Wilkinson Out as Banquet Principal

For the third time in recent years, Bud Wilkinson, coach of the Oklahoma Sooners, top college team in the country, has left Pampa.

About six weeks ago Wilkinson agreed to be speaker at the Pampa Chamber of Commerce's football banquet on Dec. 12. Monday morning the following telegram arrived from him:

SUGAR BOWL ACCEPTANCE MAKES MY ATTENDANCE AT YOUR BANQUET IMPOSSIBLE AS I MUST BE HERE FOR PRACTICE. WOULD BE GLAD TO SEND MEMBER OF COACHING STAFF AS SUBSTITUTE. PLEASE LET ME KNOW YOUR WISHES. BUD WILKINSON.

The Chamber of Commerce made known its wishes to Wilkinson; that he be here as promised. Arrangements were even made to fly him to Pampa immediately after practice and back the next morning. When Wilkinson said thumbs down to that offer, the C of C tried to get him in early January but he wouldn't give Pampa a date until in February.

A meeting of the sports committee Thursday brought the answer to the situation. Bud Wilkinson and try to get another coach. That meant setting the football banquet date back until early January, which was done. The exact date hasn't been set as yet, it being dependent upon what arrangements can be made with a new speaker. Attempts are being made a right now to get a head coach out of the Southwest Conference.

Wilkinson carries a heavy schedule of football work. At the time he made the agreement to come to Pampa he hadn't entertained thoughts of a bowl bid. He was to leave for San Francisco the day after the Pampa banquet to coach in the East-West All-Star Game. That also had to be dropped.

Another thing that entered into the mind of the sports committee was that the Pampa Harvester football season might not be over by the Dec. 12 date, which fact it was felt would detract from the banquet.

As soon as a new speaker and a new date have been readied it will be announced in The Pampa Daily News.

SCOUTS AND TORCHES—Bearing the torches they made for the Santa Claus torchlight parade beginning at 7 p. m. today, three of 100 who made torches for the parade, are left to right, Joseph Chisum, Troop 80; Don Fendergast, Troop 14; Bob Schofield, Troop 14. The torch bearers will meet on the Browning street side of the Pampa Junior High School grounds at 6:45 p. m. today, to prepare for the parade. Paul Beisenherz, director of the Adobe Walls Council, directed the torch-making in the junior high gymnasium Thursday night. (News Photo and Engraving)

Last-Minute Preparations Are Made for Santa Parade

The route of the flight of Santa Claus parade scheduled for 7 p. m. today, has been slightly changed. Instead of coming down W. Foster and up N. Russell, the parade will come down W. Foster and up N. Frost, turn east at junior high school, over to Cuyler, then south on Cuyler to Thut.

Air Force Changes Recruiting Policy

The U. S. Air Force today announced a change in recruiting policy. Male applicants from civilian life, including those without prior service, may be enlisted in grades 1, 2 and 3 if they have no more than two dependents.

Almen currently serving on active duty, including reservists, may be reenlisted immediately without regard to the number of dependents.

M-Sgt. Davis A. Brown, local recruiting officer, made the announcement and also added that he was getting many enlistments due to the critical war situation in Korea.

Toledo Mayor Is Named New Controls Chief

WASHINGTON — (P) — President Truman's appointment of a price administrator touched off predictions in Congress today that wage price controls are sure to follow.

There was not much disagreement about the likelihood of their being invoked eventually, but legislators had varying estimates about how soon.

Mr. Truman late Thursday named Mayor Michael V. Disalle of Toledo to be price chief — a job he had said it would take a man with guts to fill.

There were signs, too, that materials and other controls will begin to cut into the civilian economy. Chairman W. Stuart Symington of the National Security Resources Board told news men that all segments of the economy will be hurt. He spoke of an impending shift in the mobilization program from "light gray" to "dark gray."

Senate Republican Leader Wherry of Nebraska said Disalle's selection as price administrator indicates "that the President is getting ready to impose wage-price controls, at least on a selective basis." He added: "He is not appointing a man to that job just to sit around."

Senator Maybank (D-SC), chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said he believes "wage controls are coming awfully close to wage-price controls," and added: "I can't see how they can be avoided unless there is a drastic improvement in the world situation. If there isn't, we will have to impose controls in simple justice to our fighting forces in Korea."

Atlantic Talks Said Arranged

WASHINGTON — (P) — Informal sources said today a meeting of North Atlantic military leaders has been arranged to seek immediate agreement on creation of a combined defense force in western Europe. A formal announcement is probable within the next 24 hours.

President Truman said Thursday it is now more necessary than ever to establish such a force under a supreme command. Defense and military officials of the North Atlantic treaty nations tried at meetings here in October to agree on the details of a combined force for western Europe. A deadlock developed at that time between U. S. and French proposals to rearm western Germany.

Appointment of a supreme commander — generally expected to be Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower — was postponed pending further efforts to reach a detailed agreement on the combined force.

Expenditure Tops Big Defense Outlay

WASHINGTON — (P) — President Truman today asked Congress for $17,850,000,000 to speed a buildup of the armed forces and vastly expand the atomic energy program.

Mr. Truman called congressional leaders of both parties to the White House for a conference on the gravest crisis since the end of World War II, and then told them the government needs:

$16,800,000,000 for a quick buildup of the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force.

$1,050,000,000 to speed up the atomic energy program, which means increasing the stockpile of atomic bombs.

UN Setting Up 24-Hour Talks On Red Crisis

LAKE SUCCESS — (P) — With the specter of atomic war looming before them, United Nations diplomats today began round-the-clock discussions on how to get the Chinese Communists out of Korea without touching off World War III.

Conspicuously absent from the planning was Russia's Jacob A. Malik, who last night vetoed a conciliatory six-power security council resolution calling on the Chinese Reds to withdraw and promising to safeguard their legitimate interests in Korea and respect their Manchurian frontier.

He denounced the resolution as illegal and blamed "American imperialists" for the Korean war.

Chinese Communist delegate Wu Hsiu-chuan backed him up and declared the people of China have complete confidence they can beat back the imperialist aggressors.

Wu spoke after the Council, following a minimum of debate, threw out his charges that the U. S. had committed aggression against China and Korea. Only Russia voted in favor of them.

These intransigent attitudes from Moscow and Peking apparently slammed the door on hopes for an easy, negotiated withdrawal of Red Chinese from Korea. Diplomats began searching for some other solution which would still be short of all-out war.

The speeches by Malik and Wu helped to solidify non-Communist sentiment. It was apparent that the 43 nations who have backed UN action in Korea have no intention of retreating.

Delegations here were aware that the most important decisions — such as whether to use the atomic bomb and whether to bomb Manchuria — would be made in Washington. The entire strategy, they felt, would become much more clear after weekend conferences there between President Truman and Prime Minister Clement Attlee of Britain.

Rogers Off to Washington

Congressman-elect Walter Rogers left Thursday afternoon for Washington, D. C., to attend to some pre-inaugural business.

The lanky son-to-be said the government printing office had instructed him to furnish them with his signature so that a photograph may be taken of it in connection with his ranking privileges and that he intends to deliver it while in Washington.

He added he would do a little "house hunting" on the side, take a "look-see" at Congress, attend some private legal business and look into his House office space assignment.

Rogers drove to Sherman where he will visit his mother, Mrs. W. D. Rogers, and then leave for Washington by rail from Dallas. He is expected to return in about 10 days.

