UN Pushes Drive Aimed At Throwing Reds Off Balance

DOWN A MUDDY ROAD - Troops, carrying a full equipment, march past four 50 caliber machine guns mounted on a half-track north of Uijongbu, Korea. United Nations forces all along the 140-mile front are expecting a new spring-offensive due to the new Communist build-up all across the peninsula. The Reds were reportedly massing close to half a million men, greatest potential force of the war. (NEA Telephoto)

Allied Commanders Expect Heavy Red Offensive Soon

AN ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Korea - (AP) - Allied commanders expect the Communists to launch a major offensive in Korea any day now. All signs point to it. But allied commanders aren't just waiting for the Reds to strike. Strong forces have crashed across the border into Red Korea at several points along a 40-mile stretch of the front. They are driving straight for the rugged central Korean terrain where the Communists are massing their armies.

were named among the sponsors of the Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace, held in New York in March, 1948. The committee called this an American front for a campaign which had its origin on a world-wide basis in 1947 with creation of the Communist Information Bureau — successor to the Communist International.

Among sponsors with alleged "Communist affiliations," both Miss Holliday and Ferrer were listed as having been associated with from five to 10 Communist-front organizations.

Ferrer, whose role in "Cyranos de Bergerac" won him the male academy award, was also named among 49 sponsors who have given their open support to Communist candidates in election campaigns.

Ferrer has been subpoenaed for an appearance later this month in the committee's current investigation of Communist influence in Hollywood. He has denied being a Communist.

Other movie folk whose name appeared in the report were Charles Chaplin, Howard da Silva, Gale Sondergaard, Artie Shaw and Karen Morley.

Rockwell Kent, the magazine illustrator, was listed as having been affiliated with "at least" 85 front groups. Three other sponsors of the New York Peace Conference — Langston Hughes, Robert Morias Lovett and Donald Ogden Stewart — were credited with from 71 to 80 front affiliations.

Paul Robeson, Mary Van Kleef, James Waterman Wise and Harry F. Ward were listed as having affiliations with 51 to 60 groups.

with 30 divisions, a force of about 195,000 men. They are grouped roughly in and south of the triangle formed by Chorwon, Ryonggang and Kumhwa.

The other massing, somewhat smaller, is given about six Red army corps, at least one of them North Korean, with 18 divisions or about 115,000 men. This force is concentrated north of Kaesong, 50 to 60 miles northwest of Seoul.

This grouping gives the Reds two possible major lines of attack.

One would be a double strike down the Kaesong road and the other main invasion roads from the north and northeast. Such an attack — along the classic invasion route — would collide with the main allied forces that look Seoul last month.

The other and more logical possibility is an offensive in the center down the Chunchon-Hongghon-Hoengsong corridor. Meanwhile, the Red forces massed near Kaesong could tie up the allied western divisions.

Either approach, if driven home with the customary Red ruthlessness, could give the allies a nasty time.

ing artillery shells. They killed Communist Chinese and Koreans with rifles and grenades and stood firm against enemy fire.

By late Thursday, an east-west line 17 miles long had been formed by two American divisions that crossed the 38th Parallel almost abreast on Wednesday.

The heavy allied artillery pounding and searing fire from allied warplanes to considerable steam out of the Red resistance.

Reds who tried a counter-attack on the western front were cut to pieces by one artillery bombardment. Not one reached the allied positions.

"That's fire power for you, said an allied officer. "That's the stuff we want."

The allied attackers were driving toward the area where the Reds were stacked deep for an expected spring offensive.

Allied sources estimated about one-half million Reds were massed along and near the front.

The bulk were in the triangle formed by Kumhwa, Chorwon and Hwachon.

A-BOMB

Mrs. Rosenberg, who confessed to obtaining atomic secrets while working at the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic bomb base and passing them to the Rosenbergs, was the chief prosecution witness against his brother-in-law and sister. He awaits sentencing.

Judge Kaufman asserted that the Rosenbergs had committed their acts of espionage in 1944, while the country was at war.

The overt acts were committed during hostilities," the judge added.

Sentence was imposed at 12:08 p.m.

Judge Kaufman opened his discussion by outlining the penalties provided in the espionage act in force. He said that provisions of act under which the indictments were returned were enacted in 1917 "when the Russian international spy ring did not present the threat it does now."

The law, the judge said, provided a maximum penalty of 30 years imprisonment for a conviction of peace-time espionage and maximum of death or imprisonment for not more than 30 years for wartime espionage.

Saying that the law when enacted, took no cognizance of vital secrets such as the atom bomb, Judge Kaufman declared, "it is time for Congress to extend the penal provisions of this act."

Judge Kaufman said that should any persons be convicted in peace time of transmitting secrets "concerning the new type of A-bomb or the hydrogen bomb, the maximum penalty that can be imposed is 30 years."

The court characterized the espionage activities of the Rosenbergs as "a dirty business."

"This does not reflect the courage of Nathan Hale for his country," Judge Kaufman said. "This is a dirty business, betrayal of one's own country."

Jyria Charged With Assault

TEL AVIV, Israel — (AP) — Israel charged today that Syrian forces entered Israeli territory and attacked a Jewish border police patrol, killing seven Jewish policemen and wounding three others.

The clash occurred in the demilitarized zone yesterday near the Syrian-Israeli border southeast of the Lake of Tiberias (Sea of Galilee).

An Israeli government spokesman, Lt. Col. Moshe Pearlman, charged Syria with committing a "very flagrant violation of the armistice agreement."

Pearlman said the shooting victims were patrolling the demilitarized border zone in two trucks.

Israeli ambulances went to the Syrian border late last night to get the dead and wounded.

The Syrian-Israeli cease-fire agreement was reelected last week after several shootings in the district near Samakh, Israel. Israeli workers in this area are draining the Huleh swamps, near the Syrian border.

He was subpoenaed to appear by the Travis County Grand Jurors after he charged in an editorial in the Laredo Times reprinted as an advertisement in the Austin American Statesman, that Austin is a center of gambling.

Allen announced he would not appear before the city council in response to a personal invitation by Council Member Emma Long. He said the council "was without legal authority."

Allen's appearance before the grand jury was scheduled for 2 p.m.

Polish Primate Visits Pope Pius

ROME — (AP) — Archbishop Stefan Wyszyński, primate of Poland, arrived in Rome last night for a visit "too delicate to discuss."

He came from Warsaw for conferences with Pope Pius XII.

Reports have been current since Poland's Communist government permitted him to leave Warsaw that the archbishop might ask the Pope to recognize as Polish territory the German areas taken over by Poland after World War II. The Vatican so far has not recognized appointment of Polish clerics in those areas.

Wyszyński declined to answer reporters' questions and tried to avoid being photographed as he arrived.

Crime Investigations Cause McMolmore To Have Dreams

By HENRY McLEMORE

Last night I dreamed a dream, and sometimes during the dream Last night I dreamed a dream, and sometimes during the dream

The dream started out with Rudolph Halley, counsel for the Kefauver Committee, examining me.

Halley: Have you ever bet on a horse?

A.: Yes—unfortunately.

Q.: With a bookie?

A.: Oh, no-o-o, Mr. Halley.

Q.: Where were you on Sept. 11, at five minutes past three o'clock?

A.: I was playing bridge at my house.

Q.: Were you playing for money?

A.: Yes, sir — 10 cents a contract.

Senator Tobey: You know that's against the law, don't you?

A.: Uh-huh.

Senator Tobey: Come clean, young man. Pronto. Don't you realize that you are dishonoring the memory of the men who served at Valley Forge, desecrating the memory of the Harding Administration, and causing your mother to weep with shame?

Halley: Is it true that on a certain New Year's Day you bet that Nebraska would beat Stanford in the Rose Bowl? Answer yes or no.

A.: I did.

