Marines Wipe Out Force Of 350 Japs

Machine Gun Given For Scrap Drive

An old machine gun of World War I vintage will soon, in a new mold, be spitting bullets at Japs—a battle cry of freedom from Gray county for Uncle Sam.

This is the latest contribution to the scrap metal pile being collected at the intersection of Kingsmill and Russell for the county-wide scrap metal campaign rally to be held tomorrow.

While the roped-off collection is off to a slow start, with only a few items turned in up to late this morning, it will overflow that narrow space by tomorrow night.

Reason is that the farmers are really hard at work cleaning up their farms of all scrap metal. Early this morning Irvin Cole reported he had two tons ready to put on the pile. His collection included old plows, hot water tanks, and part of an old truck.

A wheat drill, rims, pipe, and various other items have already been gathered. The machine gun and several other bits of junk were from the city hall. Many months ago the police department was called to Wilcox addition to pick up an old machine gun some man wanted to turn in. The gun was brought to the police department and stored in a room underneath the basement stairs, along with other items.

This morning, Police Chief Ray Dudley mentioned the machine gun to Harry Hoare, reporter who regularly covers the city hall.

Campaign To Continue
From this developed an impromptu cleanup of items stored away and soon the machine gun and other junk was added to the pile.

While the idea is to gather in as much junk as possible in the campaign ending tomorrow night, this does not mean there will not be an extension of the drive.

Primary purpose is to get in as much scrap metal now to replenish.

Vital Information

Each scrap dealer in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana who is cooperating fully with the conservation division's national salvage program and who is leading his area in scrap tonnage shipments will receive from WFB a scrap production merit award, John L. Dellinger, regional conservation manager, was advised today.

Rental of new typewriters and used non-portable machines manufactured since January 1, 1935, has been banned by OPA and the return to dealers by September 15 of rental machines manufactured since that date has been ordered. Recall of recently manufactured typewriters and the rental ban on new machines has been prompted by the slow response to the treasury department's campaign to purchase 300,000 typewriters from the public for army, navy and government use.

I HEARD . . .

That a Pampa woman called a negro who had been doing house work for her and she asked the negro woman if she could clean her house and do some other work. The negro replied, "Yes, ah can". Ah has a housekeeper myself now that my man is working for defense."

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Aug. 28 (AP)—A force of 350 Japs—virtually every defender—was wiped out and all seaplane installations methodically wrecked by U. S. marines during the recent Makin island raid, now disclosed by eye-witnesses to have been a two-day job of slaughter and destruction.

Contrasting with earlier reports of a hit-and-run raid, the participants, including Maj. James Roosevelt, son of the president, made it clear that the scrappy marines even hunted for a few Jap stragglers still alive before withdrawing to ships.

And so stealthy was the landing during a moonless night on the northernmost island of the Jap-held Gilbert group, 1,500 miles northeast of the Solomons, that the marines had been ashore for 20 minutes, deploying for battle, before the Japs discovered them.

"The morning of the second day, only eight Japanese were left on the island," related Lieut. Col. Evans F. Carlson, of Plymouth, Conn., commander of the marines.

"We wiped out all we could find and, after a checkup with the natives, found only two Japanese unaccounted for. I cannot disclose our casualties but will say the Japanese losses on land alone were more than 10 to one to our losses, not counting the 150 Japs lost at sea or in planes."

Other dramatic episodes gleaned from the eyewitness accounts: Jap snipers, strapped to cocoanut trees, fired at Major Roosevelt but

Negroes Wanted In Hijacking

Police Chief Ray Dudley today local negro and his woman companion in connection with an alleged hijacking early this morning east of Pampa on the LeFors road. Chief Dudley said he expected an arrest to be made soon.

The warrant was issued after Ray Hart, American Consul, had reported that a negro man and negro woman had taken $28 from him. Hart, who said he had been employed at the bomber base, was enroute to his home in East Texas about 12:30 a. m., when he accepted a ride with the negroes. He said he rode with them to a point about five miles east when the negro man whipped out a gun and ordered him to hand over his money.

Hart said the woman took the money from his billfold, which she returned. He told officers that the negro ordered him from the car and held the gun at his head for nearly a minute.

"I was sure he was going to kill me," Hart told officers.

Hart said the car drove toward LeFors and that he walked back to Pampa and reported the hijacking.

Mrs. Ollie Soles... five soldier sons are not enough.

With Five Sons In The Service, Mother Enlists

NEW YORK—Most mothers who had given five of their six sons to the army and coast guard would feel they had done enough for their country. But not Mrs. Ollie Soles of Astoria, Long Island, who's putting in six days a week at work for Pan American Airways.

Mrs. Soles, a widow, is one of 110 overall-clad women who work at the clipper base. She is in charge of linen supplies on the giant planes that fly to Europe and Africa. Pictures of her five soldier sons are in front of her as she sorts laundry and counts blankets and pillows.

Her duties are "housekeeping" on a big scale, Mrs. Soles says, but they're necessary to keep the clippers flying.

"And," she adds, "I've never felt so worthwhile in my job as I do today."

Sunday School Lesson

CONSEQUENCES OF SIN OFTEN REMAIN AFTER THE SINNER HAS REPENTED

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

Text: Genesis 32:2-12, 27-29

Jacob, in our lesson, was at the place where his sins, and particularly the crucial sin of his life, had been catching up with him. As a matter of fact, they had been catching up with him for a long time. The man who had been a trickster and a deceiver had been tricked and deceived, and for a long time the sharper, shrewder, and more unprincipled Laban, his father-in-law, had been inflicting upon him bitter experiences.

These things Jacob had borne chiefly for his love of Rachel, and here in the romantic story of his devotion, as in some other respects, we have evidence of those finer qualities which have given Jacob a worthy place among the patriarchs in spite of his serious shortcomings and the deception of his brother Esau.

It was this particular sin that years after was now confronting him. The trickeries and oppressions of Laban had reached the stage where Jacob felt that he could bear them no longer, and with the consent of Laban's daughters he had decided to strike out for himself, returning to his homeland. With his company and his possessions he had left secretly, but Laban had pursued and overtaken him, angry over Jacob's departure and particularly outraged because he claimed that his household gods had been stolen.

