Russian Shock Troops Stave Off Disaster

By ROGER D. GREENE Associated Press War Editor
Russian shock troops, attacking with guns and bayonets, were reported driving the Germans from house after house amid the night-mare wreckage of Stalingrad today, and once again it appeared that the astonishing Soviets had warded off disaster.
It was the 39th day of siege. A bulletin from Nazi field headquarters asserted that German troops had captured suburban Orlov, in the northwest section of the city and claimed the encirclement of a major Soviet force to the west of this center.
Soviet dispatches declared the Germans gained only 200 or 300 yards in the northwest suburbs, losing nearly a thousand dead.
The Nazi high command said new Russian assaults against the German barrier north of the city had been repulsed with a loss yesterday of 124 Soviet tanks.
Rallying to Premier Stalin's call to "stand firm," the Red armies were pictured in official dispatches as meeting the Nazi assault in the heart of the city and scoring gains on both flanks of the beleaguered Volga metropolis.
Fresh German divisions brought from other fronts were reported rushing into the struggle, but the Russians said a decisive turn had not yet been reached.
Soviet accounts said the battle now raged in four main zones of the sprawling industrial center: inner city, southwest, northwest suburbs, and along a 40-mile north-west corridor between the Don and Volga rivers.
Inner city—Soviet troops beat off a large-scale German attack and the invaders were "thrown back to their initial positions" with 200 killed and 10 tanks wrecked.
Red Star said counterattacking Russians raced from house to house, ejecting the Nazi and driving them back along streets pitted with bomb craters and choked with debris. To clear fields of fire for their guns, the Germans were reported felling trees which made Stalingrad one of the garden cities of Russia.
Southwest—Russian troops beating off the lower claw of the German pincer captured another village, the fourth in 48 hours, and killed 400 Germans.
Northwest suburbs—Nazi armored cars, infantry, automatic riflemen and dive bombers struck again and again in an attempt to deepen a wedge cut into the city's upper suburbs.
"Five attacks were repelled by the Soviet troops and only after the sixth attack did the Germans suc-

FDR GREETES WOUNDED SAILOR, VISITS PLANT

President Finds War Plants Nearing Peak

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt's inspection of bustling war establishments around the edge of the nation worked out so well that he was giving earnest consideration today to another tour or two through the central and southeastern sections of the country.
He missed those areas while traveling 8,754 miles through 24 states in the last fortnight, paying surprise visits to private war plants and teaming army, navy and marine bases. But he had hopes of visiting them next spring to find out at first hand what they are contributing to the war effort.
He voiced that hope late yesterday, at a press conference at which he released details of his swing around the periphery of America and gave his impressions of what he had seen.
The trip was conducted with all possible secrecy. Not a line was to be published about it until Mr. Roosevelt had come safely back to Washington.
It took him into plants turning out war weapons and to army, navy and marine bases where men were being put into fighting trim. He saw production lines turning out endless streams of tanks, bombers, ships and ammunition.
The President got the idea, he said, that these arsenals were operating at 94 or 95 per cent of efficiency, that they were approaching the tremendous production goals set for them, and that employers and employees were doing their utmost to obtain maximum output.
He said he considered 94 or 95 per cent pretty darned good and added that it would be impossible to reach 100 per cent before the end of next year—because of all kinds of causes, little and big, the majority unpreventable.
He said he was going to ask for a great deal more in the next few months, indicating that the goals would be set higher than they were last January.
At that time he called for 60,000 planes in 1942 and 125,000 in 1943, 45,000 tanks this year and 85,000 next, 20,000 anti-aircraft guns in 1942 and 35,000 next year, 8,000,000 tons of shipping this year and 10,000,000 in 1943. The shipping totals later were boosted.
Mr. Roosevelt said he found the finest kind of morale among the people—a willingness to sacrifice and to accept any necessary war measures. He described the war spirit of the country as a whole as very much alive—except in the nation's capital.
Contending that the war spirit in Washington was far less than in the rest of America, the President spread the blame for this condition among portions of congress, the press and radio, and administration officials.
Seeking to justify their service to the war effort, he said, numerous legislators pry into matters better left to military experts who know more about them. History shows, he remarked somewhat resignedly, that congressmen have been doing this since the beginning of time.
He voiced that hope late yesterday, at a press conference at which he released details of his swing around the periphery of America and gave his impressions of what he had seen.
The trip was conducted with all possible secrecy. Not a line was to be published about it until Mr. Roosevelt had come safely back to Washington.

Civilian Meat Supply Cut; Rationing Nears

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—The amount of meat for civilian consumption was cut nearly 20 per cent today by a government order intended to assure sufficient quantities for the armed forces and lend-lease.
A preliminary to the meat rationing program which will limit consumers to about two and a half pounds a week by the end of the year, the order was issued to meat packers last night by the office of price administration.
The directive, effective until Dec. 31, specifies the amounts of beef, veal, pork, mutton and lamb that packers may distribute for civilian use.
Large packers slaughtering more than 500,000 pounds quarterly were ordered to reduce beef deliveries to 80 per cent of the amount distributed in the same period last year. Pork deliveries were cut 25 per cent and lamb and mutton, 5 per cent.
Smaller slaughterers were instructed to limit deliveries only to the amounts of their 1941 deliveries.
OPA's food requirements committee previously indicated veal would be cut to 80 per cent of the 1941 delivery. OPA, however, explained the armed forces did not plan to consume as large quantities as expected and consequently, veal deliveries would be limited to the amount delivered in the same period last year.
The army and navy said 80 per cent of the "cutter and canner" grades of beef will be taken by lend-lease. This was intended, an agriculture department official said, to allow the army to build up supplies of "iron rations" during the rest of the year for American expeditionary forces.
Lard, liver, hearts and kidneys are not restricted by the order, and while canned meat, sausage, scrapple and similar products are not subject to quota restrictions, they will be affected by the order because the meat used in their preparation is subject to the restrictions.
Quota violators are liable to a year's imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both, and suspension of the right to deal in meat or other rationed products.
Earlier, an OPA spokesman who declined to be quoted by name, said cities remote from cattle areas could expect a shortage of choice beef within the next few days because of the new 23-cent-a-pound price ceiling on dressed beef.

