Martin surrenders to authorities for perjury

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — State Rep. Mike Martin, who is accused of lying to a grand jury when he denied he staged his own shooting, has surrendered to authorities while maintaining his innocence and predicting his case would never go to trial.

The Republican legislator, a shooting victim who at various times said he was the target of unknown assailants, satanic hit men and political enemies, was indicted Thursday in Austin for aggravated perjury.

"I will probably ask the court to assign me an attorney because I do not have the funds to hire one myself. I just hope they will give me a thoroughly good criminal lawyer," Martin said just before he surrendered to a Gregg County constable Thursday night.

Martin, who faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine if convicted, was taken before Justice of the Peace Robert Malcolm Thursday night and then released on $5,000 bond.

The Longview lawmaker said he would plead innocent and predicted if his case went to court it would take two years with "mistrials, hung juries and appeals." But he added that he doubted he would ever be tried.

"Every attorney I've talked to has said it won't go to court," said Martin.

"If the district attorney wants to spend another quarter of a million dollars to have the horrible preacher Mike Martin put in jail or fined remains to be seen," said Martin. "I would think they would come to me and ask me to resign. It seems the practical thing to do rather than spend all that money on a trial."

Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle said he has no intention now of asking for Martin's resignation in a plea bargain. But he added, "Things change."

Martin, 29, was wounded in the left arm by shotgun fire in the early morning hours of July 31 near the camper-trailer where he lived in Austin during the special legislative session.

When he was released from the hospital after a 30-hour stay he said he had no idea who shot him or why. Later he told of being the target of the Guardian Angels of the Underworld, a satanic cult he said he had information about.

That story was undercut by Charles Goff, Martin's cousin, who said Martin plotted the shooting in order to gain publicity. Goff said Martin paid him and offered him a job to fire the shotgun in a "controlled hit."

Assistant District Attorney Allen Hill said in Austin that Travis County grand jurors alleged Martin lied to them on Aug. 25 when he said he "did not plan and stage the shooting and wounding of himself."

Earle said, "For reasons known best to himself, we have alleged he arranged his own shooting. ... Because of the allegations he made and the position of public faith he occupied, there is an enormous amount of public interest in what happened to him."

"Since he told conflicting stories, he was taken before the grand jury so the public's right to know what happened would be satisfied. ... We have alleged that in that appearance before the grand jury, he lied. ... The thing that typifies the entire episode is he lied. ... His mistake was telling a lie," said Earle.

"I'm innocent until proven guilty or at least that is the way it is supposed to be in America, but it appears politicians are guilty until proven innocent," Martin said Thursday night.

The prosecutor said there was no felony committed at the trailer park; it is not illegal to have yourself shot. Martin, who ignored one subpoena and avoided another before testifying, became a felony defendant when he allegedly lied to the grand jurors, Earle said.

If Martin had told them he planned the shooting, he would have faced only a misdemeanor charge — perhaps for making a false report to police, Earle said. Pleading the Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination also could have saved Martin from a perjury charge, the prosecutor said.

Earle said the investigation of the shooting is over, but Hill said he is looking into Martin's financial affairs. The Austin American-Statesman reported Thursday that Martin took a corporate contribution, which is illegal.

Earle said another possible charge — insurance fraud — was ruled out because, "it is my understanding he filed a claim but payment was not made under the claim."

Martin, a carpenter and building contractor, was a political unknown when he decided to run against incumbent Rep. Jimmy Mankins, D-Longview, last year.

Earthquake rolls through Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A strong earthquake rolled through Los Angeles today, shaking the downtown area for about 15 seconds. There were no immediate reports of damage or injury.

The earthquake was felt as far away as Santa Barbara, 90 miles northwest of Los Angeles, and San Diego, 125 miles to the south.

The National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said a preliminary reading showed the quake had a magnitude of 5.8 on the Richter scale. It was the strongest earthquake to hit Los Angeles since one that measured 6.4 on the Richter scale killed 65 people in February 1971.

The University of California at Berkeley about 400 miles from Los Angeles reported a Richter reading of 5.5, and the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena, a Los Angeles suburb, reported a Richter reading of 5.1 on its seismograph.

Geophysicist Waverly Person at the Colorado information center said the quake was centered in the San Pedro Channel off Long Beach.

Joe Reinich, a lifeguard at Cabrillo Beach, about 15 miles south of Los Angeles, said, "I was sitting here and I thought what the heck is going on. It's like someone was holding my chair and shaking it."

The emergency telephone system at police headquarters in Los Angeles was briefly disrupted by callers who jammed the switchboard trying to get information about the quake.

All Amtrak trains between San Diego and Los Angeles were halted temporarily while authorities inspected bridges along the route.

"We were sitting right here in the office and everything started shaking like anything — chandeliers, signs, everything," said Los Angeles Police Department Officer Stan Leavitt. "Then the phone calls started."

A spokeswoman in the Orange County sheriff's department said, "It was shaking quite a bit. It was a pretty good one."

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

Reagan is ready to move on defense, spending issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, back at the White House after a month-long California vacation, is ready to move "on a fast freight" and make tough decisions on defense and domestic spending, his aides say.

Reagan, who left town on a triumphant note after getting his budget and tax cuts through Congress, returns to find more cuts needed to keep persistent high interest rates from wrecking his goal of balancing the budget by 1984.

The president's work list also will include next week's visit by Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Senate confirmation hearings for Supreme Court nominee Sandra D.

O'Connor and the fight for congressional approval to sell sophisticated radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

"We'll be on a fast freight, beginning next week," deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters on the return trip Thursday aboard Air Force One.

Questions about Reagan's work habits broke into the open during his vacation, with a Newsweek magazine report that he spends only a few hours a day on the job, neglects his homework and exhibits a short attention span on some issues. White House aides dismissed the criticism as coming from a few disenchanted staff members.

"I think next week's schedule will show he is working hard," Speakes said Thursday.

During an overnight stop in Chicago on his way home from California, Reagan told Republican supporters, "I've been taking that vacation at the ranch — part vacation, you know the job goes with you — but I've been surprised at all the things that I read that I've decided."

"I haven't decided any of them," he said. "That's what I'm going back to Washington for."

Speakes said Reagan's list of decisions to be made next week includes the amount and specific areas of new spending reductions by the Pentagon and other federal departments for the fiscal year that starts next month. The 1982 budget ceilings passed by Congress before the August vacation slashed $35.2 billion from social programs, but Reagan ordered a new wave of cuts this week in an effort to keep the federal deficit from ballooning beyond $42.5 billion.

Reagan plans to set out his expectations for each department at a Cabinet meeting scheduled for Thursday, Speakes said.

Key Reagan advisers appear at odds over scaling down planned increases in military spending to make further cuts in social programs politically palatable.

White House chief of state James A. Baker III said earlier this week that Reagan is prepared to cut $20 billion to $30 billion from the defense budget in 1983 and 1984.

But Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger rejected that suggestion Thursday and said Reagan had told him no such thing.

Brinkley to retire from NBC after 38 years

NEW YORK (AP) — David Brinkley, who brought a distinctive delivery to evening television news for a quarter of a century, will retire next month, NBC announced today.

Brinkley's retirement will end a 38-year career with NBC.

The NBC announcement gave no reason for the unexpected retirement. Brinkley, 61, could not be reached for comment immediately.

The announcement came as a surprise. The network as recently as Tuesday had promoted the second-season premiere of "NBC Magazine with David Brinkley," the magazine show that the veteran correspondent had anchored since leaving the "Nightly News" last fall.

"Brinkley's a good draw," Thomas Wolzien, the program's executive producer, told The Associated Press in an interview last month. "He's been one of the strengths of the network for years. On this show, he's our identity."

It was not immediately clear whether the decision to retire had been Brinkley's alone. The magazine was not successful in attracting an audience in its first season, opposite CBS' super-successful "Dallas." The program is scheduled to move to an earlier 8 p.m. EDT Friday time period on Sept. 11.

Walter Cronkite, the CBS "Evening News" anchor for nearly two decades and perhaps the only broadcast journalist more widely recognized than Brinkley, left his familiar post earlier this year. He has continued, however, as anchor for the network's new science series, "Walter Cronkite's Universe."

Brinkley achieved TV stardom after he was teamed the late Chet Huntley for the 1956 political conventions. "The Huntley-Brinkley Report" on NBC was, in the mid-1960s, dominant in the dinner-time news field.

Huntley retired in 1970, and Brinkley was teamed with other correspondents before giving up the anchor position for regular commentary.

He became co-anchor of the "Nightly News" once more, after the 1976 political conventions, teaming with John Chancellor. Chancellor has announced he will step down as anchor in the spring.

LOUIS DELAMARE

French ambassador slain in Beirut ambush

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Three gunmen ambushed and killed French Ambassador Louis Delamare today, pumping seven bullets into his head, chest and stomach, a police spokesman said.

A doctor at Barbir Hospital said the ambassador died of his wounds 15 minutes after arriving there.

No one made any immediate claim of responsibility for the ambush.

The police spokesman, who declined to be identified, said Delamare, a 59-year-old career diplomat and father of five, was ambushed as he returned from lunch by three gunmen packing a machine gun and two pistols.

The assailants leaped from a white BMW car as the ambassador's Peugeot 404 four-door sedan approached the entrance to his mansion in mostly Moslem Beirut, the police spokesman said. Delamare was returning from lunch.

"Delamare sustained seven gunshot wounds in the head, chest and abdomen. The assailants raced back to their car. The (gunmen's) driver had

Pampa elderly receive tax reprieve from school

Pampa's elderly, shocked by the large increase in the assessment of their property, have a reprieve in the form a clause in Senate Bill 621 freezing the tax for persons over 65 at the rate assessed at the time the exemption was applied for.

Charles Rand, city school tax assessor collector, today said the school district currently allows a $5,000 homestead exemption and a $10,000 exemption for persons over 65 years old off the market value of the residence homestead.

As stipulated by state law, Rand said,

"If the senior citizen signs up for the exemption each year, then the school taxes owed in any one year on the house and yard cannot be greater than the amount of taxes owed on the first year the property owner qualified for the exemption."

He said this clause is called a tax freeze.

As an example, Rand explained that a person who had applied for the over 65 exemption in 1980 and had his property valued at $14,000 that year would have been charged no taxes because of the $15,000 exemption.

"Say this year his house was reappraised at $32,000. He would still pay zero taxes because of the tax freeze," Rand said.

The city school tax assessor collector said this freeze applied only to taxes levied by the Pampa Independent School District and did not include the City of Pampa's taxes.

"I talked with the mayor (Mayor H. R. Thompson) yesterday. He said they were considering an increase in the 65 or older exemption from $7,500 to $15,000 for 1981," Rand said.

The tax assessor collector said the city would be able to reconsider the 65 and over exemption each year.

The school tax freeze, however, is final, he said.

Rand said he did not know how many persons had been in the tax office to discuss the reappraisal of his property. "I haven't seen the outrage you have," he commented.

He said he had two appraisers working full time to discuss property appraisal questions, but that they had had some vacant periods of time.

The Board of Equalization, who will give the final okay on property reappraisal figures, begins meeting Sept. 21 at 8 a.m. in the school board meeting room at Carver Education Center, 321 W. Albert.

Banks cut ties that endanger tax savings on new certificates

By The Associated Press
Stymied by the Internal Revenue Service, the banking industry is hurrying to cut the strings that tied high-interest investment opportunities to the All Savers tax-free certificates that go on sale next month. The IRS said Thursday that incentives offered by some banks and savings and loan institutions to draw investments in the certificates would jeopardize their tax-free status. Some banks had offered depositors short-term interest of 40 percent or more if they would deposit funds that would automatically be rolled over into an All Savers Certificate on Oct. 1, when they first become available. The certificates are expected to yield about 12.6 percent tax-free. The IRS said that when the bonuses — earned in "repurchase" agreements with the banks — and the certificates were considered as a single package, the interest exceeded the limit imposed by Congress when it created the All Savers Certificates. The IRS said banks and S&Ls could continue to offer the incentives only if depositors were given a "reasonable" chance to withdraw their funds before they are transferred to an All Savers Certificate. Some banks that offered the incentives had already allowed the withdrawals. "We're going to notify all those that purchased repurchase agreements that they have the option of not going in to the All Savers Certificates," said Victor Rosen, vice president of First Federal Savings & Loan in Philadelphia. Rosen said he did not know exactly what kind of interest would be offered to future buyers. He said he was awaiting clarification of the IRS ruling. Chase Manhattan Bank in New York — which offered to pay interest on repurchase agreements at an annual rate of 40 percent until Oct. 1 — said that people who had signed up for the offer would get their 40 percent without being required to re-invest in an All Savers Certificate. The offer was withdrawn Monday after the IRS' initial questions about the investment packages. From now until Oct. 1, Chase said, it will offer an annual interest rate of 17 percent on the repurchase agreements. There will be no tie between the repurchase agreements and the All Savers Certificates. Congress created the All Savers Certificates when it passed President Reagan's tax cut. The certificates are intended to encourage savings. The first $1,000 of interest for individuals or $2,000 for couples is free of all federal taxes. There is no minimum deposit. The interest rate was mandated to be equal to 70 percent of the interest rate on one-year Treasury bills — 12.61 percent at current market levels.

