Special session predicted to settle redistricting

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Like procrastinating students with a term paper deadline, the 67th Legislature worked frantically today to finish major tasks before the clock stops the regular session at midnight.

Important bills were stuck in House-Senate conference committees as the result of the two chambers' failure to agree on them during the first 139 days of the 140-day session.

A special session was widely predicted because of the possibility of deadlocks on such legislation as congressional redistricting and regulation of doctors.

One essential task appeared likely to be completed with little difficulty: passage of the $26.6 billion general appropriation bill to finance public schools, highways, state universities, welfare, parks, mental health programs, prisons, regulation of business and other state services for 1982-83.

When lawmakers gathered this morning for their last day of legislating, these high-priority bills remained in conference.

Redrawing districts for electing Texas congressmen, including the three new ones received as a result of population gains shown by the 1980 census. Failure to pass a bill would certainly cause a special session.

A guaranteed method for financing the construction, equipment and library needs of state colleges outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems. Gov. Bill Clements says a special session might result from failure to act.

Continuation of state regulation of doctors. Speaker Bill Clayton feels strongly enough about how it should be done that he broke legislative precedent Sunday and appointed himself as one of the five House conferees. He was responsible for a provision in the House bill ending the long-standing prohibition against the administration of drugs by optometrists.

Expanding bilingual education, which now stops at the third grade, to all elementary grades, with additional programs through high school for students who need help learning English.

Eliminating various problems in the 1979 Property Tax Code, which takes full effect next year.

Both chambers of the Legislature worked Sunday, passing bills by the dozens.

Results of some of the session's work over the weekend will show up in the lives of ordinary Texans, if Clements signs all the bills that were passed.

Probably the most dramatic change for some will be the requirement that all motorists buy auto liability insurance that would pay up to $20,000 in hospital bills and $5,000 for repairs. About a fourth of all Texas drivers are uninsured.

The auto insurance bill would require Texans to show proof of insurance on demand of a policeman and provide criminal penalties, with a minimum $75 fine for driving without coverage.

Another bill would outlaw scalping of tickets to entertainment events and both college and professional sports, and back up the prohibition with fines starting at $50.

Parents were told by the Legislature on Sunday that if their children over 12 vandalize property, their liability is $15,000 per act of destruction. The present limit is $5,000.

Grocers were given an incentive to donate food to the poor with passage of a bill saying they can't be sued if somebody gets sick, as long as the food meets certain standards.

Other bills sent to the governor on Sunday included measures that would:

Let the State Insurance Board set maximum rates for credit insurance, which pays a debt if the borrower dies or becomes disabled.

Stockman charges 'sabotage' if Congress reneges on budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the administration sought to settle terms for a tax cut, President Reagan's budget chief said today that Congress will be guilty of "deliberate sabotage" if it doesn't stand by the federal spending cuts already approved in the House and Senate.

The tax and spending phases of Reagan's economic program both were at issue, at the White House and the Capitol.

A tax cut bill is likely this year even if Congress and the president cannot agree on a compromise. Congress would simply write one a step at a time and leave it to Reagan to accept or veto it.

The White House and the Democrats who have so far spurned an administration-endorsed compromise all say they want to reach a consensus before the tax-writing committees get down to business.

Another round of meetings between administration and congressional leaders is planned this week, starting with a White House session today involving Reagan and Democratic congressional leaders.

The committees that deal with federal spending ceilings were getting to work on detailed budget decisions. David A. Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said they are obligated to stand by the cuts of about $35 billion that have been endorsed by Congress.

He said at a news conference that any deviation from those cuts "must be considered a deliberate sabotage of the expressed will of Congress and the people."

Stockman said budget policy already has been settled, and Congress should simply implement it, not try to change that policy.

The budget resolution instructed the committees that handle detailed legislation to meet specific quotas for spending cuts, and to do so by June 12. The product is to be a reconciliation resolution, tailoring specific programs to the guidelines set last month.

"Our approach will be one of flexibility on the details but insistence on honest scorekeeping and the bottom line," Stockman said.

But he said the administration will be wary of major changes in the allocation of funds, because there are few areas left where an increase in one program can be offset by cuts in others.

Stockman said the budget should be handled as a package, not in a succession of House roll calls on separate spending items.

On the issue of a tax cut compromise, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan indicated Sunday that the president is not likely to be in much of a giving mood in his talks with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and others in the Democratic leadership.

"What the president wants to finally do with the Democratic leaders is to say, 'Come on fellows, time's a wasting. Are you going to go with me or do I have to find some other route?'" Regan said on the ABC television program "Issues and Answers."

One White House official, who asked not to be identified by name, has said he views today's meeting as a "final check" with the opposition party before the administration goes ahead with a compromise already largely worked out with conservative Democrats in the House.

Those House Democrats are planning a strategy session of their own Tuesday.

Former Pampan dies in wreck

ALPINE — A Pampa native died early Sunday morning when the auto he was driving missed a curve and crashed into a boulder on Texas 118, 10 miles north of Alpine.

David Brent Caldwell, 27, formerly of Pampa, and a passenger in the vehicle, Thomas Lafayette Coats Jr., 29, also of Alpine, were pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Justice of the Peace Carlos Dunn at 1:50 a.m. Sunday.

Alpine Department of Public Safety troopers said that at about 1 a.m. Sunday, Caldwell's vehicle, traveling south on the Texas highway, failed to negotiate the curve, located 10.8 miles north of Alpine. The vehicle then hit a boulder on the left side of the highway. Caldwell was pinned in the wreckage, police said.

Born in Pampa on June 30, 1953, Caldwell was a 1972 graduate of Pampa High School. He had lived in Alpine for two years. He was co-owner of Caldwell Masonry Company of Alpine and a member of the Alpine Chamber of Commerce. He was a member of the First Baptist Church of Pampa.

Caldwell was married to Sabra Lassiter in 1978 in Colorado.

Survivors include his wife of the home; two sons, Dustin Brent Caldwell of Alpine and Sean Caldwell of Pampa; three brothers, Rodney Caldwell of Pampa, Chris Caldwell of Midland and Bryan Caldwell of Amarillo; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David A. Caldwell Jr. of Pampa; and his grandparents, Mrs. D. A. Caldwell of Pampa and Mrs. and Mrs. Jimmy Olsen of Pampa.

Nimitz back in training

NORFOLK Va. (AP) — The nuclear aircraft carrier Nimitz is back in training in the Atlantic today, new planes lining the deck where a jet crash five days ago killed 14 and injured 48 others.

Vice Adm. Gus Kinnear, commander Naval Air Force Atlantic, said the carrier should resume the flight training interrupted by the crash either today or Tuesday.

The Nimitz was off Florida last Tuesday night when a Marine jet on a training flight came down off center, rammed into parked planes and sparked explosions and fires.

Commissioners brainstorm on hospital sale

Gray County Commissioners presented their ideas for the sale of Highland General Hospital and approved advertisements for the hospital sale, today in regular court session.

The new Coronado Community Hospital, which is owned and being constructed by the Hospital Corporation of America (HCA), is scheduled for grand opening on July 19. Patients will be moved into the new facility Aug. 1.

With only 49 days left until Highland General Hospital is vacant, commissioners agreed to do as much as they could to promote the sale.

Commissioners have the option to sell Highland General to HCA for $450,000, which would not include the nursing quarters. However, the commission felt it should go ahead with the sale advertisements and see what bidders may be interested.

Advertisements will be placed in newspapers nationwide and bid openings will take place at the July 15 commissioners' meeting.

Judge Carl Kennedy said, "No response has been received from anyone locally to help with the promotion of the sale of the hospital."

Precinct 4 Commissioner Ted Simmons suggested that a photo of the facility of the hospital might be useful in the ads.

"I think it would generate interest if prospective buyers could see the facility," Simmons said. "Even if it would cost more, it would still be worth it if we can interest one buyer."

Money for advertising will come from the hospital fund, Kennedy said.

Precinct 3 Commissioner Jimmy McCracken asked about future jail needs. "Will we be needing $4 million in four or five years to build a new jail facility?"

"If so, we should see whether or not the hospital could be used for a future jail," McCracken said.

Judge Kennedy said he has heard from Sheriff Rufe Jordan that in a few years some changes will be needed in the present Gray County jail facility.

Precinct 2 Commissioner Ronnie Rice said that trying to put a specialized jail facility in the hospital facility might cost as much to remodel as it would for new construction.

