Iran Dispute May Provide First Test for New United Nations Organization

First Meeting Of Council Is Set Tomorrow

LONDON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Nasrullah Entezam, Iran delegate to the United Nations Assembly, said today his country planned to appeal immediately to the new World Security Council to resolve its dispute with Russia and prevent the movement of further red army reinforcements into Iran.

The delegate, former Iran foreign minister, said the issue would be taken to the security council as soon as it is in operation.

The 11-nation council, of which Russia is one of the five powers with a veto capable of preventing council action on any issue, is scheduled to hold its first meeting tomorrow, and the appeal threatened to confront the new peace organization with the first test of its powers.

The controversy springs from the See UNITED NATIONS, Page 8

New Offer Made By Regular Army To Reserve Corps

All members of the enlisted reserve corps on inactive status who request enlistment in the regular army on or before January 31, 1946, may be administratively discharged from the enlisted reserve corps and enlisted in the regular army in the grade held in the reserve corps, it was announced today.

Word that enlisted reserve corps may retain their grade in the regular army was received by the local recruiting station from the war department.

The telegram stated that "members of the enlisted reserve corps on an inactive status, who request enlistment in the regular army on or after February 1, 1946, will be administratively discharged from the enlisted reserve corps and enlisted in the regular army in the grade of private, except that such individuals may be enlisted in the regular army in such higher grades as may be authorized by war department instructions in effect at the time of enlistment in the regular army for persons who are not members of the enlisted reserve corps."

Summed up, this means that men who in the enlisted reserve corps who wish to avail themselves of family allotments, and the 20-year retirement benefits, have until January 31 to reenlist and also retain their rank held at time of discharge.

Life of Draft Law Poses Complication

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—The uncertain life of the present draft law posed a new complication today in the already difficult task of finding demobilization replacement funds for the army.

Influential members of the house military committee, disclosed that they are ready to let selective service die on May 15—the day the existing law is to expire unless congress extends it.

The army has been relying largely upon the draft for recruits to replace the clamoring long-service GI's overseas, but in recent months, it has been falling short of meeting the average monthly induction requirements of 50,000 men.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower told demobilization-conscious lawmakers yesterday the war department has ordered that by June 30 all men with two years of service or 30 See DRAFT LAW, Page 8

Pampa Gives Up Role as Coldest Spot in State

Pampa had stepped out of its role today as the coldest spot in the state—which most of the time it has had—with the temperature dropping last night to 17 above. That was at 3 a. m. Around 5:30 it had risen to 28.

It didn't have any snow to speak of either. But Clarendon had snow—eight inches of it—and was recorded as the coldest point registered in the state overnight, with 2 plus.

Amarillo was next, with 8 degrees and two inches of snow. K. W. Matthews, official in charge of the U. S. weather bureau station here, said this morning the colder temperatures of the neighboring towns may have been due to the fact that they had a blanket of snow.

Other lows were Lubbock 12, Wink Abilene and Gainesville 20, Sulphur Springs and Guadalupe Pass 22, Ft. Worth 23, Big Spring 24, Wichita Falls 19, Dallas 25, El Paso 26, San Angelo and Pecos 27, Corsicana 25, and Austin 31.

Snow fell until midnight last night in many spots, including Dallas. See WEATHER, Page 8

SCENE AT EMPLOYMENT-COMPENSATION OFFICE

Indication that there are some persons available for work is found in this scene taken at the U. S. employment office, 236 N. Russell, when civilians and veterans arrive to apply for their unemployment compensation. The compensation is handled through the Texas unemployment commission, and officials are here every other Thursday. The next trip here will be Jan. 24. Civilians are eligible if they have worked for a certain length of time for a private firm covered by the compensation plan, and if they are applicants at a USES office for employment; servicemen are eligible under the readjustment act. Ken Bennett, local radio announcer, has a program at 8:15 a. m. Monday through Friday, on employment for veterans.

Kimmel Says That His Life Was Threatened

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel today said that he received letters threatening him with death when he returned to this country after the Pearl Harbor disaster.

He gave the committee a copy of a letter he wrote to Adm. Harold B. Stark on Feb. 22, 1942, protesting that "in all justice the navy department should do nothing further to inflame the public against me."

Kimmel wrote that he had just received notification from Secretary of the Navy Knox that he would be retired March 1, 1942, "without condemnation of any offense or prejudice."

The street ordinance is being prepared on a suggestion by the signers of a petition presented to the commission yesterday.

The signers, W. L. Lovins, J. M. Fitzgerald, C. E. Ward and Dr. Calvin Jones, requested, since the last block on Georgia so closely coincides with the general run of Christine street, that the block be designated as a part of Christine.

Their petition was granted and Gordon was instructed to draw up the ordinance.

The second ordinance grew out of a complaint that whites were going to establishments in the Flats which sold beer on Sunday. City Manager Garland Franks said downtown dealers agreed some time ago not to

'Physically Fit' Is Scout Program

The activity program for Boy Scouts although outwardly changed from the war-time functions, will continue as in the past, said W. E. Lawrence, national director of scouting activities at a meeting of scout officials last night, to keep the individual physically strong.

Lawrence stated that "Young America" today was not physically fit, and that the program of the scouts will emphasize the care of the individual scout by himself.

First aid as a part of the program was given a new slant by Lawrence who stressed the ability of giving first aid to oneself. Demonstration of applying first aid by the injured were given by six local scouts under the supervision of Lawrence.

Methods to be used by troop leaders in presenting scout activities were discussed and demonstrated by Lawrence. He stated methods involved interest or talking about a subject, reading or research in the activity, observation, participation and finally the teaching of it to someone else.

A new scout film on planning troop activities was shown.

Out-of-town Scouters attending the meeting were of Borger; Durand; R. Wallace, district commissioner for the Hut-hinson district; C. R. Berrien, camp and activities chairman, and Aubrey King, assistant scout master of the Borger troop 5.

200,000 Electrical Workers Continue Strike in Nation

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Production in plants of the nation's three largest producers of electrical devices was at a complete standstill today following the strike of 200,000 electrical workers.

The walkout yesterday in 79 plants of General Electric Westinghouse and General Motors electrical divisions brought from Chicago Production Administrator John D. Small in Washington an appeal for voluntary rationing of electrical equipment during the strike.

Hours after the strike started the Westinghouse corporation told the union—the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, third largest CIO organization—that it was terminating its wage contract.

The strike, called by the CIO-U. E. W. in support of demands for a $2 a day wage increase, affected 100,000 General Electric employees, 75,000 Westinghouse workers and 25,000 General Motors employees and also made idle tens of thousands of white collar workers, not affiliated with the union, who were kept away from their jobs by picket lines.

Mass picketing was reported in 49 communities and was generally peaceful except at Chicago where 33 See ELECTRICAL, Page 8

Navy Reopening Training Program

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—The navy announced today reopening of its flight training program, giving qualified enlisted men a chance for commissions as naval aviators.