Communists warn Poles of strong defense of socialism

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania, in a tough statement in advance of Solidarity's first national congress, rejected the union's demand to hire and fire plant managers. He warned that the government will use "any means necessary to defend socialism." "The party as a whole cannot be pushed to the brink, because it is the leading force of the working class, the nation, a force carrying historical responsibility for the fate of the country," Kania said in a speech closing a two-day meeting of the party's Central Committee. Kania said the party cannot give up its right to choose the personnel who manage factories, mines and other state-owned enterprises. "The authorities will seize any means necessary to defend socialism," he warned. The government's chief labor negotiator, Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski, charged at a news conference that the growing radicalism of some labor leaders posed a threat of new conflict. But he pledged to keep communications between the government and Solidarity open. Observers suggested that the news conference was called for the government to outline its position before the union's congress opens Saturday in Gdansk. The congress, to elect new leaders and formulate policy for the coming year, is being held under the shadow of Soviet military maneuvers beginning today off Poland's northeast land and sea frontiers.

The Soviet press gave an unusual amount of publicity to the maneuvers, and Western analysts in Moscow described them as "political saber rattling." But the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said they were "planned many months ago," and "there is nothing extraordinary about them." They were not viewed in Warsaw as an attempt to intimidate the union congress. Solidarity rejected a government proposal to give enlarged coverage of the congress if the union canceled its threats to strike the media. Solidarity leader Lech Walesa told a news conference the union will "all possible means" give it by law to get the regular TV and radio time and newspaper columns that it is demanding.

Officials push back date of closing of Cuban refugee center

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - Federal officials have pushed back the date for closing the Fort Chaffee Cuban refugee relocation center. In February, officials said they hoped to have the remaining refugees resettled in six months or August. On Thursday, Reagan administration officials said Chaffee might be closed before winter. The refugee population was to drop to about 625 today with the transfer of some refugees to group living projects in other states. There were 641 refugees Thursday. At its peak, Chaffee housed about 19,000. The base opened in May 1980 to handle some of the Cubans from the Freedom Flight. Barbara Pardue, Gov. Frank White's press aide, said Thursday that White is satisfied with the progress in closing Chaffee. Miss Pardue said in July that White wanted the refugees out by the end of August. She said the announcement was not a delay. "We know that they're doing everything they can," she said. "Any setting of deadlines sets further problems." Unless there is a major problem, Miss Pardue said Thursday she expects the refugees to be transferred by the first of the year. She said she believed the White House would honor its promise to relocate the Cubans. "The commitment is there and it's a real commitment to close Chaffee." Former Gov. Bill Clinton said Thursday in a telephone interview that he was not surprised that the White House had not transferred the refugees. "The Reagan administration is sort of doing what they please with the fort. I'm not at all surprised. It's typical of the way federal bureaucracy operates," he said. Meanwhile, a delegation of Glasgow, Mont., residents plans to visit Fort Chaffee before a final commitment is made to support location of a permanent resettlement center at an old Air Force base there.

About 450 Cubans from Chaffee as well as Haitians at other centers in the country and other aliens would be processed at such a facility. A 25-member citizens' committee recommended Wednesday night that the Valley Industrial Park Board approve a federal proposal to open a center there. "Unless we see something contrary at Fort Chaffee, I would guess it would pass and be approved, but the vote could be marginal," said Don Beckman, industrial park manager. Beckman said economics would be a consideration. Federal officials say 200 to 300 jobs could be created locally by a relocation center. Beckman said there are about 400 unemployed residents in the town of 4,500. Hospitalization for refugees also is to be studied further. Officials want 10 beds in the local hospital reserved for refugees. The committee wants to ensure that Glasgow's medical facilities won't be taxed with refugees.

Booby-trapped car kills 20 outside Syrian Air Force center

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Islamic fundamentalist foes of Syrian President Hafez Assad's minority Moslem sect are suspected of setting off a car bomb outside the air force headquarters in Damascus that killed at least 20 people and wounded 50. The booby-trapped car exploded Thursday morning in a crowded section of the Syrian capital, cutting down passing pedestrians and motorists with a spray of shrapnel, according to Western diplomats returning to Beirut from Damascus. They said a man parked the French-made Peugeot 504 in a lot in front of the headquarters, got out and started running. Ministry guards ordered him to stop and opened fire when he kept going. The man was killed instantly and seconds later the car bomb exploded. The air force center and the adjacent al-Sharq hospital were heavily damaged but there were no casualties in either building, according to one diplomat and other travelers from the Syrian capital. It was the second major bombing reported in Damascus in less than a month. The other one at the prime minister's headquarters on Aug. 8 also involved a booby-trapped vehicle, according to Western diplomats. It shattered a conference room where the Cabinet was scheduled to meet, and the official SANA news agency said three employees of the ministry were killed. Both bombings were believed to be the work of the Moslem Brotherhood, the outlawed Sunni Moslem organization that has been fighting a two-year-old terror campaign against Assad's pro-Moscow Baath Socialist Party regime. The Brotherhood claims Assad has packed the upper echelons of the government and the armed forces with members of his Alawite Moslem sect. About 70 percent of Syria's Moslems are Sunnis and only about 14 percent are Alawites.

Couple charged in mother's death

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - Authorities have said they will seek extradition of a couple from Texas on charges stemming from the 1974 hammer-knife slaying of the man's 64-year-old mother. Assistant District Attorney Jerry Truster said first-degree murder charges were filed last week against Robert Joseph Zani, 37, and his wife, Irma Serrano Zani, 34, in the death of Gladys E. Zani. The pair is being held in San Antonio on a variety of charges, including a murder count in the 1979 shooting death of real estate dealer Julian Dess, 73, whose decomposed body was found buried on Padre Island. Dress's body was found in a shallow grave uncovered by coyotes four days after his disappearance.

Tulsa police detectives said they received information the mother's body was dismembered and "scattered between Tulsa and Eureka Springs, Ark." When authorities were contacted in 1974 about the woman's disappearance, they learned her Social Security checks were still being cashed and the case was closed. The case was re-opened in May after Tulsa police were contacted by Texas authorities who had arrested the Zanis in connection with the Dress slaying. Friends of Zani's mother apparently became worried when the woman was reported missing six years ago shortly before a scheduled vacation trip to Alaska.

Sadat sweeps up political foes

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - Opponents of President Anwar Sadat charged today that he was using Moslem-Christian religious strife as the pretext for a sweeping roundup of his political foes. Police on Thursday arrested politicians, lawyers, journalists and religious figures and banned six publications in what Western diplomats said was the broadest sweep against opposition groups in the 10 years of Sadat's authoritarian rule. The semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said 535 people who were "blinded by fanaticism and religious extremism" were arrested. The government news agency said they "participated or helped indirectly in the religious strife" between Coptic Christians and devout Moslems that has taken 75 lives since July. It said "national unity" was threatened. Al-Ahram said those arrested included "a minority of political figures who rode the wave of the religious strife, and also 119 known criminals." Opposition leaders claimed Sadat was trying to use the religious issue to mask a crackdown on his political opponents.

Khaled Mohieddin, leader of the Moslem-oriented Progressive Unionist Party, told reporters the people arrested were being used as a scapegoat for the sectarian problems. He said fanatic Moslems and Christians would have been the ones arrested if the crackdown had really been aimed at the strife. Mohieddin, Ibrahim Shiukry of the Socialist Labor Party and other opposition parties denied any connection with the religious strife.

Drug abuse programs reviewed

Panhandle area citizens will have an opportunity to comment on the appropriateness of regional drug abuse and treatment programs during a public session scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 17. The hearing is being sponsored by the Panhandle Health Systems Agency. It will be held in the Amarillo Hospital District Psychiatric Pavilion Main Auditorium beginning at 7 p.m. on the Sept. 17. The pavilion is located at 7201 Evans in the Medical Center complex. The hearing will be conducted by a group of citizen volunteers who serve on the Appropriateness Review Task Force. All comments made during the meeting will become part of the permanent record of the committee and will be used to arrive at findings about drug abuse and treatment programs. This is one of three task forces organized by the Panhandle Health Systems Agency (HSA) to look into various facets of the health industry in the 25 counties of the Panhandle. The other group will be looking into the status of psychiatric care and alcoholism during this month. All three reviews must be completed by Sept. 29.

The findings will be reviewed by the HSA's governing body and then be transferred to the Texas Health Facilities Commission where they will be used for statewide health planning. The reviews being conducted during this month are a continuation of appropriateness investigations that go on year round. During the past 12 months, the agency has sponsored reviews of radiation therapy, cardiac catheterization, open heart surgery, emergency medical services, and end-stage renal disease. The task forces are chaired by Amarillo attorney Pamela House, Dallam County Judge Rebecca King and Dr. Ralph LaVarta, an Amarillo chiropractor.

Pro-lifers rail against O'Connor, abortion

DALLAS (AP) — Anti-abortionists who rallied against President Reagan's appointment of Sandra Day O'Connor to the U.S. Supreme Court warned a frenzied crowd at a right-to-life rally that abortion would be the downfall of America.

A series of impassioned pro-life speakers brought a cheering, clapping, whistling, "amen" shouting crowd to its feet by urging Reagan to withdraw the nomination and asking Mrs. O'Connor to remove herself from consideration.

Anti-ERA crusader Phyllis Schlafly told the crowd Mrs. O'Connor's pro-abortion stand as an Arizona legislator was "out of step with the pro-family, pro-life policies on which the president was elected."

But she said the nomination may be a "blessing in disguise" because it "could arouse the nation to cut down the power of the federal courts."

Mrs. Schlafly said the people should demand that congress restrict the jurisdiction of federal courts over busing, crime, pornography, elections and abortions — issues she said the judiciary has abused.

Moral Majority leader Jerry Falwell, who said he promised Reagan he would withhold public comment on Mrs. O'Connor's nomination until after next week's senate confirmation hearings, issued a stinging condemnation of abortion that was interrupted three times by resounding ovations.

"America's national sin is abortion," Falwell said. "God will judge America, perhaps with Soviet missiles, if we don't put an end to this biological holocaust."

"It's not a question of whether we can stop (abortion), we must stop it or we will cease to exist," he added.

Evangelist James Robison screamed hoarsely and shook his finger at the crowd — estimated at 6,800 by organizers and 4,000 by police — when he echoed Falwell's predictions that God would "judge the wicked" on the issue of abortion.

"If we do not immediately put a stop to the massacre within the womb, I believe the countdown to destruction has begun," he said.

March for Life spokeswoman Nellie Gray kicked off the 12-hour rally by a coalition of conservative Christians by calling the confirmation process for Mrs. O'Connor "fatally flawed."

She said if Reagan and Mrs. O'Connor ignore requests to withdraw the nomination, "the Senate should recognize its duty as an advising and consenting body to bring the important questions about the nomination before the hearings and to get the full facts before the Senate."

Religious Roundtable president Bill McAteer, who organized the rally, said Reagan didn't know all the facts before the nomination because there had been a "coverup" of Mrs. O'Connor's pro-abortion voting record in the Arizona legislature.

Howard Phillips, national director of the Conservative Caucus Inc., said Mrs. O'Connor must be prepared to overturn Roe vs. Wae, which restricted states from legislating against abortion.

Earlier Thursday, about 200 people showed up outside the convention center for a Rally-For-Choice to counter the anti-abortionists.