Santa Is Due Here Tonight

Santa Claus will be here tonight!

That big night that everyone has been waiting for is finally here and the jovial old gentleman and four of his reindeer will be on hand tonight to participate in the Christmas torchlight parade.

This year, been a hectic week for Santa. He got way-laid because of the storm and then Frances got sick. But everything is fine once again and he is looking forward to seeing everyone tonight in the parade and afterward on the vacant lot at the corner of Cuyler and Kingsmill.

Some more mail was waiting here today for Santa when he arrived. Here are some of the letters:

Dear Santa: I want a set of silverware for my mother and something for my Dad and Bub. For my little boy and my little girl and lots of candy and nuts. Love, Gary Joe Greer, 321 N. Perry.

Dear Santa Claus: Please bring me a wrist watch or a camera. Also some fruit and candy. Thank you, Dorothy Lefevre, Route 2, Box 158. Don't forget the ones in the hospitals and orphanages.

Bomb Not Needed Officer Declares

TOKYO — (P) — General Arthur's top intelligence officer said today the United Nations situation in Korea is not desperate and implied the atomic bomb is not needed to stem the Chinese Red tide.

He reported the allied line in the critical northwest is being stabilized. The U. S. Eighth Army retreated to this shortened line extending inland from the Yellow Sea after its severe setback by the Chinese in the past week.

Eighth Army sources expected strong Red attacks on that front Friday night or Saturday. A spokesman said enemy strength was building up south of the Chongchon River.

Way after wave of U. S. Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers lashed at the Chinese buildup south of the frozen stream.

In the northeast — across the peninsula's mountainous spine — United Nations forces were reported making a fighting retreat southward on both sides of the big Chongchon reservoir.

Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, MacArthur's G-2 boss, assessed the war situation for correspondents in a 2,500-word statement in Tokyo, and then submitted to questioning.

Washington Parley May Be Big Three

LONDON — (P) — A Big Three parley of heads of state on the worsening Asiatic crisis became a possibility today.

Prime Minister Attlee made last-minute preparations to fly to Washington Sunday to see President Truman. In Paris, a foreign office spokesman said French Premier Rene Pleven may join the talks.

The Paris spokesman said he understood the French premier might hurry to Washington if the national assembly gave him a sufficient vote of confidence later tonight. Whether Pleven remained in office depended on the vote.

The British Foreign Office announced that Attlee will see Pleven and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman tomorrow before leaving for Washington.

Attlee may be in Washington for a week to confer with the President on the whole range of policy in the Far East.

The British leader spent the morning in hurried conferences with top ministers and began lining up his team of advisers for the Washington talks.

WE HEARD . . .

The happy voice of little Roy Spencer calling The News office this morning wanting to know Santa Claus' telephone number. He didn't want to write a letter, he wanted to have a heart-to-heart talk with the jovial gentleman.

HE CAME TO KILL

By AVELINE McFRESH

Copyright 1950 by MFA Service, Inc.

... Peter in the luggage compartment of his brother's convertible. Rigor mortis had almost done its work. His face was distorted, his eyes horribly twisted. Leena saw away, sickened by the horrible spectacle of a dead man's body curved like the giant of Death itself.

... was not in sight. Had he been his wife, to confront her crimes? "Mart!" Leena called out her fear.

... not leaped toward the house, others following.

... was hammering on the door of Sondra's room. The guard was trying to dislodge the key in the lock on the inside. Mrs. Carstairs, who was supposed to stay with Sondra under all circumstances, stood by, protected by the ruffled feathers of anger.

... the full faint," she flung at Sheriff Purdy as he halted, puffing, at the door. "Wanted murderer."

... Mrs. Carstairs no more's came out Hill Mrs. Thorne locked the door, the guard explained. "She's awful still." He slammed his brawny shoulder against the door. It cracked, but held. Mart added his weight and together they lunged. The door groaned on its hinges and gave way, spilling them an empty room.

... ready spring to the window, yanked by an unwieldy and-blanket, rope and flung at his feet. The roof of a racing car was his answer.

... Purdy belched his frustration, pounded into the hall and upstairs to telephone the alarm state and local police. Leena, at her side, leaned far out the doorway to watch the red car streak toward the highway. She held her breath.

... She was not conscious of crying as the car struck its speeding red nose around the hairpin curve and dived down the precipitous hillside down which she—Leena—had fled from Peter.

Hours later, when the terrible shrieks of tortured metal no longer rang in her ears and the picture of Sondra's lifeless, broken body being lifted from the wreck and placed in the same ambulance with the man she had murdered had dimmed somewhat, Leena left her room. Perhaps now she could trust herself to speak to Jasper, to comfort him—if there was comfort for a man who has seen his wife open up almost the entire Thorne clan.

Jasper had gone into Thorne City. So had Mart and the sheriff. Only Mrs. Carstairs and old Arthur Jones were in the kitchen at Thorne Hill.

"Sit down, child," Mrs. Carstairs invited.

LEENA shook her head but sank gratefully into a chair and accepted the coffee the woman poured for her. It was strong, soothing to jangled raw nerves. Gulping it, she thought, "We'll be going away soon—Mart and I. But we'll come back—Mart and I. We're Thorne's... well, not Mart, but..."

She was thinking like Miss Muggie. A Thorne's place is at Thorne Hill. How often Pops had said that—and longed for "home!"

"That nice Mr. Preston said tell you he'd be right back," Mrs. Carstairs said, smiling. "With a surprise."

Leena shook her head. "I'm beyond surprise, Carsty. And shock. We all see, I think."

"Tut-tut," Arthur Jones checked. "Not this 'prise, Miss Leena. I'm all excited my own self. Why, when he called out from town—'Arthur!'—reprimanded Mrs. Carstairs, and at Mart, and felt warm with happiness. She was the lucky one.

"The old man bobbed his head, grinned toothlessly at them. "That young man of yours has a head on his shoulders all right, Miss Leena."

Leena felt a wild urge to laugh to be gay. Mart was her "young man." Old Arthur said so.

Then she heard Mart calling as he came in the door.

"Leena? Hey—honey!"

Jumping up, Leena ran into the hall. Mart swept her into his arms, kissed her soundly and then held her away from him.

"Something in the car for you," he said, too casually.

Leena saw the twinkle in his eyes burst into a shower of infectious gaiety. She ran to the door.

"Pops!" she shrieked when it opened in her face and the tall, graying man stepped inside. "Oh, Pops!"

ROGER THORNE'S arms were strong, like Mart's, and his shoulder was broad enough for the weeping that had been shuttered within her for so long. Leena took full advantage of it.

"It's been bad, hasn't it? I came as fast as I could. But," and Roger Thorne looked from his daughter to Mart, "you seem to have done all right, honey. The law was on your side."

"From the first," Mart vowed. Chuckling, Roger Thorne added, "Course I'd have come anyhow. A father sort of likes to give his daughter to the man who will be his son."

"Thanks, sir," Mart gripped his outstretched hand. "Thanks—Pops."

Jasper came then and they talked of murder, of the wedding, of going away—of new happiness that would come, one day, in Thorne Hill.

"Sondra wanted too much," Jasper said. "Far too much. So did Peter. Me?" The husky softness faded, his voice became hard, proud. "I was slow, satisfied—dumb—but I'm still alive."

Yes, Leena thought, Alive—and free. Free for the first time. But no, Jasper was not free. . . . He was too much a Thorne to forget it. . . . She looked at her father, and at Mart, and felt warm with happiness. She was the lucky one.

