Feed contamination alleged in horses' deaths

Staff Writer

 The owners of the Bar DK Appaloosa ranch, located in Kingsmill, have jointly filed a $755,000 civil suit in 31st District Court here against Friona Industries Inc., a wholesale supplier of horse feed, charging the corporation was negligent In allowing horse feed to be contaminated with monensin sodium - a cattle growth hormone - which led to the death of six registered quarterhorses and Appaloosas and severely injuring 30 others.

Co - complaintants in the suit filed Friday are dentist Dr. Harbord Cox of Kingsmill and his cousin, Robert Cobb.

The suit alleges that Friona Industries Inc. of Friona sold sacks of "Hi - Pro No. 1656 Horse Feed" to United Feed of 625 S. West. Pampa, which were then sold to the Bar DK Appaloosa Ranch on Nov. 21, 1980.

The feed was fed to the horses from Nov. 21 to Nov. 23, 1980. At that time, several horses died and the remaining horses were severely injured, the suit states.

Examination of the feed revealed the feed was • "adulterated" with monensin sodium - a cattle growth hormone known to be fatal to horses.

Seven horses, with a combined value of $118,000, died as a • result of eating the feed, the suit alleges.

The complaintants charge that the remaining 23 horses. Valued at $657,000, were harmed to the extent that they are worthless except as slaughter animals at $.50 per pound.

Dr. John McNeil, area beef and cattle specialist for Texas A •& M University, based in the Texas Agricultural Extension office of Canyon, said Rumensin — the trade name for monensin sodium — is added to cattle feed to help the animals more efficiently utilize the food towards growth. It usually comes in granular form and is added to the grain, he added. It is also used as an additive to chicken feed under a

Oklahoma State University School of Veterinary Medicine flew to the ranch immediately after the poisoning incident. Cox said the expert told them the chemical caused congestive heart failure in the animals and that they would probably lose

A portion of the grain was taken to Texas A & M University in College Station for analysis. Cox said. He said it was found the feed contained 119 parts of monensin sodium to one ton of feed. A lethal amount of the chemical is 20 parts per ton, he

Cox said the horses began showing effects when they first ate the contaminated feed.

"They were rolling and staggering like a bunch of drunk animals." he said.

Several died immediately, he said. The others died over a period of three months

Horses also poisoned in the mishap, but not included in the suit, are 10 horses owned by former Texas Senator Bob Price of Pampa and two horses owned by Dr. Dale Inman, a veterinarian of Borger, Cox said.

'There's a lot of years there that can't be replaced," Cox

The local dentist predicts the incident will ruin his $1.5 million ranch

"It has completely wiped our ranch out," he added

Cox said representatives of Friona Industries have discussed settlement over the dead horses but refuse to pay for the horses damaged by the contaminated feed.

The injured horses include brood mares in foal, yearling colts and prize - winning show horses. Cox's wife said today. One mare is expected to foal in 12 days, but veterinarians are concerned whether the foal will be affected by the poison. or whether the mare's physical condition will stand up to the

The surviving animals continue to be fed and cared for by the Coxes, although Mrs. Cox said some are in such bad condition, they should be put to sleep. However, the problems arising in the civil suit compel them to allow the animals to live until they die from the affects of the poisoning, she said. We're just feeding dead animals," she added.

Charges may be filed in high school injury

Mrs. Charles Nelson, the mother of 15 year - old Mike Nelson, a Pampa High School basketball player who received a cut on his hand Tuesday, said today she intends to files charges in the incident.

The charges are in connection with an incident Tuesday at Pampa High School that involved a knife, held by senior Arthur Lee Williams, 629 S. Gray St. During reported "horseplay" with the knife. Nelson suffered the laceration.

Highland General Hospital spokesman Walter Johnson said Nelson, 1148 Varnon Dr. was treated for a laceration to his right hand Johnson said the youth received stitches, and according to preliminary reports, there was * no loss of movement in the hand. Reports printed on the front page of the Pampa News Tuesday inaccurately attributed information of the incident to Pampa High School Basketball Coach Garland Nichols.

Nichols said today, "I did not say what was quoted on the front page of the newspaper about the incident.

The information in the front page story came from a source who had talked with Pampa High School Principal Paul Payne.

The story reported that Arthur Lee Williams was reportedly cleaning his fingernails with a knife when Nelson approached Williams with a pencil and lunged towards Williams in a playful attempt to stab him with the object (pencil). Williams returned the lunge with the knife he was holding and accidentally cut Nelson on the right thumb

Payne said today the front page story

Reagan seeks action now on economy WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, budget cut proposals, another giving details of tax involved in preparing the program have striving to convince the nation there is an urgent need to overhaul the economy, will tell Congress and the American people tonight "the time for waiting and hoping has passed.