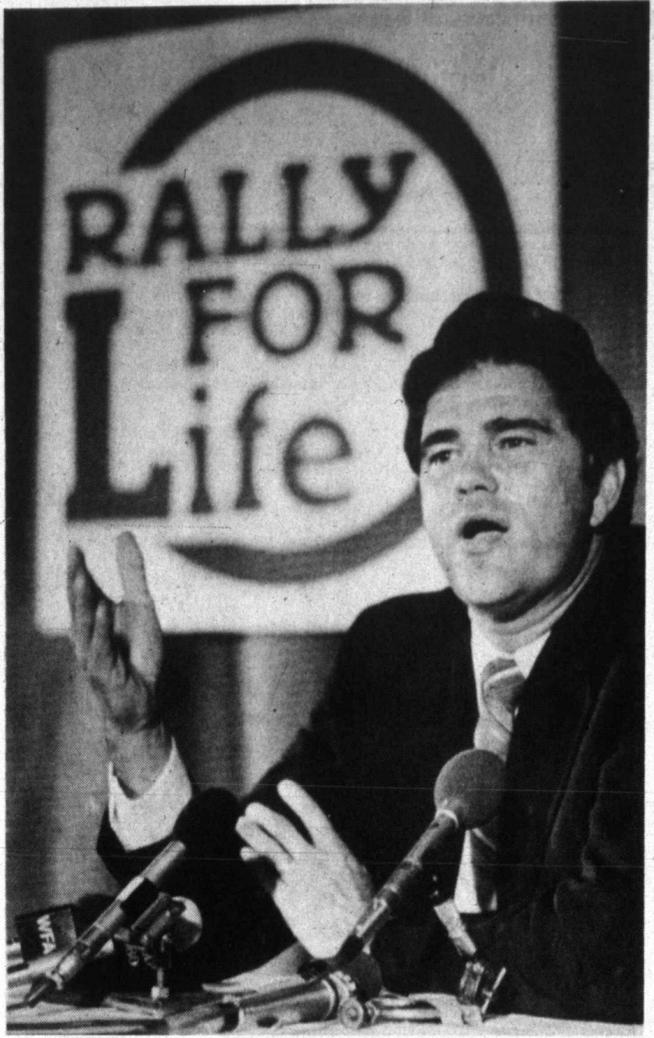

Twelve women dressed in white sheets marched several blocks from near City Hall to the convention center, where the right-to-life rally was held. They chained themselves to a cross for a one-block walk.

Bill Baird, owner of three abortion clinics on the East Coast, told the crowd that the Moral Majority's attempt to block O'Connor's nomination was "tyrannical."

"What has happened to our principles of law and order?" asked Baird, a pro-choice activist from New York City.

Baird interrupted Falwell during a press conference, calling him a "religious bigot" and challenging him to a debate.

The pro-choicers released 2,000 balloons and Charlotte Taft, incoming president of the Texas Abortion Rights Action League, said each balloon represented 50,000 women who should have the choice of bearing their own children.

Redistricting board chops tight schedule

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Legislative Redistricting Board has chopped three weeks off its already tight timetable for redrawing state House and Senate districts by scheduling four days of hearings to begin Sept. 23.

Board members have until Oct. 28 to finish their work, and they aren't scheduled to meet again until the hearings, which will be held in Austin.

Comptroller Bob Bullock, who dominated Thursday's meeting with political banter, suggested hearings weren't necessary because both the House and the Senate had conducted hours — even days — of hearings on redistricting already.

But Attorney General Mark White said three of the five board members were not part of the House or Senate and had not been part of the hearings.

"It might be helpful, it certainly would be for me, to hear what the general public has to say," White said.

Bullock and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong indicated they preferred to start sooner than Sept. 23, but the upcoming Labor Day weekend and the need for ample public notice outweighed their objections.

"The people of Texas look on us as kind of buffoons in a way, and I don't like that," Bullock said, then adding to Attorney General Mark White: "(Gov. Bill) Clements claims you are."

"The quicker we can take care of this, the better off we will be and the better off the people are. ... And the less we let the press know, the better off we are. Don't let the Houston Post know nothing," Bullock went on.

Hobby is president of the Houston Post.

The board was activated after Clements vetoed the Senate redistricting plan passed by the Legislature.

On Monday, the board got another task when the Texas Supreme Court struck down the House redistricting plan, saying it violated a state constitutional prohibition against House district boundaries that unnecessarily split counties.

The comptroller has hired his former deputy, Robert Spellings, as a $10,000 consultant on redistricting. Spellings was instrumental in the drawing of Senate districts by the board in 1971 when he was an aide to Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes.

Speaker Bill Clayton told reporters he had been busy drawing House redistricting maps the past two or three days. He said he hoped to have a plan to recommend in a week or two.

He indicated his plan would be very close to the one passed by the House, saying, "115 votes for HB960 was probably the biggest majority you can get (for redistricting) in the House."

Clayton said following the Supreme Court's decision probably would result in the loss of two rural districts in addition to those swallowed up by urban areas in the House's own plan.

Chagra claims rifle parts are inadmissible

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Attorney Joe Chagra says if the FBI did find parts of a high-powered rifle near Dallas as reported, the evidence could be inadmissible in court as part of the government's case in the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Chagra, who has said he is a "target" of the San Antonio federal grand jury's investigation of Wood's killing, said Thursday that he had not been contacted by his client, convicted killer Charles V. Harrelson, or the FBI about the purported find.

Chagra contended attorney-client privilege could be invoked to prevent introduction of the alleged gun parts as evidence in the case.

Four daily newspapers in San Antonio and Austin reported Thursday that their sources said FBI agents found pieces of the rifle believed to have been used to kill Wood in San Antonio on May 29, 1979.

The rifle parts reportedly were discovered three weeks ago in an area where FBI agents searched unsuccessfully last March, based on a map allegedly copied by Chagra during a visit with Harrelson at the Harris County Jail in Houston. The map allegedly was found during a February search of Chagra's El Paso home.

FBI Agent-in-Charge Jack Lawn of San Antonio would neither confirm nor deny the reports Thursday.

Chagra said reports of the finding "could very well be true, but I don't know about it."

The attorney agreed to discuss the matter by "talking toally in hypotheticals."

"I've never said they found a map in my house," Chagra said. "I'm highly incensed that they came into my house and seized communications with my client. That's privileged information."

"If they did find a map in my house — and I'm not saying they did — the map would have been an attorney-client communication and was illegally obtained. Any evidence derived from that seizure would also be illegally obtained and would be inadmissible in court."

The reports that the gun parts were found came two days after Harrelson's wife was arrested and charged with using a fictitious name to purchase such a weapon at a Dallas gun shop 12 days before Wood was shot in the back.

Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, was jailed in lieu of $500,000 bond on a charge she used the name "Fay L. King of Greenville" to purchase a Weatherby Mark V hunting rifle at the Hunter Bradlee Co. of Dallas.

A spokesman for the rifle's manufacturer, Weatherby Inc. of California, said the gun was capable of firing a .243-caliber bullet, similar to the slug the FBI said killed Wood.

Federal agents have identified Harrelson, his wife and his step-daughter, Teresa Starr Jasper, as targets of the investigation, along with Joe Chagra, his imprisoned brother Jimmy, and Jimmy's wife, Elizabeth.

Death sentence ordered

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Emmett Holloway faced death by lethal injection today following his second conviction in the shooting death of a Longview police officer who stopped an automobile to investigate two robberies.

Holloway, 28, was charged in the Nov. 22, 1977 shooting death of officer Marshall Sowers.

It took a state district court jury 35 minutes Wednesday to find Holloway guilty and 55 minutes Thursday to decide whether he should be put to death by lethal injection or be given a life prison term.

"I did my job and the jury did its job," said District Attorney Rob Foster.

OPINION PAGE

Leave the 'sting' to crooks

The news story reads like a first draft for a new Blues Brothers film, or an updated remake of the Keystone Kops. Local police in Bridgeport, Conn., arrested a fellow trying to bribe a police officer; within minutes they were confronted by FBI undercover agent participating in a "sting" operation designed to find out whether Bridgeport's cops could be bought. It turned out that both principals in the bribery scheme had been wired for sound, making the whole procedure one of the most heavily documented money-passings in criminal history.

While it's amusing to imagine how funny this scene would be in a well-done movie, there's a troubling aspect to this story. The apparent popularity of "sting" operations by law enforcement agencies has within it a disturbing potential for abuse and entrapment.

In questioning the wisdom of the FBI's action in creating a bribery scheme, we're not doubting that there's a good deal of corruption in local government all over the country. Rooting out local government corruption is a worthy goal, though we're inclined to believe that the best method is to reduce the scope of government activities, thus reducing the opportunities for bribery and corruption. We confess, however, that that's a long-range goal.

We also understand that there is a fine line between using undercover methods to expose existing corruption and using a "sting" operation to create situations in which bribery can be documented. We've editorialized before in disapproval of the Abscam operation, in which members of Congress were set up to participate in totally fictitious, imaginary crimes. We're also sensitive to the fact that most of the Abscam defendants seem to have jumped at the chance to grab a little under the table, and we share the sentiment that it couldn't have happened to nicer bunch. Nonetheless there's a loathsome stench about the operation that lingers on.

It is apparently the case that Bridgeport won't make anybody's list of the Ten Cleanest Cities in America. Grand juries have been investigating questionable or shady dealing there for the last five years. If anything, we're more inclined than most people to suspect that where government officials are involved, where there's smoke, there's probably fire. Nonetheless we cling to the notion that in America, we'd rather have officials caught committing real crimes than entrapped in make-believe crimes concocted by law enforcement agencies.

PATCO Corp? Why not?

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis has stated that he is quite firm in his intention to keep the fired air traffic controllers out, and that the problem facing the government now is to rebuild the air traffic control system from the ground up. If such a fundamental restructuring of the system is to take place, why not go a little further.

Is there any logical reason that air traffic controllers have to be employees of the federal government? We can see no compelling reason for maintaining this function as the exclusive province of the federal government. The system serves the needs of commercial airlines, private pilots and airports. The airlines supposedly pay for the service through airport-user fees, though the economics are obscure enough that we can't be sure that the full cost is borne by the beneficiaries of the service.

The air traffic control system is in place. Why couldn't it be sold to a private corporation, who would thenceforth provide the service for a fee? We're not talking about one of those phony-balance "government corporations" like the Postal Service or Amtrak, but a real, live, private, profit-making company.

Such an arrangement would deliver a number of benefits. First, of course, it would be virtually inevitable that better service would be delivered at a lower cost. Second, the air traffic controllers could easily benefit from the arrangement. One of the reasons the administration is so adamant about the no-strike clause and the request for a 32-hour work week is fear of the precedent that might be set for other government workers. If controllers were employees of a private company, they could bargain for whatever working conditions they considered appropriate, and would be free to strike if management proved intransigent. And, of course, management would be free to bring in strikebreakers.

For that matter, since the government now claims that PATCO doesn't exist as a union any more, why doesn't PATCO reconstitute itself as a private corporation offering air traffic control services? It could then hire its present members, at whatever salaries, working conditions and working hours were mutually agreed, and seek contracts, either with a consortium of airports and airlines, or with the F.A.A., to provide air traffic control services. Under a contractual arrangement the costs could be controlled, and it would be up to PATCOCORP to perform, pay their people fairly and (if possible) make a profit.

Those are just a couple of suggestions. There are probably several dozen different arrangements that would provide a level of service equivalent to what was provided under the old-fashioned government structure, with due regard to safety, efficiency and working conditions that would minimize the likelihood of controller "burnout."

The important thing is to rid ourselves of the mythology that air traffic control is a service that must be provided by government. The government system is in place not because of strict adherence to logic, but because of a series of historical accidents. That government structure has proven its instability. We now have an opportunity to look at the system afresh, with the benefit of experience, and create the conditions in which a new and better system can be permitted to evolve.

One of the more charming aspects of a free market is that nobody can predict the precise shape of future events, since they unfold from the voluntary interaction of different people seeking to fulfill their own needs and desires of others. We can't lay out a precise blueprint for the air traffic control system of the future. But if we get the government out of the business, we can be pretty sure that a better system will be developed.

Mr. President? Mr. Lewis? Mr. Poli? Are you ready to try something genuinely constructive?

By ROGER FREEMAN

For decades we have been told by dozens of experts and official commissions that the appalling growth of crime is a result of neglect of the disadvantaged and oppressed in our society, and that the nation has only itself to blame for the consequences of its stinginess in the treatment of the unfortunate.

Here is the record: over the past quarter century government outlays for income support through dozens of public assistance and other social welfare programs multiplied eightfold in constant dollars, and tripled as a percentage of GNP; the percentage of persons officially classified as having a cash income below the poverty level — not counting food stamps and other in-kind benefits — was cut in half; and several civil rights laws were enacted and are being enforced.

What did those efforts produce? A fivefold multiplication in the number of serious crimes ("index crimes") over the past two decades, during which the country's population grew only 28 percent. Predatory street crime is rampant, fear stalks our cities and few feel safe in their homes.

By the rules of statistics, that adds up to a high correlation between feeding multibillion amounts into social programs and an explosion in the crime rate. That is not exactly what the programs supporters intended.

Crime without punishment promised, or expected. Nor does it necessarily prove a causal relationship. But it does suggest a high probability of this being no mere coincidence; the dominant idea of its time, the egalitarian spirit of the welfare state run amuck, could be behind both runaway social spending and multiplying crime.

Traditional alibis for the failure of governmental programs — inadequate appropriations and stinginess in resource allocation — are hard to document in law enforcement. Expenditures for police protection (federal, state, local) jumped from $1.1 billion in 1952 to $12.9 billion in 1978, quintupling in constant dollars and doubling as a percentage of GNP. Police employment nearly tripled.

The failure of the various anticrime campaigns actually is quite easy to explain. Most of today's offenders do not steal bread in order to feed their families. Nor are they the products of dilapidated and underfinanced schools. Many are professionals who did their research well, who learned that crime offers a lucrative career with moderate risks.

