

ALLIES STOP JAPS ON GROUND IN JAVA BUT NOT IN AIR

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Editor

American, British and Dutch troops were reported taking the offensive in Java today to drive Japan's invasion forces into the sea, and the Dutch high command announced that Japanese assault forces had been checked in all three battle sectors.

While the situation thus somewhat improved, the Dutch acknowledged that the N.E.I. government had been removed from the capital city of Batavia to inland Bandung, and gloom pervaded Dutch quarters in London over the long-range outlook.

"A Reuters (British News Agency) dispatch from Bandung, headquarters of the Dutch command, said the Allies had started a counter-offensive.

Informed London quarters, however, said the defenders still faced a formidable task although they were fighting "extremely well."

Waves of Japanese bombers, escorted by fighters, heavily pounded Bandung for an hour and a half, with only a bare handful of Allied planes available to fight off the attack.

Japanese bombers, escorted by fighters, pounded the Dutch headquarters city of Bandung for an hour and one-half, inflicting a toll of 102 killed and wounded.

Dispatches said that 42 enemy bombers and 18 fighters were counted overhead at one point and that a handful of Allied fighters had soared up to meet the raiders.

So far, it was announced, there was no evidence that the invaders had managed to land any reinforcements.

In the Philippines, a bulletin from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said, Japanese warships were shelling ports on three islands in the Archipelago and landing troops from four transports at Zamboanga, on the southwest tip of Mindanao island, 600 miles south of Manila.

Gen. MacArthur reported a continued lull in ground and air activity on Bataan Peninsula, where American and Filipino troops have been under siege for many weeks, but indicated that the Japanese were attempting to extend their occupation of the southern Philippines.

On the American home front, the navy announced that the U. S. destroyer Jacob Jones was sunk by an enemy submarine before dawn Feb. 28 off Cape May, N. J., and that only 11 men of the destroyer's crew survived.

The normal war-time complement is about 145 officers and men.

Unconfirmed advices to London reported that a huge fleet of Japanese ships was bearing down upon Java, under violent assault by re-lays of United States and Allied bombers.

Possibly referring to this new danger, the Dutch command said United Nations bombers scored direct hits on two Japanese troop transports of 10,000 and 8,000 tons off the Java coast.

Defense forces were further credited with wiping out ten Japanese navy "zero" fighting planes and their crews in a machine-gunning attack against "an enemy-occupied airfield"—presumably on Java.

In London, an official of the Netherlands government—in exile painted a gloomy outlook of the struggle, declaring Java "can not hold out much longer" unless reinforcements arrived.

"We have suffered terrible losses, and the chances of reinforcements are slight," he said, adding that Japanese strategy was aimed at driving straight across middle Java

Nazis Break Policy By Citing Attacks

(By The Associated Press)

Massed Russian attacks "on a scale not hitherto reached in the war" were reported by a German military spokesman today, while Adolf Hitler's field headquarters acknowledged that the Red armies were unleashing powerful new assaults along the entire 1,200-mile front.

Fresh details were lacking on the battle of Staraya Russa, 120 miles south of Leningrad, where survivors of the German 16th army, estimated at more than 90,000 troops were reported caught in a gigantic Russian encirclement.

The Nazi high command cited "strong attacks" on the Crimean and Ukraine (Donets river) fronts and "numerous enemy attacks" in other sectors of the long battle line.

The high command said the attacks were either "frustrated" or repulsed after bitter fighting.

A Berlin military spokesman said the Russians were marshaling prodigious forces all along the front and attacking at times in 40 or 50 waves regardless of casualties.

These statements were relayed to Switzerland and Sweden, in apparent contradiction to the Axis policy of minimizing rough going. A Berlin dispatch of the Zurich newspaper Die Tat stated that Russia obviously was starting "a fantastic effort to bring about a decision."

A dispatch from Moscow said that streams of Russian soldiers marched through the capital on their way to join the front-line campaigners.

This would indicate a basis for German declarations that Nazi aerial scouts had seen great columns of fresh Soviet soldiers moving up; that many 52-ton tanks and long-range guns were assaulting German positions in the Donets basin and the Crimea.

Berlin, however, may be over-emphasizing the situation to cover fresh German activity or to convince London and Washington that Russia does not actually need the opening of the second front which her leaders have sought.

A military authority in Lisbon expressed the belief that the Germans must withdraw back of such

U. S. Destroyer Torpedoed And Sunk; Only 11 Survive

Crew Contained More Than 100

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—The navy announced today that the destroyer Jacob Jones was sunk by an enemy submarine off Cape May, N. J., before dawn on February 28 and that only 11 men of the destroyer's crew survived.

The number of those lost, including the commanding officer, Lieutenant Commander H. D. Black of Oradell, N. J., was not given but was far more than 100 since the normal wartime complement of the old destroyer was around 145 officers and men.

Two torpedoes hit the Jacob Jones. The first one blew up the bow and apparently killed all personnel on the bridge as well as men sleeping in the forward living quarters of the ship. The second torpedo blew up the stern and all the depth charges.

The 11 survivors consisted of nine enlisted men from the engine room and two apprentice seamen.

Of the 11, only one man was outside the amidships section when the stern was blown up. That one was in the after engine room.

