AUSTIN — (AP) — Lieut. Gov. Allan Shivers believes Texas will gain more school fund revenue in the long run by compromising the tidelands dispute with the federal government. This view threw him in sharp contrast with Attorney General Price Daniel and other members of the School Land Board who think the best course is a finish fight.

proposition of losing all or trying to out-trade the federal government in a controversy in which very few lawyers feel Texas can prevail. All agree that she should. "The time has come to stop a lot of name-calling and try to save the most possible for the school children of Texas. This is certainly more important to Texas than the course which has been followed for the past two years. It should no longer be continued as a political football and name-calling contest.

of the controversy between Texas and the federal government have been discussed. Both contemplate an exchange of mineral production from the tidelands. Under one, Texas would swap 50 percent of her recoveries from the 10 1/2 mile wide strip off the coast for the same proportion of minerals from the larger area beyond. The adoption of either plan would mean more revenue for the schools of Texas than could be obtained by winning the tidelands suit or passing the tidelands quit-claim bill.

tidelands. Not only the state, but the coastal counties would be able to tax and police this vast domain. Supporting the geologists are right, we would not only gain more in minerals under either plan of settlement than we could get by winning the 10 1/2 mile strip but would derive additional millions in tax revenue.

From start to finish, the Beaux Arts 1949 Dance Revue was a success! Beginning with little Sam S. Cook in her "Limbering Up Solo," which was nothing short of the masters themselves, the show progressed with professional speed.

Rosa Marie Hayes' solo, "Margie," had the audience begging for more as did Rhona and Gail Finkelstein's "Five Feet Two."

Frances Aftergut and Karen Capps did two numbers, "Wood Nymphs Revels" and "Sing A Song of Sumbanna," which were outstanding. Another highlight of the show was Maynette Loftus' solo, "Choo Choo Boogie."

"Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" with Marcia Love as the Majorie was a definite stand-out. The soldiers' members of the Corps de Ballet.

"In An Indian, Too" from the stage production, "Andie Get Your Gun," was another chorus number.

Completing part two was a number called "Pampa Capertines."

Glamour Center Gives Info on "Edgeless" Face

HOLLYWOOD — Many women are aware that the secret of a glamorously completed make-up, with no "edge" showing where the cosmetic grooming of the face leaves off, lies in the application of make-up blender to continue the make-up effect on down over the neck, the shoulders, or the arms.

But Hollywood glamour expert, Max Factor, Jr., advises that nowhere near all of these women know the professional make-up artist's method of finishing off the original application of make-up blender. When the application is nearly dry, smooth it, in downward strokes, with a heavy pad of make-up tissues. When it is completely dry, buff the application down again, until finally no color shows on the tissue.

Refreshments of pimento salad and lime punch was served to the following: Meses. Jack Harris, Newt Barker, V. Wallin, W. S. Marshall, O. L. Thompson, R. D. Holmes, R. F. Watson, Joe Harris, J. H. Jones, Harris D'Spain, Brent Chapman, and the hostess.

National Whirligig

news behind the news

BY RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON - President Truman may have supplied the key to his character and his current controversy with Congress in his conversation with the White House...

"I have always claimed that the real education of a child comes far more from his home environment than from his schooling...

"I was completely sincere," he told one group, "when I said I didn't want this job in 1948, and when I told the convention at Philadelphia and campaign supporters that I did not want it again last year, I never expected to be President, and it is still hard to get used to it."

"But when they said I couldn't have it, and wanted to sidetrack me for somebody else, including people who weren't even Democrats, I was just stubborn enough to go out and show them that they couldn't take it away from me."

Then, with a characteristic tightening of his jaws, he added: "And I did!"

CONTRAST - Mr. Truman also discussed another phase of the "split personality" embodied in the once humble, unassuming "Senator" Truman and the swashbuckling, obstinate figure he seems to have become since he entered the White House...