Relating the number of reported "index" crimes, now 11 million annually, to the average of 150,000 persons entering federal and state prisons each year, the prospect of not going to prison for committing a serious offense averages almost 99 percent.

Sending a criminal to prison seems to be going out of style.

The main cause of our low — and declining — arrest rates are the rules with which the courts, and especially the U.S. Supreme Court, have blindfolded and handcuffed our police. The "exclusionary rule" — to which the United States certainly has an exclusive claim — under which many criminals, proven guilty beyond a shadow of doubt, have been acquitted and released, is just one example of a game that is stacked in favor of the offender. The Miranda, Mallory, and Wade rules turn the serious business of bringing a criminal to justice into a competition of wits, with the suspects given an advantage and the prosecution a handicap. The application and results of the "temporary insanity" rule sometimes amount to plain insanity.

Throughout most of the world, law enforcement authorities exercise the powers they need to protect society from assault by evildoers. In the United States police forces have seen themselves increasingly restricted and we are reaping the harvest of showing compassion and respecting the rights of the offender more than those of the victim, of accepting excuses for deliberate and violent disregard of essential rules of civil behavior — at a terrible and growing cost, year after year, to millions of innocent people.

This is not to say that legislatures and Congress have done what they could and should do to deter would-be criminals. Congress has been playing around — and I cannot think of a more appropriate term — for 15 years with a recodification of federal criminal law. The new code was never enacted and with its failure in the fall of 1980 may finally be dead. It would not have provided the necessary improvements and largely reconfirmed the current, painfully inadequate law.

To conduct a war on crime with any chance of reducing rather than increasing the incidence of offenses against persons and property must be initiated at the federal level. Unless the federal government grants police departments the powers they need to identify and apprehend offenders, and to secure the necessary evidence, and until it mandates punishment sufficiently severe to deter criminal acts, prospects for improvement are slim indeed.

Defender of totalitarianism

By Anthony Harrigan

It is a rare occasion when totalitarianism receives an open defense in the United States. The majority of defenders of the Soviet Union and Cuba, for instance, usually approach their task in a guarded, subtle way.

In early July, however, a blatant defense of totalitarianism was published on the op-ed page of The New York Times. The author was Hans Koning, who was described as a novelist.

The Times served a good purpose in publishing this defense of totalitarian regimes, for it is important that Americans understand the thinking of defenders of brutal regimes, that seek the destruction of our civilization.

Among other things, Mr. Koning said that the "totalitarians — the code word for communist and semi-communist countries ... beat the Western democracies on a number of scores, not to mention such half- and half-democracies as Mexico and India." He said that the "right to work" is "secured to a considerable degree by the totalitarians." Residents of the Soviet Gulag labor camps might have something to say on that point.

He asserted that the community "run" their countries for "90 percent of the populace." And he added that the children of Mexico City "have many theoretical rights that the well-fed, well-clothed, decently housed and secure children of Havana do not have ... If we look at the happiness of the greatest number, Cuba beats Mexico."

These statements turn truth upside down. Isn't Mr. Koning aware of the ongoing flight of Cubans from Castro's communist rule? If the Cubans are so well-cared-for and happy, why do they risk their lives in small boats to escape to freedom?

Mr. Koning makes no mention of the Berlin Wall. The communist regime in East Germany uses land mines, machine guns and attack dogs to keep their captive population under communist rule.

It's a travesty of truth to say that "Cuba beats Mexico." While there is poverty in Mexico, Mexicans are free to better themselves — and the country is succeeding.

As for Mr. Koning's basic thesis that communism provides its people with a better standard of living than the democracies or what he calls the "half and half democracies," that is false. Stalin deliberately starved millions of Russians. Cuba is an impoverished nation with a failed economy that is supported by the Soviet Union. And what about the starving, mistreated millions in Cambodia? They would be quick to exchange places with Mexicans, Indians or any people outside the communist orbit. Millions of people in communist Southeast Asia would like to join the boat people of Vietnam.

It's both incredible and dismaying that a writer in the Western world would hail totalitarianism and downgrade the democracies and the countries that, while authoritarian, are moving in the direction of greater freedom. It's appropriate that Hans Koning is described as a writer of fiction.

Overregulation costs you twice

My son, Paul, is six-foot-six. That is not "tall" by basketball standards, but it is taller than average and reflective of the fact that his generation generally is taller than any heretofore.

The other evening during a family outing he smacked his head again — this time on a low doorway in a public restaurant.

His dome has been dented by an assortment of doorways, chandeliers and low limbs over public sidewalks, and it occurred to me that eventually somebody is certain to get the bright idea of starting an organization of tall people — collecting dues and getting rich — while demanding legislation to raise the ceilings in public buildings. I'm being facetious — but what'll you bet.

Organizations of handicapped got government to install special ramps at street corners to help people in wheelchairs over the curbs.

Learning too late that the sloping ramps misled blind people who, without distinct curbs wandered out into the path of traffic.

S.J. Mastly calls it "the 'Ooops' effect."

He's referring to the good intentions of government which so frequently backfire.

When government entered the business of health-care planning in 1974 it decreed that hospitals should share expensive diagnostic equipment "to cut costs."

Now there is such a waiting line at many medical facilities with CAT scanners that hospitalization is prolonged, costs are (ital) increased, (unital)

Maryland hospitals are governed by 108 different government agencies.

Woman denies poisoning husband

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A District Court jury was scheduled to begin deliberations today to decide whether Natividad Campos tried to kill her husband by slipping small doses of cyanide into his coffee and food.

Mrs. Campos denied the attempted murder charge Thursday when she testified in her own defense, saying her husband, Enrique Campos, lied when testifying against her Wednesday.

Mrs. Campos said her husband lied when he told jurors she wrapped leftovers from his plate in paper and threw them out, while feeding the leftovers from their five children to the family dog, the Fabens woman said.

She and three of the couple's children testified that she always waited until the family finished eating and then ate her husband's leftovers herself.

Private detective Jay J. Armes said Wednesday that when a sheriff's deputy told Mrs. Campos Sept. 2, 1980 that she was under arrest for attempted murder, she immediately said "I wasn't trying to poison Enrique" before either poison or her husband were mentioned.

But Mrs. Campos said that was her response because she remembered another Fabens woman had recently been arrested for poisoning her husband.

Her husband was also lying when he testified she told him a small dish of white powder in the bathroom was rat poison, she said.

Mrs. Campos, her 18-year-old son Carlos, and daughters Amelda, 17, and Leticia, 15, all said there was no rat poison in the house, only insecticides.

And Armes and Miguel Alba were lying when they testified Wednesday that she and Alba were having an affair in 1980, she said.

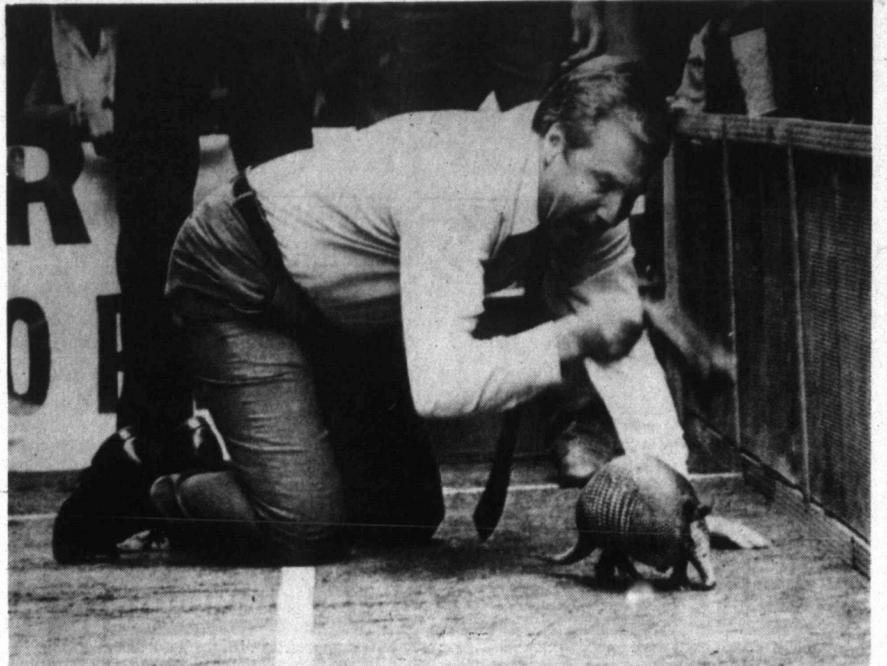

Campos said Wednesday his wife always prepared his meals and coffee, which she insisted he eat and drink. He said both often had a "peculiar" taste.

Dr. Earle Merlich said Wednesday that Campos weighed about 81 pounds and was suffering from chronic cyanide poisoning when he first examined him July 19, 1980.

Defense attorney Ruben Valdes called pharmacist Humberto Silva in an attempt to prove it is "mathematically impossible" to get chronic cyanide poisoning by eating cyanide.

Silva said the only way to get chronic cyanide poisoning is by inhaling cyanide gas. Valdes suggested Campos inhaled cyanide fumes from working near welders at Utility Trailer.

But Prosecutor Lane Reedman contended the amounts of cyanide in rat poison could be small enough to make slow poisoning possible.

Hughes estate feud nears an end

HOUSTON (AP) — A bitter courtroom feud over shares of Howard Hughes' financial empire "will end soon with a whimper," one attorney predicted after a lawyer for the last of about 500 distant relatives rested his case without calling a witness.

The distant relatives and five Hughes' paternal first cousins have haggled for 10 days over which group is entitled to share half the estate estimated to be worth as much as $2 billion when the tycoon died in April 1976.

Lawyers predicted the five-year-old litigation could finally go to a six-member jury today after a court-appointed attorney for unknown-heirs wraps up his case with two more witnesses.

"This is all going to end soon with a whimper," said attorney George Dean, who represents one of the first cousins.

Ted Dinkins, appointed to represent possible undiscovered heirs, opened his case Thursday by introducing additional wills, certificates of birth, marriage and death and census records of Hughes' aunts, uncles, grandparents and great grandparents.

Dinkins told jurors he was "not for anybody and technically against everybody," but his evidence served to reinforce the claims of the first cousins who have been forced to defend their bloodline to the Hughes' family.

Distant cousins have argued that Elspeth Lapp Hughes was not the true daughter of Hughes' uncle Rupert and could not provide the first cousins with the bloodlink to the tycoon that would entitle them to a share of the fortune.

About 400 distant cousins, relying on family stories passed from generation to generation, contend that Hughes' uncle, Rupert, was sterile and that Elspeth was the issue of an illicit love affair.

The other 100 relatives argue that Rupert's biological daughter drowned in a child in a swimming pool and Elspeth was his stepchild. However, their attorneys said, evidence to prove their claims was placed in a family steamer trunk that burned 35 years before the eccentric recluse died.

Recruit says instructor not at fault in death

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Marine recruit whose letter of criticism triggered an investigation into the drowning of a fellow recruit says the Marine instructors were not at fault.

But, the recruit, Pvt. Greg Washington, 18, of Dallas, Tex., said he believes the death during swimming tests "could have been prevented."

Appearing at a press conference, Washington said, "I did not see any abuse, or lack of caring or carelessness on the part of the instructors."

The victim, Pvt. Randall Christian, 18, a high school friend of Washington's, drowned Aug. 27 during a water qualification test at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot pool.

A day after the drowning, Washington wrote his family and girlfriend criticizing the Marines for allowing Christian to drown.

A Texas congressman has called for an official investigation into the death.

Washington said Thursday that an instructor was at arm's length from Christian while the recruit was bobbing up and down in the water and the instructor did not move to help.

swimmer, and other recruits were taking a water survival test requiring them to swim for 10 minutes in camouflage utility clothing.

Washington said he wrote home that Christian was pushed under the water by an instructor placing his foot on him.

But he corrected that Thursday, saying "I said that I did not see that with my own eyes."

The trial to determine the paternal heirs was ordered by Probate Judge Pat Gregory, who ruled earlier this year that Hughes left no valid will and no immediate survivors when he died in April 1976. Gregory awarded half the estate to 16 maternal cousins last month.

In their effort to overturn the claims of first cousins, the 500 second, third and fourth cousins have offered two different versions of the identity of Elspeth, the mother of three first cousins and the stepsister of the other two.

However, one of Dinkins' assistants and Mary Fay, a certified Houston genealogist, testified Thursday that a five-year search of legal documents, visits to cemeteries and studies of photographs and letters failed to uncover any evidence to support the claims of distant cousins.

Defense cuts threaten crises troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fewer American troops with smaller supplies of ammunition would be available for crises in the oil-rich Persian Gulf under military spending cuts being considered by President Reagan, Pentagon officials say.

The number of U.S. ground units available for quick reinforcement in Western Europe also would be reduced and combat supplies for both air and sea forces would have to be cut sharply, said the officials, who asked not to be identified.

