By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
Associated Press War Editor
Berlin announced today a 20-mile penetration of the Caucasus, south of Rostov on the Don, on the main rail route into Russia's greatest oil fields, but farther up the Don, in the Tsimlyansk area where the invaders had forced at least two crossings, the Germans had been halted, Moscow said. South of Rostov, said the German high command, German troops stormed into Bataisk after a day of fighting in which a terrific aerial assault broke a path for them. The Germans, without details, said that farther east along the Don mechanized detachments continued their southward drive. It was there the Russians said they had been checked in the Tsimlyansk area. To the northeast German and Rumanian infantry divisions, the German communice said, were threatening Stalingrad on a broad front, having reached a Don bend area about 50 miles from their goal. Stalingrad, industrial capital of lower Volga, lies near an elbow of that river, within 50 miles of the Don bend. "Northwest of Kalatsch," said the Berlin communique, "tank detachments and mechanized troops are in violent battle with Soviet tank and infantry forces which are trying desperately to hold hilly ground west of the (Don) river." The location of "Kalatsch" suggested that the Germans meant Kachalino, just east of the Don, some 30 miles northwest of Stalingrad. "Kalatsch" does not appear on non-German maps. The Germans added that violent air assaults spanned the Don, directed at Volga river and railway communications. A vast area of steppe land, within the big bend of the Don, was overhung by the smoke of battle through which the German planes and the Red air force, using numbers of United States bombers and fighters, plumed their bomb loads. In other sectors of the world conflict, apart from the dominant Russian front, the RAF offensive against Germany had regained momentum, marked by further preparatory participation of United States army airmen in actual combat and a powerful overnight assault on Hamburg, while the battle of Egypt had shifted almost wholly to the air. A heavy force of bombers, probably including some from the U. S. Middle East command, plastered the Axis Libyan supply port of Tobruk again last night, hitting an enemy ship. Long-range RAF fighters attacked barges off Sidi Barrani, Axis-held port in Egypt. German and Italian troops on the El Alamein line were digging in after last week's minor rectification of positions in favor of the British army of the Nile. Ground action consisted largely of skirmishing and the Italians claimed the British lost some prisoners. The battle of Russia had reached its gravest stage thus far in 1942. Berlin claimed that the strongly fortified town of Bataisk had been captured by forces which engulfed Zoster last week and later spanned the Don estuary south and east of Rostov. The main railway and pipeline which paralleled the Caucasus moun-

LeFors Vote Changes District Clerk Race

When final returns from the LeFors voting box were received today, one county race was changed—that of district clerk where Miss Miriam Wilson, formerly of LeFors, received a better than 3-to-1 majority to pass R. E. Gatlin of Pampa who was leading in the race before the final count was received from LeFors. An error reported from the courthouse box cost Sheriff Cal Rose 100 votes to drop him to fourth place in the race, five votes behind Dan Cambern.

In all other races in the county results were the same as published Sunday. The race for constable of LeFors was one that was in doubt until the last. With final returns in, Henry Shoffitt led the ticket with 152 votes. Second was George Hawthorne with 104 votes or six more than C. S. Clendenen. Final results in all races will not be announced until after the returns are canvassed by the county commissioners court, probably next Monday.

Unofficial returns, as collected by The Pampa News, give the following results in contested races in this district, county, and precinct: Eugene Worley was returned to office of United States congressman by a better than 10-to-1 vote over Lynn Miller of Pampa.

Worley's lead mounted today when it was learned that Texas Election Bureau returns from Cottle county were in error. When first returns were received from that county, Miller was given 1,795 votes and Worley none. A correction revealed that Worley had received the 1,795 votes and Miller none.

District Judge W. R. Ewing of Pampa was re-elected by a 750 majority over H. B. Hill of Shamrock while in a write-in campaign, Walter Rogers of Pampa defeated Aaron Sturgeon of Pampa by about 800 votes for district attorney, both of the 31st district.

In the closest race in the county, Miss Miriam Wilson, incumbent, was named district clerk by 58 votes over R. E. Gatlin. Joe Gordon was returned to the office of county attorney by defeating C. E. Cary by 750 votes. In the hottest race in the county, Jess Hatcher, present constable of precinct 2, Pampa, and G. H. Kyle will be in a run-off for sheriff. Hatcher led the ticket by 912 votes. Kyle was next with 730 votes. Sheriff Cal Rose ran fourth, trailing Dan Cambern, who was third.

Arlie Carpenter was re-elected commissioner of precinct 1, LeFors, receiving more votes than his two opponents.

In precinct 2, Pampa, John Haggard, incumbent, will face H. C. Coffey in a run-off for commissioner. The two other county commissioners, Tom Kirby in precinct 3 and C. M. Carpenter in precinct 4, were returned to office over single opponents.

H. M. Guthrie was re-elected justice of the peace of precinct 1, LeFors, while in the only other contested race for justice of the peace. Charlie Hughes was an easy winner over Tom Barnes in precinct 2, place 2, Pampa.

The constable's race at LeFors will see Henry Shoffitt and George Hawthorne in a run-off. In the constable's race in precinct 2, Pampa, Earl Lewis was elected by outstripping his two opponents.

Japs Broadcast Implied Denial Of Prisoners Charges

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—The Tokyo radio broadcast an implied denial today of charges that Japan mistreats prisoners of war or other enemy nationals that fall into her hands. It quoted this passage from an editorial in the Japan Times and Advertiser, the English-language newspaper controlled by the Tokyo foreign office: "In wartime we must be prepared for all kinds of false accusations and malicious vituperations being flung against us by our enemies. This is especially so as our enemy countries are notorious for the invention and dissemination of charges of the vilest nature for the express purpose of discrediting their enemies in the eyes of the world."

Missionary Given Water Cure By Japs

(By The Associated Press)
Accounts of a Japanese face-saving effort that backfired, of a vast web of oriental intrigue with which Japan prepared for her conquests and of bitter suffering of American and other nationals who fell into Japanese hands were given over the week-end by Associated Press correspondents newly freed from Japanese detention.

Their dispatches came from Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, where the exchange of some 1,100 citizens of the United States and other American nations for a similar number of Japanese and Thai nationals has just taken place. The liner Gripsholm, now bearing the Americans—diplomats, newspapermen, missionaries and others—is to sail for New York tomorrow.

The face-saving attempt which flopped was related by Max Hill, chief of the Associated Press bureau in Tokyo when he came here. After first trumpeting to the world that nine of the American bombers which raided Tokyo April 18 were knocked down, the Japanese reduced their claims to one and put the "swastika" on display in Tokyo to prove it. But Japanese who came to gape smelled paint and, sure enough, the red, white, and blue of the U. S. air force which had been freshly daubed on still was wet.

Hill told of long weeks he spent in solitary confinement in freezing weather, bereft of his shoes and with scant food; of the taunt of a sullen guard: "American! This is Japan!"

Reiman Morin, Associated Press chief of bureau in Tokyo from 1937 to 1940 who travelled through south-east Asia on a pre-war assignment, told of the workings of Japanese-Thai intrigue and fifth column activities which laid the groundwork for Japan's quick successes in Malaya and Burma.

While Japan and Thailand were pretending mutual hostility, he said

Five Naval Officers In Australia After Philippines Escape

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, July 27 (AP)—Five U. S. naval officers who escaped from the Philippines in a primitive native outrigger sailing boat just a step ahead of the Japs, are today in Australia after an adventurous two-months' journey.