"I try to remember that I am two people," he says, "but it is awfully hard. I want to be Harry Truman, who likes old friends and a peaceful and quiet life, and no folderol, but I have to remember that I am the President of the United States."

WISTFULLY - "I know that people don't come to see me because I am Harry Truman, but I don't praise or damn me because I am Harry Truman. They never paid any attention to me when I was Harry Truman, and they wouldn't bother with me now if I were only Harry Truman."

PRIVATE - Just as he did not want to be returned to the White House until they were Frank Hague, Leon Henderson, James Roosevelt, etc. - said he couldn't or shouldn't have a renomination, and plumped for "Ike" Eisenhower or Justice William O. Douglas...

As a senator, he exhibited no deep concern for the problems of labor, racial minorities, the underprivileged, although he usually voted for most of FDR's reforms...

STUBBORN - But when "they" - the Republicans, Southern conservatives, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers and their allies - snorted at his welfare-economic labor, and power program, and challenged him to put it on the statute books, he reacted as he did when "they" sought to deny him a renomination...

DRIVEN - In short, Harry S. Truman has been influenced and shaped and driven into his present role as an American Attie by his enemies rather than by his own friends and counselors...

DISLIKE - No analysis of President Truman's present state of mind would be complete without mention of his ill-concealed dislike for several members of the Franklin D. Roosevelt family...

"I was a Male War Bride" is Ann's first movie since buying her Warner contract and becoming a free-lance star. She went to work in the picture almost immediately thereafter, but a long location jaunt to Germany and the illness of both herself and Cary has kept the film in production almost nine months...

"Twelve years at one studio," she said, "is long enough. But I'll go back to Warners for a good story."

"She'll next do 'Carriage Entrance' - her first big color film - at RKO and then, for her own production company, a dramatic story she bought herself titled, 'Second Lady'."

The last few of those 12 years at Warners were turbulent ones. She was on suspension most of the time - once for 18 months - for turning down scripts...

"But I think Zachary Scott holds the Warner suspension record," she said. "It's 11 times. I'm next."

"I asked her about the bust-up of her long-time romance with Steve Hannagan, the public relations expert. All she'd say was: 'He's in New York most of the time. I'm in Los Angeles. 'Oomph' PAID OFF"

"The 'Oomph' girl' title dreamed up in the Warner publicity department first put Ann Sheridan's name and figure in the public eye when she was a low-paid featured player in B pictures. Happily, she outlived it, after a long fight with the studio, through such performances as in 'Kings Row'."

"That was my big fight at Warners," she said. "It was a great publicity campaign, but for a long time there was nothing to back it up."

When the "Oomph" title brought Ann a sudden rush of publicity, studio heads predicted only dire results. I remember one executive saying: "It's a great stunt, but she'll be dead at the box office in six months."

Ann remembers: "I was practically dead, too." She also remembers crying on Paul Muni's shoulder and of Paul telling her: "All this publicity you're getting will do you a certain amount of good. Use it as a stepping stone."

"She did."

Think There's Difference In Beef? Experts Fooled

TOPEKA, Kans.—Plenty of people who know their way around a beef steak say they don't like dairy beef. Maybe you are one of those who claim they never buy it. But don't be too sure.

Capper's Farmer says your chance of getting any other kind are about 50-50, unless you raise your own or have a benevolent butcher. That's because at least half the beef products in the U. S. originate in milking herds.

Sometimes even experts can't tell which is dairy meat and which is White Face beef. Consider what happened in Texas where cattle is just another name for life, liberty and the pursuit of dogs.

Somebody got to wondering what would happen if a Jersey steer had the same chance and feed that a Hereford did, the story says. Texas sub-station at Spur rounded up ten steers of each breed and ten crossbreeds of the two breeds. These were divided into lots so there were Jerseys, Herefords and Jersey-Hereford crossbreeds in each group.

After 140 days, one steer from each lot was sent to Texas A&M College for tenderness and table tests. The rest went to slaughter. Buyers at Fort Worth, being certain that they knew their beef, paid several dollars more a hundred pounds for the Herefords and crossbreeds than for the straight Jerseys. But the real showdown came at the table.

