

Mrs. Roberts To Review 'The Song Of Bernadette'

Mrs. Fred Roberts will review Franz Werfel's stirring novel, "The Song of Bernadette," next Monday evening in the city club rooms at 8 o'clock. This is the second in a series of book reviews being sponsored by the arts committee of the American Association of University Women.

When Franz Werfel was fleeing from his enemies after the defeat of the country where he had found refuge, he hid for a while in Lourdes. A Jew who had actively fought Nazism, he was one of the men proscribed by the Franco-German armistice, and was in bitter peril. And as in the weeks of 1914 he came to know the facts about Lourdes' nineteenth-century saint and the Lourdes healings, he was moved to atone: if he escaped, he would write the song of Bernadette.

"The Song of Bernadette" is the fulfillment not only of this single vow but of an earlier consecration on the part of the author. It is the immanent and undying beauty that can face the world's cruelty and evil and still see the triumphant glory of the "holiness of man." It is filled with the faith in human goodness.

"The Song of Bernadette" has been this year's best seller since July.

The public is invited to the review of this book. A small admission charge will be made.

Former Gas Refiner Loses His Appeal

DALLAS, Nov. 25 (AP)—Assistant U. S. Dist. Attorney Joe H. Jones said today that W. L. Nix, former wealthy East Texas gasoline refiner, had lost his appeal from a two-year prison term in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Nix was convicted by a Federal Court jury of failing to turn over to the government approximately $100,000 in gasoline taxes he collected. Federal Judge T. W. Davidson gave Nix a suspended sentence on condition the tax money was paid to the government. This clemency was later revoked.

Army Recognizes Need Of Women's Flying Auxiliary Squadron

A few months before Pearl Harbor, a high-ranking Army officer is reputed to have brushed aside a proposal for a women's flying auxiliary of the former Air Corps with the impatient exclamation that "we can't have that sort of thing gumming up the defense effort."

"Circumstances, and perhaps the ideas of the higher-ups, have changed," it is stated in an article in the December issue of the authoritative aeronautical journal Flying. "American women flyers have won their place in the war effort."

Foisting out that it is not a very large place, nor very secure, and that the Army restrained its enthusiasm in making belated provision to use their talents, the article reports that "the initial quota for the Women's Auxiliary Flying Squadron—immediately abbreviated to WAFS—was only 40 pilots."

"The requirements were set forbiddingly high, and the War Department has stressed repeatedly that the whole subject of employing women to ferry planes within the continental United States was experimental," it is revealed in Flying.

"It has a definite place nevertheless," the article states, disclosing that "the WAFS promise to become as important to the Army Air Forces as the WAAOS to the ground forces and the WAVES to the Navy."

Any doubt over the bid for equal rights and responsibilities can be put aside provided the caliber of recruits keeps to the top-notch level of the pioneers—and the official requirements were aimed at just that objective, says the article.

First WAFS appointments by order of their acceptance included Mrs. Nancy Love, Mrs. Betty Gillies; Cornelia Fort, Nashville, Tenn.; Althea Rhonie, New York City; Helen Mary Clark, Englewood, N. J.; Catherine Slocum, Bryn Mawr, Pa.; Adela Scharr, St. Louis; Esther Nelson, Ontario, Calif.; and Barbara Poole, Detroit.

Charges of possession and sale of narcotics were filed against a man and a woman, Mariano Morales Samaniego and Ignacio Jasso Gonzalez. The others arrested, including a North American and two Mexicans, are being treated as addicts.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 25 (AP)—His 4-year-old spitz dog, Texas, was despondent after Ed Weidman, Jr., joined the army. It ate little and became ill.

Then letters from his master began to arrive. The family said they knew the dog recognized the scent because he yelped excitedly whenever one of these letters came. His appetite returned, and so did his health.

Pampa May Lose Its Defense School Plant Because Of Lack Of Its Use

A serious possibility that Pampa will lose its unit of the National Defense School system which has been built up over the nation, to provide facilities for training workers for war industries has developed in consequence of the growing apathy among persons here to whom the school is available, according to W. H. Galloway, local coordinator.

The school here has been in operation for more than a year, and considerable numbers of students have been trained therein in the several trades, such as machine shop workers, welders, etc. Most of these have found it possible, virtually immediately to find lucrative employment in war plants of the area.

Jack Oliver always liked to travel. When he joined the army more than two years ago he told his mother that he expected to see more of the world. He was sent to Ft. Sam Houston and has never been transferred, so he is still hoping to do that traveling.

Germans Concede Red Advances

Pampa Harvesters VERSUS THE Amarillo Sandstorm

That same old brand of hard-fought, but clean, football will be played when the Pampa Harvesters and the Amarillo Golden Sandstorm meet at Butler field in Amarillo Thursday, but there's a new angle to this year's renewal of the classic.

It's "All for America," a salute to former Harvesters and Sandies now serving in the armed forces, and a salute that will mean something for it will be expressed in the purchase of Victory Bonds.

In a ceremony at the end of the first half, the football used on the kick-off opening the game, autographed by members of both squads, will be sold to the person buying the greatest amount of Victory Bonds.

Pampa and Amarillo will lay aside their "feud" and as good neighbors try to outdo each other in the purchase of Victory Bonds.

Let's all buy bonds and smash Axis bondage of other nations—a bondage that would be on us now if it weren't for the fine men from Pampa and Amarillo and thousands of other American communities now offering their lives in our defense.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE—"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Good Out Of Evil

De Gaulleists everywhere, both French and synthetic, are perturbed by the sudden shift of Admiral Jean Darlan from the status of a leading Vichy collaborator to the semblance of an Anglo-American ally in North Africa.