They sailed for weeks in their small craft with their only navigation aids an alarm clock, a compass, a page torn from a school-book Atlas and a radio that worked part of the time. Eventually they were picked up by a ship and brought here.

The five, deeply tanned, in good spirits and in good health, are: Lieut. Commander Alexander Simmons, Los Angeles, Calif.; Lieut. Carl Faries, Atlanta, Ga.; Lieut. Ellis P. Skoffield, Asheville, N. C.; Lieut. (junior grade) Daniel Dorsey, Baltimore, Md.; and Lieut. (junior grade) William Lipsitt, New Bedford, Mass.

Their story was one of perseverance against heavy odds, of skill, and good luck. They said their most exciting experience was being chased for two hours by a canoe manned by fussy-haired New Guinea natives who had proved friendly.

Simmons said the five left Cebu naval base separately for Batavia and Corregidor and were re-united again on the island by Cebu on a confidential mission. The Japanese came to the island the morning of April 9. The officers got away that afternoon with a small crew of Filipinos.

"Skiffitt had years of experience sailing boats," said Simmons, "so he handled the boat. Dorsey was an engineer in civil life, and he kept the boat from falling apart."

'What A Run-Off' Exults Allred

HOUSTON, July 27 (AP)—James V. Allred, full of confidence that "there will be a run-off—and what a run-off!", today promised that he would make a driving, slashing race against incumbent Senator W. Lee O'Daniel in the expected run-off primary.

In a bare outline of his plans, the former governor and federal judge who resigned his bench position to enter the lists against O'Daniel, said he would carry his fight to every part of the state.

The apparent runner-up in Saturday's runoff election was still tired from his furious six-week campaign, but he was happy and full of fire.

He plans to rest for two or three days "out in the country" before taking up the campaign cudgels again.

Mrs. Allred and Jim Boy, the eldest Allred son, will go to Big Spring for a few days to join the two younger sons, Sam and David, who are visiting their grandmother.

Last night, after it began to appear that Senator O'Daniel would have a hard time getting his vote total past the 50 per cent mark—needed to insure his reelection—Allred seemed more buoyant than he had Saturday.

He grinned when he said that he couldn't make a statement, yet, except that "it still stands that I say there is going to be a run-off."

"I greatly appreciate the loyal work done for me by my friends all over the state," he added.

WAR BULLETINS

BERLIN (from German broadcasts), July 27 (AP)—Japan's prime minister, General Hideki Tojo, told an audience of 20,000 at Osaka today that "Japan is determined to destroy the United States and Great Britain," the trans-oceanic news agency reported in a Tokyo dispatch. Addressing a meeting of the league for support of the throne, Tojo said Japan's occupation of some of the Aleutian islands had greatly strengthened Japan's strategic position.

'Very Strong Force' Raids Hamburg Port

LONDON, July 27—The big port of Hamburg, Germany's second largest city and greatest submarine building center, was hit hard last night by the Royal Air Force in its heaviest assault on the reich since the 1,000-plane bombing of Bremen.

Without disclosing the number of bombers participating in the attack—the sixth on Hamburg this year and the 91st since the war began—a communique announced that 29 of the raiders failed to return.

On the basis of losses of slightly under five per cent, which the British have reported as the cost of similar recent heavy raids, this would suggest a striking force of at least 600 planes.

The communique said a "very strong force" attacked the city of 1,700,000 population whose Blohm and Voss shipyards alone are said to have a capacity to build 25 U-boats at a time, and whose war industries, working day and night, include oil refineries, explosives works and a big seaplane factory.

German raiders, striking at England out of the low clouds of the early morning, bombed 23 areas, including one within 50 miles of London.

Two brief daylight alerts were sounded in the capital, and for the first time in many months work-bound residents of inland communities saw bombers marked with the black cross sweep low to the attack, then dodge back into the clouds with aircraft fire around them and British fighters roaring in pursuit.

The German bombers, for the most part operating singly, machine-gunned streets and houses and dropped bombs on Western England, the south, the Midlands, the east coast, and towns and villages of East Anglia.

Casualties (their number not disclosed) mounted with late reports of persons trapped in the wreckage of their homes or dug out by peering rescue squads.

The Hamburg raid was the fourth attack on Germany in six nights and followed a series of raids on Duisburg.

The German radio, which said the Hamburg attack had caused some

Leo Still Lacks Clear Majority

Only Few Votes Remain To Be Tabulated

(By The Texas Election Bureau)
With more than 98 per cent of the total vote in Saturday's Democratic primary tabulated, Senator W. Lee O'Daniel appears headed for a run-off against James V. Allred.

O'Daniel still retains 48 per cent of the vote, but scattered returns during the afternoon indicate that the final result will vary but slightly from this percentage. J. L. Smith holds a lead over Harold Beck in the lieutenant-governor's race. Jesse James stands close to a majority in the treasurer's contest. J. E. McDonald appears re-elected without a run-off. ## New Guinea Land And Air Action Flares

Bombing Of Jap Tent City Described

(Editors Note: This is a story by Keith Wheeler, Chicago Times, correspondent in the Aleutian islands. Wheeler, the first accredited correspondent to reach Alaska, was attached to the U. S. fleet and arrived there shortly after the Japanese attacked Dutch Harbor June 3. The Times supplied the story to the Associated Press for use by newspapers outside of Chicago, with the stipulation that radio stations receiving the story in Chicago or elsewhere could broadcast not more than 250 words, provided full credit was given The Chicago Times. The story has been released for publication by the navy.)

By KEITH WHEELER
(Copyright, 1942, Chicago Times. First ABOARD FORTRESS BOMBER EN ROUTE FROM KISKA, June 26—Ten minutes ago our bomb bay doors opened and disgorged two tons of dynamite on the Japanese tent city at Kiska island.

Nine minutes and forty-five seconds to the first bomb struck down there under the mist. At two-second intervals the others followed and laced through Kiska's Tundra valley with the insensate fury of TNT.

The yellow painted 500-pound packages have done such work as high explosives and flying steel can do, and by now, one supposes, the living are counting the dead.

We are not waiting for that roll call, for seven minutes we dived through soup so thick, our Japanese playmate in the fighter plane did not care to follow. And that ended the 50-caliber attentions with which he had favored us during the hour and ten minutes we spent over the target.

Two minutes have passed since we broke through the bottom of the mile-deep Aleutian fog and now we are boring along ten feet off the water bound toward our base many hundreds of miles away somewhere in the Aleutians.

This another bombing raid on Kiska comes to us as successful a conclusion as any raid can hope for in this world's worst flying weather.

Back in the fortress' lean body the gunners are stowing their guns and making slurring remarks about the Jap and his fighter plane. The machine gun leader and captain of the plane, has given the word to the second pilot with a word of caution to "keep her on the pin" and out of those grey seas ripping past below. Hitting the water at this speed would be like flying into a stone wall.

The bombardier has covered that delicately deadly tool he's craft, the bombight, and now he's loating

CAPT. RHODA MILLIKEN, chief of Washington's women police, examines a map of the capital in her office.

Capital's Juvenile Delinquency Gives No. 1 Policewoman Biggest Headache

By ELEANOR RAGSDALE
WASHINGTON—Capt. Rhoda Milliken, chief of the women's bureau of the District of Columbia police force, has three big assets to help her cope with the capital's wartime disciplinary problems.

First is her ready sense of humor, deepened by 23 years of service on the Washington force.

Second is her regular staff of 23 experienced police women—she's been vainly campaigning for more since 1932.

