Hijack deadline passes with no action at plane

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Airplane hijackers described as fanatic Muslims by Indonesian sources let another deadline pass today without apparent harm to their 55 hostages, including two Americans.

The hijackers, who wounded an American during an escape attempt Sunday, are demanding $1.5 million ransom and freedom for 80 "political prisoners" in Indonesia.

Thai police sharpshooters ringed the Garuda Indonesian Airways DC-9 and a group of Indonesian commandos was reported at the airport.

Thai officials said they oppose Indonesia yielding to the hijackers' demands, which have been altered several times since the Garuda Indonesian Airlines DC-9 was seized Saturday. There was discussion with Indonesian authorities about a commando attack on the aircraft.

Government sources in Jakarta, the Indonesian capital, said the demands would not be met. The sources said Indonesia would allow Thai officials to try a peaceful settlement. If that fails, one source said, "We will move in."

The five hijackers, armed with machine guns and explosives, first demanded that 20 prisoners be freed. Indonesian President Suharto agreed, but the hijackers increased the number to 84, and agreement again was announced Sunday.

But today, without explanation, a Thai spokesman said the hijackers — who took no action when their 9 a. m. EST deadline passed — announced they would accept the release of 80 instead of 84 prisoners.

At an adjacent military field, an Indonesian DC-10 stood by. It arrived Sunday night carrying the nation's deputy intelligence chief, and according to the sources, about 50 Indonesian commandos.

An American shot by the hijackers Sunday was reported in stable condition today at a Bangkok hospital. A British captive escaped through an emergency exit earlier Sunday as airport workers refueled the plane.

Thai government spokesman Trairong Suwankiri said the hijackers had demanded the dissidents be freed and flown, along with the money and a list of names, to Bangkok. He said the gunmen would then release the hostages, but take the plane to a new, undisclosed location.

Trairong did not say what action the hijackers might take if their deadline was not met.

Thai Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanond had said earlier that Indonesian Deputy Intelligence Chief Benny Moerdani asked for permission to use force to "clear up the problem." But Prem said he replied that the use of force would depend on how violent the hijackers became.

The Indonesian government has said the hijackers are members of a "certain illegal movement."

Wounded passenger a Texas native

DALLAS (AP) — A Texas native who jumped from a hijacked Indonesian jetliner after being shot in the back was in "stable" condition today after a bullet was removed from his spine, an oilfield supply company official says.

Carl Schneider, 44, who is originally from Texas but has lived out of the country for the past 15 years, underwent surgery and "is doing pretty well," according to Bud Hamilton, senior vice president and general manager of Milchem Co., a Houston-based firm. He was in a Bangkok hospital early today.

Hamilton said by phone Sunday that officials in Bangkok, Thailand, had called him and told him a bullet lodged in Schneider's spine had been removed, but that it would be some time before it was known if Schneider sustained permanent injury.

Schneider, manager of Milchem's Indonesian operation, was en route to Sumatra on a business trip when the hijacking occurred, Hamilton said.

He was the second person to flee from the DC-9 Garuda jetliner parked at Bangkok's Don Muang airport. Officials said 55 hostages remained on the plane Sunday.

Schneider and his wife Linda, an English citizen, made their home in Jakarta, Indonesia, where Schneider had been working for about four months following an assignment in Athens, Greece, Hamilton said.

Arrangements were being made to fly Mrs. Schneider from Jakarta to Bangkok, he said.

Schneider's mother, whose name was not immediately available, lives in Lubbock, Texas, Hamilton said, and been kept informed of her son's condition.

Milchem, a subsidiary of Baker International Corp., is headquartered in Houston and employs about 1,400 people.

The company specializes in drilling fluids and related equipment.

Tornado forms without storm, causes light property damage

"It just goes to show you when conditions aren't right, they're right."

Strange as this may sound, Steve Vaughn, Pampa civil defense coordinator, said today that tornadoes can form even if there is no storm.

Vaughn said apparently a tornado did pass over Pampa Saturday afternoon causing light damage to property in the north part of town and catching civil defense officials off-guard. No injuries were reported.

"We got caught with our pants down," Vaughn said today. He said although his own backyard fence was a casualty from the twister, he was not aware of the nature of the wind until Sunday.

"No one knew in an official capacity until Sunday afternoon," Vaughn said.

The tornado apparently formed over Price Road between Panhandle Meters and Mobile Oil Company sometime between 5 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. Saturday. He said it moved from the northwest to the southeast, also not following the usual pattern for tornadoes.

"It's debatable whether it actually touched down or not, but the vacuum caused some damage," Vaughn said.

The twister kicked up dirt and debris, the civil defense coordinator said. He added he had received several reports of people loosing fences and receiving damages to their automobiles.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gilliam of Pampa said the back windshield of their vehicle was popped out while it was parked on Hobart Street at the time of the tornado.

Vaughn said he received reports that signs at Kentucky Fried Chicken, White's Auto and the Pizza Inn were damaged at the time of the twister.

Although several people later reported seeing the tornado, he said no one called police with a report. No spotters were out, he said, because conditions were not right.

The civil defense coordinator asked that anyone seeing what might be a tornado to report it immediately to the Pampa Police Department.

"Go ahead and call even if you are not sure," he said.

Vaughn said no injuries resulting from the brief tornado have been reported to him.

Polish strike halted in late talks

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The independent union Solidarity today called off a nationwide general strike threatened for Tuesday over the beating of three union members, the Polish news agency PAP said.

The decision was made after talks with government officials at which progress had been reported toward meeting union demands for punishment of those responsible for the beatings.

There was no immediate word on terms that led to calling off the strike which government officials had said would lead to catastrophic consequences in this Soviet bloc country racked by labor and economic turmoil.

PAP said the negotiators were preparing a joint communique.

The talks were between Lech Walesa, leader of the Solidarity independent union, and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski.

Warsaw Pact military maneuvers continued in and around Poland, an ominous background to the talks.

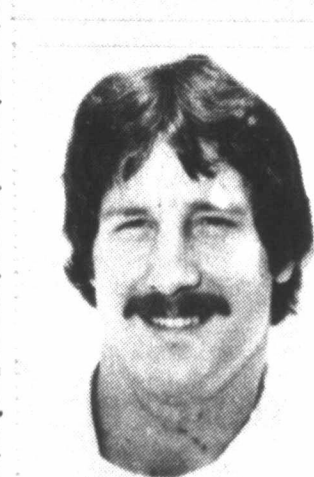

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted a Polish Communist Party official as saying, regarding a general strike, "our country has no reserves that would enable it to survive this catastrophe economically. Therefore the structure of our state and its very survival are at stake."

The official, Kazimierz Barcikowski, spoke at a meeting of the party's Central Committee which gave its ruling Politburo a vote of confidence to deal with the situation after stormy debate.

After flexing its muscles in a four-hour warning strike Friday, the union, angered by the beating of three members in Bydgoszcz on March 19, threatened an indefinite general strike starting at 6 a. m. Tuesday (11 p. m. EST tonight) if its demands are not met in the last-ditch talks. The chief demand is dismissal of those responsible for the beatings.

Warsaw Radio said the Central Committee's resolution called on party members "to counteract the influence of the enemies of socialism on individual cells of Solidarity."

Cowboy 'gamemaker' slated to speak

RANDY WHITE

All - pro defensive tackle Randy White, one of the Dallas Cowboys "gamemakers," will be speaking about the Cowboys and his experiences in football at M. K. Brown Auditorium at 8 p. m. Tuesday in a program sponsored by the Pampa High School Choir Boosters Club.

Tom Landry says any championship team needs a few "gamemakers," players of such singular talent they can singlehandedly control a game's outcome. Randy White is one of these players.

"The guy is phenomenal. He just doesn't have any bad games," Landry said. "They can slow him down a little, but they can't stop him."

Statistics like number of tackles and quarterback traps are meaningless in White's case because, as defensive coordinator Ernie Stautner said, "Teams have to double and triple team Randy on pass rush. He gets so much attention from the opposing team that it just makes it easier for everybody else."

White is known as the Cowboy's strongest player — he can bench-press 475 pounds. He was dubbed by Charlie Waters as the "Manster" — half man, half monster.

White was a unanimous all - pro selection in 1979 for the second straight season and also was voted to the Pro Bowl for the third consecutive year.

Considering that he became the starting right tackle only three years ago after two seasons as a backup linebacker, that's a lot to have achieved in a relatively short time.

Missing only one game last year because of an injury to his right foot, White still finished the season with five quarterback traps. He also had the key fumble recovery that began the Cowboy's dramatic two-touchdown rally against Washington in December 1980.

In 1978, White tied Harvey Martin for the team lead in quarterback traps with 16 and nearly led the club in solo tackles — 75, one less than team-leader Waters — an unheard-of accomplishment for a defensive lineman.

He succeeded Martin as the Seagram's Seven Crowns of Sport defensive lineman of the year and was voted NFC defensive player of the year by United Press International and the Kansas City Committee of 101.

In 1977, White capped his first season at defensive tackle with an awesome performance in Super Bowl XII that earned him the game's co - Most Valuable Player award with Martin.

Waters said of his teammate, "He's the best football player I've ever seen. A coach's dream. All the accolades — strong, fast, determined, smart, a team player, a leader, a big-play guy. I get a lot of energy from him."

In the off - season, White lives on his farm in Linden, Pa., near his hometown of Wilmington, Del. with his wife, Vicki, and daughter, Jordan Leigh.

Tickets to hear White are available from any choir booster club member, choir member, at Fraser Insurance Agency, The Pampa News and at the door.

Abscam prosecutors face toughest case

NEW YORK (AP) — Prosecutors beset by rulings of government entrapment face their most troublesome Abscam case today with the trial of Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., the most powerful politician indicted in the FBI sting.

Williams was one of the first to meet with undercover FBI agents posing as representatives of favor-seeking Arab sheiks, but the 61-year-old New Jersey Democrat was the last to be indicted.

"I will survive," predicts the 22-year Senate veteran whose current term expires in 1982. The sole senator indicted in the sting maintains he is "totally innocent."

Court oks deprogramming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court let stand today Minnesota rulings allowing parents to lock up an adult "child" and try to "deprogram" her out of a religious cult.

The justices, as usual, did not explain today's action, leaving open the option of tackling at some future date the thorny questions of religious freedom and "brainwashing."

Susan Louise Peterson grew up on a farm near Bird Island, Minn., with her Lutheran parents, Norman and Margaret Jungclauss. She joined a religious organization called The Way Ministry during college.

The Minnesota Supreme Court later concluded that Ms. Peterson "had been reduced to a condition of psychological bondage" in the cult.

On May 24, 1976, Jungclauss picked up his daughter, then 21, at college. Instead of driving her home, she claimed, he drove her to a house in Minneapolis where she was held and subjected to intense persuasions to leave The Way Ministry by a pair of "deprogrammers."

Prosecutors face an uncertain task in the courtroom this time since a federal judge in Philadelphia last year threw out the convictions of two Philadelphia city council members on grounds of governmental misconduct and entrapment.

The convictions were overturned based on the most controversial Abscam evidence: tapes of a June 28, 1979, session involving the council members and Williams. The government is appealing the reversal.

The 13 other Abscam convicts are appealing on similar grounds.

Barring success of last-minute maneuvers to delay the trial before U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt in Brooklyn, jury selection was slated to begin today from a panel of several hundred people.

The trial is expected to last up to two months.

The Williams' case has been the most troublesome for the Justice Department.

Like six House members who have preceded him to the Abscam courtroom, Williams is accused of agreeing to introduce a private immigration bill on behalf of a phony Arab sheik.

Both sides acknowledge it is radically different than those before it, if for no other reason than the conduct of Mel Weinberg, the convicted con man hired by the FBI to help set up the sting.

Lawyers for many of those already convicted have used tapes of early meetings involving Williams and Weinberg in efforts to prove entrapment and governmental misconduct in their clients' cases.

Williams, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee until the Republicans gained Senate control in January, is accused of bribery and conspiracy involving an alleged promise to introduce an immigration bill to allow the purported Arabs to stay in the United States.

Standing trial with Williams is Alexander Feinberg, a 72-year-old lawyer from Cherry Hill, N.J., and longtime Williams' associate.

Mayor Angelo Errichetti, of Camden, N.J., was severed from the trial because the Justice Department agreed it would not further prosecute those convicted in earlier Abscam cases unless they won appeals. Retired contractor George Katz of Fort Lee, N.J., was said to be seriously ill and also was severed.

In addition to the charge involving the private immigration bill, Williams also is charged with agreeing to accept a concealed 18 percent interest in a Virginia titanium mine. In return, he allegedly agreed to do everything in his power to obtain military contracts for the mining venture.

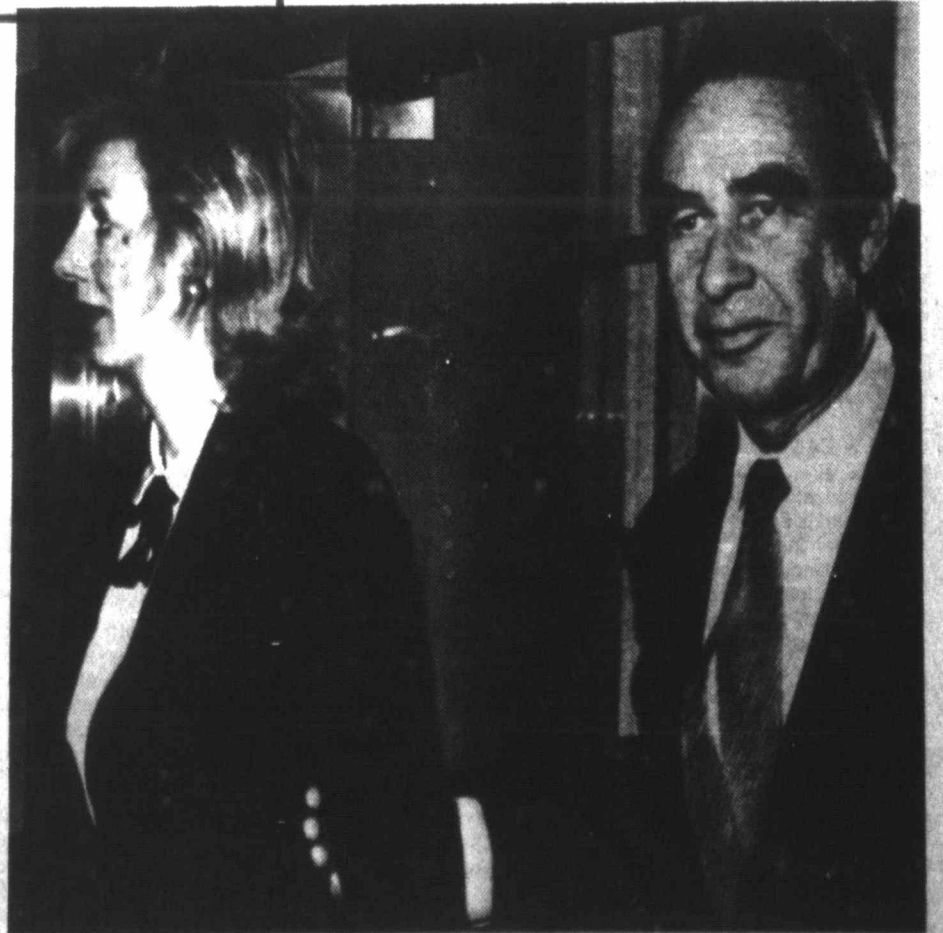

The supposed Arabs were going to finance the deal with a $100 million loan at favorable interest rates, the federal indictment charges. The charges further allege that as part of the conspiracy, Williams and the others agreed to later sell the mining company to a group of foreign businessmen for $70 million.

Prosecutors say the senator would have stood to make 18 percent of the sale price, or $12.6 million, minus expenses.

Like the Abscam defendants before him, Williams faces a series of government-made videotapes showing numerous meetings with undercover FBI agents posing as frontmen for the sheik and with "Sheik Yassir Habib" himself.

The other congressmen or former congressmen convicted here and in Washington include former Reps. John Murphy, D-N.Y.; Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J.; John Jenrette, D-S.C.; Richard Kelly, R-Fla.; Michael Myers, D-Pa., and Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa.

Lederer was the only implicated member of Congress to win re-election.

ABSCAM TRIAL BEGINS. Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., with his wife Jeanette at his side, arrives this morning at Brooklyn federal courthouse as jury selection began in his Abscam bribery conspiracy trial. Sen. Williams is the seventh and most powerful member of Congress to be tried in the political corruption scandal. (AP Laserphoto)

Tentative launch date set for space shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Kennedy Space Center workers are preparing for a final countdown tentatively leading to an April 10 launch of America's trouble-plagued space shuttle Columbia.
 "We feel the 10th is a viable launch date," shuttle launch director George Page said Sunday after an exhaustive physical inspection confirmed the success of two critical tests of the system's silo-shaped aluminum fuel tank.
 The 73-hour launch countdown is set to start at 11:30 p.m. EST this Sunday, Page told reporters at a briefing.
 The formal announcement of a launch date is not expected until a flight readiness review, to be conducted Tuesday at Kennedy Space Center by National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials.
 Last week's fueling tests involved the 154-foot fuel tank, which serves as the backbone of the shuttle system. The tank is designed to carry 526,000 gallons of super-cold liquid oxygen and hydrogen that will fuel the Columbia's three main engines for eight minutes after blastoff.
 The tank will be jettisoned just before the shuttle goes into orbit. If all goes according to plan, the Columbia itself will glide back to Earth on wings for a landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California following its first 54-hour orbital flight.
 The $8 billion shuttle program is more than two years behind schedule.

 A weekend "hands-on" examination of cork insulation panels on the outer surface of the tank, which fuels the orbiter's main engines, revealed "absolutely no debonding problem" as a result of the fueling tests, Page said. A similar fueling operation in January had loosened the bond holding some of the insulation and damaged 32 of the panels.
 "Basically, both tests (on Wednesday and Friday) were successful," Page said. He said minor cracks in a foam covering sprayed onto the insulation would be repaired immediately and would not interfere with the mission.
 Leaks of hydrogen fuel on ground support equipment encountered in the Friday fueling also were being corrected this week, he said.
 The cork and foam insulation is designed to prevent the fuel from vaporizing during the heat of the launch. It also is intended to prevent the frigid fuel from creating ice buildups on the outside of the tank. Officials fear ice could damage the delicate thermal tiles on the shuttle itself.
 Page said the launch-preparation schedule now being followed actually leads to an April 9 launch date, with the countdown starting Saturday.
 But April 9 would be "too optimistic," Page said, adding he wants to give the launch team a day off before the lift-off.

Union chief trying to convince coal miners to accept contract

By The Associated Press
 With voting a day away, United Mine Workers President Sam Church headed into the West Virginia coalfields today for a "real donnybrook" with striking miners who have branded a proposed new contract a "sellout."
 Church was winding up a five-day tour through the eastern coal states to support the proposed pact with meetings in Charleston, W.Va., and Beckley, W.Va., the hearts of the UMW's two largest districts.
 The burly union president predicted tense meetings with angry miners who have broken up other meetings and burned copies of the contract. The UMW's 160,000 striking miners vote Tuesday on the tentative agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.
 Church, who started his tour with predictions that the contract would be approved by a two-thirds majority, said Sunday he is "still optimistic it's going to pass."

"If the contract is read and studied, and our people work under it, it will help our organization if they will only give it a chance," he said.
 UMW officials in several states predicted Tuesday's election will be decided by a "silent majority" and not the militant groups who have picketed and heckled Church on his tour.
 "They (miners) make up their minds for themselves. They're direct people who go their own way," said Denny Deskins, a UMW official in Welch, W.Va.
 The proposed contract provides for a 36 percent increase in pay and benefits over three years. Critics contend it will weaken the union by ending a royalty paid by coal companies to the UMW on purchases of non-union coal.
 Although many union leaders have declined to forecast the outcome of the election, a growing number of officials say the contract will be ratified because of the poor economy and high unemployment in the coal industry.

Service contracts-protection, perils

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
 Automobile buyers looking for protection against big repair bills often spend extra money for service contracts, but consumers have to shop carefully to avoid hidden pitfalls.
 It is important to understand what you are buying and who you are buying it from.
 A service contract is NOT a manufacturer's warranty. It is designed to cover repairs for a fixed period of time, generally extending beyond the life and scope of the warranty. The cost of the contract — unlike the cost of the manufacturer's warranty — is not included in the price of the car.
 A service contract may be offered by a manufacturer, an independent contract company or an individual dealer or dealers' association. It may cover either a new or a used car, although contracts provided by manufacturers usually apply to new vehicles only.
 It is important to make sure that whoever offers the service contract has enough money to pay claims for repair bills. "Some companies ... lack funds or insurance or go out of business," says the Federal Trade Commission.
 The recent failure of a company which marketed service contracts called "Car Life" demonstrates the potential problems.
 Jackie Schmitt of the FTC said that the company, which did business under the names North American Dealer Services and North American Dealer Group, sold an estimated 500,000 "Car Life" service contracts across the country between 1977 and 1981. In February, however, the company filed for bankruptcy.
 Ms. Schmitt said holders of "Car Life" contracts should check their records to make sure they do not suffer. Two types of contracts were sold, she said. One was issued by individual dealers; the contract includes the words: "This vehicle service contract is between the issuing dealer and the service contract holder." People with this kind of contract should have no trouble getting repairs, despite the bankruptcy, Ms. Schmitt said, since the dealer, not North American, is the provider of service.
 The second type of contract, sold through a variety of outlets, including credit unions, is more complicated, Ms. Schmitt said. These contracts were written as insurance policies against the Great Atlantic Insurance Co. Ms. Schmitt said holders of this type of contract should send a copy of their policy and repair bills to the insurance company at 59 John St., New York, N.Y., 10038.
 No matter who is issuing the contract, you should ask several questions before you sign up for anything. Among them:
 —What does the contract cover? Some pay for routine inspection and maintenance only; others take care of all defects and breakdowns.
 —What does a service contract provide that a warranty doesn't?
 —How will repair bills be paid?
 —Where can I get service?
 —What will I have to pay in addition to the cost of the contract? Most contracts have "deductibles," just like insurance policies.

Oscars mean more pay for actors

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After spending nearly $3 million on an advertising blitz to promote the nominees, the film industry is awaiting the results of tonight's Academy Awards with visions of bulging box-office receipts.
 The 13 1/2-inch, gold-plated statuettes may look prestigious on a shelf, but the real gold associated with the Oscars comes in different forms.
 For instance, a winner such as last year's best actress — Sally Field, star of "Norma Rae" — could expect a jump of several hundred thousand dollars for each subsequent film and the pick of scripts.
 The best-picture award often means an extra $5 million to $10 million at the box office, according to industry experts, as well as increased revenue from television, cable and other markets.
 Film companies attempted to sway Academy voters by spending between $2 million and $3 million on trade paper advertisements, special screenings and the like during the past weeks. After the awards are announced, new ads will tout the winners.
 United Artists expanded the potential audience for "Raging Bull" by bringing it into 690 theaters last Friday. The film was nominated for eight awards, and its star, Robert De Niro, is the favorite to win as best actor.
 Said a company spokesman: "The film market is slow right now, and we're hoping that 'Raging Bull' will pick up a number of Oscars."
 Paramount, with "Ordinary People" expected to win for best picture, had no plans to widen the film's release, although it certainly would accept new bookings. The film is now playing in 400 theaters. The film's director, Robert Redford, is considered a good bet for best director.

 Universal, with Sissy Spacek the favorite as best actress in "Coal Miner's Daughter," doesn't plan to rerelease its film. Said Gordon Armstrong, the company's advertising, publicity and promotion vice president: "The last trip around was not too successful, and the picture has about played itself out. An Oscar is not too important unless it's for best picture and/or a lot of awards."
 Industry experts note the annual celebration by the Academy of Motion Pictures, Arts and Sciences also has an impact worldwide. This year's telecast will be viewed in 65 countries with an audience predicted to be 300 million.
 The ABC television network will carry the ceremonies in the United States, beginning at 10 p.m. EST. Johnny Carson returns as emcee, and Lucie Arnaz stars in the opening number, appropriately entitled "Hooray for Hollywood!"
 Meanwhile, movie fans who want to place a wager on their favorite nominee are out of luck this year in Nevada. State gaming authorities have outlawed non-sport betting in casino sports books.
 Nevada gaming authorities cracked down recently after a wave of publicity over oddsmaker Bob Martin's bet-taking on the identity of the villain who shot J.R. in the popular "Dallas" television series.

Wilson denies allegation of overthrow plot

LONDON (AP) — Contradicting his closest associate while he was prime minister, Sir Harold Wilson denied her charge that the late Earl Mountbatten plotted to overthrow his Labor government in 1968.
 Wilson in a statement said there was a plot by "one or two people high up in the press." He said they approached Mountbatten, the World War II hero and cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, and Sir Solly Zuckerman, his government's chief scientific adviser.
 "Mountbatten and Sir Solly sent them packing in the best quarter-deck manner," said Wilson after the Sunday Times revealed the alleged plot.
 However, publisher Cecil King, one of the alleged plotters named by the Sunday Times, said Mountbatten approached him and his deputy, Hugh Cudlipp, about letters to the queen complaining about the Wilson government.
 King said he told the earl the time might come when the armed forces and the monarch "might have a part to play, but it certainly was not then."