As a matter of fact, they had been, though Jacob was not aware of the fact, for Rachel, who along with her attractiveness seems to have had something of her father's trickery, had taken the idols, and so concealed them beneath her as she sat on the camel that Laban had sought them in vain.

Appeared as to the loss of his gods, Laban had made a peace treaty with Jacob, but Jacob was now facing what he conceived to be the greatest danger of all. As he neared his homeland, word came that his brother Esau was approaching with a great company of men.

The sin that he had long ago committed came home to Jacob with startling effect. But it stands to his credit that he was far more concerned about others than he was about himself.

In fact, we see the former trickster now as a man of admirable courage and good strategy carefully considering how he may dispose his forces in a case of a head-on reception by Esau, affording the greatest possible protection to the women and children, and arranging so that if one part of his company was overwhelmed the rest might make good their escape. We have the spectacle of a guilty conscience, and a recollection of grievous wrong done a brother, in conflict with the conquering force of a purpose to do what is in his power to retrieve a bad situation. It is a striking evidence of the way that the consequences of sin remain long after a sinner has repented or even after he has been forgiven his sin.

As it turned out, Jacob had nothing to fear. Esau also had improved with years. From a careless, easy-going man who had lightly sold away his birthright, he had become a man of substance, and in him also his finer qualities had prevailed. His easy-going nature was now nominated by a great magnanimity which led him to receive his brother with joy and without the slightest reproach concerning the ancient wrong that he had done to him. It was a glorious ending to a story that has many interesting lessons.

Christ Jesus Will Be Sermon Subject

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 30.

The Golden Text is: "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ" (John 1:17).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And John bare record, saying, I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him. . . . And I saw, and bare record that this is the Son of God" (John 1:32, 34).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christ is the true idea voicing good, the divine message from God to men speaking to the human consciousness" (page 332).

Common Ground

Common Ground

"I speak the past-word primer. I give the sign of democracy. By God I will accept nothing which all must have their counterpart of on the same terms."

RELIGIOUS LEADERSHIP OF ONE OF OUR ALLIES

There is not much question but the progress of humanity depends upon the ideas people have of Christianity or of religion. I want to throw a little light on the kind of Christian leadership at the head of the state church of England. I believe that Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. William Temple, is about as far away from a Christian ideal as Hitler is away from a Christian ideal. Since we are associated with England in war, the leadership of the church there becomes of the utmost importance to us in the United States. I quote from an article by C. S. Longacre in "Liberty, A Magazine of Religious Freedom" under the heading, "The New Order After the War," subheaded "A Proposed Program." I quote:

"Another series of proposals made by the Archbishop of Canterbury would bring about a complete reorganization of all the activities of the church on the part of the government. According to this program the government, through bureaus, is to exercise absolute authority, and the individual is to possess no property rights of his own. The individual is to be governed in all things by the state. He is to be regimented in his housing privileges and renting privileges, and food and clothing coupons are to be furnished to mothers for each child above two years of age. The state is to maintain interest and dividends. All commercial problems are to be decided by international authority, rather than by national governments, because they are bound up with international trade. All control over money, currency, exchange, tariffs, wages, working hours, and conditions, and commerce generally is to be under international jurisdiction. All private ownership of land is to be abolished. The absolute title to all land, urban property is to be publicly owned, and interest for the use of money privately lent is to be abolished, except for a nominal charge of one half or two thirds of one per cent to cover the cost of administration of loans. The state is to 'straggle' some industries and 'corner' others to stagger to close down for Saturday and Sunday."

"The Archbishop concludes his statement, which he presents to Americans in a published article entitled, 'Christianity and Social Order,' by saying: 'I have offered the suggestions in answer to the frequent challenge, what would you do? Let no one quote this as my conception of a political program which Christians ought to support. There is no such thing as a Christian program. I offer it as a Christian program.'"

"Then that is Archbishop of Canterbury's conception of Christianity. If that is his conception, it should be his program. Everyone should strive to bring it about."

Nulification of Bill of Rights

On this subject Mr. Longacre comments as follows: "The proposal of the archbishop is a complete nulification of the Bill of Rights as vouchsafed to each individual under our American Constitution. It is a complete repudiation of the American way of life. It is opposed to the great ideals and objectives which the human race has struggled for the past six thousand years to win, their matchless heritage of freedom from state domination, and the requiring of officials of the state to become the servants of the people. It is not the establishment of a new order of things, but a reversal to the old order of things in which the state was the absolute sovereign and the people were mere serfs and servants of the state. We are told that the present struggles on the part of the Americans and Great Britain and her Dominion, and of China, is against the absolute state and for the defense of the inalienable rights of man. The archbishop seeks to make the state supreme in all things and the individual the beneficiary puppet of the state. Americans will be slow to place themselves in the attitude of supplicants to an absolute state regime, and we fear that the English prelate will encounter even a rather difficult task in persuading Englishmen to place their necks in the yoke of state absolutism."

Entirely too many so-called Christians in America have been misled as to what the real meaning of Christianity is, just as Archbishop of Canterbury has been misled.

tearing out the pages of the offending article. The disciplinary action against Life must be taken in connection with all of the other efforts to dominate the press, among them the flagrant and continuing attack with the purpose of destroying the Associated Press. In this attack, for the first time in history, the FBI was used for a political purpose when its agents were secretly newspaper offices as if to coerce independent editors. Life and its allied publications may be possible for them to view these developments with detachment, but the facts of life have now been forcibly brought home.

In the last 20 years there has been a steady upsurge all over the world of men who think themselves skilled in the arts of mastery. The symptoms of the authoritarian spirit are not always at once apparent, but they soon become so. The restraints to which people voluntarily submit in wartime offer additional opportunities of exploitation by the unscrupulous for their own ends. Even if the process is not conscious, the tendency is to limit rights of freedom and property. In enlightened lands like Britain, Canada, and other British dominions, we have seen these rights extinguished to an extent hitherto unimaginable.

In this country there have been men in high places who by their own words have shown that they are not disinclined to abuse the trust which, in time of war, must be reposed in the government. If the rights of American free men are to be destroyed, the first step will be to destroy the freedom of the press. The boast of an administration spokesman has already been heard that the government would yet exercise control of the press as fully as it now exercises control of steel and oil. For these reasons the arbitrary treatment of Life cannot be viewed with too much alarm by those who hope to preserve freedom in America.