"If we do not act now, the economy will get worse." a senior aide to the president said Reagan will tell a joint session of Congress in a nationally televised address.

One source said Reagan will propose $6 billion in budget cuts this year and $41 billion next year. Another said the 1982 cuts would total $44 billion. Either way, the 1982 budget cuts would be close to the expected $44.2 billion that the companion tax cut recommendations would cost the treasury. Those proposals would reduce the federal income tax of a typical family of four with a $20,000 income by more than $1,000 over the next 312 years. The Reagan approach - so-called "supply side" economics - is to couple tax cuts with spending cuts in an attempt to reduce inflation and spur economic growth at the same time. The need to come to grips with an array of economic problems has been the central theme of Reagan's first 29 days in office and the tone of tonight's speech is said to reflect the intensity of 'He strongly says we really don't have a choice between doing something and not doing something about the economy." said the senior White House official, speaking with the understanding that he would not be identified by name. "If there are alternatives, let's hear them. But we do not have the luxury of choosing not to act.

A detailed, written message listing specific recommendations, and a third document on maintained that the needlest people in the country proposed revision of government regulations will accompany the 9 p.m. EST speech

However, not all of the 80 specific spending cuts Reagan reportedly has settled on are expected to be outlined in tonight's speech.

Thirteen hours after the address, Reagan leaves for a four-day visit to his ranch near Santa Barbara. Calif., handing to his Cabinet and economic advisers the initial task of selling the program to Congress, the public and to the hundreds of special interest groups who will feel the impact of the president's budget-cutting decisions.

However. Reagan was kicking off that campaign today with a private briefing for Republican and Democratic leaders from Congress.

Later, his top economic advisers scheduled a series of briefings for reporters to explain the

Tax cut would WASHINGTON (AP) — A typical family of four with an income of $20,000 a year would save $1,456 in federal income taxes over the next 3½ years under the tax cut President Reagan will propose

If approved by Congress, the cut would take effect next July 1 and save the typical family $114 on the tax return that will be filed next year for 1981. The Treasury Department estimates the savings for the same family would total $300 in 1982. $464 in 1983 and $578 in 1984.

tonight - a 28.7 percent reduction.

At the other end of the income scale, a four-member family with $200,000 a year in salaries and wages would save $23.513 over the four-year period under the Reagan bill. That would be 16.2 percent less than the same family would pay without the tax reduction

The tax package is part of the economic revitalization program Reagan planned to spell out in a nationally broadcast address tonight.

The president will propose that taxes be cut $6.4 billion in the current budget year, which ends Sept 30, and by $44.2 billion in the following year. The figures include a sizeable business tax cut retroactive to Jan. 1.

Officials in Congress and in the Reagan administration say the president is likely to propose a second tax bill later this year that, in effect, would freeze the lower tax rates to protect against future inflation.

This "indexing" would raise the standard deduction and personal exemption and widen tax brackets to offset inflation

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-III., chairman of the save average family $150 tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee. indicated Tuesday the bill his panel will approve may contain smaller tax cuts than Reagan is proposing tonight

> In a speech to the Economic Club of Chicago. Rostenkowski expressed skepticism about a 10 percent cut in individual tax cuts over the next three years, saying such a cut could reduce tax collections by $261 billion in 1986.

These figures are staggering and call into serious question the effect such massive reductions would have on inflation, economic growth, the deficit, interest rates - and the long-range benefit to working Americans," he said.

Rostenkowski also reiterated his position that tax cuts must be accompanied by spending cuts.

Reagan to end marriage tax

BALTIMORE (AP) - President Reagan will ask Congress tonight to end the so-called "marriage penalty" tax law provision and approve tax credits for parents of private school students. The Baltimore Sun reported

The newspaper, quoting congressional and administration sources, said those provisions will be part of a second tax bill the president will request, in addition to one containing the administration's proposed cuts in personal tax rates and business tax provisions.

The second bill, the newspaper said, will also propose "indexing" tax brackets to keep pace with inflation and lowering federal estate taxes.

Weather

The forecast calls for partly cloudy conditions today and slightly cooler temperatures on Thursday. The high for today will be in the upper 60s with overnight temperatures in the low 30s.

The "marriage penalty" forces married couples in which both persons work to pay higher taxes than they would if still single The Internal Revenue Service, by taxing both incomes as if they were one, forces the couple into a higher tax bracket than would be warranted for each separate income.