"Even the HCA officials felt that it was too costly to remodel Highland General Hospital for their needs," Rice said.

Commissioner Simmons suggested using the hospital for a courthouse annex and selling the current courthouse annex on Highway 60.

"The present annex is actually more suited for commercial use than the hospital. We could probably sell it easier than the hospital," he said.

Regarding equipment in the hospital, Judge Kennedy said, "We will sell any personal property left at Highland General to HCA if they express an interest in it. The rest will be put up for public auction. We will also have to think about having security personnel at Highland General after it is vacated for protection.

Commissioners will continue discussing the hospital sale at the next commission meeting, scheduled June 15.

In other action, commissioners approved one airport ground lease agreement for Glo-Valve and one lease transfer from J. T. Richardson to J. C. Albin.

County bills in the amount of $156,955 were approved for payment.

Longtime Congressman Vinson dies at age 97

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Former U.S. Rep. Carl Vinson, who served in the House longer than anyone else and was a powerful proponent of military might during his 50 years in Washington, died early today at the age of 97.

Molly Snead, Vinson's nurse for 34 years and a close family friend, said the veteran politician died at 5 a.m. EDT at Baldwin County Medical Center. He had suffered a heart attack a year ago and had entered the hospital almost two weeks ago with heart problems, she said.

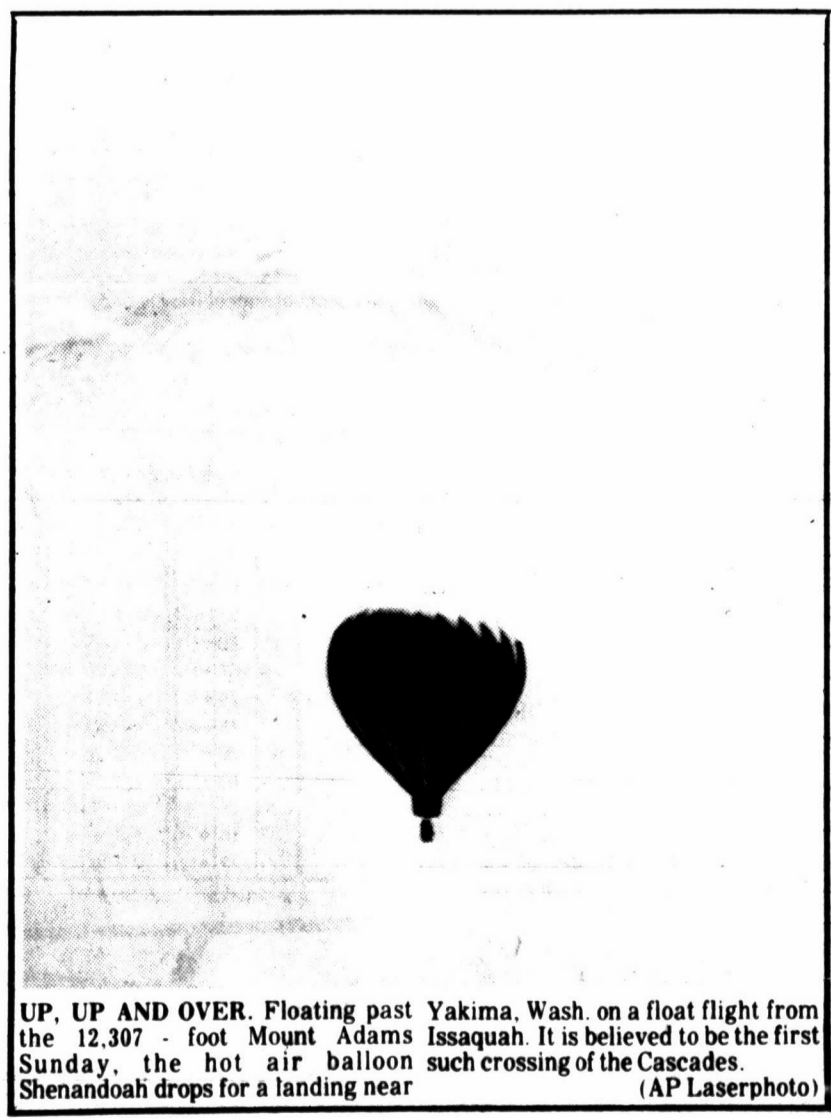

Vinson, a Democrat, was one of the most powerful political figures in Washington from 1914 to 1965, receiving recognition for his length of service both in Congress and his 16 years as chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee. He served as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee for 14 years.

Considered several times for Secretary of Defense during his years on Capitol Hill, Vinson once quipped, "Shucks, I'd rather go on running the Pentagon from up here."

"During his half century of service... Carl Vinson established an unequal record for tenure in congress and positive action to strengthen the nation's defense," said Georgia Gov. George Busbee.

Busbee ordered flags on state buildings flown at half-staff until after the funeral, scheduled for 3 p.m. Wednesday at Milledgeville's First Methodist Church. Vinson will be buried at Memory Hill Cemetery next to his wife, who died three decades ago.

School board reviews basic skills test results

Results of the second Texas Assessment of Basic Skills tests will be presented to the Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees at their 5 p.m. session in Carver Educational Center Tuesday.

The tests were taken by 1,041 third, fifth and ninth grade students in the Pampa school district last February.

School Superintendent Bob Phillips will present the results and a detailed analysis of what they may mean for future educational planning and programs. He will be assisted by key members of the school administrative staff.

"While district and campus aggregate scores will be reported to the public, individual results will be released only to the student, parents or guardian, and school personnel directly involved," Phillips said.

Some 700,000 third, fifth and ninth grade students participated in this second statewide assessment required under Senate Bill 350 passed by the Texas Legislature during its 1979 session.

"Particular emphasis will be given to plans already underway to work on improved programs for both individual schools and students next year," Phillips explained. These programs and their related costs will be supported by state compensatory education funds made available under Senate Bill 350, he added.

"Our purpose is to develop more effective ways of teaching children," Phillips said. "We believe the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills results will give us the specific data we need to better meet student needs."

The superintendent said much of the planning and advanced work to be completed this summer will point towards curriculum and other changes to be implemented next September.

"Materials to be presented at the June 2 board meeting will include summary reports and other information designed to better inform school patrons concerning the district's needs for improvement," he said.

Coup attempt fails in Bangladesh

CALCUTTA, India (AP) - The Bangladesh government announced Monday that rebel army officers who assassinated President Ziaur Rahman had fled from Chittagong, the country's second largest city and a major seaport.
 An early morning broadcast on Radio Dacca said the government regained control of Chittagong and the city was peaceful. It gave no indication where the rebels fled to.
 The government had given the rebels three surrender deadlines, and the United News of India reported two columns of loyal troops were moving on Chittagong. The rebels made repeated radio appeals to military units in other areas to join them but apparently met with no success.

 The insurgent chief warned his followers Sunday night over Chittagong radio of an imminent attack by government forces.
 Radio Dacca reported that the navy commander, Rear Adm. Mahmood Ali Khan, arrived in Dacca from Chittagong, his headquarters, Sunday. It quoted him as saying the navy was loyal to the central government and was in "complete control" of the Chittagong naval base and other port facilities.
 The rebels reportedly were threatening to execute pro-government army officers held at the army base in Chittagong, 140 miles southeast of Dacca, where they killed the president early Saturday.

 The broadcast announced a reward of 500,000 takas - $30,300 - for the capture of Manzur. Two Indian news agencies reported that the rebel leader had been captured, but there was no confirmation of the reports.
 The rebels assassinated the 45-year-old president and eight aides at 4:30 a.m. Saturday during a visit to Chittagong. Initial reports said they were shot, but a later report said the rebels blew up Government House and the presidential party with it.

Fierce fighting continues in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Syrian soldiers and Christian militiamen rocketed, shelled and sniped at each other today in a second straight day of fighting that left at least 23 civilians dead and 276 injured, many of them on Beirut's beaches, police said.
 A police spokesman said the Lebanese capital's Mediterranean shores, jammed with bathers, were a major target for the gunners Sunday. It was the first time the beaches had been shelled since the nation's 1975-76 civil war, and Beirut newspapers called the bombardment the "beach war."
 Exchanges of artillery, rocket and gunfire between Moslem and Christian sectors of the Lebanese capital began late Saturday. They reached a crescendo at mid-afternoon Sunday and subsided to sporadic sniping at sundown.