An easterner suggests that our paper money be put out in different colors. A 200 billion dollar deficit in technicolor would be quite a sight, at that.—Omaha World-Herald.

HE WASN'T HAVING ENOUGH TROUBLE!

Around Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28.—Bunch of movie bigwigs were talking baseball at lunch the other day, and in the course of an argument a producer issued a challenge to B. G. DeSylva, production chief at Paramount. The first man said he could select a team from his organization that could beat any outfit mustered from Paramount.

"No, we'd better not try it," DeSylva said. "I can't think of 18 men in all Hollywood that I could trust if they had baseball bats in their hands."

Ella Logan's small daughter, Anabella, is playing a part in "Presenting Lily Mars," and was supposed to cry for a scene. The tears just wouldn't come, though, and finally Director Norman Taurog said, "All right, kid, forget it. You don't have to cry if you don't feel like it. Of course everybody will be disappointed, and the picture will be a failure." He was watching her closely to see if there was any sign of a breakdown, but there wasn't.

"Why, Mr. Taurog?" interrupted the youngster, who's half Scottish. "What have you done with all your money?"

On the first day of a picture in which several children were to play bit roles, the mother of one of them said she'd like to speak privately to the director.

News Behind The News The National Whirligig

By FREDERICK MOORE (Subbing for Ray Tucker)

LEADER: The mission on which Wendell Willkie is going abroad as special representative of the president is designed primarily to help repudiate Roosevelt's insidious broadcasts throughout Europe that America is not united and will sooner or later throw in the sponge. The Republican chief's tour, taking him through the Near Eastern countries, from Egypt into Russia, then on to China, will be no mere junket but one of the best pieces of anti-Nazi propaganda yet devised.

There is much looking ahead in Washington. The war may last until 1944, the year of the next presidential election, but even if Germany and Japan are both defeated by then the terrific problem of international reconstruction will be on hand. In the opinion of many there is no more outstanding figure whose views on world affairs are closer to Franklin Roosevelt's than his former rival.

The vice president, Henry Wallace, is a statesman of high ideals but he appears to have a visionary rather than practical comprehension of foreign matters. He is not an inspiring leader and one will be badly needed to succeed Mr. Roosevelt. The person the country requires will have to display both foresight and the capacity to create confidence. The former G. O. P. standard-bearer is relatively young and constitutionally strong.

VISION: Franklin D. Roosevelt is too good a politician not to perceive the publicity effect of Willkie's tour. The Hoosier cannot meet Stalin and Chiang Kai-Shek and visit the many American, European and Asiatic command of armies in the field in Egypt, India, Iraq, Iran and China, without considerable ballyhoo, especially as no one else can stress unity better than this Republican.

A trip made under impressive conditions will sharpen the vision of the distinguished emissary himself. An intensive course of study in geography, strategy and many other subjects will be forced upon him. He will return to Washington knowing what should be done and not be high on passion. He will see his own country, these United States, as others see it, from a score of widely separated angles. Wendell Willkie is going abroad not only to tell but to listen; not only to teach but to learn.

Finns' Britches Torn On Horns Of Dilemma

By FELTER EDSON

Anyone feeling particularly brilliant during this depressing season of dog days might step up and offer a solution to the Finnish problem which now is so complicated that it's harder to figure out than the relationship of Gloria Swanson's and Constance Bennett's present and ex-husbands. It is a good bit like an old-time Halffield-McCoy mountain feud who is mad at whom, whom is siding who and what for, have been somewhat lost sight of, but one thing is certain—the feud is still on.

The Finns are still for Finland, first, last and all the time, but in fighting for their beloved independence, they have got their fur-lined britches snagged on every point of an antlered dilemma. Talk about history repeating itself! Not here, for you will search the pages of history in vain to find any parallel for this Finnish predicament.

Soon, rather than later, however, this thing will have to be solved, in spite of the fact that the Finns themselves are playing this chess game for a stalemate. Their strategy seems to be to sit tight until perhaps both Germany and the Soviet Union are so tired that they will offer peace terms. Finland has a chance of winning her war. Otherwise, how can she?

PEACE POSSIBLE? To make it easy, suppose Soviet Russia should tell the Finns to write their own ticket on a peace treaty and that the Soviet could offer satisfactory guarantees that it would abide by the terms. Because there was no such guarantee when peace feelers were made by the United States last November, nothing happened. But suppose such a guarantee could be made today, could Finland make a peace?

The answer is probably no, because to make peace with the Soviet, Finland would have to make war on Germany, because in Northern Finland there are from six to 10 German divisions.

Today's War Analysis

By DeWitt Mackenzie

The big, full fighting-moon continues to zoom up from the edge of the vast Libyan desert to invite the embattled Allies and Axis forces to combat over a terrain which by day is a blazing furnace but at night is pleasantly cool and, important to note, largely free of the fierce artillery fire that in daylight sweeps its wide-open spaces.

Still the two armies have remained stationary, apart from comparatively minor sorties. It's passing strange that neither side has initiated a major attack, for in that inhospitable zone one of the decisive victories of the war is awaiting a claimant. Perhaps the answer to the delay is that the drifting sands also hold a decisive defeat for one of them, and this is no time for rashness.

Be that as it may, Rommel the Hitlerite and Alexander the Briton stand poised like two fighting cocks—hackles erect and steel spurs glinting. And if you ever have seen two birds sting each other up in the pit you know that suddenly and without warning, one of them strikes.

Exceptional caution has been imposed on Marshal Rommel and General Alexander by the unusual positions of their armies. They no longer have fluid lines in wide level reaches over which tanks can race at will. They no longer are able to run around each other's flanks, like speedy warships maneuvering at sea.

The mobile desert fighting to which we have become accustomed has for the moment given way to trench warfare. The two armies are "dug in" on a 28-mile front which is confined between the waters of the Mediterranean on the north and the great Qattara depression on the south. That depression is a vast sink in the sands, and in places its escarpment rises hundreds of feet.