In its communique reporting the sinking, the navy said that neither the enemy submarine nor the torpedo was sighted prior to the first hit.

After the first hit blew up the destroyer's bow, the submarine circled ahead of her and fired the torpedo which caused the terrible explosion of the depth charges in the stern.

The Jacob Jones was the ninth naval ship lost so far in the war, including the Reuben James which was torpedoed last fall prior to formal U. S. declaration of war.

Others of the previous eight were three combatant ships, a mine layer, and a target ship lost at Pearl Harbor; the tanker Natchez, torpedoed in unidentified waters; and the coast guard cutter Alexander Hamilton, torpedoed.

Loss of the Alexander Hamilton with moderate casualties was announced Feb. 23. The following day the loss of the destroyer Truxton and the store ship Pollux in a storm off Newfoundland with a total loss of 189 officers and men was reported by the navy.

The Truxton, the Reuben James, and now the Jacob Jones were all of the old World War four-stacker type of destroyer. The Jacob Jones was launched Nov. 11, 1918, a 1,200-ton vessel armed with four-inch guns and capable of a speed of 35 knots. She was equipped also with 12 torpedo tubes.

The vessel was the second of that name to be lost in action with the enemy. The first was the Jacob Jones of World War days which went down with 64 men Dec. 6, 1917, while enroute from Brest to Queenstown, Ireland. Both ships were named for a hero of the War of 1812 and the war with the Barbary pirates.

Lieutenant Commander Black took command of the Jacob Jones April 14, 1941. He was 38 years old. A native of New Jersey, he entered the naval academy from that state in 1922 and was graduated in 1926, subsequently serving with various surface craft of the scouting fleet, battle fleet, and Asiatic fleet.

His first command was a minesweeper, the Lark, which was attached to the minescraft, battle force.

Wavell Replaced By Dutch Commander

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—In Java's most desperate hour the Dutch took over supreme command of the fight for the Indies today after the United Nations acknowledged that Japanese successes had split the Allied front in the south Pacific, creating a grave threat to British India.

The removal of Sir Archibald Wavell as commander-in-chief in the Indies and his return to his former post as commander-in-chief in India was pointed evidence that the Allies expected the enemy drive through Burma to assume formidable proportions.

The shift in commands, disclosed here by the army and navy in a joint statement, was not considered an indication of any sudden worsening of the situation in Java. The belief was that Wavell had transferred his headquarters to Burma before the Japanese opened their all-out assault on Java.

The joint army-navy statement made plain that the move meant no change in plans for "general coordination of strategic policy" but had been taken for tactical considerations.

There was a hint that the Wavell transfer might have political as well as military significance, for well-informed sources in London believed it could foreshadow a British offer of dominion status to India.

Wavell, one of the most respected Allied generals, was regarded as a man who could make the most of the upsurge of national feeling that would result in India and make it a fighting force.

India's defense bulks large in the global strategy of the United Nations, for the great sub-continent is the land route that the Japanese would have to traverse if it tried to join hands with any synchronized Axis drive through the middle east. While the United Nations still were forced to fight holding actions, except in Russia, there was official assurance that preparations for offensive operations of an important character were being pushed with all possible speed.

Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, and General George C. Marshall, U. S. army chief of staff, both declared yesterday that the armed forces

Program Asks Doubling Of Income Taxes

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—A $9,610,000,000 war tax program "to be felt in every American home" was laid before congress and the nation today by Secretary Morgenthau.

"The new taxes will be severe, and their impact will be felt in every American home," the treasury chief told the house ways and means committee. "War is never cheap, but x x x it is a million times cheaper to win than to lose."

The additional taxes which he proposed would, by themselves, be greater than ever collected by the federal government in a single year prior to 1941.

As a down payment on victory, Morgenthau asked doubling of most people's individual income tax, with rates so high for the single man with a $2,000 salary would pay $330 tax and if he made $10,000 would only be allowed to keep about $100,000. Part of the tax probably would be deducted from paychecks.

He also recommended higher taxes on corporations, plugging of so-called

Rabbit Hits Youth In Face, Seriously Injuring An Eye

Maurice Heard will not join the navy today as he had planned because he was shot in the face by a rabbit yesterday.

It sounds rather odd that a rabbit should have a kick like that but it's no laughing matter with Maurice who almost lost an eye in the deal.

He and his father, E. N. Heard were trying to start an engine on an oil pumping unit, and Maurice discovered that the reason it wouldn't start was because the exhaust pipe was stopped up.

While Mr. Heard was inside the engine house, Maurice was outside examining the gas pipe. All at once the engine backfired and blew the rabbit out the exhaust pipe, striking Maurice in the face and almost putting out one eye. The doctor believes that he can save it. Maurice is a patient at a local hospital.

Today's War Analysis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst
War Production Chief Nelson's two-fold call for speeding up of arms manufacture is grimly emphasized today by the continued onslaught of the Japanese against Java where the Allied forces are making a gallant but uphill defense—once more because of lack of equipment.

Production is the price of victory. And we shouldn't overlook that this means intensification of shipbuilding, for production without transportation is of little avail. One of the serious Allied weaknesses is lack of ships for quick movement of troops and supplies.