Get this picture, the story continues. Ninety-two persons line up at the table each with two hunks of beef on his plate. One is Hereford and one Jersey. There is a toothpick in one piece and none in the other. That is the only identification.

When all the chewing and tasting was over, ballots were collected and tallied. The outcome was downright embarrassing for the experts who can call their meat when they see it. The count showed 48 votes for the Hereford beef, 32 for the Jersey and 12 couldn't decide. Forty-four out of 92 persons preferred Jersey meat or couldn't tell the difference.

Nobody would believe it could happen. Most everybody thought the thing ought to be done over, so the experiment was repeated. Everything was the same except it was Hereford against Jersey-Hereford in the taste and tenderness test. Buyers at Fort Worth hadn't heard about the eating session a year before, so they went right ahead and paid $3.50 a hundred more for the Herefords, $2.50 and $1.50 more for the crossbreeds than they did the Jerseys.

Shall we sneak in the backyard for another unofficial report on the eating? It's the same scene, same layout of beef on the plates, same toothpick identification, but there are six more judges. They mince and chew as before. When the ballots are counted, 28 votes are for the Hereford, 62 for the Jersey-Hereford crossbreed and 8 are undecided.

Oh my goodness!

FARROWS LITTER OF 19 PIGS

This litter of 19 pigs farrowed by HR Lou 7, registered Yorkshire, at Decatur, Illinois, is trying to establish an all-time record weight. At 12 days of age, the Yorkshires weighed 100 pounds, compared to 46 pounds when farrowed March 5. They are eating Purina Checkers in addition to sow's milk and the old sow is fed Purina now. The pigs are divided into litters of 9 and 10 for nursing in shifts.

Ever Hear of Fresh Milk Put in Cans?

Dairy customers may be able to buy fresh milk in cans from grocer's shelves before long.

An article in the June issue of Capper's Farmer says a new canning method is well on the road to perfection at Wood-Jon farm in Porter County, Indiana. The process is the work of J. H. Stambaugh, farmer, and Dr. Roy H. Graves, a former U. S. Department of Agriculture dairy scientist.

Goal of Graves and Stambaugh is a stable, well-flavored product that can be shipped long distances and held indefinitely without refrigeration.

In the new process, milk is drawn from the cow under vacuum by milking machine. It flows through stainless-steel tubes to a large vat. Then, still at the cow's body temperatures, it goes into a standard homogenizer. It is pasteurized and put into sterilized cans without being exposed to air.

When Graves and Stambaugh learned their canned milk would remain fresh, they contacted the Continental Can Company which installed a pilot canning machine at the Stambaugh dairy. Cans of fresh milk are now being tested. Recently researchers opened a can of fresh milk that had been at normal room temperatures for six weeks and found the flavor satisfactory. The main jobs now are to find the right type of can and the best combinations of temperatures and holding periods of sterilization.

Dairies may go into the canning business when the process has reached commercial perfection, the story continues. This will do away with glass bottles, paper cartons, milk wagon drivers and other factors that add five to seven cents to the price of a quart of milk.

The inventors also envision a complete change in dairy farming. Farmers would keep their cows in large herds at milking centers. A cow would be returned to the farm when dry and to, have a calf.

2-4-D Sprays Are Used in County

Tom O'Bryan has marked off an area of more than 1,000 acres to be sprayed with 2-4-D for sand sage. It was announced from the Roberts County Soil Conservation District.

In addition about 400 acres of 1,000 acres sprayed last year will be re-sprayed. This area received a hard rain the evening after it was sprayed.

The company is doing the re-spraying job without charge with O'Bryan furnishing the material.

Extra Feeding as Harvest Nears Gives Super Yield

When garden plants begin to flower, set fruit, or reach harvest size, a "side dressing" of plant food will usually bring an increased yield, of higher quality. Flowers will grow larger, and colors more brilliant. Fruits will increase in size, and more will set. Leaf and root crops will speed up growth and improve in tenderness and flavor.

