Atom Blast No. 12 Set Off In Nevada

LAS VEGA, Nev.—(AP)—Police said that a half-hour after the blast they had received 10 calls from citizens, already taking this sort of thing in stride.

Many people said they felt the vibration but did not see the flash. A reporter said "there was a cone-binding flash which outlined the hills north of town. The flash tapered off to a rosy hue and then disappeared. Six minutes later there was a rumbling noise which shook houses and rattled dishes. The flash occurred at 8:48 a. m. Pacific Standard Time. Some 300 miles west of Los Angeles an observer reported seeing a flash in the sky to the east at about the same time. The 10th and 11th blasts occurred last Saturday and Sunday here, both shortly before 8 a. m. The Sunday detonation was much more intense, awakening many residents of this gambling and resort community. Surveys determined that there was no radiation damage from the weekend tests. This entire area was monitored carefully. Speculation as to what is being tested here includes atomic guided missiles and atomic artillery shells. The AEC has declined to discuss the matter.

Walter Finds Buying House Cheaper Than Paying Rent

By TEX EASLEY
WASHINGTON — (AP) — The fanhandle's new congressman, Walter Rogers, has finally solved his housing situation.

He came up with his wife and four of their six children to take the oath of office Jan. 3. After a few days house hunting — and living in a hotel meanwhile, they located and bought a house in Northwest Washington.

"The funny thing about it," Rogers told his Texas colleagues, "we found it actually cheaper to buy a house big enough for us than to rent one."

"The monthly payments on the mortgage are a way less than monthly rent on the same kind of place. In time the difference will make up the down payment."

Mrs. Rogers then went back to Texas to bring up the other two children.

Mrs. Kate George, secretary to Rep. Ken Regan of Midland, is retiring after 32 years on Capitol Hill.

A native of Mississippi, Mrs. George moved to San Antonio with her widowed mother when a child.

She grew up in San Antonio and taught school there for a while before going to California. At the end of World War I she came to Washington, when her husband, W. J. George, was discharged from the army. He retired recently after long service with a local furniture company.

First congressional secretarial job for Mrs. George was with the then San Antonio representative, Carlos Bee, in 1918. She went to work for the late Claude Hudspeth, El Paso congressman, in 1923 and was with him until the now U. S. Judge Ewing Thomason of El Paso came here to represent the district in 1931. She stayed on with Thomason throughout his service in the house, and then remained on with Regan when he came up as Judge Thomason's successor.

Rep. Olin Teague of Texas says the special house committee he heads has only scratched the surface in its inquiry into the 11-billion dollar GI education program.

The house last year authorized an investigation of the education and training program for World War II veterans.

Teague says the committee has just started on the stacks of complaints from all parts of the country. It has nine members and seven staff employees.

"By and large the GI training program is a wonderful thing," Teague said, "but there are too many instances in which unscrupulous and dishonest individuals have worked their angles and under it at the expense of the government."

The purpose of the committee study, he said, is primarily to discover the weak spots and to make recommendations which will avoid similar mistakes when a program is enacted for veterans of the Korean war.

At present the over-all GI education benefits are extended only to those who served in the armed forces between Sept. 16, 1940 and July 26, 1947, or who volunteered for service between Oct. 6, 1945 and Oct. 6, 1948.

There is little doubt but what congress will extend similar benefits to the Korean war veterans. As it is now, only those Korean vets with disabilities qualify, and solely for vocational rehabilitation.

Teague is a World War II army combat veteran of European fighting. Wounded half dozen times and holder of 11 medals, including three silver stars and the French Croix De Guerre, the former colonel is married and has two sons and a daughter.

Pretty little Mikey Parkhurst, 11, Dallas, knows a good deal about the Federal Power Commission and legal arguments.

She flew up here with her daddy, Millard Parkhurst, one of the attorneys in the Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation District case. She sat on the front row throughout the long day's hearing to hear her father and other lawyers argue whether an FPC permit is necessary to build three new dams on the Brazos.

It was her first trip to Washington, so her father hurried her out for some fast night sleeping before the flight back home.

Steel Companies Financing Selves
NEW YORK — (AP) — The nation's top steel producers expect to pay the costs of their huge projected expansion programs without borrowing money or selling more stock.

This was made clear after United States Steel Corp., the "Big Steel" of the industry, and Bethlehem Steel, No. 2 producer, had reported record or near-record earnings for 1950.

U. S. Steel issued this report: net income of $215,337,655 highest since 1917 and exceeded only in 1916 and 1917. It was equal to $7.28 a common share.

Last Thursday E. G. Grace, chairman of Bethlehem Steel, said his company did not plan any new financing to pay for its expansion from 16,000,000 tons annual capacity on Jan. 1 to 17,600,000 by the end of 1952.

High School Students Lacking In Spelling Ability Says Poll

AUSTIN — Where's that old blue-backed speller? High school students today don't spell as well as those in their parents' schooldays, a survey conducted by University of Texas Professor Fred C. Ayer shows.