Those who have long and bitterly criticized Secretary Hull for what they considered to be shortsighted, futile appeasement of Vichy France, now are intensely critical of the arrangements entered into between Lieut.-Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Admiral Darlan.

Backed into an argumentative corner, they stand firmly on the contention that our apparent ignoring of the De Gaulle leadership has perplexed our potential supporters in France, which, they feel, will do great damage to our cause in the long run.

About this we can not tell, having no underground pipelines to Nazi-occupied France. Neither do we pretend ability to prophesy what will be the reaction of the French people when, at some future time, the whole story of what is going on in North Africa becomes known.

Of certain things, however, we are convinced, and these make us feel that it is much too early for any of us to be too critical. We are convinced that the American diplomatic policy toward Vichy France, and now toward Admiral Darlan, has had the complete and active approval of President Roosevelt.

We believe that out of the much denounced earlier "appeasement policies" has come tremendous practical benefit to the cause of the United Nations. But for them, thousands more of American lives would have been lost when the first landings were made in North Africa.

There was, for instance, one easy landing against a French fort which might have held up our rangers for days and broken up the timing of the entire venture. But from some impelling source not yet identified to us, the commander had received orders to facilitate the American landing, rather than oppose it. This he did.

If the conquest of North Africa means the "end of the beginning"—an essential step toward establishment of a second front in Europe—and if this conquest was facilitated by the Roosevelt-Hull policy toward Vichy, then that policy was justified.

Protesting Too Much: The heavy accent being placed by the rigidly controlled Italian radio upon Italy's intent to fight to the end serves to emphasize the probability that Mussolini's duchy is nearing military collapse.

Get Rid Of The Pennies: If a youngster has 36 pennies in a toy bank, he is hoarding enough copper for making another Garand rifle with which to shoot Japs and Nazis.

Tires Galore: Uncle Sam estimates that there have been five and ten million tires tucked away by motorists, in addition to the five-per-car they are permitted to retain.

The Nation's Press: More than a week has passed since the election with its overwhelming repudiation of Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal, but he has still to give the people the answer they expect.

KEEP TRACK OF LEND-LEASE: The diplomatic, unskillful way in which Gen. Sir Walter Vennings, head of the British supply mission in this country, spoke of lend-lease stirs up a minor hornet's nest in congress and elsewhere.

Common Ground

By R. C. HOYLES

"I speak the plain-word principle, I give the sign of democracy. By God I will accept nothing which I cannot have their counterpart of on the same terms."

A MUCH NEEDED BOOK (Continued): In a former issue, I mentioned a few quotations from John Rustgard's latest book, "The Bankruptcy of Liberalism", showing the direction we were going.

Edison Produced $26,000,000 of Wealth: It is estimated that twenty-six billion dollars of the productive wealth of the United States alone, not to mention the rest-of-the-world, was created by Thomas Edison.

Here is a quotation that Rustgard uses when he is trying to show the necessity of governments and people obeying natural, eternal, impersonal laws. He quotes Tennyson as inquiring, "Are God and nature then in strife?"

This is used under his great chapter, "The Inhumanity of Humanitarianism". This chapter shows the long-time effect of taking by force from those who are productive and giving to those who do not render to society enough to pay for what they consume.

Official statements explained that this measure would enable the authorities to mobilize the country on a total war basis and included all financial and economic resources of the nation. Correspondents of New York financial houses however say that the radical move was promoted in part by a vast hoarding of bank notes by the population.

After the armistice it will be impossible to bring home the A.E.F. immediately. Temporary arrangements for classrooms will be set up abroad as in 1918-19. If recognized educators supervise the program the makeshift can be valuable.

BOMBING: Because of the wide expanse of flat lands in North Africa form nature's own runways, Allied aeronautical engineers are watching new flight tactics developed in the Sialand area where the terrain is somewhat similar.

TURKEY: Willkie, the other day, revealed that Turkish government leaders told him, "We don't want any part in the war. But the first soldier who crosses our frontier will be shot."

DARLAN: President Roosevelt has explained that Darlan's power is only temporary. Among those who quietly but vigorously protested to Washington about the Vichy Admiral were the Jewish leaders of New York.

News Behind The News

The National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

MONEY: Private reports to Wall Street from Elio reveal that the eight-day bank holiday which President Vargas declared shortly after Brazil's entry into the struggle was not quite the routine matter the censors wanted us to believe.

Official statements explained that this measure would enable the authorities to mobilize the country on a total war basis and included all financial and economic resources of the nation. Correspondents of New York financial houses however say that the radical move was promoted in part by a vast hoarding of bank notes by the population.

After the armistice it will be impossible to bring home the A.E.F. immediately. Temporary arrangements for classrooms will be set up abroad as in 1918-19. If recognized educators supervise the program the makeshift can be valuable.

BOMBING: Because of the wide expanse of flat lands in North Africa form nature's own runways, Allied aeronautical engineers are watching new flight tactics developed in the Sialand area where the terrain is somewhat similar.

TURKEY: Willkie, the other day, revealed that Turkish government leaders told him, "We don't want any part in the war. But the first soldier who crosses our frontier will be shot."

DARLAN: President Roosevelt has explained that Darlan's power is only temporary. Among those who quietly but vigorously protested to Washington about the Vichy Admiral were the Jewish leaders of New York.

New Gas Plan

Is Designed To Beat Chiselers

By PETER EDSON

The Pampa News Washington Correspondent: Gasoline rationing in the 17 Atlantic seaboard states has come so close to breaking down in the last few weeks that it amounts to a national scandal.

An estimated 25 million gallons of gas a day have apparently been going into black market sales throughout this area, some with bootlegged coupons, and the only thing which is saving the situation is the expiration of the present system of rationing on Dec. 1.