Q.: Did you place your bet with any of the following persons, and I will name them: Frank Costello? Frank Erickson? Greasy Thumb Guzik? James Carroll?

A.: No sir, I didn't. I bet with Braven Dyer, of the Los Angeles Times, who told me I should have my head examined.

Senator Tobey: Well, he was right, wasn't he?

A.: You ain't kiddin', Senator.

Senator Tobey: As Daniel Webster said, you can't beat a backfield that has Frankie Albert at quarter, Gallineau and Kemelevic at halves, and Standee at full.

Halley: Have you ever played golf and bet on the outcome?

A.: Not more than three times a week for the last 15 or 20 years.

Q.: Did you, in October, 1947, make a long distance phone call from Daytona Beach, Florida, to Atlanta, Georgia, and speak to a man called Jules Grey?

A.: Not to my recollection.

Q.: Maybe this will refresh your memory — and I read from the legally tapped telephone wire: "Henry: 'Will you accept the charges on this call?' Grey: 'No.

Will you?" Did you not wager one dollar with this Mr. Grey on the proposition that his wife would bear him a son and not a daughter?

A.: I might have. It's possible.

Senator Tobey: You called from Florida to Georgia, didn't you? Across State lines. Why don't you cooperate with this committee? Have you anything to hide?

A.: Gentlemen of the committee, I would like to ask you one question. Have any of you gentlemen ever knowingly accepted the vote or support of any citizen who plays 10-cent limit poker, or who ever wagered on a football game, or bought tickets to a church raffle or a turkey shoot?

Halley: This man is in contempt of reality. Will the sergeant-at-arms please place him under arrest.

Then I woke up. See you at Jamaica, gentlemen.

Whole Meat Taste Brings Disagreement

NEWARK, N. J. — (AP) — Some said it tasted like pot roasted beef but many just beefed about its taste.

In any event, the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. cafeteria says it plans to serve up more whole meat in the near future.

It tried the experiment after getting 60 pounds of the "delicacy" from a New York importer.

Samples of whole pot roast were served up free.

"It looks and tastes just like beef pot roast," said J. B. McCullen, Bell vice president. Some diners agreed.

"It tastes like hell," wailed Joan Handelman, a clerk.

An English law of the 15th Century forbade anyone under the rank of baron to wear shoes with leather soles.

Bridge Vexes U.S. Engineers Parly A Success

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea — (AP) — "That Damned Bridge" has finally been completed and it was a wonderful fried chicken dinner some U. S. engineers had in celebration.

As envious infantrymen crossed the new bridge over the river's bank and waded drumsticks.

Long before it was completed, the low-level bridge became known as "That Damned Bridge." Hard luck jinxed its construction all the way.

"We built it from scrounged materials and we had a time with the swift current," said Capt. George W. Skanse of Soledad, Calif. "The river rose about two feet from the time we started the bridge."

The fire of Chinese Communist mortars and artillery was another hazard.

On two nights the current, which was clocked at 15 miles an hour washing away the vital steel pillar beams. Once a cable knocked an engineer into the swirling water and he barely made it to shore.

"We took poles and timbers where we found them and we even used railroad rails to make it solid," said M-Sgt. James R. Morris of Eufaula, Okla. "Our boys turned into Abraham Lincoln to split wooden rails for decking," Skanse chuckled. "I'm glad the job is done."

The commission also ordered the company to stop what it called misleading advertising claims to the effect that the pills are an effective treatment for a sluggish liver.

Mac Believes Book Writers Aren't Crazy About Sleeping

By HENRY McLEMORE

I have little or no faith in books which tell a person how to go to sleep, it being my firm conviction that anyone who chooses to add to his income by writing a book isn't crazy about sleeping.

I've never written a book, but I have started a thousand or two of them, and my experience is that authorship will keep you wider awake, thus enabling you to hear the town crier's "All is Well," than a cup of New Orleans drip benzadine.

Some of the books which I have started and never finished, and which have kept me awake long after the owls had hit the sack, are "The Origin and Significance of the Game of Post Office," "From Here to Eternity with Stopover Privileges," "Do Bees Violate the Interstate Commerce Regulations?" and "With the Grownup Bobsey Twins on a Raft with an Adult Tom Swift."

This is in the nature of an appeal to book publishers not to send me free, no strings attached (save for two clippings of my review and, usually, 11 cents postage due), their books on how to sleep.

I make this request for several reasons, one being that I must have some ability to sleep, else I wouldn't be here. I defy any sandman author to name me a fellow who has lived 44 consecutive years, as I have, without having mastered the principles, at least, of sleep.

Another reason is that one man's idea of sleep is another man's poison. Author X says the first thing to do when you stretch out and want to sleep is to pinch your fists and illustrate to yourself what tension is. I'll admit that I have seen this method used successfully in prizefights, but it certainly isn't applicable to everyone.

Let me start clinching my fists at night and a craving for combat overcomes me; every slight that has ever been paid me rises to the face of my memory, and I find myself wide awake, cussing and vowing vengeance.

Author B suggests putting pillows under one's arms, knees, head, clavicle, and ear drums. This pillow fight, so to speak, may be just the thing to put the author to sleep, but speaking for myself, it would keep me awake worrying about why I had sunk so much dough in an innerspring mattress.

Author J — well, there is no limit to his suggestions. He advises almost everything. Clinch your pillow and hit your fists. Walk around the block after having filled your stomach with a warm concoction whose principal ingredients are things that a gourmet guru would sniff at.

I would like to know what is wrong with staying up all night and sleeping all day. I ask this because that is what I do. I am as alert as Phi Beta Kappa Phox at night, and as dull as skinned ditchwater during the day.

Let's take Damon Runyon for a first example. I take it for granted that he was a most talented man. Thousands enjoyed and are still enjoying his stories

Briton Says Travel Aids World Peace

DALLAS — For the first time in history this year an entire nation is putting her people, her institutions, her proud tradition — every phase of her national life — on display for all the world, Sir Harold Boulton, chief representative in North America of the British Travel Association, said here Wednesday.

The nation is Great Britain and her unparalleled national show is the Festival of Britain, which will last from May to October this year, with nearly 1,800 cities, towns and villages participating.

"The festival is a great mid-century stock-taking, a summing up of all that Britain has contributed to the world and a demonstration of confidence in the democratic freedom for which she has always stood," he declared. "Viewed against the background of today's uncertain international situation, it takes on added significance as a pledge to our friends and a warning to our enemies that the great British principle is not dead."

The festival, with its pageantry and spectacle, its great musical and dramatic events, its exhibitions in London and the provinces, is expected to make 1951 one of Britain's greatest tourist years, according to Sir Harold.

"Last year, when all previous records were broken, more than 174,000 Americans visited Britain and swelled our dollar earnings by about $75,000,000," he declared. "This year, we expect the figures to equal or exceed those of 1950."

"Travel has become Britain's greatest single dollar earner and, as such, has been an important factor in British postwar recovery. I would like to emphasize that every dollar spent by a visitor to Britain returns to this country to purchase goods and services which we need but could not otherwise pay for.

Britain benefits, American farmers and business people benefit and the traveler not only has a good time but gets full value for his money."

Commenting on General Eisenhower's recent suggestion to members of Congress that they go to see for themselves the positive accomplishments of Britain and the Western European nations, Sir Harold declared, "I would like to echo that sug-

Airborne Regiment To Be Reactivated

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Army announced today the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment will be reactivated later this month at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The regiment will be assigned to Third Army headquarters. The Army said it will be made up of key personnel drawn from the 82nd Airborne Division.

The regiment will be organized to provide for possible future expansion to regimental combat team strength, the announcement said.

During World War II, the unit was known as the 508th Parachute Infantry Regiment attached to the 82nd Airborne Division. During the Normandy invasion, the division was commanded by Maj. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, now the three-star commander of the Eighth Army in Korea.

