heat wave and drought, but those producers whose crops survived are finding them worth much more, says the Agriculture

The Crop Reporting Board said Thursday that 1980 crop production was worth an estimated $83.7 billion, a record. That was an increase of nearly 8 percent over the $77.7 billion value of crops in 1979, a year when farmers harvested record yields.

Officials said, however, that the annual value figures are estimates and do not reflect the worth of commodities actually sold by producers or indicate farm income

Instead, the values are derived from crop production statistics and the estimated prices that farmers get for grain and other crops over an entire marketing year.

Thus, since prices rose significantly as a result of smaller 1980 crops, their values actually increased by a greater margin.

For example, the 1980 corn harvest declined about 16 percent to about 6.65 billion bushels. But the "season average" price paid to farmers is expected to be about $3.52 a bushel, compared to $2.52 for their record 1979

So the value of last year's corn crop — whether it is stored, fed to livestock by producers, or sold - was computed at more than $23.3 billion, an increase of 17 percent from the 1979 crop's value of $19.9 billion.

Corn is, by far, the most valuable crop grown in the United States. Soybeans were second in value last year at about $15.3 billion, up 7 percent from less than $14.3 billion in 1979 — despite smaller production.

Average soybean prices at the farm were $8.39 a bushel, compared to $6.28 for the record 1979 harvest.

Other crops and their values included:

Contrary to most other grain crops, wheat production last year rose to another record level. The season average price for 1980-crop wheat was listed at $3.98 a bushel, compared to $3.78 for the 1979 harvest. That put the crop's value at around $9.44 billion against $8.07 billion the previous year.

The average price for all cotton, at 77.1 cents a pound, was up from 63.4 cents in 1979. But a sharply reduced harvest more than offset the price increase, meaning a value of about $4.12 billion, compared to $4.45 billion for the 1979 crop.

Producers harvested a record rice crop last year, and the price was higher: $11.50 per 100 pounds against $10.50 in 1979. That pushed the rice value to nearly $1.67 billion, up 21 percent from $1.38 billion for the 1979

harvest Tobacco

Production rose in 1980 and so did prices, averaging more than $1.51 a pound, compared to $1.41 for the 1979 all-tobacco crop. That put the value at more than $2.68 billion, a gain of almost 25 percent from $2.15 billion for failed to offset the losses, averaging 23.5 cents a pound against 20.6 cents for the 1979 crop. Value was placed at $538.9 million, compared to $819.3 million a year

Although peanut production was down sharply, price

This is another crop for which higher prices worked wonders in terms of total value. Prices went to an average of $5.73 per 100 pounds for the 1980 crop from $3.43 for the much larger 1979 harvest. That pushed last year's crop value to $1.72 billion, compared to $1.17 billion the previous year.

DEAR WACO: I very nearly threw that letter out, thinking it was a put-on, but after checking it out and printing it, I received many more confirming the theory that the practice of wearing jockey shorts could diminish a man's chances for fathering a child.

DEAR ABBY: I am glad you printed that letter about jockey shorts. My husband and I had already started adoption proceedings when a neighbor, bless her heart, told me about the big difference my husband's shorts could make. We laughed at first, but two months after he started wearing loose boxer shorts, I got pregnant. We couldn't

DEAR PAT: And to make the theory of jockey shorts more binding, try this on for size:

DEAR ABBY: I recently read an article in a medical journal stating that if men continue to wear jockey shorts and tight jeans, the need for artificial insemination will increase drastically!

It stated: "The male anatomy was created so that the testicles draw close to the body in cold weather and drop in hot weather. It is a natural thermostat at work. Interference with this causes a serious drop in sperm.'

The article indicated that American men have increasingly lower sperm counts, and the problem is compounded by the wearing of tight clothing.

For population control throughout the world, wouldn't it be a great idea to export tight jeans?

Technology is changing libraries

CHICAGO (AP) — David O'Keefe is a librarian in Rome, Ga. What does he have in common with Hollywood's movie moguls? They're both into television - in a big way.

O'Keefe heads a staff of 10 in Rome's tri-county library video department and together they produce 60 hours of programming a week for two independently owned local cable-televisitn stations. The library group dtes everything from talk to fitness shows, TV series to individual interviews. They tape children's story hours and do weekly segments on business and finance.

"The library is the point through which all or any information should pass," says O'Keefe. "Television is a natural conduit for retrieving and disseminating information to a vast audience."

