Pigs From Poland:

Army Buying Meat Behind Iron Curtain

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The American Army has been buying meat from behind the Iron Curtain and paying dollars for it, German wholesalers disclosed today.

They said they had imported beef from Hungary for U.S. occupation personnel in Germany and have been promised help from American officials in obtaining pigs from Poland.

A shipment of 20,000 pounds of prime Hungarian beef was delivered by one German slaughterhouse to U.S. Army commissaries last month.

The Hungarian cattle arrived in West Germany by freight train and were inspected by Army veterinarians before they were butchered.

The German wholesalers received an average price of 40 cents a pound from the Army for the beef and paid Hungary in dollars.

There is no embargo on non-strategic trade with Russia-dominated eastern Europe. The U.S. State Department, however, tries to discourage the flow of dollars to Iron Curtain countries, which use them to obtain scarce war materials on the world market.

In a recent announcement that was launching a "test program" for buying meat in Europe, the Army quartermaster headquarters at Heidelberg admitted that it "does not specify any sources of supply to (German) contractors; (it) is only interested in the quality of the meat, slaughterhouse conditions and compliance with delivery specifications."

Ditching operation on storm sewers for N. Hobart got under way today at the north end where the major portion of the line will be constructed.

Machinery for the operation was moved in Thursday by the contractor.

However, before the sewers can be laid several sections of water mains will have to be changed; some of them lowered while others may have to be moved aside to make way for the large steel and concrete sections of pipe.

Running concurrently with the sewer operations will be installation of curb and gutters along N. Hobart prior to the scraping, widening and paving operations that will start within the next few days. Preparatory cleanup work, erection of structures, and other primary work is scheduled to start Monday when the state's contractor moves on the site.

Agriculture Industry Given Pampa's Salute

A salute to the agricultural industry is being given today in Pampa in connection with the city's observance of Texas Industrial Week, which ends Saturday.

In agriculture importance, Gray County ranks in the upper levels of the 252 counties of the state.

With a land area of 937 square miles, the equivalent of 600,000 acres, 90 percent of the land in the county is devoted to farm or ranch purposes.

Approximately 15,000,000 bushels of wheat are produced in this area during the average year. Other products include grain sorghums, barley, corn, hay, oats and rye.

There is said to be a total of 67,000 head of dairy cattle in the 20-county area that comprises Pampa's trade territory.

To encourage development of cattle in this area the annual Top of Texas Junior Livestock Show is held in Pampa each year.

The Jones-Everett Machine Company, founded in Ardmore, Oklahoma, in 1902, was the first shop visited where a series of photographs was seen of the growth and development of the organization.

The shop was founded by the late M. V. Jones who in 1929 advertised for a partner and C. H. Everett answered the advertisement. Jones' son, Cliff, is the present manager of the concern which started in Pampa in 1926.

Two meat machine shops, one specializing in general oil field and machinery repair, and one manufacturing replacement parts, were inspected by over 125 persons Thursday when open house was held in connection with Texas Industrial Week.

Truman Woos Labor Back Into Defense Planning Fold

Still The Administration's Hottest Potato:

McArthur Advocates Use Of Formosa Nationals In Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur has proved again he is one of the Truman administration's hottest potatoes.

His latest challenge of administration policy and Washington authority was burning fingers today at the White House, the State Department and the Pentagon.

MacArthur's letter to a Republican leader, Rep. Joe Martin of Massachusetts, warmly endorsing Martin's demand that the thousands of Chinese Nationalist troops on Formosa under command of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek be used in action against the Chinese and Korean Communists, had potentialities in at least three fields:

- 1. Domestic politics. 2. International politics, including the United Nations program in the Far East. 3. Military strategy.

While MacArthur's letter promptly raised speculation about possible disciplinary action against the five-star general there was serious question whether the White House would risk a bitter fight in Congress by removing him from command or promoting him out of it.

After reading MacArthur's letter to the House yesterday, Martin made it evident that here was the material for an issue.

"I think it is high time that the administration and the Pentagon came clean with the Congress and the American people."

The State Department, which has been openly unhappy on previous occasions over MacArthur's frank and free discussions of diplomatic affairs, obviously was chagrined again. The general's latest writings had come to light at a time when American diplomats were trying to quiet the noisy allies over Chinese reaction to a new push into North Korea. Nor could they fail to note MacArthur's comment that "here we fight Europe's war with arms, while the diplomats there fight it with words."

The Pentagon high command winced at this new pronouncement from the Tokyo command. It was made evident that the military leaders in Washington, on purely strategic grounds, disagreed with MacArthur on two major points made in his letter.

1. That "utilization of the Chinese forces on Formosa is in conflict with neither logic nor the tradition of meeting force with maximum counter-force."

2. That "in Asia is where the Communist conspirators have elected to make their play for global conquest."

MacArthur has declared the Chinese Communists can be defeated only by expanding the war to include all of Asia in a new Chinese nationalist assault on the mainland.

A dispatch from Tokyo by AP correspondent Russell Priney recalled that MacArthur made that statement on the Korean war.

He has also said neither side can win if the combat is restricted to the Korean peninsula.

Nations advance on the central and western fronts. American, British, Greek, South Korean and Thai (Siamese) troops fought ahead from hill to hill.

On the east coast, two South Korean divisions ranged 15 miles north of the border.

All but a few Chinese and Red Korean stragglers had been driven from battered South Korea.

The die-hards blocked the Hagye-lye road east of Chunchon on the mountainous central front.

American batteries up that road behind heavy artillery fire, but they still were south of Parallel 38.

The Reds controlled ridges on both sides of the road.

Once the road is opened to allied traffic, the front will extend from the Imjin River in the west to the Japan Sea on the east.

17-Man Committee Is Deciding Point

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman has wooed organized labor back into the defense planning fold with membership on a 17-man advisory mobilization board.

Union leaders agreed to the proposal late yesterday after a lengthy White House conference with Mr. Truman.

The President was reported "very happy" they've decided to take a hard. The labor chiefs said they hoped the move would lead to a complete solution of the problems which started their boycott of the mobilization program five weeks ago.