Here's Tip On How To Get Along With Less Meat On Table

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—Wife, bring a thick soup, a heavy salad, a big helping of baked beans with a side-dish of macaroni and cheese, and a slice of apple pie—please.
It's no trick at all to be patriotic on voluntary meat rations which will have effect today, and still eat well enough to slip the belt out a few notches, New York hotel chefs said.
Keeping down to a voluntary consumption of not more than two and one-half pounds of beef, pork, lamb, veal, smoked meats and sausage per person each week will be easy, Oscar of the Waldorf said.
"Most people don't consume that much meat in a week when you average up the appetites of women and children against men," he declared.
"And the substitutes for meat meals are unlimited. There are more than 100 ways to prepare delicious macaroni and spaghetti. Eggs benedictine will taste almost as good with a little additional cheese and no ham. And good old Boston baked beans, rich and brown, will always be a treat."

County School Children Throw Their Weight Into Scrap Drive

Weight of every student in Gray county represented in an equivalent of scrap metal will be the aim in the scrap metal campaign beginning Monday when each pupil will bring to his school his contribution of iron or other metal, to be put on the school's scrap pile. This means the combined weight of 5,300 children in Gray county will be represented.
There will be no dismissal of the schools for this purpose, but collection of the scrap metal will be constantly stressed.
All schools of the Pampa Independent School district will have their scrap piles. There will be scrap collected at the high school, junior high school, Woodrow Wilson, Horace Mann, B. M. Baker, and Sam Houston buildings.
In addition, county schools will be invited to participate, as well as Holy Souls parochial and Carver school.
Winston Savage, principal of the junior high school, said his school had the objective of making the scrap pile of the Texas Defense Guard, located on Court House street between the court house and city hall, look like a mole hill.
Participation of the school children in the scrap metal drive is tied in with the radio program today when more than a million Texas school children solemnly took the oath as Junior Texas Rangers, enlisted for two weeks, to spark the state scrap salvage campaign.

Pacific Raiders Cripple 3 Others

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 —The navy announced today that two Japanese ships probably were sunk, two others were damaged and six Zero fighters were shot down in a recent series of army air attacks against Japanese in the Aleutian islands.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—The navy announced today that United States submarines operating in the Western Pacific had sunk five more Japanese ships, probably sunk two others and damaged one.
Navy communique No. 136 said:
"Far East:
"1. United States submarines have reported the following results in Far Eastern waters:
"One large seaplane tender sunk.
"One large cargo passenger ship sunk.
"One large freighter sunk.
"Two medium sized cargo ships sunk.
"Two medium sized cargo ships damaged and probably sunk.
"One large tanker damaged.
"2. These actions have not been announced in any previous navy department communique."
These successful attacks by American undersea raiders raised the total bag of Japanese ships taken by submarines, as reported by the navy here, to 74 vessels sunk, 19 probably sunk, and 22 damaged—a grand total of 115 ships.

Pampa Man Dies When Struck By Auto On Borger Highway

A 20-year-old Skellytown youth was being held in custody by county officers in alleged connection with an accident at 6:30 a. m. today at Four Corners, one mile west of Pampa on Highway 152, when John Keys, 50, of 521 S. Somerville was killed, apparently instantly, when hit by a car.
No charges had been filed early this afternoon pending the arrival here of District Attorney Thurman Adkins, summoned from Shamrock.
Keys' body was found a half-hour after the accident by Claude Heiskell of Pampa, as he drove west. Heiskell contacted police. Patrolman Jimmie Boswell and Charlie Draper answered the call. Also at the scene of the accident were Sheriff Cal Rose and Texas Highway Patrolman Charles A. Ballard.
Keys, Police Chief Ray Dudley said, had evidently been carried for 50 feet on the front of the car, then fell back over the front fender to the right of the vehicle.
There was a deep gash cut in Keys' head and numerous smaller cuts. Blood marks were on the hood of the car and extended to the rear wheels, the chief stated.
Driver of the vehicle that allegedly hit Keys told his father of the accident on his arrival home in Skellytown and the father brought his son back to Pampa.
The boy was alone at the time of the accident and was en route home to Skellytown.
Keys was en route to work, police said, when the accident occurred and was walking on the right side of the pavement. He was an employee of Frank Yealy, independent oil operator, and had recently moved to Pampa from McLean. The body is at the Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral home.

BRT Chief Says U. S. Should Take Over Railroads

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2 (AP)—The government should take over operation of the railroads immediately to avert a prospective breakdown of the nation's transportation system, said President A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen today.
"The quicker the railroads are taken over the better it will be, in my opinion, for the whole country," said Whitney, commenting on an article titled "Railroads—the next bottleneck," in the October issue of the brotherhood's magazine.
Noting WPB Chief Donald M. Nelson's report that war production increased eight per cent in August over July, the brotherhood president said further increases which the country wants, will hasten a breakdown of carriers by rail. The question of when that might happen is problematical.
"There is bound to be a shortage of motive power and rolling stock," due partly to increased business and partly to "the fact each railroad is operating as a unit. Many cars are being moved empty under their impetus."

Two Sets Of Twins On Football Team

WHICHITA FALLS, Oct. 2 (AP)—Teams meeting the Wichita Falls High school football team, defending state schoolboy champions, think they are seeing double—twice.
It was bad enough with the Smith twins, Bobby Lee and Robble Dea, starring as passers, punters, receivers and blockers.
It's even worse now. Coach Ted Jefferies has added the Bolin twins, Bobby and Bill.

CHILDRESS BOBCATS OUT TO AVENGE DEFEAT OF 1941

Easy Contest Not Expected By Harvesters

Football takes the sports spotlight in this city tonight when the Pampa Harvesters meet the Childress Bobcats in a game scheduled to start at 8:30 at the local stadium.

Coaches Buck Prejan and George Scott put their boys through a light signal drill and pass defense workout to taper off the week's drill for the Harvesters this afternoon.

Several minor changes have been made in the starting Harvester lineup as illness and slight injuries make it improbable that all the first-stringers will play a complete four quarters.

The Harvesters have a more impressive early season than the Childress eleven, coached by Cotton Weldman, who would like to see his Bobcats get revenge for a 1941 setback scored by the Harvesters.

Weldman told his boys the other day in practice that in Charlie Boyles of the Harvesters they will face one of the best runners they have seen up against this season. And taking this advice, the down-state club is all set to bring a halt to Boyles' slashing runs.

Return of Horace "Cotton" Evans, letterman guard of 1941, has bolstered the Childress squad. Evans is expected to see action either at guard or tackle, although he hasn't had very many workouts with the Bobcats.

Showings of the two teams to date have the Harvesters with a one and one card in two outings and the Childress club with two reverses against no wins.

Both teams will be out tonight to avenge one-point defeats, both losing last week by 7 to 6, Pampa to Sunset High of Dallas and Childress to Wellington.