Third, her special emergency shock troops are the 110 new volunteer police auxiliaries—sworn in for part-time duty during the past few months after 28-hour training course in the fundamentals of training, arrest, first aid, etc.

Washington's smiling, crinkly-eyed wisp of a cop—she likes being called one—thinks that of all her duties, law-enforcement headaches, the increase in juvenile delinquency is the most serious.

Not that she glosses over the responsibility of seeing that 40,000 government girls, averaging about 20 years of age, tread the straight and narrow path. Or, minimizes the job of ease-keeping the furlough fun of the hundreds of soldiers and sailors that throng Washington's streets and hot spots nearly every night.

"GIRL PROBLEM" IS OVER-EEMPHASIZED
But, she feels those angles are apt to be over-emphasized.

"After all, the government girls are being taken care of much better than during the last war," points out the "chief." "We didn't have department personnel directors or as well-established recreation and welfare committees, housing registries, or rent control in those days."

"And although the situation is much more acute today, I'd say that any normal, well-balanced person coming here makes out as well as she would in any large city."

"Don't forget," she adds out of the depth of her experience, "you'll almost always find the 'problem girls' who turn up here were, to some extent, well-adjusted persons coming here makes out as well as she would in any large city."

Captain Rhoda has an amusing anecdote to tell of the eternal soldier-girl problem. It seems some worried mothers reported their 'teen-age daughters were off every evening doing what they called 'volunteer air raid watching' but which the mothers suspected was simply keeping the soldiers on the search-light batteries company.

Would Captain Milliken please send them home? A special policeman accordingly visited the usual battery location the following evening, but found only a lone sentry who, noted the battery had been moved and its location was a military secret.

"When I called the mothers back to report this," laughs the police director, "they retorted, 'Well, if it certainly isn't a military secret to our girls—they're out again tonight!'" Needless to say, a little army-police cooperation soon put a stop to that kind of war work.

As for commercialized vice, the experienced police captain reports no alarming increase in her native Washington. Nor has there been any noticeable influx of new camp-followers, as far as current police checkups are concerned.

Amusement and recreation, however, are direly needed, especially on week-ends when the streams of sailors and soldiers—some strolling happily with girls on their arms, others in bored or hopeful frowns—turn the downtown parks and glaring, show-lined 9th street into musical-comedy settings.

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, July 27—Behind the screen: Roles played in the national war effort by the movie industry and its people add up to impressive figures. In six months after the Hollywood Victory committee was organized, 723 players made 3,198 personal appearances and traveled 788,895 miles. Visited soldiers on Caribbean islands and in Alaska, besides most of the camps and training stations in the U. S.

Hollywood actors and actresses made 422 radio broadcasts on morale and bond-selling programs. All without pay, of course. There is no estimate of the millions of bonds and stamps sold through the efforts of 199 of the screen's best-known personalities, but 30 top stars in the current bond drive will reach 35,000,000 people in 120 cities.

One star has made at least 160 appearances for various war causes and about a dozen have made more than 50. Hollywood people are buying more than $120,000 worth of bonds each month. By the end of July approximately 11 per cent of all moviemakers—actors, technicians, laborers—will be in uniform. Without profit studios are producing 20 to 25 special films each month for military use and public information and morale.

HOLLYWOOD HORSE
Having lost Gene Autry to the air corps, Republic is preparing to build up stardom for a horse. The nag is Trigger, Roy Rogers' highly trained Palomino. The bit roles in Clarence Browns' "The White Cliffs" (of Dover) will come from a recording he made of the chatter of sparrows and blackbirds on his ranch. Not a bluebird among 'em.

Ben Hecht's next picture will be one of those episodic yarns. This is about a fancy yacht which becomes a patrol boat in World War I, then a rumrunner, next a gambling ship, and winds up in a heroic role in the current battle of the Atlantic.

Promised and hoped for: An underwater ballet in Columbia's "Cover Girl," with Rita Hayworth, Janet Blair and Jinx Falkenburg leading a troupe of clammermaids.

The cycle of film musicals has gained such impetus that studios are hiring permanent choruses of cuties. Metro believes Alfred Lunt will play Nero in "Quo Vadis." His previous movie was "The Guardsman."

BERTH FOR BAER
Max Baer, who no longer trains in night clubs, is angling for a physical instructor's berth in the army. John Carradine gets $100 a minute for a 15-minute stint in "The Adventures of Mark Twain." Producer Jesse Lasky insisted only Carradine could play Bret Harte.

Romance department: Sentimentalists insist that John Payne and Anne Shirley are reconciling. Hedy Lamarr and John Howard have resumed where they left off before her engagement to George Montgomery. M-G-M is insisting on a name change for Carole Gallagher, and so is Dick Foran, who believes "Foran" would be a good one.

Grease-Collection Drive Puts Housewife In 'Battle'

By NEA Service

The American housewife on the home front doesn't carry a rifle, drive a tank or pilot a bomber—but she has a job that's mighty important to the men in uniform.

It's collecting for Uncle Sam all her unneeded deep fats, pan and broiler drippings, renderings from bacon rinds, and skimmings from soups and boiled meats. They are needed to produce explosives for victory.

It may seem like a far cry between this morning's bacon drippings and a bomb blowing up an airplane factory in Japan or Germany, but here's what happens when you, the housewife, help grease the skids for the Axis:

The grease is drained at home through a strainer, covered with gauze to remove all impurities, into tin cans or other thoroughly-cleaned metal containers and placed in the family refrigerator for preservation until at least a pound has been saved.

Enriched Bread Adds Zest To Vegetables

Golden Squash Crisp (Serves 6)

Three small yellow summer squash, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 tablespoon onion, 1/2 pound hamburger, 2 slices enriched bread, 1 tablespoon catsup, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup buttered crisp enriched bread crumbs.

Halve squash lengthwise; peel and parboil until almost tender. Drain and remove seeds, leaving shells for stuffing. Cook onion in butter for 1 minute; add meat and heat until brown. Combine with enriched bread cut in small cubes, catsup, and seasonings; stuff shells and bake in moderate oven in shallow buttered baking dish. Brush tops with any melted fat and sprinkle thickly with bread crumbs. Bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) until golden brown about 15 minutes. Serve plain or with well-seasoned tomato sauce.

Baked Carrot Shortcake (Serves 6)
Six slices enriched bread, 1 cup grated raw carrot, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1/2 cup diced celery, 2 eggs (slightly beaten), 1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Cut enriched bread into fine cubes and combine with carrot, onion, and celery. Combine beaten eggs, milk, melted butter, and seasonings, and blend with first mixture. Press into shallow buttered baking dish, making mixture about 1 inch thick. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) until brown—about 40 minutes. Cut in squares and serve with a mixture of creamed vegetables like peas, celery, and radishes, or corn, green pepper, and lima beans.

MISSIONARY

Thailand actually was a party to Japan's plans to use transport fleets moving into the Gulf of Siam as early as August and September last year.

Morin said the Japanese intelligence service learned of British military dispositions in Malaya down to the last detail, and had special landing forces practicing on the French Indo-China coast long before the Dec. 7 attack. Then traitors in Malaya led the invaders through the jungle, forcing the British to retire continually to prevent severance of their communications. In Burma, he said, it was the same story.

From Edwin Koons, Presbyterian missionary who was imprisoned in Korea, Morin obtained the story of how the Japanese administered the "water cure" to the clergyman.

"They tried it once and I fainted," Koons, who has a chronic heart condition, told Morin.