 Wilson's former political secretary, Marcia Williams, who took the name of Lady Falkender after he made her a life peeress, said Mountbatten was a "prime mover" in the plot, the Sunday Times reported. Wilson said the charge was "an unwarranted slur" on the soldier-statesman, who was assassinated by the Irish Republican Army in 1979.
 Mountbatten was the fourth prominent dead man attacked by a British newspaper within a week. The Daily Mail reported last week that Sir Roger Hollis, former head of MI-5, the counter-intelligence agency, was suspected of being a Soviet spy and never cleared; that Tom Driberg, longtime Labor member of Parliament and chairman briefly of the Labor Party, was a double agent for MI-5 and the Soviet KGB, and that Charles Howard Ellis, Britain's No. 3 intelligence officer at the end of World War II, confessed in 1965 that he had spied for both Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union.

Indictments are expected soon in probe of federal judge's murder

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury has heard all the witnesses it subpoenaed, and federal officials have indicated indictments could be handed up soon in connection with the assassination almost two years ago of U.S. District Judge John Wood.

The panel recessed Friday after the 10th and final witness, Theresa Starr Jasper, 23, went to jail rather than tell what she knows about the shooting in front of Wood's townhouse.

Federal officials refused to answer questions about when the grand jury would reconvene, although indications were the panel might come back together Wednesday.

Targets in the investigation have been identified as El Paso brothers Jimmy and Joe Chagra and convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson, who is married to Ms. Jasper's mother.

Ms. Jasper was ordered jailed 60 miles away in Uvalde County Jail after she refused to answer about a dozen questions while she was in front of the grand jury, despite being granted immunity from prosecution.

Officials said she had the key to the jail "in your pocket" because she could be released whenever she decided to answer the grand jury's questions. They had her jailed in Uvalde because of overcrowded conditions in the Bexar County Jail at San Antonio.

FBI director William Webster said in Washington, D.C., last week that officials know who ordered Wood's assassination and who carried out the contract and that a solution in the case was imminent.

Dallas newspapers quoted sources as saying federal officials had a tape recording of a conversation between the Chagra brothers last year in a federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., in which Jimmy Chagra told his brother that he hired Harrelson to kill Wood.

Joe Chagra is a lawyer. Jimmy Chagra is serving a 30-year term for continuing criminal enterprise, after having been accused of being a principal figure in drug smuggling into the United States from Colombia.

FBI agents searched Joe Chagra's house on Feb. 27 and seized a tape recording of a telephone conversation last year between Chagra and Harrelson in which Harrelson mentioned the shooting.

Harrelson was convicted in the 1968 contract killing of Hearne grain dealer Sam Degelia Jr. He was released on parole in 1979, and is being held now on unrelated state charges in Houston.

U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears sentenced Ms. Jasper to an indefinite jail term after she refused twice on Friday to answer questions asked during her hour-long session with the grand jury.

Five go on trial on Brilab charges

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal case called Brilab opened today in U.S. District Court, as prosecution and defense began the process of selecting an impartial jury for a trial that could last a half year.

The 12 jurors and their alternates could spend the next five months — or more — in U.S. District Judge Morey Sear's court, hearing the reams of evidence in the case, U.S. Attorney John Volz estimated.

The five defendants, who include reputed Mafia chieftain Carlos Marcello and former state Commissioner of Administration Charles E. Roemer II, are charged with conspiracy, racketeering, and mail and wire fraud.

Their indictments stemmed from their involvement with Joseph Hauser, 49, a three-time loser on insurance fraud convictions.

Hauser allegedly connected the defendants with insurance executives willing to trade payoffs for lucrative state insurance contracts.

The insurance men turned out to be undercover FBI agents, with Hauser as their stalking horse.

Hauser agreed to go undercover for the FBI after pleading guilty in Phoenix, Ariz., to a scheme in which numerous union welfare and pension funds were bilked for millions in multi-state transactions.

In his deal with the FBI, Hauser was to use his skills to put the federal agents in touch with influential labor and political leaders, hence the contraction of bribery and labor: Brilab.

First reports of the investigation surfaced in the Los Angeles

Times on Feb. 9, 1980, when a court document filed in an unrelated case revealed the existence of a major federal investigation of the relationship of a "Cosa Nostra boss" and public officials in Louisiana and other states.

A federal grand jury was empaneled and in between June and August and returned indictments against:

- Marcello, the "Little Man" of New Orleans who is reputed to be the Mafia kingpin of the Gulf Coast;
- Roemer, 57, of Baton Rouge, who was the state's Commissioner of Administration under Gov. Edwin Edwards;
- Aubrey Young, 58, an aide to Lt. Gov. Bobby Freeman at the time of his indictment;
- Washington lobbyist and "fix it" man I. Irving Davidson, 59;
- and New Orleans lawyer Vincent Marinello.

It will be the second Brilab trial.

In the first, in Houston, a federal jury acquitted Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton, and two Austin lawyers accused of conspiring with Hauser.

The Louisiana defendants have already lost in their efforts to sever their trials from Marcello's and to discredit the 1,400 reels of wiretapped conversations in federal hands.

In the first motions, Sear ruled that Marcello's success in fighting a 30-year-old deportation order might rub off on the defendants, rather than his unsavory reputation.

In the second case, Sear ruled that Hauser freely consented to the electronic surveillance, and was not acting under the influence of drugs and alcohol when he allowed the wiretaps.

Bush speaking to Texas legislators

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators gather in a joint session today to hear from Vice President George Bush, former Texas congressman who made two unsuccessful attempts to be a U.S. senator for the state.

Aides said he would discuss federal and state relations under the new Republican administration.

Bush's appearance closely follows Gov. Bill Clements' warning to legislators Friday that austerity measures sought by President Ronald Reagan may cost Texas $2.5 billion in expected federal funds for 1982-83.

Before and after Bush's half-hour appearance this afternoon the House and Senate have a wide range of problems to consider — primarily concerning state spending and redistricting.

Bush, an adopted Texan who once lived in Midland and still has a home in Houston, comes to Austin from a speaking appearance in Fort Worth.

Bush's aides said he would land at Austin's Municipal Airport about 2:30 p.m. and take a motorcade to the Capitol.

After a brief news conference in the Senate chamber and a visit with Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, and Speaker Bill Clayton, he was scheduled to address the joint session in the House chamber.

Two other U.S. vice presidents have addressed the Texas Legislature. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson spoke to both houses on April 17, 1961, and, while Johnson was president, Vice President Hubert Humphrey spoke to Texas lawmakers on April 24, 1967.

Native Texan John Nance Garner of Uvalde was vice president from 1933 to 1939. Although he was invited several times, he never spoke to his home state legislature.

Bush planned to return to Washington immediately after the speech.

Custody case continues

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — It was back to court again today for what has to rank as one of the most unusual child custody cases in Texas history.

Liberty County prosecutors view the case as a dress rehearsal for the murder trial of Vickie Daniel, 33, who has pleaded innocent by reason of self defense in the Jan. 19 shooting of her husband, former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel.

Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph of Richardson, went to court almost immediately, contending her sister-in-law is an unfit mother and asking for custody of the Daniel's two children, Franklin Baldwin, 3, and Marion Price IV, 1.

But the child custody trial, now going into its third week, has been but "a preliminary to the main event" from the start.

Mrs. Daniel's attorney, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, began taking her through the events leading to the shooting. She said she got a rifle, loaded it and ordered her husband to leave their ranch home after he had kicked and beaten her in a dispute concerning their proposed divorce.

She said she "heard a funny sound" but didn't actually recall firing the shot that killed Daniel.

"In my nine years of prosecuting, this is the first time I've seen a case develop in this manner," said Assistant District Attorney Jerry Andrews.

Andrews, who will prosecute Mrs. Daniel on the murder charge, has dropped into the courtroom often n often during the two-week custody fight to watch Haynes.

Haynes sought at first to have any questions about the shooting barred from the custody trial, but then Mrs. Daniel waived her Fifth Amendment rights and testified to the events surrounding the shooting.

The protests by Haynes may have been a ploy by the flamboyant lawyer to get J.C. "Zeke" Zbraneck, Mrs. Murph's attorney, to press for revelations about the shooting, Andrews speculates.

That, Andrews said, would open the way for Haynes to delve into the prosecution's evidence before the murder trial began.

Andrews said he's not concerned about a premature release of the information.

"The defense has an opportunity to see the state's evidence anyway, so they won't get an advantage," Andrews said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Evolution or creation?

I am inclined to agree with Francis Galton in believing that education and environment produce only a small effect on the mind of anyone, and that most of our qualities are innate, naturalist Charles Darwin wrote in 1887 nearly 20 years after publishing his epochal theories on the evolution of man.

Darwin's words seemed especially ironic as evolutionists and creationists again squared off in a Sacramento courtroom over a renewed attempt to put the two theories side-by-side in California's science textbooks.

Darwin's theories alone are presented now. For the moment the case for divine creation can be found only in social science and philosophy texts.

Over the past 20 years, both sides have won and lost court and board-of-education battles over the issue. And no matter how the current case winds up, we suspect the fight will continue unless one theory or another is proven in a scientific sense.

The ongoing problems of evolutionists is that their theories, while more than 120 years old, remain unprovable. Creationists are openly skeptical — and not without reason — of a theory proposing that man evolved from constantly positive mutations over tens of millions of years. To creationists it is far more logical to believe man animal and plant life on planet Earth was divinely created.

It would seem elementary to include both theories in science textbooks. Science, after all, is the quest for truth and fact.

However, scientists are at the fore in keeping the creation theory off to the sidelines. They argue that the creation theory is religious or philosophical and thus "not within the realm of science."

Perhaps if the creationists were attempting to put Adam and Eve and the BOOK OF GENESIS in California's science textbooks, evolutionists would find wider support for their attempt to keep contrary ideas at bay. But after all these years, the evolutionists must know that whole texts produced by the creationists have managed to refrain from literal interpretation of the Bible. Zeroing in on scientific provability, the creationists have basically produced a theory they believe is far easier to accept scientifically than Darwin's theories.

In short, they believe fewer miracles are involved in accepting the creationist theory than the evolutionist theory.

If the school system — California and elsewhere — wants to establish credibility, we fail to understand its current science guidelines restricting one theory while promoting another, when one is no more scientifically provable than the other.

Billboard art

The Medicis didn't die. They just faded into obscurity as the Uncle Sams and Big Brothers around the world usurped their roles.

In San Francisco the Medici instinct has been reborn in the form of three-foot high billboards.

Faced with the probability of federal arts support money reduced by 66 percent, the culturally-concerned figured out how to take up the slack in the private sector. Motorists now see Monet as well as the Marlboro Man gazing down from billboards. Picasso is up there along with the pickles and pilsners. Hundreds of roadside billboards eventually will be painted over with works of art, many by contemporary creators living in the Bay Area.

It's a $500,000 project to transform the freeways into a giant outdoor museum, thereby stimulating interest in art among the motoring millions. It's a project that costs taxpayers zero.

Bay View Federal Savings is picking up the tab for the year-long billboard project.

"We just felt it would be a fantastic idea to rip down the... ads and put up something the people would really appreciate," explained Bay View's board chairman, Elwood Hansen, who finds it appropriate for banks to support the arts.

"Who was it that supported the arts and the cultures way, way back when?" he asked rhetorically. "It wasn't the government as much as it was the wealthy, the Medicis. Today, we're the Medicis, the corporations are the Medicis."

The Bayside arts blitz proves government need not play Medici, an artificially assumed role from the outset. More importantly, the project shows that the arts and other businesses are mutually beneficial. Bay View Federal Savings did not take on the project purely out of altruism.

While no overt advertising appears on the artboards, plaques carrying Bay View's name are affixed to the framework. Subtle though the promotional gimmick is, it comes across: Bay View has class.

We are delighted to see government divorce itself of the arts and applaud the efforts of private sector.

Those nasty remarks about Burbank

By Butler D. Shaffer

All right, Johnny Carson, enough of your constant digs at the city of Burbank. No more of these cutesy cheap-shots about this being a sleepy-eyed backwater hamlet, with geriatric clinics as its principal industry. Burbank has come of age! Its "city fathers" have brought its erstwhile denizens of urban bucolia smack dab into the twentieth century, with political planning, government regulation of economic activity, and all the other modern-day practices of political sobriety that have helped to make the rest of the American economy what it is today!

I mentioned, in a previous article, how the Burbank city government had gotten into the urban renewal business. The local booboisie now enjoys the benefit of such well-conceived planning as the condemnation — under powers of eminent domain — of a self-supporting live theater in order to obtain the land for the urban renewal project which, these same urban-engineering tell us, will include a new movie theater because of the lack of adequate theaters in Burbank!

But wait, there's more! Having determined to put behind itself an image of uncomplicated living, the Burbank City Council took yet another bold step by enacting an "emergency ordinance" to require local grocery stores to individually mark prices on each of the items sold, rather than permitting stores to use the much more efficient computerized check-out systems. Some may argue that this is a step BACKWARD for Burbank, symbolizing a return to the era of the "general store" or the "mom-and-pop" grocery so well-adored by such rib-pokers as Mr. Carson.

But before we become too hasty in our judgments, let us look at the advantages to be gained from this latest exercise of provincial social engineering. For instance, at a time when most people complain that their money just doesn't last as long as it used to, the requirement for individualized pricing offers a solution: grocery buyers will now get to stand in line much longer, meaning that they will get to hang onto their money for anywhere from an additional ten to twenty minutes. Parents who can no longer afford baby-sitters will find themselves being able to spend more "meaningful" time with their children, answering for them such penetrating questions as "why can't I have a pack of gum?" and "why did you let Billy get a candy-bar yesterday but I can't get anything today?" Customers will also have a greater opportunity to enjoy stimulating conversation with check-out clerks and other customers while they stand around waiting for another clerk to run around the store trying to find the price for a can of black olives (whose individually-priced sticker happened to fall off someplace). In this day of alienation and estrangement from one another, an ordinance like this can help bring people closer.

Most importantly, however, this ordinance will help to increase employment. By requiring every item to be individually marked with a price sticker, more clerks will have to be employed to do the marking, and more check-out clerks will have to be employed to handle the more tedious chore of reading and adding up — and you know how accurate clerks can be — each individual item. There are some critics of this measure who alleged that the councilmen voting for it were only returning a political favor to the AFL-CIO. The AFL-CIO has, indeed, long opposed computerized check-out systems (because they reduce the number of dues-paying employees working in grocery stores), and the union's Political Education Committee did endorse the councilmen who voted for the ordinance. But to suggest that the local politicians are playing politics is outrageous. After all, the Mayor of Burbank — who also voted for the ordinance — declared "we are looking out for the consumer's pocketbooks."

Oh, I know, there will continue to be critics of such ordinances who will point out that such legislation only adds to the already burgeoning costs of doing business, and that you and I and all other consumers will pay more and more for groceries in order to subsidize all of these tremendous benefits. But I say "nuts" to all of this nonsense about efficiency and lower prices. With such brilliant city planners as Burbank is blessed — men who are able to call upon the social acumen available at the AFL-CIO charity — any continuing escalation in grocery prices will be watched carefully. As prices go up, this alliance of economic wizards will, no doubt return with proposals for the establishment of price controls, fortified by the accumulated barber-shop wisdom that "the free market system just doesn't work any more."

Why Soviets want South Africa

by Paul Harvey

South Africa — not "southern Africa" — the nation of South Africa — is consistently mean-mouthed by some Americans who may not realize they are being used.

Then again — some may. While not all of the world's restiveness can be blamed on Communist agitation, much of the concerted campaign to malign and diplomatically isolate South Africa derives from Soviet ambitions.

Here's why: What the Persian Gulf is to oil, South Africa is to minerals.

While the Soviet Union is, itself, adequately supplied with most essential minerals — we are not.

The United States must rely on other nations for 14 of 32 minerals essential to national survival.

While Americans could somehow manage to make — do without any Middle East oil, we would be helplessly impotent without platinum, palladium, manganese, cadmium, cobalt, chromium and other minerals and metals which we get from South Africa. And our industrialized allies are similarly dependent — militarily and economically — on South Africa.

The region from Zimbabwe to Cape Town is the richest area of mineral reserves in the world.

South Africa, smaller than Alaska, has the world's largest known deposits of gold, platinum, chrome, manganese, vanadium and fluor spar — plus vast quantities of antimony, diamonds, coal, copper, iron ore, lead, limestone, mica, nickel, phosphates, titanium, uranium, vermiculite, zinc and zirconium.

Without South Africa's chrome we could not build your shiny stainless steel appliances.

But also we could not build jet aircraft, cars, refineries, computers, power plants, modern food processing plants and hospital operating rooms.

One jet aircraft uses 3,600 pounds of chrome.

Without manganese there is no steel — and without South Africa we have no manganese.

So Soviet penetration of the African continent is no happenstance — and Soviet concentration on subverting and controlling South Africa is also aimed at controlling the sea lanes around the Cape. Then, with what Russia has plus what South Africa has — and with what we would not have without South Africa and the Soviet Union as sources — we would be impotent — and they would encircle the world.

Bilingualism

By Anthony Harrigan
One of the most important acts of the new administration was to reverse the Carter policy on bilingual education.

The Carter policy mandated teaching foreign languages for non-English-speaking children in public schools.

If the Carter policy had been allowed to stand, a terrible disservice would have been done to several million children of immigrants.

These children need to know English if they are to get anywhere in life. They need English to understand the world around them, to obtain advanced education, and to earn a decent living. Command of language is the key to personal progress.

Suppose the bilingual education rule had been in effect a hundred years ago. The United States would be balkanized, with hundreds of language enclaves in urban and rural areas. We would have little Poles and Ukrainians scattered around America. The problem would be a thousand times worse than the language problem that faces Canada today, with its huge French-speaking enclave in Quebec.

True, we have some language problems in many inner city areas. To provide bilingual instruction is to perpetuate those problems. What's needed is improved instruction in English.

It's desirable for foreign languages to be part of the school curriculum, but as just that — foreign languages. The country itself can't live with bilingualism and biculturalism. These are divisive in American society. Indeed the Reagan administration should go beyond the ruling by Secretary of Education Terrel H. Bell and remove the bilingual instructions that appear in many post offices and other public areas.

This bilingual issue pertains, in the main, to the Spanish-speaking population. Many Hispanics demand bilingualism. They want to retain a special link with their old culture. However, it would be unfortunate if their absorption into the American mainstream were delayed or prevented in the process. The melting pot must apply as much to Hispanics in 1981 as it did to Czechs, Germans, Italians, and Greeks in the 1880s.

In America, everyone must feel American. The country can't afford a split identity for a large body of its citizens. People coming from abroad can and will cherish their heritage, but they must forge a new national identity for themselves. If they are to be accepted as full Americans, they can't opt out of the language mainstream.

If local school authorities want to provide some bilingual instruction, that is their right. But federal policy should not mandate it or encourage it. We have one country with one language for all its people.

Population profiles made of districts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas senators and representatives now know where they stand before legislative districts are redrawn according to 1980 census figures.

Profiles that show exactly the 1980 population and racial makeup of each Senate and House district, down to the neighborhood area, have been prepared for each senator and representative.

Just what the boundaries will be for those 181 Senate and House districts in 1983 Legislature is the big question to be decided.

The same holds true for the 24 present congressional districts plus the three new districts awarded Texas for population growth the past decade.

Many consider redistricting the No. 1 task of the 67th Legislature because it will affect every legislative and congressional district, and indirectly every voter in the state.

If the legislative redistricting cannot be completed by the end of this regular session on June 1, the task will be turned over to a constitutionally-decreed redistricting board — the lieutenant governor, speaker, attorney general, land commissioner and comptroller. All are Democrats.

If the Legislature cannot agree on new congressional districts, the matter could be considered by a special legislative session called by Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican.

Hopes are high now that legislative redistricting can be completed by June 1 with each house writing its own bill.

There is plenty of speculation that a special session may be required for congressional redistricting because of the limited time left, plus growing pressure to turn legislators' attention to the 1982-83 budget. Clements has warned legislators to cut $2.5 billion state spending bill to handle the cut in federal funds because of President Ronald Reagan's austerity program.

One public hearing has been held by the House redistricting committee, covering most of the non-metropolitan House districts in East Texas. Hearings for other rural areas in the rest of the state will be held this week.

Beginning about April 13 the committee will hold two weeks of hearings for the big city House districts including Harris, Bexar, Nueces, Dallas, Tarrant, Travis, Jefferson, and El Paso counties.

The House hearings will get non-legislative input from a 24-member advisory committee, named by Clayton, which has been invited to sit in on every hearing.

The House committee's aim is to report the final bills on House districts and congressional districts the week of May 4 with the House redistricting bill to be debated the week of May 11 and the congressional bill the week of May 18.

The Senate redistricting committee, which includes all 32 members of the Senate, has a different approach. Subcommittees will hold hearings throughout the state to gather public comment.

For the next three weeks the Senate plans to adjourn on Wednesday so senators will be able to attend the hearings outside Austin.

The first hearing will be Thursday for much of East Texas at the Smith County courthouse in Tyler. The next day, Friday, there will be a hearing at the Lubbock County courthouse for West Texas.

The next week there will be a hearing at Corpus Christi on April 9, Thursday, for South Texas and the Valley. On Friday, April 10, the hearing will be in San Antonio for the Bexar County metropolitan area.

The third week there will be hearings in the Dallas-Fort Worth and Harris County areas.

The results of the hearings will be reported to the committee of the whole and the Senate congressional redistricting bill will be debated the week of May 4-7.

The Senate redistricting bill is set for debate the week of May 18-22.

After each bill is approved by the Legislature, it goes to Secretary of State George Strake for checking on his computers and then to the U.S. Department of Justice for a similar check.

Lawmakers have been told that federal authorities will knock down any bill that does not have all House legislative districts within 5 percent of the ideal population standard of 94,856, and Senate districts of 457,222.

'Don't fence me in'

By BILL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The National Cowboy Hall of Fame, that monument to the free-spirited son of the saddle, is giving local tourism leaders financial indigestion as bad as ever came from a cattle drive chuck wagon.

There's talk that the huge museum wants to head 'em up, move 'em out and leave town in search of a warmer welcome.

Museum director Dean Krakel echoes the lament of the old-time Westerner in his major complaint — the cowboy complex is being fenced in. The "fencing," he maintains, is being done by what he sees as "cheap" establishments, including service stations, fast food outlets and liquor stores.

Krakel says the museum earned only $456,000 the last half of 1980, compared with $1.2 million for the comparable period of 1979.

It was 26 years ago that Oklahoma City outbid Dodge City, Kan., and Colorado Springs, Colo., for the shrine — officially the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center — that now sprawls in modernistic concrete and glass buildings atop Persimmon Hill on the northeast outskirts of the city.

The idea for a Cowboy Hall of Fame had been around for years. In the 1950s, trustees were appointed by 17 western states to pick a site.

It was the site offered by Oklahoma City that sealed the decision. Glenn Faris, then executive secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, recalled he was driving down U.S. 66 "and passed that hill. I snapped my fingers and said, 'That's it.'"

The main building alone covers 80,000 square feet and houses western artwork valued at $33 million, including paintings and sculptures by Frederic Remington.

In a separate building stands the monumental "End of the Trail" statue, an exhausted Indian on his pony. A 33-foot-tall Buffalo Bill beckons visitors.

The lower level of the main building has full-sized models of an Indian encampment, gold prospectors, a sod house and a western street with a general store, newspaper office, doctor's office, blacksmith, gunsmith and saloon.

Famous rodeo horses are buried on the grounds to the rear. This is what Krakel has threatened to try to move if the city and state don't solve the problems he sees. And local leaders are concerned about other attractions might leave town if the museum were no longer there — such as the National Finals Rodeo and several major annual horse shows, events the Chamber of Commerce say pump at least $20 million a year into the economy.

Krakel, who has been with the museum from the beginning, first threatened a move in an emotional appearance before the city council in January. He was particularly upset over planned construction of the federally subsidized Chaparral Townhouses near the hall.

Today he outlines other demands that must be met to keep him in town, ranging from demolition of abandoned buildings near the center to creation of a state park so state rangers can patrol the museum grounds.

In an effort to keep the museum, the city council slapped a moratorium on any building in that area. In February, the council agreed to put up $200,000 to buy the 14 acres the townhouses are meant to occupy and another $200,000 to pay relocation expenses to the project's developer, Dr. Frank Cox.

In March, the council declared a six-block area to be a blighted area, including the land where the Chaparral Townhouses are to be built.

Local and state officials set up a task force to work on the demands. Paul Strasbaugh, executive vice president of the local Chamber of Commerce, said although the task force represents significant progress, "We aren't out of the woods yet."

Dan Hogan III, chamber president, said he hoped some solution would be in sight by April 24, the day the museum's directors meet here and the day before television and movie personalities arrive for the annual black tie western writers and actors awards banquet.

One trustee reported he had been contacted by "about 40 or 50 communities" that would like the museum.

A committee of the Colorado Senate has adopted a resolution asking that the museum be moved there; other bids have come from Fort Worth, Texas, and Cheyenne, Wyo.

Rumors that former cowboy star Gene Autry had offered land in California were scotched by Autry, a member of the museum's board and an honoree of its Hall of Fame.

Museum directors have said they would like to keep the center here. Krakel won't predict what the directors might do next month but says he hopes problems can be worked out so no move is necessary.