The Senate Finance Committee last August approved a bill to ease the penalty, but the proposal never reached the floor. One example put before the committee said a couple in which each spouse earns $20,000 a year would pay combined taxes of $10,226, compared to $8,354 if the partners were not

Is no-fault auto insurance a flop?

By THOMAS S. BROWN

Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) - Ten years ago, Massachusetts pioneered no-fault automobile insurance in hopes of slashing what were the highest premiums in the nation.

A decade later, a typical Boston driver with a 2-year-old Chevrolet Caprice faces a $1,000 bill for coverage, while his counterpart in New York City pays $720, in Providence, R.I., $484, and in Manchester, N.H., $353

Massachusetts insurance prices remain among the nation's highest. Did no-fault flop?

State officials and insurances executives say no-fault was a spectacular money-saver in its early years - and keeps premiums lower than they might be without it. But they say lately it has been weakened by inflation and soaring auto repair prices. And new insurance problems have cropped up including a rise in car thefts.

Massachusetts long has been one of the most heavily regulated car insurance markets in the nation. It was the first state to make injury insurance compulsory, in 1927, and the first to empower a state commissioner to control rates Industry officials think this approach had a psychological effect on the public. "People began to say, Well, if I have to have insurance. I might as well use it," said J. Paul Henderson, New England manager of the Insurance Information Institute. By the early 1970s. Massachusetts drivers were filing injury claims at twice the national average. Premiums escalated. In 1971, the state introduced the no-fault law in an attempt to It works like this: if you're in an accident and your medical expenses are less than $500, you don't sue the other driver you simply collect from your own insurance company. The idea is to keep thousands of small bodily injury claims out of court, cutting expenses for insurance companies and giving customers lower premiums.

Eventually, two dozen states adopted similar rules.

State officials and insurance leaders agree the law had a dramatic corrective impact here for several years. Over a five-year span, bodily-injury premiums dropped 45 percent. Without such a law, actuaries estimated the rates might have

Henderson says today's high premiums aren't no-fault's

"The principle of no-fault is working well in other states"and it's working well in Massachusetts in reducing the number of bodily injury lawsuits." Henderson says. "The premiums would be exorbitant without no-fault bodily injury.

Recently, however, injury rates have begun climbing again. jumping 15 percent in their latest rise. Insurance concerns say inflation has made the $500 floor for medical expenses insignificant. As a result, a new surge of lawsuits has begun to

Soviet attacks on Reagan came quicker, harsher than on others

MOSCOW (AP) - Official Soviet press attacks on the new described Ford as a balanced, calm and confident person in harsher and more personal than criticism of other recent American presidents

While the Soviet news media tried to make the best of the early statements of Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, official commentators have been quick to attack Ronald Reagan from the first moments of his presidency.

The press treatment appears to be a sign that Kremlin leaders apparently see no prospect for early improvement in U.S. ties, which went sour over the crisis in Poland, Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and the stalled Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

In the first month of Reagan's presidency, Soviet media have accused his administration of "political incompetence." "malicious libel," "playing a dangerous game...with lies and hypocrisy" and "indulging in philosophical discussions from the Middle ages '

A review of the record shows Kremlin leaders welcomed Nixon's inaugural "expressions concerning peace" in 1969, tion have come more quickly and been 1974, and described Carter's first presidential utterances in 1977 as "heartening. Despite their initial courtesy, the Soviet press eventually found reason to criticize all three administrations.

The criticism concentrated on nuclear weapons control. which Soviet propagandists said was hampered by "militaristic circles in the United States." Nearly as sensitive was the issue of human rights in the Soviet Union, a cause championed by Carter early in his administration.

White claims Clement's hurt case

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Prison overcrowding in Texas might have been eased by now if Gov. Bill Clements had not vetoed Texas Department of Correction building funds in 1979, according to Attorney General Mark White.

White said Clements' veto made it harder for the attorney general to defend TDC against a civil rights suit filed by inmates. Clements nixed about $30 million in construction funds in 1979, saying TDC's building program was already at its limit.

Now the governor wants $35 million in emergency funds to build, by November, metal buildings to house 2,880 inmates. Under Clements' plan the state would hire contractors to erect buildings at existing prisons. The 1979 money would have paid for inmate-built structures, TDC's traditional way of building units. "If they can accomplish this by Nov. 1, surely (if it had been done) two years ago there would have been no prisoners (sleeping) on the floor today," White said He told reporters, "Long-range planning could have accomplished this at a lower rate. ... Those are policy decisions. I wish other decisions would have been made. They

The attorney general did not specifically blame the governor for prison overcrowding but said Clements' veto has not made it easier to defend TDC

"I'm not laying any blame. I think the facts are there," he

'That set a tone that indicated maybe we weren't going to do what we said we were going to do ... give fair accommodations to those people confined to that prison," White said of Clements' 1979 veto

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice has ruled that Texas prisons are dangerously overcrowded. His 248-page opinion was critical of many prison operations and facilities. Overcrowding in the 30,000-inmate system was listed as one of the prime problems.