"A few days later, beating my back and soles of my feet with rubber hose, they said I needed more water, but at the last minute they decided otherwise.

"Well, sir, just to show them I wasn't scared I said I really was thirsty after so much talking and asked for a small drink!"

A picture of the plight of some 2,000 Americans left in Japanese-occupied China was presented by J. D. White, former Associated Press correspondent at Peiping who was in Shanghai when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor.

In Shanghai, where there are 1,500 Americans, White said that most of them were well and provided with funds when their personal resources became exhausted but that it was feared conditions would soon deteriorate.

He said the American Association took over civil affairs and began functioning under the chairmanship of Paul Anderson, whose home is Los Angeles.

Aside from the Americans at Shanghai, White said there were 250 at Peiping and 275 at Tientsin, where their own associations maintained conditions similar to those in Shanghai.

In all, he said 32 American civilians were detained by the Japanese and were later released.

White said that most serious case was that of J. B. Powell, editor of The China Weekly Review, who was held from Dec. 20 until shortly before the Americans were put aboard the exchange ship.

Powell, normally a 160-pounder was reported to weigh around 75 pounds, and had lost all but the heels of his feet as a result of beriberi and gangrene which developed during cold, solitary confinement, inadequate food and lack of medical care until recently.

An American doctor was called when the Japanese realized Powell's life was in danger. White said. At Peiping he said the Japanese arrested and still hold John Leighton Stuart, 66, president of Yenching university, and Dr. Henry Houghton, Trevor Bowen and Dr. Isadore Snapper of Peiping Union Medical college. The Japanese declared the two institutions, both American, abolished.

damage to residences and some civilian casualties, reported 18 British planes were shot down.

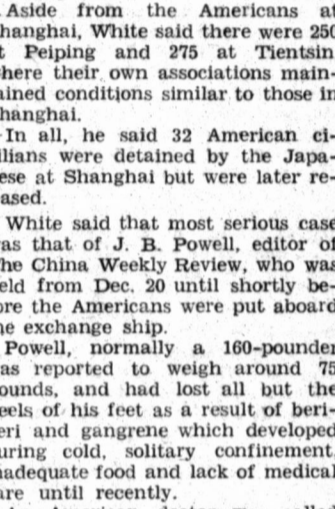

Later the Germans raised this figure to 33.

In addition to raiding Hamburg, British planes bombed airdromes in the low countries and attacked Nazi shipping off the Frisian islands, the air ministry reported.

Last night's raid carried to a climax a week end of intense aerial activity, which was marked by the first appearance of United States army fighter pilots in action over the European continent.

A special communique issued by Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of the U. S. army air forces in the European theater, disclosed that seven American fliers accompanied RAF fighter squadrons in a series of daylight sweeps over Northern France yesterday, during which nine of Germany's vaunted new Focke-Wulf 109 fighters were shot out of the skies.

The Allies lost three planes, including one of those piloted by the Americans. The Americans were not credited officially with shooting down any of the Nazis.

Spaatz's communique was the second on U. S. air force operations in Europe. The first disclosed that U. S. army bomber pilots had made their debut in action in this theater by participating in raids on German-occupied territory July 4.

While the Allied fighters were busy over occupied territory, single British bombers made daylight attacks on industries in the Ruhr yesterday and reported that great fires which RAF raiders had started in Duisburg the night before still were raging.

Increasing participation by United States army fighter pilots in RAF sweeps over the continent was forecast today following the disclosure that seven Americans had joined in the attacks on Northern France yesterday.

Eventually the Americans are expected to form their own fighter command after a sufficient number of pilots here has gained actual combat experience.

The bulk of the U. S. fighter command probably will be equipped with the latest American-built planes, but it also is planned to equip a number of American formations with Spitfires.

Only one of the seven Americans failed to return. When last seen he was diving on a German plane with all guns blazing, his fellow pilots reported.

Two of the Americans flying "on the deck" (lowest level) with a British and Canadian pilot were engaged by 28 of the Focke-Wulf 109's. They fought against overwhelming odds until a formation of Canadian, American and Polish pilots in Spitfires dived into the fray from above and drove the Germans off with casualties.

BOMBING

In his little chair splitting his attention between a chocolate bar and a canteen of water.

The radio operator is asking about the weather ahead—as if he didn't know. Beside me in the glass nose section the blond young navigator has put aside his machinegun and is busy with his charts, plotting us home along as blind and deadly a course as any plane has flown.

I am hunkered up beside him between the drift indicator and the two-by-four chart table, scribbling this sub-sectional box score and having time now to speculate on the odd ways of a war that brought both us and the Japs here to dispute a black and useless rock that nobody but the seals want.

This odd attack of many attacks began to take form an hour and forty-five minutes ago when the major shoveled on the coal and heaved the big bomber up out of what had until then passed for visibility. We roared into the soup in a steady grinding climb and for seven endless minutes we bored through a thick gray nothing with no top and no bottom. Then we broke through into another world of unearthly beauty.

Below on either side and behind lay the billowy top of the fog, so blinding white in the sun that it burned your eyes.

Somewhere under that weird panorama lay Kiska and on Kiska were the men we have come miles to kill.

We still climbed, going up where the air was thin and cold. It struck you that this was as good a setting as any for sudden death.

Still hot in your mind was the radioed report of a Catalina flying boat that had been here two hours ahead of us. Somewhere back in the mist the Catalina was limping home now with half its controls shot away, carrying two wounded men and a dead one. The Catalina had met a Jap fighter over Kiska.

You remembered, too, the bomber that came over like this ten days ago. A scrap of ackack got him in the bomb load and he went down like a meteor.

"There's your mountains," the wispy bombardier said, pointing ahead. You had time to note his peaceful calm and you wondered how this could become old stuff to any man.

There was Kiska, tucked under a hundred-acre blob of cotton wool cloud that filled the volcano crater and draped itself festively along the snow streaked black flanks of the mountain. The plane eased toward it, still climbing.

The next hour and ten minutes were busy but somehow your hands, having nothing else to do, took notes on this odd transactions in death.

Construction Of Synthetic Rubber Plant Not Halted

Officials of the Phillips company, in a statement through Frank Phillips, chairman of the board, have declared that construction of their synthetic rubber plant at Phillips has not been cancelled. It was announced from congress last week that the project had been stopped and that the manufacture of synthetic rubber from alcohol would be recommended.

The following statement was released today by Frank Phillips, chairman of Phillips Petroleum company:

The affairs of this company and its connection with the synthetic rubber program have been widely publicized during the last few weeks in the public press and in the Congressional Record. Unfortunately, many erroneous statements have been made, consequently, in fairness to the company I feel compelled to issue a statement solely for the purpose of correcting these statements.

The erroneous statement has been made that the war production board has cancelled a contract with Phillips Petroleum company to design, construct and operate a plant for the manufacture of synthetic rubber. The war production board has issued the highest preference rating for the procurement of necessary material. The contract has not been cancelled by Defense Plant corporation nor has the priority rating been cancelled by the War Production board.

The Rubber Reserve company has asked that we withhold further purchases and give consideration to every possible means of reducing the amount of critical metals required for our project. It also asked that we investigate the Hourdy process. These requests have been complied with.

Many conflicting statements have been made quoting the amount of new critical material required to construct our plant. According to the Congressional Record of July 21, 1942, our material requirements were quoted as being 113,000 tons. An accurate material list could not be filed until design of the plant had been completed and it was not filed with Defense Plant corporation until July 12, 1942.

