Arson report is awaiting lab test results

By JEFF LANGLEY
State Editor

Pampa police and the arson section of the state fire marshal's office in Austin are awaiting the results of lab tests to determine exactly how the fire started at the Pampa Nursing Center October 10.

Samples taken by state fire investigators from a patient's burned-out room where the fire started have been sent to a Phillips Petroleum Company laboratory in Borger for analysis, officials said.

Arson Section Manager for the state fire marshal in Austin, A.G. Loney, said today the lab analysis should be completed later this week.

The only fact the arson manager will confirm is that the fire was definitely an arson fire, which was set by a 74-year-old nursing home resident, Robert Morris, according to officials.

"It was an incendiary fire—a set fire—an arson fire," Loney said today.

"An incendiary fire is a fire (purposefully) set by any means, whether it's matches to a paper or whatever," Loney said.

Neither state fire officials nor local police have never released how they believe Morris started the fire, merely saying the patient is responsible for the blaze which killed two residents and injured nine others.

District Attorney Guy Hardin declined to prosecute Morris in connection with the fire and deaths, and he dismissed the arson charge Friday, saying the suspect "is nuts."

Hardin said the charge had to be dismissed in order to confine the suspect in the state mental hospital in Vernon, the Vernon Center.

Gray County deputies transported Morris to the center Friday morning, shortly after the arson charge against the diabetic-amputee was dismissed.

Dr. Frankie Williams, superintendent of the hospital, confirmed today that Morris has been admitted to the mental hospital for psychiatric evaluation, but she declined to release any other information about his treatment or forced commitment.

Morris was committed to the facility by County Judge Carl Kennedy, following a statement from two local doctors that the suspect is mentally incompetent, Hardin said Friday.

"I can't share any information with you because his (Morris's) hospitalization is confidential," Williams said today.

The superintendent said she is aware of the circumstances surrounding Morris's confinement and the dismissed arson charge and that the hospital has taken appropriate precautions in connection with his commitment there.

"We take precautions with every patient here," she said.

The Vernon Center houses about 500 patients in two facilities, one a mental ward, the other an adolescent drug-abuse ward.

The hospital has three psychiatrists and five other doctors on the staff.

"In light of the arson ruling, Pampa Nursing Center Administrator, Melba Marcum, issued a statement on behalf of the home:

"Our primary concern is the safety and welfare of our residents.

"Our employees have cooperated fully and have been helpful in the investigation. Our basic objective at this point is that the matter be resolved as quickly as possible and to return our residents safely to the nursing home.

"We sincerely regret this tragedy and have extended our sympathy to the families and friends of the victims. We are also very thankful for the quick action of our employees. We thank the Pampa fire, police and ambulance services, the staff and family of the residents, the Red Cross and all of the citizens of this community. They are to be commended for helping evacuate the building, which aided in saving the lives of other residents," Marcum said.

Pilot blames crash on bad weather

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — An Egyptian pilot blamed deteriorating weather conditions for the fiery crash of his passenger plane at Geneva airport, said Alain Borner, the Swiss minister responsible for the airport.

All 178 people aboard the plane survived the Sunday crash. Five people were treated for injuries and one of them, Elsa Herren, of Schaffhausen, Switzerland, was hospitalized with a broken ankle.

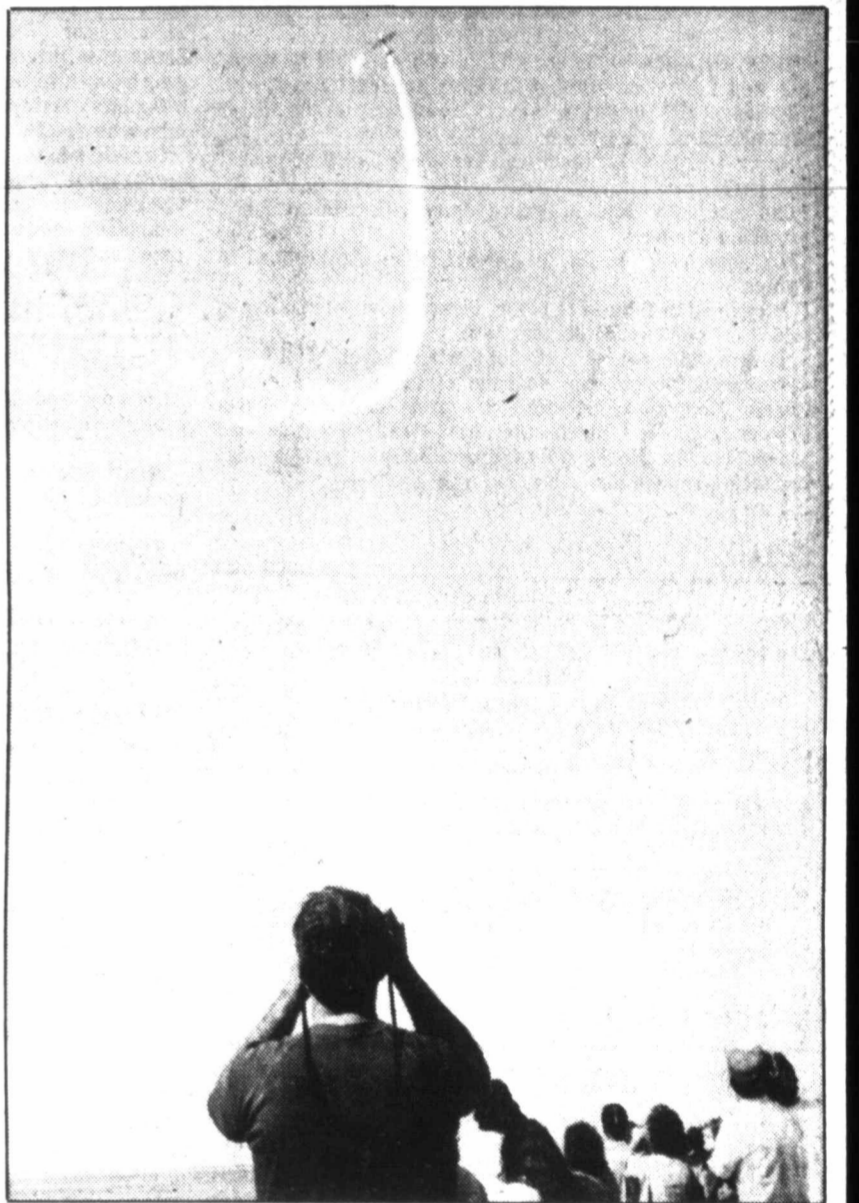

Borner said the pilot, whom he did not identify, told him he had trouble landing because of "bad weather conditions" at the airport, where drizzle started falling shortly before the accident. Borner told reporters the pilot told him the cloud ceiling was "very low."

But airport spokesman Daniel Tesseyre said "as far as I'm concerned conditions were satisfactory" for takeoffs and landings. He declined to speculate on the extent of damage although he said it "looked to me like a complete writeoff."

Borner said the plane touched down about 200 feet short of the runway, bounced into the air and came down on its right side in a grassy area along the runway.

Moral majority seems potent political force

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the Quint City Baptist Temple in Davenport, Iowa, the Rev. Olen Adams asks the 109 adults in his Sunday Bible class how many are registered to vote.

All but a dozen raise their hands.

At the Rev. Jerry Falwell's headquarters in Lynchburg, Va., clerks log $200,000 in contributions in one day.

From the office of the American

Coalition for Traditional Values in Olympia, Wash., photocopies of lawmakers' voting records are mailed to evangelical churches.

Twenty-three months after helping to sweep President Reagan and fellow conservatives to power in Washington, the Moral Majority seems as potent a political force as ever.

There is disillusionment among the Moral Majority's rank and file about the pace at which Reagan and the Republican-controlled Senate have moved on such social issues as school prayer and abortion.

But the movement's leaders say this has not kept the organization's fundamentalist followers from registering to vote or contributing to its coffers.

Founded in June 1979 by Falwell, pastor of the Thomas Road Baptist Church in Lynchburg, the Moral Majority contributed to Reagan's victory and the defeat of liberal Democratic senators in 1980.

Begun with $32,000 that Falwell raised from seven contributors, the organization expects to receive $1 million in contributions in October alone.

Falwell says the Moral Majority registered 4 million new voters in 1980 and expects to double this by the 1984 presidential election.

The organization has had its troubles along the way.

In September 1981, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a senior statesman of conservatism, denounced members of the Moral Majority in a Senate speech for trying to "dictate their moral convictions to all America" and asked, "Just who do they think they are?"

In a response from the other side of the political spectrum, the Norman Lear-backed People for the American Way sponsored a television program accusing the group of "witch hunts, slavery (and) McCarthyism."

In the June issue of Moral Majority Report, executive vice president Ronald Godwin appealed urgently for funds, saying that "our frequent crises have grown more frequent."

Despite this, "we are experiencing our greatest growth," Cal Thomas, the organization's press spokesman, said by telephone from Lynchburg.

Absentee voting opens in county

Absentee ballots for the November general election are now being cast at the Gray County clerk's office on the second floor of the courthouse.

Weather

Fair and warm today. High today low 80s. Low tonight mid 40s. Fair and cooler Tuesday. High Tuesday mid 60s. Winds today southwest 15 to 20 mph and gusty, changing to the north on Tuesday.

Absentee voting for the election began Wednesday, but ballots for Gray County were late in arriving and were not received until last Friday.

Ballots may be cast at the clerk's office from 8:30 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

County Clerk Wanda Carter advises those voting absentee to bring their voter registration cards, if voters have them. She said the card is not required to vote absentee, but having one makes the process easier, she said.

In addition to absentee voting at the courthouse, those voters over 65 or too ill to vote in person may vote by mail.

Applications to vote by mail are available at the clerk's office, or Carter will mail one by request.

School board meets Tuesday

The Pampa school board will consider the second reading of the localized Texas Association of School Board's policies for the current year, and will consider a state-funded on-campus suspension program during its regular meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Carver Educational Center.

Also at the meeting, the board will consider awarding bids for lockers, a postage machine, band instruments, classroom furniture and property insurance for the school district.