McLemore Checks Full Setup And Then Picks Navy to Win

By HENRY McLEMORE
PHILADELPHIA — Requests that I pick the winner in tomorrow's Army-Navy game having come in from as far away as next door, I felt it my duty to come down here and give off a prediction.

I have been naming my idea of the winner in them, all the top football battle of this all when it comes to pomp, pageantry, and bare-knuckled rivalry, off and on since 1930 and my record is flawless.

Absolutely perfect score, that's what I have. I haven't guessed right one time in all the twenty-year span. That shows either a genius or lack of preparation and thought, and those who know me will tell you that I have just about as much genius as the average snowball has whiskers.

It's quite obvious why readers want to know my selection. Once they know the team I favor they can without one whit of fear and trembling bet the old homestead, their Christmas Club savings, their shirts, undershirts, and boots, and anything else they can lay their hands on, on the other team.

But this year I am liable to fool them and come up with the winner of the game between the Cadets and the Sailors, as I have nicknamed the men from the two service academies.

You see, this year I instituted a new plan of attack on this game. In the past, I never went to the scene of battle until the morning of the game, usually arriving just in time to get off my selection before the kickoff.

Two years ago I was even more slipshod in my preparations, reaching the stadium without a ticket, and gate crashing this game is no easy matter. I got in by one of those once-in-a-lifetime happenings. Just as I panted up to the stadium President Truman and his entourage of automobiles and attendants arrived. In the excitement I trotted through the gates alongside one of the cars, doing my very best to look like a Secret Service man or an employee of the State Department with a hot bit of information for the President.

I knew that sort of thing wouldn't work this year, what with the attempted assassination still fresh in the memory of the Secret Service, so I got myself a ticket.

And I came to Philadelphia in advance. The teams always come in advance to get a good night's rest before the battle, and to get acclimated. I'm just as human as the players, so, I reasoned, why shouldn't I be in tip-top shape before making my selection?

I had a good, restful 45 minutes of sleep last night and got up this morning feeling on top of the world. Or, to be more truthful, as if the top of the world were on me. After a rousing good breakfast of aspirin tablets, sunny side up, and an ice cold shower (most of which I drank), I called West Point and asked if the team had left for Philadelphia. Then I called Annapolis for the same information. No use picking a team that isn't going to show up.

After I read the selections of all the Philly sportswriters, shaved with a straight razor just to prove to myself that I could resist the temptation to cut my throat, I went out to Municipal Stadium to inspect the seating arrangements, the turf, the exits

Body Tissues Battle Germs

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
SALT LAKE CITY — (AP) — A new concept of disease has been described at the College of Medicine of the University of Utah.

Some dramatic experiments show disease to be a battle between the body's connective tissues and germs or other causes of illness.

In this new concept, connective tissues furnish natural weapons to fight invasion by disease. These tissues even take part in healing cuts and bruises.

Connective tissue is the largest single material forming our bodies. Without it we would be jelly. This tissue takes many forms, from ligaments, membranes and the walls of blood vessels to the binding threads in fat muscle and bone. Only hair and nails contain no connective tissue.

The experiments were done by Dr. T. F. Dougherty, professor of anatomy. He stopped inflammation of all sorts by giving extra amounts of the hormone cortisone. Cuts failed to swell or inflame. Redness of throats disappeared.

This stopping of inflammation, Dr. Dougherty said, is not necessarily a good thing, and in fact may be very bad. He used large amounts of hormone to find out what was going on. Inflammation, he explained, is the body's first reaction to protect itself. Red and swollen tissues are the sign that white blood cells have rushed to the sites of trouble to phagocytose, or swallow, the germs or other substances causing trouble. This swelling is caused by the connective tissues. That changes the

Kid Probably Dead Old-Timer Claims Of Famed Outlaw

CAYUGA — (AP) — It's possible the Kid is still alive says an old timer, but not probable, that Billy the Kid, whose name was William Henry Bonney, saying he was still alive.

James R. Watts who will be 83 next month, said he knew the "Kid" on sight and that he was in the still when Sheriff Pat Garrett shot the outlaw at Fort Sumner, N. M., in 1881.

An El Paso law firm last week applied for a pardon for Billy the Kid, whose name was William Henry Bonney, saying he was still alive.

Watts said he thought the man was an imposter, but — "If I can meet him, I'd know in ten minutes if he was Billy the Kid. Of course," he said, "I wouldn't recognize him but we'd remember lots of the same things."

Watts is living in this East Texas community with a daughter.

Research Hurts By Socialization
DALLAS — (AP) — Socialization has not hurt research in England, says the Earl of Halsbury.

The head of the National Research Development Corporation, an agency sponsored by the British government, he said research had benefited in some ways under socialization.

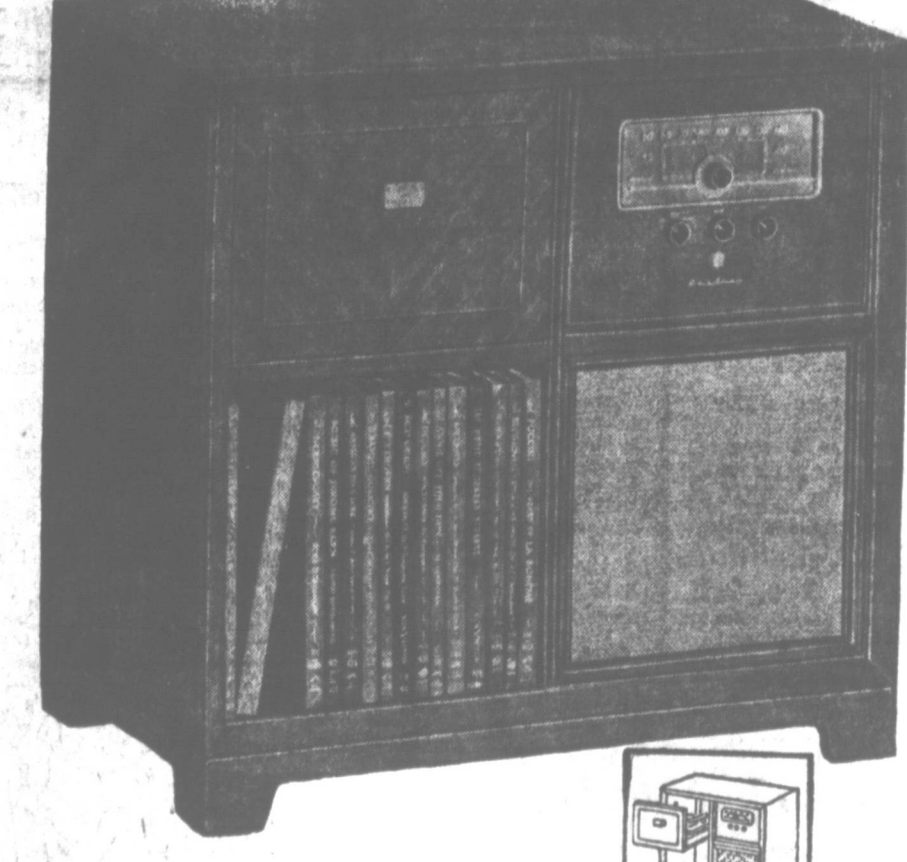

He made his remarks Wednesday while visiting the Texas Research Foundation on a tour of American Research institutions.