Childress will bring 24 players here for the game and bow-in at Harvester stadium with a reputation of not a great deal in the way of defensive play, but supposedly more offensive minded with stress being placed on the passing ability of Brown, 150-pound quarterback, and a strong running attack.

A special group of reserved seat tickets have been printed for this game and are going at 25 cents plus tax, in addition to the regular general admission.

To avoid considerable delay at the stadium, fans are advised that general admission tickets can be purchased at downtown drugstores.

Cotton Weldman of Childress has announced his probable starting lineup as follows: Bobby Huff, center; Harris Mink and Bill Shirley at guards; Dan Lewis and C. D. Bradshaw at tackles; Clyde Ivy and Roy Harris at ends. Backfield probable starters are Billy Brown, J. B. Morgan, Bill Gray and Charles Kit-chens.

Pampa Harvester lineup: Kenneth Lard and Basil Arnold, ends; Richard Casey and Flint Berlin, tackles; Bobby Edson and Jerry Kerbow, guards; Earl Snyder, center; Bob Dunham, Merle McCracken, Bill Arthur and Charlie Boyles will go in the backfield.

Border Loop Conference Opens Tonight

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 2 (AP)—The Texas College of Mines, one of the question marks of 1942 border conference football, opens its loop season on home grounds at El Paso tonight against New Mexico university.

The game is one of two conference contests of the week-end that sends four teams into intersectional strife, while the ninth, Arizona State of Flagstaff, is idle.

In the other conference game this week, the Tempe State Teachers of Arizona visit West Texas State at Canyon tomorrow.

Top billing in the intersectional games goes to Texas Tech in its game tomorrow night at San Antonio against the Texas Aggies.

Arizona university seeks its first victory over Utah, defending champion of the Mountain Six conference, tomorrow night at Tucson.

In other intersectional games, the New Mexico Aggies entertain the New Mexico State Aggies at Las Cruces tomorrow, and Hardin-Simmons is host to North Texas State at Abilene tomorrow night.

Willkie Given Great Ovation In China Capital

By J. REILLY O'SULLIVAN CHUNGKING, Oct. 2 (AP)—Wendell Willkie stepped from a United States army transport plane here today at the end of a long flight from Russia over an inner Asia route seldom crossed by an Occidental and was welcomed with the greatest demonstration ever accorded a foreigner in this free China capital.

Some 10,000 representatives of various organizations were at the field when the transport "Tien Shan" (Heavenly Mountain) landed with Moon F. Chin, Baltimore-born co-flier of the China National Aviation corporation, at the controls.

Willkie's arrival ended the closely guarded secret of the stages of his 4,000-mile air journey from Kulyb-shev, Russia.

His route had brought him across the semi-desert expanse of Sinkiang, where he stopped at Urumchi (Uthwa), the provincial capital, and the northwest interior provinces of Kansu and Szechwan, whose respective capitals, Lanchow and Chengtu, he also visited.

As Willkie was driven behind a motorcycle escort to the residence prepared for him, more thousands of Chinese lined the thoroughfares of this bomb-battered but still thriving city for a glimpse of President Roosevelt's emissary.

Heading the list of notables welcoming him at the airport were members of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's cabinet; Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, chief of the staff of Allied forces in China, and U. S. Ambassador Clarence E. Gaus.

Someone asked about his visit to Russia and Willkie replied: "They're putting up a great fight over there."

Told that Japanese scouting planes flew in the vicinity of Chungking the past three days, but that there were none today, he brushed off the ominous implications with the light-hearted comeback: "I feel very much complimented. No flattery appeals to me like that."

Once before during his flight a Japanese plane was on his trail, causing delay at one point in northern China, Willkie disclosed. He said, however, he was "in much more danger of being killed by the kindness of the Chinese than by enemy bullets."

He seemed amused at the Japanese air force's attention and to premature broadcasts of his arrival.

REDBIRDS VOW NEW VERSION OF THIS GAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—Taking the weekly football blindfold test (a guy can't always be wrong): Minnesota-Iowa Naval Cadets took Northwestern's Wildcats apart last week in their first major test. But Minnesota, apparently as tough and strong as for these many years, may be something else again. A flier on Minnesota.

Northwestern-Texas: Don't see how anybody can figure Northwestern is going to get any rest here. The Longhorns have scored more than 100 points in their first two games. They won't score 100 against Northwestern. Maybe they won't score at all. The coin says Texas.

Harvard-Penn: There's ivy all over this one. There ought to be some football, too, especially by Penn which gets this vote.

Notre Dame-Georgia Tech: The Irish got a dose of bad medicine from Wisconsin and Tech, seemingly more dangerous than in recent years, is primed to repeat the prescription. All of which makes it difficult to justify this vote of confidence in Notre Dame.

Alabama-Mississippi State: It could happen that this early-season game will decide the Southeastern conference title. No guarantee with this one, Alabama.

Oregon State-California: Either California didn't play its game in the narrow squeak with St. Mary's last week or else the glowing pre-season accounts of the Golden Bears' prowess represented wishful thinking. We'll pick California.

Ohio State-Indiana: Indiana still has Billy Hillenbrand and a wide edge in experience over the Buckeyes who lost heavily by graduation. A faint-hearted vote for Indiana.

Iowa-Great Lakes: Tommy Farmer and the rest of the Hawkeyes looked like extra tough bombers against Nebraska: Great Lakes, touted as perhaps the strongest of all service teams, was upset by Michigan. A wary ballot for Iowa.

Tennessee-Fordham: As long as Steve Filipowicz's passing arm is in shape, the Rams should score. Close, but Fordham.

Vanderbilt-Purdue: The Bollermakers gave Fordham a brisk argument and should do as much for Vanderbilt. Sheer guessing, Vanderbilt.

Pitt-Southern Methodist: Maybe Pitt isn't as bad as that 50-7 plastering from Minnesota would indicate. But they'll have to prove it. S. M. U. Georgia Naval-North Carolina Naval: In which two pre-flight schools quit picking on the colleges. This vote goes to the Georgia Cadets.

Georgia Naval-North Carolina Naval: Nothing but pre-season weeping at Mississippi. This will tell whether it's legitimate. Georgetown-Temple-Virginia Military: Probably close. Temple.

Army-Lafayette: The Leopards scared the daylight out of Cornell last week and should be troublesome for untried Army. A hesitant ballot for the Cadets.

Cornell-Colgate: The Big Red uncovered a new sophomore star in Wally Kretz last week. Ennie, meenie, Kretz!

Holy Cross-Duquesne: Holy Cross was a disappointment against Dartmouth. Duquesne seldom disappoints—the Dukes have won 24 of their last 26 games, lost one and tied one. Duquesne.

