Pampa, Phillips Play Tonight

Locals To Meet Perryton Cagers Tomorrow Night

Playing the Phillips Blackhawks there tonight, the Pampa Harvester basketball team embarks on its last week of non-conference play before it tackles Borger and Amarillo in District One northern loop games.

The Harvesters, with an 8-3 winning record, return here tomorrow night to face the Perryton Rangers, a team that whipped the locals 42-38 last week.

Phillips already holds one victory over the Harvesters this season, having taken a 30-21 decision there two weeks ago. Pampa, however, won a game played here 40-25.

The Blackhawks have won three and lost four this season, but their losses were to some of the Panhandle's top teams. They opened the season with 34-28 and 34-22 triumphs over Dumas and Fort Worth, lost to the powerful Stratford Elks 24-29, beat Pampa 30-21, lost to the Harvesters 25-40 and lost to Gruber and West Texas High 24-41 and 22-41.

Tonight's first game between the "B" squads will start at 7:30. Pampa's "B" team is unbeaten in five starts. Not since early in the 1944 season has a Pampa "B" squad been beaten.

Friday night, the local five entertains the Spearman Lynx in a game that will highlight non-conference play. The two teams started a rivalry last year and coaches of both fives were anxious to make a game this year.

Tuesday, February 29, Pampa goes to Borger for their first conference game. Borger has won three and lost two this season, one win being a 1-0 forfeit count over Higgins.

The Bulldogs opened the season with a 48-14 verdict over Sunday, lost to Stratford 23-30, lost to West Texas High 28-41 and won from Plainview 51-34. Amarillo was able to beat Plainview only 35-31 and the Sandies beat Pampa 23-19 in the Claude tournament.

Joe Hayes, Blackhawk coach, will probably start Don Williams and Ben Earnest, forwards, Dick Jackson at center, and Don Seymour and Morris Payne at guards.

Cherry Urges Balanced Sports Program in Schools

Blair Cherry, assistant coach at the University of Texas, urged school to set up a more well-rounded program in sports so that every student could participate.

Speaking to those attending a campus luncheon all-district football players in Amarillo yesterday, Cherry said:

"The next few years are going to be the Golden Era of sports and no student should be excluded just because he can't play football or basketball."

Cherry, who will succeed Dana Bible as head coach at the university in 1947, said plans are going to see a more wide-open brand of football in the future, putting more pressure on the defense.

He jokingly stated the Texas-Missouri Cotton Bowl game, which Texas won 40-27, as a specific example.

Cherry brought along natural-born moving pictures of the game and acted as narrator during the process of the film.

Certificates of award were presented members of the all-district first and second teams. He paid special tribute to Bill Juett, Amarillo all-state guard and Lamall Clay, Pampa back who made the all-state second team.

J. B. Linn served as master of ceremonies and Bernie Howell produced the musical part of the program.

Attending the banquet were: Labadie, Dixie, White, Goobar, Rivers, Patsy, Eddy, George Phillips, and Maury Turner.

Presenters: C. J. Lass, Dub Harris, Clyde Flowers, L. D. Brown and Budie Mosely.

James Knox Kinard, Jiggs Whittington, Gus Coffey, Jack Dargatzis and Scott Roberts.

Honored: C. A. Civer, Jimmy Holman, J. R. Knowles, Trisley Ward and Jack Ward.

Bout Won't Be Held on Barge In East River

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(NEA)—Those who speculated that Joe Louis and Billy Conn would box on a barge in the East River may now rest assured that they will not, Mike Jacobs had vaguely hinted that the fight might go most anywhere from Rochester to the de Jenerio where the men would have been paid off in coffee.

Some dirty no-good even suggested that Fargo, N. D., had a swell chance because of its proximity to Moorhead, but good old Mike would let New York down.

Besides, he says that several conferences with boxing commission chairman Col. Eddie Egan convinced him that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey wanted the scrap held in New York City. It is perhaps just as well for the promoter and principals that the governor didn't want the fight staged in Albany.

"Conn is delighted," remarked Jacobs, hanging up the telephone after advising the challenger in Hot Spring that Yankee Stadium was the site, June 19 the date.

With a pay day like that coming up, I wonder how the old Broad-Undersea Plateau Dolphin would not for 10 per cent of $3,000,000 or more. The Yankees will get enough to buy Hank Borowy back, and then some.

Jacobs said he would promote the Polo Grounds this summer involving the holders of the feather, light, welter, middle and light-heavyweight championships. That is provided he can think of their names, and can name them off hand?

It really makes little difference. One Rocky Graziano sold out Madison Square Garden at a $12 top for his third consecutive $100,000 gate in a bout with one Sonny Horne, another club fighter, Jacobs said he would fight the former Nat Rogers, and the former Nat Rogers.

Minimum for Louis and Conn will be $5. Jacobs refuses to reveal what the top tariff will be, but you can probably multiply that by 20.

"Fresh money is still around. The suckers are taking it."