Scheduled later on the agenda are trip requests for the Pampa High School band and choir and personnel, with a possible executive session listed.

The meeting is open to the public.

Senior First Lady dies

Bess Truman, widow of former President Harry S. Truman, died this morning in Kansas City. She was 97. President Truman died almost 10 years ago. The Trumans are shown in February of 1958 during a visit to Washington, D.C. (AP Laserphoto)

Bess Truman is dead at 97

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bess Truman, the nation's oldest former first lady and the lifelong sweetheart of President Harry S. Truman called "The Boss," died early today. She was 97.

A spokesman for Research Medical Center said Mrs. Truman was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital at 4:38 a.m. The Truman family physician, Dr. Wallace Graham, said Mrs. Truman died of congestive heart failure.

Mrs. Truman lived longer than any other former first lady — Edith Wilson, wife of President Woodrow Wilson, died at age 89 in 1961. The oldest living first lady is 70-year-old Pat Nixon.

Mrs. Truman had been plagued in recent years by a variety of ailments — arthritis, abdominal stress and high blood pressure. On Sept. 2, she was rushed to the hospital from her home in nearby Independence, Mo., with internal bleeding.

Graham said the bleeding, which he attributed to an ulcer in her duodenum, stopped the next day, but Mrs. Truman was not released from the hospital until Sept. 24.

Mrs. Truman outlived her husband by nearly 10 years. Friends say their childhood romance never flagged — that he was the only man she ever really loved and she the only sweetheart he ever had.

In 53 years of marriage, Mrs. Truman much enjoyed the traditional woman's role of the quiet and unassuming but thoroughly devoted wife and mother. But Truman said she was his closest confidante and adviser on every important thing he ever did — including decisions leading to his upset victory over Thomas E. Dewey in 1948.

"I never wrote a speech without going it over with her," he said of the woman who shared his rise from county official to the U.S. Senate to president.

To some, Mrs. Truman's dignity and reserve left the impression that she was austere, withdrawn and colorless, but those intimates entitled to call her Bessie knew her as warm and gracious, witty and wise.

She said in 1948 that being first lady required "good health and a sense of humor." Of criticism of her husband, she said once, "after 25 years in politics, I've learned to accept it — almost."

And despite her eagerness to avoid publicity for herself, Mrs. Truman became known as a gracious White House hostess and a woman with an amazing ability to remember names.

Observers regarded it as characteristic that she reduced the White House staff by almost half after her husband became president. Guests described her as a housekeeping genius, both in the White House and at the family mansion in Independence.

Known as independent and athletic during her girlhood in Independence — where one magazine writer reported she was the only girl able to whistle through her teeth — Bess Truman was the only daughter in a socially prominent family. She was born in the three-story Victorian mansion in Independence that her grandfather built in 1865, and it was her home for nearly all her life.

Although primarily a homemaker and helpmate, she was active in social organizations, and did draw a salary for a time — she spent two years on Truman's Senate staff as a clerk and secretary, at $4,500 a year.

After leaving the White House, Mrs. Truman said she missed some things about life there — notably its able gardeners and household staff — but not the "big receptions where hundreds and hundreds of strange hands had to be shaken," the mountains of mail and many appointments.

The Trumans retired to Independence from Washington, and in 1955 she told of her unsuccessful efforts to get her husband to put their power mower to use — a tale that strikes a familiar chord for followers of the scrappy former president.

"Finally he did, 11 o'clock on a Sunday morning, with all the Methodists and Baptists going by our house on the way to church," Mrs. Truman recalled. "There's not a doubt in my mind he planned the whole thing deliberately to save himself from ever touching that mower again. And he hasn't."

Born Elizabeth Virginia Wallace on Feb. 13, 1885, a birthday Truman said he could always remember because it fell before Valentine's Day, Mrs. Truman was known as Bess to the world and Bessie to intimates.

Her husband's will specified that she be buried beside him in the garden of the Truman Library.

Solidarity underground calling for strikes in four cities today

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Fugitive Solidarity leaders urged workers in four cities to stay home today in the second week of sometimes bloody protests over the government's banning of the independent labor union.

No new uprisings were reported over the weekend.

Sources with contacts among the underground union leadership said workers were asked to boycott their jobs in Warsaw, Gdansk, Krakow and Nowa Huta — the model Communist city where police killed a young steelmill electrician during three days of rioting last week.

Worker compliance with other recent Solidarity strike appeals has been spotty and generally ignored in the capital.

Authorities said last Wednesday's shooting of 20-year-old Bogdan Wlosik remained under investigation. Earlier reports by the official PAP news agency said Wlosik was mortally wounded when a plainclothes policeman was attacked by demonstrators and opened fire in "self-defense."

Wlosik is the only officially acknowledged fatality in the new spate of unrest touched off by Parliament's Oct. 8 passage of a tough new labor law that banned Solidarity.

Witnesses said Nowa Huta, a Krakow suburb about 160 miles south of Warsaw was virtually under police occupation as riot squads armed with automatic weapons patrolled the streets Sunday, allowing only small children to place flowers at the spot where Wlosik was shot.

Privately printed funeral notices posted in Nowa Huta said Wlosik would be buried this Wednesday, but official sources in Krakow said no firm date would be set until today. The sources, who requested anonymity, said they feared the funeral might cause tensions to escalate.

Wlosik was the 15th person reported killed in riots since the imposition of martial law Dec. 13, when Solidarity policeman was attacked by leaders were interned, including union chief Lech Walesa.

Union militants staged the first and biggest strike protesting the outlawing of Solidarity last Monday at the sprawling Lenin Shipyards in the Baltic port of Gdansk, where the Soviet bloc's first free trade union was born amid strikes in August 1980.

The strikers demanded Walesa's release and reinstatement of Solidarity, but their protest collapsed after two days when the shipyards were militarized and authorities threatened strikers with five-year prison terms.

Some workers told reporters they had been fired for striking, others reportedly were drafted into the army.

In a related development, Clark Todd, 38, London bureau chief for the Canadian television network CTV, returned home Sunday after being expelled from Poland for covering the Nowa Huta rioting without proper credentials.

Lebanese president wants foreign forces withdrawn from his country

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Lebanese President Amin Gemayel, on his first official visit to the United States, called for the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Lebanon. He brings his plan for rebuilding his war-torn land to the U.N. General Assembly today.

Gemayel said after his arrival at New York's Kennedy airport Sunday that he had come "to carry to the international community and the American people the hopes and aspirations of the people of Lebanon."

A senior Lebanese official said Gemayel was hoping to negotiate the withdrawal of Israeli, Syrian and Palestinian forces from Lebanon in talks at the United Nations and with President Reagan in Washington on Tuesday.

Gemayel, who took office Sept. 23 after the assassination of his brother, President-elect Bashir Gemayel, was also expected to ask President Reagan for American help to rebuild his country. Lebanese officials say that could cost $12 billion.

Lebanese Housing Minister Bahaeddin Bsat and the chairman of the Council for Development and Reconstruction, Mohammed Atallah, accompanied Gemayel and were expected to be present at his talks with U.S. officials.

On his arrival, Gemayel referred to "the urgency of the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Lebanon and the need for a comprehensive program of reconstruction."

In a speech later Sunday at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, the Lebanese president told 4,500 Lebanese Americans that "very soon, your country will be free and sovereign."

Syria and Israel have said they are willing to withdraw from Lebanon, but Israel insists that Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas still in northern and eastern Lebanon must be the first to leave.

Israeli officials have said they want Syria to persuade the PLO to leave Lebanon before the Syrian and Israeli armies begin a simultaneous withdrawal.

In Washington, Reagan administration officials said the Israeli conditions did not present "insurmountable problems."

Alfred Mady, Gemayel's special adviser, said Gemayel would ask the U.N. Security Council for a three-month extension in the stay of the U.N. peacekeeping force in southern Lebanon.

The main task of the U.N. troops in southern Lebanon was to prevent PLO guerrillas from launching attacks on northern Israel.

Israel invaded Lebanon in June to crush the PLO, claiming the U.N. presence was not blocking guerrilla raids on its northern settlements.

Cite corruption in state oil industry

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An alleged $97 million kickback scheme involving the state petroleum monopoly Pemex and a Houston-based oil field equipment company is under investigation, the government has announced.

An audit of the monopoly's dealings with Crawford Enterprises Inc. between 1977 and 1980 showed that equipment Pemex purchased from the U.S. company ranged between 35 and 45 percent above its list price, according to a statement from the federal attorney's office.

"It is proven," the statement said, "that the oil equipment Pemex acquired through Crawford Enterprises represented a notable increase over prices set by the manufacturers and that these could have been acquired at less cost."

The statement said purchases of overpriced equipment continued to be made through Crawford even after the actual manufacturer, C.E. Miller Corp., notified Pemex in writing that it could provide the equipment for millions of dollars less.

Alleged shady dealings involving

Crawford, a brokerage company that represented Crawford and unidentified Pemex officials cost Mexico an estimated $97 million, the statement said.

The brokerage company, Grupo Industrial Delta, made headlines here earlier this year after four of five members of its board of directors were charged with evading taxes on at least $45 million.

The statement said Pemex director Julio Rodolfo Mocietzuma Cid has offered his full collaboration to determine responsibilities in the case.

Report Soviets won't let Americans leave

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet authorities won't let 19 Americans who moved to the Soviet Union in the 1930s return to the United States, Newsweek magazine reports.

The Americans have been issued passports by the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, but the Soviets will not recognize the dual citizenship and grant them permission to leave, the magazine said in its Oct. 25 issue.

Embassy officials said they had received secret messages from expatriates hoping to regain their American citizenship and spend their final years in the United States.

Abe Stolar, who left Chicago for the Soviet Union in 1931 because he thought it would be a workers' paradise, was identified as one person who was issued a passport.

Stolar's father and brother-in-law disappeared during the Stalin era and his family was reduced to selling bric-a-brac, the magazine said. When he and his wife tried to immigrate to Israel in 1974, the Soviet government revoked their visas and citizenship.