"This is one of the most historic sites in the West," he said. "Indians camped on Persimmon Hill. We found human skulls buried where the museum is. There is no legacy that compares with Oklahoma City's. This is not only Oklahoma City's front door, but America's. The West begins right here."

But, after a pause he added, "If we can't solve problems, we have no future here."

Mobile's blacks will watch the prosecution in hanging death

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Black leaders who maintain the slaying was "a lynching" say they will carefully follow developments in the prosecution of three white men charged in the death of a black youth found hanging from a tree.

The FBI is investigating the possibility of civil rights violations.

Michael Anthony Donald, whose death stunned this port city, was buried Saturday after more than 2,000 mourners were admonished to leave vengeance to God.

"We will keep ourselves in check because we love people," said the Rev. Dr. Leon Taylor during the eulogy.

"Yes, we are hurt," he said, "but we will do no wrong. One wrong has already been done, and another wrong will not make a right."

"God said, 'Vengeance is mine.'"

Donald, a 19-year-old student and part-time newspaper employee, was found March 21 beaten and strangled to death, his body strung up in a tree, authorities said.

Dr. Robert Gilliland, director of Mobile's branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, maintained the slaying was "a lynching" and said blacks were watching developments in the case with "cautious optimism" now that three men face arraignment Tuesday on murder charges.

Investigators have said there is no evidence that the slaying was racially motivated.

Donald's mother, Beulah Donald, sobbed softly as she led the funeral procession of some 300 family members and relatives into Revelation Missionary Baptist Church.

The silver casket bearing Donald's body was buried in Whispering Pine Cemetery in Whistler, a community north of Mobile.

Police Commissioner Robert Doyle said police patrols were increased for the funeral. There were no incidents.

The three men arrested in the slaying were identified as Ralph Hayes, 23, and brothers Jimmy Edgar, 22, and Johnny Edgar, 26.

Unable to post individual bonds of $250,000, the three remained in jail.

JOHN SANDERS

City Commissioner - Ward I
Saturday, April 4th

I seek election as your commissioner because I am concerned about our community. We are at a crossroads where we can either grow tremendously or shrink in proportion to other cities in West Texas. I feel with sound city staff management, public involvement in municipal management, and growth orientation, we can see our town grow as it should. Join me by voting April 4th for growth in Pampa, and involvement in this incredible community.

Pioneer journalist dies

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Services will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday for Dorrance D. Roderick, 80, longtime publisher of the El Paso Times, who died Saturday in an El Paso hospital after a long illness.

The rites will be at Pro Cathedral Church of St. Clement Episcopal Church. He will be interred in a private vault at Restlawn Memorial Mausoleum in El Paso.

He is survived by his wife, Olga Burnett Roderick of El Paso; his daughter, Frances Bagwell of El Paso; nine grandchildren; and 17 great-grandchildren.

Roderick's journalism career, which spanned more than 50 years, included founding several area radio stations and El Paso's first television station.

After a stint as a $30-a-week Associated Press reporter in Oklahoma, Roderick moved to Texas, where he published The Plains Journal, The Lubbock Evening Journal and The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal before coming to El Paso.

Roderick became president of the El Paso Herald and The Times in late 1928, just eight days before his 28th birthday. Scipps-Howard, publishers of his competition, The Post, purchased The Herald in 1931 and consolidated the two newspapers.

The same year, Roderick filed application with the Federal Communications Commission for a radio station permit. Radio station KROD — the "ROD" standing for Roderick — went on the air in 1940 as a 250-watt station.

Later, he organized radio station KSIL in Silver City,

Dear Abby

Past tests 'true love'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old girl who needs your help. In my teens I did a lot of drugs and drank alcohol because I was never at peace with myself unless I was sleeping or stoned.

I'm straight now and have accepted Jesus as my personal savior. I still live with my parents, but I feel like a prisoner because I'm not allowed to make my own decisions.

Three months ago I met a wonderful Christian man who has also had his problems with drugs and alcohol. (I'll call him Tom.) Tom is on parole now. We are very much in love and plan to marry. He says he will not have sex with me until after we are married. He is kind and good and treats me with respect. Abby, this love is true. I know we can make it together.

My parents have never met Tom. I'm afraid to introduce him because I know they won't approve of him. Tom wants to meet them, but I've been putting it off because I'm afraid they will make him feel uncomfortable and hurt his feelings. I plan to marry Tom with or without my parents' approval. Tom's father is the only one who knows about our plans.

Should I risk causing a family fight by introducing Tom and telling my parents of our plans? Or should I go ahead and marry him and prove afterward that we can make it together?

TORMENTED

DEAR TORMENTED: Introduce Tom to your parents. (If you don't, he will think you are ashamed of him.)

Feeling "tormented" as you do, please confide in your clergyman and let him counsel you. It would be a mistake to marry Tom while so many doubts and fears exist. If your love is "true," marriage can wait until you are absolutely sure. Please heed this advice and write again soon. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I am expecting a baby in about three months and have been very careful not to smoke, drink or even consume caffeine during my pregnancy. I hope to continue to give our baby the most healthful environment possible after he (or she) is born.

The problem is my mother-in-law. She is a heavy smoker, and I would prefer that she not subject our baby to her secondhand smoke. Studies have confirmed the theory that babies who have been exposed to secondhand smoke have a higher incidence of respiratory illness.

My mother-in-law smokes one cigarette after another and she's anything but gracious when she's told her smoke is bothersome or irritating.

After our baby comes, my husband and I intend to ask her to please step outside if she wants to smoke. But what if it's raining or dark outside?

MRS. S. PARKDALE, ORE.

DEAR MRS. S.: If it's raining, give her an umbrella. And if it's dark, give her a flashlight.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the 17-year-old sitter who complained that her $1 per hour baby-sitting wage was the same as her mother made when she was a girl.

I'm 33, and 17 years ago I sat for 25¢ an hour and was glad to get the job. One family had five children from 9 years old to a year. I changed diapers, fed them all dinner, bathed them and put them to bed, all for the same 25¢ an hour. It was part of my job.

I now have a 6-year-old son for whom I need sitters. I pay $1.50 an hour, and when the sitter comes my son has already had his dinner and bath and is ready for bed.

I've had some sitters who have eaten up a week's supply of groceries — with some help from their friends who have visited without my consent. Others have gone through my drawers, used my cosmetics, tried on my clothes, gabbled for hours on my phone, entertained their boyfriends (on my bed), smoked pot and scratched my albums.

I once had a sitter ask me not to call her again because I didn't have a color television!

HAD IT WITH SITTERS

Nun is housesitter

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — It's 3:45 a.m. The woman hired by the owners to look after their home while they're on vacation is alone in the house. Suddenly, the burglar alarm sounds and she reaches for the phone.

It's all part of being a "house-sitter" for Sister Mary Clare Peterson, who was later told by police responding to her call that the burglar alarm was faulty.

She got her first house-sitting job five years ago. She accepts whatever the owners want to offer her.

Sister Clare says she does it as a kindness for people in the neighborhood surrounding the Shrine of St. Therese Church, to which she is assigned.

Proper nutrition important

"Pep up your prime time — exercise, eat right, enjoy!" is the theme that dietitians are promoting during March for the ninth annual celebration of National Nutrition Month.

"A sound diet and moderate exercise are a winning combination," according to Mrs. Wilma Hayter, registered dietitian and head of dietary services at Highland General Hospital. "To get the most out of life — indeed, to stretch out the prime time of life — requires both exercise and a good diet. Being fit has taken on a new meaning for increasing numbers of us Americans these days."

Mrs. Hayter said that good nutrition begins with a minimum number of servings of the essentials, including:

—Two servings daily of milk or an equivalent amount of other milk products.

—Two servings daily of meat or an alternate, such as dried beans and peas, cheese, eggs, poultry or fish.

—Fruits and vegetables. One should be a deep green or yellow, and the other should be high in Vitamin C. Four servings per day.

—Four servings daily of a whole grain or enriched bread or cereal.

"Then add more of these foods and fats and sugars to meet your energy quota for meals that satisfy," she said.

National Nutrition Month is sponsored by the American Dietetic Association and its local affiliate, the Panhandle Dietetic Association.

Nominees sought for awards

CANYON — Nominations for the Sixth Annual Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards will be accepted through Friday, April 3, by the West Texas State University Office of Programs for Women.

The awards will be presented to women selected from nominees in the top 32 counties of the Texas Panhandle during a luncheon Saturday, April 25, in the WTSU East Dining Hall.

Nomination forms have been sent to 1,500 clubs, organizations and educational institutions in the Panhandle.

Jane Kerr, director of the WTSU Office of Programs for Women, said nominations have been received from Amarillo, Canyon, Pampa, Muleshoe, Borger, Plainview, Hereford, Wheeler, Stratford, Dalhart, Canadian, Tulia, Clarendon and Panhandle.

"All for the Family" is the theme of the awards luncheon. Chosen as guest speaker is Dr. Emily Taylor, director of the Office of Women in Higher Education with the American Council on Education in Washington, D.C.

The Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards have been awarded to 50 women since 1976, honoring them for accomplishments in the fields of education, medicine, business, civic service and other professional areas.

Nominees must be 18 years of age or older and reside in one of the 32 counties of the Texas Panhandle, but do not have to be graduates or former students of WTSU.

Nominations may be sent to the WTSU Office of Programs for Women, Box 495, WT, Station, Canyon, Texas 79016.

Variety is very important to good nutrition. Many scientists believe we should eat diverse foods to ensure an adequate supply of all the nutrients, known and unknown. A supermarket may stock 10,000 items, but the bulk of the calories they furnish is from four crops: wheat, corn, soybeans and sugar cane. These four crops plus assorted chemical additives can be converted into frozen pizzas, fast food "shakes," simulated bacon and sausage, and artificial cheese.

Diet Center believes the quality of our health and well-being depends greatly on the quality of our nourishment. Is it possible the more technically sophisticated our diet becomes, the greater the risk of our malnutrition?

Cattle producers want more Japanese sales

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan for years has been the top foreign market for U.S. farmers, but sales have mainly involved grain, soybeans, cotton and other crop products.

Some headway has been made lately in selling U.S. meat, particularly beef, in the Japanese market, and American cattle producers and others want to push those products even harder.

But, compared with American meat-eaters, the Japanese have a lot of sukiyaki to consume before they rank very high on the hog.

Overall, Japan imported $5.78 billion worth of U.S. farm commodities in the year that ended last Sept. 30, including about $2.54 billion worth of grains, $1.12 billion worth of oilseeds and $727 million worth of animal products.

The U.S. Meat Export Federation, which has its headquarters in Denver, keeps a close watch on happenings in the Japanese market.

Recently, Dr. L. B. Tension, director of the federation's Asian operations, reported on a survey by Tokyo's Japan Housewives Association. It is he said, "an influential consumer organization."

The survey, including interviews with 500 housewives in Tokyo and its suburbs, looked into the production, distribution and consumption of beef in Japan. Its findings, as reported in the federation's newsletter, included:

—Nearly two-thirds said pork was the meat consumed most often by their families, followed by chicken and beef. However, 88 percent said they would prefer beef if it were less expensive.

—Meat consumption averaged 32-35 ounces per month for each household and 11-14 ounces per month for each person. That would equal 8-11 pounds per person for an entire year.

—As to shopping habits, 84 percent of the housewives said they bought only enough meat for one meal on each shopping trip. But 13.4 percent expressed interest in making larger bulk purchases.

The survey showed that the Japanese consumer's main complaint about meat was its high retail price.

According to the Agriculture Department, the price of beef in Tokyo is the highest among a dozen world capitals examined periodically by U.S. agricultural attaches stationed abroad.

Last November, the most recent month analyzed, boneless sirloin steak sold at a retail price of $17.27 a pound in Tokyo, compared with $3.95 a pound in Washington, D.C.

The Washington price, incidentally, was not the lowest among the capitals surveyed. In Brasilia, the capital of Brazil, sirloin sold for $1.29 a pound, the lowest price on the list.

Sirloin also was slightly cheaper than the Washington price in Buenos Aires, $3.55 a pound; Canberra, $3.50; Madrid, $3.92; and Ottawa, $3.59.

It was higher in Brussels, $5.70; Copenhagen, $6.34; London, $6.20; Paris, $4.85; Rome, $5.24; and The Hague, $5.64.

Department officials always caution in the reports that price comparisons are not exact because of differences in quality, packaging and seasonal variations in supply.

Another consideration is that in the United States and some other countries beef is the leading meat item among consumers. In many others, however, agricultural and dietary patterns are built around fish, poultry, pork, rice and other foods.

The most recent figures for U.S. meat consumption in 1980 illustrate the importance of beef and pork to American consumers.

Following three consecutive years of decline, per capita consumption of red meat — not counting poultry or fish — rose in 1980 to a preliminary average of 150.3 pounds, computed on the basis of retail weight.

That was up from 147.6 pounds in 1979. After 1976, when the per capita average was 155.4 pounds, it dropped to 153.7 pounds in 1977 and to 149.7 pounds in 1978.

Last year, according to the per capita figures, Americans ate an average of 78.2 pounds of beef, 1.4 pounds of veal, 69.1 pounds of pork and 1.6 pounds of lamb and mutton.

America has expanded its operations here.

Allen Paul, president of the non-profit group, announced the appointment of Brian B. King as director of publications and media relations, a new position.

The council is financed by farmers and agribusiness firms.

Previously, King, 34, was a reporter for the Associated Press in the AP's Washington bureau.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders in the U.S. sheep industry plan to meet here April 7-8 to talk over programs with administration officials and key members of Congress.

Officers of the National Wool Growers Association said they want to discuss the 1981 farm bill that Congress is now putting together, including an extension of the National Wool Act.

Further, the group said it is interested in legislation that would limit the imports of lamb meat from New Zealand and Australia.

Grower harnesses rabbit heat

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — The fuel that heats Bill Schultz's business is cheap and plentiful, efficient and innovative, clean if a bit smelly. What more can you ask of a system that runs on carrots?

Schultz uses bunny power to heat his commercial greenhouses in a novel experiment to turn rabbits into radiators by converting their 103-degree body temperature into 60-degree room temperature.

Rabbits' body heat is dissipated through blood vessels in their long ears, which act as radiators, a fact that researchers have been trying to turn to their advantage for years.

Schultz has 400-500 caged rabbits — more are always arriving — that produce about 190,000 British thermal units of heat a day for his southern Oregon Greenhouses. That's about half of what commercial gas-fired heaters produce, he said. A Btu is a measurement of the heat needed to raise the temperature of a pound of water one degree.

Schultz figures the rabbits have cut his heating bill by as much as 25 percent and sees the potential for greater savings with more rabbits and some additional insulation.

With his present herd, Schultz says he is able to heat a quarter of his 30,000-foot greenhouse, or four rooms, to a temperature of about 58 degrees when it is freezing outside.

"Business, you might say, is hopping. But Schultz has since branched out into another commercial venture involving his rabbits.

He has formed Pacific Rabbitry to provide registered stock for breeders and fryers for local stores with a growing demand for low-cholesterol rabbit meat. There is a bit of market resistance in the latter venture, however.

"People in America are still afraid of eating the Easter Bunny," Schultz laments.

Schultz, who majored in ornamental horticulture in college, says he became interested in the possibilities of rabbit heating after graduation.

He went to Denver, where the federal government had proposed building a rabbit-packing house to help stimulate rabbit production in the area. But funding for the 1969 project expired, dashing plans for the commercial packing plant.

Schultz moved here five years ago and set up his greenhouse business, still intrigued by the idea of using animals to heat rooms.

With Oregon State University providing some expertise, he began his trial rabbit venture a year ago.

"It has not been without some hare-raising failures. The high ammonia content of the animals' urine burns the leaves of the azaleas in the greenhouse, Schultz found, and house plants require temperatures of 70 degrees or higher.

So Schultz turned to garden vegetables and other plants that require temperatures of only 48-50 degrees.

Cropduster hurt in crash

BLACKWELL, Okla. (AP) — A crop-duster pilot from Texas was injured near here Sunday evening when his single-engine plane hit a power line and crashed, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol reported.

The Cessna was being flown to spray fields by pilot Mitchell Autry, 29, of Muleshoe, Texas, who was taken to a Tulsa hospital by helicopter after being treated at a local hospital for burns and shock, patrolmen said. He was reported to be in serious condition.

Troopers said Autry's plane, owned by the Long Horn Spraying Co. of Muleshoe, hit three power lines and caught fire. They said it then clipped three telephone poles and flipped over before crashing in a field. The accident occurred about 6:40 p.m. a half-mile north of Blackwell in Kay County, troopers said.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have an opportunity again today to do business with someone who once worked out something profitable for you. A repeat performance is likely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're very protective today of persons for whom you care. This is right and proper. In fact, you may have to go to bat for a loved one who needs your help.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're a good starter today, but a stronger finisher, especially if you find yourself in a position to resolve something which has been causing you headaches.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Continue to press with all your efforts in order to make something you're hoping for a reality. You can do it if you're willing to pay the price.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you are negotiating a financial matter today, don't bargain from weakness. Assess the matter carefully and you'll see you're in a stronger position.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Egotistical people may be difficult for others to handle, but not for you today. You'll know how to make them think your ideas are theirs.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is one of those days where your past good deeds should come home to roost. Persons whom you've helped are now looking to make your lot in life easier.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Involvements with friends today should turn out very well for all concerned. Each of you will be protective and supportive of the other. Academy awards:

Raging or ordinary?

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One winner in tonight's Academy Award extravaganza doesn't have to wait for the envelope. That's Henry Fonda.

After a 46-year film career as distinguished as any in Hollywood history, Fonda will receive his first Oscar — "in recognition of his brilliant accomplishments and enduring contributions to the art of motion pictures."

(AP Newsfeatures Illustration)

Henry Fonda has long been one of the arguments for the unfairness of the awards structure. Astonishingly, he has been nominated for an acting Oscar only once — for "The Grapes of Wrath" in 1940. Not for "Young Mr. Lincoln," "The Ox-Bow Incident," "My Darling Clementine," "Mister Roberts," "Twelve Angry Men" or other unforgettable performances.

"Hank never played the Hollywood game at a time when it was important in Academy voting," a sympathetic friend explains. "The establishment considered him a stage actor who did films."

Finally, at the age of 75, Fonda will receive the Academy's homage. The board of governors has cured another notable lapse by the convenient device known as the Honorary Award.

Foes of the Academy awards often cite other notorious omissions. Greta Garbo never won an Oscar, though nominated three times. She finally got an honorary statuette in 1954.

Cary Grant was nominated in 1941 and 1944 but lost both times. Honorary award, 1968.

Charles Chaplin never collected an Oscar for his immortal performances. His awards were honorary. Orson Welles' "Citizen Kane" won a single Oscar in 1941. Twenty-nine years later, Welles received the honorary award.

Since comedy was largely overlooked by the Academy awards, honorary Oscars went to Bob Hope, 1940, 1944, 1952; Harold Lloyd, 1951; Danny Kaye, 1954; Stan Laurel, 1960; Groucho Marx, 1973.

Musicals were largely ignored by the Academy. Hence honorary Oscars: Fred Astaire, 1946; Gene Kelly, 1951; Maurice Chevalier, 1958.

The board of governors will never run out of candidates for honorary awards. Here are some other notable non-winners of Oscars:

How Oscar races look

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Who will win the Oscars tonight? Here's how the major races look to AP correspondent Bob Thomas (favorites in capitals):

Best picture — "Coal Miner's Daughter," "The Elephant Man," "ORDINARY PEOPLE," "Raging Bull," "Tess."

Best actor — ROBERT DE NIRO, "Raging Bull"; Robert Duvall, "The Great Santini"; John Hurt, "The Elephant Man"; Jack Lemmon, "Tribute"; Peter O'Toole, "The Stunt Man."

Best actress — Ellen Burstyn, "Resurrection"; Goldie Hawn, "Private Benjamin"; Mary Tyler Moore, "Ordinary People"; Gena Rowlands, "Gloria"; Sissy Spacek, "Coal Miner's Daughter."

Best supporting actor — Judd Hirsch, "Ordinary People"; TIMOTHY HUTTON, "Ordinary People"; Michael O'Keefe, "The Great Santini"; Joe Pesci, "Raging Bull"; Jason Robards, "Melvin and Howard."

Best supporting actress — Eileen Brennan, "Private Benjamin"; Eva Le Gallienne, "Resurrection"; Cathy Moriarty, "Raging Bull"; Diana Scarwid, "Inside Moves"; MARY STEENBURGEN, "Melvin and Howard."

Best director — David Lynch, "The Elephant Man"; ROBERT REDFORD, "Ordinary People"; Martin Scorsese, "Raging Bull"; Richard Rush, "The Stunt Man"; Roman Polanski, "Tess."

Bleak prairies are tapped for wine

The Odessa American

FORT STOCKTON, Texas (AP) — The University of Texas, already wealthy from more than 2 million acres of oil-rich West Texas endowment land, is hoping the same land will yield another precious liquid in the future — wine.

Workers planted 170 acres of grapes in the desert off Interstate 10 between here and Bakersfield last month, establishing the largest infant vineyard in the state. School officials envision a fortune from the harvest for the university system eventually.

"It is by far the largest single planting that ever took place in Texas," said Billy Carr, university lands surface rights manager. "I've been in lots of projects, but this is by far the most exciting because of the potential."

Most federal regulatory agencies came in 70s

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Most people who lived through the decade of the 1930s remember above all the lost jobs and the broken spirits, but to others, those days of the Great Depression are recalled for another reason.

To them, the '30s were and always will be the days of the New Deal, when President Franklin Roosevelt radically changed the relationship of business and government by thrusting the latter into the marketplace.

The shock hasn't worn off. Old-timers still cuss or praise the former president, and history books still refer to the '30s as THE decade of great social and economic legislation. But a change is coming.

It will come, first of all, because old-timers and their emotions are fading. More than half the population, you may know, was born since the Great Depression. More significantly, another decade claims the title.

It is the decade of the 1970s, perhaps "the most interventionist decade in our nation's history," according to a study just released by Washington University's Center for the Study of American Business.

In just that one decade, the number of regulatory agencies grew to 56 from 36 in the previous decade and 24 in the 1930s. Major regulatory legislation in the '70s totaled about 130, compared with 42 in the '30s.

Numerically speaking, there is no real contest between the '70s and the '30s; the evidence is all on the side of the latter. It can be argued, however, that for shock effect, the '30s still stand out; before then, government's role was much more narrowly defined than it is today.

After the 1930s, in fact, the pace of regulatory activity fell sharply, before increasing again in the 1950s. The pace of social and economic regulation quickened in the '60s, and then surged in the '70s.

Now, writes Kenneth Chilton, associate director of the St. Louis institution, and Ronald Penoyer, a research analyst, budget and staffing estimates for fiscal year 1981 (ends Oct. 31) and 1982 provide some indications that the rush to regulate is losing momentum.

And perhaps surprisingly to some who recall the center was begun by Murray Weidenbaum, a regulatory critic who now heads President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, President Carter gets at least a nod for having tried, if belatedly, to curtail the growth of regulation.

In his fiscal 1981 budget, his final budget, they point out that the cost of operating the 56 major regulatory agencies is estimated at more than $7.2 billion (since revised to $7.1 billion by Reagan).

Though the Carter budget represents a 10 percent increase over fiscal 1980 expenditures, the rise is largely offset by the projected rate of inflation. "In other words, zero 'real' growth," the authors state.

At present the planting site is little more than a sea of thin wooden stakes driven into the bleak prairies of the Permian Basin. But planters believe those stakes may mark the beginning of a giant new industry in West Texas.

"We've never seen a hotter world market than the one for wine," Carr said.

Experimental university vineyards on school-owned acreage in Pecos, Culberson and Reeves counties have already grown grapes that are hardy, cold resistant and not glutinous for water. Carr says they are well suited to the sunny, dry climate here.

They also yield high profits — if you can stand the initial investment. Gene Drennan, vineyard project director, said it takes $4,500 to $6,000 per acre to get started — "assuming you own the land and equipment and are already in the farming business."

But — once the vines are mature, they can bring $750 to $1,000 per acre per year, and Drennan said a healthy grapevine can produce grapes for up to 50 years.

He began planting the vineyard last month, hiring laborers in Fort Stockton for such chores besides planting as inspecting water pipes for leaks and distributing hoses for a low-pressure drip irrigation system.

A fence-building crew drove 80,000 stakes into the ground and dug holes for the baby plants. Land clearing and well-digging began in the area last year.

The 170 acres is just a start, said scientific advisor for the project Charles McKinney of Odessa. If it works here — and researchers will know after a couple of years — they plan to turn 40,000 to 60,000 acres of school-owned land into vineyards.

"One thousand acres yield a million gallons of wine. The statewide consumption for wine last year was 30 million gallons. So if we went ahead and planted the 60,000 acres, you'd have twice as much wine as the state consumes," said McKinney.

The trick, Carr said, is to get wineries to locate on school lands next to the vineyards, buy the locally grown grapes and send the wine to national and world markets.

"There are a lot of people who are interested," he said. "If the project fulfills the dreams of its planners, years from now wine connoisseurs in New York or Paris might sit down in a gourmet restaurant and demand "Pecos, vintage 1985."

for
WALTER SHED
MAYOR

A vote for Walter Shed is a vote to reestablish the City Charter, as the guideline for city government.