The Army said the reformed regiment will be commanded by Col. Joseph P. Cleland of Omaha, Neb. He now commands the 82nd Regiment of the 82nd Airborne Division.

No Food Shortage At Frankfurt Fair

FRANKFURT, Germany — (AP) — Nobody at the big Frankfurt spring fair would have guessed that Communist Hungary is on strict food rationing. After a two-year absence the Hungarians re-entered Germany's biggest spring fair with a lush food display to attract export dollars.

Since last fall, Hungary has suffered from severe shortages of meat, sugar and potatoes. The government has imposed harsh rationing regulations. But a buyer at the fair could order unlimited quantities of ham, bacon, chocolate, candies, canned fruit and canned vegetables from Hungarian stalls.

Truman Following Roosevelt On Labor

By JAMES MARLOW
 WASHINGTON —(AP)— In calling labor leaders to a White House conference, President Truman is doing what President Roosevelt did.

Mr. Roosevelt was able to quiet them. Mr. Truman has yet to show he can do the same. The problems facing both presidents were rather similar.

Early in 1941, when the defense program was getting under way, Mr. Roosevelt created the National Defense Mediation Board (NDMB).

Its purpose: to try to settle peacefully disputes between management and labor. NDMB had 12 members, four from labor, four from business, four representing the public.

It exploded in November, 1941 when some of the labor members walked out in protest against a decision by the other board members. That was the end of the board. The next month he were in the war.

On Dec. 17 President Roosevelt called a White House conference of labor and management. During the war, most of labor and management promised there'd be no strikes and no lockouts.

Since they were giving up their right to settle a dispute by walking out or shutting down a plant, something had to be done to give them fair treatment. So Mr. Roosevelt created the War Labor Board (WLB).

And both sides agreed to submit their disputes to WLB and abide by the decisions. This board also had 12 members, four from labor, four from business, four representing the public.

It was a time of rising prices — OPA hadn't come into full power — which meant labor would want higher wages when prices went higher and management would want to charge higher prices if they gave wage increases.

WLB finally worked out a formula, deciding generally that no wages should be increased throughout the war more than 15 percent above where they had been in January, 1941.

Now comes the present defense program. To control prices and wages at the same time, Mr. Truman created the OPS (Office of Price Stabilization) and the WSB (Wage Stabilization Board).

Late in January both agencies suddenly cracked down, freezing wages and prices — but only temporarily, until machinery could be set up to carry out the controls. It was understood, because the freeze was so sudden, that adjustments would have to be made in both prices and wages.

WSB — with nine members, three from labor, three from industry, three representing the public — set about controlling wages. WSB exploded on Feb. 18. The reason:

Over the protests of the labor representatives, the other six WSB members decided wages generally could not be raised more than 10 percent above where they were in January, 1941. Labor walked out of the board on Feb. 18.

More than that: the labor leaders — except for John L. Lewis and four rail unions — banded together and pulled their representatives out of all government agencies connected with the defense program.

They argued: prices were still going up; OPS was opening gaps in price controls, letting prices go up; Congress had so fixed the law that farm prices could go up, even though other prices and all wages were controlled.

And there was one other important point: labor felt it was being snubbed by Charles E. Wilson, boss of the whole defense program, because while he had some businessmen close to him as advisors, he had no labor men there.

And one more thing: Wilson had set up a board in his own office to control policy on manpower. This board was made up of government officials. It had no business representatives on it. But it had none from labor either.

Labor burned up over this. Its attacks on Wilson and the Truman way of handling the whole problem of running defense grew bitter. It was already bitter at Congress for passing a law that let farm prices go up, while holding everything else down.

Without its labor members, WSB came to a full standstill. This all made such an impossible situation that on March 15 Mr. Truman apparently decided to try to pacify labor a bit. He announced he'd appoint a national advisory board on mobilization policy, with 17 members: a chairman and four from labor, four from business, four from farms, and four representing the public.

Labor still didn't go back into its defense jobs. Now Mr. Truman has called the labor leaders to the White House. He may call business leaders in later.

Out of this is expected to come a wage board satisfactory to labor and management. Some kind of wage board has to be set up, either the old WSB with new blood and power, or a brand new board.

The Gold Mannequin

By Myles Connolly
COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Tim Reese, a crippled veteran, has kept an exclusive gown shop, "Jean Paul," in business with his dog, "Spot." Without knowing his value, Tim was kept at his job by the insistence of his boss, who leads Tim to believe she cares for him, although her interest is purely business. In the wings of this pseudo-love scene is Jigger, a farm girl who really cares for Tim. When Tim discovers that she will be able to walk again, he goes to New York to surprise her. He is received at the dress establishment by a Miss Major, who tells him Jean is attending the Cotillion. He is an executive in a big function at which the "Dress-Up Team" will be chosen. Tim goes to the Empire, where the ball is to be held, and stands outside watching the guests arrive.

XIX

A HEAVILY coated, gold-braided doorman, who had moved down the sidewalk to wave away a parked taxicab, came upon Tim Reese.

"Kind of chilly, isn't it, Mister?" the doorman, seeing the canes in the snow, was sympathetic.

"In more ways than one," Tim grinned over his upturned overcoat collar. "I feel like The Little Match Girl."

The doorman chuckled. "You look more like Stella Dallas." He was well-spoken, as befitted the chief doorman of the Empire. "But I'm going to have to be the heavy. The ladies are wearing a lot of fancy hardware tonight, and it behooves me to ask you to amble along."

"Guess there's no chance of me ambling along into the Main Ballroom, is there?"

The doorman gave Tim a quick, sharp look. "Lost your mind, or something?"

"Probably." Tim could not resist trying out his joke again. "It's my first night out since June, 1944."

The doorman looked down at the canes and up at Tim's face.

"Polio?"

Tim shook his head. "Fire-

The doorman was puzzled.

"I've been hanging my hat up at the Veteran's Hospital in Cedarbrook," Tim explained. "Thought I'd like to compare it with the layout in the Empire here."

"I see." The doorman, understanding, nodded slowly.

A bellboy who had just carried a guest's suitcases to a car was scurrying back to the doors.

"Jigger!" the doorman called to the bellboy.

The bellboy, shivering, stopped. The doorman went to him.

"Jigger, this gentleman here is with the television unit in the Main Ballroom." He winked at Jigger. "Show him in, will you? You'll find them up in the balcony."

"Okay-doke. Right this way," Jigger, cold, turned quickly back to the entrance.

"Thanks, chief," Tim, grateful, turned to the doorman, fumbled for his wallet.

The doorman shook his head. "Don't use the stuff. Give it to Jigger."

SO, Tim Reese found himself comfortably seated in a corner of the balcony of the Main Ballroom, looking down on the splendor that whirled to the music on the floor below. A few feet away from him the television men had their cameras set up and Tim to all appearances was one of the unit.

If the elegance and opulence Tim had seen at the canopied entrance of the Empire a few minutes back had seemed a fiction to him, the scene below now was pure fantasy.

It would have been an extraordinary spectacle to anybody except one jaded with luxury and weary of pageantry. But to a man who had spent years knowing only hospital walls and a rustic landscape, it could only be fantastic.

The men in their flawless formal black and white seemed like marionettes supporting brilliantly jeweled and gorgeously gowned creatures in some sort of celestial ballet. The glowing wall lamps, the glittering chandeliers, the sumptuous flower decorations, the romantic music, added to the grand illusion.

Tim searched the whirling mass beneath him for sign of Jean Roland, followed with his eyes each flashing face, each tossing fair head, but he could not find her.

The minutes whirled by with the dancers and the evening was half over before Tim realized it. Then, the dancing and the music and the gaily stopped. The time had come to choose the dress of the year.

Jean had not been dancing. She had been saving herself till the time came for the modeling of the dresses, and it was then that Tim saw her first.