All this means that tanks, which thus far have played so vital a part in the Libyan warfare, aren't likely to make peace with the enemy's accustomed role at the outset of a new offensive. With the opposing armies drawn up in fixed positions opposite each other from Qattara to El Alamein on the sea there's no way for tanks to do their usual flanking stunts unless the lines have been broken, and one would expect artillery and warplanes to prepare the way for an old-fashioned frontal assault by the infantry. It would be dangerous to risk tanks in the beginning against the gunfire they would encounter from fixed positions.

It strikes me that air strength may represent the balance of power in the coming conflict. At this writing the Anglo-American air forces have superiority, and while Rommel is very close to his source of supply, the status of the fierce battle on the Russian front is likely to determine whether Hitler can spare warplanes for his benchman.

The Nazi marshal has been greatly strengthened with infantry and supplies since the fighting halted. The British, too, have received substantial help. While details are lacking, it's said that further American air reinforcements have arrived and this would mean much for Alexandria, since our men have been doing magnificent work against Rommel. Whether Uncle Sam also has infantry in Egypt isn't apparent.

In any event, it would seem that both sides are again able to give battle, and the break is likely to come at any moment.

Jewelers Win From Phillips In 8-2 Game

The Jewelers jumped back into the playoff picture in the Pampa Softball league last night when they defeated the Phillips Oilers 8 to 2. The same two teams will play again tonight at 7 o'clock at Magnolia diamond.

A win for the Jewelers tonight would end the first round of the Shaughnessy playoff while a win for the Oilers would necessitate another game. Sharp will be on the hill for the Jewelers with Laycock coming back for the Phillips team.

The Knights of Pythias, who will meet the winner of the Jewelers-Phillips series in a four out of seven game playoff series, will play a practice game with Stanolind Oil and Gas company's team at 6 o'clock tonight at Sam Houston diamond.

Laycock was on the mound for the Oilers and he held the slugger Jewelers to eight hits. The Jewelers scored one run in the first inning, two in the second and two in the third to bag a five run lead before Phillips scratched. Stevens, who had been in a hitting slump, broke loose last night with a triple and double while Tidwell hit for the circuit in the second to score Mitchell, who had singled, ahead of him. The rest of the Jewelers' hits were scattered.

Moyer was the hitting star for Phillips, bagging two singles. Newton and Shirley got the other two hits. Stevens, besides hitting, was the defensive star of the game. He saved many sure hits with great catches.

Score by innings:
Jewelers 122 120 0-8 8 1
Phillips 000 110 0-2 4 3
Grover Heiskell and Mangell; Laycock and Arrington.
Umpires—Geo. Humphries and Cobb.

'Sugar' Robinson Wins 124th Fight
CHICAGO, Aug. 28 (AP)—It took Ray (Sugar) Robinson of New York just two minutes and 41 seconds to get his 124th successive ring victory last night in Comiskey park.

The undefeated young negro parker had a short left hook to the chin of Tony Motisi of Chicago in the first round of a scheduled 10-round bout. Motisi sagged to his knees and gradually flattened out on the canvas.

Wyatt Pitches Bating Practice
ST. LOUIS, Aug. 28 (AP)—Credit Whitlow Wyatt with an assist in Brooklyn's triumph over the Cardinals yesterday. At his own request Wyatt pitched batting practice before the game for the first time this year, to "get the boys started."

After hitting against Wyatt, the Dodgers, who had dropped three straight to the Cards, went out and salvaged the finale, 4-1.

Cats' Winning Streak Up To Ten Games

(By The Associated Press)
The Fort Worth Cats' late-season winning streak stretched to ten games last night when they beat second-place Shreveport 3-1 for the second time in a row, while at Dallas the first-place Beaumont Explorers toyed with the cellar-dwelling Rebels to the tune of 4-2.

In the Oklahoma sector of the Texas league the Indians and the Houston Buffs divided a doubleheader at Oklahoma City, and at Tulsa the Oilers turned back San Antonio 3-2 and climbed to within one game of the Padres.

Joe Berry won his nineteenth victory for the Oilers this season. Houston squeezed out a 1-0 decision over Oklahoma City in the opener, and the Indians won the nightcap, 6-2. Elmer Rummans of Houston yielded only three hits in the first contest. The Indians collected a mere two hits in the nightcap, but pushed over a half dozen runs in the sixth.

Hemphill Sends 18 Into U. S. Service
Special To The News
CANADIAN, Aug. 28 (AP)—Of the men who went to Lubbock Monday and followed by Phillips scratched, Hemphill will report at Fort Sill on Monday, September 7.

Vernon Martin, James Martin Farnsworth, Juan Ramos, Leon Esquivel, B. Stevenson, Jr., Monnie Clarence Graham, Eddie Winfred Reames, Taylor Wright, James Harold Parks, Frank Lovsin Adeock, and Willie Begert.

Norman Magill went directly from Lubbock to Fort Sill this week, a candidate for officers' training course. Edgar Earl Rhea, Jr., Royal Tietman Smith, and Taylor Wright joined the U. S. navy.

Charles Millard Eller, a Canadian young man now of Lynnwood, Calif., was credited to Hemphill county's selective service quota, but will report to the draft board in California.

Juan Ramos and Leon Esquivel are citizens of Mexico but have residence in Hemphill county. Service in the U. S. army was not compulsory, but they chose to enter the service with other of the county's young men, the first non-American citizens to be sent from this county.

It is believed there will be single men to make up the September quota. Many married men have already voluntarily enlisted.

SPORTS IN WARTIME

(By HAROLD V. RATLIFF Associated Press Sports Editor)
Many high schools either will discontinue football or cut their schedules drastically in view of the transportation situation.

State OPA Director Mark McGee has again ruled that new tires can't be issued to buses used in transporting athletic teams.

McGee did not say school buses could not be used for such transportation but he did say that if they were so used they would not be eligible for new tires.

Truth of the matter is that the ruling may not make much difference anyway. School buses may not be able to get new tires for ordinary use much less taking football teams on trips.

There are 30,000 eligible applications now on file that can't be filled because there aren't enough tires to go around.

The Class AA schools are not likely to be affected greatly, although Kingsville already has dropped football and Beaumont high will not play any games away from home.

It's the Class A and Class B schools that are going to have to step out of football or confine it all to the home county.

All that worry down Temple way was for nothing. Barney Ham, the 1941 all-state end, is going to be back after all.