Jacobs disliked the story brought back from Portland, Ore., by editor Nat Fleischer of The Ring magazine that Louis was booted in exhibitions with Big Boy Brown in the Pacific northwest and the complaining customers tossed paper and whatnot into the enclosures. Louis is now doing preliminary work touring the south with a dance band.

Joe Louis will tackle Billy Conn again on the 10th anniversary of the champion's 21st birthday in knockout by Max Schmeling, and both will have been out of real competition for five years.

Mike Jacobs is so positive that champion and challenger will return to the wars as they left them that he forbids the press to engage in tune-up matches. The suckers are taking this one sight unseen, and will be killed in the rush, as usual.

Long Island Cage Coach Has Mania For Thoroughness

By CHIP ROYAL

AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

NEW YORK—Clair Bee has been coaching cage teams for 22 years. 15 of them at Long Island university, and his mania for thoroughness in his basketball teaching has increased every season.

You can be sure that any Blackbird basketballer is as much a master of the game as expert teaching can make him. If he's had three or four years under Bee, then he's had the works in offensive and defensive instructions, and there just isn't any more to learn.

Probably no other coach spends as much time on basketball plays as Bee. He's got a miniature court and practically everywhere that Clair goes, so does his portable court. He has brightly colored spoons to represent the players, and how he moves them around.

"Slip into the LLU dressing room during the half and you'll see players gathered around the miniature court discussing new maneuvers. They've gone back on the Madison Square Garden floor more than once to win games in which they were trailing during halftime.

Bee regularly presents an offense and a defense made to order for the particular style of play his team is freing. Then if the opponents switch, the Beemen go to their little court, work out the problems, and they're off for another win.

All players reporting to Clair first must master every fundamental of the game. Then follows seasoning with the reserves as the candidate learns to become expert at both the man-for-man and zone defenses, switching from one to the other at irregular intervals to confuse the enemy.

Besides the little court, the Blackbird coach uses huge white cards to point out different plays and how to operate them. On another card for all to see every particle are these words: "No team will ever be great unless each and every player realizes the importance of defensive play!" Bee's basketball philosophy could well be used in every day life. He says: "Quitters and Grandstanders may

Pampa Boy Leads Military Students

Cadet G. K. Hobbs, who was Pampa's representative on the Kemper lecture bureau of Kemper Military school during the Christmas fur-tough, lead all cadets by giving four presentations of his lecture in Pampa before the Lions club, Rotary club, over radio station KFDN and took part in the student night program at First Baptist church.

Speaking engagements for members of the bureau were arranged by Major H. M. Penick, public relations officer of the school. Cadet Hobbs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Hobbs.

He is a great offensive player but seldom, if ever, do anything on the defense. Check up on yourself. A grandstander may make one impossible shot in a game and miss 10 like attempts. No team can consistently win on "hope" and "prayer" shots—Keep the ball until you or your teammate gets a good shot, and the spectators, players and coach will respect you. Throw the ball away on "hope" shots and bad passes, and none will respect you."

PARTY SKIRT AND BLOUSE

Blouses and skirts, the college girl's favorite outfit, go glamorous for her holiday party-going. Here radio ingenue Jean Gillespie wears a black satin blouse with a heavy silver lame skirt interwoven in black. A satin tie belt gives a costume look to the two pieces.

Long Hair Predicted For New Fashions

There's a new rumor making the rounds of the fashion centers: skirts will be longer again. Not quite long enough for Grandpa to start to wax reminiscent about the wonderful days when you saw a glimpse of a "well turned ankle." Not yet. To date, only about two inches have been added to the hemline, but already there is speculation about how this will affect hair styles.

For dress and hair fashions always have been closely linked, as a glance into the family album amusingly proves. There was princess to hardens when the starched shirtwaist and plain skirt was the vogue. Curly and fluff topped feminine heads when dresses were full and elaborate. The flapper era, after the last war, gave us some of the least attractive fashions in dress and hair. However, the tendency in recent years has been toward clothes more becoming to the average woman, as well as toward longer hair.

With longer hair, more attention is naturally focused on grooming, so that girls and women become more aware of the need for regular brushing and careful shampoos. They soon learn that absolute cleanliness gives hair its own special beauty, no matter how to arrange in whatever addition, it becomes far easier to manage, to arrange in whatever style appeals to them.

So today, fashion-wise women, understanding the close affinity between hair and dress, anticipated more of the upsweep or the newer fluid line style as dresses become longer. Hairdressers have taught them how to set their hair between visits, and with hairpins plentiful again, they prepare to tuck up any stray curls into the very newest and prettiest coiffures which may be designed for them.

We, the Women

"The lady made a mistake," said Lt.-Col. Gregory (Pappy) Boyington, pushing flying ace, in answer to a woman friend's announcement that she would marry the hero as soon as she gets a divorce from her husband.

"Pappy's" pronouncement might well go for the accepted modern custom of women in society and celebrity circles making public their new romances before they legally have shed their old.

It's certainly a mistake the ladies are making—and for a number of reasons. First of all, it cheapens all three persons and both of the marriages involved.