THE lights in the ballroom were dimmed for the presentation except at one end where radiant white spotlights lit up a flower-bordered platform.

Beautiful women beautifully gowned moved on to the platform, modeled and went on. Each was greeted with applause. And each to Tim seemed more beautiful than the one before.

The gowns, too, were so striking and original that Tim's heart began to sink. Would Jean have one that could measure up to this competition? Certainly none he had sent would ever qualify.

Then, Jean made her appearance. There was no applause at first as had greeted the others but a hush and the immobility of complete admiration.

Jean mounted to the platform and then Tim saw her clearly and saw she was modeling his winter white gown. For a moment he was fearful the tribute of silence had been for Jean's beauty, not for the gown.

It was too simple. Tim thought, too chaste. But then the applause broke, and looking down, Tim saw the applause came mostly from men and, remembering the jury that night was made up entirely of men, he knew that Jean and the gown had won.

Lewis Stone Keeping Eye On Television

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — After 50 years in show business, Lewis Stone had admitted he is keeping an eye on the new medium, television.

"Oh, I don't expect to get into it for some time to come," he added. "But I bought a set so I could keep an eye on television. It's not because I like it; I think the quality of entertainment is improving, but still has far to go. No, I'm watching it because it's a new phase of our business that I might have to know about some day."

Stone doesn't seem too pleased that MGM press agents have discovered this is his 50th year as an actor.

"It's just a date on the calendar," he shrugged. "I think it's a bore. The only comment someone could make is 'so what?'"

"I am reminded of the news story about one of the remaining GAR veterans, a boy of 107 years or so. Naturally, he was asked to what he attributed his longevity. 'Well,' he replied, 'I made up my mind at the age of 65 that I would do one thing religiously — keep breathing.'"

Stone admitted that he had done pretty well for a man who became an actor more or less involuntarily. He told how it happened:

"My father's family was in the old theatrical troupe, the Bostonians, but I never had any great desire to act. After service with the army in the Spanish-American War, I found a story which I thought had dramatic possibilities. I worked on a play version and showed it to my uncle. He directed me to an agent who sold me on taking the place of an actor who had gotten sick in a stock company in Detroit."

Stone caught up with the company in Canada. He planned to stay with it only two weeks, but he wasn't allowed to quit without two weeks' notice. After that he was talked into taking another role. This continued for several years, with Stone never considering the work permanent.

"I guess it wasn't until I came to a stock company in Los Angeles in 1906 that I really believed I was in it to stay," he said.

He drifted to the movies in 1916 and lined up with Louis B. Mayer even before the merger of MGM. During his years in Hollywood, he has played many notable parts. He laughed about a how he is most often cast as a lawyer: "I probably know more motion picture law than any man alive."

In the early days of the industry, public telephones were contained within a box which was opened by the insertion of a coin.

Kleberg Attacks Federal Experts

CORPUS CHRISTI — (AP) — Robert J. Kleberg Jr., manager of the vast King Ranch in South Texas, doesn't think much of a proposed "luxury tax" on meat.

Kleberg has accused a staff of experts on the House-Senate Economic Committee of not knowing what they were talking about.

"The absolute ignorance of some of the Washington planners is beyond belief," Kleberg said in the statement recently issued. "I may be these so-called economic experts are part and parcel of a group in this country working aggressively for the past 15 years to get people to quit eating meat and go on a vegetarian or Asiatic diet."

He added:

"Or maybe they're as completely dumb as one of the CPA men who asked during World War II if we had any 'female steers' in Texas."

The joint economic committee said Monday in Washington that a "luxury tax" on meat was needed to keep prices down. Figures were given to show that 64 percent of the nation's meat is consumed by families with an income over $3,000 annually. The committee said the result was that the higher income groups force up the price of meat beyond

Party A Success:

Trellis May Is Most Unhappy

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — (AP) — Once upon a time Wilbur Peeble and his wife Trellis Mae decided to throw a cocktail party.

Naturally they dreaded it. Everybody dreads giving a cocktail party. Everybody dreads going to one. That is why cocktail parties are so popular.

"They leave the house in such a mess," sighed Trellis Mae comfortably. "And nobody ever seems to know when to leave."

"Now isn't that the truth?" agreed Wilbur cheerfully. "They all seem to forget they have homes of their own. It's just awful."

"If once — just once — you could break a cocktail party up on time," said Trellis Mae, "it wouldn't be so bad."

Then they went ahead with their plans. Trellis Mae sat down and scribbled out little notes to the guests:

"Us Peebles are having a free-for-all at our barn from five to seven p. m. Come at your own risk — but do come. First aid kits and minor repairs provided by the management."

Wilbur read the notes approvingly and said, "that's no joke about the first aid kits. We'd better lay in a supply of iodine and bandages."

The day of the party Trellis Mae worked like a beaver polishing, dusting, and scrubbing up the apartment until it shone. She spent the afternoon making plates after plate of canapes and thought all the while: "It'll take me a week to clean up all the caviar they'll spill on my sofa."

Wilbur pitched in to help like a little man. He piled a kitchen table high with rye, scotch, bourbon, sherry, soda and ice.

Then the Peebles dressed. At 4:59 they entered their living room together, ready for the great ordeal.

At that moment the bell rang. The first guest arrived. Soon the room was swarming with them. They clustered around the television set. They stood in corners and told each other the latest witty remarks of their children.

They sat on the floor and discussed the structures of atom bombs and stenographers.

Everything was gay. Nobody yelled out the window at the neighbors. Nobody tried to eat the goldfish. Nobody burned a hole in the rug.

The Peebles rushed plates and glasses around to fuel the merry babble. When the last guest had gone and the hubbub had died, they sat down on the sofa.

"Everybody seemed to have a wonderful time," said Trellis Mae.

"We never had a better party," said Wilbur.

Just then the clock on the mantle began to chime.

"Seven o'clock," said Wilbur uneasily. He got up and went over to the television set. He turned the switch. It was working. He went out to the kitchen. Nothing wrong there. Still plenty of canapes and drinks left.

When he came back, he found Trellis Mae in tears.

"Everybody must hate us," she wept. "What did we do? Nobody ever heard of a cocktail party ending on time. Never."

"Aw, it was just an accident," said Wilbur. "History is full of them."

But as he glumly patted her hand he wished this one hadn't happened to them.

Moral: Keeping what they have makes more people happy than getting what they ask for.