But by midday today, the boom of heavy artillery had returned, and fires were burning in several residential neighborhoods. The Christian "Voice of Lebanon" radio said three Christian children, a two-year-old boy and two sisters aged 3 1/2 and 4 1/2, were killed when a shell slammed into their home.
 The casualties pushed the Lebanese toll to more than 350 dead since April 1.
 Sniping and artillery duels also were reported in the Christian city of Zahlé, 30 miles to the east in the Bekaa Valley, where a Christian attempt to open a military supply road ignited the Syrian-Christian fighting at the start of April and led to Syria's deployment of Soviet-made SAM-6 missiles at the end of the month.
 Israel is threatening to attack the missiles unless they are withdrawn. Syria refuses to take them out, and the dispute threatens to touch off a new Arab-Israeli war.

 Israeli jets flew over Beirut Sunday, breaking the sound barrier, but no anti-aircraft fire against them was reported.
 As U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib prepared to return to the Middle East to try again to resolve the Syrian-Israeli dispute over the missiles, Syria's foreign minister reiterated his government's refusal to remove them from Lebanon, and the leader of the Lebanese Christians fighting the Syrians said war is imminent.
 The SAMs "are there to stay. They will not be withdrawn," declared Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam in an interview published Sunday in al-Khaleej, a newspaper in the United Arab Emirates.

Man ordered to pay restitution

A Pampa man, accused of seriously injuring a 77-year-old man who was trying to protect his son, has pleaded guilty in Gray County Court to a charge of assault and battery and has been ordered to pay $15,000 in restitution.
 J. C. Albin of 2123 Beech pleaded guilty before County Judge Carl Kennedy of assaulting Marcus Phillips, 77, of 720 N. Banks on Sept. 20, 1980. In addition to the $15,000 restitution, Kennedy sentenced Albin to one year of probation.
 Phillips was allegedly kicked in the face in the incident, injuring his eye, which later required two operations. District Attorney Harold Comer said. Comer said the actual dispute on Sept. 20 was between Albin and Phillips' son, Ronnie Phillips, 28, of 720 N. Banks over some carpentry work.
 He said Albin knocked the younger Phillips to the ground and allegedly kicked him in the throat, causing a fracture to the larynx. Phillips was in the intensive care unit of Highland General Hospital for two days because of the injury. Phillips did not file charges, however.

The elder Phillips was injured when he tried to intervene in the fight between Albin and his son, Comer said. He said as a result, Albin struck and kicked Phillips in the face.
 In 31st District Court last week, Judge Grainger McIlhany heard five guilty pleas to various charges ranging from indecency with a child to felony driving while intoxicated.
 Ray Bayland, 26, formerly of 1901 N. Nelson, pleaded guilty to charges of indecency with a child, stemming from an incident with his 9-year-old step-daughter.
 The district attorney said evidence was presented indicating Bayland and his wife were receiving psychiatric treatment and the wife's three children had been taken from the home and placed in to the custody of their grandmother.
 Judge McIlhany ruled that Bayland be given a five year probated sentence and as a condition of the probation, he would continue to receive psychiatric treatment.
 Cecil Ray Williams, 30, of 931 S. Love entered a guilty plea to a charge of injury to a child. Williams was assessed a probated sentence of five years and a $600 fine.

 The charges were filed following an incident on Feb. 11 of this year when Williams allegedly struck his 18-month old stepdaughter and three-month old son for crying.
 Franklin Herin, 17, of Borger and Reynaldo Cardenas, 17, of Fritch were each given five years probation and assessed a $750 fine by Judge McIlhany. The two young men pleaded guilty to assisting in taking the purse of Mrs. Otis Nace of 829 N. Nelson in the Furr's Supermarket parking lot on Dec. 24, 1980.
 A third person involved, Doug Brown, 17, of Borger was convicted of the theft on April 24 and sentenced to seven years probation and a $1,500 fine.
 David K. Cook, 19, of 429 Hill pleaded guilty to the theft of a stereo and speakers from J. C. Penny's on Jan. 9, 1981. Comer said Cook was an employee of the business. Cook was assessed a $500 fine and given five years of probation.

Polish Cardinal's funeral televised

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Eulogized by the Vatican as a "hero of the church of our times," Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski was buried in the crypt of St. John's Cathedral after a nationally televised outdoor funeral attended by more than 250,000 Poles, including leaders of the Communist government.
 "All Poland is taking part in the funeral," the official news agency PAP said Sunday.
 But one Pole could not. Pope John Paul II, who said Wyszynski was responsible for his elevation to the papacy in 1978, sent a message from his Rome hospital bed expressing his longing to be among the mourners. In an allusion to wounds he suffered in an assassination attempt May 18, he added, "God has decided differently."
 The pontiff celebrated a memorial Mass in his hospital room at the hour of the funeral Mass in Warsaw.

 Polish church sources in Rome said they believed Wyszynski and the Polish-born pope agreed before the cardinal's death of cancer Thursday on his successor as primate of the Polish Catholic Church.
 The sources said they did not expect the name to be announced immediately. Cardinal Graciszek Macharski, the archbishop of Krakow and the acting primate, suggested on Saturday that a successor would be named soon.
 The throng jamming Victory Square for the funeral Mass Sunday was the largest crowd for a religious service in Poland since the pope's triumphant homecoming two years ago.
 John Paul was represented by the Vatican secretary of state, Cardinal Agostino Casaroli, who celebrated the Mass with the Polish bishops at an altar set up before a 43-foot red-draped cross facing the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

 Cardinal John Krol, the archbishop of Philadelphia, Pa., read the final prayers in flawless Polish and sprinkled the coffin with holy water before it was lowered into the cathedral crypt.
 Wyszynski during the 33 years he led the Polish church as primate wielded enormous influence since an estimated 90 percent of the 36 million Poles are Catholics. Once held by the Communist government under virtual house arrest during the Stalinist 1950s, he came to be held in great respect by the present Communist leaders as well as by independent union leaders for counseling moderation during the past year of strikes and labor tension.

No espionage charges against officer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Justice Department will not bring espionage charges "at this point" against an Air Force missile officer accused of making three unauthorized visits to the Soviet Embassy, a department spokesman says.
 "We have no case at this point," John K. Russell said Sunday. Asked if he could explain why none were being brought against 2nd Lt. Christopher M. Cooke, Russell said, "Absolutely not."
 Cooke, 25, of Richmond, Va., has been in pre-trial confinement at McConnell

Air Force Base near Wichita, Kan., since being charged Friday with three counts of violating an Air Force regulation against unauthorized contact with representatives of a communist country.
 Conviction on each count could bring a maximum sentence of two years in prison, forfeiture of pay and dismissal from the service.
 The Air Force cannot bring charges of espionage. This is the province of the Justice Department.

The Air Force could bring charges of unauthorized disclosure of secret information but has not done so.
 Cooke's parents have accused the Air Force of renegeing on an agreement that he would not be charged if he cooperated fully with investigators.
 Cooke was second-in-command of a four-person Titan II missile crew and would have had access to launching codes, according to the Air Force.
 Those codes were changed after his arrest, officials said, adding that they frequently are changed routinely.

Sugar takes tumble, meat prices down

Sugar prices dropped sharply again last month, cutting grocery bills by the biggest amount in over six years, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.
 Consumers trying to trim supermarket budgets also found lower prices for eggs and scattered but steep declines at the meat counter.
 The AP survey covers 14 food and non-food items, selected at random. Prices were checked on March 1, 1973 at one supermarket in each of 13 cities and have been rechecked on or about the start of succeeding months.

The latest survey showed that the marketbasket bill at the checklist store declined by an average of 2.7 percent last month.
 The drop was the largest since a 2.9 percent decrease in April 1975 and was the fourth monthly decline this year. When today's prices were compared with those at the start of 1981, the AP found the marketbasket bill at the checklist stores decreased by an average of 6.4 percent during the five-month period.
 The good news was tempered somewhat, however, by the fact that more than half of the decline was due to a drop in the price of sugar. When sugar was not counted in the totals, the average decrease in the marketbasket bill at the checklist stores last month was only 1.3 percent. The average decrease since the start of the year was only 2.4 percent.
 Sugar prices soared last year because of expectations that worldwide demand would exceed production. The demand went down as sugar got more and more expensive, and prices started dropping early this year.
 Meat prices went down in some cities and up in others last month, with no clear pattern. The AP found, for example, that the price of a pound of chopped chuck increased at the checklist store in four cities last month, decreased in six cities and was unchanged in three. Center-cut pork chops went up in six cities, down in six cities and were unchanged in one city.
 Shoppers looking for an alternative, inexpensive source of protein may want to check the price of eggs. The AP found the price dropped last month at the checklist store in 10 of the cities surveyed.
 No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease - saying a particular item went up 10 percent in one city and 6 percent in another.
 The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

Texas Congressional redistricting unresolved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Congressional redistricting remained an unresolved issue today as House-Senate negotiators struggled to reach a compromise decision before the Legislature's final adjournment at midnight.