Candidates applying for admittance to the pre-flight stage of the program must be under 23. They must be unmarried and agree to remain so until commissioned.

Requirements include completion of at least "four academic semesters" in an accredited college.

268,000 Workers Involved in Strike

CHICAGO, Jan. 16—(AP)—A nationwide packinghouse workers strike involving 268,000 workers, threatening a meatless diet for the nation, began today but union leaders agreed to confer tomorrow in Washington with Secretary of Labor Schwelienbach in government efforts to halt the walk-out.

Lewis J. Clark, president of the CIO United Packinghouse Workers union, said he would go to Washington. Clark's spokesman, however, said the strike was in full force with all its 193,000 members out in 140 plants.

'POSTPONE CONTINUATION' Previously Earl W. Jimeron, president, and Patrick E. Gorman, secretary of the AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, proposed to the CIO that both unions heed the last minute plea by Schwelienbach and "postpone continuation" of the strike.

The AFL pointed out, however, that Schwelienbach's appeal last night came too late to avert the strike which had been called for midnight and began promptly, in some instances even before the deadline.

AFL MEMBERS OUT There was an immediate estimate from the AFL as to how many of its members actually were out but 75,000 were involved, 45,000 today, and 30,000 more later. Another 60,000 AFL members in the retail trade were not directly involved.

Spokesmen for major packing companies made these estimates today of the number out on strike nationally: Armour and company, 35,000; Cudahy, 10,000; Wilson and company, 9,400; Swift and company, 15,000 to 16,500.

CIO PLANTS STRIKE The CIO spokesman said struck plants included those of Armour, Cudahy, Swift, Wilson and five smaller concerns: Morrell, Kingan and company, Cudahy Brothers, Rath Packing and Tobin Packing companies.

Delay in Sale of Synthetic Rubber Plants Is Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Sale of the government's huge synthetic rubber plants should be delayed until a national rubber policy for national defense has been drafted, the surplus property administration told congress today.

"The experience of the war has made it improbable that the country will ever deprive itself of the services of the synthetic rubber industry as a safeguard against being cut off from supplies of natural rubber," said Administrator W. Stuart Swinerton.

He assured congress, in a report required by law on disposal of all rubber plants costing more than $5,000,000 that SPA would be ready with a disposal plan whenever it was decided how many plants should be kept ready for emergency use.

In recommending the postponement of plant sales generally, Swinerton endorsed the stand of the reconstruction finance corporation, owner of the 44 plants scattered from coast to coast.

However, the SPA chief voiced some reservations. There is not apparent reason, he said, and not selling or leasing to private operators some plants which will not figure in any defense program.

Particularly, Swinerton pointed out, these include three plants for special purpose rubber—a $38,000,000 property at Louisville, Ky., for neoprene and two $26,000,000 plants at Baton Rouge, La., and Baytown, Texas, for butyl rubber.

The demand for synthetic probably will be strong throughout this year, Swinerton forecast, in view of limited far eastern production of natural rubber. The far east output, he estimated, may not exceed 600,000 tons of which the United States may get 200,000.

Advisory Board of Chamber Named

Five advisory board members to the chamber of commerce were announced this morning following the counting of the second and final ballots in the election.

Members to serve one year terms are Crawford Atkinson, Marshall Hubbard, J. C. McWilliams, R. H. Newton and E. S. Shivers.

Newly appointed members of the board of city development to serve three year terms, were recently appointed by the city commission. Those appointed were Ed Weiss, Frank Smith, W. B. Weathered, L. H. Johnson and Henry Ellis.

F. E. Inel was appointed by the commission to fill the unexpired term of C. O. Drew, who recently resigned.

New members of both advisory and city development boards will be installed at the annual chamber of commerce banquet to be held in February.

Hold-over members of the board of city development are D. V. Burton, C. A. Huff, C. M. Jeffries, C. P. "Doc" Pursley, Ray Scott, Reno Stinson, A. A. Schepman, Wayne Phelps and Irvin Cole.

Try Tangerine Pie for Vitamin C

Grapefruit taste is pepped up when centers are filled with jelly, marshmallows or cranberries.

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Oranges, grapefruit, tangerines and lemons are in plentiful supply from Florida, Texas and California. All are exceptionally rich in vitamin "C" in which they are about our best food source of supply.

To make the most of the nutritional value these fruits contain, eat pulp and all. In this way you also add necessary bulk to the diet. Bulk is one of the secrets of good digestion.

Choose citrus fruits that are heavy for their size, as such fruits are usually thin-skinned and contain the most juice. Lightweight fruit means dry pulp and little or no juice. See that the orange or grapefruit you select is firm, but springy to the touch.

Grapefruit often has a discolored appearance caused by the normal yellow color being overcast by a reddish-brown or reddish-yellow color. This condition, which is called russeting, does not affect the quality or flavor of the fruit.

Tangerine Neesrode Pie (Makes One 9-Inch Pie)
Three separated eggs, 1/2 cup milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin, 1/4 cup tangerine juice, 1/4 cup chopped maraschino cherries, 3/4 cup tangerine sections cut in half, 2 tablespoons grated sweet chocolate, one 9-inch baked pie shell.

Beat egg yolks slightly, combine with milk salt and 1/4 cup sugar in the top of a double boiler. Cook over hot (not boiling) water until mixture thickens, stirring constantly; remove from heat. Soften gelatin in tangerine juice; add to mixture; stir until dissolved. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Beat egg whites until stiff; gradually beat in remaining sugar; fold into chilled mixture with cherries and tangerine sections. Pie mixture into baked pie shell, sprinkle with chocolate and chill until firm. Just before serving garnish with extra tangerine sections.

Religion Is Topic At Hopkins P.-T. A. Meeting Monday

Dr. Douglas Nelson spoke to members of the Hopkins Parent-Teachers association Monday evening on the subject "Religion and Our Children." "You can tell your children to be religious," Dr. Nelson emphasized, "but they will be only as religious as you are."

Mr. John Linton opened the meeting with a prayer, and the group sang "Home on the Range" and their own "Battle Hymn for Children." During the business meeting conducted by Mrs. Robert Orr, president, reports were heard from outstanding committees. Mrs. C. O. Spaulding reported on the City P.-T. A. council meeting. Mrs. T. A. Mastin was appointed recreation chairman and Mrs. E. R. Nuckels was named founders' day chairman.

The group will sponsor a two-day drive during the national victory clothing drive on January 21 and 22. Mr. B. R. Nuckels in charge of the city's drive explained what kinds of clothing were needed and how they would be handled.

The seventh grade won the room award. Refreshments were served after the meeting to about 30 members.

Writer Explains Meaning of Fact Finding Board

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Buried under a load of words on the labor crisis, people ask: "What is a fact-finding board and what does it do?"

When a union and an employer start arguing about a wage increase, the union usually asks for more than it expects to get and the boss usually offers less than he expects the union to accept.