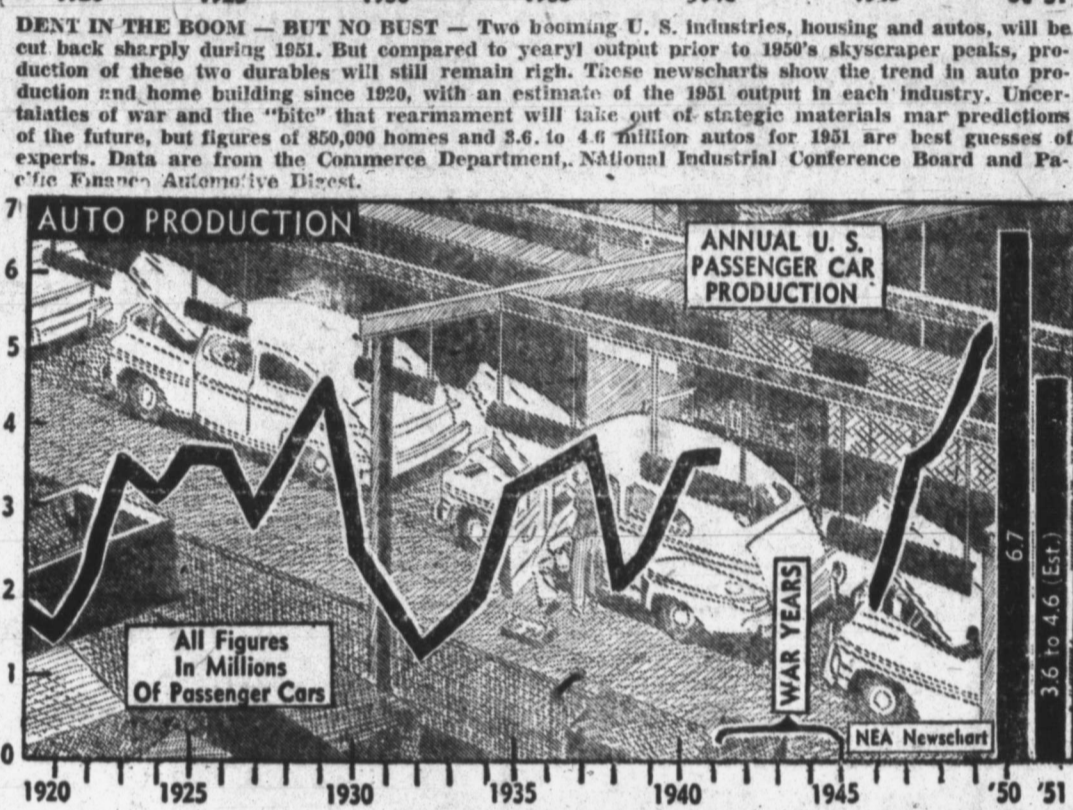

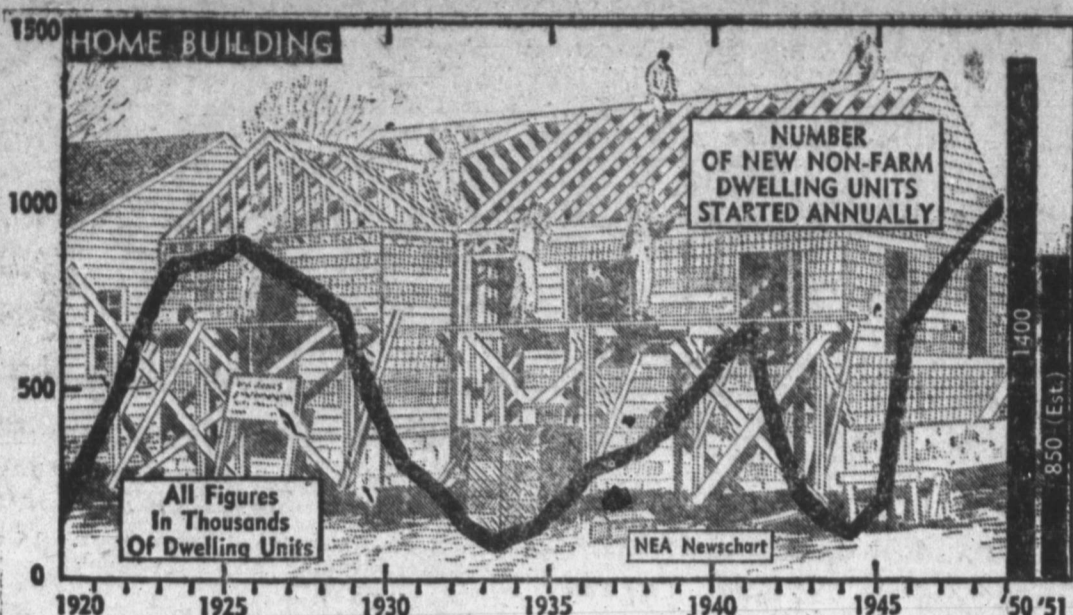

Maxim Has Law Of Average On His Side

DALLAS — (AP) — A tipsy German staggered through the doorway of a South Dallas liquor store and pointed a pistol at Manager L. C. Moskowitz.

Moskowitz knocked the gun from his hand and called officers.

"Evidently all he wanted was a pint of whiskey," Moskowitz said later, "but it is the policy of our store not to sell liquor to intoxicated persons."

Kansas, Wyoming Lead Increases In Crude Production

Kansas recorded the greatest jump, up 8,300 barrels to 322,900 barrels. Louisiana was up 200 to 610,200. Arkansas increased 150 to 79,100 and Mississippi inched ahead by 100 barrels to 98,600.

Greatest slump was in Oklahoma, down 6,800 barrels to 494,600. Colorado dropped 2,100 to 79,800.

Production was unchanged in Texas, 2,615,800 barrels; New Mexico 141,000; Utah, 3,700, and Indiana 27,200.

Baby Leroy A Strapping Man Now—Has No Film Aspirations

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — A star at eight months and a has-been at four years. That's the story of the brief movie career of Baby Leroy.

His full name is Ronald Leroy Overacker and you'd better call him that or there could be trouble. He's a strapping six-footer who could hold his own in any kind of altercation.

"When I was in grammar school, I got into many a fight over being called 'Baby,'" he laughed. "It's not so bad any more. Not so many people know about it."

Leroy is nearing 19 and a call from his draft board. Meanwhile he is a student at Los Angeles City College.

I asked him if he had any desire to resume acting.

"I never thought about it," he admitted. "I never did any dramatics in school, or anything like that. It just doesn't appeal to me."

Leroy remembers nothing of his film career, so his mother, Mrs. David Epstein, had to fill me in. (Leroy's stepfather runs a Sunset Boulevard delicatessen and the boy slices salami and performs other chores in his spare time.)

"Leroy got into pictures quite by chance," said his mother. "I happened to be at a luncheon where a teacher from Paramount Studios was speaking. She said the studio was looking for a baby to be starred with Maurice Chevalier in 'Bedtime Story.' Some of my friends suggested that I enter Leroy in the contest. He was eight months old then."

"He got the role and then did several other pictures, including about four with W. C. Fields."

Baby Leroy was a popular favorite, earning as much as $400 a week. Then his usefulness to the studio declined and he was put into short subjects. At the age of four, he was released.

His mother recalled one of the incidents of his later career: "He was supposed to do a role in 'The Magnificent Obsession' at Universal. We were out on location for a sequence where Robert Taylor was getting off a boat. It was a hot day and Leroy was out of sorts after waiting all day. When the time came to do his line, he wouldn't do it."

"When they tried it again the next day, Leroy knocked the hat off the director. We were re-leased from the picture."

She added that Leroy saw himself on the screen just once. "Bedtime Story" was playing in reaction: "he giggled all the way through the picture."

Is Morality Degenerating? U.S. Businessman Says 'No'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: What has happened to American public morality? Is it degenerating, or is just about what it always has been? In search of an answer, AP Special Correspondent Reiman Morin sought the views of a prominent American businessman, a philosopher and a clerk. He presents their opinions in a series of three articles, of which this is the first. The others will follow on successive days.)

By RELMAN MORIN
NEW YORK — (AP)— One day last week thousands of newspapers, mirroring life in the United States, showed a nation with a dirty face.

On that single day, published side by side, were reports headed "Visa Racket Uncovered In U.S. Consulate," "Three More Arrested In Basketball Fix," "Special Treasury Squads To Probe Gangster Incomes," "Anastasia Seized For Illegal Entry," "Police Official Hunted."

Crime, influence and scandal virtually blotted everything else from the front page and the public mind.

In Washington on that day the Kefauver Committee was continuing an inquiry that had held millions of Americans spell-bound for weeks.

On that same day, Sen. William Fulbright, whose committee had been studying the pattern of influence on the R.F.C., issued a startling warning—that public immorality concerns much more than domestic politics. He said: "Without confidence in their government, the people will not make the sacrifices necessary to oppose Russia successfully."

What has happened to American public morality? Is this the century of cynicism, dominated by the philosophy of the fix? Has a black bag, containing the pay-off, become the great seal of the United States? Or is this a perennial condition, something that exists all the time but seems new when it is caught suddenly in the beams of a probing spotlight?