About 2,600 inmates now sleep on the floor.

"It's not a happy subject to spend taxpayers' dollars on prisons but I think it's a fact of life we must have additional facilities to take care of the population in TDC," he said. J'I wished it would have happened sooner.' Parties in the civil rights suit - including the state,"the Court to say if brothel list published

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - A state judge must decide whether a local newspaper's First Amendment rights are more important than the reputations of 3,000 people whose names are on a "trick list" police say they seized from a brothel now dubbed 'The Best Little Whorehouse in San Antonio.'

The Thursday hearing in District Judge James Onion's court is the latest episode in a controversy that has raged in the nation's 10th-largest city since Oct. 2 when vice squad officers seized the list of names and arrested three women at what police claim is a brothel.

Editors of "El Pueblo," a community newspaper that claims to have a copy of the list, said it includes some of the city's most well-known political movers and shakers influential businessmen. school board members and even some judges.

"We believe that the people of San Antonio want the names on that list made public," said Antonio Cabral, spokesman for El Pueblo's editorial board.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me
This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment

Industry throttled

The federal Regulatory Council for the first time has compiled a summary of all the federal regulations applying to the U.S. automobile industry - those already in effect and those scheduled under existing law to take effect between now and 1985.

The publication seems to confirm that American automakers are more in need of protection from their own government than from foreign imports.

Some numbers tell the story

Federal regulations affecting the manufacture, sale and use of motor vehicles now fill 392 pages. They are enforced by 13 different federal agencies and sub - agencies. There are 16 congressional committees and subcommittees assuming responsibility for drafting laws affecting the automobile industry is gasping for breath. It is being smothered by regulations.

A new administration and Congress now have the opportunity to disperse the crowd of regulators and give the ailing patient some air.

They surely can do so without significant sacrifice in the energy. pollution and safety goals that gave rise to the complex regulatory framework which has been stifling Detroit. Why, for instance, is the government using a 1975 law to dictate fuel economy standards for new cars when the rising price of gasoline is creating a sufficient demand for fuel - efficient cars without any government regulations?

The Reagan administration is committed to weeding out those federal regulations on business and industry which do not serve the public interest and inhibit economic growth. The auto industry is a good place to start.

Nation's press —

Are inspections needed?

The annual auto safety inspection is a ritual with probably little effect on highway safety. The vast majority of accidents are the result of the nut at the wheel rather than any loose bolt under the hood

Drivers complain about the inconvenience of the inspections and their cost of $5.50, while service station owners complain that this maximum price, set by state law, is too little for the time and effort required. Consequently, those doing the checks often do less than a thorough job on

Some in the state Legislature want to 'remedy' the problem by allowing the rates the market will bear. This they he alone should pay call a "free enterprise" approach, but let us hasten to add here that no enterprise is free where men are compelled by law to participate.

Again we raise the question of whether the inspections are necessary in the first place. State Representative Tom Tancredo, R-Nevada, doesn't think so, and he has introduced legislation to eliminate them in favor of spot checks on the road by law officers. Backers of the plan say that similar action in other states has not brought any measurable decline in road safety. We see no point in penalizing that vast majority of drivers who have the good sense to keep their cars in good working order, inspection law or not. If someone operates an unsafe vehicle, let

Dear Editor Two additional thoughts on federal funding:

1. Congress has already budgeted certain monies for specific purposes to go to school districts for their use. That budgeted money can be used by El Paso. Texas. Springfield, Illinois, or some other community. Therefore, as a taxpayer. I hold the following view: Since the money is already budgeted by our elected officials and will go to school systems somewhere, then I would prefer that some of it go to the Pampa School System and benefit Pampa children, rather than to go to El Paso. Springfield or some other community. If the money is already budgeted by Congress. it is going to go to school systems somewhere -- no doubt about that!

2. Many people do not realize that federal funding has been in virtually all schools systems in the United States for years and years - i.e. the USDA School Lunch Program, the Head Start Program, etc. President Reagan has already indicated that he definitely will not recommend cutting funding in these

I think that when a person or group of persons take a stand against all federal funding ACROSS THE BOARD, they may be, in effect, "throwing the baby out with the bathwater'

What seems to be happening now with our new administration is that a close look is being taken at where the federal funding goes. This is good!!! Hopefully, this will trim the waste and yet continue the funding of worthwhile programs. As an educator and a parent. I strongly believe that the quality education of our children is a worthwhile endeavor. Perhaps the federal money that goes to take care of window and energy conservation needs will lower the monthly costs of heating and cooling the building, thereby leaving extra money to be locally spent on materials and equipment for the classrooms.