If things go right, they agree on some middle figure. But when a strike starts, both sides deluge the public with what each side insists are the facts.

They may be the same facts and figures, but the two sides interpret them differently. One tries to show that the boss is determined to starve his workers or bust the union. The other tries to show that the union is bent on ruining the employer.

Knowing big strikes may wreck reconversion, President Truman tried to find a peaceful solution by setting up fact-finding boards.

These boards are three-man affairs. The members are not connected with either a union or a business. That is what a board does.

It simply asks both sides to present their case to the board. The board can't—because there's no law giving it authority to do so—force a company to show its books.

The board listens to the arguments, examines what figures either side is willing to let the board see and then examines government figures as they may relate to the particular case.

The board decides whether the union should get a raise or how much of a raise. Then it recommends to the president whether a raise is due, and how much.

That's as far as it can go, or Mr. Truman can go. He can't compel the company or the union to follow the board's recommendation. That is what a board does.

Mr. Truman hoped that when the board's finding were made public in a given case, public pressure would force agreement.

Traffic Ordinance Will Be Enforced

City police will start immediately enforcing the ordinance which prohibits making left turns out of alleys, Chief of Police Louie Allen said today.

Allen said this practice constituted a definite traffic hazard and offenders would be given tickets and assessed fines.

The chief said the proper procedure when emerging from an alley in a car was to turn right so that your car would be in the proper lane of traffic.

He said this law applies to all cars and trucks except city garbage trucks which are the only vehicles that may proceed directly down the entire length of every alley, which includes crossing streets.

We, the Women

By RUTH MILLETT
A group of secretaries working for a large corporation writes to complain that when they became secretaries to the men for whom they work they also unknowingly became personal maids for their employers' wives.

It seems Mr. Boss is always breezing in and asking Miss Secretary to please take this dress or these unmentionables which Mrs. Boss bought—but decided she didn't like—back to the store from which they came for a refund.

Or Mr. Boss wants Miss Secretary to shop for his wife, make the arrangements for a hotel luncheon for her, etc.

Now while the secretaries don't in the least mind doing the dirty work for their bosses—which in part is what they are hired to do ("You'll have to get me out of that luncheon engagement, Miss Brown")—it annoys and insults them to be asked also to do his wife's unpleasant errands.

AN OCCASION FOR STRATEGY
Gripping about the imposition among themselves isn't going to do any good. But perhaps a little carefully planned strategy might serve to make the boss up.

Couldn't the secretary—while shopping for the wife—take a little extra time to shop for herself, sweetly admitting that is what she did when she returns to the office? The boss who asks his secretary to leave her office work to run errands for his wife would hardly have the nerve to object if she also did a few for herself.

"BAD BUYS" JUSTIFIED
And if shopping for Mrs. Boss really becomes a dreaded chore, she might try not using quite all of her brains and good taste in making purchases. A few bad buys might cause Mrs. Boss to say scathingly to her husband, "That secretary of yours may be a whiz on the telephone, as you say, and maybe she knows how to handle your clients—but she certainly has atrocious taste." Whereupon the wife would decide to do her own shopping in the future.

But, of course, the simplest thing for a girl to do is to work for a boss who is married to a business woman or to a woman who has had business experience. Such women aren't near-

TO THIS, THE UNION WOULD NOT AGREE

In the following argument we do not defend the position of management in its disagreement with labor over wages and profits. It might be considered, on the other hand, a defense of the free system of enterprise which, unquestionably, has made this the strongest country economically.

As several writers have said in the past months, it would appear to us that if labor's fight to "check the books" on profits is successful, the working man will have triumphed in a revolutionary move to destroy our capitalist system, as well as his own privilege of working in a country where he is free to bargain for whatever he is able to obtain.

The whole argument is boiling down to whether or not the government and labor have a right to "have a look" at the books of management, in determining what wages the workers shall receive for their hours.

In order that we may save the system under which the nation has operated since the country was federated, it is important that we all—labor and management—know what is the true meaning behind the profit motive. In presenting the case of the profit motive, of course we must explain supply in relation to wages and profits. If industry operates under compulsion—from any source, government-backed union "rights" or government directive itself—the source of production is not free to compete against other sources of similar nature. A false "yardstick," therefore, has been set up to determine what management shall pay.

If all agents are free to bargain freely—as in the days of our past history—the ability to pay and the ability to produce will find a common level: that is the true theory of freedom of enterprise. If one firm is making very big profits, new firms will be attracted into the industry. The consequent increase in supply will push down prices and, hence, reduce the average level of profits. The entrance of new firms into the competition will admit more employment. To reduce these profits by government mandate would be to affect the volume of available jobs.

The worker must also consider this fact: profits are indefinite. When a man goes into a plant to work, he knows that if he turns out so many pieces of goods he will get a certain amount of money. It depends upon his own ability, as against the ability of a fellow-worker. But the stockholder in the firm is not assured of a certain amount of return for his investment. The profits he receives—and they vary—are his compensation for the risk he took when he invested his money. It is free enterprise which permits him to place his money in the business, thus creating a situation wherein he can make money and at the same time, creating a job for a man who does not have the capital to invest.

On the basis of these facts, it naturally brings us to the conclusion that, if wages are to be determined on the basis of profits; there should be a system set up to cut the working man's wages when the margin of profits to the investor decreases.

It is difficult for us to envision labor unions accepting this corollary of the ability-to-pay theory.

The Cleveland Trust Co. Tells What Causes Wages

Since this column has repeatedly contended that wage levels cannot be increased by collective bargaining and has attempted to point out that the only possible way wages can be increased is by an increase in knowledge and better tools so that the workers can produce more, I want to quote what the Cleveland Trust Company's business bulletin has to say about wage increases.

"When the government took the first Census of Manufacturing nearly a century ago in 1849 the average factory employee worked 69 hours a week, and was paid $4.74 for his efforts. He now works in peacetime about half as many hours, and gets close to 10 times as much weekly pay. Because of the numerous present strikes for still higher wages it is worth while to ask how the wage increases of the past century came into being, and what was their source. The answers are not hard to find. They are hidden in the figures of the past Censuses of Manufacturing which used to be taken each 10 years, then each five years, and then on alternate years, but not during the war years.

"Past wage advances came from increases in the production per worker. The increases were made possible by progressive improvements in the machines and tools used by the workers. In 1849 the factory investment per factory worker amounted to $557. When we get a new Census of Manufacturing it will probably show that the present capital investment per worker is as much as $7000.

"There is just one way to continue to pay increasing wages to industrial workers, and that is to make it possible for them to keep on increasing their per capita production. The way to do that is to keep on increasing the investment per worker so that he can keep on using better and better tools. That can be done only if the government does not tax away the savings of the investors, and does not prevent them from earning fair returns.