The cuts in troop and equipment levels were cited in analyses that Deputy Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci reportedly gave to presidential counselor Edwin Meese III at a meeting Thursday on proposed defense cuts expected to be decided next week.

White House officials have said Reagan is prepared to reduce projected defense spending by as much as $30 billion in fiscal 1983 and 1984 as part of a new drive to balance the federal budget by 1984.

Until now, the defense budget has been immune from administration pruning, and Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger is resisting any major cutbacks in a projected $1.6 trillion five-year program that

Texan heads American Legion

HONOLULU (AP) — A 58-year-old World War II veteran has been elected national commander of the American Legion.

Jack W. Flynt of Dimmitt, Texas, was named to the post at Thursday's closing session of the Legion's 63rd annual convention.

He replaces Mike Kogutek, of Lackawanna, N.Y., who served as the head of the 2.7 million-member organization for the past year.

Flynt, who served in the Army, has been an active Legionnaire for nearly 30 years.

About 20,000 Legionnaires and their families attended the convention.

constitutes the largest military buildup in U.S. history.

The Office of Management and Budget proposed spending reductions for fiscal 1983 of about $4 billion to about $10 billion and from $8.5 billion to $17.2 billion in fiscal 1984. Such reductions would have consequences in future years as various weapons and other programs gathered momentum.

The Pentagon analyses indicated that major budget rollbacks would affect both near-term readiness and future modernization and strengthening of U.S. forces.

The OMB budget-cutting proposals likely would reduce to four the number of brigades that could be deployed to Southwest Asia, including the Persian Gulf, within the first 30 days of a crisis, the Pentagon says.

The amount of ammunition that would be stocked to sustain the Rapid Deployment ground force would be slashed from 120 days to 60, which was the same level planned by the Carter administration, the Pentagon analysts said.

The OMB proposals, the analysts said, would trim Air Force ammunition for sustained combat from 60 days to 45 days and Navy war reserve spares from 60 days to fewer than 25 days.

The number of brigades that could be deployed to NATO after the first 10 days of a war would have to be cut from 15 to nine, according to the analysts.

The overall number of what are called "maneuver battalions" in the U.S. armed forces would be reduced from 207 as contemplated by the current Reagan budget to 188.

Professional politician is back in Democratic rule change

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The "pol" is making a comeback.

After Watergate and Abscam and two decades of power-to-the-people party reforms, the professional politician is back in vogue.

North Carolina Gov. James Hunt, chairman of the Democrats' latest rule-changing commission, says he has a dream of every Democratic member of Congress sitting at the party's next presidential convention.

Hunt says the party is not turning its back on years of reform, but his dream would reverse one major trend of that era — the widening rift between the national party organization and the politicians who hold office in its name.

In 1956, 90 percent of the Democrats in the U.S. Senate attended the party's national convention. A third of the more numerous House Democrats were delegates. In 1976, when Jimmy Carter was nominated, only 18 percent of the party's senators and 15 percent of its representatives were present.

This reflected a determined effort by some elements of the party, with the acquiescence of others, to take party business out of the smoke-filled rooms.

Under rules adopted for the 1972 convention, if a congressman, governor or party official wanted to be a delegate, he had to get out and run for it like anybody else.

That sounded so fair in the age of reform that the Republicans adopted the same rule. No more free rides for politicians was supposed to mean more democracy and that was supposed to make a happier party and better nominees.

The rule never bothered the Republicans much because of less restrictive delegate selection procedures and their tradition of reverence for the establishment.

But Democratic officials began staying away in droves. In 1972 many who tried to win election as delegates were defeated. And after that raucous convention, many said it was just as well to be somewhere else at a convention time.

As a result, the party has continued to splinter. Platforms are totally irrelevant to the people who run on them. Presidential Democrats don't speak to congressional Democrats. Individual members of Congress defy their own party leadership on Capitol Hill.

San Antonio auto dealer slain

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Bexar County investigators are trying to find a woman who telephoned twice to report that an automobile dealer had been shot to death.

Kenneth Nelson Jackson, 42, was found early Thursday in his bed. He had been shot once in the forehead with a small caliber weapon, investigators reported.

Jackson was the owner of a used car lot and auto parts store.

Sheriff's Lt. Kenneth Bilhartz said the woman phoned twice about 1:30 a.m., reporting a man had been shot in the front yard of the house.

However, Bilhartz said Jackson was found nude in his bed, covered with a sheet and bedspread and no one else was at the house when officers arrived.

In a hot-air balloon,

Housewife gets away from it all

RINGOES, N.J. (AP) — Vicki Harrison's housekeeping is nothing like yours or mine. Her "home" is a hot-air balloon where she spends more time than she does in her 1840s farmhouse here in rural New Jersey.

Operating out of a barn transformed into hangar, the 36-year-old Mrs. Harrison is up in a balloon almost every day. She pilots corporate balloons for advertising and operates pleasure flights from $60 per person to $220 for a first-class champagne flight for two. These days she flies a balloon touting a new yogurt, in addition to four of her own.

Mrs. Harrison's enthusiasm is not dampened by the day-in-day-out aspects of her hobby-turned-profession. "The instant you lift off, it's quiet. You're just off and gone, like a bubble!" she exclaimed.

As the balloon rises higher and higher — she can take it up to 13,500 feet — Mrs. Harrison begins her housekeeping, as she calls tidying up the inside of the wicker basket.

"I do my housekeeping as soon as we lift off. I have to organize my ropes on the floor, get everything stacked neatly and check all my fuel tanks and lines," she said.

Mrs. Harrison grew up around airplanes and airstrips. Her father operated a small airport not far from Ringoes. She began flying when the boy-next-door, a pilot, took an interest in her and offered to teach her. She was 17 when she became a licensed commercial airplane pilot.

"One thing led to the next," she said, "and before you know it I got married" — to that boy-next-door, Terry Harrison, now a pilot for Eastern Airlines.

"We've been flying ever since," she added. But ballooning entered their lives only eight years ago, when a balloon plunked itself down on their 11-acre farm.

She recalled: "We have horses and other animals and I was doing the horses early one morning when I heard this little voice behind the barn. 'Can we land, can we land?' It turned out it was one fellow in a balloon and I blurted out, 'Of course,' and boom, there he was."

She said she watched as "this guy with a big balloon wrestled this thing around, and then the crew came and it really looked like they were having a lot of fun."

"Terry also thought it just looked like a heck of a lot of fun," and before two weeks were out, he'd bought a balloon of their own.

Since that day in 1973, Mrs. Harrison has created a business around ballooning, sometimes enlisting the help of her 14-year-old daughter, Cindy. Mrs. Harrison's mother mends tattered balloons.

Mrs. Harrison is just 5 feet tall and weighs only 98 pounds, but she is confidently in command as she and her all-male crew rig the balloon and basket in a 20-minute process that's almost as pretty to watch as a balloon in flight.

The flat uninflated envelope is filled with air from a large household fan. As it begins to take shape, the multi-colored nylon fluttering in the breeze, Mrs. Harrison steps into the balloon's throat to check that everything is OK.

When it's still on its side but almost full, the balloon gets a blast from the fuel jets located above the basket. Once the air inside the balloon is about 100 degrees hotter than the outside air, the balloon rights itself. The tethers are dropped and it lifts softly from the ground.

"Getting away from it all" is one reason Mrs. Harrison took up ballooning. Meeting people is another. Because balloons can't be easily maneuvered, they must be brought down in open fields, and that often means instant visitors "in someone's cow pasture or backyard."

This "handicap helps you meet some of the nicest people," Mrs. Harrison said. To help break the ice, she said, she always carries a bottle of champagne — a tradition started by French balloonists centuries ago — to share with her "hosts" and others who turn up to gawk at her rainbow-hued balloon.

During one of her outings, she recalled, she spotted a supermarket. The temptation to land in the parking lot "was too good to pass up."

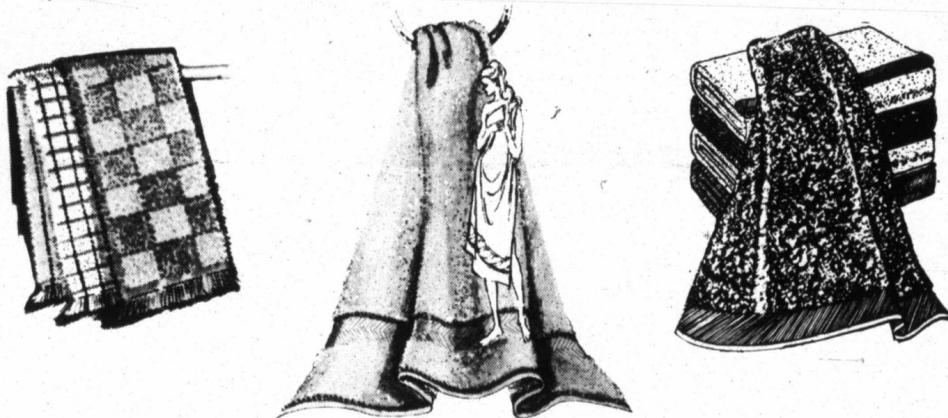

Bringing the balloon down to just barely above ground, she chatted for several minutes with excited shoppers and, after "asking someone to get me a loaf of bread," she lifted the balloon into the sky, loaf in hand.

UPLIFTING EXPERIENCE. Vicki Harrison rests her elbows on the basket of one of her balloons following what appears to have been an enjoyable flight over her Ringoes, N.J. home recently. The 36-year-old professional balloonist still exudes enthusiasm for the sport, despite the fact that she is up in a balloon nearly every day. (AP Laserphoto)

Putting forth a Real effort

A child's first attempts at printing require deep concentration and great effort. However, with patience and practice he becomes more adept and lettering is easier. Then he is ready for the next step, learning to write.

The Lord expects us to put forth an effort to improve ourselves.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Women pilots fly blood for Red Cross

By KAREN MILLS
Associated Press Writer

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A group of women pilots from Minnesota flew the equivalent of 1 1/4 trips around the world in a single year — volunteering time and airplanes — so blood donations to the Red Cross could be used to help more patients.

Flights by members of the Minnesota chapter of The Ninety-Nines Inc. enable the Red Cross processing center in St. Paul to get blood collected at distant sites quickly enough so more of its component parts can be used.

A single pint of blood, when separated into components before transfusion, can be used to help more than one patient.

Platelets from the blood can be used for leukemia patients, cryoprecipitate and fresh frozen plasma for hemophilia patients and red blood cells for anemia and surgery patients.

However, when blood is to be broken down into components, processing must begin within four hours after a donor's blood is drawn if the platelets are to be used.

Thus, when the Red Cross bloodmobile is gathering blood in a city that is some distance from St. Paul, there is not time to transfer the blood by car to the St. Paul processing center.

So for the past six years, more than 30 members of the Minnesota Ninety-Nines have been transporting the blood by airplane.

The Red Cross reimburses the pilots only for fuel.

From June 1979 through June 1980, the women spent 275 hours in the air in 134 blood transfer flights for the Red Cross, totaling more than 31,000 miles, or about 1 1/4 times around the world.

The Minnesota program was the first of its kind to be undertaken by a chapter of the Ninety-Nines, an international organization of women pilots. A similar but smaller program was later started by a chapter in Portland, Ore.

The international Ninety-Nines — so named because 99 of the 117 women pilots in the United States responded to the invitation to join — was formed in 1929 to link women with a common interest in flying. Chapters are involved in various educational and service projects.

Some of the women involved in the Minnesota blood transport program own their own planes, some have access to club planes and others rent their planes, said Sally Woodburn, of Arden Hills, one of three women who coordinate the volunteer effort.

"If she wants to do this, it's her responsibility to come up with a plane. The Red Cross does pay us for gas but we come up with the rest," Mrs. Woodburn said.

Most of the pilots use four-seat planes, and the cost of operating the planes varies, she said, estimating that it costs a minimum of $35 an hour plus gas to operate the Mooney Mark 21 that she flies.

The Ninety-Nines, whose flights serve an area within about 75 minutes by air from St. Paul, including parts of western Wisconsin and northern Iowa, are usually given the bloodmobile schedule two weeks in advance so the pilots can be lined up.

When the pilot arrives in the city where the blood drive is being held, she calls the bloodmobile site from the airport and a volunteer driver brings the blood — packed in plastic foam in large cardboard boxes — to the local airport.

The blood is then flown to the downtown St. Paul airport, where another volunteer driver picks it up and takes it about one-half mile to the processing center.

"Before holidays we are very busy because the accident rate invariably goes up. We always fly on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve," Mrs. Woodburn said.

Reagan, Bush to address Republican women at meeting

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Ronald Reagan will address a special Friday afternoon session, at the National Federation of Republican Women's 21st Biennial Convention, Sept. 17-19 in Denver, according to Betty Rendel, NFRW president.