Boston College-West Virginia: This looks like Bill Kern's best West Virginia team and the Eagles will need to take care. Boston College.

Navy-Virginia: The Cavaliers have lost Phil Dudley. This vote goes to Navy, despite the William and Mary defeat.

Michigan-Michigan State: Just a shot in the dark, Michigan.

Wisconsin-Marquette: Off last week's form, Wisconsin.

Tulane-Auburn: The Green Wave was a big and pleasant surprise in the rout of Southern California, Tulane.

Rice-Louisiana State: The Tigers handled Texas A. and M. so handily that this guesser, possibly to his sorrow, strings along with L. S. U. Washington/Southern California: Only a reach into the derby will do here. A quick reach and the slip says Washington.

Washington State-Oregon: Ditto this one. Washington State.

Santa Clara-Stanford: More guessing, Santa Clara.

Texas Christian-Arkansas: This keeps getting worse. T. C. U. Wake Forest-Duke: Probably close. Duke.

North Carolina-South Carolina: The Gamecocks looked good defensively against Tennessee. South Carolina.

Skipping over the chalklines otherwise: Baylor-Oklahoma A. and M.; Missouri over Colorado; Tulsa over Oklahoma; Texas A. and M. over Texas Tech.

Boy Hurt In Fall At Cuyler Underpass

Sliding down the concrete abutments of the Cuyler street underpass proved a painful experience for Alfred Lemons, 11-year-old Pampa boy, who suffered a broken left thigh and broken left leg when he fell 11 feet to the ground at 9:35 last night.

Police Chief Ray Dudley went to the scene of the accident.

He has repeatedly admonished boys on the danger of playing around the underpass, sloping walls of the abutments provide an excellent slide, but an extremely dangerous one.

Young Lemons was reported improving today at Worley hospital, where he was taken in a Pampa Mortuary ambulance.

Happy Cards Roll Toward Invasion Of Yankee Field

By GAYLE TALBOT

EN ROUTE WITH WORLD SERIES TEAMS, Oct. 2 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals in particular and National leagues in general felt that they at last had those "unbeatable" New York Yankees badly worried today as the two world series rivals rolled toward Yankee Stadium and a resumption of hostilities tomorrow in the house that Babe Ruth built.

From the way the happy Cards were taking on their 4-3 victory in yesterday's second game at St. Louis and the big plans they were making for taking the Yankees over the hurdles the next three days on their home grounds, anyone would have thought Billy Southworth's scrappy youngsters were at least a couple of games in front instead of merely having deadlocked the play-off at a victory apiece.

"We've got 'em plenty worried," one after another of the Red Birds chortled in the diner.

"And they're going to get worse worried every game we give 'em from here on out," added Mort Cooper, ace of the Cards' mound staff, who was knocked loose by the Yanks in the series opener on Wednesday. Mort apparently had forgotten all about his own misfortune in his glee at Rookie Johnny Beazley's triumph over Joe McCarthy's sluggers yesterday.

Johnny Beazley

Ford Frick National league president, attached great significance to the fact that McCarthy stalked off frequently to complain of decisions in yesterday's defeat, and that he was sore as a wet hen because George Kurovski's timely triple that scored the Cardinals' third run was ruled a fair ball.

"Ordinarily Joe doesn't leave that dugout three times a season," Frick insisted. "When he starts arguing the way he did yesterday you can bet he has something on his mind besides a baseball cap."

The Cards were inclined to think they had got in a jab on the Yanks that would rankle and fester and bring important results in the remaining games when Enos "Country" Slaughter dashed onto third after slugging his double off Ernie Bonham in the eighth inning. The Yanks for the moment looked slightly bewildered, the Cards declared, recalling that Shortstop Phil Rizuto let a simple throw-in go through him on the play.

"I suppose they thought we couldn't do things to 'em like that," said Coach Buzzy Wares with obvious satisfaction. "They'll find out. Yesterday was the first chance the boys got to do a little base running. It upset 'em a little, too, when Johnny Hoppe tore on to second after hitting his single in the fourth."

For all of the 23-year-old Beazley's stout-hearted pitching in the pinches yesterday (The Yankees had men on base in every inning except two), the consensus in the club car last night was that Slaughter gave the outstanding performance in the Cardinals' triumph. They were glad to see it happen to him, too, because he had committed a two-run miff of a fly ball in the opening game.

Neither manager had definitely named his starting pitcher for the third game at the Stadium tomorrow.

Branch Rickey To Leave Cards After Big Series

By HENRY B. JAMESON

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2 (AP)—Some time soon after the current world series, if undecided rumors are true, there will come an announcement of the dissolving of one of the most famous partnerships in baseball history—Sam Breadon and Branch Rickey of the Cardinals.

Rickey, the father of baseball's chain-store system, is slated to switch allegiance to another club, probably in the National league despite recurring reports that he may tie up with the St. Louis Browns. His five-year contract as general manager of the Cardinals runs out this season.

Rickey and Breadon had been working together for 24 successful years—ever since Breadon, then an automobile dealer, invested $2000 in the down-at-the-heels club and was promptly elected president.

From then on Breadon wrote the checks and Rickey did the miracle work.

Now that Sam and Branch have decided to come to the friendly parting of ways they could have found no more fitting time to close the books.

Their sixth pennant-winning team, made up almost entirely of youngsters off the "farm," is in the midst of a ding-dong world series and gives an outside chance of ending the New York Yankees' long reign as unbeatable world champions.

Stagg At Bay

Dr. Tully C. Krioles, president of the College of the Pacific, gives this explanation of how he and "old man" A. A. Stagg decided to continue varsity football this season. . . . "I explained to Mr. Stagg that many of his players would not return; that his squad would be very small; besides, that he was old enough to take a rest. Therefore that the College of the Pacific would give up football."

Stagg listened politely and replied: "Mr. Krioles, College of the Pacific will continue varsity football this fall. . . . And that was that."

Today's Guest Star

Bill Tobitt, Oakland (Calif.) Tribune: "Those colleges who took the last vestige of tradition out of football by substituting steel goal posts for wooden ones can now revert to lumber. In that way two interests are served—the nation gets the steel and the customers on the row, though both promised to do so some time today. McCarthy's almost certain choice for the Yankees was Spud Chandler, while Southworth was torn between his two top left-handers, Max Lanier and Ernie White. The probability was it would be White, because he told Southworth his soupbone felt great last night."

Baffling Bears To Play Sooner Aggies Tonight

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF Associated Press Sports Editor

Baylor's baffling Bears play Oklahoma A. and M. at Oklahoma City tonight to start the most ambitious intersectional football round of the season for Southwest conference teams.