"Probably the present attempts of the administration and the strikers to get wage increases which will be absorbed by the managements, and so not to raise prices, will prove to be ineffective. The whole record of the Census figures indicate that the share of the customer's dollar that the factory worker can get is a nearly constant 40 per cent. Professor Willford I. King of New York University discussing this relationship wrote recently that the factory worker's share of the customer's dollar remains almost constant year after year, decade after decade, in good times and bad, in Republican and Democratic administrations, under Old Deal and the New, and whether labor is organized or welded into powerful unions.

It seems wholly likely that when the present contests between managements and labor over wages have been settled, and production has been resumed on a reasonably normal basis, it will be

Bus, Street Car Operators in El Paso Strike

EL PASO, Jan. 14—(AP)—A strike of bus and street car operators tied up El Paso's public transportation system for the second day today, but taxicabs and private automobiles with union permission carried fare-paying passengers to work.

Bus and street car operators went off the job yesterday following a dispute between the local of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach employees of American (AFL) and the El Paso lines over wages and hours.

The union, declaring that it wished to disrupt the city's transportation as little as possible, proposed that taxicabs and private cars operate along the regular bus and street car routes. The taxicab drivers union agreed to the proposal.

"We are anxious to disrupt transportation as little as possible," Edward Penn, president of the striking union said. Mayor pro tem Duke has approved our plan to carry traffic in private cars. Members are urged to use their cars for this purpose."

Mayor pro tem Daniel Duke told newsmen, "I am authorizing this move because the refusal of the commission to arbitrate has resulted in a hardship upon the public."

Attendance at El Paso churches, theaters and cafes was cut an estimated 10 to 50 per cent yesterday. Union operators had asked a pay boost from 80 cents to $1 per hour, for company approval and for a reduction of the work week from 53 to 50 hours.

found that the century-old rule still holds good. The workers will be receiving higher wages, but these wages will still constitute about 40 per cent of the value added by the processes of manufacturing. The prices of manufactured goods will increase by amounts sufficiently great to restore the old percentage relationship. There have been 20 Censuses of Manufacturing, and the average computed from all 23 sets of volumes show that the earnings of the factory wage workers have been just a little less than 40 per cent of the value added to the raw materials by the processes of manufacturing.

"In 1946 we shall have much unemployment, much under employment, and more widespread discussions of wages than in any previous year in our history. Out of the experiences of 1946 there will come many disillusionments about the possibility of making wage increases without affecting costs of production, costs of good produced, or profits from production."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER

DISILLUSIONMENT—Army recruiting bigwigs don't like to mention it lest their comment offend the civilian public. But they report that the rash of re-enlistments in the regular postwar service is due to the returning soldiers' disillusionment over living conditions on the outside.

Each recruit is asked the reason for joining the colors, whether he is a newcomer to the service or a veteran. Although the answer depends on the individual's reaction to his brief experience in civilian life, the majority admit frankly that they are unhappy and disappointed at what they found outside the garrison gates.

Some report that they cannot find work or at least not the kind for which they feel themselves best fitted. Others cannot get places to live, especially if they are married and have children. A minority complained because, so they said, they had to pay high fees to a union to win jobs, and then work under union orders.

ENLISTMENTS—For these reasons and others, including new inducements and an advertising campaign that shames the efforts of bond brokers in the 1920 boom days, the rally around the flag has amounted to a stampede. Never before in peacetime have so many men in the uniform in such a short time.

The record is all the more remarkable because the future army is designed to be a compact, efficient and modernized machine, and the recruiting agencies are taking only the best men.

More than 300,000 men enlisted in the regular army through the seven-week period ending December 7. Of these sixty-eight per cent were former Selective Service inductees, twenty per cent were regular army re-enlistments and twelve per cent were new. The postwar quota is 1,500,000.

The navy picked up about 19,000 during November alone, as against a desired total of 500,000. The Marines, with the highest standard of the three services, obtained about 5,000 in the last two months. The leathernecks will have a postwar force of 100,000.

EXPERIMENT—Major General Harold L. Gilbert, chief of the army's recruiting program attributes the phenomenon to the enactment of the armed forces voluntary recruitment act, which President Truman signed on October 6. Most of the re-enlistments came after this measure had become law, and officers at separation centers started an intensive campaign to explain its features to discharges.

This act provides a living, future security and more than five years of education at the expense of the government to members of the three services, provided that they enlist or re-enlist prior to October 6, 1946.

General Gilbert, who has sent three children through college, believes that it is one of the finest.

MORE TRUST BUSTING IN 1946
By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON. — Slightly different techniques in the handling of anti-trust cases are being inaugurated by Attorney General Tom C. Clark. In brief, they amount to more of an effort to try cases in the courts rather than in the newspapers and before the congressional investigating committees on Capitol Hill.

Because of this new approach, there has been some criticism that the anti-trust program was being scuttled or being allowed to die a natural death. Clark says flatly this isn't so.

MACKENZIE'S Column

(Editor's Note: When Dewitt Mackenzie and his wife began their present world tour they promised to report to their children, who remain in school in the United States on the children of other lands and how they have been affected by war.)

AP World Traveler
MADRID, Jan. 16—Dear Carol and Major:

This is to report another of the strange and often heart stirring things which we are encountering on our world tour.

In the suburbs of this beautiful old city, with its boulevards and grand palaces, hundreds of families are living in direst poverty in caves dug into the many hills.

We should warn you that you can't draw sweeping conclusions from this extraordinary situation. These cave dwellers don't represent general conditions in Madrid, nor yet in Spain. They are the victims of the tragedy which follows on the trail of wars.

To understand this you must know that during the awful civil war of 1936-39, scores of thousands fled to Madrid from the provinces and crowded the numerous metropolitan blocs which contributed so heavily to Franklin D. Roosevelt's four presidential triumphs.

House Leader Martin spent a good part of the holiday period rounding up republicans and persuading them that they owe it to the party to sign the petition that would force action on the Norton bill creating a permanent fair employment practices commission. The measure has the recruiting agencies are taking only the best men.

SUSPICION—If "Joe" can force his followers to affix their signatures to the document, which must have 213 signers to produce a floor showdown, there will be enough northern democrats for action. In that way he hopes to gain partisan credit among the beneficiaries. On the other hand, if the majority finally scuttles the program, he can capitalize on their recalcitrancy.

President Truman has repeatedly asked for favorable action, but certain key democrats have defied him. Should his house followers kill the bill at the last minute, the Martin strategy is designed to demonstrate that the chief executive has no influence with his own men on Capitol Hill—a suspicion that has already occurred to the leaders of liberal, labor and racial groups normally friendly to the man in the White House.

OFFICE CAT
The school teacher was endeavoring to drum into her small pupils the fundamentals of arithmetic: Teacher (rather desperately)—Now, listen, in order to subtract, things have to be the same denomination. This is what I mean. Now, you couldn't take three apples from four bananas, or six plums from eight peaches. It must be three apples from four apples, six plums from eight plums, and so on. Do you understand now?

The majority of the children seemed to grasp the idea. One chubby-faced youngster very near the bottom of the class, however, raised a timid hand: Child—Please, teacher, you can take three quarts of milk from two cows.