PAMPA CITY CHARTER ARTICLE IV

SECTION I: of the City Charter of Pampa, requires that any group of citizens, proposing an ordinance, obtain a petition to be signed by 25% of the qualified voters, as determined by the number voting at the last regular municipal election, (200 signatures in the case of the water increase for apartment dwellers) before any such ordinance or resolutions may be considered by the commissioners for adoption.

This requirement was ignored by the present City Commission. The omission, of this requirement of the City Charter, by the present City Commissioners, cost the apartment dweller of Pampa an extra $60,000.00 per year for water.

If I am elected Mayor of Pampa, this injustice will be corrected if it is within my power to do so.

There are other Charter violations which will also be corrected.

There are things that the city could do, if they would, to stop inflation and let you keep more of the money you earn, keep out outside controls, reduce interest rates, and bring new life to the economy of Pampa.

COACHES IN THE SPOTLIGHT. Indiana coach Bobby Knight, left, and University of North Carolina coach Dean Smith respond to questions at a Sunday press conference.

Indiana, North Carolina go into battle tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defense, rebounding, patience on offense and above all teamwork — that's the gospel according to Bobby Knight and Dean Smith and that's the kind of basketball to be played tonight when Indiana takes on North Carolina for the NCAA championship.

Although Knight was the focus of controversy following a run-in with a Louisiana State fan at a hotel Saturday night, that sideshow didn't diminish the appeal of tonight's glittering final.

The records may be tarnished — ninth-ranked Indiana is 25-9 and sixth-rated North Carolina is 29-7 — but everything else about the title game is pure gold.

Both schools have great basketball traditions. Both coaches, Knight of Indiana and Smith of North Carolina, are among the acknowledged leaders of their profession. Both teams have brilliant individual athletes, but both utilize them within the team concept — just the way the basketball purist would want it.

And both are playing at the top of their games, to the point where both coaches say you can ignore the result of their most recent meeting, a 65-56 North Carolina triumph in December.

"That game is so long ago, you're probably talking about two different teams," said Knight. "In each case, we're a far better team today."

"We're both different clubs since the first game," agreed Smith, who is in the Final Four for the sixth time but has never won the championship. "They are a much better team. For one thing, they've settled on one lineup, which they didn't have then. And we've made progress since then, too."

"Hey, when you get this far, both teams should be good."

Both teams are.

Indiana, which won the title here in 1976, has won 18 of its last 22 games and has overwhelmed its four NCAA tourney opponents by an average of 25 points. That includes a 67-49 decision over LSU in Saturday's semifinal. North Carolina, meanwhile, has taken 11 of its last 12 starts, including a 78-65 semifinal victory over Virginia.

And then there are the coaches.

Knight is the martinet, the disciplinarian who couldn't resist a verbal taunt Saturday night that prompted an LSU fan to respond with insults — which Knight answered by shoving the man against a wall. You may not like his manner, but there is no denying his coaching genius. Few teams take the court better prepared, and few coaches have players as dedicated to them as Knight does.

"If something gets to him, he lets people know about it," said Randy Wittman, Indiana's 6-foot-6 swingman who may draw the defensive assignment against North Carolina star Al Wood. "He doesn't allow the same mistakes to happen over and over. I don't think we have too much fear of his anger, because you can't play basketball out of fear and he's never chewed out anyone who didn't deserve it."

"It's a respect for his knowledge of the game."

Smith may not have Knight's tough reputation, but there's no question about who is the key figure in the North Carolina program. The players fill roles or else they don't play, and the roles are designed by Smith, who orchestrates the Tar Heels through a variety of offensive and defensive patterns.

There's nothing subtle about Indiana's defense.

"You know what they're going to do," said Wood, the 6-6 senior whose 39 points against Virginia set a record for an NCAA semifinal and left him just three points short of 2,000 for his career. "They come out in straight man-to-man — pressure, pressure, pressure."

Knight would have it no other way.

"Two of my all-time favorite people are (ex-coaches) Henry Iba and Pete Newell," said Knight. "If I was to play a zone they would disown me. So I can't do it. I have to keep at least two friends."

"There are a lot of ways to skin a squirrel," he added. "But

Southwest Conference has new button bustin' topic - swimming

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Southwest Conference has long been able to brag about the national prowess of its football and baseball teams. Now, there's another sport where some button bustin' is in order — swimming.

Texas brought the SWC its first title Saturday night in the 58th annual NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships and Southern Methodist made its highest finish ever — fourth.

SMU Coach George McMillon was just as excited as Texas Coach Eddie Reese over the progress the SWC has made in the sport.

"It's a great thing for the Southwest Conference," said McMillon, who tutors sophomore breaststroke star Steve Lundquist. "A couple of years ago the West Coast seemed to dominate. Then it shifted to the Southeast and now we think it's starting to shift to the SWC."

Texas compiled 259 points in the three-day meet which had sellout crowds of 2,500 every night jammed into Texas Swimming Center. UCLA was second with 189 points followed by Florida with 180. SMU with 161, Auburn 146 and defending champion California at 140.

McMillon said "We (the SWC coaches) are excited for Texas. Having a team like Texas in our league helped us become better. Houston and Arkansas are starting to do a real good job. We think this kind of showing by the SWC will become a regular thing in the years ahead."

Arkansas finished 12th and Houston was 17th.

Texas could be tough again next year although the Longhorns will lose seniors Scott Spann and Kris Kirchner.

Spann set an American record in the 100 yards butterfly and both were members of Texas record-smashing 400 medley relay team.

"It will be tough to replace swimmers like Spann and Kirchner because you can't replace the leadership and other things they provide," said Reese. "We can replace the potential points, but not the other things."

Reese was emotionally numb from the strain of his team trying to produce before a home pool crowd. Texas was the heavy favorite although a home standing team hadn't won since Indiana pulled off the trick in 1969.

Georgia Bulldogs take NWIT win

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Saturday night and 48-31 with Georgia got a pair of clutch free throws from freshman forward Deborah Mitchell with just over a minute left in overtime and hung on to claim a 75-73 win over Arizona State in the finals of the 13th Annual National Women's Invitational basketball tournament.

The Bulldogs, who ended at 27-10, trailed 40-29 at halftime

Cassandra Lander scored 31 for the Sun Devils and was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Earlier, freshman center Lorri Bauman scored 27 points to lead Drake to an 86-74 victory over California-Berkeley Saturday for third place.

Bauman was helped by teammates Connie Newlin with 15 and Laura Leonard with 14 as the Bulldogs led from the opening tip.

Tennessee Tech trailed by four but cut it to two with a second left and Markey Robyn was fouled in the process. She missed the free throw intentionally, and teammate Barbara Dam missed her desperation shot at the buzzer.

Knight no newcomer to run-ins with angry fans

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Indiana Coach Bobby Knight created an international incident at the 1979 Pan American Games in Puerto Rico when he had a run-in with a policeman.

He once threatened to go after the next Michigan State fan who shouted an obscenity at him.

Another time, he grabbed a microphone on his home court in Bloomington, Ind., and said he would take his team off the court if the fans would not stop chanting obscenities.

Now, it's a shoving incident over an obscenity that has Knight in the limelight again for his antics, not his coaching, during the NCAA basketball Final Four round in this City of Brotherly Love.

Knight says he doesn't have to take verbal abuse in public when it includes obscenities. He has no apologies for the shoving incident in a New Jersey motel Saturday night, and, in fact, says he would do the same thing again under similar circumstances.

Knight's Hoosiers rolled into tonight's NCAA championship game with an easy 18-point victory over the Louisiana State University Tigers Saturday. His team meets North Carolina for the title.

Knight said his team, staying in the same motel as about 200 LSU fans, had been taunted by the fans prior to Saturday's game with chants of "Tiger Bait, Tiger Bait, here comes Tiger Bait."

So, when a Baton Rouge, La., accountant, Louis Bonnacaze, Jr., a man Knight said he had never seen before, approached him and said, "Congratulations," the coach was ready with a quick answer.

"We weren't really bait after all, were we?" Knight said as they passed in the hallway of Cherry Hill Inn.

According to Knight, the man turned around and shouted an obscenity. "I walked over to him," said Knight, "and asked him 'Would you like to say again what you just said?'"

"He said, 'I just gave you a compliment and you were sarcastic.' I said 'I wasn't sarcastic.'"

Knight said the man called him an obscene name, and the coach added: "So I grabbed him and shoved him up against

Irwin's game plan backfires, Rogers takes win

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Hale Irwin followed his game plan perfectly — even better than he could have hoped for — in the final round of the Sea Pines-Heritage Classic.

But it backfired on him and helped spur Bill Rogers to victory Sunday.

"I told my caddy before we started I'd have to put some heat on early, and after the first hole I thought I could," Irwin said.

And apply the heat he did. And as early as possible. He holed out a 160-yard 6-iron shot for an eagle-2 on the first hole.

But it didn't have the desired effect.

"Hale's 2' on the first hole was absolutely the best thing that could have happened to me," said Rogers, who withstood that challenge and series of threats from a variety of players. He hung on grimly, never surrendering the lead, in display of thin-lipped determination that won him his second PGA Tour title and $54,000.

All put the pressure on. But none of them ever caught the

RANDY WHITE TO SPEAK

Dallas Cowboys defensive tackle Randy White will speak at 8 p.m. Tuesday in M. K. Brown Auditorium, as a part of a fund-raiser for the Pampa High School choir. White will answer questions at the conclusion of his speech. The choir also will perform several numbers. Tickets may be purchased from a choir member or choir booster or at the door.

BABE RUTH TRYOUTS

The Pampa Babe Ruth League will be conducting tryouts for its 13-15 year olds league and the start of a new 13-year-old prep league.

Sign up and tryouts will be conducted at 5:30 p.m. April 1-3 at the Pampa Optimist Club Building. Boys must make two of three tryouts in order to be eligible to play.

UMPIRE CLINIC

Those wishing to become an umpire in the Pampa softball leagues this summer are urged to attend an organizational meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the Flame Room at Pioneer Natural Gas, 220 N. Ballard, and a clinic from 6 - 10 p.m. Tuesday at the First Christian Church, 1633 N. Nelson.

A person must attend both nights to meet the umpire eligibility requirements. Those who want to umpire but are unable to attend the meetings should contact Kathy Browning at 665-4024.

BOOSTER CLUB SOCIAL

The Harvester Booster Club is sponsoring a social for the Pampa High School baseball and golf teams at 7 p.m. tonight in the high school cafeteria. Parents and boosters are invited to attend.

Pampa girl wins all-around

Pampan Lena Stewart won the saddle for all-around girl in the Tri-State Rodeo competitions Sunday in Happy, Texas.

Lena took first in break-away calf roping and first in goat-tying.

Jolinda Lowrey took second place in goat-tying.

Next week tri-state rodeo will be conducted in Plainview.

After Irwin, playing in the same threesome with Rogers, had scored his eagle, "I said to myself, 'it's going to be a long day. I can't just sit back.' It made me play harder and I got rid of my jitters right away," Rogers said.

He won this one with a closing 70, 1-under-par on the 6,650-yard Harbour Town Golf Links, and had a 278 total, 6 under par.

Irwin, a two-time winner of this prestigious title, Gil Morgan, Australian veteran Bruce Devlin and Craig Stadler finished a single stroke back at 279. Irwin and Morgan, both with the front-running Rogers in the last threesome, each had a closing 68. Stadler and Devlin each shot 67.

Rogers won important big money titles in Japan and England. But his only previous victory in the United States had come three years ago in the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Sports Fillers

The Big Ten football teams averaged 64,089 fans per game in 1980. It was a national record.

Michigan topped all college football teams in attendance in 1980 with an average of 104,292 per game.

During the 1980 football season, Michigan had 35 straight home games with attendance of 100,000 or more.

Names in the news

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt, who has won oysters, honey, beefsteaks and a Virginia ham in past wagers, is going whole hog over tonight's NCAA basketball finals between his state's Tar Heels and the Indiana Hoosiers.

An optimistic aide to Hunt says the governor wants to take possession of a prize hog being wagered by Indiana Gov. Robert Orr at half-court after North Carolina trounces the Hoosiers.

Hunt spokesman Brent Hackney said the two governors made the final arrangements for their hog wager in a telephone conversation Sunday night. Both were expected to be in Philadelphia tonight to watch their teams compete.

Virginia's Lt. Gov. Chuck Robb owns Hunt five bushels of oysters, while Gov. John Dalton lost a Virginia ham after the Cavaliers lost a 13-point decision to the Tar Heels Saturday.

Hunt's winning ways netted him a barbecue at the expense of Texas Gov. William Clements after the Carolina football team defeated Texas in the Bluebonnet Bowl. Wagers on the regional North Carolina basketball games have brought in three pounds of honey from Utah's Gov. Scott Matheson and some Kansas beefsteaks from Kansas Gov. John Carlin.

BOSTON (AP) — Television producer Norman Lear has attacked the Rev. Jerry Falwell and his Moral Majority for offering "simplistic solutions to our most complex problems." He says the real problem in America is an obsession with making quick profits.

"The single most destructive societal disease of our time — and the single biggest reason for the decline of public morality and ethics is American leadership's fixation with what has become known as the bottom line," Lear said Sunday. He spoke at Northeastern University after accepting an award for defending First Amendment liberties.

"In industry, government or academia, leadership everywhere seems all too ready to sell the future short for a moment of success," said Lear, producer of TV's "All in the Family" and "Sanford and Son."

Lear cited the race for TV audience ratings as an example.

"No one will take a chance with an original and innovative idea," he said.

Each square carries the name of a real government agency and its budget. If you land on the Environmental Protection Agency square, for instance, you have to pay a tax of $50.

Here's the kind of thing that might befall a player: The Law Enforcement Administration spends $2 million to design a patrol car that no municipal government could afford. Pay your share, $20.

The National Science Foundation spends $46,100 studying whether sex, humor and empathy would deter drivers from horn-honking in traffic jams. Pay your share, $50.

But the last laugh is on Tallman and Shanahan. They got their idea started with an $85,000 Small Business Administration loan.

That Iron In Spinach Didn't Help Popeye

ATLANTA (AP) — At last, there's good news for spinach haters. A food scientist says it isn't responsible for the iron in Popeye's muscles.

Dr. Ken Lee of the University of Wisconsin says 99 percent of the iron in spinach — long thought to be a prime source of iron in the diet — is unusable. He reported his findings in a paper presented today to the American Chemical Society's 181st national meeting.

On the light side

WHITEFISH, Mont. (AP) — Instead of collecting when you pass "Go," you have to pay $200. And instead of trying to get rich, the point of Gary Tallman's and Wayne Shanahan's new board game is to go broke. Then you qualify for welfare.

The two contractors plan to market the game entitled SOB — for Save our Bureaucrats — themselves at a charge of $15 per game. Some 20,000 copies are being made at a factory in Wisconsin.

Players shake their dice in a "pork barrel," and advance tokens — miniature replicas of Susan B. Anthony dollars — around a Pentagon-shaped board.

Lee says many foods with plenty of iron contain the essential mineral in forms the body can't use.

Iron gives blood its capacity to carry oxygen.

Food processing can change the iron content in food, sometimes rendering it useless for human nutrition, he said.

In iron-fortified baking products, for example, the nutritional value of iron is often lost in baking, he said. But iron in baby formulas is found to be more available after heating.

News in brief

BALLSTON SPA, N.Y. (AP) — A 27-year-old woman and a 9-year-old girl remained hospitalized in critical condition after an apartment fire killed the woman's husband and three other children.

Fire officials said the victims were overcome by smoke while sleeping Sunday and apparently didn't try to escape.

The victims were identified as Frank Davis, 29; 7-month-old Frances Davis; Elizabeth Kelsey, 2, and Sarah Kelsey, 5. Davis' wife, Mary, and Jennifer Perry were in critical condition at the Albany Medical Center. It wasn't known whether all the victims were related or how the fire started.

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — Prison officials blame youthful "mischievousness" for fights that left 15 inmates injured, two seriously, when power failures pitched the Brockbridge Correctional Institution into darkness.

The two half-hour blackouts were triggered by a tree falling on a power line, authorities said Sunday.

Capt. Phillip Thomas said he doubted charges would be filed as a result of the Saturday night brawls and said all was "back to normal."

One inmate suffered a head injury and another hurt his ankle, apparently when others threw him down the stairs, officials said.

KINGS ISLAND, Ohio (AP) — Brenda the lioness is due to give birth to a tiger cub this June in what researchers believe is the first inter-species transfer of embryos.

If successful, the experiment in surrogate motherhood could help preserve endangered species, say the researchers at the Wild Animal Safari here, where the 350-pound lioness is carrying a tiger embryo that was surgically removed last month from Mora, a female tiger.

The surrogate-mother project began last fall as a cooperative venture involving the Kings Island park; the Cincinnati Zoo; the Knoxville, Tenn. Zoo; and the University of Cincinnati Medical Center, which did the research and provided the surgical team.

CARO, Mich. (AP) — A 5-year-old boy died, but police were able to resuscitate his brother and sister after finding the youngsters trapped inside an abandoned refrigerator alongside their house.

State troopers were unable to revive 6-year-old Mazzola. His 3-year-old brother, James, and 3-year-old sister, Kelly, were hospitalized in critical condition.

Authorities speculate the youngsters were inside the refrigerator for at least 2 1/2 hours after apparently closing the door behind them while playing.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Retired Gen. Roberto Viola has begun a three-year term as president of Argentina, pledging to continue implementing the "National Reorganization" announced by the military when it seized power from President Isabel Peron in 1976.

In a formal ceremony Sunday, Viola accepted the symbols of office, a baton and a blue-and-white sash, from his friend and predecessor, retired Gen. Jorge R. Videla, who led the coup.

The government's reorganization plan aims to stabilize the Argentine economy — inflation is running at 84 percent — and bring back civilian rule at an unspecified future date.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Uruguay's military government, cut off by the Carter administration from purchases of most U.S. military equipment because of alleged human rights violations, has received permission to buy three American anti-submarine fighter planes, Uruguay's navy commander says.

Newspapers here quoted Vice Admiral Hugo Marquez as saying Uruguayan officers were now at a U.S. Navy base learning to fly the planes.

Marquez was quoted as saying Uruguayan leaders "are very content and satisfied" with the change of policy in Washington.

"Before, they wouldn't even sell us lifejackets for boats. Now we are buying the most advanced anti-submarine aircraft in South America."

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — South Korea's new National Assembly will be convened on April 11 for its inaugural session, officials said today.

In elections last Wednesday, the Democratic Justice Party led by President Chun Doo-hwan won a majority of seats in the 276-member assembly. The old assembly was dissolved with the adoption of a new constitution last October.

PEKING (AP) — The "drug demon" is destroying lives in capitalist countries because the West has great material wealth but spiritual poverty, the Peking Review said today.

"It is a sick society," the weekly foreign language journal said. "The drug demon stalks the streets of London, Paris, New York, Hamburg, Amsterdam and most other centers of Western civilization."

The article is the latest in a Chinese campaign to emphasize the decadence of the West and persuade disillusioned Chinese youth that all things foreign are not good.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union turns its clocks forward one hour on Tuesday, starting daylight-saving time for the first time in half a century, but some Soviet citizens have been complaining about the change.

As newspaper headlines warn Soviets to "Change Your Clocks on Time, Dear Comrades," officials report receiving letters from citizens fearing the switch will force them to get up earlier and otherwise foul up their morning routine.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department just can't spend money fast enough to keep it from piling up, says Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis.

Aspin said in a statement Sunday the Pentagon increased its backlog of "unobligated surpluses" to $24.2 billion on Sept. 30, up 15 percent from four years earlier. The increase for other agencies was only 9.7 percent.

Aspin said delays in starting programs for which money had been appropriated accounted for the backlog.

Pentagon officials declined immediate comment. Defense Secretary Caspar

Weinberger has said his department will be able to handle efficiently the large increases in defense spending the Reagan administration has proposed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has placed a 90-day freeze on decisions about political asylum for Salvadorans now in this country both legally and illegally, according to a State Department source.

Once the freeze expires in mid-May, most asylum requests probably will be denied, the source said Sunday night. It is not known how many requests are pending or how many Salvadorans are in the United States.

The United States grants political asylum whenever a person faces a legitimate fear of persecution for political reasons if he is returned to his native country — and most Salvadorans now here face no "legitimate fear of political persecution" if returned, the source said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Fischer, a correspondent for Time magazine since 1964, is now the State Department's official spokesman.

Fischer, 44, was sworn in Saturday to succeed William Dyess, a career foreign service officer who has been doing the job temporarily while Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig decided who should get it permanently.

Vietnamese boat burns

SEABROOK, Texas (AP) — Police were investigating today a fire that destroyed one Vietnamese shrimp boat and damaged another.

Police Chief R.W. Kerber said he had no evidence the fire had been set.

It was the second time for Vietnamese boats to be damaged by fires in recent months during a dispute in which American shrimpers contend Vietnamese refugees are causing Texas coastal areas to be over-shrimped.

Kerber said the early Sunday fire destroyed a 43-foot wooden boat which the owner, Phuong Henderson, had been advertising for sale for $25,000.

A number of Vietnamese agreed two weeks ago to leave the Galveston Bay area if they could sell their boats and Kerber said the boat destroyed Sunday was on a list of vessels being put on the market.

Kerber said a second boat tied up near the destroyed boat was scorched but not seriously damaged.

Three others injured

Reagan shot in chest

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was wounded in the left side in an assassination attempt Monday. His press secretary and two officers also were shot.

Reagan was conscious and his condition was stable, according to top White House aide Lyn Nofziger. Another spokesman, David Gergen, said the president had walked into the hospital and "a decision is now being made whether to operate to remove the bullet."

ABC News reported that the bullet had punctured a lung. A White House spokesman had first said that Reagan was not hit when a gunman fired four to six shots at him as he emerged from the Washington Hilton Hotel.

Three other men were hit, including presidential press secretary James S. Brady.

"I can confirm that the president was shot once in the left side," Nofziger said at George Washington Hospital, where Reagan and Brady were taken.

Nofziger said. "The president was shot in the left chest. The bullet did not hit the heart."

Assassination attempts

By The Associated Press

President Reagan is the sixth U.S. president in this century who was the target of an assassination attempt. Two of the six, William McKinley and John F. Kennedy, were killed. The shots fired at Reagan on Monday marked the first assassination attempt since two women tried to shoot President Ford in separate incidents in northern California in September 1975.

Earlier in the century, on Sept. 6, 1901, McKinley was shot during an appearance in Buffalo, N.Y. He died eight days later. The man convicted of the crime was executed a little more than a month later. On Oct. 12, 1914, a man in Milwaukee shot and seriously wounded former President Theodore Roosevelt and on Nov. 1, 1950, two men identified as members of a Puerto Rican nationalist movement tried to shoot their way into Blair House in Washington, D.C., in an attempt to kill President Truman.

Kennedy was killed in November 1963 in Dallas. Lee Harvey Oswald was arrested for the crime but was shot and killed by Jack Ruby before he could be tried. Ruby died while legal proceedings were still pending in the Oswald shooting.

"He is not undergoing surgery at this time," Nofziger, the White House political director, said. But, he added, "my understanding is the bullet is still in him."

The Secret Service said John Warnock Hi, 22, of Evergreen, Colo., was arrested. Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner said the suspect had fired a .38-caliber revolver.

Vice President George Bush, in Texas for an address to the state legislature, headed back to Washington aboard Air Force Two, upon hearing of the assassination attempt.

A Secret Service agent, Timothy J. McCarthy, was shot in the chest. A city policeman also was wounded and was reported in critical condition at the Washington Hospital Center.

A television cameraman who was near the alleged assailant said Brady was shot in the forehead. The cameraman said the gunman "just opened up and started firing," about 10 feet from Reagan.

Hank Brown, a cameraman for ABC, said he saw a white man with blond hair in his 30s fire at Reagan from about 10 feet away with a .38-caliber pistol.

He said Brady appeared to have been hit in the head.

"He just opened up and continued squeezing the trigger," Brown said. He said the assailant did not say anything. Brown said the man appeared to have "penetrated the press corps hands landed but it is refueling. ... As soon as the plane is refueled, he's returning to Washington," Clayton said.

News of the assassination attempt on Reagan came about two hours before Bush's scheduled speech, but there appeared to be no unusual security measures.

Bush returns to Washington

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Vice President George Bush flew to Washington Monday after learning President Ronald Reagan had been wounded in an assassination attempt, according to a Bush spokesman.

It was not known immediately if Bush's plane was airborne for Austin when notified of the shooting.

According to a report by the Fort Worth Star Telegram, an employee in the Secret Service office downtown saw the televised report of the shooting, notified the command post at the Hyatt Regency, where Bush had spoken, and the command post radioed the vice president at Carswell.

Bush's plans had called for him to fly to Austin for a speech before a joint session of the Legislature Monday afternoon. He delivered a noon luncheon address to the Southwestern Cattle Raisers.

Tornado forms without storm, causes light property damage

"It just goes to show you when conditions aren't right, they're right."

Strange as this may sound, Steve Vaughn, Pampa civil defense coordinator, said today that tornadoes can form even if there is no storm.

Vaughn said apparently a tornado did pass over Pampa Saturday afternoon causing light damage to property in the north part of town and catching civil defense officials off-guard. No injuries were reported.