Herbert Bayard Swope is a New York business executive who has looked at public life and officialdom from several different points of vantage. He was a newspaperman, a public official, an advisor to officials and for 11 years chairman of the New York State Racing Commission.

"Public morals are no worse," he said. "What has happened is that we have become more vigilant, with a higher standard of expectation."

As evidence, he cited the examples of influence, bribery and corruption that go all the way back to the earliest American federal and state governments.

"It may be that we are more cynical today. But we are also more watchful. Remember there was a time when you could be hanged for stealing a cow. In other words, the standard of ethics and morals changes. But it isn't any easier to get away with something these days. It's harder. Sooner or later, the spotlight is sure to get around to the man who tries."

Swope said the effort to obtain influence in government, either by buying it or through some other means, is not new, either.

"What is new is that government influence on the picture by legalizing the action. It doesn't make much sense to permit betting at the track and forbid it outside the track."

"People indulge it by placing a bet on a horse race with a bookie. Book making is supposed to be the basic cause of pay-offs to the police."

"In this case, remove the policeman from the picture by legalizing the action. It doesn't make much sense to permit betting at the track and forbid it outside the track."

What's the explanation of the basketball "fix"? A generation ago, it was popularly believed a college athlete would die rather than throw a game.

"That isn't so much the result of a lowering of individual standards as it is of professionalizing college sports," Swope said. "The coaches can't avoid some of the responsibility for that side of it. And neither can the people who demand a winning team—or else."

Controls Removed From Special Fees

WASHINGTON — (AP)— The government removed from price control today the fees and other charges made for services by hospitals and educational institutions.

Price Director Michael V. Di Salle exempted the hospital charges for a period of six months, starting April 9. He said in a statement the Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) will make a continuing study of hospital costs to determine whether any increase in charges made during that period is justified. The exemption will continue indefinitely after the six month period, subject to withdrawal at any time by OPS.

Millinery Magic For Your Outdated Straws

Realizing the spirit-lifting importance of a new spring hat, this young woman accepts her low budget as a challenge. To bring her last year's pill-box up to date, she begins (upper left) by drawing circles that will later be shaped into vari-sized cones. Yellow felt is the fabric for small side-placed cones (lower left) which are complemented by matching bead-eyed daisies dotted on chignoncover veil. Pink silk with black polka-dots is used for large cone (center) perched askant for coolie-hat effect. A cone of turquoise velvet, enhanced with cage veil, gives new forward movement to pill-box (upper right), while a black velvet peak and fan-shaped hat pins add a touch of the Oriental (lower right). Silk and velvet cones are formed on buckram for body and shape.

NEA Staff Writer

A new spring hat as a lift, not just a lid. This accounts for the light-hearted frivolity that disturbs those persons — men, mostly — who attempt to judge the more fanciful creations as headwear.

These morale builders are an important part of every woman's winter's end rejuvenation. If a tight budget prevents your acquiring a new hat this season, you deserve at least a new look for your old one. Bring out your sewing basket and last year's straw and decide now what can be done.

The things that can be done with a pill-box are legion, according to Don Marshall, talented young millinery designer, who transforms one basic hat shape into four interesting new silhouettes.

His secret for these changes is not an involved hocus-pocus involving special professional skills, but a special technique almost any woman can imitate.

Origin And Purpose Of United Nations Discussed At HD Council Meeting

Frank Wilson, Pampa High School principal, spoke at the last regular meeting of the Home Demonstration Council on "The United Nations Organization." Mr. Wilson recently attended the UN assembly, and told of its present work as well as giving its history and purpose.

The speaker said "The general assembly talks and votes like a legislative body, but it is not a legislature. Each government may have five delegates and five alternates, but it only has one vote.

"Contrary to wide-spread misconception, the security council is not primarily an enforcement agency which employs force to make nations live up to the charter and keep the peace. The main job is to promote peaceful settlements between nations; it can recommend, but not impose, the terms of settlement.

Mr. Wilson told of the problems which face the U.N.: he mentioned the difficulty of literate and illiterate nations understanding each other's views, and of the distrust and misunderstanding that complicates the U.N.'s work. He said that in the past, the majority of the two billion persons in the work have known very little about each other and how to understand one another.

Mr. Wilson said "The U.N. is very new. The little that people know about it has come mostly from newspaper headlines and radio news bulletins. Education has not caught up with the headlines, and until people learn about the United Nations it is going to be difficult for them to reach decisions about the future."

Miss Doris Leggett, district home demonstration agent, spoke to the group also. She told how plans for civil defense could be carried out.

Mrs. Charles Warminski presided at the business meeting and also introduced members representing two new clubs in Gray County. They were: McLean Club; Mrs. M. A. Paige, president, and Mrs. Jess Kemp, representative; and the Back Club, which was represented by Mrs. Clyde Dwight, Jr., president, and Mrs. J. E. Barker, representative. Miss Barbara Ross, secretary to Mrs. Mary Anne Duke, was also introduced.

Announcement was made that April 29 to May 6 had been designated National Home Demonstration Week.

Committee reports were given, and Mrs. Emmett Osborne, visual aid chairman, announced that a training school would be held in the agent's office at 2 p. m. April 9. Mrs. J. S. Fuqua, THDA chairman, asked that all reservations for the district one meeting and luncheon be made with her at once, as these must be in by April 10, and hotel reservations must be made by April 16.

Lefors Baptist WMS Gives Dinner For High School Seniors

What's RIGHT?
You are about to tell a story, but think you should first warn your audience: "You can't really appreciate this without knowing the people involved."

WRONG: Explain that, and then go ahead with the story, even though none of your audience does know the personalities involved.

RIGHT: If it isn't a good story unless your audience knows the individuals it is about, and they don't know them, don't bore them with the story.

You make a date with a girl for eight o'clock.

WRONG: Don't bother getting to her house exactly on time.

RIGHT: Be on time, since it is rude for a man to keep a girl waiting.

W. G. Burton, educational director at the First Baptist Church in Perryton, was the speaker. Mr. Burton gave an inspirational address.

W. B. Minter pronounced the benediction.

Lefors Baptist WMS Gives Dinner For High School Seniors

Lefors — (Special) — The Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church honored the high school seniors with a banquet in the annex of the church Saturday evening.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Wilson, Mrs. Floyd Turner, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Minter and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rallsback.

A Chinese theme was carried out in the menu and decorations. Wanda Vaughn, Betty Henderson, Geraldine Dunn, and Betty Pulliam, dressed in appropriate costume, served the meal.

W. E. Minter, Sunday School superintendent, served as master of ceremonies. Ed Rallsback gave the invocation. The welcome was given by Mrs. Rallsback, and the response by Nell Guthrie. The "House Girls" sang two songs, "On a Slow Boat to China," and "It Is No Secret What God Can Do."

BEAUTY AFTER FORTY

Women can do anything! To farm to buy. She got the Boy Scouts and school children to help her at berry picking time. The berries were so clean when boxed that there was no need to wash them before using. Big berries were on the bottom as well as on the top, another success secret!

That's the kind of woman she is — Big berries on the bottom of the box as well as on the top, a key to character! When she wasn't doing dressmaking Mrs. Lowrie wrote a series of little books on what women could do to make money at home and, in the middle — she had another baby!

She is the mother of five children. She lost a beloved son, but she gritted her teeth and went on. She and her husband have just built a new home, where she forgets all about business and has fun with the family.

Mrs. Lowrie has also written a book on sewing and she does much of her own ribbon designing. She can make anything out of ribbon and works out ribbon ideas for fashion designers and nationwide promotions.

She has her After Forty Career into a neat, ribboned package and I think that it should be topped by a Blue Ribbon, for a Winner! People began driving out to her!

FHA Of Lefors Attends Area One Meeting In Amarillo High School

Thirty-two members of the Lefors Chapter of FHA attended the annual Area 1 FHA meeting Saturday at the Amarillo High School. Miss Norma Lamb, sponsor, accompanied the girls.