Hitler's unrestricted U-boat warfare against shipping—sink 'em on sight—along the sea-lanes over which must pass the sinews of war to his enemies is intensifying with the approach of the spring land offensives which are likely to give us a preview of war's end. There's no more vital operation proceeding today, although the conflicts in Java and Burma and Russia are the more spectacular and consequently the more impressive.

Britain's first lord of the admiralty, A. V. Alexander, has named this the battle of the seven seas. That's an apt characterization, for a struggle that originally was confined largely to the Atlantic and the Mediterranean has mushroomed out until it rides the waves of the globe.

Victory in the battle of the seven seas means triumph in the world war as a whole. Land engagements must play their part, but they can't bring total success unless they are accompanied by domination of the shipping routes.

Resources—industrial production—transportation. Those are the keys to success. The German U-boat offensive in the Atlantic is no flash in the pan, and the Nazis are reaping a harvest of grave dimensions. Anglo-American shipping losses have increased considerably of late.

This column many weeks ago said that Hitler appeared to be getting set for a great drive against Allied shipping. First Lord Alexander now states that he may be near the beginning of a fresh period of raiding activity—both German and Japanese. I pointed out yesterday the danger that the Japanese would start raiding the vital Indian ocean shipping lanes if and when Java, last remaining obstacle to a free run of those waters, has been conquered.

The British have announced that German U-boat construction has reached an unprecedented scale and is increasing monthly. The depredations off our coast speak clearly of the striking power of the Nazi sea-pack. London now believes that the Nazis may even make a grand assault on our forces in Iceland, with the idea of crippling our transportation set-up with Britain.

Rubinfoff Requires Special Concert Clothes

Rubinfoff And His Tailors

...ing our transportation set-up with Britain. The Germans may be expected to cut loose the full strength of their submarine fleet, supplemented by aerial assault in European waters, as soon as the good weather arrives. The primary purpose will be to prevent Uncle Sam from transporting troops and equipment to the Allies for the great land offensives in the spring. To this is added the objective of keeping American warships in home waters to guard our shores, while the Japs run wild in the Orient.

The coming clash between Hitler and the Allies is likely to be the big showdown, that is, the battle which will determine how far the Fuehrer can go. Small wonder then that Hitler is bent on cutting our sea-lanes and thus depriving our European allies of the assistance they need to initiate successful offensives against the Germans. Our ship-building program is said to be sufficient to make up current losses—but time is the fateful element. Our battles are being fought, and won or lost, right now in the Allied arsenals and shipbuilding yards.

Common Ground By R. C. HOLLES

I speak the past-word primer, I give the sign of democracy, by God I will accept nothing which all cannot have their counterpart of on the same terms.

WOULD GOD ABOLISH POVERTY? An article in the Christian Advocate by Congressman Jerry Voorhis raises the question whether it is God's will to abolish poverty.

In closing his article, Congressman Voorhis says, (referring to congressmen representing the people), that "their real job is to develop and offer to their nation a program for the establishment of a greater brotherhood than America has ever known, for the abolishment of poverty and unemployment..."

The Congressman evidently would relieve man from reaping what he has sown. He would not permit a man to be in poverty even if he refused to adjust himself so as to be useful to his fellow-man.

He, in reality, is saying that he believes in God, but he thinks he and other Congressmen are a little smarter and know a little more than God does. So they are going to revise and substitute their man-made laws for God's laws.

It is little wonder that we have had a depression for nine long years, when we have men in Congress, like Jerry Voorhis, who sets his will, his norm of rightness up in place of God's norm, that all people should be equal before God; that each man should be owner of himself and all he produces whether it be much or little.

Yet, Jerry Voorhis says, we, the representatives of a bare majority have a right to determine how much each man shall get of the total production. It is little wonder, when men like Jerry Voorhis claim to represent Christianity, that Nietzsche said Christianity and alcohol were two great corruptors of civilization.

OUR ARTIFICIAL MEASURE OF RIGHTNESS One can prove most anything to be desirable, if he takes an erroneous norm as a basis for comparison. The reason this country is in its present predicament is the simple fact that it has taken an erroneous man made norm by which to judge whether a thing is right or wrong.

Behind The News In Washington

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON, March 3—Governor Paul V. McNutt's Office of Civilian Defense Health and Welfare Service, known in Washington by those people who know it at all as ODHWS, will be six months old come March 3 and this great occasion may afford fitting opportunity to see what it has done and what its all about.

There have been some dirty suspicions that ODHWS was in some ways another Office of Civilian Defense, duplicating some of the old OGD bookkeeping. There have also been rumors that in the OGD reorganization, a lot of this bookkeeping would be dumped in the lap of ODHWS and carried on from there.

ODHWS like OGD is supposed to be a morale building organization, or more accurately, to have morale building as one of its principal functions. ODHWS considers itself as purely a co-ordinating organization, a professional organization of the people working with the civilian population. OGD aims its program right at the civilian population.

UP TO STATES The word is theoretically spread through state nutrition councils. It's up to the state councils to pass the word on to the local communities in the state, set up county or city nutrition councils and in this manner get everything wired up on the food stamp plan, school lunches, adult education in nutrition and food selection, and so on.