The Bruins do not appear up to the task of taking care of the Aggies but there should be at least an even break for Texas teams along the intersectional front this week-end.

Tomorrow Texas plays Northwestern at Evanston, Ill. Rice battles Louisiana State at Houston and Southern Methodist tackles Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh.

Texas and Southern Methodist should win and Rice might turn the trick against Tulane.

Within the official family, Texas Christian's burly Frogs tangle with rejuvenated Arkansas at Fort Worth Saturday in a game that should be a thriller-diller. It's the opening battle of the championship race.

Indications are that close to 90,000 fans will see the six games in which Southwest conference teams will play, the largest crowd being at Evanston where 25,000 are predicted for the Texas-Northwestern clash.

Here's how they look from this corner (anticipated crowds in parentheses):

Friday—Baylor vs. Oklahoma A. and M. at Oklahoma City, 8:30 p. m. (10,000); It would be no startling upset if Baylor won this one but the Aggies are favored.

Saturday—Texas vs. Northwestern at Evanston, Ill. 3 p. m. (25,000); If the Mustangs don't beat trampled Pitt you can't figure them doing much in the Southwest conference race.

Texas A. and M. vs. Texas Tech at College Station, 2:30 p. m. (8,000); The Aggies ought to bound back from the L. S. U. defeat but a victory by the fleet-footed boys from the plains country would be no shock.

Arkansas vs. Texas Christian at Fort Worth, 3 p. m. (10,000); Arkansas is full of hope but T. C. U. is full of the kind of football that will keep the Frogs hanging around until championship laurels are passed out.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON RICHNESS AND FULLNESS OF LIFE ENDS DISCORD AND STRIFE IN OUR OWN OULDS

Text: Acts 15:1-11; Romans 5:1-11 By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

From the quarter's studies in Genesis we turn now to studies for the last quarter of the year in the Christian life. It is individual and personal aspect, and in family and church. The lesson material is drawn from various sources—the Gospels and the Epistles, and also its supplementary passages in the Old Testament. This is the first of three lessons dealing with personal and individual life.

The studies began naturally with faith in Christ as our personal Saviour. That, of course, is the one and only foundation for the Christian-life. Man may have much natural or acquired goodness, he may manifest fine qualities of life as a citizen and in his family, but he cannot be a Christian or lead a Christian life without a very definite faith in Christ and relationship to Christ as his personal Saviour.

Perhaps a question that is in many minds at the outset is, Why should one be a Christian? Is it not enough to live a good life, to be honest and faithful in all of life's relationships, not only in the home and family, but towards all one's fellow men? The answer to this is given to us very specifically in the Bible itself, even if we did not find the answer in daily life. Most men are conscious of their imperfections. There are few who would say that they have done all that they could in the obligation of love and righteousness, and if they did so, they would be in danger of being like the Pharisee who congratulated God and himself upon all that he did while he despised the poor Publican so conscious of his sin that he would not so much as lift up his eyes to heaven, but cried in his heart, "God be merciful to me, a sinner."

A parable like that, when we take it in relation to all of life, should remind us of the deepest thing in goodness. It is humility, and the man who is not conscious of something lacking might be found to be lacking the deepest thing of all.

Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount sets before men the ideal of perfection. There is little hope of our attaining to that ideal, but what would happen if deliberately we set something less as the goal of human life and as the standard for character?

It is to men conscious of something lacking in themselves that the Gospel comes with its message of peace and salvation. The assurance of Paul, who interprets this Gospel for us as he interpreted it for early Christians, is that if we have faith—that is, if our lives are entirely attuned to righteousness and we have accepted the grace of God—our faith attuned to righteousness, God does not condemn us, but because we love that standard and are seeking earnestly with God's help to real-

NOT IN THE SHUFFLE
A successful industrialist has little time for day dreaming. He has to accomplish his job on hand or lose out in the race. He has to be a realist instead of a theorist. Therefore, when K. T.
Keller, president of the Chrysler corporation, was asked what he thought of the "shape of things to come after the war," he reacted as a practical man of affairs.

ARSENALS: Certain facts are known to U. S. troops in Egypt which are not bruited beyond the borders. It is common gossip in Cairo pubs that Tobruk fell swiftly because contingents of South Africans, containing many soldiers of Boer stock, were so dissatisfied with their leaders that they quit cold rather than serve under them any longer. Churchill sensed this bad blood when he visited the Nile basin and immediately changed not only the High Command but also minor staff officers.

Nation-wide gasoline rationing, the rubber conservation measure recommended by the Baruch committee, may go into effect as early as Nov. 15. Nothing is final yet, but that is the date tentatively agreed upon. Big problem is getting ration books printed and distributed, rationing boards set up, and car owners registered.

Japs Pull Their Horns In Again

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Oct. 2 (AP)—The Japanese, balked in their drive toward Port Moresby, withdrew deeper into the fastnesses of New Guinea's Owen Stanley mountains today, cautiously pursued by Australian troops and harried by Allied planes.

A communique from General MacArthur's headquarters indicated the Australians were approaching Menari, a mountain hamlet 46 miles north of Port Moresby, where it was believed the Japanese might try to make a stand, but apparently there was no contact between the opposing forces yesterday.

Menari is about four miles beyond Nauro, which the Australians re-occupied Wednesday after a swift 10-mile advance from Toribaiva the preceding day.

The comparative slowness of the Australians' progress over the tricky terrain indicated they were taking no chances on running into an ambush. Beaufighters, Alracobras and Flying Fortresses meanwhile attacked the enemy's bases at Salamaus and Buna on the east coast of New Guinea and hammered the mountain trails along which the Japanese were trying to keep supplies moving up to the front.

Relatively little action was reported elsewhere in the southwest Pacific, though Allied air scouts maintained ceaseless patrols over the waters northeast and northwest of Australia.

Prices Are Hiked In Senate Cafe

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—Senators who spent the week debating the need for new price and wage controls, had the problem brought home to them today, when the senate restaurant put out a new menu increasing most of the a la carte orders.

The regular prepared lunches were not raised in price, but, on the contrary were enlarged by the addition of an appetizer, soup and a wider choice of vegetables.

Some of the special items, however, went up as follows: planked tenderloin steak, from $1 to $1.50; lobster with potatoes and salad, from $1 to $1.25; chef's salad, with shrimp and sardines, from 40 cents to 60 cents. A number of other dishes went up 10 or 15 cents and a few had five cents added.