They couple lives mostly on charity from friends, Newsweek said.

Price wars lead to arson, townspeople say

ANGUS, Texas (AP) — In a tiny town lining an interstate highway where the only business is selling liquor, merchants have found there is also an occupational hazard — arson.

Ray Davis, whose discount prices made him as popular as Prohibition in this 224-person hamlet 60 miles south of Dallas, awoke one morning in 1980 to find his store had been burned to the ground.

Some of the 10 local liquor merchants in Angus said the feuding seemed to subside, until a federal grand jury in Dallas last month indicted the Angus fire marshal for setting the fire.

Fire Marshal Bennie Lee Hanna also runs a liquor store.

"The talk in the coffee shops is basically that the place was burned because (Davis) wouldn't go up on his prices," said Navarro County Sheriff Bobby Ross.

Three other liquor stores had burned in the previous five years in Angus and the adjoining town of Mustang, officials said. All the fires were of undetermined origin.

The indictment charges that Hanna paid $500 to his cousin, Archie Beldin, to burn Davis' store. Beldin, the indictment says, tried unsuccessfully May 9, 1980 to destroy the store, and then successfully torched the structure three days later.

Both men face trial Nov. 15 in Dallas.

D.O. Phillips, who sold the store to Davis in 1979, said someone tried to firebomb the store when he owned it. But the firebomb, which came crashing through his front window, failed to ignite.

"I'm sure there were complaints, and possibly even ill-feeling, because I built up a tremendous business," Phillips said. "I had more business than anyone down there because of the location."

Davis' store has perhaps the best location in the four-mile-long town, sitting adjacent to an exit ramp.

Davis, who now runs two gas-and-liquor stores in Ellis County, refused to discuss the case. One of his employees, who asked not to be identified, told the Dallas Times Herald that other store owners in Angus went to the Davis store several times before the fire to complain about his price list.

Angus was incorporated in 1972 so a liquor-sales election could be held. The town is only wide enough to house liquor and gas sales lots. All but a few of the surrounding towns in the multi-county region are dry.

Exporters have to pay for government tips

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — American exporters are no longer getting free government tips on who might want to buy grain, beef roasts or possibly a little bear gall.

As with most of its reports, the Agriculture Department has started charging user fees for one of its most popular publications, the weekly Export Briefs issued by the Foreign Agricultural Service.

The final free distribution was just before the cutoff on Oct. 1. About 7,500 subscribers, including large and small exporters, were affected.

Officials say they cannot yet tell how many of the former recipients of the free report will subscribe at the rate of $50 per year for the regular weekly issue. If they choose, export tips on a single commodity — wheat, for example — can be ordered at $10 per year.

In addition, the weekly tips are punched into a computer system called AGNET, which is managed by the University of Nebraska. The information then is available to those who have computer terminals and pay for the computer time.

The weekly newsletter contains brief items gathered from reports by U.S. agricultural attaches stationed abroad and from other sources. Each brief item includes the address and usually the telephone or telex number of the foreign company or individual seeking the commodity.

Some typical examples of items in recent Export Brief reports:

—Buyer in Venezuela wants 500 metric tons of wheat — about 18,350 bushels — packed in 150-pound sacks.

—Ms. Hedy Ng, Sun Kee Ltd., Singapore, wants 500 metric tons of dried garlic. Prompt delivery.

—A company in Ontario, Canada, would like to buy granulated pollen for health food. Packaging should be bulk, in drums.

—Unilever Export Ltd., Avon, England, said it wants 30 to 40 metric tons of frozen whole okra, a vegetable it said is also known as "Ladies Finger." Delivery as soon as possible.

Other requests which have been filled over the years have included $1,900 worth of watermelon seeds, which were shipped to an English buyer, fertilized turtle eggs to New Zealand, live doves to Mexico, and non-alcoholic beer for a construction company in the Middle East.

Bear gall and gall stones from cows also have been ordered by Asian medical practitioners.

Some years ago a Danish firm wanted 250,000 four-leaf clovers. After a news story about the request, the trade office was deluged with nearly 500 letters from collectors who offered theirs for sale.

As it turned out, the 250,000 four-leaf clovers were provided by a producer in Florida.

The agency said the AGNET computer system charges around $1.50 or less for five trade leads. For further information, officials said to contact: AGNET, 105 Miller Hall, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb. 68583-0713, or call 402 472-1892.

Man tracked down murderer of friend

Winter fun

DALLAS (AP) — Police can't decide whether Stan Morris is a hero or a villain. His cocaine dealings led to the murder of his best friend, but his tireless search for the murderer sent the killer to jail.

For 18 months, Morris stalked the killer through his contacts in Dallas' drug underworld.

Morris, 28, suspected Kevin Douglas Payne was responsible for the death of his best friend, Michael Stotler. At one point, Morris posed as a police officer and broke into Payne's North Dallas apartment.

He later befriended an unsuspecting Payne and lured him into his home as a roommate.

"After he moved in, I found people who Kevin talked to about the murder, bragged about it. He talked about how Mike's blood bubbled out on the floor," Morris told The Dallas Morning News in a copyright story Sunday.

"At the time, it was emotionally traumatic," Morris said. "I wasn't 100 percent sure it was him, but I had this gut feeling... Some nights I wanted to take the law into my own hands."

Police credit Morris with solving Stotler's January 1981 murder and with providing key testimony that helped send Payne to prison with a life sentence.

Morris and Stotler became good friends when both were working at a local bar. Stotler never dealt drugs, Morris said, but he sometimes would deliver them for him.

Morris gave Stotler a half-ounce of cocaine to deliver to a man named "Lance," whom Stotler had met.

"The next day, when Mike didn't show up for work, I knew something was wrong," Morris said. Two days later, Stotler's body was found in an abandoned farmhouse in nearby Hutchins with two 9mm bullet wounds in the back of his head.

Morris first told police nothing about the cocaine. A month later, after police began to suspect that drugs were involved, Morris told them everything.

He visited Hutchins police and Dallas County sheriff's deputies often, offering any bit of information he found.

It was an unlikely alliance.

"He was instrumental in helping us clear the case. There's no question about it," said sheriff's Capt. Gus Rose. "He kept the case alive all the months it was dormant."

Rose said he had mixed emotions about Morris, remembering that "he sent Stotler out there to sell some dope and got him killed."

After Stotler's death, Morris went to the victim's apartment where he found a piece of paper with a phone number, later traced to Payne's apartment.

Morris and a friend then posed as police officers to break into the apartment and search it while holding Payne, 26, at gunpoint. He found only address books and forged drug prescriptions made out to "Lance Payne."

Morris was arrested for aggravated burglary, but a grand jury declined to indict him.

"He wouldn't play by the rules," said Rose. "I'll clear a case by the legal means, or I won't clear it at all."

Morris continued stalking Payne, and eventually found some people who knew him. A month after the murder, Payne drifted through Colorado and California. Morris kept track of him.

Payne returned to Dallas about seven months later.

"I went up to him as he was coming out of a bar and stuck my hand out," Morris said. "He looked a little scared at first. I apologized for breaking into his apartment. I told him I was crazy."

Morris gradually won the man's trust. But he never brought up the murder, being careful not to pump Payne too fast.

The calendar says October, but for these skiers on Killington Mountain in Vermont it is mid-winter as the resort officially reopened Sunday, with nearly two feet of snow and two inches of the real stuff. While there is no white stuff in the Panhandle yet, the Jacobsen Snow Almanac calls for the area's first snowfall to be Nov. 11. (AP Laserphoto)

Texans fighting closings of 19 parks

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Fiscally strapped federal park officials say they have been forced to close 19 Texas parks and partially shut down 35 more. Residents of this East Texas city say their park better open back up — soon.

An old-fashioned "dogfight" may be developing over Rayburn Park on the Rayburn Reservoir here, with citizens already collecting 5,000 signatures on a petition protesting the park's closing.

"The taxpayers have paid for the park and now they (officials) want to close it," said Craig McCoy, one of the local leaders of the protest. Federal budget cuts have forced the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to close the parks, said Perry Robinson, chief of the Corps' recreation and resources management office in Fort Worth.

"The parks we closed were the ones with the least number of visitors and the most inefficient to maintain," he said.

That logic doesn't play in Lufkin.

"It deprives the area of tourist dollars," McCoy said, "and my personal feeling is that it will cost them considerably to pick up concrete picnic tables and move them to other parks." A spokesman for U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson, a Democrat from Lufkin who received the petition, said the protest had caused the Corps to consider reopening Rayburn Park.

"The congressman met with the Corps last week, and he feels optimistic about the park being reopened," said Wilson spokesman Peyton Walters.

The parks closed this year are located on a variety of lakes including Lake Lewisville, north of Dallas; Lavon Lake, east of McKinney; Lake Waco, and Lake O' the Pines, near Jefferson in far East Texas.

Robinson said the Corps has shut down only 3,800 acres of the 244,400 acres of Corps park land in Texas. But more closings are expected next year.

"We are anticipating a 15-percent budget cut next (fiscal) year and about an 11 percent decrease in manpower," he said. "And even this year's budget ($9.8 million) was lower than last year. All the Corps district offices are looking for ways to handle the budgetary restraints."

Robinson said the closings, some of which were made in anticipation of budget cuts, should save the agency $300,000 to $500,000 a year.

The Boating Trades Association of Texas has taken up the fight against the park closings, and the Texas attorney general's office filed suit Oct. 1 in San Antonio federal court to have the parks reopened. A hearing has not yet been scheduled on the suit.

Lee Couch, an official with the boating trade group, said the Corps should not have closed a park until the expected budget cuts are enacted.

Wood trial enters second week

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Defense attorneys today resume questioning a key government witness who testified Charles V. Harrelson bragged about getting away with killing people not long after U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. was slain.

Harrelson's attorney, Tom Sharpe Jr., had begun cross-examining Hampton Robinson III late Friday before U.S. District Judge William S. Sessions recessed the trial for the weekend.

Robinson, 34, has provided the prosecution the necessary link between convicted narcotics dealer Jamel "Jimmy" Chagra and Harrelson, the hitman Chagra allegedly hired to shoot Wood.