O'Keefe's operation is just one example of how libraries are using new technology to give greater numbers of Americans easy access Libraries across the country are on top of the video revolution. For instance, 143 suburban libraries in Chicago support a clearinghouse for lending videocassettes to patrons. More than 2,300 cassettes were borrowed last year and the waiting list for 'Saturday Night Fever' is four years long.

"The move to high-tech is the library professional's response to the growing problem of information storage and retrieval," explains Robert Wedgeworth, executive director of the American Library Association.

"When we can store 54,000 pages on one side of a slender videodisc, then we're able to give the public countless times more information because we have the room to store it," says

Computers play an important role in this library technology package as well, according to Wedgeworth. Many libraries have not only added computers to their information services, but have also placed their own accounting, circulation and acquisition

Audubon encyclopedia is detailed, impressive

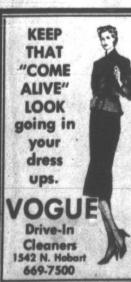

This large, handsome volume priate field. surely is the most impressive American bird book since John J. Audubon's "Birds of America." Not even "A New Dictionary of Birds" sponsored in 1964 by the British Ornithological Union measures up to it.

There are life histories of all the birds that have been sighted in the lower United States, in Alaska, Canada, Greenland, Bermuda and Baja California. Also 6,000 references and cross references, articles on 625 major topics, 47 pages of bib-liography, lives of 126 naturalists and explorers, as well as definitions of hundreds of ornithological terms, and entries from "Abmigration" (a kind of migration peculiar to certain male ducks) to "Zygote" (the fertilized egg cell.)

Each life history gives the bird's common names, the pronunciation and derivation of its scientific name, a feather-byfeather description, reference to the pertinent illustration, and notes on range, breeding habits, nests, eggs, song, and scientific literature. Each major article has been reviewed by a specialist in the appro-processes on computer. Whether callers want to know about grocery prices or librarians want to order three dozen new titles. computers can handle the job.

At the Menlo Park, Calif., library, adults and children learn to program microcomputers similar to those many people are expected to install at home during the '80s. For those who have home computers, this programming instruction enables them to balance their checkbooks, plan vacations and help children improve their grammar.

With these developments just around the corner, Wedgeworth says that computer literacy has become a goal for many libraries, particularly school media centers.

In Park Ridge, Ill., junior-high students write game programs for microcomputers and give them to elementary kids to play on library machines. Some media-center specialists say that computer literacy will equal reading ability in importance, Wedgeworth notes

"I like to think of the new technology as having the same relationship to information that the jet plane has to travel," says Wedgeworth. "The same trips just take much less time."

Such a program, Means says, would include such matters as inventory list of your jewelry; marking and photographing your jewelry for identification in case of loss or theft; periodically updating your insurance needs; using common sense about when and where to wear your jewelry and exercising care if you plan to clean your jewelry yourself rather than having it done by a professional jeweler.

Means, who has been a graduate gemologist since 1951, offers these tips for the security and care of your jewelry, new or later if lost or stolen. With the exception of diamond earrings, which usually consist of a diamond on a post, most jewelry can be marked. Watches can be etched on the inside of the case. Rings, pins, and brooches can have numbers or other symbols etched on the inside of the shank. Many jewelry stores do this as a matter of inventory control or record keeping; individuals could and should do it for the same reason.

Measure and weigh any unmounted stones, such as the pearls in a necklace, that you might own

Pearls, for example, are enjoying a revival of consumer interest. Strands are sold by weight. You should count the total number of pearls on the strand and note the average millimeter size so that if replacement is necessary you wilf have a record.

Maintain an inventory of all valuable jewelry, including photographs of each piece showing styling and size, and keep the list in a location preferably a safe-deposit box separate from where you keep your jewelry.

The purpose of such an inventory would be to provide identification of your jewelry in case it is lost or stolen and recovered. It is also helpful for replacement purposes in the event that recovery does not occur.

A simple Polaroid photo is sufficient for these purposes. You can put each piece next to a

If you're going to clean your jewelry yourself, be careful about what your use.

Alcohol and vinegar are good on some stones and dangerous to others. Softer minerals, such as amber, will become pitted and discolor if cleaned with alcohol. But alcohol is excellent for cleaning diamonds and the mountings ordinarily used for diamonds cannot be damaged by alcohol. However, alcohol is extremely flammable and should be used with care. Household ammonia is another good cleanser for diamonds and other hard stones such as rubies, sapphires or emeralds.