Experience with gasoline rationing thus far has made it appear that the success of the rationing program in general is going to depend on the ability of rationing officials to devise controls faster than the small percentage of cheap chiselers in the United States can devise ways to beat them.

Estimates of the amount of gasoline which the 8.5 million civilian motor vehicles in this 17-state area should consume under existing rationing were placed originally at 400,000 barrels a day. Instead of that, consumption has been at the rate of 620,000 barrels a day.

Principal source of the leakage has been the "S" or Service coupon book which goes into the discard on Dec. 1. The way this has worked out is that operators of trucks, cabs and similar vehicles entitled to S or unlimited rations, knowing that they could get additional rations when one book was used up, have been in a position to offer his friends or old customers gasoline in excess of their regular A. B. or C. rations.

The outlaw station operator, with this supply of reserve coupons on hand, was then in a position to offer his friends or old customers gasoline in excess of their regular A. B. or C. rations. As each S coupon has been good for five gallons of gas, this business with bootlegged coupons has been flourishing.

Abolition of the S book system on Dec. 1 has served to speed up the disposition of S book coupons in the past few weeks. Knowing that they could not possibly use up all their S book coupons before that date, S book holders have found a ready market for their excess rations.

Now they're adapting this technique to the exigencies of the draft. If their leading man doesn't show up some morning, they quickly rewrite the end of the picture, pull out a stock shot of a railroad platform, and put the heroine in front of it waving goodby with a handkerchief. Then all it takes is some martial music and some good, solid explanatory dialogue, and they have a very timely little piece of merchandise. That fixes that.

More and more evident in the cinematic shape of things to come, is the fine Rooseveltian hand of national policy. Mr. Mellett gave the National Board of Review to understand the other night that he has now landed and is getting the situation well in hand. As he put it: "I find that Hollywood is making hundreds of pictures this year, as in other years. They are, for the most part, very much the same sort of pictures we've been paying our money to see in the past. Thrilling adventures, cops and robbers, horse operas, society dramas, slapstick comedies, song-and-dance shows, and boy meets girl."

ANTI-DOUBLE FEATURE: This inside government report probably didn't startle anybody who had been going to pictures lately. Mr. Mellett, who said horse operas and such were okay by him, went on to recommend a few changes in other departments. One was abolition of the double bill. He indicated that the double bill was making the American people soft.

Hollywood was vastly relieved to read later that Washington apparently did not do the whole way with Mellett on this. Washington wasn't even sure that the saving on materials which would be effected by abolishing extra features would be worth the risk to morale. "Our job," said Mellett's boss, Elmer Davis, "is to furnish the people with factual information, and what they do with their spare time is none of our concern."

Today's War Analysis

(This column, conducted as a daily feature by DeWitt MacKenzie, war analyst, is written today by Oscar Leiding, MacKenzie, now touring the Middle East war zones, is expected to resume shortly.)

Today is the sixth anniversary of the Anti-Comintern Pact, but the resurgence of the Red Army in its western offensive cast a pall over any celebrating the pact members may have had in mind.

A year ago today, as the membership was broadened, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, proclaimed proudly that following the "gigantic events in the East," Communism, without a doubt, had received a blow from which it never would recover.

Among the "gigantic events" was the fact that the German Army was literally hammering at the gates of Moscow. A year ago the Germans were announcing that their forces were about to capture the Soviet capital. Winter and the Red Army turned back that thrust, and the peril to Moscow was relieved.

A year ago the German press spoke of "a determined continuance of the campaign in the East for the complete destruction of Bolshevism," and a real occasion was made of the Anti-Comintern Pact anniversary.

Germany and Japan were the original signers, getting together Nov. 25, 1936, to bind themselves to inform and consult with each other in the event of any military action to combat Communist internationalism, and to take other measures in a campaign against world Communism. Out of this grew the Axis alliance of today.

Italy added her name to the partnership in 1937; Manchukuo and Hungary joined in February, 1939; Spain signed up in March, 1939. Then, in one fell swoop, as the success of German arms in the East stood at high tide, the membership was more than doubled on the fifth anniversary and the pact was renewed for five years. The new adherents were Bulgaria, Denmark, Finland, Croatia, Rumania, Slovakia and Japanese-dominated Nanking-China.

Numbers, however, have not lent strength to the partnership. Foundations Shaky: While the original signatories insisted the pact was not a military instrument and was not pointed at the Soviet Union, as distinguished from the Third International, it has taken on military implications since a world war. Italy's foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, for instance, said at last year's Berlin ceremony that it was not only Bolshevism that must be fought but also the military implications, especially England, which, in violation of its obligations as a member of the civilized community, appointed itself guardian of what the English themselves once designated as the most disagreeable and barbaric grammar which ever existed in history.

The United States was indicted with Great Britain on that occasion, both being charged with having become "assistants to world Communism." Military developments of a year have shown the strength of the Anti-Comintern front to be exactly where it was six years ago today, in the hands of Germany and Japan. Italy, by her losses in Egypt and Libya and her vulnerable position as the Allies drive to join forces across the whole of North Africa, has become ever more clearly the weakest link of the Big Three Axis powers.

Manchukuo and Nanking-China are but Japanese puppets; Slovakia and Croatia are Axis creations; Bulgaria, restrained by her cultural ties with Russia, has proved reluctant so far to contribute any forces to the battles in Russia; Finland has been playing a holding game; Denmark, Germany-occupied, has no separate will; and Hungary and Rumania, while they have sent troops to battle on the Eastern front, have bitter differences over Transylvania which could break out into conflict at any time the fear of German reaction were removed.

That leaves Spain, the arena where the Right and Left fought bloodily in the Civil War, and where the German and Italian-supported Fascists won. But even there, under the pressure of the American and British occupation of French North Africa, there has been a strong and quick shift to complete neutrality.