I still defend local school systems accepting federal grants to be utilized in some way to improve the school system and to result in benefits for school children. I have seen the positive use and results of such funding.

I would like to add - it is an enduring part of our democratic process that opinions concerning both sides of issues can be presented. I would like to thank the Pampa News for printing my letters to the editor.

By William Steif Someone in the federal government is doing something right

The U.S. Department of Transportation - specifically, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration - has published "The Car Book." a consumer's guide to car buying

It's a multi - color knockout. And it's FREE

The 68 - page book stresses that, next to buying a home, buying a car "is probably the most important financial decision you will make." It stresses that you must comparison - shop (even providing a buyer's checklist you can take with you to your local auto dealers' salesrooms). It offers comparisons of fuel efficiency, maintenance and insurance costs

But "The Car Book" also stresses safety. After all, 51,000 people were killed and 4 million injured in crashes in

The safety chapter, for example, compares results of NHTSA's crash test program - a car crashing into a concrete barrier at 35 miles per hour,

WOW! WHAT AN AIR

SCOOP! HEY IACOCCA!

WHAT DO YA! HAVE IN THAT THING ANYWAY ??! A 426 '

which is similar to two identical cars hitting head - on at that speed.

All cars were rated in six categories: driver protection, passenger protection, windshield retention, windshield zone retention (parts of the car coming through in a frontal crash). fuel leakage and front and back ends.

"Only six of the cars tested passed all of the tests." says the book. They were Cadillac Seville, Chevrolet Citation, Dodge Mirada, Ford Mustang, Ford Thunderbird and the two - door Plymouth Horizon. Different models based on those same cars also passed for example, the Buick Skylark. Oldsmobile Omega and Pontiac Phoenix are all based on the Citation's body. Runners - up to the six were the Buick Riviera, Chevrolet Chevette, Fiat Strada and Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme, which passed occupant protection tests at 35 mph but failed in at least one other category.

Interesting note: Not a Japanese built car is among the 10 safest.

Generally, Japanese cars come out poorly in the safety category. As a group, Datsun, Honda, Mazda, Subaru and Toyota have the highest fatality rates of any group checked in the 1974 -77 period

"The Car Book" points out that a 4.000 - pound car is twice as safe as a 2,000 - pound one and says the fatality rate index "reflects both the way the car is driven and how it is designed." For instance, such cars as Volvo and Mercedes - Benz have relatively low fatality rates, probably due to the drivers' characteristics and higher seat belt use. A section on safety belts and child seats goes into detail on this subject The fuel economy chapter tells you how much your car will cost you yearly. Example: If you drive 10,000 miles, pay $1.35 a gallon for gas and get 24 miles a gallon, your cost will be $563. Axle ratio, engine, transmission and tire costs are explained understandably. So are "minor" options like cruise control and air - conditioning.

The maintenance chapter is a gem. showing that diesels and Japanese cars are most expensive to maintain. Fords, whether subcompact, compact, intermediate or large, seem to be the cheapest to maintain. Japanese cars have the highest insurance costs. usually requiring a surcharge, while the safer American cars can be insured at a discount

Entire chapters are devoted to complaining effectively and buying used cars. The latter is linked to easy to - read charts showing all recent recalls and the reasons for them. There are lists, addresses and phone numbers of all federal agencies with auto programs, and names and addresses of the chief executives of all the auto companies, including the foreign distributorship, mostly published by NHTSA.

"The Car Book" probably is NHTSA administrator Joan Claybrook's swan song. She's not likely to be around in the Reagan administration. She's performed a terrific public service with the book and it ought to be updated annually. Single, free copies can be had by writing to "The Car Book," Pueblo. CO 81009

Get it if you're in the market for a new or used car.

Japan's free ride

One of the parting shots from the Carter administration was aimed at Japan. It was a well - deserved round that should be followed by a heavy bombardment from the Reagan administration.

Now it's our turn to imitate them.

Both the Defense and State Departments issued public statements criticizing Japan for adopting an inadequate defense budget. The Secretary of Defense said that Japan's tiny increase in defense expenditure "is so modest that it conveys a sense of complacency that is not justified by the

One of the first foreign policy tasks of the new administration is to persuade the Japanese that they must make a greater defense effort. The Japanese say that they are full partners of the United States, but they fail to make partnership a reality in terms of defense responsibilities. The fact is that Japan has had a free ride in terms of national defense for decades. This free ride has been at the expense of America's taxpayers.