And it isn't good taste for a married person to announce his or her plans for the next marriage.

It would be wise for all women in this country's much-married set to take "Pappy" Boyington's comment to heart when they are tempted to publicize a romance that has no right to exist.

Ladies, that would be a mistake. There is plenty of time for announcing of wedding plans after you are free to marry.

Tracy, Nugent, Fay and Lawrence Lead Parade of Broadway Stars

Spencer Tracy... he packed the house despite a weak play.

By JEAN GEORGE NEA Staff Correspondent NEW YORK. (NEA) — On Broadway this season, Spencer Tracy is tops. Elliott Nugent, Frank Fay and Gertrude Lawrence run him a close second, third and fourth. Charles Butterworth and Walter Abel are high on the stationery print list and Betty Fields is claiming rave notices.

There are the stars on Broadway despite a season of bad plays and flop reviews. Tracy will return to the theater this season—about $360 a week—but he has kept the seats and aisles packed despite the weakness of Robert Sherwood's latest play, "The Rugged Path."

GOOD JOB BY GENERAL MARSHALL

The assistance of Gen. George C. Marshall was largely responsible for the cease-fire order in China's civil war, says Gen. Chou En-lai, communist leader. There is every reason to believe this statement and, further, to believe that General Marshall's first diplomatic venture is on a par with his brilliant military accomplishments.

Of course, the solution of China's difficulties has only been started. But even a start at solving what seemed for long to be an insoluble condition was a feat of major proportions.

How General Marshall managed to untangle the knotty problem we do not know. He seems to have arrived on the scene well briefed in the history of a long and complicated conflict. He seems also to have brought himself up to date on the local situation in China in a remarkably short time and with a remarkable insight into its implications.

As a result, two ambitious and implacable rivals have ordered their troops to lay down their arms. A struggle in which both sides seemed bent on nothing less than complete control of China has been halted. A country bled white by years of civil and internal strife has gained a breathing spell. The danger that former allies might intervene on opposite sides of the nationalist-communist struggle is averted at least for the present.

Generalissimo Chiang's government and soldiers were associated with us in Japan's defeat. This government recognized and supported the Nationalist party. Chiang's government was included in frequent references to the "four great democracies" united in fighting the axis. Popular sentiment in this country seemed largely to favor the nationalists in the civil fighting just suspended.

And that may be all to the good. But the preliminary program of reform which Generalissimo Chiang outlined shortly after he issued the cease fire order indicates how undemocratic, by American standards, his regime has been.

His program inferentially admits that anti-freedom laws have been in existence, that activities of rival political parties have been suppressed, that self-government has made little headway, and that political imprisonments have not been uncommon.

As these basic evils are being eradicated, there must be agreement on the amount of power to be delegated to the communists. There must be a workable compromise between conflicting political philosophies. These will not be easy matters to settle.

But at least the bloodshed has ended. And the fact that immediate policy decisions are to be issued by commissioners representing the nationalists, the communists and the United States gives promise that a basis for workable compromise is already established. For which all thanks and honor to America's distinguished former Chief of Staff.

Experiences In Price Controls

(From the Commercial and Financial Chronicle)
By Ludwig von Mises

If this unpleasant experience (of price ceilings) does not teach the authorities that price control is futile and that the best policy would be to refrain from many endeavors to control prices, it becomes necessary to add to the first measure, restricting merely the price of one or several consumers' goods, further measures. It becomes necessary to fix the prices of the factors of production required for the production of the consumers' goods concerned. Then the same story repeats itself on a smaller plane. The supply of these factors of production whose prices have been limited shrinks. Then again the Government must expand the sphere of its price ceilings. It must fix the prices of the secondary factors of production required for the production of those primary factors. Thus the Government must go farther and farther. It must fix the prices of all consumers' goods and all factors of production, both material factors and labor, and it must force every entrepreneur and every worker to continue production at these prices and wage rates. No branch of production must be omitted from this all-round fixing of prices and wages and this general order to continue production. If some branches were to be left free, the result would be a shifting of capital and labor to them and a corresponding fall in the supply of the goods whose prices the Government has fixed. However, it is precisely these goods which the Government considers as especially important for the satisfaction of the needs of the masses.

But when such a state of all-round control of business is achieved, the market economy has been replaced by a system of centralized planning, by socialism. It is no longer the consumers, but the Government who decides what should be produced and in what quantity and quality. The entrepreneurs are no longer entrepreneurs or Betriebsführer, as the Nazis said—and are bound to obey the orders issued by the Government's central board of production management. The workers are bound to work on the plants to which the authorities have assigned them; their wages are determined by authoritarian decrees. The Government is supreme. It determines each citizen's income and standard of living. It is totalitarian.

Price control is contrary to purpose if it is limited to some commodities only. It cannot work satisfactorily within a market economy. The endeavors to make it work must needs enlarge the sphere of the commodities subject to price control until the prices of all commodities and services are regulated by authoritarian decrees and the market ceases to work.