Harrelson, 44, his wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, 41, and Chagra's wife, Elizabeth, 28, are on trial in connection with Wood's murder here May 29, 1979.

Chagra will be tried for murder separately later.

Robinson testified Harrelson came to his ranch in June 1979 and said, "Killing people and getting away with it is my long suit."

Harrelson also said, "The judge didn't get killed, he committed suicide by the way he sentenced people," Robinson testified.

Wood, 63, was scheduled to preside at Chagra's 1979 narcotics trial when he was shot in the back outside his San Antonio townhome.

The heavy-lidded Robinson, an admitted former cocaine and heroin addict still taking methadone treatments, told jurors about a trip he and Harrelson took to Las Vegas, Nev., in late April 1979.

Robinson said he saw Harrelson and Chagra shooting craps at the same casino table and that Harrelson later told him Chagra won a "half million dollars."

The government contends Chagra agreed during Harrelson's Las Vegas trip to pay him $250,000 to kill Wood.

Robinson also testified Harrelson telephoned him in Houston and asked Robinson to obtain a rifle in May 1979, and later asked him to dispose of a white-over-gold Oldsmobile. The government contends the auto, registered to Mrs. Harrelson, was used as a getaway car in the Wood slaying.

Robinson did not furnish a rifle as Harrelson requested, so Mrs. Harrelson used a phony name to buy a 243-caliber deer rifle in Dallas 12 days before the killing, the prosecution charges.

On the afternoon of the killing, Robinson testified, Harrelson telephoned him and said, "I've gotten everything taken care of. I'll see you in a couple of days."

Sharpe said he will use the government's own witnesses to prove a scenario closely related to the prosecution's, but pointing to a different killer.

During his questioning of Robinson, Sharpe attempted to shift suspicion to Pete Kay, 40, a Huntsville Motel club owner and friend of both Harrelson and Robinson.

After the judge's slaying, Kay tried to "give or trade" to Robinson a 243-caliber rifle, the witness testified.

Bonnie Raphael and Dallas zoo are breeding endangered animals

By LAURA RICHARDSON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. Bonnie L. Raphael's smallest patient weighs two-thirds of an ounce. The largest weighs two-and-a-half tons.

She deals in life and death in extraordinary forms, in odd couplings and unnatural acts aimed at keeping the world's exotic animals alive and kicking, crawling, climbing, flying, swimming or slithering.

She hopes to help a giraffe give birth to an okapi.

The cross-genus breeding experiment is perhaps Ms. Raphael's most startling task as the veterinarian at the Dallas Zoo, where she takes care of 2,000 animals. But almost all of her job is odd.

"I don't like to see animals used solely for man's benefit. That's one thing that drew me to zoos and wild animal medicine. What we're doing with our breeding programs is trying to save animals from extinction, although sometimes the public doesn't see that," she said.

And although she is convinced "a human life is more important than an animal life, I think animals need more champions watching out for them."

The small blunt hands of the short, slight, 32-year-old woman have performed delicate fiberoptic surgery on tiny flame-faced tanagers, South American birds that are the smallest creatures in the zoo.

Those hands also have pounded the leathery hide of the zoo's biggest beast to prepare the 5,000-pound asthmatic Nile hippopotamus for an injection.

Ms. Raphael has treated deadly poisonous snakes, given shots to hostile apes, and performed a Cesarean section on an iguana.

One of only about 40 full-time zoo veterinarians in the United States, she spends about half her time practicing preventive medicine — performing tuberculosis tests, controlling parasites, trying to isolate sick animals, taking blood samples.

About 30 percent of her work is treating the sick, and 20 percent is breeding, which is "what it's all about" in the changing life of American zoos.

"So much of zoo medicine is not written down — it's zoo vets carrying around clinical knowledge in their heads," she said. "That's changing as zoos become more and more involved in conservation."

The Dallas Zoo started as a menagerie in 1904, and most of the construction you see today — the barred cages and concrete floors — was done by the (Works Progress Administration) in the 1930s. Then, the idea was just display. There was no emphasis on conservation, breeding, not even education. We all accept zoos as recreation, but there's a much more important role."

The goal of zoos like Dallas' that participate in the national Species Survival Plan of the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums is to breed endangered species in captivity to "keep some around for future generations to see, and — we hope — one day reintroduce them to their natural environments."

Dallas had a record number of animal births in 1981. Ms. Raphael's first year on the job. Several rare and endangered animals — a lowland gorilla, kipspringer antelope, lesser panda, and an okapi — were born, and a young pygmy hippo, which is vanishing in the wild, is pregnant.

The okapi birth was something of a coup: the only one in the country this year. The Dallas Zoo prides itself on being a "forerunner in a world effort" to maintain the strange, chocolate-colored animal with a pin-striped rump and legs, whose survival in its native Zaire is doubtful.

That's where a crippled, cow-hocked okapi named Miracle comes in.

Miracle was born in the Dallas Zoo, but she is not on display because a hip problem makes her ugly. She has trouble walking now, and spends much of her time lying in her hay-filled stall in a back-lot stable, calmly turning her huge, long-lashed brown eyes on the occasional stranger.

"She is not strong enough to carry a pregnancy, she's not an attractive animal, and basically she's just wasting her life," Ms. Raphael said. "But she's still valuable in terms of potential offspring."

The Dallas Zoo, working with Texas A&M University and the Oklahoma City and San Diego zoos, hopes to use Miracle as an okapi embryo factory.

Embryo transplantation is common today in the cattle industry, where it is used to get large numbers of valuable pure-bred animals from one mother.

The mother is given hormones that stimulate her to produce dozens of eggs. She is artificially inseminated, and the fertilized eggs are flushed out before they can attach to the uterine wall. The embryos are then implanted in a less valuable animal, a surrogate mother that carries the pregnancy to term.

Basically the same techniques are to be tried on Miracle, but there's a hitch: All okapi are rare, none are "less valuable," and the beast that looks a little like a zebra and a lot like an antelope has only one relative — the giraffe.

Cross-genus embryo transplants have not been tried before. But both the giraffe and okapi have 14-month gestation periods, and the Oklahoma City Zoo has a female giraffe they are trying to make willing.

She and Miracle are being trained to stand quietly so the procedure can be done without anesthesia.

The San Diego Zoo is doing the hormone research, and Dr. Dwayne Kramer, a large animal reproduction specialist at Texas A&M, is a consultant on the project.

It's a delicate and messy business, involving daily rectal palpitations of large and edgy animals, and the taking of daily urine samples. The beasts' reproductive cycles must be synchronized, and no one knows if the months of effort will pay off.

Dependent children welfare increase proposed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans get a chance Nov. 2 to say if the state should continue making welfare payments to needy dependent children, even if the federal payments stop.

The proposed constitution change, Proposition No. 2, is one of six suggested amendments on the Nov. 2 ballot.

Should the six proposals pass in November, that would make a total of 253 changes in the Texas Constitution since it was adopted in 1876.

Proposition No. 2 would remove the present $80 million ceiling on the amount of state aid that can be matched with federal money for Aid to Families of Dependent Children (AFDC).

It also would remove the present requirement of matching federal funds for state money.

"I think chances are excellent for passage of the welfare amendment," said

Phil Strickland, head of Citizens Concerned About Children, which claims support of the governor, lieutenant governor, and speaker.

"Because of inflation, cutbacks in federal assistance and population increases, Texas is fast approaching the present $80 million ceiling," said Strickland, who also is director of the Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission.

"Unless Amendment No. 2 is adopted, the average $34 per month benefit — which ranks Texas 49th among the states — will be cut, or truly needy children will be dropped from the program and denied assistance."

The proposed amendment removes the present $80 million ceiling on the amount of state aid to dependent children and their caretakers and sets a new ceiling of $160 million for the 1982-83 period and 1 percent of the state budget after that.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby has estimated the next Legislature will need about $100 million for the matching funds.

The present ceiling was adopted in 1969. In 1971, voters refused to support a Legislature-approved plan to raise the ceiling to $55 million for each business year.

Opponents of the proposition say welfare spending should be reduced instead of increased. They argue the 1 percent state budget ceiling, after 1982-83, is too lenient.

Proposition No. 6 on the ballot would increase the maximum interest rate charged on general obligation bonds issued by the state from 6 percent to a "weighted average annual" 12 percent. If approved, this would affect bonds authorized by the Constitution, such as water quality enhancement and water conservation bonds, park development bonds and student loan bonds.

It would not affect the popular Veterans Land Program bonds, which had their interest rate increased in 1981 from 6 percent to 10 percent.

Proponents say the 12 percent interest is necessary to sell bonds on the present inflationary market.

Opponents say payment of increased interest rates contributes to the inflation and the state should not increase its debt by selling more bonds.

Also on the ballot are two other proposed changes of limited interest to statewide voters. They are:

— Proposition No. 4, to allow the Legislature to authorize four-year terms, instead of two-year, for governing boards of water districts and other conservation and reclamation districts.

Rising Star is falling

RISING STAR, Texas (AP)

When town officials checked the treasury Friday afternoon, they found only $14.86 in the general fund, which covers police, fire, and street expenses.

One solution, the mayor said, would be to lay off some police officers.

But there are only two police officers in Rising Star, a Central Texas farming community of 1,200 people east of Abilene.

"If laying off policemen is the answer, then it must be done," said Mayor H.L. Killian.

"We're broke."

Despite the lack of city revenues, both of Rising Star's finest stayed on their beats last weekend.

"I'm going to hang on as long as I can," Police Chief Curtis McGlothlin said. "We — Dennis (Hall) and I — will continue to support the citizens of Rising Star as long as we possibly can do so."

Robin Reed, owner of the Rainbow Cafe, said a newly formed citizens committee, which already has privately collected $508, agreed recently to support keeping the officers until an Oct. 25 town meeting.

The crisis stems from a shortfall of income from tax revenues, said Rising Star city administrator Janna Jones.