It may well be that the Anti-Comintern front, non-military though it technically is, passed the peak of its strength when Moscow's darkest hour passed last winter.

STAGE ALL SET FOR SANDIE-HARVESTER GAME TOMORROW

High School Football Menu Replete With Promised Action And Guesses

By The Associated Press

The 16 district champions of Texas school football all will be known by Friday night, but there is a likelihood of several of them having to be determined elsewhere than on the field of battle.

Title ties are possible in most of them although it would take some jarring upsets to change the present picture. Such ties would have to be decided by district committees.

Five champions already have been named:

Bowie (El Paso) in District 4, Lufkin in District 12, Goose Creek in District 14, Austin in District 15 and San Benito in District 16.

Nine titles go on the line tomorrow, but the other two will not be decided until Friday night.

Here is the picture for tomorrow:

District 1—Pampa plays at Amarillo. If Pampa wins, it can tie Amarillo for first place. If Amarillo wins, Amarillo will be champion.

District 2—Wichita Falls plays Burkburnett at Wichita Falls. If Burkburnett wins it can throw Vernon into a tie for the lead with Wichita Falls, provided Vernon defeats Electra. If Wichita Falls wins, Wichita Falls will be champion.

District 3—San Angelo, undefeated, plays Abilene at San Angelo. Abilene can tie for the lead by beating San Angelo; and it could in that case be a triple tie should Sweetwater beat Big Spring. If San Angelo wins San Angelo will be champion.

District 4—Denison plays Sherman at Denison. If Denison wins it will be champion. If Sherman were to win Sherman would tie Denison for the lead and it would be a triple tie should Paris beat Bonham.

District 5—Highland Park plays Greenville at Dallas. If Greenville

Amarillo Boys Today Signing 'Victory Ball'

Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm this afternoon was autographing the white football that will be used in the kick-off of the All-Forever-American Thanksgiving day football game between the high school teams of Pampa and Amarillo, to be played at Amarillo's Butler field tomorrow afternoon.

Yesterday Pampa's Harvesters signed their names on the ball. There were 34 signatures in all, including that of the coach and assistant coach.

The football is to be used on the opening kick-off after Mayor Joe Jenkins, of Amarillo, puts it into play. Mayor Fred Thompson

Breakfast table talk in the downtown cafes this morning was to the effect that rabid backers of the Amarillo Sandies are betting that the Sandstorm will beat the Pampa Harvesters by 12 points in their annual Turkey Day game at Amarillo tomorrow afternoon.

The Sandies, still stinging from last year's pasting by the Harvesters, will be out for revenge in the year's biggest football attraction in the Panhandle. Coach Buck Prejan and his Pampa players have been talking little, but planning big all week. They fully expect to win over the undefeated Amarillo eleven.

Down-state football experts who view the vast Texas high school football panorama from a sports desk in Dallas or Austin do not give the Harvesters much chance to win. They say Amarillo should take the game in a walk.

And—

From a look at the season records of the two teams, that's probably a good deduction. But—

The down-state experts seem to forget that this is the Pampa-Amarillo game and, that being the case, nothing else counts and you have to start from scratch.

Army-Navy Will Be Just Another College Game

By SID FEDER

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 25 (AP)—They're unfolding the vest pocket edition of the Army-Navy football game in the Middles' compact ball park here Saturday; and if Army finishes on top—as it figures to do—the Cadets can thank the Navy for handing it to them on a platter.

For, if it hadn't been for several Navy gold-brads, who wanted the game to be played, there just wouldn't have been any Army-Navy game.

What's more, if football continues during the war, there'll be no more service extravaganzas as the boys and girls have known them in the past, with all the rah-rah stuff, the hullabaloo of marching bands, and the crowds of 100,000 or so sitting in. Instead, it will be run just like any other football game.

It will be a home-and-home affair for the duration, as plans now stand, with West Point playing host to the 1943 renewal before a crowd similar to the 15,000 or so residents of Annapolis, who are the only fans permitted to buy tickets for Saturday's shindig.

All this was learned today from a source close to the Navy, along with the fact that before the President ordered this year's Army-Navy game transplanted from Philadelphia's Municipal stadium to the Naval academy's field, it had been wiped off the slate entirely. The war department, it was learned, had definitely turned thumbs down on playing at all this year, principally because of the transportation problems involved, and because of the rubber and gasoline that would have been wasted.

That's where the Navy men stepped in. Now, they must have known, from the way Coach Red Blaik had the Army guns rolling, that the Cadets figured to mow down the Middles this time. Yet, in spite of it all, the Navy biggies went all out in their argument to have the game played, regardless of consequences.

Sandies May Win, But They'll Know There Was A Game

They may be bruised and battered by the injuries they have received in a mighty tough season but the Pampa Harvesters still have that old-time fight on the eve of the annual classic with Amarillo.

If Amarillo thinks all they have to say is "Golden Sandies" and the Pampa team will simply fall down Amarillo doesn't know its history.

No Pampa football team has ever played anything but their best against Amarillo. This year, as in the past, the Harvesters are rated under the Sandies—but, it happened in 1931 and in 1941, and it can happen again.

The mighty Sandstorm was calmed down to a gentle summer breeze in the game last year—and the "experts" were all predicting an easy Sandie win then.

Coach J. C. Prejan was uncertain as to his starting lineup in

The All For America football game in Amarillo tomorrow afternoon. Injuries have added more difficulty to the question of who will start for Pampa, but the probable starting lineup will be like this: Lard or Robbins at left end; Shotwell or Berry, right end; Bynum and Berlin, tackles; Casey and Edson or Allen, guards; Kerbow or Bridges, center.