"We got caught with our pants down," Vaughn said today. He said although his own backyard fence was a casualty from the twister, he was not aware of the nature of the wind until Sunday.

"No one knew in an official capacity until Sunday afternoon," Vaughn said.

The tornado apparently formed over Price Road between Panhandle Meters and Mobile Oil Company sometime between 5 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. Saturday. He said it moved from the northwest to the southeast, also not following the usual pattern for tornadoes.

"It's debatable whether it actually touched down or not, but the vacuum caused some damage," Vaughn said.

The twister kicked up dirt and debris, the civil defense coordinator said. He added he had received several reports of people loosing fences and receiving damages to their automobiles.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gilliam of Pampa said the back windshield of their vehicle was popped out while it was parked on Hobart Street at the time of the tornado.

Vaughn said he received reports that signs at Kentucky Fried Chicken, White's Auto and the Pizza Inn were damaged at the time of the twister.

Although several people later reported seeing the tornado, he said no one called police with a report. No spotters were out, he said, because conditions were not right.

The civil defense coordinator asked that anyone seeing what might be a tornado to report it immediately to the Pampa Police Department.

"Go ahead and call even if you are not sure," he said.

Vaughn said no injuries resulting from the brief tornado have been reported to him.

Polish strike halted in late talks

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The independent union Solidarity today called off a nationwide general strike threatened for Tuesday over the beating of three union members, the Polish news agency PAP said.

The decision was made after talks with government officials at which progress had been reported toward meeting union demands for punishment of those responsible for the beatings.

There was no immediate word on terms that led to calling off the strike which government officials had said would lead to catastrophic consequences in this Soviet bloc country racked by labor and economic turmoil.

PAP said the negotiators were preparing a joint communiqué.

The talks were between Lech Walesa, leader of the Solidarity independent union, and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski.

Warsaw Pact military maneuvers continued in and around Poland, an ominous background to the talks.

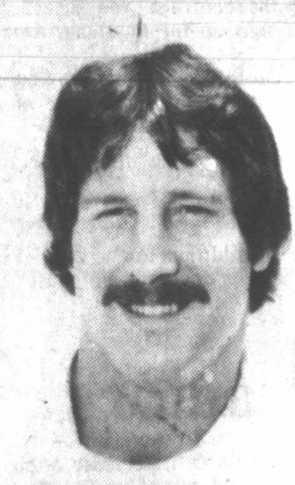

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted a Polish Communist Party official as saying, regarding a general strike, "our country has no reserves that would enable it to survive this catastrophe economically. Therefore the structure of our state and its very survival are at stake."

The official, Kazimierz Barcikowski, spoke at a meeting of the party's Central Committee which gave its ruling Politburo a vote of confidence to deal with the situation after stormy debate.

After flexing its muscles in a four-hour warning strike Friday, the union, angered by the beating of three members in Bydgoszcz on March 19, threatened an indefinite general strike starting at 6 a.m. Tuesday (11 p.m. EST tonight) if its demands are not met in the last-ditch talks. The chief demand is dismissal of those responsible for the beatings.

Warsaw Radio said the Central Committee's resolution called on party members "to counteract the influence of the enemies of socialism on individual cells of Solidarity."

Cowboy 'gamemaker' slated to speak

RANDY WHITE

All-pro defensive tackle Randy White, one of the Dallas Cowboys "gamemakers," will be speaking about the Cowboys and his experiences in football at M. K. Brown Auditorium at 8 p.m. Tuesday in a program sponsored by the Pampa High School Choir Boosters Club.

Tom Landry says any championship team needs a few "gamemakers," players of such singular talent they can singlehandedly control a game's outcome. Randy White is one of these players.

"The guy is phenomenal. He just doesn't have any bad games," Landry said. "They can slow him down a little, but they can't stop him."

Statistics like number of tackles and quarterback traps are meaningless in White's case because, as defensive coordinator Ernie Stautner said, "Teams have to double and triple team Randy on pass rush. He gets so much attention from the opposing team that it just makes it easier for everybody else."

White is known as the Cowboy's strongest player — he can bench-press 475 pounds. He was dubbed by Charlie Waters as the "Manster" — half man, half monster.

White was a unanimous all-pro selection in 1979 for the second straight season and also was voted to the Pro Bowl for the third consecutive year.

Considering that he became the starting right tackle only three years ago after two seasons as a backup linebacker, that's a lot to have achieved in a relatively short time.

Missing only one game last year because of an injury to his right foot, White still finished the season with five quarterback traps. He also had the key fumble recovery that began the Cowboy's dramatic two-touchdown rally against Washington in December 1980.

In 1978, White tied Harvey Martin for the team lead in quarterback traps with 16 and nearly led the club in solo tackles — 75, one less than team-leader Waters — an unheard-of accomplishment for a defensive lineman.

He succeeded Martin as the Seagram's Seven Crowns of Sport defensive lineman of the year and was voted NFC defensive player of the year by United Press International and the Kansas City Committee of 101.

In 1977, White capped his first season at defensive tackle with an awesome performance in Super Bowl XII that earned him the game's co-Most Valuable Player award with Martin.

Waters said of his teammate, "He's the best football player I've ever seen. A coach's dream. All the accolades — strong, fast, determined, smart, a team player, a leader, a big-play guy. I get a lot of energy from him."

In the off-season, White lives on his farm in Landenberg, Pa., near his hometown of Wilmington, Del. with his wife, Vicki, and daughter, Jordan Leigh.

Tickets to hear White are available from any choir booster club member, choir member, at Fraser Insurance Agency, The Pampa News and at the door.

Abscam prosecutors face toughest case

NEW YORK (AP) — Prosecutors beset by rulings of government entrapment face their most troublesome Abscam case today with the trial of Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., the most powerful politician indicted in the FBI sting.

Williams was one of the first to meet with undercover FBI agents posing as representatives of favor-seeking Arab sheiks, but the 61-year-old New Jersey Democrat was the last to be indicted.

"I will survive," predicts the 22-year Senate veteran whose current term expires in 1982. The sole senator indicted in the sting maintains he is "totally innocent."

Court oks deprogramming

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court let stand today Minnesota rulings allowing parents to lock up an adult "child" and try to "deprogram" her out of a religious cult.

The justices, as usual, did not explain today's action, leaving open the option of tackling at some future date the thorny questions of religious freedom and "brainwashing."

Susan Louise Peterson grew up on a farm near Bird Island, Minn., with her Lutheran parents, Norman and Margaret Jungclaus. She joined a religious organization called The Way Ministry during college.

The Minnesota Supreme Court later concluded that Ms. Peterson "had been reduced to a condition of psychological bondage" in the cult.

On May 24, 1976, Jungclaus picked up his daughter, then 21, at college. Instead of driving her home, she claimed, he drove her to a house in Minneapolis where she was held and subjected to intense persuasions to leave The Way Ministry by a pair of "deprogrammers."

Prosecutors face an uncertain task in the courtroom this time since a federal judge in Philadelphia last year threw out the convictions of two Philadelphia city council members on grounds of governmental misconduct and entrapment.

The convictions were overturned based on the most controversial Abscam evidence: tapes of a June 28, 1979, session involving the council members and Williams. The government is appealing the reversal.

The 13 other Abscam convicts are appealing on similar grounds.

Barring success of last-minute maneuvers to delay the trial before U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt in Brooklyn, jury selection was slated to begin today from a panel of several hundred people.

The trial is expected to last up to two months. The Williams' case has been the most troublesome for the Justice Department.

Like six House members who have preceded him to the Abscam courtroom, Williams is accused of agreeing to introduce a private immigration bill on behalf of a phony Arab sheik.

Both sides acknowledge it is radically different than those before it, if for no other reason than the conduct of Mel Weinberg, the convicted con man hired by the FBI to help set up the sting.

Lawyers for many of those already convicted have used tapes of early meetings involving Williams and Weinberg in efforts to prove entrapment and governmental misconduct in their clients' cases.

Williams, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee until the Republicans gained Senate control in January, is accused of bribery and conspiracy involving an alleged promise to introduce an immigration bill to allow the purported Arabs to stay in the United States.

Standing trial with Williams is Alexander Feinberg, a 72-year-old lawyer from Cherry Hill, N.J., and longtime Williams' associate.

Mayor Angelo Errichetti, of Camden, N.J., was severed from the trial because the Justice Department agreed it would not further prosecute those convicted in earlier Abscam cases unless they won appeals. Retired contractor George Katz of Fort Lee, N.J., was said to be seriously ill and also was severed.

In addition to the charge involving the private immigration bill, Williams also is charged with agreeing to accept a concealed 18 percent interest in a Virginia titanium mine. In return, he allegedly agreed to do everything in his power to obtain military contracts for the mining venture.

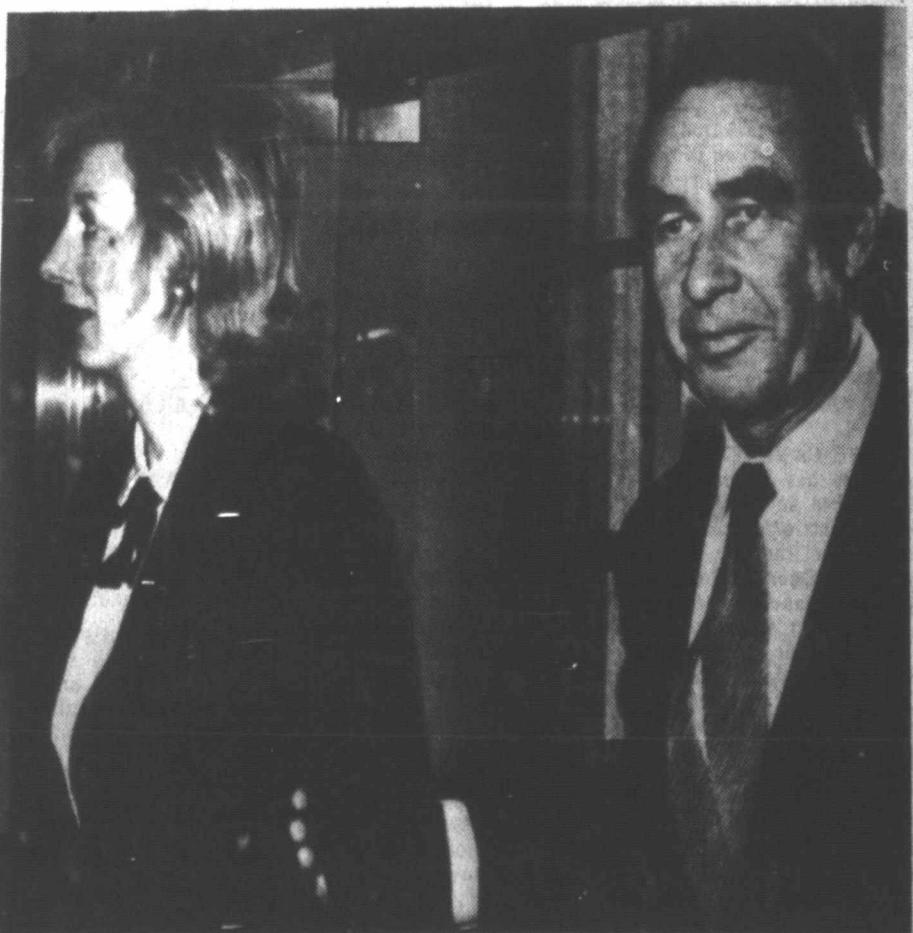

The supposed Arabs were going to finance the deal with a $100 million loan at favorable interest rates, the federal indictment charges. The charges further allege that as part of the conspiracy, Williams and the others agreed to later sell the mining company to a group of foreign businessmen for $70 million.

Prosecutors say the senator would have stood to make 18 percent of the sale price, or $12.6 million, minus expenses.

Like the Abscam defendants before him, Williams faces a series of government-made videotapes showing numerous meetings with undercover FBI agents posing as frontmen for the sheik and with "Sheik Yassir Habib" himself.

The other congressmen or former congressmen convicted here and in Washington include former Reps. John Murphy, D-N.Y.; Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J.; John Jenrette, D-S.C.; Richard Kelly, R-Fla.; Michael Myers, D-Pa., and Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa.

Lederer was the only implicated member of Congress to win re-election.

ABSCAM TRIAL BEGINS. Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., with his wife Jeanette at his side, arrives this morning at Brooklyn federal courthouse as jury selection began in his Abscam bribery conspiracy trial. Sen. Williams is the seventh and most powerful member of Congress to be tried in the political corruption scandal. (AP Laserphoto)

Union chief trying to convince coal miners to accept contract

By The Associated Press
 With voting a day away, United Mine Workers President Sam Church headed into the West Virginia coalfields today for a "real donnybrook" with striking miners who have branded a proposed new contract a "sellout."
 Church was winding up a five-day tour through the eastern coal states to support the proposed pact with meetings in Charleston, W. Va., and Beckley, W. Va., the hearts of the UMW's two largest districts.
 The burly union president predicted tense meetings with angry miners who have broken up other meetings and burned copies of the contract. The UMW's 160,000 striking miners vote Tuesday on the tentative agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.
 Church, who started his tour with predictions that the contract would be approved by a two-thirds majority, said Sunday he is "still optimistic it's going to pass."

"If the contract is read and studied, and our people work under it, it will help our organization if they will only give it a chance," he said.
 UMW officials in several states predicted Tuesday's election will be decided by a "silent majority" and not the militant groups who have picketed and heckled Church on his tour.
 "They (miners) make up their own way," said Denny Deskins, a UMW official in Welch, W. Va.
 The proposed contract provides for a 36 percent increase in pay and benefits over three years. Critics contend it will weaken the union by ending a royalty paid by coal companies to the UMW on purchases of non-union coal.
 Although many union leaders have declined to forecast the outcome of the election, a growing number of officials say the contract will be ratified because of the poor economy and high unemployment in the coal industry.

Service contracts-protection, perils

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
 Automobile buyers looking for protection against big repair bills often spend extra money for service contracts, but consumers have to shop carefully to avoid hidden pitfalls.
 It is important to understand what you are buying and who you are buying it from.
 A service contract is NOT a manufacturer's warranty. It is designed to cover repairs for a fixed period of time, generally extending beyond the life and scope of the warranty. The cost of the contract — unlike the cost of the manufacturer's warranty — is not included in the price of the car.
 A service contract may be offered by a manufacturer, an independent contract company or an individual dealer or dealers' association. It may cover either a new or a used car, although contracts provided by manufacturers usually apply to new vehicles only.
 It is important to make sure that whoever offers the service contract has enough money to pay claims for repair bills. "Some companies ... lack funds or insurance or go out of business," says the Federal Trade Commission.
 The recent failure of a company which marketed service contracts called "Car Life" demonstrates the potential problems.
 Jackie Schmitt of the FTC said that the company, which did business under the names North American Dealer Services and North American Dealer Group, sold an estimated 500,000 "Car Life" service contracts across the country between 1977 and 1981. In February, however, the company filed for bankruptcy.

Ms. Schmitt said holders of "Car Life" contracts should check their records to make sure they do not suffer. Two types of contracts were sold, she said. One was issued by individual dealers; the contract included the words: "This vehicle service contract is between the issuing dealer and the service contract holder." People with this kind of contract should have no trouble getting repairs, despite the bankruptcy, Ms. Schmitt said, since the dealer, not North American, is the provider of service.
 The second type of contract, sold through a variety of outlets, including credit unions, is more complicated, Ms. Schmitt said. These contracts were written as insurance policies against the Great Atlantic Insurance Co. Ms. Schmitt said holders of this type of contract should send a copy of their policy and repair bills to the insurance company at 59 John St., New York, N.Y. 10038.
 No matter who is issuing the contract, you should ask several questions before you sign up for anything. Among them:
 —What does the contract cover? Some pay for routine inspection and maintenance only; others take care of all defects and breakdowns.
 —What does a service contract provide that a warranty doesn't?
 —How will repair bills be paid?
 —Where can I get service?
 —What will I have to pay in addition to the cost of the contract? Most contracts have "deductibles," just like insurance policies.

Oscars mean more pay for actors

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After spending nearly $3 million on an advertising blitz to promote the nominees, the film industry is awaiting the results of tonight's Academy Awards with visions of bulging box-office receipts.
 The 13 1/2-inch, gold-plated statuettes may look prestigious on a shelf, but the real gold associated with the Oscars comes in different forms.
 For instance, a winner such as last year's best actress — Sally Field, star of "Norma Rae" — could expect a jump of several hundred thousand dollars for each subsequent film and the pick of scripts.
 The best-picture award often means an extra $5 million to $10 million at the box office, according to industry experts, as well as increased revenue from television, cable and other markets.
 Film companies attempted to sway Academy voters by spending between $2 million and $3 million on trade paper advertisements, special screenings and the like during the past weeks. After the awards are announced, new ads will tout the winners.
 United Artists expanded the potential audience for "Raging Bull" by bringing it into 690 theaters last Friday. The film was nominated for eight awards, and its star, Robert De Niro, is the favorite to win as best actor.
 Said a company spokesman: "The film market is slow right now, and we're hoping that 'Raging Bull' will pick up a number of Oscars."
 Paramount, with "Ordinary People" expected to win for best picture, had no plans to widen the film's release, although it certainly would accept new bookings. The film is now playing in 400 theaters. The film's director, Robert Redford, is considered a good bet for best director.

 Universal, with Sissy Spacek the favorite as best actress in "Coal Miner's Daughter," doesn't plan to rerelease its film. Said Gordon Armstrong, the company's advertising, publicity and promotion vice president: "The last trip around was not too successful, and the picture has about played itself out. An Oscar is not too important unless it's for best picture and/or a lot of awards."
 Industry experts note the annual celebration by the Academy of Motion Pictures, Arts and Sciences also has an impact worldwide. This year's telecast will be viewed in 65 countries with an audience predicted to be 300 million.
 The ABC television network will carry the ceremonies in the United States, beginning at 10 p.m. EST. Johnny Carson returns as emcee, and Lucie Arnaz stars in the opening number, appropriately entitled "Hooray for Hollywood!"
 Meanwhile, movie fans who want to place a wager on their favorite nominee are out of luck this year in Nevada. State gaming authorities have outlawed non-sport betting in casino sports books.
 Nevada gaming authorities cracked down recently after a wave of publicity over oddsmaker Bob Martin's bet-taking on the identity of the villain who shot J.R. in the popular "Dallas" television series.

Wilson denies allegation of overthrow plot

LONDON (AP) — Contradicting his closest associate while he was prime minister, Sir Harold Wilson denied her charge that the late Earl Mountbatten plotted to overthrow his Labor government in 1968.
 Wilson in a statement said there was a plot by "one or two people high up in the press." He said they approached Mountbatten, the World War II hero and cousin of Queen Elizabeth II, and Sir Solly Zuckerman, his government's chief scientific adviser.
 "Mountbatten and Sir Solly sent them packing in the best quarter-deck manner," said Wilson after the Sunday Times revealed the alleged plot.
 However, publisher Cecil King, one of the alleged plotters named by the Sunday Times, said Mountbatten approached him and his deputy, Hugh Cudlipp, about letters to the queen complaining about the Wilson government.
 King said he told the earl the time might come when the armed forces and the monarch "might have a part to play, but it certainly was not then."

 Wilson's former political secretary, Marcia Williams, who took the name of Lady Falkender after he made her a life peeress, said Mountbatten was a "prime mover" in the plot, the Sunday Times reported. Wilson said the charge was "an unwarranted slur" on the soldier-statesman, who was assassinated by the Irish Republican Army in 1979.
 Mountbatten was the fourth prominent dead man attacked by a British newspaper within a week. The Daily Mail reported last week that Sir Roger Hollis, former head of MI-5, the counter-intelligence agency, was suspected of being a Soviet spy and never cleared; that Tom Driberg, longtime Labor member of Parliament and chairman briefly of the Labor Party, was a double agent for MI-5 and the Soviet KGB, and that Charles Howard-Ellis, Britain's No. 3 intelligence officer at the end of World War II, confessed in 1965 that he had spied for both Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union.

Tentative launch date set for space shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Kennedy Space Center workers are preparing for a final countdown tentatively leading to an April 10 launch of America's trouble-plagued space shuttle Columbia.
 "We feel the 10th is a viable launch date," shuttle launch director George Page said Sunday after an exhaustive physical inspection confirmed the success of two critical tests of the system's silo-shaped aluminum fuel tank.
 The 73-hour launch countdown is set to start at 11:30 p.m. EST this Sunday, Page told reporters at a briefing.
 The formal announcement of a launch date is not expected until a flight readiness review, to be conducted Tuesday at Kennedy Space Center by National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials.
 Last week's fueling tests involved the 154-foot fuel tank, which serves as the backbone of the shuttle system. The tank is designed to carry 526,000 gallons of super-cold liquid oxygen and hydrogen that will fuel the Columbia's three main engines for eight minutes after blastoff.
 The tank will be jettisoned just before the shuttle goes into orbit. If all goes according to plan, the Columbia itself will glide back to Earth on wings for a landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California following its first 54-hour orbital flight.
 The $9 billion shuttle program is more than two years behind schedule.

 A weekend "hands-on" examination of cork insulation panels on the outer surface of the tank, which fuels the orbiter's main engines, revealed "absolutely no debonding problem" as a result of the fueling tests, Page said. A similar fueling operation in January had loosened the bond holding some of the insulation and damaged 32 of the panels.
 "Basically, both tests (on Wednesday and Friday) were successful," Page said. He said minor cracks in a foam covering sprayed onto the insulation would be repaired immediately and would not interfere with the mission.
 Leaks of hydrogen fuel on ground support equipment encountered in the Friday fueling also were being corrected this week, he said.
 The cork and foam insulation is designed to prevent the fuel from vaporizing during the heat of the launch. It also is intended to prevent the frigid fuel from creating ice buildups on the outside of the tank. Officials fear ice could damage the delicate thermal tiles on the shuttle itself.
 Page said the launch-preparation schedule now being followed actually leads to an April 9 launch date, with the countdown starting Saturday.
 But April 9 would be "too optimistic," Page said, adding he wants to give the launch team a day off before the liftoff.

Indictments are expected soon in probe of federal judge's murder

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury has heard all the witnesses it subpoenaed, and federal officials have indicated indictments could be handed up soon in connection with the assassination almost two years ago of U.S. District Judge John Wood.

The panel recessed Friday after the 10th and final witness, Theresa Starr Jasper, 23, went to jail rather than tell what she knows about the shooting in front of Wood's townhouse.

Federal officials refused to answer questions about when the grand jury would reconvene, although indications were the panel might come back together Wednesday.

Targets in the investigation have been identified as El Paso brothers Jimmy and Joe Chagra and convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson, who is married to Ms. Jasper's mother.

Ms. Jasper was ordered jailed 60 miles away in Uvalde County Jail after she refused to answer about a dozen questions while she was in front of the grand jury, despite being granted immunity from prosecution.

Officials said she had the key to the jail "in your pocket" because she could be released whenever she decided to answer the grand jury's questions. They had her jailed in Uvalde because of overcrowded conditions in the Bexar County Jail at San Antonio.

FBI director William Webster said in Washington, D.C., last week that officials know who ordered Wood's assassination and who carried out the contract and that a solution in the case was imminent.

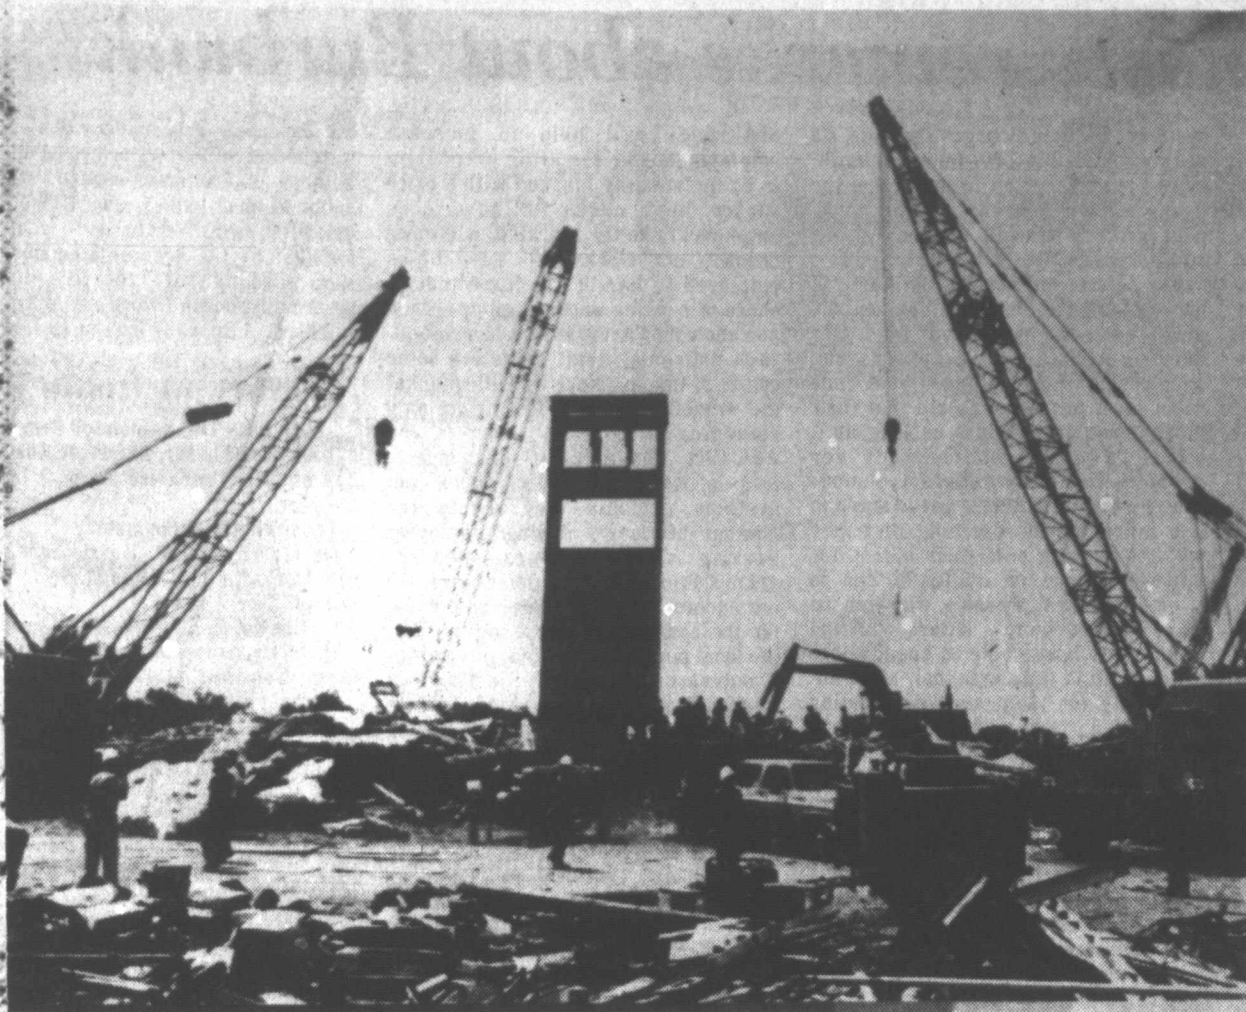

Dallas newspapers quoted sources as saying federal officials had a tape recording of a conversation between the Chagra brothers last year in a federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., in which Jimmy Chagra told his brother that he hired Harrelson to kill Wood.