To be specific, Japan is wholly dependent on oil from the Middle East. Yet it depends on the U.S. Navy to safeguard its oil life - line across the Indian Ocean and the Western Pacific: There is no reason in the world why Americans should continue to pick up the tab for this security operation.

The Reagan administration should insist that Japan pay a large part of the costs of Indian Ocean operations. While Japan's Constitution prohibits the building of nuclear weapons, there is no constitutional impediment to a large increase in the size of the Maritime Self Defense Force. In addition, the U.S. should insist that Japan assume a wider measure of aerial surveillance in the Indian Ocean and the Western Pacific. Beyond this, the administration should call on Japan to provide funds for fast cargo vessels needed for a rapid deployment of ground forces in the Indian Ocean.

The United States must adopt a tougher stance with respect to the Japanese on an across - the - board basis. This is an intolerable The Japanese are in need of a shock in order to wake them to their obligations. If the administration and Congress ordered a three or four month pause in Japanese exports to the United States, it undoubtedly would produce a much - needed shock of recognition. One can't entirely blame the Japanese for this situation, however, because the U.S. government and people have been so unwilling to come to grips with the economic threat posed by Japan and the military burden it asks us to assume. If Americans aren't aroused, why should the Japanese take actions that are costly to them?

Every time some action is proposed to deal with Japanese economic warfare, influential Americans say that the principles of free trade are being violated. No such thing. What's being violated is fair trade. The rule of fair trade is what should prevail under the Reagan administration. As far as defense is concerned, if the United States is to modernize and augment its defenses, it must insist that its partners, beginning with Japan, carry their fair share of the burden of free

CRYSTAL CITY, Texas (AP) - Jose Angel Gutierrez, the fiery founder of La Raza Unida Party, climaxed a year-long feud with political enemies Tuesday by saying "To hell with it" and resigning as Zavala County Judge.

In a late afternoon meeting, commissioners accepted the resignation and appointed Ron Carr, a local peace justice, to succeed Gutierrez who had been the county's top elected official the past six years.

In return, the commissioners agreed to release a $9,000 cashier's check for back pay Gutierrez contended had been withheld during a dispute over his failure to attend

Reached by telephone in Mount Angel, Ore., where he is teaching at a small college, Gutierrez said the dispute finally boiled down to a demand for his resignation in exchange for his back pay

'Finally, I just said to hell with it," he said. "I figured better four fools than five so I resigned.

He said commissioners "won't pay my salary, so I had to find other work. This is the Catch-22 they finally got me on. Gutierrez would not go into detail about his

Associated Press Writer CHICAGO (AP) - When hardened felons see her heading to their cells, pulling her cart of "goodies," they grab the bars and shout:

'God bless you, Mother York! God be with you always!

The little, 57-year-old woman with the sparkling eyes moves to them. She leans her head on the bars and they whisper to her.

One inmate says: "You are a gift by yourself. You don't have to bring anything."

Mother York, dressed in black with a silver cross on a silver chain hanging from her neck, usually has a guard unlock the cell so she can enter with her cart and Bible. "I want to be as near to them as I can," she says. She enters alone.

She mingles with rapists and murderers, passing out soap, candy, toothpaste, shampoo and hair conditioners

Then it's time to pass out the word of the Lord.

As the 30 to 35 inmates bow their heads. Mother York holds a brief and dynamic prayer meeting - the kind that penetrates.

Then she leaves, pulling her cart from cellblock to cellblock as ranking officers and guards greet her affectionately, some kissing her on the cheek as she

Hughes tax case will be heard in Austin

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A long-awaited trial to determine the late Howard Hughes' legal residence - a decision worth many millions of dollars to the state that wins - probably will start in six to eight months, says an assistant to the Texas attorney general.

James Nelson made the statement to the Senate Finance Committee during Tuesday hearings on Attorney General Mark White's budget request for fiscal 1982-83.

White has requested $300,000 a year to cover expenses of pursuing Texas' claim that Hughes was a resident of Texas at the time of his death in 1976.

'It is in federal district court in Austin ... and we estimate it will go to trial in six to eight months." Nelson said of the suit. Administrators of Hughes' estate - at the suggestion of four U.S. Supreme Court Justices - filed an "interpleader" action in 1978 to resolve the residence issue. Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated the state would collect $100 million in inheritance taxes if the courts determine that Hughes was a resident of Texas at the time of his death in

Estimates of the estate's value range from $150 million to $1.1 billion, with administrators of the estate insisting on the California, Nevada and Delaware also claim Hughes as a resident, but Nevada, which has no inheritance tax, "has about given up. so the chances for Texas are a little brighter."