Barney cut his arm severely several months ago and was feared he would be unable to play this fall. Return of Ham gives Temple one of its finest lines. Now if Les Cranfill turns up with another Wayland Hill the Wildcats will be ready to go into the state finals their third season in a row.

Right now no one appears in sight to take Hill's place but Cranfill always comes up with some such guy along about the time everybody is picking Waco to win the district championship.

There will be plenty of service football played in Texas this year but Sheppard Field won't be in it. They had figured on quite a team there this fall with such guys as Darrell Lester, all-American center at Texas Christian; Marland Jeffrey, ex-Texas Aggie, and others but the post commander said transportation difficulties and loss of vital man power days from training would not justify the time, expense and effort necessary to maintain the squads.

Sheppard Field team that won the Texas semi-pro baseball championship did not make the trip to Wichita, Kansas, to play in the national tournament.

John Crowley of The Daily Oklahoman picks Rogers Hornsby and Salty Parker as the managers of the year in the Texas league.

Cronley takes Hornsby as the bench manager because he made over the Fort Worth Cats in mid-

Grass Greens At Country Club To Be Opened Sunday

Pampa golfers will be able to play on grass greens without leaving home Sunday. The 10 new grass greens at the Pampa Country club will be opened for play beginning Sunday morning, Frank Baker, new pro, announced today.

The greens won't be in the best condition Sunday but they'll be suitable for play. The seaside bent grass will be thin and spotted but that is to be expected on new greens. It takes a season for the new grass to spread and become even.

Because of the possible bare spots, players will be allowed to improve their lie on the greens instead of putting from where the ball stops.

Sunday's opening will be informal but a formal opening is being planned for sometime next month.

Grass greens have been installed on the first nine holes and on number 11 hole on the back nine. A practice putting green has also been installed.

A call for caddies for Saturday and Sunday was issued today by Mr. Baker. Caddies will be needed on all week-ends as well as on afternoons.

All Stars Due To Be About Three Touchdowns Shy

CHICAGO, Aug. 28 (AP)—One of the finest teams of college all stars in nine years is figured by football wisdom to be about three touchdowns shy of matching the Chicago Bears tonight in Soldier field.

George Halas ran his National professional champions through final practices last night under the lights of Soldier field, where a record crowd of 101,200 persons will flock tonight. The customers will have paid approximately $300,000 for their seats from which at least $160,000 will go to army and navy relief funds.

Both teams are in peak form and confident of victory. A triumph for the all-stars would break a three-year monopoly held by the champions of the National professional football league and would be the third win for the collegians in the nine years of the series. Two games ended in ties.

Halas, the mastermind behind the Bears' famous T formation, thinks the game will be a lot tougher than last year, when the Bears defeated the collegians 37 to 13.

Bob Zupke, noted for springing upsets, has coached the collegians into a highly fighting mood during the last month, filling them with ultra-fancy, fan-pleasing plays along the way. After more than 30 years in the coaching business Zupke is giving the sport his farewell after tonight.

'Man Mountain Dean' Now Technical Sarge
NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 28 (AP)—Remember "Man Mountain Dean," terror of the professional wrestlers? He's Technical Sergeant Frank Leavitt now, and the army has trimmed off a bit of the "mountain."

Leavitt has lost 50 pounds since re-enlisting in the armed service and bends the scales at 260 pounds. He is 51.

He nominates Parker as the top playing manager for the way he took the Shreveport Sports into the play-off two years in a row.

The Dons finished in the runner-up spot last year. Enid, Okla., defending champion, was eliminated earlier in the 1942 tournament.

Pampa Bowl To Open With Eight Alleys

The Pampa Bowl will re-open tomorrow afternoon with eight alleys ready for play, according to Stanley Brake and Hugh Ellis, owners.

The Bowl opened last spring with six alleys. Two new alleys were added and the original six alleys re-mended and re-finished during the past 10 days when the alleys were closed.

First event on the new alleys will be a meeting of all women bowlers from Pampa and vicinity who will meet at 7 o'clock Tuesday night to roll a three game series. The six women with the highest total scores for three games will be named captains of the six women's teams organized at a meeting last Sunday.

Baseball Offers To Share World Series Kitty
CHICAGO, Aug. 28 (AP)—Baseball's offer to share $375,944 to $679,006 of its World Series kitty was extended today to two organizations — the USO and the Red Cross — and need only their formal acceptance and subsequent approval by government authorities to go into effect this fall.

K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, said that to his knowledge the World Series never before has been conducted as a benefit.

After conferring yesterday with Presidents Will Harridge of the American league and Ford Frick of the National league, Landis revealed the plan and said the two intended beneficiaries had not been consulted beforehand.

In Washington Chairman Norman H. Davis of the American Red Cross declined to comment pending formal word of the offer from Landis.

In New York Paul Badger, administrative vice president of the USO, declared his organization was "extremely grateful at this gesture and we will be glad to participate in the World Series receipts."

Landis drew up 1942 series estimates based on last fall's classic between the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, which teams appear headed for an encore meeting this year.

Men who should know say we'll really build more than 60,000 military planes this year, the order called for by President Roosevelt.

U. S. Destroyer Ingraham Sunk

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28 (AP)—The fog-shrouded waters of the Atlantic today claimed the U. S. Destroyer Ingraham, a warship which was built only slightly more than a year ago.

The navy gave no details. The sinking was announced as a part of communique 113, which had only this to say about it: "Atlantic"

"3. The U. S. Destroyer Ingraham has been sunk as a result of a collision in a fog in the Atlantic. "The next of kin have been notified."

The normal complement of the ship was 175.

BUY VICTORY BONDS Louisiana Houses Feud Over Taxes

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 28 (AP)—Another deadlock appeared dangerously near in the Louisiana legislature today over state finances with the hitch this time between opposing political factions centering around proposed appropriations to aid parish police juries for loss in gasoline revenue.

The senate, dominated by a coalition of upstate solons and the New Orleans delegation loyal to Mayor Robert S. Maestri, reportedly was ready to pass a compromise one per cent sales tax, but was opposed to an appropriation of $1,575,000 for the police juries.

The house, dominated by the legislators of the Governor Sam H. Jones reform faction, already has passed a 1 1/2 per cent sales tax, but the senate vote was held up until today while negotiations between the two groups continued.