It is beginning to look more and more as though any nation which spends $100,000,000 or more to build one battleship is putting in a single basket a lot of eggs which might be better used in other ways.—Miami, Okla., News-Record.

Vulnerability to the atomic bomb is so serious that no small nation can afford to neglect it. The department of justice they are being assigned to cases. So there is every indication that under Assistant Attorney General Wendell Borge, in charge of the division, there will be more anti-trust activity in 1946.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD.—With a half hour notice, most any Hollywood casting director can deliver red-haired triplets, a hill-billy with an English accent or a man who swallows swords while playing "Dixie" on a banjo. The casting directors are the unsung heroes of the movies.

But sometimes, Bert Hampton said, Hollywood breaks their hearts. Bert has been a casting director for 20 years. He has delivered, on order, everything from waltzing mice to a bearded lady with the Spanish armada tattooed on her back.

"But it is a thankless job," Bert said, sadly. Like the time a director asked Bert to find him a cross-eyed man exactly five feet six inches tall and weighing 156 pounds. They needed him to play Ben Turpin's twin brother in a scene and "Well," said Bert, "I finally found their measurements had to be identical. That cross-eyed man. But what happens? Do I get a medal? No. The director gets sore because he has to give me a medal. You do, everyone knows. Ben Turpin has brown eyes. Now find me a brown-eyed cross-eyed man." And Bert did it.

Bert Hampton was with Hollywood's Central Casting for 15 years, now directs the extra traffic at General Casting Corp.

MAKING NELLIE HAPPY
As an authority on extras, Bert is a peer. One of his best stories is about an extra we shall call Nellie.

When Rex Ingram was filming "Scaramouche," he was met each morning at the studio gates by Nellie, who would break into copious tears because she had no work. Couldn't Mr. Ingram please give her a job?

One day the script called for a woman crying bitterly in a street scene during the French revolution. Immediately Ingram contacted Bert and asked him to find Nellie. She was found, hired and Ingram called upon her to cry for the camera. But there were no tears.

"What's the matter, Nellie?" asked Ingram. "You used to cry so for me every morning at the studio gates." "I wasn't working then, I'm so happy now I can't cry."

KNOWS THE TRICKS
Bert knows all the tricks, too. Like the time M-G-M refused to hire any Chinese extras for foreground scenes in the story of China, "The Good Earth." The studio discovered that real Chinese made Paul Muni and the other Occidental actors in Oriental roles look phony. So they surrounded them with phony Orientals only.

And the "adjustment" hours. And adjustment is given an extra when he is called to do something other than just part of a walking or stationary group. Usually bonuses are paid extras who participate in free-for-all fight scenes. The adjustment hours get mixed up in the fight scenes by "accident" and come out screaming for adjustment checks.

Courts are usually a last resort in divorce matters and hence can be of small service in ironing out domestic difficulties.—Judge Edwin A. Robson, of Chicago superior court.

There are four necessary "Rs" in the good community. They are reading, riting, rithmetic and religion. They go hand in hand and neither can stand alone.—Tallahassee, Fla., Democrat.

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

MANILA, Jan. 14—(AP)—Several times daily, a chunky, aristocratic man in a neat gray suit stands on the porch of a bomb-splattered white residence here, puffing thoughtfully through a cigarette holder and obliquely singing autographs with quick smiles.

He chats easily with those who step up to speak to him, and then he tosses away his unfinished cigarette and steps back inside the house.

The house is the former residence of the high commissioner to the Philippines. Now it is the courtroom for the man who steps out on the porch during each recess for a relaxing cigarette—Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma.

Homma is a picture of a well-bred Japanese civilian, although for 40 years he served his emperor as a soldier. He looks more like a middle-aged banker than the heartless, ghoulish khan portrayed by the prosecutors.

Homma's one-time conqueror sits in keen attention at the defense table. He has a distinguished air despite his close-cropped, bullet-shaped head. His heavy brows knit thoughtfully. His hands and legs fidget almost constantly, but his face is calm and intent.

Homma is anxious to hold onto a life his accusers say he is no longer entitled to enjoy in a civilized world. They picture him as one of the most heinous military leaders who ever held rank, a commander unbelievably bloody and inhuman long after his Bataan victory had been won.

He is regarded by American and Filipino leaders as the worst war criminal spawned under the banner of the Rising Sun. He is accused of responsibility for the deaths of some 5,000 American and 45,000 Filipino prisoners during and after Bataan's infamous death march.

For six hours a day, witnesses have paraded steadily to the stand to tell of the studied cruelty of his troops. How the Japanese used live Filipinos for bayonet practice. How they slapped and raped captive women.

HE trotted up through the woods. Deep in. At last, he came back to the road. It was still raining, but he didn't mind it now. It cooled him off and it seemed to clear his head, too. You could cope with rain.

Pike reached into his pocket for his handkerchief. It wasn't there. He felt in all of his pockets. He started to swat at all over again. He must have dropped it somewhere. Or maybe he had left it in Bateman's living room when he had wiped off the telephone. He didn't know.

When Pike got back to the Inn, Hitt was not behind the desk. There was no sign of Bland, either. The lobby was deserted. Well, a break, Pike thought. He deserved it.

He wanted toward the stairs and he felt better. He almost whistled. Then—"Mr. Calvin." Someone got up out of one of the deep chairs.

"There was a call for you," Mr. Hitt said. "Was there?" Pike said. Mr. Hitt approached. "It was around 11." Mr. Hitt went over to the desk and picked up a piece of paper. "Ten-fifty-seven is exact."

He looked full at Pike for the first time. He said: "Why, Mr. Calvin, you're all wet." He was looking Pike all over now, missing nothing, and his white hands began to flutter. "Are you all right?" "I'm fine," Pike said. "Who called?" "That's just it." Mr. Hitt frowned down at the paper, then resumed his inspection of Pike. "There was no message."

Many of their stories are so gruesome courtroom spectators find their sense of honor completely dulled. This testimony must bring back many memories to Homma, who allegedly had the power to halt these excesses and didn't exercise it.

He listens carefully to every witness and jots down notes to his defense counsel with a fountain pen. He smiles frequently, but no expression of guilt or regret crosses his face. He prefers to look away when witnesses exhibit scars from Japanese bayonets.

BEING A BACHELOR LETS HIM RETIRE AT 70
LYNN, Mass.—(AP)—Robert Yee, 70, on his way home to his native China, boastful that every customer who patronized his laundry shop in the past 56 years got his shirt back whether or not he had his "check-ke."

Yee left his family in Canton in 1890 to seek his fortune in this country. "Time I go home," he said as he closed the door of his tiny shop for the last time. Otherwise modest, he claims, "I was best laundryman in the city. If my customers lost checks, I never have argument. Always give them their clothes."

With a knowing smile he explains that he remained a bachelor "to save my money," and maintains that when he converts his money to Chinese currency he will be "practically a millionaire" (Chinese style).