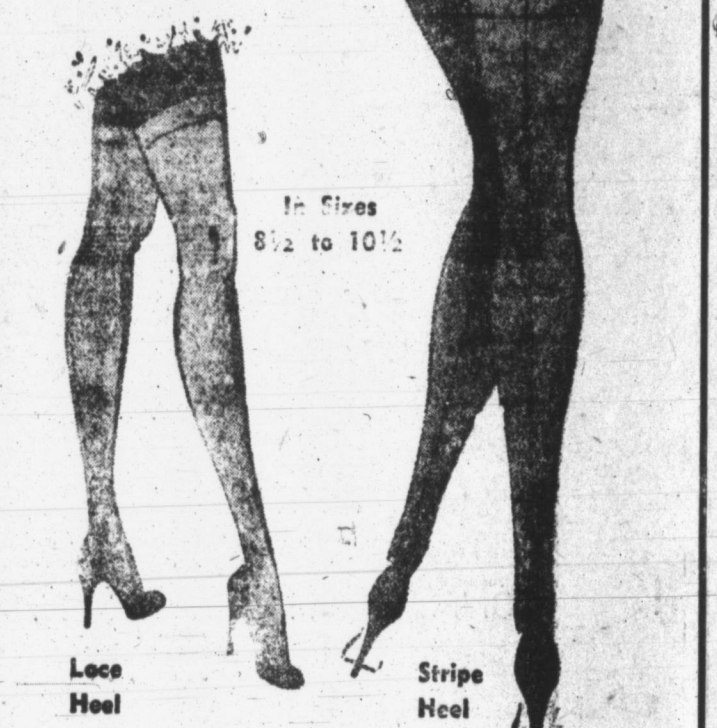

Registration began at 8:30 a.m. and continued until 9:30. From that time until noon, several different programs were presented.

The Amarillo High School Bel-Canto Choir sang. Miss Margaret School of Austin, assistant state supervisor of home economics, gave a talk, and the Hereford chapter presented a song and dance program entitled "Check'd Shirts and Swinging Skirts."

Just before lunch, candidates for office were introduced.

At 2:15 p.m., a style show was held. One delegate from each chapter modeled a garment which had been made in home-making sewing class. Melba Eigham was the Lefors model, wearing a tailored white linen suit.

You Can Eat All You Want But Eat Less Too

Sounds like double talk, but it isn't. In other words, asks the girl who is fighting the battle of the bulge, "How can I take off weight without going hungry?" Well, common sense says eat less. You eat plenty to satisfy your appetite and still eat LESS.

It just doesn't make sense to go on a strenuous diet, take off weight, then quickly put it back on again when the diet period is over. For it is obvious that one cannot go on a rigid diet over a protracted period.

Recently there has appeared on the market several diet and vitamin "plans" which forbid certain weaknesses caused by lack of food. But by restricting above, you can't lose this very thing and when you quit—back comes the fat.

An exhaustive survey made among Texas

Druggists recently has shown one outstanding reducing aid is not based on the diet and vitamin "plan." It allows you to eat all you want, but you eat LESS.

Nearly four million bottles of this preparation, called Barostreite, have been sold in Texas in the past eight years.

There is no harmful in Barostreite which definitely curbs your appetite and stops you from eating more than you need for the energy you spend. At the same time it depurates and eliminates. There is no habit forming in Barostreite. The formula is plainly printed on the label. You can get a four-ounce bottle of Barostreite from any Texas druggist. Mix with 12 ounces of warm grapefruit juice and take two tablespoonsful twice a day. If the very first bottle shows you the simple, easy way to lose that extra fat, ask druggist to refund your money.

Mormon Succumbs

SALT LAKE CITY — (AP) — George Albert Smith, the kind, soft spoken eighth president of the Latter-Day Saints (Mormon) Church died at 7:27 p.m. (9:27 p.m. EST) last night at his Salt Lake City home.

Death came on his 81st birthday as members of the mighty Mormon empire flocked into Salt Lake City for the church's 121st biennial conference.

President Truman commented that this nation has "lost a great man."

Church president slightly less than six years, Elder Smith had been ill for most of the winter.

THEIR MOTHER FOUND DEAD—Three children of Mrs. Martin Maffettone, found beaten and stabbed to death in her apartment on the New York lower east side April 1, console each other after learning that their mother had been killed. Left to right are Josephine, 16; Dominick, 6, and Constance 12. The children lived with their father, Ignatius, superintendent of four apartment buildings, who told police his wife moved to a separate apartment a year ago because her health was not good. Shamrock FFA Boys Attend Dairy Show In Wheeler Today

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Howard Weatherby, vocational agriculture instructor, will take his FFA boys to Wheeler today for the Dairy Day events.

Weatherby said his boys with a particular interest in dairy production, would show animals in which they are interested. Tom and Mac Christner, whose father owns a Shamrock dairy, will show the blooded heifer Tom received the chamber of commerce deal whereby a youth receiving a blooded heifer from Ontario, Canada, farms turns over a heifer offspring to another boy.

This program has turned over three times already. Weatherby said the Jerseys from a bull farm in Canada are among the world's finest.

Judging teams from Shamrock, Mobeetle, Wheeler, Canadian and many other towns in the area will compete for honors.

STANDS PAT — Clarence E. McVey leans on cell door in jail at Graham, N. C., where he was held April 2 in contempt of court for refusing to withdraw his son from school after starting him before the child had reached the minimum school age. The child, David McVey, is making good grades and the father told a reporter that he'll stay in jail "until I rot before I'll take little David out of school now." (AP Wirephoto)

La Prensa Makes Plea

BUENOS AIRES — (AP) — Intercession by Argentina's supreme court to combat congressional seizure of La Prensa is being sought by the padlocked newspaper's attorneys.

Argentine law gives the supreme court the right of review over acts of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the government.

Acting for Mrs. Zelmira Paz de Anchorena, La Prensa's owner, attorneys Manuel Ordóñez and Rodolfo Luque sent a formal petition to the congressional committee which has seized the newspaper, asking that it submit its actions to the supreme court.

The petition claimed the committee's Congress-authorized seizure of the paper was unconstitutional.

Mrs. Paz de Anchorena is the mother of Alberto Gainza Paz, editor and publisher of La Prensa, who was forced to flee

Hollywood Stars Join Circus For Benefit Show In New York

NEW YORK — (AP) — The circus came to town last night but at times it was a little hard to recognize.

The sawdust was purple, except where it was orange in the three center rings. Dancers dressed like pineapples hung by one foot 20 feet in the air and played xylophones. Metropolitan Opera Star Lauritz Melchior led a parade with strip teaser Gypsy Ross Lee in the last float. (No, Miss Lee didn't.)

And that parade ended with everybody singing "White Christmas" while imitation snowflakes sifted down from overhead.

It all happened in Madison Square Garden, with dozens of stars of the entertainment world popping in and out among the glamorous, glittering gals and the marvelous mastodontic mammals (elephants, to you.)

Stars of stage, screen, radio and television helped enthusiastically, occasionally turning the circus into a Hollywood extravaganza.

Sometimes it became a rather roomy nightclub, as when Jimmy Durante and his old-time partner Eddie Jackson sang "Bill Bailey, Won't You Please Come Home," while Lauritz Melchior conducted a ten-piece band.

Some of the celebrities who helped put $180,000 in the heart association money chest donned clown costumes (Don Ameche, Buddy Rogers, Tony Martin, Bob Lahr, Jack Dempsey); some like Bob Hope, Frances Langford, Sid Caesar and Arthur Godfrey just spoke a few words.

The circus itself — when it showed up in between the star appearances — was more "laborate" than usual, an official admitted. Hollywood camera crews are traveling with the show, making a picture of the orange and purple sawdust and the Broadway-type production numbers.