Plant food should be applied without disturbing the roots of the plants, since this might do more harm than the feeding would do good. One way is to spread the plant food on the surface between the rows after cultivating, and rake it into the soil, then wash it in. Another way, which has shown impressive results in New Jersey experiments, is to stir the plant food in water, and pour the water on the ground near the plants.

During hot, dry weather, dry plant food may be inert in the soil, until water is supplied to dissolve it. By using liquid plant food the need for irrigation is lessened, and immediate results are obtained. Dr. V. A. Tiedjen, who is an advocate of liquid plant food, gives the following instructions for preparing it.

Place a complete dry plant food in a cloth bag and hang it in a barrel, or bucket, of water overnight. The material that remains in the mixture will remain in the water. The quantities recommended are for standard dry mixtures, and do not apply to high analysis mixtures, or those especially prepared for use in solution.

For side dressing growing crops, use a cupful of plant food to a quart of water, or a pound (pint) to a gallon. For row crops pour a quart of the liquid to each three feet of row. For plants in hills, use a quart for each tomato, a pint for each egg plant, with others in proportion.

Side Dressing Plant Food.

In the flower garden, from a cupful to a quart of the liquid may be applied to each plant, depending upon its size. This liquid should not be applied to the leaves, only to the soil; if it is impossible to avoid the leaves, dilute the liquid with an equal amount of water to weaken it, and avoid burning. A liquid feeding ten days before your flower show will help you cut larger and more brilliantly colored flowers for exhibition.

Experienced gardeners can recognize when a plant is not growing as it should, and needs an extra meal. But if the weakness is due to other causes, extra feeding will not help. It will not correct poor drainage, or cure disease, and should not be used when the plants have bloomed and want to rest, as do most of the spring perennials, when summer comes.

Many students believe that primitive men, sometimes called savages, are predominantly religious in their outlook.

BEAR WILL MAKE YOU BEAR DOWN

SEATTLE (AP)—"There's nothing like a bear to make you bear down!"

That was the observation of First Lieut. Melvin Whitley, after watching one of his rifle squads go through an attack problem at Fort Lawton.

He noticed a large black bear, much taller than an infiltrating ground-bound soldier, was following the group.

The bear, he said, took a position some 20 yards behind the men, and from then on showed considerable curiosity as to how the problem would go.

The squad argued. So did the bear. The squad sagged. Likewise Mr. Bruin.

After the problem was completed Whitley said he called the squad leader over and asked him if he knew the squad had had a fur-bearing observer.

"Heck no!" exclaimed the wide-eyed soldier. "If I had, I would have reached my objective much sooner than I did!"

Stuffed-Shirtism is Most Hated by Humorist

NEW YORK — (AP) — A lady poet once wrote: "Laugh and the world laughs with you."
 If this were only true, H. Allen Smith — who is certainly no lady and probably no poet — would be a happy man indeed.
 For his job is to make as much of the world laugh as he can. He writes funny books for a living.
 Smith should be in a position to give a formula on how to be funny in print. Beginning in 1941 with "Low Man on a Top-Side Pole," his books have sold some 2,500,000 copies. His publisher says he is "the best-selling humorist since Mark Twain."
 "The problem a humorist faces," he said, "is that people are on different wave lengths. The public reacts differently. Humor is the most difficult form of expression for the reason that you are never sure of it. And there is nothing sorer than a joke that doesn't go."
 The humor wave lengths at his own four-acre homestead outside head on Smith's daughter, Nancy, 20, likes his writing, but she doubts if his son, Allen, 21, has ever read one of his 11 books clear through.
 Smith began his career by shining shoes and sweeping up hair in a barber shop. He worked on a dozen papers as a wandering newspaperman, a career in which he felt a grammar school education was no real handicap.
 "The thing I am proudest of in my newspaper life is that I was a helluva good rewrite man," he said.
 He still is. He writes each book twice. The first time he races through as quickly as he can hit the keys. The second time he puts on the verbal polish.
 His latest book, "Low and Inside," is a collection of baseball anecdotes co-authored with Ira Smith.
 "I think a guy who can write humor contributes more than 50 percent of the serious writers," he said.
 To him the funniest sight beneath the sun is a formal ceremony of any kind, because it shows mankind pretending to be more than it is. The "ism" he hates most is stuffed-shirtism.
 "I asked him what was the saddest thing he had ever seen. 'The human race,' he said. 'Most humorists reach that conclusion.'"