Dr. Ayer included the same six familiar words in his 1950 survey of U. S. high schools as were used in surveys in 1915 and 1925: Results indicate a general decline in the percentage of pupils spelling the words correctly. In 1915, for example, 100 percent of ninth grade pupils spelled "trouble" right. In 1925, 88 percent spelled it correctly, and in 1950 only 91 percent could spell the word.

Dr. Ayer blames the decline in spelling ability on decreased emphasis on spelling in the elementary grades and lower average mentality of high school pupils. The latter is explained by the fact that nearly everyone goes to high school now, in contrast to earlier years, he said.

The elementary school trend to let pupils learn spelling incidentally as they study other subjects has kept them from developing a technique to learn

Oilmen Assured Steel For Tools

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The oil industry has assurance its needs for 1,890,000 tons of steel for drilling tools will be met.

Frank Watts, director of the Materials Division of the Petroleum Industry for Defense, gave this assurance. The industry says it needs that much steel to drill 48,400 wells this year.

He advocates new and better methods of teaching high school spelling, including use of a specialized spelling textbook and definite emphasis placed upon spelling as a separate subject.

The importance of spelling ability is shown by various surveys indicating a clear correlation between vocabulary and academic success, Dr. Ayer pointed out.

Dr. Ayer, who holds a distinguished professorship, has made many studies on spelling and is the author of "Gateways to Correct Spelling," a speller presenting a modern psychological method of teaching the subject.

A-Bomb Manager Not Contemptuous

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Familiarity does not breed contempt when it comes to the atomic bomb.

That's the conclusion of Marion W. Boyer, new general manager of America's $5 billion worth of atomic enterprises. He's now been exposed to all the secrets. And he says he's a lot more impressed by the bomb and the revolutionary possibilities of atomic energy than he was when he didn't know any more about such things than you or I.

However, this sudden exposure to the frightening details of A-bombs and H-bombs doesn't seem to have scarred Boyer's genial facade. He's 49, bald, of medium height and generally an average-looking kind of executive. His most distinguishing characteristics are an infectious chuckle and a completely relaxed, frank and friendly manner.

Nevertheless, his sometimes onivial demeanor doesn't ever let you to wondering how in the world he rose to a top executive job in Standard Oil and to his new high post from a start as a school teacher. From the way he runs his office and handles problems of the new job right off, you discover that he's an efficient operator and a firm boss.

The first week on the job he asked the chief Atomic Energy Commission ghost writer to prepare a long, comprehensive speech for him covering the whole atomic field. When it was finished an AEC public relations man asked him where and when he planned to deliver it. He politely replied that he never intended to deliver it as a speech. And furthermore, he detested making speeches, he said.

The puzzled public relations man then asked him why he had asked to have the speech prepared in the first place.

"Oh," replied Boyer, "I found that everybody expects me to make profound statements about the atom every time my wife and I are out, so I'm just going to memorize this speech to have something atomic to converse about now."

Boyer insists that he isn't interested in the many social vistas Washington offers to its important citizens. He hasn't been to even a minor reception and says he doesn't have time for such things. This claim is buttressed by the quiet life he and Mrs. Boyer led back in their Greenwich, Conn., home. His big relaxation there was raising orchids.

There's another reason why the Boyers haven't exposed themselves more to the relaxations of Washington. Like all other of the city's parents they're having a bitter trouble. They have a 3 1/2 year-old son and find it practically impossible to find anyone to stay with him when they go out.

Boyer has seen most of the AEC's installations around the country and says he's favorably impressed with the way they are being run. He quickly explains that his is strictly a production job, as opposed to a policy job which is handled by the members of the commission. He sees little difficulty in increasing production and expanding the whole operation under present plans and is calmly confident that all goals will be met.

He's quite impressed with the difference between working for a big private company and working for a big government agency.

"You find that you've got to take into consideration a lot more factors when you decide to do something in the government," he explains. "Some are political, which is as it should be in a democracy," he says, "and then you are a servant of all the people and not merely responsible to a board of directors." On the whole, however, he likes being a servant of the people.

This is actually the fourth job Boyer has ever had. He jerked sodas before going to Massachusetts Institute of Technology, school near his home town of Muncie, Ind. From there he went to the research lab of Standard Oil at Baton Rouge, La., and in 23 years with that firm rose to one of its highest executive positions.

Surprise Due Kelly's Pupils

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The 10th grade students at Culver City High School are due for a jolt. They will soon be seeing the movie "Tom Sawyer," with their teacher in the starring role.

He is known as Mr. Kelly to the teen-agers, but to movie fans of a decade ago he was Tommy Kelly. Now that "Tom Sawyer" is being dusted off for a re-release, he is faced with a unique situation.

"I don't know how my kids are going to take it," remarked teacher Kelly. They are older now than I was when I made the picture. Seeing me and hearing me called "Tommy" may be quite a surprise to them.