There were signs Sunday of a willingness to compromise on some points, but a planned 10 p.m. meeting of the conference committee fizzled and was rescheduled for this morning.

Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, chairman of House conferees explained the absence of most negotiators by saying, "They're still working" on maps behind the scenes.

Areas in dispute were Dallas, Nueces County (Corpus Christi) and a South Texas area between Corpus Christi and Brownsville.

The Senate plan divides minority neighborhoods in Dallas between U.S. Reps. Jim Mattox and Martin Frost, both moderate-to-liberal Democrats, giving each a good shot at re-election. Under the House bill, Frost's district shifts east and becomes 63 percent black and brown. The Senate plan also keeps Mattox entirely within Dallas County, while the House would shift his district north into suburban areas of Collin and Denton counties.

Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, leader of the legislative Black Caucus, said he liked the Senate plan better.

"It's better for the blacks to impact two districts than to have a single black congressman," he argued.

Von Dohlen read a letter from black Rep. Lanell Cofer, D-Dallas, and endorsed by several other black legislators, supporting a heavily minority district that might elect a black to Congress.

"For the record, none of those (other than Ms. Cofer) are from Dallas County," said Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas. "And none of them represent the leadership of the black caucus," Washington added.

Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, chairman of Senate conferees, said all five of the Senate negotiators wanted to stick with the Senate plan that helps Mattox and Frost.

The House plan divides Nueces County, with a line separating largely Anglo areas from those inhabited mainly by Hispanics, between two congressional districts. The Senate plan keeps Nueces County intact and in a district represented by U.S. Rep. Bill Patman of Ganado, a former senator. The House plan splits up Patman's district and puts him in a largely new territory.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, argued for keeping his county intact. If there must be a split, he suggested putting part of the county into a South Texas district where a Hispanic could be elected.

Rep. Tai Santiesteban, D-El Paso, who headed a Senate committee that held hearings on redistricting in Corpus Christi, said, "I never heard anybody propose a division until two days ago. Where did it (the idea) come from?"

Berlanga said it came from a "very small, narrow-minded group" that feared the Port of Corpus Christi might be placed in a district represented by a Hispanic.

Salvadoran refugees finding red tape in US

DALLAS (AP) — Nelson Parrada Escamilla is a victim — of a war-torn homeland where he was once shot in the back for no apparent reason, and of the political realities of the nation to which he fled.

"To return is to die," Escamilla said of his homeland, El Salvador. "If they send me back, I will try again and again. I want only a chance to be with my family and to live. Is that too much to ask?"

Escamilla says he doesn't care about politicians in Washington who see him as a possible political embarrassment — he knows only that he faces death if he returns to the violence and terror of El Salvador's civil war.

The 22-year-old refugee said he already has been shot once — in the back by a Salvadoran National Guardsman as Escamilla walked down a street in San Salvador last year.

"I don't know why he shot me, maybe because I was a young man and a student," Escamilla said.

In February, Escamilla began a three-month trip that he hoped would free him from the violence of the civil war that has engulfed his country and give him a new life in the United States. The trek ended in a Brownsville Immigration and Naturalization detention center where Escamilla is one of 150 Salvadorans awaiting deportation to their homeland.

Escamilla plans to seek asylum here. But his chances of staying are not good.

"It has to be proven that an individual would be persecuted upon his return," a State Department official said, "and most of these people aren't fleeing the government, as near as we can tell."

Jose Cristin Escobar, a 17-year-old farm worker, also is awaiting deportation back to El Salvador.

Open meetings law is tightened

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Government officials would have to keep minutes of their meetings under a bill approved by the Legislature and sent to the governor Sunday.

The measure tightens requirements of the Texas Open Meetings Act. It would more narrowly define the situations in which emergency meetings of public boards and councils could be held, and would allow judges to award attorneys' fees to persons who successfully sue for a violation of the act. State district judges would be able to nullify any decision made during an illegal gathering of public officials.

Common Cause, a self-styled public interest lobby, supported the bill, saying that the Open Meetings Act needed revision to close loopholes. The measure by Rep. Tommy Adkisson, D-San Antonio, would "update the law and increase its practical effectiveness," the group said.

Governor gets DMSO bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas legislators have granted demands from fans of DMSO — an industrial solvent some regard as a cure-all — and passed a bill allowing doctors to prescribe it.

House members accepted Senate changes on a voice vote Sunday, sending the measure to Gov. Bill Clements for signature or veto.

Dimethyl sulfoxide (DMSO) is touted as a useful chemical in the treatment of such diverse ailments as cancer and arthritis. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has not approved it as having medicinal value.

The bill passed by the Legislature says DMSO may be manufactured and sold in Texas and doctors may prescribe it.

A physician that prescribes DMSO must inform the patient it is not approved by the FDA and also tell him or her of alternative treatments.

Senators added an amendment authorizing the Board of Medical Examiners to suspend the license of a doctor if suspected of improperly prescribing DMSO. A hospital could restrict the use of DMSO by staff physicians who prescribed it in a way that endangered patients.

"You can't just tell them (patients) to take it and come back and see me in six months," asked Rep. Milton Fox, R-Houston.

"No," said sponsoring Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston.

He also said the bill would not restrict the non-prescription use of DMSO.

"What we wanted was to allow physicians to prescribe sterile, hydrogen-free DMSO.

BEST PIANIST, American Andre-Michel Schub, 28, of New York City, is all smiles after he was named Grand Prize winner of the sixth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition in Fort Worth Sunday. Presenting the award is Van Cliburn, left.

Schub wins Van Cliburn competition

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Andre-Michel Schub Sunday won one of the music world's most lucrative prizes — the $12,000 gold medal of the Sixth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition — then topped it off with a concerto performance he termed "almost an impossible task."

Schub played Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 2 in B flat, Opus 19, the piece he had prepared for the competition finals.

"The anxiety and uncertainty of waiting for results doesn't go together with making music," he said.

"I'm in a stupor. I'm extremely happy. It is the first step in what I've been dreaming about," he said.

With the cash prize goes two years of international concert engagements that assures the young pianist of the chance for a performing career.

Though the competition route is rugged and sometimes criticized in music circles, "there has to be a way for people to be recognized and get concert opportunities," said the 28-year-old French-born New Yorker. "The advantage is that you are heard."

Schub, a preliminary favorite with an established reputation as a soloist, was one of the few contestants permitted to enter without a videotaped audition. He has appeared in the Great Performers Series at Alice Tully Hall in New York, and in a "Live From Lincoln Center" broadcast with the Lincoln Center Chamber Music Society.

Born in Paris, Schub came to the United States as an infant and began studying piano with his mother at the age of four. He studied music at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and also attended Princeton University.

Second place honors were shared by Panayis Lyras, also of New York, and Santiago Rodriguez of Adelphi, Md.

They will split a total of $1,400 — the combined prizes for second and third places.

Schub was cited by an international jury of 11 judges as having delivered the "most consistently superior performances" during the annual two-week competition, which began May 17. He was one of six finalists.

The finalists were picked from a field of 123 Van Cliburn hopefuls who were screened in videotaped auditions.

Lyras, 27, trained at Athens Conservatory and the Juilliard School of Music, winning the silver medal in the Arthur Rubenstein International Piano Competition in Tel Aviv last year.

Rodriguez, 29, trained at the University of Texas in Austin and at Juilliard and is now an instructor at the University of Maryland. He was a finalist in the Leventritt International Competition in 1977.

The fourth place winner was Jeffrey Kahane, 24, of Piedmont, Calif. Kahane was a quarterfinalist in the Chopin International Competition in Warsaw last year. He trained at the San Francisco Conservatory of the Juilliard School of Music.

Christopher O'Riley, 25, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., took fifth place honors in the Van Cliburn. He won second prize in the Montreal International Piano Competition in 1980. He trained at the New England Conservatory in Boston.