The latest estimated requirement of new metals necessary to construct the synthetic rubber plant alone is 11,150 tons. Utilities and service facilities to supply the plant require 2,306 tons or a total of 13,456 tons of new critical metals. This material requirement compares favorably with other butadiene projects.

The statement has been made that no petroleum company has perfected a process for the manufacture of synthetic rubber from petroleum. Phillips Petroleum company has been manufacturing butadiene for two years. Its process patents are 100 percent owned and have long since passed the experimental stage. During the past two years, Phillips Petroleum company has been actually making synthetic rubber through the operation of the Hycac Chemical company which is jointly owned by Phillips Petroleum company and the B. F. Goodrich company. These plants are privately owned, they do not belong to the government. The capacity of this rubber plant is in excess of 6,000 tons per year. Automobile tires made from this plant's production of synthetic rubber are now on the highways.

A large portion of the affiliate company's production of synthetic rubber is now being used in the manufacture of leak-proof gasoline tanks for military aircraft.

Shortly after the Japanese raid on Pearl Harbor, Defense Plant corporation and Rubber Reserve company asked officials of Phillips Petroleum company to come to Washington to discuss a synthetic rubber program. Even before a contract was signed the Phillips Petroleum company, as directed, immediately started the design and construction of a butadiene plant.

Six months work has already been done. More than 150,000 man hours of engineers, chemists, and other trained technicians have been devoted to this work. Phillips Petroleum company is receiving no fees whatever for the construction of this plant. The government is paying only the actual cost of the design and construction without fees or commissions being paid to Phillips. Approximately $12,000,000 worth of material has already been ordered. The plant is scheduled for completion April 1, 1943, simultaneously with the completion of a styrene plant and the synthetic rubber plant at the same location, comprising a complete productive synthetic rubber unit. Within less than 8 1/2 months from today these plants if completed on present schedules will be producing 50,000 long tons of synthetic rubber per year. This annual production of rubber is enough to make eleven million automobile tires to relieve the nation's critical shortage of rubber.

'Unlucky' Money Spent For $18.75 War Bond

BREVARD, N. C., July 27 (AP)—Miss Helen Owen of Brevard purchased an $18.75 war bond with nine "unlucky" two dollar bills and 75 cents. She had been saving two dollar bills for the last six years. All had one or more corners torn off by superstitious holders.

Higgins Gets Hel Up When Contract Cools

By PETER EDSON

Andrew Jackson Higgins, the big, red-faced, gray-haired, tough, rough-and-ready Nebraskan who became a millionaire and was all set to revolutionize the building of Liberty ships, is going through a week of the worst punishment anyone ever got in this hot, backslapping and back-stabbing town.

"The little older," he says, "a little wiser, a lot more disgusted than I was when I came up here on March 11. I'm certainly no dumber."

When he came to Washington on March 11, it was at government request. He had made a reputation as a miracle shipbuilder, making navy patrol torpedo boats, landing boats, tank lighters, and such specialty craft. The government, through the maritime commission, wanted Andrew Jackson Higgins of New Orleans to make Liberty ships—200 of them. He took the contract on March 18 and proposed to build them his own way on a moving assembly line principle.

They sank perhaps $20 million of government money into making a start on building the yard. And then on July 18, four months after the contract was let, it was cancelled by the government.

The official explanation is that there isn't enough steel plate to make ships in the yards already producing, so why build more yards. But if that is the case, it is almost axiomatic that the contract should never have been let. Somewhere along the long halls of government, somebody pulled the most colossal, $20 million blunder of this whole cockeyed war.

JUST ANOTHER BLUNDER

Who the culprits are may be revealed through the sifting of the congressional house and Truman committee hearings, but that's doubtful. Like the underestimates on aluminum, planes and rubber, the Higgins case probably will go down in the history of the war production effort as just another one of the blunders.

You can't judge this Higgins case by any normal standards. Andrew Jackson Higgins himself isn't any normal individual. He's real, 200 pounds and more of blood and muscle, yet unreal—something out of a story book. He is hard and profane, and in the same breath kind, gentle, emotional. He has called every admiral in the navy every name in a chief petty officer's vocabulary and it is said he must have a marine for a secretary. Nobody else could take such dictation.

Yet when he talks about this shipyard that isn't going to be built, he goes completely Fourth of July and tear jerker.

"When I started this, men phoned me from all over. Men like Clyde Clyde. Men who had been fired for making suggestions. These men came to America and found in the old, conservatively run shipyards methods just as much as they had been on the Clyde. But we listened to 'em and took their suggestions. And when the order cancelling this contract was read to these men, they tried to cheer, but they were cheering through their teeth. It made me mad. It made me damn good and mad."

"What are we fighting for, democracy or bureaucracy?"

"I wouldn't say it was an attack on me. It's an attack on America. An accidental attack, not a willful one."

"FOR THEIR BOYS"

"This was to be one gigantic project run on the lines of Roosevelt. No discrimination against the Negro. It was to have the largest industrial training school in the country. Twelve hundred and fifty whites and 1,250 negroes. We'll keep that going on our own expense."

"I got this land for the maritime commission for $100 an acre—1,200 acres of plant. Neighboring land went for $1,400 an acre, and all that will be lost."

"When I told them it would take 170,000 piles, they said it was impossible. We sent men out into the woods. I had been a timberman. We went to these Cajons. They had big trees, but they wouldn't sell them. But they had boys in the army. And when we told them that the trees were to go into yards to build ships to haul their boys supplies, they sold. They didn't ask 'How much?' but 'How little?' What was the lowest price others had taken. And they sold for that."

"There's just one thing I want to tell you, and I don't think the maritime commission will object to it. If this type of thing is going to come up all the time, we're going to have a hell of a time winning this war. I won't say we're going to lose it. But we'll have a hell of a time winning it."

Racial Issue In Arkansas Election

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 27 (AP)—The racial issue was injected today into Arkansas' fifth (central) district congressional campaign while the Arkansas Negro Democratic association completed preparations to seek participation in tomorrow's statewide preferential primary despite party rules restricting the election to white voters.

Lieut. Gov. Bob Bailey in huge advertisements, challenged Brooks Hays, former farm security administration official, for participation in the 1938 Birmingham, Ala., meeting of the Southern Conference on Human Welfare at which an "Anti-Jim Crow" resolution was adopted.

Bailey and Hays are seeking the fifth district seat being vacated by Congressman Dave Terry of Little Rock, a candidate for U. S. senator.

Hays, a vice chairman of the conference, denied in rebuttal being in Birmingham on the day the resolution was adopted and criticized Bailey for injecting a racial issue.

A mass meeting at a Negro dance hall in the heart of Little Rock's Negro business district late Sunday heard Dr. J. M. Robinson, president of the A. S. D., assert that members of his race would attempt to vote only for federal candidates in tomorrow's primary.

"I do not think there will be any trouble," he commented.

Moody Would Have Run Even If He Had Foreseen Result

KERVILLE, July 27 (AP)—Former Governor Dan Moody acknowledged his defeat in the U. S. senatorial race yesterday and declared "I have no feeling of bitterness or humiliation over the results."

In a statement he said: "I am deeply grateful for the loyal support of those many friends, old and new, who supported me with such enthusiasm throughout the campaign and I shall never cease to be grateful to them."

"I have no feeling of bitterness or humiliation over the results or resentment over anything that happened during the campaign. I feel that the campaign which I made should be made, and I believe that even had I known beforehand that it would result just as it has resulted, I would, nevertheless, have made it."