"You're late." Pike went to the desk and picked up a newspaper. "Good morning, Mr. Calvin," Mr. Hitt said.

"Good morning," Pike said. "Mr. Hitt was looking at him oddly. Halfway across the lobby Mr. Bland picked him up again. "Mr. Pike got coffee in the grill room," he said. "Have you heard the news?"

"No," Pike said. "Bateman is dead." Pike looked into Bland's bright black eyes. "I've named Bland back at him, in fact."

"Suicide," Bland said and grinned so hugely that Pike was afraid his dentures would slip. "He took a dose of something—they're not quite sure what."

They found a table in the grill room. Pike would have liked to read his newspaper, but there was something fishy about it. Bland, in a way he was like John Clay. He had no moral sense at all. But he seemed a little wayward. If Bland knew what he wanted, he was the only one. Pike put away his newspaper.

"Go ahead," he said. "All right, all about it." Bland spread his big hands. "There's nothing to tell. He's dead. That's all I know. I thought perhaps."

"No," Pike said. "You must have some idea why he wanted to see you." "Not the slightest," Pike said. "As a matter of fact, I'm not certain that he wanted to see me." Bland decided to have a little cotintra with his coffee. He gave his order to the waiter. Then he leaned back and looked brightly at Pike.

"You left the door open," Bland reminded him, "presumably to visit Mr. Bateman. You must have believed someone there. And you—" "Look, Mr. Bland," Pike unfolded his paper and smoothed out the front page. "Someone will be around to ask all of these questions later—officially. Then I'll give you an account of all my movements last night." He stopped and looked significantly at Bland. "I hope you'll do the same," he concluded. (To Be Continued)

THEY'RE THE TOPS

Bergman and Milland Win Honors for Best Screen Performances

Ray Milland, probable Academy award winner.

Linda Darnell, typical of the "sultry and ferocious" heroines.

Ingrid Bergman, top money-maker.

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15.—(NEA)—Moviegoers will remember 1945 as the year Ingrid Bergman did it again, competing only with herself, and as the year Ray Milland won an Academy award costarring with a bottle.

Dick Powell escaped the type-casting rut.

The Lana Turner-Turhan Bey romance made news.

Ingrid and Ray were the tops in the year's best film performances, both assured of Academy Oscars come March. Ingrid for her work in "Spellbound" and "The Belles of St. Mary's," and Milland for his diplo-matic in "The Lost Weekend." It will be Ingrid's second successive Oscar. Last year's was for "Gaslight."

entertainment standpoint, we like "Spellbound." It is the perfect movie. "The Lost Weekend" is daring realism. You can take your choice because even the shrewd Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will find it difficult to decide between the two. "The Belles" may even split the voting and sneak in the winner.

But the end of the war sounded the death knell for most of the ersatz lovers with names like Gable, Stewart, Fonda, Power, Payne, Romero and others back on studio payrolls.

A holdover from last year's "Going My Way," Bing Crosby probably will top the money makers in the male star department, followed closely by Walter Pidgeon and Errol Flynn.

Because of high income taxes, Hollywood's best known name stars appear in only one or two films in 1946, giving the unknowns another chance at stardom as in the previous war years. Van Johnson, John Hodiak, Dane Clark, Dana Andrews, Bob Walker, Turhan Bey, Lizbeth Scott, Janice Paige and others became marquee favorites.

The 1945 celluloid trend was away from war pictures to musicals, romantic comedies and psychopathic thrillers, but the real surprise of the year was that it became fashionable to be bad. The post-war flaming flapper became a prim and proper person alongside the vicious vampires and neurotics on the post World War II screen.

Competing for the top picture of the year will be David O. Selznick's "Spellbound," "The Belles of St. Mary's," "Saratoga Trunk" and "The Lost Weekend." From a sheer Van Johnson, John Hodiak, Dane Clark, Dana Andrews, Bob Walker, Turhan Bey, Lizbeth Scott, Janice Paige and others became marquee favorites.

And for the best crack of the year we still like Bob Hope's. He was doing a show at San Luis Obispo hospital when a pajama clad patient joined him at the mike and started ad-libbing. They were going great until a man in a white coat came up and took the patient back to the mental ward. Said Bob later: "What worries me is that we were having what I thought was a well balanced conversation."

'Top' of the Market May Be Level Plateau for Years, Not a 'Peak'

C.I.O. Crowd May Be Friend of Small Investor, Rather Than Detriment, Declares Roger Babson

By ROGER BABSON
Finance Analyst
NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 16.—Is another severe break in stock market prices necessary? Perhaps someday, but not just now. Need the market go up to a peak, as in 1929, and then come down with a crash? Certainly not. It is possible that the "top" of the market could be a level plateau extending over months or perhaps years instead of a "peak."

MARKET BREAKS ARE POSSIBLE
This is not saying that a severe break in the stock market cannot come. It is very possible that the United States may get into a jam with Russia or some other country which could bring about World War III. Then there could be a collapse in city real estate and many industries, especially those in vulnerable cities near the sea coast. But with this there should be a scramble for self-sustaining small farms away from the evil effects of atomic bombs. Why people do not give more thought to the future is beyond me. Surely, the only truly safe "life insurance" is good mother earth. I have some for each of my grandchildren.

Plans Made for Building Program at Texas Schools

FORT WORTH, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Authority to issue $15,000,000 in bonds for their post-war building program is to be sought at the next session of the state legislature by Texas university and Texas A. & M. college.

president of the university; Gib Gilchrist, president of A. & M.; and John W. Newton of Beaumont, a director of A. & M.

The committee's first task is to provide for the submission and adoption of a constitutional amendment at the next session of the legislature Woodward said. It authorized the university to issue $10,000,000 and A. & M. $5,000,000 in bonds to run for 20 years for their respective building programs.

AP Poll on Health Insurance Plan Shows 7-4 Opposition

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of five stories on President Truman's proposal for a national system of compulsory prepaid "health insurance" to cover the costs of medical, dental, surgical and hospital care.

AND I'M CONVINCED I COULDN'T HAVE CHOSEN MORE WISELY

"When the tires that came on my car wore out, I switched to Riversides. That was four years ago! And not once did Riversides give me any trouble. It's certainly worth a great deal to know you're riding on safe tires."

This business executive is typical of car-owners who have switched to Riverside Tires because Riversides mean more mileage for less money... more safety! Today's Riversides are actually 12% stronger than the same pre-war tires!

1-Card of Thanks HEAVEN "In Heaven there'll be no parting, no pain to bear; No care-worn brow, no sigh, no silvery hair; No death to snatch our loved ones from our side; No angry waves, no sea, no treacherous tide.

In Heaven there'll be no thirist, no cry for bread; No soul who knows not where to lay his head; No one to feel the Winter's chilling blast; For there the piercing storm will all be past.