Either production can be directed by the prices fixed on the market by the buying and the selling of the public; or it can be directed by the Government's officials. There is no third solution available. Gov-

THE SUPREME QUESTION

(The Daily Oklahoman)

By odds the most important testimony thus far rendered at the Pearl Harbor hearings is that of General Marshall. He affirms that sufficient fighting equipment was present at the scene of action to break up the Japanese attack, drive away the enemy squadrons, and save the fleet from disaster. But because of somebody's carelessness or incompetence or stupidity the American air force had never been properly alerted and was therefore destroyed before it could get into the air.

For quite a year Marshall had been combing the reserve centers of the country and assembling an air force sufficiently strong to protect our defenses at Pearl Harbor. He had succeeded in his almost hopeless task. The planes were present in adequate numbers when the Japanese bombers arrived. All of that is deeply interesting. But it merely makes the tragedy of Pearl Harbor still more tragic. It does not explain why our forces were not alerted and ready to receive just who it was that failed to act upon that information forthrightly and intelligently.

Thus far the committee of investigation has disclosed many facts that are interesting and some that are important. It was Mr. Roosevelt who ordered the fleet to assemble at Pearl Harbor—where it probably ought to have been located. It was not the reply of Cordell Hull to a Tokyo ultimatum that precipitated the crisis. We had sufficient equipment at Pearl Harbor to defend that harbor successfully, but that equipment was never used. All of these facts are both interesting and important.

But the question of supreme importance has not yet been answered. Who was responsible for the failure to alert our defensive forces or who was responsible for the failure to obey instructions to be on the alert?

Incidentally, the testimony of General Marshall completely destroys the silly pretense that the American people as a whole were responsible for the Pearl Harbor tragedy. The means to prevent the tragedy had been provided. Sufficient equipment was on the scene. The people had done everything that it was their duty to do. It was humanly impossible for the people as a people to do more than they had done. Disaster came simply because and solely because our assembled air forces were not ready to take to the air at a moment's notice, and the man who failed to have our air force ready for instant action is the one who was responsible for the ensuing disaster. Just who was that man?

Government control of a part of prices only results in a state of affairs which—without any exception—everybody considers as absurd and contrary to purpose. Its inevitable result is chaos and social unrest.

Knocking The Coin Out Of

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER
PUBLICITY—Shrewd Albert J. Engel of Michigan has again put his stubby fingers on two problems: The long-range question of future national defense and the immediate difficulty over prompt demobilization of our overseas forces.

Writing in the current issue of the National Magazine, the ranking republican member on the house appropriations subcommittee handling army funds demands complete publicity on diplomatic and military commitments made by the administration in Washington.

Until the American congress, the people and their sons still in service know what the government plans in the foreign field, he says, they cannot be expected to comply blindly with demands for money, men and materials to implement the unknown policies. They cannot be expected to understand why their boys should be retained in remote corners of the earth as policemen for indefinite periods.

FRANKNESS—The officials at Washington, writes Mr. Engel, who is an American Legionnaire himself and had a son in the recent war, "must take the public into their confidence with respect to changing or deteriorating international relationships, the prospects of conflict and the state of our military establishment at all times."

WITHELLED—Congressman Engel tells from his own experiences on the appropriations committee how the facts of our unpreparedness were withheld from him and his colleagues from 1934 to 1941.

He describes how the budget bureau, an executive agency, cut more than $800,000,000 from army expenditures in the very year when the air was preparing for war, and in the period when the chief of staff such as Douglas MacArthur and George C. Marshall were warning the secretary of war that the United States was "less than twenty-five percent ready for battle."

MISTAKES—He discloses for the first time that a 1937 report on Hitler's growing air strength was pigeonholed in the war department, with the result that congress was not asked for permission to expand our aerial forces until after the Dunkirk evacuation and the fall of France in June of 1940—almost three years after the warning from Major General Truman Smith, then our military attaché at Berlin.

Representative Engel also reveals that when Charles A. Lindbergh confirmed Colonel Smith's facts and figures before appropriations in the Spring of 1939, at the request of Air Forces Chief Henry H. Arnold, Appropriations Chairman Clarence Cannon of Missouri permitted only a few innocuous paragraphs of the Lindbergh testimony to be published for the information of congress, the American people and the press.

The Engel article is entitled "Mistakes We Mustn't Repeat."

CRITICISM—Representative Engel reserves his sharpest criticism for the diplomats and politicians (he blames republican as well as democratic administrations) whose "hush-hush" and "you mustn't ask questions" attitude combined to "pull us into an Alice-in-Wonderland land of security" from 1934 to 1941.

His demand that Washington fix a definite foreign program, involving the territory the United States has agreed to occupy and the post-war responsibilities we mean to assume, may point toward a solution of the "we want to go home" problem now worrying overseas G. I.s and their parents back home.

His friendship with high officials in the war department and top-ranking officers at G. I. Q. suggests that he reflects their views in making this suggestion.