Alcohol doesn't hurt gold or silver but most common detergents kept around the house wouldn't hurt gold or silver, either. All metal jewelry eventually will be marked or scratched through ordinary wearing, but these marks actually can scar the finish. If you want your metal jewelry to have a renewed, bright finish, you should take it to a jeweler for buffing with a "button

Under some circumstances, ultrasonic cleaners can affect either the brilliance or structural strength of amber, opals and pearls. Diamonds or diamond substitutes can be cleaned with safety ultrasonically, but if you are unsure about the effect on other precious or semi-precious stones you should seek expert advice before using ultrasonic cleansing. In any jewelry that is worn, occasional checks should be made by a qualified person for the security, safety and care of your valuables. Security and care are equally important for the full enjoyment of precious jewelry, says Means.

Don't subject your jewelry to excessive heat. Although most jewelry is resistant to ordinary doses of heat, some can be damaged by prolonged exposure to ordinary sunlight. Opals, for example, shouldn't be worn to the beach. An opal is about five to eight percent water, and soft enough so that sand can scratch it. How many times were those unfortunate hostage psyches probed in absentia by TV's rent-an-expert analysts? Would the captives display hostility? Would they manifest Stockholm Syndrome? Would they feel Stockholm Syndrome, but not show it?

The worst display of TV-as-analyst's couch was on NBC last Tuesday. An NBC reporter was going on about the transition period in West Germany, during which the former captives would be probed by various medicine men. He noted that a popular term for this period was decompression period.

All it will cost is a doubling of player salaries.

Garvey said when negotations begin next year on a new collective bargaining agreement, the union will ask for 55 percent share of gross revenue.

'The free agent system doesn't work in the NFL," Garvey said. "No free agent system would work even if you eliminate compensation and the right of first refusal

Dianne Nelson, traveling representative for Women's International Bowling Congress, doesn't mince any words when describing the lack of media exposure given to bowling. Especially where the

Miss Young, who was in town Thursday to attend a meeting of the Pampa Women's Bowling Association, said more persons participate in bowling than any other recreational activity, but it is still the least publicized sport in America.

Women are getting better exposure now than they did years ago, but there still needs to be better coverage," Miss Young added. "A lack of overall publicity is one of

Young said 64 million bowlers compete regularly in 168,000 leagues, but only 4 million are women that are WIBC

"When women go on vacation they take their golf clubs," Miss Nelson said. "Why don't they take their bowling ball? I don't have anything against golf, but it takes a back seat to almost every other sport as far as recognition goes.

Nelson's job consists of more than just public relations. She is one of four WIBC representatives that visit local women's bowling associations throughout the country, assisting sanctioned bowlers with league problems.

'Most of the problems deal with personality conflicts among the bowlers, but this is something that must be settled among themselves," Miss Nelson said. "Other problems and questions deal with lineup rules and make-up games."

In women's leagues everywhere, the major headache involves non-payment of bowling fees, Miss Nelson added.

"It's not that they're stupid, they're just not informed," she pointed out. "Bowlers are required to give two weeks notice before they quit a league and then pay for all their bowling. This problems exists mainly in high industrial areas or military towns where people are in and out all the time. Lots of times a sponsor ends up with nobody on his team.'

Miss Nelson also called attention to the annual WIBC Tournament which opens April 2 in Baltimore, Maryland.

'This tournament is similar to the men's nationals (ABC Tournament), only I feel it's bigger and better," Miss Nelson added. "The men's tournament has closed entries while we take as many entries as we can handle on a first-come, first-served basis. The men usually run about 5,000 entries while the women have 5,200 entries or

Miss Nelson said next year's WIBC Tournament is St. Louis should have 10,000 entries while the 1983 tournament in Las

"I just love the people here." she added. They're very open and very good to me. Texas is also a unique state for bowling because it's something you can do the year around. There are many places where they close up the alleys when summer comes.'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Their record was 2-3 and Coach Tom Flores' face was sending a shiver through some of the veteran players on the Oakland Raiders.

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — South Carolina's Heisman Trophy-winning running back, George Rogers, was praised Thursday as the man who put his home town on the map.

"People now know where Duluth is because of George Rogers," said Duluth Mayor Claude Mason. "It's not much (the celebration),

South Carolina running back, school officials retired his football jersey, a purple and white No. 20. It was the jersey he wore for Duluth High School, not the No. 38 he donned for the Gamecocks.

About 800 screaming, flag-waving fans took part in the party. "How can you explain to a lot of people how much you love them?" said Rogers. "It's a whole lot more nervous than fun to be up here," he told the Students waved purple and white signs with sentiments such as "Luv ya. George" and "We're proud of you, Rogers." All seven entrances to Duluth's city limts on Thursday bore the sign "Home of George Rogers 1980 Heisman Trophy Winner.'