Zhu Da Ming, 29, of the People's Republic of China, played his way to a sixth place finish. He trained at the Central Conservatory of Music at Peking and won the International Music Competition of Japan in 1980. Ming was one of two performers from the People's Republic entered in the Van Cliburn for the first time.

For the first time, no contestants were entered from the Soviet Union, which is still in a cultural exchange freeze with the U.S. following American protests over the Soviets' 1979 invasion of Afghanistan. A total of 17 nations were represented in this year's competition.

Auto liability insurance is made mandatory in bill okayed Sunday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans who drive without insurance could be fined at least $75 and their licenses suspended under a bill passed by the Legislature on Sunday.

A voice vote in the House sent the measure, by Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, to Gov. Bill Clements for signature or veto.

Green has crusaded for several legislative sessions for a mandatory auto insurance law.

His bill says that after Jan. 1, automobiles and trucks — with a handful of exceptions — must be covered by liability insurance.

Mandatory coverage would pay medical expenses of $10,000 per person, up to $20,000 for all victims of an accident, and auto repair costs up to $5,000.

A motorist could be required at any time to show a policeman or highway patrolman proof of insurance.

A driver convicted of not having insurance could be fined up to $200 on first offense, with a minimum fine of $75. If convicted again, the driver could go to jail for six months and pay a $1,000 fine, and the minimum fine would be $200.

Conviction for driving without insurance also would result in automatic suspension of one's driver's license and vehicle registration. A driver could avoid that penalty, however, by buying insurance and maintaining coverage for five years.

When an accident occurs, the Department of Public Safety would verify a driver's insurance by contacting the insurance company shown on his policy.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Why Reagan would cut taxes

BY OSCAR COOLEY

Would you like your taxes to be reduced? Foolish question. April 15 was not that long ago.

The usual argument for the cuts in the income tax rates proposed by President Ronald Reagan is that they would leave more money with taxpayers to invest in industry and so quicken recovery from the recession.

A worthy aim, opponents grant, but are we sure the taxpayers will invest the extra money? Maybe they will spend it in riotous living and so bid prices up; worsening the inflation.

True, but if taxes are not cut, Washington will get the money, and government spending surely is just as riotous as private spending. Leave those dollars in the pockets of the people and firms that pay taxes, and it is reasonable to assume that a large part will be invested.

However, invested funds, too, are spent — spent for land, buildings, machines, raw materials and labor with which to expand industry. This spending increases demand for such goods, bidding up their prices. So the inflation argument cuts no ice for either side.

The fact is that tax cuts do not cause inflation. It is caused by the putting in circulation of too many dollars, each dollar becoming of less value. The real reason why taxes should be cut is that taxation is the principal way of financing the government, and cutting taxes cuts government — makes "big government" smaller. Government receives less money to spend and so is able to finance fewer activities. This leaves more fields of activity open to private enterprise.

This is Reagan's philosophy. He is opposed to big government. His long-range aim as president is to cut back a government that has grown to be not merely big but stupendous. Norman Ture, under secretary of the Treasury for tax policy, says the President's policy for the next four years is to change the tax laws so they help, not hurt, "the private marketplace." Reagan would encourage, not thwart, the growth of private business and industry.

His economic program has two legs: the first is sharp cuts in government spending, the second is cuts in taxes. The first will reduce the outgo of the government, the second the income.

Reduce both outgo and income of any institution and you have reduced its size.

Reagan is determined also to balance the government's budget, putting an end to Treasury borrowing, which not only generates inflation but enables the government to grow and grow, even when tax revenue is not enough to pay the bill!

A tax cut always appeals to the taxpayer. It leaves him more of his hard-earned cash. This being the case, you don't hear Reagan's opponents condemning tax cuts per se. Rather, they say his plan to cut taxes across the board, 10 percent per year for three years, is too drastic. They propose smaller cuts, taking effect at later dates: Anything to oppose Reagan — but not to oppose the popular desire for lower tax rates.

The President's leading supporters in Congress are aware that his philosophy is to cut government back. So is theirs. They will back him up.

So far as the state of the economy is concerned, nothing will invigorate it so much as to see the government pull back from areas where it is not needed and concentrate on its own special function: defense. As the government withdraws from competition with private enterprise, the private sector will find the capital with which to grow — we need not fear lack of capital.

Reagan already has won the promise that Congress will vote the reductions in government spending. But will Congress vote large enough tax cuts to shrink the Washington mammoth appreciably and make room for an expansion of enterprise sufficient to reemploy the unemployed and to set us on the road to a freer society? That is the crucial question at this point.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, June 1, the 152nd day of 1981. There are 213 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On June 1, 1973, Premier George Papadopoulos of Greece abolished the Greek monarchy.

On this date:
In 1533, Anne Boleyn was crowned queen of England.

In 1792, Kentucky joined the union as the 15th state.
In 1796, Tennessee became the 16th state.

And in 1958, Gen. Charles de Gaulle was sworn in as premier of France.

Five years ago: A Syrian force of about 4,000 troops and 200 tanks invaded Lebanon and advanced on Beirut to capture Christian and Moslem positions.

One year ago: About 300 Cuban refugees riot at Fort Chaffee Refugee Relocation Center in U.S. state of Arkansas, wounding at least 15 law enforcement officials.

Today's birthdays: Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker is 55. Former baseball star Dean Chance is 41.

Thought for today: Education is the ability to listen to almost anything without losing your temper or your self confidence. — Robert Frost, American poet (1874-1963)

OPINION PAGE

Spending has got to stop

Problems not precisely defined tend to result in remedies that aggravate the cause. The common perception of the current attempts to reduce the budget is that the federal government — or misgovernment, as the case may be — doesn't have enough resources to pay for all the things that the various power segments within the country wish to have. Nothing could be more diametrically opposed to the factual situation.

The problem with government expenditures, at least since the mid-1950s, is that the federal apparatus has been, and continues to be, over-financed. Over-financing was the historic provocation that changed the Social Security system, as established in 1935, just four years later from a funded insurance program to a pay-as-you-go tax program. Dollars were coming in so fast that they threatened to deflate the rest of the economy.

As a result of sustained GNP growth in the 1950s and 1960s, revenues flowed into the Potomac treasury faster than Congress could devise truly beneficial programs to spend them on. The capacity of Congress to act constructively is not greatly different from that of any other committee that is, the outcome seldom matches the charitable intention.

So what we see today is an inflow so extraordinarily immense and an accumulation of outflow projects so forbiddingly long that top-flight accountants cannot add the two columns so that the end sums match in any particular fiscal year. Indeed, the best guesses of the most knowledgeable officials vary in the magnitude of $40 billion to $60 billion as to how far apart the two sets of arithmetic are.

In the meantime, the inflation that results from the annual overdraft against the U.S. Treasury pushes more workers into higher tax brackets so that more revenues flood the Washington bookkeepers. If Congress had duly applied the inflow to an established number and level of programs, the imbalance would have ultimately been corrected. That correction did not take place because such projects, once seeded, grow larger than originally envisioned and because congressmen, being so very human, like to invent new projects in order to get their names in print and their faces on television.

The net of the matter is more dollars in and more dollars out than any bookkeeping system can cope with. As a matter of fact, the runaway has reached such a stage that the U.S. Printing Office hardly can produce dollar bills fast enough to replace those that become dirty, ragged and wrinkled from prolonged use. A constitutional amendment limiting the power of Congress either to tax or to inflate would be one approach to a cure. A speedier technique would be to organize some sort of surveillance over those congressmen who originate tax legislation — the 37 members of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Self-sufficiency for Amtrak

Amtrak's president Alan S. Boyd has issued a fact sheet which attempts to set the record straight about the demand for rail passenger service in the United States. Claiming that there is an unprecedented demand for the quasi-public rail corporation, and that no cuts should be made in its funding, Boyd sites the following:

In March, a typically low ridership month, at least 6,100 persons had to stand on Amtrak trains due to crowded conditions. Not enough seats to go around.

As of April 1, all coach and/or sleeping accommodations had been completely sold out on a total of 645 trains operating between April and September. With the exception of 22, all these trains operate outside the Northeast corridor (Note: Most trains in that area do not require reservations. The Northeast corridor is the "only" one which could be funded, according to Amtrak, under President Reagan's proposed Amtrak budget cuts.)

As of April 1, almost 13,500 persons had been placed on waiting lists at Amtrak reservation centers. On the New York - Florida route alone, more than 2,000 are waiting for space for a 10-day period.