All sandwiches except lettuce, lettuce and tomato and chicken were raised five or 10 cents.

D. W. Darling, new manager, explained that the cost of the food supplies have gone up, and that

It Took Army, Navy, Firemen and Police To Rescue Elsie

JAMESTOWN, R. I., Oct. 2 (AP)—The army, navy, volunteer firemen and police all took part in the rescue of Elsie, a Guernsey cow, when she went to the well once too often.

Elsie, accustomed to feed near an abandoned well, fell into the 10-foot hole when a rotten board collapsed.

After rescuers failed to heed repeating instructions of a sailor, someone called the army. Meanwhile, members of the volunteer police and fire departments were trying unsuccessfully to get Elsie out.

The soldiers set up block and tackle, and then a big truck pulled her out alive and kicking.

The rescue efforts consumed three hours.

Sergeant Survives Parachute Jump And 10 Days In Jungle

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Oct. 2 (AP)—Another story of an American who was dropped unprepared from the skies into the wilderness of this island's jungles and survived came to light today when 20-year-old Sgt. E. Thomas Riley of Old Landing, Ky., walked into a United States base.

The rain-drenched youth said he parachuted on Aug. 7 from the same plane in which Vern Haugland, Associated Press correspondent, was a passenger. Haugland now is in a hospital at Port Moresby recovering from the effects of 47 days in the jungle after he had bailed out of a plane which ran out of fuel while lost in a storm.

Riley said he had spent 10 days walking with no food except a few native berries and then had found a native village where he was fed and guided to the nearest Allied post.

Air Transport Will Approach Parity With Ocean Shipping

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP)—The aeronautical chamber of commerce reported that "by the end of 1943" it was indicated by army air force officers that the number of air transport command cargo planes would have swelled to so many thousands that air transport would approach parity with wartime ocean shipping. The chamber said the American aircraft industry was building "thousands of cargo planes" for swift transport of men and cargoes through the army and navy transport services.

"At present," the announcement said, "these cargo-carrying giants are circling the globe over roughly four rapidly-expanding sky routes."

It said transportation by air already was a "modern miracle of transportation."

SERIAL STORY OF BRIGHTNESS GONE

BY HOLLY WATTERSON

COPYRIGHT, 1942, NEA SERVICE, INC.

MRS. HARPER CHAPTER XX
In her almost two years of private duty she had nursed some testy patients, Candace reflected, but there had been none quite the equal of this terminally ill little old woman, Mrs. Harper.

She was at the moment cleaning up the mess Mrs. Harper had made by throwing a glass of orange juice at the floor nurse, Miss Finch, too—as far as possible, that is, without the complete bath that was the only thing that really would do it.

Finch had orange juice all the way from her cap and hair down to her white brogans. Candace had felt sorry for her, she was so upset and so terrified, but though she had carefully controlled the impulse she had felt strongly like laughing, too.

Mrs. Harper demanded testily from her bed, "Just why are you smiling? Just what are you thinking that's so funny?"

Candace straightened and favored the furious old lady with a most winning smile of candor. "Why, I was just thinking that the thing I really like about private duty is that one meets such nice people," she said.

"Meaning me, I suppose. Meaning I'm not nice. Young woman, you're impertinent!" Candace opened her eyes wide.

"But you would have thought me impertinent if I'd refused to answer," she pointed out innocently. "Mrs. Harper snorted. "You couldn't have told a polite lie, I suppose?"

"That never occurred to me," Candace said. Mrs. Harper snorted again, but more mildly. "You are impertinent. But it's all right, you amuse me. I like people with a bit of gumption. That other little thing," she said contemptuously, "that comes practically crawling on her belly in her anxiety to please every time I ring."

"Finch hasn't been nursing as long as I have," Candace said. "She hasn't yet learned, like Alice, that a lot of the White Queens who go around yelling, 'Off with their heads!' are nothing but old cards anyway. She's afraid of you. And you just rang for her to be unpleasant. "Certainly I'm entitled to have 20 minutes, in peace, for my dinner; you had just had your own dinner; you didn't need orange juice; you could certainly have waited until I got back. Finch is busy enough without you plunging her with unnecessary things when you have your own special to do them for you. She knows you just do it to be nasty and it makes her nervous. No wonder she's awkward sometimes."

"SOMETIMES!" Mrs. Harper repeated scornfully. She added suddenly, "See here, young woman, are you suggesting that I'm a White Queen, nothing but an old card? You'll find I'm real enough, your head will come off fast enough if I complain about you to Dr. Patterson."

"I doubt it," Candace said calmly. "I'm a good nurse, I have a good reputation in this hospital. And you—" She laughed a little. The wicked old woman really amused her. "You've worn out about a dozen specials in two weeks. I think Dr. Patterson would know which of us was at fault."

Mrs. Harper sighed. "I'm afraid you're right," she admitted. Then she brightened. "As a matter of fact I'm thinking of letting my other special go and taking you on for full-time duty."

Candace threw up her hands in genuine horror. "Human flesh couldn't stand it," she said with feeling.

The wrinkled old face looked hurt. "See here, I'm not really as bad as that. There are people who are very fond of me. Take my grandson Duffy for instance."

Candace groaned inwardly. Dufresne Carter Harper was in her opinion the worst plague ever visited on man—or rather, woman. But the old lady adored him, and there was no point in actually hurting her. She said, "Mrs. Harper, I should have told you before. I am asking to be taken off your case."

"What?" she exclaimed, aghast. "Well, there's a gall bladder case that I've been on from time to time," Candace explained, lying easily; "they're going to operate finally. I'd like to be with the case then. It's interesting to be able to follow one through like that."

Mrs. Harper said indignantly, "My case isn't interesting, I suppose?" Candace grinned. "There are people going out working every day with things a lot worse than an already-healed wound on a finger where a benign tumor has been cut out," she said good naturedly. "You could be out and around if you wanted to be."

Mrs. Harper demanded, outraged, "Why would I stay here in this hole if I could be out of it?" "I don't know," Candace said, "unless you like the attention being thought sick earns you. Unless you like being fussed over."

"Well, I never—" Mrs. Harper said. Then she smiled too, weakly. "You win. You're right, partly at least. It's Duffy," she admitted. "He races around so, that when I'm well he spends scarcely any time with me. If I'm sick he almost goes out of his mind, he can't do enough. He's really fond of me, you believe that, don't you?" she asked anxiously.

"I'm sorry," Mrs. Harper said. The old lady sat up sharply. "Give me one good reason why not," she demanded. "My temper isn't better than yours. You're not afraid of me. It can't be that." A sudden thought struck her. "Has Duffy," she asked, "come tom-cattin' around? Is that it?"