The board will hold its first meeting Monday. Mr. Truman is expected to sit in on it.

The board, made up of four representatives each from labor, industry, agriculture and the public, and headed by defense mobilization chief Charles E. Wilson, will help Mr. Truman determine defense policy.

AFL President William Green, CIO President Philip Murray, AFL Secretary-Treasurer George Meany, and Walter P. Reuther, head of the CIO United Auto Workers, probably will represent labor.

Presidential Press Secretary Joseph H. Short told reporters the other selections for the board had not yet been indicated.

The union leaders who met with Mr. Truman represented the United Labor Policy Committee (ULPC) which speaks for the major segment of union membership. Only John L. Lewis was missing from labor's top brass lineup. His United Mine Workers do not belong to the ULPC.

A major factor in labor's boycott of the defense agencies was their contention that defense mobilization Wilson, a former president of the General Electric Co., favored "big business" to dominate the defense program.

Mr. Truman apparently stilled their concern on that score by taking a tighter hold of the reins himself. AFL President Green told reporters the President (See TRUMAN, Page 6)

Legality Of Bond Petition In The Dark

Aviation committee members and their attorneys today were still waiting an attorney general's opinion on the proposed petition for an airport bond election.

Local officials were at a meeting when they learned a bond issue election for two county airports could not legally be held, or so it seemed according to statutes.

The problem cropped up when attorneys began to work on the wording of a petition to be submitted to the County Commissioners Court asking a special election to vote bonds for improving the Pampa Municipal Airport and the air strip at Me-Less.

When the committee first decided to ask for an election they (See BOND, Page 6)

House Group Cuts Truman Fund Request

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee voted a 43 percent cut today in an $845,463,569 emergency fund asked by President Truman.

It approved only $478,136,388 of the total sought by Mr. Truman to finance a number of emergency government activities for the remaining months of this fiscal year which ends June 30.

One of the larger cuts was in the Voice of America overseas broadcast program. Despite a plea yesterday by the President for the full amount, the committee recommended that only $9,533,939 of the $97,800,000 be granted.

Another cut was in the $454,000,000 budget of non-military defense agencies. The committee voted to hold the agencies to $24,750,000.

Along the line, the sums may be lowered or raised. Usually, the final form of a bill finds early cuts restored, at least.

The House committee approved funds for the employment of 1,260 additional FBI agents, for the repair and reactivation of 100 merchant ships in the laid-up fleet and for veterans' benefits including the purchase of 530 specially equipped automobiles for disabled veterans.

It rejected a $20,000,000 request to move 19,000 federal employees out of crowded Washington.

The biggest single cut was in the budget of the civil defense administration. Mr. Truman asked $403,000,000 for this purpose and the committee recommended $186,750,000.

For operation of programs growing out of the 1950 defense production act, the committee recommended $38,000,000, a cut of $12,000,000.

Stubbornly Fighting Reds Execute Surprise Retreat

TOKYO (AP)—A surprise Chinese withdrawal on the central front last night left a "no-man's-land" in front of United Nations forces today north of Parallel 38.

AP Correspondent John Randolph said Chinese who had been fighting stubbornly for two days suddenly broke contact Thursday night and retreated.

Americans thrusting forward Friday reported only patrol contact.

All along a 40-mile stretch of the front, UN units forged slow gains.

The allied advance had thrust as much as eight miles inside the Communist north-line.

Elements of four divisions pressed the slow, cautious United

Doctor Who Killed Wife's Seducer, Commits Suicide

HOUSTON (AP)—Dr. Robert C. Rutledge, Jr., who killed his wife's seducer, chose death to a prison cell.

His 70-year sentence confirmed by the Iowa supreme court and, at an end, the handsome 30-year-old children's doctor wrote a last love letter to his beautiful wife.

There he executed a carefully planned suicide.

The weapon was carbon monoxide and the time indefinite. But the setting was the couple's favorite spot in the countryside.

"Love is fleeting," he wrote the blonde, statuesque Sydney. "Forget about this. Time will cure a lot of grief."

Rutledge's body was found in his automobile late yesterday. There was proof it had been there all day, probably all Wednesday night.

His suicide was the last act in a case that included murder of Byron Hattman and one of the most torrid and sensational trials in the history of American law.

The lives and loves of Rutledge, his wife, and Hattman were unfolded in a Cedar Rapids, Ia., courtroom in 1949.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

God's creation endures forever, says Christian Science in the Lesson-Sermon on "Unreality" to be read in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, April 8. The ultimate destruction of that which God has made is clearly stated in the Golden Text, "Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire" (Matthew 7:19). Further elucidating the subject in this citation from the Bible, "For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous; but the way of the ungodly shall perish" (Psalms 1:6).

In the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy writes, "When false human beliefs learn even a little of their own falsity, they begin to disappear" (page 252). Thus does the Lesson-Sermon show that mankind's false beliefs are unreal, while all that God has made is real and good.

Sweet Hour of Prayer

An old carver dictates a poem—

Everybody in Colchester, England, knew William Walford. On Sundays he preached around at different churches for his minister friends. During the week the townfolk made his little cricket shop their favorite meeting place. He was forever whistling out novelties for children and he made his most living carving items from ivory. Though his life was filled with adversity and he had seen many seasons of distress and grief there was something uplifting about the old carver's outlook on life.

One day in 1842 when Congregational Minister Thomas Salmon stopped in Walford's shop he found his friend with more on his mind than his carving and usual optimistic philosophy. He had composed a poem and he asked the Rev. Salmon to take the words down as he recited them.

Three years later, on a visit to New York, Salmon presented the old carver's poem to the New York Observer. It was printed in the September issue of 1845 but nothing of note came of it until 14 years later. Then, in 1859, a copy of it came to the attention of New York's organist and composer William Bradbury. In addition to directing choirs, writing music for some of the most famous hymns and manufacturing organs, Bradbury published some 60 hymn books. He immediately saw in Walford's poem material for a hymn, set it to music and published it.

The reason William Walford had asked the Rev. Salmon to take down his poem while he dictated it was because the old carver was blind and couldn't see how to write.