Kraft Man Blames Soil For Shutdowns
DALLAS — (AP) — Texas soil is becoming poorer and poorer, a businessman declared.

J. C. Loftis, general manager of the southwestern division of the Kraft Food Company, said Kraft has been forced to shut down ten of its Texas plants in recent years because Texas farmers could not produce sufficient volume to keep them operating.

Harvesters Clash With Bulldogs Saturday

Kentucky Is Loaded With Cage Talent

By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky's Louisiana State, the two parental powers of Southern basketball, again figure to shove their weight around this year. However, both may be forced to take a back seat to Murray (Ky.) State College.

Those who know say that Murray State is certain to obtain prominence as one of the top teams in the nation. State's backers insist that the racers will replace Western and Eastern Kentucky as the power in the Ohio Valley Conference.

Coach Harlan Hodges lost two through graduation but has come up with a fine crop of freshmen. He believes this is the year to really let go. His outfit won 17 and lost 10 last year. Freshmen, by the way, are allowed to play on the varsity in the Ohio Valley.

Last year the Racers came up with one of the best freshmen in the country in Garrett Beahar. The latter, a 28-year-old soph, is regarded the best center in the league. Just behind Beahar in Mason Cope, the fabulous Brewer, high school whiz, who starred on the varsity last season as a frosh. In addition to a host of other lettermen the Racers have four fine looking freshmen ready for varsity duty.

Kentucky, with seven-foot Bill Spivey and such stand-out vets as Bobby Watson, Skippy Whitaker and Walter Hirsch returning, are odds-on favorites to walk off with Southeastern Conference honors. North Carolina State is the same solid choice to cop the Southern Conference title.

The two are not scheduled to face each other in regular season play. However, they should meet to decide the regional representative in the NCAA. Kentucky is the choice.

Coach Adolph Rupp of Kentucky rates Vanderbilt and Louisiana State as his strongest rivals. He says "my squad should be stronger than last year due to more experience but our record will not be as good because we have no sophomore enthusiasm and face a stronger schedule."

Kentucky's most eligible newcomers include Frank Ramsay, Cliff Hagan and Lou Tsioropoulos. Ramsay is rated with Kenyon Rollins and Ralph Beard for sheer speed.

North Carolina State, featuring All-America Sam Ranzino and four other key lettermen, is bolstered by the addition of three sophomores standing 6-8 or better. The newcomers are 6-8 Larry Lovington, 6-8 Bob Goss and 6-8 Bob Speight. Ranzino, now in his senior year, scored 624 points last year, an average of 19 points per game. He also is a fine rebounder, feeder and floor man.

Bulldog Forward Wall Packs More Beef Than Harvesters

Pampa's undefeated Fighting Harvesters will close out their regular grid season at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in Harvester Park against the Borger Bulldogs.

With nine victories behind them, the Pampans need a win or tie over Borger to win District 1-AA for the second year running.

Coach Tricky Ward's Bulldogs could capture the district title by knocking off the Harvesters, providing Amarillo measures Plainview. A Borger and Plainview victory would throw the race into a three way tie.

Borger has a 1-1 record in district play. They lost to Plainview, 13-12, and defeated Amarillo, 13-7. Pampa defeated Plainview, 27-12, and knocked off Amarillo 28-0.

The Bulldogs have always been troublesome for the Harvesters, and one touchdown is usually the victory margin in this game.

The Harvesters will outweigh the Bulldogs in the line 50 pounds to a man. Borger's line averages 193 pounds to Pampa's 173. The Harvester backfield will average 162 pounds and the Bulldog starters will average 182 pounds.

Nine Pampa regulars will be making their last home appearance at Harvester Park. They are halfbacks Jimmy Hayes and Elmer Wilson; fullback Carl Kennedy; end Tommy Martin; center Gerald Matthews; tackle Buzzy Tarpley; guards Dale Gantz, Eddie Scheig, and Davrence Rice. Senior reserves include tackle Jesse Dykes; halfbacks Howard Muirgrave and Harold Smith; guards Gerald Besty and Ed Langford.

If the Harvesters get by Borger Saturday, it will be the first time that a Pampa eleven has ever gone through a season undefeated. However, the longest winning streak was established by the 1930 and '31 Harvesters, 14 straight. The string started after a 2-0 loss to Amarillo in 1930, but was broken by Lubbock during the 1931 season.

Coach Tom Tipps held a two-hour drill session Thursday afternoon, and will wind it up with a light practice today.

Probable starters:

Pampa Wt.	Pos.	Wt.	Borger
158	LE	290	Evans
195	LT	190	Malliotte
170	LG	172	Greenwood
168	C	190	Bryant

170	RG	189	Perkins
152	RE	190	Bales
170	QB	158	Overton
170	RB	152	Clapp
160	PB	158	Holcomb
E. Wilson, 150	LH	159	Mashburn

PAMPA PIVOT MAN—Gerald Matthews, left, and Tolle Hutchens, right, shared the center position for the Harvesters this year. Matthews is a senior and is playing his last year for Pampa. The 6-foot, 170-pound gridster played two years with the Reapers and one year with the Guerrillas before moving up with the Harvesters last year. Hutchens is a junior and is playing his first year with the main eleven. He is 5 feet, 10 inches, and weighs 163 pounds. (News Photo and Engraving)

Turnesa, Kirkwood Take Golf Lead

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP) — Miami's 27th annual $10,000 open tournament went into the second round today with 31 par-busters scrambling for the lead.

Joe Kirkwood, Jr., who spends more time making movies than playing golf, and Jim Turnesa, youngest of the six golfing Turnesa brothers, held a one-stroke lead over the field of 160 pros and amateurs. Both carded four-under-par 66's in the opening 18-hole round yesterday.

Twenty-nine others cracked the 35-35-70 par for the first round. Jimmy Demaret, attired in chausseur trousers, canary yellow shirt and green shoes, appeared the pace-setter in the opening round, then blew up in the last three holes. The Ojai, Calif., veteran was five under par going into the 15th hole. Then he went three over par for the next

Marion Signed To Boss Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "He asked me did I want the job, and I said, 'Yes, sir. I want the job.' And that's how Martin Marion, 'Mr. Shortstop' to the St. Louis Cardinals for 11 years, became their manager.

The tall, slim South Carolinian smiled and said he thought being manager of the Cardinals was the greatest honor in baseball.

Although Marion was billed as the first player-manager of the Cardinals since the days of Frankie Frisch, there were some indications that Marion's playing would be limited.

He said he had been advised to have a cartilage removed from his right knee and that he might have done right after the major league meetings — if at all.

Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK — (AP) — Ray Robinson had just telephoned from Paris, and in New York Lew Burston was chucking over the conversation. After flattening Jean Stock in the second round, Ray had gone to his corner expecting the roof to cave in because he hadn't given the fans a show for their money.

"I was expecting chairs to fly into the ring any minute, but I found they were cheering me," he gasped. "Burston whose specialty is International boxing bouts, explained: 'I sent him over there to get de-loused. . . I told him: 'Here you got a reputation as a jerk. They think you're a guy who runs out on fights. . . Go over there, fight your regular fights, and you're a hero.' . . He was afraid they wouldn't like him if he knocked out a couple of their best fighters, but I understand the European mind. . . And what I didn't tell him was that I only matched him with — what does the Army call them — expendables."