In Heaven there'll be no toil without repay; No building for a brief ephemeral day; For all the joys that prophets old have told "Twill take the endless ages to unfold.

In Heaven there'll be no weary pilgrim hand; No sealer for a better, fairer land; For all who reach that blissful, happy shore "Will never cry no sigh, nor wish for more."

"And Enoch walked with God and was not, for God took him."—Genesis 5:24. We wish to express to our many friends our sincere appreciation for their thoughtful letters in so many ways which our beloved family gathered, because of the untimely death of our beloved father, grandfather and brother, W. B. Cecil who passed away Jan. 6.

The comforting messages of Rev. R. E. Gibley, the thoughtful ministry of Rev. E. B. Bowen and Rev. W. M. Culwell, the beautiful message in song of R. Virgil Moore, did so much to help our grief. We are mindful of the untiring preparation and the lovely floral offerings that spoke friendship and fellowship to our family, and expressed the solemn in which our father was held. May God bless you each one.

Victory Loan Is Over-Subscribed By Wheeler-co

WHEELER, Jan. 16.—In keeping with its record of backing every war campaign since Pearl Harbor, Wheeler county residents over-subscribed their quota of E bonds in the Victory loan campaign just ended.

R. J. Holt, Wheeler county chairman of the war finance committee, announced this week.

Against an over-all quota of $225,000, Wheeler county residents purchased $302,643.25 worth of Victory bonds, Chairman Holt said.

Total E bond purchases in the county amounted to $142,481.25, exceeding the quota by $2,481.25, he said.

ABC's of Pending Legislation on Compulsory Insurance Are Listed

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of five articles on President Truman's proposal for a national system of compulsory pre-paid "health insurance" to cover the costs of medical, dental surgical and hospital care.)

Beneficiaries would be entitled to 60 days hospitalization a year, with allowances as follows: $3-$7 a day up to 30 days; between $150 and $450 a day in excess of 30 days a period of hospitalization.

The bill says the administrator would be the surgeon general of the U. S. public health service. Any licensed doctor in the country can take part if he wants to. This goes for dentists, too.

Pay for doctors would be determined by a majority vote of doctors in a given community. Payments would be either (a) according to a fee schedule; (b) on a per capita basis, according to the number of assured individuals on a practitioner's list; (c) on a salary basis, whole or part time; (d) some combination of the first three methods.

The surgeon general would make public lists of participating doctors, dentists and hospitals. You would have choice of those doctors and dentists participating in the plan.

You could call a doctor or dentist not participating, but the insurance system would not pay the bill.

Senate Renews Question as to Pacific Bases

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Senator Magnuson (D-Wash.) called today for acquisition of some British-owned island bases in connection with any loan to England, thus spreading to both oceans current discussions of future American outposts.

Magnuson's comment to a reporter came in the wake of President Truman's declaration this country intends to retain exclusive control over any former Japanese islands it needs for security.

The chief executive told his news conference yesterday other Japanese owned or mandated islands will be placed under United Nations trusteeship. He added that no decision has been reached on what bases this country wants to keep.

Mr. Truman's words backed up arguments of American military and naval officials who long have urged permanent development of a chain of island bases from the Aleutians in the north to Manus in the south.

The President's assertion also amounted to a virtual directive to the American delegation to the United Nations assembly in London.

Magnuson, however, said this country should go even further north toward getting the bases it needs both in the Atlantic and the Pacific — and whether they belong to enemy or ally.

Most of the islands are located on otherwise barren islands and are of no commercial or military value to Britain or the empire," Magnuson said.

Magnuson may have an opportunity to present his argument formally on Capitol Hill within a few weeks. Mr. Truman told the news men he plans to send a special message on the British needs shortly after his message next Monday combining budget requirements with his views on the state of the union.

City Seeking Man To Hire as Dog-Catcher

A report that stray dogs had killed over $500 worth of fowls at the residence of Frank Lard on East Frederick has caused the city to renew its efforts to hire a dog-catcher.

"Stray dogs are becoming a menace, not only to property and fowl but to children because of the danger of rabies," City Manager Garland Franks said today.

The city manager said more reports were coming in every day on the stray dog nuisance and some thing must be done immediately.

He said the city would furnish a truck and all necessary equipment, together with an attractive salary, to anyone wishing to take the job.

The law requires that all dogs be licensed and vaccinated or be disposed of, Franks added. New licenses will soon be available and every dog owner will be required to have his dog inspected and licensed.

Kimmel

"I do not understand this paragraph unless it is to be published to the country as a promise that I will be disciplined at some future time," the letter added.

"I stand ready at any time to accept the consequences of my acts. I do not wish to embarrass the government in the conduct of the war."

LETTERS BROUGHT OUT

"I do feel, however, that my criticism before the public has about reached the limit. I am in daily receipt of letters from irresponsible people over the country taking me to task and even threatening to kill me. I am not particularly concerned except as it shows the effect on the public of articles published about me."

Kimmel brought out the letter during questioning by Seth Richardson, committee counsel, about circumstances of his retirement from the navy.

Earlier the investigators decided today to summon the former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts as a witness.

The action was taken after Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.), a member of the senate-house inquiry committee, questioned the completeness of the printed report on the Roberts commission's probe of Japan's attack at Pearl Harbor.

Ferguson said he would like to question Roberts not only about the possible omissions, but also concerning the conversation he reportedly had with President Roosevelt when he handed him the report Jan. 24, 1942.

Roberts already has written the committee that the full report was published after it was turned over to the President.

The committee's action regarding Roberts came as Adm. Husband E. Kimmel returned for questioning on his 25,000-word statement which committee members received with mixed reaction.

Seth Richardson, committee counsel, told reporters he intends to ask the former Pacific fleet commander about every important point Kimmel made in four and one-half hours of testimony that ended yesterday afternoon with a burst of applause from spectators.

William D. Mitchell, former counsel, left with Richardson a list of 35 questions he recommended that Kimmel be asked.

The retired admiral told the senate-house investigators the major share of the blame for the Japanese success Dec. 7, 1941, lay with Washington naval officials who didn't pass on to him information he said pointed to the attack.

Draft Law

Abrupt termination of the draft law on May 15 would eliminate the major source of replacements for those in later release categories, leaving them dependent on the success of the regular army's enlistment program.

TO SALVAGE LEGISLATION

The reason members of the house military committee are ready to let the draft law die is that they hope thereby to salvage the bogged-down universal training legislation requested by President Truman.

Although Mr. Truman's military training proposals preclude use of trainees as overseas replacements, the house members told a reporter they believe the well-trained reserve created by the program would reduce necessity for the large standing army now planned.

Meanwhile three senators tackled the task of finding some way to speed the return to civilian life of some 2,000,000 servicemen who have been chorusing "we want to go home."

Apparently unconvinced by detailed demobilization data from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, army chief of staff, the three-member senate inquiry group requested further information today from acting secretary of war Kenneth C. Royall.