A Good 'Good Neighbor' Policy

The Axis is getting the economic hot-foot these days the South American way. And for once "Yankee imperialism," to borrow a term from one none-too-pure past, works for the benefit of the United States and our sister republics to the south.

Most of the blacklist of firms friendly to or under the domination of the Axis was published before Pearl Harbor, and we can thank our State Department for such foresight. This rogues' gallery of enemy business firms is now paying dividends, but not to Berlin, Tokyo or Rome.

Loud protests roared from the Straits of Magellan to the Canadian border with publication of the list, naming names and calling out companies upon which the United States asked the other nations to turn a cold business shoulder.

INTRAMURAL BOXING FINALS SET FOR FRIDAY NIGHT

14 Bouts On Card; 70 Boys Sling Leather

(Contributed By High School)

Realizing the need for emphasis of physical development of young men of our nation, the schools of the country over are cooperating in a program to bring about the desired results. The present crisis has revealed, according to Lieutenant Commander Gene Tunney, that the average recruit of today's wars is not in as good physical condition as of the last war. "Too much riding in cars, riding elevators, and smoking cigarettes," said Gene Tunney.

The schools of Pampa are doing their part to correct this condition through a physical activity program available to every student in school.

Outside of regular physical education classes in high school where boys are taught how to take part in sports and given corrective exercise, they have opportunity to take part in intramural sports.

The value of competitive sports for physical and social development can not be overlooked. For here the boys learn the value of endurance, he learns self control, he develops courage, initiative, learns to appreciate the rights of others, he learns to cooperate with team mates and he learns to be persistent on how to compete against others. Generally speaking, the boys who do not take part in interscholastic sports, mainly football and basketball, have denied these important phases of education.

Under the recently organized intramural program this condition no longer prevails. The boys of the school are competing against each other by playing on their home room teams. There are 16 such home rooms or such teams in our high school and the desire to excel in various sports by these teams brings about very similar conditions to those of interscholastic sports.

Further desirable competition spirit is brought about by awarding the team winning the most events throughout the year.

The organization of these intramural sports is on a very democratic basis. Each team having a coach elected by the group, officials in that category throughout the year and is assisted by a captain elected for each sport.

This organization was instigated first by Jack Davis in the Junior High school last year and is in use this year.

The sports so far this year have included six-man football, croquet, basketball, volleyball, ping pong, and boxing. In these sports about 75% of the boys in high school have taken part. By the end of school a higher percentage will be reached.

The most popular of sports so far is boxing. The boxing elimination is now in progress; 70 boys in various weights are participating. The elimination has created school wide interest, seating capacity being crowded by student spectators.

The finals of this boxing will take place Friday night, March 6. The public may watch these boys compete for school championship. There will be 14 bouts on the program. Four of these are in the experienced division and 10 are in the inexperienced division. The division of inexperienced and experienced was made to equalize the opportunity to win. All of these bouts will be as much of a contest as any interscholastic bout staged here in previous years.

Capt. Arthur Wermuth, inset, one-man Army of Bataan Peninsula, as he appeared in Northwestern Military and Naval Academy crew, baseball and football uniforms in 1931-32.

Wermuth Average American-- So Was Sergeant Alvin York

By BURTON BENJAMIN

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, March 3—"Reliable," "consistent," "eager to learn," "one of the gang." It seems strange to find a hero endowed with such homely virtues.

Those are not the traditional traits of heroes. Those are the virtues of little men—the fellow behind the store counter, the neighborhood mailman, the laughing kid swirling a soda, the runner who finishes not first or last but in the middle.

It is the little men who fight a democratic war—average chaps who once made up a face pattern in the subway and who booted at a baseball park.

History proves it doesn't take a fascist fanaticism to make warriors out of just average Americans—fellows like Capt. Arthur W. Wermuth... men like Sgt. Alvin York.

It was the same thing in school.

"Defensively, he was a hard man to get through. Offensively, many gains were made through holes he opened."

When Arthur W. Wermuth, Jr., graduated from Northwestern Military and Naval Academy of Lake Geneva, Wis., in June, 1932, that was the most prophetic commentary the student "Log Book" could have made.

"Throughout the entire season," the book continued, "Art was a reliable and consistent player, eager to learn, and in every way gave the best he had."

Certainly that was restrained eulogizing. Complimentary—yes, but Horatio Algerisms are noticeably absent. Just goodbye to an average graduate.

ONE-MAN ARMY GOES TO TOWN

Almost eight years later, Capt. Arthur Wermuth, fighting against impossible odds in the steaming jungles of Bataan Peninsula, became a national hero for that same offensive and defensive prowess which had gained mention in a prep school year book.

As an officer of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's 57th Philippine Scout Regiment, he personally killed 116 Japanese, captured an innumerable others. He won fame as the "One Man Army of Bataan."

His bravery was incalculable, his daring legendary.

Wounded three times, repeatedly submitting himself to sniper attack, Van Dyke-headed Wermuth led uncountable raids with his 45-caliber Tommy-gun and Garand rifle.

His guerrilla tactics bolstered MacArthur's defense and made counter attacks possible.