City Derby Champ Has Weekend At Akron He Will Never Forget

The champions from all sections of the nation, meeting for the first time at Derbytown, form fast friendships during Derby week end. Spirited sessions around the camp fireplace, under the inscription "Let the fires of friendship burn," are among the favorite evening occupations.

One of the finest camping experiences in his life is in store for every local Soap Box Derby champion when he arrives in Akron, Ohio, to participate in the national and international race Aug. 14.
 The champs all will spend the four-day Derby weekend at "Derbytown," a fully equipped camp a dozen miles from Akron. Here the 150 boys will have the twofold advantage of real summer camp life and the unique experience of being feted as one of a group of real heroes for winning their hometown Soap Box Derby race.
 Camp Y-Noah, a YMCA camp, is taken over entirely for the Soap Box Derby champions during their time in Akron, and its every facility is devoted to the comfort and entertainment of the young champions. In Akron the boys are the guests of the Chevrolet Motor Division, national co-sponsor of the Derby. In Pampa, the race is sponsored by The News, Pampa Lions Club, and Culbertson Chevrolet, in addition to the Chevrolet Division.
 Situated in a rolling, wooded section beside a cool, little lake, "Derbytown" provides every possible form of outlet for youthful enthusiasm and energy. Supervision of the boys by a large group of trained counselors, and provision for food prepared by cooks experienced in the likes and dislikes of growing boys add up to a perfect four-day camping week-

During their stay at Derbytown the champs are supervised by this group of experienced camp counselors. The boys' every minute is taken up with organized play and recreation, and with preparations for the race.

House Farm Leaders Draft New Program
 WASHINGTON — (AP) — House farm leaders Friday began drafting a new farm program expected to keep in effect much of the present price support system.
 There were strong indications that the agriculture subcommittee headed by Rep. Pace (D-Ga.) will reject both (A) the Truman administration's "production payment" bill and (B) the Aiken law passed by the Republican Congress last year.
 The Aiken law, due to go into effect in 1950, calls for a 60 to 90 percent of parity "flexible" price support system. The administration plan would let certain prices drop below support levels — to give consumers the benefit of lower prices — with the U. S. Treasury making up the difference to farmers.
 The House members were expected to produce a bill based on the present system of rigid 90 percent of parity price supports for major crops, with continued production controls. It might authorize some experimental production payments as proposed in the administration bill.
 (Parity is a price calculated to give farmers a return for their crops in fair relationship to the prices of things they have to buy.)
 Pace gave the key to thinking within his group when he told reporters: "There has never been and there never will be high national income without a prosperous agriculture. It can be made stable and prosperous only through the assurance of a fair parity price for farm commodities."
 "Certainly supports at 90 percent of the fair price is the least the farmers can ask and the least the nation can afford to pay, if we want to continue to enjoy good wages and prosperity."
 Only four months of public hearings, he said, "shown beyond question that if the Aiken bill is permitted to take effect Jan. 1 it would immediately bring about a drastic reduction in farm income and would set in motion forces which would bring about a serious depression."
 More than 37 million motor vehicles were registered in the United States on January 1, 1947.