Today Kelly looks much younger than his 27 years. He is still red-headed and looks only a few years older than when he played the Mark Twain hero at the age of 12. "When I came back from the war, the studios said I looked too young even to play 19-year-olds," he remarked.

He lives with his pretty wife and infant son and daughter in a new tract home in Culver City. "Some people think I should have lots of money because I was in pictures," he laughed. "Not long ago I figured up my entire earnings for 15 years in the movies. It came to an average of $10 to $15 a week.

"Sure, I made good money sometimes. But there were many weeks when I made nothing. The most I made under contract to Selznick was about $150 a week. But that quickly disappeared. Someone told us we should have a big house where we could entertain the press and other important people. So we did."

New Method Developed For Preservation Of Human Bone

CHICAGO — (AP) — Development of a new method of preserving human bones for "bone banks" has been announced by the Navy.

It may allow storage of bones for surgical use for as much as seven years, compared to an estimated one year limit for bones preserved by a previous method involving storage in a deep-freeze cabinet.

The new technique entails only a "quick-freeze," followed up by drying in a vacuum — and then storage in sterile containers at room temperature.

Navy doctors said it had these further advantages over preservation by deep-freezing, or by another previous method involving placement of unfrozen bone in antiseptic chemicals:

1. Simplification of storage and transportation problems. Deep-frozen bone must be kept in a big refrigerated cabinet. Bones preserved in antiseptics, while capable of indefinite storage at room temperature, necessitate frequent changing in the chemical preservatives used.
2. Better actual preservation of certain easily-damaged constituents of the bone.

The new method was described to the 18th annual meeting of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons by a team of doctors from the U.S. Naval Medical School, Bethesda, Md. The team was headed by Capt. F. P. Kreuz.

They said six human patients have been bone-grafted with this new type of preserved bone and "they have apparently healed in a normal manner."

In another report, Dr. Murray Copeland of Washington, D.C., said that radioactive materials of the atomic age are "far from replacing" radium and X-ray on any large scale in the treatment of cancer and allied diseases.

The Georgetown University Medical School doctor said that certain radioisotopes are being employed to supplement "and, occasionally, to replace X-rays and radium" in the treatment of such ailments.

And he added that widespread studies are underway designed to investigate further possibilities along this line with other isotopes, but he declared:

"There are relatively few artificial radioisotopes out of a total of 750 which have practical application in the medical (treatment) field at the present time."

He pointed out, however, that a number of these atomic substances are proving of value in the diagnosis of various diseases.

Production Goals For Farms Studied

DES MOINES — (AP) — A system of wheat and corn production goals for Iowa farms is under study here. The new plan, if adopted, would replace the present allotment programs.

The goal system would call for state-desired goals both on state and county levels. County totals would be broken down to township levels on the basis of the ability of various townships to produce needed amounts of grain. Promoters of the plan say it would give farmers increased production on a long term basis.

Dissent In Burma Raps Government

RANGOON — (AP) — A North Burma newspaper, "Myanma Lantzin (Burmese Way)" has editorially commented that the Burmese situation has been unsatisfactory since independence was achieved on Jan. 4, 1948.

It observed that the government claim to have restored 95 percent peace may be true of towns garrisoned by government troops, but was not applicable to outlying villages. The paper said that there is every likelihood of general elections being postponed again.

Although Words Different

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The song is the same — control wages — even though the words are a little different.

In World War II the War Labor Board (WLB) was the agency for controlling wages. It died when peace came.

Now a few years later there's a new wage-control agency, the nine-man Wage Stabilization Board (WSB).

At least six of the nine worked on, or with the old WLB. So they know the problems and how they had to try to solve them before.

When sweet reason fails in a labor dispute, the workers may strike or the employer may lock them out.

Right after Pearl Harbor President Roosevelt called a White House conference of labor and management leaders.

With the exception of John L. Lewis and his mine workers, they pledged no strikes and no lockouts for the duration. They couldn't promise no disputes.

How then could their disputes be settled? Mr. Roosevelt created the WLB to handle them. It had public, labor and management representatives.

Since big labor disputes are over wages, and the government was trying to keep prices and wages in line, WLB had to control wages.

Hundred of thousands of queries, disputes and complaints had to be handled during the war.

Workers wanted more pay and employes agreed to give it. Okay to keep wages in line with controlled prices.

One thing which the old WSB did was to set up a general formula intended to be generally fair in controlling wages. The WLB is trying to work out a formula of its own.

WLB came up with the "little steel" formula.

The formula was reached in July, 1942, as a decision on the wage demands by workers in the smaller steel companies.

Between that time and Jan. 1, 1941, living costs had risen 15 percent. So, roughly, WLB said: Any workers who hadn't received a 15 percent increase in wages since Jan. 1, 1941 were entitled to that much. The formula held up pretty well.

The very core of WSB's job in controlling wages is to control

Adoptions in Texas Growing 12 Percent Department Reveal

AUSTIN — (AP) — Adoption of children in Texas has been growing approximately 12 percent each year since 1948.