SWEET HOUR OF PRAYER
Sweet hour of prayer! Sweet hour of prayer!
That call us from a world of care,
And bids us at my Father's throne
Make all my wants and wishes known
In seasons of distress and grief,
My soul has often found relief,
And oft escaped the tempter's snare
By thy return, sweet hour of prayer.

Engage the waiting soul to bless;
And since He bids us seek His face,
Believe His Word and trust His grace,
I'll cast on Him my every care,
And wait for thee, sweet hour of prayer.

The Bible's Story Of Beginnings

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Suppose an intelligent person, who had never read the stories of beginnings in the early chapters of Genesis, should come across a reference to a "tree of the knowledge of good and evil," and an account of a serpent speaking; would he not in the very nature of the writing realize that the writer was speaking in a symbolic, rather than in a literal way?

One thing about the Bible that many people forget is that it is an Eastern book. The daily language and literature of the East has always been full of figures and symbols very different from much of our prosaic, Western liberalism.

The prophets frequently used figures of speech and symbols to illustrate and express truth. The parables of Jesus were true to life and revealing in the truth concerning God and man that Jesus would impart, but they did not depend upon the incidents described having actually happened.

It was a "certain man," who went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and it might have been any man so far as the truth and the teaching were concerned. The parables are stories and teachings for today, and not just stories of something that happened long ago.

The great teacher under whom I studied these things years ago interpreted the symbolism of the early Genesis stories in his own way. He suggested that the creation of woman from man's side meant that she was to be his equal and his mate; not for his head that she should lord it over him, nor from his foot that he should dominate her. This interpretation is in harmony with the high esteem in which women were held among the Jews and in contrast with their inferior position among many other peoples.

I have never forgotten an incident in the classroom one day. When for most of the lecture period Chancellor Burwash had been proceeding with his poetic interpretation along this line, a student in the back of the room suddenly spoke up. "Do you think, Dr. Burwash," he said, "that Adam was put to sleep so he wouldn't feel any pain when the rib was taken away?"

I don't know whether the student had been asleep or not. But Dr. Burwash, a serious saint not often seen to smile, threw himself back in his chair, with a loud laugh. When he recovered himself, he said in solemn, singing tone, which you can hear to this day: "O, you bald Occidental, you do not understand the beautiful poetry of the Hebrew mind." The student, a diminutive fellow, was thereafter known as "the little rib" — but that's neither here nor there. The story of the beginning of sin symbolizes the subtle and easy temptation of those made in the image and likeness of God; the essence of sin in disobedience to divine command; the knowledge of good and evil as the result of the fall, and the emergence of man into moral struggle and moral responsibility.

BEAUTY AFTER FORTY

Women put their all into any job and often they forget how to play and even how to relax. Never have I called upon a woman executive and found her out; gone to the races, the ball game, golf or even shopping! The only "off time" for a busy woman executive is to have her hair done or get a manicure, and she apolizes for that, but she considers the time well spent because she knows that she must be well groomed.

Women take their careers very seriously and work at top speed—ward success. . . any woman in any job is doing just THAT! The women who are doing nationally important jobs go at them with a will but they are often accused —by men of course, who else?—of emotionalism, flightiness, and not approaching the problems with an open mind! That may be true and if and when it is, the women should Stop, Look and Listen! They will do a better job—and live longer—if they do their jobs as men do. Look at the work as a job to be done and realize that time out for relaxation and for some personal life is very important.

No one, not even the smartest woman, can go on making good and wise decisions if she is exhausted physically and mentally. This gives the men the opportunity to question their judgment and then, to criticize.

So, if you are having a busy career, ease up just a bit, don't do it with such a rush. Take things in your stride and when it's time to close your desk, close it, and go home to a few minutes' rest and a beauty bath and a decent dinner in your prettiest housecoat. Calmness is necessary for doing a good job and, if you want to, for the continuation of your career long After Forty.

If you are one of those busy, busy career women who never stops working and talking about her job, read this over twice—and then act!

'How's Business?'

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — A Democratic reform ticket of Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois and Crime Chaser E. A. Tamm of Missouri is rapidly gaining at least talkative momentum among certain circles which do not believe President Truman will seek reelection next year.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

Liberals no longer view Mr. Truman as Franklin D. Roosevelt's heir, his vote-getting deal program is dead on Capitol Hill. Labor and the farmers seem to have broken away. Ever since the special election held since last November has resulted in a severe indictment of the Truman record.

Place The Blame Where It Belongs

Who do you blame for inflation?

As a hundred people that a question and you'll get a bewildering array of answers. Some blame manufacturers, on the theory that they are holding us up to a forethought. Some say that the retailer is the modus vivendi of a James, taking only the hoarse and the six-shooter. Others pick labor, the farmers, and various groups as the goat.

This is a free country and we're all entitled to our opinions. But the fact is that the people most of us blame for inflation are among its victims. The manufacturer and the retailer, for instance, must operate in intense competition, and their profits, believe it or not, amount to a very small part of the consumer dollar.

Then, who is really to blame? A full answer to that would require a lot of big books. But an inkling of it is found in a succinct form in one of Henry Hazlitt's recent Newsweek columns.

There is the gist of it. The real underminer of the dollar is the U. S. Treasury and those who make Treasury policy. So, next time you get annoyed by high prices, don't damn the storekeeper or any other innocent bystander. Put the blame where it belongs.

Competition Upheld

Early this year the Supreme Court handed down a decision on a highly important case that began in November, 1940. At that time, the Federal Trade Commission filed a complaint against a leading oil company on the grounds that it sold its products to four jobber customers in Detroit at lower prices than those made to retail dealers. This is a common practice nationally, as jobbers take overhead charges and so get a better price.

Washington... by Peter Edson

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It's a wise man who knows when to quit. This is as true of politicians as it is of prize fighters.

What's the difference between a White House aide who accepts a deep-freeze from a fixer who has something to gain by it and a senator who sends out personal publicity telegrams at taxpayers' expense?

What's the difference between an RFC examiner who accepts a bribe to throw games and an alumnus who subsidizes an athlete in amateur sports?

What's the difference between the patron of a policy game racket who is illegally in this country and ought to be deported, and the employer of "weeback" labor smuggled across the Mexican border in violation of the immigration laws?