The won Wermuth the Distinguished Service Cross and Purple Heart with two clasps.

A HARD WORKING AVERAGE STUDENT

What is the background of this newest soldier-hero? It is as simple and unembellished—as ordinary—as the Northwestern Academy year book indicates.

Wermuth entered Northwestern Academy in September, 1928. He graduated four years later holding the rank of Cadet Sergeant in the Corps.

During his years at the Academy, he was a member of the Commanding Officer's Honor Squad, Engineer Corps, Automobile Corps, varsity football and baseball, company

Dodgers To Win Pennant Again, Says Leo The Lip

By GAYLE TALBOT

HAVANA, March 3. (AP)—Both the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds will be somewhat weaker this coming season than they were last, while the Brooklyn Dodgers will be considerably stronger, in the strictly unbiased opinion of Leo Durocher, who manages the Dodgers.

Therefore, says Leo, his club should win its second straight National league flag without a great deal of difficulty, providing only that the draft or injuries do not take the team completely apart. Leo is so sure of it that in discussing Pitcher Whit Wyatt's salary holdout he says matter-of-factly that Wyatt should take into consideration the big bonus he will receive in the form of a world series cut.

CHICAGO, March 3.—No other game fits young men for military service as well as football with its maneuvers, teamwork, body contact, exacting demands, and strict discipline.

College players are pouring into the armed forces.

They did more than all right prior to the emergency, too. Excellent facts revealed in a survey of 330 letters from Northwestern university are:

1. Football alumni earn more than the average graduate.
2. They have better than usual records of public, civic, and military service.
3. They put the stamp of approval on the sport. Ninety-six per cent would play again, 89 per cent want their sons to play.
4. Football helped the majority to get established.
5. Ten per cent were elected to honor societies, which is a higher average than the student body as a whole. Three per cent are Phi Beta Kappas, which is twice the percentage of the total alumni.
6. Old grads who blocked and tackled are convinced the advantages of football far outweigh its disadvantages. In regard to injuries and harm to health, Dr. Charles G. Sablin of Portland, Ore., a lieutenant-colonel in the army medical reserve corps who was a combatant in 1904-05, says: "I have been professionally interested in ex-college players for many years, and believe most of them were benefited physically and otherwise by football."
7. Former players agree football consumes much time which might be applied to studies, but 98 per cent feel they received more from the combination of football and studies than they would have by devoting their entire time to class-work.
8. It isn't true, as has been charged in some of the slick magazines that everyone who plays is going to wind up a bum.
9. Nor is it true, as college coaches, athletic directors, stadium bondholders, and proselytizers hold, that once a boy starts playing football he is practically tossing his hat into the White House.
10. Football never made a bank president, engineer, business executive, doctor, or a college professor out of a loafer.

Big Ten May Modify Rule On Freshmen

CHICAGO, March 3. (AP)—The Western conference, which in 1906 pioneered in barring freshmen from intercollegiate competition, may take steps this week toward wartime modification of the ban.

No one expects the faculty committee, the Big Ten's governing body, to drop all the bars on first-year participation, but these compromises have been suggested:

1. Relaxation of the ban on intercollegiate contests between freshman teams. This proposal has the approval of K. L. "Fue" Wilson and H. O. "Fritz" Crisler, athletic directors at Northwestern and Michigan.
2. Modification in the rule requiring successful completion of one academic year before freshmen are eligible for intercollegiate competition.
3. Personally, I don't think we should allow freshmen to compete in intercollegiate athletics with the varsity." Wilson, who is also chairman of the conference athletic directors, says: "But I do think the conference ought to permit freshman teams to schedule one or two outside games in each sport. We are the only league I know of that doesn't do that now."
4. Except in 1918, when the army took over Big Ten schools in the students army training corps program, the freshman rule never has been relaxed by Big Ten schools. To meet the current war emergency, the Missouri Valley conference and the eastern "Big Three"—Harvard, Yale, and Princeton—already have voted to permit freshmen to participate in varsity contests. The Big Six has deferred action on similar proposals.
5. Any action taken, Big Ten officials say, will be aimed at broadening the competitive base, rather than to alleviate any possible shortage of athletic manpower because of decreased enrollments.
6. In a memorandum mailed to other athletic directors, Crisler said abandonment of the freshman rule "would certainly be invitation for intensive effort in recruiting and proselytizing and undoubtedly there would be a reappearance of the tramp athlete, now quite obsolete."
7. The athletic directors will meet Thursday night and are expected to draft a set of recommendations for the faculty committee meeting Friday.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, March 3.—Boston papers report the fans around there aren't exactly pleased with the change in "Red Williams" draft status. . . They don't care whether Ted or someone else made the appeal. They think a young, healthy athlete belongs in the army. . . Ted hasn't heard nothin' yet. Just wait until the first time he kicks at an umpire's decision and the bench jockeys start asking why he doesn't appeal that one. . . Bob Pastor is considering a $10,000 offer from Pierre Gruen of Washington for a return bout with Claudio Villar, the Spanish heavyweight who gave him such a tussle. . . Indiana's Billy Hillenbrand will skip spring football to play baseball. . . Probably some of the guys who bumped into him last fall told him he didn't need practice.