But the State Department of Public Welfare warned in its annual report that possibly 50 percent of 3,904 adoptions last year were illegal.

The department estimated that 1,700 Texas children were placed for adoption "illegally or unwisely" last year.

problem of a formula which will fit present conditions.

partment showed that the parents of 30 percent of the children offered were not married. Both parents of 27 percent of the children in adoption petitions were living but divorced or separated. Most of these were parent adoptions.

The department said that could investigate only two percent of the suspect cases because of lack of personnel.

New Whisper-Weight Wool Makes Debut For Spring

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The all-season suit in lightweight wool is a highlight of spring fashions. This practical suit may be made of domestic wool or it may be British wool. American designers are cutting both.

The advantages of whisper-weight 100 per cent virgin wool fabric are readily seen. It makes a suit do a full-time, rather than a seasonal, job in a wardrobe. Its protection against the whimsical ups-and-downs of the mercury reading. It drapes beautifully.

Designer Philip Mangone uses such wool for a town suit (left) in darkest navy blue lighted by touches of white in a polka-dot scarf-neckline and cuffs. The collar is rolled, cuffs are flared and hipline is arched. This suit has a slim-lined skirt with easy-tion wear lines.

Maurice Rentner cuts polka-dotted British wool into an all-season suit (right) with trim lines. He uses a small, detachable linen collar at the neckline, nips in the waist with a narrow leather belt, and marches buttons straight down the front of the jacket. The skirt is slim and simple.

'Build Anew' Widows Urged By Writer

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The married woman who finds herself a widow need not turn into a weeping willow, in the opinion of author Marjorie Hillis Roulston, who has learned through bitter personal experience.

As Marjorie Hillis Roulston wrote "Live Alone and Like It" in 1936. Several years later she married. After 10 happy years, she lost her husband through death. It was the following weeks and months that made her decide to write her new book, "You Can Start All Over." It's a guide for divorced women and widows, based on her own experience, and it deals with building a new life to replace the old one.

"I found," Mrs. Roulston explains, "that I had pressing problems immediately after my husband's death. For a time, I was too exhausted, physically and mentally, to want to solve them. Grief is exhausting.

"But since they involved the disposal of two large houses, I was finally convinced that I couldn't delay any longer. Just disposing of those houses, in which my husband and I had lived happily, took all of my time for a while. After that I had to find and furnish a new apartment. When it was all over, I found I'd returned to some semblance of normal living."

But that doesn't mean that from then on the sailing was smooth. While she found it possible to be fairly cheerful during the busy daytime hours, Mrs. Roulston dreaded seeing the hands of the clock point to five, the hour when her husband used to come home.

"I finally made a habit of having people in at this time every night for a while," she says. "It kept me busy, kept me from thinking. It also helped me to establish a new pattern of entertaining, one in which I was hostess without the help of my husband."

The problem of friends is, for a widow, a very real one, Mrs. Roulston says. As a single woman, she felt she did not fit

Author Marjorie Hillis Roulston: "A widow need not become a weeping willow. She can build a new life if she has the will to start all over again."

in with the married couples with whom she and her husband had been friends. So she picked an apartment in Manhattan and returned to the friendships she had prior to her marriage. It worked out very well for her. She thinks there's a comparable solution for every widow who will try to find one.

A former magazine editor, Mrs. Roulston doesn't feel that she wants to return to a full-time staff job. She intends, instead, to continue with her writing.

"The older woman who must work," she says, "should content herself with a small job, particularly if she has never worked before or if she's been out of things for some time. I find that I just don't want to do as much as I used to do. The ideal solution for the widow in need of a job to supplement her income is a part-time job, one that isn't too exhausting."

Mrs. Roulston does not believe that travel is an antidote for grief.

"My friends, who meant well, urged me to go to Europe after my husband's death," she says, "but I didn't. I felt that traveling alone would only serve to emphasize my loneliness."

Beginning a new life alone means a complete readjustment, Mrs. Roulston emphasizes, and this takes time.

"But there can be a thrill in making this new life of your own," she maintains. "I don't mean that it will ever be a life as full as that you had when you were married, but it can be both stimulating and interesting. All you need is the will and the enterprise to begin again."

Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

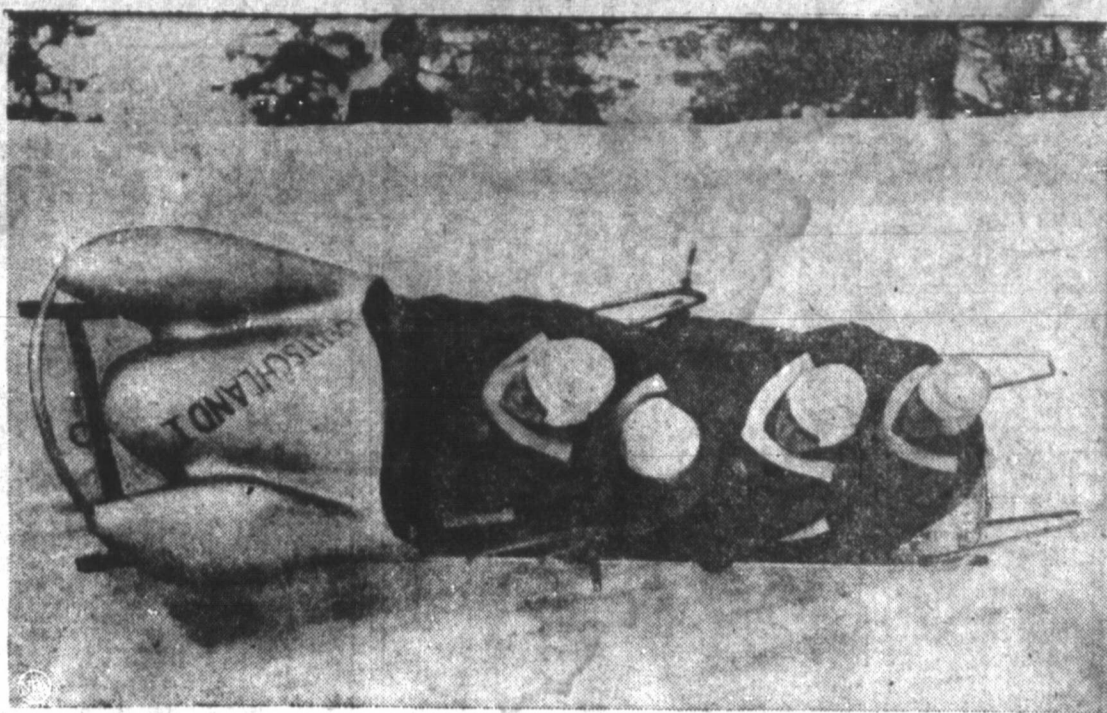

NEW YORK — (AP) — Danny Givhler, who'll serve as a coach for Cincinnati this season, has entered George Barr's Umpire school just to learn a little more about baseball from all angles. . . That ought to be a "must" for any player with managerial aspirations and isn't a bad idea for any ball player. . . Hurdler Dick Atlessey's strongest competition at the Pan American Games may come from Alberto Triulsi, Argentine star now a student at Santa Barbara (Calif.) College. . . The Southeastern Conference may be the first to make freshmen eligible for college football next fall. . . The York (Pa.) Aquatic Club will celebrate its 20th anniversary Feb. 20 and at the same time the York YMCA will honor the 10,000th boy who has learned to swim in its free program. . . The city has produced such standout natators as Bob Shol, Olympic breast stroke swimmer and Bill Schmidt of Temple.

Buck Bailey, Washington State College baseball coach, figures his colleagues finally have made some progress in their efforts to reach a no-tampering agreement with professional baseball. . . "I hope they told our request wasn't on the agenda," Bailey explains. "The next year they told us it had been tabled. A year later they said they just didn't get around to deciding. . . But this year we finally got an answer. The majors said 'no'."

Garden City, Kansas, claims the tallest forward line of any high school basketball team. . . Stan Stuart, 230-pound center, and forwards Roger Craft and Dick Smith all are 6-6. . . Garden City probably could claim a record concentration of college scouts, too. . . John Galbreath, Jr. Pirates prey, is buying a $50,000 airplane for Branch Rickey and his staff. . . Texas Christian U. Football Coach Dutch Meyer has decided to drop his T-Wing formation next fall because of lack of material to make it go. Dutch wants to concentrate on developing two full back formations. . . The National Hockey League has decided to number its referees and linesmen, starting tonight. That will make it easier for the fans to insult them by name.

Since the end of the football season, Louisiana State Coach Raynell (Gus) Tinsley has found his rubber-chicken circuit well timed. Gus consumed so much fowl (southern fried, of course) making the rounds of high school camps that he, or his stomach, finally rebelled.

For a fifth straight season the University of Texas football schedule will include at least three schools that participated in postseason play following the previous campaign. Bowlers on the 1951 Longhorn card are Kentucky (Sugar Bowl), Oklahoma (Sugar Bowl) and Texas A&M (President's Cup).

RIDING A WALL—Banking an ice-covered wall, Deutschland I speeds to victory in an international bobsled race at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany. The winning Germans are, left to right, Axel Oetler, Xaver Leitl, Michel Poetsinger and Lorenz Nieberl. The Home Guards broke an Olympic record beating teams from the United States, Austria, Sweden and Italy.

Grayson Says Athletes Did Their Share Of Fighting

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Gen. George C. Marshall's apparent singling out of the athletes in his proposed investigation and re-classification of 4-F's carries with it all the ugly sound of an unfounded attack of the last war.