What's the difference between, say, dealers in gray market steel, defense profiteers, labor union leaders who walk out on government defense efforts in protest over wage ceilings, and the congressional bloc which threatens to make it impossible for Price Stabilizer Mike Di Salle to put a 45-cent ceiling price on cotton?

As Senator Fulbright has said, as investigation may not have uncovered many outright violations of the law. What it has uncovered are many cases of presumably respectable people "circumventing" the law and enriching themselves at government expense.

The big test now is whether the White House and the Congress have the guts to correct the abuses that have been disclosed. Will the President have the decency to fire the members of his staff who have been indulging in taking questionable favors? And will the Congress have the

PAMPA SALUTES ITS

AGRICULTURAL PROCESSING PLANTS DURING TEXAS INDUSTRIAL WEEK

Agriculture and its allied industries have contributed greatly to the development of this area. The rolling fertile land of the high plains produces a large part of the nation's wheat, and its fine blooded cattle are known throughout the great Southwest as tops in beef.

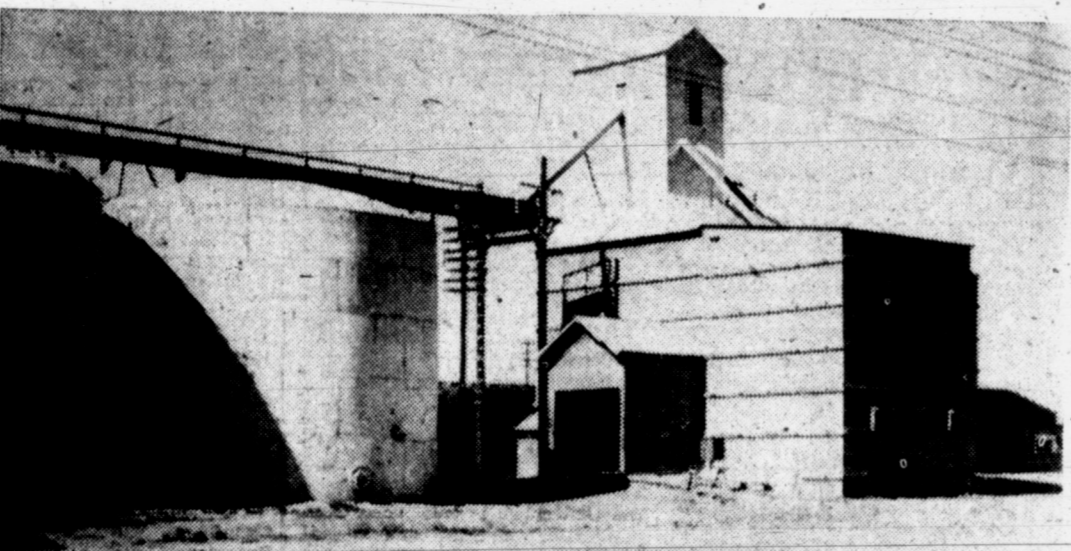

With Mother Nature's endowment being so generous it is only natural that many plants and facilities have located in the Pampa area to process this bountiful harvest. We are proud to salute the agricultural products processing plants which contribute so much toward the $38,974,000 total annual payroll of this area.

Discussion With Mr. Hallett

Peter: "We ought to obey God rather than man." About religious liberty in Catholic countries: Obviously, the quotation from the Bolivian constitution is aimed against the VIOLENT overthrow of the Catholic Church. It does not prohibit Protestants from practicing their faith in that country. As to Spain, etc.: Rep. W. R. Poage of Texas, a Presbyterian, declared on the House floor June 13, 1950, that the restrictions imposed on Catholics, especially in the Scandinavian countries, are just as stringent as those which have been laid to the Spanish door. He cited Norway, Sweden, and Switzerland as notable offenders—all deemed eminently democratic countries.

About the Jews: Your statement that Hitler and Mussolini, against whom the encyclicals, "Non Alieno Bisogno" (Mussolini) and "Mit Brennender Sorge" (Hitler) were aimed, were "pontifical rulers" is unworthy of any newspaper columnist. In the March, 1940, issue of the Rabbinical Assembly Bulletin, Dr. Louis Finkelstein, provost of the Jewish Theological Seminary wrote: "Mindful of history, the Jew will remember that, while all medieval European states expelled his ancestors, it was in the Papal States alone that they were spared such treatment. Indeed, it is not too much to say, with Prof. Salo Baron that: "It may be asserted that, had not been for the Catholic Church, the Jews would not have survived the middle ages in Christian Europe" (A Social and Religious History of the Jews, III, p. 85).

Catholic teaching on theft: Surely, Mr. Baxter, you do not suppose a just God will mete out equal punishments for the thefts of one dollar from a beggar and a hundred dollars from a millionaire? The Church holds all thefts to be sin, but not all thefts to be equally grave. In this she but follows the common sense of mankind. The theft of $40 is almost always a grave sin, that is, a sin that will send you to hell. Only if it is taken from an exceedingly rich person does it become less than grave. Since theft is a sin against charity as well as against justice, its gravity will vary according to the injury done to its victim, and this will vary with his wealth. But there is an absolute sum, which is always a mortal sin to take, even from the wealthiest person or corporation, else the very fabric of society would be endangered and the stimulus to labor would be taken away. When Catholic moralists determine that such a sum is absolutely grave matter for theft, beyond which it is a sin to steal from anybody, they of course do not mean to condone theft in any amount. Still less do they deny the State the right to punish amounts stolen under $40, or whatever the sum may be, as well as those amounts above that sum.

When a man is in utter destitution he may take from another who has a surplus enough to save his life. This is not really theft, because every man has the right to life, and the one from whom a thing is taken to sustain the life of another cannot be reasonably unwilling.