Nelson said. Texas' chief rival is California although administrators of the estate contend Hughes was a resident of Nevada.

U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts of Austin, who has since retired, had said he had no jurisdiction to decide Hughes' residence and dumped the question on state courts in California and Texas.

But the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed Roberts' order and sent the case back to federal district court here.

Assistant Attorney General Myra McDaniel, who is handling reports that as many as 12 the case, said she expects California to appeal the 5th Circuit's helicopters were taken to ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

AP Special Correspondent RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) - All week long the birds have been bombed on those purplish berries growing on the otherwise winter-bare branches by my garage.

Maybe they are juniper berries, because the imbibers manifest the same symptoms as gin drinkers. They strut about in a wobbly fashion, leaving jagged claw tracks on the snow covered lawn. They fly erratic patterns, sometimes dazing themselves against my picture window or missing the roof gutters, a favorite perch

Late in the afternoon, along about cocktail time in these exurban parts, they sing raucous songs in the low branches of the same berry bush where they got the bun on and chirp inanely to each other in high-pitched shrill voices.

Most of the cut-ups are lowly sparrows, but occasionally they are joined by a pair of eminent cardinals and a noisy gabble of purple finches, ruddy-faced and purple-robed like monsignori I wonder if these birds think they are people? Behavioral psychologists might look into the similarities between animal

I remember a few years back a woman wrote to "Dear Abby" about her husband, who was the life of every party. His favorite schiik was to remove his coat, flourish it like a bullfighter's cape, take out his false teeth, clack them like castanets, shout "Ole" and go into a Jose Greco heel-stomping Spanish dance.

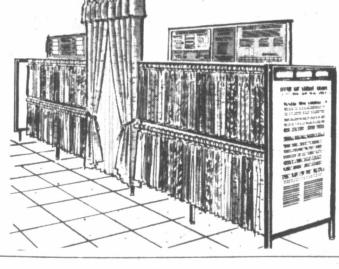

"How can I stop him?" asked the aggrieved wife.

The history of human occupation in Labrador as pieced together by Fitzhugh is a testament to endurance and adaptability.

"It all comes down to a question of the relationship between man and his environment," he says. "Our findings mean we have to reevaluate our traditional view of how early cultures adapted to so - called 'marginal' environments. The research also has practical implications for people living today, both in Labrador and other harsh locales."

Dear Abby

DEAR READERS: In my mail this morning was a picture of a beautiful newborn baby boy. I'm sorry I can't share it with you, but I can share the letter that accompanied it:

DEAR ABBY: I'm 18 years old and want to tell you about a place that is to many a godsend. It's Booth Memorial Residence, a home for unwed mothers-to-be. It's run by the Salvation Army people, and the atmosphere is one of love, caring and understanding. In the five months I lived there, not one girl was turned away. There are no age, race or financial barriers. It provides a friendly family atmosphere for pregnant girls as well as health care, prenatal courses, assistance in schooling and career goals and personal counseling. No girl is ever pressured to give up her baby or

The residence I lived in is in Omaha, Neb., but there are others throughout the country. I will never forget these wonderful people. I hope one day to return to Omaha to live and work, and when I do, I plan to volunteer at Booth to help other girls who come there for help as I did.

Thanks to terrific counseling, I am content and happy knowing that I made the right decision in giving up my son. The couple who adopted him were ecstatic to receive him, and I know that they will always celebrate Thanksgiving on Nov. 27th, his birthday.

If this letter helps just one girl and her family, it will have been worth the writing. Love and many thanks, Abby. STARTING OVER IN MO.

DEAR ABBY: A social club of adult women recently had a party for members and their escorts only. Some members indicated that they wanted to attend unescorted. It was ruled that attending a dancing party without an escort was unacceptable because it would put a burden on the other club members' escorts in terms of dancing or entertaining those women who came unescorted.

In today's society, with so much emphasis placed on women's independence and doing their own thing, I totally disagreed with this rule. How do you feel about restricting attendance to only those women who bring an escort? PERPLEXED IN N.Y.

February 19, 1981 This coming year a friend could come to you with a rather unique proposal and, although it may appear too far-out at first glance, it will behoove you to take a closer look. It could be profitable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If your budget has been bent a bit out of shape lately, it's time to seek ways to trim the fat. Unfor tunately, you may do just the opposite today. Why Jim Otto faces a life of pain

By Murray Olderman

YUBA CITY, Calif. (NEA) -He rolls out of bed gingerly in the morning. His legs start to buckle. He grabs for the night stand to keep from collapsing to the floor.