Get some of those old laws off books

It may be that if respect for the law and for duly constituted authority ever dies a lingering death, the coroner may have to conclude that the patient succumbed to self-inflicted wounds.

The state of Washington, casting about for a way to delay the impact of fiscal crisis, has commenced a state lottery. An old law in neighboring Oregon provides for criminal penalties for possessing or selling lottery tickets.

Oregon prosecutors, fully aware that the state's residents are buying Washington lottery tickets, have announced that they don't plan to make a big point of enforcing the law.

It is encouraging to note that some district attorneys have a measure of common sense. It is less encouraging that so few want to stick their necks out a little farther and try to get some of those unenforceable laws off the books.

To be sure, it is not a simple matter to repeal a law. Some lobbying may be required, which takes time, money and dedication. Yet, state legislatures seem to find themselves able to pass laws every year (some enforceable and some not).

Some new bugs going around

The United States has some new health problems.

any comprehensive audit of our nation's last 40 years must acknowledge that we have progressed most certainly and most dramatically in the control of disease.

Anybody contracting cancer in the 1980s has an unprecedented 50 percent chance of being cured.

Many of today's young doctors will never see even one case of several childhood diseases which were commonplace a generation ago.

In 1921 our nation suffered 206,939 cases of diphtheria; last year only four cases.

Almost a million Americans had measles in 1941; last year about 3,000.

Mumps down in a dozen years from 152,000 to less than 5,000.

Twenty years ago Americans suffered 21,269 cases of paralytic polio; last year six.

And rubella and tetanus and whooping cough, similar dramatic declines.

Yet, children returning to school this fall may not be admitted without vaccinations against seven childhood diseases — partly because we have some new bugs — and new strains of old bugs — now going around.

County health officials around the United States are reporting a number of new health problems traceable to new immigrants, particularly to those from tropical and semitropical countries, notably Indo-China.

We had tuberculosis and leprosy under control in the United States, almost eradicated; both are on the increase again.

In Orange County, Calif., there are only 27 cases of TB, 488 per 100,000.

Our government's watchdog agency, the General Accounting Office, confirms that aliens are bringing both of those diseases into the United States; also hepatitis, malaria, parasites and an assortment of venereal diseases.

In all 50 states the law now requires immunization of school-agers; twenty-five states have beefed-up those laws.

Some will admit that the deployment of immigrant camps around the NITED States has alerted health officials to the urgency of vaccinations for diseases we thought we had whipped.

When Americans hear of "new imported diseases," they are likely to blame any new discomfort on some imported virus or bacteria.

Historically, health standards of immigrants were rigidly enforced: Health standards for illegals are, of course, unenforceable. And our attorney general has granted medical waivers to tens of thousands of refugees "on humanitarian grounds."

The Manville bankruptcy

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER
NEW YORK (NEA) — The bankruptcy petition of the Manville Corporation, formerly Johns Manville of asbestos fame, focuses attention on a problem that predictably is going to recur from time to time, and remind us that we ought to be devising some equitable way of dealing with it.

Every corporation that works with advance technology runs the risk of encountering wholly unanticipated perils, the ill effects of which may not manifest themselves until long after it is too late to avoid them. In the case of Manville, it now seems established that workers who repeatedly inhaled these fireproof mineral fibers, back in the days before their dangers were discovered and adequate safeguards installed, run a higher than normal risk of developing lung cancer or other lung diseases.

Now they or their surviving families are coming after Manville by the thousands, accompanied by lawyers and demanding millions of dollars in damages in each individual case. It is often no great trick for a clever lawyer to convince a jury that there was a causal relation between a worker's illness and asbestos fibers in the atmosphere of his workplace — and then to persuade the jurors that proper compensation for his suffering and - or death, plus his loss of income (on which his family depended), is a cool two or three million dollars. How much of this goes to the plaintiff's attorney is between him and his clients, but it is usually about a third.

Calculating what it will have to pay in damages if even a substantial fraction of the lawsuits go against it, Manville — which is otherwise a perfectly healthy company — correctly concluded that its assets are exceeded by its (potential) liabilities, and accordingly filed a petition in bankruptcy.

There are two separate questions here, the first of which is exactly how many of these claims are in fact justified. As it becomes harder, thanks to modern medicine, to die of other things, a few intractable illnesses like cancer and the diseases of old age assume a larger role in the mortality tables.

At present, one out of every four or five Americans can expect to die of cancer even if he or she never came within whiffing distance of an asbestos fiber. This means that at least 2,000 out of every 10,000 cancer victims who bring lawsuits against Manville would have contracted the disease anyway, whether they had worked for Manville or not, and that of course makes it extremely difficult to establish the causal relationship needed for recovery of damages. The trouble is that juries, confronted by weeping widows and orphaned children are often tempted to raid some corporate treasury in an effort to console them, whether a solid case for the corporation's responsibility has been established or not.

The only remedy here is dry-eyed judges, either in the trial itself or on appeal. Excessive verdicts can be reduced, or set aside altogether, and certainly ought to be in appropriate cases.

But what about those cases in which a causal connection between asbestos fibers and the plaintiff's illness has been satisfactorily established? Should the sky be the only limit to the damages awarded in every such case?

Even if we decide it should, it won't be — if only because the Manville Corporation isn't infinitely rich. If the first two or three thousand plaintiffs (and their lawyers) wait off with a couple of million bucks apiece, there may be nothing at all left for plaintiffs coming along later with claims just as good, or better. There may also be no Manville Corporation.

The solution here is legislation to bring a little order into this disorderly and highly emotional area. In particular, the amounts of individual jury verdicts in these cases could be limited, especially so that they would bear some relation to the age and potential earning capacity of the plaintiffs. The latter can be calculated, for any given age, by actuarial tables unimpressed by baritone attorneys with moist eyes.

The objective would not be to relieve the Manville Corporation of a responsibility which it must clearly share, but to make the burden financially bearable and distribute the available compensation more equitably among those entitled to it. In the long run we will all be better off if Manville survives and, under proper safeguards, continues to mine those fireproof fibers that have, after all, not only cost but saved an unknown number of lives.

Secret water deal

By ROBERT WALTERS
SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (NEA) — The governor enthusiastically embraced the concept of the West River Aqueduct and he convinced the state legislature to hastily endorse the 288-mile-long underground water pipeline.

Back in Washington, the Army Corps of Engineers and the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation circumvented their standard procedures to approve use of the pipeline to drain almost 16.3 billion gallons of water from the Missouri River every year for the next half-century or longer.

The consortium of five major corporations that conceived the plan to divert the water into another state for use in a commercial venture, Energy Transport Systems, Inc., obviously thought it was a superb idea.

There's only one problem: most of the people directly affected by the pipeline scheme were never given much of an opportunity to express their views about the project.

The water would be withdrawn by IETSI from the Oahe Reservoir, located behind a massive Missouri River dam less than five miles northwest of the state capital of Pierre, then transported through the West River Aqueduct to a point near Gillette, Wyo., where it would be combined with pulverized coal in a slurry pipeline.

IETSI originally secured permission to draw the water needed for the slurry pipeline from the Madison Formation, a vast aquifer which underlies much of South Dakota, Wyoming and Nebraska.

The environmental impact statement for the ambitious project, required by federal law and drafted by the Interior Department, assumed that ETSI would rely upon the Madison Formation for its substantial water requirements.

Last year, however, ETSI officials opened secret negotiations with South Dakota Gov. William J. Janklow to instead purchase Missouri River water from his state. Interior department officials were notified of the change in plans, but acceded to ETSI's request that they temporarily waive their rules requiring advance public notice of the proposal.

The misleading environmental impact statement was published on July 17, 1981 and the two-month period for public comment closed on Sept. 16, 1981.

On the day that deadline passed — and the public was precluded from participating in the decision-making process — ETSI disclosed its plans to buy Missouri River water.

The following day, Sept. 17, Janklow revealed, in a statewide television address, his secret negotiations with ETSI and promoted the pending deal as a bonanza which would produce $1.4 billion in new revenues for the state.

The governor also called for an emergency session of the state legislature to approve legislation necessary to consummate the deal. The lawmakers convened in Pierre on Sept. 23, only six days later, but two of the required four bills weren't even available when they began their deliberations.

The governor's office produced the draft legislation later that day and on Sept. 24, the following day, the entire package was approved even though the proposed agreement between ETSI and the state was not shown to the lawmakers.

That contract, finally approved after three additional months of secret negotiations calls, for South Dakota to provide ETSI with 50,000 acre-feet of Missouri River water annually in return for yearly payments of $9 million plus a preconstruction payment of $10 million.

The river does not, however, belong exclusively to South Dakota. Its water is crucial to downstream cities and states for agricultural irrigation, barge transportation, power generation and a host of other uses.

The states of Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska recently filed a civil suit in U.S. District Court in Lincoln, Neb., alleging that federal officials acted illegally in acquiescing to the unprecedented out-of-basin diversion of the water.

Both the concept and the secretive manner in which it was implemented are subject of legitimate criticism. One newspaper, the St. Joseph, Mo., News-Press, likens South Dakota's unilateral action to "serving your friends a chicken dinner with birds you lifted from your neighbor's hen house."

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Oct. 18, the 291st day of 1982. There are 74 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Oct. 18, 1867, the United States took formal possession of Alaska from Russia.

On this date:
In 1944, Soviet troops invaded Czechoslovakia in their drive to Berlin during World War II.

In 1967, an unmanned Soviet spacecraft dropped instruments on the surface of Venus, reporting the planet's temperature is hot enough to melt metal.

In 1974, the Soviet Union and Egypt agreed to support the establishment of a Palestinian state.

In 1979, the Church of England said homosexual relationships may be justified.

Dear Abby Obscene caller hangs up with ringing ears

DEAR ABBY: The most effective way I have found to deal with obscene phone calls is to keep a referee's whistle near the phone. As soon as I realize it's an obscene call, I give the caller an earful!

All it takes is one shrill blast into the phone and the caller hangs up. And you can bet he won't call again.

WHISTLE TREATMENT IN DURANGO, COLO.