Biggest Dog in Scramble Might Get Indigestion

Very few Americans have had the inclination or interest or sources to follow British policy in Far Asia and South Asia. The Zionists, Arabs and others have high-lighted the scrambled situation in Middle Asia. It will not hurt to look further.

Those who know anything at all about Far and South Asian affairs know that British policy has been cold-blooded and deliberate. They marvel at its apparent success. They wonder how long that success can last. They hope that the United States will not be caught in its failure.

British policy has been cold toward the Chinese since they became converts to Sun Yat-sen's nationalism. Chinese soldiers in China for the Chinese. Therefore British interests and communities in Asia tended to sympathize with the Japanese in their attack upon Chinese nationalism and even their aggression against Chinese soil—until the British preserves were trespassed upon. I refer you to the British imperialist press of Trenton, Hankow, Hongkong and Singapore, and particularly to that spokesman of British imperialism, the London Times.

When Japanese troops moved brutally into British great Britain, Shanghai, many Britishers were still inclined to think it preferable to China's recovery of the international (but British dominated) city.

Then came the Japanese attempt to squeeze the life out of Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist China, and the British began to attempt to help Chiang, which had to buck the Churchill compromise with Japan of closing the Burma road. When Churchill knew that he and we with him—would be in war with Japan, only then did he open the door to which Holland has been swallowed up, in Europe and in Asia by her liberator, Britain. More and more Hollanders—most, I think—now believe this, too, to have been British calculation from the start of the war. Dutch shipping, a big factor in the Dutch living, was sequestered by Britain. Much was lost. Little has been returned, since the war. None has been paid for. The large Holland liners are still held by the war. Dutch interests in the Dutch East Indies have fallen entirely into British hands—if rescued at all from native hands. Dutch troops and marines are allowed in the American zone only for patrol in conjunction with British and Indian troops—others have been shipped out of the so-called Dutch East Indies by the British, and are in the status of British mercenaries in Malaya. The British are using Eurasians (partly Dutch, partly native people) particularly, putting them as policemen over the full blooded Dutch.

But the British haven't reconquered the rich islands—no white man has much stomach for that. The desperate Dutch would try it if the British would withdraw it.

The United States has withdrawn it after making all this possible! It's dog eat dog. But the biggest dog may get a fatal indigestion.

GETS TRAINING IN FASCIST SCHOOL
On military duty, Peron went to Italy. In Milan he attended a fascist leaders' school for six months or a year. He got most of his ideas there. When he returned to the Argentine he was assigned to the office of the minister of war, Gen. Pedro Ramirez. In time Ramirez double-crossed Peron. Ramirez became a strong man. Only Peron was a little sicker about it. Wanting power, he became Peron. Peron became the more vice-president and from this office he bossed the young colonels "Junta" that ran things. This was June, 1943.

At this point there enters the picture on Jose Figuerola. He had been a labor adviser to dictator Prieto Rivero of Spain, and was smart. Driven out of Spain and becoming an Argentine citizen, he also became labor adviser to Peron. His advice to the colonel was that he could not consolidate his position in power unless he had the support of labor. Figuerola brain-trusted the effort and wrote the necessary laws and decrees.

First step was to destroy the existing Argentine labor organizations. They were simply declared illegal. In their place a government controlled general federation of workers was formed. Peron, or Figuerola, got three strong socialist labor leaders to run it.

SEEK SUPPORT OF KEY LABOR LEADERS
They were smart in their strategy. Instead of trying to control all labor, they concentrated on the key men in transportation, public utilities and meat packing industries. Controlling these three Peron could tie up the whole country through membership of the Peron unions may be only from 10 to 25 per cent of the workers.

But to conciliate and get at least the passive support of all other labor, Peron put through three laws to freeze rents, put ceilings on prices—and raise all wages.

MACKENZIE'S Column

AP World Traveler

MADRID, Jan. 21.—American motion pictures are having a marked effect on Spanish life, and by the same token are destined to play their part in international relations.

To the Spanish public the Hollywood movies are the reflection of a Utopian way of life. America is the enchanted land.

One very noticeable influence of Hollywood is on feminine hair dress, makeup and fashions. The women of Spain, who are among the most beautiful in the world, are copying American film-doms. American music also is being introduced in Spain, as well as American dancing—including jitterbugging.

However, the thing reaches deeper than that. The folk of Spain are intensely interested in American automobiles, in our modes of travel, in the magic contrivances we have for the kitchen, and in labor-saving equipment for our business offices.

Am the interest isn't merely academic. The Spanish are excellent copyists. They make adaptations of ing. America flew the hump, built a new road, the Burma road, organized Chinese air force and supply, trained Chinese infantry and artillery and engineers. Britain stayed strictly aloof from any actual aid to China. She made a small loan on paper. America supplied the goods for which Britain is to be repaid.

Chiang Kai-shek and his Madam had had the temerity to declare for India's independence. Lord Mountbatten's command, and the commands before his in India, existed to hold the Indian millions in subjection, and to spread back to south Asia as soon as Japan could be whipped. It was very cold, calculating policy, and has the appearance of success. Yet millions remember it.