Systemwide, more than 40 percent of Amtrak's coach seats on reserved trains are booked two weeks in advance. More than two-thirds of all overnight accommodations were already booked through Easter as well. Amtrak's summer will be even busier.

During January, a traditional low ridership month, both the Chicago - Seattle - Los Angeles Coast Starlight carried an average of more than 600 persons per train. Amtrak's two Florida trains handled an average of more than 1,700 passengers daily during the same period.

Amtrak's five reservation centers handled a record 22 million calls in fiscal year 1980, but cannot handle all the requests for information and reservations they receive daily. In this fiscal year alone, the call volume has increased by an average of 7.3 percent.

Complaints these days mostly refer to over-crowded conditions. Complaints on poor service, etc., have dropped 40 percent systemwide.

In August 1980, more than 400,000 persons were denied space on Amtrak's Chicago - Los Angeles, Chicago - San Francisco and Los Angeles - Seattle routes due to sold-out conditions. The month before, almost 340,000 persons were denied space on these same trains.

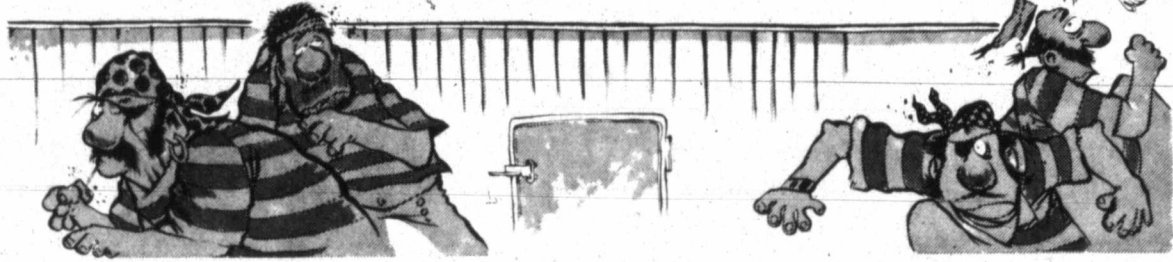

During peak periods, Amtrak could easily use another 300 rail cars.

Boyd and Amtrak supporters use these facts to prove that Congress should not cut the Amtrak budget, and some even think that a good increase is in order.

But if the system is such an unqualified success, then why should it need subsidies at all to keep it running? The corporation officials claim that without government support, tickets would cost much more than they do. Is that such a bad thing? If a product is worth the money charged for it, it will sell. If it isn't, it won't. If it won't then why keep it alive with artificial respiration in the form of tax dollars?

Actually, there are a number of good reasons why a national passenger rail system should be kept in working order. But the reasons are valid only if the public really wants to use it at realistic prices.

Why not revamp Amtrak and make it into a purely private enterprise system? Then it can forge ahead under its own steam.

To bake a bigger pie

BY PAUL HARVEY

The tedium of the American political system can be frustrating, exasperating.

President Reagan's budget cuts have passed both Houses of Congress — but now each committee of the Congress must implement in detail the cuts which have been approved in principle.

Our representative form of government requires that we keep constant watch on our representatives, alert for any renegeing, any sleight-of-hand, any trade-offs which even yet could sidetrack the president's program.

The tedium of the American political system can be frustrating, exasperating — but it's still workable if we pay attention.

There was no dancing in the street — Main Street or Wall Street — when Gram-Latta passed the House.

The reason is that the Reagan budget cuts are still a lot of committee battles and floor fights away from enactment.

There may be any number of congressmen who voted "yea" while you were watching, intending to vote "nay" when you're not.

While Majority Leader Tip O'Neill may be an outdated caricature of a professional politician — he is not less astute (or "devious," depending on your point of view) when it comes to manipulating the legislative procedural machinery.

Also in the Senate...

Despite a GOP majority in the Senate, when Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) tried to scrub the Legal Services Corporation — a laudable way of conserving public money — he was shouted down 72 to 24.

Up to now all the Republican talk about budget cutting has been nothing more than talk.

While the president still has the power to veto appropriations bills, all that does is perpetuate the status-quo, unless eventually his philosophy prevails.

This will help the electorate understand why President Reagan continues ceaselessly to invite members of both Houses to the White House, to convince them and to keep them convinced that the companion cuts in taxes and spending are essential and indivisible.

Eisenhower, his first months in office, accomplished these objectives and the result was to stabilize the price index: the dollar stopped shrinking and economic activity resumed its progress.

Eisenhower, while a political novice, was a master getter-alonger. And he had politically pragmatic Tom Dewey at his elbow advising.

President Reagan, similarly, will have to charm the socks off the otherwise pressured politicians on The Hill if he is to keep them in line.

The president has the recipe for "the bigger pie," but Congress will have to supply the essential ingredients.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor:

Man seems to covet that which belongs to others. People group into cliques or narrow circles for a protective or selfish purpose, often to provide one group a definite advantage over another, most with questionable justification.

During time's pilgrimage through the ages, men of all nations have indulged in the philosophy that "might makes right and to the victor belongs the spoils."

This seems to have been a vicious circle that has no end, and it is a philosophy that man has pursued since the Genesis of time.

Greed, mistrust and political stature are the motivating factors that usually precede and create most wars (for the young men to fight — and some will die) while those in top authority seek a secluded sanctuary for themselves. Seldom is it the choice or the desire of the combatants engaged in the struggle, but they submit to authority. Those men who struggle and achieve the victory are praised for their valor, while those in authority receive perpetual glory for the achievement. Is it fair to immortalize those who direct a war to a victorious conclusion, while the blood of young men and innocent children stain the conscience of those who are partially responsible for the tragic death of others?

There is a greater accomplishment than the triumph of the sword. Peace attained through honest and equitable negotiation is more noble and dignified than the destruction of life and property to attain some goal. Benevolence and justice are the virtues that will assure perpetual peace.

PEACE has a peculiar tranquilizing effect that all mankind can truly cherish, a victory that will serve as a benediction to all mankind.

There are very few disputes that cannot be compromised or resolved through arbitration. The judgment and decision of disinterested national officials could serve as a court of justice, to avoid the tragedy of war.

As one visits the military cemeteries, one is appalled at the vast number of graves that contain the remains of those who have suffered a premature death, due to the brutal savagery of war. From those graves, there seems to emerge a faint whisper that pleads for PEACE forever, to all mankind. "May no one ever suffer the fate that has been mine."

PEACE has its own tranquil victory when innovated by honor and justice — however justice and honor must be maintained. We must be committed to a fixed resolution of protecting our borders with strength and determination and also protecting our national heritage and our honor, if the necessity should arise.

However, our security and respect would be greatly enhanced, if we would refrain from making threats, dictates and acrimonious gestures toward other nationalities. As we choose to manage our internal affairs, we should allow others to do the same.

If their course is not activated by honesty, fairness and probity, it likely will not long survive to threaten our security.

During centuries to come, may the benevolent spirit of PEACE always triumph over the spectre of war.

Signed,
W. M. Lane

FALL FASHION BY HALSTON. These New York models wear fashions by Halston in New York recently as designers unveil their lines for fall and winter. (AP Laserphoto)

Curb refrigerator's fuel appetite

NEW YORK (NEA) - A mixed blessing, your refrigerator: It runs, you eat, unfortunately, it eats, too. Fuel.

But you can curb its energetic appetite, says Jean Hopwood, manager of consumer affairs for General Electric's Major Appliance Business Group in Louisville, Ky.

For one thing, keep the door shut as much as possible. "Every time the refrigerator is opened, cool air escapes, warm air gets in and eventually the motor must go on to keep down the temperature," she says. "Remember, a refrigerator cools by expelling heated air, so the less warm air that gets in, the better."

But be disabused of the notion that the thicker the frost in the freezer, the better. "All built-up frost does is make the freezer work harder to remove heated air since it acts as an insulator," she says. And the more frost, the more there is for the freezer to cool. Pointlessly. So, if defrosting is in your hands, and not a built-in function of the refrigerator, do it, she says, "when the ice is no more than one-quarter inch thick." It won't take long, you won't have to tiptoe to the sink with an overflowing water tray, and you'll end up with more storage space in the freezer and less chance of uncovering meatballs you froze so long ago, they're unusable.