DEAR WHISTLE: Read on for the Texas treatment:

DEAR ABBY: I wrote in some time ago telling how I handled obscene phone calls and you printed my letter. Please print it again. If not, please send it back. It's the only one I have left.

MARY W IN ORANGE, TEXAS

DEAR MARY: It's worth another shot, and here it is:

"DEAR ABBY: My experience may help women who don't know how to handle obscene phone calls. Many years ago, when I was an attractive young woman, my telephone rang, and when I answered it, I heard a male voice speaking all this filthy language. I had never heard such dirty talk in my life! Then it occurred to me that the caller would get no thrill out of talking to a deaf old lady, so that's what I pretended to be.

"I said in a very weak and shaky voice, 'What did you say?'

"The man then repeated his obscene message — only louder.

"In the same croaking, shaky voice, I again said, 'What did you say? I can't hear you.'

"The caller started to shout his filthy spiel again when I heard another male voice in the background say, 'Hang up, you fool!'

"The fool hung up and never called back."

DEAR ABBY: I know that the telephone company recommends that the best way to deal with obscene phone calls is to hang up. Sorry, I don't buy that.

Why should some filthy-mouthed or possibly deranged pervert get away with making an innocent person a victim of such abuse?

I say, call the telephone company and demand that something be done. You can't tell me that in this age of sophisticated electronic miracles, the telephone company couldn't monitor a telephone line if it wanted to.

I would also call the police. I am sick of seeing the rights of law-abiding citizens trampled on, while criminals go unpunished!

TICKED OFF IN BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: Here's an idea for "Sick of Sicks," who has to deal with obscene phone calls in her office. My daughter has a friend, a young lady, who manages a bookstore in Richmond, Va.

When she had this problem, she finally said very sweetly and politely to the caller, "Sir, would you mind speaking up and talking more clearly? We aren't getting you very clearly on the tape."

The fellow hung up and hasn't been heard from since.

ARLINGTON, VA.

DEAR ABBY: The hang-up method didn't work for me when I was harassed by obscene phone calls. Finally I tried the following: As soon as I recognized the voice, I said, "Yes, Officer, this is the call I want traced."

I was never called again.

A.B. FROM S.F.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ultrasonic roach scarer won't work

DEAR CONSUMER REPORTS: My two daughters recently moved to New York City and Philadelphia. They are horrified to see huge roaches running around their rooms. I saw an ad for several devices that produce ultrasonic sounds that are intended to drive pests away. Do such devices work?

DEAR READER: According to government sources, the devices don't work. To get rid of the roaches, tell your daughters to buy a surface spray insecticide containing the chemical "chlorpyrifos" in the list of ingredients. The chemical can also be listed as "O,O-diethyl O-(3,5,6-trichloro-2-pyridyl) phosphorothioate."

DEAR CONSUMER REPORTS: I would like to put wallpaper on my aluminum 3-1/2 x 8 verticals. The wallpaper has a paper back. What can I use to attach the paper?

DEAR READER: Consumer Reports engineers say that you could use a contact cement that should be available in any hardware store. But they add that you should test it first on a small piece of wallpaper to make sure the cement doesn't come through the paper.

DEAR CONSUMER REPORTS: I own a Revere Ware pressure cooker, but I can't use it. The rubber gasket will not hold the pressure and needs to be replaced. The manufacturer does not make a replacement gasket, nor could tell me where to obtain a replacement.

DEAR READER: Both Presto and Mirro sell replacement gaskets or sealing rings. However, they may not fit your pressure cooker. Bring your Revere Ware cooker along when you shop for the replacement gasket so you can check a gasket for size.

Counselor's Corner

Top O' Texas Counseling Center

From time to time it is important to take inventory. Grocery stores, parts houses, supply merchants know the necessity of counting their stock and either depleting it or ordering replacements for items purchased. Sometimes it is a surprise to discover that some of the merchandise has not been selling.

Occasionally, if accurate records are kept, it is brought to someone's attention that certain products have not been sold or are missing. Perhaps they have been misplaced, lost or stolen. Inventory is a way to get an accurate count of business products and plan ways to improve turnover to consumers. It helps a person see reality with greater perception.

Individuals are heard saying that they never have any problems, and, if something (a problem) comes up, they handle it themselves. Frequently, people with problems are unable to recognize them.

All problems have symptoms. A stomach ache, a head ache, sore throat are usually symptoms of a problem. Once the symptoms are evaluated, the ailment can be diagnosed. Physicians ask for symptoms in order to know where to locate reasons for pain and discomfort.

Depression, grief, loneliness, anger, paranoid disorders, stress and other emotional conflicts have symptoms.

Depression symptoms are loss of interest in most areas where pleasure is found, poor appetite and weight loss, insomnia and restlessness at night, fatigue, feelings of worthlessness and suicidal thoughts. Anyone with most of these feelings is probably depressed.

Grief has symptoms also: the person is tearful, sad, moody, withdrawn, disinterested in pleasure, angry over the loss, fearful of struggling without the life which is no longer present to help, and guilt for not sharing unfinished business with the deceased or lost person.

Post traumatic stress is an emotional disorder with symptoms such as recollections of a traumatic event, recurrent dreams related to the experience, suddenly feeling as if the traumatic event is re-occurring because of an association stimulated by an environment or idea, exaggerated startle response, sleep disturbance, survival guilt, inability to concentrate or remember.

Anger can be recognized by symptoms of a violent temper, assertive and pushy behavior beyond reason, being disagreeable when agreeing would be an easy solution, sudden outbursts of temper and frequent fighting.

Paranoia is understood by symptoms. A definition of paranoia is "expectation of trickery and harm; hypervigilance, manifested by continual scanning of the environment for signs of threat or taking unneeded precautions; guardedness or secretiveness, questioning the loyalty of others, pathological jealousy, inability to relax, readiness to counterattack when a threat is perceived."

A particular reason for denying the fact that one has problems is fear of exposure. This person might think he is weak, unable to care for himself or that he is a burden or mentally impaired.

Recognizing that one has a problem, accepting the problem, giving the person the permission to find a solution. No problem has existed without a solution.

Problems stimulate mental resources to work. They challenge people to act. They initiate movement to respond to a potential solution. Those who do not recognize problems are denying reality and fooling themselves with inaccurate rationalizations. Problems are necessary for good mental health.

Neglected problems usually lead to loss of control resulting in permanent damage such as divorce, loss of job, broken friendship and self defeat.

Problems confronted and terminated lead to success. One can restore a broken relationship, heal a misinterpretation, satisfy himself with assertiveness and confidence. He becomes important to himself again.

Look for symptoms. You may need a counselor to help eliminate the symptoms and cure the problem or you may not. But remember, every problem has a solution. Mental health depends on problems and solutions.

Choir wins honors

Twenty-three Pampa High School (PHS) singers were named to the All-District choir in auditions at Amarillo Oct. 9. PHS students included eight seniors, three juniors, five sophomores, and seven freshmen.

Singers selected were Lisa Malone, Stacey Hendrick, Lori Crawford, Doretta

Bruce, Kerri Richardson, Kelly Copeland, Stacey Bennett, Michelle Eakin, Lana Hiltbrunner, Darla Denham, Melanie Goad, Missy Crossman, Amy Raymond, Denise Chapman, Eric Hallerberg, Randy Hendrick, Trent Sellers, Jeff Hinkle, Todd Hardin, Brent Chapman, James Stevens, Jeff Steward and Cap

Pittman. Brandi Huff was chosen as first alternate. The All-District Choir is the first step in determining the Texas All-State Choir. Other auditions will follow in November and January, 1983.

These students will travel to Spearman on Nov. 13 to audition for a place in the All-Region Choir.

Yount lifts Brewers past Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hits are coming in bunches for Robin Yount, bringing his Milwaukee Brewers within one victory of winning the World Series.

Milwaukee used Yount's second four-hit game of the Series and some gritty pitching by Mike Caldwell for a 6-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in Sunday's pivotal fifth game.

That gave the Brewers a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven Series, with Game 6 set for Busch Stadium Tuesday night. Veteran Don Sutton will try to finish the Series off for Milwaukee while rookie John Stuper goes for the Cardinals, hoping to force it to a decisive seventh game Wednesday night.

The Brewers were on the ropes in the Series, trailing two games to one and losing 5-1 in the seventh inning of Game 4. Then they exploded for six runs — two of them on a clutch single by Yount — to win that game and came right back Sunday to take Game 5, with Yount's blazing bat leading the way.

So suddenly, Milwaukee is in charge of this Series, put in that position by the shortstop who enjoyed a dream season and seems capable of lifting this team by the scruff of its neck whenever necessary.

Brewer fans chant "MVP, MVP, MVP!" every time Yount comes to the plate.

They're talking about his .331, 29-home run, 114 runs-batted-in season. But his Series numbers of 11 hits in 21 at-bats, a .524 batting average, 17 total bases and got that run back with a two-out homer in the bottom of the seventh.

"It was a fastball up a little and out over the plate," said Yount. "They've been pitching me away the whole Series."

That, apparently, is by design.

"We kept trying to get the ball in a spot," said Cardinal Manager Whitey Herzog "and every time we get it in the spot, he hits it."

As the old Henny Youngman joke goes — "A man goes to the doctor and says, 'It hurts when I do this,' and the doctor replies, 'Then, don't do that.'"

"It's a little surprising they stay in one spot," noted Yount.

In the bottom of the eighth, Herzog went to the bullpen for Bruce Sutter, who has one win and one save in this Series. The idea was to keep the Brewers in the Cardinals' sights. It didn't work.

"I used him because I wanted to stay close and take a shot at it," said Herzog. "He gave up two runs."

And this time, the Brewers did their damage without Yount.

Singles by Ben Oglivie, Moore and Gantner, sandwiched around a walk, made it 6-2 and it looked like a laugh. The Cardinals had only three outs left but Caldwell, who had been staggering, didn't have that many.

He had pitched a three-hit shutout in the opener but had surrendered twice that many in the first three innings Sunday.

"This was your basic Mike Caldwell game," the pitcher said. "Eight or nine hits, two or three walks and a couple of strikeouts. I don't overpower anyone."