Now take the fate of Holland. Very few Americans realize the extent to which Holland has been swallowed up, in Europe and in Asia by her liberator, Britain. More and more Hollanders—most, I think—now believe this, too, to have been British calculation from the start of the war. Dutch shipping, a big factor in the Dutch living, was sequestered by Britain. In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD.—This is a strange story about a movie titled "Strange Voyage." It is so fantastic Hollywood still doesn't believe it. But it is all true—because of a movie star's passion for tales of buried treasure and a former film cutter's ability to promote everything from money to a burro owned by the mayor of Palm Springs.

The movie star is Eddie Albert, just out of the navy. The ex-film cutter is Irving Allen, who once produced a short subject, "Forty Boys and a Song," for $995 that was nominated for an Academy award.

"Strange Voyage" cost a great deal more, but nowhere near the $100,000 to $300,000 usually spent on a Hollywood movie. It was a labor of love—and the picture shows it.

Albert donated his time, talent and his 52-foot ketch, the "Cynthia." Allen promoted the money, 10,000 feet of film, and a crew of canned goods for a 31-day cruise to Tontos Santos Bay on the west coast of Lower California. He also directed the picture.

But let's start at the beginning. Eddie and Irving have been pals ever since they were in Hollywood for a film career.

DECIDE ON MOVIE
Irving was impressed by Eddie's many things they see in pictures. American movies are "preferred" in Spain. Last year 132 American pictures were released here and these were 62 per cent of all the films shown in the country. It's interesting to note that Mexican films are increasing. According to available records two Mexican pictures were shown here in 1944, thirteen last year and the forecast for this year runs to 50.

Spain herself produces an average of 40 pictures a year, but the industry still has far to go in development, which was hampered by the civil war of 1936-39 and the ensuing World War. However, this country is doing a magnificent job of sound retraining. This involves the substitution of Spanish dialogue for English and is difficult, since it calls for the synchronization of the English language lip movement and the Spanish language.

STOP JOHN CLAY

By Lionel Mosher

PIKE blew out the match and dropped it on the road. "No," he said.

Lois gazed at Pike.
"Darling," she said, "you're not the F. B. I. You're not even a detective."

"Did Sam tell you to say that?"
"Yes."
He patted her arm.
"Tell him I said to go to hell!"
"But Pike—"
"Do it politely," Pike said. "I want to finish this."
"Sam said you would. He also said it would finish you."
"Well, I'm not going back to New York," Pike said.
"Where can I send a wire?" she asked.
"The inn is nearest, I guess," he said. "Why?"
"Sam," she said.
"What?"
"I've got to tell him you're not coming!"

He had a sudden feeling of suspicion. He glanced at his watch. "I'll wire Sam. That will give you time to catch the 2:30 back to the city."
"I'm not going." Her demure face assumed a look of settled purpose. "Sam said that if you refused to leave, I was to attach myself to you firmly until he arrived."

She smiled at him. She added: "Like a leech, Sam said."
When they got back to the inn, Roger Bland was on the veranda. He beckoned to Pike. "If you have a moment," he said.
Pike turned to Lois.
"Run along, honey," he said.
"But Lois merely tightened her grip on his arm."
"This is Mr. Bland," Pike said.
"Miss Arms."
Roger Bland bowed.
"Lovely ladies," he said, "wherever this young man goes."
"What's on your mind?" Pike said.

"The police," Bland said. "They've been here."

"What for?"
"Questioning."
"They came to the right man," Pike said.
Some of the brightness left Bland's little black eyes. He said: "They wanted you."
Pike glanced at Lois.
"It was Parcher," Bland said.
"The local sheriff."
"Venal?" Pike asked.
"He means," Lois said, "can he be bought?"
"I understand," Bland said. "Surely you were not thinking of—"
"I was wondering if someone else had done it," Pike said. "Is he one of Clay's men?"
"Practically everyone up here is," Bland said.
"Yes," Pike said. "Could you name the exceptions?"
"I could," Bland puffed thoughtfully.
"But not for nothing," Lois said. "Bland's eyes rested on Lois contemptuously. Then he looked at Pike.
"Are you and Miss Arms working on this together?" he asked.
"Miss Arms is quite capable of doing it all alone," Pike said. "Have they found out yet what killed Bateman?"
"I don't know," Bland said, "but I have."
"Sleeping-pills."
"Well," Lois said to Pike. "That information didn't cost you anything."
"It wasn't worth anything," Bland said complacently.

THERE was a look of cunning on the bald man's face. But beneath the cunning Pike thought he could see the beginning of doubt.

"All they can want you for is to ask about Bateman's visit last night," Bland said. "I shouldn't tell them anything."

slightly narrowed eyes, but his expression was quite demure.

"You know everything, Mr. Bland," she said. "Don't you?"
"Practically," Bland said. "Then we can't help you," Lois said, "and you couldn't possibly be interested in helping us, so it you'll excuse us."
Bland smiled. His little black eyes shone. But he said nothing. Pike and Lois went inside.