Speaking of which, you can avoid the buy-it, freeze-it, forget-it, toss-it syndrome, she says, by keeping a list on the freezer door, or nearby, of the date and place you stow something, for example: 1-1-81, veal patties, rear left-hand corner. "That way," says Ms. Hopwood, "you won't go out and duplicate and you'll use what you have within good storage time."

Do take advantage of the space you've got in the freezer to stock up on sale items, or, if you don't fancy a six-month supply of sliced zucchini, store water at least. "Freeze ice cubes for future use so that you're not paying for cooling empty space," she says.

And, when you go on vacation, give the refrigerator a rest too. "Use up your perishables (milk, vegetables, etc.) before you leave. Then follow the instruction manual and turn down the controls on the refrigerator," she says. "It doesn't have to operate at the usual temperature while you're away and, at a higher temperature, it won't run that often."

It doesn't have to run at all if you're going away for weeks, and you've got an independent freezer or a neighbor with a gigantic one. "Consider turning off the refrigerator entirely. Then, wash it out, put an open box of baking soda on the shelf, and prop the door open so that whatever moisture is left dries out and you don't return to a musty smell."

While the door is open, check the gasket, that perimeter of insulation that runs around the rim. "Be sure it's clean," Ms. Hopwood says. "Any build-up of soil or spills will prevent the gasket from adhering and making a good seal when the door is closed. Cold air will then leak out causing the refrigerator to work harder. You can test how well the gasket works, incidentally, by putting a lighted lightbulb attached to an extension cord inside the refrigerator and closing the door over the cord. If you can see light escaping, that proves there are gaps and the gasket isn't adhering as well as it should."

If it occurs to you that there's already a lighted bulb inside the refrigerator you can use for this test, remember — that light goes out when the door is closed.

Next, Ms. Hopwood says, understand that it's not only how your refrigerator works that counts, but where. "If possible," she says, "keep your refrigerator away from the range because they work at cross-purposes. The range is there to heat, the refrigerator to cool, and when they're adjacent, the refrigerator ends up with the brunt of the work."

But unless you're furnishing from scratch, you're probably stuck with the refrigerator where you found it — next to the range. In that case, she says, "Always try to use the burners farthest away from the refrigerator. And always cover saucapans. Foods will cook faster because the steam will be trapped inside and you'll be able to turn the heat off sooner."

Finally, if what you're cooking calls for preheating

NEW SUCCOTASH

We varied the texture of this old-time dish and our tasters applauded the change.

10-ounce package frozen large green lima beans
8-ounce can creamstyle yellow corn
2 tablespoons butter
Salt and pepper to taste

In a medium saucepan cook the lima beans according to package directions but omit salt; drain, saving liquid. Puree beans and 3 tablespoons of the saved liquid in a food processor; return to the clean saucepan. Add the corn, butter and salt and pepper; reheat. Makes 4 servings.

Cuticle care

To have your nails grow long and lovely, be careful how you treat your cuticles. Never cut cuticles — injuring them might lead to infection, or damage the sensitive nail-growth center beneath. If you wish, apply cuticle remover, then gently push them back with an orangewood stick wrapped in cotton. Hangnails are the result of dry cuticles. Clip the hangnails very carefully and start using good hand or cuticle cream regularly.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble:

- (1) Paresthesias (see above)
- (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints
- (4) Numbness in the arms or hands
- (5) Loss of sleep
- (6) Stiffness in the neck
- (7) Pain between the shoulders
- (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back
- (9) Numbness or pain in the legs

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals, call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Bell elected

Brenda Bell, utilization review coordinator at Highland General Hospital, has been elected as district director of the Texas Society of Utilization Review Coordinators.

Mrs. Bell will be installed at the professional organization's annual meeting in early June at Dallas, according to Nick Kupferle II, interim administrator for Highland General.

As utilization review coordinator, Mrs. Bell works directly with physicians in reviewing patient medical records to assure the patient is receiving effective care in the most appropriate setting (hospital, nursing home, home health care, etc.).

She also works in conjunction with nursing and social services in "discharge planning" to assist the patient with referral to needed services following discharge from the hospital.

Dear Abby

Bowlegs' saga no straight-line plot

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You were way off base with your answer to the fellow who was bowlegged and miserable. It was no help to tell him to thank God he had legs! What about people who want nose jobs? Do you tell them to thank God they have noses?

Ruth Gordon, the actress, appeared not long ago on a talk show and told the world she had had surgery to correct her bowed legs. She even lifted her skirt to display the results! Then there was a 6-foot model on TV named Veruschka who thought her feet were too long, so she had an operation to shorten her toes.

Sarah Miles came on the Johnny Carson show and told how she was self-conscious because her ears stuck out, so she had a plastic surgeon pin them closer to her head.

That bowlegged fellow doesn't have to "accept" his deformity. He should find an orthopedic surgeon who will straighten his legs.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter signed BOWLEGGED AND MISERABLE. There is a surgical procedure called "Coventry osteotomy" in which the bone is cut below the knee, a section is removed, and the bone is then reattached to straighten the leg. The procedure is done separately, with approximately nine months between each leg operation.

If you were to research this particular operation with an orthopedic surgeon, you would find that it is done for reasons other than cosmetic — to prevent degenerative arthritis in later years, for example.

E.A.W. IN L.A.

DEAR READERS: So now you have it, friends. Mother Nature is definitely not the last word. You don't have to go through life bowlegged, knock-kneed or pigeon-toed. The miracles of modern medicine have changed all that. You sure could have fooled me!

DEAR ABBY: I own my own business and I hire many high school students for part-time work. Abby, you cannot imagine how many parents call me and ask if I have a job for Ann or Tom!

If Ann and Tom want to work, I think they should do the asking. Having Mama or Dad ask for them doesn't say much for the child's initiative.

I feel it is important for young people to work and I give as many of them a break as I can, but I have made it a policy never to hire anyone whose mother or father calls and asks me to give the child a job. If a boy or girl is old enough to draw a salary, he or she is old enough to ask for a job. I am sure other employers share my viewpoint. And if this letter helps to wake up just one teen-ager, it will have been worth the time I took to write it.

E. IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR E.: I'm glad you wrote. I'm sure you woke up more than just one teen-ager. (And a few parents, too.)

Household hints

- A dash of nutmeg gives a subtle flavor to beef, noodles and meat loaf.
- Plain yogurt seasoned with chives or onion and Worcestershire sauce makes a nice dip for raw vegetables.
- When going to a garage sale or an antique auction take along a magnifying glass in order to see flaws, cracks or marks.
- Try oregano, marjoram or thyme to season raw and cooked vegetables.
- A good meat tenderizer can be made in the home by combining half a cup of vinegar with one cup of beef broth.

DISAPPOINTED IN YOU

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: I certainly shot from the hip on that one. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: This is 1981, and so much progress is being made in the field of medicine and surgery that medical students are being told that only one-fourth of what they will learn in medical school today will be up-to-date medical procedures by the time they graduate!

Bowed legs can be straightened out by "Rolfing." Many movie stars have had it done. One of Charlie's Angels appeared on the Merv Griffin show and said she used to have bowed legs, but now she has two of the straightest legs you could ever hope to find — thanks to Rolfing!

I'm sorry you will have to eat crow on this one, but you gave the bowlegged kid a bum steer.

ANTHONY S. PEPPE JR.

DEAR ANTHONY: I wrote to Paul Solomon, associate producer of the Merv Griffin show, and asked him about "Rolfing." His reply:

DEAR ABBY: How can you call yourself a Californian and know nothing about Rolfing? Have you also not heard about the isolation tanks that feature 800 pounds of epsom salts?

Rolfing is a technique of muscle massage and manipulation, developed by one Dr. Ida P. Rolf. She claimed all kinds of miraculous transformations, and I'm sure bowlegs was among them.

PAUL

DEAR PAUL: And now I am informed by orthopedic specialists who tell me that bowed legs should be straightened not only for cosmetic reasons but for therapeutic reasons. Read on:

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

June 2, 1981

This coming year you are likely to become involved in many things which you've never tried in the past. The months ahead should prove both exciting and rewarding.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Situations where you assume a leadership role, or at least a personal hand in managing, should turn out rather well. Take the long view. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are launching something new, it's best that you talk about it to as few people as possible. Too many cooks could spoil the soup.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be called upon at this time to assume more responsibilities or a larger role in a social organization. It should prove interesting.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something could occur today which might encourage you to aim for a higher goal than you previously sought. Don't be afraid to raise your sights.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Take into consideration the long-range effects of any important decisions you make today. Tomorrows could matter more than the present.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good time to make those changes you feel should better your lot in life. Don't be too hesitant to shift gears if your plans are well thought out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Better understandings are now likely with two persons with whom you've had problems in the past. One may even develop into a staunch ally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could begin to experience, as of today, substantial improvement where your work or career is concerned. Make the most of your opportunities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Unattached Aquarians could be entering into a very interesting new cycle. If Cupid overlooked you before, he could try to make it up to you at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Let go of things which have caused you frustration or disappointment. Lady Luck tends to favor you now, concerning new beginnings.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) New ideas you get today for projects or enterprises should not be treated lightly. Your fertile imagination could be sprouting promising growth.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) That channel for a second source of earning or income which you've been hoping to develop could start to open at this time. Be on the alert.