Who was more pathetically open to vicious assault than a ball player within the age limits and in a World Series or an All-America football player officially declared to be unhealthy or not properly constructed for the armed forces? . . . Troublemakers and savage reputation wreckers circulated rumors even about renowned athletes who were in the service. It was whispered that they had soft jobs keeping them Stateside. Like movie stars, young men of great wealth and others in the public eye, sports figures were on the spot. Some people seemed to expect them to take unfair advantage of their former stature.

Because of that, they had to be extra good. To maintain decent relations with fellow soldiers sailors and marines, they had to carry more than their own load. . . The military laid down the rules. All the athletes, like everybody else, could do was abide by them.

If star ball players were kept in cantonments at home, they were assigned there. . . As a matter of fact, the bulk of the major league ball players in the service did not get overseas until Col. Larry MacPhail, who had just left the Brooklyn club, suggested it in Washington, for the good of the game and their own protection.

Military regulations made it tough on some of the athletes, too. Six-foot nine-inch An Blozis was too tall. The world record-holding shotputter and New York football Giant volunteered for the Navy and Marine Corps, but was rejected. He finally cracked the Army. He was killed in the European Theater searching in the snow for a lost patrol.

Jack Chevigny, the remarkable Notre Dame back of the mid-20s, went into the Marines at 37. They wanted Captain Chevigny to stay in the States on a desk job, but he kept at them for combat duty until they finally let him go. He was killed at Iwo Jima, leading his men under fire.

Torger Tokle, the incomparable ski jumper, had false teeth, finally got in the Ski Troops as an instructor, but somehow worked his way into combat. He was killed in Italy.

Bob Feller, baseball's top pitcher, doubtless could have taken over a job in Special Service. Instead, the Cleveland fireballer asked for regular duty, put in a tour of the South Pacific as a member of a gun crew on a battleship.

Ralph Houk, the Yankee catcher, volunteered for the Rangers, the U. S. version of the Commandoes. He rose from private to major under fire, fought all the way across Europe, got more than one Purple Heart and several other decorations.

There were hundreds of similar cases. . . There are two sides to every story.

Golfers Tee Off Today At Tucson

TUCSON — (AP) — The $10,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament starts today with a field as wide open as the surrounding desert. The experts say you'd probably need a dozen guesses to come up with the eventual winner.

This is a tourney in which you have to shoot par golf for four days in a row to win street car money. Yesterday was a good example. A chill wind blew across the 6402-yard par 70 El Rio Golf and Country Club Course yet 24 pros played under par and they weren't really bearing down.

Data is meager, but it appears that the average life span of prehistoric man was 18 years.

If Defense Secretary Marshall wants the athletic 4-F's all he has to do is ask for them, just as he would summon those in the ranks of bank and ribbon clerks, butcher shops, the teamsters' union and whatnot. . . Seeing as it's your war, mister, whether you're a tailor or a slot machine operator, a bookmaker or actor—or athlete—why single out one group for either glory or punishment just because of their business or avocation?

What's wrong with athletics anyway? . . . No country has ever gone haywire because of body-building games.

Coach Hill Starts Tryouts For 1951 Irish Track Team

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Coach B. L. Hill is starting his track tryouts this week, with a number of veterans to bolster his 1951 crew. Back from the 1950 squad is Donald Lea, 100-yard and 220-yard dash ace. Lea, an all-district full-back in 1949 and 1950, ran the 100 in 10.6 at the Memphis meet last year, and also turned in 24.5 in the 220.

Lea is expected to be one of the broadjump crew this season. After basketball season, two weeks from now, he will have the services of all-around athletic star, Vernon Tarbet, all-conference half-back in football, certain winner of all-conference guard in basketball this year, as in 1950, and Tarbet will again be his Irish hope in the pole vault event. Last season Tarbet won the district in pole vaulting. He also runs on the 400-yard relay team.

Vaughn Terry, football and basketball star, will be back in the 440-yard run and also in the mile relay. He will report after the basketball season. Coach Hill will be without the services of the 1950 district broadjump champ, Roger Skaggs, scattered football star who broke his leg in football practice last fall. He will not try in track this season.

He will also miss Oliver McLemore, a senior, who won the district high jump last year. McLemore, a three-year star, is over-age for competition, although he is still in school. Harral Dunnam, football quarterback will throw the discus and put the shot. Others who will work out for the track team: Van Pennington, Billy Harris, John and Paul Hartwick, Billy Free, James Henderson, Jerry Marshall, Junior Bishop and Bill Parks.