In the backfield will be Arthur and Dunham, Stafford or Arnold or Boyles.

Boyles' ankle is still bothering him and Edson has not fully recovered from a back injury.

The Harvesters will leave Pampa at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, eat lunch at Panhandle, and arrive in Amarillo early in the afternoon, ready for the game which is to start at 2:30 p. m.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—If, as we have been arguing, the current hockey season will give an indication of the wartime fate of other sports, you can stop worrying about 'em and send your mind off on a long vacation.

There's a precedent in the meeting of the National Hockey league governors from Canada to play in the United States, but when they started to get the player limit to give the weaker clubs a break, they compromised on a reduction of one.

The clubs that have more than 14 besides a goalie now will be able to keep that extra man, even though they can't use him in every game, instead of selling off their surplus.

Sighted Savages, Etc.

Now that it's no longer a military secret, Bob McCarty of St. Martin's college at Lacey, Wash., feels he can tell the public about the "naval battle" Nov. 14 between the St. Martin's Rangers and the Eastern Washington Savages.

Seems there was a "high fog" that day and a huddle was covered with water, sometimes five and six inches deep.

The chalk lines were only a vague memory; the subs and coaches retired to the covered grandstand and, when a team went back into a huddle, the referee had to hold the ball so it wouldn't float away.

"Oh, yes," Bob oh yesses, "St. Martin's won 6-0."

on his spoor, they're missing a good bet."

Lieut. John F. Hogan of Camp Roberts, Calif., who confesses that his athletic experience at Middlebury (Vt.) college has done him more good in the army than the studies he labored through, must have said the same thing to some of the soldiers.

When he was officer of the guard one night, a sentry challenged him. When the formalities reached the "advance and be recognized" stage, the sentry's voice rang out across the camp: "Advance, officer of the guard, for the physical exercises."

Cleveland Mogul Favors No Play In Majors Next Year

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25 (AP)—President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians expressed doubt today that fans want wartime baseball and declared that he "would rather not open" the ball park next spring if he thought the "woolves" would ride his players for not being in the military service.

"The members of the Indians will have a very good reason for not being in the army," he added. "They'll have wives and children to support."

"But I want to know whether the public will accept that as a valid reason."

Bradley said he had talked to a lot of people who said they wanted baseball, but he explained that these people did not represent a "cross-section of opinion" since most of them were aware of Bradley's baseball connections.

He said he wanted "an expression from the fans" to take along to the major leagues' mid-winter meeting in Chicago next week.

Boston College Is AP Voters' Choice

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—It took a little time, a little patience and a little help from Auburn, but Boston college finally made the grade and today the unbeaten, untied Eagles are the class of the nation's college football teams, according to 118 experts who voted in the Associated Press poll.

No better than third in any of the previous weekly polls, the Eagles took over the top spot after Georgia's Bulldogs, first-place choice for the past month, were bounced from the unbeaten ranks by Auburn Saturday, 27-13.

Georgia Tech, runner-up to the Bulldogs in recent weeks and logical successor to the throne, missed the No. 1 rating by a matter of 34 points and remained in second place, although the Engineers polled more first-place votes than Boston's Eagles.

After spilling Florida, 20-7, for its ninth straight win, Tech was listed first on 60 ballots while only 47 sports writers voted the lead to a Boston college club that trampled Boston university, 37-0, for its eighth in a row.

Picking Winners Precarious Sport This Wacky Year

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor

The Southwest Conference football championship would be decided tomorrow if the statistics held up just once.

That, however, is asking too much in this wackiest race of them all.

To date statistics have not been worth the paper printed on.

Texas plays Texas A&M at Austin. Statistics never did mean anything in that rivalry.

All Texas has to do is beat A&M, and the first championship in 12 years will be in the Longhorn trophy cases.

Texas, on the basis of the records, has the guns to do it.

This is the big chance for A&M not only to gain revenge for the Longhorns knocking the Aggies out of the Rose Bowl two years in a row, but to salvage a somewhat disappointing season.

Anyway, 45,000 will be there to see the game.

One other conference team plays tomorrow, Arkansas winding up the season with Tulsa, at Tulsa. The Razorbacks have a perfect inter-sectional record despite all losses in conference play, but this appears the spot for the Porkers to drop one.

Tulsa is undefeated and untied, and Bowl talk is flowing freely.

Not having hit a single game last week we hereby offer these selections this week:

Thursday—Texas vs Texas A&M at Austin. Picking the Longhorns because they've treated us pretty good this season, only losing twice.

Arkansas vs Tulsa at Tulsa. It may be a good game, but the nod goes to the Golden Hurricane.

Saturday—Southern Methodist vs Texas Christian at Dallas. The Horned Frogs ought to take this, but it should be close.

Baylor vs Rice at Houston. The Owls are really moving. A vote for Rice.

SERIAL STORY THE EDGE OF DARKNESS

BY WILLIAM WOODS

WHEN STORY: Steve Hammer tells the dramatic story of revolt in Stoklund, a hated group of Trollsness patriots. Pastor Aleson, who lives peacefully despite the oppression of his conquerors, but the men will not let him. Solvig, wife and mother, declares the village must face even the bombing of innocent women and children.

TAKE THE INITIATIVE
CHAPTER IX
"PASTOR!" It was the farmer, Knut Osterholm. He limped forward and raised his hands over his head to be heard. "Pastor, we will give you the right to your opinion.

"We will give you your own mind in the matter. But you must give us ours."
"What do you mean?" said Aleson. His thin, boyish face was working with emotion.

"I mean that if we let you go your way, you must let us go ours. You will not be held responsible. But you must give us your holy word that if you are asked questions you will not betray us."