Many congressmen who listened to General Eisenhower and Admirals Chester W. Nimitz and Louis Denfeld outline army and navy plans yesterday said afterward that the armed forces apparently are doing as well as possible on a difficult job.

Meat Strike

(Continued from page 1) desperate efforts here this week to avert the strike had proposed that the government pay 30 to 35 cents a hundredweight on dressed meat purchased by the government and that ceiling prices on civilian meats be raised 10 to 12½ cents a hundredweight.

Stating the proposal was "in a sense recognition of the fact that the industry cannot raise wages unless the added expense is recovered through the medium of high ceiling prices on meat," Eastwood said Armour's had found it necessary to reject the proposal.

He said Armour's calculations indicated the plan would provide only enough money to enable a wage increase of 4 cents an hour, whereas the unions demanded 25 cents or 17½ cents immediately and negotiation on the other 7½ cents.

An early indication of the effects of the strike was the report from 12 leading midwest livestock markets that hog receipts today totalled only 17,700, compared with 118,849 in the same markets a week ago.

Livestock producers for days had been sharply curtailing their shipments to market in the face of the approaching strike.

Weather

(Continued from page 1) las. But skies began to clear today. Longview was still cloudy, and two inches of snow covered the ground there.

Most highways were passable, although dangerous with coatings of ice in West Texas spots.

The Tyler-Marshall area in East Texas was blanketed by snow. The snow belt extended from West Texas to the middle of Louisiana. Snow was reported from El Paso to past Shreveport.

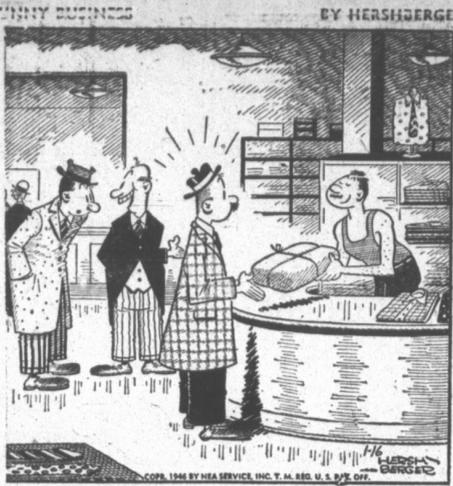

The cold wave penetrated as far as the lower Rio Grande valley. Brownsville reported 40 degrees, Corpus Christi on the Gulf 40, Laredo 35, Houston 35, San Antonio 33.

Forecast for today in East Texas was fair and continued cold, with lowest temperatures tonight, 22 to 26 in north portion, 26 to 32 in Central portion. Tomorrow will be fair and warmer, the weather bureau said. West Texas will be fair and not quite so cold, but low temperatures in the Panhandle and South Plains will be 20 to 24 degrees, and 25 to 30 elsewhere except along the Rio Grande.

Texas Tech To Get Air Field Barracks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Barracks at the Lubbock army air field, which will provide housing for 2,500 students, are to be released to Texas Technological college, Rep. George H. Mahon said.

Mahon asked that the barracks, which are about four miles from the college, be made available for students, enrolling for the semester beginning Feb. 1. He received only the promise that every effort would be done to do so.

14 Turkeys vs. Two Watchdogs-- All Dead

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16.—(AP)—It's 14 turkeys vs. two watchdogs—all dead—in municipal court.

Carl Krohn, poultryman, sued his neighbor, H. W. Isaac, for $175, alleging Isaac's two watchdogs killed 14 of his turkeys.

Isaac, accusing Krohn of killing the dogs, a shepherd and a chow, retaliated with a suit for $200.

Judge Newell Carnes took the claims under advisement.

Scouts Will Collect Boxes for Clothing

Tomorrow Boy Scouts in Pampa will collect boxes for the packing of clothing collected in the Victory Clothing collection drive.

Only the down-town area will be contacted, said Hugo O. Olsen, chairman of the collection. Merchants are urged to have suitable boxes prepared to be collected, strong boxes with a capacity of 100 pounds of clothing being desirable.

Clean, burlap sacks are also needed by the Victory drive, for the packing of shoes collected.

Merchants not contacted and who have boxes they wish called for should contact the scout office.

United Nations

(Continued from page 1) Russian occupation of Azerbaijan, northwestern province of Iran where a government has been set up with self-proclaimed autonomous powers.

IRANIAN AMBASSADOR

Seyed Hassan Taqizadeh, Iranian ambassador to London, said he had received new instructions from Tehran last night after his speech before the general assembly, in which he declared the issue would not be placed before the UNO at present.

Another member of the Iranian delegation, former Foreign Minister Nasrullah Enqezam, said the new instructions called for an immediate appeal to the security council.

CRITICAL TEST CASE

The Iranian developments, shaping up as a critical test case for the peace agency, overshadowed all other UNO activities and confronted Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs and chief Russian delegate, with a difficult situation.

Enqezam said the Iranian government would build much of its case against Russia on chapter 1, article 2, paragraph 4 of the United Nations Charter which declares:

"All members of the United Nations shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations."

Premier Ibrahim Hakimi told the Iranian parliament yesterday that:

1. "Direct talks" with Russia over the autonomy revolt in Soviet-occupied Azerbaijan province had failed.
2. Great Britain and Russia, who still have troops in Iran, was "hesitating" about evacuation by the scheduled deadline of March 2 and were "interfering in the affairs of Iran."
3. He had instructed Iran's delegation in London to approach the security council with his country's problems.

The crux of Iran's charges has been that the Russians were encouraging the revolt in Azerbaijan province, which borders on the Soviet Union, and that the Russians have refused to permit Iranian forces to move into the province to quell the revolt.

Soviet delegates told newsmen that Iran's troubles were not Soviet-inspired, possibly suggesting the line of Russia's replies if the issue should be referred to the security council, which holds its first session tomorrow.

Immediately after news of the Iranian premier's statement reached London, the Daily Express said, British cabinet members met to consider the new turn of events.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin is expected to make an important speech tomorrow.

Girl Scouts

(Continued from page one) from the ages of seven to 10 years take part in this division. The other two divisions are the intermediate class, which includes girls from 10 to 14, and the Senior scouts, composed of girls in Senior high school.

B. B. Altman, president of the Jaycees, told Miss Stejle he was sure the new club administration would do its utmost in support of Girl Scout work.

The installation of club officers will be conducted at an informal dinner-dance to be held next Wednesday night in the Palm room. Invitations have been sent to state Jaycee officials to attend the event.

A committee headed by Cleve Meharag was appointed to map plans for the drive to encourage residents to pay their poll tax before Jan. 31.

The committee, composed of Tom Capps, Bernie Price, Lyle Grunick and Jack Trimmer, will meet in Dr. R. A. Webb's office tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The club will also take part in the old ladies drive, to be held here next week. Several members are furnishing trucks, which will be used on Friday, Jan. 26, next to the last day of the drive.

No regular meeting will be held next Tuesday because of the Wednesday installation banquet.