"That was it. And exactly the right word for it, Candace thought grimly. She began, "Mrs. Harper, I—"

She saw Mrs. Harper look toward the doorway and she turned too, to see Duffy himself standing there. Her expression chilled perceptibly.

He looked boyish and handsome and he was smiling broadly and laden as usual with flowers and packages. She would have liked to slip out, but of course the flowers had to go with her to be cared for. Duffy managed to touch her and to be a long time in passing them over.

Legislature Would Have Tough Job Revising Election Laws

By DAVID CHEAVENS Associated Press Staff

If the forty-eighth legislature regards the state Democratic convention's platform and resolutions as a mandate to revise the election laws governing expenses of candidates for office, it will bite into a tough and tough question.

Convention leaders emphatically stated at the start of the meeting what they thought the party ought to do. They made it clear that the reforms were not aimed at any one particular candidate, but to all.

Since the convention's swift action, the biggest problem now is to find a champion for the cause, with sufficient courage and political sagacity to bring about enactment of a law with sharper teeth.

Language of the platform plank and accompanying resolutions by Tom DeBerry and Karl Lovelady both pointed and plain.

For the past several years various candidates for public office have deliberately ignored the present law as to the amount of money that should be spent, and have spent thousands of dollars more than the law designates they should spend, said Senator Lovelady's resolution.

"It is recognized that various provisions of the election laws have been abused, evaded or disregarded, and in some cases, openly violated," said the platform plank. Both the plank and the resolution were directed to the legislature, but DeBerry's resolution was a direct injunction to the party's executive committee itself. It said:

"Resolved that the state Democratic executive committee be and is hereby directed to adopt rules and requirements for the disclosure of all known expenses incurred by them and in their behalf by all candidates in Democratic primary elections, and provide penalties for the infraction of same." DeBerry, who has had long legislative experience, believed the best approach was through the party's own machinery. He shared the doubt held by many political observers that the legislature would heed the party platform any more than past legislatures have. Often that has not been at all.

The election law limits the amount of money which may be spent legally by a candidate for United States senator to $10,000. This covers a wide variety of authorized expenses, such as for travelling, hire of clerks and stenographers, printing and stationery, newspaper and other advertising and publicity.

Ordinary citizens observing the conduct of some campaigns in recent years, might wonder how a candidate covering a state as big as Texas personally and by proxy, could possibly hold his expenses down to this figure. Expressions by the convention were a crystallization of this question.

A candidate who conceivably could be trying to keep close track of expenses authorized by his state headquarters, reporting them conscientiously, might plead that his friends in a far distant city had spent certain sums in his behalf and without his knowledge to further his campaign. How a law could be written to overcome such conditions—in which the candidate could be innocent, evasive or downright culpable—would be the problem of the legislature in tightening up the law or the executive committee in writing rules for conduct of primaries.

E. B. Germany, the retiring executive committee chairman, in his last message to the convention was cheered when he said:

"If a man accepts contributions, when he does not know from whom they come, he is not honest with his constituents. He pits himself under obligation to sources which will eventually make themselves known."

"It is a bad situation when obvious expenses are incurred, such as radio time, and not reported. It is a dangerous situation when a candidate has friends who spend money or time in his behalf and fails to make note of it."

If the executive committee meets before January, as it may, it will provide the first opportunity for testing the convention's proposal. It is subject to call of the chairman, but there is no particular business facing it now, beyond the expense resolution. Otherwise, the legislation will have the first move when it meets in January. Hard-boiled opinion in Austin was that many in the legislature—with some members just started on the long road to political leadership—would be thinking about future campaigns that would have to be financed.

Ivrestia said this furious assault gained the Germans only 200 to 300 yards, and declared the Nazi paved the way for their advance by raining 3,000 shells and countless trench mortar projectiles into a single narrow Russian salient.

Northwest corridor—Marshall Semion Timoshenko's armies attacking the German left flank dislodged the invaders from another strategic height, destroyed 18 dugouts and blockhouses, and killed 300 Nazis.

Soviet dispatches said the Germans were forced to abandon "several" hills and ravines in the bitter struggle between the rivers as the Russians sought to break into the northern barrier guarding the main Nazi siege armies.

Ivrestia said 2,000 Germans had been killed at one point.

Heavy German casualties were also reported in fighting around Mordok, in the central Caucasus; below Novorossisk, on the Black sea coast; and near Leningrad. A Red army communiqué said the Russians wiped out 1,500 German and Rumanian troops in a three-day battle south-east of Novorossisk.

Other developments:

Egyptian campaign—British headquarters reported that Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's desert fighters consolidated newly won positions on the central sector of the 35-mile El Alem front, 80 miles west of Alexandria, after driving off an Axis counterattack.

British military quarters in Cairo said the advance, carried out on Wednesday, was apparently a local operation to straighten lines rather since the Revolutionary war. A accused a minority of the press and radio, chiefly commentators and columnists, of disseminating reports not based on fact and telling the people things that don't exist.

Minority, he said, seems to be unfamiliar with the country, just as are some congressmen, and it thinks in local terms and distributes setentious news.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to mention any names.

As for government officials, he said some fifth rate executives or publicity seekers, whose points of view are not rounded out, make picturesque speeches or act out of a belief that their specialties are not receiving due emphasis. He recommended that they button their lips.

The kind of spirit needed in Washington, he said, was that which he learned about in some of the agricultural areas. As he traveled along, he said, he had heard how the local bankers, druggists, newspaper editors and children were going out into fields and getting in crops to help farmers unable to obtain labor.

In the war factories themselves he noted what he termed amazing numbers of women workers plying skilled trades. Plant managers informed him, he said, that in another year probably half the workers would be women.

Turning at one point to persons who had predicted his trip around the country would be of a political nature, the President said he was sorry to have to shock the readers of certain writers. But, he said, the only people remotely connected with politics whom he saw on the tour—and he said he did not talk politics with them—were 11 governors. He emphasized that he had not seen a single Democratic national committeeman or state chairman.

The President left Washington on Sept. 17 and covered an average of 600 miles daily. Heading northwestward, he visited in turn the Chrysler tank arsenal and Ford Willow Run bomber plant at Detroit, the Great Lakes Naval Training station near Chicago, an Allis-Chalmers plant which makes various types of equipment at Milwaukee, and a federal cartridge company factory at New Brighton, Minn.

After taking a day out to cross the plains through North Dakota and Montana, Mr. Roosevelt stopped in at Farragut Naval Training station at Alton, Idaho, and at Fort Lewis, the Bremerton Navy yard and army embarkment port and the Boeing Flying Fortress plant in the Puget Sound area.