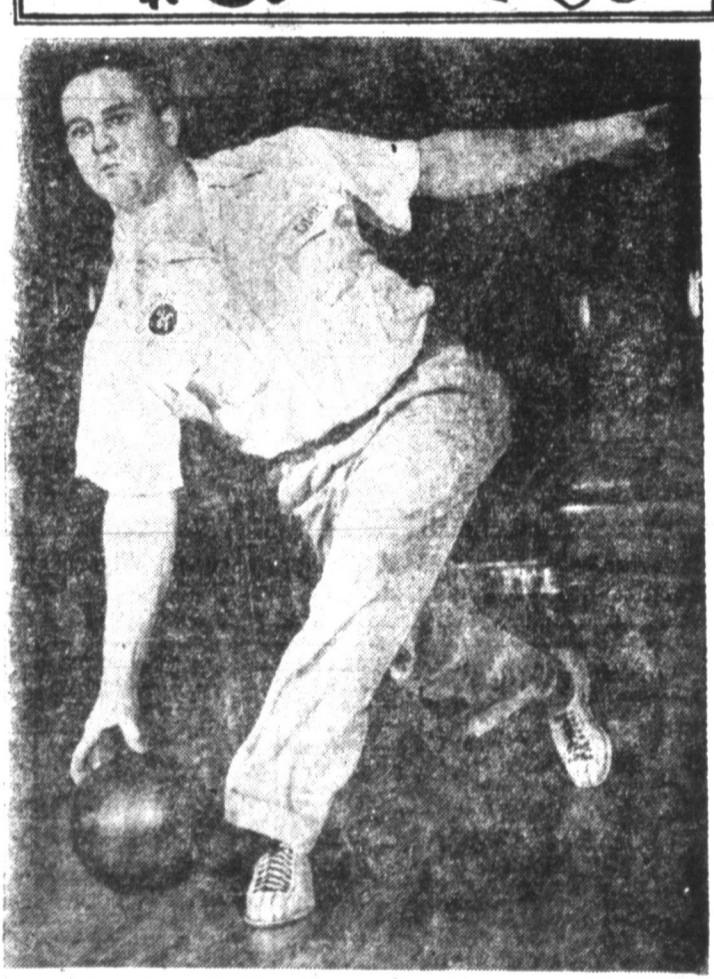

Gulf Coast League To Meet Sunday
ABILENE — (AP) — The Gulf Coast League will hold its scheduled meeting Sunday at Galveston, President Howard Green announced today.

Members of the league are Lake Charles, La., and Port Arthur, Galveston, Texas City, Corpus Christi, Laredo, Harlingen and Brownsville.

DOUBLE-EDGED—Charlie Hoag picks up a pointer from veteran Kansas coach Phog Allen. Spectacular runs earned the Oak Park, Ill., sophomore back All-America football recognition. His play as a guard is one of the numerous reasons why the Jayhawks are ranked nationally in basketball.

BOWL LIKE A CHAMP

THUMB'S UP—Dick Hoover's thumb is withdrawn from ball first.

By DICK HOOVER
World Champion

Although I recommend that a beginner use a straight ball, he or she will eventually turn to the hook, or curve, as more and more improvement is desired. . . hook will get more pins, result in fewer splits or railroads throughout a period of time. Every real expert rolls a hook. . . I favor a short hook with a ball more than average speed for myself, but I do not say that everyone should use this faster ball. . . A short hook is preferable to a wide, sweeping one because it is more easily controlled. It will get you into less trouble under varying conditions. The thumb is withdrawn from the ball first. . . At this point, the fingers take over, apply a turning or lifting action which later results in the hook as the ball traverses the lane. The ball is released close to the left ankle. . . The left arm at this instant is stretched out and to the rear to compensate for the right arm coming up. The left foot is solidly planted, well back of the foul line.

Pampa Boy Is 'Good Hand' At Boys Ranch

A nine-year-old, pleasant-looking boy with large, wistful eyes climbed out of a car at Boys Ranch last Saturday and demanded to know where his saddle horse was. Little David, Hawthorn of Pampa, who will make Boys Ranch his home for the next few years, was shown around over the ranch by Leroy Perrin of Liberal, Kansas, who will be David's room mate.

Leroy took David up to see Boot Hill Cemetery, down past Frenchie McCormick's old home, then out to the barn where David will probably find himself

Lackland Is Moving Air Recruits Inside

SAN ANTONIO — (AP) — Lackland Air Force Base, under a double-barreled investigation, has brought thousands of men indoors from tents during the current cold spell in usually sunny San Antonio.

The San Antonio Express said only about 12,000 men now are sleeping in tents. Before the cold wave struck 20,000 men had been in the outdoors living quarters.

The tents were one factor which prompted the two separate investigations still under way. Reports circulated that recruits lacked uniforms and some men had died of pneumonia as a result of improper sleeping quarters. The Air Force denied the reports.

No Change In Regulation For College Men

AUSTIN — There has been no change in selective service regulations regarding college student enlistment, Brig. Gen. Paul L. Wakefield, state selective service director, emphasized today.

General Wakefield quoted the following telegram he received from Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of the selective service system:

"College student enlistment is a matter of discussion in department of defense. You will be promptly notified if any change is made in selective service procedure."

College students, the state director pointed out, are prohibited from enlisting in the service of their choice under existing reg-

Correspondent Tells What Red Sniper's Target Thinks

By JIM BECKER
WESTERN FRONT, Korea — (AP) — What does a man think about when another man is shooting at him?