Giants whip Astros, 6-1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nolan Ryan is one walk short of Early Wynn's all-time big league record, and the San Francisco Giants consider themselves lucky to have faced the pitcher on one of his wildest days.

"Usually, against Ryan, if you give up one run it means you could lose 1-0," said Tom Griffin, the winning pitcher Sunday as the Giants downed Ryan and the Houston Astros 6-1.

Griffin allowed five hits over 6 2-3 innings, coming back strong from a horrible outing last week which, because of a merciful rainstorm in Cincinnati, is not on his record. He did not retire a batter last Tuesday night and was charged with five runs but the game was called off in the third inning with the Reds ahead 6-0.

Ryan got no such break Sunday, allowing five runs and being charged with six walks and three wild pitches in seven innings. His career walk total is now 1,774, and his strikeout total which ranks third in baseball history was increased Sunday by only four, to 3,167.

The right-hander with four no-hitters and 45 shutouts to his credit did not allow a hit until the fourth inning. But he walked three batters, committed a balk and threw a wild pitch in the first to present the Giants with a 1-0 lead.

"He was having a tough time early with his curveball," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "The Candlestick Park wind might have had something to do with it, but that happens to him early on other occasions, too."

Ryan, before Sunday, had righted himself and survived early wildness problems. His earned run average was 0.98, best in the National League, but it is now 1.60.

"He can still overpower you, even when he has a rough start. I was thankful we got that first run," said Giants Manager Frank Robinson.

The Astros tied the score in the fourth with three straight hits off Griffin, 4-3, but the Giants went ahead in the bottom of the inning on Mike Sadek's two-run double, the first solid hit off Ryan, also 4-3.

"For a minute there, I thought I was going to be able to add Ryan to my gallery," said Sadek, the backup catcher with a .227 lifetime batting average and five career home runs.

He pointed to the pictures, on bubble game cards pasted over his locker, of the five men who have thrown him him home run pitches.

But Sadek's double, although well hit, was a line drive which fell far short of the right field fence. Jack Clark doubled to the same spot in the seventh to open a two-run rally.

The Giants open a three-game series tonight against Cincinnati and the Astros move to San Diego, where Bob Knepper, the new league ERA leader with his 1.03 mark, pitches a series opener Tuesday night.

Bowlers meet tonight

Pampa Men's Bowling Association meet at 6:30 p.m. tonight at Harvester Lanes to discuss past business and hear a financial report.

The Association will also elect new officers and board of directors for 1981-82.

Rangers bow to Mariners, 5-3

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Dan Meyer rapped four hits and Joe Simpson knocked in three runs with three hits, including his first home run of the season, pacing the Seattle Mariners' 15-hit attack and their 5-3 victory over the Texas Rangers Sunday night.

Meyer collected three singles and a double, the first time this season a Mariner has logged four hits in a game. Simpson's output included two singles in addition to his homer. Meyer was hitting .208 before Sunday's game and Simpson's average was .212.

The Mariners chased Texas starter Ferguson Jenkins, 3-4, when they batted around in a three-run sixth inning.

Davis-Gikas capture mixed tennis title

Joe Davis and Jeanette Gikas of Pampa won the mixed doubles championship Sunday at the T Bar M Memorial Day Tennis Tournament.

Davis and Gikas defeated Jack Fife and Lisa Strickland, 5-7, 6-4 and 6-0 in the finals.

Stacey Foster, who was recently named the head tennis coach at Pampa High School, won the men's singles title with a 6-3, 6-1 over David Webb.

Kay Haverlah and Ruby Adeock of Pampa won the women's consolation championship with a 7-5, 6-1 win over Scott and McGuire.

Tri-State rodeo finals opens this week in Amarillo Coliseum

The Tri-State High School Rodeo Association's 10th annual Championship Finals are scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday in the Tri-State Fairgrounds Coliseum in Amarillo.

Pampa's Jo Linda Lowrey is second behind Claude Renee Rutherford in the individual points standings. Rutherford, the 1980-81 Miss Tri-State Rodeo, has 184 points, while Lowrey has 132 in the girls' division.

Pampa leads the team race with 247 points, while Claude and Guyton follow with 217 and 211 points, respectively.

The top 15 competitors in each event through the regular season qualify for the three-night rodeo. After Thursday and Friday's go-rounds, the field for each event will be cut to the top 10 competitors.

Performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. each night of the rodeo competition.

Pampa competed in a tri-state rodeo at Guymon, Okla. this past weekend.

Lena Stewart took second (4,714) in breakaway roping while Lowrey placed third (5,053) in the same event. Stewart also took fourth in goat tying (10,524).

In the boys' division, Lee Lowrey finished fourth in bareback with 59 points.

Basketball camp to open

Basketball camps for both boys and girls will be offered next week at the Pampa Youth and Community Center.

Pampa High head coach Garland Nichols will be camp director.

Session dates are June 8-12, 15-19 and 22-26 from 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Youngsters between 8 and 13 years old may enroll now at the center.

A youngster may enroll for either one or all three sessions. Enrollment fee is $35.

Each youngster will receive individual instruction, a t-shirt, a free swim and refreshments.

Hurricane warnings are going unheeded

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Forecaster Neil Frank is something of a latter-day Paul Revere, delivering more than 100 speeches a year warning people about hurricanes...

When Hurricane David came within a few miles of the heavily populated Florida Gold Coast in 1979, thousands of elderly residents in Miami Beach fled their apartments in a chaotic evacuation that revealed glaring deficiencies in Dade County's disaster plan.

When you have a rare event like a hurricane, it's the natural tendency of human beings to deny the danger," Frank said. "They say 'It's just not going to hit me.'"

People don't believe that a hurricane, with winds up to 200 mph, would strike their homes or push ashore huge waves that could destroy foundations of beachfront condominiums, he said.

Despite the odds, Frank and civil defense officials along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts still are worried. They say residents in the most vulnerable areas never have felt the fury of a major storm.

Lawmakers pass anti-scalping bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ticket scalpers will be looking over their shoulders for the police if Gov. Bill Clements signs a bill passed by the Texas Legislature on Sunday.

Although some representatives said it was anti-fair enterprise, House members sent the measure to Clements' desk by accepting Senate changes.

The Senate revisions, in fact, were major ones, broadening the bill to cover not only tickets to high school and college athletic events but also professional sports and entertainment.

A person who sells high school or college sports tickets for more than the face value could get up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Scalping tickets to professional sports and entertainment events could draw the scalper a fine of $50 to $200 on first offense and up to six months in jail and $1,000 fine if convicted a second time.

Rep. Bill Blythe, D-Houston, said owners of the Houston Oilers, Rockets and Astros, the Astrodome, the Dallas Cowboys and the Texas Rangers all endorsed the bill.

When scalpers corner the market "only the rich can afford tickets," Blythe said.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, sponsor of the bill, called scalping a "very low profession."

He said scalpers bought blocks of tickets to a Dolly Parton performance at the Houston Rodeo and Fat Stock Show and sold them for $20 apiece, three times their face value.

"That's the kind of abuse we are trying to correct," Bryant said.

Rep. David London, D-Bonham, who has acknowledged selling Super Bowl tickets to a man who offered $175 apiece in a newspaper advertisement, said the bill was "against free enterprise."

"Nobody is forced to buy a ticket," London said.

He said performers at concerts often receive blocks of 100 tickets to sell at inflated prices in lieu of "up-front money."

"If you vote to accept this bill, you will be voting against Willie Nelson. How can you do that?" London said.

Rep. Bob Leonard, R-Port Worth, called scalping a "victimless crime," but Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, said the victims are fans who cannot get tickets when scalpers corner the market and charge excessive prices.