Joe Chagra is a lawyer. Jimmy Chagra is serving a 30-year term for continuing criminal enterprise, after having been accused of being a principal figure in drug smuggling into the United States from Colombia.

FBI agents searched Joe Chagra's house on Feb. 27 and seized a tape recording of a telephone conversation last year between Chagra and Harrelson in which Harrelson mentioned the shooting.

Harrelson was convicted in the 1968 contract killing of Hearne grain dealer Sam Degelia Jr. He was released on parole in 1979, and is being held now on unrelated state charges in Houston.

U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears sentenced Ms. Jasper to an indefinite jail term after she refused twice on Friday to answer questions asked during her hour-long session with the grand jury.

COLLAPSED CONDOMINIUM. Cranes and volunteer workers continue the task of removing the last of the debris from a collapsed Harbour Cay Condominium at Cocoa Beach, Fla. The only thing that was left standing was the elevator shaft. Collapse of the condominium as it was under construction killed a score of workers. The last body of the known missing was recovered Sunday. (AP Lazerphoto)

Five go on trial on Brilab charges

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal case called Brilab opened today in U.S. District Court, as prosecution and defense began the process of selecting an impartial jury for a trial that could last a half year.

The 12 jurors and their alternates could spend the next five months — or more — in U.S. District Judge Morey Sear's court, hearing the reams of evidence in the case. U.S. Attorney John Volz estimated.

The five defendants, who include reputed Mafia chieftain Carlos Marcello and former state Commissioner of Administration Charles E. Roemer II, are charged with conspiracy, racketeering, and mail and wire fraud.

Their indictments stemmed from their involvement with Joseph Hauser, 49, a three-time loser on insurance fraud convictions.

Hauser allegedly connected the defendants with insurance executives willing to trade payoffs for lucrative state insurance contracts.

The insurance men turned out to be undercover FBI agents, with Hauser as their stalking horse.

Hauser agreed to go undercover for the FBI after pleading guilty in Phoenix, Ariz., to a scheme in which numerous union welfare and pension funds were bilked for millions in multi-state transactions.

In his deal with the FBI, Hauser was to use his skills to put the federal agents in touch with influential labor and political leaders, hence the contraction of bribery and labor: Brilab.

First reports of the investigation surfaced in the Los Angeles

Times on Feb. 9, 1980, when a court document filed in an unrelated case revealed the existence of a major federal investigation of the relationship of a "Cosa Nostra boss" and public officials in Louisiana and other states.

A federal grand jury was empaneled and in between June and August and returned indictments against:

- Marcello, the "Little Man" of New Orleans who is reputed to be the Mafia kingpin of the Gulf Coast;
- Roemer, 57, of Baton Rouge, who was the state's Commissioner of Administration under Gov. Edwin Edwards;
- Aubrey Young, 58, an aide to Lt. Gov. Bobby Freeman at the time of his indictment;
- Washington lobbyist and "fix it" man I. Irving Davidson, 59;
- and New Orleans lawyer Vincent Marinello.

It will be the second Brilab trial.

In the first, in Houston, a federal jury acquitted Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton, and two Austin lawyers accused of conspiring with Hauser.

The Louisiana defendants have already lost in their efforts to sever their trials from Marcello's and to discredit the 1,400 reels of wiretapped conversations in federal hands.

In the first motions, Sear ruled that Marcello's success in fighting a 30-year-old deportation order might rub off on the defendants, rather than his unsavory reputation.

In the second case, Sear ruled that Hauser freely consented to the electronic surveillance, and was not acting under the influence of drugs and alcohol when he allowed the wiretaps.

Bush speaking to Texas legislators

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators gather in a joint session today to hear from Vice President George Bush, former Texas congressman who made two unsuccessful attempts to be a U.S. senator for the state.

Aides said he would discuss federal and state relations under the new Republican administration.

Bush's appearance closely follows Gov. Bill Clements' warning to legislators Friday that austerity measures sought by President Ronald Reagan may cost Texas $2.5 billion in expected federal funds for 1982-83.

Before and after Bush's half-hour appearance this afternoon the House and Senate have a wide range of problems to consider — primarily concerning state spending and redistricting.

Bush, an adopted Texan who once lived in Midland and still has a home in Houston, comes to Austin from a speaking appearance in Fort Worth.

Bush's aides said he would land at Austin's Municipal Airport about 2:30 p.m. and take a motorcade to the Capitol.

After a brief news conference in the Senate chamber and a visit with Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, and Speaker Bill Clayton, he was scheduled to address the joint session in the House chamber.

Two other U.S. vice presidents have addressed the Texas Legislature. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson spoke to both houses on April 17, 1961, and while Johnson was president, Vice President Hubert Humphrey spoke to Texas lawmakers on April 24, 1967.

Native Texan John Nance Garner of Uvalde was vice president from 1933 to 1939. Although he was invited several times, he never spoke to his home state legislature.

Bush planned to return to Washington immediately after the speech.

Otherwise, much of the legislature's work today and this week was outside the debate chambers.

Conference committees continued compromise talks on House and Senate differences in bills that would raise the drinking age from 18 to 19 and appropriate $35 million for emergency housing in the prison system.

The Senate Finance and House Appropriation Committees worked extra hours trying to get a 1982-83 state spending bill ready for debate by mid-April.

Redistricting committees will be working with the 1980 census figures received from Washington figures last week. House and Senate members were furnished "profiles" showing the exact population and racial makeup of their districts, down to the block level.

Hearings are already underway in the House on how the districts should be changed to fit the 1980 census and Senate hearings begin this week. Final bills on Senate, House and congressional redistricting are scheduled for debate in early May.

Custody case continues

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — It was back to court again today for what has to rank as one of the most unusual child custody cases in Texas history.

Liberty County prosecutors view the case as a dress rehearsal for the murder trial of Vickie Daniel, 33, who has pleaded innocent by reason of self defense in the Jan. 19 shooting of her husband, former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel.

Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph of Richardson, went to court almost immediately, contending her sister-in-law is an unfit mother and asking for custody of the Daniel's two children, Franklin Baldwin, 3, and Marion Price IV, 1.

But the child custody trial, now going into its third week, has been but "a preliminary to the main event" from the start.

Mrs. Daniel's attorney, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, began taking her through the events leading to the shooting. She said she got a rifle, loaded it and ordered her husband to leave their ranch home after he had kicked and beaten her in a dispute concerning their proposed divorce.

She said she "heard a funny sound" but didn't actually recall firing the shot that killed Daniel.

"In my nine years of prosecuting, this is the first time I've seen a case develop in this manner," said Assistant District Attorney Jerry Andress.

Andress, who will prosecute Mrs. Daniel on the murder charge, has dropped into the courtroom often during the two-week custody fight to watch Haynes.

Haynes sought at first to have any questions about the shooting barred from the custody trial, but then Mrs. Daniel waived her Fifth Amendment rights and testified to the events surrounding the shooting.

The protests by Haynes may have been a ploy by the flamboyant lawyer to get J.C. "Zeke" Zbrank, Mrs. Murph's attorney, to press for revelations about the shooting, Andress speculated.

That, Andress said, would open the way for Haynes to delve into the prosecution's evidence before the murder trial began.

Andress said he's not concerned about a premature release of the information.

"The defense has an opportunity to see the state's evidence anyway, so they won't get an advantage," Andress said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Evolution or creation?

I am inclined to agree with Francis Galton in believing that education and environment produce only a small effect on the mind of anyone, and that most of our qualities are innate. Naturalist Charles Darwin publishing his epochal theories on the evolution of man. Darwin's words seemed especially ironic as evolutionists and creationists again squared off in a Sacramento courtroom over a renewed attempt to put the two theories side-by-side in California's science textbooks.

Darwin's theories alone are presented now. For the moment the case for divine creation can be found only in social science and philosophy texts.

Over the past 20 years, both sides have won and lost court and board-of-education battles over the issue. And no matter how the current case winds up, we suspect the fight will continue unless one theory or another is proven in a scientific sense.

The ongoing problems of evolutionists is that their theories, while more than 120 years old, remain unprovable. Creationists are openly skeptical — and not without reason — of a theory proposing that man evolved from constantly positive mutations over tens of millions of years. To creationists it is far more logical to believe man, animal and plant life on planet Earth was divinely created.

It would seem elementary to include both theories in science textbooks. Science, after all, is the quest for truth and fact.

However, scientists are at the forefront in the creation theory off to the sidelines. They argue that the creation theory is religious or philosophical and thus "not within the realm of science."

Perhaps if the creationists were attempting to put Adam and Eve and the BOOK OF GENESIS in California's science textbooks, evolutionists would find wider support for their attempt to keep contrary ideas at bay. But after all these years, the evolutionists must know that whole texts produced by the creationists have managed to refrain from literal interpretation of the Bible. Zeroing in on scientific provability, the creationists have basically produced a theory they believe is far easier to accept scientifically than Darwin's theories.

In short, they believe fewer miracles are involved in accepting the creationist theory than the evolutionist theory.

If the school system — California and elsewhere — wants to establish credibility, we fail to understand its current science guidelines restricting one theory while promoting another, when one is no more scientifically provable than the other.

Billboard art

The Medicis didn't die. They just faded into obscurity as the Uncle Sams and Big Brothers around the world usurped their roles.

In San Francisco the Medici instinct has been reborn in the form of three-foot high billboards.

Faced with the probability of federal arts support money reduced by 66 percent, the culturally-concerned figured out how to take up the slack in the private sector. Motorists now see Monet as well as the Marlboro Man gazing down from billboards. Picasso is up there along with the pickles and pilsners. Hundreds of roadside billboards eventually will be painted over with works of art, many by contemporary creators living in the Bay Area.

It's a $500,000 project to transform the freeways into a giant outdoor museum, thereby stimulating interest in art among the motoring millions. It's a project that costs taxpayers zero.

Bay View Federal Savings is picking up the tab for the year-long billboard project.

We just felt it would be a fantastic idea to rip down the ads and put up something the people would really appreciate," explained Bay View's board chairman, Elwood Hansen, who finds it appropriate for banks to support the arts.

"Who was it that supported the arts and the cultures way, way back when?" he asked rhetorically. "It wasn't the government as much as it was the wealthy, the Medicis. Today, we're the Medicis, the corporations are the Medicis."

The Bayside arts blitz proves government need not play Medici, an artificially assumed role from the outset. More importantly, the project shows that the arts and other businesses are mutually beneficial. Bay View Federal Savings did not take on the project purely out of altruism.

While no overt advertising appears on the artboards, plaques carrying Bay View's name are affixed to the framework. Subtle though the promotional gimmick is, it comes across: Bay View has class.

We are delighted to see government divorce itself of the arts and applaud the efforts of private sector.

Those nasty remarks about Burbank

By Butler D. Shaffer

All right, Johnny Carson, enough of your constant digs at the city of Burbank. No more of these cutesy cheap-shots about this being a sleepy-eyed backwater hamlet, with geriatric clinics as its principal industry. Burbank has come of age! Its "city fathers" have brought its erstwhile denizens of urban bucolia smack dab into the twentieth century, with political planning, government regulation of economic activity, and all the other modern-day practices of political sorcery that have helped to make the rest of the American economy what it is today!

I mentioned, in a previous article, how the Burbank city government had gotten into the urban renewal business. The local booboisie now enjoys the benefit of such well-conceived planning as the condemnation — under powers of eminent domain — of a self-supporting live theater in order to obtain the land for the urban renewal project which, these same urban-engineering tell us, will include a new movie theater because of the lack of adequate theaters in Burbank!

But wait, there's more! Having determined to put behind itself an image of uncomplicated living, the Burbank City Council took yet another bold step by enacting an "emergency ordinance" to require local grocery stores to individually mark prices on each of the items sold, rather than permitting stores to use the much more efficient computerized check-out systems. Some may argue that this is a step BACKWARD for Burbank, symbolizing a return to the era of the "general store" or the "mom-and-pop" grocery so well-adored by such rib-pokers as Mr. Carson.

But before we become too hasty in our judgments, let us look at the advantages to be gained from this latest exercise of provincial social engineering. For instance, at a time when most people complain that their money just doesn't last as long as it used to, the requirement for individualized pricing offers a solution: grocery buyers will now get to stand in line much longer, meaning that they will get to hang onto their money for anywhere from an additional ten to twenty minutes. Parents who can no longer afford baby-sitters will find themselves being able to spend more "meaningful" time with their children, answering for them such penetrating questions as "why can't I have a pack of gum?" and "why did you let Billy get a candy-bar yesterday but I can't get anything today?" Customers will also have a greater opportunity to enjoy stimulating conversation with check-out clerks and other customers while they stand around waiting for another clerk to run around the store trying to find the price for a can of black olives (whose individually-priced sticker happened to fall off someplace). In this day of alienation and estrangement from one another, an ordinance like this can help bring people closer.

Most importantly, however, this ordinance will help to increase employment. By requiring every item to be individually marked with a price sticker, more clerks will have to be employed to do the marking, and more check-out clerks will have to be employed to handle the more tedious chore of reading and adding up — and you know how accurate clerks can be — each individual item. There are some critics of this measure who alleged that the councilmen voting for it were only returning a political favor to the AFL-CIO. The AFL-CIO has, indeed, long opposed computerized check-out systems (because they reduce the number of dues-paying employees working in grocery stores), and the union's Political Education Committee did endorse the councilmen who voted for the ordinance. But to suggest that the local politicians are playing politics is outrageous. After all, the Mayor of Burbank — who also voted for the ordinance — declared "we are looking out for the consumer's pocketbooks."

Oh, I know, there will continue to be critics of such ordinances who will point out that such legislation only adds to the already burgeoning costs of doing business, and that you and I and all other consumers will pay more and more for groceries in order to subsidize all these tremendous benefits. But I say "nuts" to all of this nonsense about efficiency and lower prices. With such brilliant city planners as Burbank is blessed — men who are able to call upon the social acumen available at the AFL-CIO charity — any continuing escalation in grocery prices will be watched carefully. As prices go up, this alliance of economic wizards will no doubt return with proposals for the establishment of price-controls, fortified by the accumulated barber-shop wisdom that "the free market system just doesn't work any more."

Who says Burbank isn't up to date?

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, March 30, the 89th day of 1981. There are 276 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On March 30, 1867, Russia agreed to sell Alaska to the United States for $7.2 million.

On this date:
In 1870, Texas was readmitted to the Union after the Civil War.

Today's highlight in history:
On April 1, 1939, the United States recognized the Franco government in Spain after the end of the Spanish Civil War.

On this date:
In 1789, the House of Representatives held its first full meeting when it convened in New York City.

In 1918, Britain's Royal Air Force was founded.
In 1933, the persecution of Jews began in Germany.

In 1945, American forces launched the invasion of Okinawa during World War II.

In 1964, Francois Duvalier had himself installed as President of Haiti for life.

Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon ordered Lt. William Calley released from the stockade pending the appeal of Calley's conviction in the My Lai massacre.

Five years ago: The second day of a truce in the Lebanese Civil War was marked by intermittent shelling and sniping in Beirut.

One year ago: Two members of Iran's ruling revolutionary council said the American hostages could be released to the government within two days.

Today's birthdays: Actor Marlon Brando is 57. Actress-singer Doris Day is 57. Actor-producer George Jessel is 83.

Thought for today: A man wrapped up in himself makes a very small bundle — Benjamin Franklin, U.S. statesman (1706-1790).

Why Soviets want South Africa

by Paul Harvey

South Africa -- not "southern Africa" -- the nation of South Africa -- is consistently mean-mouthed by some Americans who may not realize they are being used.

Then again -- some say. While not all of the world's restiveness can be blamed on Communist agitation, much of the concerted campaign to malign and diplomatically isolate South Africa derives from Soviet ambitions.

Here's why: What the Persian Gulf is to oil, South Africa is to minerals.

While the Soviet Union is, itself, adequately supplied with most essential minerals -- we are not.

The United States must rely on other nations for 14 of 32 minerals essential to national survival.

While Americans could somehow manage to make -- do without any Middle East oil, we would be helplessly impotent without platinum, palladium, manganese, cadmium, cobalt, chromium and other minerals and metals which we get from South Africa.

And our industrialized allies are similarly dependent -- militarily and economically -- on South Africa.

The region from Zimbabwe to Cape Town is the richest area of mineral reserves in the world.

South Africa, smaller than Alaska, has the world's largest known deposits of gold, platinum, chrome, manganese, vanadium and fluorspar -- plus vast quantities of antimony, diamonds, coal, copper, iron ore, lead, limestone, mica, nickel, phosphates, titanium, uranium, vermiculite, zinc and zirconium.

Without South Africa's chrome we could not build your shiny stainless steel appliances.

But also we could not build jet aircraft, cars, refineries, computers, power plants, modern food processing plants and hospital operating rooms.

One jet aircraft uses 3,600 pounds of chrome.

Without manganese there is no steel -- and without South Africa we have no manganese.

So Soviet penetration of the African continent is no happenstance -- and Soviet concentration on subverting and controlling South Africa is also aimed at controlling the sea lanes around the Cape. Then, with what Russia has plus what South Africa has -- and with what we would not have without South Africa and the Soviet Union as sources -- we would be impotent -- and they would encircle the world.

Bilingualism

By Anthony Harrigan
One of the most important acts of the new administration was to reverse the Carter policy on bilingual education.

The Carter policy mandated teaching foreign languages for non-English-speaking children in public schools.

If the Carter policy had been allowed to stand, a terrible disservice would have been done to several million children of immigrants.

These children need to know English if they are to get anywhere in life. They need English to understand the world around them, to obtain advanced education, and to earn a decent living. Command of language is the key to personal progress.

Suppose the bilingual education rule had been in effect a hundred years ago. The United States would be balkanized, with hundreds of language enclaves in urban and rural areas. We would have little Poles and Ukrainians scattered around America. The problem would be a thousand times worse than the language problem that faces Canada today, with its huge French-speaking enclave in Quebec.

True, we have some language problems in many inner city areas. To provide bilingual instruction is to perpetuate those problems. What's needed is improved instruction in English.

It's desirable for foreign languages to be part of the school curriculum, but as just that -- foreign languages. The country itself can't live with bilingualism and biculturalism. These are divisive in American society. Indeed the Reagan administration should go beyond the ruling by Secretary of Education Terrel H. Bell and remove the bilingual instructions that appear in many post offices and other public areas.

This bilingual issue pertains, in the main, to the Spanish-speaking population. Many Hispanics demand bilingualism. They want to retain a special link with their old culture. However, it would be unfortunate if their absorption into the American mainstream were delayed or prevented in the process. The melting pot must apply as much to Hispanics in 1981 as it did to Czechs, Germans, Italians, and Greeks in the 1880s.

In America, everyone must feel American. The country can't afford a split identity for a large body of its citizens. People coming from abroad can and will cherish their heritage, but they must forge a new national identity for themselves. If they are to be accepted as full Americans, they can't opt out of the language mainstream.

If local school authorities want to provide some bilingual instruction, that is their right. But federal policy should not mandate it or encourage it. We have one country with one language for all its people.

Berry's World

Population profiles made of districts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas senators and representatives now know where they stand before legislative districts are redrawn according to 1980 census figures.

"Profiles" that show exactly the 1980 population and racial makeup of each Senate and House district, down to the neighborhood area, have been prepared for each senator and representative.

Just what the boundaries will be for those 181 Senate and House districts in 1983 Legislature is the big question to be decided.

The same holds true for the 24 present congressional districts plus the three new districts awarded Texas for population growth the past decade.

Many consider redistricting the No. 1 task of the 67th Legislature because it will affect every legislative and congressional district, and indirectly every voter in the state.

If the legislative redistricting cannot be completed by the end of this regular session on June 1, the task will be turned over to a constitutionally-decreed redistricting board — the lieutenant governor, speaker, attorney general, land commissioner and comptroller. All are Democrats.

If the Legislature cannot agree on new congressional districts, the matter could be considered by a special legislative session called by Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican.

Hopes are high now that legislative redistricting can be completed by June 1 with each house writing its own bill.

There is plenty of speculation that a special session may be required for congressional redistricting because of the limited time left, plus growing pressure to turn legislators' attention to the 1982-83 budget. Clements has warned legislators to cut $2.5 billion from the planned $26 billion state spending bill to handle the cut in federal funds because of President Ronald Reagan's austerity program.

One public hearing has been held by the House redistricting committee, covering most of the non-metropolitan House districts in East Texas. Hearings for other rural areas in the rest of the state will be held this week.

Beginning about April 13 the committee will hold two weeks of hearings for the big city House districts including Harris, Bexar, Nueces, Dallas, Tarrant, Travis, Jefferson, and El Paso counties.

The House hearings will get non-legislative input from a 24-member advisory committee, named by Clayton, which has been invited to sit in on every hearing.

The House committee's aim is to report the final bills on House districts and congressional districts the week of May 4 with the House redistricting bill to be debated the week of May 11 and the congressional bill the week of May 18.

The Senate redistricting committee, which includes all 32 members of the Senate, has a different approach. Subcommittees will hold hearings throughout the state to gather public comment.

For the next three weeks the Senate plans to adjourn on Wednesday so senators will be able to attend the hearings outside Austin.

The first hearing will be Thursday for much of East Texas at the Smith County courthouse in Tyler. The next day, Friday, there will be a hearing at the Lubbock County courthouse for West Texas.

The next week there will be a hearing at Corpus Christi on April 9, Thursday, for South Texas and the Valley. On Friday, April 10, the hearing will be in San Antonio for the Bexar County metropolitan area.

The third week there will be hearings in the Dallas-Fort Worth and Harris County areas.

The results of the hearings will be reported to the committee of the whole and the Senate congressional redistricting bill will be debated the week of May 4-7.

The Senate redistricting bill is set for debate the week of May 18-22.

After each bill is approved by the Legislature, it goes to Secretary of State George Strake for checking on his computers and then to the U.S. Department of Justice for a similar check.

Lawmakers have been told that federal authorities will knock down any bill that does not have all House legislative districts within 5 percent of the ideal population standard of 94,856, and Senate districts of 457,222.

'Don't fence me in'

By BILL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The National Cowboy Hall of Fame, that monument to the free-spirited son of the saddle, is giving local tourism leaders financial indigestion as bad as ever came from a cattle drive chuck wagon.

There's talk that the huge museum wants to head 'em up, move 'em out and leave town in search of a warmer welcome.

Museum director Dean Krakel echoes the lament of the old-time Westerner in his major complaint — the cowboy complex is being fenced in. The "fencing," he maintains, is being done by what he sees as "cheap" establishments, including service stations, fast food outlets and liquor stores.

Krakel says the museum earned only $456,000 the last half of 1980, compared with $12 million for the comparable period of 1979.

It was 26 years ago that Oklahoma City outbid Dodge City, Kan., and Colorado Springs, Colo., for the shrine — officially the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center — that now sprawls in modernistic concrete and glass buildings atop Persimmon Hill on the northeast outskirts of the city.

The idea for a Cowboy Hall of Fame had been around for years. In the 1950s trustees were appointed by 17 western states to pick a site.

It was the site offered by Oklahoma City that sealed the decision. Glenn Faris, then executive secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, recalled he was driving down U.S. 66 "and passed that hill. I snapped my fingers and said, 'That's it.'"