The house passed a sales tax at the regular session this summer, but the senate killed it and Governor Jones vetoed the entire appropriation for the huge charity hospital in New Orleans to balance the budget.

The institution is scheduled to close September 1 unless revenues are provided at the special session called by Jones.

Meanwhile, both factions were accusing each other of holding up a settlement on the financial issues.

SERIAL STORY

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

BY RENE RYERSON MART

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: While her family is away at a lake resort, Enid Sharon, stenographer, has taken a furnished apartment for a secret vacation of her own. She wants some of the leisure and luxury that she misses at home, also wants to make sure of her love for Tom Driscoll, whom she has promised to marry. She has told Tom she is going out of town on a business trip. One of Enid's neighbors in the apartment is handsome young Dr. Henry Holliday. Enid tries to get acquainted, embarrassed when, on making a call, she finds the doctor's young son in his "bachelor" quarters.

behind her, to hear the furious barking of a dog and the scream of a child. She ran up the short flight of steps that led to the first floor corridor.

"That is if you haven't a previous engagement for this evening." "No, I haven't," Enid admitted, and then hesitatingly, "I'll stay."

SHE had the feeling that she'd stepped back into the middle of a dream. How else account for being in Dr. Henry Holliday's kitchen slicing meat and bread for sandwiches, cutting up a crisp head of lettuce, beating up a quick mayonnaise?

"You're a handy thing in a kitchen," the doctor said admiringly. "I'm supposed to be the host and you're doing all the work."

A flicker of uneasiness cut across Enid's consciousness. After all he was a married man. Wouldn't she look silly making herself at home in the kitchen if he were to walk in now? A sudden restraint changed her manner.

"Everything's ready now. You can carry it into the dining room." She whipped off the apron she had tied across her slacks and got out of the kitchen as quickly as if she had been caught in a felony.

They were seated at the table in the gay dining room with its colorful Mexican furnishings and decorations when the doorbell rang. Enid's heart jumped into her throat. Maybe that was his wife. How silly, she thought the next moment. His wife wouldn't ring the bell, she'd just walk in.

Then she heard the janitor talking to Dr. Holliday. "Here's some things the young lady dropped in the hall."

"I'll take care of them," the doctor said. He came back to the table with her sketch book in his hands.

The doctor propped the sketch book beside his plate and glanced through it curiously. "Did you do these today?" he asked with interest.

Enid nodded. "Um—some of them are pretty good. You catch expressions—now this boy on a bike. . . . Say, how about doing a few sketches of Sonny?"

Enid was pleased at his praise. Her eyes began to shine. "You mean—now?"

The doctor glanced at his wrist-watch. "No, not tonight. He's late for bed now. I'll have to be getting him home. Maybe next Sunday."

Enid realized that her mouth had fallen open. She closed it slowly. There was, then, a very obvious explanation of the fact that Dr. Henry Holliday lived in a bachelor apartment and was the father of a 3-year-old boy.

FORTUNATE RESCUE

CHAPTER VII

ENID'S contempt for herself grew as she ate her solitary Sunday luncheon. The creamed chicken, and tiny golden biscuits, and iced dessert that she had prepared so carefully lost their taste in her mouth.

Trying to force herself on the attention of a married man, that was what her little plot had added up to. And that was pretty cheap, according to her standards. She shook herself. What she needed was something to do, something to absorb her time and attention. Then she wouldn't be tempted into silly attempts to interest strange men.

She stacked the dishes unwashed in the sink and tied a red silk kerchief over her head. She doubted if she could get any art supplies on Sunday, since the stationery and book shops in the neighborhood would be closed.

But getting out in the fresh air and sunshine would restore some measure of her damaged self-respect.

And she was lucky. At a drug store near the school she was able to purchase a sketch book and charcoal. Armed with these prerequisites she set out for the natural ravine that edged the fashionable suburb and that had been turned into a community park.

Enid found a comfortable seat halfway up on one of the grassy banks of this hollow and, using her knees as an easel, she began to sketch the children at play in the ravine below her. She worked busily until the fading daylight forced her to quit.

She glanced back over the sketches that she had made before she closed the book. They weren't half bad. Her fingers had suddenly acquired a new mastery. She thrilled to a fresh enthusiasm as she retraced her steps to the apartment. Maybe she might even yet make something of her art.

If only she hadn't already wasted a week of her vacation.

Move To Hold Cotton For 21.47 Gains

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 28. (AP)—A move by southern farmers to hold cotton in government loan for a 21.47 price gained momentum here today at a meeting of agriculture commissioners and representatives from 11 states.

The commissioners prepared to act on a modified version of a resolution urging farmers to follow this course, adopted two days ago at a meeting in Dallas. There a smaller group of state officials conferred with Senators John D. Bankhead of Alabama, Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma and W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas.

A committee here worked on a rewording of the resolution, but the essential point was retained.

Earlier the group approved a resolution urging that no limitation be put on sugar acreage.

Declaring that congress already had passed legislation directing Price Administrator Leon Henderson not to place any ceiling on cotton goods which would prevent payment of a 21.47 per cent price for middling 7-8 inch cotton at interior points, Commissioner J. E. McDonald of Texas said, "the public is going to pay on the basis of the ceiling price anyhow, so unless we farmers obtain our price, we're just lessening our chances to produce for defense without helping the consumer."

McDonald declared that because of the scarcity of agricultural labor and increasing labor costs, "regardless of the price, the south next year will not be able to produce an adequate crop—but a good price would help us do so."

The Texas commissioner said he was not favoring "holding cotton for speculative reasons" and that "we must make it plain to the consumer that this action would result in no price rise to him."

Commissioner Tom Linder of Georgia asserted that "our strongest point will be that the ceiling price on goods already has been set."

Linder added in a statement that "it is my considered opinion that if we hold this crop off the market, even if we put in the government loan at 16 cents a pound, we will obtain the ceiling price or better before July next year. . . . The cotton grower is vitally concerned with the fact that the failure to receive a ceiling price will make it impossible for him to produce an adequate crop next year."

"By planting time of 1943 most of the able-bodied young men on the farms who are experienced in the operation of farm tractors and other farm machinery will be called in military service."