More Power to 'Em

When the light went out during a district basketball tournament at Stronghurst, Ill., last week, the Lo-mac team, trailing Media 18-7, decided that was enough and agreed to call it a complete game. . . At Good Hope, 16 miles away, the same power failure interrupted a game. The Good Hope and Western Academy teams and the spectators drove six miles to Macomb, where the lights were on, and finished their game.

Spring Braining

Apparently baseball still is a young man's game. . . Mel Ott was 33 yesterday and veteran writers in the Giants' camp say he doesn't look much older than when he first stroled in 17 years ago. Detroit's Hank Greenberg, 36, and Bert Haas, 35, are putting in his place will be as good, no matter what he hit with Columbus. And don't forget that he lost that occasional long hit when they parted with Schmoor Lombardi. . . Nope, the White Haven got what it takes, and neither has any of the others.

Having been held off this long, Leo was asked if he would like to particularize on the excellent qualities of his own outfit. Would he?

"All I have," he said sagaciously, "are these: I have the league's best first-baseman in Don Camilli, its best second-baseman in Billy Herman, its best shortstop in Peeewe Reese, its best center-fielder in Pete Reiser, two of its best pitchers in Whit Wyatt and Kirby Higbe. Furthermore, I've got."

But why go on. You see what Leo has in mind.

HAVANA—Manager Leo Durocher of the Brooklyn Dodgers said today that Arky Vaughan, whom the club obtained from Pittsburgh to play third base, would hit in the No. 2 slot and that Billy Herman, former holder of that position, would be dropped to seventh. HARRISBURG, Pa., March 3 (AP)—Billy Meyers of the Chicago Cubs insisted today he isn't a holdout—he just doesn't want to play baseball any more, vowing "I've had enough."

Refusing to take a cut from the $12,000 he earned last year, the 31-year-old shortstop now is working as an extra fireman on the Pennsylvania railroad, bringing home $6.88 to $8.34 a day—when he works.

"I'm satisfied right where I am," he declares. "I'm not going to bother about the contract they sent me. I don't expect to play anymore. I haven't been at home during one summer since 1928 and I'm going to spend this one right here."

basketball teams were all ready to start a basketball game the other night, the officials held the usual pre-game conference and discovered that none of them had a whistle.

Jap Apperman, RBI coach, called the nearest police station and a rascal brought a couple of tooters to the tutor so the game could go on.

How To Preserve Your Inner Tubes

AUSTIN, March 3. (AP)—In trying to preserve your tires, don't forget the inner tubes, says V. L. Doughtie, professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Texas.

A flat tire seldom hurls the casing, but often the inner tube is ruined, he said.

He suggested: Examine tires daily. A low tire found between frequent checkups usually is the result of some foreign object in the inner tube. The tire should be changed and repaired, thus safeguarding the tube.

Check pressure at least once a week. If a tire is of high quality, it may be over-inflated slightly to reduce rolling surface and resulting friction and heat. But don't carry this too far, lest the tire "blow" down.

Keep caps on valves all the time. They help prevent leakage of air. In the absence of caps, grits may enter valves and cause leaks.

Doughtie said 47 miles per hour was a good speed to save rubber.

THE TOWER TRAGEDY

CHAPTER XVII

WHEN Parris waked, Drake was standing beside the bed with a breakfast tray.

"Cassie's dead, Parris."

Parris opened his mouth but he couldn't make a sound.

"Her father killed her—and committed suicide."

"Good God, Drake! It must have been because—it was my fault."

"Listen to me, Parris. You can ruin everything if you don't watch out. It's not your fault. He must have been crazy."

"Drake—I've got to go and find out."

"Oh, no you don't! You stay right here, and I'll go. But—dama it, kid, don't you see you might get mixed up in this some way?"

"Well, we've got to tell them. I—"

"I swear, I'll knock your head loose if you don't do what I tell you. Listen—just as a favor to me, let me go downtown, and I'll come right back. If everything looks all right, you can go out yourself. Now, will you promise me?"

"DRAKE didn't come back until noon. He looked hot and tired."

"It's all right, kid, as far as you're concerned."

"That's not the question. I mean, did you find out why he killed her?"

"No. His letter—he left a letter on his study table—didn't tell any reason at all. He just explained that he had killed her and was going to kill himself."

"Is that all?"

"There was a letter addressed to the bank, and to Colonel Street—a kind of a will. He left everything he had to you."

"Left it to me? Why? What for?"

"No explanation at all. Colonel Skeffington asked all sorts of questions. Wondered if you had any inkling of this. But you see it excuses you, all right, from any responsibility in Cassie's death. If that had been what he killed her for, he wouldn't have left you his property."

Parris beat on the table with his fist. "I don't care about that! I don't care about that! What did she do?"

"He leaned forward and bent his head on his clenched hands."

"You stay out of it. Somebody'll begin to ask you questions, and just like I said, you haven't got any more sense than to tell everything you know."

Parris looked a little blank. "Everything I know?"

"You know that Cassie came running here last night like something was after her, and wanted you to marry her."

"Well—"

"Can't you imagine what Kings Row would make out of that? Think a little, you numskull!"