Breathless, they looked up at him. There were tears in his eyes. He gazed down at their hard, dark faces, and bowed his head. For a moment they all waited. Then, "Yes," he said at last, "I give you my word."

Hammer sat down, the white bundles of his hands before his face. The doctor cleared his throat. "I think we are all agreed," he said. "Whispers of conversation sprang up. Each man looked awkwardly at his neighbor to see what he thought.

Gunnar stood up. "It has not started yet," he said, slowly. "But all of us know we must be ready. If we get the guns Hammer has talked about we must have a way thought out to use them."

"On the other hand," said farmer Kjerfot, who was a shy little man about 50, "perhaps if we let well enough alone we won't have to fight. The Germans aren't looking for trouble, you understand, and surely, in such a great war... well, what will it accomplish?" He stopped in confusion, pulling at his little white beard and coughing all the time to conceal his nervousness.

Slowly Hammer turned toward him. "How is it the Germans come to search our houses at night?" he asked. "Who is it who has ordered all the sweaters and blankets in Norway confiscated so we can freeze to death this winter? Who teaches our children in school the most hideous untruths? Who has stolen our food, our factories, our money, even our skins for their army? Do they ask your permission? No, they keep you in an every side, so that not a minute of the day or night is your own. What were you born for? Are you a human being, or a cat, to be dragged in or out every hour whenever your master pleases? Why do we have blacking in the windows and a guard at the door?" he asked.

"It's time we talked business," said the doctor.
"Dr. Stensgard is right," said Gunnar. He saw Solvig nod to him, and plunged on. "Ever since he told me this morning what happened, I've been thinking it over. I think I have a plan whereby we here in Trollsness can hold our own when the trouble comes."

"Ja," said Kjerfot. "But what for? Understand, I'm only asking."
Hammer had heard dozens of such conversations. He thought, "So it comes now. That is the man they wait for. There is always one." He sat down. The fishermen drew closer. Gunnar had gone over to the table.

"Let's get to the point," said one of the fishermen.
"Well," said Gunnar, "look here." He pointed down at the table. "Here, this line is the coast." He traced it with his finger. "Here is the place where the fjord cuts inland. Here is the town, and here, at the end, is the bridge going south."

Lars Malken came forward and stood at Gunnar's shoulder, looking down at the pointed finger.
"Here is the place where the summer house, and the two rowboats he keeps moored at a piling. The Germans will never bother about them."
"Ja," said the doctor, nodding gravely. "That is right."

"Lars, do you remember that this morning I asked you to hide three outboard motors?"
"Motors?" said the old man. "Yes, you did. Of course I remember."
"Where are they?"
"In the cellar of my shop."

"Good. Those three motors must be moved out to the summer house, and buried in wooden boxes, or hidden so we can get them in a hurry when we need them."
"Ha!" cried Malken. "I misjudged you, Gunnar. Good. Good." "Every one of them give us much gasoline as he can spare. That, too, must be hidden in drums down at the summer house. It can be moved there at night."

"We must delegate men to do that," said Stensgard.
"You see," Gunnar went on, "one thing that wins battles is being able to move with more freedom than the enemy. So I first want to make sure we are not trapped the way they were in Stoklund. That we do now. And second, I want to make sure the enemy cannot move, if we can do both those things, we have won on the first stroke."

"So far you are better off than we were," said Hammer. "We were caught unawares."
"Yes," Gunnar interrupted. "If it comes to a fight, and we are well armed and ready, what is the first thing the captain would do?"
"Send for reinforcements, or get planes the way they did down the coast."

"He would telephone to Stoklund. Right? Or even down to Namsos. At any rate, to the nearest strong post of command."
"So."
"Here is where the wires cross over the bridge." He marked the place with his finger again. "Two men must be chosen to cut those wires before the action ever begins."

"And what will you do," Lars Malken cried excitedly, "about the wireless?"
Gunnar stopped to look up. "We come to that in a minute. There are only three ways for them to get a message out, the fisherman went on. "By telephone, by wireless, as Lars Malken has suggested, and by courier."
The room was deadly silent.

"I've tried to think it all out very carefully. We can stop a telephone. We smash the dynamo that furnishes current for the wireless. A courier can take only one of a very few routes out of town. We must post a dozen or so men up on the road that runs behind the hotel. Their task will be to stop any move in that direction. If the enemy moves out in force, we attack those that are left in town. If only a few try to get through, our men, put in the right places, can stop them. The second path out for them is over the bridge where the wires are. We have to destroy that bridge before the action starts. The road north cannot really be commanded from the battery on the point. Half a dozen men there can overwhelm the guard and take over. So that part of it is taken care of."

The doctor slapped his hands together enthusiastically. "Gunnar, you are positively a tactician. Beautifully done. Beautifully."

Pampa Soldier Composes Song: Went On Radio

Listeners heard a new song on the Pampa Army Hour over KPND this noon.

It was "That's My Darlin' Rose," written by Pvt. David Rubin, Chicago, now stationed at the Pampa Flying school, and sung by Pfc. Joe Wells.

Private Rubin, a member of the 1103rd Two-Engine Flying training squadron, has just received word that the song has been accepted and published by The Harmony Music Publishing Co., Chicago.

Rubin's contract with the publishers calls for 50 per cent of his royalties going into an army fund for service men.

The song-writer said that he has dedicated "That's My Darlin' Rose" to Uncle Sam's service men overseas.

Rubin has been in the army for six months and came here last Saturday from Lubbock. Before entering the service he was a retail florist in Chicago.

Communion Service To Be Held Thursday At Episcopal Church

In keeping with the spiritual meaning of the day a Thanksgiving communion service will be conducted in St. Matthew's Episcopal church at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

In making this service available, the church feels that never has America had greater cause to give thanks to God than at the present time.