"This means that the amount of mechanized farming carried on will be materially reduced. In order to carry on the farmer will have to use more labor and labor will be necessarily higher and harder to obtain at any price."

Other commissioners attending the meeting included Joe C. Scott of Oklahoma, and John M. Bransford of Arkansas.

Largest Battleship Ever Built Slips Down Ways

NEW YORK, Aug. 28 (AP)—The 45,000-ton Iowa, the largest battleship this nation ever built, slipped down the ways of the Brooklyn navy yard Thursday.

The mighty vessel was "launched months ahead of schedule" and is ready to "first take water" farther than any other ship afloat, declared Ralph A. Bard, assistant secretary of the navy, who addressed the assemblage at the launching in the Brooklyn navy yard.

"One of her predecessors helped blast the Spanish fleet at Santiago bay," he said. "Another was scrapped in 1923 in the name of peace—a peace that existed only in the minds and hopes of honorable men."

The huge man of war slipped into the waters of the east river with barely a ripple and floated majestically under the Williamsburg bridge.

Fourth battleship in U. S. naval history to bear the name of the Hawk-Eye state, the 880-foot monster of steel was launched at exactly 9:36 a. m. (CWT) when Mrs. Ilo Browne Wallace, wife of the vice president, smashed a bottle of champagne on the ship's prow. Several more months of work will be required on her superstructure.

Rear Admiral E. J. Marquart, commander of the Brooklyn navy yard, said that according to available records the "Iowa is the heaviest ship ever launched."

Bard said that the Japanese and the Germans had built stealthily and well, "but I guarantee that they have never fashioned such a weapon as this ship."

He said that the Iowa was "a weapon that is far advanced over the battleships that were sunk at Pearl Harbor."

Engagement Of Girl To Nephew Of King True, Says Mother

LONDON, Aug. 28 (AP)—The mother of June Morris, dark-haired, 17-year-old canteen worker, said today that a newspaper report that her daughter was engaged to the Hon. Gerald Lascelles, 18-year-old nephew of King George VI was correct.

"Yes, they are engaged, and there is no thought of calling it off," said the girl's mother. She added that "the way circumstances are now, they will just have to wait until Gerald is 21."

The first edition of the Tabloid London Daily Mirror published a report of the engagement, describing Miss Morris as a Jewess, but the story was eliminated without explanation from a later edition.

ish the sorely-depleted stocks of scrap metal at steel mills. It is estimated that only a month's supply remains.

While summer is here, it is much easier to collect scrap iron, and much easier to get transportation for it to the mills. When winter comes, it may be a different story. There will be more calls on Gray county this autumn and winter for scrap metal, so in effect the current campaign is simple a preview of the "from now on" drive to supply all the needed scrap to build tanks, planes and guns for Uncle Sam's forces.

Box Car To Go On Fire
In connection with the rally, which will be featured with a series of three contests and a dance tomorrow night at the Junior High school gymnasium, the Veterans of Foreign Wars post, conducting a campaign to secure bronze, brass and copper which they will sell and place the money in the service men's fund, will make a house to house canvass tomorrow in an effort to gather every ounce of scrap, including iron, in the city.

The veterans, Boy Scouts and interested citizens will meet at the American Legion hut at 1 p. m. They will start their campaign, led by the old 40 and 8 box car, for scrap and they'll scrap if they don't get some items of scrap at every house.

The big bell on the box car will be rung continuously as it is hauled up and down Pampa streets. It will give warning that the workers are coming and it's time to get the scrap out on the front lawn.

"Every worker will be giving his time and effort free so Pampans can surely put forth enough effort to get the scrap out on the lawn," Commander Fred Fender of the VFW said today.

Following the drive the veterans plan to burn the 40 and 8 box car and give the rims, springs and frames to the scrap heap.

Workers who have volunteered for service, and dozens more are needed, include:

Lee R. Franks, Joe Roche, Jim Sturgeon, J. W. Crisler, Jack Wilson, Fred Fender, Tom Darby, H. G. Lawrence, Mike Roche, O. K. Gaylor, Fred Roberts and others.

All veterans are asked to wear uniforms and caps.

Contractors To Donate

Chairman Jack Hanna today expressed appreciation of a letter received by the Pampa Civilian Defense council, from J. B. Howard, U. S. area engineer, in which Mr. Howard said he was asking all of the 14 contractors affiliated with the construction of the bomber school east of town to turn in their scrap metal to the Gray county collection.

For the rally tomorrow night, this is the program:

Up to 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, contestants in the hog calling, husband calling and fiddlers contest will register at the chamber of commerce office in the city hall. There is no entry fee.

Between 7 and 8 o'clock Saturday night, the three contests will be held under the supervision of James G. Sturgeon and the V. F. W., at the Junior High school gymnasium, with Walter E. Rogers as master of ceremonies.

Winners will be decided on the basis of votes from the audience. A receipt showing a person has sold 50 pounds of scrap metal to a junk dealer, for example, will entitle the holder to 10 votes; if the scrap has been donated the holder will be entitled to twice as many votes, of 20 votes in the case of a 50-pound donation.

There is no admission costs to the contests. Awards of victory stamps will be given to first and second place winners in each of the contests.

Receipts for scrap metal donated can be obtained from the Pampa police department, county farm agent's office, or the chamber of commerce.

At 9:30 o'clock an old time dance, sponsored by the local post of the American legion, is to begin, also in the high school gymnasium.

Proceeds of the sale of donated scrap metal will go into the service men's fund, the activity of the Pampa Civilian Defense council.

Admission to the old time dance will be on the basis of presentation of a receipt showing scrap metal has either been donated or sold by the bearer, plus a 5-cent federal tax, or payment of 45 cents a person, tax included.

By daylight, RAF fighters carried on the round-the-clock offensive, and observers on the English coast heard a steady drumbeat of explosions rolling back from the Nazi-occupied French "invasion" coast.

Other reports suggested possible naval battles were raging in the English channel, shrouded today by heat mist, and in the narrow waters of the Kattegat between Sweden and Denmark.

Heavy gunfire was heard out in the channel, and Swedish reports said cannonading heard at Varberg on the west coast of Sweden appeared to come from warships embattled somewhere in the Kattegat, the route German ships would have to take to reach their home bases from the North sea.