This tower's been talking about the Towers ever since I can remember anything, wondering about 'em, and the like."

Parris sat rigid, and Drake waited. Parris' face had altered during these hours.

PARRIS and Drake returned from the double funeral late the next afternoon. It had been more of an ordeal than either of them had anticipated. There was a curious crowd that packed the dim, shabby house. Everyone watched Parris.

Whatever the mystery might be that lay back of this dark and terrible happening, he felt that Dr. Tower and Cassie belonged to him, and to him alone.

His grandmother, Dr. Tower, Cassie—to lose three people who were a real part of your life, all in one week. Parris felt old, spent. He was thankful for Drake's friendly assurance in the days that followed.

WITH the thin strength of the numbed Parris forced himself to return to Dr. Tower's study for his notebooks and the letters from Vienna about his schooling. That night he was about to pack the composition books away when he noticed one, thicker than the others, closely written in Dr. Tower's small, difficult handwriting.

Farris stared at it for a moment, but wondering if he had a right to read it. It was clearly a sort of confidential record. Certainly, Parris thought, he, more than anyone else, had a right to know what led up to the tragic outcome of that mysterious night.

He turned the lamp up a little. Drake had gone to bed. Then he began to read. . . .

He grew heavier of heart as the pages turned. This was another man than the one who sat and taught him clearly and methodically. This was the same brain, but functioning in a altogether different and frightening manner. It was the brain of a brilliant mad man—a man who killed his wife when her mind snapped; who killed his daughter because her mental unbalance was growing worse with the years; who hadn't got any more sense than to tell everything you know."

An arrogant and intrepid intelligence flared through the pages, sometimes wandering, sometimes driven wilfully, along dangerous ways. The Gordons, there had been no doubt for Dr. Tower, were to blame because he was refused a post at the asylum. From then on he had fed on the bitterness of his own solitude, consoled himself with the assurances of his own superiority, and noted with icy detachment that his own abnormality flowered in Cassandra.

Parris shuddered. Kings Row, he felt vaguely—a narrow, spiteful, gossiping, inbred Kings Row—had killed them both, or was at least as much to blame as the hand of Dr. Tower. Somewhere else—in a city—some place where his mind would have been appreciated, his genius welcomed, and his strangeness overlooked for the sake of both, surely Dr. Tower would have found. . . .

And Cassie! There might have been a normal girlhood for her in a kinder environment. Here, locked away from everyone—from would-be friends as well as jealous, gossiping Gordons—what chance had she been given for rationality?

He closed the notebook and passed his hand over his eyes in the old gesture.

PARRIS and Drake stood on the little station platform. They felt stiff and awkward.

A girl came through the station door and stood looking about. She was very pretty in a husky, forthright fashion. She saw Drake and her gray-blue eyes smiled.

Drake turned. "Why, Randy Monaghan!"

"You going away?"

"Parris is going to Europe."

Drake was looking very steadily at Randy. A slow warmth of color rose under her deep tan. Drake took her by the arm. "Gee, Randy, I bet you're the prettiest girl in the world!"

There was a bustle and a quite unnecessary hurry about the place as the train of two coaches clanked to a standstill.

Parris stood on the rear platform and looked back through the thick smudge of acid train smoke as the station slowly receded.

Drake gave a deep sigh. "He's a nice boy, isn't he?"

"The very best. Well—there he goes. Four years! Gosh!" He turned, and his stiffened features achieved something of his old faunlike grin. "Say—my buggy's down here. How about coming for a ride?"

"All right," she said, "let's."

Texans At War

(By The Associated Press)

Andrew Dilworth of San Antonio, state commander of the American Legion, believes that Americans must work 50, 60, or even 70 hours a week to turn the tide of war in favor of the United Nations.

Dilworth made that statement yesterday (Mon.) in Dallas en route from Borger, where he attended a Sons of the American Legion convention, to Sherman, where he addressed a Legion meeting.

"Veterans of the last war realize," he said, "that there will be a vital need for a strong organization after the war ends. The appeasers, isolationists and others with ideas not in keeping with the ideals of this country will come out of cover. They will urge that the may be scrapped, that treaties unfavorable to this nation be entered into."

In the first raid of its kind in the Rio Grande valley, FBI agents searched a hundred homes in Hidalgo and Cameron counties and seized guns, ammunition and short wave radios. Several enemy aliens were taken to the Federal jail at Brownsville.

Young men who are adept in mathematics and physics should not waste a summer, but should go directly into industry or into schools of science or engineering to make themselves ready for essential war industries for the armed forces, Dean W. R. Woolrich of the University of Texas School of Engineering told Texas exes at their banquet in Dallas.

Col. John N. Reynolds, civilian defense coordinator and mayor C. K. Quinn today are working out a plan to darken advertising signs, store windows and other lights in San Antonio.

The plan will be carried out at the order of James Landis, office of civilian defense chief, who called for extinguishing of all lights not "reasonable of being put out at a moment's notice" in the event of an air raid alert.

The Houston office of Petroleum Coordinator asked for notice of intent from pipe line operators in district 3 as to pipe line construction proposed for this year.