Can't you see, Mr. Baxter, that your editorials against the Church of your Catholic fellow citizens create the very division you say you wish to avoid? The Catholic Church does not hurt you, or the interests of Americans of any creed. On the contrary, by its divinely delegated mission to bring souls to Christ, it can be, and has been, an instrument of incalculable good even for man's temporal well-being. All the civilization we have been fostered or preserved for us by the Catholic Church, if all people would accept the golden words the present and former Pontiffs have never ceased to throw out for world peace at the strife of this tragic era would disappear. You could do a real service, Mr. Baxter, to the readers of your column, if now and then you considered the contributions the Catholic Church has made to the welfare of man, both eternal and in this life. If you would study her in some book like Stoddard's Rebuilding a Lost Faith, or any of countless Catholic books of apologetics, or in the strong Catholic press, you could do a vast amount of good, for then you would see all your fears vanish and a love and respect build up in your mind. Yours in the charity of Christ, Paul H. Hallett.

Dear Mr. Hallett: The spirit of your letter is well taken and I agree with you heartily that charity should prevail in such discussions as we were having. I assure you, sir, that I am not offended and that I respect you as sincere in your Catholic belief and a gentleman. I suppose you are quite correct in asserting that most of the authorities I cited (re: persecution) were of middle-age vintage. I had intended to cite more recent cases—particularly as pertaining to non-Catholic missions in South America and elsewhere—in a later article, after first laying the historical background. We will come to that in due time. However, your mention of Protestants likewise having persecuted in the middle-ages and even in New England is indisputable. I have pointed to such witch-burnings and intolerance more than once. If you have been reading my column for any length of time you will observe that I have not spared Protestant intolerance one whit more than Romanism, and my contentions with leaders of the Federal Council of Churches over socialism and would-be dictatorial tactics in America have been re-printed in many genuinely Protestant papers. Thus I am hardly in the position of gilding the Protestant lily while blackening the Roman one—I am, of course, a Protestant, but with a very strict and specific definition of the term. Aside from theology (which I do not emphasize in the secular press) I protest against ANY real or potential union of church and state or attempts by any organized religious body to enter our political field or attempt to dominate the government. Communism, being basically anti-religious and economic rather than political, I place in the same category.

In view of statements of Roman Catholic dignitaries and authorized spokesmen and papal pronouncements of the past I am not too well satisfied with some of your explanations of heresies, penalties, etc., but since you are speaking as an individual and assuming you are giving me your personal opinion. My personal idea, of course, is that, while I have not accused religious groups in America of present-day intolerance, followed by persecution, I am not in favor of giving them a chance to get into a position sufficiently powerful to enable them to do so. We can only gauge what a group or individual might do or would be likely to do from what they have done or are doing in other parts of the earth where they do have sufficient pressure to influence governments. If a man is in jail for having committed robbery and murder it is logical to assume that, were he not restrained, he would commit the same crime again—no repentance having been demonstrated.

Your definition of heretics involves a great deal more than this discussion calls for, friend. In fact, we would have to go into theology, take up basic theological differences and follow through to the sound conclusion. There is absolutely no possibility of reconciling the BASIC differences between the Protestant viewpoint and that of the Roman Catholic church. One or the other is right. You believe your way to be, I believe contrariwise. But they can't be harmonized and made to fit together. I do not regard myself as a heretic, for example, but you are obliged to so regard me. I doubt if even casuistry could surmount the subject of heresy sufficiently that the Catholic church could honestly say that she tolerates heresy or guarantees it liberty to practice and propagate. And, according to your theology, I doubt exceedingly whether the Catholic church could or would guarantee we Protestants complete freedom to practice and propagate what you consider our "heresy" if the Catholic church had the power to prevent it.

On the other hand, by my own faith I could not and would not in any way restrict or forbid the Catholic or any person, no matter how much I disagreed with him, from carrying on complete freedom of conscience and worship. Do you not see, Mr. Hallett, that from your church's theology on heresy, zation we have been fostered or preserved for us by the Catholic Church, if all people would accept the golden words the present and former Pontiffs have never ceased to throw out for world peace at the strife of this tragic era would disappear. You could do a real service, Mr. Baxter, to the readers of your column, if now and then you considered the contributions the Catholic Church has made to the welfare of man, both eternal and in this life. If you would study her in some book like Stoddard's Rebuilding a Lost Faith, or any of countless Catholic books of apologetics, or in the strong Catholic press, you could do a vast amount of good, for then you would see all your fears vanish and a love and respect build up in your mind. Yours in the charity of Christ, Paul H. Hallett.

FROM NINE TO FIVE By Jo Fischer

YOU'RE GOT TO BE A LITTLE PATIENT, MR. WUMP! IT TAKES MONTHS TO LOSE A LETTER AND IT IN JUST A FEW MINUTES!

Your statement that "there are NOW no disciplinary regulations other than excommunication or other spiritual penalties" is purely EXPEDIENT and the only reason such purely spiritual sanctions are NOW invoked is because of circumstances. The church simply hasn't the POWER to apply any other penalties AT THIS TIME. By all means, read "FREEDOM OF WORSHIP" by your Father Connell. I think you will find him following my line of thought consistently.

Regarding your comments on Italy, etc. you might read my recent column on whether the Catholic-church really is a bulwark against Communism. You are entirely correct about any state law that conflicts with morality being null and void and in doing God's will rather than man's, but the American state does not recognize ORGANIZATIONS—ONLY INDIVIDUALS. It is as individuals and not as organizations, such as churches, that we must uphold political morality. Otherwise we would be a nation of pressure groups, which indeed, we are becoming.

Your statement that "Catholics believe in a certain union of church and state, but only in countries where they form by far the majority," is not reassuring, for that could and would be their policy in AMERICA should they become "by far the majority." Incidentally, Mr. Hallett, in our discussion in the Gazette-Telegraph recently you said, "Baxter's contention that Catholics believe only in the right of a majority to rule could not possibly have been further from the truth."

Such rule implies that might makes right, that majorities should rule without any regard for MINORITY RIGHTS. In short, it is democracy. I am as much opposed to the immorality and violation of individual rights inherent in democracy as is Westbrook Pegler. While our Constitution does not specifically say that church and state shall be separate, the implication is clear in Article I of the Bill of Rights. There can be no freedom of conscience and worship if any church ever unites with or dominates the state. You wouldn't enjoy freedom of conscience or worship very long if the Jewish synagogue or an organized Protestant group or the Mohammedans to summarise the "church" upon the state. We are at opposite ends of the pole on that score.