Twice during the 1950 football season, A. C. Greene of the Able Reporter-News took bows because he had come closer than anyone else in the nation to picking the weekly top-ten teams in correct order. . . When Allens Christian (his alma mater) won its first undisputed Texas-Confidence title, the play-ers tipped Greene to bring a photographer to the dressing room because they were going to dunk Coach Garvin Beauchamp and his assistants in the whirlpool bath. . . Greene enjoyed the fun while three coaches were submerged. . . Then came victim No. 4 — A. C. Greene. . . And as they dropped him in the water, the athletes gloated: "That's what you get for picking us to get beat."

Fritz Pruden, who made such a hit in Milwaukee recently, will headline the big New Year's Day boxing show there. They say Milwaukee likes him even better than Rocky Graziano and Ike Williams. . . Latest plug for a small college football star is consistent ground-gainer with a 50-50 team. . . No wonder the Boston Celtics are doing so well in the National Basketball Association. They adopted the CCNY "Allagaroo" cheer as their victory chant. . . One reason why the Orange Bowl picked Clemson to play Miami may have been that 15,000 South Carolinians followed the Tigers to Jacksonville when they played Missouri in the Gator Bowl. . . Del Miller, top money winner of the year among harness racing drivers, used part of the dough to buy out his partner in Meadow Lands stock farm.

Army-Navy Grid Clash Is Top Game

NEW YORK — (AP) — Oklahoma and Army, ranked as the nation's two top college football teams, lay their unbeaten streaks on the line again tomorrow.

Oklahoma, seeking its 31st straight victory, tangles with its arch rival, Oklahoma A&M, before 40,000 at Stillwater. Army, seeking to extend its unbeaten string to 29 straight, meets Navy in the annual service classic before 100,000 at Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

These two games highlight a special national program that includes such traditional tilts as the Tennessee-Vanderbilt fray at Memphis and the Notre Dame-Southern California clash at Los Angeles. The Miami (Fla.) vs Missouri game tonight at Miami starts off the weekend activities following Texas' 17-0 victory over the Sugar Bowl, and Army, who prefers not to play post-season games, are heavy favorites. But Sooner Coach Bud Wilkinson and Earl Blaik of West Point are taking nothing for granted. Right now both would probably settle for one-point victories.

A victory for Oklahoma over the Aggies, followed by a Sugar Bowl triumph over Kentucky, would give the Sooners a 32 straight, within halving distance of the all-time streak of 34 set by Pennsylvania back in the gas-light era of the 1890's. Tennessee won 35 straight regular season games back in the 1930's, but lost two post-season games. Nothing would delight the Aggies better than to shatter the Sooners' streak.

That goes double for Navy against Army. Under similar circumstances two years ago the underdog midshipmen tied the Cadets, 21-21, and five years ago dropped a 21-18 thriller. As a rule past records mean nothing in an Army-Navy struggle.

The Pitt-Penn State game, originally scheduled last Saturday at Pittsburgh, but postponed because of storm conditions, is on tap

Corpus Christi Grid Coach Is Under Fire

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Reports that University of Corpus Christi Coach Will Walls had been asked to resign drew a "no comment" from all concerned.

The reports were that Dr. R. M. Cavness, president of the university, had requested the resignation.

Both Cavness and Walls said they would reserve comment until a meeting of the university's board of trustees next Thursday.

Dr. C. E. Hereford, chairman of the board, said the entire athletic matter would probably be studied at the meeting.

Three holes and came in with a 31-36-67.

Frank Stranahan, former British open champion and leading U.S. amateur from Toledo, Ohio, Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, and Dick Mayer of Ok. Greenwood, Conn., shared second low honors with Demaret at 67.

NEW YORK — (Special) — The Southwest placed more college football "greats" on Collier's current All-America 11 — forerunner of every "dream" team in the nation — than any other section of the nation.

Selected for the national weekly's 61st All-America lineup were Kyle Rote, Southern Methodist; Bud McFadin, Texas; and Leon Heath and Jim Weatherall, former White Deer, Oklahoma stars.

The 1950 All-America lineup of Collier's, as announced in its December 9th issue today (Friday, Dec. 1):

Ki Aldrich, Texas Christian's great center, who was named to Collier's All-America in '28, won a position on the team.

Here is the Mid-Century All-America:

Ends — Don Hutson, Alabama, '34; Bennie Oosterbaan, Michigan '25, '27.

Tackles — Bronco Nagurski, Minnesota, '29; Wilbur (Fats) Henry, Washington & Jefferson, '19.

The stars polled also named the late Knute Rockne "the outstanding coach of the past 50 years."

The on-the-field reports of the coaches' association members on this year's crop of football players were consolidated and evaluated by Collier's All-America board of nine coaches including Bud Wilkinson, Oklahoma; Frank Leahy, Notre Dame; Dutch Meyer, TCU; Henry Frka, Tulane; Ray Elliot, Illinois; Lou Little, Columbia; Carl Snavely, North Carolina; Tuss McCaughy, Dartmouth; and Lynn Waldorf, California.

Longhorns Smash Texas A&M at Memorial Stadium

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

AUSTIN — (AP) — Tennessee scouts got an eyeful of the University of Texas' power yesterday as the Longhorns smashed traditional foe Texas A&M, 17-0.

They saw a massive, manhandling Texas line check the Aggies' feared ground game and watched a pre-season question mark—Ben Tompkins—supply a dazzling answer to his quarterbacking ability.

It was Tompkins who engineered Texas to one touchdown, passed for another, kicked two extra points and a field goal.

The Tennessee scouts were taking a look at the Texas team the Vols will meet in the New Year's Day Cotton Bowl game.

For their records they could jot down 218 yards rushing for Texas and 106 passing compared to 161 rushing and 111 passing for A&M.

The victory was a nice tribute to the Longhorns' retiring coach, Blair Cherry, hospitalized with a stomach ailment. He couldn't attend the game on the radio, but shortly after it was over he was presented the game ball—autographed by every member of his squad.

Texas was guided by assistant Ed Price, expected to be named head coach to succeed Cherry when he steps out to enter the oil business Jan. 1, and Eck Curtis and Billy Gilstrap, two others of the staff.

Once A&M got to Texas' two-yard line, but just couldn't penetrate Texas' staunch defense.

While 55,498 persons looked on, Texas uncorked a 76-yard first quarter drive that ended when Tompkins tossed ten yards to Ben Proctor in the end zone.

This started the Longhorns to their tenth victory in the last eleven games against A&M. It also was the first step toward preserving Texas' Memorial Stadium "jinx" against the Aggies. Texas has never lost to A&M in the stadium since it was dedicated in 1924.

SPECK SPECULATES

By SPECK REYNOLDS

The Southwest Conference is no longer the toughest grid loop in Texas. District 1-AAAA makes the SWC look like a minor league. The new district is a coach's nightmare. Whoever dreamed up the new classification at the Texas Interscholastic League meeting, did a masterful job as far as making a tough loop.

District 1 - AAAA includes—Pampa, Borger, Amarillo, Lubbock, Odessa, Abilene, and San Angelo. You could call it the Big Seven. The strongest teams in Texas high school circles are in this district. A team stands a slim chance of getting through undefeated. It looks like the Interscholastic League doesn't believe in the Balance of Power.

Next year the Harvesters will have to travel by air. San Angelo is 400 miles away, and Abilene and Odessa are a few miles as the crow travels. However, looking at the bright side, if there's such, Pampa fans will get to see the best Texas high school football teams in action.