Poppies Here for Saturday Sales
 "The poppies are here!" This is the word which flashed through the ranks of the Pampa unit of the American Legion Auxiliary today, when a shipment of memorial poppies to be worn here Saturday, Poppy Day, arrived from the hospitals where they were made by disabled veterans.
 Members of the Poppy Committee, headed by Mrs. J. M. Turner, chairman, includes Mmes. Hupp Clark, Harold Wright, Frank Lard and D. L. Lullier.
 The poppies, made of crepe paper with wire stems, are exact replicas of the wild poppies which grew "between the crosses row on row" in the battle cemeteries in France and Belgium during World War I, Mrs. Turner said.
 "They were nature's floral tribute to those who died," she said, "and as soon as the American Legion and Auxiliary were organized after the war, we made them our memorial flower."

So Dear To Your Heart....

Ever so often, not more than a half a dozen times a year, you see a motion picture that gets under your skin and you are glad that it did because it gives you a warm glow of happiness throughout and you leave the theatre wishing everyone could see it. You wish you could find words to express to them the downright goodness of simple story telling and joyous entertainment which is in store for them.
 Such a picture is Walt Disney's newest creation, "SO DEAR TO MY HEART."
 The picture, done in Technicolor, a combination of live action (85 per cent) and cartoon, starring Burl Ives, Beulah Bondi, Harry Carey, Luana Patten and Bobby Driscoll, and some new lovable Disney characters, was taken from the book of the same name by Sterling North, and condensed in the December 1948 Readers' Digest. The setting is a small mid-western town; the time at the turn of the century. The story is about a boy, probably seven or eight years old, his little black lamb, his little girl playmate, his grandmother, the village blacksmith, and the keeper of the general store. The train stops only when it is flagged and the county seat, to a little boy's thinking, is miles and miles away. Anyone who has the memory of childhood days in a small town will live this picture. It is so clean and wholesome that it goes to the roots of things fundamental, as well as spiritual, to the American way of life.
 In addition to the title song, "So Dear To My Heart," other catchy tunes are "It's Watcha Do With Watcha Got," the dilly-dilly song, "Lavender Blue," "Stick-To-It-Ivity," and "County Fair."
 We unconditionally recommend "SO DEAR TO MY HEART" for your family entertainment... a rare experience in a new kind of motion picture to charm your innermost depths.

Coolness Toward Atlantic Pact May Not Be Too Real

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.,
 AF Foreign Affairs Analyst
 Signs of coolness toward the Atlantic Pact among Senate leaders may be more apparent than real.
 There was surprise in Washington Tuesday when Senator Connally suggested that the public might be given more time to get acquainted with the measure. Later he said he was only talking about matters of Senate procedure. But taken with previous statements designed to alleviate Senate fears regarding the extent of U. S. commitments, the Foreign Relations Committee chairman's words continued to cast some doubt on his personal eagerness for the pact.
 This was especially true because the remarks coincided with receipt in Washington of advance reports of a public opinion poll showing a small majority of people actually for the pact, with a considerable proportion undecided and a small number actively opposed. Although such polls are now open to question in Washington, this agreed with the extent of American commitments, and also to avoid emphasizing, through argument, the opinions of anti-pact witnesses in the committee hearings.

 This also may have had something to do with Secretary of state Acheson's statement Wednesday pushing the idea of a Pacific pact into "background."
 Prime Minister Schiefly of Australia, President Sheng of Korea and Ambassador Wellington Koo from China have issued statements urging such a pact. Just as rearrangement talk has spread some alarm as to where the Atlantic Pact will lead, so does the thought of additional pacts at this time.