About theft: No where in all Scripture has God made distinctions in how much or how little a man must steal in order to be guilty of serious or minor theft. God hands down PRINCIPLES, not expediencies or compromises of principles. He says that is theft. "Thou shalt not steal." He doesn't say whether from a rich man or poor man or whether much or little. "Thou shalt not steal." A man is either a thief or he is not a thief in God's eyes. He is as much a thief if he steals a penny as he would be if he stole a million dollars. I must remind you that "God is no respecter of persons," according to the Scriptures. In no place does He say HOW MUCH of a sin you must commit to be a sinner. Sin is sin, that's all. Would you apply your reasoning on that Commandment to other Commandments, such as "thou shalt not kill"? Is there any distinction between a "little" killing and a "big" one? Is it any more moral to kill a rich and evil man than a poor, righteous one? Is there a "little" adultery that is more justifiable than a "big" one? Can you point out an instance where God ever practiced casuistry? Why, then, did Jesus point to the principle and refuse to differentiate by declaring that when a man looks upon a woman to lust after her he has already committed adultery with her in his heart? NO DEGREE of adultery—just adultery.

Oh well, this could go on and on. Perhaps some day we'll get down to a serious and preferably private THEOLOGICAL discussion. In the meantime, while irrevocably a Protestant against some of the policies of the Catholic church which you have expressed, I bear you the utmost good will personally and thank you for the expression of ideas. Yes, in the spirit of the years, David Baxter.

The Gold Mannequin By Myles Connolly COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Tim Reese, a crippled veteran who has kept "Jean Paul's" going since he was a kid, is going to walk again. His interest in designing had been kept up by Jean Roland, an emotional and half-wild of the shop, whose interest is purely mercenary. But Tim is in love with her. Now able to walk, Tim goes to New York to surprise Jean. He is told by Miss Major, secretary of Jean Paul's, that Jean is attending the "Dress of the Year" contest at which the "Dress of the Year" will be chosen by a male jury. The manager of the contest is a television unit and watches Jean choose. The appointment tells "Tim that Jean had won in a gown designed by him."

Still, Tim expected Mr. Panciera in his speech of acceptance to give some credit to the actual designer, to refer, even indirectly, to Tim himself. But Mr. Panciera made no even slight reference to Tim. He praised Jean and took the rest of the glory for himself. Indeed, to Tim's complete exasperation, Mr. Panciera was smug about the award, accepting it with an easy egotism, passing the gown off as something he considered one of his lesser achievements. Tim watched him glibly bow himself off the platform, nonchalantly acknowledging the applause, and his exasperation grew to anger. He belonged in this evening somewhere, he told himself. After all, he HAD designed the winning dress. The music began. Again the dancers danced, and again the whirling, ever-changing pattern of black-and-white marionettes and radiantly jeweled and gowned creatures came to life. But it was no longer fantasy for Tim. Somehow, falsehood and deceit had dispelled the celestial aura. Who was this tall, sharp-mouthed, urbane and egotistical Mr. Panciera? Could he really be the unprepossessing, practically odious head of the firm that Jean had led him to picture on her first visit to Cedarbrook? And why hadn't Jean telephoned or written to him about this important evening? It was his creation she wore, wasn't it? Tim, in the balcony, got laboriously to his feet. He was going to find the answers.

JIGGER, the bellboy, found Jean at the bar in the lounge off the Main Ballroom. She and Mr. Panciera were being gaily toasted by a group of admirers. He waited until the hubbub of the toast was over, then gave Jean the note he carried.

Indifferent to the contents of the note (Jean had had many notes in her life), she finished her wine before she read it. Mr. Panciera noticed the shadow of shock across her face. He took the letter from her limp fingers, read it. "No," he said in quick annoyance. "What does he mean turning up here without warning? No. He can't do this. Send word you are tired and have to go home. Tell him you will call him tomorrow."

Jean, still mute from shock, indicated Jigger who stood by waiting for instructions. "The gentleman is waiting?" Mr. Panciera questioned the bellboy. Jigger jerked a thumb over his shoulder. "In the lobby." Jean finally was able to speak. "I'll have to go." She lowered her voice. "I may not be able to come back for a while. Forget about me." Jean followed Jigger toward the lobby while Mr. Panciera, frowning with annoyance, looked on.

THE lobby of the Empire was many-columned and richly shadowed, and Jean, trailing Jigger, came upon Tim even before she saw him. He, from a low, deeply-cushioned chair, looked up at her, tall and slender in white against the softly shadowed background, and immediately his anger left him. Never had he seen her at night before and never had he seen her so lovely.

She, looking down at him and discovering, instead of the helpless, pale creature of the wheelchair, a healthy, extremely handsome and well-groomed young man, was startled.

Magazine Letters Sections Capture McLeMORE's Fancy

Observations from the observation car by a man who is riding coach: If when I die I am given the chance to return to earth I shall choose to come back as the Letters Section of most magazines and a lot of newspapers. This is a place where you are praised nine to one. The Letters Section is where a man can blow his own horn without benefit of music or physical instruction. Somebody blows it for him, and good and loud, too. If you doubt me turn to the Letters section of most magazines, and you will find that the Letters run something like this: "Never in my life have I been so thrilled as by your fair, impartial, objective, unbiased treatment on WELY SKYSCRAPERS LOVE ONE ANOTHER, in your April 8th issue, by Smoking Rpscoe. You have done a great public service, and if we were hats down in this section of the country, we would lift them to you. Enclosed find check for 3,000 years' subscription." As another example you will find this sort of thing very common too. "Who is Benjamin in Tricycle? We had never heard of him before until his story about how Jessica Catsnip ignored her banker father to marry Barton Fungus and settled down in a house built completely of sagebrush, which made us happy about living in a house of sagebrush. Could you run a picture of author Tricycle in an early issue. Because everyone in this idiotic family would like to see what he looks like. Sincerely, ..."