The 6-foot-2, 220-pound winner of collegiate football's highest honor said the "George Rogers Day" celebration meant more to him than the Heisman. "It would have to be. It's gotta be because it's my alma mater and the Heisman Trophy ain't," he told reporters. Rogers thanked his friends, teachers and supporters for backing him through the years, but reserved special praise for Duluth Coach Cecil Morris.

Orleans Saints, who will have the first draft choice, Rogers replied, "I'll feel good playing for-(New Orleans Coach) Burn Phillips. But he ain't going to be no Coach Morris."

Mexico lifting embargo on some rail shipments

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) least $1 million because of the looks like it might be the first - Carloads of American grain and industrial supplies have begun to roll south across the border now that Mexico has relaxed its four-week-old general embargo against rail shipments from Texas, officials

Ferrocarriles Nacionales, Mexico's national railroad, has exempted grain, automobile parts, newsprint, scrap paper, iron ore, propylene, wood pulp, and some other industrial supplies from the embargo, said Texas Mexican Railway President Andres Ramos.

"I guess they were getting a lot of pressure from people who buy these commodities. Some plants might close if they don't get these parts," Ramos said Thursday.

The Mexican railway halted rail shipments from Texas in December because of a 32,000-car backup of foreign freight cars in the country.

The exemptions, which also include items imported by the national oil company Petroleos Mexicanos, were announced last week.

Mark Barnett, sales manager for Missouri Pacific Railroad in Brownsville, said shipments to Mexico have resumed from the Missouri Pacific railhead. But he said he didn't know when the general embargo might be lifted.

"I don't have any idea on that matter. It has to be up to the Mexican national line," he said. He declined to say how many tons of supplies have moved.

Ramos said it could take a week to 10 days for some railways to secure supplies, permits and railcars necessary to resume shipments.

Grain shipments will be resumed only to three towns in the northern state of Tamaulipas - Rio Brava, Rosita and Matamoros.

George Nicol, manager of the Port of Brownsville's grain elevator, said rail shipments also may resume from that terminal

"There's been a translation problem and we don't know if we can load Mexican railcars," he said

"We're still sending everything by truck," he explained.

Trucks carry between 50,000 and 60,000 bushels of grain to Mexico each day from the Brownsville port. Most of the freight is locally grown sorghum and corn.

Severe drought and increased oil revenues last year prompted Mexico to buy almost 10 million tons of American grain. Ramos estimated that his company, a short line with operations in Laredo and Corpus Christi, would lose at

Village remembers veteran for way he died

FRANKFORT, N.Y. (AP) - The monument to Edmund Juteau, a medic in the Vietnam War, stands on a green near bigger bronze and marble memorials to victims of the two world wars. Juteau's is a stone slab that looks alarmingly like a tombstone.

Juteau is remembered by people in this tiny upstate New York village not for the lives he saved, but for the way he died - from cancer of the lymph nodes he believed was caused by exposure to the herbicide Agent Orange.

"I'm all shot up and I had to kill people in Vietnam and watch my buddies die," said Frank McCarthy, a friend of the medic. "But the worst thing I've ever gone through in my life is watching for 10 hours as Ed Juteau Another friend, state Assemblyman Anthony Casale said Juteau told him shortly before he died last year at age 30, "I died in Vietnam, but the government forgot to tell me.

McCarthy is president of Agent Orange Victims International, one of 179 American veterans' groups fighting to get the still-unproven effects of Agent Orange recognized as a compensable war disablement. The battle has shifted in the last year, away from attacks on the government and the Veterans Administration and into the courtroom. This spring, five chemical companies which manufactured Agent Orange will send representatives to a U.S. District Court in Westbury, N.Y., to answer allegations that they were negligent in not telling the government about the hazards of Agent Orange.

The class-action civil suit filed on behalf of 2.48 million Vietnam veterans and their families names Dow Chemical Co., Hercules Inc., Diamond Shamrock Corp., Monsanto Co. and Thompson-Hayward Chemical Co. and seeks establishment of a trust fund that "could reach into the billions of dollars" to compensate veterans for Agent Orange injuries and related effects such as birth defects, said Keith Kavenagh, a lawyer representing the veterans.

Agent Orange is composed of equal parts of two herbicides, 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T. Use of the latter, found to cause cancer in laboratory animals, was banned when the Environmental Protection Agency decided spraying it on Oregon forests may have contributed to an abnormal rate of miscarriages in the area.