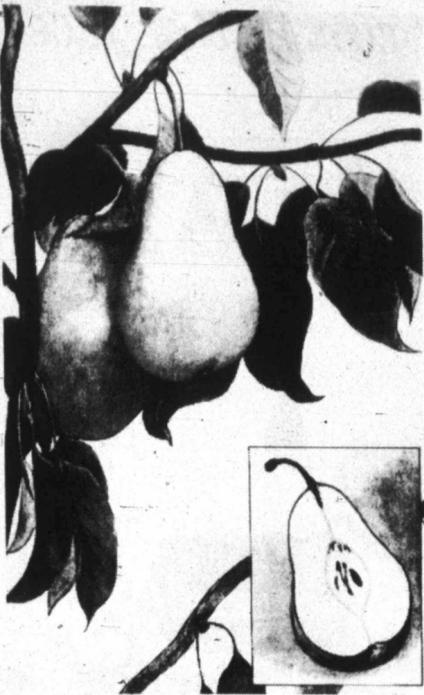

Keynote speaker for the Friday night banquet will be Vice President George Bush. NFRW's convention will be the largest national gathering of Republicans in 1981 and the major women's political event of the year. About 2,000 women delegates, GOP leaders and elected officials will be attending.

"We are meeting to plan campaign strategy for the 1982 elections. A special emphasis at the convention will be placed on recruiting and training women candidates. Several well-known political figures including Senator Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas, Congresswoman Marjorie Holt of Maryland and Carol Hallett, Minority Leader of the California Assembly, will be giving us the benefit of their experiences," Rendel said.

Top poached pears with almond custard

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Years ago when I first met Jim Beard (the well-known cookbook author and teacher) and went to a supper party at his house, he served one of the best of fruit desserts — poached pears with a custard sauce and a topping of praline. Coddled apples surrounded by custard sauce had been one of the desserts we often had in our Canadian home during my childhood. But offering poached pears with custard sauce was new to me until I encountered them at Jim's, and certainly the praline topping was a sophisticated addition that would delight anyone.

Recently we tried a different version of poached pears with custard sauce, the recipe sent to me from the West Coast, and found it delightful. Directions follow.

POACHED PEARS WITH ALMOND CUSTARD

- 4 medium ripe but firm Bartlett pears (1 1/2 pounds, scant)
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 1-3rd cup orange juice
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2-3rd cup water
- One 2-inch stick cinnamon
- Almond Custard Sauce, recipe follows

Peel pears and remove cores from blossom end, leaving stems attached. In a 2-quart saucepan, stir together the sugar, orange rind and juice, lemon juice, water and cinnamon. Bring to a boil, stirring until sugar dissolves. Add pears and boil gently, uncovered, turning with 2 spoons and basting often until pears are tender — 8 to 10 minutes. With a slotted spoon remove the pears to individual serving dishes. Boil the syrup, uncovered, until reduced to 1/4 cup — 7 to 9 minutes. Spoon a tablespoon of the syrup over each pear. Chill. At serving time spoon the Almond Custard sauce around the pears. Makes 4 servings.

Almond Custard Sauce: In a 1 or 1 1/2-quart saucepan, stir together 2 1/2 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon cornstarch and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Gradually stir in 1 cup milk, keeping smooth; cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens slightly — 8 or 9 minutes. Slightly whisk 2 egg yolks; gradually whisk the hot milk mixture into them. Return to saucepan and, stirring constantly, cook over low heat without boiling 2 to 3 minutes longer. Off heat, stir in 1/2 teaspoon vanilla and 1/4 teaspoon almond extract. Chill. Makes about 1 cup.

Dear Abby

Girl's new curves create problem

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you remember me or not. I wrote to you a year ago about my weight problem, and you gave me some really good advice. I went to Overeaters Anonymous. So far I've lost 55 pounds, and I'm still losing. But now I have another problem.

Since I've got a pretty good figure, guys have started noticing me, and Abby, I can't handle it. I'm 18 and never dated before because I was such a mess, but with guys paying attention to me all of a sudden, I'm a wreck! I hated being fat and ignored, but at least I wasn't hassled by dudes trying to get me into bed. All the guys I know are after only one thing.

My girlfriends say if I don't put out on the first date, I shouldn't expect a second date. Please help me.

HASLED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR HASLED: Your girlfriends are wrong. Hang on to your high standards and say goodbye to the dudes who try to rush you into bed. There's something worse than being ignored — it's too much attention from guys who are after only one thing.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very ticklish problem I don't know how to handle. Last week I invited some women with whom I had previously worked to my home for dinner. I prepared a special dinner, using my best china and silver, and my favorite lace placemats with matching dinner napkins.

During the dinner, one of my guests commented on how exquisite the lace dinner napkins were. She examined her napkin carefully and fingered it admiringly. After my guests left, I was one napkin short! I searched all over, and finally came to the conclusion that the guest who had admired it must have taken it.

I am very upset over losing that napkin, but more disappointed in the woman I suspect took it. I am torn between calling her or just forgetting about it. If I do decide to call, I don't really know how to ask her without insulting her. Please help.

ANXIOUS IN MASS.

DEAR ANXIOUS: Call her and ask if she inadvertently carried off the dinner napkin, thinking it was her handkerchief. (It's possible, and it's certainly worth a try.)

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more story about ministers asking those present at a wedding if anyone objects?

I am a pastor at the First United Methodist Church, and for years it's been my practice to ask the couple beforehand if they want that question omitted or included in the marriage ceremony. About half the couples have said, "Leave it in. If we leave it out, someone is going to think we're chicken."

One day, an hour before the wedding, a woman called to warn me that she would attend and object to the marriage. I immediately phoned the bride, who identified the caller as the bridegroom's former fiancée who had tried everything to scuttle the marriage.

I later learned that the woman came to the church, but since that question was omitted, no fuss was made.

On another occasion, the bridegroom was warned that his ex-wife was planning to come to his wedding and disrupt it. He hired a plainclothes policeman to stand at the door and keep her out.

Right collar, tie can flatter face

NEW YORK (AP) — What you wear on a job interview can be nearly as important as your resume and references, according to the Neckwear Association of America, which reports surveys it has conducted indicate that appearances are important in job evaluations.

"If you're already in a corporate position, how you dress can also be a factor determining whether you make it to the next level or stay fixed on the same job-plateau," says Gerald Andersen, executive director of the NAA.

Though the majority of men have "pretty much figured out how to dress in a suit that flatters them," where most of them fall down is "from the neck up — and we're not talking about intellectual prowess."

"What we are talking about," he adds, "is shirt collars and neckties. When you walk into an interview, the interviewer will get an overall impression of you — shoes shined, suit neat and well-fitting. But once you sit down, you're viewed from the waist up only."

"Since most interviewers talk to your face, it's advisable to show it off to its best advantage with the right collar and tie," he says, offering these tips from the NAA:

—If you're heavy-set or have a round face you should choose a standard collar, about 3 inches from the neckband to the tip, or one that has slightly longer points. Your tie should be tied in a four-in-hand for either collar, or in a half-Windsor for the long point.

—The person with a square face can wear the standard, button-down or pin collar with ease. The knot that looks best with all styles is the four-in-hand. However, if your face is a bit heavy, or if you have a short neck, you should avoid the pin collar.

—If you have a long face a spread collar may work well for you. But if you're on the tall side, the slightly shorter tabs on this collar may not look particularly attractive. In that case, go for the standard collar. With the spread, a full or half-Windsor will look well, adding to the broadening effect that you want.

—If you have an oval face, you're in luck, because just about any shirt collar will look well on you (except the pin collar if your neck is somewhat short and heavy). Tie your tie in the four-in-hand.

—The overly long point collar presents a somewhat "faddish" appearance and is styled to go with the European look with peaked lapels. Proportion is the key here, and a long-point collar may be a bit too dramatic with a three-piece conservative suit.

It is generally believed that the tie should come to the belt buckle; however, it's not a bad idea if it's actually a bit longer, says Andersen, who suggests that if you enjoy full Windsor knots, you should buy ties that are slightly longer than usual. A longer tie is also suggested for a tall or portly man — because it has a bit farther to travel to reach that belt line.

Generally, tie widths should balance out your face, he advises. Just as a tall, thin man should avoid skinny lapels, so should he avoid skinny ties. Overly broad lapels and superwide ties aren't flattering to him, either, something that holds true for the heavier man. Also, your tie width should relate to your lapel width — skinny lapel, skinny tie; average notched lapel, average 3- to 3½-inch width tie; wider lapel, wider tie.

Six Flags starts fall hours

ARLINGTON — Six Flags Over Texas has begun weekend-only operation for the fall months, following a spring and summer which produced an average attendance increase of 1,000 visitors a day.

The Arlington theme park welcomed its two millionth visitor of the 1981 season during the last week of August, the final week of daily operation.

Six Flags will open on Saturdays and Sundays through the end of November.

Attendance at the state's most-visited tourist attraction averaged just over 15,000 guests per day, compared to slightly less than 14,000 per day in 1980.

Six Flags' general manager, Ray Williams, said, "We expect rather healthy attendance during the fall months. Over our 21-seasons of operation, many of our regular guests have found that the park is most enjoyable at this time of year."

"The crowds are roughly half the size of those in the spring and summer, and, of course, our visitors don't have to contend with heat."

Variety of boot styles available for fall

NEW YORK (AP) — Choices — that's what boots are about this fall, according to Andrea Rosen, fashion director for the Footwear Council. Bright rubber galoshes and deluxe dress-up boots are featured side by side with sleek, clean classics, detailed for drama with fringes, metallic decorations and embroidery touches.

"Fall boot fashions offer a wide variety of styles and textures to suit every taste and budget," says Ms. Rosen. "When properly fitted and cared for, your boots will wear well and feel great all season long."

This season there's a boot to complete every look in a wardrobe, she notes. Detailing is all-important for fashion boots; they feature such ornamentation as metallic studs and underlays, fancy lacing and intricate embroidery.

All-weather boots in quilted nylon, rubber or suede faced with lush fleece linings are rugged and comfortable, and come in a kaleidoscope of primary colors from traffic light reds, greens, and yellows to shiny neon blues.

Other favorite fall colors are deep lodens and olive greens, rich paprika, eggplant and russet — newcomers to the traditional neutrals family of browns, blacks and wines. Newest of all are the metallics — bronze, gunmetal and pewter, fashionable for day and evening.

Pancake — flat boots with cavalier cuffs that show off textured legwear are new for business and casual wear. For classic country fashion, riding boots are handsomely styled in deep burnished leathers with straight knee-high shafts and low, practical heels.

"Comparison shopping is the best way to select the right boots," Ms. Rosen advises. "There are good choices in all price ranges; how much you spend depends on your personal tastes and priorities as well as your budget."

Durability is an advantage of "inexpensive" ($50 and under) boots, she says. Machine-made with uppers of vinyl, polyurethane and side leather, these boots are easy to clean and will not scuff or scratch; sturdy bottoms and heels of synthetic materials or rubber ensure good wear in stormy weather.

Moderately priced boots ($50-$90) offer a wider range of colors and sizes than less expensive boots and styling similar to the more expensive designer names. Uppers are made of better quality cowhide, kidskin or nappa leather, and lined with synthetic materials or fleece look-alikes. Boots in the moderate price range are usually machine-made and wear well with proper care.

Handcrafted with fine stitching and detailing, expensive ($100 and over) boots are featured in the latest colors, textures and designer styles; soft, lightweight uppers in delicate calfskin, kidskin and suede combine with quality leather soles and heels to create exclusive looks in dry-weather fashion.

Once you've narrowed down the choices, take time to test out the boots in the store to be sure they fit properly. Ms. Rosen urges. Try on both boots wearing socks or stockings of the same thickness you intend to wear with the boots. Wiggle your toes and check to see that there is about a half-inch of space from your longest toe to the front of the foot.

Walk around in the store for awhile to make sure the boots are comfortable. Heels should fit with a minimum of slippage; if the boots are too loose, your feet will slip and slide, causing fatigue, blisters and skin irritation. Because feet tend to spread more in flat boots, you may need a larger size than you would in high-heeled boots.

Choose styles that flatter your figure. Thin legs look best in crushed-leathers and softer materials that are cut to give more dimension to the calf, while straight-style boots reshape heavy legs and ankles and bypass the trouble spots.

Buying boots this fall gives you an extra bonus of fun and comfort for your fashion investment, says the Footwear Council's fashion director. "Boots and a cape or shawl also bring you up-to-date."

transforming, last year's wardrobe into this year's look, with the latest colors, glints of gold and exciting multiple textures," Ms. Rosen points out. "Choose boot styles that express the 'true you' for business and casual wear, dressing up and keeping warm on frosty days."