German raiders were credited by DNB with attacking the English cities of Folkestone, Leeds, and Hull.

On the Russian front, Soviet troops fell back deeper into the towering mountains of the central Caucasus, but there were indications that the situation was no worse before Stalingrad and was better before Moscow.

At mid-day, a bulletin from Red army headquarters announced that Gen. Gregor K. Zhukov's central armies "fought the enemy in the outskirts of Rzhnev," the highly important Nazi base on the north flank of the old Napoleonic corridor from Moscow to Smolensk.

Then, without identifying the point by name, the Soviet communique declared:

"In one sector of the western (Moscow) front, our troops occupied an enemy fortified place. The Germans, hurrying in reserves, launched several counter-attacks which were repulsed by our troops."

Field dispatches said the Russians had smashed through three successive lines of fortifications on which the Germans had labored six months to build around Rzhnev.

Tavestia, the Soviet government newspaper, said the Nazis threw every available reserve into the battle for Rzhnev, which yesterday was marked by bloody street-to-street and house-to-house fighting in the northern suburbs of the city.

Northwest of Stalingrad, our troops are inflicting blows against the enemy by counter-attacks and are annihilating his manpower," the Russian high command said.

The mid-day Soviet communique said two Nazi detachments succeeded in piercing Russian defenses in the 40-mile-wide corridor between the Don and Volga, but both breaks were repaired by counter-attacks.

The communique said Red army wiped out one of the detachments, an automatic rifle force, and crushed the other group of tank-led infantry.

With less than 48 hours remaining in which to fulfill a Berlin military spokesman's boast that "the fate of Stalingrad will be decided this week," German field headquarters gave only this terse account of the battle:

"Southwest of Stalingrad, the German offensive is gaining ground against stubborn enemy resistance. Soviet dispatches said the Germans had turned the fury of their aerial assaults on residential sections in the heart of Stalingrad, dropping hundreds of fire bombs to set many homes aflame.

The Nazi command said German troops had forced their way across several more mountain passes in the Caucasus and "annihilated" Soviet defenders barring their path.

The communique asserted also that the Red armies' offensive on the Moscow front near Rzhnev was "amassed up in several places in cooperation with the Luftwaffe."

In London, British military quarters said the situation was considerably improved but that the prospect of a "big strategic victory" for the Russians was not yet in sight.

The Russians said the battle for Stalingrad was mounting in violence at the close of the second month of General von Bock's all-out offensive, and the government declared:

"The Hitlerites bring into action huge fresh tank and infantry forces."

shot down off the southwest coast. The mere record of the two-sided air front against Germany in the 24-hour period preceding the night forays indicates the extent and effectiveness of the Allies' air weapon.

By the United States army air force—an afternoon bombardment of shipyards at Rotterdam, in occupied Holland, where direct hits were scored in the center of the target and on two docked ships.

This was the seventh flying fortress foray against Hitler-held Europe for the American air force and the seventh from which all of its four-engined bombers have returned.

By the Russian air force—raids on the Nazi capital and at least seven other centers in eastern Germany where some industries had been shifted from the Ruhr valley and Rhineland for security from British bombs.

By the RAF—A Spitfire fighter fleet escorted the American bombers on the 300-mile trip to Rotterdam and return. Other Spitfires in massive numbers, some flown by American eagles, hit the German fighter plane base at Abbeville, swept along the French invasion coast and helped Hurricane fighter-bombers hit four German ships off Dieppe.

Reports from Folkestone, on the English south coast, said RAF planes were streaking across the channel in brilliant moonlight all through the night.

By daylight, RAF fighters carried on the round-the-clock offensive, and observers on the English coast heard a steady drumbeat of explosions rolling back from the Nazi-occupied French "invasion" coast.

Other reports suggested possible naval battles were raging in the English channel, shrouded today by heat mist, and in the narrow waters of the Kattegat between Sweden and Denmark.

Heavy gunfire was heard out in the channel, and Swedish reports said cannonading heard at Varberg on the west coast of Sweden appeared to come from warships embattled somewhere in the Kattegat, the route German ships would have to take to reach their home bases from the North sea.

German raiders were credited by DNB with attacking the English cities of Folkestone, Leeds, and Hull.

On the Russian front, Soviet troops fell back deeper into the towering mountains of the central Caucasus, but there were indications that the situation was no worse before Stalingrad and was better before Moscow.

At mid-day, a bulletin from Red army headquarters announced that Gen. Gregor K. Zhukov's central armies "fought the enemy in the outskirts of Rzhnev," the highly important Nazi base on the north flank of the old Napoleonic corridor from Moscow to Smolensk.

Then, without identifying the point by name, the Soviet communique declared:

"In one sector of the western (Moscow) front, our troops occupied an enemy fortified place. The Germans, hurrying in reserves, launched several counter-attacks which were repulsed by our troops."

Field dispatches said the Russians had smashed through three successive lines of fortifications on which the Germans had labored six months to build around Rzhnev.

Tavestia, the Soviet government newspaper, said the Nazis threw every available reserve into the battle for Rzhnev, which yesterday was marked by bloody street-to-street and house-to-house fighting in the northern suburbs of the city.

Northwest of Stalingrad, our troops are inflicting blows against the enemy by counter-attacks and are annihilating his manpower," the Russian high command said.

The mid-day Soviet communique said two Nazi detachments succeeded in piercing Russian defenses in the 40-mile-wide corridor between the Don and Volga, but both breaks were repaired by counter-attacks.

The communique said Red army wiped out one of the detachments, an automatic rifle force, and crushed the other group of tank-led infantry.

With less than 48 hours remaining in which to fulfill a Berlin military spokesman's boast that "the fate of Stalingrad will be decided this week," German field headquarters gave only this terse account of the battle:

were engaged in fierce fighting within the city.

The capture of the Chuihsien base was rated here the greatest success thus far by the Chinese armies in their comeback in Chekiang and Kiangsi province, where they are keeping constant pressure on Japanese forces withdrawing from their extensive conquests of May and June.

Some 200 miles of the 450-mile Chekiang-Kiangsi railway, all of which was in Japanese hands late in June, now has been recovered and the Chinese are rapidly extending the area of their reconquest.