Coach Cliff McNeely will take his cage quintet to Stratford tomorrow night. Stratford is undefeated, and the Berger Bulldogs were one of its victims. Coach McNeely had a young inexperienced squad this year, and several of his prospects are on the Harvesters football squad. Graduation took care of his last year's veterans.

Jim Gallemore, all district center for the Harvesters last year, worked out Thursday night in the high school gym. Jim is attending Texas A&M and is on the freshmen squad. When the Shamrock Irish defeated Harvesters last Friday, the squad gave Roger Skagg the football after the game. Skagg broke his leg in practice earlier in the season. He said he would be ready to go next year. Jim Weatherall former White Deer gridster, is making his share of the All-America football teams. He made Collier's and United Press' first teams.

The National Geographic Society says the hoatin bird of South America is known as the "stinking pheasant" because of its musty odor.

Beside Still Waters

Those stirring words of the Twenty-Third Psalm: He maketh me to lie down in green pastures... He leadeth me beside the still waters... He restoreth my soul!

The psalmist must have known the turmoil of life, even though he lived three thousand years ago. At least he had experienced the peace which comes upon a man when he escapes the bustling world and rests in the quiet stillness of nature's scene. And he caught its spiritual meaning!

A man's soul, like his body, needs to be restored. Just as sleep and recreation rebuild our physical strength, prayer and worship re-vitalize our spiritual being.

Thoughtfully, our forefathers taught us to spend part of each day in spiritual pursuits. Wisely, they set aside one day of the week for worship.

The Church provides opportunity for Sunday worship, and guidance in every-day devotion to God.

HOLY BIBLE

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor in the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

God's Gift of Life Is the Supreme Gift

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
If people in general were not accustomed to taking so much for granted concerning themselves, they would marvel at that mysterious thing that we call "life."
It is, of course, the center and object of unsolved questionings and mysteries. What happens, for instance, when the accompanying mystery that we call "death" suddenly occurs, and in a moment what was active, vital and intelligent ceases? In what way has life ceased? What has happened to what a moment ago was so real?
The best answer is that the spirit returns to God who gave it (Ecclesiastes 12:7), but from that mystery itself, I turn to the everpresent, but little considered, mystery of our daily life.
We speak of our physical existence, the use of our five senses, as if it were only a material thing, but what mysteries are in every moment of our conscious life, and even in the mystery of sleep, when consciousness seems suspended?
Through the study of the ear and eye, and the waves of sound and light that operate upon our man has achieved the wonders of the telephone, the phonograph, the radio, and television; but man's creations only lead us back to the great Creator of our physical being, and the laws that govern our life.
If men had at all a sensitive understanding of these things, they would bow in wonder and reverence before that Creator, as in fact the Hebrew saints and prophets did. Their distinction was that they thought about life, that they did not take themselves just for what they were, but they looked into the mystery of their being, and so were led to God.
To take this gift of life, and make no return, to fail to use in any way for the honor and glory of the One who gave it, marks the deepest tragedy of man. And that tragedy is all the deeper, when we turn from the so-called physical life, to consider the spiritual life, the more abundant life, that is also God's gift, God's supreme gift.

How blind and spiritually incompetent the masses of men are, in making so little of God's gifts, not only in their wholesale destruction of physical life, but in ignoring, or refusing, the higher life that God has made possible.
It was the reproach of Jesus to those of His generation, "Ye will not come unto me that ye may have life," and that reproach has been upon those of each succeeding generation. Yet it is true that "the gift of God is eternal life," and the evidences of that life are plain in the many who have heard the call of the Master, and have accepted His way of love and life.
This Christian attitude toward life is the fulfillment of what was richest and best in the thought and devotion of the inspired Hebrew writers.
It has its noblest expression in the wonderful 107th Psalm, with its beginning, "O give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good," and its breaking forth in the intervals of the description of God's dealings with man into the passionate plea, "Oh that men would praise the Lord for His goodness, and His wonderful works to the children of men!"
Could there be a more proper, or earnest, prayer for mankind? And can there be any nobler, or more fitting, act of man than the devotion of his life to God?

First Presbyterian Church Membership Now 400; Started With 50 in 1927

With 50 charter members, the First Presbyterian Church of Pampa was organized in January, 1927. The Rev. W. M. Baker was the minister who led the organization for one year.

Talk It Over With Your Child Is Writer's Advice

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Education Writer
Looking back at your childhood, probably the one thing that perplexed you was that you were ignorant in respect to things people expected you to know.
Most of us can remember wishing that our parents would wish us many things which puzzled us. Our parents, wise in many ways, often hesitated to discuss sex or religion frankly, and just as rarely would we bring them our problems.
Wise parents, says the National Kindergarten Association, will talk freely with their children — always, of course, in a manner suitable to their stage of development. The parent who has gained the confidence of junior will find that he will never hesitate to bring his problems to his attention. He will not solve them for him; but they will discuss them together and then let Junior make his own decisions.
How do you start "talking things over" with children in their early, formative years? You don't suddenly start talking confidentially and intimately to your children about the more serious subjects, such as religion, anything and everything of importance, — in a way that they can comprehend.
There are many helpful books available to parents. The Boy Scouts of America have just published a booklet on Citizenship, in which they show just how Mother, Dad and Junior can sit down and discuss one of the important issues of our society today. It's part of their "Merit Badge Series," and you can obtain a copy by writing to the Boy Scouts of America, 2 Park Avenue, New York City 16, New York.

In language simple enough for Junior to comprehend, such topics are discussed as: Reasonable Citizenship; American Economic System; Declaration of Independence; The Constitution; Living Up To Laws; Local Government Structure; The United Nations, and a host of others.
Librarily spotted with illustrations and cartoons, it is well worth any parent's attention.

Grace Friend

WANTS SISTER'S CLOTHES
Dear Grace Friend:
I am 14 years old and have a sister who is three years older than I am. She has a job after school hours and on week ends which brings in plenty of money for her to buy pretty clothes with. She wears the same size clothes that I wear.
My mother says I am too young to work and so can't earn money for extra clothes.
One day I wore a coat of my sister's to school. I was about to go to class when my sister came running to school and took the coat off and told me off right in front of all my friends. I was so embarrassed that I didn't know what to do, so I began to cry and ran home. I just can't bear to go back to school and have all my friends make fun of me.
How can I make my sister see that she should not mind when I wear some of her clothes?
Sincerely, G. Y.

Dear G. Y.:
If you took your sister's coat to school without asking her permission first, you deserved to have her come after it.
Such ways will never persuade her that you should use any of her things.
Make your own things do for school and then when a special occasion comes along, ask your sister, if you may borrow something. She is more apt than not to loan you something under those circumstances.
In the meantime take good care of your own clothes and keep them neat and clean so that your sister will feel that you will treat her clothes in the same manner.
Friendship is the only cement that will ever hold the world together. — Woodrow Wilson

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"God is the only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 3.
The Golden Text is: "Lord, thou art God, which hast made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all that in them is" (Acts 4:24).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Let them praise the name of the Lord: for he commanded, and they were created" (Psalms 148:5).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key

St. Dr. N. C. Overton, Jr., and Dudley Steele.
The Women's Auxiliary has a membership of about 100 with Mrs. R. H. Nensiel as president.
Mrs. C. V. Wilkinson is sponsor of the junior Youth Fellowship and Dr. Nelson sponsors the seniors. These groups meet at 8:30 p. m. each Sunday.
No special services are held at the church during the week, but a Christmas Eve midnight service is being planned and the annual Good Friday services will be held.