Cpl. Edward Chaney of Oia, Ark., asked: "do you hear those bees (snipers' bullets) buzzing?"

Cpl. Earl Zuckorth of El Reno, Okla., said "if you think this is bad, you should hear that zip when you are riding in a jeep. You don't know whether to speed up, slow down or stop dead and dive in a ditch."

Capt. Herbert Brannon of Kansas City, commented: "He isn't a very good shot but I think he's got one of our snipers' rifles."

Sgt. William H. Griffin of Newport, Ark., said "I am going to get him."

And what does a man, who was the sniper's original target, think? I can answer that one all right. When the first bullet whizzed by my ear I thought "what was that?" I stupidly exposed myself while watching a UN unit charge a hill 300-yards away. Close by me a tank was pounding the Reds on the hill and they were scurrying from the murderous blast like ants. Some of them scurried on their hands and knees.

Then the sniper opened up from a well-hidden hole on the hill. When the second shot zipped past I thought "this guy is trying to kill me."

The six of us — Chaney, Zuckorth, Cpl. Thomas Smith of Eckhart, Md., Brannon, Griffin and I—ducked behind a tank.

While we crouched behind our welcome shield we talked. Our sniper was a persistent fellow. He fired 30 or 40 rounds in the general vicinity. One doughboy behind us was winged in the hand.

Soon Griffin left our group. He hits everything he goes after. He's the best tank commander in the outfit," said Chaney.

Bill To Be Offered Barring Red Lawyers

AUSTIN — (AP) — A bill to bar Communists from practicing law in Texas will be introduced in the House by Rep. Bill Daniel of Liberty.

Endorsed by the State Bar Association, the proposal would also prohibit licensing of persons who have Communist leanings.

After order to report for pre-induction physical examination is mailed.

"This applies to any registrant, as well as college students," General Wakefield commented.

"The authority is set forth in local board memorandum No. 11, issued by national headquarters in November, 1948."

The state director added that no official change in this authority has ever been received.

General Wakefield said that, under existing regulations, any registrant, including college students, "may volunteer for immediate induction through a local board at any time."

He pointed out that all registrants inducted go into the army, or other services, including the air force and navy, have not as yet requested manpower through the selective service system.

NEED FOR INCREASE

In Taxes Easing

AUSTIN — (AP) — Improving financial conditions are seen by Gov. Allan Shivers as easing the need for new state taxes. The Governor told a press conference:

"The situation is improving and it will continue to improve."

Increased oil production this month, the Governor estimated, will mean $8,000,000 more a year in state revenue.

He said tax studies by the legislature and legislative budget board promise more revenue from tightened tax laws and from previously untapped sources of revenue.

He also suggested economy studies might be extended to cover feasibility of making more state boards and departments self-sufficient, rather than their drawing on the state's general revenue fund.

Reallocation of $14,000,000 annually in surplus road-bond money might relieve the road-building burden on the general revenue fund, he said. He noted the surplus now being divided between the State Highway Department and counties might be used to build roads instead.

July 25 Deadline For Vets To Enter School Of Printing

Veterans have until July 25 to apply for education under the GI Bill of Rights, according to announcement by officials of the Southwest School of Printing at Dallas.

Public Law No. 346 provides that a veteran who desires to enroll must be in training under this bill before the July date and the training must be completed July 26, 1956.

There is no time limit on application for education by disabled veterans under Public Law No. 16, but the deadline for completion of government education is the same.

The Southwest School of Printing is owned and operated by the newspapers and commercial printing firms of the Southwest. Since the war it has devoted its facilities to the training of veterans in the printing trade.

School officers point out that the next class will start April 2, and that this will be the last class before the veterans' deadline date. The school director is Ray Abel and the address is 3800 Clarendon Drive, Dallas 11, Texas.

Pastors To Utilize Films In Preaching

SPRINGFIELD, O. — (AP) — Teaching ministers how to preach and develop their ministry with a movie projector will be the object of a new course in audio-visual instruction, covering such subjects as use of a camera, both still and movie, projection equipment and films. The future ministers will be taught how to select, use and care for equipment and the use of film strips and other equipment.

every morning and evening, milking one of the ranch's big registered Holstein milk cows.

Then to the mess hall, the one place all of the 127 boys at the ranch like to congregate, where David received a few pointers on how to wash and dry dishes, and was introduced to Mr. Musgrove, the ranch cook, with whom all the boys stay on very friendly terms. Leroy explained to his new buddy about the fine pies Mr. Musgrove could bake. To the old-timers at the ranch, this explanation was more for Mr. Musgrove's benefit than David's, because the right compliment at the correct time is more than liable to influence the size piece of pie Leroy will get for supper.

David started to school Monday morning and seems to be fitting right into the ranch program one hundred percent. In other words, nine-year-old David Hawthorn is making a real "hand" at Boys' Ranch.