Traversing the coastal states, he inspected a reduction plant of the Aluminum Company of America at Vancouver, watched the launching of a 10,500-ton liberty freighter 10 days after the keel was laid at the yard of Henry J. Kaiser's Oregon Shipbuilding corporation in Portland, and looked in on the Mare Island Navy yard and Army and Navy depots on San Francisco bay.

In a single day, the busiest of the trip, the chief executive inspected a Douglas Bomber plant at Long Beach, saw an old Spanish mission at San Juan Capistrano, dedicated the Marine Corps' new training station at Camp Joseph H. Pendleton, and looked in on a naval hospital, naval training center, marine base and Consolidated Aircraft Bomber plant at San Diego.

Turning back eastward, Mr. Roosevelt made his first stop at Uvalde, Tex., and John N. Garner, the former vice president, came down to the train. The two exchanged uproarious greetings at their first reunion since they parted political company over the third term issue.

The nation's principal pilot training center, at San Antonio, drew a presidential visit. Mr. Roosevelt viewed air corps activities at Kelly, Duncan and Randolph fields and at an aviation cadet center, and he reviewed the 2nd Infantry division, which he had known in World War days, at Fort Sam Houston.

The inspections ended with calls at another Consolidated Bomber plant at Fort Worth, a Higgins Industries boat yard at New Orleans, and at Camp Shelby, near Hattiesburg, Miss., and Fort Jackson, outside Columbia, S. C.

It seemed to amuse the President to appear suddenly among the machines and workers and a war factory and find men and women gazing at him in astonishment.

The reasons for the secrecy became apparent with the disclosure that Mr. Roosevelt had entered a zone of actual military. That was in the far west, where he frequently was in sight of the sea.

When he wasn't inspecting, he was visiting members of his family at brief pauses at Seattle, Coronado, Calif., and Fort Worth, or he was sitting in his private car aboard his special train working on official documents or waving at every section hand or farmer he glimpsed along the right of way.

People waved back without ever knowing who was greeting them.

for farm price controls and other changes.

With house farm leaders apparently ready to accept the senate provisions that "adequate weighting" be given to the cost of farm labor in the establishment of price ceilings, the chief point of difference was a proposal to place a floor of 90 per cent of parity under farm prices.

Both the house and senate bills provide for loans on the major farm commodities at 90 per cent of parity, instead of the present 85 per cent. Although the senate measure makes an exception for loans on "corn grown outside the commercial producing area" to protect hog feeders from high corn prices, Brown said the floor, because it might raise the price of certain feeds, "would cause an uncomfortable rise in the cost of meat."

CO SCHOOLS

Today's program, broadcast statewide by the Texas School of the Air, went to every school in Texas.

Cooperating on the program with Thornton Hall of San Antonio, director of the newspaper scrap drive in Texas, were State Supt. L. A. Woods, Governor Coke Stevenson, and Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the department of public safety.

Quotas To Be Exceeded

County Superintendent W. B. Weathered said county schools would go "all out" in the drive and would keep a record of the amount of scrap metal collected. He said the radio program was heard by some of the schools today but he did not know if all the schools tuned in on the program.

"When each room has made its quota, it will receive a certificate of merit from the state department of education, attesting he room's activity in collecting scrap."

"The quota is only 20 pounds per pupil, but we are going to do better than that on the pound-for-pound plan."

Cut out badges certifying children as Texas Junior Rangers have been received by the county superintendent. These are white with red border. Badges have not yet been received by the Pampa schools, although they were sent over the state on September 29.

Pampa schools will use money collected from the sale of scrap for the war purpose fund of each school. Exact use of the fund is to be determined later.

Plans for the schools participation in collecting scrap metal were made at a meeting this morning attended by Jack Hanna, chairman of the Pampa Civilian Defense council, C. K. Trease, industrial scrap salvage chairman, Supt. L. L. Sone, Principal Winston Savage, and Aaron Meek, principal of Sam Houston school.

Teachers Convention

Will Be Strictly Business Meeting

AUSTIN, Oct. 2 (AP)—The mammoth state Teachers association convention this year will be compressed into a compact, business-like session with attendance of less than 500, President B. F. Pittenger announced today.

The convention usually is one of the state's largest, with approximately 10,000 visitors. While the convention is not being cancelled outright, program features of the session which usually attract the crowds have been eliminated, Dr. Pittenger said, because of the imminent writing of gasoline rationing and other wartime considerations.

Dr. Pittenger said that most members of the committees which submit reports and recommendations for action by the association's voting body are also members of the house of delegates, which has a membership of 400.

He said Dallas, originally scheduled as the convention site, still appeared to be the logical place for the strictly-business meeting.

Two Burn To Death

In Apartment Fire

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 2 (AP)—Two persons, a Barksdale field lieutenant and a woman, burned to death today when fire gutted an apartment in Bossier City, across Red river from Shreveport, at 4 o'clock this morning. Evidence indicated they made a futile attempt to fight the blaze.

The victims were: Second Lieutenant Danile Bove of Barksdale field.

Mrs. Vivian Walser. Residents of the vicinity were aroused by the screams of the two occupants but a heroic effort by a sergeant, also of Barksdale field, to rescue them, was futile.

Persons who reached the scene reported that they had heard the groans of the dying persons, but could do nothing to save them.

Broddier City firemen, who went to the scene, found the two charred bodies in the rear bedroom.

Two water faucets were open in the kitchen and several pans were nearby, indicating that at least one of the two made a feeble attempt to fight the blaze. Exit from the house would have been apparently easy because of low windows in the rear.

he would not be surprised to see a sales tax offered on the floor as a substitute for the victory tax.

Wiping out state sales levies, he said, would remove any objections that a similar federal tax would bear harder on one segment of the population than another.

Besides, he declared, states can well afford to make some sacrifices in wartime for the national benefit.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has expressed strong opposition to the sales tax principle, declaring it hits the poor a relatively harder blow than the rich. Herring countered that the income tax, with its sharply graduated rates, gives assurance that the rich man will pay his share.

AAA Checks Rushed

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 2 (AP)—Taking cognizance of post-storm conditions in south Texas, the United States department of agriculture has assured the South Texas Chamber of Commerce that AAA payments to farmers of this region "will be made as soon as possible after their performance with the 1942 programs has been determined."

The regional chamber recently requested that, in view of losses experienced by south Texas farmers in the August hurricane and the needs of some of them as a result of the storm, the AAA checks be released now instead of waiting until Jan. 1.