TEXAS LADY LOSES 47 POUNDS

The following remarkable story shows another instance of the remarkable DORIS idea of fat.
 It contains nothing harmful. In fact, it contains ingredients that make you feel better. No starvation diet—no weakness—no hunger. Here's the original grapefruit juice recipe. Take off fat quickly, safely and you can eat plenty.
Here is proof
 Here is what Mrs. H. F. Stidley, Route 2, Stamford, Texas, wrote me:
 "I am very glad to endorse Grapefruit Juice for the great benefit I derived from its use. I not only lost weight, but also looked and felt better in every way."
 "I had to have a very serious operation and was told that I must keep a lot of weight before the operation could be performed. I went on a diet and tried very hard to reduce, but wasn't losing much weight until I heard of Grapefruit Juice. I began taking it and would soon tell the difference in the way I felt and the weight I was losing. I weighed 170 pounds when I started and I lost a total of 47 pounds and was able to undergo my operation. I can truthfully recommend it to others, since it did so much for me."
At all drug stores
 If you are overweight and want to take off extra fat, just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Grapefruit Juice. Four this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Then take just two tablespoonsful twice a day. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, safe way to take off weight, return the empty bottle for your money back.

HMM... NO PLACE UP HERE WHERE ANY-ONES COULD HIDE!

AND NOW DOWN-STAIRS, WHERE THE NOISES HAD SEEMED TO COME FROM! HOW COULD ANYONE HAVE GOTTEN IN, LEAVING EVERY ENTRANCE WALKED UP ON THE OUTSIDE!

tee's hearings are one part of a Congressional inquiry into how well the Atomic Energy Commission is guarding its secrets.

Technically, the subcommittee is holding hearings on the commission's request for over a billion dollars of funds to finance its activities in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The Senate-House committee on atomic matters is also making an inquiry. At the moment, it is particularly concerned with the disappearance of some uranium from a Chicago atomic laboratory and is seeking an "outside expert" to check on testimony it has received.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.), brought up the matter of the isotopes exports while the Appropriations Committee was preparing to question Dr. Isadore Edelman, holder of a $3,750 commission fellowship at Harvard. The senators want to form their own opinion of his loyalty.

At the outset of the hearing, Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) read a letter from Comptroller General Lindsay Warren saying that present law does not require a loyalty oath from students getting atomic fellowships.

There has been some dispute about the law. O'Mahoney has declared Congress will change the law to require such oaths.

Moore lodge in Texas. The first one, and for more than 20 years the only lodge in Texas, was organized in Borger very shortly after that town was founded.

Dr. Charles Hopper, a long time member of the Borger lodge, was also on hand last night to assist in the ritual.

Besides Maguire, other officers installed last night include: Jack Vaughn, past governor; Vincent D. Kersey, secretary; Bryan Kearby, Jr., treasurer; J. D. Wright, Jr., trustee; Lawrence Stalcup, sergeant-at-arms; and Jess Clay, inner guard.

The lodge's first meeting will be held in the Palm Room next Tuesday night. Officers of the Borger lodge will be on hand again to assist and advise the Pampa officers.

Approximately 70 men were initiated last night.

Simpson and Sturgeon brought out that Hughes had some penny machines still on locations but that he hadn't checked them. Other machines were taken up and brought to Hughes' garage where they are now stored. Hughes said he tendered the machines and property to their original owners and wanted his money back.

Under re-direct examination by his attorney, Hughes declared he told the defendants that he was only 19 when he made the contract and had no money left from the machines when he decided to disaffirm his contract.

vined by your argument, nevertheless I will consent to your proposal."

The Soviet foreign minister agreed without argument to a Western proposal that if there is time after German problems are discussed, the council should try again to agree on an Austrian treaty.

Bevin asked if Russia considered full agreement on Germany a pre-condition to taking up Austria and Vishinsky replied, smiling: "We are going to agree on all questions here."

Western conference sources who reported these exchanges noted that they followed the conciliatory line on Germany Russia has taken since her proposal last month to lift the Berlin blockade.

But they are "flabbergasted," nonetheless, they reported.

The Western sources said they expected to get a better line today on how long Vishinsky will keep on smiling, and agreeing.

Under the first agenda item, "the problem of German unity," the West plans to propose discussion first of its plan for unifying Germany politically.

Vishinsky threw one surprise into the opening meeting by proposing that the Foreign Ministers' Council, with China added, should set a date for discussion of a peace treaty for Japan.