Agent Orange also contains TCDD, a dioxin byproduct of 2,4,5-T and one of the most toxic substances known to man.

U.S. military officials say a wartime project dubbed "Operation Ranch Hand" sprayed 45,000 tons of Agent Orange onto the jungles of Vietnam, stripping them an estimated 70 percent bare. After returning from Vietnam, thousands of soldiers began to complain of assorted illnesses, including skin cancer, headaches, numbness, sensitivity to light, inability to use hand tools and birth defects in their children. Many of them attributed the ailments to exposure to Agent Orange. The VA says no connection has been proven

"VA director Max Cleland and (VA) general counsel Guy McMichael are the most dangerous enemies the Vietnam combat veteran has faced since he left the Viet Cong in the jungle," said Victor Yannacone, a Long Island attorney involved in the lawsuit against the chemical companies

Earlier this month, Yannacone filed a separate class-action suit claiming that the VA, prompted by Cleland and McMichael, falsified the medical records of possible Agent Orange victims and failed to give them proper testing.

"In my opinion, Yannacone is himself the biggest danger the Vietnam veteran faces," responded S.M. Appleman, a VA spokesman. "He and others like him continue to make claims about the Agent Orange danger, and they simply have not been backed up with Appleman said the VA recognizes only that 'prolonged exposure" to Agent Orange might cause chloracne, a temporary but often severe skin rash. Appleman said that of 5,045 claims filed by veterans who claim they were exposed to Agent Orange, the VA has paid compensation in 23 cases of chloracne.

During his term, former President Jimmy Carter directed six government agencies to study dioxin hazards. Already, 39,000 veterans suspicious of health damage have taken an Agent Orange test given in VA hospitals. Results are not due for two to six years.

"So fine, in two to six years they are going to come back and tell us we were sick," McCarthy said. 'Meanwhile, we have to bury our dead.'

Last June, New York set up a Temporary State Commission on Dioxin Exposure. Joseph Brett, its executive director, said: "The veterans ... want any proof of health hazards, but such proof requires solid medical studies which take time.

"But they aren't willing to give it time. Some want the smoking pistol so they can go back and beat up the government who're the bad guys who sent them to fight in Vietnam. But we don't have the smoking gun. Not

Besides New York, dioxin studies are under way-in Wisconsin and New Jersey. And everywhere such studies are going on, there is a sense of urgency, to get answers, to move on.

"I say that I've been blessed with cancer (because) I've got a healthy 4-year-old daughter," said Ron DeBoer, a member of New York's dioxin commission who believes his testicular cancer was caused by Agent Orange. "But what about her children? Will they be healthy? Nobody knows. We have to find answers. And we have to find them soon."

Daniel honored

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Two senators who were close friends of the late Price Daniel Jr. have eulogized the slain former House speaker as a "memorable leader" who was the heir to a unique family tradition of public service.

Daniel, 39, died of gunshot wounds Monday at his Liberty home and was buried Wednesday with numerous legislators attending the funeral.

His father is a former governor, United States senator, state attorney general and state Supreme Court justice.

The Senate adopted a resolution and adjourned for the weekend in Daniel's memory Thursday. Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said Daniel will go down in the history of the state as dedicated to opening up state government as never before in the history of the state.

"It's fitting that we pause to remember a man who did make his mark on this state, particularly in the legislative process," said Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, who was assistant presiding officer of the House under Daniel. Daniel was elected speaker in 1973 in the wake of the Sharpstown Bank scandal and pushed through several reforms, including open meetings, open records, an ethics law and a lobby registration law.

Parker said Daniel's "ideals forced upon this Legislature - literally - the will of the people" for 'openness, honesty and integrity" in government.

The resolution co-sponsored by Truan and Parker said Daniel guided reform legislation through the House "with both rectitude and scrupulous fairness admired even by those otherwise minded."

Both senators were in the House with Daniel in 1969-1975. They were elected to the Senate in 1976.

Jury convicts man in student's death

DENTON, Texas (AP) -After deliberating two full days and reporting they were deadlocked, jurors convicted Terry Wayne Williams in the Sept. 12 shooting death of a North Texas State University football player.

The jury returned its verdict Thursday shortly before 6 p.m. at the end of its second full day of deliberation. The punishment phase of the trial was scheduled for today.

Williams, 21, was convicted of killing running back Bernard Jackson, 22, outside the "Mean Green Inn," a popular nightspot near the NTSU campus.