"Except for the disappointment that will be felt by my friends, I have no regret over having made this race. I wish to express to the newspapers, all of whom were liberal in giving publicity to my speeches and many of whom gave me editorial support, my sincere appreciation."

U. S. Seaman Couldn't Eat German Food

JAMES CAROTHERS, above, joined the navy Feb. 5, 1942. He lived in Pampa 11 years and attended the schools here. He is now stationed at San Diego. He is attending a metal-smith school. He recently received his rating as a second class seaman. His grandmother, Mrs. Mary Ecogghans, and aunt, Mrs. Travis White, lived in Pampa.

AN EAST COAST PORT, July 27 (AP)—Archie Gibbs, 36, Roscoe, Tex., rescued from the sea by a German U-boat after two ships had been sunk under his escape when the sub was attacked on the surface while fresh torpedoes were being put in the firing apartment.
The raider, its anti-aircraft gun firing rapidly, zig-zagged frantically until the hatch could be closed for a crash-dive. Gibbs said he heard two bombs explode nearby, but the submarine was not damaged.
The American seaman, kept below decks during his four days captivity, was unable to tell whether the torpedoes were being taken aboard from a supply ship or were merely being moved from a storage space on the sub.
Gibbs' own ship was torpedoed in the Caribbean June 14. The vessel which picked up that crew was sunk the following day.
As he was swimming about, hoping to find a lifeboat, the U-boat came up and a big Nazi soldier scooped him out of the water.
"He stuck a pistol that looked like a big Bertha under my nose and asked me if I knew what I would get if I didn't answer questions," Gibbs said.
"I told him 'I know my Germans,'" Gibbs said he told the name of the torpedoed ship but did not reveal its destination or other facts.
The Germans gave him his choice of staying on the sub or going overboard. Since there were no lifeboats or rafts in sight, he remained on the raider.
At first he was kept in the torpedoed tube compartment, the tubes all being empty. When the torpedoes were being lowered into the compartment, he was shifted to the control tower.
His captors offered to share their food with him, but he could not eat because he was hungry. Even the Germans found fault with the rations, one man smashing a plate of cheese in disgust and spattering it all over the compartment.
On July 19 the sub stopped a small trading craft with a warning shot from its deck gun. The American was ordered to don his lifebelt and get the pouch containing his little vessel.
Six hours later he reached a large Caribbean island from which he flew to this port.

Five-Million Dollar Incomes Discouraged By Wall Streeter

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The senate finance committee was told today that anybody who was "dumb enough" to have a $5,000,000 taxable income in these times "would not be smart enough to come in out of the rain."
M. L. Seldman, chairman of the taxation committee of the New York Board of Trade, testified that any person who had that amount of income in one year would be taxed $4,374,616 under terms of the pending $6,271,000,000 revenue bill.
If this taxpayer happened to live in California, Seldman said, he would subject to $740,950 state tax, making total levies of $5,115,566.
"Anyone who is dumb enough to have a $5,000,000 taxable income in these times 'would not be smart enough to come in out of the rain,'" Seldman declared, adding that "if the citizen made a mere $1,000,000 taxable income 'he would be permitted to keep $4,000 instead of winding up $115,566 behind the eight-ball.'"

SERIAL STORY BANNERS FLYING

BY MARY RAYMOND

THE STORY: Christie Colton becomes engaged to Bart Sanderson at a dance. Just as Bart tells her the wedding must wait until she joins the Air Force, Sandra Rydell, a new girl in town, makes her appearance. Bart has met Sandra on a train, told her of his intention of sailing before he broke the news to Christie. Christie's jealousy is heightened when she criticizes Sandra for dancing a patriotic tune with her brother, and Bart defends the girl.

JAN FALLS IN LOVE CHAPTER III

CHRISTIE had hoped she could win Bart over about the flying. But though Bart had listened patiently to her arguments, there had never been a moment when he was near to yielding.

"I know you're good, Christie. I saw you make that three-point landing in a stiffish wind. But maybe your luck wouldn't hold out. You might not know what to do in an emergency. I'd be no good at all, Christie, if I were worrying about you. I've got to have that promise, darling."

She couldn't be angry with Bart. Besides, she wasn't doing all the sacrificing. Bart was putting a brilliant future behind him for the time being. He wasn't asking her to give up something that would ever mean anything to the world.

"All right, Bart," Christie said. "I'll stay out of the air. But when you're training, will you remember that I have some anxious moments, too?"

"I'll have a steady hand and head, now," Bart said. "You can count on it." He kissed her long and earnestly. When the door had closed behind Bart, Christie went to her father's study. He was sitting behind his desk, which, in these days of the war emergency, was deep in papers.

"More home work," Christie scolded. "I won't have it! So this is why you skipped the dance?"

"Your mother still refuses to believe the headlines," Christie said. "I'm going to have a sunny kitchen with little blue pots filled with yellow flowers on the window sill. . . and a perfectly immaculate ice box and blue Hiloolum printed in neat little squares."

She stooped over and kissed him. "You don't mind if I marry Bart some day, do you? I would, anyway, so you might as well be nice and agreeable about it."

"I think it's a great idea. Only I'm a little confused by all the housewifely details. I thought you'd be asking for a blue plane as a wedding gift."

"You can scratch that blue plane off your shopping list. I promised Bart to give up flying."

"So the first thing Bart does is to pin your wings back?" Her father was frowning slightly. "It wasn't such a brilliant idea," Christie said lightly. "I think I'll run up and see Mother."

MRS. COLTON was sitting before her dressing table, her eyes looking through a mask of cold cream.

"Sometimes, I almost wish you had a face like a horse, then you wouldn't spend so much time on it," Christie said from the doorway. "It's just that I came to tell you I'm going to make you a mother-in-law, and I wanted to see how you would take it."

"Well, I naturally thought you would," Mrs. Colton was carefully removing the cream. "I couldn't possibly give my consent until Bart has established himself."

"I could compete with a good, first-class row," Christie said, turning to go. "But cold logic and cold cream are too much for me." She opened her slim hand, blew a kiss across her palm. "Night. I really like you beautiful."

"He is pretty confident," Jan agreed. "From now on, I'll be bothered about having enough stags. I'd like scads—but Mother says the draft has simply ruined everybody's dance list."

Stephan. Well, Jan did move fast when she got going. Christie was thoughtful as she peeled off her dress. This was more interesting than her sister had ever shown.

She tried to visualize the type of young man that Janet would pick for a party. A chemist, she had said. "He'd sound more exciting if he were a combat pilot," Christie thought sleepily, thinking of Bart and planes.

It was simply amazing—Jan falling in love with some young man who spent his time bending over test tubes. He had sounded terribly conceited and arrogant, and he might have long hair and wear thick glasses, too.

Committee Divided On Sales Tax Issue

WASHINGTON, July 27 (AP)—The senate finance committee approached its first decisions on the new revenue program today with its membership widely divided on the question of a sales tax.

Chairman George (D-Ga.) declared that some new form of taxation must be found if the treasury's over-all goal of $8,700,000,000 in new revenue is to be reached. As approved by the house, the measure now before the senate committee provides a return of only $6,271,000,000.

A survey showed the following line-up on a sales tax: Five members, including Senators Vandenberg (R-Mich.), Taft (R-Ohio), Byrd (D-Va.), Radcliffe (D-Md.) and Herring (D-Iowa) advocated such a levy.