"Lois," Pike said.
"In case,"
"Yes, darling."
"I understand," Bland said. "Surely you were not thinking of—"
"I was wondering if someone else had done it," Pike said. "Is he one of Clay's men?"
"Practically everyone up here is," Bland said.

Lois was suffering in Europe. The casualties of peace mount until they threaten to exceed the casualties of war. Everywhere starvation, disease, cold, degradation, despair reign. The danger of epidemic is acute—Rev. Dr. Charles Joy, executive director, Unitarian Service Committee.

Improvements Sought for Town By Canadian CC

A number of civic improvements were discussed at last week's regular meeting of the Canadian chamber of commerce which was attended by an unusually large group.

The need for extension and enlargement of the city's sewer system and disposal plant seemed to have first place in the minds of the citizens, and a committee made a report on the estimated cost of that improvement.

The fire department submitted recommendations and a detailed plan for a municipally operated trash and garbage collection system—a plan that they have already presented to the city commission where it was favorably received.

John Caylor, C. R. Hieles, and Carl Zybach composed the firemen's fact finding committee. Caylor introduced the subject with an account of how the committee had visited other cities to study their systems, and how they adopted ideas from various other cities to work out a plan to fit our particular needs. Carl Zybach gave a detailed explanation of the plan, covering the necessary equipment and man power as well as a schedule of charges to be made to cover the cost of the service.

The chamber of commerce voted to approve the plan, exactly as outlined by the firemen and pledged their support to see it placed in operation.

Other improvements discussed were the need for some thirty blocks of additional paving, and the construction of a sidewalk paralleling the highway pavement on Second street to remove the hazard of pedestrians on the roadway.

The committee on aviation reported that plans were under way to provide electric power and that a well is being drilled for a water supply at the air port.

State of Nation

help to develop machinery which, with the backing of public opinion, will assist labor and management to solve their disagreements in a peaceful manner and reduce the number and duration of strikes," he said.

Mr. Truman said most industries and most companies "have adequate leeway within which to grant substantial wage increases."

LEVEL OF PRODUCTION

Mr. Truman said further: "If we manage our economy properly, the future will see us on a level of production half again as high as anything we have ever accomplished in peacetime. Business can in the future pay higher wages and sell for lower prices than ever before. This is not true now for all companies, nor will it ever be true for all, but for business generally it is true."

INCREASE IN SUPPLIES

In promoting an increase in supplies at low unit prices, he said development of resources and enterprises must be developed all over the country, particularly in undeveloped areas of the West and South.

In the military field, Mr. Truman recommended an army - navy strength of 2,000,000 men for this calendar year and said continuation of the draft beyond its expiration date of May 16 will be necessary if enlistments do not obtain necessary replacements of those demobilized.

EARLY FOREIGN POLICY

Augmenting his earlier foreign policy statements, he asserted American peace policy must rest upon justice no less than upon power.

He urged the "greatest dispatch" in the world of the United Nations commission to control atomic energy and expressed "great hope" for development of "mutually effective safeguards" in such control. He said he also believed it possible that the atomic bomb will be outlawed as war weapon.

BUSINESS PROSPECTS

He said that for the immediate future the business prospects "are generally so favorable that there is danger of over-enthusiasm and portentious activity that our grave postwar problems may be neglected."

Domestically, he said industrial peace will have to be achieved through collective bargaining "with government assistance, but not government compulsion."

"Private capital and private management," he asserted, "are inefficient to adequate reward for efficiency, but business must recognize that its reward results from the employment of the resources of the nation. Business is a public trust and must adhere to national standards in the conduct of its affairs."

FAIR WAGES PRACTICES

"These standards include as a minimum the establishment of fair wages and fair employment practices."

"We have won a great war—the nations of plain people who hate war," he declared. "In the test of that war we found a strength of unity that brought us the power of the world. The crash of the power of those who sought by force to deny our faith in the dignity of man."

"During this trial the voices of disunity among us were silent or were subdued to an occasional whine that warned us that they were among us. Those voices are beginning to cry aloud again. We must learn constantly to turn deaf ears to them. They are voices which foster fear and suspicion and intolerance and hate."

POINT DISCUSSION

Elaborating on foreign policy, the President said:

1. When difficulties arise between the wartime allies the United States will not try to remove them by sacrificing its ideals or vital interests; neither will it ignore the deals and vital interests of our friends.

2. The United States intends to preserve the voice of smaller nations in the writing of peace treaties with Germany and Japan, as he said it insisted their voice be preserved in the making of peace treaties with Italy, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

3. The peace we seek is not peace for twenty years—it is a permanent peace.

Even the support of the strongest nations cannot guarantee a peace unless it is "infused with the quality of justice for all nations."

ALLIED CONTROL COUNCIL

4. The Allied Control Council for Germany has made "encouraging progress in the face of many serious difficulties." Transfer from military to civilian personnel of American participation in the government of occupied territory in Europe will be urged at the "earliest practicable date."