Auto Dealers Warned On Regulation

Consumer credit Regulation W which requires registration by dealers with Federal Reserve Bank in their district, and which provides that credit for installment financing shall not be extended without a down payment, has brought trouble to at least one automobile dealer in Chicago who violated the regulations.

For automobiles, the present terms of the regulation require a down payment of one-third of the cash price and the balance due within fifteen months. The regulation also provides that installment payments are to be scheduled in equal amounts at equal intervals not exceeding one month.

University Admits Qualified Negroes

RALEIGH, N. C. — Trustees of the University of North Carolina voted yesterday to admit qualified Negroes to the traditionally white professional and graduate schools.

Negroes would be allowed, however, only in university schools offering courses not provided in the state's Negro colleges.

Joe Jones is enroute to the Coast. Albany is the capital of New York State. Hans Wagner was a shortstop.

Things like this are scoops. Very few people knew that Joe Jones was going to the Coast. I daresay nobody cared, save his wife, and the American and TWA Airlines.

Scops like that come cheap. Come so cheap that even I, a newspaperman who owns the record of never having uncovered one, can produce a few myself. For example, I am going to bed tonight at five minutes past 12 and I defy anybody but myself to know that. My wife likes her shoulder blades rubbed because she goes to bed, a task that bores me beyond belief, but which I perform faithfully each St. Chirpin Day. See how easy it is.

This Is Diseased Generation Says Clergyman Of Morality

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK —(P)—“This is a diseased generation—but the next one, if it isn't destroyed by war, will be better.”

That is the opinion of Dr. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Interdenominational Church of New York since 1907. In more than 40 years of church work, he says, he has never seen moral standards in America so low as they now are.

“People have lost the ability, literally, to distinguish between right and wrong,” Dr. Holmes told me. “In this age, anything goes.”

These are the causes, Dr. Holmes said, in an interview, underlying recent disclosures of corruption in government and the stories of graft, bribery and influence uncovered by the Kefauver and Fulbright Committees. The clergyman said he believes the present condition of public morality in America is new and aggravated, rather than an ever-present situation which has suddenly been brought to wide public attention.

“Something very serious has happened to the moral fibre of this generation,” Dr. Holmes declared. “Like a human body, a society can fall victim of a disease and die of it, as Toynbee and other historians have demonstrated.”

“This country is in mortal danger today. It could die as other societies have died. Americans are trying to live without God and it can't be done. They have been trying it for about 20 years. But the laws of morality are as exact and inexorable as the laws of physics or chemistry. When they are violated, things go wrong—even to the extent of a terrible explosion.”

The great corrosive agents, Dr. Holmes said, have come directly from the two world wars in with theology in those years when the world was crying for guidance.”

Statistics have indicated that attendances in churches in this country has grown, markedly, since the war. “I have some doubts about those figures,” Dr. Holmes replied. “But even assuming they are accurate, they do not necessarily mean people are more spiritual. Yes, God is for Sunday, they think, but not for the other six days of the week.”

There should be instruction in ethics and morals in the schools, he said. “Parents haven't been doing the job. They have become too completely fascinated with buying a new gadget to a muse them or a machine to make house work easier. A home, today, is a place of entertainment, not of instruction.”

Nevertheless, Dr. Holmes said, there is more hope for the generation of people still in high schools and colleges now. “There is an earnestness among these youngsters, a searching. They seem to sense that things are not right, and that they could be better. “I get many different evidences of this, not only from my own observation but from what people tell me. “It may be, simply, that these young people feel they are going out into a world that may destroy them. It may be only the instinct for survival. But there is real hope in that direction. “If these people are not reduced to barbarians by a third world war, they may create something much better than what we see now.”

Poor Housing Might Result From Nation's Building Ban

By WILLIAM J. LEVITT
President, Levitt and Sons, Inc.
Written for NEA Service
MANHASSET, N. Y. (NEA)

Home building, except for defense purposes, is skidding to a fast halt. Until America returns to a peacetime economy it will not start up again.

That generally belies the hammering heard in hundreds of urban and rural areas today as supplies on hand are used up and commitments filled. It also contradicts the optimistic predictions of some industrial leaders and government spokesmen, who are talking in terms of a mere 50 percent cutback this year from 1950's home building record.

The rivers and reservoirs of materials manpower and credit were flowing and full when the Chinese Reds turned the military tables in Korea last fall. Those rivers and reservoirs will dry up, or be diverted more rapidly than most people predict.

The credit spigot already has been given a quarter turn. Controls of brass mill products — a must in permanent housing — are completely applied, at least for the present. If and when those vital controls are eased, we cannot expect they will turn around to accommodate defense and military housing demands unless we are extremely fortunate.

Other items on the shortage list are being added weekly, and Dad might as well resign himself to putting those blueprints back in the desk for a long time to come, like it or not.

Meanwhile, he would do well to concern himself with how well this country applies itself to this part of the job at hand — supplying homes for thousands who will turn their efforts to manning the new or reconverted plants of the defense machine.

The change from peace to war preparedness in housing must be both swift and broad — as swift as possible, but only as broad as necessary to meet the demands of national security.

Now, while this change is in the planning stage, is the time to face up to a problem we failed at in World War II. The question is: do shortages of materials demand sub-standard housing in defense areas, or can we build permanently and creditably while we do the job forced upon us by the Communist threat?

In seeking an answer, we must consider that the Communists would not mind defeating us on the battlefield, but would prefer to watch our ruin in the slower war of economics. Therefore, is it logical to ignore the fact that bad living conditions provide the fertile ground for discontent upon which Communism thrives? And to what extent can we afford to waste the billions in defense housing that can result from jerry-building, poor planning, or no planning?

The defense housing measures provide the hind detail structures for government financial aid and power to channel building efforts into defense areas. Debatable details will be threshed out in both Houses. The Defense Housing and Community Facilities Act of 1951 properly calls upon private industry and private financing to perform the major part of the job.

Federal administrators, however, will have to determine the pace and quality of that task. Will they, at our insistence, avoid the mistakes of World War II? Too late and too little describe the pattern of those mistakes.

Those multitudes who lived in trailer camps, shacks, high-priced fabric because of this shortcoming. Revolutionary improvements in construction speed should eliminate this problem, if proper planning is applied.