H. C. Weiss, chairman of the transportation committee of the district, said, "in view of the shortage of steel, the transportation committee of district 3 hopes that pipe line construction in the district will be limited to the minimum number of projects necessary to promote the industry's contributions to the war effort."

At least 1,000 Japanese, Germans and Italians in Houston failed to register at the post office as enemy aliens, assistant United States Attorney Miles Moss estimated. Only 1,500 signed up in the registration which ended Saturday. The post office called the number "disappointing."

"For 32 years the Boy Scouts have been trained for service through the practice of the Daily Good Turn. In such times as these this training is recognized to the extent that the President has placed the Boy Scouts alongside the American Red Cross in importance to national defense."

"In the present emergency the Boy Scouts are doing their part. First, they were called on to help in the collection of aluminum and through their efforts over 10,000,000 pounds of materials were turned over to the government."

"Next, they were asked to distribute 1,600,000 posters for the sale of defense bonds and stamps. Now, the Boy Scouts are busy collecting waste paper, with such enthusiasm that in the first three months over 12,000,000 pounds of this much needed material was sent to the pulp mills for further use."

"In our concern of the war we must not forget the fact that we must train boys for the job after the war. Boys who will become men, strong in character and able to face the problems of reconstruction."

O'Daniel Presents Program To Solve All Nation's Ills

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—A program to solve the nation's ills was offered in a floor speech by Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel after he blamed congress for "this muddle and confused condition" yesterday.

ALLIES

to cut the island and its defenses forces in two. The official said the Dutch Indies government had moved from Batavia, the capital, to the inland mountain city of Banoeang.

Authoritative quarters in the Indies had said yesterday that "the action is proceeding satisfactorily." The three main Japanese spearheads, totalling 60,000 to 80,000 troops were reported stopped in their tracks.

While the picture of land fighting remained obscure, the gravity of the situation was outlined starkly by the Dutch acknowledgment that they had begun to apply a "scorched earth" policy of destruction to the capital city of Batavia.

Dispatches reaching London said Allied bombers were raining fire on the new Japanese invasion fleet 50 to 60 miles north of Java and that United Nations warships also had gone into action.

Imperial Tokyo headquarters, summarizing the results of last week's naval fighting in the Java sea, asserted that 23 Allied warships had been sunk, including six cruisers, eight destroyers, seven submarines, a gunboat and a minesweeper.

On land, an N.E.A. spokesman declared that "hard blows have been inflicted on the enemy." Dutch commanders were in charge, with British General Sir Archibald P. Wavell transferred from head of the United Nations southwest Pacific command to his old post as India's commander-in-chief to meet the grave threat of the Japanese penetration of Burma, which was herself an eastern section of India until almost five years ago.

Japanese filers showed machine-gun and cannon fire at airbases and ground forces at Wyndham, on the Australian coast 300 miles southwest of Darwin, and bombed Broome, 400 miles farther southwest. The Royal Australian air force said there was some damage at both towns, but no casualties.

Commonwealth leaders believe the Japanese may soon attempt a landing on Australia, and drastic new measures to meet it include a labor draft. Thousands of men are liable for duty under the draft on army terms and at army pay.

S. S. Representative Visits In Pampa

L. E. Bradford, representative of the Social Security board office at Amarillo, was in Pampa today to contact employers in order to inform them of their duties in connection with the Social Security act.

Some employers, Bradford said, are failing to make the required quarterly social security reports to the collector of internal revenue.

The usual reason given for this failure to comply with this federal law is that it was thought no returns were necessary unless there were three or five regular employees.

In order to save the time and expense of filing delinquent returns, the Amarillo office of the social security board is making an attempt to inform employers that any wages for work in covered employment by an employee for his employer must be reported by the employer.

Any new employer or employer who has not previously made reports should file an application for an identification number for his place of business. He should also keep a permanent record of the social security account number of each of his employees, since this information is necessary at the time the social security tax return is filed with the collector of internal revenue.

Southwestern Life Gains 24 Millions

With a gain of $24,077,074 for 1941, Southwestern Life Insurance company enters the new year with $405,210,008 in reserve, C. F. O'Donnell, president, reports in the 39th annual financial statement to policy owners.

Copy of the report was received here today by the company's local representative, J. H. Plant.

The continued progress of this Texas institution records numerous items indicative of the financial strength of Southwestern Life. Assets are $80,618,343.61 reflecting an increase of $7,208,213.84 for 1941—a gain of $977,304.50 over the increase reported for 1940, which was the largest in the company's history.

WAVELL

King, in one of the few statements he has made since he took charge of the fleet, told the nation not to expect miracles, but reported that "an all-out effort is being made in the unspicacious but vitally essential task of establishing our sea and air communications."

Donald M. Nelson, war production chief, told American industry workers, in effect, that they would have to work like Trojans and match the efforts of the armed services by supplying them with tools of victory.

In a radio address last night, Nelson appealed for a 25 per cent boost in 1942 production, from existing machines alone. He said the industrial front faced "the greatest competition of all time" and called for an unprecedented drive to overtake and overwhelm the Axis war production, now at its peak.

representative of the social security board will again be in Pampa, at the Texas State Employment Service office, March 10, at 9:30 a. m., and any employer or employee desiring information or instructions should plan to meet him at the hour shown above.