WE, THE WOMEN

By RUTH MILLET
NEA Staff Writer
It's always a good idea:
To keep quiet about your faults. Other people will find them out soon enough without being told about them.
To space your compliments so that you are considered neither unappreciative nor too gushing to be sincere.
To relax when you're a hostess. The hostess who works hard to make a party go, seldom succeeds at it.
To tell a husband as few of your minor troubles as possible.
To step on the impulse to "get even" with anybody who does you wrong.
To ignore other women's ages, if you want them to ignore yours.
To give a man full credit for everything he does around the house.
To expect the best from your husband rather than to dig to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Because Mind makes all, there is nothing left to be made, by a lower power" (page 520).

around trying to find out the worst.
SILENCE IS A VIRTUE
To keep your husband's faults to yourself, rather than sharing them with your friends.
To have as gay and entertaining an answer as possible to your husband's question: "What have you been doing all day?" Your day may have been on the dull side, but you don't have to sound dull when you tell about it.
To look as pretty as possible twice each day — at breakfast and when your husband comes home from work in the evening.
To be as tolerant of your husband's shortcomings as you are of your own.
To make a practice of repeating the good things you hear about others.
To be as charitable toward an attractive woman as you are to her less attractive sisters.
To wish keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee. — Isaiah

Electric Cooking is CLEAN!

... because electricity is clean! Pan bottoms stay bright and shiny because there's nothing to adhere to sides or bottoms of your prized pots and pans. All the cooking heat goes where it is supposed to . . . into cooking. And, should something you're cooking boil over there's no harm done. Elements are so designed that food particles do not tend to cling. Instead they drop to a convenient drip tray which is quickly removable for easy washing. More and more women of the Southwest are learning the advantages of electric cooking.
Why don't you pay a visit to your local electric appliance dealer. Talk to him . . . ask him to tell you all about electric cooking. Learn how fast elements heat up. Learn how heat is directed INTO the food being cooked. Learn how easy it is to keep your electric range sparkling clean.

Young Scrooge used to have the time of his life at Old Fezziwig's Christmas parties. No one was fatter than Scrooge, who danced with Fezziwig's six pretty daughters.

And never was there such music as used to come from Fezziwig's well-fueled fiddler!

High point of the evening was when the fiddle struck up "Sir Roger de Coverley" and Mr. Fezziwig took the floor with Mrs. Fezziwig.

Lonely GI Due to Meet Reds, Talks of Rabbits, Alligators

WITH U. S. TROOPS IN NORTH KOREA — (P) — This is a story about one GI Joe. He and his infantry mates were moving forward next morning to replace men who had faced the Chinese Reds.

Joe knows all about the casualties coming back from the front. He wonders what it is going to be like up there. No one can tell him, so Joe talked about something he knows about. Florida, his home.

"I sure wish I was home now," he said. "I would probably be swimming right now. There are alligators where I live. But you know what? If you kill an alligator you would get fined $500. Because alligators eat all the bad fish and snakes around the river.

"Alligators won't hurt you if you don't bother them. I've gone swimming in the river with alligators. But they have been known to eat chickens, and I heard of one around our neighborhood that ate a small baby that was playing in the yard."

Joe pulled out a cigarette, inhaled deeply and said:

"The snakes down there are pretty bad sometimes. We have rattlers and king snakes and copperheads. But snakes won't hurt you either if you don't molest them. They are afraid of you just as much as you are afraid of them. You just have to keep your head."

"I know a man near Port Richey, and he had a snake farm. He was not afraid of them at all. He sold the venom for some kind of medicine or something. And I never heard of him being bit."

Joe wanted to talk because Joe was lonely. The rest of the boys were lonely too. They all missed their families. They all missed the life they had left behind.

"I was a member of the 4-H club," answered Joe. "I raised rabbits. I liked rabbits because they were cute and soft, and I liked them especially when they were something like something to take care of, and the other boys to me."

"I entered the country fair with a pair of them once, and I won. One day a snake tried to get into the rabbit pen I made for them. The doe had just given birth to six baby rabbits. The doe was stamping at the snake when he got too near the chicken wire. I called my brother, who got his rifle and killed the snake with one shot."

"I'll never forget how that snake just seemed to crumple up and fall down dead. After the war I stopped being a rabbit farmer."

Someone put another piece of wood on the fire. Joe kept on talking:

"I made a pet of a chicken once. She was just a little thing, not much to look at when she came out of the egg. Her mother died, and the rest of the chickens, so I kept her for myself. Everywhere I went that chicken followed me. I called her Shadow."

War Claims Paid After 90 Years

ROME — (P) — The treasury budget for 1950-51 provides for an appropriation of $641 to refund damages sustained in war actions by the Bourbonic troops in the war campaigns of 1800-1817. It was the last war fought by the troops of the late Ferdinand II, king of Naples, and of the two Sicilies 90 years ago.

Commenting the news, a Rome newspaper said: "The thousands who suffered damages from World War II can therefore be assured that their rightful descendants will be reimbursed before the year 2040."

Golden Sidewalks Poured in Canada

LILLOOET, B. C. — (P) — Crews of workmen are pouring gold-bearing cement for more than a mile of sidewalk in this town 200 miles northeast of Vancouver. The gravel was taken from the famous banks of the Cayoosh Creek, but the workmen don't bother panning the stuff. Old-timers say it wouldn't yield more than a few dollars for 12 hours' work.

Q. and A. You and the Service

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

Q. My husband was in the Merchant Marine for two years during World War II but was never officially discharged. We have two children. Can he be drafted?

A. They aren't drafting fathers. Q. I am 19 and have a commercial pilot's license. Can I get into the Air Force or Air Guard as a pilot?

A. You can't fly in service except by getting wings through the flight training schools.

Q. Can pilots who do not have college education get into the Air Force cadet program?

A. No. At the present time you must have two years of college.

Q. I enlisted in the Air Force for three years but only served a little more than one year. On the back of my discharge is written "recommended for further military training." What is my status?

A. By ending your active enlistment early you were required to finish the three years as a reservist. All enlistments, reserve and active, have been extended. You are therefore subject to recall. But unless you are in the critical category you won't be called.

Q. I am of draft age and have registered with my board. But I have not received a questionnaire, although all my friends have, some of whom have been drafted. What do you advise doing?

A. Better call your draft board and tell them about it.

Q. My son is about to receive a medical discharge from the National Guard. Will that make him subject to the draft?

A. Yes, but chances are he won't pass the medical exam if he's getting a medical discharge from the National Guard.

Q. Are Army reserve commissions frozen?

A. Yes.

A&M Board Votes For Construction of directors for the Texas A&M College System yesterday voted to spend almost a million dollars on construction projects.

The meeting was dominated by the feeling that a possible World War III would wipe out business-front construction and that the school should build while materials are still available. The approved construction projects are at College Station, Prairie View A. & M., Arlington State College and Tarleton State College.

Very Smart Leads Set This Contract

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The East player had no sense in today's hand. A sensible person would have settled for a small loss of five hearts rather than risk a big loss by letting South play the hand. South therefore doubled. However, if East had been sensible we wouldn't have noticed the spectacular defense needed to defeat the redoubled contract of four spades.

East had the right idea when he jumped to four hearts. His partner would have made that contract, and the opponents might have been shut out of a good spade contract. However, South was not to be shut out.