Seven members were willing to vote for it only as a "last resort"—if the treasury insisted on obtaining the full $8,700,000,000 and would agree to imposition of the tax. Included in this group were Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) and Senators George, Connally (D-Tex.), Smathers (D-NJ), Brown (D-Mich.), Guffey (D-Pa.) and Davis (R-Pa.).

Two members were flatly opposed, with Senator LaFollette (Prog.-Wis.), against it under any circumstances and Senator Clark (D-Mo.) only slightly less emphatic in his stand.

Three members, Senators Johnson (D-Colo.), Gerry (D-RI) and Danaher (R-Conn.), declined to comment themselves.

Four others, Senators Walsh (D-Mass.), Bailey (D-NC), Capper (R-Kan.) and Lodge (R-Mass.), were not reached.

German Sub Sinks 30-Foot Schooner

(By The Associated Press) The thickest craft yet to be sunk by an Axis submarine—a 30-ton Canadian fishing schooner—was disclosed last night as the 399th Allied or neutral war victim in the Western Atlantic as tabulated unofficially by the Associated Press.

The crew of 11 survived the attack and rowed 100 miles to an Eastern Canadian port. A total of 108 seamen was killed and 548 passengers and crewmen rescued in 15 merchant ship sinkings announced last week. Sixty-one other persons were reported missing.

Of the victims reported during the week of July 19-25, nine were U. S. ships, two British, one Panamanian, one Swedish, one Portuguese and one Norwegian.

Eight of these attacks occurred off the U. S. east coast, graveyard of 162 ships since Pearl Harbor; five in the Caribbean made that area's war total 137, while each one of Canada and in the Gulf of Mexico brought those waters' respective war tolls to 40 and 36. No new sinkings were reported in South American waters, leaving that figure at 23.

Father Divine Opens New Heaven

BRIGANTINE, N. J., July 27 (AP)—"Heaven" by the seashore, where meals cost but 15 cents tops and rooms are $2 a week, opened its peppy gates for business today.

It's the palatial, breeze-swept, million-dollar Brigantine hotel, latest gathering place for followers of Father Divine, negro cult leader. They had a celebration yesterday as the squat little man formally dedicated the new "heaven" as the "holy communion banquet hall and chapel."

Lutheran Pastor Will Stand Trial

HARTFORD, Conn., July 27 (AP)—The Rev. Kurt E. Molzahn of the Zion Lutheran church, Philadelphia, charged with espionage, was expected here today to stand trial.

The trial was scheduled to get under way tomorrow in federal court. Mrs. Molzahn closed his church for "summer vacation" yesterday. He was one of five men including Gerhard Wilhelm Kunz, former head of the German-American Bund, indicted by a grand jury. The other four have pleaded guilty.

The indictment resulted from testimony by federal agents who accused him of using his paragon as a "postoffice" for an Axis spy ring. Denying this, Mr. Molzahn was given support by his parishioners, who raised $25,000 bail. Some of them said they would appear as character witnesses for him.

Besides Mr. Molzahn and Kunze others indicted were Anastase Vonslatsky, head of the Russian Fascist party, Dr. Otto Willmet of Chicago and Dr. Wolfgang Ebell of El Paso, Tex.

Canadian Valley Credit Association Recommends Program

C. W. Allen of Canadian, secretary of the Canadian Valley Production Credit Association, spent two days, July 20 and 21, in Lubbock, at a conference attended by directors of six associations which serve 50 Texas cities. Key-note of the sessions was need for case on the part of farmers and ranchmen in taking on debts and the use of economical credit where financing is needed, he said.

The conference recommended a seven-point program for farmers and stockmen to follow under the wartime conditions: 1) Produce what America-at-war needs most and the things you are best qualified to handle successfully. 2) Plan your work so you won't have to use so much hired help—it will be scarce and high. 3) Don't spread too much.

4) You may get hurt if prices should suddenly revert to 1937 levels or worse. 5) Conserve by protecting and repairing machinery, by producing your own living at home, by stopping waste of food, feed and supplies. 6) Pay debts while prices are good—5) Keep the income tax in mind as part of your expenses; you are accruing a liability for 1942 taxes before you pay for 1941. Just figure that you have two year's taxes to pay out of this year's income. 7) Use credit wisely—make it help you pay debts and build a reserve for the future.

The Canadian Valley Production Credit Association supplied more than $1,800,000.00 of operating money to some 300 members during 1941. Mr. Allen said. Loans so far are ahead of last year. Texas farmers and stockmen are repaying, too, for 1942 cash repayments are showing a substantial increase. The Canadian Valley association is making a special effort to save both time and tires for farmers and ranchmen. Mr. Allen said, and to make

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS KNOCK OVER BARBERS IN 7 TO 6 UPSET

Jewelers Rout Jaycee Club 24-8

The Knights of Pythias Softball team became giant-killer yesterday afternoon by defeating the Mack and Paul Barbers, who led the Pampa Softball league until being knocked off by the Jewelers last week. The Knights downed the Barbers 7 to 6. In the other game the league-leading Jewelers swamped the Jaycees 24 to 8.

Tonight's schedule calls for Ideal Food to go to Phillips camp for a game with the Phillips Oilers.

Yesterday the Knights had to stave off a last inning rally to win. The Knights jumped on Doc Zachary for a seven-run lead and then saw it disappear when J. R. Stansell weakened. Stansell hurled one-hit ball for the Knights during the first four innings. Then he weakened and the Barbers went to town. They scored three in the fifth, one in the sixth and one in the seventh and had runners on second and third when the game ended. Claude Heiskell, first man up in the seventh, homered and things looked bad for the lodgemen but they kept the Barbers from tying the score.

Zachary hurled six-hit ball for the Barbers but walked three and his teammates made seven errors behind him to be the deciding factor. Revis was behind the plate. Stansell was nicked for seven hits, six of them in the last three innings. Stansell has won 9 and lost 5 this season. Altman was behind the plate.

While Heiskell homered for the Barbers, "Moon" Mullins, a former Barber star, hit for the circuit for the lodgemen. Lance Stuebgen, the Knights' roving shortstop, had a field day with seven putouts.

The Knights have won their last five games. They held two wins over the Barbers.

Mangell moved from behind the plate to the mound for the Jewelers while Stephenson came in from third to catch. Mangell allowed 11 hits. Glickman and Dilman hurried for the Jaycees with Harrel behind the plate. The pair allowed 25 hits while their teammates made a total of 15 errors behind him.

Racing Returns To Old Saratoga As Juveniles Hit Their Stride

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

SARATOGA SPRINGS, July 27—Newest healthy sign of booming racing is that 23 historic flat stakes and four steeplechase fixtures at Saratoga drew a record number of 2,850 nominations.

There is at least some excuse for racing at Saratoga Springs, where it is situated the nation's oldest course. Its 73-year-old Travers for 3-year-olds was first contested in 1864.

The horse really comes first at the Spa—ahead of the financial angle. Saratoga stockholders make very little on their investment in comparison with those interested in New York and other tracks where as much as 100 per cent is realized.

While its mutual handle is half of that of New York plants, Saratoga rates next to Belmont Park in money given away in purses, its features carrying in added value the sum of $20,500.

It is at Saratoga that about 700 yearlings are sold annually in the evenings. Horses come from all parts of the country for the auctions.

PLAYERS VACATION AT ADIRONDACK RESORTS

It was feared that transportation difficulties would hit Saratoga, but as we have pointed out before, give the people good racing and they will find their own way.

There is the regular daily train from New York to the Adirondack resorts and back. There are many regular bus lines. Judging by the parking lots of other racing joints, the racegoer with a car has not yet felt the pinch of gas and rationing. And Saratoga Springs and nearby is the vacation locale of thousands of players.