"For the success of our armed forces in recent engagements; for a land that has been saved from invasion by enemies; for the fact that we are in a position to render aid to lesser favored lands; for the privilege of giving to others, even at our own expense and sometimes sacrifice; for a land in which we may without fear gather to worship God, each according to the dictates of his own conscience; for these and every other blessing let us give thanks and worship God the Father, the giver of all good gifts," the Rev. E. W. Henshaw, minister of the church stated.

Stationed at a camp Picket, Va. is Pfc. Francis W. Cobb, former Pampa News employee and son of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Cobb, who according to the dictates of his own conscience, for these and every other blessing let us give thanks and worship God the Father, the giver of all good gifts," the Rev. E. W. Henshaw, minister of the church stated.

Vital Information

Coffee rationing will cut consumption in restaurants, hotels and institutions by more than 40 per cent from normal use. OPA officials estimated. Institutional users of coffee will register for rationing today, tomorrow and Wednesday and will receive from their local war price and rationing boards allocations of the same amount of coffee they served in September and October for use from November 22 to January 31, 1943.

Secretary of Labor Perkins reported that the living cost of families of city workers rose 1 per cent between September 15 and October 15, due largely to increase of food costs which occurred just prior to OPA action which brought an additional 30 per cent of the family food bill under price control as of October 5. The family food bill in mid-October was 16 per cent higher than last October.

Celling prices for additional types of women's nylon hosiery have been set by OPA. These prices are for stockings that have recently ap-appeared on the market under the name of "nylon," although they are neither sheer hosiery nor made of single filament nylon yarn. Types covered by the new action include nylon hosiery made of "combination," "spun," or "blended" nylon yarns.

Christmas shoppers are advised by ODT to carry their parcels home to ease the burden on store delivery service, cut 25 per cent under last year. Carry packages on buses and street cars during the off-peak hours between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. ODT urged. In cases where purchases cannot be carried, ODT advises shoppers to do their buying immediately.

Varied Events On Pampa Schedule For The Holiday

Varied events are on the calendar for Pampa's observance of Thanksgiving.

Schools will be closed tomorrow and Friday, while students go to Amarillo Thursday for the classic football game of the year between Pampa Harvesters and Amarillo Saddies.

Starting observance will be a Thanksgiving service and prayer meeting tonight, dedicated to men of the armed forces, to be held at Amarada Baptist church.

In keeping with custom, a community-wide Thanksgiving service will be conducted at 8 o'clock tonight in First Baptist church. The Rev. E. B. Bowen, pastor of First Methodist church, will deliver the holiday message; the Rev. Robert Fink, assistant pastor of the First Christian church, will direct a choir of singers from all Pampa churches.

Presiding will be the Rev. T. D. Sumrall, pastor of Central Baptist church, and president of the Pampa Ministerial Alliance.

The current contingent of selectees from Gray county will be guests at a send-off party to be held at 7 o'clock tonight at the American Legion hut. Dan E. Williams and W. C. deCordova head the committees in charge.

Most Pampa stores will be closed tomorrow. A group of filling stations has announced they will close at 11 a. m. Closed will be the city hall and court house offices, post-office, and the banks.

At 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, Thanksgiving communion service will be held at St. Matthew's Episcopal church; and the First Church of Christ, Scientist, will have a special service at 11 a. m.

The All-Far-America football game in Amarillo tomorrow afternoon will bring the best game of the season to the Panhandle, when Pampa and Amarillo teams clash at Butler field. Game is dedicated to former Amarillo and Pampa players now serving in the armed forces.

On Thanksgiving night, a dance will be given by the McClellan Boat

PACKERS

Down town cafes were hard hit by the shortage. Little or no beef was being delivered to restaurants. In most of them you could not buy a hamburger sandwich, and in some of those where you could, the "hamburger" was made from ground pork shoulder.

One meat market man said this morning he had a supply of 200 pounds of meat on his counters to last the rest of this week. He needed, he said, 4,000 pounds. He may get another 200 pounds of veal next week, he added, and he may not. If he does, it will come from Kansas.

Another market manager said he had some cattle of his own but he could kill only a certain amount and that beef would not last long. Incidentally, he said it "made him sick" when he took a ride out east of Pampa last Sunday and saw every wheat field "full of live cattle."

The Panhandle Packing Company, local packers, is not killing beefs under an OPA order; and the same is true of Pinkney Packing and Doty Packing companies at Amarillo, suppliers in this territory.

Wholesalers said today they would be unable to supply any more beef from the Panhandle until after the first of the year when new quotas will be set by the Office of Price Administration and meat rationing becomes effective.

One packer said today: "There are more cattle on pasture in the Panhandle today than there were in 1933, when the government ordered surplus cattle shot to avoid demoralizing the market."

to appear Friday to establish the need for rationing.

"I've had more than 2,000 complaints, largely from the Midwest," Truman told reporters.

He said he hoped to develop through the four officials "such a common picture of the necessity" for general rationing that opposition would subside.

"Once the American people are convinced that this drastic step is necessary, they will be patriotic and co-operate as they always do," Truman said.

Concerning there was no shortage of gasoline in the West and Midwest, Jeffers reminded the house committee that "a car will burn up as much rubber in Oklahoma, for example, as it will in Maine."

"Our problem is to keep the cars running," he added.

"The British First Army, strongly supported by United States forces, is making its way eastward over enormous distances with the utmost possible speed, and greatly helped in the advance by the vigorous resistance which the French troops of Tunisia already are throwing heavy reinforcements into Tunisia."

A Vichy broadcast said the Nazis had landed reinforcements at the Gulf of Gabes.

Without confirmation elsewhere, the Marana radio asserted that the British First Army had "suffered a severe setback in its attempt to gain ground in the Tunisian-Algerian frontier area."