The product of “too little” need be meted by the dollar waste of jerry-building alone. It pockmarks the country today with physical eyesores that stand as monuments to haste, panic and indifference. Our company built some of those war housing communities in 1945 — to other people's specifications designed to

Attorney To Seek Secret Indictments

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — (AP) — A legal move may help the district attorney keep his evidence secret until the time of the trial of the Negro soldier accused of killing a young couple in the desert near here March 26.

Dist. Atty. William O. Mackey said yesterday he will seek secret indictments against Sgt. Lawrence J. Walker, 20, of Walker Air Force Base. This would eliminate a preliminary hearing, at which some of the state's evidence probably would have to be disclosed.

The National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People has asked Loren Miller, of its national legal committee, to aid in the defense.

Walker is charged with rape, kidnaping and murder in the slayings of Richard and Doris Cook, both 18, of Los Angeles.

Russian Troops Said Reinforced

TAIPEH, Formosa — (AP) — Gen. Chang Yi-Ting said today Russia has steadily reinforced her troops in Manchuria since the Korean War started.

Change, of the Chinese Nationalist defense ministry, said Soviet forces in Manchuria consist of “combat troops and air squadrons.” But he said he did not know their strength.

Chang said Russian troops in Manchuria were deployed mainly along the Changchun railway from Harbin to Port Arthur.

Unofficial and wholly unconfirmed reports three months ago placed the Russian troop strength in Manchuria at between four and seven divisions.

U.S. Awes Italian Boy

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — How does America look through the eyes of a nine-year-old Italian boy? It's a wonderland of slot machines, television and Gene Kelly.

The boy is Guido Martufi, a round lad with a dark, expressive face. He arrived from Italy a few days ago with his father, Amigo Martufi.

Amigo, so named because he was nearly born in Brooklyn, is a barber for the movie crowd in Rome. Because of his connections, he has been able to get movie jobs for his sons, Guido and Roberto.

Guido landed a good role in the recent “Teresa” and has been brought to Hollywood for a part in “Westward the Women.” He speaks no English, so his interpreter is Johnny Indrisano, noted for teaching such stars as Ingrid Bergman and John Garfield how to box in films.

The onetime fighter told me that Guido's chief passion since arriving in the U. S. is slot machines. “When he got off the plane, he saw a cigarette machine and asked what it was,” Indrisano related. “I showed him how it worked and he was fascinated. Now he wants to put money in every one he finds, just to see what comes out.”

I took him up to see a television set in a store in Hollywood and he was amazed. When I turned on a baseball game, he started looking around the store to see where the players were.

Guido is an avid movie fan and was thrilled by his studio tour. But he had one disappointment: “where is Gene Kelly?” He is wild about Kelly and will put on a half-pint version of the actor's duelling scene in “The Three Musketeers.”

What does he like about Kelly? The translation is roughly: “he's so simple, so plain, so down-to-earth.”

Guido is much interested in American gadgets and is in constant wonder over such things as refrigerators, gas furnaces and typewriters. While we were talking, he doodled with a typewriter. He proudly displayed his work: “Gjn Kelly.”

“By now I hope he has caught up with Mr. Kelly. If so, he must be thoroughly convinced that the U. S. is a fabulous place.”

Thieves Play Havoc With Warehouses

SINGAPORE — (AP) — Warehouses along Singapore harbor have become a happy hunting ground for thieves. Goods worth more than $6,600 have been stolen within the last two months. Thefts from warehouses, have doubled since last Dec. 31.

Then the Singapore harbour auxiliary police were disbanded. Only 40 harbour police lieutenants are now patrolling the areas handled by 120 officers last year.

built to create new blights on industrial and military areas.

Permanent homes of lasting value can be built only by using some materials also needed by the military in the primary war pursuits.

If enough of those materials can be used to supply the needs of defense housing, then let's build good houses in those areas. If they cannot be spared, then let's call on American resourcefulness to build the best that can possibly be built, and not just be content with slums.

But first, let's have facts and figures on which to base the best possible plans.

Oklahoma City Indians Have Empty Teepee For 51 Season

By JOHN CRONLEY (Written for The AP) OKLAHOMA CITY — (AP) — The Oklahoma City Indians, who came to a parting of ways with Cleveland several months ago, will have to come from way back, yonder as an independent in order to be a factor in the approaching Texas League race.

Warriors broke with the Big Injuns principally because of the mid-August recall of the slugger Bob Lemon last season. To say that the Oklahomans are starting from scratch is stating it mildly; they have Tommy Tatum, the peppery new manager who formerly starred as a player at Tulsa and Fort Worth. And then there are those eight other positions, many of them bogging to be filled.

From the twelfth century children have been learning to repeat this prayer of faith. Back of that are the other centuries when families quoted the 121st Psalm from which it was doubtless taken...

"Your Guardian will not slumber, He will neither slumber nor sleep."

Precious lad with the dimpled cheeks, knowing so little what the world holds of joy and of sorrow, of foes and of friends, of sickness and of health, of defeat and of triumph. Perhaps he has mother and father now and every care for his happiness. Who knows what tomorrow holds for him? You and I may not be near to counsel and to encourage. What then?

Wise and thoughtful for all the years ahead were the parents who early introduced the lad to his eternal Friend and helped him to be at home in the Father's universe. Some day every boy and girl will have to stand alone; will there be strength from hidden springs, a sense of sustaining Power? Some day every woman and every man must make a choice between the high way and the low; will there be light that shines on the good path the soul should take?

Every child born into God's world has a right to know that God is Creator and Sovereign, that His will finally must prevail. Every girl and every boy has a right to be sure that the universe is friendly and that its basic principle is Love. Every living person has a right to trust and to faith and to hope. Every human being has a right to know that he is made in the image of God and eligible to a place in the divine Family. We are both animal and divine spirit; God breathed His own Spirit into man and he became a living Spirit, like unto God. Every child has a right to live reverently as in the continuing and blessed fellowship with the Highest; he has a right to the adult helpfulness that puts his feet in the Way of Life. Teach him to say, "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep. If I should die before I wake, I pray the Lord my soul to take."