FOOT FLATTERY. There are boots to suit every taste and budget this year, reports the Footwear Council. Sampling includes, left, the classic riding boot; center, a lipstick-red ankle boot with a softly crushed cuff and new low heel; right, metallic knee-high cavalier boot with pewter cuff. (Left, from Mignani; center, by Halston for Garolini; right, from Joan and David.)

1/4 cup butter, soft
3 ounces cream cheese, soft
2 large eggs, separated
1/2 pint commercial sour cream, at room temperature
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cook noodles according to package directions and drain. Beat together the butter and cream cheese until blended; add egg yolks and sour cream and beat until smooth. Fold in the noodles and 1/4 cup of the Parmesan. Beat egg whites until stiff; fold in. Turn into a 1 1/2-quart baking dish (10 by 6 by 1 3/4 inches). Sprinkle with remaining Parmesan. Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

September 5, 1981

This could be a rather prosperous year for you because you'll be inspired to work harder in order to take care of those you love. In providing for them, you provide for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're lucky today in situations that relate to your finances or security. Instead of going off on tangents, give these areas top priority. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph that begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Whether you choose to be so or not, it's very likely friends will be looking to you as the social director today. Their selection will prove to be a good one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Good things could happen today just because you're in the right spot at the right time. From sunup to sundown, be alert for opportunities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have a very special touch today that should enable you to bring your hopes, as well as those of others, into reality. Dare to be a dreamer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today could be a day of substantial achievement. It may later appear to others that what you accomplished came easily, but you will know the truth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Dealing with groups is something for which you have a natural talent. Today, the larger the group the better you'll do, especially if bigwigs are in attendance.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rather than telling others what to do today you are apt to set the proper example, inspiring them to do as you do.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today could be very educational for you in that you will learn something from various people with whom you'll be associating. Keep an open mind.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your earning capacity is accentuated today. The service or expertise you offer should yield you a larger return than usual.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your ability to put others at ease and make them feel important will be well used today. All with whom you associate will give you the stamp of approval.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is a good day to finish several of those tasks you've been meaning to perform around the house but never had the time to get to.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll feel the need to be around others today, yet you may be very selective in choosing companions. Quality will take precedence over quantity.

Sometimes winning an Emmy can bring a string of bad luck for its recipient. There's plenty of talk in the industry about the "curse" that practically every theatrical award carries. It's nice to see that Jane Elliot, who won her Emmy this year as Best Supporting Actress in her role as Tracy on "General Hospital," has escaped this stigma. Jane left the role of Tracy last year vowing never to return to the daytime screen. As soon as she hit Los Angeles the actor's strike hit, but it wasn't long before the lean days were over and Jane had no trouble getting juicy parts. Last season she was a semi-regular on "Knight Landing" in the role of Judy Trent, the long-suffering wife of alcoholic Earl Trent. This role of a sex starved victimized woman was far removed from the manipulative Tracy Quartermain. Now she's been signed by CBS to join the cast of "The Guiding Light" in the role of Carrie Todd, an illustrator who joins the staff of Spaulding Enterprises. "Her new character, Carrie, will be the total opposite of Tracy Quartermain," says head writer Douglas Marland. "Carrie is a warm open loving woman who can't get enough of life, always looking to expand her range of experiences." Jane seems to agree and disavows her promise not to return to soap operas. "The challenge of playing someone totally unlike Tracy was too strong to resist," she says. "Doug Marland has offered me a wonderful role."

Carrie, fans of the serial should sit up and take notice. Now a look at what's been happening and what will happen on all the afternoon dramas.

TEAM CAPTAINS. Pampa High team captains share hand clasps after they were elected by their teammates to spirit the Harvesters into the 1981 football season. They are (l-r) quarterback Randy Skaggs, linebacker John Kadingo, noseguard Harold Landers and tight end Brad Voyles. The foursome selected will be team captains for the entire season. Pampa kicks off the season against Hereford at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Harvester Stadium. The Harvesters defeated Hereford in last year's opener, but the Whitefaces are picked to win their district this season. Tickets at the gate are $3.00 for adults and $1.50 for students.

Harvesters open season tonight

Coach Larry Gilbert discounts the negative remarks and concentrates on making the critics eat their words as the Pampa Harvesters enter the 1981 football season.

"There's a lot of people kind of badmouthing the team and not expecting much from us this season, but we're going to try to change all of that."

Gilbert would like nothing more than to see the change come in tonight's opener against Hereford, starting at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Harvester Stadium.

"We're going to try to make our own breaks," Gilbert said. "We can't expect things just to happen for us."

Pampa hopes to pull off some upsets this season while Hereford comes in with great expectations of a championship trophy. The Harvesters are supposed to finish at the bottom of the District 3-5A standings while the Whitefaces are picked to win the District 4-5A race.

"We're going to have to control their running game," Gilbert said. "They've got some super backs in Alan Wartes, Wayne High and John Phibbs. They've got 32 seniors and we've got 14. That's a big difference there, but I feel we're as prepared as any young team could be."

Hereford's best athlete may be 225-pound senior Aubrey Richburg, who goes both ways at offensive guard and defensive end.

"Richburg looked great in the scrimmage against Clovis," Gilbert added. "He was in great shape and never slowed down. He's a genuine college prospect."

Gilbert hopes the Harvesters play as well as they've practiced this week.

"I think the kids were embarrassed the way they played against Lubbock Estacado and they've worked hard at correcting their mistakes," he added. "We've had some real excellent workouts. It's important that we get off to a good start in the game and stay away from injuries. We've also got to get rid of our butterflies as soon as possible because we've got a bunch of guys who have never played varsity ball before."

Pampa's starting lineup for tonight's game is as follows: Offense: David Parr at center; Bill Carter and Mark Roye at guards; Wade Barker and Bryan Bowen at tackles; Brad Voyles at tight end; L. J. Brown or Brian Welborn at split end; Randy Skaggs at quarterback; Ricky Stout at fullback; Danny Sebastian and Devin Cash at running backs.

Defense: Harold Landers at noseguard; Joe Ryzman and Ted Cain at tackles; Cliff Baker and Steve Thurman at ends; John Kadingo and Ricky Baird at linebackers; Allan Jackson and Kurt Rawls at cornerbacks; Devin Mason and Kenneth Jackson at safeties.

Softball games slated

L&R Machine meets Pupco at 6:30 p.m. Monday night in the Men's Open Slow Pitch Softball League at Hobart Park.

In other games, Marcum Motor meets Best Western at 7:30 p.m., Panhandle Pluggers meets Sims Electric at 8:30 p.m. and Wild Bill's meets 2-B's Beauty Supply at 9:30 p.m.

Top O' Texas tees off Saturday

Can the Richard Ellis express be derailed? Ellis will be going for his third consecutive title and fourth overall when the Top Of Texas Golf Tournament tees off Saturday at Pampa Country Club.

Last year Ellis carded a four-round total of 273 to win by a comfortable four strokes.

Ellis, an ex-Pampam now living in Plano, and John Farquhar of Amarillo are the only three-time winners of the tournament. Ellis is only the fourth golfer to win back-to-back titles.

Practice rounds for the 44th annual tournament were scheduled for today.

The championship flight will consist of 72 holes of stroke play and the first flight will be 54 holes of stroke play. Both of these flights will be cut after the second round Sunday.

The remaining flights will play two days of match play and 18 holes of stroke play Monday for the championship.

PROFESSIONAL FORM. Justin Taylor has all the earmarks of a professional bowler—smooth delivery, perfect follow-through, intense concentration—and he's only eight years old. Justin is a member of the popular youth league at Pampa's Harvester Lanes. Youth leagues this fall will be organized Saturday, Sept. 12. This week has been declared National Bowling Week by the National Bowling Council. Youngsters such as Justin continue a sport that dates back to early Egypt and eventually came to America with the Dutch around 1850.

Tigers pound Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Detroit righthander Jack Morris grumbled about the humidity, his lack of sleep and just general weariness. You'd have thought he had been bombed instead of chalking up his 11th win of the season.

"I felt like I was running out of gas in the fifth inning, to tell you the truth," Morris, 31-4, complained after beating the Texas Rangers, 8-5. He lasted into the ninth inning and no Ranger runner got to second base until the seventh when the Tigers already led, 6-0.

"Those hits they got in the seventh inning were on good pitches. I was just beat. We arrived at 4 a.m. I got no sleep — thank the boys for eight runs because I needed them all."

Kirk Gibson accounted for two of the eight runs with a howitzer shot of a home run that sailed straight into a 20 mph wind and still landed eight rows deep in the centerfield bleachers. And he said he didn't even hit it hard.

"When I swing hard, I don't hit anything," said Gibson. "But when I just take a smooth swing, the ball seems to jump off the bat."

Gibson's blow, his seventh round-tripper of the year, came off Texas starter Jon Matlack, 4-6, who left after three innings and six Tiger runs.

"I can't get out from under this black cloud that's following me around," a dejected Matlack said. "I never seem to be able to do the right thing when necessary. It's very frustrating."

Detroit jumped on Matlack early. The Tigers scored three in the second inning on a run-producing single by Tom Brookens and a two-run double from Rick Peters.

Gibson's third inning homer added two more runs. Mick Kelleher drove in another in the fourth and Lou Whitaker's bases-loaded single produced two more in the eighth.

Texas scored three in the seventh. John Ellis grounded out with the bases loaded for one and Bump Wills' clean single scored two more.

The Rangers added a pair in the ninth on a single by Jim Sundberg and another ground out by Ellis that chased Bobby Jones home from third.

College football roundup

By JIM O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

Vince Dooley and Roger Theder have basically the same problems, but they really have little in common.

Dooley, head coach of the defending national champion Georgia Bulldogs, calls his opening game Saturday against Southeastern Conference rival Tennessee "a venture into the unknown. There is no way to predict what will happen or how we will react."

Theder, head coach of perennial Pac-10 disappointment California, will bring the Golden Bears into his opener Saturday against Texas A&M with a brand new untried offense on a brand new untried $900,000 artificial surface at Memorial Stadium.

Dooley and Theder are both worried and the worrying seems justified.

Dooley says there have been too many distractions to suit him — concern over whether the 18,000 new stadium seats will be ready and parking problems around the stadium.

"Nobody seems concerned if the football team is going to be ready," Dooley said.

"I just don't know about our motivation," said Dooley of his No. 10 team. "Last season we had a group of highly motivated seniors who were fighters. I haven't seen that in our players so far in practice."

Last year's group fought their way to a perfect season capped by a Sugar Bowl triumph over Notre Dame, that ensured the Bulldogs' No. 1 ranking in the final poll.

Let's just think Dooley will find a bare cupboard when he tries to muster victories this season don't despair for the Head Bulldog.

Dooley has everyone's All-American, running back Herschel Walker, returning as well as quarterback Buck Belue, who sports a record of 17-1 as a starter.

Walker, who burst into national prominence in last year's Georgia-Tennessee game, won by the Bulldogs 16-15, says there's no reason for his coach to be worried.

"Come Saturday at 1 o'clock, we'll be more ready than any Georgia team ever has been," said Walker, who gained a record 1,616 yards last season, 84 against the Vols.

Theder can only hope his players are ready and able — able to perform the new "run-and-shoot" offense he has installed.

The "run-and-shoot" offense is a move to end the years of California's near cellar-dwelling in their conference.

"We're totally committed to the run-and-shoot, and there's no question there'll be some ups and downs," said the coach of the school that has produced professional quarterbacks Craig Morton, Steve Bartkowski and most recently Rich Campbell, all straight drop-back passers.

The new system was put in under the supervision of Theder's newest assistant coach, former Portland State head Coach Mouse Davis.

Davis saw his offense run last year by the nation's most productive quarterback, Neil Lomax.

"We expect our receivers to read coverages more and to adjust routes more than in conventional offenses," said Davis in a brief explanation of the basketball-sounding offense.

In other games involving Top Twenty teams Saturday, fourth-ranked Alabama is at Louisiana State; Illinois visits No. 8 Pitt; Memphis State plays 14th-ranked Mississippi State at Jackson, Miss.; No. 16 Brigham Young is at Long Beach State; No. 17 Florida travels across the state to face Miami, Fla., and Louisville will be at 19th-ranked Florida State.

Other major games Saturday include: Texas Christian at Auburn, North Texas State at Kentucky, Wofford at Clemson, Mississippi at Tulane, Oregon at Fresno State, Rutgers at Syracuse, Richmond at North Carolina State, South Carolina at Wake Forest, Lamar at Baylor, New Mexico at Houston, Texas-Arlington at Southern Methodist, Kansas at Tulsa, Fullerton State at Wyoming, Utah State at Utah and New Mexico State at Texas-El Paso.

Pro football picks

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

...and the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air, gave proof through the night that Brian Sipe and Dan Fouts were in midseason form.

The quarterbacks of the Cleveland Browns and San Diego Chargers, whose teams were less-than-sparkling on the ground last year to put on a fireworks display second to none to close out the first weekend of the National Football League's regular season.