But the Great Morturi was there. Suspended some 40 feet in the air, he holds a huge steel perforated sphere from his teeth. Inside the sphere is a gorgeous girl. She rides a bicycle while he's holding the sphere.

And restoring the full and proper flavor of the circus, at least one empty wallet was turned in and one enterprising youth balked at not being able to crawl under the tent, scrambled over a seven-foot partition and disappeared into the legally admitted crowd.

We Announce the REMOVAL of our office Monday, April 2 to the 2nd Floor HUGHES BLDG. Drs. Falkenstein AND Elder Physicians & Surgeons following a virus infection attack. His health ebbed since he returned from hospital confinement in February.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at the famed, oval-domed Mormon Tabernacle on Temple Square, a short distance from the family home where President Smith was born April 4, 1870.

At the age of 75, Elder Smith became church president May 21, 1945. He took office a week after the death of his predecessor, Heber J. Grant, to become the spiritual leader of a million Mormons.

David O. McKay, who like President Smith has traveled the world as a Mormon emissary, is the likely successor to the high office.

McKay, who served as second counselor to President Smith, regains his status as president of the Council of Twelve Apostles. Under normal procedure, he will be selected president of the church. However the council is not bound by precedent.

Fair Enough-Pegler

This is a continuation of a slightly condensed version of a notice to the boss unionists that under the present war mobilization system, they will not be allowed to interfere with the production of other war materials.

It reads: "Union officials have been terribly worried about these three developments: 1. — Union membership remains at about 15 million out of a total work force of over 60 million.

2. — Voters at the polls have elected top union officials as political and economic stewards of the nation. The income of the unions is estimated at between $300 million and $500 million a year.

Better Jobs

By R. C. HOILES

School Teachers' Double Standard is Socialistic... I have been quoting from answers that public school teacher J. T. Acree of Colorado Springs made to questions asked him at the Little Theater of the Santa Ana High school to determine whether or not tax supported schools were based on the moral principles of the Ten Commandments.

Question: "Doesn't it look as if we are approaching that stage very rapidly?" Answer: "I think not." Question: "Doesn't the United States take up to 30% of a man's income now?" Answer: "I thought it was 91% sir, but it is a fantastically large figure."

The Healing Arts Success Secrets

By DAVID BAXTER

I have been discussing the business of healing sickness now and then from the standpoint of professional ethics... What a philosophy of success! That is in one little sentence! People tell me sometimes that they get confused when they read that one authority says you must "take it easy" and not worry — then they read somewhere else that they must work harder than the other fellow if you want to get ahead.

Roberts has mastered the art of "taking it easy." He never hurries doesn't get flustered, very seldom, if ever, frets or worries about his job. He isn't easily excited. He works and thinks relaxed.

THEY regard as proper or improper, I will protect, pulpit people who are not as wise as I am by only permitting them to receive such services as I, through my state examiners, have decided they may receive.

Washington... by Peter Edson

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The U. S. Secret Service came darn near to wrecking friendly relations between the French and the United States the other night and spoiling the Washington visit of French President Vincent Auriol to boot.

MADAM PANIT, the Indian ambassador, finally gave up in disgust and started home. The line behind her moved up one step. Later she was back, however, for the word spread that diplomats — the top diplomats and their families, that is — could be admitted. So they pulled their rank and pulled out of line and crashed the gate. Nobody cheered.

Washington... by Peter Edson

1500 of Washington's supposedly best people, all dolled up in white ties, tails and their best evening gowns, stood in line outside and waited to get in. Comparison to a line before a soup kitchen would be apt, if the folks hadn't been dressed up so fancy and if the free feed hadn't been French pastry and champagne.

So, until the line began to move. By 1 a.m., everybody was inside. And boy was it wonderful and worth waiting for. Vive le President Auriol! Le Foreign Minister Schuman? Magnifique! Vive l'Ambassadeur Henri Bonnevillain! Madame Auriol! Madame Bonnet — Tres belles. Vive les Paris dressmakers and vive le champagne. After a couple, nobody was mad at anybody.

CARBON BLACK INDUSTRY DURING TEXAS INDUSTRIAL WEEK

Pampa is greatly indebted to the Carbon Black Industry for the part that it has played in the development of Pampa and the Top o' Texas area.

During this week, Texas' Second Statewide Industrial Week, we are proud to salute the Carbon Black Industry . . . while at the same time, we pledge our assistance in any way at any time to assure its perpetuation.

FILIBUSTERING — State Senator Jimmy Phillips of Angleton, Texas, pays no attention Monday night, April 2, as Senator Hill Hudson of Pecos, Texas, tries to divert his attention to ask a question during Phillips' one-man, record-breaking filibuster against a bill to abolish the state hospital board. Phillips, who argued that the board hadn't been given a chance, spoke for 17 hours and 55 minutes. Phillips' record-breaking filibuster was snuffed out when the presiding officer, Senator Pat Bullock of Colorado City, Texas, ruled that Phillips had yielded the floor without condition to another speaker. Phillips hotly protested the ruling, insisting that he had yielded only for a question. (AP Wirephoto)

Harpist To Close Season's Concerts

Closing Pampa's season of concerts tonight at the junior high school auditorium will be Mildred Dilling, harpist.

Miss Dilling will open her program at 8:30 p. m. with two Bach selections, followed by one of Mozart's most loved works, "Alegro from Sonata in C."

Among her other selections, Miss Dilling has chosen to play Franz Liszt's "Liebestraum," "The Fountain" by Albert Zabel. The last part of her program will include "Clair de Lune," "Fireflies," "Granada," and "The Forest Pool."

Miss Dilling will close her program with "Legende" by Henriette Renie, a sad tale written after the poem "Les Elfes."

Born in America, her early musical studies were begun in this country, later she continued them in Europe under Henriette Renie, French harpist.

She made her European debut at the Salle Erard in Paris and was engaged for concerts at the Trocadero and the Salle Gaveau, the largest concert halls in Paris, followed by concerts on the continent and in the British Isles.

While in Europe, the American artist was given the distinction of being the first solo harpist to broadcast over the radio in Ireland.

On her return to America, Miss Dilling appeared in recital in all 48 states and Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Central and South American and Hawaii. She has appeared as soloist with many of the nation's leading orchestras. She has appeared as guest artist on many of the musical shows on the American networks.

Miss Dilling's program is the fourth and last concert of the season, which has included such performers as Walter Cassell, baritone, Mia Slavenska's Ballet Variante and The Trapp Family Singers.

Membership renewals will be accepted before the curtain goes up Thursday night on the last concert. Several members of the Pampa Concert Assn. will be on hand to receive renewals. These will be accepted until April 23. New memberships may be bought until noon, April 28.

Texas Draft Quota For May Is Reduced

AUSTIN — (AP) — Reductions in the national draft call for May was good news in Texas as state headquarters announced it would call 3,000 fewer men for physicals than originally scheduled.

Brig. Gen. Paul Wakefield, state selective service director, said his office will call 6,907 men next month. Earlier plans had about 10,000 physicals scheduled.

Wakefield said local quotas for May physicals and inductions are in the hands of the local boards. The induction quota for Texas is 3,112.

The quota will bring the number of Texas inductions to 31,211 since the start of the Korean war.

Newspaper Reveals Russia's Storage For Atomic Bombs

PARIS — (AP) — The independent newspaper Figaro, in an unsigned article, says Russia has her atoms stored 135 feet underground in an arsenal 145 miles southeast of Tomak, Siberia.

It said the Soviet Union now has four atomic plants, one near Tomak and the others in the Caucasus, Kazakhstan and Turkistan. The atomic areas are heavily guarded by fighter planes, it added.

Figaro said the West does not know how many A-bombs Russia has, but it said western intelligence gets information on Russian progress in arms from three