The broadcast said German and Italian tank troops ambushed British tank spearheads of several motorized columns in the coastal mountains, and declared German sappers had cut off the lines of retreat for most of the advanced British forces by blowing up two hairpin bends in the road.

Allied dispatches pictured the struggle as nearing a showdown clear across Tunisia from the Algerian-Tunisian frontier region, with the Axis entrenched in a 30-mile-deep zone along the northeast coast.

A spokesman at United Nations headquarters in North Africa said U. S. Army troops and French legionnaires drove back a German screening force southward from the Scriptal, while British troops compelled a similar Axis screen to retreat in the North around Bizerte.

American parachute troops, guarding an airfield in the South, were officially credited with engaging an Axis mechanized column and taking a number of prisoners.

Meanwhile, American P-38 fighter planes ranged the skies over the Axis-invasion colony, hunting down German and Italian concentrations, strafing troop columns and battling growing numbers of Axis aircraft.

Four Nazi planes were shot down near Gabes yesterday, it was announced.

A Berlin broadcast said German bombers destroyed several American planes on the airport at Bone, in Allied-occupied Algeria, and knocked out 16 of 20 locomotives in an attack along the Algiers coastal railway.

On the Libyan front, British headquarters reported that vanguards of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's triumphant Eighth Army "maintained pressure" on Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating column along the 70-mile road between Agadabia and El Aghelia.

Italian headquarters said bad weather restricted both air and ground fighting.

There was still no indication whether Rommel would attempt to rally his broken Africa Corps for a stand in the narrow El Aghelia defile, a natural defense barrier between quicksand marshes and the sea, or whether he would fall clear back to Tripoli, 40 miles west.

On the Russian front, "a natural Semeon Timoshenko's spectacular winter offensive rolled ahead on both sides of Stalingrad, killing 18,000 more Nazis yesterday and last night, and capturing 12,000 prisoners. This brought the total Axis dead to 44,000, and the prisoners to 36,000 since the drive began.

While the main Soviet spearheads raced westward, scoring a 25-mile advance in one thrust yesterday, a Red Army column drove down along the Volga from the North and joined Stalingrad's garrison in the northside factory district, the Russian command announced.

The break-through laid bare the upper flank of dwindling Nazi forces still fighting inside the Volga metropolis, and virtually clinched the collapse of the three-month-old siege.

Ordered by this relief, defenders of the ruined city pushed ahead in their own offensive, clearing out several dozen Nazi blockhouses, and killing 9,000 invaders.

Latest Soviet dispatches said the Germans, who launched their assault on Stalingrad on Aug. 23, after sweeping 350 miles eastward in two months, were now caught in a narrow strip running through the Don river elbow between Kalach and Trekhostrovskaya.

While there was no confirmation of Stockholm reports that the Germans had ordered a general withdrawal from Stalingrad, British military quarters in London declared the Nazi siege armies were in an "awful" position.

Both the Soviet command and Red Star, the Russian Army newspaper, indicated that German morale was deteriorating rapidly, with the Nazis abandoning vast stores of material, including tanks, automobiles and even airplanes.

The remains of three German divisions, along with three Nazi generals and their staffs, were officially reported captured after being encircled below Kletskaya, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

Red Star said it was impossible to count the spoils left behind as the Germans fell back across the frozen steppes in a sequel to the great Nazi retreat from before Moscow last winter.

Thanksgiving Day Service To Be Held By Christian Science

The annual Thanksgiving Day service of First Church of Christ, Scientist, 901 N. Frost street, will be held at 11 o'clock, Thursday night. Similar Thanksgiving Day services are held by The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, and its branches throughout the world. The order of service includes the reading of a Lesson-Sermon on the topic of "Thanksgiving." Opportunity is also afforded those present to give testimonies of gratitude appropriate to the occasion.

The Golden Text is: "I will praise the name of God with a song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving" (Psalm 69:30).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Give thanks unto the Lord, call upon his name, make known his deeds among the people. . . . Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name: bring an offering, and come before him; worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness" (I Chronicles 16:8, 29).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Gratitude is much more than a verbal expression of thanks. Action expresses more gratitude than speech" (page 3).

yesterday—Tuesday—and said one fighter was downed.

They handed it back two for one for the ineffective pre-dawn enemy raid on the Kwangsi airfield in which two of three Japanese bombers were shot out of the sky and the third possibly was destroyed.

Three hangars believed filled with Japanese planes, a big barracks and a large workshop area at the San-chu airport received direct hits in the morning raid by the American Sky Dragons. Five tons of bombs were dropped on the field, Japan's principal south China reserve base and airplane repair and storage center. Fires were started and oil supplies were believed set ablaze.

A string of bombs exploded on a runway as three enemy planes were taking off. One was demolished before getting off the ground. Fighters attacked the others, probably damaging one.

That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time

YOUR grocer is really a counselor on quality. When in doubt about brands, his "extra something" can guide your choice. Ask him what soft drink he has drunk recently. 6 out of 10 grocers will tell you, "Coca-Cola".

Every sip tells the story of quality in Coca-Cola. How delicious and distinctive is its taste. How only Coca-Cola itself offers this taste. How it goes beyond mere thirst-quenching. How it gives you a welcome feeling of refreshment. How 57 years of experience give it outstanding and unique goodness.

Your grocer knows that when you ask for Coca-Cola . . . or use its friendly abbreviation, Coke . . . you want the real thing. The only thing like Coca-Cola is Coca-Cola, itself.

War-time limits the supply of Coca-Cola. Those times when you cannot get it, remember: Coke, being first choice, sells out first. Ask for it each time. No matter how short the supply, the quality of Coca-Cola carries on.