The main building alone covers 80,000 square feet and houses western artwork valued at $33 million, including paintings and sculptures by Frederic Remington.

In a separate building stands the monumental "End of the Trail" statue, an exhausted Indian on his pony. A 33-foot-tall Buffalo Bill beckons visitors.

The lower level of the main building has full-sized models of an Indian encampment, gold prospectors, a sod house and a western street with a general store, newspaper office, doctor's office, blacksmith, gunsmith and saloon.

Famous rodeo horses are buried on the grounds to the rear. This is what Krakel has threatened to try to move if the city and state don't solve the problems he sees. And local leaders are concerned about other attractions might leave town if the museum were no longer there — such as the National Finals Rodeo and several major annual horse shows, events the Chamber of Commerce say pump at least $20 million a year into the economy.

Krakel, who has been with the museum from the beginning, first threatened a move in an emotional appearance before the city council in January. He was particularly upset over planned construction of the federally subsidized Chaparral Townhouses near the hall.

Today he outlines other demands that must be met to keep him in town, ranging from demolition of abandoned buildings near the center to creation of a state park so state rangers can patrol the museum grounds.

In an effort to keep the museum, the city council slapped a moratorium on any building in that area. In February, the council agreed to put up $200,000 to buy the 14 acres the townhouses are meant to occupy and another $200,000 to pay relocation expenses to the project's developer, Dr. Frank Cox.

In March, the council declared a six-block area to be a blighted area, including the land where the Chaparral Townhouses are to be built.

Local and state officials set up a task force to work on the demands. Paul Strassbaugh, executive vice president of the local Chamber of Commerce, said although the task force represents significant progress, "We aren't out of the woods yet."

Dan Hogan III, chamber president, said he hoped some solution would be in sight by April 24, the day the museum's directors meet here and the day before television and movie personalities arrive for the annual black tie western writers and actors awards banquet.

One trustee reported he had been contacted by "about 40 or 50 communities" that would like the museum.

A committee of the Colorado Senate has adopted a resolution asking that the museum be moved there; other bids have come from Fort Worth, Texas, and Cheyenne, Wyo.

Rumors that former cowboy star Gene Autry had offered land in California were scotched by Autry, a member of the museum's board and an honoree of its Hall of Fame.

Museum directors have said they would like to keep the center here. Krakel won't predict what the directors might do next month but says he hopes problems can be worked out so no move is necessary.

"This is one of the most historic sites in the West," he said. "Indians camped on Persimmon Hill. We found human skulls buried where the museum is. There is no legacy that compares with Oklahoma City's. This is not only Oklahoma City's front door, but America's. The West begins right here."

But, after a pause he added: "If we can't solve basic problems, we have no future here."

City Commissioner - Ward I
Saturday, April 4th

I seek election as your commissioner because I am concerned about our community. We are at a crossroads where we can either grow tremendously or shrink in proportion to other cities growth in West Texas. I feel with sound city staff management, public involvement in municipal management, and growth orientation, we can see our town grow as it should. Join me by voting April 4th for growth in Pampa, and involvement in this incredible community.

Pioneer journalist dies

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Services will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday for Dorrance D. Roderick, 80, longtime publisher of the El Paso Times, who died Saturday in an El Paso hospital after a long illness.

The rites will be at Pro Cathedral Church of St. Clement Episcopal Church. He will be interred in a private vault at Restlawn Memorial Mausoleum in El Paso.

He is survived by his wife, Olga Burnett Roderick of El Paso; his daughter, Frances Bagwell of El Paso; nine grandchildren; and 17 great-grandchildren.

Roderick's journalism career, which spanned more than 50 years, included founding several area radio stations and El Paso's first television station.

After a stint as a $30-a-week Associated Press reporter in Oklahoma, Roderick moved to Texas, where he published The Plains Journal, The Lubbock Evening Journal and The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal before coming to El Paso.

Roderick became president of the El Paso Herald and the Times in late 1928, just eight days before his 28th birthday.

Scipps-Howard, publishers of his competition, The Post, purchased The Herald in 1931 and consolidated the two newspapers.

The same year, Roderick filed application with the Federal Communications Commission for a radio station permit. Radio station KROD — the "ROD" standing for Roderick — went on the air in 1940 as a 250-watt station.

Later, he organized radio station KSIL in Silver City,

N.M., and KOSA in Odessa. Eventually, Roderick organized Newspaper Printing Corp. as a production agency for the El Paso Times and El Paso Herald-Post. He served as the president and general manager of the firm that still prints the two newspapers.

Despite ill health since 1975, Roderick continued to be a director of the Trans Texas Bancorporation Inc. and El Paso National Bank.

Mobile's blacks will watch the prosecution in hanging death

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Black leaders who maintain the slaying was "a lynching" say they will carefully follow developments in the prosecution of three white men charged in the death of a black youth found hanging from a tree.

The FBI is investigating the possibility of civil rights violations.

Michael Anthony Donald, whose death stunned this port city, was buried Saturday after more than 2,000 mourners were admitted to leave vengeance to God.

"We will keep ourselves in check because we love people," said the Rev. Dr. Leon Taylor during the eulogy.

"Yes, we are hurt," he said, "but we will do no wrong. One wrong has already been done, and another wrong will not make a right."

"God said, 'Vengeance is mine.'"

Donald, a 19-year-old student and part-time newspaper employee, was found March 21 beaten and strangled to death, his body strung up in a tree, authorities said.

Dr. Robert Gilliard, director of Mobile's branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, maintained the slaying was "a lynching" and said blacks were watching developments in the case with "cautious optimism," now that three men face arraignment Tuesday on murder charges.

Investigators have said there is no evidence that the slaying was racially motivated.

Donald's mother, Heulah Donald, sobbed softly as she led the funeral procession of some 300 family members and relatives into Revelation Missionary Baptist Church.

The silver casket bearing Donald's body was buried in Whispering Pine Cemetery in Whistler, a community north of Mobile.

Police Commissioner Robert Doyle said police patrols were increased for the funeral. There were no incidents.

The three men arrested in the slaying were identified as Ralph Hayes, 23, and brothers Jimmy Edgar, 22, and Johnny Edgar, 26.

Unable to post individual bonds of $250,000, the three remained in jail.

Dear Abby

Past tests 'true love'

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old girl who needs your help. In my teens I did a lot of drugs and drank alcohol because I was never at peace with myself unless I was sleeping or stoned.

I'm straight now and have accepted Jesus as my personal savior. I still live with my parents, but I feel like a prisoner because I'm not allowed to make my own decisions.

Three months ago I met a wonderful Christian man who has also had his problems with drugs and alcohol. (I'll call him Tom.) Tom is on parole now. We are very much in love and plan to marry. He says he will not have sex with me until after we are married. He is kind and good and treats me with respect. Abby, this love is true. I know we can make it together.

My parents have never met Tom. I'm afraid to introduce him because I know they won't approve of him. Tom wants to meet them, but I've been putting it off because I'm afraid they will make him feel uncomfortable and hurt his feelings. I plan to marry Tom with or without my parents' approval. Tom's father is the only one who knows about our plans.

Should I risk causing a family fight by introducing Tom and telling my parents of our plans? Or should I go ahead and marry him and prove afterward that we can make it together?

TORMENTED

DEAR TORMENTED: Introduce Tom to your parents. (If you don't, he will think you are ashamed of him.)

Feeling "tormented" as you do, please confide in your clergyman and let him counsel you. It would be a mistake to marry Tom while so many doubts and fears exist. If your love is "true," marriage can wait until you are absolutely sure. Please heed this advice and write again soon. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I am expecting a baby in about three months and have been very careful not to smoke, drink or even consume caffeine during my pregnancy. I hope to continue to give our baby the most healthful environment possible after he (or she) is born.

The problem is my mother-in-law. She is a heavy smoker, and I would prefer that she not subject our baby to her secondhand smoke. Studies have confirmed the theory that babies who have been exposed to secondhand smoke have a higher incidence of respiratory illness.

My mother-in-law smokes one cigarette after another and she's anything but gracious when she's told her smoke is bothersome or irritating.

After our baby comes, my husband and I intend to ask her to please step outside if she wants to smoke. But what if it's raining or dark outside?

MRS. S., PARKDALE, ORE.

DEAR MRS. S.: If it's raining, give her an umbrella. And if it's dark, give her a flashlight.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the 17-year-old sitter who complained that her $1 per hour baby-sitting wage was the same as her mother made when she was a girl.

I'm 33, and 17 years ago I sat for 25¢ an hour and was glad to get the job. One family had five children from 9 years old to a year. I changed diapers, fed them all dinner, bathed them and put them to bed, all for the same 25¢ an hour. It was part of my job.

I now have a 6-year-old son for whom I need sitters. I pay $1.50 an hour, and when the sitter comes my son has already had his dinner and bath and is ready for bed.

I've had some sitters who have eaten up a week's supply of groceries — with some help from their friends who have visited without my consent. Others have gone through my drawers, used my cosmetics, tried on my clothes, gabbed for hours on my phone, entertained their boyfriends (on my bed), smoked pot and scratched my albums.

I once had a sitter ask me not to call her again because I didn't have a color television!

HAD IT WITH SITTERS

Nun is housesitter

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — It's 3:45 a.m. The woman hired by the owners to look after their home while they're on vacation is alone in the house. Suddenly, the burglar alarm sounds and she reaches for the phone.

It's all part of being a "house-sitter" for Sister Mary Clare Peterson, who was later told by police responding to her call that the burglar alarm was faulty.

She got her first house-sitting job five years ago. She accepts whatever the owners want to offer her.

Sister Clare says she does it as a kindness for people in the neighborhood surrounding the Shrine of St. Therese Church, to which she is assigned.

Proper nutrition important

"Pep up your prime time — exercise, eat right, enjoy!" is the theme that dietitians are promoting during March for the ninth annual celebration of National Nutrition Month.

"A sound diet and moderate exercise are a winning combination," according to Mrs. Wilma Hayter, registered dietitian and head of dietary services at Highland General Hospital. "To get the most out of life — indeed, to stretch out the prime time of life — requires both exercise and a good diet. Being fit has taken on a new meaning for increasing numbers of us Americans these days."

Mrs. Hayter said that good nutrition begins with a minimum number of servings of the essentials, including:

—Two servings daily of milk or an equivalent amount of other milk products.

—Two servings daily of meat or an alternate, such as dried beans and peas, cheese, eggs, poultry or fish.

—Fruits and vegetables. One should be a deep green or yellow, and the other should be high in Vitamin C. Four servings per day.

—Four servings daily of a whole grain or enriched bread or cereal.

"Then add more of these foods and fats and sugars to meet your energy quota for meals that satisfy," she said.

National Nutrition Month is sponsored by the American Dietetic Association and its local affiliate, the Panhandle Dietetic Association.

Nominees sought for awards

CANYON — Nominations for the Sixth Annual Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards will be accepted through Friday, April 3, by the West Texas State University Office of Programs for Women.

The awards will be presented to women selected from nominees in the top 32 counties of the Texas Panhandle during a luncheon Saturday, April 25, in the WTSU East Dining Hall.

Nomination forms have been sent to 1,500 clubs, organizations and educational institutions in the Panhandle.

Jane Kerr, director of the WTSU Office of Programs for Women, said nominations have been received from Amarillo, Canyon, Pampa, Muleshoe, Borger, Plainview, Hereford, Wheeler, Stratford, Dalhart, Canadian, Tulia, Clarendon and Panhandle.

"All for the Family" is the theme of the awards luncheon. Chosen as guest speaker is Dr. Emily Taylor, director of the Office of Women in Higher Education with the American Council on Education in Washington, D.C.

The Texas Panhandle Distinguished Service Awards have been awarded to 50 women since 1976, honoring them for accomplishments in the fields of education, medicine, business, civic service and other professional areas.

Nominees must be 18 years of age or older and reside in one of the 32 counties of the Texas Panhandle, but do not have to be graduates or former students of WTSU.

Nominations may be sent to the WTSU Office of Programs for Women, Box 495, WT Station, Canyon, Texas 79016.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by

Sherry Conklin
Diet Center
412 W. Kingsmill
Hughes Bldg.

Variety is very important to good nutrition. Many scientists believe we should eat diverse foods to ensure an adequate supply of all the nutrients, known and unknown. A supermarket may stock 10,000 items, but the bulk of the calories they furnish is from four crops: wheat, corn, soybeans and sugar cane. These four crops plus assorted chemical additives can be converted into frozen pizzas, fast food "shakes," simulated bacon and sausage, and artificial cheese.

Diet-Center believes the quality of our health and well-being depends greatly on the quality of our nourishment. Is it possible the more technically sophisticated our diet becomes, the greater the risk of our malnutrition?

Cattle producers want more Japanese sales

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan for years has been the top foreign market for U.S. farmers, but sales have mainly involved grain, soybeans, cotton and other crop products.

Some headway has been made lately in selling U.S. meat, particularly beef, in the Japanese market, and American cattle producers and others want to push those products even harder.

But, compared with American meat-eaters, the Japanese have a lot of sukiyaki to consume before they rank very high on the hog.

Overall, Japan imported $5.78 billion worth of U.S. farm commodities in the year that ended last Sept. 30, including about $2.54 billion worth of grains, $1.12 billion worth of oilseeds and $727 million worth of animal products.

The U.S. Meat Export Federation, which has its headquarters in Denver, keeps a close watch on happenings in the Japanese market.

Recently, Dr. L. B. Tension, director of the federation's Asian operations, reported on a survey by Tokyo's Japan Housewives Association. It is, he said, "an influential consumer organization."

The survey, including interviews with 500 housewives in Tokyo and its suburbs, looked into the production, distribution and consumption of beef in Japan. Its findings, as reported in the federation's newsletter, included:

— Nearly two-thirds said pork was the meat consumed most often by their families, followed by chicken and beef. However, 88 percent said they would prefer beef if it were less expensive.

— Meat consumption averaged 32-35 ounces per month for each household and 11-14 ounces per month for each person. That would equal 8-11 pounds per person for an entire year.

— As to shopping habits, 84 percent of the housewives said they bought only enough meat for one meal on each shopping trip. But 13.4 percent expressed interest in making larger bulk purchases.

The survey showed that the Japanese consumer's main complaint about meat was its high retail price.

According to the Agriculture Department, the price of beef in Tokyo is the highest among a dozen world capitals examined periodically by U.S. agricultural attaches stationed abroad.

Last November, the most recent month analyzed, boneless sirloin steak sold at a retail price of $17.27 a pound in Tokyo, compared with $3.95 a pound in Washington, D.C.

The Washington price, incidentally, was not the lowest among the capitals surveyed. In Brasilia, the capital of Brazil, sirloin sold for $1.29 a pound, the lowest price on the list.

Sirloin also was slightly cheaper than the Washington price in Buenos Aires, $3.55 a pound; Canberra, $3.50; Madrid, $3.92; and Ottawa, $3.59.

It was higher in Brussels, $5.70; Copenhagen, $6.34; London, $6.20; Paris, $4.85; Rome, $5.24; and The Hague, $5.64.

Department officials always caution in the reports that price comparisons are not exact because of differences in quality, packaging and seasonal variations in supply.

Another consideration is that in the United States and some other countries beef is the leading meat item among consumers. In many others, however, agricultural and dietary patterns are built around fish, poultry, pork, rice and other foods.

The most recent figures for U.S. meat consumption in 1980 illustrate the importance of beef and pork to American consumers.

Following three consecutive years of decline, per capita consumption of red meat — not counting poultry or fish — rose in 1980 to a preliminary average of 150.3 pounds, computed on the basis of retail weight.

That was up from 147.6 pounds in 1979. After 1976, when the per capita average was 155.4 pounds, it dropped to 153.7 pounds in 1977 and to 149.7 pounds in 1978.

Last year, according to the per capita figures, Americans ate an average of 78.2 pounds of beef, 1.4 pounds of veal, 69.1 pounds of pork and 1.6 pounds of lamb and mutton.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Council of America has expanded its operations here.

Allen Paul, president of the non-profit group, announced the appointment of Brian B. King as director of publications and media relations, a new position.

The council is financed by farmers and agribusiness firms.

Previously, King, 34, was a reporter for the Associated Press in the AP's Washington bureau.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders in the U.S. sheep industry plan to meet here April 7-8 to talk over programs with administration officials and key members of Congress.

Officers of the National Wool Growers Association said they want to discuss the 1981 farm bill that Congress is now putting together, including an extension of the National Wool Act.

Further, the group said it is interested in legislation that would limit the imports of lamb meat from New Zealand and Australia.

Grower harnesses rabbit heat

GRANTS PASS, Ore. (AP) — The fuel that heats Bill Schultz's business is cheap and plentiful, efficient and innovative, clean if a bit smelly. What more can you ask of a system that runs on carrots?

Schultz uses bunny power to heat his commercial greenhouses in a novel experiment to turn rabbits into radiators by converting their 103-degree body temperature into 60-degree room temperature.

Rabbits' body heat is dissipated through blood vessels in their long ears, which act as radiators, a fact that researchers have been trying to turn to their advantage for years.

Schultz has 400-500 caged rabbits — more are always arriving — that produce about 190,000 British thermal units of heat a day for his southern Oregon Greenhouses. That's about half of what commercial gas-fired heaters produce, he said. A Btu is a measurement of the heat needed to raise the temperature of a pound of water one degree.

Schultz figures the rabbits have cut his heating bill by as much as 25 percent and sees the potential for greater savings with more rabbits and some additional insulation.

With his present herd, Schultz says he is able to heat a quarter of his 30,000-foot greenhouse, or four rooms, to a temperature of about 58 degrees when it is freezing outside.

Business, you might say, is hopping. But Schultz has since branched out into another commercial venture involving his rabbits.

He has formed Pacific Rabbitry to provide registered stock for breeders and fryers for local stores with a growing demand for low-cholesterol rabbit meat. There is a bit of market resistance in the latter venture, however.

"People in America are still afraid of eating the Easter Bunny," Schultz laments.

Schultz, who majored in ornamental horticulture in college, says he became interested in the possibilities of rabbit heating after graduation.

He went to Denver, where the federal government had proposed building a rabbit-packing house to help stimulate rabbit production in the area. But funding for the 1969 project expired, dashing plans for the commercial packing plant.

Schultz moved here five years ago and set up his greenhouse business, still intrigued by the idea of using animals to heat rooms.

With Oregon State University providing some expertise, he began his trial rabbit venture a year ago.

It has not been without some hare-raising failures.

The high ammonia content of the animals' urine burns the leaves of the azaleas in the greenhouse. Schultz found, and house plants require temperatures of 70 degrees or higher.

So Schultz turned to garden vegetables and other plants that require temperatures of only 48-50 degrees.

Cropduster hurt in crash

BLACKWELL, Okla. (AP) — A crop-duster pilot from Texas was injured near here Sunday evening when his single-engine plane hit a power line and crashed, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol reported.

The Cessna was being flown to spray fields by pilot Mitchell Autry, 29, of Muleshoe, Texas, who was taken to a Tulsa hospital by helicopter after being treated at a local hospital for burns and shock, patrolmen said. He was reported to be in serious condition.

Troopers said Autry's plane, owned by the Long Horn Spraying Co. of Muleshoe, hit three power lines and caught fire. They said it then clipped three telephone poles and flipped over before crashing in a field. The accident occurred about 6:40 p.m. a half-mile north of Blackwell in Kay County, troopers said.

People in America are still afraid of eating the Easter Bunny," Schultz laments.

Schultz, who majored in ornamental horticulture in college, says he became interested in the possibilities of rabbit heating after graduation.

He went to Denver, where the federal government had proposed building a rabbit-packing house to help stimulate rabbit production in the area. But funding for the 1969 project expired, dashing plans for the commercial packing plant.

Schultz moved here five years ago and set up his greenhouse business, still intrigued by the idea of using animals to heat rooms.

With Oregon State University providing some expertise, he began his trial rabbit venture a year ago.

Dealings you will have this coming year with contacts who have clout should prove very successful. You've lined up some powerful allies. Over the coming months they'll demonstrate their worth.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Involvements with friends today should turn out very well for all concerned. Each of you will be protective and supportive of the other. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have the capability today to overcome difficult obstacles if you are properly motivated. Think of what winning means and fire your best shot.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Fun types of competitive involvements should be your cup of tea today. Rather than succumbing to inactivity, get out the bowling bowl or tennis racket.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If there is someone who is overdue on what he or she owes you, this is a good day to send them a gentle reminder. Your chances for recovery are good.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There is nothing wishywashy about the way you'll deal with others today. Your position will be clearly defined, yet diplomatically presented.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have an opportunity again today to do business with someone who once worked out something profitable for you. A repeat performance is likely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're very protective today of persons for whom you care. This is right and proper. In fact, you may have to go to bat for a loved one who needs your help.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're a good starter today, but a stronger finisher, especially if you find yourself in a position to resolve something which has been causing you headaches.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Continue to press with all your efforts in order to make something you're hoping for a reality. You can do it if you're willing to pay the price.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you are negotiating a financial matter today, don't bargain from weakness. Assess the matter carefully and you'll see you're in a stronger position.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Egotistical people may be difficult for others to handle, but not for you today. You'll know how to make them think your ideas are theirs.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is one of those days where your past good deeds should come home to roost. Persons whom you've helped are now looking to make your lot in life easier.

Raging or ordinary?

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One winner in tonight's Academy Award extravaganza doesn't have to wait for the envelope. That's Henry Fonda.

After a 46-year film career as distinguished as any in Hollywood history, Fonda will receive his first Oscar — in recognition of his brilliant accomplishments and enduring contributions to the art of motion pictures.

(AP Newsfeatures Illustration)

Henry Fonda has long been one of the arguments for the unfairness of the awards structure. Astonishingly, he has been nominated for an acting Oscar only once — for "The Grapes of Wrath" in 1940. Not for "Young Mr. Lincoln," "The Ox-Bow Incident," "My Darling Clementine," "Mister Roberts," "Twelve Angry Men" or other unforgettable performances.

"Hank never played the Hollywood game at a time when it was important in Academy voting," a sympathetic friend explains. "The establishment considered him a stage actor who did films."

Finally, at the age of 75, Fonda will receive the Academy's homage. The board of governors has cured another notable lapse by the convenient device known as the Honorary Award.

Foes of the Academy awards often cite other notorious omissions. Greta Garbo never won an Oscar, though nominated three times. She finally got an honorary statuette in 1954.

Cary Grant was nominated in 1941 and 1944 but lost both times. Honorary award, 1969.

Charles Chaplin never collected an Oscar for his immortal performances. His awards were honorary. Orson Welles' "Citizen Kane" won a single Oscar in 1941. Twenty-nine years later, Welles received the honorary award.

Since comedy was largely overlooked by the Academy awards, honorary Oscars went to Bob Hope, 1940, 1944, 1952; Harold Lloyd, 1951; Danny Kaye, 1954; Stan Laurel, 1960; Groucho Marx, 1973.

Musicals were largely ignored by the Academy. Hence honorary Oscars: Fred Astaire, 1946; Gene Kelly, 1951; Maurice Chevalier, 1958.

The board of governors will never run out of candidates for honorary awards. Here are some other notable non-winners of Oscars:

How Oscar races look

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Who will win the Oscars tonight? Here's how the major races look to AP correspondent Bob Thomas (favorites in capitals):

Best picture — "Coal Miner's Daughter," "The Elephant Man," "ORDINARY PEOPLE," "Raging Bull," "Tess."
Best actor — ROBERT DE NIRO, "Raging Bull"; Robert Duvall, "The Great Santini"; John Hurt, "The Elephant Man"; Jack Lemmon, "Tribute"; Peter O'Toole, "The Stunt Man."

Best actress — Ellen Burstyn, "Resurrection"; Goldie Hawn, "Private Benjamin"; Mary Tyler Moore, "Ordinary People"; Gena Rowlands, "Gloria"; Sissy Spacek, "Coal Miner's Daughter."

Best supporting actor — Judd Hirsch, "Ordinary People"; TIMOTHY HUTTON, "Ordinary People"; Michael O'Keefe, "The Great Santini"; Joe Pesci, "Raging Bull"; Jason Robards, "Melvin and Howard."

Best supporting actress — Eileen Brennan, "Private Benjamin"; Eva Le Gallienne, "Resurrection"; Cathy Moriarty, "Raging Bull"; Diana Scarwid, "Inside Moves"; MARY STEENBURGEN, "Melvin and Howard."

Best director — David Lynch, "The Elephant Man"; ROBERT REDFORD, "Ordinary People"; Martin Scorsese, "Raging Bull"; Richard Rush, "The Stunt Man"; Roman Polanski, "Tess."

Bleak prairies are tapped for wine

The Odessa American

FORT STOCKTON, Texas (AP) — The University of Texas, already wealthy from more than 2 million acres of oil-rich West Texas endowment land, is hoping the same land will yield another precious liquid in the future — wine.

Workers planted 170 acres of grapes in the desert off Interstate 10 between here and Bakersfield last month, establishing the largest infant vineyard in the state. School officials envision a fortune from the harvest for the university system eventually.

"It is by far the largest single planting that ever took place in Texas," said Billy Carr, university lands surface rights manager. "I've been in lots of projects, but this is by far the most exciting because of the potential."

Most federal regulatory agencies came in 70s

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Most people who lived through the decade of the 1930s remember above all the lost jobs and the broken spirits, but to others, those days of the Great Depression are recalled for another reason.