Jim Otto hates the idea of being a cripple, but that's what he is in his own mind.

Fifteen hard years of professional football left him this way - with one deteriorating artificial knee and the other knee so arthritic and unstable that he lives in constant pain. He is virtually immobilized to the point he is classified permanently and totally disabled.

The other day, he accompanied his wife, Sally, to a furniture store. As they left, she stepped off the sidewalk curb. Jim followed her. His knees wobbled, and he fell on top of her. Jim weighs 230 pounds. Sally is a slim, petite blonde.

The last time Jim Otto used his legs to run was in 1975 when he wore the silver and black uniform of the Oakland Raiders and trotted out on the field for the final game of his long and illustrious career, an exhibition against the Washington Redskins. He can't jog now. He can't lift weights or perform any other meaningful exercise. He can't even hold a

"Can you see Jim Otto around the team like that?' he asks.

Jim Otto, who was voted into the Professional Football Hall of Fame a year ago, recently passed his 43rd birthday. His hair is dark blond with no sign of gray. A couple of slight hollows indent his upper cheeks. His jaw line is firm. He weighs 25 fewer pounds than when he was an is flat and his jeans fit snugly. He shows very few signs of aging — other than those gimpy legs.

He is never without pain, which he controls with Clinoril, an anti-arthritic drug. Still, he can't stand in one spot for more than 15 minutes. And after an hour of standing he would topple over.

The problem is that Jim Otto virtually has no knees. During his 15-year career with the Oakland Raiders from 1960, when the team was formed, through 1974, a period in which he never missed a game and made All-Pro 12 straight years - Otto submitted to nine knee operations. Those crucial leg hinges have turned completely arthritic from the wear and tear.

An artificial knee was implanted in his right leg, but it's tearing loose. So he walks with a perceptible limp. His left knee hurts even more. He should undergo further surgery, but he is hesitant because of the ordeal he has already been through.

Never drafted by a pro team when he came out of the University of Miami (Fla.), Otto signed as a free agent. He built himself up from a 205-pound center to a 255pound immortal by lifting weights. He can't lift weights any more because the bones in his shoulders have also become arthritic. The lack of exercise has atrophied the muscles in his once sturdy legs. Yet Jim Otto doesn't regret one moment of his football career

"I would do it all over again," he says. "Football was a means for me as a youngster to be recognized for doing something well. I wasn't a good student. Football did everything for me. So I can't be bitter. He played his last three years under the greatest physical stress imaginable. Three days a week he would have his knee injected with xylocaine and then drained with a long needle. On Sundays, he would get it braced, lace himself with Darvon and go out and play. He finally quit during training camp in the late sum-mer of 1975, when he was approaching 38, because he realized the pain would be too

"I could have played one more year," he says now,

Ron Easley, DVM

"though I wouldn't have been very effective. I had a bone graft before I came to training camp, but it came apart after two and a half weeks. Then I read about a player suffering a dislocated knee leg. That did it for me.' He was prepared for the abrupt severance from active football. After hunting during the off-seasons in the Yuba City area in central California, he had bought a 134-acre walnut orchard. He has a fastfood hamburger franchise in Auburn, Calif., in the Sierra foothills. He plans to open another near Sacramento. "But I don't work at anything," he says. "My legs don't allow me to. I have nothing to look forward to in my They're beyond help. Four different doctors, independently, have examined me in the last two years and all have classified me perma-nently and totally disabled in the legs."

His worst period has been the last six months, when he experienced the first deep depression of his life. When he gets up sometimes in the morning, "the pain is so great I swallow five or six aspirin right away.

His son, Jim Jr., is 14 and plays tight end and defensive end on the high-school team in Yuba City. His dad does nothing to discourage him.

"I've seen tears in young Jim's eyes when he sees me, says the father. "He's had to help me get in the house when I get out of the car. But he makes his own decision. My son doesn't have to play football.'

What worries Jim Otto Sr., now is that he can't plant or flex his left foot, indicating some nerve damage. He faces up to the physical future uncertainly. But he knows he's not alone

"Dick Butkus (the great Chicago Bear linebacker) lives in pain," muses Jim. "He sacrificed his body. E.J. Holub (a fine center-linebacker with the Kansas City Chiefs) destroyed his body.

"I knew what I was doing. I broke my ankle in high school and taped it up each week and played the whole season on that broken ankle."

The remembrance doesn't bother him as much as the fact that he couldn't help Sally decorate the family tree at Christmas.