Although Sipe was the NFL's passing champion in 1980, Fouts (sixth in the league and second in the American Conference) would normally have more weapons at his disposal.

But the absence of John Jefferson (even if J.J. decides to join the Chars, he'd hardly be game-ready) drops the San Diego aerial game one notch.

So look for the Browns to beat the Chargers and cover the spread in the process.

The picks vs. the point spread with home teams capitalized: CLEVELAND minus 1 over San Diego: Watch for the Chargers to try and blitz Sipe into submission. Watch Sipe win the war. The memory of THE interception will begin innesota plus 1 1/2 over TAMPA BAY (Saturday night): The Vikes were pass-crazy in 1980. They're without Tommy Kramer for this game — but now they've got a ground game — which the Bucs still miss.

LOS ANGELES minus 6 over Houston: Hard-luck Pat Haden is still a better bet than John Reaves or the out-of-shape Ken Stabler.

Oakland minus 3 over DENVER: Craig Morton will be a sitting duck the swarming Raiders. Jim Plunkett can escape Denver's pressure.

Dallas minus 2 over WASHINGTON: It's no longer the same. The 'Skins need George Allen, not Joe Gibbs, to ready them for the Cowboys.

PITTSBURGH minus 8 over Kansas City: With TV off his mind, Terry Bradshaw can devote his efforts to keeping Cliff Stoudt on the bench.

New Orleans plus 9 1/2 over New Orleans!: George Rogers is no savior, but he's a start in the right direction for the Saints.

Philadelphia minus 6 over NEW YORK GIANTS: A shallow running game (the Eagles') is better than no running game at all.

Other games:
ST. LOUIS plus 1 over Miami.
BUFFALO minus 4 over New York Jets.
NEW ENGLAND minus 7 over Baltimore.
CINCINNATI minus 4 1/2 over Seattle.
CHICAGO minus 3 1/2 over Gibay.
DETROIT minus 4 1/2 over San Francisco.

Bag limits raised on Texas quail

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission responded earlier this week to a bumper crop of quail by setting higher than normal bag limits.

Commissioners also set waterfowl seasons and raised the bag limit for dark geese in the eastern part of the state.

August quail counts showed that the rainy spring and early summer over most of Texas resulted in a large population of the birds.

Most of South Texas, the eastern Panhandle-South Plains and a portion of North Central Texas will have a bag limit of 20 quail per day and a possession limit of 60. Other sections of the state will have daily limits of 16 or 12, depending on quail populations.

The 1981-82 quail season for most counties in the eastern half of the state will be Nov. 14-Feb. 14. In the Panhandle, Trans-Pecos and South Texas, the season will be Oct. 31-Jan. 31.

The department said specifics on seasons for each county can be obtained from its annual hunting guide, which is available wherever hunting licenses are sold. A county-by-county listing of bag limits will be distributed to department offices and license outlets by late September.

Last year, the bag limit over most of the state was 12, with 16 in a few counties.

Increased limits for dark geese in the eastern part of Texas was one of the few changes from last year in the 1981-82 waterfowl regulations approved by the commission.

Hunters will be allowed to take one Canada and one white-fronted goose where last year they were limited to one Canada or one white-front.

Possession limit for dark geese is twice the daily limit.

The commission reminded hunters they must buy a $5 state waterfowl stamp, required for the first time by the 1981 Legislature, before they can hunt ducks, geese and other waterfowl. The stamps are available at department offices and hunting license outlets.

Federal law also requires hunters to buy a federal migratory waterfowl stamp, available at most post offices.

Printed copies of the department's migratory bird regulations will be available at hunting license outlets in late September.

Duck bag limits are based on a 100-point system, with values assigned species and sexes of ducks. All point values for the 1981-82 seasons will be the same as in 1980-81.

The duck and coot season for the portion of the state east of U.S. 81 will be Nov. 7-29 and Dec. 12-Jan. 17. In the High Plains Mallard Management Unit, the season will be Oct. 27-Jan. 17. The unit is west of a line formed by U.S. 277 from Del Rio to Abilene, Texas 351 from Abilene to its junction with U.S. 180 near Albany, then north on U.S. 283 to the Texas-Oklahoma line.

The only change in the duck point value system from 1980 was the addition of the black duck, which was assigned 70 points for both males and females.

The goose season east of U.S. 81 will be Nov. 7-Jan. 17. Daily bag limits in that area will be five light (snow, blue and Ross) geese plus one Canada and one white-fronted goose. Possession limit is twice the daily bag limit.

West of U.S. 81, the season will be Oct. 27 through Jan. 17. Daily limit will be five geese, with a possession limit of 10. The daily bag limit cannot include more than two dark (Canada and white-fronted) geese, and the possession limit may not include more than four dark geese.

Statewide, shooting hours for ducks and geese are 30 minutes before sunrise to sunset, except during the Sept. 12-20 teal duck season, when the hours are sunrise to sunset.

Lights out!

Pampa's Junior Varsity was saved by the bell, er... the lights, in a football game with Hereford JV's last night.

Pampa was trailing 21-0 in the fourth quarter when the Hereford stadium lost its lights, apparently due to lighting.

The problem could not be resolved, so the game was canceled.

Pampa JVs will play Borger JVs next Thursday night at Harvester Stadium. Gametime is 7 p.m.

Names in the news

MICK JAGGER

ERICH SEGAL

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Erich Segal, who has written romantic Harvard-based novels as well as scholarly books about ancient Roman comedy, has returned to Yale after an eight-year absence.

Segal, author of "Love Story," "Oliver's Story" and the recent "Man, Woman and Child," is a visiting professor in Yale's Department of Classical Languages and Literatures. More than 200 students turned out to hear his first lectures Thursday morning.

Segal, who will teach introductory courses on both tragedy and comedy during the fall semester, said, "They're two sides of the same coin."

NORTH BROOKFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Residents of this quiet New England farming town sometimes catch a glimpse of Mick Jagger jogging — along with two bodyguards.

They certainly can hear Jagger and the rest of the Rolling Stones practicing late at night in a converted dairy barn on Long View Farm, a recording studio that has been a haven for such musicians as Cat Stevens and Stevie Wonder.

Fans and foreign journalists have been pouring into town daily, hoping to catch a glimpse of the popular British rock group. And although Long View officials refuse to acknowledge that the Stones are at the studio preparing for their 25 opening in Philadelphia, the community's 4,500 residents know better.

LOBAMBA, Swaziland (AP) — King Sobhuza II — the first monarch to reign for 60 years since Britain's Queen Victoria celebrated her diamond jubilee in 1897 — has received accolades from representatives of governments around the world.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Jose Lopez Portillo will not attend the opening of the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Museum this month, a foreign diplomatic source said.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said Thursday that the former president had invited Lopez Portillo to attend the Sept. 18 opening in Grand Rapids, Mich., but that the Mexican leader declined because of a heavy workload.

The museum opening would have provided an opportunity for a meeting among President Reagan, Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and Lopez Portillo.

Marine's father vows probe

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — The father of an 18-year-old Marine recruit who drowned last week during a drill has accused the Marines of "gross negligence" and plans to hire a private investigator.

Artie Christian, 36, of Dallas, Wednesday said he would leave for San Diego near the Marine base "to see what happened." Christian said he talked with other recruits who saw his son, Pvt. Randall Christian, struggle at the end of a 10-minute swim test and were prevented by drill instructors from helping him. "They said the Dis told them if they touched Randy, they'd all go to jail," said Christian in a telephone interview from Dallas.

Christian, who is an investigator for the Dallas County district attorney, said he has received no official reason for his son's death and is dissatisfied with reports from military officials.

"My son was an excellent swimmer," Christian said. "He was a city lifeguard and he was on the high school swimming team. He was a strong muscular kid. The last thing I'd dream he'd do is drown."

"The problem is, I am still so emotional about all this," he said. "We just buried Randy yesterday. I am afraid I will not be objective, so I'm hiring a private investigator to help me out."

Military officials at Camp Pendleton said they have launched an investigation into young Christian's death.

Greg Washington, a high school classmate and fellow recruit of Randall Christian, said "the instructor was an arm's length away from him in the water watching him."

Bentsen asks tougher inspection of meat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The revelation that at least one Australian meat packing plant has shipped horse meat labeled as beef to the United States has prompted Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, to renew his cry for tougher inspection of imported meat.

New laws are needed, he said, to prevent the possibility of Australian kangaroos or horses ending up as "beef" on U.S. grocery shelves, said Bentsen, who said Wednesday he plans to introduce a bill "within the next few weeks" requiring labeling and tougher inspections of imported meat.

All Australian beef now in this country has been impounded pending further testing. In the meantime, Australian inspectors report finding kangaroo meat at the same plant that shipped horse meat to the United States.

"Secretary of Agriculture John Block is to be commended for his decision to impound and test all Australian meat in this country and to halt all imports from this one plant," Bentsen said.

"The incident makes clear, though, the need for legislation to fully protect the U.S. consumer from unknowingly being sold meat that is not up to the high quality standards that we demand and expect to get in this country."

In addition to tightening up inspection procedures, his bill also will require that all imported meat products be labeled as such all the way to the ultimate consumer, Bentsen said.

Beef produced in the United States is subject to rigorous inspections.

Even state-inspected meat packing plants are subject to unannounced federal inspections and are shut down if they don't measure up, Bentsen said. Even so, the state-inspected plants, mostly small, family-owned businesses, are forbidden from shipping their product in interstate commerce.

"By contrast, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has only 17 inspectors to supervise some 1,159 foreign meat plants that are certified to export to the United States," said Bentsen. Some of the plants are inspected only once every two years, he complained.

"The meat produced in these foreign plants, which amounts to about 7 percent of our total domestic consumption, is merely sampled when it enters this country and is then permitted to move freely in interstate commerce," Bentsen said.

The only label the imported beef carries, the Texas Democrat pointed out, is "USDA inspected," the same label carried by American beef processed in federally inspected plants.

Bentsen introduced similar legislation in the past that failed to win approval in the Senate.

"We have had a dramatic focusing of public attention on the problems of our meat import inspection system, and I would hope that those who have in the past dismissed these problems will take a second look."

Poles flee to West on Chopin Express

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Each night, as the dozen olive-green cars of the Chopin Express roll out of Warsaw's Gdansk Station, old women's tears flow.

Handkerchiefs flutter in farewell to the departing Poles, bound for Vienna and perhaps a new life.

The nightly train south, named for the composer who himself emigrated to find fame in the West, has become an escape route for tens of thousands of Poles. Few of them are eager to give their destination or say how long they will be gone. But dozens of cardboard boxes, clinging embraces and shouts of "Write a letter" and "Don't forget us" indicate the young couples straining for a last look out the windows are leaving for good.

With the rise of the independent labor federation Solidarity, the past year has brought reforms and freedoms known nowhere else in the Soviet Bloc. But for many it has been a year of longer food lines, disruptions at work, the threat of Soviet intervention and a questionable future for their children.

"I'm going because not even Solidarity can promise me that life next year will be any better than it is now," said one 27-year-old woman married to an American.

"My wife was crying all the time," said a one father who is taking his family to Western Europe. "She said she stood in line all day to find fruit juice or milk for our baby. One day she just told me, 'I can't raise my baby here.'"

"I can't find any diapers, and we've been searching for two months," said an expectant father. "I'm thinking of tearing up my cotton shirts."

The government reports more than 226,000 passports were issued in the first quarter of 1981, nearly twice the number in the same period last year. About 2,000 applications pour in daily. One newspaper said more than a million of the 36 million Poles are expected to travel to "capitalist nations" this year.

Not all leave for good. Many go to scour the foreign stores for food, clothing and appliances that cannot be found at home. But the Roman Catholic newspaper Slowo Powszechnie reported that 70,000 Poles emigrated last year, and the number is expected to jump to 100,000 this year.

"Refusal to come back occurs most frequently after trips to the United States," it reported. "And more and more are deciding to emigrate to Australia."

Clements, White fight profits tax battle

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements and Attorney General Mark White fought the windfall profits tax battle Thursday before the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby as peacemaker.

TENRAC finally approved on voice vote a resolution to Congress urging repeal of the tax, after Hobby "depersonalized" it.

Clements, aided by his good friend Houston oilman Michel T. Halbouty, originally offered a resolution accusing White of dragging his feet in filing suit against the tax.

"You have been very, very slow. Dilly-dallying around for 18 months after this body made it very clear that it wanted action," Clements shouted down the council table in the Senate chamber.

"We've done everything possible," White yelled back. "I've tried to explain this to you several times."

The argument arose when White asked the council to pass a resolution supporting Texas efforts to join other states in challenging the tax. He said Texas has joined a suit originally filed by Wyoming.

Halbouty said the council passed such a resolution in June 1980. "We called on you to file suit against the U.S. government and you didn't do it," he said. "I don't want to leave an impression that we have done anything. We would like to see you get a little action on this."