To them, the '30s were and always will be the days of the New Deal, when President Franklin Roosevelt radically changed the relationship of business and government by thrusting the latter into the marketplace.

The shock hasn't worn off. Old-timers still cuss or praise the former president, and history books still refer to the '30s as THE decade of great social and economic legislation. But a change is coming.

It will come, first of all, because old-timers and their emotions are fading. More than half the population, you may know, was born since the Great Depression. More significantly, another decade claims the title.

It is the decade of the 1970s, perhaps "the most interventionist decade in our nation's history," according to a study just released by Washington University's Center for the Study of American Business.

In just that one decade, the number of regulatory agencies grew to 56 from 36 in the previous decade and 24 in the 1930s. Major regulatory legislation in the '70s totaled about 130, compared with 42 in the '30s.

Numerically speaking, there is no real contest between the '70s and the '30s; the evidence is all on the side of the latter. It can be argued, however, that for shock effect, the '30s still stand out, before then, government's role was much more narrowly defined than it is today.

After the 1930s, in fact, the pace of regulatory activity fell sharply, before increasing again in the 1950s. The pace of social and economic regulation quickened in the '60s, and then surged in the '70s.

Now, writes Kenneth Chilton, associate director of the St. Louis institution, and Ronald Penoyer, a research analyst, budget and staffing estimates for fiscal year 1981 (ends Oct. 31) and 1982 provide some indications that the rush to regulate is losing momentum.

And perhaps surprisingly to some who recall the center was begun by Murray Weidenbaum, a regulatory critic who now heads President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, President Carter gets at least a nod for having tried, if belatedly, to curtail the growth of regulation.

In his fiscal 1981 budget, his final budget, they point out that the cost of operating the 56 major regulatory agencies is estimated at more than $7.2 billion (since revised to $7.1 billion by Reagan).

Though the Carter budget represents a 10 percent increase over fiscal 1980 expenditures, the rise is largely offset by the projected rate of inflation. "In other words, zero 'real' growth," the authors state.

Elect BUNNY NICHOLS Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees - Place 3

- My criteria (priorities) on any issue will be:
1. Will it benefit our children?
  2. Is there a genuine need and will it serve the largest number of children?
  3. Is it a wise expenditure of the taxpayers dollar?

Political ad paid for by Bunny Nichols, 1616 Fr St, Pampa, Texas, 79066.

At present the planting site is little more than a sea of thin wooden stakes driven into the bleak prairies of the Permian Basin. But planters believe those stakes may mark the beginning of a giant new industry in West Texas.

"We've never seen a hotter world market than the one for wine," Carr said.

Experimental university vineyards on school-owned acreage in Pecos, Culberson and Reeves counties have already grown grapes that are hardy, cold resistant and not glutinous for water. Carr says they are well suited to the sunny, dry climate here.

They also yield high profits — if you can stand the initial investment. Gene Drennan, vineyard project director, said it takes $4,500 to $6,000 per acre to get started — "assuming you own the land and equipment and are already in the farming business."

But — once the vines are mature, they can bring $750 to $1,000 per acre per year, and Drennan said a healthy grapevine can produce grapes for up to 30 years.

He began planting the vineyard last month, hiring laborers in Fort Stockton for such chores besides planting as inspecting water pipes for leaks and distributing hoses for a low-pressure drip irrigation system.

A fence-building crew drove 80,000 stakes into the ground and dug holes for the baby plants. Land clearing and well-digging began in the area last year.

The 170 acres is just a start, said scientific advisor for the project Charles McKinney of Odessa. If it works here — and researchers will know after a couple of years — they plan to turn 40,000 to 60,000 acres of school-owned land into vineyards.

"One thousand acres yield a million gallons of wine. The statewide consumption for wine last year was 30 million gallons. So if we went ahead and planted the 60,000 acres, you'd have twice as much wine as the state consumes," said McKinney.

The trick, Carr said, is to get wineries to locate on school lands next to the vineyards, buy the locally grown grapes and send the wine to national and world markets.

"There are a lot of people who are interested," he said.

If the project fulfills the dreams of its planners, years from now wine connoisseurs in New York or Paris might sit down in a gourmet restaurant and demand "Pecos, vintage 1985."

for

WALTER SHED

MAYOR

PAMPA CITY CHARTER ARTICLE IV

SECTION I: of the City Charter of Pampa, requires that any group of citizens, proposing an ordinance, obtain a petition to be signed by 25% of the qualified voters, as determined by the number voting at the last regular municipal election, (200 signatures in the case of the water increase for apartment dwellers) before any such ordinance or resolutions may be considered by the commissioners for adoption.

This requirement was ignored by the present City Commission. The omission, of this requirement of the City Charter, by the present City Commissioners, cost the apartment dweller of Pampa an extra $60,000.00 per year for water.

If I am elected Mayor of Pampa, this injustice will be corrected if it is within my power to do so.

There are other Charter violations which will also be corrected.

There are things that the city could do, if they would, to stop inflation and let you keep more of the money you earn, keep out outside controls, reduce interest rates, and bring new life to the economy of Pampa.

Southwest Conference has new button bustin' topic - swimming

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—The Southwest Conference has long been able to brag about the national prowess of its football and baseball teams. Now, there's another sport where some button bustin' is in order — swimming.

Texas brought the SWC its first title Saturday night in the 58th annual NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships and Southern Methodist made its highest finish ever — fourth. SMU Coach George McMillon was just as excited as Texas Coach Eddie Reese over the progress the SWC has made in the sport.

"It's a great thing for the Southwest Conference," said McMillon, who tutors sophomore breaststroke star Steve Lundquist. "A couple of years ago the West Coast seemed to dominate. Then it shifted to the Southeast and now we think it's starting to shift to the SWC."

Texas compiled 259 points in the three-day meet which had sellout crowds of 2,500 every night jammed into Texas Swimming Center. UCLA was second with 189 points followed by Florida with 180. SMU with 161. Auburn 146 and defending champion California at 140. McMillon said "We (the SWC coaches) are excited for Texas. Having a team like Texas in our league helped us become better. Houston and Arkansas are starting to do a real good job. We think this kind of showing by the SWC will become a regular thing in the years ahead."

Arkansas finished 12th and Houston was 17th. Texas could be tough again next year although the Longhorns will lose seniors Scott Spann and Kris Kirchner. Spann set an American record in the 100 yards butterfly and both were members of Texas record-smashing 400 medley relay team.

"It will be tough to replace swimmers like Spann and Kirchner because you can't replace the leadership and other things they provide," said Reese. "We can replace the potential points, but not the other things."

Reese was emotionally numb from the strain of his team trying to produce before a home pool crowd. Texas was the heavy favorite although a home standing team hadn't won since Indiana pulled off the trick in 1969.

Georgia Bulldogs take NWIT win

AMARILLO, Texas (AP)—Saturday night and 48-31 with Georgia got a pair of clutch free throws from freshman forward Deborah Mitchell with just over a minute left in overtime and hung on to claim a 75-73 win over Arizona State in the finals of the 13th Annual National Women's Invitational basketball tournament.

The Bulldogs, who ended at 27-10, trailed 40-29 at halftime Saturday night and 48-31 with 15:41 remaining in regulation. Georgia sent the game into overtime at 66-66 when Cynthia Collins hit on a jumper with 50 seconds left. Arizona State, 21-11, had a chance to send the game into a second overtime, but Kym Hampton missed a 10-foot bank shot at the buzzer. Collins led Georgia scorers with 21 points, while Cassandra Lander scored 31 for the Sun Devils and was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Earlier, freshman center Lorri Bauman scored 27 points to lead Drake to an 86-74 victory over California-Berkeley Saturday for third place.

Bauman was helped by teammates Connie Newlin with 15 and Laura Leonard with 14 as the Bulldogs led from the opening tip.

Tennessee Tech trailed by four but cut it to two with a second left and Markey Robyn was fouled in the process. She missed the free throw intentionally, and teammate Barbara Dam grabbed the rebound but missed her desperation shot at the buzzer.

Indiana, North Carolina go into battle tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Defense, rebounding, patience on offense and above all teamwork — that's the gospel according to Bobby Knight and Dean Smith and that's the kind of basketball to be played tonight when Indiana takes on North Carolina for the NCAA championship.

Although Knight was the focus of controversy following a run-in with a Louisiana State fan at a hotel Saturday night, that sideshow didn't diminish the appeal of tonight's glittering final.

The records may be tarnished — ninth-ranked Indiana is 25-9 and sixth-rated North Carolina is 29-7 — but everything else about the title game is pure gold.

Both schools have great basketball traditions. Both coaches, Knight of Indiana and Smith of North Carolina, are among the acknowledged leaders of their profession. Both teams have brilliant individual athletes, but both utilize them within the team concept — just the way the basketball purist would want it.

And both are playing at the top of their games, to the point where both coaches say you can ignore the result of their most recent meeting, a 65-56 North Carolina triumph in December.

"That game is so long ago, you're probably talking about two different teams," said Knight. "In each case, we're a far better team today."

"We're both different clubs since the first game," agreed Smith, who is in the Final Four for the sixth time but has never won the championship. "They are a much better team. For one thing, they've settled on one lineup, which they didn't have then. And we've made progress since then, too."

"Hey, when you get this far, both teams should be good." Both teams are.

Indiana, which won the title here in 1976, has won 18 of its last 22 games and has overwhelmed its four NCAA tourney opponents by an average of 25 points. That includes a 67-49 decision over LSU in Saturday's semifinal. North Carolina, meanwhile, has taken 11 of its last 12 starts, including a 78-65 semifinal victory over Virginia.

And then there are the coaches.

Knight is the martinet, the disciplinarian who couldn't resist a verbal taunt Saturday night that prompted an LSU fan to respond with insults — which Knight answered by shoving the man against a wall. You may not like his manner, but there is no denying his coaching genius. Few teams take the court better prepared, and few coaches have players as dedicated to them as Knight does.

"If something gets to him, he lets people know about it," said Randy Wittman, Indiana's 6-foot-6 swingman who may draw the defensive assignment against North Carolina star Al Wood. "He doesn't allow the same mistakes to happen over and over. I don't think we have too much fear of his anger, because you can't play basketball out of fear and he's never chewed out anyone who didn't deserve it."

"It's a respect for his knowledge of the game." Smith may not have Knight's tough reputation, but there's no question about who is the key figure in the North Carolina program. The players fill roles or else they don't play, and the roles are designed by Smith, who orchestrates the Tar Heels through a variety of offensive and defensive patterns.

There's nothing subtle about Indiana's defense. "You know what they're going to do," said Wood, the 6-6 senior whose 39 points against Virginia set a record for an NCAA semifinal and left him just three points short of 2,000 for his career. "They come out in straight man-to-man — pressure, pressure, pressure."

Knight would have it no other way.

"Two of my all-time favorite people are (ex-coaches) Henry Iba and Pete Newell," said Knight. "If I was to play a zone they would disown me. So I can't do it. I have to keep at least two friends."

"There are a lot of ways to skin a squirrel," he added. "But in our approach to the game we would rather stick to one defense and shape it and mold it till we get it right."

The Hoosiers have allowed just 58.8 points per game, so they've been getting it right rather often. But the matchups against North Carolina could force Knight to do some more shaping and molding.

Ted Kitchel, who is 6-8, guarded Wood in the regular-season game and Wood scored 18 points. Knight wouldn't divulge whether Kitchel would get the nod again.

"I think he'd prefer to have Wittman on Wood, but that would leave Kitchel on Pepper," speculated Smith, referring to Mike Pepper, a 6-3 North Carolina guard. "I don't think he would want that. They may elect not to play one or two people closely so they can concentrate on others. In a sense that's a zone, like a triangle-and-two."

There's no point in trying to guess what defense North Carolina will use. Over the course of the 40 minutes, Smith uses them all.

"Our main difference in philosophy is on defense," Smith said when asked to compare his approach to the game to Knight's. "I think it's important to do different things because it makes the other team prepare for so much more."

"We do play the man-to-man best, but we'll also throw out the junk — our scramble defense, our point defense. We'll use them all."

Is Knight worried? Silly question.

"We spend far more time on our team than on the other team," he said. "It's a game of identifying your strengths and weaknesses and then playing to your strengths and avoiding your weaknesses. Only then do we try to suit this to whatever team we're playing."

"North Carolina does present a different set of problems, however," he conceded. "They go from one defense to another better than any team in the country, and play them all well."

Is there a key factor to watch for tonight?

"I don't think so," said Knight. "Victory will go to the team that makes fewer mistakes."

"The No. 1 key is rebounding and they are a very physical team," he said. "Their rebounding was devastating against LSU. Also, we have to have patience to play for the good shots."

The battle up front will be waged by 6-10 Landon Turner and 6-9 Ray Tolbert for Indiana against 6-9 Sam Perkins and 6-9 James Worthy for North Carolina.

Another player to watch is All-American point guard Isiah Thomas of Indiana, who was hampered by foul trouble in the semifinals but is capable of dominating the floor with his quickness and court sense. Jim Thomas, no relation to Isiah, did a brilliant job of running the team against LSU and gives Indiana backcourt depth.

North Carolina's guards are Pepper and playmaker Jimmy Black, two players who get much less publicity than the Tar Heels' frontcourtmen but who play key roles in Smith's scheme of things.

The only injury question involves Wood, who has been playing all season with a shoulder that sometimes pops out of place. It happened late in the semifinal win over Virginia.

"There's a lot of pain, but it's not a lasting thing. It pops out and pops back in," said Wood. "I iced it Saturday night and it shouldn't bother me Monday."

Before the championship is decided, LSU, 31-4, will meet Virginia, 28-4, in the consolation game. But the big attraction will come some three hours later, at 8:15 p.m., EST, when Indiana and North Carolina tip off for the title.

Whoever wins will earn a spot in the NCAA record book. If it's North Carolina, the Tar Heels would tie the 1977 Marquette Warriors for the NCAA champion with the most losses, seven. If it's Indiana, Marquette would be supplanted by the Hoosiers.

Knight no newcomer to run-ins with angry fans

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Indiana Coach Bobby Knight created an international incident at the 1979 Pan American Games in Puerto Rico when he had a run-in with a policeman.

He once threatened to go after the next Michigan State fan who shouted an obscenity at him.

Another time, he grabbed a microphone on his home court in Bloomington, Ind., and said he would take his team off the court if the fans would not stop chanting obscenities.

Now, it's a shoving incident over an obscenity that has Knight in the limelight again for his antics, not his coaching, during the NCAA basketball Final Four round in this City of Brotherly Love.

Knight says he doesn't have to take verbal abuse in public when it includes obscenities. He has no apologies for the shoving incident in a New Jersey motel Saturday night, and, in fact, says he would do the same thing again under similar circumstances.

Knight's Hoosiers rolled into tonight's NCAA championship game with an easy 18-point victory over the Louisiana State University Tigers Saturday. His team meets North Carolina for the title.

Knight said his team, staying in the same motel as about 200 LSU fans, had been taunted by the fans prior to Saturday's game with chants of "Tiger Bait, Tiger Bait, here comes Tiger Bait."

So, when a Baton Rouge, La., accountant, Louis Bonnecaze, Jr., a man Knight said he had never seen before, approached him and said, "Congratulations," the coach was ready with a quick answer.

"We weren't really bait after all, were we?" Knight said as they passed in the hallway of Cherry Hill Inn.

According to Knight, the man turned around and shouted an obscenity. "I walked over to him," said Knight, "and asked him 'Would you like to say again what you just said?'"

"He said, 'I just gave you a compliment and you were sarcastic.' I said 'I wasn't sarcastic.'"

Knight said the man called him an obscene name, and the coach added: "So I grabbed him and shoved him up against the wall and then walked away. And if that means I've done something wrong, so be it."

"If it happens again tomorrow, I'll be wrong again tomorrow."

Tommy Neck, a member of LSU's board of supervisors who was in the motel lounge, said he heard the obscenities and saw the shoving.

"I went over and got Bobby and took him into my room for about five minutes and we talked," said Neck, who never had met Knight before but knew him through phone conversations.

Bonnecaze, who was still at the motel Sunday night, was quoted by the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate as saying Knight grabbed him by the throat and shoulder and held him against the wall.

"My throat is still sore and bruised," said Bonnecaze, who called the police after the incident but did not press charges. "I could stiff press charges, but I wouldn't do that unless I have to to get an accurate account of what happened to the public."

Irwin's game plan backfires, Rogers takes win

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Hale Irwin followed his game plan perfectly — even better than he could have hoped for — in the final round of the Sea Pines-Heritage Classic.

But it backfired on him and helped spur Bill Rogers to victory Sunday.

"I told my caddy before we started I'd have to put some heat on early, and after the first hole I thought I could," Irwin said.

And apply the heat he did. And as early as possible. He holed out a 160-yard 6-iron shot for an eagle-2 on the first hole.

But it didn't have the desired effect.

"Hale's 2' on the first hole was absolutely the best thing that could have happened to me," said Rogers, who withstood that challenge and series of threats from a variety of players. "He hung on grimly, never surrendering the lead, in display of thin-lipped determination that won him his second PGA Tour title and $54,000."

Irwin, a two-time winner of this prestigious title, Gil Morgan, Australian veteran Bruce Devlin and Craig Stadler finished a single stroke back at 279. Irwin and Morgan, both with the front-running Rogers in the last threesome, each had a closing 68. Stadler and Devlin each shot 67.

All put the pressure on. But none of them ever caught the skinny guy from Texarkana, Texas. He started with a 3-shot lead, built it to 5 at one time and then grimly clung to a one-stroke lead over the last four holes that lead down to Calibogue Sound and the looming, red and white lighthouse.

Rogers won important big money titles in Japan and England. But his only previous victory in the United States had come three years ago in the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Irwin, one of golf's greatest competitors, just missed on a 60-foot putt on the final hole that would have tied it and sent the tournament to a playoff.

"Hale's putt," said Rogers, "was so good it just stopped my heart."

"But things happen like that when it's your turn to win."

Ray Floyd, who had won the two previous titles, had a closing 71 and a 284 total. Tom Watson shot 70-287.

Pampa girl wins all-around

Pampan Lena Stewart won the saddle for all-around girl in the Tri-State Rodeo competitions Sunday in Happy, Texas.

Lena took first in break-away calf roping and first in goat-tying.

Jolinda Lowrey took second place in goat-tying. Next week tri-state rodeo will be conducted in Plainview.

Sports Fillers

The Big Ten football teams averaged 64,089 fans per game in 1980. It was a national record.

Michigan topped all college football teams in attendance in 1980 with an average of 104,292 per game.

During the 1980 football season, Michigan had 35 straight home games with attendance of 100,000 or more.

Names in the news

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt, who has won oysters, honey, beefsteaks and a Virginia ham in past wagers, is going home hog over tonight's NCAA basketball finals between his state's Tar Heels and the Indiana Hoosiers.

An optimistic aide to Hunt says the governor wants to take possession of a prize hog being wagered by Indiana Gov. Robert Orr at half-court after North Carolina trounces the Hoosiers.

Hunt spokesman Brent Hackney said the two governors made the final arrangements for their hog wager in a telephone conversation Sunday night. Both were expected to be in Philadelphia tonight to watch their teams compete.

Virginia's Lt. Gov. Chuck Robb owes Hunt five bushels of oysters, while Gov. John Dalton lost a Virginia ham after the Cavaliers lost a 13-point decision to the Tar Heels Saturday.

Hunt's winning ways netted him a barbecue at the expense of Texas Gov. William Clements after the Carolina football team defeated Texas in the Bluebonnet Bowl. Wagers on the regional North Carolina basketball games have brought in three pounds of hog from Utah's Gov. Scott Matheson and some Kansas beefsteaks from Kansas Gov. John Carlin.

BOSTON (AP) — Television producer Norman Lear has attacked the Rev. Jerry Falwell and his Moral Majority for offering "simplistic solutions to our most complex problems." He says the real problem in America is an obsession with making quick profits.

"The single most destructive societal disease of our time — and the single biggest reason for the decline of public morality and ethics is American leadership's fixation with what has become known as the bottom line," Lear said Sunday. He spoke at Northeastern University after accepting an award for defending First Amendment liberties.

"In industry, government or academia, leadership everywhere seems all too ready to sell the future short for a moment of success,"

On the light side

WHITEFISH, Mont. (AP) — Instead of collecting when you pass "Go," you have to pay, $200. And instead of trying to get rich, the point of Gary Tallman's and Wayne Shanahan's new board game is to go broke. Then you qualify for welfare.

The two contractors plan to market the game entitled SOB — for Save our Bureaucrats — themselves at a charge of $15 per game. Some 20,000 copies are being made at a factory in Wisconsin.

Players shake their dice in a "pork barrel," and advance tokens — miniature replicas of Susan B. Anthony dollars — around a Pentagon-shaped board.

Each square carries the name of a real government agency and its budget. If you land on the Environmental Protection Agency square, for instance, you have to pay a tax of $50.

Here's the kind of thing that might befall a player: The Law Enforcement Administration spends $2 million to design a patrol car that no municipal government could afford. Pay your share, $20.

The National Science Foundation spends $46,100 studying whether sex, humor and empathy would deter drivers from horn-honking in traffic jams. Pay your share, $50.

But the last laugh is on Tallman and Shanahan. They got their idea started with an $85,000 Small Business Administration loan.

— That Iron In Spinach Didn't Help Popeye

ATLANTA (AP) — At last, there's good news for spinach haters. A food scientist says it isn't responsible for the iron in Popeye's muscles.

Dr. Ken Lee of the University of Wisconsin says 99 percent of the iron in spinach — long thought to be a prime source of iron in the diet — is unusable. He reported his findings in a paper presented today to the American Chemical Society's 181st national meeting.

News in brief

BALLSTON SPA, N.Y. (AP) — A 27-year-old woman and a 9-year-old girl remained hospitalized in critical condition after an apartment fire killed the woman's husband and three other children.

Fire officials said the victims were overcome by smoke while sleeping Sunday and apparently didn't try to escape.

The victims were identified as Frank Davis, 29; 7-month-old Frances Davis; Elizabeth Kelsey, 2, and Sarah Kelsey, 5. Davis' wife, Mary, and Jennifer Perry were in critical condition at the Albany Medical Center. It wasn't known whether all the victims were related or how the fire started.

JESSUP, Md. (AP) — Prison officials blame youthful "mischievousness" for fights that left 15 inmates injured, two seriously, when power failures pitched the Brockbridge Correctional Institution into darkness.

The two half-hour blackouts were triggered by a tree falling on a power line, authorities said Sunday.

Capt. Phillip Thomas said he doubted charges would be filed as a result of the Saturday night brawls and said all was "back to normal."

One inmate suffered a head injury and another hurt his ankle, apparently when others threw him down the stairs, officials said.

KINGS ISLAND, Ohio (AP) — Brenda the lioness is due to give birth to a tiger cub this June in what researchers believe is the first inter-species transfer of embryos.

If successful, the experiment in surrogate motherhood could help preserve endangered species, say the researchers at the Wild Animal Safari here, where the 350-pound lioness is carrying a tiger embryo that was surgically removed last month from Mora, a female tiger.

The surrogate-mother project began last fall as a cooperative venture involving the Kings Island park, the Cincinnati Zoo, the Knoxville, Tenn., Zoo, and the University of Cincinnati Medical Center, which did the research and provided the surgical team.

CARO, Mich. (AP) — A 5-year-old boy died, but police were able to resuscitate his brother and sister after finding the youngsters trapped inside an abandoned refrigerator alongside their house.

State troopers were unable to revive Shannon Mazzola. His 6-year-old brother, James, and 3-year-old sister, Kelly, were hospitalized in critical condition.

Authorities speculate the youngsters were inside the refrigerator for at least 2 1/2 hours after apparently closing the door behind them while playing.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Retired Gen. Roberto Viola has begun a three-year term as president of Argentina, pledging to continue implementing the "National Reorganization" announced by the military when it seized power from President Isabel Peron in 1976.

In a formal ceremony Sunday, Viola accepted the symbols of office, a baton and a blue-and-white sash, from his friend and predecessor, retired Gen. Jorge R. Videla, who led the coup.

The government's reorganization plan aims to stabilize the Argentine economy — inflation is running at 84 percent — and bring back civilian rule at an unspecified future date.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Uruguay's military government, cut off by the Carter administration from purchases of most U.S. military equipment because of alleged human rights violations, has received permission to buy three American anti-submarine fighter planes, Uruguay's navy commander says.

Newspapers here quoted Vice Admiral Hugo Marquez as saying Uruguayan officers were now at a U.S. Navy base learning to fly the planes.

Vietnamese boat burns

SEABROOK, Texas (AP) — Police were investigating today a fire that destroyed one Vietnamese shrimp boat and damaged another.

Police Chief R.W. Kerber said he had no evidence the fire had been set.

It was the second time for Vietnamese boats to be damaged by fires in recent months during a dispute in which American shrimpers contend Vietnam refugees are causing Texas coastal areas to be over-shrimped.

Kerber said the early Sunday fire destroyed a 43-foot wooden boat which the owner, Phuong Henderson, had been advertising for sale for $25,000.

A number of Vietnamese agreed two weeks ago to leave the Galveston Bay area if they could sell their boats and Kerber said the boat destroyed Sunday was on a list of vessels being put on the market.

Kerber said a second boat tied up near the destroyed boat was scorched but not seriously damaged.