After Molitor threw out Lonnie Smith on a good play to open the inning, doubles by Green and Hernandez and a single by Hendrick made it 6-4. It was the 14th hit off Caldwell and the last one. Bob McClure, the reliever who'd rather start, came in and surrendered a single to Darrell Porter, putting the tying runs on base.

Willie McGee struck out and then Gene Tenace pinch hit for Ken Oberkfell, who had three hits in the game.

"I knew that Obie had three hits," said Herzog, "but I wanted to take a crack at a home run and I thought Tenace could do it."

The pinch-hitter jumped on McClure's first pitch and drilled it to left, well short of the wall, for the final out. It was the second save in a row for McClure, who pitched in the shadow of Rollie Fingers during the season and took a back seat to Peter Ladd in the AL playoff.

Now the Brewers, who came off the deck to beat Baltimore for the division and the Angels for the pennant, are ahead for a change.

"This is a little different situation for us," said Moore. "We've been behind the last couple of weeks. We're putting the pressure on someone else and now it's up to them to catch us."

Mustangs survive close one

IRVING, Texas (AP) — After three Southwest Conference football games, Bobby Collins looks tired. The gray in his hair looks whiter. And he has to play the Texas Longhorns on the road Saturday.

"It will be a battle... a big game... but I've been in them before," Collins said Sunday night, hours after his No. 5-ranked Southern Methodist Mustangs had conquered Houston 20-14 in another close one for the new coach.

His teams have beaten Texas Christian and Baylor by three points each in conference encounters.

The former Southern Mississippi coach bristled somewhat when someone suggested the Longhorns and an expected sellout crowd of 80,000 in Memorial Stadium might intimidate him and his Mustangs.

"I've been with teams to Ohio State, Notre Dame, Birmingham, Ala., Tuscaloosa — I'm not exactly a rookie, you know," Collins said. "I'd like to think that the bigger the crowd the better you play... We've all got a little of that (competitor) in us."

Had Collins taken any preview sneak looks at films of the Longhorns, who were idle over the weekend?

"I haven't seen 'em," he said. "My first look will be at noon Sunday. I just know Texas had a week off to get ready for us."

Will he remind his players of the 9-7 defeat the Longhorns inflicted on the Mustangs last year, the only loss of the year?

"Well, we might try to make 'em aware they lost last year but all I know is they started talking Texas in the dressing room as soon as the (Houston) game was over," Collins said.

Collins said SMU certainly didn't want to go 10-1 this year.

"If you just lose one game that's all people want to talk about," he said. "You're better off going 8-3... then they (the alumni) want to talk about the victories... Of course the players on the team last year remember the Texas loss."

SMU is unbeaten and 3-0 in the conference. Texas is 1-0 and trying to recover from a 28-22 loss to Oklahoma.

The game is set for 1 p.m. although ABC-TV could move the kickoff for a national telecast.

Officials to meet

Persons interested in officiating at Pampa seventh, eighth, ninth grade and sophomore basketball games this season are urged to attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday night in the rear office at the high school basketball fieldhouse.

Persons who cannot attend the meeting, but would like to officiate may contact Garland Nichols at 669-2322.

Miami loses

ROCHESTER—Willy Joe Brown and Jerry Garcia exploded for three touchdowns apiece as Rochester defeated Miami, 47-17, in a District 1-2A six-man football game Friday night.

Brown opened the scoring by returning the opening kickoff 60 yards. He had runs of three and 15 yards from scrimmage. Garcia raced for touchdowns of five, three and 15 yards.

Scoring touchdowns for Miami were Kirk Gray, a 50-yard run, and Ty Greenhouse, a nine-yard run.

Steve Martin booted a 22-yard field goal and Gray scored on a conversion run.

The score was tied at 6-6 at the end of the first quarter, but Rochester opened up a 20-10 lead at halftime.

Miami, 1-5, plays at Harrold next Friday night.

Bichsel wins title

Vivian Bichsel defeated Cheryl Lanham, 199-164, Sunday to win the Pampa Merchants Women's Bowling Classic at Harvester Lanes.

The top five bowlers in Saturday's eight-game qualifying round advanced into Sunday's finals.

Bichsel, who was the No. 5 qualifier, defeated Kitten Westbrook 189-165, Nita Davis 213-180 and Lee Baggerman 196-192, to reach the finals against Lanham, the No. 1 qualifier.

Phillips rallies past Groom

PHILLIPS—Phillips Kyle Lynch caught a desperation pass from Kevin Jones with the closing seconds ticking away and raced into the end zone as time expired to lift the Blackhaws to a 15-12 District 1-1A football win over Groom Friday night.

On the game's last play, Phillips had the ball on Groom's 44-yard line and nine seconds remained.

Jones tossed the desperation pass. Lynch caught it at the Groom 20, then eluded a Tiger safety and raced into the end zone with no time showing on the clock.

The Phillips touchdown capped a frantic Blackhawk comeback.

Groom led 12-0 after the first period and 12-6 going into the final quarter.

Phillips' first TD came in the second period when Jones found Jack Thompson with a 22-yard scoring strike.

The Hawks added a safety in the fourth period to set up the desperation TD pass.

Groom took its early lead when Jeff Britten found Rex Ruthardt with a 24-yard pass, then Russell Britten raced 72 yards for another TD.

The game left Groom 2-3-1 and 1-1, while Phillips now is 4-2 and 2-1.

Groom hosts Phillips at 7:30 p.m. Friday night in a District 1-1A contest.

East wins All-Star contest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Game One of the NFL Players Association-sponsored exhibitions may have been a symbolic victory for the striking players even while it was a financial loss for Turner Broadcasting System.

The National Conference East took a 23-21 victory over an AFC East squad Sunday in the $5,045-seat Robert F. Kennedy Stadium in Washington, D.C. Only 8,760 tickets were sold and the crowd didn't look that big.

Meanwhile, Robert Wussler, vice president of Turner Broadcasting that is paying $500,000 per game to the union, said the cable company "did not come close to covering costs, but we're committed to next week's game. There was tremendous pressure on the advertisers."

Wussler said he had no proof of pressure on advertisers from the league or television networks. "We just know there was tremendous pressure on the advertisers," he said.

But the players, whose game will feature the league's western divisions tonight, were satisfied with Sunday's effort.

Brig Owens, the union's commissioner in charge of the games, said, "Everybody thought we weren't going to be able to put it on. We did it in just a week. Just the fact we got it off proves it is a success."

Owens said the NFC East team will meet the winner of tonight's contest next Sunday in Toronto.

Redskins' place-kicker Mark Moseley, named the game's most valuable player after kicking three field goals — including a game-winning 45-yarder with 1:01 remaining — said: "The players feel that a game is a game and the union is made up of players who want to play football. Management is not letting us do it. They can solve the problem if they want to come up with a contract that is fair to the players."

"The fact that we were able to pull the game off, and did it in just a week, is significant," he added. "That's what we have been saying — this is a people's game. We're not selling cars or soap."

Quarterback Gary Danielson of the Detroit Lions, who threw touchdown passes of 13 yards to John Spagnola of Philadelphia and 48 yards to Mel Gray of St. Louis, said, "We're really proud that we could have pulled it off, especially with the tremendous pressure some of the players have been under."

Danielson said several of the players had been contacted by their team's management and coaches and asked not to play in the union-sponsored game, though he declined to identify anyone.

"This game was just supposed to show that we could do it," he continued. "No one is saying that this was an NFL-caliber game. It was like a preseason game when only the veterans are playing, like the last exhibition game before the regular season."

Forecasters set back economic recovery

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While the big bull ring on Wall Street seldom was more boisterous than last week, and while President Reagan again assured Americans that better times were coming, a familiar thing occurred: The timing of the economic recovery once again was set back by some of the most influential forecasters. That news might not seem ominous, in view of the rather poor record of forecasters, but it does have some significance — most importantly, that the professionals aren't impressed either by the market or presidential assurances. Walter Heller, the economist often credited with being behind the big tax cut that spurred the economy during the early 1960s, told Congress that unemployment was likely to remain above 10 percent for months to come. Two days before, he and economist George L. Perry wrote in an analysis for the National City Bank of Minneapolis that "the second-half recovery we foresaw is simply not materializing." They blamed high interest rates. "Both theory and experience teach that aggressive action by the Fed in an economy with huge unemployment and excess capacity can bring real rates down without reigniting inflation," they said. The Morgan Bank has lowered its expectations for the final quarter of the year. There is a growing conviction, the bank's economists say in "The Morgan Guaranty Survey" just published, "that appreciable recovery may not occur without a further substantial decline in interest rates." The bank lowered its growth forecast for fourth-quarter gross national product to just 0.4 percent from its earlier forecast of nearly 3 percent. The Morgan economists said interest rates "remain formidably high." In their weekly economic report, economists at Chemical Bank indicated the most likely forecast, to which they gave a 45 percent probability rating, is one in which "meaningful economic recovery is delayed until early 1983." As their "first alternative," with a 35 percent rating, the Chemical economists chose one saying "stronger consumer pickup this quarter removes need for inventory correction; production recovery starts fourth quarter." According to Edward Yardeni, economist for the E.F. Hutton securities firm, "The recession intensified during the third quarter." And the National Association of Purchasing Management found that "except for the price picture, there wasn't any good news to be found in the economy in September." Oddly, these grim views were being maintained simultaneously with one of the most uproarious and bullish scenes ever witnessed in the stock market.

Train crash in Argentina kills 32 people

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Thirty-two people were killed and at least 70 others injured when a passenger train slammed into the rear of another, railway officials said today. The officials said the Sunday night crash may have been caused by a faulty signal. Authorities said at least 15 of those injured in the crash near Quilmes were hospitalized in critical condition.

Quilmes is about 13 miles south of the Argentine capital. The crash occurred when a speeding passenger express train, enroute from the seaside resort of Mar del Plata to Buenos Aires, plowed into the rear of a second passenger train which had stopped just before reaching the Quilmes station. There was no immediate explanation as to why the halted train, also enroute from Mar del Plata to Buenos Aires, had stopped short of the station, which was one of its regular stops. Railroad sources said, however, they feared a signal had malfunctioned. Police were questioning several switchmen and the two train engineers. The Argentine National Railways recently began a modernization of facilities on the General Roca Line, linking the capital with cities in southern Argentina.