The layout is situated less than a mile from the quaint hotels with their rope fire escapes on the main stem of Saratoga Springs.

I hear that everything is going to be all right for the whirring wheels, but it has long since been demonstrated that Saratoga Springs can survive as a big time playground without open gambling.

$50,000 HOPEFUL HEADS TWO-YEAR-OLD NUMBERS

There will be more than enough racing for the first few days, a night trotting meeting across the street from the runners rambles for five weeks, from July 27 to Aug. 29.

Two-year-olds come into their own at Saratoga. The $40,000 Hopeful, which annually virtually decides the juvenile championship, will be run on closing day, along with the Saratoga Cup and Saratoga Steeplechase Handicap. The Hopeful attracted no fewer than 248 nominations.

While the Hopeful is the 2-year-old's main objective, they will also be tested in the $6,000 Flash, the $12,000 United States, the

Sports Roundup

By SID FEDER
(Punch-Hitting for Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

NEW YORK, July 27 (Wide World)—Remember Lou Zamperini? . . . The Californian who used to give Glenn Cunningham quite a rascal for those running medals.

Well, Lou pulled a swastika off Hitler's palace for a gag during the '36 Berlin Olympics. Now he's Bombardier Cadet Zamperini at Midland Army flying school. . . . And promising a repeat performance—for keeps. . . . Joe Louis turned his ankle slightly at Port Ely last Wednesday. . . . But that story about a broken leg is strictly the stuff you slice thin and shove between two pieces of pumpernickel.

The Postman Rings Twice

Dan Mahany, who used to run things down at Calumet farm (Whirlaway) before he put on a soldier's suit, writes from Keesler Field (Miss.) to suggest that every man going into the army oughts to be handed a copy of Jimmy Conzelmann's Dayton U. graduating day speech. . . . "Because there's nothing in the field of morale activities that even comes close to it. . . . And it's a cinch to whip all the boys into a lazier of mental aggressiveness like Rockne used to achieve so masterfully. . . . Well put, Daniel."

Week-End Hangover

Shut out the classic boys, for his old man, Equipoise. The Yankees took three from Detroit; they really did those Tigers dot. The Red Sox couldn't gain a lick. Bet poor old Joseph Cronin's sick. The Bums gave Pittsburgh quite a ride. The Bums just got out with their hide. This didn't help the Cardinals' cause, so maybe they should pass new laws. The Yonkers cap went to Apache; Sunny Jim's coil is hard to catch-ee. Heafner tied the Card's Shanter; Guess he still believes in Santa. Nelson missed a nice four-footer And went out to eat his putter. That's enough—we're gettin' drowsy. As a poem, this rhyme's with frowsy.

Horse Olympics At Belmont Planned

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP)—Although there still are enough wrinkles in the way to cover a bowlful of prunes, plans are under way to bring all the big gallopers together on Columbus Day at Belmont park for a horse olympics that would include just about everything but the hop, skip and jump.

The idea, the Associated Press learned today, was first conceived by a newspaperman and is being pushed along by Herbert Bayard Swope and New York racing associations as an all-out war relief program. Some officials believe it might put $200,000 or more into the bank for army and navy relief and the U. S. O.

Cards In Brooklyn For Make Or Break Series

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals, about the only outfit able to make things interesting for Brooklyn, wheeled into Ebbets field today for a three-round showdown with Durocher's darlings.

Although the world series still is more than two months away, both teams and a few thousand interested onlookers should discover in the next three days whether the Cards will be dealt in or out at the wind-up of the National league campaign.

The last time they visited the banks of the Gowanus, the Cardinals dropped four games out of five, but they went home and developed a counter-punch that flattened the Dodgers three times in a recent four-game set.

If they can remember how they turned the trick, the Cards may be able to prove to the Dodgers that they intend to battle them down to the wire. But if the Brooks breeze through their toughest rivals once more, they might as well start planning for October's inter-league classic.

The pace-setters coasted up to the important series yesterday by stopping the Pittsburgh Pirates twice, 3-2 and 6-3, without dipping into the "Big Four" of their pitching staff, while second-place St. Louis split with the Boston Braves and slipped back another notch, seven lengths behind.

The Cardinals look the second, 5-3, with the help of some nifty relief hurling by Harry Gumbert.

Cincinnati regained third place by whipping the New York Giants, 6-2 and 2-1, and dropping them back into the four-spot.

At Philadelphia, three home runs in one game by Catcher Clyde McCullough couldn't keep the Phils from turning back the Chicago Cubs, 4-3 and 6-1.

In the American league, the New York Yankees downed the Detroit Tigers, 5-2, in the only single game of the day, but added a game and a half to their long lead with the help of the St. Louis Browns, who took a pair from the second-place Boston Red Sox, 9-2, and 4-3, dropping them 13 games behind.

Old Hudson of the Washington Senators blanked the Cleveland Indians, 2-0, in the first game, but the Tribe bounced back in the second, 7-1.

The Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics split, Chicago winning the opener for Ted Lyons, 2-1, and Philadelphia taking the second, 3-2 in 10 innings, with Luman Harris tossing a four-hitter and Dee Mills singling home with the winning tally.

Bible Barred From Crossing Rio Grande

MALLEN, July 27 (AP)—Uncle Sam's refusal to permit communications of any nature to cross the Rio Grande during the war made a woman going into Mexico the other day most unhappy. She wanted to take her Bible along, but many notes were written on the margins of its pages and many passages of scriptures were underlined.

U. S. customs inspectors explained that the markings could have meant anything in some sort of code.

Byron Nelson Blows Up; To Play Heafner

By GAYLE TALBOT

CHICAGO, July 27 (AP)—Byron Nelson, shaken by one of the most amazing collapses in the history of big-time golf, went out bleakly today to battle Clayton Heafner of Linville, N. C., in an 18-hole playoff for $2,500 first money in the Tam O'Shanter open tournament. The starting time was 2 p. m. (C. W. T.).

Nelson, the tall ex-Texan, was a weebegone figure, and a lot of exceptionally smart money had been bet overnight that he would lose to Heafner, the blond giant who won the Mahoning Valley tournament at Gerard, Ohio, a few weeks ago with an astonishing 72-hole total of 264.

It was a crusher—that happened to Nelson yesterday. One of the world's great golfers, he shot a miserable 77 over a course whose true par is about 70, to dissipate a lead that looked impregnable and finish in a tie with Heafner, each with 280 strokes for the four rounds.

Heafner, having posted an ordinary 72 on his final round, and harboring no real hope of anything better than second or third money, became one of possibly 30,000 spectators who watched almost unbelievably as Nelson blew high in the course of a stretch duel with Lawson Little. Golf's oldest heads could not remember such a spectacular blow-up.

Nelson started the day five strokes in front of Heafner; eight ahead of Little. He was considered to be "in." The closing round to be a mere formality. Yet when they began trying to move the record golf crowd out of Tam O'Shanter last night the scoreboard read: Nelson 280, Heafner 280, Little 281. Nobody else was even close. Harry Netelblad of Avon, Conn., held the next place all by himself at 284.

Bunched at 287 were Johnny White, Chicago; Willie Goggin, White Plains, N. Y.; Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y.; and Dutch Harrison, Harrisburg, Pa.

A 69 was posted by Frank Stranahan of Toledo to give him a 288 aggregate to pace the amateurs competing in the open. Five pros had the same total, including Henry