West's double of four spades was reasonable enough, and North had a good sporting redouble. East knew that he had no defense at all, and he should have run to the comparative safety of five hearts. It would cost only 100 points, whereas a pass might cost him over 1000 points. But he stuck by his guns, and lived to tell the story.

West opened the ace of hearts, dropping South's king. It was clear to him that South had the missing five small spades and only one heart. South therefore had seven cards in the minor suits. It could not cost a trick to lead another heart. If dummy ruffed, of course, West would eventually get two trump tricks to add to the two red aces.

As expected, South had to ruff in his own hand, discarding a diamond from the dummy. He led the four of spades from his hand and allowed West to hold the trick with the queen. West thereupon led a third round of hearts.

Once again South had to ruff in his own hand. At this point he had only two trumps left—the six and seven. He led the six, finessing the nine from the dummy.

Now he could, if he so chose, get back with a club and take another trump finesse to pick up West's trump. But he would eventually have to knock out the ace of diamonds, and West would then be able to take the rest of his hearts.

Therefore declarer had to let the trumps rest for a while. After winning the trump finesse with four spades,

Partly fill a tub with lukewarm water, with plenty of suds from some bland type of soap. Before you put the dog into it, rub a thick ring of half-dry soap around his neck like a collar. Later, this can be washed out easily. Meanwhile, it helps to keep fleas from swarming forward from his drenched body and taking refuge in his furry ears.

Lift him into the tub, and begin to douse the water all over him, taking care to keep it out of his eyes and nose. Make him lie down in the water—keeping his head well above it—while you scrub him vigorously, yet not hard enough to bruise his sensitive skin. Make him stand up again and lather him all over, thoroughly, with soap. Let him lie down once more while you rinse him. Then, empty the tub. Pour gently over him plenty of clean lukewarm water, still scrubbing hard.

Rub him dry with rough towels, especially his chest and stomach. Wash his head separately and carefully. Keep him indoors, but far away from the fire—till he is bone-dry. Don't let him lie down outdoors or stand in the wind for several hours thereafter.

BUTTERMILK FOR DOGS

A year ago or so ago, I suggested giving a dog buttermilk as a conditioner. Over a hundred readers have written me saying that my suggestion helped their dogs. Many other readers have asked me to write again something about buttermilk; so here it is.

If your dog is slightly out of condition—if he doesn't seem to be his regular self, but has no apparent troubles—feeding him buttermilk may bring him quickly back to normal. Buttermilk is an excellent dog conditioner. It tends to fatten the thin as well as thin the fat. Because of its acid content, it helps to correct constipation and cleans out the dog's intestinal

Street, Highway Deaths Increasing

CHICAGO — (AP) — Deaths on U. S. streets and highways have risen again — for the eleventh month in a row.

DOG NOTES

HOTEL RENTS ROOMS TO DOGS

A few days ago, I had lunch at the fabulous Pump Room in the Ambassador East Hotel in Chicago. Perhaps you have heard of this famous eating place, but I'm sure you never knew that the Ambassador rented rooms to dogs. They do, and the rate is $1.50 per day.

Along with the room they offer a dog-walking service. I was interested in finding out how often dog owners took advantage of this super service, and was greatly surprised at the number of dogs they had registered. It seems that almost every Hollywood celebrity, if he or she has a dog along, stops at the Ambassador. Only a few months ago, Basil Rathbone registered with a Seditham, a German shepherd and a cocker spaniel and kept them there in style for over three months at $4.50 per day.

The only objection the Ambassador ever had to its $1.50 a day dog charge came from June Havoc. When she was making plans to stay there, she said, "Okay, but my dog wants to see the room first."

The only suggestion I might offer to Gene Barrett, the Ambassador's manager, is that he paw-print his dog guests so that I can report that the dogs register individually at the Ambassador.

WHEN DOG IS SCALDED

Now that the cold weather is with us again, your dog, like most dogs, may choose the spot behind, under, or beside the kitchen stove as his favorite resting place. Perhaps you know that more accidents happen in the home than anywhere else, and one accident that hap-

Uneasy Truce Is Declared in Reserve Board, Treasury Feud

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK — (AP) — An uneasy truce has been declared between the warring U. S. Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board over how high the interest rates on the government debt should be.

The truce means dearer money will end next year when the higher tax burdens — which the Treasury sought to avoid. But perhaps it will put some brake on runaway inflation — as both desired.

Many bankers think the truce will end next year when the Treasury seeks to raise "new money" to arm for the "entirely new war," and that meanwhile the fight for still higher interest rates will go on.

The Investment Bankers Assn., meeting in Hollywood, Fla., has before it today a report of its committee on government securities urging the treasury to issue an "appropriate" long-term marketable non-bank-eligible issue as soon as feasible.

By "appropriate" the bankers mean a government bond bearing higher interest rates than the 2 1/2 percent to which the treasury is committed.

The reserve board has had its way in getting higher interest rates on short-term government notes, much of which are held by commercial banks. The treasury will have to pay more in carrying charges on a mounting national debt and it will pay this higher interest toll, of course, out of higher taxes.

The reserve board thinks this higher interest charge will exert an upward pressure on the entire debt structure, public and private. It hopes this dearer money will discourage bank loans to businesses and individuals, and thus keep the nation's credit balloon from swelling to the danger point.

More Lice? How Nice; Little Critters Liked by Professor

By NEA Service

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. — (NEA) — Dr. Ethelbert W. Stafford is a man with a wide circle of friends. He can, for example, call 2600 varieties of lice by their given names.

One of his more interesting acquaintances is Mallophaga, the biting louse. Another is a louse who wouldn't think of living anywhere but on an elephant. His name is Elephantias.

Dr. Stafford's interest in the little critters is purely professional, you understand. He's a zoologist and entomologist at Mississippi State College, and a collaborator for the National Museum in the field. He's one of the top authorities on lice.

Lice lore has been his job and hobby for 18 years. In that time he's discovered 40 new types out of the 2600 now known to exist. But there may be several hundred as yet undiscovered varieties of lice, so look around the house.

Lice, as you know — nothing personal intended, of course — are very small characters. They range in size from 2-28ths of an inch to a bit less than half an inch. So they have to be interviewed under the microscope.

Through powerful lenses, Dr. Stafford and other houseologist catalog lice by physical characteristics. One such is their antenna segments. Some have three, four and five sections in their antennas. Mouth parts provide another clue and mandibles, beaks; the shape of the head and body still others.

In his laboratory here, Dr. Stafford has met — formally, of course — more than 300 types of lice. These have been sent to him for identification from Alaska, Hawaii, Canada, the Caroline Is-

Hope Lost for Home Christmas

NORTHWEST FRONT, Korea — (AP) — American doughboys trudging south from the Chongchun river had lost their "home" of "home by Christmas."

But they still had their sense of humor — and a new slogan. Just as they named "Golden Gate by '48" from Guadalcanal to Leyte in World War II, the soldiers today were cheering each other with:

"We'll trim the tree in '51!"

lands, Venezuela and most of the 48 states.

Lice, incidentally, are just as choosy about where they want to live as you are. Most of them live on one kind of animal, and never vary their habitat or diet at all.

Elephantias, for example, lives on an elephant and wouldn't be caught dead on an insect. Almost every animal or bird has his own private brand of lice hanging around. Once, though Dr. Stafford admits, he found a Texas bobcat equipped with a detachment of ordinary dog lice, which was confusing. The scientist chalked that up as a particularly lousy bobcat.