5. In the new pattern of Allied control for Japan, the United States, with the "full approval of its partners," has retained primary authority and responsibility. It will continue to do so until the Japanese people choose their own form of government.

6. Gen. George C. Marshall, special envoy to China, is "ably executing" the policy of supporting efforts to bring about a cessation of Chinese strife and in broadening the basis of representation in the central government.

LEGISLATION URGED

The President repeated that quick legislation is proceeding as quickly as possible consistent with military needs.

The President renewed requests for action by congress on 21 pieces of legislation, including measures to raise minimum wages, to extend price and rent controls a full year beyond June 30, and to extend priority and inventory controls of the second war powers act beyond its June 30 expiration date.

He also asked for legislation to provide ceiling prices for old and new houses, universal military training, and merger of the armed went through the picket lines and were on the job. Office workers, foremen and superintendents were on the job.

Texas Strikes

Pickets went up at Hughes at 10 p.m. last night, two hours before the time of the strike call. This was done because the regular shift change is at 11 p.m. A number of cars passed through the line at the time of the change, but everything was orderly.

By 6 a.m. today a crowd of some 350 union men and women were standing at the main Hughes gate off Harrisburg, and other knots of workers were gathered at the other six gates.

Last night, a direct appeal was sent to Howard Hughes, a Culver City, Calif., owner of the plant, by the Local 1742 of the steelworkers at Hughes Tool company.

The appeal urged him to intervene and direct local officers of the plant to comply with the compromise figure of 18 1/2 cents offered by the President. The telegraphic appeal was sent over the signature of T. D. Walker, president, of the local, and urged immediate action by Hughes to comply with the President's offer.

At Mosher Steel company in Houston, where it had been announced production would proceed if possible, only four workers were reported to have crossed the picket lines last night. Several foremen and office workers went through the lines.

At the other nine plants here everything was quiet.

Sheffield Steel's big plant on the industrial road started tapering off operations yesterday, and this morning there was no attempt at production. Maintenance men and office workers were on the job.

Everything was quiet at Reed Roller Bit company, the American Can company, Continental Can company, Texas Electric Steel casting company, Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, Rheem Manufacturing company, Dedman Foundry and Machine company and the American Chain and Cable company.

services and said food subsidies should be continued.

INFLATION CHIEF WORRY

Termining inflation "still our chief worry," Mr. Truman said that because of its "dangerously powerful" pressures and because future governmental costs call for large revenues he cannot recommend any further tax reduction now.

The inflationary pressures on prices and rents, with relatively few exceptions," Mr. Truman asserted, "are now at an all-time peak. Unless the price control act is renewed there will be no limit to which our price levels would soar. Our country would face a national disaster."

Bilbo confided, "will be devoted exclusively to the virtues and accomplishments of filibustering from 1789 to the present time."

The Mississippi added that because he has so many other subjects to discuss, it is hardly likely he will get around to reading passages from his new book, to be published in March. A treatise on race relations, it is entitled "Take Your Choice—Separation or Mongrelization."

emphasized that if they receive the 36th division association resolution, they will refer it to the full membership of their respective committees.

The resolution declared that the division suffered nearly 2,900 casualties in the double crossing of the Rapido. It asked congress to investigate and "take the necessary steps to correct a military system that will permit an inefficient and inexperienced officer, such as Gen. Mark W. Clark, in a high command to destroy the young manhood of this country, and to prevent future soldiers being sacrificed wastefully and uselessly."

The war department quickly came to Clark's defense, saying the Rapido river action was a diversionary action to reduce German pressure against the Anzio beachhead.

Saying Clark had been ordered by Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, commander of the 15th army group, to make the attack, a war department spokesman added that the men who died in the assault "did not die in vain."

Allen reported this morning that his dog was one of the first to be picked up by the dog catcher.

A new supply of 1946 dog license tags have been received at the police station and owners are urged to get their dogs vaccinated and licensed immediately.

Allen, incidentally, recovered his dog before the three-day "grace period" had elapsed.

Dogs that are taken to the pound are kept three days. If they are not claimed by then they will be killed.

Parents Held

"couldn't get a civil answer" to inquiries regarding her whereabouts, Davis said.

This knee-deep grave was situated in a wooded pasture about 400 yards west of highway 281 and about 100 yards off a side road leading to Potect, about three miles from the former home of Love.

Olsen said he was told the child was buried Christmas Eve "but didn't die until Christmas morning," following which the body was taken to San Antonio and left overnight in a car at a tourist camp. It was buried the following day. The complaint did not specify the manner of death.

The mother is expecting another child in March.

Davis said when investigation first began he was told the child had been left in a service station rest room "somewhere in North Texas or Oklahoma" with a note pinned to her clothing which said, "we are poor people. Please take good care of our baby."

Later the location of the service station was changed to "somewhere toward Louisiana." Both mother and father were charged with child desertion. Continued questioning brought statements Saturday night from the parents which led to the recovery of the body.

Examining trial for Love this morning bound him over to the grand jury without bond, McClain said. Examining trial has been set for the woman this afternoon.