News briefs

DENVER (AP) — U.S. District Judge John Kane says "Christ himself got a fairer trial" than a Marine who was given a dishonorable discharge for desertion in 1948. Last year, Alfred J. Kaiser of Fort Morgan, Colo., petitioned that the dishonorable discharge be thrown out. The request was granted Friday. Kaiser died over the summer at age 60. A lawyer for the Marine said Kaiser's commanding officer at Camp Pendleton in California was a member of the court-martial board who left the board table to testify that Kaiser had been missing from the base for several months. The officer returned to the board to take part in determining the verdict, and Kaiser was defended by a dentist with no legal training, the attorney said.

Names in News

PEKING (AP) — Architect I.M. Pei had one of his staunchest fans on hand for the opening of the new 293-suite Fragrant Hills Hotel — Jackie Kennedy Onassis. Pei, a Chinese-American, was the architect of the Kennedy Center in Washington and designed the new hotel for foreign tourists. It is a 50-minute drive from the heart of Peking. Mrs. Onassis is traveling on a private tour as Pei's guest. She has shunned reporters and photographers, and foreign reporters were barred from the opening.
NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Tyler-Moore's horseback trot in New York City landed her in Mount Sinai Hospital over the weekend, but doctors say the actress will soon be back in the saddle.

The 44-year-old actress took a spill during the ride, but was not seriously hurt, a hospital administrator said Sunday. She was treated for about an hour and was released Saturday after tests showed no significant injury, said hospital administrator Peter Byrne. The hospital is on Fifth Avenue across from Central Park, which has horse paths. The accident site, however, was not disclosed.
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A poster showing "Magnum, P.I." star Tom Selleck taking off his shirt with his pants unzipped and no underwear has drawn an $8 million lawsuit from the actor. Superior Court Judge Leon Thompson issued a restraining order against distribution of the poster Friday after Selleck's lawyers went to court claiming it was unauthorized and violated privacy rights. Selleck "has never posed for that type of picture. He has never appeared nude, so that is why he finds it so outrageous that they would depict him in such an outrageous pose," said his attorney, Martin Singer, who said the poster is an artist's rendering.

BOSTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan and Edward Kennedy, who seldom agree on much, will join forces Tuesday to congratulate the Atlantic Monthly on its 125th birthday. President Reagan is sending a taped message to the magazine's celebration while the Democratic senator from Massachusetts highlights a guest list that includes novelist Saul Bellow and journalist Seymour Hersh. The magazine was born in 1857 with an imposing list of founders and writers: Oliver Wendell Holmes, Henry David Thoreau, Ralph Waldo Emerson and James Russell Lowell.

LONDON (AP) — British legislators are arguing over Princess Anne's decision to stop in South Africa on a tour for a children's charity. The princess, president of the Save the Children Fund, is also visiting Zimbabwe, Malawi, Kenya, Djibouti, Somalia, North Yemen and Swaziland on her tour. The fund, founded in 1919, helps children in underdeveloped nations.

Rash of contaminations follow Tylenol deaths

By The Associated Press
Tainted eye drops, mouthwash and nasal spray were reported found in scattered cities over the weekend and authorities attributed the tampering to copycats set off by the deaths of seven people who took poisoned Extra-Strength Tylenol.
Lavoris mouthwash was pulled from the shelves of a store in Clearwater, Fla., and bottles of Neo-Synephrine nasal spray were removed and later restored to a drug store shelf in Las Vegas, Nev., in separate incidents.

Four women in Palm Beach County, Fla., complained that their eyes burned after using Visine A.C. eyedrops. Two of the bottles used by the women came from the same lot as two bottles found to contain hydrochloric acid in a similar incident Mesa, Colo., authorities said.
Also, a 19-year-old Kentucky man was arrested Sunday and charged with extortion after FBI agents investigated a letter that warned a grocery store of neurotoxic poison in certain foods. The letter demanded $5,000 to identify which foods had been poisoned.

Lawrence Maynard of Louisville was arrested at a telephone booth where the extortionist had demanded the money be left, said James Yelvington, special agent in charge of the FBI in Kentucky.
In Iowa, a rural couple was charged with extortion after grocers received threats that food items would be injected with pesticide unless $800,000 was paid.
James Raymond Whitford, 35, an unemployed creamery worker, remained in the Linn County jail Sunday night in lieu of $50,000 bond. His wife, Donna Mae, 36, was released on her own recognizance.
Police said the Whitfords were arrested Friday near the site where bogus cashier's checks were left according to the extortionist's instructions.

Crash site

The wreckage of an airplane carrying skydivers lies on the ground after crashing in a "drop area" near Taft, Calif., Sunday. All 14 people aboard the plane died in the crash, according to officials. (AP Laserphoto)

Overloading is investigated in deaths of skydivers in air crash

TAFT, Calif. (AP) — An airplane that stalled and crashed in flames on a parachute drop zone, killing the pilot and all 13 skydivers aboard, was carrying twice as many passengers as it was supposed to, a federal investigator says.
"That is not a 14-passenger airplane, even with modifications," said Don Lorente, an investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board who is probing the Sunday crash.
"Under normal seating capacity there would be six passengers and a crew of two, of which only a crew of one is required."
The crash of the twin-engine C-45H — a Korean War-vintage plane designed for military use — occurred at a privately operated former military airstrip eight miles southeast of Taft and 130 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

The strip is used by the Taft School of Sport Parachuting, which has operated there for more than 20 years.
"It got 150 feet in the air and stalled out," said Art Armstrong, owner of the club. "It veered off, landed on its left wing tip, and burst into flames like a bomb."
Lorente said what appeared to be a pill jar was found on the pilot, and investigators were trying to determine what kind of pills were inside. He also said there was no evidence of required passenger straps in the charred wreckage of the plane.
Airplane passengers are not required to have seats, Lorente said, but passenger restraints or belts are "required for all takeoffs and landings."

The plane is designed to carry a payload of 2,000 pounds, Lorente said. The people aboard each weighed an average of 170 pounds, and each had a 25-pound parachute, for payload of at least 2,730 pounds, he said.
"The issue is why the pilot, with 22 years experience, would take off with 13 passengers," Lorente said. "The overweighted aspect is a source of primary concern."
Armstrong identified the victims only as the plane's pilot-owner, an observer, a skydiving student, a skydiving instructor, and 10 experienced sport parachutists.
Coroners worked through the night to match names to the charred bodies.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Danger Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others. Here are nine critical symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations which are usually the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these usually spells back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness of pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals indicate that your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these danger signals...call for in-depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Attorney to file motions

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Defense attorney Craig Washington said he planned to file a number of motions before today's start of the second capital murder trial for a prison inmate accused of killing a woman.
Eroy BroN, 34, of Waco, is accused of drowning Ellis prison unit Warden Wallace Pack in a drainage ditch and fatally shooting another prison official April 4, 1981. Brown is being tried now only for Pack's murder.
Washington, whose service in the state Legislature forced one postponement of Brown's second trial, declined to say how many pretrial motions he would file or what they would involve.

Over 60 at the supermarket

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Older shoppers represent a lucrative market for the food industry, but a new study shows they often are dissatisfied with the services and products they find at the grocery store.
The study was conducted by Miklos Research Associates Inc. of New York for the Food Marketing Institute, a trade group whose 1,100 member companies account for half of all grocery sales in the United States. It consisted of in-depth discussion sessions with eight panels — two each in Chicago, San Diego, Edison, N.J. and Tampa, Fla. — made up of a demographic mix of consumers aged 60 to 80.
Those consumers have special nutritional needs, according to a report by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. And, partly because many of them live on fixed incomes, they spend a higher proportion of their money on food than younger Americans — about 22 percent compared to 17 percent for other households.
The industry study concluded that "in general, the older men and women interviewed seem to possess a positive attitude toward supermarket shopping." But it also reported that the panelists "aired complaints about many supermarket practices and conditions — ranging from long checkout lines, confusing shelf tags and unwieldy shopping carts to high food prices. Many... have the impression that the food industry is insensitive to the special needs and problems of the elderly."

The people interviewed generally recognized and accepted the fact that age has brought changes in their appearance and in the tasks they can manage, making it difficult, for example, for them to read the fine print on labels or price tags. At the same time, however, they tended to resent being categorized as "old." And they rejected proposals like special shopping hours for the elderly that would remind them of their age.
The panelists said that because of their incomes they have become more cautious shoppers and are using more coupons. Many said they frequently shopped at the supermarket advertising the most specials.
While they showed signs of watching their budgets, they also took pride in managing by themselves. Many said they were reluctant to use food stamps. "It appears they would rather go without an adequate amount of food than admit they are among the 'needy' and accept a 'hand-out' of food stamps from the government," the researchers said. (The USDA says about 10 percent of all participants in the food stamp program are 60 or older; about 16 percent of the population as a whole is over 60.)
Many of the shoppers' complaints referred to what they considered to be inadequate labels and nutritional information. Concern about their health has led many of them to restrict the sugar, salt, fats and oils in their diet, but they complained that finding food to meet their standards was hard.
The panelists also said shelf tags which display the unit price for items are hard to find, may fail to match the stickers on the products and are placed well above or below eye level, making it difficult for wearers of bifocals.

First woman to sing in Opry dies

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Alcyone Bate Beasley, the first woman to sing at the Grand Ole Opry, has died of a stroke at the age of 70.
Mrs. Beasley, who died Saturday at Nashville Memorial Hospital, was the daughter of Dr. Humphrey Bate, leader of "Dr. Humphrey Bate and the Possum Hunters" country music group, the first string group to perform on WSMR radio on Oct. 25, 1925, three weeks after the station went on the air. Bate died in 1936.

She stayed with the Grand Ole Opry after her father died, and joined the Dixie Dons, known for singing "old favorites" songs.
